The Ward of the Earl of Vering.

CHAPTER XX.
"Mine That Was Once."

Lillian Devigne could not vault over the terrace and seek refuge from herself, and the prying eyes of her sex in the spring-leaved park.

With an effort, which a high-bred woman only can hope to be successful in, she crushed all signs of her terrible emotion from her face, and, after a moment to recover her strength—for passion of all kinds is fearfully weakening, mentally and physically—she pushed open the French window, and entered the drawing-room, smiling and serene, all the lovelier for the deeper light in her violet eyes, and faint flush on her pale cheek.

The ladies were scattered about the room, gossiping, playing at fancy needlework, trying some new songs; there were only two or three gentlemen; Lady Pacewell and the Honorable Mrs. Gorton were seated on an ottoman, with Lady Devigne—the latter, with her old, innocent, unsophisticated expression on her face, as of yore.

She looked up, rather anxiously, as her daughter entered, but, at a glance, fell back, with a little sigh of relief.

She could see by Lillian's face that she knew of Lord Vering's profligacy, but she also saw that, to use her own mental words, "she would not make a fool of herself," and she was greatly relieved.

Lady Pacewell made room on the ottoman for her.

"Where have you been, with nothing but that thin crepe shawl, too? Lady Devigne, your daughter still requires your watchful care!"

"I have been out on the terrace. Is it not warm for an April night? I could scarcely tear myself away." And, with a little laugh, she sank among the satin cushions.

At that moment Sir William entered, and looked round the room.

"Any one see Vering?" he asked.

Lady Pacewell looked round.

"He was on the terrace, I think."

Sir William went out, and returned, empty-handed.

"I can't see him anywhere; his hat's on the wall, or I should think he's gone off into the park. Tell him, if he comes in, that we've got a pool on in the billiard-room, and want him."

Lady Pacewell looked at Mrs. Gorton, with a smile.

"Isn't that like him? Of course, he has gone into the park—rambled off for hours, perhaps, and without his hat!"

Mrs. Gorton laughed softly.

Girl a Nervous Wreck at Eleven Years of Age

Was Tired Out, Pale and Sallow—Would Tremble Till the Bed would Shake—Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Cured Her.

In the schools of to-day there is found an alarming proportion of weak, nervous children who have little chance of developing into healthy, useful men and women. Nature requires the assistance of such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to help them over a trying period and set them on their feet.

There would be fewer wearing glasses if the nerves were invigorated less irritation in the school and home, more robust health and a greater pleasure in the school tasks.

This letter bears a cheering message to parents whose children are weak, puny and nervous. It shows you what may be expected from the use of this great restorative.

Mrs. Stephen Hartman, Italy Cross, Lunenburg Co., N.S., writes:

"My little sister at eleven years of age became nervous, irritable and seemed all tired out. She had no appetite, was lifeless and drowsy, and der if he has any ulterior views concerning her? Such things have been! He is the sort of man to be fastidious about the women round him."

"So fastidious as to dislike them ready-made," smiled Lady Pacewell.

"Yes, and so seizes at such a chance as this to have one made to order, trained and educated to the model of his ideal. The world will see a miracle presently, who knows?"

"Who knows, indeed? But I must admit that I am strangely curious to see this little lady in the rough. I wonder where he has placed her?"

"Of course, as she is quite uncivilized as yet, she has gone to a school. Where would he send her now?"

There was a moment's silence. The two gossips had quite forgotten the presence of Lillian Devigne, and not by the slightest movement had she reminded them of it. She had leaned back, with half-closed eyes, half-parted lips, placidly serene, apparently lost in her own pleasant thoughts. But she had listened with an intensity almost painful, and her heart beat like an imprisoned bird in her bosom.

"Of course, he has sent her to a first-class school; he is not the man to take such a thing in hand carelessly," said Mrs. Gorton, taking up the thread again. "Where is there —" and she suggested one or two schools.

"No," said Lady Pacewell; "they would not be select enough for him. Let me see."

Lillian Devigne's heart was almost at a standstill.

"I have it! Of course, he would choose the Penleys! Old Minerva House! We remember it, my dear!" and she laughed. "Yes, that is it, depend upon it!"

"Poor girl!" laughed Mrs. Gorton. "How I pity her! Oh, that blackboard and those endless forms and ceremonies! And so you think she is there?" with her tiny, little, well-bred yawn.

"Well, I shall dream of her all night, and it is time to begin. All the men have gone, my dear, to that horrid billiard-room, and Miss Devigne here looks bored to death with our gossip, and tired to death by her journey."

Lillian Devigne started slightly, with half-closed eyes and a little, tiny yawn for her part.

"Not bored, my dear Mrs. Gorton. I'm ashamed to say I have been half asleep, and have heard only a word here and there. Yes, I think I will go to bed now. Mamma must be tired, if I am not."

And so, with exquisite grace, she said good-night, and, followed by her maid, ascended to her room.

The billiard-room door was open, as the mother and daughter passed, and Lillian paused for half a minute. Lord Vering was not there; pool was in full swing, and he was fond of pool. Where was he? In the dark still, she thought.

In ten minutes she dismissed her maid, and, with her dressing-robe round her, sank into one of the many easy-chairs with which the luxurious room was furnished, her golden hair falling round her sweet, oval face; her eyes, large, wistful, and restless, fixed in deep cogitation.

A knock at the door aroused her. It was Lady Devigne, stealing, half fearfully, from her own room, hungering for her daughter's confidence.

Since the old time mother and daughter had, to a great extent, changed places; it was the mother who obeyed, and was dependent upon the daughter's will now; it was the daughter who planned and commanded.

Lillian did not raise her eyes as her mother softly shut the door, and came up to the lace-covered dressing-table, eyeing her daughter askance.

"Aren't you cold, Lillian?" she asked, at last breaking the silence.

"Cold!" echoed Lillian, "I am burning! What is it, mamma? I am worn out, exhausted."

Lady Devigne sighed, but refused to take this rather plain hint as a desire for her departure.

"And no wonder, dear, considering what you have gone through. Who could have dreamed that he would have been here?"

There was a pause.

Then Lady Devigne murmured, plaintively:

"It was a great mistake—an unfortunate mischance. But who could have foreseen? The poor marquise seemed so well—"

A quick glance from the violet eyes stopped her. Then she tried another tack, with a perseverance that was almost touching.

"The old earl left him every penny, Lillian—an immense fortune!"

"I know it," was the rejoinder.

"It is the best match of the season, dear."

"I know it," again—low, and clear, and curt.

"And quite untrammelled, quite free—so they say."

"They speak falsely, then" was her almost fierce retort.

Lady Devigne drew a little nearer, aghast and alarmed.

"What do you say, Lillian?"

"Nothing," she replied, slowly and firmly. "I say nothing, mamma. You know that this subject is a tabooed one for you and me."

"But my dear child can expect a mother to have an interest in her child's welfare. Do you forget all I have done for you—how hard I have toiled for your happiness—"

A smile, bitter and scornful, curled the lovely lips.

"Mamma, you are tired and out of form. Do I forget! Do you think I shall ever forget how your anxiety and motherly exertions on my behalf have utterly ruined and wrecked my life? Oh, go, mamma, and sleep the sleep of the just, and leave me. I know all you would say, every word of it. You come to remind me that the Percy Chester I jilted—"

"My dear Lillian—"

"That the Percy Chester I jilted is still unmarried; that he is an earl and a millionaire—and that it is my duty to lay all my charms to snare him—to call up the past, and all its advantages, and use them to win a coronet!"

She stopped, not for want of words, but for very weariness and contempt.

"That is it, is it not? I know it all, mamma, you see, and so you need not exhaust yourself by going over it. I am wearied to death—to death—with this perpetual struggle. And you—nothing you can do can help me. I pray and beseech of you to go to bed."

Lady Devigne looked inclined to interrupt; she only murmured a weak, inaudible protest, however, and stooped to kiss her beautiful daughter.

Lillian took the caress—endured it, rather—without a word, and Lady Devigne left her.

La Milady's Boudoir.

DEODORIZERS FOR DAINTY WOMEN.

Salt baths for the entire body are excellent deodorizers. Empty a bag of salt in a tub and have the body thoroughly, or make a strong solution in a wash basin and sponge the body surface.

Moist hands are an unpleasant affliction, and if summer months produce this condition adopt the practice of using a little spirit of camphor in the water. If the condition persists, rub into the hands a lotion made of four ounces of cologne and half an ounce of tincture of belladonna, afterward powdering with rice powder.

Excessive perspiration of the feet is apt to produce corns between the toes; in warm weather, after bathing and drying the body, powder thoroughly between the toes with cornstarch or good talcum powder. Perspiration also makes the feet so tender that they blister easily.

