The Popular Premier.

Mr. Laurier Receives an Ovation at Birmingham.

The Queen Receives the Special Envoys in State.

Lieut.-Col. Aylmer Second in Command of Colonial Troops.

Brilliant and Imposing Ceremony at Buckingham Palace.

Addresses to the Queen by the Lords and Commons.

The Irish Members Move an Amendment Which Is Voted Down—New York's Congratulations.

London, June 21—(Toronto Telegram's Special Cable).—Hon. Wilfrid Laurier and the other colonial premiers are visiting Birmingham today and are the guests of the city. On arriving the distinguished party was received by the lord mayor, who invited them first to accompany him to inspect the Victoria Law Courts, and afterwards the technical school and art galleries. The lord mayor presided at luncheon, which was served in the council chamber. Among those present was Birmingham's brilliant representative in the cabinet, Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain. Mr. Laurier responded to the toast of the colonial premiers, and his patriotic utterances were enthusiastically received.

Premier Laurier has received numerous invitations from noblemen and society leaders generally, to dinner parties and receptions.

Mr. Laurier attended mass at the Brompton Oratory yesterday, and was the observed of all observers.

The jubilee honors are still a matter of conjecture only. It is possible that Sir Henry Strong, chief justice of the Canadian Supreme Court will be among the favored ones, and may think that Premier Laurier will accept honors owing to the jubilee occasion. There is no doubt that Mr. Laurier is very popular. His reception today by the people at Birmingham amounted to an ovation.

The colonial troops are prime favorites in London. Since their arrival they have improved wonderfully, and military experts are willing to give them precedence to many of the crack local corps. Today the infantry representatives and a march out, and their neat, soldierly appearance was everywhere commented on.

The colonial volunteers have been invited to visit the Imperil Institute this afternoon. As far as their accommodation and general treatment is concerned, the men of the Canadian contingent are making no complaint whatever. On the contrary, all seem to be perfectly satisfied with the reception accorded them and treatment received since their arrival. The other colonial representtives are not so well satisfied.

Cablegrams sent across the Atlantic from here stating that the Duke of Devonshire was at Liverpool to meet Mr. Laurier on his arrival at that port, and that Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary received the Canadian premier at London and escorted him to the Hotel Cecil are largely incorrect.

The men of the Forty-eighth Highlanders, of Toronto, who came over to compete at the Islington military tournament, and subsequently to join with the other Canadian volunteers in representing the Dominion at the jubilee celebration, are complaining of unjust treatment in the matter of pay, claiming that they should receive an allowance equal to the others. They say that they have only been in receipt of pay from the day of reporting at Chelsea Barracks, but for the interval since the tournament, up to that day, they are omitted from the pay list. They were ready to report days ago, they say, but their officer was out of town. The team express themselves as under great obligation to Col. Turnbull, of Montreal, for arranging the entries for the royal military tournament, otherwise, they say, they would not have been entered.

Col. Prior, who met with an accident prior to his departure from Montreal, is making favorable progress at St. Thomas Hospital.

ADDRESSES FROM PARLIAMENT.

London, June 21.—In the House of Lords today, the government benches were crowded, though there were fewer people present on the opposition benches. There were many peresses present in the galleries set apart for them, and the Archbishop of Finland and a number of Indian princes were in the other galleries.

The Marquis of Salisbury, amid cheers, moved, and the Earl of Kimberley, the Liberal leader in the House of Lords seconded, an address of congratulation to the Queen upon the occasion of her jubilee. The motion was carried unanimously.

London, June 21.—The House of Commons was crowded today, when the first lord of the treasury and government leader, Mr. A. J. Balfour, moved, and Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the Liberal leader, seconded an address of congratulation to the Queen upon the 60th anniversary of her accession to the throne. John Dillon, chairman of the Irish parliamentary party, protested in vehement language. He explained that the attitude of himself and his party was that they would vote against the adoption of the address, in which the Irish could not share.

Mr. John Redmond, the Parnellite leader amid laughter from the Conservatives and Unionists, moved an amendment to the address, and caused an animated scene. Mr. Redmond protested against Great Britain's rule in Ireland and asked the House to adopt an amendment to the effect that it deemed it to be its duty to place on record that during the 60 years of her Majesty's reign Ireland had suffered grievously from famine, depopulation, poverty, and the continued suspension of constitutional liberties with the result that the Irish are discontented and disaffected and unable to join in the celebration.

Mr. James O'Kelly, Parnellite member for North Roscommon, seconded the motion.

Mr. Redmond's amendment was rejected by a vote of 436 to 7. The address of congratulation to her Majesty was then adopted by a vote of 459 to 44.

When the amendment was put the anti-Parnellites left the House, but they returned for the main question, and on the speaker saying, "The ayes have it," the anti-Parnellites shouted loudly: "Noes have it," whereupon a vote had to be taken.

Mr. Balfour then moved that the address be presented to the Queen by the whole House, to which Mr. John J. Clancy, Parnellite, member for the north division of Dublin county, said that after what had occurred the motion was absurd and an absolute untruth. A vote was then taken, and it resulted in the adoption of Mr. Balfour's motion by 411 ayes to 41 noes.

THE QUEEN'S RECEPTION.

London, June 21.—This afternoon at 4 o'clock, in the bow drawing-room of Buckingham Palace, her Majesty received the imperial and royal envoys. The room is 54 feet long, finely-proportioned and richly decorated. At the end opposite the entrance is an alcove formed by two wall pillows surmounted by a carved and gilded wreath borne by two winged figures, to which were attached medallons, bearing royal initials. The walls were hung with crimson satin, those of the alcove with crimson velvet, both relieved with a profusion of golden hues. The ceiling is richly carved and gilt in the boldest Italian style of the fifteenth century, emblazoned with armorial bearings and has a white marble frieze adorned with bas-reliefs illustrative of the Wars of the Roses, and immense crystal lustries hung from the ceiling. The dais, was carpeted with royal Axminster, the gift of the women of England at the suggestion of the Duchess of Teck, a beautiful example of the carpet weaver's art, made at Bridgnorth, Shropshire. It is 18x16 feet and of unusually fine texture. The center is two shades of crimson damask, discovering the monogram V. R. I., in bold letters of gold, supported by the Tudor Rose and the Star of India, the whole being enclosed in a garter bearing the old familiar motto "Honi soit qui mal y pense." This is surmounted by the imperial crown entwined by a wreath of oak leaves tied by a ribbon. The border, on an ecru ground, is composed, in rightful colors, of the rose, shamrock, thistle, and lotus flower for India. At the angles are the animals properly colored and life-like in attitude, allegorical of the colonies, the Indian tiger, the African elephant, the Canadian beaver and the Australian kangaroo. The extreme edge of the carpet has the coventional bank worked in soft gold.

CANOPIED IN VELVET,

AMERICAN GUESTS ARRIVE.

London, June 21. — United States special envoy, Hon. Whitelaw Reid, General Nelson A. Miles, United States army, Rear Admiral J. N. Miller, United States navy, and the other members of the United States special embassy, reached the palace a few minutes after 2 o'clock. The republican simplicity of the attire of the American officers was in startling contrast with the brilliancy of the uniforms around them. The American party was received by the master of the ceremonies, and was conducted by one of the Queen's equerries to a marquee in the gardens, where luncheon was served. Mr. Reid did not go to the garden, but was escorted to the state supper room. In addition to the United States special embassy, the envoys present represented most of the royal houses of Europe, as well as many foreign countries. Those of the envoys who did not wander about the palace, chatted in the smoking room. Ten minutes before 4 o'clock, the envoys stood in line, and went singly to the audience room, to which they were conducted by Col. the Hon. Sir William James Colville, the master of ceremonies. The bow drawing-room, in which the envoys were received, is a large room, heavily ornamented with gilt, and hung with silk. Two Yeomen of the Guard were on duty at the door. The Queen was dressed in black, wore a widow's cap, the ribbon of the Order of the Garter, and other orders. She sat in a gilded chair near the center of the room, the Prince of Wales standing immediately behind her. At her right hand was the Princess of Wales, and others of the royal family were near her majesty or scattered about the room.

The Dufe of Auerstadt and the Duke of Sotomayor, representing France and Spain, preceded the United States envoy, Mr. Reid, who was third, and followed by the papal envoy, Mgr. Sambucetti. All the envoys presented their letters with the lowest obeisance. The Queen took each letter, and smilingly addressed two or three sentences of thanks and compliments to each envoy. Mr. Reid was received in the most cordial manner possible. Her majesty expressed her sincere thanks to President McKinley, and to "the great nation of our kinsmen." Queen Victoria looked very well indeed. She impressed all the envoys with the sincerity of her thanks for the national compliments paid to her. The crowds remained about the palace until a late hour, watching the comings and goings of the many notabilities.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, and the Duke and Duchess of York, on returning from Marlborough House, were received with roar upon roar of cheers. The children of the Duchess of York occupied seats on the garden wall at Clarence House. Their identity was soon discovered, and for hours the garden wall was the Mecca of crowds of enthusiastic women, and thousands of nurses and children.

NEW YORK'S MESSAGE.

New York, June 21.—The Chamber of Commerce of this state sent the following cablegram to the Queen: "Her Most Gracious Majesty, the Queen of England: The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, which received its original charter directly from the hand of your illustrious ancestor, King George III., tender its congratulations on this happy occasion, and in the spirit of national amity, unites with your loving subjects in the earnest prayer that God may bless the Queen. (Signed) Alexander Ector Orr, president."

ENTHUSIASTIC BROKERS.

London, June 21.—There was a scene of great enthusiasm on the stock exchange today. The members introduced their women relatives and friends, which is almost unprecedented. The building was packed to the utmost when Chairman Hitchens proposed a vote of congratulations to the Queen. The proposition was received with deafening and repeated cheers, and then all the members sang "God Save the Queen," "Rule Britannia," "God Bless the Prince of Wales" and "Auld Lang Syne." A dispatch received from the New York stock exchange was read and created an excellent impression.

CANADIAN OFFICERS HONORED.

London, June 21 (Evening Mail's special cable).—Col. Aylmer, of the Canadian contingent, has been appointed chief staff officer, and is second in command of all the colonial forces. Lieut.-Col. Mason has been appointed second in command of the colonial infantry, and Capt. MacDougall, adjutant of all the colonial forces.

EASTERN LEAGUE—MONDAY.

Toronto, Ont., June 21.—Toronto's Eastern League team continues to climb up the list, defeating Rochester on the island diamond today, with comparative ease. Score:

ORANGEMEN CONGRATULATE.

Ottawa, June 21.—Hon. Clarke Wallace, sovereign grand master of British North America, has sent the following cable tonight to Queen Victoria: "To the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty,—We, your devotedly loyal subjects, the Incorporated Grand Orange Association of British America, beg to express our heartfelt congratulations upon your Majesty's completion of the 60th anniversary of your accession to the throne, and our deep thankfulness to the Almighty, who has enabled your Majesty to reign for so many years over a happy, prosperous, and loyal people. N. Clarke Wallace, Grand Master."

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY'S GREETINGS.

London, June 21.—The following is the text of the personal letter to Queen Victoria, which was delivered to her Majesty by Mr. Whitelaw Reid, the special envoy of the United States: "To Her Majesty, Victoria, Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and Empress of India,—Great and good friend, in the name and on behalf of the people of the United States, I present their sincere felicitations upon the 60th anniversary of your Majesty's accession to the crown of Great Britain. I express the sentiments of my fellow-citizens in wishing for your people the prolongation of a reign illustrious and marked by advance in science, arts and popular well-being. On behalf of my countrymen, I wish particularly to recognize your friendship for the United States and your love of peace exemplified upon important occasions. It is pleasing to acknowledge the debt of gratitude and respect due to your personal virtues. May your life be prolonged, and peace, honor, and prosperity bless the people over whom you have been called to rule. May liberty flourish throughout your empire under just and equal laws, and your government continue strong in the affection of all who live under it. And I pray God to have your Majesty in his holy keeping.
"Your good friend, William McKinley, President; John Sherman, Secretary."

SIR LEWIS MORRIS' ODE.

London, June 22.—The Times this morning publishes a jubilee ode from the pen of Sir Lewis Morris. It begins:

"Rejoice, give thanks for all the centuries
Since first our little island's crescent story,
A feeble radiance, woke the waning skies,
To rise in full orbed glory."

The ode proceeds to describe the past and growth of the mighty empire, until the coming of the present reign, and then says:

"Ne'er in our crowded republic's story yet,
If all that men remember or forget,
This strange, this precious thing, had been.
No reign of threescore years of king or queen.
Our annals hold, till in this waning age,
Time's finger writes it on the storied page:
This is the golden link, which binds in one
All British hearts beneath the circling sun."

CHICAGO FRENCH-CANADIANS.

Chicago, June 21.—The following cablegram was sent today as an expression of the French-Canadian residents of Chicago: "To Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, London, England.—In this day of universal jubilation, please offer to your gracious Sovereign the respectful homage of 50,000 compatriots, who cherish the memory of having lived under her beneficent domination and take occasion to express their ardent wishes for her happiness and the prolongation of her glorious reign."

AN UNFORTUNATE INCIDENT.

London, June 21.—During a volunteer parade at Liverpool yesterday, the crowd, which numbered 100,000 at the least, overcame the handful of police who were keeping order. Thereupon the mounted police charged the multitude, and injured many, two, it is feared, fatally.

QUEER ADVERTISEMENTS.

There are some queer notices in the newspapers regarding the jubilee. One advertiser warns the people of the dangers of the day to life and limb, and suggests accident insurance policies, and then offers this:

BURGLARY COUPON—Every householder leaving his house at the mercy of burglars on jubilo day (the police being of necessity only slightly in evidence in the suburbs on jubilee day) should secure these coupons.

The people who will go afoot to see show are not neglected by the advertisers. They are to be provided with appliances which promise to give them full views of the procession even though they may be jammed in or behind a crowd. Here are these announcements:

JUBILEE—SEATS SUPERSEDED—Sightseer's Mirror (Wither's Patent) can be instantly attached to any stick or umbrella, and thus the procession can be watched over the heads of the crowd in comfort. Price, 1s; or P. O., 1s 3d, to Sightseers' Mirror Company, and all fancy shops, etc.

WHY PAY HIGH PRICES FOR seats? Why stand for hours in the street when you can see just as well from behind the crowd by using the Pocket Mirrorscope? 1s 6d, post free 1s 9d.

As to accommodations for living, one advertiser says he has 300 hotel rooms to offer, and that these are all there are left to rent in all London.

The Kingston Penitentiary Scandal Under Discussion.

Certain Officials Must Go—Sir L. Davies Will Sail for England.

Special to The Advertiser.

Ottawa, June 21.—In the house today the solicitor-general said the department had no present intention of removing Warden Metcalfe from Kingston, although the commissioners recommend that he should. Sullivan, deputy warden, O'Donnell, storekeeper, Wood, assistant storekeeper, Jas. Devlin, engineer, and Weir, steward, must go. Devlin would have a chance of explaining the charges against him. The government did not intend now to superannuate Mr. Stange. W. S. Hughes, chief keeper, would be retained. The staff would be reduced as far as possible.

Mr. Quinn, of Montreal, objected to the commission inquiries at Kingston, and St. Vincent de Paul. The item, however, passed, and the debate then turned to the Kingston Military College. After this the supplementary estimates were proceeded with.

The house adjourned at 12:30 a.m., and before leaving the chambers sang "God Save the Queen."

Sir Lewis Davies has postponed his trip to England to June 30, on account of sessional work. He goes in connection with Belgium and German treaties, to discuss them with the imperial authorities and Mr. Laurier.

Bridgewater, N. S., June 21.—There is no man in this town better known than J. S. Morgan, tinsmith, who, for eighteen years has been going from bad to worse without help until at last he got hold of the right treatment. He says: "It began with the backache, pains in the limbs, and finally settled down as rheumatism. I was a cripple, and after I ran down greatly in weight the doctors said it was diabetes. About a year and a half ago I quit everything else and took Dodd's Kidney Pills. Have taken 23 boxes, and have regained my weight, health and strength. I am perfectly cured."

THE QUEEN'S PARK CELEBRATION.

Yesterday afternoon the whole force was marched down to Queen's Park, where a rehearsal took place. The movements of the troops were a grand sight. The march past will be in quarter-sections instead of by companies. Lieut.-Col. Smith will be in command, and Lieut. Widgery, of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, Toronto, will be master of ceremonies in the ring.

THE COST OF CAMP.

The cost of the camp per day is considerable when all things are considered. Yesterday's rations for 1,318 men and horses (not including the artillery, which arrived afterwards) cost $225. The bread they consumed cost $33 56; meat, $56 90; groceries, $43 23; potatoes, $9 59; forage, $24 17; and fuel $28 60.

