CHAPTER IV.

QUESTIONS AND THE QUESTIONED

"I don't believe that's all the reason," she says; "and if it is, it's all nonsense! Fancy you wanting to keep quiet and all that! No, it won't do, Cyril; there's something else in the wind, I'm sure of it."

"All right," says Cyril. "I'm not going to contradict a lady—bad manners that, Molly; but give me your promise."

"What—that I won't mention your name? that I won't tell anyone, now or hereafter, that I saw you, or knew you were in this beast of a place—"

"Exactly," says Cyril.

"Well, I'll do that; I'll do more than that, Cyril, for you."

"Of course," says Cyril, with polite acquiescence; "and as that is all I want, you'll do that cheerfully. Good-by, Molly—enjoy your drive; you'll find the supper a good one, or they've lost their cook since I was there—good-by."

"Good-by, if you will go," she says, with a pout.

He takes the begloved and beringed hand, presses it for a moment, and raising his hat turns away. Scarcely has he done so than he sees walking slowly under the trees on the quai, Aunt Martha and Edna. Aunt Martha is looking cheerfully before her, with her amiable gaze on the lake, but Edna—yes, he sees in a moment that she has seen him, that she has still her eyes upon the over-dressed figure and powdered face of Miss Gilters, now she turns them to him; he raises his hat and passes on; it is all done in a moment, but Miss Gilters' eyes are sharp and she has seen the recognition—the salutation—nay, more, the faint flush that colors the lovely face of the young girl, and Miss Gilters colors in her turn.

"So Mr. Cyril—devil—that is the game, is it? Quiet and rest, eh? Quiet and rest, indeed! As if I was to be taken in by that! As if I didn't know you too well to believe all that! Now—I wonder—with intense curiosity—who she is? Poor little thing!"

CHAPTER V.

A VILLAGE FETE.

THE scene is the drawing-room, or salon, as it is called, of the Pension Petre. Three days have elapsed since Cyril held his little conference with the over-dressed young lady at the entrance to the Grand, and he is still in Lucerne, still at the pension, and for a wonder, perhaps the first time in his life, neither bored nor wearied.

Madame Petre is as liberal in the matter of light as she is in that of diet, and the room is both pretty and cheerful. Some of the visitors whom Sir Cyril saw on the first day of his arrival have gone, but others have come to fill their places, and the room is almost crowded.

The baron is still here and sleeps peacefully in a remote corner, half hidden by an india-rubber tree that grows in a huge majolica stand. Near him the authoress and an old sea captain are playing chess; a whist table is in full swing in an adjoining and smaller room, and through the open windows come floating in the voices of some young people who prefer the moon and the lake to the whist or go-bang.

Mingling with their voices, almost dreamily there at times are the strains of a new waltz by Strauss, which the German professor, with all a German's taste, is playing at the piano. And last, but not least, Edna Weston sits at a small table near the window, turning over some awful daubs, which the young lady, who has perpetrated them, and is kindly explaining them, calls "sketches." Cyril is nowhere to be seen.

"This," says Miss Robinson, the artistic criminal, "is Heidelberg Castle by moonlight. Do you like it? It is considered rather good. Capt. Sparkler, who was staying at the pension at Heidelberg with us, admired it immensely; do you really like it?"

Edna thinks that it would be better if the castle were not quite so much out of the perpendicular, but she smiles her approval, and Miss Robinson turns complacently to sketch number two.

"And that is the Bay of Naples," which she has represented in the approved fashion, all pink and green and ultramarine. "Oh, I see so love Naples. And that's the Coliseum at Rome; oh, isn't Rome lovely? Oh, I quote on Rome; don't you?"

"Yes, I enjoyed it," murmurs Edna.

"We had such a glorious time there," continues Miss Sophie; and she smiles with deep significance as she turns to the window: "didn't we, Josephine?"

Josephine thus addressed is another Miss Robinson, tall, fair, freckled and gorgeous in a pink dress with an enormous frilled collar. Why will every young lady with red hair and a long neck fancy herself like Mary Stuart, and so be tempted into wearing a huge frill!

Miss Josephine smiles with still deeper meaning, and Miss Sophie explains, in an undertone:

"You know, it was at Naples we met Mr. Slasher from Oxford."

And Edna, poor Edna, who has been already made recipient of the records of the many Robinson conquests, nods acquiescently.

"And that reminds me," goes on Miss Sophie, with a sudden eagerness, "we meant to ask you if you knew anything about Mr. Payne?"

Edna raises her eyes from the particular abomination in water col-

If You Saw Wood Each Day You Won't Need Cascarets

Great medicine—the Sawbuck. Two hours a day sawing wood will keep anyone's Bowels regular. No need of pills, Cathartics, Castor Oil nor "Physic," if you'll only work the Sawbuck regularly.

