WON AT LAST.

CHAPTER XXI.

It appeared to me that this was confirmation pretty strong, and I looked at madame to see what she thought of it. Pretty much the same, it seemed. At any rate, she gave Yorke no opportunity to reply, but advanced into the fire-light.

"Natalie, my dear, don't you think it is time to get ready for dinner?"

Miss Nat uttered a little shriek, and sprang out of Roger's arms almost as quickly as I had seen her spring into them. Madame laughed a little, and held out her hand to him.

"This is my first time that I have had the opportunity of tendering you my congratulations, Doctor Yorke. It seems that they are to be two-fold." She glanced with a smile at Nat's rosy face. "I must certainly compliment you upon being a very excellent and effective physician; I think we should have sent for you before. Don't you think so, Natalie? There—I declare that is the dinner-bell! You will stay, of course, Doctor Yorke? Come, my dear—we shall be late as it is!"

With that, and another most gracious smile, madame went out of the room, taking Nat with her.

Yorke's face of astonished incredulity as the door closed behind the pair was a study. I sat down upon the edge of a table and laughed.

"What does that mean?" he said, staring at me.

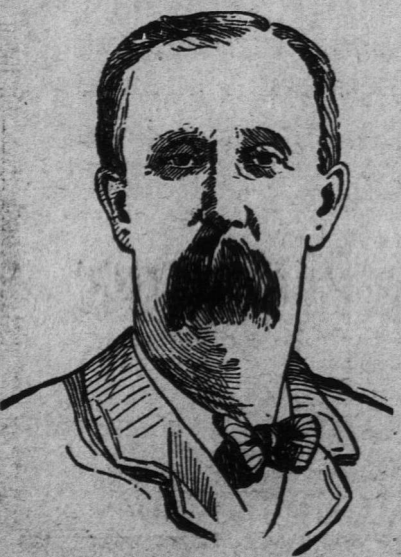

"Oh, nothing!" I returned, laughing again as I prepared to follow. "I have respect for madame's nerves, you see, and I thought, as my foot was in it so far, that I'd break the ice for you. That's all."

Altogether I think the party gathered round the Chavasse dinner-table that evening was the most cheerful one that we had had for some time. I do not think any one of us missed the pale face which had grown so familiar there—that of Lucille Valdin, who deserved as much pity as blame after all, all things considered.

Madame, having thus valiantly made up her mind to smoke the pipe of peace, seemed determined that it should not go out again, and was everything that was kind and gracious. And, when the meal was over, she contrived to have something very important to do somewhere, and leaving the room for that purpose, quite forgot to come back again; while I, not caring to play the part of such a very obvious number three, went over

Now feels Strong and Vigorous

And Fit for Any Amount of Work as the Result of Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mr. J. Hurlbert.

It is so easy to overlook the warning given by headaches, indigestion, falling memory, lack of power to concentrate the mind, irritability and worry over little things, that many a man does not realize his danger until on the verge of breakdown. Like the writer of the letter quoted below, you can call a halt to the wasting process and restore vim and energy to the nervous system by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great food cure has a wonderful record of cures.

Mr. J. Hurlbert, 23 James street, Brantford, Ont., writes:—"I was very much run down in health and as a consequence my nervous system was very much exhausted. Close confinement at my work, I think, brought on the trouble. I started using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and by the time I had used up one box I felt a great improvement. The continued use of this preparation has thoroughly restored my system so that I feel strong and vigorous and fit for any amount of work. I have also used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Ointment with splendid satisfaction, and recommend them of every opportunity." to the dark nook where the piano was, and amused myself by idly strumming over any odd bits that chanced to come into my head.

Getting tired of it after awhile, and strolling back to the fire, I found that the two had made themselves comfortable in one of the big window-seats—the very one where Miss Nat used to sit to read her sentimental poetry and look at the moon. They were talking, of course; and, making myself comfortable in an arm-chair with my feet on the fender, I got the benefit of most of it.

"My darling," Yorke was saying, seriously; "it is miserable enough, I know. Don't think that I want to make light of it; but, if we were to say that we would not be happy because some one else is wretched, we should waste our lives and do no good to ourselves or any one else. Don't you see that?"

"But I feel so much to blame," said Nat, sorrowfully.

"Without need, then. It was not your fault that that poor fellow who is dead, loved you; and, as for what he did—well, you would not have liked it done to me instead of Froude, would you?"

"Oh, don't," she cried, with a gulp shivering as she nestled more closely to his shoulder—"it is awful only to think of it! That is what Ned said to me."

"And Ned was quite right! Let us be happy while we can. It is the best policy and the best principle too."

"Roger," said Nat, wistfully, after a little pause, "you did mean to forgive me, didn't you? I mean, you would—if I had given you a chance?"

"Oh, yes, I dare say I should have managed it!"

"Then that horrid boy was only teasing me! I'll pay him out one of these days. And you won't tease me about it, will you?"

"About what?"

"Oh, you know! What I said while you were listening."

"You little goose!" said Yorke, tenderly; and she laughed, nodding her curly head.

"Oh, but of course I know it was awful—in fact, it has all been awful! I don't know what madame would say if she knew. But then I don't care either—that's one comfort. But you won't tease me about it, will you really and truly—not even when we squabble?"

"Oh, we're going to squabble, are we?"

"Of course—I always do. Why, I am fonder of Ned than of anybody else—no, don't expect me to say 'except you'—I sha'n't—and I believe I've quarrelled with him about a million times."

"Cheerful for Ned!" Roger said laughing; and then there was a longer pause, while he looked down tenderly at the curly head and the little dark, brilliant face resting against his breast, and Miss Nat stared out thoughtfully at the snow.

When Roger did speak, it was seriously, putting his hand under her chin the better to look down into her eyes.

"Natalie, I have never heard you say it, my dearest, but I should like to know, before we put away the subject and forget it. You never believed that I did it—did you?"

"I believe it!" cried Nat, wrathfully, staring with incredulous, astonished eyes. "I believe it! Oh, my darling, do you think I would ever have believed it if you had done it?"

to Mrs. Yorke, the old house has not begun to get over missing her yet. In fact, the occupants of the Mount and the rectory were dependent together, for the rector had to perform a double ceremony on that day, and I stood "best man" to both the bridegrooms. The Reverend Titus assisted, with a worse cold than ever; and I am sorry to say that Mrs. Deeping cast a decided damper upon the proceedings by weeping copiously all the time, and being so exceedingly ill and overcome afterward that it appeared doubtful whether Major Constable and his wife would ever start on their wedding trip at all. It is a good thing for madame that Redpots is not far from Chavasse, for the days are very rare when she does not drive thither, provided of course that Roger does not bring his wife to the Mount. And Redpots is another place to look at too, and, from being the picturesque old ruin it used to be, is the spruce abode in Whittlesford. Not too spruce, though. It was madame who superintended the operations of the upholsterers and directed the proceedings of the carpenters and gardeners, so I need hardly say that from the chimney-pots to the knobs of the hall door there is no glare.

Not that quite all of the place is renovated. The rooms in the left wing remain pretty much as they were, for they are old Dizarte's, and he still holds sway in that part of the establishment. He was a little jealous of Nat at first, I think, and even now seldom leaves that part of the house where shabbiness is and the improvements are not, nor penetrates further than Roger's den, where the boots still lie on the floor, and the skeleton stands grewsome in the corner; but he is very fond of the little lady now, and pets and spoils her tremendously; and, being under the same roof with his "boy," he is perfectly happy.

Valla followed her little mistress to her new home of course, where I hear she holds the Redpots servants in considerable terror and subjection. I do not fancy any of the domestics at the Mount were sorry to lose her. Certainly Virtue Dent was not.

