For Her Sake;
The Murder in Furness Wood.

CHAPTER XI
She led the way to the beautiful avenue of chestnuts for which Treham was famous. They were silent for a few minutes; then she said, quietly:
"So Diana does not like the idea of your marriage, Mr. Cameron?"
And, in his zeal for his daughter, forgetting how poor a compliment it was to her ladyship, he told her all that passed—told her of Diana's prayers and tears, of her passionate pleading for her dead mother's sake, of her wild outburst of grief, of her despair. Lady Scarsdale listened in respectful silence.
"Poor child!" she said, with a deep sigh. "I can sympathize with her; but all that display of an ill-trained, undisciplined nature shows more and more that she is a firm yet gentle hand over her. She should think of your happiness first."
"My happiness and hers have always been linked together," he replied.
There was an awkward silence, and Lady Scarsdale had difficulty in preserving her grace and dignity. There was a faint flush of color to her handsome face when she next spoke.
"And so," she said, carelessly, "you care so little for me that a few tears and entreaties from your daughter made you resolve to forget me?"
"I assure you," he cried, eagerly, "I could never forget you! I shall always retain—"
"My dear Mr. Cameron," she interrupted, "you must be reasonable; the hysterical cries of a child must not be allowed to interfere with well-considered plans."
"But Diana must be happy," she replied. "Trust to me for that. You cannot pay me so poor a compliment as would be implied by the fact that you have thought only of Diana, and not of me. You wanted to make me happy, also, did you not?"
"Certainly I did," answered Peter Cameron, religiously believing the words he uttered.

And the Worst is Yet to Come

And then he found Lady Scarsdale's white hand within his.
"I should not like to think," she said, softly, "that your sole interest in me was for Diana's sake; I should like to believe that some, at least, was for my own."
"You may be sure it was so," declared the elderly lover, more at a loss for words than he had thought possible; and there came to him, with the scent of hawthorn, the memory of the green lane in which he had wooed his first wife.
"You can see for yourself how the matter looks," resumed Lady Scarsdale. "You ask me to marry you; and then, because your daughter, as is perfectly natural, disapproves, you beg that there shall be no marriage. I appeal to you, does not that look as though you wanted to marry me entirely for her sake?"
"It looks strange, I must admit," he said; "but I—"
"Let me speak," she interposed, gently. "If I thought it best for you and for Diana, I would break off the engagement at once, in spite of all that might be said, and the unenviable position it would place me in; but I do not. Honestly speaking, the best thing you can do for Diana is to give her into the hands of a sensible, well-trained woman; and the best thing for yourself is to marry some one who can give you rank and position. That is disinterested advice." She turned to him with a smile altogether charming, bright, and gracious, and looked into his face. "For myself," she said gently, with a blush that became her greatly—"for myself, what if I tell you that—I like you so well that it would be a pain to lose you, and that I like you for yourself, for your nobility of character, your generosity, and your simple goodness of heart? What if I tell you that our separation would distress me?"
"In that case," he said, "I—I must resist Diana's tears."
"She will not shed them for long," remarked the lady, softly; "but I—if you, left me—should be unhappy for the remainder of my life."
"Do you really mean that, Lady Scarsdale?" he asked in great agitation.
"I do," she answered, softly, her eyes fixed on the ground.
"Then pray forgive my indecision. If you care for me, love me, feel that I shall be a support to you, a comfort to you, I will, as I said, resist Diana's tears."
"You have worked hard all your life, you have achieved great and signal success; it seems to me only just that you should now reap the reward," said Lady Scarsdale, "and enjoy a few years' repose in the manner you most desire. I shall try my utmost to make you happy."
"I must be happy with you," he responded.
But Diana's tears seemed to burn his hands where they had fallen, Diana's piteous cries sounded in his ears.
"And now that we have arranged the difficulty so far," said Lady Scarsdale, "I should like to suggest something to you—something that will save Diana's tears."
They walked for a long time under the chestnut trees, for Lady Scarsdale had much to say. She did not want to lose the prize which she had secured for the second time with so much skill and tact, and she saw that stringent measures were absolutely necessary if she was to carry her scheme to a successful issue. She therefore persuaded him that the best thing he would be to return home and say nothing to Diana, but let her imagine that the letter remained unanswered and then, in a few weeks' time, to go up quietly to London, where they could be unostentatiously married from the little bijou house.

A quiet wedding will be the most suitable for us, after all," she said. "Then we can go to Paris; and when we return all will be well. I am sure," she continued, with energy. "Mine will be the best plan, for it will save Diana's tears."
And he acceded, for he was like wax in Lady Scarsdale's skillful hands.
CHAPTER XIII
June had passed by with its crown of roses, July with its sunshine and wealth of flowers, and August had come with its ripe fruits and golden grain. Furness looked more beautiful than ever, with the hedges burdened with wild roses, the lanes filled with wild flowers, the gardens a blaze of beauty, the woods resplendent with their many-hued foliage, the sea shimmering brightly beneath the rays of the August sun. Diana was once again enjoying the pleasures of her home, for the danger that had menaced it was past, the wily woman who had sought to draw her father away from her was gone. Lady Scarsdale had driven over with her daughters to say good-bye to the girl whom she intended to supplant; but Diana, to her own great relief, was absent.
She was gone, and the dark shadow she had recently cast over Furness Court had gone with her. Mr. Cameron was kinder than ever to his daughter. He seemed unable to do enough to atone for the pain she had suffered. He lavished rich presents upon her, until she bade him cease, telling him that she had more ornaments now of every kind than she knew what to do with. She felt that he was trying to make up to her for what she had suffered, and she rebuffed her caresses in turn. Every kiss from Diana was a reproach to him, every loving word, in its way, a wound. He had never before kept a secret from her, and this one tried him sorely. Twenty times each day he was on the point of breaking down and telling her the whole truth; but some wily words of Lady Scarsdale would return to him and fortify him against himself. The spell was upon him, and he could not break it. He admitted to himself that the treachery was cruel, and that he ought to tell Diana what had happened; but he was fast in the coils of a clever woman, and his bonds were so strong and so artfully woven that he could not break them asunder.
Diana was quite unsuspecting. The series of picnics had been a great success, and every one congratulated her upon them. Once, when Lady Clowyn began to speak of the Scarsdale's Diana turned to her with a pale, scared face.
"Dear Lady Colwyn," she said, earnestly, "pray do not mention the name; I cannot bear it. I wonder, now that the danger is over, that I did not die when my father told me he was going to bring that terrible woman here. What an escape it was! Do you know, the very name turns my heart cold. I try to make myself so much to papa that he has not one moment's time in which to miss her."
"He does not miss her," remarked Lady Colwyn. "It was she who lured him on, not he who ran after her. Three millions of money are not won every day, and it is Lady Scarsdale, not Mr. Cameron, who feels the separation. I am quite satisfied about your father now. So may you be."
"So I am," declared Diana.
But she grew anxious, at times, about him; for, although her father seemed, and was, devoted to her, he had of late grown strangely quiet. He would look at her for some minutes in silence, then sigh deeply; he seemed preoccupied, and would ask abrupt questions; in speaking of the future he would pause suddenly, as though some new idea had occurred to him.
"Rich," said Diana, one morning, as they stood together at the breakfast-room window, "do you notice any change in my father?"
"Yes," he replied; "he seems always preoccupied, and is more silent than usual. Perhaps he has some speculation on hand. He appears to have something on his mind."

"Do you think so? Why, Rich, that has an awful sound—something on his mind! But I know the cause of it. He has never been so happy since that affair—you know what I mean. He seems so sorry that he caused me pain, and ever since then he has been exceedingly anxious about my happiness."
"It was a very good thing you knocked it on the head, Diana. You need never fear again. There cannot be a second Lady Scarsdale."
"No; that would be impossible," she replied. "I must be more devoted than ever to him, Rich."
"You are always exceedingly good, Diana," observed Richard.
But the beautiful young heiress was not content until she had consulted her other counselor, Sir Royal.
"Rich says that papa appears to have something on his mind, Sir Royal. Do you agree with him?" she asked.
"No, I do not, Diana. I think your father is freer from care than nineteen men out of twenty."
"Sir Royal," she asked, slowly, "do you think that papa has regretted Lady Scarsdale? I hate to mention her name, but I must this time. Do you think he regrets the loss of her at all?"
"No, I do not, Diana," was the cheery reply—"not for one moment. I think Lady Scarsdale managed the whole affair herself, and is the only one who now regrets that it fell through. She was attracted, without doubt, by your father's wealth, and I should think he is relieved that it is all over."
Neither Diana nor her friends were in the least degree prepared for the denouement; for the false security in which they had been lulled was increased by the departure of Lady Scarsdale from the neighborhood. They had reckoned without the principal actor in this little domestic drama.
To the day of her death Diana never forgot that August night when her father, after pacing restlessly up and down the long drawing-room, asked her to walk with him on the terrace. The sun had long set, and the August moon was shining brightly in an unclouded sky. A silvery flood of light fell on the sleeping flowers and graceful statuary as father and daughter passed through the French window.
"I am going to London to-morrow, Dian," said Peter Cameron; suddenly; "is there anything you require?"
"To-morrow, papa!" she cried. "You did not tell me."
"I decided this morning," he said, evasively. "What can I bring you, Dian?"
"Nothing but yourself back again," she answered, as she clasped her hands round his arm. "I am sorry you are going away—I shall miss you so much. Why, papa, you are trembling! Are you ill?"
"No, but the heat is very oppressive to-night. The drawing-room seemed so stifling that I could not remain in it."
"One expects heat in August," laughed Diana; "but it is not like you to complain of the weather. How long will you be absent, papa?"