Exercise is Nature's Cure for Constipation and—Ten-Mile walk will do, if you haven't got a wood pile. But, if you will take your exercise in an Easy Chair, there's only one way to do that, and make a Success of it. Because—there's only one kind of Artificial Exercise for the Bowels and its name is "CASCARETS." Cascarets are the only means to exercise the Bowel Muscles, without work. Druggists—10 Cents a Box.

ors which she is contemplating, with calm interrogation.

"Know about Mr. Payne?"

"Yes," nods Miss Sophie, dropping into the chair beside Edna, and twining her long, thin, grenadine-covered arm round Edna's waist, after the fashion of a schoolgirl, which Miss Sophie long since ceased to be; "yes, he always seems to be with you, and you appear to be so friendly, and to know him better than anyone else here."

Edna's clearly pencilled brows come together, as is their wont when she is thoughtful, and then she shakes her head.

"No, I don't know anything about him, excepting that he is very kind and attentive—"

"Oh, do you think so?" interrupts Miss Sophie, with an upheaving of her eyebrows. "Why, it was only today that Josey and I agreed that he was almost rude!"

Edna turns to the sketches with a smile that is rather abstracted and incredulous, as she remembers Cyril's pointedly respectful manner to her—how he has turned from her side to fetch some trifle that Aunt Martha or she herself had forgotten or required—how he never let them leave the room without opening the door for them—how, ah! in countless ways, how polite and high-bred he was.

"Do you think so?" she says, incredulously.

"Oh, yes," says Miss Sophie, decisively, "not at all polite. Why, it was only yesterday that he passed us without raising his hat, just as if he didn't know us! And then he's so unsober; he never says a word to any of us, excepting you, unless he's spoken to. Not that I dislike the high-and-mighty style, but I do like to know whether people who've got it have anything to give themselves airs about. Josey stands up for him, but then that's because she admires him. He is very handsome, isn't he?"

Edna, who has listened in a sort of dreamy inattention, rouses with a little start.

"Handsomely!" she repeats, and then turns her thoughts inward. It is not too much to say that she has never asked herself the question Miss Sophie has put to her; she has never considered whether he was handsome or ugly, short or plain; she knows that he is kind, that he never comes near her without giving her an indefinable, calm kind of pleasure—that there is something in his voice which makes it different to the voices of all the other people about her.

"Why, what a time you are deciding! Can't you decide? Do you think him better-looking than Mr. Jones?" and Miss Sophie smiles across the room at that gentleman, who is lounging against the wall, eyeing himself in the glass approvingly, while he draws and minces through a feeble flirtation with a young lady who has just arrived with papa and mamma from London.

A smile, light and spontaneous, floods, yes, literally floods, Edna's pure face as she looks at Mr. Jones' commonplace countenance with its turn-up nose and insipid eyes.

Now she knows, and her smile is sufficient answer.

"Ah, I see," says Miss Sophie, impatiently, "Mr. Jones is no favorite of yours—oh, yes, I've seen you snub him often. Now, we think he is very nice—quite the aristocrat."

Before Edna can confirm or contradict—neither of which she would do—by the way, the door opens and the other subject of Miss Sophie's criticism enters.

Surely no one could hesitate a moment over that question of good looks as the fair-haired giant comes in with the quiet, high-bred air of self-possession.

Edna looks up and sees his eyes go round the room searchingly and then light up for an instant as they rest on her, and for the first time a little tinge of extra color mounts to her cheeks, and her pure, clear eyes drop.

With his light, commanding step he comes up to the table and stands before them.

"Good-evening, Miss Robinson—good-evening, Miss Weston. Sketches, eh?" and he takes one up, to turn, after a momentary examination, to Edna. "Did you do these?"

"No; they are Miss Robinson's," says Edna.

"Very pretty," he says, politely, but with an evident sign of relief.

"Are you fond of art, Mr. Payne?" says Miss Sophie.

"Very," was the reply, in a tone which would be appropriate to "not at all" equally well.

Miss Sophie rises and collects her sketches.

"I'm going on the balcony, dear Miss Weston; will you come?"

Edna, always amiable, half rises, but a hand, firm yet pleading, catches secretly at her skirt, and with a little blush she changes her mind, and Miss Robinson hurries off alone.

Then, very humbly, the audacious Cyril pleads for forgiveness.

"It was awfully cool of me, but I was filled with despair; I knew if you got on that balcony we should see no more of you to-night, and this place is so dull, and—he stops and feels in his pocket—"I've been for a stroll in the town," he goes on.