To ward off this catastrophe, bathe with a lotion made with two ounces of bay rum and four grams of tannic acid. A very offensive odor from the feet, which fails to correct itself with the most scrupulous attention to cleanliness of the body, may be mitigated by rubbing with the following compound: Powdered talcum, 5 oz.; starch, 1 oz.; salicylic acid, 4 scruples.

Sometimes rubbing the feet with alcohol after the bath will destroy the odor of perspiration and tend to prevent its recurrence.

Don't forget that shoes, as well as hose, absorb the moisture from the feet, and therefore air them well after resting and dust them inside with a disinfecting powder.

Anemia

Our blood is composed of red and white corpuscles—the red to nourish the body, the white to fight disease. In Anemia—or bloodlessness—the red corpuscles are more or less deficient. Thus the blood cannot provide sufficient nourishment for the body. Therefore the face becomes white and "pasty"—the eyes become dull and "heavy"—and a feeling of intense weariness pervades the whole system. To overcome Anemia, the blood supply needs recharging with red corpuscles. And it is here that possesses such wonderful power. Because, being a blood-maker, "Wingarnis" creates a wealth of new, rich, red blood, which brings the roses back to the cheeks—gives a sparkle to the eyes—and surcharges the whole body with new vitality and new life.

Church Union Carried

By the Presbyterian Assembly 406 to 88—Minority Proposed to Continue as Usual.

Winnipeg, June 14.—As was generally expected, the Presbyterian General Assembly voted to-day to enter into organic union with the Methodist and Congregational churches.

The official vote showed that 406 voted for the motion and 88 against. Of the ministers present 225 voted for union, and only 45 against. Of the laymen 184 voted for union and 43 against. The east voted four to one for union, and the west five to one for union. The number absent or not voting was 117. There was no demonstration of any kind when the final decision was reached.

At the evening service, Rev. Dr. Robert Campbell read a statement recording his dissent from the decision of the Assembly on the Church Union matter, and the dissent of those who signed with him. The dissent stated that the small minority, 45 ministers and 43 elders, regarded themselves now as the true Presbyterian General Assembly, and that they did not regard any of the other ministers or elders as having any right in the Assembly. They proposed, however, to go on doing business as usual under protest.

THE DAYLIGHT SAVERS.
We have completed a fortnight under the summer-time system, (where according to legal decree all our clocks have been put forward one hour and will remain so put forward until October), and nobody can question its success. By the greatest good luck our first day of statutory early raising was fine, and the weather has been good ever since. People are certainly taking advantage of the change of hours. The parks were crowded and one could not get a seat inside or outside on the country-bound buses. I am glad to say that now the novelty has worn off open-air evenings are ending discreetly early. At 11 new time the streets are as clear as they ever were at 11 o'clock.

Watching the evening crowds, one is impressed with their orderliness, their freedom from care, and the rise in the standard of dress. Never has the London workgirl been able to loudly proclaimed their intention not to spend an unnecessary penny, but most people are not so foolish. The thousands of women workers in munitions and cantent themselves with handkerchief headresses and very cheap overalls, while even the Women's Corps, which adopt a khaki, soldier-like uniform, pride themselves on the fact that it costs very little. The firms which have most to do with women workers on the land, and whose shops are to be found anywhere between Regent Street and Kensington High Street, London, have not made any special concession to the picturesque in their newly designed suits, with coats, skirts, and breeches complete of this cotton or of waterproof cloth, but these outfits are eminently serviceable, and their cheapness commends them to women of all classes. Looking through the stores one begins to think that if feminine vanity exists elsewhere it is at least to be rigidly excluded from garden or field work. And then one finds the shop which spreads before the eyes of its customers working outfits of the most deadly fascination—smartly cut coats of fine rep or Holland at five guineas, breeches to match that would compel the reluctant approval of the girl-gardener's

ECONOMY DE LUXE.
It is generally taken for granted that the woman who is anxious to work for her country goes about it in a thrifty way. There have been war economy societies which as a first practical step asked their members to pay a shilling for the badge which subaltern brother, skirts that hang just so, with a most desirable white silk blouse and a debonaire cap, the whole economical outfit for not much more than ten guineas. In peace-time one could not wish a more attractive costume for a masquerade.

FASHIONS AND SUMMER TIME.
"Summer time" seemed to have turned Hyde Park into a carnival of costume, the world of well-dressed women having turned back the clock of fashion to that picturesque period when Victorian frounces and frills, flowered silks and muslins, and a crinoline-like amplitude of skirt held sway. With so many women wearing the uniforms of the various corps of women's volunteers, the contrast afforded by the wearers of old-world patterned silks, the graceful flou draperies of the bodices, the shady brimmed hats with their crown of flowers and flowing ribbon streamers, is very marked. The military note, so insistent in dress during the early months of the war, has vanished, particularly in the manner of wearing the hat. Last season a military tilt was the effect aimed at, but to-day there were numbers of picturesque Victorian bonnets to be seen tied with ribbons, and the drooping brim framing the face and hair was obviously the popular trend in millinery. The summer time legislation which has put all our clocks on one hour until next October has had a stimulating effect on the dress trade already—as, indeed, the scene in the Park proved. The extra hour of daylight has prompted many women to revive their dress programme for the season, one of the directions in which the West End dress houses have principally benefited being in the demand for more tennis and river frocks.

LABOR AND AGRICULTURE.
Signs are observable round London of the shortage of agriculture labor in the shape of unfilled fields, now choked with couch grass and weeds, and of tillage where the cultivation is suffering from lack of hands. With the plentiful rains of a fortnight ago and the hot sunshine since grass has made amazing growth, but how to get it cut and turned and stacked is a difficulty through which farmers cannot, in some districts, see their way at all. Yet the hay crop must be saved at any cost, as must the later crops. The idea that there would be any amount of labor available from London and the great towns, if only the farmers would condescend to put up with its relative inefficiency, has proved illusory. There were practically no unemployed after the first month of the war; now jobs chase the man, and muscular strength is in great request. There are very few who can be withdrawn from urban life, even though there may be a readiness to pay town prices for la-

THE BLIND BARONET.
It is well known in Fleet Street that Cyril Arthur Pearson could have had a knighthood a good many years ago. He was then, however, at the height of his journalistic fortunes, the proprietor of nine daily newspapers, four weekly newspapers, nine weekly periodicals, and six monthlies, and there appeared to be no limit to his ambitions. Then came the affliction which terminated his newspaper career. The loss of his sight was a particularly cruel misfortune to a man of such activity that Joseph Chamberlain nicknamed him "the Hustler."

The title that Mr. Pearson might have had as a newspaper man would have gratified his profession, but the baronetcy he now receives is of infinitely more worth, being a recognition of his services to the blind. It is also, no doubt, a reward for his quarter of a century's work for the Fresh Air Fund, the splendid children's charity which he founded. Mr. Pearson was a boy at Eton, Neville Arthur Pearson, so the succession to his baronetcy is fairly well assured.

FAILURE.
By GEORGE FITCH.
Failure is one of the most important schools in the University of Hard Knocks. More people are attending this school than any other, but very few of them are making any use of their lessons. Failure and Ethics are two of the hardest branches of knowledge to harness up and use in producing dividends. Failure is regarded with contempt by most people, who consider that a man might much better spend his time learning feather-stitching or stocking-knitting. And yet Failure, if studied carefully, produces magnificent results.

Abraham Lincoln when young decided to become a country merchant and opened a store. He failed, discovered why, gave up trying to become a merchant prince, and afterwards eked out a living as President of the United States.

On the other hand, Columbus tried half a dozen times to equip a fleet for the discovery of America. After each failure, he improved his line of talk and was finally able to persuade Isabella to pawn her jewels.

Theodore Roosevelt tried to become a great cattleman, but failed, owing to the severe climate. His failure taught him to look elsewhere, and discovering that in New York the Republican bosses had no trouble in keeping their cattle lined up through a hard winter, he came east and went into politics.

Horace Greeley failed to become President and was imprudent enough to die of disappointment. On the other hand, William J. Bryan scored a few failures and made a comfortable living out of them.

Some failures are not only instructive, but glorious in themselves. Many a man is a business failure and has to rub along on $75 a month because he has spent all the rest of his fortune buying a reputation which can go on his tombstone without making anyone wink and grin.

Some people fail to recognize failure as a lesson and insist on regarding it as a medicine. Taken in this way failure is very bitter and sours the disposition without helping the brain in any way. A lesson in failure is worth a lot, but a dose of failure can sicken a patient of pluck, hope, and ambition in an alarmingly short time.

