PURITY - QUALITY - ECONOMY
 With the increased cost of labor and materials due to war conditions, it is not reasonable to suppose that a really first class baking powder can be made and sold at the old prices. Rather than sacrifice the quality of we found it necessary to make slight increases in price during the war period. Even though Magic Baking Powder may cost a few cents more than the ordinary kinds it is still by far the most economical baking powder on the market to-day when purity, strength and leavening qualities are taken into consideration.

CHAPTER VIII

BURYING THE PAST.

"Ah, you're down in the mouth," said the settler, patting him on the back, "and looking through green spectacles. Wait a week or two, and we shall have you as light-hearted as the rest."
 Laurence smiled quietly.
 "I'll not give you cause to call me kill-joy," he said; "trust me."
 "I will far more than that," said the settler. "And now come upstairs with me."
 Laurence followed up the rough, huge stairs, and into a small room planked round with deal and filled with guns, rifles, pistols, revolvers, saddles, other kinds of harness, ammunition—in fact, an odd medley of weapons of the chase and their accompaniments.
 "This I call my armory," said the settler, with a laugh of pride. "Look round and take your pick of the long uns."
 "Thanks," said Laurence, "but I have already a gun, which Jack, the runner, lent, or I might say gave me."
 "Oh, that be hanged for an old thing!" retorted Mr. Stewart. "Look here; here's some I brought over from England. By the way, we had a deuce of a rough passage, how did you fare?"
 "We had stormy weather," replied Laurence, smiling; but he said nothing of his heroic rescue of the man overboard.
 "Ah!" said Mr. Stewart. "Well, look here, what do you think of this?" and he took down a good-looking rifle.
 "If that is for me I have only one fault to find," said Laurence, gravely, "and that is that it is too good and expensive. I have only a few shillings in the world."
 "Bah, man!" exclaimed Mr. Stewart.

"We find workmen their tools, not charge 'em for 'em. If that will suit, take it—and this," handing him a revolver. "Here's a knife, too, a bowie, which you'll find useful enough before long. I dare say. As for the powder and shot, et cetera, here it is always ready at your hand."
 Laurence thanked him.
 "And now for the mounts," continued Mr. Stewart, locking the door behind them and running down-stairs. "Have you seen anything you fancy among the cattle?"
 "I could desire nothing better than the black fellow I rode here on," said Laurence, who had taken a fancy to him on account of his fire and spirit.
 "Oh, Jack gave you Black Hawk, did he?" laughed the settler. "Well, I suppose he wanted to try you. Oh yes, you can have him and welcome, for most of our fellows, though no muffs on an animal, fight rather shy of that beast!"
 "I found him quiet enough after a little while," said Laurence.
 "He's yours then," said Mr. Stewart; "and now I think I smell supper. By the way, I'll give you a regular rig-out in place of that sailor torgery if you will come into this room."
 And he supplied Laurence with a thick pair of tanned-leather breeches, a coarse, strong-looking shirt, and a broad-brimmed felt hat—all new and after the pattern of the other runners. Just as they were entering the long room, from which a most savory smell was wafted, he stopped and said:
 "You haven't asked about the—the—wages yet?"
 Laurence colored. The word brought home to him for the first time the reality of his changed position.

And the Worst is Yet to Come—

"Wages!" he replied. "Give me plenty of work and something to eat, and I shall feel myself heavily in your debt."

"Bah!" said the settler, touched by his tone of sincere gratitude. "I should be a knave if I took you at your word. We'll talk the matter over after supper. Come along."

Laurence asked him to let him change his nautical costume for the clothes he had just received, and Mr. Stewart told him to go into the room and do so.

In a few minutes—for it did not take many to slip on the rough stockings, shirt, and trousers, nor to fill the heavy-belted belt with the revolver and bowie knife—Laurence entered the dining-room.

The long table was groaning beneath the weight of huge dishes of roast antelope meat, and beef, and a tankard of water—of course, there was no beer—glittered at intervals. There were no knives and forks, each man sitting with his bowie knife in hand, and the plates were made of wood and horn, china proving too delicate and fragile for the rough, strong hands that used them.

A score of Hottentot slaves were handing round the plates piled up with meat, which three women, all old and ugly, were cutting as if for their lives. Three men looked up as Laurence entered and scanned his huge, Non-like figure approvingly.

These men worshiped strength; here it was in all its glory.

Three or four of them "made room" for him, and Laurence, with a kindly "Thank you," dropped into one of the seats beside Jack.

All there seemed equal, and it would have been difficult to detect from their manner that they were the hired servants of one man, for he was dressed as they were, and addressed them and was addressed by them with easy familiarity. Yet every man there knew that the sturdy settler would be obeyed, and also that he would be obeyed at all cost. There were some of them who could recollect a certain scene between a refractory, insubordinate runner, which had ended in a swift bullet and a short shift, and they knew with all Mr. Stewart's easy, good-natured way he was quite ready to give another bullet to the man who dared set him at defiance. It was a severe, merciless law, but it was the only one capable of being applied in that out-of-the-way African cattle station, and the men acknowledged and respected it.

They were a silent, rough, yet not brutal, set of men.
 When he spoke it was to the purpose, but they eschewed all chat and gossip.

This taciturnity accorded with Laurence's frame of mind very well indeed, and he finished his supper with as little talk as they. After supper every man wiped his bowie knife on the sleeve of his shirt, stuck it in his belt, and took out his pipe.

Laurence accepted a pipe from Jack, and with the rest of the men strolled out onto the prairie.

Here he made the acquaintance of several of the runners—Black Will, Red Ned, and Andy—and learned from them that a gang of runners were expected in that night, and that on their arrival the gang now at home would mount and ride away.

"You hunt up the cattle and drive them home?" asked Laurence.
 "Yes," said Andy.

"Are there any more stations than this?"
 "Not for two hundred miles," said the runner. "There's one or two outstations belonging to us, small huts for one to sleep in at night—they're about thirty or forty miles apart, in a sort of circle like. We shall beat up toward one to-morrow most like. You'd best stick close to me for a turn or two in case you should get lost."
 Laurence agreed to this, and asked him a few more questions, which he or one of the others answered readily.

While they were talking there came a sudden, indistinct sort of sound, like the hum of a far-off multitude.

"There they be," said Jack. "Hi, hi!"

This called the slaves to hand, and the men, followed by them, sprang upon their horses, and forming a semicircle—Laurence in the middle—flew like the wind toward the sound.

In five minutes an enormous multitude of cattle, sturdy men, and buffaloes came in sight, driven by the runners, who were covered with dust and looked as if they had ridden far.

The semicircle broke and, maneuvering with skillfulness, drove the herd into the open, then turned to welcome, with a kindly grunt, the wearied new-comers.

All night various herds came in. Laurence raised his head from his bed of hay several times, and lay to listen to the dull roar of their feet and the hoarse "Hi, hi!" of the negroes.

So ended his first night as a cattle-runner.

A week later and who would have recognized in the stalwart horseman flying over the plain, with his bare, browned chest exposed to the sun and his luxuriant hair flowing in a silken mass on his neck, the heir to Dale?

It was a wonderful change; and yet scarcely a change so much as a completion, a perfecting of the strong, graceful, youthful form.

The sea-trip and the glorious life he was living had put the finishing touch to Laurence and made him the very pattern of nature's greatest work—a man.

See him as he bends—as supple and graceful as the horse—and shades his eagle eyes with the strong, well-formed hand, to scan the horizon. See the grace with which by a bend of his steel-like finger he turns the flying horse to the right and, with compressed lips, makes for the tiny spot which his keen, practical eyes have detected in the far horizon. See him again as the cattle are speeding in a massive column before his long whip, the odor and the brightness of the flowers beneath his horse's hoofs, the bright blue sky above his head, the light, joyous air filling him with strength and health, and hear him exclaim: "Ah, this is life, freedom, happiness!"

Yet see him once more as the moonlight falls through the open door of the solitary hut, forty miles from human ken, and rests his noble form, lying motionless upon the tiger-skin he has torn from a beast of his own slaying, and as you watch the weary light in his large, sad eyes, as you see the tired drooping of his lips, acknowledge that even here, where all is beautiful and life is one long hunting day, there is not happiness.

Yes, the weary yet sleepless eyes of the lonely cattle-runner are looking past the dim forest outline, past the looming range of hills, past the deep stretch of ocean, and gazing at a small country village far, far away.

Patience, Laurence, patience! The time is drawing nigh when the desolate, despairing heart you carry within your bosom shall leap into life with a new sensation, with a new hope, with a new passion—love! For even now in that far-away village the ingredients of the magic elixir are seething and bubbling in the cauldron of fate.

battle, however, has been a triumph for the Independent Liberal nominees, believed largely due to the solid voting of the country members. Meanwhile the Constitutional Club proposes to delete the words "Conservative" and "Unionist" from its official descriptions, presumably so that the National Liberal Club members, who disapprove of that building's dominant Asquithian temperature, may seek the shelter of the Constitutional Club.

BAKU WAS NOT REFEDED.
Batum, Caucasus, May 6. Azerbaijan troops, which were holding Baku when that city was approached by the Russian Bolshevik forces, failed to make any serious defense of the place, according to reports reaching here. Bolshevik gunboats fired a few shells over the city, but there was little attempt to do actual damage. Two British lieutenants and some British sailors, who were captured by the Soviet army at Baku, will be held, it is said, until an equal number of Turkish Nationalists are released from Malta by the British.

IMPERIAL CABINET.
LONDON, May 6. Earl Curzon, Foreign Secretary, speaking in the House of Lords, last night, concerning the creation of an Imperial General Staff, said that he thought it unwise to state a definite policy until the conference of the Dominions next year. Continuing, Lord Curzon said: "There will be a conference as to relations between the Dominions and the Mother country." There is some hope that there may come out of that an Imperial Cabinet, not only for defence, but for other matters. "We have to secure co-operation, not only between three services and all parts of the Dominions. Much thinking will have to be developed to this subject." Lord Haldane said that the subject was urgent and delay meant serious risks.

Horse Cove Man Has Thrown His Crutches Away.

Ankles Were Swollen Three Times Normal Size—Says Tanlac Soon Rid Him of Rheumatism.

"Everybody in Horse Cove knows how I was crippled up with rheumatism and used to hobble around on crutches, but thanks to Tanlac I am now a well man, and have thrown my crutches away," declared Israel Clark, fisherman of Horse Cove, when in at Connors' drug store on Water Street the other day.

"For over three years I suffered bad with indigestion. The gas used to bloat me up so that I could hardly breathe and my food would turn sour in my stomach. I lost all desire for food, and got to feel weak and worn out. I used to think I had some sort of kidney trouble, because I had terrible pains across the small of my back, especially whenever I tried to stoop over. Then to cap everything I got the rheumatism in my legs. My ankles would swell up two or three times their size and pained so that I couldn't put my feet to the ground. It got so bad that I couldn't do any work, and for a good spell was only able to get about by the help of crutches. I tried all kinds of different medicines but they never seemed to help me and I had just about given up hope of ever getting better.