"Quite a nice old town, full of rum shops and quaint old houses. Funny thing, but just as I was passing one of the old places I came upon one of those Swiss carvings you spoke of yesterday—the chamois, you know, and with a timidly, which is most absurdly comical in the usually self-possessioned Sir Cyril, he extends a delicate little carving of a chamois upon a piece of rock. It is a pretty little toy, of very little value, but Edna is delighted.

"How strange," she says, "that you should have happened to see it today, after our mentioning it yesterday—"

"Isn't it?" says Cyril, ignoring, or oblivious of the fact, that he had searched every shop in the town for one. "I thought you would like it."

Wedding Bells.

GIBBONS—HALLERN.

Quite a pretty wedding took place on the 18th inst., when Mr. Ignatius Gibbons, son of the late Michael and Minnie Gibbons, led to the altar Miss May Hallern, daughter of Terence and the late Elizabeth Hallern. The bride looked lovely attired in blue silk, with wreath and veil, and was attended by Miss Cecelia Fleming, while the groom was ably supported by Mr. Austin Hallern, cousin of the bride. After the wedding ceremony the happy pair drove to the residence of the groom's mother where an enjoyable time was spent amongst hosts of friends. To Mr. and Mrs. Gibbons we wish every happiness and many years of wedded life.

MARTIN—CRAWLEY.

On the 18th inst., St. Vincent's was the scene of many pretty weddings, Mr. Daniel Martin, son of Mr. William and the late Jane Martin, making one of the number, when he led to the altar Miss Lena Crawley, daughter of Mr. John and Veronica Crawley, of Gaskiers. The bride was dressed in white with saxe blue trimmings and hat to match, and looked lovely. She was assisted by her cousin, Miss May Williams, while the groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Alden Martin. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. O'Driscoll, P. P., after which a sumptuous repast was partaken of at the home of the bride's parents, and towards the close of the evening the happy couple drove to their future home, where many friends awaited them, and a most enjoyable time was spent, and feasting and dancing freely indulged in. To Mr. and Mrs. Martin we wish many years of happiness in wedded life. St. Vincent's, January 18th, 1919.

STAMP—MEEHAN.

On Monday, January 15th, after a hearty luncheon and an enjoyable morning spent at the home of the bride's parents, Miss Clara Meehan, daughter of Daniel and Ellen Meehan, Point St. Marks, was married to Mr. Joseph Stamp, son of the late Thomas and Elizabeth Stamp. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. O'Driscoll, P. P. The bride looked charming in a travelling suit of saxe blue with hat to match. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Teresa Meehan, while the groom was ably supported by his brother, Mr. Arthur Stamp. After the wedding ceremony the happy couple drove to the residence of the groom's mother where supper was prepared. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Stamp hearty congratulations and many years of wedded bliss. St. Vincent's, Jan. 15th, 1919.

HAYWARD—PORTER.

On Tuesday, 14th inst., a very pretty wedding took place here when Mr. Patrick Hayward, soldier-son of Thomas and Bridget Hayward, was married to Miss Alice Porter, of Topsail. The bride looked charming, being attired in saxe blue silk with hat to match. She was assisted by Miss Stella Hayward, sister of the groom, who was also dressed in blue. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. James Hayward. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. O'Driscoll, P. P., after which the newly married pair drove to their future residence where a reception was held and a very enjoyable evening spent. About fifty couples were entertained and dancing kept up for many hours. To Mr. and Mrs. Hayward the whole community extends best wishes for the voyage down the matrimonial sea of life. St. Vincent's, January 14th, 1919.

You Can't Find Any Dandruff and Hair Stops Coming Out.

Save your hair! Make it thick, wavy, glossy and beautiful at once.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you can not find a single hair of dandruff or falling hair, and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see a new but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking only one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment. A small bottle will double the beauty of your hair.

Household Notes.

Never uncover a steaming pudding. Rice is an excellent breakfast cereal. Poultry keeps best when it is un-drawn.

Buy only the best bulbs for house flowers.

A good soap ought not to shrivel the fingers.

Dip house plants in clean water occasionally.

Parasip stew makes a good main dish for dinner.

Before starching garments turn them inside out.

Plants in bloom need more water than those in leaf.

Hydrochloric acid is especially good for iron rust.

White pepper is not so evident as seasoning as black.

Old spinach should be cooked in boiling salted water.

GERMAN ELECTIONS.

