BIG GUN CLUB TOURNAMENT BROUGHT TO A SUCCESSFUL CLOSE

Forest H. Conover Wins the Championship Medal and is Hoisted in Mid Air—Bates' Tribute—Some Excellent Shooting by Local Marksmen.

The closing day of the tournament of the Maple City Gun Club was a still greater success than the first day. The visiting marksmen all said that this was the finest and best managed local shoot that they had ever attended. H. D. Bates said that he had done the best shooting here that he had ever done at blue rocks. Mr. Bates won the high average prize for the best shooting on both days. Mr. Conover, of Leamington, won the gold medal for the championship of Ontario. Mr. Conover is the Ontario representative of the Dupont Powder Co. In his shooting he used Dupont powder and a Smith gun. Mr. Conover managed the shoot for the Chatham club and did it in a most satisfactory manner. When it was learned that Conover had won the championship medal, Pilon, better known as "Burn de Tar," elevated the champion and carried him around on his shoulders.

The meeting of the marksmen was a success in every way. Altogether 6,630 targets were shot at, 2,990 on the first day and 3,640 on the second day. Some $320 was won by the contesting shooters, outside the merchandise event. Of the 55 persons shooting, 45 used Dupont powder. Bates used Hazard.

A. F. Falls brought the best financial secretary and handicapper the club ever had. Mr. Falls has few equals in juggling figures, but he gave the greatest satisfaction. This is all the more remarkable since Mr. Falls had never even saw a tournament before, let alone handle the financial end of it. Mr. Falls certainly deserves credit and commendation.

The following were the leaders in the high average contest and the targets broken out of a possible 265 were as follows: H. D. Bates, Ridgeway, 243; A. Reid, Walkerville, 239; F. H. Conover, Leamington, 234; W. A. Smith, Walkerville, 234; D. McMaekon, Highgate, 221; Wm. McDuff, 206. The sixth event, the merchandise shoot, had 55 entries, and provided lots of fun. WILL REPRESENT THE OFFICIAL Returning Officer Gives Casting Vote in Lennox and Declares Liberal Elected.

Liberal May Lose East Middlesex on Conduct of Deputies.

Special to The Planet.
Napane, Ont., June 6.—The Lennox recount resulted in a tie. Returning Officer Gibson put in casting vote and declared Madole, Liberal, elected.

ANOTHER RECOUNT.
Owen Sound, Ont., June 6.—The official count for North Grey given at this afternoon, is nine majorities for A. G. McKay, Liberal. The total majority was—McKay, Lib., 2,222; Boyd, Con., 2,913. A recount, which was held by Judge Morrison, at Owen Sound next Tuesday.

London, June 7.—The recount in East Middlesex, which began yesterday before Judge Edward Elliott, developed the remarkable findings of Westminster township. The result of their actions may be to give the seat to Captain Robson. Judge Elliott will hear argument this morning. The deputies placed the number on the back of every ballot corresponding with the number opposite the voters' name in the poll book. The effect of this is plain. It destroyed the secrecy of the ballot. Deputies and all who had access to the ballots could readily determine for whom each voter had voted.

Judge Elliott expressed his opinion very strongly to the effect that the ballots had been invalidated by the deputies. His honor, however, adjourned count for argument and for decision. Should the ballots be thrown out, Capt. Robson will have a majority of something like eighty. Both divisions gave Dr. Routledge large majorities.

The majority of 34 declared for Dr. Routledge was reduced to 21. Several palpable mistakes by deputies were unearthed. In one division the deputy counted two Robson ballots for Routledge; the ballots were sealed up in the Routledge package. In the same division, a third Robson ballot had not been counted. The error cost Capt. Robson five votes.

Dr. Routledge was represented by Messrs. T. Macbeth, K. C., and Jared Vining, while the interests of Capt. Robson were looked after by Messrs. Edmund Meredith, K. C., and P. H. Bartlett. Sheriff Cameron, the returning officer, was also present, but no others were admitted.

In sub-division two of London, only 67 ballots were found for Robson while the deputy returning officer had allowed 68. Two ballots which had been rejected were allowed by the judge, making a gain of one. One ballot had the name of the voter on the back and the other had an almost obliterated cross for Routledge, with a good mark for Robson.

Another gain of one was made in sub-division 4, where the deputy rejected a ballot with three crosses opposite the name of Robson. The ballot was held by the judge to be good. In sub-division 5, a ballot marked for Robson had the name of A. Hayball written on the back of it. The deputy counted the ballot, but Judge Elliott held that it should have been rejected.

In Dorchester, sub-division 1, a

COMPLAINTS

A citizen asks where the impounder of cattle is and why he doesn't do his duty. There is a cow that daily wanders all over Stanley Ave. in the vicinity of the jail. Another citizen complains that a horse feeds daily on his lawn. For the past year J. B. Johnson has drawn $2 per week because he holds the office of impounder. There has never been any known season on which the impounder has refused the weekly $2, but the citizens who are complaining ask what proof there is that the man has ever earned his salary of $2 per week.

IT LOOKS BAD FOR SOMEONE

Evidence That Yesterday Morning's Fire Was Not Accidental.

Striking Scenes at Police Court in the Inquest Before Coroner Bray.

An inquest into the cause of the fire which occurred in Mrs. Bennett's house, Wellington street, yesterday morning, was held in the Police Station yesterday afternoon by Coroner J. L. Bray. The evidence which was given goes to show that the fire was not accidental.

Fred H. Brisco, fire insurance agent, was first called. He insured the furniture on the 22nd of November, 1901, for $300. The business was done through Miss Jennie Marland, a friend of Miss Kerr's. He would value the furniture at $150.