"One evening some friends were in to see mother, and asked her if I had ever tried Tanlac. She said no, but that if there was any likelihood of it doing me good, she would send to St. John's for a bottle. She did, and when it came, I expected it to be just about like all the other medicine I had taken. But I soon found that it was something very different. For it started to fix me up from the very first. It gave me an appetite, and it wasn't long before I was eating everything that was put before me, and never suffered a bit from gas or indigestion. The pains in my back disappeared and the swelling in my ankles went down. I kept on taking it until now I am free of all rheumatism and have thrown my crutches away. I know I have gained a lot in weight for my clothes fit me tight and I have had to let out two holes in my belt. I have so gained in strength that I can do as much work in a day as ever I could. It's no wonder I'm enthusiastic about Tanlac, for it fixed me up when everything else failed."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale.—adv.

Protests Action.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to voice another protest about shutting out the 24th May, Empire Day, as a holiday. Being English, I would rather see Regatta Day given up. What right have the Importers' Association to say we will not commemorate the 24th May, neither shall any of their employees celebrate our late dear old Queen's Birthday.

What about having a proclamation issued, calling for the 24th May as a General Holiday. Now, Clerks, here's your chance to have the Government do that. They are in session now. Get after your member, and make him hustle. The Importers' Association are not the whole cheese. Thanking you for space,
I am, very truly yours,

Wedding Bells.

A very pretty and popular wedding was solemnized at St. Patrick's Church, Witless Bay, on April 28th, when Mr. Louis Norris led to the altar Miss Maggie Howlett, daughter of Mr. Dennis Howlett. The bride was very prettily attired in blue silk with hat to match and was attended by Miss Delis Hartwell, who wore prunella silk with picture hat. The groom was supported by Mr. William Norris. After the ceremony had been performed, the happy couple drove to their future residence where a sumptuous repast had been prepared by Mrs. Michael Carter. After the usual toasts, etc., had been duly honored, dancing was commenced by the fifty couples present, and continued until the wee sma' hours of the morning when all dispersed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Norris many years of happy wedded life.

Mr. J. S. Currie, Editor of the Daily News, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Flora Currie, who had been a student at Sackville (N.E.) Ladies' College, returned yesterday by the Kyle.
Sir Patrick T. McGrath, Editor of the Evening Herald, who had been in the States for the winter, did not come down the coast by the Kyle, but stayed off at Port aux Basques, to come overland. He proceeded by train and then dog and sled to Grand Falls, where his nephew, Mr. Eben Fraser, is very ill. Sir Patrick reached the Gulf Topsails last evening and probably arrived at Grand Falls to-day.

Admiral Benson Hedges on Sims' Naval Charges.

His Statements Merely "Figures of Speech" --- Message From Congress Not Taken Seriously in England---Ceases to Cause Any Stir---Inter-Imperial Conference Next Year.

A LAME DEFENCE.
WASHINGTON, May 6. Asked by Chairman Vale, of the Senate Naval Investigation Committee, to-day, what instruction he gave Admiral Sims before that official first sailed for London, Admiral Benson said he cautioned him to be very careful of his conduct, in view of the delicate situation, and to remember that the United States was still a neutral. "I gave him very earnest instructions along that line," said the witness. "I felt very strongly regarding the situation, and probably used very forcible language to impress on him the seriousness of the situation, but what words I used, I cannot recall." Admiral Sims said that he had been told not to let the British pull the wool over his eyes; it would "have to go at that." "Do you deny it?" asked the chairman. "I cannot deny it under oath," replied Admiral Benson. "I do deny the interpretation that has been placed or attempted to be placed on it. I do not think anything could have been more confidential than my conversation with Admiral Sims." "How could you say that we would as soon fight British as the Germans?" asked the commissioner. "Merely as a figure of speech, to impress on him the seriousness of his task," was the reply.

MORE TAIL-TWISTING.
WASHINGTON, May 6. CARRANZA HANGS ON.

MEXICO City, May 6.
Refusal to abandon the Presidency in the face of the menace of rebellion, featured a manifesto, issued yesterday on the accession of the National Holiday, by President Carranza. The President announced that he would fight to a finish to put down the rebellion, and that he would not turn over the Presidency to any one unless a legally elected successor. He enunciated to the people the elimination of the Coup D'etat from Mexican politics, asserting that the Presidency must not be a prize for military leaders.

THE ARMENIAN MANDATE.

WASHINGTON, May 6.
The Council of the League of Nations has refused to offer the mandate for Armenia to any power, unless certain requested stipulations are embodied by the Supreme Council in the settlement. According to official information received here to-day, the League Council in a note to the Supreme Council has insisted that the boundaries of Armenia be fixed, that free port, preferably Batum, be accorded her, and that protection for the defence of the new State be provided, before the League Council will be free to ask an independent country to assume mandatory powers over the country. The action of the Council of the League, it was stated, was taken previous to the decision of the Supreme Council at San Remo, to offer the Armenian mandate to the United States.

DICTATION GRIP WEAKENING.

WASHINGTON, May 6.
Official interest in the development of the political phases of the sweeping Revolution in Mexico has been stimulated by Government reports, which continue to indicate a rapid weakening of Carranza's grip.

ELECTRICAL WORKERS STRIKE.

Hamilton, Ont., May 6.
At a meeting of the local branch of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers last night, it was decided that seventy-five journeymen employed in 17 shops should strike to-day, because contractors had refused to advance their wage scale to 90 cents an hour, and concede the closed shops. The employers offered 80 cents an hour with open shops.

HURRICANE IN STRAITS.

CADIZ, May 6.
A furious hurricane is raging in the Straits of Gibraltar, and much damage has been done. There are reports that fifteen fishing boats have been sunk. Telegraphic and railway communication is interrupted around this city. In Tangier the cyclone which prevailed last night, made it impossible to supply the electric current for lighting the city.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

LONDON, May 6.
In a debate in the House of Lords to-day, concerning conditions in Ireland, Baron Birkenhead, Lord High Chancellor, on behalf of the Government said it was intended to continue the policy of giving the Irish Executive all possible assistance and support. He added that in no conceivable circumstances would the Government concede the demands of Sinn Fein, and that the proposal to invite Sinn Fein to another Irish Convention was a proposal wholly out of contact with any living reality. The country would be well advised, Baron Birkenhead continued, that we are faced by a body of desperate well organized and able men, banded together to challenge British might, and to use all means calculated to secure what they call self determination and independence.

CONVICTS IN KNIFE FIGHT.

VALENCIA, Spain, May 7.
A battle, with knives, occurred yesterday in the courtyard of San Miguel Jail, between two parties of convicts, and many of the combatants were wounded before armed wardens were able to suppress the fighting.

THE FRENCH STRIKE.

PARIS, May 7.
The Executive Committee of the Railway Workers Federation held a stormy meeting last night, at which it is understood, there was strong sentiment in favor of calling off the strike if it could be done without appearing to capitulate to the Government. Miners in the northern coal fields have finally decided to strike next Monday. The situation among the dock workers shows no change, and there appears to be some division of council among the outlay metal workers who have struck, as their movement so far has involved only twenty thousand out of two hundred thousand men engaged in the various trades affected.

NO SOLUTION HERE.

LONDON, May 7.
Food Minister Charles A. McCurdy took up in the House of Commons yesterday the present food situation. He said the optimism of a year ago, regarding supplies, had not been justified, and it was well that this fact should be realized. The world's production of sugar had decreased three and a half million tons. The nations were faced with the prospect of a considerable reduction in the world's available supply of wheat, and he feared, in the absence of wise and prudent statesmanship on the part of importing countries, that there would be a rise in prices reflected in every other commodity. The supply of butter promised to be only half the pre-war standard, and he could see no sign that the world's food shortage was likely, materially, to improve.

LOCAL GUARDS FOR RUHR.

BERLIN, May 7.
Bavarian troops, which have been in the Ruhr Basin, have been withdrawn, according to Norddeutsches Allgemeine Zeitung. The Prussian Assembly has adopted proposals for the creation of local guards which will be connected with the state police.

HOLLAND WILL NOT.

THE HAGUE, May 7.
Holland will not resume trade with Soviet Russia until the League of Nations acts in regard to the resumption of relations with the Bolsheviki, said the Foreign Minister in Chief to Parliament to-day, in response to questions relative to the situation.

NEW MOTIVE FUEL.

ROME, May 7.
Dr. Pastocci, a noted chemist, has discovered a method of cheaply producing liquid hydrog. It may be used in driving automobiles, one gallon being sufficient for 250 miles. It may also be utilized in railway locomotives and in engines of ocean steamers, he declared.

WONDER WHAT MADAME SAID.

NEW YORK, May 7.
President Deschanel, of France, has refused to permit Mme. Deschanel to accept the $5,000 hat, offered her by three thousand milliners. The hat was made from material supplied by each of the 48 states and decorated with nine Paradise plumes each costing $500.

GREENWOOD RE-ELECTED.

SUNDERLAND, May 7.
Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, was re-elected to Parliament to-day in a bye-election made necessary by his recent appointment to the Irish Secretaryship.

There will be a meeting of the Star Football Team this Friday evening, at 9 o'clock, in the Star Hall Club Rooms. By order, L. PAYNE, Sec'y.—May 7, 11

Sealing High Liner.

Schooners Crew Share $300 Each.
The palm for good luck in sealing this season must be handed to Capt. Noseworthy of the little schooner Goldwin Roy, owned by Wm. McLean of Searstown, Grand River. She has finished discharging her cargo of seals at North Sydney. The vessel, a craft of about thirty-two tons, carried a crew of ten on her sealing trip of ten days in the Gulf. Seals were encountered about thirteen miles northeast of St. Paul's and twelve hundred and fifty secured, also a very large white porpoise. The men's share of proceeds were three thousand dollars, or three hundred dollars per man.

Old Clothes Campaign.

ATTACKING COST OF MEN'S WEARABLES.

The overall movement which was being started here has been abandoned and it is now proposed that no new clothing will be bought until prices come down. The organizers of this movement say that anyone can find plenty of clothing in their wardrobes that if mended and cleaned would answer just as well as stylish articles. Patched, shabby or out of date clothing will be in order and new articles will be tabooed. Answering an appeal a few days ago, three men gathered some clothing between them, and the collection was so big that a cab had to be hired to take it to the needy family. And these gentlemen are not the only ones who carry extensive wardrobes.

Returned Soldiers Open New Store.

Messrs. Ryan and Mokeler War Veterans, Form Partnership and Already Have two Stands.