Enlarging the Sanitorium.

Work on the enlargement of the Government Tuberculosis Sanitorium on Topsail Road is now on in full swing, and a gang of more than a hundred men is engaged in digging the foundation and laying the concrete basement. Mr. B. Bowering, Contractor, has been awarded the contract, and, with his customary earnestness and thoroughness he has gotten things going and the job is well on its way.
Mr. Bowering has taken over the superstructure of the Beverley, just down from the Sanitorium, and his men live there. Cooks have been engaged, and in this way the men are always near their work. Topsail road is a busy scene, with the contractor's motor trucks and horses hauling lumber, cement and rock to the scene of construction.
Two long wings of 200 feet in length and 35 in width and a staff house are to be added, and when the whole is finished the Sanitorium will be a splendid building. At present the building is an oblong one, just off the road. The wings will extend from the back of the building backward, forming a letter U, with a space in the centre. At the ends of the wings the staff house will be built, this enclosing the land and forming a sort of letter O, which will be a court for recreation. The wings will be one storey ones with glass windows fronting the walls. In fine weather the windows slide up, leaving the wing entirely open and exposed. Together the wings will hold coats, which, with those already there, will make a large capacity.
The staff-house, which will be two-storied, will house the doctor, nurses, sisters and general staff of the big institution. It is being laid out in a most efficient manner, and fitted, when the whole job is finished, it will be a credit to the town.
It is nearly a twelve months' job, and the Government has awarded the contract to Mr. B. Bowering.

Enlarging the Sanatorium.

Work on the enlargement of the Government Tuberculosis Sanatorium on Topsall Road is now on in full swing, and a gang of more than a hundred men is engaged in digging the foundation and laying the concrete basement. "As a member of the House of Assembly he is held in general respect by his fellow members. A determined and able exponent of any principle

"which he advocated, he has been noted as a remarkable exception of the 'steady legislator, he is generous in thought and deed, broad minded and eminently fair in his outlook and 'clever on all matters of public concern."

Coming from such a pen as Coaker's that can be paid, not only to Hon. Mr. Higgins, but to the District which elected him as their representative.

And this is the District which Squires hopes to invade with his importation from Nova Scotia and the two "has-beens." Ye God! it is to laugh.

Worth More Than a Fortune to Him, Malifax Man Says

Power Gains Eighteen Pounds—Rheumatism Ends After Taking Tanlac.

"I consider what Tanlac has done for me in restoring me to health to be worth more than a fortune," was the remarkable statement made by George Power, of Halifax, N.S., while talking to the Tanlac representative a few days ago. Mr. Power lives at 2044, Rottenburg Street, Halifax, has lived in Nova Scotia all his life and is a well-known employee of the Nova Scotia Tram and Power Co.

"I've actually gained eighteen pounds since taking Tanlac, and I feel better in every way than I have in twenty-eight long years, and what's more I have spent hundreds and hundreds of dollars on medicines and never got a particle of good until I found this 'Tanlac,'" continued Mr. Power.

"It would be impossible for me to describe to you just how I suffered all these years and how I recovered. I think that would give me relief from my pain. I had rheumatism of the very worst sort in both my legs from the knees down and it seemed to be worse right in the knees than anywhere else, and in damp weather it got so bad I just had to stay at home from work. My ankles bothered me too and I don't believe anybody in the world ever suffered from rheumatism as bad as I did for it was a sharp shooting pain that would go through my knees, down my legs and into my ankles like somebody was sticking a knife through me, and I would be in such agony that I would turn as white as a sheet and it would make me so sick that for days at a time I would be in bed. I think that I would almost go wild. When these attacks came on me I wouldn't be able to sleep a wink but would roll and tumble all night long, and my joints would swell and my knees would be as stiff as a board and I couldn't walk a step for two or three days at a time and when I would get up at home flat on my back with my knees so stiff I couldn't bend them at all."

"Sometime ago I noticed where Tanlac was being highly recommended by people right here in Halifax; I decided to try it. I bought a box and I wouldn't take anything in the world for the remarkable good it has done me and it is surprising what a change can come over a man. If anybody don't believe that I am a well man, and that the rheumatism has left me entirely and that I never feel even a trace of it just tell them to come to me. My appetite has been keyed up and I have gained in weight, and feel better in every way and can sleep fine at night. Tanlac is the greatest thing I have ever seen, and I want you to publish this statement for I want everybody to know what this medicine will do."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac Representative.

Sixty Persons Killed in Railway Wreck.

GETTING BACK TO NORMAL.

LONDON, Oct. 6. Great Britain's railway system was again in operation to-day as a result of settlement yesterday of the great railway strike averting what threatened to develop into an eminent shroud of national labor trouble. Virtually every man engaged in railway work in London returned to work before noon to-day. The various services did not speedily reach the normal state however because of the entanglement of railway material that had resulted on the suspension of work. In the country districts also resumption was general except in outlying districts where telegrams announcing settlement and ordering men back could not be delivered yesterday. Railway companies promised to-day that virtually regular service would be in operation on lines to-morrow. Work on coalfields which had been stopped owing to the lack of freight cars is now being resumed rapidly. The Irish Mail Service has also been started again.

TERRIBLE RAILWAY ACCIDENT. MEXICO, CITY, Oct. 6. Sixty persons were killed to-day in a wreck of the largest Mexico passenger train which was derailed between Venegas and Saltillo. The belief is expressed that a complete survey of the wreckage will show that at least fifteen more were killed in the accident.

WILSON IMPROVING. WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. President Wilson continues to improve and passed a satisfactory night says a bulletin issued this morning by his physician.

CONTRADICTION MESSAGES. MADRID, Oct. 6. Advice received here from Portugal regarding the reported revolutionary movement there are very contradictory in character. Some of them present the railwaymen's strike as of a revolutionary aspect, while others do not reflect this view. In this connection also is noted that a Lisbon despatch reporting the inauguration of President Almeida says the ceremony issued without incident to the people claiming the President on his way from the Congress to the Presidential Palace and no mention is made of the strike.

Historians say that Carbonare is a corruption of the Channel Islanders word Charbonnier, meaning charcoal pit. In the early days charcoal for the winter heating of the houses was produced on a large scale, coal being practically unknown. Long-Standing Evil Effective Measures Taken Since childhood Mr. A. Call was under the shadow of a great evil, which always menaced his comfort and safety. Read what he says:—

"I was troubled with my kidneys since childhood and spent a large amount of money trying to get cured. Instead of getting better, I kept getting worse until a friend of mine advised me to try Gin Pills. I did so, and after taking one box, I was able to get out of bed and walk around. Two more boxes relieved me completely, and since then I have had no return of the trouble."

Many people have kidney and bladder trouble without knowing it. They think nothing of the backache, the pains in the sides, the constant headaches, the rheumatic, sciatic and neuralgic pains, the swelling of the face, the swollen joints, the highly-coloured urine—all signs of trouble—all signs which should receive immediate attention and treatment with Gin Pills, which are by far the most effective of all preparations, and which may help you to avoid a fatal operation. They quickly relieve pain and heal the congested tissues, bringing the organs back to normal. At drug stores and dealers, 50c a box. Money back if no relief. Send for free sample. EAST END VICTORY MEETING.

East and West End Candidates Tremendous Gathering in Casino Theatre.

Speeches of a High Order and Great Enthusiasm Manifested. St. John's Will Return Six Government Candidates on November 3rd.

The first public meeting of the East End Liberal-Progressive Party was held last evening in the Casino Theatre. The Hall which holds upwards of 1200 people was filled to capacity, many people had to stand in lobby as seats were not available. Mr. Arthur Hiscock presided and briefly introduced the candidates. He alluded to the absence of Hon. Sir M. P. Cashin, who was then opening the campaign in Ferryland District. Last night's meeting will long be remembered as one of the most outstanding ever held in this city.