Dan McDonald, watchman at Hadley's, was the next witness sworn. He saw the fire first and sent in the alarm. He said Miss Kerr had not been in the house for some time. She was boarding with Mrs. Nevills. Miss Marland is a sister-in-law of his. She was over to see Miss Kerr at the boarding house the night previous to the fire and McDonald had seen her home about eleven o'clock. He carried a lantern with him.

Miss Kerr herself was the next witness. She stated she was in possession of the house. Miss Marland, however, did all of her business and had a key of the house. She valued her furniture and clothes at $500. She was inclined to believe that the fire was set by tramp.

Mrs. Nevills was sworn next, but could tell nothing of importance. She did not know at what time Miss Kerr went to bed. It was very late, however.

James Scott Gray, the agent for Deszelski, was next to take the stand, but was not able to throw much light on the subject.

Miss Marland was sworn next. She said she was in possession of the house. She valued her furniture and clothes at $500. She was inclined to believe that the fire was set by tramp.

"I looks to me," said the coroner, "as if the fire might have been started after the place had been robbed." Miss Marland, however, did not think this. She thought all of the house was burned. One peculiar fact, however, was that nothing could be seen of a certain trunk which Miss Kerr claimed contained all of her clothes and was in the bedroom where the fire was.

A. J. Marriott's evidence, however, put an entirely different light on the matter. He works in Jamieson's grocery. He was waiting up for riggs the night before the fire, and about 12 o'clock saw Miss Marland and Miss Kerr standing on the sidewalk in front of Neville's boarding house. They parted, Miss Kerr went into the house, but Miss Marland went towards the track. When she reached the track she was joined by a man with a lantern and they both went into the house which was burned. He did not see them come out.

At this point Mr. Deszelski stood up to the coroner's desk and said:—"May I ask a few questions?" He was given permission by the coroner.

"How far were you away?" he asked Marriott.

"I was sitting outside," he replied.

"How was the lady dressed?"

"In black."

"What time was it?"

"Twelve o'clock."

ASSEMBLED BURGHERS CHEERED FOR HIS MAJESTY, KING EDWARD

Best Possible Relations now Existing Between Britons and Boers—DeWet Asks his Colleagues to Show British What Good Colonists They are.

London, June 6.—Lord Kitchener, in a despatch from Pretoria, dated to-day, announced that the British commissioners in the various districts report that 1,154 Boers laid down their arms yesterday. Afterwards the commissioner addressed the Boers, who gave three hearty cheers for King Edward. The best possible relations exist between the Boers and the British, and there has been no hitch in the proceedings anywhere.

A despatch from Vrededorf Road, Orange River Colony, states that Gen. Christian De Wet, addressing the inmates of the concentration camp there, explained the circumstances leading to the termination of hostilities, and urged the burghers to do their utmost to show Great Britain what good colonists the Boers can make. The speech made a favorable impression.

VOX POPULI

Mr. Whitney Defeats the Machine by a Popular Majority of 7377.

Toronto, June 6.—While the province is awaiting the rectification of the wrongs that have been perpetrated, either in the taking or the counting of the votes at the recent election, another view of the situation presents itself, and it is one of a most startling character. An examination of the recorded majorities in last week's contest shows that Mr. Whitney beat the Ross Government by 7,377 votes. The total of the majorities cast for the various candidates was 34,913. As distributed among the elected members, those who represented the policy of Mr. Whitney scored 21,145. Those who supported Mr. Ross were awarded 13,768. This places Mr. Whitney 7,377 in the lead.

HEAVY LOSS

Defective Roofing Causes Destruction of Dry Goods Merchandise.

William Foreman, dry goods merchant, sustained a very unfortunate loss last night through the heavy rain. For some time the roof of the store has been leaking. Mr. Foreman notified the tinsmith who had put the roof on to come and attend to it. The leak, however, proved to be in a part of the roof that was not put on by the tinsmith sent for. It was, therefore, allowed to go unrepaired. The man did not report to Mr. Foreman, who was under the impression that it was repaired. As a result, in last night's rain storm the water came through the roof in torrents and did a lot of damage to the stock.

The loss will be about $150, and in the stock, which was completely destroyed was a fine array of wash silks which have never been exhibited, also a fine line of muslins, etc. One very unfortunate loss was that of some of their finest millinery hats.

Mr. Foreman, when interviewed by The Planet, was upstairs sorting out the spoiled stock, and explained to the reporter a fine lot of wash silks which were totally destroyed and which he will be unable to sell at any price. "There are some of the goods," he said, "which we will be able to sell at prices which will have to be below the cost, but the most of the stuff we will have to throw out entirely. While no one but ourselves can be held responsible for the loss, it was undoubtedly due to part negligence on the part of the tinsmith."

The most unfortunate part of the matter is that Mr. Foreman will have to recover for the goods destroyed, as he cannot claim any insurance or hold either the landlady, Mrs. Miller, or the tinsmith responsible.

WELL DONE!

The Toronto papers published to-day a list of the successful students at the recent Toronto University exams.

G. W. Fletcher passed his final year in medicine, taking the first faculty silver medal.

Miss Jessie Houston, daughter of Judge Houston, passed her fourth year in arts, and will be admitted to the degree of B. A.

E. H. Oliver also secured his degree of B. A.

Roger Rutherford, son of Dr. J. P. Rutherford, of this city, G. W. Fletcher, of Benheim, J. L. Campbell, passed their fourth and final year in medicine. Kingsley Holmes, son of Dr. T. K. Holmes, and Robert Ingram, of Ridgeway, passed their third year in medicine. Will E. Cruikshanks passed his second year in medicine.