There are 202 horses, independent of the artillery, which cost $1 per day each over and above the rations and pay of the men who ride them. With the artillery there are nearly 400 horses, and the expense attached to the keep of them at once presents itself as a big thing. Every private and non-commisisoned officer in the Thirty-second and Twenty-seventh, gets, in addition to his pay, a bonus of 25 cents from the county he represents.

THE SOLDIERS' PAY.

The following rates, per day, are authorized for officers on actual service:

Staff—Deputy adjutant-general, $7 30; assistant adjutant-general, or quartermaster-general, $6 09; brigade major, $5 16; staff captain, $3 77; staff lieutenant, $3 05; staff paymaster, $5 47; camp quartermaster, $3 77; supply officer, with a force of not less than 1,000 strong, $5; and over 500 strong, $3 90; surgeon-major, $4 89.

Rank—Lieut.-col., $4 87; major, $3 90; paymaster, $3 05; adjutant, with rank of captain, $2 82; adjutant, with rank of lieutenant, $2 44; quartermaster, $2 82; surgeon, $3 65; assistant surgeon, $2 43; veterinary surgeon, $2 50; captain, $2 82; lieutenant, $1 58; second lieutenant, $1 28.

Non-commissioned officers—Sergeant-major, $1; quartermaster-sergeant, paymaster's clerk, orderly room clerk, and hospital sergeant, 90 cents; pay sergeant, 80 cents; sergeant, 75 cents; corporal, 60 cents; buglers and privates, 50 cents.

LIVE TO FIGHT ANOTHER DAY.

In time of trouble there are a few persons between the ages of 18 and 60 years who are exempt from enrollment for actual service. These are judges of all the courts of justice in the Dominion, the clergy and ministers of all religious denominations, teachers in religious orders and professors in every college and university, all officers regularly employed in the collection or management of the revenue; the warden and all officers and servants employed permanently in penitentiaries, and officers, keepers and guards of public lunatic asylums; persons disabled by bodily infirmity; the only son of a widow, being her only support; School masters in common and public schools are only called upon in cases of invasion or insurrection.

MILITARY INCIDENTS.

On Saturday last Col. Smith, when riding over the field came across a major of the Middlesex Light Infantry who was leisurely taking in the sights.

"Have you nothing to do?" asked the commander.

"Nothing, sir," repeated the officer.

"Well, this is a queer place for that," said the colonel. "Is there any one helping you?"

Yesterday morning the colonel rode over the field and observed a portion of the battalion in a somewhat disconnected state. He looked around for the officers, and at once called out: "Now, where's that major that has nothing to do? If he is not busy, there is work for him here." The officers appreciated the joke as they caught sight of the major arranging his men.

PETROLEA'S JUBILEE.

A Monster Sunday Parade—The Proposed School.

Petrolea, June 21.—Yesterday (Sunday) jubilee services were held in Victoria Hall. Promptly at 2 p.m. all the different societies met at their lodge rooms, and at 2:45 they met on Main street, and formed a procession, headed by the Petrolea brass band, and marched up Main street, then Princess street, Dufferin avenue, and Greenfield to Victoria Hall. The following societies were in line:

Primrose Lodge, No. 128 (Ladies' Maccabees).
Uniformed Canton Friendship, I.O.O.F.
Canadian Order of Oddfellows.
Knights of Pythias.
Ancient Order of Foresters.
Independent Order of Foresters.
Knights of the Maccabees.
Loyal Orange Lodges.
St. George's Society.
Sons of England.

On arrival at Victoria Hall, the different lodges were seated. Then the public were admitted. The large building was filled up, and hundreds had to be turned away. It is estimated that over seven hundred were in line, and it was one of the largest processions ever seen in Petrolea. The proceedings at the hall were opened by Rev. Mr. Craig, who explained the order of the meeting. After prayer and readings, Rev. Mr. Smyth and Rev. Mr. Craig addressed the audience for about 20 minutes each, both making excellent speeches, and drawing attention to the long and prosperous reign of Queen Victoria. At 4:28 p.m. the vast assemblage all stood up and sang "God Save the Queen," after which Rev. Mr. Craig offered up two prayers, according to the bulletin issued by the Sons of England.

Mr. G. S. Pitkin acted as marshal of the day, and did his work in good shape, not a hitch occurring. The whole day's proceedings were under the Sons of England. Mr. Charles Jones was leader of the different choirs, who took part, and Mr. Chas. Clewart, was organist. Several members connected with different lodges from Marthaville, Inwood, Oil Springs, Wyoming, Dawn and other places were in attendance.

A special meeting of the public school board was held last Thursday to open tenders, etc., for the new school at the east end. The following tenders were received: J. & J. Kerr, for carpenter work, $2,879 47; R. & J. Jackson, for whole thing, bar plumbing and heating, $6,500; McBeth Bros., complete building, according to specifications, $6,666; Wm. Clark, stone work, etc., $3,500; Normandy & Kettle, plastering, etc., $391; Corrick Bros., mason work, plastering, etc., $4,125; Purdy & Mansell, Toronto, plumbing, $449; W. Pudefin, Toronto, brick and stonework, etc., $2,743; A. Ross, plastering, $4 60; Toronto Furnace Company, furnace, etc., $355; J. F. Pease Company, Toronto, heating apparatus, etc., $670.

It was found that, taking the very lowest tenders for the various parts of the building, it would cost nearly $6,000, with several parts to finish then.

Mr. Shields explained that Messrs. Gordon & Helliwell assured him and the committee that the building could be put up according to their plans for $5,000, and now it seems they are about $1,000 out, thus making the building too expensive for them. He advised that all the plans and tenders be rejected and new ones advertised for.

Mr. Kelly also said the same thing, and read a letter from the firm binding themselves to charge nothing for the plans if the cost was higher than was arranged for.

Moved by Mr. Shields, seconded by Dr. Macalpine, that all the plans received be rejected, as the tenders were too high. Carried.

Mr. Kelly thought the best thing to do would be to write to the former competing architects and invite fresh plans on a more economical scale.

Mr. Burgess thought that with the information the board already had it could engage the local architect, Mr. Fawcett, and go ahead with the work, and get it done as cheaply as they wanted it.

Dr. Macalpine said it would be fairer to give all the other architects an equal chance, as also did Chairman Buchanan.

Moved by Mr. Abell, seconded by Mr. Burgess, that the building committee be instructed to go to the town architect, Mr. Fawcett, and get plans drawn up to suit them.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Shields, seconded by Mr. Kelly, that the chairman or secretary of the board correspond with the various architects, stating the case and inviting fresh tenders.

The amendment carried.

After this important business was settled a good deal of discussion followed on Mr. Kelly's suggestion that an annual holiday, with sports, etc., for the school children, be arranged by the board, as is done in many other places. Finally the chairman and Mr. Kelly were appointed a committee to confer with the teachers on the matter and report at next meeting to the board.

It was then decided that all teachers be paid their salaries to the end of July, and that the chairman and secretary were authorized to do so.

The board then adjourned.

"PHILOSOPHY OF INFLUENCE."

Rev. Dr. Daniels' Address at Colborne Street Church—Flourishing Epworth League—The Officers.

The Epworth League in connection with the Colborne Street Methodist Church is in a very flourishing condition. Last night the literary department conducted a successful meeting, at which the pastor, Rev. George Jackson, presided.

Rev. Dr. Daniel delivered an address on The Philosophy of Influence, and dealt with the material, mental and moral influence on character. He drew many helpful lessons from pointed illustrations, and dwelt particularly upon the necessity of good moral influence. An excellent musical and literary programme was also presented. Mrs. McDonald gave an instrumental, and Mr. W. D. Buckle, a reading. Miss Millis Sparksman, who possesses a very weet voice, sang.

Votes of thanks were tendered at the close of the meeting to Rev. Dr. Daniel, for his able address, and to the ladies of the church for the beautiful decorations to the interior of the building.

At a recent meeting of the league, the following officers were chosen for the present year: President, Morley Madden; treasurer, J. Wallace; vice-president, social department, Miss Parker; literary, Mr. W. D. Buckle; Christian work, Miss E. Hance; temperance E. Wilkins; missionary circle, Miss Maud Rigsby.

HAD INDIGESTION!

For a Matter of Some Forty Years or More.

Joseph Gardner, stove dealer, of Bath, Ontario, is a great believer in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia, Bright's disease, rheumatism, and kidney, liver and stomach troubles generally.

"I was troubled for over forty years with indigestion and constipation," he writes. "At intervals I suffered from severe headache. I spent dollars and dollars without result until Mr. Ball, our druggist, advised me to try Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and must say that they are the only remedy that gave me relief. I would not be without them for anything."

Many people suffer from rheumatism. Bad blood and diseased kidneys bring it on. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will remedy all this and cure rheumatism, sciatica, and all kindred complaints. Here is a sample case:

"My boy was all crippled up and suffered awfully with rheumatism," writes Mrs. H. Wills, of Chesley, Ont. "He also had a touch of diabetes. The doctors could do him no good, but Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills completely cured him."

Sold by all dealers and Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto, 25c.

When all other remedies fail Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine will cure the worst and chronic cold. 25 cents.

Do You Use It?

It's the best thing for the hair under all circumstances. Just as no man by taking thought can add an inch to his stature, so no preparation can make hair. The utmost that can be done is to promote conditions favorable to growth. This is done by Ayer's Hair Vigor. It removes dandruff, cleanses the scalp, nourishes the soil in which the hair grows, and, just as a desert will blossom under rain, so bald heads grow hair, when the roots are nourished. But the roots must be there. If you wish your hair to retain its normal color, or if you wish to restore the lost tint of gray or faded hair use

TURF.

THE AYLMER RACES.

Aylmer, Ont., June 21.—With good weather the race meeting this week promises to be the best ever held here, and that is saying a good deal. Every race during the three days is filled, the number of entries being as follows, and it includes all the best flyers of the season, and many others which will start for the first time this season:

The first day, Jubilee Day, June 22, will be a dandy. The first race is the 2:50 pacing stake, for a purse of $500. There are 22 entries, and there are at least a dozen horses in the lot who can do the mile in from 2:20 to 2:25. It is sure to be a grand race, and it would be hard to pick a winner.

Second race, 2:30 trot, purse $350, with nine entries, including some good ones.

Third race—2:17 pace, 2:14 trot, purse $350, with eight entries.

Second day—First division, 2:29 pace. This race had so many entries that it was decided to divide the purse and make two races, and $150 was added to the purse, making each division $250. There are ten starters for this division.

Second race—2:13 trot and pace, purse $350; five starters.

Third race—2:24 pace and 2:21 trot; 11 starters.

Third day, June 24—First race, second division, 2:29 pace; nine starters.

Second race—2:29 trot, with seven starters.

Third race—2:20 pace, 2:17 trot; six starters. This should give a programme to suit anyone. Most of the horses are here now, and they include the cream of horses in Canada, and the bordering states. There is no doubt some great time will be made. Josephine, the pacing wonder, will give an exhibition on Thursday, making the circuit without either sulky or driver.

ATHLETICS.

RYAN KNOCKS OUT WILLIAMS.

Syracuse, N. Y., June 21.—"Tommy" Ryan, champion welter-weight of the world, knocked out Tom Williams, champion of Australia, in the first of the second round of their fight before the Empire Athletic Club.

In the second round Ryan started in from the first to mix matters up, and landed rights and lefts on the face and body. Williams dropped to his knees three times to avoid punishment, and when he got up, Ryan jabbed him right in the heart, and then hooked his left on the temple. Williams dropped like a log, and was counted out without a bit of trouble.

Scorching in Business.

The bicycler is not the only man who scorches. There are business-scorchers, professional - scorchers, farmer-scorchers, mechanic-scorchers and laborer - scorchers. The man who overworks, who scorches, no matter what his occupation, and at the same time neglects his health, will sooner or later pay a penalty in sickness and possibly premature death.

If a man will always watch his health and correct minor irregularities by a resort to the right remedy, he may do a reasonable amount of scorching without serious results. Nearly all serious maladies are the result of imperfect nutrition. Imperfect nutrition is just another name for starvation. A man may eat voraciously and still starve. He may put on an eighth of a ton of sickly flabby flesh and have a big, corpulent stomach, and still be starving. He may scorch until he goes to the opposite extreme and gets thin as a rail, and he is still starving. The trouble lies in the fact that no matter how much food is taken it is not properly assimilated. The blood does not receive the life-giving elements of the food that build firm, healthy flesh, solid muscle and vibrant nerve fibers. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the assimilation perfect. It makes solid, healthy flesh, without raising the weight above Nature's normal. At all medicine stores.

E. M. Seavolt, of No. 427 Sandusky St., Mount Vernon, Knox Co., Ohio, writes: "I can heartily recommend your 'Golden Medical Discovery' to any one who is troubled with indigestion and torpid liver: I was that bad it was about chronic with me. All the other medicines could give me no relief; but at last, what came to my relief was that wonderful medicine the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I could scarcely eat anything—it would put me in terrible distress in my stomach, I had a dull aching and grinding pain in my stomach with pain in my right side and back, and headache, bad taste in my mouth, at night I was feverish and the soles of my feet burned.

I took four bottles of the 'Discovery' and two vials of the 'Pellets.' I am well and hearty and can eat as well as any body can,—thanks to your 'Discovery.'"

Pure Juice of Fruit.

Most of the summer beverages are mere stuff and are neither thirst-quenching nor refreshing—while many of them are quite injurious. On the island of Montserrat the Lime is cultivated and the pure fruit juice pressed out, bottled and sold all over the world under the trade mark name

Montserrat

It is pure, wholesome and refreshing. Beware of imitations. "Montserrat" is sold by all druggists and grocers, and is always to be had where summer drinks are sold.

If a Lime Juice Cordial is required "Limetta" will be found the finest article of its kind on the market.

THE SULTAN.

In connection with the eastern question one may turn to an interesting paper on Constantinople in the Cosmopolitan, which gives a slight glimpse of the present sultan that may be taken for what it is worth. Every Friday the sultan goes to prayers at the Hamidieh Mosque. The writer says:

"We watched the pageant from the ambassador's pavilion. It was truly Oriental. Ten thousand of the best troops in the empire lined the broad court which slopes from kiosk to the mosque. The princes of the blood come first; then the carriages of the sultan's wife and mother and of the khedive's wife. The ladies stayed outside. Then amid the shouts of soldiery and martial music came Abdul Hamid II., driving a magnificent span of horses and accompanied by Osman Digna, the hero of Plevna. The sultan was a shrunken man, withered and blanched, with a hooked nose and round shoulders—a human wreck. Osman, the soldier, was in every way a contrast. The bands stopped playing, and the sultan stepped out and ascended the little marble staircase leading to the temple. His little boy went toddling up the mosque steps behind him. The worn man turned and smiled sadly. Then father and son disappeared in the mosque. From within came singing and the sound of music—the sultan was at prayers, and ate the church!

Stamp this name indelibly on your memory "Tillson." Unless you are particular about getting clean cereals, don't do it. One of the most important points (to you) about buying cereals is to buy them clean. Dirt and dust and insects' eggs are bad enough without having to eat them. Yet these impurities exist in ordinary cereal foods.

Heavy Earthquake Shocks in California and Mexico.

The City of Tehuantepec in Ruins—But No Loss of Life Reported.

Gilroy, Cal., June 21.—The heaviest earthquake shock ever felt here lasted only a few seconds yesterday, but did much damage, numerous chimneys were toppled over, house walls cracked, every plate glass store window was shattered, and there was a general wreckage of bottles and shelf-ware in houses and stores. People rushed out of their homes in terror. In some houses blinds were wrenched from the hangings, and an unusual scene of petty destruction is presented in nearly every house and store in town.

San Francisco, Cal., June 21. — Two sharp and severe shocks of earthquake were felt here yesterday, the official time of the first, as taken by the United States weather bureau, being 12:14:04. It was followed almost immediately by a second shock. The vibrations were from west to east. Clocks were stopped, suspended lamps and decorations were broken in some places. The shocks were the most severe experienced here for many years. The earthquake was general throughout the state.

At Hollister, shortly after noon, on Sunday, the most severe earthquake shock since 1868 did many thousands of dollars of damage here to buildings and their contents. No loss of life occurred, though many narrow escapes are reported. Every brick building in town has suffered and in the courthouse the walls and ceilings have lost most of their plastering A fire wall of the McMahon House fell upon the adjoining buildings. Hundreds of window panes were cracked or broken, and in some instances entire window sashes were thrown into the street from the second story of the building.

Oaxaca, Mexico, June 21.—The continued earthquake shocks and heavy rains have seriously interrupted telegraph communication with the Isthmus of Tehuantepec during the past three days.

Advices were received here last night that the official commission sent to the city of Tehuantepec by President Diaz, to investigate the reported formation of a volcano, and the extent of the earthquake damages, has arrived at its destination, and found the condition of affairs much worse than it had expected. The town of Tehuantepec contains about 15,000 inhabitants, and is completely destroyed, so far as houses and buildings are concerned, not one remaining standing. There were a number of costly and substantial buildings in town. The people are living in tents, and the open air, on the outskirts of the place. The earthquake shocks continue to be felt at frequent intervals, and the people are terrified. The heavy smoke and other indications of an active volcano to the west of Tehuantepec are no longer visible.