PARIS, Jan. 20.
The election of the German Assembly for the third district of Baden show the Socialists to have won five Centrist Party five seats,
man Nationalist Party one and the German Democratic seats. The votes cast were,
Socialists, 362,948; Cen-330,644; German Democrats, in the Karlsruhe district the Socialists cast 34,887 votes,
14,570, the Nationalists
and the German Democrats 24-
and the Grand Duke of Hesse had scribed on the lists under the showing, says the Berlin Anzeiger, "that Louis of
as he is called by the pre-government, does not recognize position." For the purpose of his election, Germany was into thirty-eight districts, theoretically would elect 443
deputies to the National Assembly. However, as elections were held in Alsace-Lorraine, the was reduced by twelve from
and it was still further by the fact that as Posen is
by Polish troops elections were impossible. The total of electors is given in round
as 18,000,000 men and 21-women. Each party was to nominate in each district many candidates as there deputies to be elected. Electors permitted to strike out a name
on a ballot but could not insert others to replace these. In Freiburg, Baden, the Majority Socialists got 1,617 votes, the Centrists

25,773, the German Nationalists 4,276
and the German Democrats 9,920. In Mannheim the Centrists got 18,765, the German Nationalists 6,907, and the German Democrats 26,562. In Lorrach, Baden, the Centrists got
3,852, the German Nationalists 1,444,
the German Democrats 8,582, and the Majority Socialists 10,944. At Wald-shut the result was: Majority Socialists 3,534, Centrists 9,972, German Nationalists 147, German Democrats
2,297. At Sackingen the Majority Socialists got 2,800 votes, the Centrists
5,918, the German Nationalists 49,
German Democrats 1,091. At Constance the Socialists got 12,240, the Centrists 15,774, the German Nationalists 9,680, the German Democrats 872. The results in Wurttemburg were: Majority Socialists 470, 316 votes, 7 seats; German Democrats 332,010 votes, 4 seats; Centrists 303,050 votes and 4 seats.

GERMANY'S NEW CONSTITUTION.

LONDON, Jan. 20.
Details of the proposed new German constitution for Germany, drawn up recently at a conference of widely known authorities on constitutional law, are given in an official wireless despatch sent out from Berlin and picked up here. It states that the empire is to consist of its former component states, besides any territory which by virtue of the right of self-determination desire to be received into the empire. The despatch declares that the people have the right regardless of former frontiers to erect new German free states within the empire. Providing any such free states wish to join the German empire the assent of the German people shall be required. The Imperial President who is to be elected by the people must be thirty-five years of age, and must have been a citizen of Germany for ten years before the election. He will be elected by an absolute majority of all the votes of the empire. The President will represent the empire, but the declarations of war or declarations of peace rest with the Reichstag.
Treaties with foreign states require the assent of the Reichstag, as soon as a League of Nations, the object of which is the exclusion of secret treaties, has been formed. All treaties with the League shall require the assent of the Reichstag. The Imperial President's tenure of office will be for seven years and his re-election will be permissible. The Imperial Government will be composed of a Chancellor and ministers who will be chosen by the President of the Reichstag. The government must have the confidence of the House of Deputies and shall be responsible to the Reichstag.

BOLSHEVISTS SLOWING DOWN.

WARSAW, Jan. 19.
(By the A.P.)—Bolshevik troops have slackened their advance at the Polish frontier. The Germans are delaying their evacuation of Grodno
for several days although General Falkenhayn has retired to Suwalki and General Hoffman has gone to Koelnburg.

MORE RIOTING IN BERLIN.

LONDON, Jan. 20.
Rioting occurred in Berlin during last night after the Spartacists had attempted to destroy the ballot boxes used in Sunday's election, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Copenhagen. The Spar-tacists were repulsed everywhere.
Fighting took place, it is reported, in the Wilhelmstrasse and Hodemannstrasse and at the Hallesche Tor. The Spartacists also made an attempt to storm the office of the Vorwaerts.

ROYALIST REVOLUTION

IN PORTUGAL.
LONDON, Jan. 20.
A Royalist revolution has broken out in Portugal, according to a wireless despatch from Lisbon. Paiva Con-ceria has placed himself at the head of a royalist revolt at Oporto, Braga and Viseu and has proclaimed former King Manuel, King of Portugal. Government troops are on their way to suppress the conspiracy. The wireless despatch adds that former King Manuel has sent a telegram to the Portuguese government reproving the attempt in his behalf.