Every returned soldier and every friend of war veterans will be pleased to hear of the success of two returned men—Messrs. J. J. Ryan and F. G. Mokeler, in a partnership recently formed by them. An up-to-date grocery and provisions' store, on Holdsworth Street, has already made a name for high class goods for itself, and their latest store, to be opened on Pleasant St., corner of Springdale, to-morrow evening, will even surpass it. The usual line of groceries and household perquisites will be stocked, while special attention and space are being devoted to anything and everything that might be desired by the family. A capable lady has been placed in charge of the new store, and under the management of Messrs. Ryan and Mokeler will be sure to achieve that success which characterized the Holdsworth St. shop—which latter went up by leaps and bounds, increasing about 600 per cent. in one year. The Telegram speaks for Messrs. Ryan and Mokeler much success in the joint business.

Overall Campaign in Great Britain.

London, May 1.—Eight million workers are estimated to have participated in Great Britain's observance of May Day by taking the day off, parading and speech making, but there were no interruptions to the national essential public services, probably partly due to the fact that Saturday is normally a half holiday. The move to impede railway traffic through the "Work to the Rules" policy proclaimed by the London and Liverpool railway men's locals proved a fiasco, not a single instance of a hold-up due to this attempt to enforce the workers' demand for increased wages, unauthorized by the executives of the union, being reported. The feature which gave more promise of distinguishing the day was the inauguration of an overall wearing campaign similar to that in Canada and the United States by the middle class union calculated to cut down the price of clothing.

Llewellyn Club's Closing Session.

The grand finale of the season was held by Llewellyn Club in Canon Wood Hall last evening, the place being filled to capacity. Rev. Dr. Jones presided, while the Governor was the guest of the evening.

The concert was a most enjoyable one, the various items being splendidly rendered. The programme consisted of selections by the Llewellyn Orchestra, songs by Messrs. Chas. Hammond, A. Williams, T. J. Seymour, G. Macklin, Carl Trappell and E. Fox; a recitation by Mr. G. MacDonald, a dialogue by Mr. Pittman and a member of the Orphanage, a clog dance by Mr. M. Green, and a display of ventriloquism by Mr. Joe Wheeler, with Jimmy.

Mr. H. W. Stirling acted as accompanist in his usual capable manner. The Governor entered thoroughly into the spirit of the evening, and told a humorous story and sang a song.

After the singing of the National Anthem the gathering repaired to the lower flat, where refreshments were served by the ladies. What was probably the best part of the evening followed, witty speeches being delivered by Messrs. E. Bowden, H. V. Mott, A. Carnell, F. W. Jeans, who had charge of the catering, and C. E. Hunt, while Mr. L. Green gave a song and recitation, Mr. MacDonald recitations and Messrs. Wheeler, Macklin and Fox, songs. Mr. A. Carnell was particularly happy as chairman, and added much to the jollity of the occasion. The passing of votes of thanks to the ladies and the press brought a thoroughly enjoyable evening to a close.

The Will of Senator Goff.

A despatch from Clarksburg, West Virginia, says:

Speculation is rife here as to what disposition is to be made by the will of the estate of the late Judge Nathan Goff, former United States Senator, and former Secretary of the Navy, who died at his home here yesterday. While no information has been divulged as to the testamentary distribution of the property, it is generally believed that it will be shared equally by the widow and the two sons.

The estate is variously estimated at from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000, and consists of the Waldorf Hotel here, one of the finest hotels in West Virginia, office and business buildings, apartment houses, business lots in Clarksburg, farm lands, extensive tracts in the western part of the county having valuable coal, oil and gas production, bonds, preferred and common stocks, and other securities.

The widow, who was the Judge's second wife, and formerly Miss Catherine Penney, thirty-five, of Carbonate, Newfoundland, whom he married last August, and who had been his nurse, is expected to share in about one-third of the estate. His first wife, Miss Laura Despard, of Clarksburg, died some years ago. The two sons, Dr. W. Percy Goff, of Clarksburg, and Col. Guy D. Goff, of Milwaukee, Wis., are expected to receive one-third each.

Two members of Judge Goff's family are now abroad. Lieut.-Col. Guy D. Goff, who was a Federal District Attorney at Milwaukee and a few years ago Republican nominee for Governor of Wisconsin, is one of the commanding officers of the remaining American Army of Occupation in Germany. Mrs. W. P. Goff, who is a sister-in-law of John W. Davis, the American Ambassador to Great Britain, recently sailed for London to visit the Davies. Senator Goff testified at a Senatorial hearing several years ago in Washington that his income from coal, gas and oil holdings alone exceeded $50,000 a year. He was a stockholder in local banks, but disposed of his interest in the National institutions when appointed to the Federal Judgeship.—Sydney Post.

The Man Who "Came Back."

The following announcement is made in a Supplement to the "London Gazette":

"The King has approved that the Military Cross and bar to the Military Cross, which were forfeited by Temporary Second Lieutenant Adam Thompson Stewart, Machine Gun Corps, shall now be restored to him in recognition of distinguished services subsequently rendered in the field while serving as No. 133085 Corporal, 45th Battalion, Royal Fusiliers." Mr. Adam Thompson Stewart, of Springburn-road, Glasgow, went out to France on November 2, 1914, as a Sergeant of a Glasgow Territorial battalion of the 5th Scottish Rifles, and gained the honours named. For some "celebrations" on Armistice Day Lieutenant Stewart was court-martialled, lost his rank, and forfeited his decorations. After this episode he joined the Russian expedition with the rank of corporal scout of the Royal Fusiliers, and his gallantry and coolness courage proved of the utmost value. Before being demobilized Corporal Stewart was thrice recommended for gallantry.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DO YOU READ THEM?

Do you read the introductions to books?

Someone saw me reading an introduction the other day and asked why I bothered. "I never do," she said.

Now I never used to bother myself, and had had much her attitude towards those who did. But the Author converted me.

RUTH CAMERON

How Interested You Would Be!

"If you should meet the author of any of those books you are reading," she said, "and the author should tell you exactly what his purpose was and explain anything he thought would be particularly interesting about the book, wouldn't you be delighted, and wouldn't you listen with all your ears?"

I confessed that I would. "Well, then, why do you skip over the part of the book where he has taken pains to tell you exactly these things?"

I admitted that it didn't seem sensible or courteous thus to turn a deaf ear to what the author (or someone else who knows the book intimately) has taken the trouble to tell you, and have since formed the introduction-reading habit.

The Author has the same feeling about the reading of directions.

About Directions.

"Directions," he says, "are written up under the direction of the people who make the article. They've studied it from A to Z. They know exactly what it can do; they know what you must do to get the full value out of it. They tell you how to take the best care of it so as not to wear it out. They tell you what to do when it gets out of order. They often suggest uses for it that you wouldn't have thought of, but that come in mighty handy."

"And yet at least five people out of ten throw away directions without even reading them, and four more out of the same 10 throw them away at once they've just glanced them over usually and not gotten more than an idea what they are about."

Its a Way Families Have.

He reads carefully every bit of printed matter that comes with anything he buys, from his tooth brush to his motor boat.

Then, having read them, he flies away those he considers of value in a place where he can find them.

"His family sometimes laugh at him, 'but I notice,' he says, 'that when anything goes wrong, they don't hesitate to ask me to look in my file and help them out.'"

"That's a way families have, isn't it?"

Fads and Fashions.

Embroidery plays an important part among the afternoon frocks. Glazed braids and ribbons are used as trimming on tailored suits.

A white kasha costume has lacquer red patent leather trimmings. A long blouse of white crepe sometimes accompanies the foulard.

Glazed satin and white plaid woolen materials are used for wraps. Many of the new blouses have for collars high frills standing around the face.

"The bustle gown or 'robe a pouf' will be a great favorite for evening wear.

A street frock of dark blue satin is trimmed with bands of embroidered serge.

The low girder may tie in front and be fastened with a plaque of enamel. A top-coat of navy gabardine sports bands of bright red and black leather.

An evening cape of scalloped silk net has a huge collar of ostrich feathers.

With the coat suit many women wear choker collars of squirrel, fox or sable.

There is a tendency to combine taffeta and organdie for all sorts of costumes.

A white cotton coat with a yellow silk vest is embroidered in black and yellow silk.

Georgette crepe, batiste and footings are used for the collars and cuffs of gingham.

An organdie frock of ecru is adorned with silk embroidery and little straw roses.

Most modish is the short-sleeved narrow-skirted black satin frock with a low waistline.

A smart afternoon frock of blue-and-white foulard is veiled with pleated dark blue Georgette.

A smart skirt is of pink and white candy-striped woolen with a belt of white worked in worsted.

Some interesting blouses are of unequal length, being longer on the sides than in the front, or longer in front than in the back.

FRANK MARCH

Maroon, who is strong in science, and on whose word we place reliance, informs us that some distant planet (whatever kind of critter man is), is sending signals, almost nightly, attempting patiently, politely, to gain some share of our attention; she has important things to mention. It may be Mars, it may be Venus, which through the reach of space has seen us; it may be Jupiter or Saturn, or planet of a humbler pattern, but some blamed world is wiggling-wagging, and hopes to do some chew-the-ragging. And if at last we make connection with worlds in vertical direction, if distant globes can get together, no doubt they'll talk about the weather. "It looks like rain," I hear Mars calling; "already sundry drops are falling, and from the east the wind is drilling; Old Plover will make a killing." And Jupiter, to our inquiring, will say the corn is badly firing. Already we are daily spelling with shades through twilight spaces reeling, and what they say is all so fruitless, long distance talks seem vain and bootless. We never get a word important; ghosts give us piffle, when they'd ortn't.

This Week's Wisdom.

Duty is what we expect from others.

Man proposes, but woman makes him stick to it.

Flattery is a fault that's easily cured by marriage.

The perfect husband, unlike the poet, is made, not born.

Two women can't hate the same people usually get on well together.

Some women can't suffer in silence. It takes all the pleasure out of it.

Nothing puzzles a woman more than what a man can see in another woman.

Experience is what a wise man gets at the expense of others, and a fool at his own.

It is not because a husband and wife have failed to be honest with one another that love dies; it is because they have failed to keep up the sweet old lies.

Lengthy Wind-up.

A young man was waiting for a young lady at the church door.

"Isn't the sermon nearly done?" he inquired of the vergor.

"No, sir; another hour of it yet. He's only on his 'lastly.'"

"But will it take him an hour to get through his 'lastly'?"

"No, sir," was the vergor's demure reply; "but there's the 'one word more and I am done,' and the 'finally,' and the 'in conclusion' to come yet."

IN THE SPRING.

When the sun gets high in the sky once more And the children romp by the cottage door, When there's something new in the morning breeze

And signs of life on the patient trees, Then I long to turn from the city street And feel God's carpet beneath my feet.