ATE A COAT, VEST, ETC.

Tobacco, Fish Lines and Other Things Part of a Cow's Meal.

Middletown, N. Y., June 22.—In a field of scented clover, at the Ursuline Academy, in this town, there wanders a cow of sedate and gentle mien. Outwardly she differs but little from the general run of cows. The same expression of engaging innocence rests upon her young brow, and in her placid eyes there is no guile. One would approach her with trust. She moves in an atmosphere of bovine serenity and peace.

Yet her appearance is but a cloak for monstrous deeds. She is a slave to depraved tastes. The ordinary food of her race she regards with scorn, and panders to a base appetite for drygoods and hardware.

In her wanderings in search of sustenance he came upon a coat and vest belonging to a workman. Eager anticipation glowed in her eye, and her ears waved in the summer breeze. She took up the coat and vest, examined the quality critically, and then ate them. The buttons were of horn, but her conscience was dead to hints of cannibalism. In one of the pockets were a number of fish lines, with hooks attached. These went the way of the buttons, as brown bread would follow Boston beans.

In another pocket was a paper of tobacco and some matches. At these she hesitated. Doubtless she longed for a smoke. But it was fine cut tobacco, and for chewing not to be despised. She ate it and the matches. Then she turned with jaded palate to the clover. The workman, for some reason, is angry. The cow refuses to be interviewed.

The Fate of Many Who Are Troubled With Neuralgia of the Heart.

Paine's Celery Compound Permanently Banishes This Disease.

It wold be well if sufferers from neuralgia of the heart could realize the terrible risks they run from a disease that Paine's Celery Compound can easily cure.

There are thousands now suffering from this trouble that in a few weeks could be placed beyond the reach of all danger, if they followed the example of Mr. Platt Curtis, of Westport, Ont., who writes as follows:

"It gives me great pleasure to be able to say something in favor of your excellent preparation known as Paine's Celery Compound.

"For several years I was troubled with neuralgia of the heart, and suffered very much from it. After trying a number of remedies, I was induced to use Paine's Celery Compound, and after I had used about six bottles I was entirely cured. I have great pleasure in recommending it to all who may have need of an honest and efficacious remedy, as I feel certain Paine's Celery Compound will accomplish all it claims to do."

FAGGED OUT.—None but those who have become fagged out know what a depressed, miserable feeling it is. All strength is gone, and despondency has taken hold of the sufferers. They feel as though there was nothing to live for. There, however is a cure—one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will do wonders in restoring health and strength. Mandrake and Dandelion are two of the articles entering into the composition of Parmelee's Pills.

While assisting in erecting an arch for June 22, at Seaforth, David Stewart met with an accident, which, happily, resulted in nothing worse than a severe shaking up and the loss of several teeth. The accident was due to the giving away of a board, causing Mr. Stewart to fall a distance of 25 feet on his face.

R. A. Hill, aged 41, ex-reeve of Forest, and ex-warden of Lambton county, died on Sunday morning, after an illness of only two days. Mr. Hill was prominent in municipal affairs, having been reeve of Forest from 1889 till the new county councils' act came in force this year, and in 1896 he was warden of the county. He was also choir master of the Methodist Church. He was a prominent member of the Masonic and Canadian Foresters, Orange and Sons of England societies. He leaves a widow, but no children.

TEA AFLOAT.

Importers Rushing in Heavy Consignments to Evade Dingley Bill Duties.

Clinton, Ont., June 21.—Saturday evening Mrs. Knott and Mrs. Craig, with her little daughter, were driving home from Clinton, when their horse took frigit on the bridge just south of the town, making a dash against the railing, which broke and landed horse, buggy and people on the flats below. The horse was killed outright, Mrs. Craig's little girl was most seriously injured, Mrs. Craig had an arm broken, and her head injured and internal injuries. Mrs. Knott had both legs broken and was otherwise injured, and there are grave fears that none of them will survive the terrible accident.

FEARFUL ACCIDENT AT CLINTON.

The Horse Bolted and Killed Itself—Three Persons Badly Injured.

Tacoma Wash., June 21.—More tea is now afloat on the Pacific Ocean than ever before at one time. The importers of New York and other eastern cities have made large purchases in China and Japan for immediate delivery, and are having it hurried across the Pacific in order to enter it before the Dingley bill goes into effect.

A thousand tons of new-crop tea has been landed here, and 12,000,000 pounds is on the ocean between Yokohama and this port. This comprises the cargoes of the steamships Braemer, Mogul, Tacoma and Victoria. The Canadian line is also bringing heavy shipments.

ATTACKS ON THE QUEEN

Queen Victoria's Numerous Escapes From Assassination Since Ascending the Throne.

Queen Victoria, who is in her 79th year, has now reigned 60 years. In doing this she has had to surmount dangers which do not beset ordinary mortals.

In spite of the Queen's amiable and irreproachable character and her unvarying and scrupulous regard for the constitution of her country, she has been the subject of several attempts on her life. They have all failed entirely, but at least three of them came near to doing harm. The Queen showed considerable personal courage on these occasions.

The first attempt was made by Edward Oxford, on June 10, 1840. He discharged a pistol at her Majesty when she was going up Constitution Hill. The man was quite mad, and after being captured was sent to Bedlam and thence to Dartmore, where, after 34 years, he was transported to Australia, where he set up in business as a house painter.

Nearly two years later, on May 30, 1842, and almost in the same place, John Francis fired at the Queen. He was sentenced to death for this act, but was afterwards reprieved, and was transported to Tasmania.

The third attempt was made on July 3 by a deformed youth named John William Bean, but his pistol missed fire. He was imprisoned for eighteen months in Newgate.

Again, in May, on the 19th, in the year 1849, and a third time on Constitution Hill, William Hamilton fired at her Majesty. He, however, was only sentenced to transportation for seven years for this act.

In the following year, Lieut. Pate committed another outrage, but he had no murderous intent. Just as her Majesty was leaving Cambridge House Pate struck her over the face with a cane, and, like Hamilton, was sentenced to transportation for seven years.

The last occasion in which anybody attempted to injure her Majesty was 2 days after the thanksgiving for the recovery of the Prince of Wales, when a young man named Arthur O'Connor, approached her Majesty's carriage in the courtyard of Buckingham palace and threatened the Queen with a pistol. John Brown, who was then her Majesty's closest personal attendant, seized the youth and took the revolver from him, which was found to be unloaded.

LIGHTNING'S QUEER PRANKS.

Bolt in Indiana Churns Milk and Unearths Hidden Treasure.

South Bend, Ind., June 21.—Lightning played some queer pranks here yesterday. A bolt struck the residence of George Moon, tearing off all the siding, scattering the wall paper in strips over the floor and knocking the legs off a bedstead. It narrowly missed three women who were sitting in one of the rooms, and then played around several milk cans, after which it vanished. When the milk cans were opened it was found that the contents had almost been turned to butter. When the lightning left the house it tore a large hole in the ground near by, unearthing a large iron box full of gold and silver coins and other articles. Many of the coins are of Spanish make, over 200 years old, and are very valuable.

One of the best known residents of Galt is Mr. Wm. Babcock, the well-known teamster, who has for a long time been a familiar figure in the business portions of our town. Mr. Babcock says: "I have been a sufferer for the last two years from lame back, pains in my back and side, hot flashes extending up over my shoulders, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, etc., together with urinary difficulties.

"I was so bad that I had to give up work. Although I used a great many kidney remedies they seemed to do me no good, until I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Kirkland's drug store. I got great relief from the first box, and now, after using six boxes, feel all O. K. I eat well, sleep well, the pain, hot flashes, lameness and urinary difficulties have entirely disappeared, and I strongly recommend this magnificent medicine to all sufferers."

JOHN CAMERON, President and Mang. Dir.

God's in His heaven,
All's right with the world.
—Browning.

London, Tuesday, June 22, 1897.

The jubilee poets will now take a holiday.

Hall Caine's new novel will be named "The Christian." Will it be orthodox?

It is flags, not firecrackers, that are chiefly in demand this Queen's holiday. Most people enjoy the novelty.

Canada will celebrate today with an unanimity not excelled by any part of the world-wide British Empire.

The Canadian premier is now entitled to be addressed "The Right Honorable Wilfrid Laurier." He is an Imperial Privy Councilor.

So far, this city has not produced a son, daughter, uncle or aunt of the late Barney Barnato. But there is yet time for some one to claim the notoriety.

Has ever Canada obtained more good advertising than she is now obtaining through the presence of her premier at the Queen's Jubilee with a Message that commends this land and people to every British heart?

Chicoutimi, Que., is to have a large pulp mill. The company will manufacture for export only. It is expectel that the greater portion of the product will be sent to Great Britain. Our export trade increases month by month.

One year ago today Canada was in a state of feverish expectancy as to the Dominion general election. One year ago tomorrow it was found that the Liberals had carried the country, and that Wilfrid Laurier was premier-elect.

No person living today can expect to see a royal jubilee of exactly the same nature, but each age has its own causes for rejoicing, and mayhap in the not far distant future we will have a celebration of a reunited English-speaking race.

Good roads and fewer weeds are two pressing topics in many parts of the country. "If," says a well known authority, "the farmer does not kill the weeds that appear on his farm, they become, in time, the greatest monopoly with which he has to contend."

A number of our United States contemporaries say that Hon. John Sherman, secretary of state in the McKinley cabinet, is breaking down. It is asserted that his power to think consecutively is almost gone. Mr. Sherman has had a long and honorable public career. He was born May 19, 1823, was representative in congress, 1854 to 1861; United States senator, 1861 to 1877; secretary of the treasury, 1861 to 1877; United States senator, 1881 to 1897, when he became a member of the new republican cabinet.

Britain Applauds.

The London, England, Financial News discusses the new tariff and its pro-British provisions in these expressive terms:

"We are not called upon to decide whether Sir John A. Macdonald or Mr. Laurier is the greatest statesman. But we are glad to allow to the present premier all the credit of having taken the first practical step towards the federation of the empire, and he is entitled to the assistance of Lord Salisbury's diplomacy.

And the London Canadian Gazette still further emphasizes the effect of the new departure by this summing up of the situation to date:

"Whatever may be the ultimate issue of the action of the Canadian Government in persisting with the preferential clause in the new tariff, there can be no doubt about the large measure of approval and support which their courageous stand has evoked in this country. In the English mind, Canada has by this step led the way in celebrating the Queen's year, and no hair-splitting as to most-favored-nation clauses and antiquated treaties can lessen British appreciation of that fact. The Times expresses the feeling of nine out of every ten Englishmen, when it says, as it did the other day, that these Canadian proposals "constitute by far the most important and effective contribution ever made to the commercial unification of the empire." "If," the Times goes on to say, "they do nothing else, they offer the most convincing and practical proof we have yet had of the genuine desire of Canada to seek her most important market within the empire; while, at the same time, they do an incalculable service by raising imperial questions which have been too long left in a chaotic and unsatisfactory condition."

Our London, Eng., contemporary discusses the claim that the British treaties with Germany and Belgium prevent this country from carrying out its reciprocal trade policy. It says:

"Mr. Davies, the astute Canadian minister of marine, presented the Canadian case in the Dominion Parliament in a speech that will bear careful study both in Downing street and at Berlin. It was he who, seven years ago, vainly invited the Canadian House of Commons to take practically the same step which Canada has taken today, and he speaks, therefore, after a long and close attention to the subject. This, he argues, is no exclusive arrangement with England alone. It is a business offer made to all nations alike on the same conditions. If Great Britain and New South Wales comply with the conditions of that open offer, and other countries do not, that is not Canada's fault. They can share the benefits of the preferential tariff equally with England if they please to treat Canada as England does. Indeed, they need not do so much as that, for in effect Canada's action operates differentially against England in that she is prepared to grant the preference to all countries which, stopping short of the free entrance of imports from Canada which England grants, charge no more duty against Canada than Canada charges against them. Sir Charles Kennedy, in the article which we published last week, carries the argument further, and his opinion is entitled to great weight in view of his former position as head of the commercial department of the British foreign office and his acknowledged attainments as an international jurist. It will be seen that in his judgment, while the enactment of preferential rates for British goods to the absolute exclusion of foreign goods would be at variance with the Belgian and Zollverein treaties, a reduction of customs duties on British goods under conditions which are open to the acceptance of Belgium and the Zollverein is in a different category. Indeed, "there is reason to think that under existing circumstances and usage the Canadian resolution is not at variance either with the treaties or with the most-favored nation article." What these "existing circumstances and usage" are our readers will see for themselves on following Sir Charles Kennedy's argument and the speeches of Mr. Davies and Mr. Laurier. The contention of Mr. Davies is especially far-reaching. Canada, he argues with much force, is financially autonomous. No British Government would think of insisting that she should add 25 per cent to her duty upon an import. Is it not as the Times asks, equally an infringement of the right of autonomous taxation to insist that she shall not take off 25 per cent as a matter of bargain which she thinks advantageous?"

The logic of the situation is wholly in favor of the view that Canada, being a nation, though under the suzerainty of Great Britain, has a right to collect her revenues in the way that suits her. If she chooses to favor the motherland, because she is better treated in Great Britain than by other countries, why should she be prevented?

Experiments in Butter Export.

Canadian dairymen and produce merchants will be interested in the report of the results of the experiment undertaken this summer by the United States department of agriculture. Two lots of butter were sent to Great Britain, made at Ames, Iowa, and Cornish, N. H. All was made late in April, "between hay and grass," the most difficult season for making butter of high flavor and good keeping quality. The main object of the special export of butter was to serve as a pioneer, and suggest points for improving the management of trial exports to follow. The lots were respectively fourteen and ten days from the creameries. The most interesting feature of the London sales is that the English merchants are wedded to their hundred weight (112) pounds as a unit of measure and to the half hundred weight for a package of butter. Packages exported at half hundred weights should contain as nearly 56 pounds as possible, or what will weigh that at the English market. The rate of shrinkage remains to be determined. Opinions of English judges indicate that one-quarter ounce of salt to the pound of butter will be enough to use for this market. Cubical boxes were much preferred by the wholesalers, who paid a considerable difference for it in that shape. Small packages were not in favor with them, and although scoring highest as to quality the 30-pound tubs sold as "quarters" of 28 pounds brought only 17¼ cents per pound and five pound boxes and prints less than 16 cents. The wholesalers paid 18 1-5 cents for the Iowa butter in cubical boxes, and for the identical boxes in Welsh or 60-pound creamery tubs, they paid only 17½ cents, besides the gain of at least four pounds per tub in taking these tubs at 56 pounds net weight. One merchant, who was an exception, took two tubs at actual net weights, paid only 16½ cents, paying 18 and 18 1-5 cents at the same time for two cubical boxes of the same butter.

The report sent to Washington says it is evident that unless the retailers can be reached without much extra expense in transportation, so that better relative prices can be realized, eastern creameries cannot yet afford to consider the question of exporting their products. The chief lesson that we in Canada must draw from this experiment is the necessity for conforming to the British popular whim, no matter what it may be. Our butter, which can be put on the market as good as that of any competing country, not even excepting Holland, must be put up in packages to suit the popular taste, and put into consumption at the earliest possible moment after production.

VICTORIA, THE WELL-BELOVED.

Chicago Times-Herald.

Of the three English queens, her predecessors, who reigned alone, Queen Mary was on the throne three years, Queen Elizabeth 44 and Queen Anne twelve, in all 61 years, a period that Queen Victoria has nearly equaled and will probably surpass.

To few persons in any rank of life is it given to see their family line descend into the fourth generation, but such is the happy fortune of the Queen. In the Jubilee proceedings next Tuesday four generations of the royal family in the direct line are to be represented—the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York and Prince Edward of York. Taking all of her living descendants, the Queen has seven sons and daughters, 33 grandchildren, and 30 great-grandchildren.

Since she ascended the throne she has witnessed the rise and fall of many dynasties and has seen the map of Europe greatly changed. But her own dynasty has been strengthened, while the British possessions have been more than doubled and extended into every quarter of the globe. Truer than when first spoken remains Webster's noble apostrophe to that power, "which has dotted over the surface of the whole globe with her possessions and military posts, whose morning drum beat, following the sun, and keeping company with the hours, circles the earth with one continuous and unbroken strain of the martian airs of England."

Today the whole world turns to congratulate the Queen of such a power upon her happy and memorable reign.

In all that time her life has been open as the day and as unsullied as the stars. All nations may fitly do her honor, for she has ennobled humanity. As Queen, wife and mother she stands peerless among women.

HER BAD SPELL.

There once was a girl named Camille,
A header she took from her whille;
She couldn't concille
The pain she did fille,
So she uttered a terrible squille.