Mr. Higgins who on arising received an ovation that any man seeking the suffrages of a district might be proud of, an ovation that clearly indicated how St. John's East will vote on polling day. When the applause had subsided, Mr. Higgins began his address, and in opening pointed out that, like Hon. J. R. Bennett who had mentioned the fact at the public meeting of the West End candidates, he was the sole survivor of his team who sought the votes of the people of his district 6 years ago. He recalled the meeting at that time when he had the honor of standing before the public for the first time and soliciting their support in a political fight, and felt he would be unworthy to represent St. John's East if he did not pay tribute to the two men who had then been elected to serve with him in the House of Assembly. He paid a glowing tribute to the life, character and straight forwardness of Mr. Jno. Dwyer, now deceased, and to Hon. Justice Kent, who had been elected to represent his native district for many years. As one

St. John's East and West had not previously been represented by Coaker, but had decided against him. The story of Cashin trying to break up the fishermen's organization was false and directed against the very man who had helped that body out. Continuing, Mr. Higgins scathingly referred to the fact that the only charge advanced by the opposing element against him was that he was Reid's solicitor. Even as such he had been elected six years ago and he now wished to clear up any doubts existing as to his connection with the so-called infamous Reid Deal and asked all to take notice of his statements, as some might be doubtful of the stand he had taken. In part he said: "What has been featured as a terrible 'Reid Deal' which was turned down by the Premier Minister of the day, Sir William Lloyd, amounted to nothing more or less than a proposal which would confer inestimable benefits on St. John's. In short, as the contract would show, it was a proposal to extend the Street Railway system in St. John's to an extent that would serve all that big section of the town where it at present does not operate. The great drawback to-day was the fact that workmen who desired to build their homes were compelled to go to the back of the town where there was no car service. Under such circumstances there was, naturally, a hesitancy to build away from the scene of their work.

The street railway, he pointed out, was altogether unsuited to serving the people living of the present single belt line and this is one of the drawbacks in solving the housing problem, because people if living in the exterior parts of the city cannot get to and from their work conveniently. He then read the much talked of bill, as follows:—

A Bill—An Act Respecting the Extension of the St. John's Street Railway.

Whereas, the Reid Newfoundland Company, hereinafter called the Company, has applied to the Government under the provisions of the Crown Lands Act of Newfoundland, of the right to use the waters of Pierr's River and Tor's Cove River in the Electoral District of Ferryland for the purpose of generating electricity for the extension of the Company's Street Railway and Electric Supply business in St. John's, and has proposed to form a separate Company for the purpose of taking over, extending and operating the said business, and the Government has agreed to grant the said water powers subject to the conditions hereinafter set forth:

1.—The grant by the Government to the Company and its assigns, subject to the provisions of the Crown Lands Act of Newfoundland, of the right to the exclusive use of the waters of Pierr's River, flowing into Witless Bay, in the Electoral District of Ferryland, and of Tor's Cove in the said District, and the waters of all lakes and streams tributary to the said rivers, for a period of years from the day of 1919, is hereby approved and confirmed, subject to the conditions hereinafter set forth.

2.—The Company or its assigns shall within twelve months from the passing of this Act proceed with the construction of all works which may be necessary for the installation of plants for generating electrical energy from the waters of both the said rivers, and shall complete the said works and have the same in operation in connection with the Company's Street Railway and Electric Supply system in St. John's within five years from the passing of this Act.

3.—If the Company or its assigns shall fail to comply with the requirements of the last preceding section of this Act all rights, powers, privileges and advantages by this Act granted to the Company or its assigns shall cease and determine.

4.—As soon as the said plants or either of them are or is in operation the Company or its assigns shall (a) provide electric lighting within the town of St. John's for a maximum rate of thirteen and one-half cents per kilowatt hour, subject to a discount or deduction from the monthly bill for such light of not less than ten per cent. on payment of such bill not later than the tenth day of the succeeding month; and (b) provide electric lighting within settlements on or adjacent to the main line of road between Tor's Cove and Petty Harbour, wherever required by the Government, the number of such lights to be determined by agreement between the Company or its assigns and the Government; and (c) construct, equip and operate in accordance with the requirements of the St. John's Street Railway Charter, 1896, extensions of the present street railway system over the following routes, namely: (1) a line from St. John's to Bowring Park; (2) a loop line from Ordnance Street along King's Bridge Road, Circular Road, Belvidere Street or Allandale Road and Barnes Road to Rawlin's Cross; and (3) a loop line from Rawlin's Cross along Military Road, Harvey Road, LeMarchant Road, Hamilton Street and Bambrick Street to Water Street West; or such other alternative routes of equivalent mileage as shall be agreed upon between the Company or its assigns and the St. John's Municipal Council.

5.—If the Company shall assign to any other Company, person or persons the properties, assets, rights, privileges, franchises and powers owned, exercised or enjoyed by it in relation to the Street Railway and Electric Supply business heretofore hereafter carried on by it whether under the St. John's Street Railway Charter, 1896, or under the Newfoundland Railway Act, 1898, or the Nfld. Railway Amendment Act, 1901, or the Act four Edward VII. (1904) chap. 13, or under this or any other Act, the acquisition, possession, exercise, and enjoyment by such assignee or assignees of the said assets, rights, privileges, franchises and powers shall be and remain subject to all the obligations and burdens by each and all of the said Acts imposed upon the Company in regard to its Street Railway and Electric Supply business aforesaid.

6.—This Act may be cited as the St. John's Street Railway Charter, 1919.

House a few days after the St. John's members had broken away from the Government. The whole trouble was that St. John's was thrown down, but such would not happen if the request were made from Port Union. He and Hon. J. R. Bennett were the ones who went to Sir M. P. Cashin and secured through his services the loan for the Municipal Council to forward the housing scheme. Tonight he asked for the votes of the St. John's East electorate because he and his colleagues were behind Sir M. P. Cashin, whose conduct during his political life justified support, and whose manifesto was a statement in keeping with the man who issued it, being clear cut and devoid of the buncum usually associated with such declarations. No promises impossible of fulfillment were made, but it was stated a sincere effort would be made to carry out the projects outlined. As to the high cost of living, a commission had been appointed to deal with the matter and the recommendation of that board would be acted upon. The salaries of civil servants are already being dealt with, but the conditions at present are the outgrowth of the inability of successive governments to deal with the problem. The steam service, aid to parents of those who now receive no financial help though their sons have died on the battlefield, and other matters outlined in Sir M. P. Cashin's manifesto, were ably dealt with by Mr. Higgins. In closing he pointed out the need of supporting the Party, which is under the direction of one leader, one who is in every way fitted to fill that position, and has the undivided support of his followers. The call for a straight ticket vote with which Mr. Higgins closed his address, evoked an outburst of applause which clearly showed the request would be acceded to by the electors of St. John's East on polling day.

Mr. Vinicombe followed, and in a very telling speech, made his position clear, and why he was a standard-bearer for the Liberal-Progressive Party. He first referred to the vilification and contumely heaped upon him by the Advocate, and the vile attack to besmear him and a hard and honest worker in the East End. He was always prepared to associate himself with the workmen of St. John's and was ready to look after their interests. At no time in his life did he forget the men who earned their living through hard work and honest toil, and if the Coaker organ intended to keep on insulting the working classes of St. John's, it would not be to the interest of Coaker or his candidates in St. John's East or West. Personalities should be cut out of the campaign, and he was in the fight to conduct it as cleanly as it was possible. But if the Coaker candidates were desirous of conducting it otherwise, they had only themselves to blame if they got hurt. At least the campaign should be fought with that gentlemanly spirit of the days that are past. It was not becoming of St. John's East to get down to gutter-snipe personalities. However, so far as he was concerned, no man in St. John's or outside it had anything on him that could make him blush, and he was not going to stand for insult. In 1913 he opposed his colleague, Mr. Higgins, and supported Sir Robert Bond, and in 1919 he was supporting Sir Michael Cashin, because he was the only one that had any claim to preach the doctrine of pure Liberalism as handed down by Sir Robert Bond. He was not afraid of the verdict St. John's East would give Nov. 3rd on the Cashin manifesto, and neither was he afraid of what St. John's West would do. St. John's, said Mr. Vinicombe, will return six Cashin men, and the country should know about it. The Opposition do know that St. John's East and West will vote the Coaker teams down by more than two to one, and it is a foregone conclusion that St. John's East will have at least 2,000 majority. Mr. Vinicombe in further dealing with the attacks of the Opposition press, said that realizing their cause lost, they were attempting to try and belittle himself and colleagues, but he said, the name Vinicombe was well and favorably known in St. John's East, when Coaker and Squires were unheard of, and it will be so well known on polling day that neither Coaker nor his partner will be ever heard of again in St. John's, nor in any other part of the country. Mr. Vinicombe in finishing his address impressed upon the electorate to vote the straight ticket on polling day for Higgins, Vinicombe and Fox. There was a regular riot of applause when "Nix" finished, a practical evidence of his popularity in St. John's East.