Some people are failures and never know it. When a man trades health, happiness and family for a million dollars, and then spends the rest of his life trying to hatch it into two millions, he is a colossal failure and is of great value to the world as a horrible example.

Changing the Map for the German Chancellor

In a recent speech the German Chancellor querulously complained to the Reichstag of the obstinacy of the Allies in refusing to look at the map and govern themselves accordingly. Germany offered to accept the only real argument in the matter. The Allies would not even listen to her: it was very rude of them. The truth is the Allies were looking just as hard at the map as Bethmann Hollweg himself. In their pig-headed way they thought it might be susceptible of change. The Russians are about changing it in Turkey almost before the Chancellor had finished speaking. They are now occupied in changing it in Volhynia, Galicia and Bukovina. Our German friend would do well to obtain a large scale map of the last-named district, in particular, and move his little flags about on it; they may furnish food for reflection. The Italians likewise are busily engaged in the same occupation; they are unkind enough to be acting in concert with the Russians. We leave out of account (with Hollweg) the trifling details of map changing in Africa. Germany affects an indifference to events in this locality. After all, it is the most philosophical thing she can do. The world now awaits, with growing expectation, the day when Britain and France will undertake in earnest their share in the task of changing the map. Then we imagine, the Sophocles of the frontier, who may strike the German Chancellor, though this presupposes a sense of humour, and after all Bethmann Hollweg is a German.

The fact is, the worthy statesman struck the keynote of the war. Nothing really matters but the map. Even the dominating influence of British sea power is of account only in respect. Wise men among the Allies have long abandoned the idea of starving Germany as a means sufficient in itself. The end will come (we are among the optimists who think it will come quickly) through decisive military victories of the Allies, and in no other way. The grounds for believing that these will be achieved in the near future are sufficiently plain. The Russian invasion menaces three points, Kovle, Lemberg and Bukovina. In the direction of the first two we read that their advance has been checked. This need cause no uneasiness. It would have been checked had no enemies at all opposed its progress. No army of such a size could advance at such a rate for long, and in such surroundings, where their supplies have come up and their newly won positions have been consolidated. We may look for further serious efforts on their part. Meantime we must expect to learn that they have been held and even here and there driven back. The fact of their significance is that the Germans in the East have been reinforced, and by troops withdrawn from the West. Last year we should not have prized these words in black type. Then the Germans could spare all the troops they needed from France and Belgium for their tremendous drive in Russia. To-day they cannot, even for defence.

The whole position is very like the natural one of Holland, the sea of the Allies beating ceaselessly against the dykes of the German defence. A breach is made in one place. Engineers rush to the spot and repair it. Another breach is made elsewhere and repaired in the same way. Now and then, it may be, the metaphor must be reversed, and the Germans become the sea and the Allies the dyke. But this cannot go on for ever, or for long. Soon the initiative will pass altogether from the Teutons to the Entente Allies. A hole will be made somewhere too big to be filled; there will be no reserves to fill it. Then to pursue our figure to death, the whole dyke must move backward or an inundation follow. The line must bend or it will break. In Bukovina it appears to have been actually broken and one Austrian army at least to be imperilled; the German resistance in the north may save it or may be too late. The map has been made for a pay perusal. Since taking Czernowitz the Russians have moved due south with astonishing rapidity, effecting the double object of crushing Roumania and opening the easiest way across the Carpathians. To-day it is reported that they have offered Roumania Czernowitz as the reward of her participation. If Roumania closes the bargain we shall soon have the German Chancellor looking more attentively than ever at the map.

HERE ON VACATION. Several young ladies, who have been attending school in Nova Scotia, came home by the Florizel last night to spend their vacation.

Burin Methodist District Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Burin district opened on the 15th inst. The Rev. James Pincock, Chairman of the district presiding. The good people of Burin opened their homes to the members of the district with characteristic kindness. The hospitality of our hosts was not less than that of the waterways to and from the district church made the event one of great pleasure to ministers and people.

Messrs. Jeans, Wells, Mallalieu, Avery and Howell were continued on probation and Messrs. Wells and Mallalieu were also recommended to be sent to college to pursue their theological studies, both electing to be sent to the Wesleyan Theological College, Montreal. There are whippers going around that they may eventually go to the help of the Empire in some capacity. Three promising young men of seemingly exceptional physical and mental ability, presenting themselves to the district as candidates for the ministry. This is encouraging at a time when all the more are wanted in Britain to defend the flag.

All the candidates are engaged in the teaching profession. Mr. Samuel J. Miller is a native of Burin, and is teaching at Garnish where he is highly respected. Mr. Jesse L. Reynolds is from Broad Cove and has been teaching at Creston, Morley Bay during the past year. Mr. Richard E. Gosse hails from Petites, West Coast, where his father, Mr. Eldred Gosse, has taught school for many years. He has for some time been teaching at Flat Island, P.B. We wish each of them a successful future in the christian ministry. Despite the war and all its drawbacks and inconveniences and war prices, the financial outlook of the year is most encouraging. For missions the society is better off than ever by over five hundred dollars. For ministerial support the district is several hundred dollars ahead of last year. Sunday schools show an increase in the number of teachers and scholars and also in the amounts contributed to various purposes connected with the Sunday school departments. Last sabbath was an enjoyable day for the Methodists of Burin. The pulpits of Collins' Cove, Great Burin and Epworth were occupied by members of the district and all the services were times of refreshing.

On sabbath afternoon there was a Sunday school rally at Collins' Cove, the central church of the scholastic circuit, the five Sunday schools of the circuit and it was a pleasing sight to witness the scholars coming in all directions conveyed by motor buses and smaller boats in tow. Burin Sunday schools have an enrolled membership of over five hundred teachers and scholars. Epworth had also a similar Sunday school service. District suspended its business last Thursday afternoon in order to attend the corner stone laying of the new church in course of erection at Burin Boy Arm. The usual dedicatory service was conducted by the Rev. James Pincock, Chairman of district. Addresses suitable to the occasion were delivered by Messrs. James Wilson, Charles Lench, H. G. Coppin, and B. Mallalieu. Capt. William Hollett laid the corner stone, declaring it to be done well and truly according to the wording of order of service. Afterwards the visitors partook of a splendid tea in the new church. The proceeds of collection and tea brought upwards of $150 for the new church enterprise. Mallalieu, the pastor, and his co-workers are worthy of our sincere congratulations. The Collins' Cove choir rendered a service of song entitled "The story of the Pink Rose." Mrs. Coppin presided at the organ, and Rev. H. G. Coppin took the connective readings. Refreshments were served at the close and a nice amount raised for Epworth League purposes. The district moved a hearty vote of thanks to Rev. Mr. Coppin, the pastor, and our kind hosts for their splendid entertainment during their visit and sojourn in this romantic and picturesque and flourishing metropolis of the west.

DISTRICT REPORTER. Burin, June 20th, 1916.

Mt. Cashel Festival

The annual garden party in aid of Mount Cashel, which takes place on the 26th of July, promises to be even a greater success than ever. Arrangements have been made for a particularly attractive sports programme. In this connection the road race from Torbay is being looked forward to with much interest, as it is said that amongst the members of the Newfoundland Regiment now in barracks there are some very good distance runners who will likely compete.

Match races will also be given, the pony race, which was held last year for the first time, and which became such a popular feature. In this event it is expected that there will be quite a number of entries from the outlying settlements.

Dust and Flies.

This is the time of the year when the dirty dust from the streets, and flies are in the air and watching their chance to alight on your bread and bring dirt and disease to your children. Guard against them by buying Lynch's Pan-Dandy Bread, white, and brown, wrapped and sealed by machinery in a dust and germ proof wrapper. It is the only bread in Newfoundland that is made, wrapped and sealed by machinery. Ask your grocer for it. Did you get any of Lynch's Beauty Cake, yet? Oh, what a beauty cake! the best in the land. She was arraigned before Judge Hutchings to-day when it was pointed out to the Court by Inspector General Sullivan that as a result of investigations made by the police detectives there was not the slightest tittle of evidence to show that the girl had committed the theft and that there was convincing evidence to them (the police) that the complainant had made a mistake in counting her money. He (the I.G.) believed the accused was innocent and asked for her discharge, which was done, after His Honor had intimated to the girl that she was leaving the Court guiltless and without a stain upon her character.

Little bags filled with shot make very good weights for use in the sewing room. Tea jelly can be made in the same way as coffee jelly, and it is a pleasant change. A teaspoonful of vinegar put into homemade candy will prevent it from being sticky. To prevent broiled chicken from being dry, butter it occasionally while it is broiling. It is better to wash table linen by itself. Handkerchiefs should be washed alone. All bacon is improved by having boiling water poured over it before frying.

