DEFEAT.

BY BARTON GREY.

He took her hand and looked at her;
No sound did that deep stillness stir;
Even the weary, wandering rain
Had ceased to beat upon the pane;
Only about the perfect mouth
A sign more faint than the faint south
Hovered a moment's space, and then
Died into nothingness again.

The words he spoke were brief and slow—
What could he say, she did not know.
What pulse of that impetuous soul
But owned her calm, serene control?
No need for him to test her heart
With cunning fence or verbal art;
Only to ask and wait her will,
And winning, losing, love her still.

Perhaps she wavered—aye, perhaps
The shadow of the cloud that wraps
The future from our questioning gaze
Let in some glimpse of after days.
Some hint of all she might possess
In that true spirit's tenderness,
If but her weaker life might move
Unto the music of his love.

Perhaps! who knows? he only knew
The large grey eyes were dim with dew;
Saw only on the mouth's sweet bloom
The shadow of reluctant doom;
Felt only one sad, gentle word—
And thus through that deep stillness heard
Once more the weary, wandering rain
Beat dull against the window pane.

Interesting Tale.

AN ADVENTURE IN SPAIN.

By Jove! what a beautiful girl! Look quick, Sidney, before she vanishes, like a beautiful vision, from our mortal gaze.

These were the words, uttered half in jest and half in earnest, which broke from my friend and fellow traveller, Charlie Alston, as wayworn and weary, we rined up our horses, in the rich glow of an autumn sunset, at the door of a low hotel which in Spain does duty for a posada, or inn. We had left Malaga, en route for Grenada, at 11 o'clock on the previous night, and after a forest ride by moonlight, the memory of whose enchanting loveliness no after-dreams of beauty can blot out, we had taken what refreshment, in the way of grapes and light wine, the peasants could supply, and started afresh on what proved to be the hardest day's ride that even I, accustomed as I have been to the saddle from my nursery, ever remember to have taken.

We had been riding for more than an hour with not a sound to break the stillness of the air, save the occasional tinkling of a goatherd's bell, when Charlie's exclamation roused me from the state of stupor into which I had fallen, and I glanced out from under the shadow of my sombrero in the direction indicated by his eye. Before us stood the "posada"—a long wooden building, the roof rising somewhat in the middle and sloping gradually off to either side. At the door lounged a group of villainous looking peasants, with our grey, swarthy host at the head; and escaping by what seemed to be a back entrance, and passing rapidly down a side walk, was as splendid a specimen of womanhood as my eyes had ever lighted upon. She was tall and slight, and her form less fully developed than is common among Spanish girls at her age, but it had the lilianness, and her step the elastic spring, of the young antelope. She wore the picturesque costume of the Andalusian peasant, and as we rode up she turned her head to look at us, thus enabling me to see the delicate oval of the face, the large dark eyes, the scarlet dimpled mouth, and, rarest of all combinations in a southern clime, the wealth of golden hair which floated like a halo of glory round her small, well-set head. Altogether, it was, as Charlie said, almost like a heavenly vision bursting upon our sight, and for a moment I shared his apprehensions that she might vanish as suddenly and mysteriously as she had appeared. Being, however, an old traveller, and of an eminently practical turn of mind, I checked my own curiosity and Charlie's burst of enthusiasm, and requested him in a few sharp words to "keep his eyes and ears wide open to what was passing around us, and to think of something beside a woman if he could."

By this time we had dismounted and entered the inn, where, in our rough travelling garb, with pistols and daggers in our belts, we might easily have been mistaken for the robbers that we were armed against. The building bore the usual appearance of a Spanish posada, consisting of a long dark apartment, one end of which served as a kitchen and dining room for family and guests, and the other being partitioned into rudely made stalls for man and beast under the same roof. It was a dismally rough and comfortless looking place, and smelled so villainously of a mingled compound of garlic, stable, and unwashed humanity, that my friend Charlie started and turned back as we entered the door.

No help for it old fellow, I said, in sympathetic tones; sleeping outside would be dangerous at this season, and, besides, our horses must be cared for. You'll get used to the perfume in a little while.

Perhaps so, replied Charlie, with a shrug of his handsome shoulders, but if ever I travel through Spain again I'll have my olfactory paralyzed before I start.

And have your head made bullet proof at the time, I rejoined, which is rather the more important of the two. Keep wide awake, Charlie, and listen to every word you hear spoken, without appearing to understand, I have been in Spain before, and I don't at all like the look of this place or its occupants.

As I spoke we seated ourselves close to the fire, which was throwing out any quantity of smoke and gas, but, as far as I could see, was capable of warming nothing but itself.