Virtue is a great favorite with my mother now—a sort of companion, in fact—and often drives with her when she goes to Redpots to see Nat.

From the windows of that abode, by the way, there is no longer to be seen Old Wilde's tumble-down cottage—it has been done away with altogether. Old Wilde's gout carried him off before the winter was over, and Miss Lotty, with her vanity and her coquettish ways and a good deal sobered down, was taken by Mrs. Deeping into the rectory household. I do not think she could have liked it much or it soon began to be whispered about that she had made it up with her old sweetheart, Phil Flood, and further, that that individual was turning over a new leaf, having completely deserted the Cap and Bells.

Finally he walked to Chavasse one day, and had an interview with madame, during which he was very awkward and repentant. The upshot of this was that madame gave him a great deal of good advice, and—what it strikes me he cared about a great deal more—the promise of the Way-

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Syrup and Save $2, by Making It at Home.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. If you take two cups of granulated sugar, add one cup of warm water and stir about 2 minutes, you have as good syrup as money could buy.

If you will then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a 16-ounce bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup, you will have as much cough syrup as you could buy ready made for $2.50. It keeps perfectly. Any housewife can easily prepare it in five minutes.

And you will find it the best cough syrup you ever used—even in whooping cough. You can feel it take hold—usually stops the most severe cough in 2 hours. It is just laxative enough, has a good tonic effect, and taste is pleasant. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

It is a splendid remedy, too, for whooping cough, croup, hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, etc.

Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in galsol and all the healing pine elements. No other preparation will work in this formula.

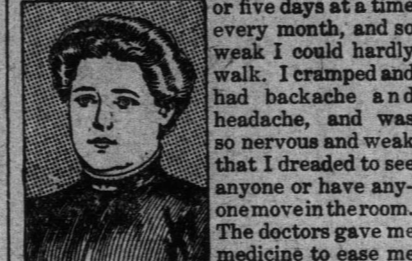

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup is now used and prized in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The plan has often been imitated, but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this recipe, if the genuine Pinex is used. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you, if you ask him, if not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

WOMEN SHOULD BE PROTECTED

Against So Many Surgical Operations. How Mrs. Bethune and Mrs. Moore Escaped.

Sikeston, Mo.—"For seven years I suffered everything. I was in bed for four or five days at a time every month, and so weak I could hardly walk. I cramped and had headache and dizziness, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it. Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do my own housework, hoe my garden, and milk a cow. I can entertain company and enjoy them. I can visit when I choose, and walk as far as any ordinary woman, any day in the month. I wish I could talk to every suffering woman and girl."—Mrs. DEMA BETHUNE, Sikeston, Mo.

Murrayville, Ill.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a very bad case of female trouble and it made me a well woman. My health was all broken down, the doctors said I must have an operation, and I was ready to go to the hospital, but I dreaded it so that I began taking your Compound. I got along so well that I gave up the doctors and was saved from the operation."—Mrs. CHARLES MOORE, R. R. No. 3, Murrayville, Ill.

side Cottage, and he and Lotty are going to take the fatal plunge this day week.

As for madame, she is quite reconciled to the inevitable by this time, and is immensely gracious to Dr. Yorke and Dr. Yorke's wife. Turning into the drawing-room at Redpots, yesterday, I chanced upon this spectacle—Nat perched upon Roger's knee, with his arm around her while she industriously cobbled a hole in his other coat-sleeve; and madame, sitting there and looking on beamed upon the coat, its wearer, and its mender with complacent satisfaction.

Irish Night at Bell Island.

Irish Night was fittingly celebrated on the 17th inst., at Bell Island, when, by special permission from the Archbishop, the parishioners of St. Michael's Church held a very successful entertainment emblematic of the day, which was held in St. Joseph's Hall, and took the form of an Irish concert, followed by a one-act Irish Drama entitled "The Exile" or "The Wearing of the Green." This drama was, we understand, held under the direction of Mr. Leo C. Murphy, now residing on the Iron Isle, and who was always a prominent figure in the theatrical life of the city. The concert consisted of solos, musical numbers, recitations and duets. Misses Nugent and Murphy contributed to the musical numbers, and Misses Jackman, Nugent, and Messrs. Pine and Burnham the solos; while Miss Jackman and Mr. Michael Jackman displayed rare talent in the duet "Life's Dream is O'er." Mr. J. M. Greene rendered the well-known recitation, "Cremona," and for an encore brought the audience back to the days of the American Civil War, by the recitation of the pathetic poem "The Last Picket." Mr. Burnham's rendition of the solo "Tipperary," was very pleasing and brought forth an encore. Rev. J. J. McGrath opened the entertainment with a short speech on St. Patrick's Day, and was warmly applauded. The playlet, which was the first of its kind ever produced on Bell Island, was a great hit. The Irish characters, Irish costumes, Irish scenery, Irish people, and played on Irish Night, created a great impression and stirred up the true spirit in the breasts of those of Irish descent who had the pleasure of witnessing it. As Nyles-Na-Coppaleen, Mr. Leo C. Murphy showed himself master of the situation, and his rendition showed he has lost none of his former talent. Mr. Chas. Peddie, as Corrigan, took the part to perfection and rendered this difficult role with great skill. Mr. W. J. English, one of St. John's "Old Favorite" actors, showed he could come back in capital style, and as Terence O'Regan, depicted the Irish Peasant admirably. The hall was filled by an appreciative audience, who warmly applauded the various items rendered.

Redemptorist Fathers at Argentina.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—To-day was concluded the most edifying and certainly the most momentous affair in the history of Argentina, the closing of the Mission given by the Rev. Fathers of the Redemptorist Order to this community. The services during the past week were most impressive. A crowded church daily and nightly greeted the eloquent preachers and listened with wrapt attention to the beautiful and profound discourses and sermons delivered by them in a forceful and masterly manner.

These zealous men, pious, unostentatious, unselfish, deserve more than mere mention, and deserving of more praise than my feeble pen can describe, and I leave to able minds the task of contributing that meed of merit which they deserve because of their untiring and assiduous efforts for the advancement and uplifting of humanity.

To return: At the early hour of 5 a.m. the whole settlement was astir, and from all quarters could be seen men, women and children, wending their way to the Parish Church, to participate in the grandest function ever witnessed in this settlement, and one which is not likely to happen again in the lifetime of at least the older people of the place. The good effects of this Mission will be manifold, far-reaching and beneficial results are already apparent. The hearts of our people have been stirred to their inmost recesses, and the lessons inculcated, treasured and prized by them are known only to Him whose All-seeing eye beholds everything, and who is the "Searcher of all hearts."

It certainly speaks well for the earnestness and sincerity of a community to find all without one exception, availing themselves of the present opportunity of Grace. And on behalf of the people of Argentina, who have approached me on this matter, I beg to offer their heartfelt thanks to our esteemed and zealous Pastor, Rev. J. Ashley, whose solicitude and sincere desire for the spiritual and temporal welfare of his people prompted him to obtain for us the services of those eminent and religious men, whom we have listened to the past week with feelings of unalloyed pleasure and happiness, and let us hope, with profit for the obtaining of the one and only affair necessary, that of our eternal salvation.

A collection, a feeble-tribute of appreciation, is in progress, not being finalized, I am unable to give exact figures, but the amount will certainly reach $500 or probably be in excess of that sum.

The missionaries leave to-day for Fox Harbor, where a mission will be given in the course of the week.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN T. O'REILLY,
Argentina, March 17, 1913.

Salt Rheum For Six Years.

Zam-Buk Has Cured Him.