ATHENS, To-day. A decree fixing the election for August 7th, will be issued now. The blockade will be raised to-morrow.

IN FAVOUR OF THE GERMAN

LONDON, To-day. The Germans gained another triumph in their progress towards Vienna, capturing French positions north of that fortress. Fighting in front of over three miles on the bank of the Meuse, the German following the usual tactical movement and in the face of violent fire from the French guns, carried their first line of trenches to Hills 321 and 329 and also to the front. At the same time the Germans have held back the advance of Russian forces from the Galician border. The Russians marked the advance towards Dun, Paris declares, admitting the loss of trenches and Triaumont. Further along the fighting line, the Germans reached Fleury about a half mile northeast of Dun, but Paris says the attacks on the woods of Vaux Chaptre, Fleury, Chenois on the Dampouy batteries broken and repulsed south of Dampouy battery in the sector of Mountain Village and on the left of the Meuse in the region of Hill and LeMort Homme, the French positions are being heavily bombarded by the German guns. The Germans advanced further into Bukovina in pursuit of General Pfleger's force but further north in East Galicia the Austrian forces were repulsed. They were arrested by violent counter-attacks of the Teutonic Allies. Advances for German Austria's forces westward in the region of Lutsk in Volhynia and the Russian counter-attacks of Stokhod and Stry Rivers in the region and along the Galician frontier in the vicinity of Brody, are chronicled in the Berlin and the official announcements. BBBD—official communications.

LONDON, To-day. King George has given sanction to the Duke of Connaught, who is as Governor General of Canada, to press next October, to return to England, says an announcement from the Colonial Office. "The King has also excused Prince Alexander Teck, whose appointment was made before the war, from being the successor of the Duke of Connaught. The Prince cannot relinquish his military duties. Nothing is known at present concerning the reports that Mr. Carson, former Chief Justice of Canada, has become Governor-General of Canada."

ROMANIA'S OPPORTUNITY

ROME, To-day. It is reported from Bucharest that Russia has offered Czernowitz to Rumania if she will join the Allies. The Rumanian opinion is said to be favourable to the proposal. SALONIKI, To-day. A despatch to the Chronicle is stated here on good authority that the Bulgarians are marching on the important fort of Pesopoli, the same source I learn that the Bulgarians have crossed the River Vardar, which for some length inland, its mouth forms the frontier between Greek Macedonia and Bulgaria. Combined British and French forces bombed Quimindia, this being the first occasion on which British men have been taking part in this region.

GREEK PRINCE IN BERLIN

ATHENS, To-day. A royal decree suspending the functions of the deputies has been issued in London. A despatch from Copenhagen says Prince George, the heir to the throne of Denmark, Berlin and conferred with the Imperial Chancellor, and then for Switzerland.

GERMAN SUCCESS COSTLY

PARIS, To-day. Late details show that yesterday fighting near Verdun, equal to any anything yet experienced, total German forces engaged at the mile front are estimated at the four and five divisions. It is by the last overwhelming victory the defenders were worn and thinned by many hours of fighting that the enemy succeeded in rushing the Thiameset works. Adjacent advanced trenches. Thiameset fortification covers approaches to Fleury and the hoped to confine the charges sweep away the defenders of the place; but the French counter-attacked with vigor that was able only to cling to the first gains, which he was engaged in strengthening all day. The morning papers freely say the Germans scored a success, but the cost was more than it was worth, the enemy being placed at from 40 to 50 per cent. of the effectiveness engaged.

woods of Vaux Chateau, Fulin and Chenois on the Damloup battery were broken and repulsed south of the Mountain Village and on the left bank of the Meuse in the region of Hill 304 and LeMort Homme, the French positions are being heavily bombarded by the German guns. The Russians have advanced further into Bukovina in pursuit of General Pfleger's forces, but further north in East Galicia and Volhynia their progress has apparently been arrested by violent attacks and counter-attacks of the Teutonic Allies. Advances for German and Austrian forces west and south-west of Lutsk in Volhynia and the repulse of Russian counter-attacks on the region and along the Galician frontier in the vicinity of Brody are chronicled in the Berlin and Vienna official announcements. B.B.D. (see Vo

CONNAUGHT TO LEAVE CANADA.
LONDON, To-day.
King George has given sanction for the Duke of Connaught, whose term as Governor General of Canada expires next October, to return to England, says an announcement issued by the Colonial Office. "The King has also excused Prince Alexander of Teck, whose appointment was made before the war, from being the successor of the Duke of Connaught, as the Prince cannot relinquish his military duties. Nothing is known officially concerning the reports that Earl Curzon, former Viceroy of India, will become Governor-General of Canada.

NEWFOUNDLANDER WOUNDED.

foundland, is mentioned as wounded in the casualty list.

ROMANIA'S OPPORTUNITY.
ROME, To-day.
It is reported from Bucharest that Russia has offered Czernowitz to Romania if she will join the Allies. Romanian opinion is said to be favourable to the proposal.

ACTIVITY IN THE BALKANS.
SALONIKI, To-day.
A despatch to the Chronicle says it is stated here on good authority that the Bulgarians are marching toward the important fort of Peopel. Even the same source I learn that the Bulgarians have crossed the River Mesto, which for some length inland from its mouth forms the frontier between Greek Macedonia and Bulgaria. A combined British and French squadron bombed Kumulidjina, this being the first occasion on which British airmen have been taking part in a raid in this region.

GREEK PRINCE IN BERLIN.
ATHENS, To-day.
A royal decree suspending the sessions of the deputies has been published in London. A despatch from Copenhagen says Prince George, brother of the King of Greece, arrived in Berlin and conferred with the Imperial Chancellor, and then departed for Switzerland.

GERMAN SUCCESS. COST THEM DEAR.
PARIS, To-day.
Late details show that yesterday's fighting near Verdun, equalled in fury anything yet experienced. The total German forces engaged on a two mile front are estimated at between four and five divisions. It was only by the last overwhelming rush, which the defenders were worn out and thinned by many hours of bombardment that the enemy succeeded in rushing the Thiamont work and the adjacent advances of the last night.
The Thiamont fortification covers the approaches to Fleury and the enemy hoped to continue the charge and sweep away the defenders of the last night, but the French counter attacked with such vigor that he was able only to cling to the positions first gained, which he was busily endeavouring to strengthen all the night.
The morning papers freely admit that the Germans scored a success, but point out that this success cost more than it was worth, as the losses being placed at from 40 to 50 per cent. of the effectives engaged.

SAYS MEXICO IS NOT AGGRESSIVE.
NEW YORK, To-day.
An Associated Press despatch from Mexico City last night said the note of the American Government in reply to the communication of General Carranza demanding the withdrawal of the American forces in Mexico had not yet been published there. Officials of the Mexican Government declared that Mexico is not attacking the United States punitive expedition but said that by no means will Mexico allow these troops to advance southward. They add that the withdrawal of the American forces in Mexico had not surprised at reports coming from the north that the United States alleged that Mexico was seeking war, especially as American forces had invaded Mexico. General Carranza continues to receive telegrams from various parts of the Republic offering the services of the senders in case of war. It is estimated in Mexico City that five hundred thousand men will join the Constitutional army.

PARIS, To-day.
It is reported that the Kaiser, the Crown Prince, General Von Falkenhayn, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and other leaders held a war council at Mezières on June 19th and 20th to determine whether it is worth while to continue the attempt at Verdun. The Emperor is said to have been depressed and worn. He eventually allowed General Von Falkenhayn and the Crown Prince, according to the report, to persuade him to continue the Verdun campaign. Accordingly the attack was resumed more fiercely than ever.

GERMANS STILL STRONG.
PARIS, To-day.
Whether it is true or not that the Germans have been obliged to withdraw troops from the western front to send to Russia, the fact is by no means manifest; for in the familiar Verdun cockpit recent attacks have been well up to the standard of intensity. They found effective to deliver a well-nourished onslaught in the Champagne region. Expectations raised by a furious 24 hour bombardment on the right bank of the Meuse were fulfilled. From early morn until nightfall attack after attack was launched along the short front from Thiamont to Damloup. The object of the German command is to secure control of the Vaux ravine, without which it is impossible for him to force back the French advanced line and begin an attack upon the main line of forts between Souville and Tannaves.

SITUATION GRAVE.
WASHINGTON, To-day.
With reports at hand that nearly an entire American cavalry command of about one hundred soldiers may have been annihilated in the fight at Carrizal on Wednesday, grave fears were expressed in official circles to-day that not even diplomatic representations from Mexico City can prevent open hostilities between the United States and Mexico. Up to last night only seven survivors of the Carrizal battle had returned to their base in General Pershing's column, and they brought no definite word of the others' fate.