THE GREAT JOLLIER.

[Buffalo Evening News.]

Citizen Laurier, of the "great republic on the banks of the St. Lawrence," is jollying the English officials to the Queen's taste.

TOWARD SOCIAL DISTINCTION.

[Odds and Ends.]

"Have you lived next to the Snobberleys three years, and don't know them yet?"

"Well, they have spoken very kindly to us several times when they borrowed our bicycle pump."

LOCUSTS DID IT ALL.

Chickens, Eggs and Squirrels Made Unfit for Human Food by Them.

Washington, Pa., June 21.—Farmer David Watring, who lives north of here, tells of having shipped eggs to Pittsburg friends. Lately these friends were taken suddenly ill, and an investigation revealed the fact that the eggs were the cause. Mr. Watring's chickens had been feasting on seventeen-year-old locusts.

A woman living west of Washington reports having cooked a chicken recently, and none of the members of her family could eat it. The chicken was plump, but had been living on locusts.

The friends of Silas Brown, an invalid, killed a squirrel, and prepared it for him. His condition became much worse, and he was in great danger. The squirrel had been thriving on locusts.

SELLS WIFE AND CHILDREN.

Jacob Zellar Gets Rid of His Family and Goes Back to Switzerland.

Alliance, Ohio, June 21.—Jacob Zellar and Brecht Yanne, of Switzerland, rented a farm just each of this city two years ago. Zellar had a wife and family, while Yanne was single. Business was bad, and Zellar often complained of his hard lot and regretted leaving Switzerland. Besides farming Yanne ran a cheese factory, and has been prospering.

Last Sunday Zellar remarked that if he had $100 he would go back to Switzerland. "Sell me your wife, and stay away forever, and the money is yours," quickly replied Yanne. "Take the children, Brecht, and it's a bargain," said Zellar. "Done," replied Brecht. The papers were made out, and the money paid over that evening, in the presence of several of their countrymen. Today Jake left for the high mountains and limpid waters of his native heath. His late wife and the smiling Yanne were at the train to wish him "bon voyage."

HEIRS TO $9,000,000.

Toronto, June 21.—The heirs of Frederick Quantz, of York township, have been notified that by the decease of a relative at Hamburg, Germany, they are heirs to a fortune of $9,000,000.

100 PEOPLE IN A WILD SCRAMBLE

Chicago, June 21.—A decayed sidewalk collapsed in front of 545 South Union street last evening, carrying with it 100 persons, most of whom were children. They were precipitated to the ground below and into a foot of stagnant water under the sidewalk. A wild scramble followed, during which a number of persons were injured.

CHARLIE ROSS' FATHER DEAD.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 21.—Christian K. Ross, the father of Charles Ross, whose abduction on July 1, 1874, from his parents home became a matter of world-wide interest, and still remains largely an unsolved mystery, died early this morning at his residence in Germantown, aged 74 years. The abduction of Charles Ross, who was a beautiful child, practically wrecked the life of his father, and from the time the boy was stolen, nearly 23 years ago, life seemed a burden to the once bustling business man.

DR. ROBERTSON ABROAD

Speaks of the Progress of Presbyterianism in Canada—Secures Substantial Scottish Aid for Northwest Mission.

An Edinburgh correspondent writes: In the free assembly Dr. Robertson from Canada made one of his characteristic speeches. He conveyed to the assembly the cordial congratulations of the Presbyterian Church of Canada. They looked upon the Free Church, he said, more as a daughter to a mother than as a sister, because the Free Church had had a great deal to do with the maintenance of the Christian Church, and the success in the west was in a great measure due to the encouragement and help given in early years. In Canada they were a united church from ocean to ocean—the union took place twenty years ago—and he would defy anyone going to their assembly to detect the former lines of cleavage. He thought if they at home only got united their fusion would just be as complete. (Applause.) The church in Canada would be very glad to hear that all the Presbyterian churches in Scotland were one. Their church was steadily growing. During the last 25 years her membership, congregations, ministers and revenue had increased 200 per cent. Her contributions for foreign mission work and other benevolent work had increased 50 per cent. Their congregations, not to speak of missions, numbered something like 1,000, their ministers 1,250, and their communicants about 200,000. Dealing with the necessity for assistance, Dr. Robertson remarked that he had promises of help to support 24 missions by Free Church presbyteries, congregation and members, 8 by the Established Church, and 15 by the United Presbyterian Church. (Applause.) He had the promise of £1,200 for church buildings, and of that sum £800 came from the Free Church. (Applause.) They asked for help in the west, because it was a work they could not accomplish themselves. The people in the west gave themselves nearly £3 every communicant for church work; and that, he thought, was more than the Free Church members gave. (Laughter.) If he could get Scotland to support sixty missionaries he would be content, and he thought that the money spent in that manner would be well spent. (Applause.)

DEVIOUS WAY TO MARRIAGE.

He Wrote a Love Message on an Egg Which She Cooked.

Perry, Oklahoma, June 22.—Ross Williams, a young farmer living near here, and Miss Bessie Carroll, of Chicago, were married two days ago. Williams wrote a love message on an egg three months ago. The egg was shipped later to Chicago, and Miss Carroll in cooking it read the message. She answered it, and the correspondence resulted in marriage.

"She Noddit to Me."

The following poem, which recently appeared in the Bon Accord, a weekly comic journal published in Aberdeen, attracted the notice of the Queen, and her Majesty wrote expressing a desire to be furnished with the name of the author:

I'm but an auld body
Livin 'up in Deeside,
In a twa-room'd bit hoosie
Wi' a toofa' beside,
Wi' my coo and my grumphy
I'm as happy's a bee,
But I'm far prooder noo
Since she noddit to me!

I'm nae sae far past wi't—
I'm gie trig an' hail,
Can plant twa-three tawties,
An' look after my kail;
And when oor Queen passes
I'm oot to see,
Gin by luck she micht notice
And nod oot to me!

But I've aye been unlucky,
And the blinds were aye doon
Till last week the time
O' her veesit cam' roon'.
I waved my bit apron
As brisk's I could dae,
An' the Queen lauch'd fu' kindly
An' noddit to me!

My son sleeps in Egypt—
It's nae eese to freit—
An' yet when I think o't
I'm sair like to greet.
She may feel for my sorrow—
She's a mither, ye see—
An' maybe she kent o't
When she noddit to me!

Moberly, Mo., Jan. 21, 1896.
Radway & Co.

Dear Sirs: I have been keeping in the house your Radway's Ready Relief for the last six years. I have used it in every way, and found it to be the best on earth. Six years ago I was sick; I tried all kinds of medicines, but they did me no good. My father saw the advertisement in the paper; he told me to try a bottle. I did so, and by using it three days I was able to be out. I have kept it on hand ever since, and I have told my neighbors about it. My wife had been troubled with toothache. I gave a trial of the medicine and it cured her pain instantly. I was gathering corn and got my hand caught between the wagon-bed and standard, and mashed it badly. I ran to the house and poured on a lot of Radway's Ready Relief, and had no more pain. I tied my hand up with a piece of flannel, poured on more Radway's Ready Relief, and in an hour I was ready to take hold of my work again. I cannot be thankful enough. I could write a great deal more, but this paper would not hold half of what I could write. Yours truly,
JACOB J. KAPPLER.

THE "GRIP."

Dr. Radway & Co., Gentlemen: I have used your Ready Relief for more than twenty-five years with much satisfaction—have used it for La Grippe, Pneumonia, Pleurisy and all sorts of aches and pains and have found it unfailing every time. Respectfully,
D. W. RAYMOND,
31 Crescent street, Middletown, Conn.

Malaria in its various forms cured and prevented.

There is not a remedial agent in the world that will cure Fever and Ague and all other fevers aided by RADWAY'S PILLS, so quickly as RADWAY'S READY RELIEF.

Prevention of Chills and Fever.
Hudson River Brk Mfg Co.,
Verplanck Point, N. Y.

Dr. Radway: My family are in the habit of trusting entirely to your Ready Relief and Pills as our household medicine, rarely requiring any other remedial aid. I myself follow closely your directions in taking the Ready Relief as a preventive for Chills and Fever, say a teaspoonful in some water before my breakfast on an empty stomach when I visit my yard, as I am accustomed to do at that time. The result is a perfect success, as I never take the fever, although I am located in a most malarious district, in which few of the residents escape malarious attacks, particularly of Chills and Fever.

My men and those who have come from Mr. Frost's yard experience the same beneficial effects by following a like practice as myself.
Very truly yours, JOHN MORTON,

On a Quaking Railway

At Full Speed, With the Track Curling Under the Train.

Engineer Burn Relates His Experience on the Night of the Great Earthquake.

A Charleston, S. C., correspondent writes: There are few locomotive engineers alive today who have had a more thrilling adventure in a car than the man who pulled a train load of passengers out of Charleston on the night of the memorable earthquake, nearly eleven years ago. The throttle was wide open and the train was dashing down a long, steep grade, at the rate of 50 miles an hour. The engineer had to reach a small station a short distance ahead and sidetrack to allow an excursion train for Charleston to pass. The local was behind time, and the engineer knew that 500 lives depended on his getting safely into the siding before the headlight of the other train hove in sight. Suddenly the earth shook, but the rumbling noise accompanying the shock was drowned in the roar of the speeding train. Without the least notice the track under the train began to quiver and move, while the locomotive trembled like a deer at bay. The engineer thought that the engine had jumped the track and was running along over the cross ties. The train rolled along for half a mile before being ditched. Engineer Charles H. Burn was the only person injured, and he would have escaped unhurt had he jumped. He remained at his post, however, as if glued to the seat. His mind was so intent upon reaching the side track that he could give little thought to the earthquake. Today Mr. Burn gave the Sun correspondent his story.

"It was 9:25 on the night of Aug. 31, 1886," he said, "when I mounted the train in the railroad yards here and got orders to pull out to Summerville, 30 miles distant. The weather was hot, and not a breath of air stirring. My train started on time, but soon afterward we were delayed a few minutes. My orders read to sidetrack at Ten Mile for a down passenger excursion train to pass. When I got to a point a mile and a half from the station I found I had only two minutes to make the run and have the switch clear for the other train. The chances were, too, that it would be on time, and I realized that I had a race against death. The track ahead of me, however, was clear. Every nerve in me was strained, for I knew what would be the consequence if I ran in half a minute late. I was in this condition, and flying over the final stretch, with the throttle wide open, when the first tremor of the earth was felt. My first impression was that the engine had jumped the rail and was shooting over the crossties. I looked back once and saw that the coaches were following all right, but the next instant I knew it was an earthquake. The track under me was jerked to the one side and then to the other. I looked ahead, and the bright glistening on the top of the shiny rail could not be seen. A second glance showed that the rails were moved out of their original position, and were in the exact shape of a horseshoe. The engine would twitch and squirm, but it held to the rail, and the movement of the whole train was very much like that of a snake crawling over the sand.

"When I saw how the rails had contracted I tried to stop the train. I applied the brakes, and immediately the engine jumped the track. It was like a whirlwind to me. The cab on the engine was broken off, and the top of the cab was thrown 30 feet, bottom upward. Arnold, the colored fireman, went with it, and had a close shave, but escaped unhurt.

"It is almost impossible for me to describe my feelings while on that rocking engine speeding over rough track at the rate of 50 miles an hour. The speed was not slackened by the widening of the track, but the engine was flying to the right one second and to the left the next, and getting over the ground so swiftly that it took all my strength to keep myself in by holding on to the lever. The engine seemed to groan.

"When we were ditched I was thrown into the soft mud and pinned down by part of the engine. Another shock came about this time, and it buried the engine lower in the loose sand. This made it harder for me, but fortunately I was not burned nor scalded. The third shock came, and down went the engine again in the sand. I could not move a limb, and the heat from the furnace near me fairly made my skin fall away. A lot of frightened negroes came rushing by the train, running they knew not where, and I begged them to get me out.

"'Taint no use, white man,' cried one of the fellows: 'your time done up now, and we is all gwine down to-gedder. Goodby.'

"The earth continued to tremble during the night, or at least until 3 o'clock in the morning, when I was taken out of the wreck. I have been on the road for 30 years, but I never expect to go through such another experience as on that night of the earthquake. Nothing but the mercy of God saved me and the train."

The wreck of Engineer Burn's train occurred on the South Carolina and Georgia Railroad, ten miles from Charleston. At about the same minute two other wrecks took place, and the only deaths were those of the firemen on both trains. At Horse Creek, the heavy commotion of the water in a pond close to the railroad caused the pond to overflow and wash away the railroad. The train stopped soon after getting in. Engineer Reynolds swam out and landed high in the branch of a tree. The fireman in trying to reach a limb was killed.

The passenger train which left here early in the afternoon for Augusta, Ga., met with an accident between Graniteville and Langley. A large pond by the railroad track broke away and submerged the road under the train. The engine left the track in a jiffy, and in the smashup the fireman was killed. The train remained on the track, and the passengers escaped without a scratch. All along the road the rails were distorted into horseshoe shape, but the engine driven by Burn was the only one that went half a mile over the rough and winding rails.

A Woman's Remarkable Secret

She Exposes Her Magnetic Power in an Interesting Way.

The Simple Mechanical Principle Known as "Deflection of Force" Responsible for the Feats That Fooled Scientists as Well as the Public.

Lulu Hurst, who hurled umbrellas, and men and women and tables over nearly all the stages on this continent, who nearly put out Charles Froman's eye and caused Mrs. Langtry to turn a violent somersault in public and nearly dash her brains out, has had a fit of conscience and told all she knows about herself. That it is genuine conscience and no hoax this time is proved by the fact that the lady threw away prospective mints of money to study up her own phenomena, and that she now presents herself in the unenviable light of fooler of the great American public. For, with the exception of a few half-hearted assurances that she really did think herself possessed of a "great power," the lady frankly admits that her so-called manifestations were partly pranks and mostly unconscious physics, and makes the statement, humiliating to large aggregations of the befooled, that it was their own hysteria and superstition that caused the antics of the victims, and the inanimate objects they were trying to hold. If there is money in the book the conscience scheme may not go altogether unchallenged.

Never having seen Miss Hurst, and not being able to disprove the "undiscovered or unrecognized principle of leverage applied to the deflection of forces" (which is the simple proposition the lady now advances as her sole basis of operations), and not having yet found, as she avers, that any one person can electrify six strong men and a chair so that they bang themselves about in their vain efforts to curb the cavorting object, one is not in a position to contravert Miss Hurst's confessions and scientific statements. That her first remarkable developments were the result of accident can quite be believed, that subsequent events cast blacker shadows behind than can be dissipated by a mere "explanation." Thrusting a hairpin through a feather pillow and finding the noise it made startling, the embryo performer continued the sound, varying it by scrunchings of the feet against the foot-board of the bed.

The family being fully aroused and excited by these occult symptoms, Lulu used to amuse herself and paralyze them by hurling hickory nuts about a room with closed windows, to fling clothes about on picture frames, and otherwise manifest great "spiritual" powers. It is a sad homily on our frail nature that it took only a few of these singularly transperant dodges to fix Miss Lulu's fame as a strange wielder of supernatural power, and soon she was tipping tables and making chairs dance, telling the past and the future with great success. All these games she owns now to have been the mere fruits of the gullibility and eagerness to be duped which seems to spring anew, with the faintest encouragement in the mortal breast.

But the "power"—that great unseen, hypnotic, psychic, electric, odic, and variously christened force, was to come. At the age of 14 Lulu Hurst held large audiences spellbound, startled, crazed, full to bursting with admiration and awe—first in the country, and then in large cities. The newspapers of Chicago, New York and Boston, and all the great metropolitan dailies were full of her marvelous exhibitions, and none ventured on scientific explanations of so paralyzing a phenomenon. Chairs and umbrellas continued to be hurled through the air as the power pervaded the hall, and everything fled dancing and spinning before it. Her "explanation" is that there is absolutely no "power" in her; that, actually ignorant herself of the simple force she employed, she yet knew how to apply it to every case and seldom or never failed in a test. This is the most extraordinary part of the whole statement.

As Miss Hurst studied more and more deeply into the thing, her "wonder increased that some of the learned physicists had not discovered the simple principle of deflection of force" while experimenting with her. "I demonstrated it all the time without knowing it, and they did not detect it," she writes. "It was necessary for the force opposing me to exert itself by and through inanimate objects held in certain specified positions." And "I had no power over inanimate objects unless in connection with opposing muscular force of another person. The amount of force opposed to me did not make much difference, except to increase the wonder of the performance."

With a few simple axioms of this nature the fiat of a small and rather weak palm and a quite-terrible-to-contemplate-knowledge of the credulousness of human nature, Miss Lulu Hurst played on her unsuspecting public for two years. She stoutly avers that she thought this was a remarkable "power" of hers, and that it was peculiar to herself; but from the accounts of her various tests and experiments the melancholy fact appears that most of the exhibition was obtained from the struggling, squirming, deluded victims, and that Miss Hurst herself was untired and laughing in her sleeve at the pranks she provoked.