For over six years Mr. William H. Birt, of Pisquid, P.E.I., suffered from salt rheum. He says: "The disease attacked my arms and hands, and the fore-finger of my right hand was the worst."

"I was engaged as a blacksmith by the Bruce Stewart Co., of Charlottetown, and sometimes every stroke of the hammer would cause the finger to bleed freely. I tried various ointments and salves, and then went to several doctors in and around Charlottetown.

"One medical man, after treating me for some time said he did not think I could ever be cured. Another put my finger into some fluid, which seemed to burn it terribly, and then put a straight jacket—as I called it—on the finger for two days. Trying one thing and another I spent over $50.00; and all in vain.

"I saw an account of some of the great cures which Zam-Buk has worked and decided to try it. The first box did me a lot of good, and the finger showed traces of healing, so I kept up the Zam-Buk treatment and a few boxes worked a cure. There has been no return of any trace of the disease, so I know the cure is permanent, and I am so thankful for my cure that you are at liberty to use these facts as you like."

Reader, if you have any skin disease, cut, burn, cold sore or skin injury, try Zam-Buk. It is absolutely unique as a healer. Druggists and stores everywhere at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfld., for price.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The other day I read of a decorator who was extremely proud of a certain room which he had created. He had chosen and arranged the furniture and hangings, and even the woodwork of the floor and wall he had brought from Europe especially for that room. He considered the effect absolutely perfect, and when he heard that the woman who owned the house had bought some more furniture on her own hook and put it into the room, he was almost frantic.

You see, he considered that that room was his work. He felt that he had created it just as an artist creates a picture, or an author a book, and although he could not actually sign it as an artist or an author signs his work, he felt that it was signed by the fact that many people knew it was his work. Therefore he resented having it changed and spoiled even by the legal owner of the house. And at the risk of antagonizing a valuable customer, he actually went to her and begged her to restore it.

I was deeply impressed by that little incident. For this reason, I wish more women felt toward their homes as that man felt toward his work, for they certainly have reason to. A woman's home is her expression of herself. Her name is signed to it just as clearly as if she had painted a picture.

FOR WOMEN ONLY.

That is the nature of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—the one remedy for women which contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs. Made from native medicinal forest roots. Dr. Pierce tells its every ingredient on the bottle-wrapper. Prominent physicians and some of the best medical authorities endorse these ingredients as being the very best known remedies for ailments and weaknesses peculiar to women.

This is what Mrs. GENETTI E. COFFEY, of Longstreet, Ky., says: "I feel it my duty to write and tell you what your medicines have done for me. I was a great sufferer for six years from a trouble peculiar to women, but I am thankful to say, after taking four bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I am not bothered with that dreadful disease any more. I feel like a new woman. When I first wrote you for advice I only weighed 115 pounds—now I weigh 135. I thank you very much for your kindness. You have been as a father to me in advising me what to do, so may God bless you in every effort you put forth for good. I hope this testimonial will be the means of some poor suffering woman seeking health."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, newly revised up-to-date edition, answers hosts of questions.

Notes of Long Ago.

L. C. MORRIS.
CHAPTER XXVII.—THE IRISH HEROINES.

As the years rolled on, the closest ties of friendship and affection existed between the families, and they always cherished a warm place in their hearts for their native home and for the land they loved. But they never regretted having emigrated, and they were always proud of having made Newfoundland their choice. Its sunshine and its health-giving properties, its quiet and its seclusion, they always prized; and they ever had good words, and good words only, for the land of their adoption. They had faith in Newfoundland. They believed in its possibilities and its future; and their faith and their enterprise, with that of others like them, has been instrumental in bringing our country to her present status. In Norah they ever found a faithful member of their family; and one who well repaid them for their care in bringing her to Newfoundland. She proved true in the storms as well as the sunshine; and when the troubles and heartbreaks which more or less come to every household, and to every fireside, came to them, they found in her a source of comfort and a source of consolation. Especially was this so at one particular period of their life, when reverses of fortune threatened them, and the burden for a while seemed heavy; but Norah and her good husband stood by them, and tidied them over the emergency, and showed in a practical manner that they were more than fair-weather friends.

And so the years rolled on, and for some forty years they were neighbors and companions. During that long time their families grew up, and children and grand-children came upon the scene; and when the end came, it was the end of peace and contentment. Their names are now, like many others who pioneered St. John's, unknown and lost, but their influence is still felt. They never sought public life nor worldly honours, but rather did they tread the path of industry and toil, and helped the commerce of their times. In all their career our two ladies were faithful and true to the best interests of their adopted home, and they were also loyal and faithful to themselves. This is why I have called them "heroines," though the battles they fought were in the quiet of life; and their principles they loved were chiefly domestic and social. They always stood for the development of true womanhood and Christian character; and for the guardianship of the home and the sanctity of the fireside; and for the Christian training of the children whom God had given them. These were the features and characteristics which meant so much to our forefathers and to our nation, and to our country; and these are the characteristics that are still dear to the heart of the British nation; and because our friends possessed these, and practiced them, we have called them heroines; and we feel sure that our readers will agree that they were deserving of the name. Their career was honourable but not all smooth; for they witnessed no few catastrophes in the city's early history. They saw the Ninth of June fire of 1846; and after they saw the town ravaged by the Asiatic Cholera; but they stood firm amid it all. They witnessed the building of both our beautiful Cathedrals; and of our Colonial Building; and also of Government House; and with these they saw the city develop into the busy centre of trade they had always hoped for. These things all meant a test of their faith, and all tended to prove their hope in the future of Newfoundland; and towards the end they realized their vision almost to the full. For near half a century our friends have been sleeping in Mother Earth, and their monuments stand in the quiet shades of Belvidere. Some few in passing may look at their monuments, and stop to read their epitaphs; but in the hurly-burly of life they are mostly forgotten. Such is the way of life, and the destiny of the human race.

But we must not forget the youngest of the party of emigrants of whom we have been writing; as she must certainly have been the object of interest and affection among the household. Being but two or three years of age when she was brought to Newfoundland, she could not have had any knowledge of her native country; therefore her earliest associations and recollections were centred in St. John's; and were largely influenced by the home circle, and by Norah and her children. She was carefully and strictly trained in her religious duties; and she received the best education that it was possible to get. The discipline of the home, and the care of her teachers had their desired effect; and as she grew and developed into womanhood, she was a daughter of whom any parent could feel proud. She therefore was the idol almost of the home; and the circle being small and relatives but few, it was natural that her feelings and affections were deeply developed.

So close were the ties of home life that it would seem they could not be broken. But in the course of time they were severed, and she too, made her own home, and became the proud wife of a gentleman who had crossed the ocean and had come from the land of her birth. It almost seemed like fate that he should come so far to meet one who had been born upon the same soil, but who had left it some 20 years before. But whether it was fate or choice it proved alright; and the new home, which was the third the party had made since coming to Newfoundland, was ideal in every way; and health and peace followed it to the end.

Thus the little band of Irish emigrants who about one hundred years ago left their native land and came to St. John's, made their homes and did their part in the building up of our city. Like hundreds who came with them, they had their share of disappointments and drawbacks, but they came through it all; and by their life and character proved themselves worthy the success which attended them, and worthy the new country to which they came.

Mink Raising.

William Gates, mink farmer of Wallace, Idaho, who has demonstrated his ability to raise small fur-bearing animals in captivity, has been made an expert in the employ of the biological department of the United States Government. Two experts from the department were sent to Wallace and they found that Mr. Gates' success had accomplished what the efforts of many others had failed to do. The Government has promised to provide a 10-acre ranch in the forest reserve along the north fork of the Coeur d'Alene River, and in addition to equipment for the farm has offered the investigator a salary sufficient to permit him to devote all his time to the work.—Rod and Gun for March.