Constable Tobias, Moraviantown, brought Samuel Stonefish in to jail last evening. Stonefish was arrested on the charge of doing grievously bodily harm to Alevolvius Lewis. The trouble all arose over Stonefish claiming that Mrs. Lewis owed him money. The woman denied. All the parties are Indians.

WILD HORSE

Was the Victim of Lightning—The Owner has Very Narrow Escape.

Wm. Lamb, lot 11, concession 8, Chatham Township, had a very narrow escape a few days ago. He was in his barn during one of the recent heavy storms, when the lightning, which was very severe, struck the building. It struck on the west gable, tearing off the whole roof. Mr. Lamb, who was in the stable end of the barn at the time, was rendered unconscious for a while by the shock. One of his horses, a very valuable animal, was at the end of the barn which was struck, and was rendered entirely deaf, and appears since to be crazy. He has been turned out into a field and runs around until he is exhausted and then falls down. Recovering his strength he jumps up and repeats the performance. He will no doubt have to be shot, which will mean a severe loss to Mr. Lamb.

Mr. Lamb himself was very fortunate in escaping as easily as he did.

BINDER TWINE CO.

M. Wilson, K. C., says there will be no change in the circumstances since the judge decided the old Board are the proper directors and the only persons who have power to repeal the by-laws or to call a meeting of the shareholders. The old Board, as yet, have not decided either to call a meeting of the shareholders or repeal the by-laws, and unless some change takes place the case will have to go to trial in the usual way to enable the old Board to get possession of the books and the property of the company and to exclude the defendants from interfering with them. There is no likelihood of being any disturbance whatever because the defendants now know they are not the directors and have no power to do anything with the company's property, to sell anything, make any contract, cheque out any money, get any correspondence of the company or to use the company's money to pay themselves or anybody they employ. They know they can't call a meeting of shareholders or repeal any by-laws, and that the old Board are the only directors who can do so.

Meanwhile the new Board is still in possession at the factory. This afternoon they are holding a meeting at which their solicitor, Col. J. B. Rankin, K. C., is present. The old Board having failed to observe the court's direction to repeal their by-laws and call a meeting of shareholders, the injunction has elapsed and they hold that they are in a position to proceed with the business.

The anniversary of the K. O. T. M. falls on Sunday, June 15, and will be duly recognized by the local order. At 1:30 p. m. the members will assemble at the lodge room and proceed to the Maple Leaf cemetery to decorate the graves of the departed brethren. At 6:30 a church parade will be held from the lodge room to the First Presbyterian church. The 24th Regiment Band will be in attendance both afternoon and evening. This is the day which is set apart by the Supreme Text as memorial day.

Every year about the first of June we make a sale of our stock of sponges. Before getting our new stock we try to clear out every sponge we have in the store.

For this week you can get any sponge

Routledge ballot with the figures 43 on the back was disallowed. In division 2 two ballots rejected were allowed for Robson. They had the cross on the left side of the name. In division 3 one ballot paper with a single horizontal line opposite Dr.
Routledge's name was disallowed.

Capt. Robson made a gain of two in sub-division 4. The actual count was:
Robson, 76; Routledge, 50; instead of Robson 75, Routledge, 51.

The deputy in West Windsor, subdivision 1, gave Dr. Routledge the worst of the count to the number of two votes. In sub-division 2 one rejected ballot for Robson was allowed, the cross being on Capt. Robson's name. In sub-division 3 a ballot marked with three crosses for Robson was allowed. In sub-division 7
the actual count was: Robson, 41;
Routledge, 53; instead of Robson, 38;
Routledge, 55, as returned by the deputy. Two Robson ballots were found in the Routledge package. A third ballot with a cross on Robson's name was allowed.

In West London, only one ballot was questioned. It was marked for Routledge, and had a cross on the back. Judgment was reserved.

In sub-division 2 of Westminster
a Robson ballot bore a mark, the cross
on which was called in question.
Judgment was reserved.

In sub-divisions 5 and 10, of Westminster, the deputy returning officer had, in addition to placing their initials on the back of the ballots, put the number on each ballot corresponding with the number upon the poll book. In sub-division 3 a ballot opposite the name of the voter in the poll book.

The section of the Election Act, under which the objection is taken is
No. 112, sub-sec. 3, and is as follows:

"Every ballot paper not supplied by the deputy returning officer, or on which votes are given to more than one candidate, shall be void, and on which anything in addition to the printed number and the initials or name of the deputy returning officer on the back, is written or marked, by which the voter can be identified, shall be void and shall not be counted.
Subject to the provisions hereinafter contained as to the omission of the deputy returning officer to sign or stamp his name or initials upon the ballot paper, no word or mark written or made, or omitted to be written or made by the deputy returning officer on the ballot paper shall void
the same."

The contention on behalf of Capt.
Robson, was that the putting of the number upon the ballot, corresponding with the number upon the poll book, afforded a means of identification of the voter.

The judge expressed his view as being, strongly favorable to the contention of the voter.

Adjournment was made at 10 o'clock
this morning.

Division No. 5 gave 9 votes for Robson and 95 for Routledge. In

CADETS DO WELL

Col. Peters, D. O. C., London, District, was in the city yesterday inspecting the C. C. I. Cadets. Under the direction of Capt. Adm. Mowbray
the cadet corps drilled on Tecumseh Park. They then marched to Victoria Park, advanced in line of attack across the park, and also threw out skirmishing lines. Colonel Peters was proud of the showing of the C. C. I. cadets. He said he had inspected the collegiate soldier boys at Woodstock, London and other places, and he was pleased to say that the Chatham Collegiate Institute had the best drilled corps of all. He said the uniforms of the C. C. I. was the neatest he had seen. Colonel Peters said that he believed that boys had not been drilled in target practice, but it had been impossible to get ammunition. He expected to have a good supply by fall, and target practice would be begun in September.

may be, but it's no good fr' the women

fr' the men. I don't know anything

"Well, I come home at night, an' no

LACROSSE

BLENHEIM WENT DOWN.