The night was however, closing in damp and chilly, as is common in those latitudes, and both Charlie and myself were glad of the protection that the humble roof afforded.

To add to our complacency, the beautiful vision that had delighted our eyes in the open air passed in and out several times, laying the cloth for supper, and engaged in a variety of sufficiently mundane occupations to convince us that she belonged essentially to this lower sphere. It was difficult to form any opinion as to the relation in which she stood to the wretches who surrounded her, as she scarcely spoke or raised her eyes in reply to remarks that they made her, and took no more notice of their muttered oaths and imprecations than she did of my friend Alston's insinuating efforts to attract her attention. As she was the only female to be seen about the place, however, I concluded that she was well paid for her services, and would only remain while treated with consideration and respect. I also decided in my own mind that she probably belonged to some gypsy tribe, and had gentle blood in her veins—perhaps English or Scotch—which would account for her long fair hair, combined as it was with an Oriental richness of complexion, and eyes that had the darkness and softness of the gazelle.

She seemed to have some unexplained purpose in delaying her womanly arrangements for supper, which called forth more than one impatient "Caramba" from the ruffian who called himself our host. There were three men besides myself in the posada, every one of whom, I was ready to swear, had been guilty of deeds of blood. I watched them as I sat with half-closed eyes beside the fire, and made up my mind that, if ever weary travellers were in danger of their lives, we were that night. Then I racked my brain to recall the last sign of human habitation that I had seen that day, and, after satisfying myself that it was too far off to be of any use to us, I began to calculate our chances of resistance in case of an attack. We were well armed, and three to four, supposing our guide would help us; but a glance into a distant part of the stable department, where he lay sleeping, or at least feigning to sleep, convinced me that no assistance could be counted upon from that quarter.

Well, the situation was not a cheerful one, certainly; but Charlie and I had youth and strength and British pluck, and I hugged up the belief that had been instilled into me from my childhood that those qualities were more than a match for foreign perfidy and cunning.

So, after a few words to Charlie (whose whole soul seemed to be absorbed in the movements of the gypsy girl), cautioning him against any drink that might be offered to us as liable to be drugged, I possessed myself with patience, and turned towards the fire. I supposed I fell into a doze, so weary was I with nearly eighteen hours in the saddle; and when I opened my eyes it was to see the Andalusian standing with me and the table at which the rest of the company were seated, and to hear, "Supper is ready, Senor!" pronounced aloud in Spanish, and "Sleep not an instant under this roof!" from the same lips in fairly good English, but in a low hissing tone, inaudible to all but myself. Between sleeping and waking as I was, I shall never forget how like a heavenly vision she looked, as she stood in that low den, with the light from behind illuminating her golden tresses, and her finger on her scarlet lip enjoining silence. It was but for a second, but I understood the danger and warning as well as if it had been written in letters of fire upon the wall; and, curbing by a mighty effort, my desire to hear more, or even to give a glance of responsive gratitude to the girl, I rose and seated myself at the filthy, uninviting board. There was little to eat beside the usual provision at a Spanish inn, "plio," which I verily believe to have been made after the nursery recipe for the manufacture of naughty boys of "sticks and snails and puppy dogs' tails."

So indecisively revolting was it to our English palates; and as both Charlie and myself were firm in our refusal of the so-called wine which was repeatedly pressed upon us, our host soon rose from the table, and with a movement of his thumb, indicated the ladder which would conduct us to our sleeping room above.

We were to start again an hour before daybreak and Charlie would, I think, have much preferred passing the night in the kitchen, with a chance of getting an occasional glimpse of the fair Andalusian, but, knowing the danger in which we stood, I was quite firm in my determination to see what could be done in the way of fortifying and barricading the apartment appropriated as above. So, to prevent all chances of escape on his part, I placed Charlie before me on our upward march, and after nearly breaking my neck and his own in his frantic efforts to catch a last look at his innamorata, I finally succeeded in getting him to the top of the ladder, and sent him bounding, like a shot out of shell, into the middle of the room.

Then closing the door, and perceiving, as I quietly expected, that it had neither lock nor bolt, I proceeded to scrutinize our position. The room was large and not very low, with the raked rafters above and the roof sloping down on either side; one window directly opposite the door, in front of which stood two low beds, and a very large and heavy piece of furniture, half secretary and half bureau, on the right hand side.

What the deuce has come over you, Sidney? were the first words that Alston uttered after he had recovered from his surprise at being so unceremoniously propelled into the room. Are you going to elope with the Zingara, or to dare all those devils down stairs to single combat? There's the fire of determination in your eye, as we used to say at Balio. What's the matter, old fellow?