East End Victory

Mr. C. J. Fox followed Mr. Vinicombe and said in effect:—

If this were an ordinary occasion, and you and I had met to discuss a subject which concerned us but little and was of more or less passing interest to us, though I should esteem it a privilege to be permitted to address you, yet would I approach you with far less diffidence than I do to-night, when both the occasion and the subject are of such vital importance to us as to warrant our entering the discussion of it in all seriousness without display, and in a spirit of reflection and deliberation. When I was nominated as candidate to seek your suffrages, I stated that a representative nomination was necessary because it was formally necessary, but because it meant me entering public life under a leader to whom I could look up; with colleagues upon whom I could depend; and in a District whose political traditions and sentiments were and would ever remain to me, objects of veneration and affection. And finding myself in the possession of these three requisites, I was prepared to take up the contest, and in a clean fight attempt to reach the goal of my ambition, election as a representative of the people of St. John's East. As to the man whose native talents, hard work, indomitable courage, and resourcefulness have raised him to the highest place within the gift of his country—the position of Prime Minister. These characteristics have found their complements in his public and private virtues—his probity, his honesty of purpose and genuine charity. His record of close on 30 years in the public service of this Colony will remain as irrefragable evidence of the immeasurable good his participation in the public affairs has brought upon the country that stands unshaken to-day in spite of the attempts of his traducers to lower him in the estimation of the people. These attempts to defame him have their origin in the envious malice of men not big enough to play the game fairly, and who, knowing they cannot succeed in a clean fight, are resorting to the lowest and basest methods of attack in their attempt to win place and power for themselves. As to the second, I consider that I am fortunate in having whom I am associated in this campaign. No words of mine are needed in reference to them. They are as familiar to you as you are to them. Like myself, Mr. Vinicombe enters the lists as a candidate for the first time this Fall; but from the viewpoint of campaign experience, he is a veteran. His ability and intimate knowledge of the District alone would entitle him to a place with your representatives; but he has much more than this to recommend him. He has a heart that sympathizes can touch, and a disposition that finds its greatest happiness in assisting others. Mr. Higgins has been with you now for six years, and seeks re-election on the merits of his work in your behalf. He has given service and valuable service in the interest of this District, and may well rest his case on the evidence his record as your representative discloses. As the leader of the Liberal-Progressive team, he has naturally to bear the brunt of the present fighting, and I do not think he objects to, or shrinks that position. Be though he is prepared to meet the heaviest odds, it is not right that he should be subjected to the unfair attacks that have been levelled against him the past few weeks. As I have said, his record amongst you speaks for itself, and on the merits of that record he faces the opponents begin to falter that rise in protest for decent men to rise in protest. The attacks on Mr. Higgins the past few weeks have been similar to the attacks on his Leader—deliberate and insidious attempts to turn the people against him, insinuations thrown out that have no foundation in fact, and a perversion of truth to suit a the afraid of what St. John's West do. St. John's, said Mr. Vincombe, will return six Cashin men, the country should know about the Opposition do know that St. John's East and West will vote the teams down by more than two, and it is a foregone conclusion that St. John's East will have at 2,000 majority. Mr. Vincombe further dealing with the attacks the Opposition press, said that since the address of Cashin men, attempting to try and hostile him, and colleagues, but he said, the Vincombe was well and favored known in St. John's East, when Squires were unheard of, it will be so well known on polling day that neither Coaker nor hisner will be ever heard of again St. John's, nor in any other part the country. Mr. Vincombe in his address impressed upon his electorate to vote the straight set on polling day for Higgins, Vincombe and Fox. There was a ar riot of applause when "Nix" shed, a practical evidence of his ularity in St. John's East.

East End Victory Meeting.

Mr. C. J. Fox followed Mr. Vincombe and said in effect:

If this were an ordinary occasion, and you and I had met to discuss a subject which concerned us but little, I would be more or less passing interest to us, though I should esteem it a privilege to be permitted to address you, yet would I approach you with far less diffidence than I do to-night, when both the occasion and the subject are of such vital importance to us as to warrant our entering the discussion of it in all seriousness without display, and in a spirit of reflection and deliberation. When I was nominated as candidate to seek your suffrages, I stated that I accepted nomination not merely because it was formally necessary, but because it meant me entering public life under a leader to whom I could look up; with colleagues upon whom I could depend; and in a District whose political traditions and sentiments were and would ever remain to me, objects of veneration and affection. And finding myself in the possession of these three requisites, I was prepared to take up the contest, and in a clean fight attempt to reach the goal of my ambition, election as a representative of the people of St. John's East. As to the first, Sir Michael Cashin is a man whose native talents, hard work, indomitable courage, and resourcefulness have raised him to the highest place within the gift of his country—the position of Prime Minister. These characteristics have found their complements in his public and private virtues—his probity, his honesty of purpose and genuine charity. His record of close on 30 years in the public service of this Colony will remain as irrefutable evidence of the immeasurable good his participation in public affairs has brought upon the country that stands unequalled to-day in spite of the attempts of his traducers to lower him in the estimation of the people. These attempts to defame him have their origin in the envious malice of men not big enough to play the game fairly, and who, knowing they cannot succeed in a clean fight, are resorting to the lowest and basest methods of attack in their attempt to win place and power for themselves. As to the second, I consider that I am fortunate in having as my colleagues the gentlemen with whom I am associated in this campaign. No words of mine are needed in reference to them. They are as familiar to you as you are to them. Like myself, Mr. Vincombe enters the lists as a candidate for the first time this Fall; but from the viewpoint of campaign experience, he is a veteran. His ability and his knowledge of the District alone would entitle him to a place with your representatives; but he has much more than this to recommend him. He has a heart that sympathizes with you, and a disposition that finds its greatest happiness in assisting others. Mr. Higgins has been with you now for six years, and seeks re-election on the merits of his work in your behalf. He has given service and valuable experience in the District, and his record in the evidence his record as your representative discloses. As the leader of the Liberal-Progressive team, he has naturally to bear the blunt of the present fighting, and I do not think he objects to or shirks that position. But though he is prepared to meet the heaviest odds, it is not right that he should have been subjected to the unfair attacks that have been levelled against him the past few weeks. As I have said, his record amongst you speaks for itself, and on the merits of that record he faces the electorate this Fall; but when his opponents begin to falsify that record, it is time for decent men to rise in protest. The attacks on Mr. Higgins the past few weeks have been similar to the attacks on Sir Michael Cashin—deliberate and insidious attempts to turn the people against him, insinuations thrown out that have no foundation in fact, and a perversion of truth to suit a

Zam-Buk made it well

Children never forget a remedy that ends their pain. That's why a child who has once had Zam-Buk applied to an injury will cry for it again when hurt.

Mrs. T. O'Rourke of Ridge Farm, Bousman River, Man., says: "My children are constantly getting cut, bruised or burned and for these injuries I find Zam-Buk most effective. I had Zam-Buk in my house for it. For fifteen years we have used Zam-Buk in our family, and could not do without it."

Mothers should always keep a box of Zam-Buk handy on the medicine shelf, for use daily does quickly end pain and soreness, but it positively prevents festering and bleeding. Mothers can save themselves much anxiety and often much needless expense by immediately applying

Zam-Buk to cuts, scratches, bruises, knocks, burns and scalds, and by teaching the children that the prompt use of Zam-Buk will prevent little hurts from growing into big ones. Zam-Buk is equally good for sores, rashes, eczema, ulcers, boils, pimples, ringworms and salt rheum.

Because of its absolutely herbal composition Zam-Buk cannot become rancid, but will keep indefinitely and still retain its purity and strength. Buy a box to-day, use what you require, put the remainder away, and when next you need it, it will be just as effective as when first bought. That is why Zam-Buk is always the choice of the thrifty house-keeper. All dealers 50c. box.