For the first time in twenty-five years Blenheim was defeated on its own grounds, at lacrosse, by a Chatham team yesterday. The game was a thoroughly good one, with very little quarrelling. The special train carrying the Chatham players and a large number of local rooters, left the station at 2.45. All the boys were carrying the colors of the club in their buttonholes and on canes.

The team arrived in Blenheim and the game started about four o'clock,
with the line-up as follows:

Blenheim.
Goal—Burke.
Point—Knight.
Cover Point—Blewitt.
1st Defence—Faust.
2nd Defence—Cox.
3rd Defence—Ball.
Centre—Bilson.
3rd Home—Higley.
2nd Home—Grant.
1st Home—Stevenson.
Outside—Burke.
Inside—Shillingham.

Chatham.
Goal—Richards.
Point—W. E. Elliott.
Cover Point—Coupland.
1st Defence—Bennett.
2nd Defence—Petterly.
3rd Defence—Brundage.
Centre—A. Wrigley.
3rd Home—Williston.
2nd Home—Sowerby.
1st Home—Jahnke.
Outside—McLeod.
Inside—Wilson.

The first half of the game was all Blenheim, they scoring two goals to Chatham's none. The first goal was a fluke, the ball hitting Jahnke and bouncing into the net. It was scored three minutes before the first quarter was up, and the second was scored about three minutes before the first half was up by Burke.

It was in the first half that Elliott,
who was playing point, made a wonderful shot on Blenheim goal, while at the other end of the field, the ball landing right in the centre of the goal
in Burke's stick.

Two minutes of the second half had not been played when McLeod scored for Chatham on a rush down the field.

A few minutes after Chatham had a free throw on a foul, and Brundage pushed the ball between the flags, tying the score.

Chatham rooters at this juncture
got in their work, being led by Alex.
Maffat, with his "Biff Boom Bang"
Chatham, Chatham, Ri, Ri, Ra, etc.

A few minutes after Jahnke scored Chatham's third goal. The Blenheim boys now fought hard, putting up a good game, but to no avail.

At one time Frank Knight got the ball and rushed down the field getting by several of Chatham players until he came to Coupland. He lost it was all day with Knight. He lost the ball, and it went to the Blenheim end of the field, and the fourth goal was scored by Sowerby on an excellent shot.

The Blenheimites now became desperate, and some heavy rushes were made on Chatham's goal, to be stopped only Richards could do it.

Just as the whistle was blowing for time up, Jahnke shot the ball into the net of the Blenheim goal.

All the Chatham boys put up an excellent game, especially Elliott, Wilson, Jahnke and Bennett, all the above playing the game of their lives.

The last goal was not counted, as time was up. A serious defect of the game was the inability of the Blenheim police or constables to keep the crowd off the field, which hurt the Blenheim players probably more than the Chathams.

DROPS ON GOAL.

Elliott's a peach.
The kids took it hard.
Knight was at his best.
Blenheim plays here on the 19th.
Bennet got a bad wound in the head.

Looks something like a Chatham trophy.
Well, we beat 'em on their own grounds.

'Twas a good game, with a little rough playing.
The boys were driven to the hotel
and to the grounds.

Jahnke is just as good, if not better than ever before.
There was some good combination
and no much long throwing.

Mrs. Seth Turner, 2nd concession, Chatham Township, suffered from a stroke of paralysis yesterday. She is much better to-day.

noon, the Warden in the chair. A deputation from Raleigh and Tilbury Township was heard in regard to the improvement of the Raleigh-Tilbury townline. They asked the County for aid.

On motion of Mr. McCoy, seconded land taken from Bothwell, namely, $35,946, and added it to the assessment of Zone, making the latter municipality's assessment now $612,- 901. This amount, $35,946, was also taken from Bothwell, making Bothwell's assessment $150,875.

The report of the Printing committee was adopted on motion of Mr.
Crowder and seconded by Mr. Somers.

they had met with the committee from the city of Chatham and had considered reports made by Judge
Woods for furnishings for his office.
The joint committee recommended no action.

The committee recommended that the floors in the county offices believed to be made of the best material of the county. Referred to Finance.

were 37 inmates. The average number was 34. During the past year 21 boys were admitted and 2 died.

The different municipalities were represented in the House of Refuge
as follows: Camden 2, Chatham 3, Dover 2, Huron 1, Howe 3, Orford 4, Raleigh 1, Zone 1, Bothwell
1, Ridgetown 1, County 7. The cost per week for the board of each inmate was $1.94, for a total cost for the year was $28,427. The report was adopted.

It showed that the House of Refuge was in a prosperous, healthy condition.

The report of H. J. French re the County of Kent's willingness to pay that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure giving the patient strength by build-

SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL

Dr. Talmage Shows the Inspiration of Example.

"CAN THESE DRY BONES LIVE?"

A Glowing Tribute to Those Who Fell on the Battlefield—Christians Should Labor to So Disseminate the Teachings of Jesus that War in the Future Shall Become an Impossibility.