Pictures accompany the text of Miss Hurst's book. They represent men writhing in muscular agony, their knees quivering with force, their arms swollen with muscular energy, their feet planted firmly, trying to move a billiard cue or a chair, while the lithe and smiling girl stands smiling and unwrung opposing all their contortions by a simple open palm. She reduces her own system to formula, and the pictures are marked with letters showing the leverage points.

"The heavy-weight lifting test," that feat which fairly staggered multitudes and which consisted in lifting 600 or 700 pounds' weight of men off the floor on a chair by placing the palms of her hands against the chair back, Miss Hurst explains in an interesting and able manner.

When the feat was tested by scientists in Prof. Bell's laboratory at Washington, Miss Hurst was weighed, and then the pea was put up to 200 pounds. "I then stood on the scales," she goes on, "and lifted a chair containing a man weighing 200 pounds, without increasing my weight the 20 pound margin given." The question was, since nearly 200 pounds of weight was apparently annihilated, and not even the 20 pound margin given her to lift in appeared on the scale figures, what became of the weight when she lifted it? No one ever gave the answer, but the lady now announces herself as prepared to do so—and does it.

A man sits in a chair and places his feet firmly on the floor at two points marked A and B in the illustration. He grasps the sides of the chair at two points marked each D, and tilts the chair so as to throw his weight on the rear legs at points marked G and H. As everybody thought the "power" was electric or magnetic, it was thought necessary for the man in the chair to keep his feet firmly on A and B, so as to produce and sustain the electric current.

A second man sat on the lap of the first man and this newcomer's feet were not allowed to touch the floor. A third man mounted the shoulders of the second. An aggregate weight of 600 pounds thus presented itself for a young and unmuscular girl, knowing no science, then "placed her open palms against the posts of the chair—and behind them on each side, at a point named C—and made the lift without grasping the chair in the least. The first man and the chair constitute, the now learned lady explains, a compound lever, with two fulcrums, one at AB, where the man's feet are, and the other at GH, where the back legs of the chair stand, tilted. "I place my palms against the chair post at C, and instead of lifting the chair the least bit, I press the posts forward and lo! the entire chair, with its weight, comes up, leaving nothing touching the floor but the man's feet. This little movement of pushing the posts forward to C shifting all the weight from the fulcrum at GH (place of the rear legs) and throw it forward upon the fulcrum at AB, the real point of the lever.

The other men may then add their weight to that of the first, and their weight will be distributed at the two fulcrums as the first man's was, but most of it will be thrown at AB (first man's foothold), and lessens the weight at GH (chair leg's position), thus helping the lifter, instead of adding to her task. She simply manipulates the compound lever composed of the chair-back, rear posts and the man's legs, "while the man in the chair does most of the lifting." The principle of resultant test comes into play, for when I push forward one lever at C he is pushing backward at AB, and these two forces coming together create a resultant force in a perpendicular direction and carrying the chair and its weight upward."

The thing is easily proved or disproved, Miss Hurst has a perfect and legitimate right to exhibit a simple and unconscious gift, to make money by it, to decline to explain it, especially as it is a matter of fact that she did not pretend to any of the names of medium, occulist, phenomenon thrust upon her. The question may arise as to whether it was "quite kind" to knock people about as roughly as the influence she exerted seemed to do; but there is no question at all as to her right to enjoy the follies of the superstitious and the gulled.

The editor of the Medical Record discovered that all Miss Hurst's exhibitions of her force were made in opposing voluntary muscular effort in others. "It is the experimenters, not the subject, who knock themselves, the chairs, canes, umbrellas, etc., about." And Miss Hurst goes on to say that once she herself was "mystified beyond expression by standing to one side without touching the chair, after the struggle began, and seeing six excited, struggling men tear a chair to pieces without ever forcing it to the floor." From this she adds a corollary, thus: "The excited state of the subjects themselves, their superstition and their imagination taking such complete possession of them produces a state of partial self-hypnotism."

How the sane and sensible men whose names appeared in connection with Miss Hurst's performances will like this it is not hard to guess. They will probably deny its truth, to begin with. It is, at any rate, one of the most significant of Miss Hurst's statements.

It is open to every person to try the deflection of force with an open palm against the whole muscular force of half a dozen heavy men. As after Miss Hurst's unveiling of the mystery, however, the superstition and imagination will have nothing to feed upon, the experiment will probably always be unsuccessful. And the truth will never be known. The first part of the book relates an unbroken series of successful experiments. Tales of a huge athlete "prancing around like a Shetland pony," in his wild effort to hold a billiard cue, two or three men grasping it, and "seeing it snap in their fingers like a reed;" a major "dancing a war-dance" on the stage, and another one going to his rescue, the two becoming tangled in their gyrations on the stage; "big men tossed about like jack-straws;" people shrieking, scrambling, clawing—all these, and a hundred more incidents are related. It reads like an Arabian Nights entertainment. And so it is. For most people like to be deluded, and aid and abet the deluder by making themselves as pliant as possible, and doing half the tricks themselves.—Mary Abbott, in Chicago Times-Herald.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR AMPUTATION

A new and simple mode of treatment has been introduced in France says the Medical Times, by which, it is claimed, a large proportion of injured limbs now usually amputated, can be saved. The method, which is due to Dr. Reclus, was recently described before the French Congress of Surgery, and is thus explained:

Whatever the extent or gravity of the lesions, he never, under any circumstances, amputates the injured limb, but merely wraps it in antiseptic substances by a veritable embalming process, leaving nature to separate the dead from the living tissues. This method of treatment possesses the double advantage of being much less fatal than surgical exaresis, and of preserving for the use of the patient, if not the entire limb, at any rate a much larger part than would have been left after amputation.

He advocates this very conservative treatment on account of the excellent effects of hot water, which he uses frequently. After the skin has been shaved off and cleansed from all fatty substances by ether, etc., in the usual way, a jet of hot water 60 to 62 degrees Centigrade (140 to 144 degrees), but not higher, is made to irrigate all the injured surfaces, and to penetrate into all the hollows and under the detached parts of the wound without exception. This is the only way of removing all clots, and to wash away all foreign bodies, together with the micro-organisms they may contain. The advantage of hot water at this temperature is antiseptic, heat greatly increases the potency of antiseptic substances; second, it is homostatic (blood stanching); third, it helps to compensate for the loss of heat resulting from the bleeding, and especially from the traumatic shock. After the "embalming" process, and the dead tissue has been separated from the living, the surgeon has nothing to do except to divide the bone at a suitable spot. According to Reclus the results attained are remarkable."

Two Extremes in Eating.

How Men Pay for Style in a City.

Good Meals for a Mere Song in an Adjoining Street.

Writing to the Chicago Times-Herald from New York city, E. V. Smalley says:

Down on the Bowery, near Canal street, I found the other day, the cheapest restaurant in New York. An old music hall has been converted into a vast dining-room, equipped with the customary counters and stools, and at the door there are signs announcing meals for 5 and 10 cents. Ten cent meals are not at all remarkable on the Bowery, where there are dozens of places where you can get what is called a dinner for 10 or 15 cents, but I have never before seen an attempt made to provide a thoroughly clean, decent and appetizing meal for 5 cents. This concern was established as a charity by Dr. Klopsche, proprietor of the Christian Herald, but it is run on a straight business basis, and the manager, who is a nephew of Rev. Dr. Talmage, says that it now pays all expenses of rent, superintendence, food, cooking and waiting. The rent alone is $2,500 a year. Since the restaurant was opened, about a month ago, more than 65,000 meals have been furnished, and more than nine-tenths of them were of the 5-cent class. Now, what does a man get for that nickel? I say a man, for I saw no women at the counters. He has his choice of a plate of hash, liver, beef-stew, or pork and beans, and he gets a bowl of coffee, with sugar and milk, and three slices of good bread. If he prefers oatmeal and milk, he can substitute that for the meat ration. The food is well cooked and wholesome, and is served in very liberal portions, so that a hungry man can really satisfy himself at an expense of only 5 cents.

The 10-cent meal consists of, first, either oatmeal and milk or soup, then a choice of roast meats, with two kinds of vegetables, bread and butter, coffee, or a glass of milk, and some kind of dessert, usually a rice pudding or bread pudding. The place is never closed, night or day. No matter at what hour the hungry wayfarer may pass, the doors are open and the lights burning. The customers are by no means tramps or "bums"—most of them are resectable-looking men. No one is refused a meal, however, no matter how dirty or forlorn may be his appearance, nor is the beggar turned away who has not a cent to pay. There is a back room in which the moneyless applicants for food are freely supplied, but, strange to say, there are very few of this class. Even the destitute and depraved seem to feel that there is a certain impropriety in calling for free victuals in a place where a square meal is offered for 5 cents. It would seem that they prefer to beg the nickel and pay for their meals like honest folks. The manager kindly goes into the details of his economies to anyone who has the curiosity to ask about the workings of the place. He tells at what surprisingly low prices he gets his meat and vegetables by purchasing them in large quantities, and how his milk costs him only 2½ cents a quart. It still seemed something of a mystery, however, how it is possible to fill a hungry stomach with good food for 5 cents and leave a sufficient margin of profit to pay for rent, service and superintendence. The manager insists, nevertheless, that he is building up a modest little bank account, and he likes to tell how the cashier of his bank came one day to see what sort of a meal he could get, and has been coming ever since regularly for his lunch. It seems to me that this institution is a very remarkable and beneficent charity, and I commend it to the attention of people engaged in benevolent work in Chicago as worthy of their study and imitation.

Now, let us go to the other end of the social scale. At the Fifth avenue entrance to Central Park stands three tall and elegant hotels, which are of the very highest rank in New York, and are patronized by wealthy and fashionable people. I am not wealthy or fashionable, but I am stopping with my wife at one of these hotels, having a fancy to see how the world lives in all grades of the social scale. We have a little room on the seventh floor, with one window, and with barely space enough for the essential bedroom furniture. It has two closets, however, and in one of these is a stationary washstand. The outlook over the park is really superb, and is probably taken into account in fixing the tariff for the room. On the door there is a printed card which states that the price of this room, with board for two, is $11 50 a day; for one person $8 50; for two persons, without board, $6 a day, and for one person with board $6 a day. Now, remember that this is a small and cheap room. I am told that if a man and his wife want to live somewhat elegantly, they will have no trouble at all in paying $50 a day at either of these hotels facing the park. Now, $6 a day for my little room amounts to $2,190 a year, and, mind you, the room has only one window, and makes no sort of pretense to luxury. You get the luxury, however, when you descend to the lower floors of the hotel, and find that you pay, not for your little room, but for the beautiful parlors, the comfortable lounging and writing-rooms, the army of well-trained servants always ready to attend your slightest wants, and all expecting a tip; the really good oil paintings on the walls by first-rate French artists and the general air of quiet, dignity and exclusiveness which pervades the whole place. When the landlord tells me that he pays $300,000 a year rent for the hotel, and that he has over 300 servants, I am not disposed to complain about the $6 a day for the little room with the one window. I really wonder how he can make both ends meet.

The restaurants at these upper-class hotels have prices which appal an economical man from the west. A dish of strawberries costs 50 cents; three boiled potatoes are 50 cents; for a few stalks of asparagus they charge 75 cents; any sort of a steak will cost you from $1 50 to $2 50, and the only merit you see in the whole scheme is that two can eat for exactly the same price as one. I am glad to note, however, that the custom of half portions is coming in, but this is of no use to ladies, for it is supplied only in the cafes where the backers resort. It is very difficult in one of these fine restaurants to figure out any kind of a full meal for less than $2, and then it will consist of very plain dishes. Still, if you have the money to spare, there is a certain sense of satisfaction in feeling that you are getting absolutely the best food cooked in the very best way which this great metropolis of contrasted luxury and poverty can possibly afford, and then it may add to your sense of importance to realize that the great Vanderbilt lives just across the way, and that the other Vanderbilts are just a square or two down Fifth avenue, to get a glimpse of the house of the great Mr. Huntington, and to realize that the great Mr. Rockefeller actually belongs to the club which inhabits the great white marble structure just across the avenue. For all these satisfactions you must, of course, pay and to some people, they are well worth paying for. Yet probably the poor man who goes away with his hunger satisfied at the 5-cent eating-house down on the Bowery is about as happy as the millionaire who has disbursed $10 for a small dinner at one of these great Fifth avenue hotels.

What Is Music?

Caterwauling of the Chinese Beautiful to Their Ears.

Maoris Knew the Rudiments of Harmony Earlier, Probably, Than Did the Europeans.

One cannot hope to demonstrate exactly what music was before the days of ancient Greece, Egypt or India, yet an inferential proof of its character may be found by studying the music of the savage races of the present, writes Louis C. Elson in the Baltimore American.

Probably the music of races still in a state of nature is the same today that it was when primeval man trod the earth. In the last century a Jesuit Father, Pere Amiot, went to China to attempt the conversion of the Celestials, and, being an excellent musician, he thought to win souls by playing the spinet to those who became interested in his work. To his amazement he found that his music fell on deaf ears. There was not the slightest interest displayed in it. When he finally induced an intimate Chinese friend to give an outspoken opinion about his art, he was astounded to be told that "the European music is undoubtedly very ingenious, but it does not go to the heart like the old Chinese tunes!"

MORE LIKE CATERWAULING.

Yes these same tunes do not sound as tunes at all to our ears, but resemble the veriest caterwauling. What, then, is music, since the melodies of one people become the dissonance of another? Fetis' definition seems broad enough to cover the ground: "Music is the art of moving the emotions by combinations of sounds." Whatever combinations or sequences of pitches arranged artificially succeeds in awakening emotions in any human being is properly to be classed as music. When the European seeks relief from care in music, he sings the great lieder of Schumann, Schubert or Peretz; when an Abyssinian is depressed he sings "Ha da ri ve" to the notes B, C, D, B, over and over again. It amounts to the same thing in both cases; consolation has been sought and found in the art of music.

LESS OF IMPROVISATION.

The more civilized a people grows, the less it indulges in music. Among savages, however, almost everything which consists of poetry and tone is an impromptu affair. When the Esquimaux welcomed Capt. Kane, they improvised a song on the words, "Great Kane has come," and when the Wayamwezi bade farewell to Stanley after his first African tour, they improvised a song, Mr. Stanley says, that the rhythm and the general effect were beautiful. In such improvisation one finds the beginning of the improvisation which afterwards came to a high development in the music of the Scriptures, and in the Skollon of ancient Greece. The New Zealanders (Maori) have always been especially musical. It was expected, therefore, to find among them a good degree of improvisational spirit.

THE BEGINNING OF HARMONY.

There was discovered, however, something infinitely more interesting and important, viz., the beginning of harmony. Europe, in the middle ages, had merely begun the art of combining melodies, and before A.D. 1000 had the crudest progressions of consecutive fifths and fourths; but the earliest travelers in New Zealand, found the natives singing pretty duets in rounds of thirds. Had the principle of such a combination been known in Europe as early as it probably was in New Zealand, the whole history of music might have been changed, and our art would have been spared some centuries of unsuccessful groping for harmony.

It is an odd coincidence, too, to observe that some of the songs of the New Zealanders resemble the Gregorian chant, and some are akin to the Jewish synagogue music. Strangely enough, for a savage race, they possessed no drums, and this is the more curious when we reflect that the drum is the most natural of all instruments, having its inception in the hollow trunk of any decaying tree. The New Zealander's most prized instrument was a species of flute, which was generally made out of a human thigh-bone. It is a strange fact that many of the cannibal tribes are especially musical—the Maoris are one example, the Fiji Islanders another. Among the latter songs and dances are passionately admired. The heart of Africa retains its devotion to music, untainted by the civilization that has generally substituted for it among the savages a love of rum.

"ASTONISHING PRETENSIONS."

Dr. Bushnell somewhere speaks of the "astonishing pretensions of Jesus." Not the least astonishing thing about these pretensions is the extent to which they have so far been realized in history. If we ask what Jesus Christ has already done in the world we can frame no better reply than the answer of the late Dr. Philip Schaff, who once wrote: "This Jesus of Nazareth, without money and arms, conquered more millions than Alexander, Caesar, Mohammed and Napoleon; without science and learning, he shed more light on things human and divine than all the philosophers and scholars combined; without the eloquence of schools, he spoke words of life such as were never spoken before or since, and produced effects which lie beyond the reach of orator or poet; without writing a single line, he has set more pens in motion and furnished themes for more sermons, orations and discussions, learned volumes, works of art, and sweet songs of praise, than the whole army of great men of ancient and modern time. Born in a manger and crucified as a malefactor, he now controls the destinies of the civilized world and rules a spiritual empire which embraces one-third of the inhabitants of the globe."

WHAT FOOLISH MEN SHOULD DO

The man who does not advertise simply because his grandfather did not ought to wear knee-breeches and a queue.