fiduciary relationship, is cognizable by law and should be punished. If the gentlemen in Opposition have facts to warrant their assertions, then, I say, it is their duty to proceed in the regular way and have the law vindicated. If they are not prepared to go to that extreme, then let them at all events be consistent and refrain from comment. As to the cry that has been raised within the past few days in another effort to stampede the electorate to the effect that the country is about to be sold to the Reds, and that another railway deal is in contemplation, whereby the Company will receive benefits both monetary and otherwise to the detriment of Newfoundland; as we know that cry was started because of a clause in the Manifesto, recently published by Sir Michael Cashin, comprehending attention to our present railway system, and its extension to certain parts of the country unserved by it at present, I think I am safe in saying that not alone are the details of the proposed legislation unknown to anyone at the present time, but the proposal itself has not come under consideration even in a general way. For myself, I can promise you one thing, that if I am in the House of Assembly with a measure dealing with the subject in question is going through, and I think that a deal is being consummated that is prejudicial to the best interest of this country, for one shall oppose it with all the strength at my command. And this brings me to the second duty which confronts me on my entering public life, namely, to prevent the spread or encroachment of pernicious political principles, one of the most deadly of which is Corporation control or influence in any free government. Do I see any immediate danger of such a contingency arising? To be frank, I do. In the constitution of the Opposition Party I see being re-enacted the same scene that had such a dramatic finish in January, 1914, when the Leader of the then Liberal-Union Party, Sir Robert Bond, retired from the Leadership of that Party because, to use his own words, he was not prepared to aid the policy of the President of the F.P.U., which he has declared to be the seizure of the Government of this Colony by the Union over which he presides. Five years have intervened since that time, and it is natural to suppose that the political ambitions of the otherwise to be admired gentleman who promoted and controls the organization referred to, have undergone any change? And are they not to-day, as they were then, ready to assert themselves now that the opportunity has again presented itself, of forming a party that of necessity will be amenable, to the control of his Union? Mind you, I am not making these statements in any sense of personal criticism of the President of the F.P.U., or in a spirit of opposition to that Union; personally I admire Mr. Coaker in many ways, and I have the highest regard for his organizing ability, industry and untiring effort, and consider that the F.P.U. in its commercial capacity is serving a most useful purpose; but I do object to the utilization of that Union as a political entity to serve political ambitions or to control the political destinies of this country. Corporation control in any Government is objectionable on a principle analogous to that which requires the representatives of the people to serve general, not particular interests, and it matters not to me whether the name of that Corporation be the Reid Nfld. Co. or the Fishermen's Protective Union, I oppose its usurpation of political power to the end that it may influence the administration of public affairs, because I consider such interference is a menace to the full, free and complete enjoyment and exercise of our civil liberties. As regards the Reid Nfld. Co., my position briefly is that I do not believe in frivolously and vexatiously opposing it, nor do I think it right that it should be persecuted. As a concern under large contractual obligations with this Colony, it has certain duties to perform and certain rights to be protected. It should undoubtedly be required to live up to its contract, and in doing so be given the honest consideration and fair treatment that we accord to any other public contractor who faithfully discharges his obligations.

Mr. Fox concluded by asking the voters of St. John's East to vote the straight ticket on November 3rd, for Higgins, Vincombe and Fox. When he closed his address the Casino shook with an outburst of cheering and applause that had not been witnessed at

AND WHY IN NEWFOUNDLAND AND CANADA—1919-20.
"Who's Who and Why" is designed to provide a record of the men and women who in one capacity or another are contributing to the building up of Canada and Newfoundland.
In the brief account of their career in these pages their relation is shown to the outstanding events of the history of the sister dominions, and the book, therefore, has a value for the historian quite beyond its use as a current work of reference. Included also are portraits of persons dealt with in the biographical sketches, thus adding to the permanent value of the book. Only a few copies on sale.

Tariff Rates.

The question of tariff rates is amongst those most easily resurrected by politicians on the eve of an election. It evokes therefore no surprise to find the Opposition at the present time trying to catch votes by raising the old cry of reduced taxation. The "outs" at the present time are so desperately striving, (in vain), for the privilege of emptying the chest that they reck not what cry is made use of to try and fool the electorate, and thus we find the Advocate, as always, trying to pervert the words of Sir Michael Cashin's manifesto, relative to this matter of increased tariff rates. The manifesto contains the statement that "large tariff reductions should not be promised at this time, because large expenditures on public improvements will be necessary." Quite different from the catch-cry "more taxation." How the Opposition must be despairing when they deliberately misconstrue a statement for the purpose of fooling an electorate, and defeating, by foul means, a political opponent.

Taxation is more or less the means by which a country's resources are developed, and its prosperity or otherwise determined. Without the necessary taxation to ensure some surplus at the end of each fiscal year, the country would face bankruptcy and all its attendant evils. A surplus of income over expenditure is necessary to satisfy the growing needs of the country; to assist in the development of the country's industries; to make the necessary public improvements. Mr. Coaker, in his appeal to the electors of Bonavista Bay, stated that he is prepared to support the extension of the railway down the north side of Bonavista Bay. Other promises made by the Government candidates, are likewise promised by the Opposition, and yet the latter expect to make these promises good by reducing taxation. In the face of such assertions it may not be safely assumed that it's a parallel case to the fixing of the price of fish, and the people stand the cost. "Reduce taxation," say the Opposition, and yet we know that the leaders of the Opposition bunch are by no means backward in taking money for their services, and a reduced taxation would by no means give them the opportunities they crave of enriching themselves at the expense of the people.

Would-be patriots are apt to throw out any cry to seduce the people, and knowing from past records what statements have been made of each other by the dual leaders of the Opposition, it appears that they have made common cause in the cry of "extra taxation by the Government," simply because there are few other cries they can unite on. The people will not be deceived by the apparent patriotism and unselfishness of the dual leaders. The voters of Newfoundland exercise intelligence in their polling, and are not influenced by mere lip-phrases. We are not promised extra taxation by the Government, but the number of public improvements called for throughout the island, and the many needed things to be performed by the Government when returned on November 3rd, warrant no immediate reduction in tariff rates. Taxation will neither be decreased, nor increased, simply because it is expedient in the people's interest that a surplus be always present for the development of our island resources. The Opposition cry out for reduced taxation, but they are wary enough to keep quiet as to how and when that reduction is to take place (should they be elected). Fortunately for the country, they will not.

Comparing our taxation with that of other countries, we find that ours is much the lighter. Especially is this so on the people who do not live in the city of St. John's, and moreover as Sir Michael Cashin says in his manifesto, "It is noteworthy that the revenue now collected is not so large in proportion to the Colony's total trade as it was ten years ago." This means that in spite of the cry of increased taxation raised by the "outs" it is nevertheless a fact that in ratio to our trade, our present taxation is less than it was ten years ago. The croakings of the Opposition press that taxation will be raised when the Liberal Progressive Party is returned to power (as it will be), is croaking and nothing more. No extra taxation is foreshadowed, as yet, because the country calls for progress, and not reform (?) When it is expedient, and in the country's interests to reduce taxation, then the voters can rely on it that the Liberal Progressive Party will be there "with the goods." The Liberal Reform, if by mistake elected, would speedily reduce the surplus, but not the taxation, as evidence has been given heretofore of the money-loving propensities, as well as the selfishness of the "twin leaders." No reduction of tariff duties as yet, is the plea of an honest man, who is not satisfied to give out any promises for the mere sake of catching votes. No immediate taxation is the motto of the business man who, with his usual business acumen sees that it is imperative for the good of Newfoundland that the present tariff rates be maintained, until the country can rightly afford a reduction. "Increased taxation by Cashin," is the cry of the Opposition in its efforts to win the electorate, and increased taxation is aimed at by the Opposition itself that more of the country's revenues may swell the funds of the Liberal Reform (?) bosses.

Ferryland Campaign Opened.
Last night Sir Michael Cashin and Mr. P. F. Moore opened their campaign in the District of Ferryland with a meeting at the Goulds. They were met on the road by residents of the place, and were greeted with guns, bonfires, etc. They were escorted to the hall by the cheering crowd where the meeting, attended by every voter of the place, was held. Quite a number of voters of St. John's West side of the Goulds also attended. Sir Michael and Mr. Moore spoke of the policy of the Liberal Progressive Party and explained it to the satisfaction of all concerned. The meeting was the most successful ever held at the Goulds, and is an augury of the walk-over that Ferryland will give Cashin and Moore on Nov. 3rd.

Does His Opinion Still Hold Good?

(The Advocate, April 29, 1919.)
And so, in lonely splendour, the Star and its master sit themselves to-day. And yet, this is the man who prevented a Spring election in 1918, according to himself. It is strange that the jolts he has experienced since that time have not cured him of his way of taking himself seriously! The Star also says that it knew there was going to be a Spring election this year. It is strange that Mr. Squires should have said, when at Heart's Content that there was not going to be a Spring election. The Star also says that it had prepared for an election by getting in a large stock of paper last winter.

It is strange, very strange, in view of this, that in mid-winter, the Star should have occasion to borrow from another newspaper office, for almost a week, nearly a dozen rolls of paper, when this particular paper had to be seen in two places to fit the Star's press, and even then represented a substantial wastage! Verily it is very strange.

Hr. Main Team.

The team for Hr. Main to contest that important district in the interests of the Liberal-Progressive Party will be Hon. Wm. Woodford, Minister of Public Works, and Dr. W. E. Jones, the popular physician of Avondale. Mr. Woodford needs no introduction to the voters of Hr. Main. He has for thirty years, with but a short intervening period, represented them, and only once in that period has he met with defeat, and then only by a margin of 14 votes. Mr. Woodford is still the popular member for Hr. Main, and will on polling day again demonstrate it to the discomfort of his opponents and the Coaker-Squires combination. Dr. W. E. Jones is as popular as he is well-known. For twenty-five years he has resided in Avondale, practicing his profession as a physician, and is known and respected by every resident of Hr. Main from Holyrood north, and when electors of the South Shore have the opportunity of meeting him face to face they will have no other option but to vote for him. A splendid type of gentleman, we congratulate the Liberal-Progressive party on securing such a splendid candidate to uphold their banner in the District of Hr. Main. To Messrs. Woodford and Jones will go the laurels of a great victory on Nov. 3rd. Hr. Main will be in the winning column as it has been since responsible government. Cashin will come back.