Entered According to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1902, by William Baily, of Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Chicago, June 1.—In this sermon the Rev. Frank De Witt Talmage shows how the dead heroes whose graves are garlanded on Memorial day live again in the spirit which their self sacrifice inspires; text, Ezekiel xxxviii, 3, "Can these bones live?" A dark, gruesome valley, peopled with the strange of all strange hosts, a great army of bleached skeletons, is the scene of the prophet's vision. Amid the millions and the gleam of one eye, the beating of one heart, the welcome of one handclasp. All are motionless. All are dead. Then, in the silence, there comes a voice asking the "momentous question," "Can these bones live?" And, strange to say, as if in answer, the dry bones begin to move, the joints, like rusty hinges, creaking from long disuse. The different skeletons lift themselves and stand up. Then, stranger still, these skeleton forms stoop down, as we would bend to the bones, the clean linen after a morning bath, and they clothe themselves in garments of flesh and blood. God first asked Ezekiel whether the dry bones could live. Then God showed the prophet by visual manifestation that they could.

The same question which was asked the ancient prophet I ask you this national Memorial day in reference to the bones, the dry bones, of the soldiers who died in the civil war. I ask the question because I intend to answer it myself. I want to prove this morning that the men who met a soldier's death fighting bravely are not dead. They are more alive to-day than when their deeds testified to the world that the heroes and heroines for I shall speak in reference to both—should be classed among the moral and intellectual forces of their day and generation.

The dead of the battlefields are intensely alive to-day in reference to the bones, the dry bones, of the soldiers who died in the civil war. I ask the question because I intend to answer it myself. I want to prove this morning that the men who met a soldier's death fighting bravely are not dead. They are more alive to-day than when their deeds testified to the world that the heroes and heroines for I shall speak in reference to both—should be classed among the moral and intellectual forces of their day and generation.

Does he keep his position in reference to his troops, where he has a right to stay? Does he send one of his staff officers to lead in the charge? Does he look after his own safety? Oh, no. He draws his sword and steps to the front of his brigade. He hurries to utter a few inspiring words. He says: "Boys, the safety of the whole army depends upon this move. Either we must capture yonder hill and break that opposing line, or else the whole force must retreat or surrender. Some of us may lay down our lives there. Will you follow me, men? I ask no man to go where I am not ready to lead. I ask no man to charge where it may not be possible for him to step over my dead body. Men, will you go? Will you go?" And all down the line of throats there comes the hoarse answer: "Aye, general, we will go! We will go!" This was the way General George Edward Pickett did. This was the way Marshal Ney did when he led the Old Guard down into the ravine of Ohain, where the Waterloo tragedy was practically ended. This was the way Richard Neville, Earl of Warwick, did upon the battlefield of Barnet. When the great kingmaker saw that his troops were being routed, he rode to the top of a hill and dismounted. There, within sight of his men, he drove his sword into the heart of his noble war charger. Then, having cut off all possibility of personal escape, he called his troops, saying: "The commander of the English forces is here to conquer or die! Will his men be willing to die with him?" The retreating soldiers gathered around their noble leader and died by thousands as the Earl of Warwick himself died. War may be hell, as an American general once bluntly declared, but by the gleam of the hot, hissing, dragon flames of that awful inferno are seen the heroic deeds of many whose noble lives have been tried and purified by the fires of an earthly martyrdom.

Sometimes we are apt to erroneously believe that the only sufferings of war were to be found in the gunshot wounds and the swamp fevers, in the heartrending cries of "Water! Water!" heard at night, from the wounded lying between the contending lines, in the colds, the heats, the hunger, the weariness and the homesickness suffered by the men at the front. But I have always believed that the wives and mothers and the sisters and sweethearts who stayed at home to weep suffered far more than the husbands and sons and brothers who donned their uniforms and went forth to die. Think of their sad, weary nights! Think of their startled ears when the rumors were heard that a great battle was about to be fought! Think of their wet eyes, scanning the long newspaper columns of the dead and missing! Think of that awful word "missing!" Think of the poverty which the young widow had to face, with four or five children at her back! To-day we honor the dead soldiers who wore the blue and the gray. We ought also to honor the wives and mothers, the sweethearts and the sisters, who were willing to give those soldiers as a sacrifice, as well as the heroes who were willing to die.

But, though the noble women of the north and south may have suffered greatly, yet by the very sufferings God was able to heal the wounds, the bleeding wounds, of the nation. The breaking hearts of the north reached out toward the breaking hearts of the south, and they found that in their troubles they were sisters. Some of the bereft mothers had sons fighting in both armies. As such a mother sat in her family plot between the two graves—between the grave of her boy in blue and that of her boy in gray—she prayed that the past civil strife might be forever buried. She pleaded with earnest prayer because her boys who died had come from the same cradle and looked up into the eyes of the same mother.

The death of battlefields are intensely alive to-day because they have proved that the strength of their country is to be found in the multitude of its standing armies, not in the size of its standing armies. When the civil war broke out, there were not enrolled upon the muster of the war department more than 25,000 men. The traveler could go to the land without seeing an American soldier in uniform except in a few forts built for protection against the Indians and in places like Governors Island and Fort Sumter. All Europe was shaking under the tramp of the martial hosts which were marshaled upon every frontier; yet in America there were not enough soldiers to make a respectable looking national awkward squad. But no sooner did the bugle blast of war sound than the volunteers came from everywhere. They came from the pine woods of Maine and the Louisiana plantations, from among the cottonfields, from the Dakota prairies and the Mississippi flatboats, from the Pennsylvania mines and the South Carolina tobacco factories. They came by the tens of thousands. They came by the hundreds of thousands. They came by the millions. They came to prove for all time that for this country, at least, there is no need of a great standing army.

When war breaks out, a nation has to use its ships, which it has constructed in times of peace. It takes years to build a fighting machine. But what I have said is true in reference to a standing army. A country, which in a few months can produce well disciplined armies, as the army of the south and the army of the north, does not need, save in times of war, all the strongest arms and the bravest bodies from the vocations of peace and have the nation groaning under the weight of useless taxation.