Linnaeus named it Θεοβρωμα Meaning "Food of the Gods"

In 1720, Linnaeus named the cocoa tree, "Theobroma Cacao," thus perpetuating the Mexican characterization of cocoa as "Food of the Gods".

The title is well deserved, for properly made cocoa is a delicious beverage. And, outside of milk, cocoa is the only every-day beverage that has a pronounced nutritive value.

While tea and coffee are often refreshing, they are far too often injurious.

Good cocoa, on the other hand, is never injurious, always refreshing and always nourishing.

Consternation in the Tory Ranks.

The House adjourned yesterday over Easter. Since the opening date, a most determined fight has been put up against the Spend-Thrift policy of the Morris Government, with a corresponding increase of consternation in the Tory ranks. Every sitting has added to the Hazard for future circulation throughout the Colony, damaging evidence in the people's cause. The demands of the Opposition for perfectly legitimate and necessary information have had to be complied with. We are, however, still very much in the dark as to the future intentions of the Government. Palling argument, the Government on several occasions, thought to bully the Opposition but they found more than a match in Kent and Cliff. Meanwhile they are waiting anxiously for the moment when they think it will be a safe game to close the House. Needless to say any undue haste will be resisted strenuously by the Liberal members, who will persist in their legitimate demands for detailed information, so far not forthcoming. How Patriots "Make Good."

The parrot cry of McGrath "Morris is making good" has proved a veritable boomerang for the Picnic Party. The people know how Morris has made good for himself and his masters. The patriot or Picnic Chief, poses as taking no salary, holds himself up as accepting no salary. He wants the people to believe that he is working for nothing. Yet Seven thousand dollars are not sufficient to pay him for one short visit to the Hague Tribunal.

If Morris made good on this fishery question for the public interests the public has a right to know it. That he made good for himself we are all aware. But we do not know to what extent his goodness to himself will go until we get his final bill and that may not be presented until the House closes. If any benefit resulted from the decision of the judges of this Tribunal, it is not to Morris, personally, that any gratitude is due from the country. Before he assumed office all the questions were in shape for application. The most arduous part of the work had been done by Kent, the Bond Attorney General. The pleasant picnic part was taken up by Morris in his attempt to make good picnic. Another difficult portion of the work, the preparation of the case and the argument before the Tribunal, was assigned to the late Sir J. S. Winter. Other distinguished legal gentlemen who had an active part in the Newfoundland case were the English Attorney General and Counsel and the Canadian Counsel Mr. Alan Aylesworth.

We have seen that Mr. Kent, Sir J. S. Winter, Sir Robert Finlay and Sir Alan Aylesworth did the principal work in connection with Newfoundland's case. What did Sir Edward Morris and the Hon. Donald Morrison do to justify the large payments of Seven Thousand Dollars each, made to them by the Government and the, perhaps, equally large payments contemplated in the future?

If Morris or Morrison made good in this respect, is it not about time McGrath should inform a waiting public. It is the latter who paid the picnic; they, who paid such extravagant sums for this Hague picnic and they would like to know the services performed for one thing they are assured, both these picnicers made good for themselves.

Morrison, not satisfied with making good on fees, did extremely good work for himself and company when he became the owner of 13 millions of acres of timber rights on the Labrador. Making good indeed! It is to laugh!

OBITUARY.

MRS. E. A. HUDSON.

There passed away at 5.30 yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Elizabeth Anne Hudson. For the past two or three years her health had been falling, but it was not until Thursday last that she was taken seriously ill. A bronchial attack developed into pneumonia, and after a few days of tender nursing and medical care, she fell asleep. Mrs. Hudson was the widow of the late Philip H. Hudson, who passed away about 27 years ago, and leaves three sons, Mr. George P. Hudson, Dry Goods Merchant; Mr. Phillip Hudson, buyer for Ayre & Sons, Ltd.; and Rev. Charles K. Hudson, of the New Brunswick Conference; one daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) Mark Penwick, of the Methodist College Home, and a daughter, adopted in infancy, now Mrs. Isaac Butler. Mr. Phillip Hudson has been on a visit to the United States, and is expected home at any moment, though it is feared that he cannot arrive in time for the funeral which will take place on Friday afternoon. The late Mrs. Hudson was a devoted member of Gower Street Methodist Church, held in esteem by pastors and people alike. Her greatest joy was that all her children, without exception, were active workers in the Church which she so loved. To them we extend our sympathy in their time of sorrow.

SALONIKA, To-day.

The assassin of King George is still in close confinement. At various periods he was forced to undergo examination, but without eliciting any facts to show that other persons were implicated in the crime. Schines is not a madman, but a cold, calculating, unscrupulous, and very cleverly minded. He lived by begging. Three weeks ago he came to Salonika by way of Athens. He stopped for a few days at Yolo Theesley, where he delivered harangues in which he declared that in a short time he would succeed in establishing equality; there would be no longer either rich or poor work which was now accomplished in one hour would be spread out over two. Interrogated as to why he assassinated the King, Schines replied: "I had to do somehow, as I suffered from neurasthenia, therefore, I wished to redress my life." He appears to have led a wretched existence, subsisting almost entirely on milk. His family had long ceased to acknowledge him. Schines was for a time instructor in the Medical department of a University in Athens. He refuses to give any explanation for his crime beyond the fact that two years ago he applied for assistance at the palace, and was driven away by an aide de camp. Constantine will take the oath as King of Hellenes on Friday. The hope expressed is that the King will be proclaimed as Constantine XI. The last Byzantine Emperor having been Constantine XI. The Chamber of Deputies will be summoned to take the oath of fealty to the new King, after which the Ministry will resign.

NEW YORK, To-day.

Four hundred women and children homed in the automobile of Dr. Friedman this afternoon, begging him to treat them for tuberculosis. The crowd surrounded the German physician outside the Hospital for Deformities of Joint Diseases, and a squad of police reserves had to be called to make a path for him to the hospital door. Physicians from all parts of the State, earlier in the day, gathered at Mount Sinai Hospital to watch Dr. Friedman administer his vaccine, but were refused admission. The only medical men at the clinic were three representatives of the Government, at whose request other physicians were excluded. The Hospital authorities explained that the Government physicians feared premature reports from the clinic would be made before they presented their official report to the Government. Friedman, it was said, had not made any request to have the others excluded.

Railroading Legislation.

ARTICLE IN YESTERDAY'S TELEGRAM READ IN THE HOUSE BY THE PREMIER.

Before the Assembly adjourned last evening, Mr. Morrison, the Minister of Justice, cut out from the Telegram and handed the Premier our article, headed "Railroading Legislation." The Prime Minister read it for the House, said that the Legislature had always sat Holy Week (which we doubt), said there was no intention of railroading legislation, as no night sittings were held yet, and that every facility was given for discussion of measures before the House, and that this session would be a long one. He would welcome Sir Robert Bond, when he returned, and believed the members of the Opposition had no connection with the article he had read. Reading the article in the 'News' this morning, one would imagine that the Premier had immediately donned his war paint and got after the Telegram with his bravos behind him, and that our political and journalistic scalps were in danger. As a matter of fact, Sir Edward's references were very temperate, and we believe he feels not nearly as sore over the matter as our friend the 'News.' The Premier's utterances merely amounted to a mild protest. As for ourselves and for the public, it is not enough to point to recent scenes in the Assembly for justification of our observations? For hours daily, have not the Opposition been engaged pointing out unwarranted proceedings and gross irregularities in the Estimates, which show (as they have demonstrated) that $70,000 of the people's money have been spent without Legislative Authority. Is not this wasting the time of the House and the passing of such faulty legislation, railroading matters through the House? On several occasions has not the Minister of Finance flatly refused to impart information asked for by the Opposition, thereby creating lengthy and unnecessary delays, and did not Sir Edward himself have to come to the rescue and impart what his Minister had refused? If such tactics and irregularities had not been evident, the work of the session would be greatly expedited.