SYMPATHY FOR THEIR

MAJESTIES.
LONDON, Jan. 20.
(Reuter's)—The last moments of Prince John came so quietly and unexpectedly that there was no time for the nurses who were with him to summon Their Majesties to his bedside before he had passed away. The newspapers point out sympathetically
how Their Majesties have labored unceasingly during the wartime to bury the tragedy of their youngest son's delicate health in the silence of their hearts, never hinting to the nation
the nature of the personal anxieties weighing upon them. Every father and mother throughout the Empire,

the papers state, will understand what it is to lose the baby of the family. All the papers emphasize that the Empire's sympathy will be heightened by the knowledge of Their Majesty's splendid and untrifling example of public service during the past four years. In recent years the delicate health of Prince John necessitated that he always have an attendant. Consequently he was never seen on public occasion with the other members of the Royal Family, but lived in comparative privacy at Frogmore or Sandringham. Public sympathy was expressed for Their Majesties in all churches yesterday.
The Archdeacon of St. Paul's invited the congregation to join him in silent prayer.

DISORDERS IN HAMBURG.

PARIS, Jan. 20.
Disorders in Hamburg. In which several persons were killed and others wounded, are reported in despatches by way of Zurich. The disorders were incident to demonstrations in connection with the demand for the release of the soldiers who had been imprisoned by the Government as the outcome of previous disturbances.

NEW PEERS.

LONDON, Jan. 20.
Announcement was made to-day
that three members of the new ministry, in accordance with the announcement made at the time the ministry was formed, have been elected to the peerage. The new peers are
R. E. Prothro, Secretary of Agriculture; Andrew Weir, Minister of Munitions and S. P. Sinha, Under Secretary for India.

THE RUSSIAN QUESTION.

PARIS, Jan. 20.
The situation in Russia was taken up by the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference at its session today. John Moulens, the French Ambassador to Russia, was present at the meeting and addressed it on the Russian question. This announcement was made in the official statement given out regarding the proceedings of the plenipotentiaries.
The next meeting of the Council will be held to-morrow at 10.30 o'clock.
The text of the communique follows:
"The President of the United States of America and the Prime Ministers and Foreign Ministers of the Allied governments assisted by Baron Maklino and the Japanese Ambassador in Paris, met at Quai d'Orsay this morning between 10.30 and 12 o'clock.
John Moulens, the French Ambassador to Russia, who returned a few days ago from Archangel, addressed the meeting and gave particulars of the situation in Russia.

WILLIAM'S PENAL RESPONSIBIL-ITY.

PARIS, Jan. 20.
Some points in the report in which Premier Clemenceau referred to yesterday when he said he had consulted two eminent jurists on the penal responsibility of the former German Emperor, were made public to-day.
The report was drawn by Ferdinand Larnaude, Dean of the Paris Law
Faculty, and Dr. A. G. Lelapradelle, Professor of Rights of Nations in the same Faculty. The object of the inquiry was to investigate from a purely judicial point of view, if the crimes committed by the German Government and Army involved the personal responsibility of the former German Emperor, what tribunal should judge him and whether his extradition could be demanded. The authors of the report give a long argument against the bringing of the former Emperor before a tribunal of common law, because his will commanded, but his hand did not exercise.
They say that he was not the principal offender and that therefore he should only be punished as an accomplice.
An international tribunal consequently must be found. They consider the Hague Arbitration Court, founded at the 1895 conference, incompetent to try the Emperor, as the court was meant for cases where no penalty is to be applied. They argue that no penalty is possible against a nation
any more than against a Company,
but that the manager or director of a company can be punished. "The Emperor, in the first place," says the report, "as King of Prussia, is president of the confederation by virtue of a special law in which human will does not enter. The German Sovereign depends only on God and the sword. With such a conception of power it would be injudicial to the highest degree to allow the Emperor to escape responsibility for his actions; for which under the constitution of the Hague belonged to him
alone, his responsibility for violation of Belgium neutrality which was willed by him, and his responsibility
for acts of terrorism by his troops
which he willed and ordered." The report quotes a letter from the former Emperor to the Emperor of Austria, in the early days of the war, in which the German Emperor wrote: "My soul

SPLINTER CAUSED
BLOOD-POISONING

From just such simple injuries, serious cases of blood-poisoning sometimes develop. Mrs. Helm of Tidnish River (R.R. No. 1), N.S., ran a splinter into her hand, and as she could not get it all out, the place became very sore and festered. Finally, despite all her efforts, blood-poisoning set in.

