THE EGYPTIAN WAR.

The main body of the English army in the Sudan are now encamped at Sinkat, where they will remain inactive till next Autumn. The air from the desert is now as hot as from a furnace. Active operations are now impossible, but it is thought that a battle with Osman Digma will have to be fought before the British camp can be made secure. Wolseley will keep portions of his command moving between the different Nile stations during the hot weather as a sanitary precaution. Wolseley's speech to the army in the Sudan, outlines the autumn campaign. He said: "The Queen desires me to express her admiration of your courage and self-devotion. To have commanded such men is to me a source of the highest pride. No greater honor can be in store for you than that I look to the act of leading you, please God, into Khartoum before the year is out. On the river and in the desert you have borne hardships and privations murmureless. In action you have been uniformly victorious. You have done uniformly victorious. You have done all that men can do to save a comrade, but Khartoum fell through treachery two days before it could be reached. A period of comparative inaction is now expected. The army is not yet formed with a view to the siege of Khartoum. We must content ourselves during the summer and prepare for an autumn advance. You will I know face the heat and work that yet remains for you with the same courage and endurance you have displayed hitherto."

Gen. Buller's troops suffered intensely from the hot wind and sand during the retreat from Gakdul. A number of men and horses were prostrated. The rebel sharpshooters continually harassed the troops with long range fire.

Six transports arrived at Suakim on the 7th inst., with reinforcements and supplies. Hostile arabs are becoming alarmed at the number of ships arriving.

The water supply at the British camp is abundant. Osman Digma has sent a letter to the British commander, recounting the Arab successes announcing that the fall of Kassala is imminent, and warning the English they will be defeated and driven into the sea if they venture beyond Suakim. Osman has also sent a letter to the chief of a friendly tribe of Amorars now in Suakim, threatening him with death unless he rejoins the Mahdi's army, and telling him the British are doomed, as 7,000 dervishes have arrived to reinforce his army.

The North Pacific and Australia fleets are to be reinforced. As a result of the conference with the agents-general of the colonies at the War Office, the Government will rely upon receiving contingents from Canada, Australia, and New Zealand. It is rumored that the Governor-General has received instructions from the Imperial Government to raise five regiments in Canada. It is just possible that there are a sufficient number of men in Canada, with the requisite amount of gushy loyalty, to form five regiments for service in the Sudan, but we doubt if the greater number of Canadians who are loyal to Canada first, will consent to furnish the money necessary to equip and maintain such a force.

The probability of war between England and Russia becomes every day more imminent. The Russians have occupied Afghan territory her authority over which England established with so great a sacrifice of life and money, and have positively declined to accede to England's demand to withdraw. England has sent an ultimatum to Russia, and thus the matter stands. Turkey, in view of the aggressive attitude of Russia on the Afghan frontier, meditates offering an alliance, offensive and defensive, with England. If the offer is accepted Turkey will send an army to India, to be under the orders of British commanders. The Ameer of Afghanistan is sending troops to protect the frontier against the Russians. The leading English journals urge England to occupy and fortify Herat at once and check the Russian advance into the interior of Afghanistan at any cost. The Times says if Russia wishes to fight, England is not only ready but willing, and Russia has only to say the word. The News says, "Should the struggle come, it will be the colonies to the rescue, and their recent patriotic fervor has shown that they would not be called in vain." In spite of the ugly look of things few seriously expect war with Russia. The language of the British ministers alone ought to be enough to prove that. They speak in a manner rather indicating that they prefer to go to war rather than allow Russia to advance further into Afghanistan. They must feel sure therefore that Russia will decline the challenge. Their main reliance is in the confident hope that Russia is hopelessly embarrassed by the want of money.

On Wednesday, 4th inst., the Ontario Government introduced a redistribution bill in the Assembly. The last distribution of seats bill was passed in 1871, when the unit of population was fixed at 18,114. The increase and changes in population that have taken place since that time rendered the present bill necessary. The Government have created only one new seat, that of Algoma, which was too large to be adequately represented by one member. The bill is in every respect a fair one—such a bill as the people of Ontario naturally expected from the Mowat Government. Not the slightest attempt at gerrymandering is evident in any of the changes made. The unit of population was fixed at 21,621, and these figures were approximated as near as possible. The following changes were made in these counties:—Brockville to consist of the town of Brockville and the townships of Elizabethtown, Rear of Yonge and Escott, Front of Yonge, and Front of Escott. The remainder of the two counties will be divided into two ridings, one to be known as Leeds and the other as Grenville. Leeds will consist of Front of Leeds and Lansdowne, Rear of Leeds and Lansdowne, South Crosby, North Crosby, Bastard, South Burgess, Kitley, Elmsley, and the villages of Gananoque and Newboro. Grenville will consist of Augusta, Edwardsburg, Oxford, Wolford, South Gower, the town of Prescott, and the villages of Kemptville, Merrickville, and Cardinal.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Libel Suit.

The libel suit of McMullen v. Colcock which arose from the battle of words between the editors of the Monitor and Times last fall, and which was to have come off at the Spring Assizes, has been settled.

Remember that a summarised account of the proceedings of the Municipal Council of Rear of Yonge & Escott, as well as of the Unionville Fair Association will appear in the REPORTER. These alone are worth the subscription price to those interested, and as we publish them without fee or reward, we hope our efforts will be appreciated.