Nothing but that we are going to be murdered to-night, and those devils down stairs are preparing at this moment to do it.

Whetting their knives, eh, Sidney? and sharpening their knives to chop us with? Well, you'll make pretty good kindlingwood, old fellow—your bones must be dry enough by this time; they won't find me so useful.

A brandy flask sim-d at his head put an end to further chaffing, and we sat down gravely, on one side of the bed, to speculate upon the meaning of the Zingara's warning. As to forming our plans for the night, after some discussion we decided, as we were both quite worn out with fatigue, to watch by turns an hour at a time each, one waking the other at the expiration of the sixty minutes. As Charlie was younger than myself, and less used to roughing it, I insisted upon giving him the first chance, and looking at my watch as he threw himself on the bed, perceived that it wanted a few minutes to ten o'clock. Previously to this, however, we had, by the exertion of our united strength, succeeded in moving the ponderous bureau in front of the door, where, by entirely blocking up the entrance, it seemed to me to form an effectual barricade in that quarter. A very few seconds sufficed to throw Charlie into an amiable slumber, and then silence the most profound settled down over the house.

For the first fifteen minutes I lay wide awake, watching Charlie as he looked carefully to the priming of his pistols, and placed them fully cocked by his side. Then my eyes closed, and for half an hour I slept. A touch on my arm awoke me, and at a gesture from Charlie, who was still sitting where I had last seen him on the side of the bed, I checked the exclamation that was rising to my lips, and turned my eyes upon the antique secretary, which formed our only fortress and defence, against our enemies.

Look sharp, said my friend, in a breathless whisper, and you will see it more.

At first I thought it was an hallucination of Charlie's always vivid imagination, but a steadier gaze convinced me that he was right. The moon was now well down towards the hills, and its almost horizontal beams fell straight across the room. Yes, there could be no doubt of it; the huge thing was moving towards us—almost imperceptibly—without the slightest noise, but steadily and surely it was advancing into the room. I glanced towards the top and could distinctly see that, whereas we had placed it with its back close against the door, so that not a sheet of paper could have been introduced between, there was now an open space there of more than an inch in width. I looked at Charlie, and his honest blue eyes returned the gaze; both felt that an hour of peril was at hand; and as we grasped our pistols, and stood side by side ready for the first shot, I think a prayer for mercy and forgiveness went up from both our hearts.

Our movements up to this point had been as stealthily as those of our assailants, and there was probably very little doubt in their minds that we were wrapped in the deep and motionless slumber which excessive fatigue engenders. On the contrary, with eyes almost starting from our heads, we were watching the regular advance of the huge secretary, and preparing for an attack at any moment, when a low note, which might have been uttered by a bird or insect, struck the ear of both at the same time.

Motioning to Charlie not to relax his vigilance, I turned towards the window, and glancing out, perceived a ladder resting against the sill, the other end of which was firmly held by the hand of the gypsy girl below. Without an instant's delay I snatched his pistol from Charlie's hand, and motioned him to descend. He hesitated a moment, as loath to leave me alone, but I was so remptory in my entreaty to go instantly, and there would be time for both, that he clutched the ladder with one hand, swung himself lightly from the window, and disappeared, just as the body of a man, crawling on his hands and knees, became visible from behind the shelter of the bureau.

As soon as the villain saw that we were up and ready for him, he sprang to his feet and uttered a hoarse cry for help. At the same moment I pointed my pistol at his head and fired; and in the confusion and obscurity that ensued from the rush of others into the room, and from the smoke of several pistols discharged simultaneously, I seized the end of the ladder and was on terra firma and flying down the narrow ravine between Charlie and the Zingara, before the inmates of the posada were aware of my escape.

The girl was as swift footed as a deer, and sped on rapidly before us, until we plunged into what seemed to me a primeval forest, and in whose friendly shades we knew that we were safe.

Then the girl opened her lips and told us that she had heard of the plot to murder the two young English travellers, three days before; that our guide was one of the gang of ruffians, and was pledged to bring us to that posada, instead of to the one a few leagues further on, where, respectable travellers always stopped, and to which she was guiding us now. The placing the piece of furniture as a barricade against the door had been anticipated and provided for by her long and the pan-t of the door, which had been removed so noiselessly that even Charlie, wide awake as he was at the time, had heard not it; and then, when the secretary had been pushed sufficiently forward, the five ruffians hoped to crawl in on their hands and knees and murder us in our sleep.