Writing about it Mrs. Helm says: "The pain I suffered was at times intense, and although I tried remedy after remedy, it got no better and eventually turned to blood-poisoning. I had suffered for several months, when one day I saw Zam-Buk advertised, and decided to give it a week's fair trial. By the end of that time my hand was so much better that I was able to extract the splinter. I continued using Zam-Buk. Gradually the poison was all drawn out, the pain was ended, the swelling disappeared, and finally the

The above case is typical of scores:

prevented, or any possibility of

is torn asunder, but everything must be put to fire and blood. The throats of men and women, children and the aged must be cut and not a tree nor a house left standing. With such methods of terror, which alone can strike
so degenerate a people as the French,
the war will finish in two months,
while if we use humanitarian methods it may prolong it for years. Despite all my repugnance I have had to choose the first system." The word
"and" in the letter are italicized
in the report. "Modern law, the ve-
tion of the Hague belonged to him

of Belgium neutrality which was

for acts of terrorism by his troops
which he willed and ordered." The
report quotes a letter from the former

TUESDAY, January 21, 1919.

Down to Business.

The eyes of the world will for a long period be directly focussed on the unique assembly gathered around the famous horse-shoe table at the Palace of Versailles...

The primary purpose of the Peace Conference will be to dictate the terms of peace, agreed to by it, to Germany. In the preparation of these terms, it is understood that neither the past or present rulers of that country will have any part to play...

After the terms which are to be enforced and imposed upon Germany have been approved, and submitted to the German people, through their representatives, other matters will come up for discussion, among which, that probably to take first place will be the formation of a League of Nations...

Shipping Notes. S.S. Drummond, with a full cargo of general freight to the Reid Co. arrived here last night. S.S. Krybergen, 18 days from Liverpool, arrived this morning, bringing a small freight.

A Serious Matter.

The telegraphed protest of the people of Little Bay and Springdale, which was received last evening, too late for publication, shows a very serious condition of things existing in these two settlements, because of the failure of the steamers named in the message to call at either or both these harbours, going or coming.

Lunched With the King. The Minister of Militia has received further information with regard to 3102, Pte. Ricketts, V.C. He was invited by His Majesty to dine at Sandringham, on Jan. 19th. His Majesty complimented him on being the youngest V.C. in the Army.

The Evangelists.

If we were to put last night's address into one sentence we would do so by simply saying: Depth of thought and exaltation of soul, but in justice to all concerned we will extend our notes. The subject was Joy, and it was based upon the words of the Redeemer in that most sublime conversation with His apostles during the last year of His ministry.

Lieut. W. Grace.

The following letter received by the Imperial Tobacco Co. (of Nfld) Ltd., from the Editor of the B.A.T. Bulletin will be read with interest by the many friends of the officer named therein: "Dear Sir, I am accordingly writing you to once to let you know that he is looking very fit and does not seem to have suffered from his exile in Germany. What appears to have been the worst part of his captivity was the monotony of the German architecture."

To Whom It May Concern.

The condition of what was once a fence on the seaward side of Ducking Street between C. P. Eagan's grocery store, north Street between the Fleischman's Yeast Co building, we would respectfully draw the attention of those in authority.

DANCING. Opening Announcement. BLUE PUTTEE HALL. Since the Newfoundland Entertainment Co., Ltd., assumed control of The Blue Puttee, they have had many requests from patrons to provide a room for informal dancing. They have, therefore, obtained the second flat of the building at the corner of King's Road and Gower Street (the building formerly occupied by the Blue Puttee) and have had same suitably fitted up for dancing, with an up-to-date Victrola and the latest dance records. This building for the future will be known as BLUE PUTTEE HALL and is now open to the public. As Blue Puttee Hall is run in conjunction with The Blue Puttee all admission tickets will include refreshments at The Blue Puttee, Rawlins' Cross, or at the Hall. Blue Puttee Hall will be open for two sessions daily, from 2.30 p.m. to 6 p.m. and from 7.30 p.m. to 11.30 p.m. The admission to the Afternoon session is 50c. including refreshments. The Blue Puttee, and to the Evening session, 75c., including refreshments at The Blue Puttee. The same rate prevails for Ladies or Gentlemen, Dancers or Spectators. The endeavour of the Nfd. Entertainment Co., Ltd., will be to conduct this enterprise in such a manner that no lady may be the least hesitation of attending any session. BLUE PUTTEE NOW OPEN. DANCING. Jan.21,61

Day's Message

PARIS, Jan. 20.—The information received concerning recent developments in Russia, indicates that the struggle of the Bolsheviks has weakened somewhat, and will, it is believed, be renewed in a few months, although they and their associates, have been strengthening their position by considerable military successes in the West. Western Russia, the possibility of Allied intervention, is a project, presented by the Bolsheviks, to have proposed to the Soviet Government, to have committed the Bolsheviks to the support of the Bolsheviks, and to have proposed to the Bolsheviks, to have committed the Bolsheviks to the support of the Bolsheviks.

A Reminder.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A friend asked me the other day, in the course of a heart to heart talk, whether I had kept silence at a certain time because a request she had made had offended me. "No indeed," I started to say, and then I stopped and tried to remember and analyze just how I had felt.