POPE INTERCEDES.
LONDON, To-day.
A wireless despatch from Rome says that Pope Benedict has appealed to President Wilson and General Carranza to use their earnest endeavors to avert war.

Fresh Maps Taken in Air Show Every German Gun.
In the Argonne, May 4.—To-day we have seen an artillery engagement, a fight with hand grenades, and have been hurried out of some dugout under which some Germans were preparing to explode a mine. But the thing we saw which bordered on the fantastic was something to which we became accustomed when we entered the Fourth Reader grade back home, and met that old-fashioned geography with the picture of the Patagonian native trying to trap a sarage ostrich by entangling his legs with a bolas.

This marvel is a printed map of every curve and kink and artillery covert and ammunition cache of the German trenches opposite.

This is why it is a miracle. The information on which these maps are based was obtained from photographs taken from the air. They are so precise that gun positions are located within 15 meters. The subsequent shelling of that gun position becomes henceforth a mere matter of late-and-pencil figuring. The second remarkable thing about them is the fact that they are printed.

In the bottom of the car of each aeroplane is an opening covered by a swinging window of transparent celluloid. When the observer sees through this window that he is over the right place on the enemy's line he opens it and a camera drops into place. The precise nature of this camera is something of a secret. The Germans have something of the same sort.

"Our apparatus is much better" we are assured.
When the flyer returns to his lines the negative is developed. He knows the exact height from which it was taken. The negative is placed in a machine. An electric light shines from below through the negative, so that its lines are directed upon a frame covered with waxed paper. This flame is tilted at the precise angle the aeroplane held when the photograph was taken. It is held at a distance the plane was from the ground.

The map-maker studies the negative under the most powerful magnifying glasses. A fleck upon it which might be covered by a pinpoint may be a well concealed gun.

When the map has been drawn the interpretation of it is kindly undertaken by the German prisoners. No doubt they are not willingly consenting parties. Nevertheless they consent.

"What is this thing here, Fritz?" In comprehending Fritz's state of mind remember what Fritz has just gone through. He has escaped with his life when scores of his mates have died bloodily around him. He has been released from wet trenches and poor feed and constant labor and ever-present fear. He knows that until the end of the war he will live in comparative comfort in a prison camp. He has been well fed and warmed and dried and he is smoking a good cigar. The German army is short of tobacco.

"I do not know," says Fritz. Fritz is urged to think. A circle of French officers sitting about insist that he think. Fritz is uneasy in the presence of officers. He has been taught to stand at such times, but these officers insist that he sit. Fritz wriggles unhappily. The officers are more urgent that he concentrate his mental powers upon the task of thought. Moral suasion is unquestionably a powerful force. In the end Fritz thinks.

Sometimes his thought takes a patriotic but crooked course and he tries deception. It does not pay. Sometimes Fritz persists in mortal error for several seasons, but in the end he thinks accurately. He has discovered that his thoughts are being checked up.

So that in the end the map is an infinitely finer and more accurate one than any other map in existence. It is accurate almost to the foot.

On one I saw the map-makers could tell the depth of the houses in which various haupmen live, and the distance from front yard to front gate, and how far the various lines of trenches are apart and the places where the bombproofs have been dug, and the location of the wells, and a thousand other minute details of transcendent importance. Each new prisoner and each new photograph furnishes a correction, if one is needed.

The use of the map is only a matter of calculating angles by the artillery. That is by no means as simple as this jaunty statement might indicate. Few of the positions can be reached by direct fire nowadays except after a prodigious expenditure of ammunition, and indirect fire is affected by many factors. But the printing of the map is concrete evidence of the present perfection of the French organization.

A photograph taken in the morning sometimes appears as a printed map the following day. In such cases of course, the problem has been a simple one.

There are other photographs than the ones taken from the aeroplanes. One form is a panorama of entire front, showing every foot of the German line. Such a photograph might be yards in length. It is only a matter of pasting photographs together.

These photographs taken from the air, the maps drawn under fire, the maps printed under fire, and all to an accuracy of scale unapproached heretofore in map-making—these things are marvels.

Fashions and Fads!
A novel trimming of the skirt of white tulle is ruffles of blue ribbons. The skirts puffed on the hips are almost without exception hard to wear.

Flat little girdles of stiff ribbons are finished with straight bows and ends.

Victorian sprigged muslins are revived for the summer girl's holiday frock.

The new ribbed edges on warp-print ribbons are known as "candle" edges.

Cape effects on some of the new summer blouses show deep hemstitched borders.

An overskirt of taffet looped up over a cream lace underskirt is quaint and becoming.

Never before have ribbons been so much used. They are seen on nearly every garment.

Delicate and fashionable are the blouses of muslin in pale blue, rose, mauve and yellow.

Rather short coats of blue serge, over white collars, are being worn over white dresses.

Not Recognizing Troubles.

RUTH CAMERON.

Two women met on the street the other day. "I'm so glad to see you. I haven't seen you for months. It's been such a hard winter that I haven't gotten out much." "Has it been a hard winter? Do you know, I didn't realize it. My daughter lives on the other side of the town, and I've been to see her almost every day."

Don't you love that? The Spirit That Refuses To Be Limited By Weather Or Age.

It delighted me when I heard it, partly because it was so characteristic of the bird-like little old lady, partly because it is a spark of the spirit I love, the spirit that refuses to let any little accident such as bad weather or old age limit and tie it down.

By the way, why should we call snow or rain bad weather anyhow? It certainly isn't bad from the point of view of life and growth. Suppose the seeds should talk about the weather, can't you fancy them calling a steady stretch of sunny, rainless days "bad weather," and hoping for the good weather of life-bringing rain?

For myself, there are times when the drowsy, relaxed atmosphere of a rainy day is not at all unwelcome. And as for thinking that one must always stay in the house in any but sunshiny weather, what nonsense! I

RUTH CAMERON. believe I have called your attention to the witty characterization, "People who don't know enough to go out when it rains."

A Distinctive Flavor To A Tramp In The Rain.

There is a distinctive and fascinating flavor to a tramp in the rain. It's like ripe olives—everyone doesn't care for them, but those who do, like them enough to make up.

Of course, it isn't healthful to sit in damp clothes or even to walk in the damp if one feels chilled by it. One should be able to get a constant reaction. But I think that if people kept their bodies in such a state of general health that they could resist changes in temperature and humidity, they needn't be afraid of every little bit of weather, and their contact with the outside world needn't be limited to days when the sun shines and the wind is just so.

She Didn't Know She Was Too Old.

Moreover, the habit of refusing to be limited will extend itself to other things besides weather. The little old lady who didn't realize it had been a bad winter also refuses to realize that she is getting what the world calls old. A few years ago, when she came into some money, she fulfilled the desire of a lifetime by going abroad.

Everybody said, "Why, she's too old to go abroad." But she didn't know she was, and so she went and had a wonderful time.

Just think, if you don't recognize bad weather and old age and other annoyances when you meet them, you won't ever know you've met them.

Florizel in Port

With Many Passengers—Went to Aid of Stranded Grain Steamer.

The Red Cross liner Florizel, Capt. W. Martin, entered port at eight o'clock last night, having come from New York via Halifax. The ship had one hundred first class passengers on this trip, about thirty of whom were round-trippers.

Since she was here last the Florizel was for a trip to West India ports with a load of sugar and while in that climate was renovated and is now in the pink of condition for the tourist traffic on the Red Cross route.

New York was left on Saturday last at 11 a.m. for Halifax. Before leaving the latter port Capt. Martin received instructions to go to the rescue of the stranded grain steamer Arachne near St. Pierre. The Florizel reached the scene of the wreck at 7 o'clock Thursday evening. A boat was sent from the Florizel to the Arachne, which was on the rocks to amidships, the forward part of her being well ashore, but as the captain was ashore and the mate was in charge no arrangements were made. It was then very foggy. After a delay of eight hours the Florizel left for St. John's leaving the Portia standing by the wrecked steamer. The tug Amphitrite has since reached the scene. We understand the grain steamer was making no water up to yesterday morning.

The following saloon passengers came by the Florizel:—
 From New York:—Rev. E. D. Galway, Mrs. Robert and Miss Hope Grievie, Mr. Joseph Dewling, Mr. Leonard Taylor, Miss Margaret Lewis, Miss Marion Curtis, Mr. Arthur M. Mr. Kelly Writes on Sanitary Matters.

Editor Evening Telegram: Dear Sir,—I ask you in the interest of fair play and the public health in general to publish the few facts I herewith append.