And I could not come sooner to your rescue, Senora, continued she, because I was suspected and so closely watched; but the instant I saw them all at the top of the ladder which led to your room, I rushed round to the window to give you the chance of escape. And you are safe, the Virgin Mary and all the blessed saints be praised! Marichita has done one good action more; and she raised her large eyes to heaven with a glance more mournfully pensive than that of Guido's Magdalen.

We had been walking now for nearly two hours, and the purple light of morning began to tinge the tops of the distant hills. Then the heavens were suffused with a rich crimson hue which shrouded up in brilliant rays to the very zenith and spread in fire and intensity as it touched the horizon.

We part here, Senora, said Marichita, as she stood in the pomp and glory of the sunrise, her delicate features standing out in clear relief against the eastern sky, and the golden masses of hair shining and shimmering in the sun's first rays. You'll be the inn where you will find fresh horses and a more trustworthy guide. May the Virgin and all the saints protect you!

Stay, Marichita, cried Charlie, springing forward and seizing her by the hand; you shall not go back into that den of thieves. Go with us to Granada. Let us, at least, leave you in safety there; and, if the devotion of my life will prove my gratitude for this night's service, Marichita, I offer it to you now.

He was going to lay his hand and all his worldly possessions at her feet; but she drew herself up and waved him gently back. Senor, it can not be, she said. Marichita thanks you for your noble offer, but she would be out of place in your far off English home. One little souvenir is all she asks, and then, placing her hands upon Charlie's shoulders, she motioned him to kneel before her, and, taking a small dagger from her girdle, she severed one of the short fair curls that lay so thick upon his head. Thrusting it hastily into her bosom, she turned, and with an Adios, Senora, disappeared in the mazes of the forest.

We never saw her again; but we heard at Granada that Marichita, the gypsy of Malaga, as she was called, was well known for her deeds of love and mercy in all the country round. Of her origin or early life we learn nothing, and the Spaniards shrugged their shoulders when we asked where and when we could hope to see her again. She was of Zingara blood, they said, though she was seldom with her tribe, and no one knew where she lived, only occasionally she was heard of in conjunction with some brave and kindly action.

It took my friend Charlie a long time to recover his nerve and spirit after this little adventure, and I am inclined to think the wound made by the fair Andalusian was deeper than seemed at the time possible to my more phlegmatic nature. At any rate he has never married, and when I ask him why he means to close a mistress for his ancestral halls, his answer is:

When I can find another Marichita, amigo, mio; not before.—English Paper.

THE PURCHASE OF THE ENGLISH RAILWAYS BY THE STATE.—A movement has been set on foot, under the auspices of Mr. Bass, member of Parliament for Derby, to secure the purchase of the railways by the State. With this object in view, a requisition has been signed by members of Parliament and others asking the Lord Mayor to convene a public meeting in the City of London to consider the subject.

THE LARGEST BRIDGE IN THE WORLD.—The London "Builder" gives the following dimensions of a bridge to be constructed over the Firth of Forth:—The structure will be by far the largest bridge in the world. It will be 150 feet in height, and will contain nearly 100,000 tons. The greatest span in the centre will be 1,500 feet wide, or nearly a third of a mile in extent, dimensions which are without parallel for any similar piece of architectural construction; and the smaller openings or spans will be 150 feet in width, being considerably beyond the average dimensions of the largest spans in ordinary bridges. It will cost at least $10,000,000.

LONGEVITY IN ENGLAND.—The mortality returns for the year 1871, which have just been completed, record the death of 718 persons registered as 95 years old and upwards when they died. Sixty-nine of these were registered at the following ages, viz: 27 at 100, 17 at 101, 10 at 102, five at 103, three at 104, two at 105, two at 106, one at 107, one man 108, and one woman 109. Of these reputed centenarians 25 were males and 44 females. The return shows that from 1861 to 1871 inclusive the registered deaths at 100 years of age and upwards have amounted to 836—namely, 231 males and 605 females—so that, on an average, 21 men and 57 women go to their graves every year with the renown of centenarianism attaching to their memories. "It is worthy of note," says the Registrar-General, "that the experience of life assurance societies in England supplies only one example of an insured life completing its hundredth year." The man and woman who had attained the reputed ages of 108 and 109, respectively, resided—the former at Ledbury, and the latter at Chester.

A MIRACLE.—The "Univers" says that the extraordinary favour accorded to a young girl at Blois, who was a deaf-mute from her birth, but was made whole at Lourdes, has been the subject of an episcopal inquiry. A commission was appointed to investigate the miracle on the following heads: The past and the present state of the child, and the course of cure; whether means or circumstances pure y natural might have brought about the result; the conditions necessary to make the cure a miracle, whether, in the present case, the result should be considered as a miracle proper or as one of those surprising favours which the Church is not accustomed to regard as miracles, and which it ranges among the extraordinary blessings of heaven. After long and minute investigation on oath, the commission has given in its opinion that the cure is really a miracle. The Bishop, considering all its facts, has declared that it must be so regarded.