There are fewer merchants, fewer schoolteachers, fewer lawyers and ministers and mechanics and farmers in order to have more private majors, lieutenants and captains and colonels and generals. If we have the right kind of homes, there will be officers and privates ready to protect the country from a foreign foe whenever they are needed.

Where can you find a greater example of heroism than that exhibited by the colonel of a Pennsylvania regiment. As he was leading in a charge he looked down and saw a captured flag of the enemy. He knelt and kissed his child, saying, "Goodbye, my darling; goodbye!" Then he turned and waved his sword, crying, "Come on, boys! Come on! Charge!"

"Come on, boys! Come on! Charge!" Where can you find a greater deed of heroism than that exhibited upon the field of battle when the ambulance corps found among the wounded a hero with his eyes closed. There he sat, holding in his arm the dead body of another boy. They were brothers. As the surgeon's aid came near they heard the blind boy whispering to the other: "Mamma told me to look after you and I will. Poor Bobby! Poor Bobby!" Ah, in a land of the free and the brave we do not want a greater standing army than that of the Christian churches, where those who do need more fathers and mothers who will build the right kind of family altar; we do need the right kind of Christian churches, where those children can be brought in contact with God; we need those Christian boys and girls started in the right kind of vocations. Then when war comes, the Christian homes of the north and the south, the east and the west, will yield up their sons for the battle and their daughters for the field hospitals.

The Christian dead of the battlefields are intensely alive to-day in the heavenly recognitions which have been given to them. Impossible is it to suppose that God would allow his servants who were upon battlefields to go unrewarded. In the beautiful sermon upon the mount Christ pronounced a blessing on those whose lives were full of tears and heartaches, poverty and persecution, slander and death. Do not Christ's words apply to those brave men? Did they not suffer enough? Were not their wounds deep enough? Did not they hunger enough and have homesickness enough? Did not many a fair cheeked boy under his blanket at night sob himself to sleep, or unable to sleep, keep on crying, "Oh, mother, mother, I could only see mother!" In one of the national museums I saw a Bible which had saved a soldier's life. When the young man left home, his mother gave it to him. In battle he was carrying it over his heart. A flying bullet almost cut it away through the Bible, but it was stopped at one of the leaves of the four gospels. Did not many a dying soldier have one of these Bibles in his hand? Did he not weep over it when he was dying far away from home? Can God forget his Christian soldiers who died upon the battlefield? No, no! The Bible describes the entrance into heaven of a mighty host marching through the gates as below the reviewing stand of a heavenly vision cried out in rapture as he saw them. "Who are these who are arrayed in white robes, and whence come they?" There must have been many seen by his prophetic eye to Dodd's Kidney Pills are fifty cents a box at all druggists.

When the answer that he received would apply, "These are they which came out of great tribulation and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb."

When the English soldiers came back from the Crimean war all London turned out to greet them. After they had marched past the reviewing stand Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort arose to receive those heroes who were to be decorated with medals. As each soldier approached the queen, she would place upon his forehead a laurel wreath. Then she would kiss him on the cheek. Some of these soldiers had an empty sleeve; some had a wound on their forehead; some had a bullet wound in their leg. In it was carried the physical wreck of a man. Both of his legs had been shot away. One of his arms was gone. This body had simple by been right and leaped up in the Queen's arms. She left her place and descended the steps of her stand to the side of the litter. She went over the poor veteran. On account of his sufferings the Queen wished to honor him more than any of the rest.

Let us go forth to decorate with flowers the field of the soldiers who their glorious memories still live in our hearts. Let us decorate all the graves alike; let us put just as large a wreath upon the grave of the soldier who was shot by the sharpshooter in the moonlight while doing sentinel duty as upon the grave of the most noted general of the war. Let each receive the same tribute at the hands of their countrymen as the humble color bearer who when the regiment was retreating rallied the men just before he was struck by a bullet and leaped up in the air, crying, "Oh, my God! I'm gone!" and fell dead. Give a hero's garland to the farmer's boy who kissed his mother under the shadow of the apple tree when he went forth to die.

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends." Every one of the dead heroes paid the greatest of all sacrifices for his country. They gave their lives in order that others might live. And as we, one and all, fellow countrymen, from the north, the east, the south and the west, kneel to place their Memorial day flowers upon their graves, may we swear before God by the altars of the dead that we will oppose with inflexible determination any one who will ever again try to stir up sectional strife. The civil war is dead. By the blood of our loved ones we swear it. The civil war is dead! By the northern regiments which followed Fitz-Hugh Lee and Joe Wheeler, and the southern regiments that followed Lawton and Merritt in the Spanish-American war, when north and south fought side by side, we know it.

Then, as we kneel on Memorial day by the altars of the dead soldiers who fell upon American battlefields may we consecrate anew our lives to our country's service. May we realize that when we serve our Lord and Master best, then we serve best our nation. May the sorrow and the sacness, the suffering and the deaths we this day commemorate instill in our hearts a profound love of peace and a deeper consecration to Him whose name is the Prince of Peace. Let us labor to so disseminate the teachings of Jesus that war in the future shall become an impossibility. Then shall be only gospel peace. Then the people will not only love the Lord their God with all their hearts but they shall love their neighbors as themselves. Then the glory of the Lord shall cover this land as the waters cover the sea.

Culture That Is Best.

Knowledge, thought, common sense are the equipment of the head. Affection, sentiment, sympathy—these are the equipment of the heart. We call the man without the equipment of the head, a fool. What shall we call the man without the equipment of the heart? We give years of time and great care and attention to the training of the head. Are we, in ourselves or all untrained? After all, which is the best for a man or woman, which will send us on most happily and helpful in life, a sufficient equipment of knowledge, which is the power of the head, or a sufficient equipment of sympathy, which is the power of the heart? O! it is said, but it is pitiful to see the fool of a withered heart. And it is well that we receive with high honor the names of men of genius and of wisdom, but the flame that is above every other name is the name of Him who came unto men with the divinest gift of a tender and loving human heart.