What actually happened is that in the early summer of 1915 the sanitary supervisor, sanitary inspector and Commissioner Bradshaw, with two of the sanitary department staff went out at the regular hour and experimented by dumping the contents of the cans containing the night soil into these earthenware receptacles called pots without the use of strainers. This practice was continued for a couple of weeks, after which time metal cans with holes about 3/4 in. in diameter in the bottom, something like a large calender were supplied. These are now placed in these pots and the contents of the cans deposited into the "pots" in the immediate vicinity of same. In such sections that there are no pots the contents of the cans are dumped into the cars, which when full are brought to the nearest pot, the car backed up to the pot, the strainer put in, the sanitary employee takes a bucket and bales out the contents of the car as far as he can and dumps it into the strainer, the liquid portion of the night soil flows through the strainer into the sewer, and the residue or larger particles, together with any rags, cans, or other refuse are dumped back from the strainer to the car, after which he repeats the process of collection. When the car is full it proceeds to the central pit at the sanitary stables, where the load is deposited. While the car is gone to the yard the assistant dumps what he can into the nearest pot, where it remains until taken away by the day men who mix it with the ashes they are collecting.

Your Boys and Girls.

I have found a very convenient way to hang little dresses and aprons in a closet without getting them mused after they are ironed, and it takes less room.

Fasten a long stick across the top of the closet lengthwise; then take strips of cloth of any stout material and fasten them on to the stick, letting them hang down when you iron the little clothes, fold them with the two sleeves together and pin by the sleeves to the strips of cloth, beginning at the bottom.

They are neat and out of the way, and when you want a particular garment you can get it without disturbing the others. Have a cushion handy to stick the pins in as you take them down.

DELAYS ARE DANGEROUS

Mr. Kelly Writes on Sanitary Matters.

Editor Evening Telegram: Dear Sir,—I ask you in the interest of fair play and the public health in general to publish the few facts I herewith append.

What actually happened is that in the early summer of 1915 the sanitary supervisor, sanitary inspector and Commissioner Bradshaw, with two of the sanitary department staff went out at the regular hour and experimented by dumping the contents of the cans containing the night soil into these earthenware receptacles called pots without the use of strainers. This practice was continued for a couple of weeks, after which time metal cans with holes about 3/4 in. in diameter in the bottom, something like a large calender were supplied. These are now placed in these pots and the contents of the cans deposited into the "pots" in the immediate vicinity of same. In such sections that there are no pots the contents of the cans are dumped into the cars, which when full are brought to the nearest pot, the car backed up to the pot, the strainer put in, the sanitary employee takes a bucket and bales out the contents of the car as far as he can and dumps it into the strainer, the liquid portion of the night soil flows through the strainer into the sewer, and the residue or larger particles, together with any rags, cans, or other refuse are dumped back from the strainer to the car, after which he repeats the process of collection. When the car is full it proceeds to the central pit at the sanitary stables, where the load is deposited. While the car is gone to the yard the assistant dumps what he can into the nearest pot, where it remains until taken away by the day men who mix it with the ashes they are collecting.

Mr. Gosling states that "the night soil is not dumped, but strained into the sewer." This, to my mind, is a distinction without a difference. As unfortunately everyone knows that night soil may be solid or liquid, and that the odor of either is very offensive, and no citizen should be expected to be subjected to such outrageously objectionable annoyance, as any person conversant with the facts must realize that such a sickening stench would prevent them from raising windows and allowing entrance of God's pure air. I cannot too strongly impress upon all concerned that such a state of affairs is directly contrary to all rules of health and civilization. Mr. Gosling's contention notwithstanding.

It will also be borne in mind that pots have not been disinfected for months past, if ever until the 20th inst. (last Tuesday). In conclusion I wish to impress upon all citizens concerned the seriousness of the situation and that I am prepared to substantiate each and every charge made.

Another point of much importance I wish to make is that cats, so much caressed by children actually roll around in these cesspools referred to, and transfer to their innocent victims all the horrors and germs emanating from the pots and children by the score out of childish curiosity leap over and look into these receptacles, inhaling death germs at every breath. Deplorable in the extreme are present conditions, and I ask every one to weigh them carefully.

Yours truly,
 W. A. O'D. KELLY,
 Candidate for Mayor.

Our Baseball Column. PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

UMPIRES generally are looked upon with disfavor by bleacherites all the world over. As an instance of this we quote the following:—
"Do you love your enemies?"
"Can't do it, parson, I've got too many of them. I used to be a baseball umpire."

In St. John's, however, we are particularly blessed in having four "Umps," and while their decisions are sometimes questioned, yet their integrity and honesty of purpose are never doubted, except of course by THE OFFICIAL KICKER which is the natural "appendage" of every club in any kind of sport. To this particular individual we would say: If the umpire's work doth displease you, Don't shout "You're as blind as a bat."
Remember that he may have feelings, Though his looks rarely indicate that.

Nevertheless, the "O.K." of each team here has one legitimate kick coming to him. It appears that all our Umpires, from Chief Freddie down, have a very pernicious custom which has been in vogue here since the inception of Baseball, and it is about this that we are going to have our little growl. "To err is human" must be admitted, and we do not imagine for a moment that any one can be found who could infallibly umpire a ball game, particularly when it is remembered that Nallin—probably the cleverest and most popular umpire in the American League—had no less than 12 decisions reversed on him last year, and these on interpretations of the rules and not on points of play like strikeouts, or base-stealing.

So far as ACTUAL umpiring is concerned we are quite content with the way things have been going in our own little League here, but we ARE NOT content, nor are we going to be, with the habit our umpires have of "evening up" their decisions. As an example,—We see a man sliding to 3rd base, and though tagged the umpire accidentally calls him SAFE though knowing full well he is out. It is expected, of course, that every umpire will stand by his original pronouncement in a case like this. Then, later in the game, this same baserunner reaches a base. The baseman attempts to tag him but "misses him a mile," to speak in the vernacular of the Diamond. Then, in order to EVEN UP his previous WRONG decision the umpire calls the baserunner OUT.

Now "two wrongs do not make a right," and our umpires should refrain from this EVENING UP process, as it is manifestly unfair both to the player and his club. If a mistake is made on a close decision, we think it will be admitted that our fans here are sporty enough to give the umpire the benefit of the doubt every time, though of course in the heat of the game or excitement of the moment perhaps remarks might be passed that would not be entirely complimentary to the Umpire.

Before closing let it be understood that beyond this one point there is no fault to be found with the umpiring. In this EVENING UP habit they have merely been the victims of an unwritten local law handed down from their predecessors when the game was first started here. They, we think, will admit that this was so, though

In Memoriam

Very Rev. Dean Roche, Died at Witless Bay, June 14th, 1916.

Death with every visit leaves an indelible sting, but how much more poignant is it when from the grasp of our affection is torn one who has ever exercised complete control over our hearts, and that in the spirit of a wise counsellor and indulgent father! Only to those who have ever felt the influence of his fatherly guidance can the full understanding come of the empty void that fell on the hearts of his children when on Friday last the grave closed over the remains of the Very Rev. Dean Roche, P.P. of Witless Bay. And can we wonder at this? For the late Dean had enshrined himself in the hearts of all those who came within the range of his friendly protection. Born in Wexford County, Ireland, the zealous clergyman, after completing his studies at Carlow College turned with that unswerving spirit of sacrifice which has ever been the characteristic of the children of Erin towards the hands of the west, where the descendants of the Gael in exile were calling for the comforts which the soul ever craves.

And like so many of his countrymen he burst asunder all family ties, left behind him home and friends and the old land, and at the early age of twenty-three landed on the shores of Terra Nova, where he was subsequently ordained by the late Bishop Mullock. A year later he was appointed curate with the late Dean Cleary and at the death of the latter was made parish priest. During his forty-nine years at Witless Bay need we say that he gained complete control over the hearts of all his parishioners? With the sympathetic heart of the Irish priest he shared their sorrows and joys, comforted and cheered them when afflictions were heaviest, and finally sat beside the pillow of death to administer the last comforts to many a weary soul. Few firesides were not brightened by "The Dean's" friendly smile, and many a heart-broken spirit regained courage and determination from his wise counsel. Firm and holy he subdued vices, comforted the weary soul, and gave renewed energy to one and all. Energetic to the last he spared no pains in any church matter, and was indefatigable in his efforts to improve his parish. With sadness, his parishioners perceived during late years that his strength was failing, but refused to believe that it was possible his life was closing. When a short time ago he contracted the disease which caused his death many an anxious prayer arose to heaven for his recovery, but the time of servitude was over and the Master's Crown was ready. And though one and all weep over his grave, yet his long and useful life has received its reward, and we doubt not that he has already heard from that Divine Master the all-consoling words: "Because thou hast been true in a few things, I will place thee over many"—Com.

Terra Novas Win.