For steel and stone are but man-made things, And harsh is the song that the hammer sings, And there's greed and lust in the clank of steel,

But Nature talks what a man can feel; And he who walks 'neath the open sky Has a world of joy which no coin can buy.

The robins sing for the joy of song, And the brooks know nothing of shame and wrong; The trees have stood to the storms of years

And have kept their courage in spite of tears, And they teach us all though their lips are dumb, To wait and watch for the sun to come.

When the blue gets back in the sky above, And the birds are singing their songs of love, When life returns to each plant and vine,

I want to get out where the world is fine, Away from the smoke and the fret of trade, And find the splendors which God has made.

Who Kissed the Vicar?

People in West Surrey are asking:

"Who kissed the bashful bachelor Vicar of Adlestone?"

The Rev. A. Cuming, the Vicar, writing in the current issue of his parish magazine said: "I have hitherto in life had but little difficulty in resisting the blandishments of the fair sex, but not long since, in the course of my pastoral visitation, I was saluted by an adult female in the early Christian way—that is, with the kiss of peace! A decided attempt was made to administer this sign of Christian friendship a second time, but with great dexterity I eluded my fair persecutor."

NOTE OF THANKS.

The Ever Present Problem.

The High Cost of Living problem grows more and more complex as the days go by, and instead of appearing nearer, the solution recedes further and further still. Numerous plans have been suggested, various schemes have been adopted to cope with the steady increase of the necessities of life, but the H.C.L. refuses to be reduced and contemptuous of public opinion soars grandly toward still higher altitudes unchecked and apparently uncheckable. War days saw nothing whatever in a similar degree to the present. Even when the prospects of an allied victory looked darkest and the most optimistic were in doubt, the affairs of life were not in such a serious condition as they are now. Newfoundland has never experienced a period to equal the present, with supplies low and prices high. The question on every lip is, when is it going to end? But the answer—ah, there's the rub. Who can answer? Neither legislators, nor merchants, nor manufacturers, nor producers have the remotest idea when a better and easier state of living will be ushered in, or when the present high cost of commodities will come down within reach of all. Whose is the responsibility for everyday conditions as they exist, not only in Newfoundland, but all over the world? The world but waits the correct reply to such a query in order to straighten up and restore universal conditions to a normal basis once more.

One thing we can at least be assured of, and that is, to quote the Montreal Daily Star, "The high cost of living was not created by legislation and cannot therefore be remedied by legislative enactments. Shortages of materials due to non-productive living will be made up only by productive living. Nibbling at the problem of high prices by restrictive measures is liable to cause trouble. Reduction of food prices would prove a boomerang to the public, unless accompanied by a corresponding reduction in the prices of articles required by the food producers. NO HALF MEASURE WILL BRING DOWN THE COST OF LIVING. It has been raised by the withdrawal of a great human force, and it must be lowered by the application of a similar force. The trend of sound legislation is toward releasing the energies of the people for the necessary productive tasks. The world's work must be done, and the world must do the work itself." So far this argument is sound. The people of Newfoundland are prepared to devote their time and energies toward the production of such articles as are within the gift of soil and sea. But we are so absolutely dependent upon the outside world for pretty well all that we eat and wear, or the materials for the latter, that were our every energy and minute applied to the task of production, we should still be at the mercy of those countries which supply us with our principal foodstuffs and wearing apparel.

Food prices nor others cannot be lowered, unless a pro rata reduction takes place in the cost of production. The High Cost of Living will be kept up so long as the high cost of production maintains. While labor is high, food and clothing will necessarily be high also. The one cannot come down with a rush while the other remains fixed. Both must drop simultaneously and proportionately. Put how to bring that about is the puzzle. If the withdrawal of a great human force was the cause of raising the standard of cost, it of course follows that the application of a similar human force will secure the remedy. The question then arises, how the application of that human force is to be brought about. Unrest exists everywhere. Not a day passes but news of strikes come from all quarters. The application to labor and production, therefore, cannot arrive through these. Strikes in every case mean decreased production and increased cost of living, for every strike of magnitude, no matter in what country it may occur, affects some other country in its economic life, and thus there is a continuous withdrawal from productiveness of perhaps greater human forces than were taken from their labors by the war. All of which tends still more to complicate the problem and to render its speedy solution a matter of the greatest difficulty. Production will doubtless assist in bringing down rocketing prices, but with strikes becoming the rule rather than the exception, the world's work is not being performed, and hence the constantly increasing burden of the high cost of living, which is being borne chafingly on the shoulders of all who are striving to do their part in the restoration of the economic balance.

Remember the Lusitania

On May 7, 1915, the Cunard steamship, "Lusitania," was torpedoed by a German submarine. The vessel left New York on May 3, carrying 1917 persons, and all went well till she was near the coast of Ireland, when the captain received a wireless message from the Admiralty, telling him that German submarines were about. He doubled the look-outs, but no submarines were seen until at a quarter past two on the 7th the mate called from the bridge, "There is a torpedo," and it was seen by the captain from the lower bridge. Immediately afterwards the torpedo struck the ship in the region of the boiler rooms, and a violent explosion resulted, followed immediately by a second, supposed to be caused by another torpedo, or by the bursting of the main steam pipe. The captain ordered the boats to be lowered, but the ship had taken a list to starboard which hindered the operations. She sank in less than fifteen minutes, and 1153 persons lost their lives either by the explosion or drowning. The submarine gave no warning and was not seen. The survivors were rescued by fishing vessels and brought to Queenstown. The civilized world was horrified at this vile murder of more than a thousand innocent men, women and children, but the Germans gloated over it and struck a large medal to commemorate it. There were more than a hundred Americans lost, many of them eminent men, consequently the crime produced much indignation in the United States, and although that nation did not then enter the war, a large number of the citizens felt that such actions should not go unpunished, and a strong anti-German feeling was aroused, which helped to ultimately bring the United States into the conflict. The Germans are still animated by deadly hatred of England and America, and yet a pacifist press wants to feed and comfort them, and Free Traders are yearning to trade with them again. If anybody wants you to be friends with the Germans, remember the "Lusitania," and say "No!" for a nation that will deliberately murder defenceless women and children as the Huns did during the Great War, is outside the pale of civilization and deserves the most severe punishment. Trade Unions can inflict it by refusing to handle any goods that come from that country.

Mr. George Hawes Ill.

Mr. George Hawes, the gentleman who is representing the Newfoundland fish interests in Europe, has been ordered by his doctors to enter a nursing home for a complete rest. He will remain there for at least 10 days. It was deemed advisable to do this, in order that a complete nervous breakdown may be prevented.

Well Known Citizen Dies Suddenly.

Mr. George A. Davey, Prominent Contractor, passed Away this Morning. The Telegram regrets to chronicle the fact that Mr. George A. Davey, the prominent contracting carpenter and general builder, died suddenly this forenoon of heart-failure. Mr. Davey, who had been confined to his home through illness for some days past, came out this morning and, passing along Water Street, presumably bound for his office in Job's Cove, fell to the sidewalk opposite Lyon's Photographic Studio, a few doors West of the Telegram Building. Mr. Lyon, who happened to be standing near his door, and one or two other spectators ran to his assistance and, finding him unconscious, had him placed in a cab and driven to the surgery of Dr. John Murphy, whence he was taken to his home on Queen's Road, where Dr. Anderson visited him and pronounced death due to heart failure. Mr. Davey was born at St. John's April 2nd 1859, and educated at the Central School. He learned his trade with his father the late Edward Davey and received all his knowledge and success by hard work. In 1884 he became a partner in the firm of E. H. and G. Davey. His wife who predeceased him was Miss Charlotte A. Beale. In his early days Mr. Davey was an ardent cricketer being a member of the Avalon Club. For a number of years he has been Peoples Warden of the Church of England Cathedral Congregation, and was always active in Parish work. He leaves two brothers, John and Fred, to whom the Telegram extends sympathy.

24th May Statutory Holiday.

In view of the decision of the Importers' Association to eliminate the holiday for years held on the 24th of May, it will be interesting to know that this date has been proclaimed in the Empire Act as a Public and Bank holiday, compulsorily observed throughout the whole Empire. If the date falls on a Sunday the day following has to be observed. It is not obligatory on the commercial people to keep the holiday, but in the face of the importance of the day it surely seems unfair and inadvisable to stop this national holiday, known for years as Empire Day. Perhaps the I. A. will reconsider its decision.

Anglicans to Hold Big Meeting.

Completion of Cathedral Tower the Object. The Vestry of the Church of England Cathedral at their last meeting have definitely decided to allow the completion of the Tower and its chime of bells to be proceeded with, provided that those interested are anxious to see the work taken in hands and pushed ahead. On Thursday, May 27th, a big meeting of Churchmen and Churchwomen will take place in the Synod Hall, to give an expression of opinion as to the completion of the Tower and bells. It is hoped that as the Cathedral of St. John the Baptist is more of a Diocesan than a parochial building, that churches of all city parishes will endeavor to be present and lend a hand in saying whether the work will go ahead or be deferred. Thousands of churchfolk all over the Dominion are interested in seeing their Mother Church Building completed, and we have no doubt but many members of other denominations and public-spirited citizens of St. John's generally will be delighted to have a share in lending a hand as their forefathers did in the years that are gone—when men of all denominations pulled the ropes in hauling the stone, or contributed generously as their means permitted. As the past generations have done so much in providing this grand

Value in the "Royal Stores Sense"--is value born of excellence

Notes From Brigus.

On Friday night the 30th ult. a very instructive and interesting lecture on "The Call of the People" was given by the Rev. J. W. Bartlett. An outstanding feature of the event was some excellent lantern slides. The Academy Hall was well filled. Instead of the regular method of an admission fee a collection was taken at the door.

Mr. Michael Byrne arrived by Thursday night's train from Boston where he had been working during the past winter. He was accompanied by his brother Bernard and family, who proceeded to Mrs. Byrne's home-town--Bay Roberts--to spend a holiday.

Mr. H. M. Hearn, of the Heart's Content Cable Staff, who had been in town on a month's leave, returned to work on the 30th ult., having spent an enjoyable holiday.

We learn that Mr. Jas. P. Hearn has gone on a surveying trip to Bonaventure Bay.

On Monday, the 3rd inst., a meeting of the Agricultural Board was held at which the potato situation was freely discussed. We learn the Board is offering canker-proof potatoes to the public at $8.80 per barrel.

The death occurred on the 3rd inst. of Mrs. Maria Breaker, who had attained the ripe old age of 86 years. The funeral took place on Wednesday to the Methodist Cemetery and was largely attended.