LONDON, March 19.
Judgment was given to-day by the King's Bench division for Attorney General Isaacs and Postmaster General Samuel, against the French newspaper, the Matin, for libel, in connection with the recent contract made between the British Government and the Marconi Wireless Company. The newspaper was ordered to pay all costs. The Matin had imputed gross corruption to the two members of the British Cabinet in connection with alleged deals in wireless shares, but the newspaper had already withdrawn all its allegations and apologized before the suit came on. Both Cabinet ministers went on the witness stand and repudiated any connection with the market side of the Marconi contract, swearing they had never bought or sold a share in the Company concerned in the contract with the British Post Office. Isaacs, however, admitted he had made transactions in the American Marconi Company shares, six weeks after the tender for the Post Office contract had been made public. He explained that the American Company had nothing to do with the profits of the British Company, and said he had bought ten thousand American Company's shares at a premium, and had sold one thousand of them to Lloyd George and another one thousand to the Master of Elibank, who were great personal friends of his. He had sold another fifteen hundred shares, but the result of the transaction had been a financial loss to himself, to Lloyd George, and to the Master of Elibank.

LONDON, March 19.
The Conscription question is being fought out to-day at the Kendal Parliamentary division, whose Conservative candidate, Colonel Weston, is making the chief plank of his platform compulsory military service. Col. Weston's supporters call his proposals an unlimited form of National service. His opponent's cry is "No conscription." "Strengthen our home defenses, the territorial are fifty thousand short," and "Britain expects every man to do his duty," are two of Col. Weston's placards. His Liberal opponent, Mr. Somerville, responds with "Keep our lads home; vote for Somerville." Somerville's daughter has been singing at campaign meetings topical songs, the refrain of one of which runs, "We soon will take your boys for soldiers." Britain is supposed to be watching the Kendal contest with the keenest attention, particularly as regards some form of compulsory military service.

COPENHAGEN, March 19.
The late King George of Greece had intended to abdicate the throne and live the quiet life of a retired gentleman after the conclusion of peace, according to a letter from him received here to-day. The recipient is a high naval officer who was an intimate friend of the murdered ruler. In the letter King George expressed his joy at the success of the Greek army during the war, and the rapid and efficient re-organization of the Greek defensive forces. He told of his satisfaction at the Nation's display of confidence in the Crown Prince Constantine after his recent achievements. He said that he often had been inclined to abdicate, but would not do so during the country's unprosperous period; adding that after peace had been restored, and the jubilee of his reign celebrated, he would leave the throne to his son. He intended to live in Denmark, but would spend two months every year in Paris. Before settling down, His Majesty wished to make a tour of the world, and particularly desired to see America and visit the Panama Canal.

LONDON, March 19.
The announcement that President Wilson and his administration had declined to request American bankers as part of the six Powers group to continue negotiations in the $25,000,000 loan to China, has come as a great surprise to the British Government. Secretary Grey, in a reply to a question in the Commons, said the terms of the loan had the unanimous approval of the six powers interested. This reply had scarcely been in print when he news came of the decision of the American government. It is held that because of the American bankers dropping out, the loan will fall through. America holds that neither Japan nor Russia has any money to lend, and that Germany at present has nothing to spare for China.

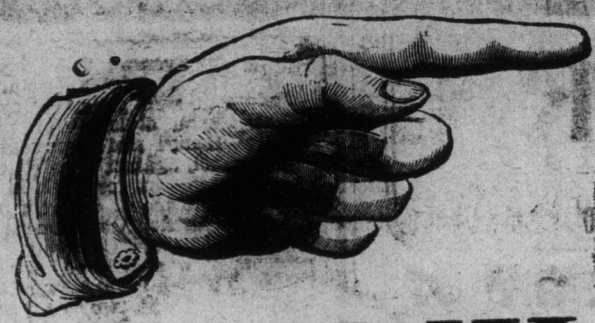

LONDON, March 19.
Speaking at a non-political meeting at Sheffield, Sir Robert Radford said that he had just returned from a Continental trip, during which he had talked with many people in France and Germany, who were qualified to now, and had found none of them "relished the idea of increasing the strength of military service, or of the number of those under arms. Conscription in England would seriously interfere with industrial progress."

LONDON, March 19.
The British Army possesses the best aeroplane in the world, and has a perfected type of flying machine far superior to any in possession of other nations, according to Col. Seeley, Secretary of State for War, who caused a sensation by making this announcement to the Commons when introducing the Army Estimates to-day.

LONDON, March 19.
A Constantinian despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co., says fighting at Tebatjala continues. The Turks have advanced about three miles north of Derkas, and in the advance occupied many strategical points.

LONDON, March 19.
The Kendal bye-election, made necessary by the death of Col. Bagot, resulted—Col. Weston, Unionist, 3,261; Somerville, Liberal, 2,660; an increased Unionist majority of 273. Weston is a Free Trader.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The harbor ice broke up on Sunday afternoon, and when driving out, it took with it the schr. Orion, owned by the Carbonar firm. Fortunately her anchors caught ground just outside the Point of Beach, and she held there.

The schr. Gordon W., owned by Messrs. T. & M. Winter, broke from her anchorage during Monday night's storm, and drifting out the harbor went ashore on the South Side, close by the Lucky Change, which went out in a similar way last fall.

Monday, St. Patrick's Day, was observed as usual as a general holiday. Many of our citizens took a run over to Carbonar to see friends. At night the concert in the Academy Hall was well patronized, the hall being filled.

Rev. Dr. Curtis delivered a lecture last night at the Coughlin Hall, the subject being "The Holy Land." It was illustrated by lantern views, and was very interesting. The Rev. gentleman having visited the scene last year. The audience very much enjoyed the hour spent with the lecturer at Holy Land.

A gallant young gentleman of this town, who has crossed the hills to our sister town, Carbonar, a good slide very convenient in running down the slopes, even if he did have to draw it up the incline. Now that the snow is gone, he will likely be compelled to think out another plan.

Why not a bicycle built for two?

By the way, it is said that Cupid is pressing hard on the young man's heart, and that a fair daughter of Carbonar will, one of these days, come over here to reside as mistress of a home.

Lake Simcoe Arrives.

The barq. Lake Simcoe, Capt. Wilson, entered port early this morning, after a splendid passage of thirty-two days from Pernambuco, in ballast left here for the Brazilian port mentioned, in the early part of December last. On the 29th of that month she encountered a terrific hurricane, which did considerable damage about decks, and when she reached her destination was badly crippled. But this damage was accompanied by a fatality, a reference to which has previously been alluded to in the Evening Telegram. The Simcoe shipped a heavy sea which, when receding, carried from the deck with it Mate Jes. Finn, who was drowned. Capt. Wilson received the full force of the comb. He was taken off his feet and dashed against the bulwarks. His head was laid open and he lost a considerable quantity of blood. Two sailors were also injured as a result of the storm and were confined to their berths for three weeks. That the Lake Simcoe is making nautical history, is undisputed, as on her previous trip from this port, in September last, a tragedy, in the nature of a murder, occurred on board.

A House-Breaker.

Monday morning, at about 1 o'clock, F. Noseworthy, a lad who lives on Duckworth Street, was awakened by hearing a noise outside his room and called his father who was quickly on the alert. When father and son met in the outer room they were just in time to see a man who had forced an entrance to the house by the street door, decamp. Who he was they do not know but that his object was theft they are sure.