DECIDED VICTORY OVER COLLEGIANS.

Though the score was not an indication of the play, the Collegians went down to a bad defeat last evening at the hands of the Terra Novas, the score at the finish being in their favor to the extent of six goals to nil. The teams lined up as follows:
Collegians—Spoooner, goal; Jolliffe, Heath, backs; Barnes, Downs, Simmonds, halves; Chauncey, Ellis, Quick, Bartlett, Coultas, forwards.
Terra Novas—Walsh, goal; J. Kavanagh, J. Hart, backs; W. Duggan, T. Jackman, E. Kavanagh, halves; Duffy, Simms, L. Kavanagh, Pitcher, Evans, forwards.

The Terra Novas won the toss and defended the western territory, having the advantage of a strong breeze of wind. The game opened briskly, the T. N.'s having matters in their favor. The Collegians tried hard to drive the ball out of their territory, but after a few minutes attacking the Terra Novas scored. The Collegians made some strenuous endeavours to equalize but without success. Four times more did the Terra Novas score during the first period. On changing ends the Collegians played all round their opponents, but their luck was against them and they failed to find the net once, whilst the Terra Novas forwards made a splendid run and dropped the ball behind Spoooner for the 6th time. Mr. Foster (St. Andrew's) refereed.

Keeping Cabinet Secrets

Only Once Have they been Revealed.
It must be remembered that the recent Secret Session of the Commons was no new thing. Indeed, to this day it is technically a breach of privilege to report the proceedings of Parliament, and so lately as 1840 a special Act was passed to protect the printers of Parliamentary papers, so that, if sued or prosecuted, they may obtain a stay of proceedings.
The actual facts laid before the Commons in the recent secret session will probably be made public property when the war is over. With regard to the proceedings of the Cabinet, these are never made public. The Prime Minister sends an account of the proceedings to the King. Beyond this, no record is kept.

LONDON, June 23.—Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Lord Cromer, Earl Halsbury, Viscount Middleton, and the Marquis of Salisbury, who represent the extreme anti-Home Rule party, have issued a manifesto deprecating any attempt to settle the Irish question by negotiations at a moment when a sanguinary rebellion has just been repressed, and when the concessions proposed will be regarded in Ireland as premature on rebellion and as a vantage ground for further demands. The signatories' manifesto declare it to be their conviction that the proposed settlement is fraught with infinite danger to the State.

MAKING A DASH FOR A PASS IN THE CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS

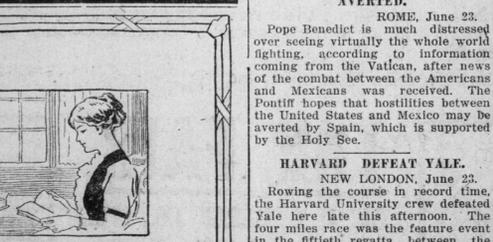

LONDON, June 23.—To-night's Russian official confirms what had already been learned from Austrian admissions that the Russians are overrunning Bukovina, and are making a dash for a pass in the Carpathian mountains, as they did 18 months ago, when they reached Kiribaba Pass, overlooking Austrian Transylvania. A report from Bucharest stated that the Russians had taken possession of two railways leading from Roumania to Bukovina. Information that the Germans and Austrians are bringing up reinforcements from the French and Italian fronts, is given in a communication from Petrograd. According to speculations in Paris the tornado of artillery fire on the Verdun sector and attacks in Champagne are supposed to be a mask to transfer troops from this front to the Russian front in view of the necessity of stemming the Russian advance towards Kovel.

Salvationists and many others in the city will be pleased to welcome Colonel Jacobs, the Men's Social Secretary for Newfoundland, who will reach the city about four o'clock this afternoon by the incoming express. He was for a long period Chief Secretary of the Men's Social Work in Great Britain, where he did splendid work in raising men from the lower strata of humanity to a higher level of citizenship, and hundreds to-day bear witness of the fruits of the Colonel's unselfish labor. He is the oldest Salvationist in Canada, having devoted 33 years of his life to the work of the Army.

ARREARS NO DISQUALIFICATION

In this municipal election, every household has a vote. It does not matter if he is in arrears with his taxes, and it is unnecessary for a deputy-returning officer to ask any questions as to the payment of taxes, unless a man votes by reason of special tax, and not as a household.

It is under the New Charter that the fact of arrears will debar a man from voting.

MUNICIPAL

At last the Civic Commissioners are speaking and are as actively engaged in election work as any of the candidates.

Mr. Gosling says that critics of their work have come from those who look at the city with selfish eyes. Their object has been the benefit of the city as a whole. Personally I do not think that the Council should engage in works which touch every body. I should not mind the Council helping out one man, if he was in need of help. So that I should have been more anxious to make better housing conditions than to pay special attention to the water service. Since the 1892 fire we have had the city—a security that is above the greatest possible water pressure—mean the prompt and proper control of a fire at its outbreak. And Mr. Gosling begs the question, when he says that it was not in the power of the Council to tackle the Housing Problem. The same authority that gave the Commission power to raise $150,000 for the new water service could have given them the power to raise money to build workmen's houses.

It all depends on the point of view. Instead of guarding against a mathematical conflagration (which is all we are to our advantage) I would rather take an insistent Personally I do not think that the Council should only engage in works which touch everybody. I should not mind the Council helping out one man, if he was in need of help.

Mr. Gosling pleads lack of funds to excuse the lack of attention to some streets. In the face of this I do not know that an appeal to lay the dust on Waterford Bridge Road can be considered while there remains a dusty street in the city. The users of this road are on pleasure-bent and are in good health. There are other streets in the city where the sick and the invalid sit by an open window and inhale fresh-dust. Whom shall we consider? You will find also that Waterford Bridge Road owes the most of its dusty condition to motor cars which rush along our roads without a thought of the dusty clouds that ever follow. Our country roads once possessed green foliage on each side. Since the advent of the motor car, the foliage is no longer green—it is white with dust.

real problem and tackle it. From my point of view, I should have taken one section of the city in which the houses were congested and in bad condition and got the necessary power to build new houses for these people and to get the old houses torn down. That is an experiment which has a prior claim to an experiment in road-making, had as our roads are.

Perhaps the Commissioners are not to be harshly blamed if they do not see it in this light. The majority of them have not been up against the conditions under which our "submerged tenth" sink deeper instead of rising in the scale of citizenship. They do not know what it is to live on $500.00 a year. Consequently they cannot sympathize fully with those who need help most of all.

Considerations of this kind are termed too radical for us. I venture to say that in five or ten years such considerations will have become commonplace.

MOTOR DUST.

In a letter about the Dust nuisance, Mr. Gosling pleads lack of funds to excuse the lack of attention to some streets. In the face of this I do not know that an appeal to lay the dust on Waterford Bridge Road can be considered while there remains a dusty street in the city. Treat Every Child's Cold Externally Rub on Nerviline—A Safe Cure.

A Miracle of Healing Power in Every Bottle.

Little children can't be expected to romp, day in and day out, without something coming to grief. Some of their games are rough and tumble, cause undue fatigue, and not infrequently the kiddies are bruised, have strains, swellings and aches just like their elders.

When children come in tired and sore see they are well rubbed with Nerviline. It does wonders in breaking up a cold, has an amazing effect on any sort of muscular pain. The wise mother always keeps trusty old Nerviline on hand. It has a wonderful list of uses, and a bottle handy on the bedroom shelf often saves calling in the doctor.

Young and old alike can safely use Nerviline—there's no harm in it—just a heap of curative power when you rub it on.

When ever there is a pain or sickness, Nerviline should be close by. It is a true specific for rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica or neuralgia.

As for earache, toothache, sore back, sprains or strains, nothing else will cure so fast as good old Nerviline. In use about fifty years—sold by dealers everywhere. The large 60c. family size bottle is the most economical; trial size 25c.

Throw Away Your Eye-Glasses!

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye-strain or other eye-weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing, say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "I am almost sure of getting my eyes without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multiply their ability to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by this simple plan. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in 1/2 glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid, bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had caught this cure in time. The Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

A prominent City Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations that should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

COAL AND POTATOES.

I hope the Coal Committee of the Board of Trade is keeping track of the situation. Everybody who has a cellar and spare cash is securing a winter's stock in view of the rumour that coal will be $20.00 a ton next winter. I hardly think that this will be the price unless the stocks are held by the same firms which held them last winter.

