The Sad Story of the Strasburg (Water-BERLIN, Oct. 13.—Enquiry into the Stras-

Chief McFeggan of Galt testified that on the journey from Harrisburg, where the arrest took place, prisoner admitted his guilt to him and said that he had to do it. He stated that he was a victim of a secret vice, that when he yielded himself to its practice he could not control his own actions, and that certain letters taken from him at Harrisburg would show why he did it. The constable's evidence as to the alleged confession caused quite a sensation in court. It was corroborated by Constable DeKay of Berlin who drove prisoner from Preston to Berlin. A small bundle of clothes, letters and papers was produced. There were several letters to the prisoner under the name of J. Boster from Dr. R. V. Plerce, Main street, Buffalo, N.Y. The prisoner had evidently been writing to him about the secret malady of which he complained. There were also several neatly written letters in French from his mother, an English lady residing in London, Rig., of a tender nature, and giving him religious counsel and advice. A cabinet photograph, said to be of his mother, and another cabinet of the prisoner himself as a little boy, were also produced from the bundle. That of prisoner looked like the picture of a gentleman's son. The letters and papers sent to him while in this country, were directed in his true name, but those sent to him from England while he was in New York state were directed J. Bosler.

score of sick people were nurriearly femioved during the conflagration, and man ladie are reported prostrated to day with the terrible excitement of feeing from their comfortable homes. Following close on the heels of the great strike, which inflicted a moneyed loss on the business men of Calveston of tally $400,000, this calamity is a climax to the wose and sore afflictions of the city. It is estimated by the relief committee that, about 1000 families were rensered homeless, the great majority of whom, especially the poorer ones, lost everything.

At the cotton exchange $17,500 was subscribed to the relief fund. Jay Gould has telegraphed $5000.

The cy council met in special session this evening and voted donation of $15 000 for the sufferers. This makes $31,500 already donated by the citizens of Galveston, which, together with outside donations foots up a total of $88,000. The loss is generally estimated at from two to two and one-half millions. The total amount of insurance thus far ascertained is $980,730,

Hear the Other Side. rew of the Algoma for having saved selves rather than the passengers The other side of the story, as far as Capt. Moore is concerned, has been thus told by one of the p seengers, Mr. William R. McCarter, of Meaford, Ont., to a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune:

sepondent of the Chicago Tribune:

"The captain alone remained cool and steady. He showed what a man he really was just then, and did his duty like a man. When it seemed a certain death to run a life-line along the deck, he seized a rope and strung out the line, telling the excited people to hold on to the rope and not become panic-stricken. High rocks towered up in front of us, and the pittless sea tried to snatch us in its icy clasp on every other side. In this manner we passed the night, until it was fairly daylight, the waves dashing over us every few seconds and bearing some one away from the life-rope. I was standing between the captain and another man when the cabin came crashing down on the captain and pinned him to the deck. He cried out: 'Oh, I'm done for now, but what will become of these poor people!' The mar on the other side received a severe blow or his head and cried out: 'Th crushed, I'm gone!' The next great wave carried him of without the slightest struggle, and he went to we without the slightest struggle, and he went to we have the summer of the results of the summer of the slightest struggle, and he went to we were summer of the slightest struggle, and he went to we were summer of the slightest struggle, and he went to we were summer of the slightest struggle, and he went to we seemed the slightest struggle, and he went to we seemed the slightest struggle, and he went to we seemed the slightest struggle, and he went to we seemed the slightest struggle, and he went to we seemed the slightest struggle, and he went to we seemed the slightest struggle, and he went to we seemed the slightest struggle, and he went to we seemed the slightest struggle.

The E. & C. Gurney Company is well known as the largest stove manufacturing concern in the dominion. They can hold up their end with the biggest companies in the States, too; and it may fairly be said that what the Gurneys don't know about stoves isn't worth the course. At the company's retail establish. and it may fairly be said and it may fairly be said and the company's retail establishment, 91 Yonge street, may be seen a splendid, large assortment of stoves to suit the poor man's purse as well as the rich man's, including all sorts and sizes. Among their baseburners are the round stoves, the "Countess" and the "Athenian;" and among square stoves the "Countess" and the "Spartan." The merits of the Gurney round stoves are known to the public for many years; the square stoves are a novelty, specially designed for the parior, on the principle of "high art and low feed." If you want a parior stove, with even, there is the "Countess," with that attachment, which you can have for $25 cash, and no questions asked, except the necessary one as to when you want it put up. Then there is the "Grand Duchess," the very queen of cooking ranges, with patent revolving grate. Nevertheless, she has been equally successful. The Boston Globe, in criticising her playing, says: "The actress seemed to catch and embody with rerest skill the very thought and purpose of the author. If her infinitably graceful dancing won recall after recall, the compliment was well deserved—for nothing more artistic in its way could have been given. But we fancy that the personation, as a whole, will long be remembered assomething uniquely effective in stage portrayal. Associated with Miss Voke at the evening performances is a commany of actors selected from some of the best knewn theatres in London, who bring to their work, naturally, semething of the English intonation and manner, as well as evident experience."

From the Boston Courier. LET WINTER COME.

Let gloomy winter when it will begin,
And biting Boreas blow his bitter blast.
The plants are safely housed, the coal is in.
The stove is up, the ulster's out at last. SO FAR SO GOOD.

Gay Corydon no longer Phyllis courts, In scented lane or fo incoms wood; He to the pleasant parlor now resorts, And there arriving says, "Sofa so good. THE FAULT IS IN THE GUN, OF COURSE. "Tis now the modern Winkle seeks for game Where piping quail and frisky rabbits run And at each shot in wonder doth exclaim, "What! missed again? What alls the pesky gun?"

THE HOUSEWIFE'S 'SEASON. The rose is withered and the buttercup Has vanished from the meadows sere and brown,
And housewives now preserves are putting Which through the winter months will be put

The rose was red, The violet blue; It seems but yesterday she trod the sand And listened to the music of the band—But yesterday she gambolled in the sea; Now close beside the stove she wants to b Thus time speeds on. How swift the seas fly:

The natty bathing suit is scarcely dry Before the time for wearing furs is nigh.

THE REAL ESTATE MARKET DURING the past six weeks has witnessed a very marked change in the direction of greater activity. During no former period of our city's history has so much property changed hands. Sales are numerous, and many of them involve large sums. Investment property is strong, and so is vacant land, particularly in the northwest part of the city. At a recent auction sale, land on Bloor street, west of St. George street, brought over firty dollars per foot, and was thought to be a decided bargain. Our Real Estate is cheaper than that of any other city of equal size in America. With a glut in the money market, increasing difficulty to find even moderately profitable investments, and the phenomenal prosperity and growth of Toronto, there cannot fail to be in the near future a very decided advance in prices. Our shrewdest men are recognizing these facts, and are preparing themselves for the coming harvest. We believe that money judiciously invested in loss now can be doubled in less than a year. S. H. Janes & Co., 6 king east. REAL ESTATE.
