While he works he travels he feasts, while he travels he feasts, while he feasts he grumbles, and one cannot easily say which he enjoys most. But the Englishman does enjoy himself, even when face to face with problems that are worthy of the wisest hearts and been thrust itself upon me mest forcibly, and sometimes the answer seems doubtful. I even heard the opinion confidently and bravest hearts. The smart saying that the Englishman takes even lake pleasure sadly, may not be fullibel, but he certainly has a way, semetimes, of taking a deal of solid enjoyment out of good solid work. MY FIRST WEEK SPENT IN ENGLAND was a rare experience in simultane-one leasure and packed in a way to command sale in the English market itself upon me the feasts he grumbles, and one cannot easily say which he erioave heards the probability, or, rather, certainty, that from new on times the answer seems doubtful. I even heard the opinion confidently approached in a way to command sale in the English market!

Third.—Bearing upon this question is the probability, or, rather, certainty, that from new on times the answer seems doubtful. I even heard the opinion confidently and been made and packed in a way to command sale in the English market!

Third.—Bearing upon this question is the probability, or, rather, certainty, that from new on times the probability, or, rather, the strip in the English market is the probability, or, rather, certainty, that from new on likely that we shall again be able to send butter to the English market be opinion confidently and the work. Multiplied production and stiff competition are slowly but surely bring ing down prices of all farm produce, we may as well sell butter as any thing else at a low price. Indeed, when we consider the general economic advantages of butter production, were not to myself conclusive. Notwithstanding as somewhat unpromising out look, there were a few weighty conducted wheat or b bines pleasant holiday excursions with excellent working conferences. With this not prespect before us, my first week spent in England was a rare experience in simultaneous lesson-learning and pleasure-taking, and it afforded a fine opportunity for the study of English character, which, in spite of its strong-marked type, is too many-sided to be understood at a glance or delineated epigrammatically. There is, of course, great templation to elaborated the striking first impressions of a country so remarkable as England, but the limits of space, and the probable temper of my readers, demand that I keep within more prosaic lines. The first point of interest to Canadiandsirymen, brought out by the discussions of the British dairymen, was the probability that FUTURE PRICES OF DAIRY GOODS WILL Javan and the probable temper of my readers, for the moment, that we shall yet surface of the first spond of the British dairymen, was the probability that the limits of which we have future. Assuming, for the moment, that we shall yet succeed in improving the quality, let us now deal only with the other difficulty—that of which we have larged to the other than the probability that the limits of parts of the Strike of the Canadiandsirymen, brought that the limits of space, and the probability that the limits of space and the probability that the limits of the striking have been made wealthy by the succeed in improving the quality, let us now deal only with the other at low prices, to probable the conducted by the service working the particle wheat to profice wheat or beef, or of the Church, assisted by the service working the part of the Church, assisted by the service of the Church, assisted by the service of the Church, assis in the British market for our butter product is the question of quality. We have been saying all along that all we have been saying all along that all we have to do make our butter production profitable is to suit the quality of our make to the liking of the British consumer. No doubt that this requirement is the first and most imperative need of our butter industry, but it does not depreciate its importance to say that is is not the whole need. The teachings of the conference suggested another and important problem, the existthe whole need. The teachings of this butter at this price for the English market. This, of course, is salt the existence of which was later confirmed by a careful enquiry into the state of the English market—the great market of the world. It was

How He Advised.

A gentleman, living in a small city in the West, had inherited consumption from his father, and the doctor told him he must die. He stopped taking their weakening physic and tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discavery. In three months he was strong and well. The gentleman's neighbors knew how sickly he formerly was, and asked him to state in public how he had been cured. He advertised to lecture on a certain evening, in the public hall, and there was a large audience present. This was his lecture: A picture of himself, before, and one after, he tried the remedy, and five empty bottles of Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. He said nothing, but convinced his audience just the same.

It outrivals all—Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. How He Advised.

Beecher's Last Writing.

Beecher's Last Writing.

The manuscript of the following is reproduced in the December Certury. It is the final paragraph of a fragment by Mr. Beecher giving an account of his visit to England during the war. This is believed to have been the last piece of writing by Mr. Beecher: "A more pathetic example of the heroism of the poor was never exhibited than in the case of the Lancashire weavers. They saw their industries wasting, the bread grew scarce, even their poverty grew poorer, nor was there any sign upon the horizon that this cloud would soon pass away, and yet they held fast their integrity; and, believing that the cause of the North was the cause of the day laborer the world over, they patiently bore famine and distress with fortitude till the day dawned. No other men among all English-speaking people gave a testmony of the love of liberty so heroic and so pathetic as the weavers of Lancashire."

(Published by request.) What has the gospel done for you, and what have you done for the gospel? These are important questions.

Many a prosperous man, but for the gospel would have been a wrecked, debauched, degraded wreck; many another man would have been selfish unsocial, surly, and uncomfortable The gospel has made the world brighter, life sweeter, and man better where ever it has gone. This gospel is sent into all the world, and, in obedience to the man date of Jesus Christ, and under his direction, his servants spend their time and strength, forsake their fami lies, cut themselves off from various HOUSE sources of support and emolument, and go forth to the Gentiles to carry the glad tidings to lost sinners, and thus win them to the Saviour.

The man who does this may have heavy responsibilities; a living to earn, a family to support, and people around him in need of relief. He must also love his neighbor, and set an example of Christian benevolence, or else he cannot preach it to others. But if he s to do all these things how is he to honor the gospel. But none of these things are provided for by the mere offer to pay a man's "travelling expenses," to go perhaps hundreds of miles and spend time and strength allowing the notice was so short, the miles and spend time and strength allowing the notice was so short, the miles and spend time and strength allowed to the miles and spend time allowed time allowed to the miles and spend time allowed to the miles and time allowed to the miles and time allowed to the miles and time allowed