But in spite of many cargoes so far we shall need a great many more, and as the fall comes on freights will likely get higher and ships scarcer. The Government and the Board of Trade should be able to foresee any shortage and also prevent any excessive price. I understand that one of the clauses in the agreement between the Government and the Coal Combine re the Government-imported Coal last winter, was that the Government could not import any more coal until these cargoes (Alconda and Florida) have been sold. Consequently the Government have allowed their hands to be bound and they cannot relieve another situation as they did last year while a ton of this coal remains unsold. As a matter of fact cargoes have been dumped in on top of this coal in some sheds and so it may not be sold till next winter. It is in view of this that efforts should be made that will ensure a winter's supply of coal and that some control should regulate the price if necessary.

It may seem strange to some of our dealers have been underselling; those who landed the Government coal. The reason of course is that in the Alconda's coal, there was 30 cents a ton added for expenses and replaced contracts, in addition to the profit of the Coal Combine, which profit is in excess of what many of our dealers want.

I have heard that we may not be able to obtain potatoes from Prince Edward Island this fall as the British Government have bought them up. Happy then is the man with a bit of ground that is willing to reward him for time and exertion spent on it. Nature is the most active partner anyone can have. She requires but one qualification in her helper, and that is—Industry.

ST. JOHN'S DAY.

On June 24th, 1497 the little vessel "The Matthew," commanded by John Cabot and manned by 18 English sailors came in sight of Newfoundland, and gave us our city's name. Our birthday has never been recognised very much, and it is a happy thought that some societies have of parading on the Sunday nearest the day and attending one of the churches. I had wished however that the idea should have been more generally discussed, so that a parade worthy of the day and of all our civic pride might have resulted. It is a Day that we can all share in—as societies and as individuals. And especially in view of the near civic election, what an opportunity it presents for all to show that there is something in common among all our divisions—a regard for St. John's and a desire for her welfare. And we should never lose an opportunity that draws all classes and creeds together. I have touched but the fringe of politics and political tactics and I have found it rotten—rotten with the prejudices that appeal to our lowest nature—and it seems as if this were the only way to climb in political life. Even in this civic election I hear of actions which make one lose interest in the result and almost lose hope that we shall ever take a principle as our guide instead of a prejudice.

"Are we not to fight people with their own weapons, the use of which by them we condemn?" asks one. "Are we not to make war upon women and children as the Germans do?" Absolutely—No!

Let us lose no opportunity then of unifying all the interests in our city. Let us another year extend the celebration of our City's Birthday and let every individual and every society take part. Let everyone feel that city comes first, and self afterwards. This is the spirit that needs to be fostered, and let us see to it that we do not fall in the small part we may have in breaking down the dividing walls of prejudice between man and man.

The skirts puffed on the hips are almost without exception hard to wear.

Naval Hero in Town.

Lieut. Commander Richard Howley, son of Mr. James P. Howley, came by the S. S. Florizel last night from Halifax, accompanied by his wife, on a visit to his parents. As is well known, Lieut. Howley has been designated "the man of 100 wounds." He was on H. M. S. Irresistible when she was lost, at which time his body was tattooed with wounds as a result of being hit by pieces of a bursting shell. He was rendered unconscious by the force service and has been engaged latterly at recruiting work in Halifax. His many friends and admirers bid him a warm welcome and wish him a pleasant sojourn in his native town.

NO CHANCE.

The man who never had a chance, the victim of fell circumstance, who in a moment was Johnnie-on-the-spot—how sad and pitiful his lot! He had two hands, as good as those of other chap, who bravely rose, to influence and high renown, and was a credit to the town. He had two legs, without a flaw; two smoother legs I never saw, and had he used them wisely well, they might have made him—who can tell? He had two eyes, two ears, a nose, the usual array of toes, a dome on which to wear his hats, a liver and a set of slats, and whiskers till we couldn't rest; the whole equipment he possessed, by which the human tribes advance, and yet, he says, he had no chance. The wolf was always at his door; he had no tick at any store, his wife did washing every day, to buy the hungry children hay. He had a wishbone and a lung, a solar plexus and a tongue, he had two kidneys and a wart, and vital organs by the quart; and yet he gassed the same old whine—because he hadn't any spine.

AT THE CRESCENT.

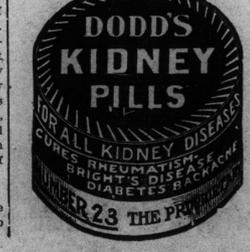

Take in the big week-end show at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day, there are five pictures, all features, and a classy musical programme. "When the Wires Crossed" is a strong political drama with L. C. Shunnway and Ada Gleason. "Broncho Billy's Parents," a western drama with G. M. Anderson. "Heart Trouble," a Biograph melo-drama, with Vola Smith and Alan Hale. "Hearst Selig News," a reel of interesting world happenings, and "Snakeville's Hen Medic," a lively Snakeville Comedy. Professor McCarthy plays the musical programme a guarantee of its excellence.

National Anthem.

The following are the verses of the National Anthem, being sung at church and parochial intercessory services held in England.

God save our gracious King! Long live our noble King; God save the King! Send him victorious, Happy and glorious, Long to remain over us; God save the King!

O Lord our God arise, Scatter his enemies, And make them fall; Confound their politics; Frustrate their knavish tricks On Thee our hopes we fix God save us all.

On bended knee, O Lord, To-day, with one accord, We pray that Thou Make this dread war to cease; Make world-wide love increase, And give us lasting peace.— Lord hear us now.

With truth and righteousness Our widespread Empire bless; God save the King! Through Britain's vast domain, Sing we the bold refrain, "King George, long may he reign!" God save the King!

Captor of Cairo Citadel

Passing of Colonel Watson Recalls a Famous Military Feat.

The death of Colonel Sir Charles Moore Watson, K.C.M.G., C.B., R.E., recalls that he was the friend and lieutenant of General Gordon and that he was the daring captor of the Citadel of Cairo after the Battle of Tel-el-Kebir. Sir Charles had warned the General and Colonel Herbert Stewart of the danger that Cairo might be burned, and pointed out the importance of the Citadel that evening. Accordingly, after the amazing scene at Abbasia was over and 10,000 Egyptian troops had laid down their arms before 1,000 British cavalry, Colonel Stewart sent Sir Charles in command of scarcely 150 officers and men of the 4th Dragoon Guards and mounted infantry, to take the Citadel which was known to be strongly garrisoned. They set out in the dark, and presented themselves by an unfrequented road at the Citadel gate. There Watson coolly ordered the officer of the guard to fetch the commandant and when he came he was told to parade the garrison and march them out to Kasr-en-Nil Barracks. "This audacious command was instantly obeyed. The keys were at once surrendered. Bugles were soon heard sounding the "Assembly," and while the few British troops were kept in the dark near the upper gate to conceal their scant numbers, 6,000 Egyptian soldiers marched out of the lower gate for more than two hours falling in by companies and "marching off as if they were quite accustomed to being roused up in the middle of the night and turned out by foreign troops."

"MEASLES."

Hundreds of children are suffering from "measles" at the present time, and one has to be very careful in trying to avoid the complications that often follow them.

A heavy "cough" is very prevalent during the present epidemic, and "Pneumonia" is the great danger. Avoid this by keeping a bottle of "Stafford's Phorastone Cough Cure" on hand.

Stafford's Drug Store (Theatre Hill) is open every night from 7.30 to 9.30. The above preparation is manufactured by DR. F. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Nfld.

HEAD WAITER: Excellent beds and good wholesome food—comfortable Gas Fires and 'ot water in every room in the 'ouse.

GUEST:—Gas Fires, eh! That doesn't sound old fashioned.

HEAD WAITER: No, sir, it don't. But we 'ad to move with the times, sir, and it's our business to give people what they want. If you'll excuse me, sir, that 'ave been 'ere all my life, I find that our people mostly want 'ot baths, 'ot water, well cooked food, good fires, good beds and no fussing. We couldn't do that with coal—not satisfactory as I may say. So we puts in gas—everywhere. We cooks by gas, we lights by gas, we 'eats the water by gas and we 'as Gas Fires. So you can 'ave a 'ot bath in ten minutes if you want it, sir, a fire in your bedroom and whatever you like to order for dinner, sir, punctual to the minute.

HEAD WAITER:—What'll you 'ave, sir,—a nice sole, leg of mutton and sweets?

GUEST: Well, if that isn't troubling the cook too much—I'm rather late, I'm afraid.

HEAD WAITER: No trouble at all, sir. You see, sir, our kind of comfort means comfort for us as well as our people. We don't 'ave no coals to carry, no fires to make up, no bathrooms to attend to—This 'ere gas, if I may say so, saves money and time, and—

GUEST: You may say so at dinner time, please, I'm off to have that bath . . . (ascends stairs slowly) . . . Decent old boy, though he does talk a lot; and a real nice place. Thank heaven, I've struck a decent billet at last! (The bathroom door bangs sharply.)