I had experienced a momentary annoyance when she made the request and then I had thought, "What nonsense, she has a perfect right to make it," and had tried to put the annoyance behind me. And then I had wondered why she made the request and had fallen to thinking of the matter and had doubtless become rather silent, and perhaps answered her remarks somewhat shortly. And then I had noticed that she had fallen silent too, and had tried to start up the conversation again, but finding that hard, had let it go after all.

I wasn't sure that I wasn't annoyed. Had there been some modicum of annoyance in my attitude after all? I was not quite sure there was not, so all I could honestly answer her waste don't think I was annoyed, but if I was, it was nonsense and I'm not now."

Now that was a question of my own motive. If anyone could possibly know what it was, that person would be I. And I hadn't been able to be sure.

Doubtless you see the corollary coming. If one cannot be absolutely sure of one's own motives, how then can one presume to judge another's?

And We Know So Much Less About Them.

And yet who of us does not cheerfully assume to judge the deeds and the motives behind them, even when we know the circumstances but partially, and the people about a tenth as well as we know ourselves.

"I have lived long enough and practically enough to learn not to criticize the morals of men any more than I criticize their facial contours or their physical build," says a character in one of David Graham Phillips' books.

One wonders if a man who had truly learned that lesson ever existed in real life.

And Then Remind Yourself.

The next time you are called on to judge of your own motives, notice how hard it is to attain absolute honesty.

And the next time you start to judge other people's motives,—to say, "She did that because she wanted to attract attention to herself," or "She must have been jealous,"—remember how much less data you have to judge others on than you have to yourself. Doubtless that will not prevent you from forming some judgment—we seem to be made that way. But it may prevent you from giving it extensive publicity.

Milady's Boudoir.

CARE FOR YOUR NAILS.

There is possibly no detail of the toilet which responds more quickly to care and attention with the least expenditure of time and money than the nails.

Beautifully kept nails are an evidence of innate refinement and a careful personal toilet. It matters not how exquisite the contour of the hand, or how fair the skin, when the nails display evidence of neglect.

The trimming of the nails has much to do toward the unsightly shaping often seen, and is sometimes the cause of the disfiguring white spots. The nail should be trimmed into a long oval, extending a trifle beyond the line of flesh in order to protect the finger tips.

When the nails are inclined to become brittle, soak them for several minutes in warmed almond oil, pushing back the cuticle so the oil may penetrate to the root and so nourish it.

It is sometimes necessary to use a rouge for the nails, if the blood is pale. Be careful how it is applied, as just a mite will go a long way. Ruddy nails, that is, with an artificial hue are considered vulgar.

When both hands have been completed, cover each nail with powder and use the buffer, quickly polishing the surfaces, covering each roughly, especially at the base of the nail. Then wash the hands thoroughly, using a nail brush with soap.

PHILOSOPHY.

He lived a calm, contented life. And, though his home was small and plain. He loved it more than fame or gain. He had a curious notion, which kept him from envying the rich, And many a time he used to say: "These walls keep every wind away, These chairs and tables are not fine, But they serve every need of mine, And love abides within our door. What man of wealth possesses more?"

"At night when I turn into bed! Feels pillows here my weary head. I soundly sleep the night hours through. Can more than that a rich man do? We've all we wish to eat and wear. Here love and laughter fill the day, Here we can sing and romp and play. Here we have all that gold can buy. No man of wealth has more than I."

More sweetly mother couldn't sing Within the palace of a king. Here let me live and let me die. No millionaire has more than I.

"A rich man's home is fine to see, But it would not be home to me, Nor would I find one touch of cheer That is not mine to know right here. The sunbeams find my window panes, My roof is shelter when it rains, And when the winter brings a storm, As all the rich, we're just as warm. Here love and laughter fill the day, Here we can sing and romp and play. Here we have all that gold can buy. No man of wealth has more than I."

'Olympic' Achievements

London, Jan. 8.—Dodging German submarines in the Mediterranean, trying to save sinking warships in the north Atlantic, and fighting off victorious U-boat attacks while carrying American troops are some of the achievements credited to the White Star liner Olympic during her adventurous career of the war.

These are only incidents of her experience, because, on account of her great passenger capacity, she was steadily and faithfully keeping to the task of transporting men and material for the armies in Europe.

First it was Chinese coolies for road building, then farmer boys from Canada to replace the losses of Vimy Ridge, and finally many thousands of Americans to face the German on the western battlefield.