They are building, in Philadelphia, an immense storage reservoir, covering 404 acres, 12 feet deep. The basin will contain 750,000,000 gallons, sufficient to supply the city for twenty-three days. It is said to be the largest reservoir in the world, not excepting that of Berlin, Prussia, and one third larger than the storage reservoir of New York. Three thousand laborers are now at work on the excavation, at weekly salaries amounting to $300,000. The whole work is to cost $4,000,000, and is to be completed in time for the nation's centennial in 1876—to be a part of the great show of that year.

A Louisiana man put a two-ounce can of nitro glycerine inside a chicken, ten or eleven in all, and set it off, and the chicken doesn't trouble that bayou any more.

The New Castle Journal says: "It don't look very proper to see well dressed young men each carrying a pint bottle of whiskey to church on Sunday evening, that is to frequently done, and that too in New Castle."

Lord Gordon is said to be the illegitimate son of Rev. Dr. Hossy, rector of Hayes, in the county of Kent, England. His blue blood is principally in his eye.

Chicago travellers have got a trembler now that holds only a pint, but no girls until the contract is made for a pint.

Telegraphic News.

MONCTON, N. B., Sept. 21.
Moncton tannery was totally destroyed by fire to-night.
The fire broke out at seven o'clock and in fifteen minutes spread to all parts of the building.
It is supposed that the fire originated near the furnace, but the cause is at present unknown.
There had been no fire in the building since Saturday night.
The loss is estimated at about eighty thousand dollars, which is partially insured.
There was no wind at the time of the fire or it would have proved disastrous to the town.

New York, Sept. 21.
The toll taken in closing the Stock Exchange, yesterday, put an end to the panic. Brokers were compelled to stop and cool off before selling further, and after all there is little to be regretted, except the failure of two great houses, Jay Cooke & Co., and Fisk & Hatch, which failures are directly owing to large advances made by them to railroads, by the former to the Chesapeake and Ohio.

The other firms who have failed are simply stock gamblers, who involve in their fall none but their fellows.
Business is not interrupted or interfered with, and merchants are not in the least affected.

The developments yesterday show an awful condition of affairs in the Union Trust Company; not only was Carleton defaulting to the amount of $600,000, but this Trust Company had loaned the Lake Shore $350,000 which the Railroad Company refused to pay, and other loans to the amount of $900,000 are valueless!

Every one looks for the morrow with the greatest anxiety to see what will be the effects on the banks.

Robinson and Saydam say that their liabilities are not more than fifty thousand dollars, and they expect to resume soon.
Commodore Vanderbilt, in an interview last night, said there was no reason why Richard Schell should have failed. Referring to the general panic he said that the trouble is that the people undertake to do four times as much business as they can legitimately perform. They soon get short and have to bolster themselves up by rubbing Peter to pay Paul.

Secretary Richardson stated in Washington at an interview last evening that so far from Government losing anything by Jay Cooke's suspension the Department owes them at least one hundred thousand dollars in syndicate bonds, and the amount may reach two hundred and fifty thousand.

Ottawa, Sept. 22.
Parliament is summoned to meet on Thursday, 3rd of October.

Before the Commission, the Premier's evidence was read over and signed.

The New York panic does not affect the lumbermen here.
A special despatch to the "Citizen" from London, says that tenders for £2,000,000 at five per cent. Intercolonial Loan was opened to day. The loan was most favorably received, and upwards of £4,000,000 sterling bid, averaging four and a half per cent. premium on the bonds.

London, Sept. 21.
Despatches from New York, Hamburg, Bremen and Vienna say that no failures have occurred in those cities on account of the New York panic, but that anxiety exists in financial circles.

Donald Dalrymple, M. P. for Bath is dead. Operation of the Coercion Act has been suspended in the counties of Sligo, Roscommon and Tipperary.

New York, Sept. 22.
Yesterday a conference was held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel between the representatives of capitalists of New York and President Grant and Secretary Richardson. The capitalists asked for the issue of the legal tender reserve, which was refused. It is decided to pay an unlimited amount of five twenties at par instead.

The gold excitement is quite abated in Philadelphia and elsewhere.
The panic is little felt, though one suspension is reported at St. Louis, one at Chicago and one at Burlington, Iowa.

A lumber yard and twenty four dwellings were burned at Burlington, Iowa, Saturday—loss $200,000.