The attention of His Worship the Magistrate was directed on Tuesday evening to the hearing of an assault case, in which the complainant and defendant respectively were male and female residents of a nearby settlement. It appears neither of the parties concerned can be said to possess "mens sana in corpore sano," at least this was applicable to the complainant after the happening, for the defendant had shown surprising strength and accuracy in the hurling of stones at her opponent.

Mr. William Gushue, a well known and highly respected resident of Riverhead, passed to the Great Beyond rather suddenly on Tuesday morning. Although he had been in failing health during the past winter, his death at this period was unexpected, as only a week previously he had been well enough to get out of doors. He leaves to mourn their sad loss a wife, two daughters, Mrs. J. King and Beatrice at home, and two sons, one in Canada and Ernest at home, to all of whom we extend our sincere sympathy. His funeral took place this afternoon and was very largely attended, the L.O.A. being present in a body to pay their last respects to a deceased member.

On Wednesday night in the Methodist Academy Hall, a meeting was held for the purpose of addressing arguments in favor of the present Prohibition Act. On the platform were J. P. Thompson, Esq., J.P., Chairman, Revs. Caldwell, Jackson and Higgin, of St. John's, the latter by the kind invitation of the resident clergyman. The chairman opened with a short speech in which he expressed his approval of the present law, in that it greatly reduced the number of boarders at H. M. Penitentiary. The next speaker was the Rev. E. K. H. Caldwell who felt that prohibition was a benefit and a necessity to any country. The chairman now introduced Rev. W. J. R. Higgin, who in an eloquent address told of the evils of the old days of the open saloon. He was of the opinion that any attempt at modification as proposed would have drastic effects on the welfare and well-being of the future generation. Rev. Oliver Jackson next took the platform and in an eloquent and impressive speech called upon his hearers to be up and doing. "It is not the fault of the Act," said he, "that some have plenty and others none, but the fault lies with the people themselves. They should assist in carrying out the law. After the speakers had dealt exhaustively with the matter, opportunity was given members of the audience to express their opinions. This was availed of by two of those present whose remarks--though by no means eloquent--were none the less truthful and convincing. A petition was presented by Mr. H. Chafe protesting against modification, on which a standing vote was taken in which we are told some members who have been well acquainted with the workings and "blessings" of the present system, participated.

Editor Evening Telegram

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your highly esteemed paper to make a few remarks regarding the present times. Well these are times that remind one of olden-times in our grandfathers days. But yet, for all they say, people are wiser and more ingenious. Now in early days they only had to use the Tinder Box to get a smoke and they have to do that now. Go where you will and all you hear is the cracking of the flint and steel.

In the fall of 1919, the majority of the people of Newfoundland voted down the Cashin Government and they supported a new one namely, The Reform Government. Now Mr. Editor, I think its wrongly named. If the R was taken from the word Reform and a D put in its place, it would suit the present Government better, as it is certainly a Deformed Government. It carries us away back in the seventies in our grandfathers time or a shade worse.

Because they did not know what matches were then. But at present when people are so wise I call it absolutely unfair to have to go back to the olden times and use Tinder Boxes. And who is to blame for all this. Why, its the present Deformed Government as I call it. Newfoundland was always away back, but now she is put to her knees for the next term of Government. And Union men, as well as non-union men, are finding the smart of it. Its no trouble now to see a man pull out his Tinder Box and light his pipe. Some class to these times, what? I wonder if Mr. Squires had to light up with a Tinder Box how cheap would he feel. I say Boys let us run her out don't let our country come under such an obligation as this. Then they say a man can live in his own country. Why its a whole lot worse than Confederation, and all through the means of the present Government. So now, Mr. Editor, I hope I haven't taken up too much space in your paper and I beg to remain,

Yours truly,
TINDER BOX USER.
Bonavista Bay, May 1, 1920.

Keep "Empire Day."

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I am fully in accord with all that "Britisher" says in this morning's News, regarding Empire Day, and I deeply regret the action of the Importers' Association in dropping this day from the Holiday list.

Empire Day should be, and I believe it is, as dear to every true Englishman, as St. Patrick's Day is to the Irishmen, or St. Andrew's Day to the Scotchmen.

We would suggest that the L.O.A. Association, as well as the S.O.E. and the G. W. V. A. take this matter up, and see that the day is observed in memory of "Victoria" the beloved.

Yours patriotically,
TRUE BLUE.

How Sydney Views It.

The s.s. Kyle arrived from Port aux Basques Saturday evening with about a hundred passengers. On her return trip she proceeds direct to St. John's where she will go into dry dock for about two weeks for an overhauling. Her place on the route will be taken meanwhile by the S.S. Glen-coe.

There are still conditions amounting to almost a coal famine in the Ancient Colony. The early shutting down of winter prevented a laying in of the usual stocks, hence a great scarcity has prevailed all through the winter. The Record correspondent is informed that coal is now selling in St. John's for twenty dollars a ton, and can only be secured in quarter ton allotments to individual buyers at one purchase. The sealers are beginning to arrive in port, and will carry coal for a number of trips. These with other steamers and sailing vessels becoming available will gradually alleviate the situation which had reached a rather critical stage.—Sydney Record, May 3.

Why He Enjoyed It.

A man came up to a lecturer in an hotel in London, saying with enthusiasm: "Well, sir, I enjoyed your lecture very much last night."

"I didn't see you there."

"Oh, I wasn't there."

"Well, what do you mean by telling me you enjoyed my lecture, and you were not present?"

"Oh, I bought tickets for my girl's father and mother, and they both went."

STRATHCONA BEING REFITTED.—The International Grenfell Association steamer Strathcona, which was on dock in the early part of the week, is now on the Southside, refitting for her trip North, which will take place when Dr. Grenfell arrives from America. The doctor is due about the first of June.

Police Court.

A young man was charged with being drunk and disorderly. He was fined $5 or 7 days imprisonment.

Another young man was charged with the same offence. He was fined $1 or 5 days.

Three young boys were charged with firing a gun. One boy failed to appear in response to the summons. The rifle which they used was a service one, taken from the ruins of the Military Barracks. The police officer who testified in the case stated that "there are dozens of such rifles about Quidi Vidi settlement." The fathers of the boys were ordered to sign bonds.

A good time is assured all who attend the Dance which the Columbus Ladies' Association are holding on Tuesday, May 11th.—may7, 10

Derelect Reported.

The Danish schooner Hamlet which arrived in port to-day reports that on the 31st March while on the passage from Lisbon in lat. 36.16, North, long. 23.33, West, she sighted the wreck of the schooner Monchy. The vessel was covered with shells, water was washing over the deck amidships and the main deck was under water, the after deck and forecastle head only were visible and both masts and all the rigging were gone. The cabin doors were broken away and the cabin full of water. There was no sign of life on board, so the vessel was not boarded, but the Hamlet sailed around the derelect three times. The Monchy was a new vessel of about 100 tons; and was built at Harbor Grace and loaded with fish at Catalina for across. She had been out about 4 days on her maiden voyage when she was abandoned on Jan. 28th, 1920. The crew were picked up by a passing steamer.

Iron Man Needed.

There are at least nine men in the United States who are willing to take a trip to the moon aboard a sky rocket. Prof. Robert H. Goddard, head of the Physics Department at Clark College, Worcester, Mass., has their applications in his pocket. "But the construction of all these men is human, and therefore too fragile to be acceptable," said the Professor. The first man who goes to the moon on a rocket will have to be an iron man. Prof. Goddard is the inventor of the multiple barreled, sixty plus horse power augmented and magnified skyrocket. He has just completed working models on the $5,000 fund granted for the experiment by the Smithsonian Institute. A rocket capable of reaching the moon, Prof. Goddard estimates, would cost around $100,000.

Also what refund of duties paid have been made since the Company started business.

MR. BENNETT.—To ask the Hon. Colonial Secretary to lay on the Table of the House a copy of all correspondence between the Government and F. A. MR. SULLIVAN.—To ask the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs to lay on the table a statement showing the amount of duty paid by a third time. The Standardization of Codfish Bill was read a second time on motion of Minister of Marine and Fisheries. The Minister explained the bill at some length. Sir Michael Cashin supported the principle of the bill and would further discuss it in Committee. The bill is a very important one and the chief clauses are as follows:—

1. There shall be a Commission to be appointed by His Excellency the Governor in Council, which shall be known as the Codfish Standardization Commission.

2. The said Commission shall consist of not less than five or more than eleven persons, of whom the Minister of Marine and Fisheries shall be one, ex officio, and shall be Chairman.

3. It shall be the duty of the said Commission to prepare and draft rules and regulations for the improvement of the manner in which salt codfish (hereinafter called "fish") is prepared for sale and transported, and in particular governing the following matters, that is say:

(1) The manner of catching, splitting, cleaning, salting, drying, pickling and preparing fish for sale and export; and generally, all and singular the operations involved in the preparation of salt codfish, from the catching of the fish to the production of the finished article.

(2) The culling, selecting, assorting, standardizing, branding, and determination of the different types or varieties of fish, with a view to the establishment of grades thereof in the local and foreign markets and in the ensuring so far as possible, of suitability for the several markets.

(3) The storage, packing, inspection, marking and weighing of fish.

(4) The lading, stowage, protection, dunnaging, covering, and all other matters connected with the carriage and conveyance of fish whether within this Colony or from this Colony to other countries, and whether in ships, vehicles, or any other modes of conveyance.

(5) The establishment of standards of size, type, condition, grade and quality of fish, and the means of determining and enforcing the same.

(6) The fixing of differences between the prices of different sizes, types, conditions, grades and qualities in the local markets, and the provision of methods for accurately determining such sizes, types, conditions, grades and qualities.

(7) The fixing of penalties for the breach of any of the rules and regulations to be made as aforesaid.

4. All such rules and regulations shall be laid before His Excellency the Governor in Council for approval, and if and when so approved and published in the Royal Gazette shall have the force and effect of law as if incorporated in this Act.

Hon. Mr. Coaker moved the second reading of the bill entitled "An Act to provide for the better obtaining of information respecting the Cod fishery."

Sir John Crosbie supported the principle of the bill and would further discuss it in Committee. This is also a very important bill, the principal clauses of which are:

1. The Master or owner of every ship, vessel, schooner, craft or boat which shall arrive at any port in Newfoundland from fishing in any of the places following, that is to say, on the Banks, on the Coast of Labrador, in the Straits of Bell Isle, or elsewhere out of Newfoundland, and on the coast of Newfoundland in the district of St. Barbe, shall within 48 hours after arrival report by telegraph from the nearest telegraph station to the Department of Marine and Fisheries at St. John's, stating the quantity in qtls. of fish on board such vessel.

2. As a part of said report the said master or owner shall state whether the number of quintals reported is reckoned as of dry fish, Labrador fish, salt bulk or green fish, or otherwise as the case may be; and shall state whether it is the intention of such master or owner to cure such fish (if the same be not cured) as soft Labrador, dry Labrador, or dry Shore.