The man who does not advertise because it costs money should quit paying rent for the same reason.

The man who does not advertise because he tried it once and failed, should throw away his cigar because the light went out.

The man who does not advertise because he does not know how himself ought to stop eating because he can't cook.

The man who does not advertise because somebody said it did not pay ought not to believe that the world is round because the ancients said it was flat.—Printer and Publisher.

Impressive Burial of Barney Barnato, the Diamond King.

Capt. Boycott, the First Boycotted Man, Dead—General Cable News.

BOYCOTT DEAD.

London, June 21.—Captain Boycott is dead. He was about 55 years of age, and became famous through being the first man subjected to the "boycott" in Ireland.

THE OCCUPATION OF THESSALY.

Athens, June 21.—It is reported here that Emperor William has sent a telegram to the sultan requesting him to take measures for the speedy evacuation of Thessaly. There is no indication that any settlement has yet been reached in the peace negotiations.

THE RAND WANTS PEACE.

Pretoria, June 21.—The reply of the government to the recent dispatches of Mr. Chamberlain, which dealt with the recent Alien Immigration Act and other measures which have raised issues affecting the foreign born population of the Volksraad. It is conciliatory in tone, and shows that the republic desires peace. The government will ask arbitration on certain points in controversy, and the reply states the precedents for such a course.

THE DIAMOND KING.

London, July 21.—The interment of the late Barney Barnato, the South African "Diamond King," took place Sunday at the Jewish cemetery in Willisden. An immense crowd of Londoners attended the funeral services, the Jews of the east end predominating. Nearly all the leading men of the London financial world followed the hearse. Prominent among those present at the interment were Lord Marcus Beresford, Sir Edward Vincent, governor of the Imperial Ottoman Bank, and Sir Ellis Ashmead-Bartlett.

DISASTROUS STORMS.

Dover, June 21.—The storms in the channel continue. A large steamer is reported adrift, and the cross channel boats are greatly delayed. A dispatch from Antwerp says: Seven fishing boats on the Belgian coast have been lost with all their crews, and twenty fishing boats have been driven off Scheveningen, on the Dutch coast. The streets of Rotterdam have been flooded.

A Madrid dispatch says: Violent hail and rain storms have swept the province of Zgovia, in the Old Castile district. Crops have been ruined, houses have been flooded and cattle and goods have been carried away by the floods. The people are panic-stricken.

CABLE NOTES.

The Rome Messagero says that Giuseppe Verdi, the celebrated composer, now in his 83rd year, is seriously ill.

Four more bodies of supposed suicides have been found in the Thames, making 21 bodies found in the river during the last three weeks.

The steamer Braemer brings news that the Chinese rebels in Formosa are preparing for a second attack upon Tai Paih, the capital of Formosa. The government authorities have taken vigorous means to meet the attack, and are enlisting numerous volunteers to aid the regular troops stationed there.

BRITISH WILL ADVANCE

Fighting in the Soudan Probable — Officers Ordered Into Service.

London, June 21.—All the British officers in the Egyptian army now on leave in England have received orders to be at their posts between the middle and end of June, in readiness for this year's Soudan advance. A great concentration of the khalifa's forces is taking place, and there are no fewer than 16,000 camels at Omdurman. There is every indication that he means to fight to the death. The only doubt is whether a final stand will be made at Omdurman, or whether the Egyptian advance will be opposed en route. A great council of war is reported to have been held at Omdurman about the middle of June to determine the plan of campaign. The decision arrived at will be known by the Egyptian intelligence department about a fortnight later, and until then the details of the advance cannot be settled.

Meanwhile, it is known that the dervish army from Darfur, which the khalifa lately withdrew from that province, has got back as far as El Obeid, and has been ordered to move to Omdurman by the earliest date that the river rises—that is to say, about the first week in June.

The Egyptian troops now in Dongola are echelonned along the left bank of the Nile, so as to command all the approaches to the river from Omdurman, Metammeh and Berber. As soon as half the length of the Wady Halfa-Abu Hamed desert railway is completed—probably by the middle of July—an advance will be made from Merawi.

While Abu Hamed has been fixed upon as the immediate objective point, an advance to Berber is in contemplation, but this has not been finally decided upon. There is little doubt that the khalifa will strengthen the garrison at Abu Hamid for the purpose of preventing the completion of the railway. This will entail of necessity capturing Abu Hamed when the railway has reached a point at which the dervishes could interfere with it.

THE QUEEN'S BANQUET

At Buckingham Palace—Magnificent Event—Colonial Premiers Introduced.

London, June 21. — The Queen this evening entertained at dinner 90 of her most distinguished guests, at Buckingham Palace. The spacious supper room was a fairy sight, with exquisite costumes, diamonds and countless gems, the most brilliant of uniforms, stars, orders and crosses, without an end, the royal liveries, the table and buffet loaded with the famous gold plate, the value of which runs into millions, and Dresden china, flowers, and lights glittering up to the highly enriched ceiling. Among those present were the Prince and Princess of Wales, with all the members of the royal family, the royal guests, the envoys of states, with the rank of ambassadors, and the great officers of the household, who wore full court dress.

The colonial premiers, with their wives, were presented to her Majesty by Mr. Chamberlain, and the suites of royal and other guests were presented severally by their chiefs. If the streets tonight can be taken as a forecast for tomorrow, Queen's day will be signalized by the assembling in London of not less than 8,000,000 of human beings. At midnight the weather is warm, but the sky is overcast.

Trainmen Kick.

De Barry Promises Retaliation on Canadian Railways

Because London and Windsor Crews Run Into Buffalo.

Buffalo, June 21.—A large delegation of trainmen waited upon Immigration Inspector De Barry this afternoon to protest against the manner in which the Canadian authorities were treating American employes of the Wabash Railway. They told the inspector that the Wabash Railroad was required to put on a crew of Canadians from London to Windsor, when its trains crossed from Detroit to Windsor, and that this Canadian crew took the train from Windsor to Buffalo. The trainmen were indignant, and said that if the Canadian Government was going to do this the Michigan Central and Grand Trunk should be compelled to substitute their Canadian crews for Americans when they entered the United States. Mr. De Barry promised to communicate with the inspectors at Detroit, and that if the situation was as they claimed it to be, he would lay the case before the authorities at Washington, and have them retaliate.

ONTARIO CROPS.

The June Bulletin Issued by the Government—Prospects Improved.

Toronto, June 21.—The June crop bulletin of the provincial department of agriculture was issued today. Following are the most important figures: Acreage under crop in the province—Wheat, 1,290,082 acres; oats, 468,141; barley, 153,266; flax, 20,653; rye, 2,975; peas, 1,669; corn, 713; potatoes, 13,567; roots, 6,139. Total area under all crops 1,958,025. Growth was slow in the latter part of May owing to dry and cold weather. During the second week in June rains were frequent in most parts of the province, and at the present date, continued rain with warm weather has given new life to all crops. The crop prospects are now greatly improved. The quantity of wheat still in farmers' hands is estimated at 821,370 bushels. The number of beef cattle fatted during the winter is placed at 8,729, and milch cows in the province at 65,205. Wheat receipts at Fort William and Port Arthur elevators last week, 296,777; shipments, 407,381; in store, 1,687,345.

CANADIAN TRAGEDIES.

An Ottawa Man Mortally Stabbed—Girl Drowned in the Gatineau.

Ottawa, June 21.—Yesterday afternoon, while three members of the family of Tiberias Wright, of Ironsides, were bathing in the Gatineau, Mary, the 17-year-old daughter, was drowned. She, with a younger sister, was carried out into the current, and the brother went to their assistance. As the younger girl could not swim, he gave her first attention, but before he could return to the older girl, she had gone down to death. The body has been recovered.

Wm. Duval, of Dalhousie street, was stabbed in the back eight times early this morning. A knife was the instrument used, and it penetrated one of the lungs. Duval is living, but no hopes are entertained of his recovery. Patrick Connolly, jun., of Gloucester street, is the man who did it. He told the magistrate this morning that he did so in self-defense. The stabbing was the result of a drunken row.

On the top of the parish church tower in Bicknoller, Somersetshire, England, is a yew tree, now five feet high and still growing.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

After twenty years of most excruciating pain caused by gravel I am pleased to make it known that I have been completely cured of this long-standing trouble by Dodd's Kidney Pills. WILL IT RAIN?

Toronto, June 21—11 p.m.—The low area mentioned yesterday has continued over the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and showers have occurred today in Quebec and Eastern Nova Scotia. Another low area, now central in Manitoba, has caused local thunder storms in the Northwest Territories, and is moving quickly towards the lake region.

Minimum and maximum temperatures:

Esquimalt, 56-72; Kamloops, 58-84; Calgary, 50-76; Prince Albert, 48-70; Qu'Appelle, 52-80; Winnipeg, 52-84; Port Arthur, 38-78; Toronto, 44-68; Ottawa, 44-68; Ottawa, 46-64; Montreal, 44-60; Quebec, 38-58; Halifax, 52-70.

PROBABILITIES.

Toronto, June 22—1 a.m.—Probabilities for 24 hours for lower lake region: Moderate to fresh southwest and south winds; fine, and moderately warm today; local showers or thunder storms tonight.

A Bunting Famine.

Toronto Stores Run Out of Decorating Material.

The City Brilliantly Illuminated—Banquet in Montreal—Merry Del Val Speaks.

Toronto, June 21.—Toronto is tonight given up entirely to the jubilee. The streets from 8 o'clock until midnight were more crowded than ever before in the history of the city. Many of the decorations were extremely brilliant. Business houses were gaily decorated with flags and bunting, and in many cases with elaborate illuminations. Private dwellings in every part of the city are also covered with flags, and brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns and electric lights. The street cars were decorated very prettily, and packed with passengers all the evening. A grand patriotic concert was held in Massey Hall, but it was only fairly well attended, partly on account of the street attractions, and partly because the price of admission was too high. Hon. Mr. Ross delivered an eloquent and patriotic address.

A remarkable point about the decorations in Toronto is that at a late hour this afternoon there was not a store in town that had any bunting for sale or any ribbons fit for decorations. The rush for bunting set in early this morning. Several departmental stores doubled, trebled and even quadrupled the price, but it went all the same and there is tonight a famine in bunting and ribbons.

MONTREAL EN FETE.

Montreal, June 21.—A jubilee banquet was given tonight by the citizens of Montreal in honor of the Queen. Mayor Wilson-Smith presided, and among the principal guests were Mgr. Merry del Val, the papal ablegate to Canada; Sir Adolphe Chapleau, lieutenant-governor of Quebec, and Capt. Gamble, of H. M. S. Talbot. The toast of the Queen was loyally honored. Speeches were made by Sir Adolphe Chapleau and Mgr. Merry del Val, and others. The papal delegate, in response to the toast of his health, which was cordially honored, said that his mission in Canada was simply one of peace, and he had no desire or intention of interfering with the political liberties of the people.

Montreal was brilliantly illuminated tonight in honor of the Queen's jubilee. The illuminations were on a magnificent scale, and were witnessed by thousands of spectators.

BRITISH BOSTON.

Queen's Jubilee Celebrated With Great Enthusiasm—British Sailors Parade the Streets.

Boston, Mass., June 21.—Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee was celebrated here today by salutes from the British warship Pallas, a parade by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, escorting a detachment of sailors and marines from the palace and the Society of British Army and Navy Veterans. The day concluded with a monster banquet at the Mechanics' Hall.

British troops marched through the streets of Boston for the first time in many years. The parade finished at Mechanics' Hall, where had already assembled a large number of English residents of this city and many of the citizens of English birth. The banquet was attended by over 2,500 persons, including Governor Wolcott and many of the state officials, Mayor Quincy, Sir Dominick Colnaghi, British consul in Boston, Capt. Humphage of the Palais, and the president of the Scots, Irish and British charitable societies.

NEW YORK CANADIANS

Celebrate the Jubilee With a Banquet.

New York, June 21.—The Canadian Club of the City of New York and its invited guests dined in the main banqueting hall of the Windsor Hotel tonight, in celebration of Queen Victoria's jubilee. Covers were laid for 75, and among those present were Ellis E. Roberts, United States treasurer, representing the St. David Society; Prestus Wiman, Dr. F. Ferguson, representing the Scotch Gaelic Society; Rev. Edward H. Kraus, Prof. Chas. Roberts, Col. Warin and Capt. De Clot, of the French navy.

During the evening the following greeting was cabled: "Alde de camp in Waiting, Buckingham Palace, London, S. W.,—The Canadian Society of New York, assembled at the Windsor Hotel to commemorate the 60th anniversary of the accession of her most gracious Majesty, beg to express heartfelt congratulations on the auspicious occasion."

UNITED STATES WOOL DUTY.

Washington, D. C., June 21.—The Senate finance committee has practically reached a conclusion on the wool schedule of the tariff bill.

Following are the rates which the finance committee has indicated a willingness to grant: First class, 10c per pound; second class, 11c; third class, if worth over 10c per lb, 7c; if worth less than 10c, 4c. These rates are not entirely satisfactory to the advocates of a high wool tariff, but there is reason to believe that they will be accepted with but little of any protest.

A DINNER PILL.—Many persons suffer excruciating agony after partaking of a hearty dinner. The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healthy nutriment, it becomes a poison to the system. Dr. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions and convert the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. They are just the medicine to take if troubled with Indigestion or Dyspepsia.

REV. MR. BALL'S FUNERAL.

A Toronto dispatch says: The remains of Rev. Wm. S. Ball, pastor of the Presbyterian churches at Eglinton and Bethseda (formerly chaplain of the Seventh Battalion, London), who died suddenly last Saturday morning, were conveyed from his late residence, Bedford road, this (Monday) afternoon and interred in the Necropolis cemetery, in the presence of a large concourse of those who had been connected with him during life. The services were performed by Rev. Dr. Smith, of Port Hope, and Rev. Dr. Greig, of Knox College, and the Presbyterian Church was well represented in the funeral cortege. The casket was carried by the four sons and two sons-in-law of deceased. Upon the breast of the dead pastor was a medal for military services, and as a recognition of these services the casket was draped with the Union Jack flag. Deceased was a brother-in-law of the late Hon. Geo. Brown.

HANDY DREAMER.

Morpheus Showed Her Where a Bag of Stolen Diamonds Had Been Hidden, All but One $50 Ring.

A Cleveland correspondent writes: The residence of Mrs. L. C. Seymour, near Glenwood Beach, on the lake shore, east of this city, was entered by burglars last Wednesday night, and diamonds valued at $3,000 were stolen. The diamonds were recovered this morning as the result of a series of realistic dreams, in which Mary Dreay, a domestic employed by Mrs. Seymour, and Mary's sister, and the sister's little boy all took a hand. Mary found the missing diamonds at 4 o'clock this morning in the stump of a tree in the garden. They were all there save one ring valued at $50.

Mrs. Seymour, in telling of the recovery of her diamonds, said:

"My servant, Mary, paid a visit to her sister the day after the robbery, and before she had told the sister anything about the stolen diamonds the sister told her about a dream she had the night before. She dreamed that she saw two men come into my parlor and take the diamonds. She described every circumstance very minutely, and Mary was much impressed.

"Mary went to her sister's home again on Saturday, and the sister's little son told of a dream that he had the night before. The little fellow said he dreamed that Mary would find the missing diamonds. He said that he could plainly see her get up early in the morning and find the diamonds. He could not just see where she found them, but in his dream he saw them in his aunt's hands after she had located them.

"We were so impressed with the dreams that we persuaded Mary to rise early Sunday morning and search for the diamonds. She did not find them, but early this morning she had a dream, in which she saw the diamonds in the hollow stump of a tree in the garden. She awoke a few minutes later, and after calling me went out into the garden and walked directly to the hollow stump and there found the diamonds.

"They were still in the chamoise pouch, and only the $50 ring was missing. Some one had placed a dime and a quarter in the bag. I am sure I never put it there. I am also certain that the diamonds were taken by some one who understood the house. Another curious feature about the discovery is the fact that I consulted a fortune-teller the day before we found the jewels, and she told me all about myself, where I kept things about the house, and finally said that my diamonds had been stolen. Then she said that she saw two men come into my house and take the diamonds. She said further, that I would soon find the diamonds near the house.

"Mary is strictly honest. She is a Welsh woman, and has been in my employ several years. I have every confidence in her. Up to about a year ago I was troubled with burglars quite frequently."

Mrs. Seymour is the widow of Chas. S. Seymour, the auctioneer. She is well-known in Cleveland society circles.

A Lover's
GERALDINE:
Romance.

"Why doesn't he come in? What can he be afraid of? thought she; and with an impatient hand already upon the door-handle, she was on the point of calling to him, when a suspicion that it might be her husband or some one set to watch her on his behalf arrested her for a moment, and spurred her the next instant to run out into the garden after the retreating man.