President Coaker at Gander Bay.

Special to Evening Telegram.
GANDER BAY, Last Night.
Mr. Coaker arrived here from Victoria Cove at 6 last evening. The people received him with cheers and volleys of musketry, which was kept up during the evening and began again after the meeting lasting till midnight. At Victoria Cove, where the people are a solid body of Unionists, a like welcome was tendered to the President. The friends of Gander Bay Council met the President at the new Union Hall which is a credit to the place. A meeting was held in the Church school which was crowded. Louis Francis, the Chairman of the Branch, introduced the President who delivered an able speech of two and a half hours duration. He was continually applauded throughout his address and stirred up a tremendous enthusiasm for the Union here. No one can be found to-day opposed to the Union. They intend to stand by Coaker and vote straight for Gander candidates, although in 1909 Gander Bay voted Tory. Coaker we want now and Coaker we'll have. Every Tory should join the Union and help on the great work. If the Graball candidate could have heard the cheers given for Coaker, last night, he would never have the impudence to ask for votes here against Coaker. At Boyd's Cove, Mr. Coaker had another splendid public meeting Tuesday night, which was another great success. He left this morning for Carmanville, where Fogo District Council will open this afternoon. Our motto is "Sink or Swim with Coaker."

Sealing Notes.

Mr. J. S. Munn received the accompanying wireless messages last night:
FROM S.S. STEPHANO.
"All steel ships looking for other patch, so far unsuccessful; ice stripped up very much; no particulars of other ships."
(8ed.) KEAN.
FROM S.S. EAGLE.
"Expect to finish picking up pans to-night; total on board today, 7,000."
It is now quite evident that the patch of leads struck 100 miles N.E. of the Funks was a small one and that all the vessels in that neighborhood are gone on the hunt for the main patch. A message is expected this afternoon from the S.S. Nascopee.
Mr. Smart, at Port aux Basques, freed Mr. D. Stott, Supt. of Postal Telegraphs, to-day.
"Cape Ray reports Seal, Southern Cross and Neptune in that vicinity. Seal has 100 seals on board; some old ones on ice."
Mr. R. C. Smith had the following message to-day.
CAPE RAY, To-day.
"Wind E, light, fine, and heavy close packed ice everywhere; no report from steamers."

LONDON, To-Day.
A Vienna despatch says that three battleships, an armoured cruiser and two torpedo cruisers left Uft Pola, the chief Austrian naval station, steaming in a southerly direction. It is understood, the despatch adds, that their sudden departure was due to the bombardment of the European quarter of Scutari, the search of the Austrian steamer Sargovanni Di Madie, and the threatening of Austrian sailors by the Montenegrins.

OTTAWA, To-Day.
The House of Commons adjourned last night after passing all supplementary estimates for a brief Easter vacation. An authoritative statement on the attitude of the Government regarding the deadlock in the Commons over the Naval Bill was given out to the effect that if the opposition should persist in its determination to prevent the House from reaching a vote upon the Bill, it will be a clear course of the Government to press for amendments to rules which, while securing all reasonable and necessary freedom of debate, will prevent persistent obstruction and will permit Parliament to provide for public necessities and proceed with the business of the country. Notice of such amendments permitting debate to be brought to a conclusion after a full but reasonable discussion will be placed upon the order paper next week. Statement further says it is not the desire or intention of the Government to press these amendments through the House at present if opposition will give any evidence or assurance of their willingness to permit a vote upon the Bill to be taken within a reasonable time.

A PECULIAR DOUBLE CURE
Wife's Hand and Husband's Shoulder Both Got Better.
Mrs. Jane Lane, of Denbigh, Ont., tells a remarkable story of how she unexpectedly cured her crippled hand, she writes:
"For about eighteen months I had no use of my right hand. My husband had a lame shoulder and after bathing him a few times with Egyptian Liniment I noticed that my hand was getting better, and in a short time I could use my fingers quite freely. Before one bottle was used, Mr. Lane's shoulder and my hand were both well.
It made a wonderful cure and I cannot speak too highly of Egyptian Liniment."
Douglas' Egyptian Liniment is simply splendid for soreness or stiffness of joints, contraction of muscles of cords, rheumatism or sciatica, in fact for any kind of an ache or pain in man or beast. 25c. at all druggists. Free sample on request. Douglas & Co., Niagara, Ont.

OXO CUBES

Oxo Cubes were invented for busy men. With an Oxo Cube a cupful of delicious nourishing Oxo can be made in a moment. More nutritious than tea and coffee, and much more convenient. Just drop a Cube into a cup of hot water—no measuring—stir—and lunch is ready. With a biscuit Oxo makes a light sustaining meal—splendid to work on—because none of the strength that Oxo gives is lost in the process of assimilation. Spread on toast or bread Oxo Cubes are equally appetising and make delicious sandwiches.

Closing of the Art Exhibition.

The exhibition of drawings displayed in the British Hall since Monday last, closed last night in the presence of a large gathering of visitors. Before the presentation of prizes took place, His Excellency the Governor made a brief speech. He spoke in felicitous terms of the Art Exhibition, which was the first of its kind held here, and expressed the wish that it would be the forerunner of many more. He was sure the exhibition would be productive of much good, as the excellent drawings of the children demonstrated that Prof. Nichols then spoke, thanking Hon. E. R. Bowring for the interest manifested by that gentleman in the work and his valuable assistance to the teachers and pupils. He then announced the winners of the various prizes which were presented by Governor Davidson. Lady Williams' prize, for models, advanced work, a group of three models, won by Mabel Laing, of Springdale Street, C. of England school; the Lord Bishop's prize, won by Ian Dewar, of the Presbyterian College; Archbishop Howley's prize, for a drawing of a living plant, won by Alice Hickey, of St. Kyra's, and Hon. Sir Robert Bond's prize, for the best drawing of a bird or animal, won by Bert Loveys, of the Centenary Hall school. At the close of a vote of thanks, proposed by Mr. A. M. Dougall, was tendered His Excellency. The list of Junior prizes and honors will be announced later.

He that hangs expiring there Is the Son of God, most dear, Whom the Heavenly host adore Suffers as foretold of yore.

A Southwester on Easter.

The fellow who tries to look like a new man in an old suit on Easter morning is going to be as funny as a masquerade. It will be worse than trying to run pink baby ribbon through a pair of overalls.

You can brush up for winter, you can rub talcum powder into a day-old beard and get away with it sometimes. But on Easter Sunday, if you want to be right, you've got to be new and you've got to begin and work from the skin out.

There are times when merely an extra coat of wool or paint won't go. And Easter is one of those times.

You need new shirts, new ties, new shoes, new gloves, as well as new clothes. You are not going to be happy next Sunday morning unless you have them.

And you certainly are not going to have them unless you start right now.

Every good store in town is ready for you. They are all used to this last day rush. They all knew you expected to buy your suit a week ago and forgot.

You don't deserve it, but they are all advertising here in this paper to help you to-day and they are ready to perform wonders for you when you come.

So if you will just look in this paper now you will find out where to get your shoes, and your hat, and the best places to buy your suit and your overcoat, your shirts and your ties—and inadvertently, you'll save a lot of time and worry by doing so.

For the stores that are advertising here are not only the best stores in their respective lines but they are the stores that are best prepared to give you the service you have got to have if you expect to be part of the big parade on Easter day.

So turn to their advertising now and see what they have to say and what they can do for you.

Killed Mountain Lion.

Madden when wounded, fighting to the death, and attempting to tear the bodies of his assailants to shreds, a big mountain lion, was shot at Half Moon Bay, 50 miles up the coast from Vancouver, B.C., by Thomas Hare who subsequently collected the bounty on same.