Some Had a Bargain.

A Sabbath School teacher once remarked that he who buys the truth makes a good bargain, and inquired if any scholar recollected an instance in Scripture of anyone making a bad bargain. "I do," replied a boy. "Eau made a bad bargain when he sold his birthright for a mess of pottage." A second said: "Judas made a bad bargain when he sold his Lord for thirty pieces of silver." A third replied: "Ananias and Sapphira made a bad bargain when they sold their land, and then told Peter a falsehood about it." A fourth observed: "Our Lord tells that he makes a bad bargain who to gain the whole world loses his own soul."

What Is a Dream?

He was young and bashful. She was—ahem!—not thirty. "Miss Robinson," he began diffidently, "I am—er—a little nervous, and I—er—would like to—er—propose to you. Is that a sign of anything?" "It's a sign," she said desperately, "that you've got a deal more sense than a sleep than when you're awake!"

The First London Theater.

The first playhouse to be built in England was the Theater. It was erected in the year 1576, and its builder was James Burbage, father of the famous actor Richard Burbage and himself an actor of some reputation. Access to the Theater seems in old times to have been over Finsbury fields. The curtain, which, curiously, is named from the region or old manor on which the playhouse was erected and not from the familiar drapery of the stage, was situated south of Holywell lane, in Moorfield (modern Gloucester street), and is first mentioned in the following year, 1577. Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" was among the many plays first acted there. The Theater was moved away to the Bankside, and the old materials were employed in building the Globe, Shakespeare's chief theater, in 1598. The curtain continued to be used as a playhouse far into the reign of King James. No picture of either of the original theaters has been handed down, and owing to their position without the walls none of the old maps represents their precise location—Lip-pincott's.

Poor Old Lady Beaconsfield.

There is nothing in his life, says Lord Ronald, that redeems more to Lord Beaconsfield's credit than the manner in which he treated his wife. She could never have been but a somewhat commonplace though good hearted woman. As she grew old she became a wreck of humanity, but the poor, faded old lady was ever treated by her husband with a deference and regard truly touching. It was painful to see how, in what we are pleased to call the highest society, poor old Lady Beaconsfield was made a butt and a laughing stock. Knowing how sensitive Lord Beaconsfield was to anything approaching ridicule, I felt how bitterly he must have suffered when in a crowded hall or drawing room his hosts would what they called "draw out old Lady Beaconsfield" and laugh at her to her face, showing no reluctance, regard or decent feeling for the poor husband, who, imperturbable as he ever appeared, was probably suffering acutely at the conduct of his ill bred hosts.

A Thief, but No Liar.

Magistrate (to new policeman)—Did you notice no suspicious character about the neighborhood?

New Policeman—Shure, yer honor, I saw but one man, and I asked him what he was doing there at that time of night. "See he," "I have no business here just now, but I expect to open a jewelry store in the vicinity later on." At that I sez, "I wish you success, wor."

Magistrate (disgusted)—Yes, and he did open a jewelry store in the vicinity later on and stole seventeen watches.

New Policeman (after a pause)—Begorra, yer honor, the man may have been a thief, but he was no liar.

WHAT THEY THINK OF GAS FOR FUEL.

P. S. Coate, Esq.,

Mgr. Chatham Gas Co.:

We the undersigned residents of Joseph street, have pleasure in saying that after a year's use of gas for cooking purposes, we find it to be the most economical, convenient and satisfactory fuel we have ever used.

With it there are ashes, soot, carrying of fuel, kindling fires, etc., it is ready in an instant, day or night, and we are perfectly satisfied that gas is a much cheaper fuel than coal on wood. We can advise any one to use gas for fuel.

International Bible Lesson for Tomorrow—The Council at Jerusalem—Acts xv., 22-33.

Golden Text—"Stand fast, therefore, in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free."

We are transferred from the battlefield for souls in our last lesson to this church conference on trouble caused amongst the Gentile converts by religious tramps from Jerusalem, who, without any authority from God, or His people, were being used of Satan to stir up strife about ordinances; but God over-ruled it all for the good of His people, and from a council of apostles, elders and brethren, controlled by the Holy Spirit and presiding over as church or moderator by the Apostle James, we have a "Declaration of Independence" from the very burdensome types and shadows of the Mosaic law, Barabbas, Paul, Judas and Silas, carried this to the disturbed churches, on whom was laid no greater burden than these necessary things. See verse 29. As Britain and Boer rejoice in peace, so Jew and Gentile rejoice in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free. Judas and Silas exhort, confirm and comfort by their ministry. God's children once wedded to law had been made dead to law by the body of Christ. Now we are espoused or married to our risen Lord, to live and walk and work in His Spirit and for His glory. Amen—Rom. vii. 1-6. Sing No. 11, Sacred Songs and Solos.

Curious Bits of News.

A Boston woman will agitate for a law prohibiting the boiling or roasting of chestnuts, on the ground that it involves painful death of worms "whose right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness is no less than that of the most highly dowered man."

Last summer Doctor Benson, the German aeronaut, accompanied by Doctor Soaring, made a balloon ascent from Berlin, and attained the enormous altitude of about 31,000 feet, or six and a quarter miles. Then they lost consciousness, so that, although they descended safely, they have no record to show what the maximum height attained may have been.

The laurels have been stripped from Byron's brow and also from those of two plucky women who have just succeeded in swimming across the Hellespont at its widest part—which is about two miles. They are Miss Wood, daughter of Vice-Admiral Wood of the English navy, and the wife of the German military attaché at Constantinople.