Well Done, St. John's!

EAST AND WEST WILL SQUELCH THE SQUIRES PARTY.
The great body of Liberal voters all over Newfoundland will be pleased to learn that all true Liberals in St. John's will cast a solid vote against the Squires candidates, and as the Liberals in the city and those of the outports have always joined hands in political contests, we may be sure that all will swing together in the election now ensuing. We warn all true Liberals in the outports not to be misled by the shoutings of the Squires organ that Liberal sentiment in St. John's is endorsing Tory Squires. It is not in the nature of St. John's Liberals to espouse the cause of such an unpopular Tory leader and who, more particularly since he has allied himself with the undesirable Coaker, the man responsible for driving out of public life the true Liberal's great leader of the past, Right Hon. Sir Robert Bond. Take it from us all of the genuine Liberals in every district of Newfoundland that Liberalism and Tory Squiresism are two brands of political principles and that Liberals who vote for Squires and his candidates do violence to the cause which it has been their pride to uphold in the past.

Knowing, as the Telegram does, the kind of political usurper that Squires is, it is the duty of our duty to you to warn you not to be led astray. We know that all sorts of misrepresentations are being made to you that Squires is the rightful leader of the Grand Old Liberal Party and that it is your duty to vote for his candidates, but we know you will take the word of the Telegram that he is only a Liberal in disguise and that if you lend his candidates the support that would give them victory you would wake up to realise too late that you had entrusted the affairs of the Colony to the most hide-bound Tory that you could possibly conceive. We have faith, however, in your intelligence and that you will vote as your fellow Liberals are doing in St. John's, and that is in favor of the real Liberals as led by Sir M. P. Cashin, and that you will use your very strongest influence to defeat the usurpers or "be-formed" Liberals who are being foisted on you by Squires and Coaker.

Ha! Ha!! Ha!!!

MEANEY AND KENNEDY LOOKED UPON AS A JOKE TO THE LIBERALS OF HARBOR MAINE.
That Messrs. John T. Meaney and Capt. Kennedy will have no show whatever in the good old District of Harbor Maine, is plain to be inferred from hearing the reports of the residents thereof, who have visited St. John's of late. Mr. Meaney is so well known that the people generally have him properly sized up, and whilst they consider he would afford them much diversion in the role of a "beeler," which he was wont to perform so often, yet voting him to be one of their members would be too much of a joke for them to do. Capt. Kennedy, of course, is not without some friends, but as he is on the wrong side and attached to the volatile Meaney, the people will be obliged to turn him down. That the general opinion realizes this is proved by the fact that already there are rumors to the effect he may not seek nomination at all. The statement that Mike Parrell is being held in reserve to play second fiddle to John T., creates only derision amongst many, but brings a broad smile to others, particularly when it is urged that Parrell will not go to the slaughter, unless he is offered a seat in the Executive, as every other Squire candidate imagines he will get if elected.

CINCINNATI BALL TEAM WINS.
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 6. The Cincinnati baseball team won another victory to-day, defeating the Chicago Americans by 5 to 0. If the Reds win to-morrow's game, the series will be ended.

BURIED TREASURE ON VIMY RIDGE.
OTTAWA, ONT., Oct. 6. A story of buried treasure on Vimy Ridge is under investigation by the Militia Department. The treasure, a sum of money in gold, is said to have been buried on La Folle farm on the top of Vimy Ridge. Subsequently, it is claimed, the money was found by Canadian soldiers while digging in a gun and handed over by them to their superior officer.

ALBERT'S TRIBUTE TO CANADIANS.
NIAGARA FALLS, ONT., Oct. 6. "The Canadians in Flanders were always in tight places but they always held their ground." This was the tribute of the fighting King of the Belgians to Canada's overseas army, as expressed in conversation with the Hon. R. W. Rowell, who received King Albert and his party on behalf of the Governor General and Government of Canada when they made a flying visit to this city to-day. In reply to the invitation of the Governor General to make a visit to Ottawa, His Majesty said he regretted that time and arrangements would not permit of the acceptance.

ANOTHER MINERS STRIKE.
JOHNSTOWN, Penn., Oct. 6. Two thousand miners, employed in this district, went on strike to-day in accordance with instructions issued to-day by union officials. The strike is said to have been called because the majority of the miners and operators refused the union scale.

GREAT BRITAIN'S SIX VOTES.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 6. Denying that Great Britain and the Colonies could have six votes in the League of Nations to one for the United States, Senator McCumber, Republican, North Dakota, charged the Senate to-day that Senators advocating the amendment by Senator Johnson, Republican, California, proposing to limit the voting power of the British Colonies, were fanning popular prejudice with an unfounded appeal as substitute for the Johnston amendment. Senator McCumber urged his proposed reservation to exclude British Colonies from participating in the League in disputes involving the Mother Country of each other.

AN ENGLISH BYE-ELECTION.
LONDON, Oct. 6. Polling takes place to-morrow in the Rushmore Division of Manchester by election, the vacancy being caused by the death of R. B. Stoker, coalition unionist, whose majority was 870 over a Liberal. There are four candidates: Capt. J. George, Coalition Unionist and former M. P.; W. Spring, Liberal; Dr. R. Dunnett, Labor, Capt. Chredson, National Party. Liberal newspapers have expressed soreness at Labor running candidate in view of Mr. Spring's political being practically Labor and the fact that the Liberals supported Arthur Henderson in the Witness bye-election. Ordinary political issues were abandoned by the strike.

TROOPS BACK FROM RUSSIA.
LONDON, Oct. 6. British forces at Archangel arrived in Liverpool to-day on the steamer Cesaritz and proceeded to London. Asked regarding the position of Russia, General Ironside said: "I think damn sight too much has been said already. We have finished our job and I think the Russians can now look after themselves."

RAILWAYS NOT RUNNING YET.
LONDON, Oct. 6. (Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The railways are not yet running full service but hope to practically complete the resumption by 16-morrow. In meantime, it is announced that the Govt. motor transport services, which greatly helped to save the situation during the strike, would be continued as an adjunct to the railways until Cashin Will Come Back.

Glimmerings.

Why wouldn't the Liberal Reform (L) Party look gloomy to-day? They see the writing plain now. Last night's meeting at the Casino showed them glimmerings of the truth that Cashin Will Come Back!

Morins and Fox on the Government side. What a pair of speakers to herald forth progress for Newfoundland.

Haven't you seen Nix hustling these days. Watch the result when the ballots are counted. See him sit on the left hand side of the Speaker when the House opens.

Higgins took the wind out of the Opposition sails at last night's meeting.

The poor reformers! $800 is not much out of the barrel of foreign coin.

Will Cashin Come Back? YES!

Police Court.

Three motorists were each fined costs for having no tail lights on the cars.

A drunk and disorderly person was remanded.

The drunk who assaulted Mr. O'Mara last evening was also remanded. Two stowaways from the Sable I. were each fined $7 for damages done by them aboard the ship.

A Big Steamer.

The S. S. Canadian Volunteer, now unloading at the Furness, Withy Co's pier, has a capacity equal to 29,000 barrels. She will be followed by the Canadian Adventure on Oct. 27th.

Such additions to our cargo carrying business will have a far-reaching influence on the trade of the Dominion. The Furness, Withy Co. is to be congratulated on its enterprise.

Cashin Will Come Back.
Contagious Diseases.

Four cases of diphtheria were reported yesterday and this morning. A boy, aged 3, of Mundy Pond Road; a girl, aged 14, of Adelaide St. were taken to hospital. The other two, a girl from Gower St., and one from Queen's Road, will also be removed to hospital.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, Oct. 7, 1919. In these Autumn days when coughs, colds and bronchial irritation are so prevalent, we would call attention to the virtues of Nyal Compound Syrup of White Pine and Tar—a specially prepared medicine having for its object the relief and cure of those conditions. This Syrup is expectorant, healing and antiseptic, and it is one of the most popular and most successful of the Nyal preparations. Large bottle—price 50c.

Mennen's Talcum for men should become the popular after shaving talcum as it is specially designed for this purpose by the original and most experienced manufacturer of this toilet requisite. Price 30c a tin.

Foreign Press Opinion.

AMERICAN.
Getting After the Profiteers. Cleveland Plaindealer: These are sorry days for men who have manipulated food supplies for their own profit. The tide of public opinion is setting heavily against them. The people have neither mercy nor sympathy for them, and they are entitled to neither. Whatever his function in the handling of necessities, whether producer or middle man, the only policy which the public will accept is one of strict honesty and strict obedience to law.