Hare, his brother, and the latter's wife were passing through the woods, when the lion made his appearance and plunged towards them. Though wounded several times, he still came on. Ammunition was running low, but, taking his last aim, Thomas Hare sent a shot through the brute's head as he was making his final spring, and it rolled over in the snow dead. When measured it was found to be seven feet from tip to tip.—Red and Gun for March.

Mr. Arthur English

ON MORRIS'S MINING POLICY.

Dear Sir.—Seeing that the Morris party makes much a boast of what they are doing to encourage the development of our mineral wealth, I determined to put the idle boast to the test and needless to say this test just confirmed my impression, that Morris and company are but braggarts, that it is all shout with them and no work. A more empty boast than theirs of promoting mining activity it is hard to imagine. They have done absolutely nothing, and they know it, still they make the effort to tell us what Morris has a Progressive Mining Policy. See article 14 of that pamphlet, "How Morris is Making Good." A more facile attempt to boost up an argument is hard to conceive.

Even the champion braggart, McGrath, could make nothing, but the faintest puff, and this puff is so palpably insipid that common decency might have dictated silence on his part. Better by far to have said nothing of Morris's mining policy, that would have been at any rate a tribute to people's intelligence. I put Morris to a very simple test yesterday, by asking at the Department of Agriculture a Mines for a report on the Oil Shale area at Deer Lake. I was told there was none. That the Government had done nothing, had investigated no exploration of the region, the matter being left solely to private enterprise. Now I ask, and I leave the reply to intelligent readers, if such negligence and want of initiative is in accord with the Government's big boast of having a progressive mining policy. Everything is left to hazard. Soon the albertite was reported as having been found at Deer Lake it was plainly the duty of the Government to have at once sent out Mr. Howley and a party of assistants to make investigations and to have reports made of the region.

The geology of the area remains practically unexplored as far as the public is concerned. We are ignorant as to how this albertite occurs, and for all the steps the Government has taken we are also in the dark as to what albertite is or for that matter what oil shale is. P. T. McGrath gave us an article on albertite a little more than a month ago, but he is looking for predict some of his misstatements, which brought down upon me a shower of abuse. That is about all the public has learned of oil shale. Before mining must come discovery and discovery is the result of search. In order to prospect intelligently the prospector must know what he is looking for, and must have a knowledge of the modes of occurrence of that for which he is searching. Then he must have a knowledge of the geology of the region in which he is engaged. Thus armed he is not going to waste his time, but direct his efforts to the best possible results. A detailed account of the albertite deposit and also an account of the situation of the albertite veins or concretions published by the geological department and given to the public might lead to other discoveries of a like kind. The same holds good of other mineral deposits or discoveries. It should be the duty of the Government to have those details published. How a party can boast of having a progressive mining policy while neglecting the first and most important obligation, is a something I cannot understand. It is easy to get up and talk idly of our vast mineral wealth lying dormant, but how prove its existence. What proof have we of any mineral wealth, none, none whatever, and all this idle talk is but making us ridiculous.

There is a probability that there is mineral wealth lying undiscovered, but probability is not certainty. For nearly fifty years this country has had talk of coal development. Beyond the discovery of a few isolated patches of coal our knowledge is no more to-day than it was forty years ago, and still we go on talking coal. Morris went to the country pledged to an investigation of the question, but he has not made one single effort in that direction. I am blamed because I have ventured to differ with Mr. Howley on the subject. At any rate I have never insulted him as Patsy by suggesting that experts be brought in to make the enquiry for us. What expert is needed, a geologist like Mr. Howley is all the expert required. There is in fact no such thing as expert in the geological sense as far as discovering coal deposits goes. A geologist is all that is required to ascertain whether we have the productive measures or not. A suite of fossils of the productive measures is of vastly more importance than the discovery of an isolated outcrop of two of coal. Expert mechanics may be necessary to run the drills, but Mr. Howley should content us as director. We have suffered a good deal in this country from the importation of foreign experts and should be content to let native genius have a chance. We have had expert peat cutters even. Morris took no notice of the coal question, he thought to give us the peat cutting industry as if the people of this country, who he claims have so many avenues of profitable employment open to them could ever have time to cut peat and dry it. Peat cutting is for poor of European countries not for us in the new world. If ever peat is to become the fuel of the people it will have to be prepared in factories and sold to the people, who will find themselves engaged in the fishery and other profitable enterprises. We can never go back to the condition of the poor of Europe, and he has but little regard or respect for us who could even suggest it.

HOUSE of ASSEMBLY

Yesterday's Sitting.

Several petitions were presented yesterday. Mr. Clift presented one from Capt. Wm. Snow and others of Twillingate asking for a sum of $100 to build a road from the main road to the Armoury of the Arm Lads' Brigade. This brigade, which was formed by the young men of Farmer's Arm and Durrell's Arm, is a well drilled and instructed brigade, conducted on non-denominational principles and deserved every encouragement. Mr. Clift strongly supported the petition and hoped the Government will see its way clear to grant the prayer of the petition. He also presented a petition from A. Samson and others of Friday's Bay, asking for a grant of $200 for the construction of a road from Burns Cove to Lobster Pond. He heartily supported the prayer of the petition and pointed out that it was a road used by the people of the place going to Herring Neck, and at present it was nothing better in wet weather than a swamp and marsh. He presented a third from Samuel Miles and other residents of Herring Neck, who are members of the Fishermen's Protective Union, in which they asked for several sums of money for various public works. Mr. Clift gave the petition his most earnest support.

Mr. Kent presented a petition (supported by Mr. Dwyer) from G. Hudson, LeCrow and others of Baulline for the construction of a road to their farms. These farms had been recently opened and the road was very necessary, and he asked the Minister of Public Works to make the necessary appropriation from the funds.

Mr. Clapp presented a petition of a most important nature from the residents of St. Barbe District on the service of the s.s. Home, which was characterized as a disgrace and utterly inefficient for the needs of the people of this important part of the country. In connection with this he read a letter which appeared in the Telegram of the 12th inst. and written by Rev. J. T. Richards. Mr. Clapp's speech was forceful, fluent and convincing, and brought a reference to the matter from Sir Edward Morris, the Premier.

Mr. Kent thought that this important petition of Mr. Clapp's and the letter which he read bearing on the matter showed a condition of affairs which should be promptly dealt with. It showed the service was absolutely inadequate to the needs of this important district, and considering the history of the place and the embargo placed on its development for over a century by the French Shore Treaty, and now that it was beginning to find its place in the sun, every effort should be made to enable the people along the coast to work out as quickly as possible their destiny which was evidently intended they should fill. The service of the Home on that coast was utterly and absolutely inadequate and no proper remedy had so far been applied. Session after session Mr. Clapp had brought the matter before the House by petition or in some other manner, and it should be very encouraging now that after all his efforts he finds the Government preparing to take the matter up and that when the service opens in the spring an adequate service would be provided. The petition was referred to the Department of the Colonial Secretary.

A number of questions by the Opposition members on the Order Paper were answered, and the information sought for in others is in course of preparation.

The Hon. Colonial Secretary (Mr. Watson) laid on the table the statement as to cable extension asked for by members of the Opposition.

The House then went into Committee on the subject of the construction of a railway through Labrador to connect with Newfoundland by a ferry.