One New York hotel that suffered severely from the souvenir spoon and salt-stellar mania adopted the plan of notifying guests that each waiter was responsible individually for all articles on his table, and he alone had to make good any loss. This reduced the taking of spoons to a robbery of the waiter instead of the hotel, and even the souvenir hunter has some conscience about such a theft.

The postal savings bank building in Amsterdam, Holland, is being constructed by the "Monier system," a new method of construction. A steel framework, like a cage in appearance, is enveloped in Portland cement, which prevents the steel from rusting, while the cement itself is rendered elastic. This construction is said to be stronger, fireproof and waterproof, and to be growing in favor in Europe for government buildings and factories.

The moment a man ceases to grow he begins to diminish. Such is the conclusion at which a German physician has arrived, after several months' careful study of the subject of human height. Men, so it is asserted, begin to grow smaller in their thirty-fifth year, and women a little before they are forty. Men, however, stop growing when they are thirty, and for five or six years their stature remains stationary. Then it decreases, at first very slowly, but afterwards more rapidly.

The Presidents that Ohio has given to the United States have been pursued by a curious and most lamentable fatality. Of the four, only President Hayes survived office. Garfield and McKinley were assassinated, and William Henry Harrison served but one month of his term. Ohio men have been elected to five terms in office, but succeeded in serving only nine years and one month of the twenty years—Harrison one month, Garfield six months, Hayes four years, and McKinley four years and six months.

Had not King Edward issued a decree to the effect that widows of peers who have contracted marriages with commoners shall forfeit thereby their prerogatives as peeresses of the realm, there might have appeared among the later at Westminster Abbey on the day of the coronation a coal black negro of the Hottentot type, arrayed in the ermine trimmed red velvet robes and the gold coronet of her rank as a countess. For the dusky widow of the late Earl of Stamford has since his death married a Boer named Pieter Pieterse, and has made her home in South Africa since her unsuccessful attempt to prove the rights of her son to his father's earldom.

Dr. Drummond's Chinese Dinner.

DR. W. H. DRUMMOND, the author of those "fascinating delineations of the habits of life, under a new and novel experience at Vancouver the other day when he was entertained to dinner in Chinatown. Dr. Drummond, it appears, is intensely interested in the conditions surrounding the life of the Chinese, and was with a view to aiding him in his observations that the Chinese dinner was arranged for him by a few friends.

It was held at the Quong Fong restaurant, in Dupont street. The front of the restaurant was gaily lit with lanterns in honor of the distinguished guest. Eight others sat down with Dr. Drummond at the round table, which had been decorated in customary Chinese fashion. The array of preliminary sweetmeats having been sampled, the dinner proper began. The time of the commencement was 10 o'clock and the meal lasted until 2 in the morning. No time was wasted, however, as the bill of fare was a formidable one, consisting of no less than 15 courses. They were as follows: 1. Stewed shark fins. 2. Pigeon with mushrooms. 3. Birdnest soup. 4. Stewed chicken. 5. Boiled fish tripe. 6. Duck and tomato sauce. 7. Hairy mushrooms. 8. Duck and shellfish sauce. 9. Chicken with green peppers. 10. Sliced chicken. 11. Shrimps. 12. Pigeons. 13. Duck cooked in melon. 14. Sliced chicken and pineapple. 15. Ground almond gruel.

There were one or two extras, as to the composition of which the bravest did not dare enquire. The viands were handled more or less clumsily with ivory chopsticks and were washed down with many a "yum yum" of orange wine and the inevitable tea. After the usual thanks the doctor thanked his entertainers in a characteristic speech, stating that the evening had been one of the most enjoyable in his experience, and one of which he would ever retain a happy remembrance. All one can say is that the doctor must have a peculiarly good digestion.

A Prophecy.

Some eight or nine months ago a self-appointed prophet, residing, as his fellows generally do, on the Continent, predicted that in about two centuries the human species over the world would be empty. Least, however, the actual generations should rejoice in anticipation of the happy condition of the posterity, he proceeded to explain, and the explanation, though short, was to the point, and did not lack a substratum of far-seeing philosophy. The madhouse of the prophet was not because there would not be any denuded people, but because there would not be a sufficient number of sane folk to conduct them thither and to sequester them.

A WEDDING.

A happy event was celebrated last Tuesday afternoon at half-past five at the residence of Edward Murdoch, Esq., Raleigh, when his second daughter, Alice English, became the bride of Mr. Frederick Sutton Ekkliff, of Plymouth, Mich.

The house was prettily decorated with ferns and roses.

The bride looked sweet in her trailing silken draperies, and carrying a bouquet of fragrant June roses as she advanced on the arm of the bridegroom to the west window, where, with the afternoon sun glancing through the background of ferns, the Rev. Dr. Battisley awaited them.

The impressive double ring ceremony of the Presbyterian church was finished with an earnest prayer, after which congratulations were showered upon Mr. and Mrs. Ekkliff.

The wedding party, which consisted of the immediate relatives of the young couple alone, namely, the family at home, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Murdoch, Misses Cecil and Victoria, and Messrs. Ned and Percy Murdoch, and Mr. and Mrs. Downs, of Detroit, sister of the groom; Mr. Emil Christensen, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. West and son Edna, of Blenheim; Mr. and Mrs. A. P. McKinnie and little daughter Phyllis, of Chatham, then proceeded to the dining room, where a dainty luncheon was served after which the newly wedded pair left to catch the 9.52 Wabash train for Chicago and New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Ekkliff will take up their residence in Plymouth amid the good wishes of a whole community of old friends of the bride in Canada and new friends of the young couple in the town which they will call "home."