WHAT MIGHT BE.—The public should consider the possibilities of which certainists have long been made by a special class of politicians. Let us say that upon some one of the charges against the Government Ministers may be turned out. The country is bound to reflect who shall come in. Now, what have we got to replace the present Ministers? A couple of renegade Conservatives, one from Ontario and one from Quebec. Finance and Public Works might thereby be provided for. For the rest we have the condonors of letter thieves and their sympathizers with three or four annexationists.

Do the people of Canada desire to see the Government of the country passed into the hands of those who have Mr. G. W. McMullen as an ally? Is it likely that our British connection would be better supported by Louis St. Laurent than by Sir John A. Macdonald? We put these matters fairly and squarely before the public, not because we believe there is any prospect of a change of Government, but because we know that certain persons desire it, and we simply wish to tell them what they would achieve by the operation. Surely there is no one so blind as not to see that the advent to power of the Brown Dorion party—covered as it is with the infamy of letter stealing and the McMullen scandal—would lead to the ruin of the country's credit in the English market. [—Ottawa Times.]

THE LAW ENFORCED.—Constable Powers yesterday afternoon called at the office of T. W. Anglin, M. P. editor of the "Freeman," and levied on twelve reams of printing paper, and carried it to the Police Station. It was placed in safe keeping. This paper was taken on an execution to pay Mr. Anglin's taxes for the year 1872.

Constable Hancock, yesterday afternoon, seized a carriage belonging to Dr. Travers, for taxes. The carriage is now in C. Robertson's stables, and will be sold on Tuesday if the tax is not paid. [—Tribune.]

The Standard.

SAINT ANDREWS, SEP. 24, 1873.

IMPORTANT INTELLIGENCE.—Telegraphic advices from London, received at Ottawa, state that the Hon. Mr. Tilley has successfully introduced Two Million pounds, five per cent. Intercolonial loan in the London money market, and that upwards of 4,000 million pounds sterling were bid; the average premium on the bonds was four and a half per cent. This is truly gratifying intelligence, showing that Dominion securities are at a premium, and that Mr. Tilley has been very successful.

From the same source, we learn, that the Dominion Parliament is summoned to meet on the 3rd of October.

THE HUNTINGTON CHARGES.—The Royal Commission has been sitting nearly three weeks. Since our last issue, several witnesses have been examined, among them the Hon. Messrs. Mitchell and Campbell, Sir John A. Macdonald, Sanford Fleming, Esq., and others. The evidence up to the present has been a refutation of the infamous charges preferred against the Government, and a triumphant vindication of their fair and honest dealing with the public. It has been proved on oath, that G. W. McMullen received from the Opposition "$20,000 for the Correspondence." It is no wonder then that McMullen refused to appear before the Royal Commission, and assist in bringing out the facts of the case. It is admitted and indeed never was denied, that the friends of the Government expended money in the election, but it was not surprising, when it became known that immense sums were expended by the Grits in order to defeat the Government candidates. One of the grand points established, is, that not one dollar of the public money was used in aid of the Cabinet's supporters. In fact money is expended in all parts of the world at elections, and why not in Canada.

THE FINANCIAL CRASH IN NEW YORK, recorded in telegrams in another column, was principally owing to the suspension of Jay Cooke & Co., reputed to be the largest money and stock company in the United States; other large houses are brought down, and a general feeling of uneasiness in business circles, is felt. Stocks of all kinds have been so much affected, that they have gone down and Bankers are in a very precarious position. It is however, believed that the crash was brought about by doing too much business, and that Jay Cooke & Co., will be able to resume in a few days. Still the panic has made known some very unpleasant facts with reference to the mode of doing business.

The Regatta.

which took place on the Kennebecasis, St. John, last Thursday, has been so fully noticed by the Press, that we need only state that it afforded us much satisfaction to learn that the

and that FELTON won the single scull race. The Carleton crew won the lapstreak race. The single scull wherry race for the Governor General's prize and championship of New Brunswick, was won easily by young Brayley, who is now considered the champion of New Brunswick. The prizes have all been paid by the Secretary to the Regatta, and St. John bears the proud palm of having the best four oared crew in the world.

The Paris crew, and Fulton's victory, were celebrated here by flags flying and a bonfire on the Barrack Hill during the evening, and other rejoicings.

The Brown-Biglin race which was to have taken place at Halifax on Tuesday, was postponed until to-day.

Among the passengers which arrived by the Mail Steamer "Nestorian" from England, were several St. John merchants, and Mr. E. STINSON, lawyer for Messrs. Odell & Turner, of St. Andrews, who arrived here on Monday last, having purchased an extensive assortment of Fall and Winter Goods, of the most fashionable styles and patterns, direct from the manufacturers, which are daily expected.