3. If any such master or owner shall fail to report as aforesaid or shall willfully report incorrectly, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $50.00 or more than $500.00, to be recovered in a summary manner before any Stipendiary Magistrate; or in default of payment, to imprisonment for not less than ten days or more than three months.

4. In publishing information or statistics of the fisheries, the Minister of Marine and Fisheries shall not be bound to make public the name or catch of any specific ship, vessel, craft or boat.

5. Every licensed exporter of codfish shall report to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries on the fifteenth and the last days of every month, stating the quantity and quality of all fish then held in store by such exporter. The said report shall be verified by affidavit, and the said Minister shall not publish or allow any person whatsoever (except in pursuance of legal process) to have access to any such report; but the sum total of the quantities so reported shall be intimated by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to the President of the Newfoundland Board of Trade for the information and use of the Trade generally.

6. If any such exporter shall fail to report as hereinbefore provided, or shall knowingly make any false or incorrect report, he shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $500.00 or more than $1,000.00, which may be recovered in a summary manner before any Stipendiary Magistrate or in default of payment, to imprisonment for not less than one or more than three months.

Other bills read a second time were "An Act to incorporate the Women's Patriotic Association of Newfoundland" "Survey of Foreign going and Labrador vessels" and "An Amendment of the Act relating to the Marine and Fisheries Department. The House then adjourned until 3 p.m. to-day.

Young-Adams Company's Play Gives Solution.

The Young-Adams Company present to-night and to-morrow night their farewell attraction in St. John's, namely "The Great John Ganton." The piece very clearly demonstrates the various troubles in a big stock yard, between employer and employee, a story with an objective, Mr. H. Wilmot Young will be seen in this bill as "The Great John Ganton," a man of great importance in the business world. This is one of Mr. Young's special roles as he has made a character study of the elder Armour of the well-known Armour & Company.

Miss Marjorie Adams appears as May Keating, the fiancée of Will Ganton, son of the famous king of the stock yards. The piece is exceptionally well staged as particular attention has been given each detail. The remainder of the company will also be seen to advantage. We all fully realize there is a great deal of turmoil and unrest in the world at the present time but to see this drama is a solution of the many problems that are now prevalent.

'RESOLUTE' AND 'VANITE' TO SAIL TEST RACES IN JUNE.

Shamrock IV, the Challenger, Will Have Junior Shamrock for Trial Tests Boat—Her Crew All British and Active as Grasshoppers.

By GEO. R. HUDSON (in Boston Sunday Herald.)

Selecting a Cup Defender.

A battle royal for possession of the America's Cup will be staged in a circle of emerald sea off Sandy Hook during July next between Sir Thomas J. Lipton's challenger, Shamrock IV, and a defender not yet named. The sloop proudly proclaiming the stars and stripes is to be chosen by the cup committee of the New York Yacht Club, following trials on Long Island sound, in June, the contenders being the Resolute, designed and built by Herreshoff in 1914 for a syndicate composed of flag officers of the New York Yacht Club, and the Vanitie, financed by A. S. Cochran, wealthy carpet maker of Yonkers, N. Y., and one-time owner of the racing schooner Westward. The Vanitie's designer is William Gardner, and the builder, the George Lawley & Son Corp., of Neponset. She was christened in 1914 and Eleonora Sears of this city was aboard at the launching.

Particular interest centres on the approaching match because names of Bostonians are closely interwoven in the undertaking. To hark back, it was in 1851 that the cup was first won. Racing round the Isle of Wight the schooner America turned the trick, although the Royal Yacht Squadron of Great Britain had invaded yachts irrespective of nation to participate.

in Boston waters so long that the date of her coming has shrouded in mists of an uncertain past. Gov. B. F. Butler purchased the vessel, which had served as a blockade runner during the civil war, and she saw much service as his private yacht. Her sailing master was Capt. J. H. Reid, a Boston bay pilot whose death occurred recently. When Gov. Butler died the America was used by his son, Paul, till finally placed out of commission at the old Chelsea bridge, where she was moored under a shelter roof in charge of a caretaker till the building of a new bridge structure forced the vessel to another mooring in Fort Point channel, near the South station. After that she was towed to Lawley's with instructions to give the honored relic the best of care in appreciation of what she achieved 69 years ago.

The sportsmen who financed the building of the America included Commodore J. C. Stevens, E. A. Stevens, Hamilton Wilkes, J. Bookman Finlay and G. L. Schuyler.

The Resolute and Her Manager.

Public opinion appears to favor the Resolute as probable choice of the committee on cup defence, although the Vanitie proved herself a fast vessel under most conditions of weather when the two were raced in Long Island Sound in 1914 and the year following. Possibly the genius of Herreshoff is reflected in the public's favorable estimate of the Resolute, for Capt. N. G. Herreshoff is regarded as a wizard; a genius who has created successful cup defenders and never prepared lines of a skeletal boat. Be that as it may, the Resolute will be managed by R. W. Emmons, 24, of Boston. Capt. Emmons began racing in boyhood days on Vineyard Sound and Buzzard's Bay. As a lad he was initiated into the art of handling the sturdy catboats that tied up behind the crumbling stone breakwater at Falmouth, where the Emmonses have a beautiful country place. Late, Capt. Emmons raced industriously in larger boats till, a few years ago, he owned and sailed the big sloop Avenger, with which he won many notable events and achieved a reputation for fearlessness and skill that, no doubt, had much bearing on his selection by the syndicate.

Then there's C. F. Adams, helmsman of the Resolute another Bostonian entrusted with the safeguarding of Harvard's treasure chest, who has been racing since he was old enough to toddle into a boat's stern sheets with the late Billy Gavin as instructor. This transferred in Quincy waters, the sunny fields of the Adams homestead sloping easily to the sparkling island-dotted bay. "Charlie" Adams readily acquired the knack of eating a boat right into the wind's eye. Almost before he knew it Billy Gavin smilingly declared his pupil would have to find a new teacher because the lad had acquired every stray bit of science that Gavin had picked up in a life time.

In his youth the Bostonian helmsman was envied ability to feel a racing boat through her tiller. Some called it instinct; others allowed it must be intuition that enabled him to work a racing vessel to windward for all the gain obtainable and never overlooking the opportunity to climb a little higher without checking way of his careening charge along the downhill road. Nobody ever accused "Charlie" Adams of being heavy-handed with tiller or spotted wheel and, if his vessel was endowed with slippery heels, he could be counted on to add minutes to her speed. In calm, too, this racing boat often proved uncanny and to be closely watched by rivals. When the air was light or streaked soft, as spoke in yachting parlance, they sneaked like ghosts materialized and some of his important victories snatched from what appeared certain defeat, were characterized by onlookers as late-risers of which a record was emblazoned on yachtdom's tablet of that time.

It must be understood, however, that Mr. Adams never suffered defeat, for that would be preposterous. There are too many chances contributing to an inglorious finish even in case of the most astute fellow who ever fisted a tiller or put to sleep the shiver of a mainsail's luff. He lost through error in judgment regarding a shift of wind just as all skippers expect will happen to them, but when he went hunting for air close under the land or seaward, where a faint wrinkle could be discerned—then arose the question of who would get the draft first and with it a lift toward the goal. Winds are fickle and play no favors. They must be made to serve a skipper's needs in this red-blooded sport followed alike by potentates and just plain men, whether in America's cup matches or in some scrub scramble of nondescript vessels with no pretence either to speed or looks.

"Charlie" Adams' Latest Victory.

Last year Mr. Adams raced the class R sloop Gossoon at Marblehead for the trophy offered by the Corinthian Yacht Club—and won it handily together with the class championship. The Gossoon is a little boat compared with the Resolute and could be stowed below that a spirited beauty's deck without much trouble if the Herreshoff sloop had only a hatch big enough to take her. In the 1919 races Mr. Adams carried a boy and girl for crew, and they were all he required, blow high or blow low. A more nimble pair would be hard to find and, in the standing room of a small craft like the Gossoon, professionals likely might fall over each other handling sheets or working light sails and thus aggravate themselves into a state of mind not conducive to the Gossoon's best interests.

This recalls that Mr. Adams had a penchant for double letters in a boat's name—something he does not find in Resolute, I'm sure. Before the Gossoon, which he recently sold to clear decks for highly important business the coming summer, was the Ahmeek, a 31-rater, with which he raced for the Lipton trophy held by the Corinthian Yacht Club. There's no secret in the fact that the Ahmeek did not come up to his expectations. He bought her when there was no time in which to build for himself, and as it were, took a chance. Before that he raced successfully in wonders named, for instance, Harpoon and Crooner; away back, a generation or more, he had the double letters on the transom of big single-stickers and could be relied upon to start in events promising close competition. Mr. Adams has studied currents and atmospheric conditions off about every coastal headland between Bar Harbor and Sandy Hook. He knows the tides and eddies of Newport, of Block Island sound and, farther westward, where the Resolute and Vanitie will battle next June in the momentous finals. John Parkinson, Jr., of Boston, experienced helmsman of his own big sloop, will be an adviser on board the Resolute.

Much Depends on Selecting a Crew.

Everything depends on the successful choice of a crew for a cup defence sloop, there's no mistaking that. The men must be trained to the instant and be possessed of intelligence as well as brute strength. A mob of seafarers such as one finds in the dingy forecastle of a deep water freighter has no business on board a delicate fabric intended to keep in this country a cherished, time-honored memento of an ancient schooner's speed and weatherliness. C. O. Waver Iselin, active in former races for the cup, addressed a crew ordered aft in a body, to the point and briefly when he admonished each individual to execute orders on the run and each do his whole part toward speedy execution of the work in hand. Mr. Iselin managed four cup defenders—Vigilant, Defender, Columbia and Reliance. He spent months getting speed as well as strength and horse sense out of his crews. Superiority of the defender personnel was admitted by Sir Thomas Lipton as a potent reason why the trophy has never been "lifted" by a foreign-owned yacht.

The Resolute's sailing master is Capt. Chris Christensen, mate of the Reliance under Capt. Charles Barr, deceased. That Barr was a driver goes without saying, for most any yachtsman old enough to be mellow with reminiscence will tell you that. This Barr was Scotch by birth, although a naturalized American citizen. As a professional sailing master his specialty was no particular line, being good all round. Jockeying for a start, perhaps, was where he shone to advantage, although his habit of coming into close quarters and taking advantage allowed under the rules no doubt made him enemies. But Barr had his craft under control, knew his crew could be depended on, and thereby played safe. Under such circumstances was Chris Christensen trained, and they say Chris possesses many of the superb racing qualities that made Barr famous.

Automobile Startles Horse Show.

Overland 4 Leaps Eighteen Feet in Air Over Five Feet Barrier.