Making Prisons a Reality. Baltimore American: A Cleveland grand jury urges jail terms for profiteers. If prison were a condition and not a theory confronting speculators in food, the high cost of living would make a nose dive to terra firma.

Minneapolis News: The United States never supported, openly, a class of rich idlers. It always has been unfashionable in this country to be a do-nothing. Like marrying for money, habitual loafing has been frowned on among men.

The One American Failure. Philadelphia Public Ledger: The weak spot in the American line is her municipal politics. If a frank student of American public affairs were to be asked to put his finger on the chief peril to the permanence of our democratic institutions, he would without hesitation lay it most accusingly on the chronic misgovernment of our big cities. That seems to be the one thing we cannot do. We can make industry hum; we can pile up money; we can invent and discover and we can beat the world at educating the masses and raising the level of average intelligence and open comfort. But we simply lack the knowledge or the pluck or the patriotism which would enable us to govern ourselves in large communities.

All Deserved. The one high military commander who was continued in his post from the day his country's armies took the field until victory was achieved was John J. Pershing and he acquitted himself with credit to his fellow citizens as a soldier, a diplomat and as a citizen. The honors General John J. Pershing has received and will receive have been earned. He will get nothing beyond his deserts when the multitude cheers him, when high officials eloquently laud him, when the Congress of his country confers on him the supreme honor of that country's formal thanks.—New York Sun.

Flocking to America. General Pershing's return is closely followed by the arrival of Cardinal Mercier. The Price of Wales is already on this side of the Atlantic, and the king and Queen of Belgium will soon be here. As soon as Fech and a few other distinguished visitors arrive the Old World will be pretty well denuded of persons of distinction.—Buffalo Commercial.

His The Credit. The supreme credit of the American victories in France belongs to John Joseph Pershing. He not only fashioned an invincible fighting machine in the face of difficulties that only a man great of soul could have triumphed over, but he planned the strategy of offensives on the American front and chose the commanders to execute them, his being always the directing brain.—New York Times.

ENGLISH.
The Port of London. London is one of the largest ports in the world. Millions of tons of shipping enter the river and docks yearly. Yet probably not one Londoner in ten ever sees an ocean-going ship in the course of the year, unless he goes to some other port or to the coast. This is not necessarily due to indifference. There are many probably who would like to see the shipping of London, but find it difficult to do so. The docks are not easy of access, and the banks of the river are very hard to come at below London Bridge. There may be a few by-ways to the waterside, known to those who live near by, but the average Londoner, unless he be something of an explorer, probably does not know where to get a view of the river between the Tower and Greenwich. And he cannot, as of old, take a boat below bridge, for it is some years since any ran. So, unless business takes him over London or the Tower Bridge, he sees nothing of the Port of London—and even then only what may be called the tail-end of it. He may perhaps get a glimpse of tall ships in the distance if he come up by rail from a southeastern suburb, and the tramway car that goes by Rotherhithe takes him within a few yards of these same ships. But it remains that the layman—that is, the man who has no connection with ships or shipping—has little chance of getting down to the wharves and quays of London and so misses much of the interest of the city in which he lives. It is not so in all ports. Seemingly it is only in London that city and port are divorced.—London Daily Mail.

The Forbidden Handkerchief. No one has yet told us why handkerchiefs are square, but a reader reminds us that they were unknown before the early part of the 18th century. Venice being the place where they made their first appearance. Otto Fischel, a German authority, says that the Germans were slow to adopt the new idea. They first used them in 1580, and soon afterwards sumptuary laws were enacted in most German states forbidding any person of plebian birth from blowing his nose with a handkerchief. This restriction remained in force for over 200 years, and was enforced even on the stage. So recently as 1780 an actress was officially reprimanded for disregarding it in a Berlin theatre. She excused herself by pleading that she had not used a handkerchief, only "a little linen rag."—London Daily Chronicle.

Cast out Coaker control!
Squires will be snowed under.
The Squires-Coaker combination are about as popular as a Prohibitionist in Flat Island.
Morine and his men are sweeping everything before them in Bonavista District. Coaker's day is done in his own stronghold.

Remember the Bank Crash on Polling Day, and vote against Coaker and his crazy fish scheme.

There's nothing to it! Cashin will come back with a greater majority than ever in the history of the country. That's the popular verdict.

Capt. Kean is going to bring back a bumper trip of votes from St. Barbe next month. He is "panning" big batches daily, and is right in the main patch.

Don't be on the losing side. A vote for Squires or Coaker is a vote lost. Cast your ballot for Cashin, and clean progressive government for the next four years.

Have the Liberal Reform party started to "reform" Mr. Squires yet? Reformation, like charity, should begin at home, and Mr. Squires is in great need of such ministrations. Remember the Sunday search for candidates.

The labouring men are going to "belabour" Squires and his men in the West End, and are taking their coats off for the fight. His own party won't know Squires after the labourers get through with him.

Harbor Grace, as usual, is going to be on the winning side with three Government candidates. All the news from that District points to this with certainty. Piccott and his men are going to have a walk-over there. The Coakerites can't get anyone to face the Government men yet, and may have to let the district go by default.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

A SPLENDID MOTHER.

In the paper the other morning I read a little item which gave me one of those fine little thrills one always feels when one comes upon "the noblesse that lies in other men sleeping but never dead."

This was the substance of the item:

An eight-year-old boy had shot his playmate. The two had been playing Indian and cowboy together and, with a bow and arrow made from the ribs of an umbrella, the eight-year-old cowboy had shot the seven-year-old Indian in the eye and the wound had proved fatal. The boy was held for homicide but released on the plea of the mother of the child he had killed.

Isn't This Magnificent.

And this is what she had said: "It might just as well have been my own little boy. I harbor no resentment and ask that he be permitted to go home with his mother."

Doesn't that simple statement thrill you through and through?

Think of the perfectly tremendous self-control it connoted not to fling out a single word of bitter blame under perhaps the harshest wrench the human heart ever has to bear.

Think of the splendid decency of that put-yourself-in-his-place—spirit expressed in: "It might just as well have been my own little boy."

So Glad It Was a Mother Not a Father.

I am so proud to think it was a mother rather than a father who made this plea. For that is just the sort of spirit we women have been supposed to be lacking in.

I do not know whether that woman has other children. I hope with all my heart she has. Both for her own sake and because with such a mother they ought to be the kind of citizens the world sorely needs.

If I were a cosmic fairy god-mother and could wish for more of some one quality for all the people in the world in the great crises through which we are now passing, it would be more of that "spirit."

everyone had as much of that put-yourself-in-his-place spirit as that woman, the peace table would not have generated into a squabble; Europe would not be in tumult; Russia would not be starving, nor the United States throwing away the greatest economic opportunity a country ever had in industrial strife.

Education That Only Mothers Give.

And that woman's sons and the sons of mothers like her will have more of that spirit.

That is the sort of education which the world needs above all other, and it cannot be given in the school room, except incidentally.

Long life to all the mothers and fathers who can give it both by precept and example.

OCTOBER.

It makes me feel sober to know that October is just about due at the door; her curves all remind me, and short ones that stack up before October is ghostly, she's saddening, mostly with leaves falling down from the trees, with nights that are chilly and rains that are silly, and farwells to robins and bees. Oh, dreary October, in sadness they robe her, her garments are ashen and brown; the year's growing older and feebler and colder, which reminds me my sun's going down. October's the token of joys that are broken; the roses are withered and gone; nasturtiums and asters have met, with disasters, they flourish no more on the lawn. It rains, but the water would have to be hotter before it could nourish the heath; it's raw and its chilling and clammy and killing and brings me a message of death. The cool winds are sighing, the wild geese are flying, and honking like automobiles; their wide wings are humming, they herald the coming of weather that promptly congeals. The summer's departed and Autumn's well started, and winter will come with a rush, the winter so yellow—then happy the fellow who's saved up a package of cash.

What is Phoratone?

Phoratone is a preparation manufactured by Dr. F. Stafford & Son for all kinds of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and various Lung Troubles. It is the result of 25 years' experience and thousands of bottles are being sold every year. At the present time quite a large number of people are suffering from Sore Throats, Coughs and Colds, etc., and if you will only try a bottle of this Phoratone you will be surprised with results. You can purchase same at Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill, for 30c. a bottle. Postage 10c. extra.

Fashions and Fads.

The cape-manteau has taken the place of the regular cape.

The skirt of a smart street frock is laid in cartridge plaits.

New coat models are frequently very straight and unbelted.

Narrow self-girdles are still fashionable for coats and dresses.

Some frocks feature narrow belts of black patent leather ribbon.

The new wraps of gray squirrel are nothing short of gorgeous.

Checked velour made in severely tailored fashion is very smart.

Cape collars are of white linen lawn, trimmed with drawn work.

Many of the skirts present a tucked-in-at-the-bottom appearance.

Net and lace are largely used for both afternoon and evening frocks.