NEW BRUNSWICK SCENERY.—Persons visiting St. John, N. B., would be amply repaid by visiting Climo's American Gallery of Art, 60 Germain St., where can be seen some of the finest stereoscopic specimens of New Brunswick Scenery, and which are sold at a very low figure. Strangers are particularly requested to inspect the art rooms. se2

The "Yarmouth Herald" classes the "St. Stephen Journal" among the Government journals, dissatisfied with the Royal Commission. This is the first we knew of our St. Stephen contemporary being a Government supporter. The "Journal" claims to belong to no party, but wields a two-bladed pen.

The Hon. Dr. Tupper arrived here from Ottawa on Saturday last.

IMPROVEMENTS.—THE NEW MARINE HOSPITAL is boarded in, and the work is being rapidly carried forward by a large staff of carpenters, masons and others. A tower has been erected on the flat roof, which adds materially to the architectural appearance of the building, which will be an ornament to the town. The tower we learn is for the signal service, and will be used as an observatory; it commands a view of the surrounding country for several miles, and may be seen from any point. The building when finished will be a credit to the Port, and to its architect and builder, Mr. Angus Simson.

The large cottage recently erected for Mr. John Watson, on the corner of Edward & Parr streets, is now finished on the outside, and is a decided improvement to the locality. When completed, it will be one of the handsomest residences in the neighborhood, and from the thorough manner in which it has been built, from a convenient and warm residence.

The large School Building has been completed for some time, and will be opened as soon as the stoves are put up.

A GOOD OPENING for a Tin and Sheet Iron worker exists in St. Andrews. A steady, competent workman, will find constant and remunerative employment, and such an one is much required.

RAILROAD DIRECTORS.—How is it that no sound was heard nor a newspaper note of the meeting which was held at St. Stephen on Friday the 5th inst., for the election of President and Directors of the N. B. & C. Railway?—Why is that the "St. Croix Courier," that important sheet did not furnish its readers with the local information? Why leave it to a correspondent of the STANDARD to furnish the intelligence of a foreigner being elected President, and change in the Directory. Why such silence upon a matter in which the people of Charlotte County are so deeply interested? We have no desire to trench upon the privileges of the "Courier," and give St. Stephen local items, before they appear in that paper; but when a chartered company owning a Railway which received such large grants of land and other bonuses from the Government, elects its officers, we know of no reason why it should be kept secret. The public have a right to the information which we even hinted to the "Courier" a fortnight since. Our correspondent furnished us with the list of officers, viz:—
F. A. Pike, President.
J. C. Madigan, F. H. To-M, Jas. Murchie, H. Osburn, B. R. Stevenson and Z. Chipman, Directors.

The American Beef Trade with England.

Here is news which will surprise our victuallers and others in this country—live beef is being conveyed across the ocean from New York to Glasgow. This trade has originated with the well known Anchor Line of Steamships. If arose from orders given to the Captains to purchase their beef in America. They accordingly bought three or four head for their own use each trip. The attention of Mr. Bell, an extensive cattle dealer of Glasgow, was directed to this circumstance, and three months ago he contracted with the proprietors of the Anchor Line to bring him twenty four head of cattle in each of their thirty five vessels. The cost for transportation is fourteen pounds sterling apiece for freight, insurance and food, in addition to which he sends a cattle steward with fifteen pounds on each head, and can, at the same time, sell better and more cheaply than those who have to depend on English cattle alone. The Anchor Company is now building four steamers expressly for this trade. The cattle lose weight on the voyage; but speedily recover on English grass.

PETRIFYING HUMAN CORPSES.—Among the many triumphs of science and art exhibited at the Vienna Exhibition is an invention of Dr. Marini for petrifying human corpses, which seems to have proved very successful. There was shown by the inventor a large round platoon of hard and polished material, the top slab of which was composed of human remains, all petrified together in a solid block. The surface of the block had been planed and polished so as to look exactly like marble. By merely seeing this strange product of modern science it was impossible to imagine for what it was composed. It was mistaken for an ordinary slab of marble.

GRAND CATHOLIC PROCESSION.—The Montreal Herald says:—According to directions received from the Pope, the Bishop of Montreal ordered on Sunday last special prayers and procession to intercede with God for the deliverance of the Roman Catholic Church from her present embarrassments. The procession started from Notre Dame street. An immense number took part in it, and the street was crowded with on-lookers. Many of the processionists carried banners and symbols. Bishop Rappe, of Cleveland, accompanied by the Rev. Mr. Larue and Trole being present, carrying emblems of office. The route was decorated with many flags thrown across the street and on private buildings, as well as "La Minerve" office. There were three bands, the Montreal College, Christian brothers, and the City band. Arrived at Bonsecours' Church an anthem was sung after which they proceeded back to Notre Dame. Both of the churches had a great many flags flying in honor of the occasion.