A "Petrol Horse" proved a striking feature of the annual Stock and Horse Show recently held at Denver, Colorado, U.S.A. An Overland 4 automobile, embellished with a long flowing tail and horse's head of papier mache, and driven by a "Jockey" in red and green silk costume, made an eighteen foot jump in the air, clearing a five foot hurdle. This extraordinary feat, arranged by an enterprising Willys-Overland distributor, demonstrated to an audience of 15,000 that the new Three point suspension Triplex springs, a feature of the new Overland 4, could stand the terrific impact of landing, estimated at 42,000 lbs.

After the four legged animals had been put through their paces before the show crowds, the "Petrol Horse" performed. Locking the steering wheel, the driver started the engine and stood cracking his whip and acting the role of circus ringmaster, as the car ran around him in a circle. Then taking a short start, he ran his car at a runway approach and jumped it over a five foot hurdle, clearing eighteen feet between runways and landing without mishap. More than forty jumps were made in all, during the show week.

The Fish Was Drowned.

The yarn of the frozen fish which came to life when placed in the cooking pot by the Y.A.D., was told by a Naval officer, who promptly capped the tale with the following: "An interesting experiment was tried some little time ago," he said, "with an ordinary herring. The fish was put in a large bowl of salt water, and every day a small quantity of the water was removed, and an equal quantity of fresh water substituted, until eventually the fish lived and thrived in purely fresh water. The owner was so pleased with the success of his experiment that he then tried removing a very small quantity of water daily until the bowl was empty, and found that the herring did excellently entirely without water, and as he was so lively in the empty bowl, he had put him in a cage. Here he lived happily, hopping from perch to perch just like a bird, until one day some sudden noise startled him, and he fell into his water trough and was drowned."

Making Better Cakes. There is nothing better for making cakes than Freeman's Egg Powder. It is an improvement upon eggs rather than a substitute for them; making cakes lighter and more digestible, and never "dry".

A Clear, Light Jelly. The delightful clearness and colour of Freeman's Jellies is the next best thing to their taste. There is absolutely no heavy sediment in a jelly made with Freeman's Jelly Crystals, and the flavours are true to the fruit.

A Comforting Drink. There is no more comforting drink on a cold day than Freeman's Glass Lemon and hot water—as hot as you can drink it. Freeman's Glass Lemon is sweetened sufficiently for the average taste; it is made with real lemons by an entirely new process—a great advance on the old lemon crystal.

If a cold drink is required it is only necessary to add Freeman's Glass Lemon to cold water, it dissolves immediately—no need to wait while the drink cools.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA UNVEILED MEMORIAL TO NURSE CAVELL.

In the presence of great masses of people in London, the Queen-Mother, Queen Alexandra, unveiled a statue erected to the memory of Edith Cavell the British nurse who was shot to death by the Germans in October, 1915.

The statue was draped with the Union Jack and the Belgian flag, presented respectively by Queen Alexandra and the Queen of the Belgians. Amid a profound hush Queen Alexandra, the life long friend of the nursing profession, drew the cord which unveiled the statue and the beautiful marble figure of Edith Cavell was revealed. The inscription "Bruxelles. Dawn, October 12, 1915." is prominently on the statue.

The silence was broken by the soft strains of the nurse's favorite hymn, "Abide with me," played by the band of the Coldstream Guards. Another silent interval, and then the soldiers' tribute to the dead—"The Last Post" and "Reveille."

Replying to the address of thanks, Queen Alexandra said:

"This beautiful statue—the work of our distinguished sculptor Sir George Frampton—will stand for all time as a memorial of one who met a martyr's fate with calm courage and resignation which has rarely been excelled, and we recall the beautiful words which, when death was very near, Miss Cavell wrote to a friend:—

"Nothing matters when one comes to the last hour but a clear conscience before God. I wish you to know that I was neither afraid nor unhappy, but quite ready to give my life for England."

The speaker added, in a voice tinged with emotion, that countless thousands who would pass that spot would think with sorrow of Edith Cavell's cruel death, but with pride of her splendid fortitude, and with affection of her unselfish and womanly character.

"The example of Miss Edith Cavell's life will be always before us, and her name will remain honored and revered throughout the Empire."

The statue, which stands almost within a stone's throw of the memorial to the other great "sister of mercy," the heroine of the terrible days of the Crimea, Florence Nightingale—is of grey granite, and is forty feet high, and weighs 175 tons. On the four panels are the words: Humanity, Sacrifice, Devotion, and Fortitude. On the back the British lion trampling on a serpent, symbolical of Envy, Spite, Malice, and Treachery, and above it are the words: "Faithful Unto Death." The statue, of white marble, in itself the emblem of purity, shows Edith Cavell standing erect in her nurse's uniform.

Who Are the Armenians?

This question has been asked very frequently in recent years, and has often received a very uncertain and somewhat evasive answer. The general impression is that they are a people living, for the most part, somewhere in the Near East, who have become known only because they are the hapless victims of constant persecution and frequent massacre at the hands of their Turkish overlords.

The Armenians are a race of Indo-European stock, related in blood, language and religion to ourselves. While there is a difference of opinion as to their original home, they are found as early as the eight century B.C. in the region west of the Caspian, about the base of Mount Ararat. Here, after many vicissitudes, they finally established an independent state.

This state reached its golden age in the first century B.C. when, under Tigranes the Great, it extended from the Caspian to the Black Sea and from the Caucasus Mountains to Mesopotamia, with a mixed population of twenty-five millions.

In the fourth century, of our era, the Armenians, as a nation, accepted Christianity, following the preaching of St. Gregory the Illuminator, and immediately entered upon a struggle with Zoroastrian Persia. This lasted for many years, resulting finally in their subjection to Persia for two centuries.

In the centuries which followed, Armenia was conquered and reconquered. War was almost continual. Greek, Arab, Seljuk and Turk invaders followed each other, and the land was rent and ravaged. Finally, in the eleventh century, the last vestige of an independent Armenian state vanished with the capture of Ani by Alp Arslan.

Crushed and disheartened, many of the Armenians left their native land forever, finding homes in far-distant countries. One group made its way to Lemberg, where its descendants have maintained themselves until the present day. It is an interesting fact that old Armenian jurisprudence is still found in the civil code of Lemberg.

The most adventurous body, including in their number, a descendant of the last king of old Armenia, went south-west into the rocky fastnesses of the Taurus mountains in Cilicia, and there founded the kingdom of Lesser Armenia, which had a stormy existence until the close of the fourteenth century. This kingdom rendered no little service to the Crusaders as they passed through its territory.

When the Kingdom of Lesser Armenia fell, a few of the liberty-loving Armenians, who could not brook the thought of subservience to a Moslem power, made their way to an almost impregnable position in the Taurus and there founded the City of Zeitun. In this city they maintained themselves, in practical independence, until 1915.

The few centuries of Zeitun's history have witnessed no less than forty wars with the Turks, but the city remained unsubdued until the world war broke out in 1914. One of the first acts of the Turks when they entered this war, was an attack on the free mountain Armenians of Zeitun. But the people of Zeitun lived up to their tradition until the Turks threatened to kill all Armenians in Cilicia, men, women and children, unless they surrendered. On this threat they yielded, and most of them were driven to exile and death. A few, however, took to the mountains, and since the Armistice have returned, and an attempt has been made to rebuild this old Armenian stronghold once more.

Apart from the successful effort of this small section of an ancient people, which is like a flash in the darkness—the lot of the Armenians in the passing centuries of Turkish rule has been one of almost unmitigated woe. Oppression, persecution, massacre are the constant features of their history, and the long tale of suffering reached a culmination in the terrible events of 1915-16.

OVERCONFIDENCE MAY DEFEAT DEMPSEY.

If Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier ever do enter the ring together there is a chance that Jack will find himself in trouble with overconfidence. Both Dempsey and his manager, Jack Kearns, are positive that the French ring idol will be just a set-up. "Carpentier's nothing," is the way Kearns voices his opinion of the Frenchman. "What did he ever do? He beat Joe Beckett. Why, Terry Kellar, Jack's sparring partner stopped Beckett in three rounds."

"Carpentier was a fighter in the days of Papke and Klaus. All those fellows are through now. Here's another thing worth remembering, Jack won't have to hit this fellow on the chin to knock him out. He can hit on the top of the head, the arms, the back. Any place will do."

When Kearns says that the defeat of Beckett amounts to nothing there is no doubt that he is right. The best judges of boxing in England never did have the least confidence in Beckett and predicted his downfall at the hands of the Frenchman. But the fact that Beckett was an easy mark does not mean that Carpentier can't fight. Such as he was, Beckett represented the best that England had to offer and Carpentier certainly polished him off in a workmanlike manner. Dempsey himself could not have done the trick more neatly or in less time.

Has He Improved?

That the Carpentier of pre-war days would not stand an even chance with Dempsey the records seem to indicate, although any man who could stand off Joe Jeanette and beat Gunboat Smith is not to be despised. The main question is whether Carpentier has improved during the four years in which he was forced to remain away from the ring while helping to fight his country's battles.

As a general thing, when a boxer retires for more than a year he never comes back successfully. Willard, Johnson, Jeffries and scores of lesser lights tried it and not one was successful. But all of those men took on weight and became soft and fat. Once an athlete reaches that condition all hope is gone.

Carpentier did not grow fat. He is as lean and hard as any fighter need be. What little weight he has taken on is accounted for by natural growth. At 28 he is naturally bigger and stronger and more fitted to stand hard knocks than he was when an 18 year old boy he fought Papke and Klaus.

Since the war none of Carpentier's opponents has been able to go the limit with him. Only two were worth mentioning—Dick Smith and Joe Beckett. The Smith affair was Carpentier's first bout since the war. Although he eventually scored a knockout over the clumsy third rater, Carpentier's showing was not considered all promising.

Fred Fulton, who saw that fight explains Carpentier's poor showing on the ground that the foxy Frenchman was just playing possum in order to lure Beckett into the ring with him. Strength was lent to the theory by the amazing improvement in the form shown by Carpentier when he got into the ring with the English champion.

Can He Take Punishment?

But neither of those affairs was a real test for Carpentier. Ring followers would like to see him in a bout in which he would have to take some punishment. Carpentier's speed and skill and hard hitting have been demonstrated, but whether his ability to withstand punishment has increased with advancing years is something ring critics want to learn before backing him against Dempsey, for the Frenchman is bound to get hit some time during the fight.

The only thing connected with the proposed fight that Kearns is worrying about is the chance that Carpentier, or rather his manager, might claim a foul and get away with it. Kearns recently was quoted as saying that the first time he meets Carpentier and Descamps he is going to warn them not to try that racket.

Kearns declares that Carpentier won eight or ten fights by claiming a foul when he was being beaten. Of course Kearns exaggerates when he says that.