Mr. Hon. the Premier referred at length to the matter, which had for its purpose the construction of a railway from Quebec down to Cape Charles on Newfoundland Labrador. He had tabled correspondence on the matter last session. Those projecting the venture were a company known as the Canadian North Atlantic Corporation, Ltd. and they asked the Government for a right of way through Newfoundland Labrador for the project. The subsidy was $6,400 per mile, cash and land grants of 2,000 acres per mile. The Government had agreed to that proposal. The Premier went through the Resolutions showing that the Government had assented to granting the Corporation 6,000 acres per mile of road built in Labrador and the right to take stone, etc., for building purposes, admits construction material and machinery free of duty, exempts their property from taxation for 50 years, and gives the right to operate ships for passenger and other traffic, and undertakes to complete the branch line to Bonne Bay to connect with the ferry. Should the company not begin work within a year the provision contained in the Resolutions should cease. The company receives no cash compensation from Newfoundland. The idea was not novel, as in 1899 Mr. Bender made a similar application here and also at Quebec and was granted a charter to mill in Labrador, but nothing came of the matter. Sir Edward dilated on the advantages this scheme would confer on Labrador and Newfoundland and showed it would be the shortest route from Europe to the American continent.

Mr. Kent thanked the Premier for the information he had imparted. The question of fast travel, of communication between two continents in the manner in which the component parts of the Empire was to be linked up for purposes of trade and commerce, was the foremost problem of the day. It stood out in the Councils of every portion of the British Empire, and had been discussed in the Imperial Parliament and those of the Dominion of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. That problem of cementing the Empire together and its great future assured and developed was being considered keenly and made this question to us here one of prime importance, because Newfoundland occupied in connection with the Empire a unique position, and a great deal depended on our views as to the part we took in the promotion of inter-communication between Canada and the Old Country. This country is a stepping stone from west to east and east to west for traffic, and it behooved us to be cautious in what we did regarding the handling of schemes for purposes of communication. In the matter now before the Committee the impression struck him (Mr. Kent) as not being favorable and that was that it was pushing Newfoundland out of that great system of east and west trade. It should be our object to encourage a route which would pass through the heart of Newfoundland and make this country the centre of that great imperial trade. Objection was made as to our insular position, but that should not deter us from facing those problems and forcing the position of Newfoundland as one of the most important portions of the Empire, well to the front. He did not think that the Premier had done justice to the possibilities of Newfoundland in reference to the reasons why the scheme with which Mr. Thomas was identified had not matured up to date. It was the transhipment difficulty that hurried, and the difficulty of these several transhipments would be overcome if passengers would cross the Atlantic take a train on the east coast of Newfoundland and remain therein until Montreal, New York, Washington or the Western States or Western Provinces were reached. He showed how the ice difficulties were overcome on great bodies of water like Lake Michigan and the Zulzer Zee, referred to the modern steel ice-breaker, engaged in our seal-fishing the past few years and how ice as a barrier to shipping of this class was now a negligible quantity, and for this reason in dealing with this matter to be careful lest we push Newfoundland out of its right position as a foremost portion of the Empire. That was a heritage he hoped we would hand down to future generations, and they would blame us if we did anything now to divert Newfoundland from its position. Newfoundland was the shortest route between the two worlds, and its superiority in this respect would prevail. He then referred to the dispute between this country and Canada over our interest in Labrador, did not know how far it had progressed, he personally thought Newfoundland's claim was impregnable, but lawyers in the Dominion believed their claim to be very strong also. It was within the bounds of possibility that in adopting this scheme we may be dealing with land and property which we have no jurisdiction over, but he did not mention that as a cause of delay. There was no reason why the Resolutions should not go through, as the eastern boundary of Quebec, wherever it was, was the limit of the company's charter from the Province of Quebec. If the scheme materialized he hoped it would be a success and no unfair or undue attacks would be made on it such as were made on that of Mr. Thompson and he thought the reason that that scheme did not mature was because it was unfairly, unduly and improperly commented upon outside of the House. He did not think Mr. Thompson had abandoned it. He hoped that if this scheme materialized it would pass through the heart of the country and that this Colony would find its proper place in the Imperial system. They should be careful and go slowly that they might not compromise the future of Newfoundland in this respect.

The Premier could not agree with Mr. Kent that they would push Newfoundland, by this scheme, out of her rightful position, but that the scheme would be beneficial to Newfoundland and Labrador. He spoke at length on its advantages, told of his support to the Fog Free Zone scheme, but thought that this was too good to be true, referred to the question of the boundary dispute raised by Mr. Kent, and he (the Premier) would also like to bring such a scheme to bring fish and other produce on board a steamer in a train and cross to Bay of Islands, and on reaching there to proceed by train to the Continent. He hoped this would be worked out successfully.

When the Committee rose the House went into Supply.

Mr. Clift referred to the grants for Main Lines. When the grants were not kept up or increased so as to ensure attention to these roads they became overgrown with vegetation, impassable and neglected and the money expended on them was wasted. He suggested that the whole thing be given into the hands of the Inspector for a Commission to enquire into the main roads, their length, upkeep, etc., and have the whole matter revised and improved. In his district they were in a deplorable state, the grant being insufficient to keep them up.

Mr. Kent enquired about the proposed addition to the Post Office. Only the information afforded by the Press was available on the matter. He said the enlargement of the office was badly needed for its increasing business and hoped that provision would be made now to defray the cost of the repairs. He thought the expenditure would be large, for land should be appropriated.

The Premier said that Mr. Chubb was drawing the plans for the section on Government ground west of the present building and an amount would be asked for to cover it.

Mr. Clapp took exception to a speech of the Premier as given in the published official debates in the Daily News of the 17th inst., in which the Premier is made to say that when he came into office there was not a mile of telegraph line between Trout River and Bonne Bay and LaSalle, covering 500 miles, nearly the whole District of St. Barbe, nor were there any other modern conveniences. He thought the Premier read his speeches, or if not, supervised them, for he should certainly have known that between Western Cove, Seal Cove and LaSalle were connected by wire before he (the Premier) came into power, and that some day was connected by telegraph in 1889. He (the Premier) was now merely carrying out the plans drawn up by Mr. Stott, a copy of which the Premier had said in the House before Sir Robert Bond had gone out of power. He would like a correction of this untruthful statement, which would create an erroneous impression.

The Premier said he only spoke of conditions as they found them. He did not blame any person and was speaking generally.

Mr. Clapp insisted that what was stated in the official debates as printed, was altogether different from what the Premier had said in the House. The places alluded to were all connected and he was glad to see the Government carrying out the policy of the late Premier in this respect.

In Committee on the Registry of Deeds Bill the Opposition submitted it to severe criticism and made several suggestions, when the Minister of Justice decided to raise the Committee and will hold it over to meet the views put forward.

The House adjourned until 3 p.m. Tuesday next.

Get a Ten Cent Box of Cascarets.

Insures you for months against a Sick Headache, Biliousness, Constipation, or a Bad Stomach.

Put aside—just once—the Salts, Cathartic Pills, Castor Oils or purgative waters which merely force a passage through the bowels, but do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage or alimentary organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

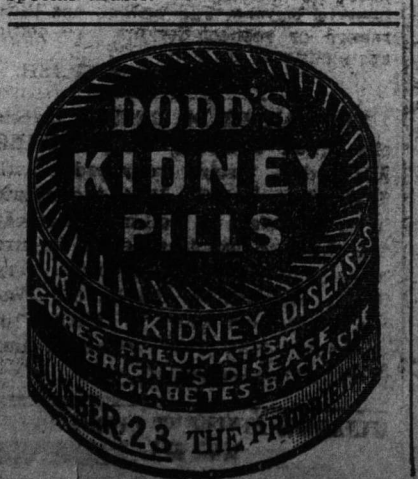

Keep your inside organs pure and rest with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, coated tongue, indigestion, Sour Stomach, Constipated bowels, Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.