PHOTOGRAPHS.—All who would like to have good pictures, besides having them finished in all the modern and beautiful styles, we would recommend to call at Climo's American Gallery, 60 Germain St., St. John, where they can be suited in any style desired, as his work is unexceptionable. se2

HER MAJESTY'S PRESENT.—A few days ago, the interesting god-child of the Queen of the British Empire, the Lady Victoria Alexandrina Blackwood, daughter of their Excellencies the Governor General and the Countess of Dufferin, was the recipient of a very beautiful locket, with her name engraved; the centre contains a very magnificent medallion portrait of Her Majesty in solid gold, which is surrounded with diamonds, the entire circle is artistically arranged with pink coral, the whole forming a rare work of art, pleasing to the eye, and no doubt highly gratifying to the noble family whose daughter has been thus honored by our Sovereign Lady the Queen.

FIRE.—Saturday last Mr. McKoon, of the Firm of McKoon and Pettit, merchant, tailors, Water Street, had occasion to leave his store for a little and before doing so told his shop-boy to clean and fill the lamps, and to take care and spill no oil on the floor. The boy spilled a little, and to get rid of it as speedily as possible he struck a match and set fire to it. It burst forth in a blaze in a moment, and the simple little fellow with the intention of extinguishing it threw on it a copy of the "St. Croix Courier," but this as usual played mischief, and added fuel to the flames. Failing to subdue the fire he finally gave the alarm to Mr. Pettit and others in the back shop. By their united efforts the door-opening element was subdued, but not before the goods in the shop were badly damaged and in addition to valuable papers a loss sustained of not less than $500. Mr. McKoon had just returned from St. John where he had ordered a large stock of New Fall Goods; but fortunately they had not arrived else the loss to the firm would have been much more serious. The Steam Fire Engine arrived very promptly, but luckily its services were not required. The goods were partially insured [—St. Stephen Journal.]

SETTLED AT LAST.—There can no longer be any doubt that Judge Fisher will succeed to the Governorship of New Brunswick, as it is understood that the appointment has been recommended by A. W. Smith, Esq., editor of the Standard [—St. Croix Courier.]

Sour Grapes!

RAILWAY DAMAGES.—Generally it is best for railway companies to accept the first damages awarded by a jury, even though they can be excessive. This is illustrated by the case of Ford v. The Fredericton Railway, which has been in litigation for the last three years. In 1870 the boiler of an engine exploded, severely injuring Ford, the engineer. He brought suit against the Company and recovered $4,000. This verdict was set aside as excessive by the Court. When the case was tried again, the jury gave the plaintiff $5,375. This was, in its turn, set aside as excessive. Upon the third trial the jury gave $6,833, and the Court refused to set these damages aside. Then the case went up to the Supreme Court upon exceptions. These have now been overruled, and Mr. Ford will receive the last named sum and costs. It is hard to see how three different juries could arrive at three different results; but perhaps the increase in damages was intended as a warning to railway companies to let well enough alone.

—Senator Morton is reported as stating that he has in his possession a proposition from eminent capitalists in Holland to build a four track railroad from the Atlantic coast to some point in the West, perhaps Indianapolis or Chicago, the whole to be accomplished by private capital and without asking for a dollar of State, national or individual aid, and he vouches for the entire responsibility of the parties.

—Mr. Potter, the President of the Grand Trunk Railroad, is on his way to this country, and will probably be in Portland some time this week. The improvements and rebuilding of the Grand Trunk a short property in Portland will then be decided on.

MARRIED.

Why the Valve Jar is Superior to all Others for Preserving Fruit.

1. Because it is the only one in which the contents can be securely fastened, and cooked "while thus fastened, without risk of an explosion.
2. It is the only one that is automatically sealed, therefore, the only Self-Sealing Jar in the market.
3. It is so simple that no skill is required to use it successfully.
4. It is securely fastened when placed in the kettle, and being immersed, the fragrance of the contents is confined in the Jar, a more perfect vacuum produced and the handling of the hot jars entirely avoided.

5. It is well known that fruit Jars which are closed with tight fastenings burst by fermentation, and the effect upon the food and surrounding well understood by many housekeepers.
The Cover of the Valve Jar being a perfect safety valve makes an explosion impossible, and entirely obviates every difficulty that exists in other fastenings.