"Her work during the Gallipoli campaign," writes a member of the crew to the Daily News, "when she carried about 8,000 troops—at that time the greatest number ever carried by any ship—following upon her gallant attempts off the north of Ireland to tow the water-logged dreadnought Audacious, was sufficient to put her in the first rank of transports, but her subsequent work in bringing Canadian troops and Chinese labor battalions, and then her wonderful career since Christmas, 1917, when she arrived in New York for her first load of American troops must put her in a class by herself as a "trooper."

"She has carried well over 300,000 people while on war service. "It would not be correct to say that Captain Hayes has brought her through without a scratch, but her scars are marks of honor. She bent and fractured some of her plates when, in the darkness early one

GETTING NORMAL.

WALT MASON.

The war is done, and we get back to peace time's old accustomed track. We're sitting up and taking note of things that lately seemed remote. Once more I hear the auto fan explain as loudly as he can how he went up huge hills on high, and didn't have his motor die. His spell seems revelant and sane, which would have been in wartime vain. Once more the dames, when cooped indoors, are talking of the dry goods stores and of the lovely lids they've seen, all decked with doodads red and green. And they allude to Mrs. Brown, who's brought the smoothest coat in town, while her poor husband strives to make his stand off something less a fake. And once again the ill health bores describe their ailments and their sores. A little time, while battles raged, their chronic sorrows were not staged, but now they've all come back again, to rasp the ears of patient men, and as of old the goostips clack; the private quarrels we forgot, we're re-remembering, smoking 'hot; the statesmen spring their oily smiles, and hand out bunk in forty styles. I wonder if we'll ever sigh for good old wartime days gone by, when there were themes of which to speak, and keep on peaking for a week?

morning, she strafed one of Germany's finest U-boats.

"The Olympic had most of her adventures while she was carrying American troops. During March, April and May, 1918, the German submarine commanders made at least seven daring attacks on her. Not once did the enemy have time to launch a torpedo, for in every case he was greeted by a six-inch shell or one of the destroyers was on his track with her depth charges. Perhaps some of Germany's missing submarines are now lying below the track of the Olympic.

"The most thrilling experience which the Olympic had took place in the darkness of early morning of May, 1918, near the entrance to the English Channel. It was just about 4 o'clock when the lookout man picked out of the almost total darkness the outline of a lurking submarine which was lying on the surface. Immediately after his warning shout one of our forward guns blazed out and the ship, with her helm hard over, spun around like a great racing yacht and crashed into the enemy.

"The blow was, of course, not a clean one, or there would have been few survivors from the submarine. Judging from the damage on the bows of the ship when drydocked a few days later the blow cut off one end of the submarine. The rest drifted past the stern of the Olympic, and one of the gun-crew on the poop planted a six-inch shell squarely into it. One of the destroyers in the escort dropped behind, and by the light of star shells picked up 31 survivors, three of whom died on the way to port.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir:—Will you please allow me space in your paper to make a few remarks on "Education"?

There is no doubt that this is a subject to which our country, as a whole, has shown a great indifference for a great number of years. How is this? I suppose one of the reasons is they haven't been shown what Education, Intellectual, Moral and Physical—is in its true light.

A SERIOUS MATTER.

People of Little Bay Face Starvation ---Neither 'Prospero' Nor 'Diana' Landed Their Supplies --- Government Must Act.

Special to Evening Telegram. LITTLE BAY, Jan. 20, 1919. Steamers Diana and Prospero now at Little Bay Islands, loading herring. Diana has been north as far as Nipper's Harbour. These steamers have all Little Bay and Springdale winter freight on board. Diana passed mouth of this harbour to-day, not calling here. This is outrageous when there is absolutely nothing to prevent steamer calling here. Unless the Government take steps immediately, and order steamer here starvation faces us. The Home's work in this bay this fall was a huge farce, leaving a big shortage of provisions. The Government must act at once to help, as it is very evident that great discrimination is being shown, all herring being shipped from Nipper's Harbour and Little Bay Islands. We are left without getting off a single barrel, which spells ruin for our winter's fishery, but worse even than, we have no provisions. We strongly appeal to the Government to order steamers here.

The Sweater of to-day is a Thing of Beauty and a Joy.

We are showing a new shipment of

Ladies' All-Wool SWEATERS

in Pull-Over & Coat Styles

with and without belts. These come in soft, rich and warm colours, some being in two-tone effects, and when you see them you will say they are "dreams". The shades are: Rose, Cardinal, Navy, Saxe, Emerald, Nile, Orange, Corn, Grey, Mauve, Coralette, etc.

Prices are various, but price is nothing against their value, warmth and beauty.

You will need one for the Rink, and for everyday dress a smart Sweater is now a necessary adjunct.

But see these early as some shades are in limited quantities only.