But, as soon as there was no damp glass between them to give indistinctness to the outline of his figure, she was reassured, and, following him quickly as he still retreated before her, she called softly:

"Dr. Ledbury, Dr. Ledbury, I want to speak to you—I must speak to you!"

Still he paid no attention to her, and seemed bent upon escaping into the trees, which grew thickly up to the borders of the garden on the east side of the house.

"Doctor, you are in danger; my husband suspects you!" she hissed out; and at these words the escaping figure stopped short and slowly turned.

Her object gained, Geraldine stopped also, and sank for a moment panting, more from emotion than fatigue, upon a garden seat. As she heard his footsteps returning to her side, she said, in a whisper:

"Why did you give me this chase? Come back to the conservatory. Do you want to set all the servants talking?"

And rising, without turning to look at him, she led the way back. But she heard no footsteps following her, and, turning impatiently she saw he was still standing by the seat.

"Why don't you come?" she asked feverishly; then, as he did not answer, she came back slowly with her eyes fixed apprehensively upon him in the gloom, until she was almost near enough to touch him, when she suddenly staggered back, with a sharp-drawn breath, whispering, "James!"

And as the word left her lips she felt his arm supporting her, and trembled at his touch, with a thrill of excitement she did not understand.

"James!" she repeated—"James, I did not know you—I took you for Dr. Ledbury—your figure in the dark looked so like him. It is you, isn't it?" she continued, as he still did not speak.

And, looking up, she saw that his face was not the gentle, kind face of the brother and playfellow she had tyrannized over, nor did it bear the dull, dazed expression which had seemed so pitiful to her when she saw him at Chiswick, and while he was confined to the room in the west wing; but he looked like a man roused suddenly out of a deep sleep to find himself standing on the brink of an abyss. She uttered a faint cry like a sob, and tried to free herself from him; but he would not let her go. He looked down at her without loosing the strange expression of fear, bewilderment, and resolution which seemed stamped upon his features, and said, in a deep voice, which always grew sweet when it addressed her:

"Don't be afraid of me, Deldee. I must speak to you, child; I must know what you meant by those words you intended for the doctor."

But for answer she made another effort to get away from him; and, feeling that the hand with which she tried to remove his from her arm was icily cold, he led her back to the conservatory, and stepped inside with her.

"Now, Deldee, tell me what you meant," said he, letting her arm go and looking down at her steadily.

She put up her hands to her head and remained silent for a moment, with her eyes on the ground and a look of hopeless bewilderment and uncertainty on her face. He came nearer to her, and put out one hand as if to touch her shoulder; but he drew it back again, and only whispered, bending his head to see her face:

"Tell me, Deldee."

She drew herself up and returned the gaze of his inquiring eyes with a look so imploring, so full of fiery despair, that his resolution melted as he met it, and her first words were uttered as she was springing forward to comfort her. She shrank back frightened, and stopped him by a gesture as she spoke:

"Don't ask me—don't ask me! I am so puzzled, and bewildered and miserable that I don't know what I say or why I say it. I am hedged in by horrible fears, and I speak without thinking, just what they dictate to me. I have been teased and tortured, and put on the rack to answer questions and to evade them, until I seem to have no sense left to understand what I say. I have had to answer, with my will or against it, at my husband's command. Must I suffer the same torture at yours?"

"No, no! Heaven forgive me, Deldee—I would rather lose my right hand than cause you a moment's pain!" said he, not daring to advance, or even to look at her, but speaking in a low voice, every note of which thrilled her as she listened to him.

Then neither spoke for a few moments. He remained standing on the same spot, as if under some spell too strong for him to break, while she tried to regain her composure and to decide what she might safely tell him of a secret which was growing too heavy for her to bear alone. She turned to the flowers, and touched the blossoms near her with her fingers, which felt nothing, and bent over them mechanically with no sense of their fragrance. Under the excitement of James' presence thought came quickly; but, when she turned suddenly toward him, she met his eyes fastened on her with a burning light in them which instantly recalled to her mind the wild words of fondness which he had written about her in the pocket book put into her husband's hands by Dr. Ledbury. The words she had upon her lips were forgotten, her own gaze fell, and, without a sound, she turned toward the dining-room door, trying to recover her serenity that she might dismiss him calmly.

She had not gone three steps before he came to her side, and holding out his hand, said gently, without that passionate tremor in his voice, which destroyed her self-possession:

"You will forgive me for disturbing you, Deldee. It wasn't quite my fault, you know, was it? You will say good-night, won't you?"

"Good night," she faltered, giving him her hand with a timidity and constraint which she could not conquer and without looking up.

He retained her fingers in his grasp for a few seconds, and then said softly:

"Don't send me away like this, as if you were angry with me. I've done nothing to deserve it this time. I did not want to speak to you tonight; it was you who insisted on stopping me, wasn't it? Look up at me, and say frankly, 'Good night, James!' I haven't so many friends that I can afford to think I have offended one—and especially my—my good fairy!"

His voice shook a little on the last words; but, when she obediently raised her eyes, the fiery gaze she could not meet was gone—it was a kind, friendly face that was bent toward her, and reassured her. With her self-possession came back the remembrance that she had a warning to give him, and she repeated his last words earnestly:

"Your good fairy! Yes, your good fairy has something to tell you—something so terrible that she does not know how to tell it. James, you are innocent, are you not?" she burst out, suddenly, in a very low voice, but with the earnestness of a vital question.

He started with a look of pain and reproach which made her impulsively place her hands carassingly on his arm.

"I don't mean of the murder," she whispered quickly, "but of—of any other very wicked thing."

"I—I hope so," said he, rather confused. "What do you mean?"

She hesitated, and then said in a whisper:

"My husband suspects you—thinks you have—— O James, you would never run away with another man's wife, would you?"

But the question disconcerted him; he drew himself up and began to play with his mustaches without at once answering. His evident agitation shocked and alarmed her, and after waiting for him to speak, she caught his hand and said, piteously:

"James, James, why don't you answer? It can't be true—I won't believe it is true. I did doubt you once—I couldn't help it—everything seemed so clearly against you; but you would never have come here and faced my husband as you did today if you had done the wrong he thinks. I am sure of it. Why don't you speak out, and tell me my trust is well-founded? O James, you don't know how dear your honor is to me!"

Her fingers were twitching, and trembled around his, as her voice grew more plaintive, more earnest, in proportion to his increasing reluctance to look at and answer her. As the last words fell from her lips, he tried to snatch his fingers from her clasp; but she clung imploringly to him and whispered:

"No, no; you know I will forgive you anything—only tell me, tell me! I must know the truth; I have been in suspense so long."

Then he turned toward her at last; but it was with an expression that made her shrink back involuntarily, and try to withdraw the hand which he now, in his turn, held fast. The passion with which she had pleaded to him to confess to her seemed but a feeble little gust beside the storm which shook his strong frame and flashed from his eyes, and cowed her into timid silence as she listened.

"Why do you ask me, when you know what my answer must be? I cannot tell you a lie—I have tried to avoid telling you the truth; you ought to shrink from it, too. You are too severe; you treat a temptation conquered as gravely as you would a temptation yielded to if you were merciful. If you were wise, you would ignore it altogether. I cannot understand you tonight."

"Then you did run away with her, James?"

"With her? With whom?"

"Captain Morrison thinks you wanted to run away with—is—his——"

Big Banquet in New York City Last Night.

International Relations Discussed by Mr. Wiman.

New York, June 21.—At the jubilee dinner of the new Canadian society, given at the Windsor Hotel, tonight, Erastus Wiman was one of the speakers. He said:

The splendor of the diamond jubilee of the Queen possessed a peculiar significance in the magnificent hospitality extended to representatives of Canada. The extraordinary prominence attached to the utterances of the premier, Mr. Laurier, and above all the frankness and sincerity in the discussion of the relations between the different parts of the empire, implied such a permanency of connection between the mother country and British North America as to be full of instruction to the lesser half of the continent comprising the United States. The lesson taught was the acceptance of the belief throughout the world, that forever hereafter, so far as mortal vision could penetrate, British dominion on this continent would continue. This was a fact of profound significance to the United States, who at this very moment had commenced a career of annexation, going out of their way 2,000 miles to include Hawaii, and her exceedingly mixed population, within the union of commonwealths. Once in pursuit of outside territory, Cuba would be the next in order, and to the average American, the possession of Canada would seem to follow as a matter of course. But there never was a greater mistake. The day had gone by when it was possible that the territorial area of the United States could be extended further north than the St. Lawrence, the Great Lakes and the existing imperceptible border line, that south of its center cuts the continent in two. The time was, perhaps, when such a possibility existed, but that time was past. A great game had been played—a game between two leaders in diplomacy, the United States and Great Britain. The stake had been half a continent—a possession of far vaster importance to the United States than to England. For if there is anything at this moment essential to the restoration of prosperity to this country, it is a duplication of the elements which have hitherto alone made it prosperous, namely, ever-widening areas, immediate employment of the largest immigration and enrichment by the development of natural resources. But the game to win a region far greater than was won by the civil war had been lost, so far as political aggrandizement was concerned. It would continue to be lost, so far as concerns commercial gain, until a reversal of policy by the United States was reached, which in the reaction now possible, might soon come. In this great game for half a continent, had Great Britain chosen the cards, she would have selected a hand containing the very cards the United States has played. From the hour, a quarter of a century ago, that at a commercial convention in Detroit, the United States consul-general at Montreal recommended a repeal of the then existing reciprocity treaty, with the avowed purpose of forcing Canada into the union, down to the present discussion of the tariff at Washington, the policy of the United States has resulted in a more complete separation of the two nationalities that together held this continent in common, than could have been accomplished by any other means. Commercial hostility, expressed in the repeal of the reciprocity treaty, in order to force Canada into annexation, followed twenty years later by the agricultural section of the McKinley bill for the same purpose, with numerous other indications of similar spirit, had as completely separated Canada from the United States as if a war had been declared and a physical attempt had failed to force that people into the union. The proposed repeal of the bonding privilege of the Canadian railways, the threatened alien law and the high duties now proposed on all that Canada produces, and that the United States so badly needs, will have no different result. Indeed, the close observer in the United States of Canadian development, cannot fail to see the effect of this hostile policy upon a people so self-reliant, so aggressive and self-contained as are the Canadian people. The feature most marked in their career is their intense loyalty to Great Britain, and in their eager desire to trade with her and to prefer her because of the treatment they have received at the hands of the United States. True, the Canadians are suffering from the isolation, resulting from an inability to reach their natural markets, from which they are cut off by the barbed wire fence of a tariff which cuts the continent in two. But the depression on the northern side of the line, is not greater than that which exists along the southern side of the border. The end of the world, so far as trade toward the north is concerned, seems to have come to such cities as Oswego, Rochester, Detroit, Duluth, etc. The only prosperous place along the entire border is Spokane, rendered possible by the marvelous development of Canadian mines in the vicinity, and yielding riches so great as to enable them to climb over the tariff. If in a review of the policy pursued by the United States respecting the greater half of the continent there is a single element of satisfaction, it is difficult to perceive it. On the other hand, a review of the policy pursued in respect to the same region by Great Britain must at this moment yield intense gratification to all who desire to see perpetuated the glories of that empire. Canada, comprising no less than 40 per cent of that broad domain, might have been lost to her forever; but now whatever may be the commercial future of these two countries, this at least is assured, that Great Britain and Canada, her greatest and nearest possession, are forever indissolubly united. It may be that this conviction, now so plainly evinced in these jubilee celebrations, will have a marked effect upon the future policy of the United States. No longer will this country be actuated by a commercial hostility, having for its purpose the conquest of Canada politically. As the younger Pitt long ago predicted, Great Britain has captured the United States commercially, so can the United States thus capture Canada to the great advantage of Great Britain, to the enormous enrichment of Canada, and with an advantage to the United States far exceeding that which in any other single direction can be achieved. The one cure for hard times on both sides of the border is the broadened opportunity which the opening up of new regions in the north will afford, the new markets that will follow, and the new room for immigration that this region on this continent alone affords. If, as one of the results of the Queen's diamond jubilee some such consideration should impress itself on the people of the United States, no greater blessing could be included in the long catalogue of benefits, which the life of her Majesty illustrates.

The Burwash Case.

Speculation Rife Among Methodists as to Its Disposal.

Principal of Montreal Theological Institute Said to Be in the Same Category.

Toronto, June 21.—The talk of Chancelor Burwash being called to task before the regents of Victoria College by the general superintendent, at the August meeting of the board, is quite lively in Methodist ministerial circles. Among the statements made from Toronto Methodist preachers who belong to the "advanced thought" section, are that the Rev. Dr. Shaw, principal of the Wesleyan Theological Institute, Montreal, is in the same category as Chancellor Burwash, because in his recent publication he declares that Christ, when describing future torment, was speaking in a metaphorical sense. The same "school" of Methodist divines asks who among professors at Victoria College is orthodox, if Chancellor Burwash is not? It is further asserted that it will be found impossible to formulate charges against Chancellor Burwash affecting his standing as a Methodist minister, and it is claimed on his behalf that such should be the only question to be raised. In consequence of the foregoing statements a representative of the Mail and Empire asked from an official source yesterday morning, what was the "Methodist standard of faith." The reply was "The 52 sermons and notes of John Wesley." The local Methodist higher critics state that if Dr. Carman presses his charge against Chancellor Burwash's orthodoxy or suitability, holding the views of a higher critic, for the principalship of the Methodist University, ten times as much difference can be established between Dr. Carman's teachings and John Wesley's, as compared with the divergence of the teachings of Chancellor Burwash and the founder of Methodism.

MOUNT BRYDGES.

Mount Brydges, June 21.—Mrs. Robert Sutherland, of con. 3, passed away to her reward about seven o'clock yesterday morning. Deceased some time ago underwent an operation in the London hospital, but to no avail, and has at last succumbed to her sufferings. She was a sincere and earnest Christian, a member of Cook's Presbyterian Church, and previous to her illness was an active worker in the W. C. T. U. She leaves, besides her devoted husband, two children, a boy and a girl, the latter only about 2 years old. Interment will take place on Wednesday afternoon in Cook's Presbyterian cemetery. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved family.

Mr. Burnham, of Brick street (near London), a former resident of this community, died on Saturday at the London hospital, where he underwent an operation about two weeks ago. Interment in Mount Brydges cemetery.

Special jubilee services were held in the Methodist Church last evening. The church was handsomely decorated for the occasion. Pictures of the Queen, surrounded by maple leaves and the Union Jack made a pleasing sight. Flags and bunting and flowers were hung all around the church. Rev. Mr. Kerr took his text from the Book of Proverbs: "Many daughters have done virtuously, but thou excellest them all." He reviewed the life of the Queen from her childhood until the present, and drew lessons therefrom, which would be worthy for all to follow. The service was closed by all heartily joining in singing the "National Anthem." The choir also rendered two excellent anthems.

Rev. Mr. Kerr preached his farewell sermon on Sunday morning next, and leaves for his new field of labor in Thamesville on the following day.

The Oddfellows of Ilderton Lodge paid Mount Brydges Lodge a fraternal visit on Friday evening last. The brethren, on their arrival, were taken to the Bignell House, where an excellent supper was partaken of, and thence to the lodge room, where a very pleasant evening was spent in speech and song. A return visit will be made some time during the summer.

GRANTON.

Granton, June 18.—Mr. Elijah Langford has commenced the erection of a new residence on King street.

Our Methodist people intend having a jubilee entertainment on the parsonage grounds on the evening of June 22. All of the local clergymen of other denominations are billed to take part in the proceedings.

A football tournament will take place here on the afternoon of June 22, at which a number of teams will compete. Prizes will be awarded according to merit.

Our public school jubilee entertainmen on Friday afternoon reflects great credit on the teachers, Misses McGowand Goulding, as well as the children, who furnished the entertainment. The essays on the subjects, "Sketch of Her Majesty's Life," "The Statesmen of the Victorian Era," "Science and Invention during the Victorian Era," and "Canada During the Victorian Era," by Masters Oswald Webb, Joe and Gilbert Grant and Willie Stewart, respectively, are more especially worthy of mention. While we cannot give a report of the programme in full, suffice it to say that the audience are loud in praise of the rendition of the several numbers. Master Oscar Lang performed his part of chairman with ability, which would do credit to an older and more experienced head.

Representatives Moffat and White, of the Siempel Fire Extinguisher Manufacturing Company, held a public exhibition on Friday night on the mill square, south of the railway. A small house, ten feet square by six feet high, was constructed of inflammable material, and therein was placed a quantity of excelsior and firewood, the whole structure then thoroughly sprinkled with four gallons of coal oil. It was then ignited, and when the heat was unbearable at forty feet, Mr. Moffat began playing on the fire, and in less than one minute the fire was entirely extinguished. The apparatus is small and can be conveniently carried under the arm.

Miss Maggie Foster is visiting her aunt at Thedford, who is about to remove to Dakota.

We are glad to see Mr. John Foreman able to be around once more.