Knee-length blouses of Georgette are very heavy from the waist down.

Fancy necklaces are worn with the neck finish of round plated metal.

Silk cord girdles are used on many of the smartest woolen dresses.

Large medallions of embroidery or lace are favorite means of trimming.

Girdles of fruit and flowers are used for some of the new evening gowns.

A charming little gown of blue chiffon has a garland of rosebuds for a girdle.

Bits of brocade are tucked in the neck, or at the waist, to give a plain frock charm.

An autumn coat of scarlet velour has its shoulders and sleeves cut in one with the coat.

A black charmeuse gown has a deep, square neck and a skirt of tiers of black fringe.

A cape of granule velvet is lined with red and silver tinsel brocade, and is trimmed with gray fox.

Squires' Political Doom Prophesied.

(The Advocate, March 22nd, 1919.)

The Hon. R. A. Squires has got to blame the loss of his public services; the usurping of offices he did not fairly win at the polls; the ignoring of public interrogations relative to actions which needed explanation; the queer methods of engaging in political campaigns; the guerrilla, and clandestine, tactics towards honorable opponents, such as George Gushue, and others, and the consciously unjust criticism, censure and calumny, heaped upon those who are trying to do their best for the people, while his taste of power was a cue for him to do his best for himself, for the reason that the public distrust his confidence. Did Mr. Squires accept money from Messrs. Reid when he was Colonial Secretary? If so, did such loan create obligation? Is it because the Reids refused to grant more loans that Mr. Squires is so opposed to them now? We will reserve other questions until some future date. Say near election time—the time of his political doom.

ALL THAT LIFE CAN GIVE.

When the gentle mother's singing, and the children are at play, And the home seems filled with laughter at the ending of the day, I can settle down contented and discover there and then That I'm owning all the gladness that life has to give to men.

When the little ones are healthy and the mother wears a smile, I don't need to sigh for riches for I've everything worth while; When the nights are calm and peaceful and the daily tasks are o'er, I find that I'm possessing all that men are striving for.

When I'm free from all distraction and my thoughts are running clear, When the sound of happy children is the music that I hear, Through the sham of earthly glory and its golden lure I see, Though I've neither fame nor fortune, all their joys belong to me.

He that finds his loved ones happy when his daily tasks are through, And has brought them to contentment, has done all that man can do.

For the purpose of all struggle when the clash and clamor cease, Be the toiler great or humble, is a home that's rich with peace.

Greenspond Decidedly for Government.

Special to Evening Telegram.

GREENSPOND, Yesterday. At the meeting held here on Saturday night, by the Government candidates, all were heard without disturbance; marked enthusiasm prevailed. Co-operators called for cheers for the President of the Union, but they were drowned by the cheers for the Government candidates. This place will give the latter a record majority. All rumors that any places in this Bay will not give Government candidates a good hearing or will exercise any form of violence, are an insult to the intelligence of a self-respecting people. The electors are listening and will vote more calmly this time in the light of reason and common sense than ever before.

At the Majestic.

Mr. Carl Trappell sang splendidly at the Majestic Theatre last evening when his rendition of "Irishmen All" evoked the most spontaneous admiration and enthusiastic applause. Mr. Trappell has a fine baritone voice which was never heard to greater advantage than last night. To-night the singer will be Miss Marjorie Joliffe, who will appear before the Majestic audience for the first time. The Majestic--the leader of them all--favors the principle of uncovering local talent and in every way providing for its patrons the very best the city can produce. That its patrons appreciate this is proven by the gigantic attendance of the past two weeks. The feature picture this evening is "A Man and His Money," starring Tom Moore, that imitable actor. Two other pictures will also be shown, thus making up a splendid show, one worth seeing.

Botwood En Fete To-Day.

Launch and Christening of the Good Ship "Sordello"—Mrs. Stan Duder broke proverbial bottle and wishes ship good luck—Big meeting to-night to be addressed by McKay, Moore and Short.

Special to the Evening Telegram. BOTWOOD, To-day.

Botwood was en fete to-day, hundreds from Grand Falls, Bishops Falls and surrounding settlements to witness the launching of the magnificent ship "Sordello." As the ship started Mrs. Stan Duder broke the proverbial bottle and wished the good ship and her crew good luck and God speed. Just as the ship was gracefully gliding from the ways the "Alcanda" was steaming up the river amid the cheering crowds, blowing whistles and rockets sent up by the steamers in port. The "Sordello" was soon moored at the pier. Adam Chalk, the master builder, was warmly congratulated by hundreds of admiring friends. The ship is without doubt a masterpiece of marine architecture and reflects great credit on Mr. Chalk, who is a Newfoundland. A political meeting to be addressed by MacKay, Moore and Short will be held to-night, Mr. Chalk taking the chair.

Conceding Seats.

The Coaker candidates in St. John's East and West, after last night's meeting, concede that St. John's will return six candidates for the Liberal Progressive Party. They also concede that Mr. Main, Port de Grave, Carbonear, St. George's and Bay de Verde will return Liberal Progressive candidates; in other words they allow that the Government will get the whole nine seats in Conception Bay. With St. John's lined up for six, and Placentia for three, and Ferryland, St. George's, Burin, Burgeo, Fortuna Bay, and St. Barbe, leaving the north alone, where is Coaker going to get a look in. You sensible men of St. John's do not throw away your votes on the Coaker candidates, East or West. Cashin is there to protect the Treasury, and be sure that he remains in charge of the public revenue.

Cashin Will Come Back.

Off for Burgeo.

By yesterday's express, Mr. C. T. James, Editor of The Evening Telegram, left for Channell, where he will open his campaign for the winning of the District of Burgeo and La Poile for the Liberal-Progressive Party. Mr. James contested the district in 1913 in the interests of Sir Robert Bond and the Liberal Party, and came within thirty-seven votes of being elected. He goes back now in the interests of the Liberal-Progressive party just as true a Liberal as he was in 1913, and it goes without saying that he will be successful this time. Burgeo will be in the van for a clean, honest Government, led by Sir Michael Cashin, the fishermen's Premier.

The Effects of Dope.

A respectfully dressed young man half crazed with strong drink, created a scene, that was not edifying, on Henry Street last evening. Divesting himself of his coat and vest he offered to fight all and sundry. In his endeavour to find an opponent he assaulted Mr. P. O'Mara, who happened along. The police were telephoned for, and after some delay arrived. Not, however, before the man had kicked the wind shield out of a motor car, left by some person attending the meeting in the Casino. On the way to the lockup, the prisoner became very violent, and had to be handcuffed. It is too bad that otherwise good citizens, are compelled to use, or are allowed access to the vile concoctions which make men not drunk but crazy.

Cashin Will Come Back.

WILL DRINK CHAMPIONS—A committee of supporters of the C.C.C. have decided to give the winners of the Victory Cup a banquet at Wood's Restaurant this Thursday evening. A large number of guests have been invited and an enjoyable time is anticipated.

When you want Roast Beef, Roast Veal, Roast Mutton, Roast Pork, try ELLIS.

Pointers.

The price of fish will finish Coaker? Why doesn't he keep up the price now?

Did he find that after all he was not the arbiter of prices, but that they were governed by the law of supply and demand?

And why doesn't he make a start by putting up prices at Port Union? Is it true that the huge premises there are a white elephant on his hands?

The people are tired of hearing him holler about guaranteeing prices. If he puts up the prices others must follow his lead.

Why is Squires so silent on this matter of guaranteeing prices? Is he in favor of it? Answer up like a little man, R. A.

Squires has two daily papers "The Star," and "The Post," but not one of them has said a word yet about Coaker's scheme for a Government guarantee of fish prices? Is it true that there is a row in the camp already, and that Coaker is insisting on Squires' support of this crazy idea?

The City doesn't want Coaker rule. That's why there are going to be six Government men in St. John's. Citizens will not stand for "Boss" Coaker, of his henchman Squires. A vote for the Opposition candidates means a vote for Coaker. Don't forget this vital fact.

Coaker would be the dominant figure in a Squires-Coaker Government. If Squires did not conform with his will, he would wreck him, as he wrecked Bond, and tried to knife the National Government last spring.

Who saved the Union? Cashin. Who is going to save the country? Cashin. Watch him win.

A Warning.

A summer resident of Allandale Rd., who owns a prize dog, will mourn his loss if the animal is not chained up. Last night the animal worried a number of cattle in a field nearby and injured one of them. This is not the brute's first offence. The owner will have reason for singing, "Oh where is my little dog gone," if he fails to take the hint.

REQUIEM HIGH MASS—A Requiem High Mass for the repose of the soul of the late Albert Sphira, will be celebrated to-morrow (Wednesday) morning at 8.30 at the Cathedral.

Correspondents are requested to accompany contributions with their real names, not necessarily for publication but as a guarantee of good faith. In future no correspondence will be considered unless this rule is adhered to.