WILDE'S SKILL ADMITTED BY AMERICAN CRITICS.

New York, April 13.—When Jimmy Wilde, British flyweight champion of the world, made his initial start in the ring in this country the latter part of the last year and was outpointed by Jack Sharkey, at Milwaukee, there were many who saw that contest who strongly intimated that the Briton had been heavily over estimated.

There were plenty of other fans who took issue with the fellows who rated Wilde's false alarm. Although Wilde never had been seen in action here before, the wise followers of boxing took cognizance of the way he stood up to his work despite the fact that he was working a losing fight. British Jimmy beaten to the left hand punch and time after time crowded to the ropes, slipped his head, covered and opened up with his own punches when the chance came.

But although Wilde showed cleverness on defense in that match, he really did not display all the craft which has made him one of the greatest little fighters the game ever has known. He claimed after that bout that he was not right and did not box up to the standard of which he is capable. Of course, this was considered by the majority as the old alibi stuff, but the wise fellows refused to believe that Jimmy hadn't the class and accepted his explanation of his defeat.

Changed Their Tune.

Now, however, that Wilde has fought four battles, winning three, in one of which he scored a knockout, most of the ringsters who doubted Jimmy's ability after the Sharkey mixup have changed their tune and seem convinced that snap judgment didn't do Wilde justice. Wilde's second battle was against the A. E. F. champion, Johnny (Babe) Asher, at St. Louis. Although conceding almost as much weight as was necessary in his clash with Sharkey, the Briton landed Asher a pasting that stamped him the master by an easy margin. Among other things that Wilde showed was the punch, for he dropped Asher four or five times and "Babe" was lucky to escape a knockout.

But it was Wilde's third bout, against easy opposition, that demonstrated just as clearly as was demonstrated in the Asher contest that Wilde is the real class. Having seen him against Sharkey and then against Mike Ertle, there was a change for comparison, and that comparison makes the wee fellow from across the pond look better than he had previously shown. Wilde did not box Ertle the way he boxed Sharkey, and showed against Ertle form and skill that were not in evidence in the Sharkey bout.

Clearly Superior.

Wilde's fourth bout, and more recently, was against Frankie Mason, one of the best little fellows in this country, but the Briton clearly demonstrated his superiority after twelve torrid rounds of milling. With Mason unable to stop the wee atom from Great Britain, there is hardly any one left to take his measure.

It is so secret that Wilde does not feint with his left hand, and his inability to do that was hopped on by several writers as a display of boxing weakness. It was pointed out that lack of feinting kept Jimmy from drawing in his opponent so that he could cross with the right hand wallop. It sure did look that way when he fought Sharkey, and he didn't feint Ertle into leading either, which seems ample evidence that he cannot do it. But one of the things that Wilde showed against Ertle that wasn't seen in his initial start was footwork of a mighty rifty class. Jimmy made the pace against the St. Paul opposition and made it to suit himself. He knew that Ertle possesses a dangerous right hand punch, but he tamed that punch by the way he moved his feet and his head. Had Wilde stepped around that way against Sharkey the result of that contest might have been different, but he didn't do it, with the result which everybody knows.

PAPPIN THE FRENCH LIGHT-WEIGHT.

New York, April 14.—Georges Pappin, the French lightweight champion, whom Georges Deschamps, manager of Georges Carpentier, is certain can beat Leonard, is due to arrive in this country two weeks from Saturday. Before he sails he is signing for three bouts in New Jersey. Early in May he will meet a good lightweight—Deschamps bars no one—and two weeks later he will face his second American opponent. If the Frenchman is successful in these two bouts he will be matched with Benny Leonard for the lightweight championship. There is little known of Pappin in this country except that Deschamps says, and he has left nothing unsaid about the lightweight. If Pappin does not defeat all the lightweights here, his estimate of Carpentier's chances to beat Jack Dempsey will be negotiated at .001 in Russian money.

Great Trading Concern.

Hudson's Bay Company 250 Years Old.

Winnipeg, Man., April 27th, 1920.—While the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Hudson's Bay Company in May will center in Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria, all western Canada will share in the holiday spirit of the occasion. Lethbridge, Macleod, Kamloops, Nelson, Vernon and Yorkton, where the company has departmental stores, will be gaily decorated. The H.B.C. banner will be unfurled from the flag staffs of all the company's 150 fur posts and every trapper, white, Indian and Eskimo, from Arctic Ocean to the Prairies and from Labrador to the Pacific Coast will know the company has arrived at another mile-post in its two centuries and a half of romance and history, and at each post in the great fur country appropriate celebrations will be held. The company was born on May 2, 1670 when Charles II. signed its charter. In the next few years its first fur posts were founded on the shores of Hudson Bay. Most of these landmarks of the past are still standing—Rupert House, Moose Factory, Albany, York Factory and Churchill. For two centuries, it was the sole ruler of western Canada and when in 1821 it was amalgamated with its old rival, the North West Company, its sovereignty embraced three-fourths of the North American continent.

Though the company ceased to be a ruler in 1870 when it surrendered its authority and territories to Canada, its loss of sovereign power proved no loss of vital energy. With its empire gone, it has become a great modern merchant with a chain of departmental stores extending across western Canada. With its old trapping grounds transformed into farms and cities, it has more fur posts to-day than ever before in its history. And in the last few years, it has thrown open all its remaining lands to farm settlers and become one of the great colonizing forces in Canada. The last survivor of the companies chartered by English sovereigns in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries for the colonization of America, it is now the oldest commercial corporation in the world. The history of the company was for two centuries the history of western Canada, and the pageants to be held in the five largest cities of the West to celebrate the company's birthday will commemorate as well the romance of a nation's birth and development.

Magisterial Enquiry.

A magisterial enquiry into the death of Wm. Cullen, a seaman on the schr. Laberge, was held before Mr. J. P. McCarthy, J.P., yesterday afternoon. The evidence of the Captain, mate, bosun and one of the crew was taken. The man Cullen was lost on Feb. 3rd, two days after the schr. left this port for across.

"Eye Strain is Nerve Strain"

"FATIGUE," says Dr. Harrington, "comes on more quickly from eye strain than from any amount of muscular work."

Except in perfect daylight the nerves of the eye are constantly tense, sapping the energy of the whole system.

Much work is done in offices, stores and factories by artificial light, even in the daytime and now there is an abnormal amount of night work.

This straining of the eyes necessarily means an enormous waste of nervous energy. You find yourself feeling tired and losing interest in your work.

Headaches are frequent and digestion is imperfect because there is lacking the nervous energy required to run the digestive machinery.

If your work requires much concentration of the mind, you experience "brain fog" and find yourself losing grip on the task in hand.

Under such conditions Dr. Chase's Nerve Food can do wonders for you if you use it conscientiously for a few weeks.

Its benefits come in the most rational and natural way imaginable for it feeds the starved and exhausted nerves back to health and vigor.

This result is accomplished through the medium of the blood. By actually forming new rich blood, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food restores the vitality of the nervous system, and thereby instils new vigor and energy into the whole human body.

Digestion is improved, headaches disappear, you sleep naturally and know again the joy of good health.

C. E. Orphanage Committee Meeting

His Excellency the Governor presided at the annual meeting of the Church of England Orphanage Committee held yesterday afternoon in Canon Wood Hall. Among others attending were His Lordship Bishop White, and Lady Horwood. The Report of the Committee showed that the institution had a very prosperous year, and great credit is due Mrs. Gosling the Honorary Secretary and the managers for the success that crowned their efforts. The meeting was not as largely attended as it should have been. The children from Exton and Shanon Munn, were present and looked bright and cheerful showing that their life out in the country was very beneficial to them.

Was Insane But Had Secret of Happiness.

One, Charles Lounsbury, died an inmate of the Cook County Asylum for the Insane, at Dunning, Illinois, but before his death he wrote a wonderful document in the form of a will which is worthy of the highest praise from those who are entirely sane. Judge Walter Lloyd Smith, who presides over the third department of the appellate division of the supreme Court, pronounced it the most remarkable document that ever came into his possession. Lounsbury's last will and testament, which is worth cutting out and preserving, reads as follows:

"I, Charles Lounsbury, being of sound and disposing mind and memory, do hereby make and publish this, my last will and testament, in order as justly as may be to distribute my interest in the world among succeeding men.

"That part of my interests which is known in law and recognized in the sheep-bound volumes as my property being inconsiderable and of no account make no disposal of in this, my last will.

"My right to live, being a life estate, is not at my disposal; but these things excepted, all else in the world I now proceed to devise and bequeath.

Item: "I give to the good fathers and mothers, in trust for their children, all good little words of praise and encouragement and all quaint pot names and endearments, and I charge said parents to use them justly but generously as the needs of their children may require.

Item: "I leave to children exclusively, but only for the terms of their childhood, all and every flower of the fields, and the right to play among them freely according to the custom of children, warning them at the same time against thistles and thorns. And I devise to children the banks of the brooks and the golden sands beneath in waters thereof, and the odor of willows that dip therein; and the white clouds that float high over the giant trees. And I leave the children the long, long days in which to be merry in a thousand ways; and the night and the moon; and the train of the Milky Way to wonder at, but subject, nevertheless, to the rights hereinafter given to lovers.

Item: "I devise to boys jointly the use of the idle fields and commons where ball may be played; all pleasant waters where one may swim; all snow-clad hills where one may coast; and the streams and ponds, where one may fish or where, when grim winters come, one may skate; to have and to hold the same for the period of their boyhood. And all meadows, with the clover blossoms and the butterflies thereof; the woods and their appurtenances, the squirrels and birds, the echoes of strange noises and all distant places which may be visited, together with the adventures there found. And I give to said boys each his own place at the fireside at night, with all pictures that may be seen in the burning wood; to enjoy without let or hindrance and without incumbrance or care.

Item: "To lovers, I advise their imaginary world, with whatever they may need as to the stars of the sky, the red roses by the wall, the bloom of the hawthorn, the sweet strains of music, and aught else by which they may desire to figure to each other in lastingness and beauty of their love.

Item: "To young men, jointly, I devise and bequeath all boisterous, inspiring sports and rivalry, and I give to them the disdain of weakness and undaunted confidence in their own strength, though they are rude. I give them the power to make lasting friendships, and of possessing companions; and to them exclusively I give all merry songs and brave choruses to sing with lusty voices.

Item: "And to those who are no longer children of youth or lovers, I leave the memory; and I bequeath to them the volumes of the poems of Burns and there be others—to the end that Shakespeare and other poets—if they may live the old days over again freely and fully, without title or diminution.

Item: "To our loved ones with snowy crowns I bequeath the happiness of old age; the love and gratitude of their children, until they fall asleep."

It's most delicious. What? Pure Gold Chocolate Pudding. apr30,1m