Mrs. Charles Foreman has arrived here after an extended visit in Cleveland. Miss Duckett accompanies her.

London's Only Departmental

We'll be closed today, and our seventy odd employes given a chance to celebrate the

QUEEN'S DIAMOND JUBILEE.

The enthusiasm of trade last week has given us fresh inspiration, and tomorrow and all this week we're prepared to add to the occasion special displays and special bargains all over the Big Store.

It's really wonderful to see the crowds that congregate here from day to day. There certainly must be an attraction both in goods and prices, for the swing of trade is coming this way more than ever.

The comfort of shopping in this bright and busy store, and the convenience of finding nearly everything you want under one roof, coupled with economy in buying, makes this the great center of attraction, and headquarters for general merchandise.

But in order to further stimulate trade and add to the general enthusiasm which pervades the whole establishment, we've put forth extra exertion to make this week the busiest yet.

In every department additional specials will be added daily so that no matter when you come you'll be sure to find something new and something you haven't seen before.

A new lot of Fine French Organdie Dress Muslins, beautiful goods, didn't arrive till Saturday afternoon, when we were too busy to open them. They are on sale now at 20c a yard, worth 30c, 35c and 40c. Don't miss them.

Also four cases Ladies' Assorted Sailor Hats (trimmed) at 25c, worth 75c and $1. And 8,000 yards Beautiful Silk Ribbons, elegant goods, half price.

Specials all this week in Silk, Cashmere, Lisle Thread and Cotton Hose, also Lace Mitts, Silk and Kid Gloves.

All Mail Orders Promptly Attended To.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 23.

BREAKFAST—Bananas, cream. Stewed kidneys. English breakfast gems. Tea or cocoa.

LUNCHEON—Pannikins. Brown Bread and butter. Stewed gooseberries. Bachelor's buttons. Iced or hot tea.

DINNER—Cream of pea soup. Fried white fish. New potatoes, sauce Bechamel. Raspberry cream. Coffee.

Cut out these recipes and paste them in a scrap-book.

English Breakfast Gems—Mix well one pint sifted flour, one teaspoonful baking powder, one-half teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful sugar; rub into this three teaspoonfuls melted butter, add one cupful sweet milk, beaten yolks of two eggs; lastly the beaten whites of the eggs; heat iron gempans, grease wall, fill over half-full, bake quickly.

Pannikins—Chop fine enough cold meat to make a pint—if any of fricasseed kidney is left from breakfast, add it. Put the meat on to heat with two tablespoonfuls water and a cup of rich sweet milk. Thicken with a tablespoonful each of flour and butter rubbed together; add half a teaspoonful of salt, a good pinch of pepper and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, if liked; pour this creamed hash into the center of a hot platter; bake as many eggs as are required in hot, buttered cups; turn them out and arrange them around the creamed meat; put a pinch of salt and pepper and a bit of butter the size of a hazlenut on each egg.

Bachelor's Buttons—Rub together two tablespoonfuls butter and five of flour. Divide five tablespoonfuls sugar into two portions; stir one into the flour; heat the other up with one egg and add to the rest. Flavor with few drops of almond flavoring. Make into balls—with the hand—the size of a hickorynut, sprinkle lightly with white suggar, place on buttered paper and bake rather slowly. Very dainty.

Raspberry Cream—Place a pint of raspberries in a bowl, add one tablespoonful of powdered sugar. Let them stand for an hour, then rub through a sieve. Soak one ounce of gelatine in two teaspoonfuls of cold milk for an hour, then add to it one cup scalding hot milk, two tablespoonfuls granulated sugar. Stir until the ingredients are thoroughly dissolved. Set aside, and, when cool, add the strained raspberries. Whip one-half pint cream, add one-half teaspoonful vanilla and whisk all lightly together. Set in a very cold place to harden. A half-pint of raspberries may be kept very cold, sweetened slightly and poured round the mold, when turned out ready for the table.

JOSEPH RICHARDSON, who died in New York the other day, and left an estate estimated at $20,000,000, was a most eccentric man. He dressed like a tramp, and lived in a house that was only five feet wide. This house he built to spite the owners of neighboring property, who refused to pay him the price asked for the narrow strip of land upon which it stood. It is doubtless very nice to have twenty millions, but it can't be much fun to be the kind of a man that Richardson was.

The Day We Celebrate.

Blackwood's Magazine.

The trumpeters in a row,
With a note as clear as a bell,
And all the flutes and the fifes below,
And the brazen throats, and the strings of fire,
To let the people know
That the Mother, the Queen, the heart's desire
From her palace doth go.

Princes, form in array!
Great ye are, and greater may be;
But only guards and vassals today
To the Lady enshrined in duty and love;
Pacing forth on her way
In weakness of age, and in power above
All words we can sing or say.

The streets that sound like the sea
When the tumult of life is high,
Now, in a murmur of voices free,
Hum and ripple and rustle and stir,
Straining each other to see—
To gaze and to watch and to wait for Her
Whose subjects and lovers they be.

Sons and lovers and subjects all,
The high and the low together—
From princes that ride in the festival
To us in the crowd who but shout and gaze;
Rendering, every man and all,
Thanks to our God for her lengthened days
And the nation's festival.

Hark! What is this which hushes the crowd?
A sound of silence amid the noise;
The sweep of a pause through the plaudits loud—
A moment, a stillness, a start, a stir—
The great heart of the multitude
Holding its breath as it waits for Her,
One being in all the crowd.

She is coming, is coming! the Queen! the Queen!
Here is our moment in all the day,
One voice for all, and the air serene,
Quivers, as if by a storm blew by;
A little more, and there had been
Gates burst apart in the very sky,
To hear a whole nation shouting on high—
The Queen! the Queen! the Queen!

A Local Budget

—To the weather man: Don't bunch your hits.

—Mrs. J.A. Stuart, Exeter, is visiting London friends.

—Mr. W. E. Leng, postmaster of East London, is quite ill.

—Miss Clara Macmorien, of Port Huron, is visiting Mrs. James R. Elliott, of 98 Horton street.

—Miss Jennie Poole, of Detroit, Mich., is visiting Miss Mary Inwood, Egerton street, city.

—Mr. B. A. Cahoe, of the Toronto University, is visiting at the residence of Mr. W. E. Leng, Dundas street east.

—The aldermen and trustees will leave for Springbank on Wednesday at 2 p.m., the car leaving the city hall.

—The choicest designs in wedding invitations at Advertiser Job Department. Orders by mail receive prompt attention.

—A large quantity of jubilee stamps have been sold at the east end postoffice, many of the purchasers obtaining full sets, which cost $16.21 each.

—Mr. Thos. Gillean heard from Mrs. Gillean yesterday. She has been visiting in the Scottish highlands, but with her friends is now in the British metropolis, viewing the jubilee celebrations.

—R. Lewis, 434 Richmond street, has received the contract to repaint and freshen up the bricks of the exterior of the entire Masonic Temple. It is a big job, and will keep several men engaged for some time.

—Mr. C.W. Austin, 578 Waterloo street, has grown in his garden a crop of phenomenal strawberries. Many of them are 4⅞ inches in circumference, and the average is 4 inches. More remarkable still, this is the first yield.

—Louis Rundle, of London township, was brought before Squire J. B. Smyth last night on a very serious charge of having, on Sept. 11, 1896, criminally assaulted Nellie Nichol, a girl under 14 years of age. He was remanded for a week.

—Detroit Free Press: The large audience at the benefit tendered Messrs. Paladino (formerly of London) and Moore at the Lyceum last night proved the popularity of these two attaches of that theater. The programme was attractive, and the artists were generously applauded.

—Association Hall presents a gay appearance. Streamers of Union Jacks adorn the front of the building, and form the letters "Y. M. C. A.," two stories in height. Over the entrance is a transparency with a diamond-shaped border, and a portrait of the Queen in the center.

—The demand for jubilee stamps at the postoffice yesterday was almost equal to Saturday's rush, and the supply of ½, 5, 6 and 50 cent denominations and postcards is exhausted. More have been ordered and the extra supply is expected hourly. Singularly some half-dozen applicants for the stamps were under the impression that they were to be given away free.

LOCAL LEGAL.

Before Judge Moss, in the case of Clark vs. Becher, judgment was given on motion of Elizabeth Blain, a second mortgagee for payment out of court of the surplus proceeds (about $80) of a mortgage sale, paid in by the mortgagees. A NEW COVERED RINK.

A covered skating rink, which will compare favorably in size with the Princess and Westminster rinks, is now in course of construction on Lyle street, East London. It is to have an arched roof, and about half the number of big supports have been placed. Mr. C. W. Smith is the proprietor.

BUILDING PERMITS.

Building permits have been taken out as follows:

Catharine McMillan, frame cottage on lot 81, north side York street, St. Paul's survey, to cost $670.

W. Lannin, 408 Rectory street, brick veneer, one and a half story residence, north side King street, between Glebe and Rectory, to cost $1,000.

George E. Carrothers, 192 Simcoe street, brick veneer one and a half story residence, west side Adelaide street, between the Hamilton road and Grey street, to cost $1,000.

RAILWAY RUMORS.

A Toronto dispatch says: "There are rumors of important changes on the Grand Trunk Railway impending. General Superintendent McGuigan, it is said, is about to become general manager of the Central Vermont Railway, which is controlled by the G. T. R. If he takes this appointment it is understood Superintendent E. H. Fitzhugh will succed him, and that Mr. Fitzhugh will in turn be succeeded by Geo. C. Jones, assistant superintendent at London.

THE DINING CAR SYSTEM

A Great Convenience—The G. T. R. Spend Ten Thousand a Year Here—The C. P. R.'s Service.

The Grand Trunk has put on a dining car between London and Sarnia, which is popular with the traveling public on through trains. It is first attached to the Pacific express, at Sarnia, allowing passengers to breakfast between Sarnia and London. It returns to Sarnia at 11:55, and comes back again. It goes west again on a local train to Strathroy, and, laying there, catches the Pacific express for Sarnia. The other dining car on this division runs between the Falls and Hamilton. The dining car system is a good thing for London. This city is its headquarters, under Superintendent Watson's charge, and about $10,000 a year is expended here, where all the supplies are purchased. This indicates a handsome patronage. Meals are served on either the European or American plan, as the customer wishes. A dollar is the average cost of a meal on the American plan. A conductor and three waiters comprise the staff of one car, and as they are always clothed in spotless linen, their laundry bills here make a considerable item. In addition, a reserve car, well stocked with provisions, is always kept here, ready for emergencies.

The Canadian Pacific have also a capital dining car service on all trains passing London, though the supplies are purchased in Montreal and Toronto. The trains going east at 4:15 and 4:27 p.m., and going west at 11:25 and 8:10 p.m., have either dining or bouffe cars attached. The latter are very convenient. Passengers may have refreshments brought to their seats, and they pay on the European plan. On the American plan meals are 75 cents each.

DUNDAS CENTER SUNDAY SCHOOL

Passes a Jubilee Resolution — The Growth of Temperance Sentiment Remarked.

The service at the Dundas Center Methodist Sunday school Sunday was of a jubilee nature. The school room was tastefully decorated with flags and bunting, and a portrait of the Queen was suspended from the gallery railing. After the lesson hour, Mr. E. R. Dennis, a member of Prof. J. H. Bowman's class, gave an able address on the great progress made along Christian lines during the Victorian era. As it was also the regular temperance Sunday, the following appropriate resolution was presented and carried unanimously:

Moved by C. E. Cowley, seconded by Dr. C. H. Ziegler, and resolved:

"That as loyal subjects of Queen Victoria, we desire to voice our satisfaction that her most gracious Majesty has been spared for the phenomenal period of 60 years to reign over the British empire, and trust that Providence may permit her benign personal sway to continue for years yet to come.

"Many allusions from various quarters have been appropriately made to the commercial, industrial, territorial, literary and philanthropic progress of the English-speaking world during the 60 years of the Queen's reign; but the progress in moral sentiment has been equally marked. In this blessing of moral progress, Canada has bountifully shared; and perhaps in no part of the world is there a situation, particularly in regard to the temperance reform, so advanced as that of Ontario.

"Optimism is a part of unwritten Methodist doctrine; pessimism is a gospel of despair. Our belief is that the world is not growing worse, but that it is growing better, and no more convincing proof of this should be needed than a review of the steady progress of the temperance cause in Ontario since our good Queen ascended the throne. Sixty years ago the temperance pledge was a pledge only against whisky, gin and brandy; wine and beer being considered temperance drinks. It was thought nothing strange that clergymen should take a refresher in the vestry to brace them up for the Sabbath service. Lay total abstainers were few and far between, and liquor was generally offered the minister when he made a pastoral call. In former days, in erecting a barn, a supply of grog was thought as necessary as a supply of nails and timber. To close up a business transaction without a drink was thought rather risky. Time was when an agricultural exhibition could hardly close without a drunken row, punctuated by black eyes. What an evolutionary change has taken place Today nearly all clergymen in Ontario are abstainers. Today it is not considered good form for business men to offer drinks and cigars as bait for customers. Today no railway company, no important manufacturing or mercantile concern has any place for the inveterate drinker.

"It is not for us to award shares of credit for this great advance in public sentiment and practice which has made Ontario the banner province of the world. A dozen denominations, a dozen influences, have all had their share.

"This time of diamond jubilee is a time for looking backward with thankfulness and forward with confidence. The advance of the past has been evolutionary rather than revolutionary. It has been gradual, measured and steady. It has been founded on the progressive forces of society as permeated by the principles of the gospel of Christ. Our fundamental reliance for the future must not be on legislation, but on that which should underlie legislation, viz., a people well grounded on information and on principle. As our beloved Ontario looks back over the record of the Queen's diamond jubilee period, well may she exclaim, 'What hath God wrought!' Well may she take courage for the future."

Practice Economy

In buying medicine, as in other matters. It is economy to get Hood's Sarsaparilla because there is more medicinal value in Hood's Sarsaparilla than in any other. Every bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla contains 100 doses and will average, taken according to directions, to last a month, while others last but a fortnight.

HOOD'S PILLS are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla. Easy and yet efficient. e

Henry W. Lucy, besides having had one of the most interesting careers in journalism, is the quickest writer on the British press. He dictates all his work to a shorthand clerk, and he is declared to make the largest income earned by journalists.

LIFE SAVED.—Mr. James Bryson Cameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs, and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believed it saved my life. It was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me any good."

A Wonderful Exhibition.

Prof. Gentry's Equine and Canine Paradox, that will appear in the city under a large tent for three nights, beginning Thursday, June 24; matinees Friday and Saturday at 3 p.m., is perhaps the finest of its kind in the United States, if not in the world. The performances of the little ponies and dogs defy adverse criticism; their every action is simply wonderful and not to be expected. The manner in which the ponies perform their drill speaks volumes for their intelligence, at the same time proving that Prof. Gentry is a master in the art of training animals. Every dog and pony performs its part to perfection, and a few of them are worthy of particular mention. The two Shetlands, Romeo and Juliet, march, countermarch, wheel, march backward in a manner so wonderful and surprising that the audience is lost in admiration of their performance. Of the forty dogs Major, Omaha, Sport, Barney and Snow Ball, the clowns, show the greatest brilliancy. Admission, children, 10 cents; adults, 20 cents.

London Outdoes All Her Past Efforts

In the Decorative Line — Many Very Beautiful Designs—Handsome Appearance of the Public Buildings.

A flag famine was felt in the city yesterday. Although the merchants had laid in a big stock in anticipation of an unprecedented demand, all were sold out early in the day. The clerks grew weary telling importunate people they were too late. On the evening train, several merchants secured a fresh supply, and their stores were immediately crowded by eager purchasers. Previous to that, East London was raided by patriots who failed to secure a flag up town, and every East End merchant sold completely out.

There never before was such a demand for decorative supplies in the city. The decorations, though most profuse in the business portions of the city, where flags floated from almost every window, and red, white and blue bunting across the fronts of many, of the stores and warehouses, were to be found in great taste throughout the entire residential quarters. King street was exceptionally beautiful. A large evergreen arch spanned the road in front of Mr. I. Waterman's residence and added much to the beauty of the vista, which presents itself to the eye as one looks down the center of the street. The ordinarily artistic beauty of Queen's avenue was also greatly enhanced by its gay holiday dress, and the handsome residences surrounding Victoria Park were very gaily bedecked.

Everywhere throughout the city and suburbs Union Jacks and patriotic designs of every variety met the eye. Illuminated decorations were plentiful, but many of these were unlit last night which will be in full blaze tonight.

Very handsome flags, specially sent by the government, adorned every turret of the postoffice, and custom house. The city hall was elaborately decorated with bunting and flags, and over the arcade were the letters, "V. R.," with a large crown above. One of the most striking illuminations last night was that at Messrs. D. S. Perrin & Co.'s factory. A string of incandescent lights led up the flag pole on the tower over the front of the building, and outlined the ridge poles of the tower.