B. W. and S. S. M. Railway.

Voting on the bonus by-law took place in the townships of Bastard and Burgess, and South Crosby yesterday, (10th). As we anticipated the bonus was carried by a good majority in the first-named township, the majority being 239. In South Crosby, there was a majority of 75 in favor of the by-law, but as there was not two-thirds of the total vote polled, the by-law was defeated in that municipality. What effect this adverse vote will have remains to be seen, but we believe the road will be built notwithstanding. Voting in Rear of Leeds and Lansdowne takes place on the 13th.

A Slow Train.

The Kingston News tells of a well-contested race which took place one day last week between a Kingston & Pembroke Railway train and a cow on the track. The conductor ran ahead of the train and tried to switch the bovine off the track by twisting her tail, and after several attempts succeeded in doing so, after which he jumped on the rear of the last car and went his way.—[We don't wonder any at the above story. We had occasion to travel over that road once, and we heard the story that the train hands used to walk on ahead and cut the wood for the engine and have it ready when the train came along.—Ed.]

The Death Roll.

WILTSE.

Hester Coleman, wife of the late Comfort M. Wiltse, died on Monday, Feb. 23d, at the residence of her son-in-law, A. W. Kelley, Wiltsetown, aged nearly 90 years. Mrs. Wiltse was among the early settlers of this township, having come to this section from the Bay of Quinte, when very young. She reared a family of four boys and five girls.

BOOTH.

Charlotte Sheriff, wife of the late James Booth, died at the residence of her son-in-law, Gershom Yates, in this village, on Friday, March 6th, aged 83 years. The deceased lady reared a large family, nearly all of whom are in other lands, only one daughter (Mrs. Yates) being present at the funeral.

SHERMAN.

Joanna Robeson, wife of the late Aaron Sherman, died at her residence in this village, on Saturday, March 7th, aged 63 years. The deceased lady was born in the township of Elizabethtown, and reared six boys and three girls, of whom two sons, Arza N. and William, and her daughter, Mrs. Cadwell, reside in the village.

WILTSE.

Asa Wiltse, second son of Arza Wiltse, died on Monday morning, 8th inst., of diphtheria. The deceased, who was a promising lad of nearly 13 years, was a special favorite among his young associates. His class in the Model School, accompanied by Mr. Porter, head teacher, preceded the remains to the grave.

IRELAND.

The Recorder of Monday last contained an account of the death of an old resident of Kitley, Lewis D. Ireland. It was the writer's privilege to become acquainted with the deceased gentleman, more than twenty-five years ago, at which time he was known as the veteran temperance man of the township. He died at a ripe old age, leaving an example worthy of the imitation of young and old.

GAINFORD.

Just as we go to press, we learn that Thos. Gainford, Lake Loyada Road, died this (Wednesday) morning.

THE FARMERSVILLE REPORTER.

The Lace Wale,
OR
THE RUNAWAY MARRIAGE.

Founded on fact, except as to names & places.

By ENG.—A FARMERSVILLE BOY.

"You won't say anything agin the lace wale at that price, will you?"

"That depends on how it's to be done," said Mr. Cromwell. "What is your plan?"

Mrs. Cromwell then related what Mrs. Vasey had done, adding "I'm sure if Mary Vasey could learn the trade in one month, Susan can learn it in less time, for, you know, she's quick to learn anything."

"Well," said Mr. Cromwell, "if you send Susan to that school, you will have to do so without my consent."

"Why," replied Mrs. Cromwell, "we can limit her time to go and come, and I'll speak to the mistress to have an eye to her, and I guess it will be all be all right."

They argued the question at some length, but so intent was the old lady on having the lace veil that Susan was sent to the sewing school and everything seemed to be going on all right till one day, near the end of the month, Susan failed to be at dinner. Half after twelve, no Susan; one o'clock, no Susan. Mr. Cromwell, horsewhip in hand, left post haste for the school house. On arriving there, the first word was, "where's Susan?" The mistress had not seen her that day. In great perplexity he then began an enquiry among the neighbors with the same result, till one old matron who wished to pride herself on being the first to break the news, exclaimed with a loud laugh, "La! sir, don't you know that Susan has gone to Providence to be married?"

"To be married!" shouted Mr. Cromwell. "In the name of common sense, who to?"

"Why, to Roddy Gibson, of course," replied the matron, "we all knew of it this fortnight, but we thought it was none of our business, and so we said nothing about it. I suppose you will wonder how and when they did their courting. Well, you see, Roddy used to meet her at the turn of the road and walk with her to the school house, and they do say that for the last few days, they didn't appear to be in any great haste to get there, either."

With this information, Mr. Cromwell left for home in great haste, muttering as he went that "that thousand dollars will have to be paid now. Edwards knew what he was about when he got that will registered. A fine set of neighbors, surely! Knew all about it this fortnight, and wouldn't tell us. I wonder if they'd give the alarm if they saw our house on fire. I doubt it." And thus by the time he reached home, he had worked himself into a furious passion. Mrs. Cromwell noticed his peturbed state of mind, and at once exclaimed—

"Why, Oliver, what in the world's the matter with you? Are you crazy?"

"Enough to make a man crazy," he shouted. "Where's Joe? Tell him to harness Dobb'n as quickly as possible. I'm going to Providence with all speed. Here's a pretty spot of work, and all come of your 'tarnal lace wale. Susan's gone to Providence to get married."

"To be married!" screamed his mate. "Is it possible, and who is he, and when and where did they make the bargain?"

"Oh, that feller that fixed our house, he waylaid her on the road to the sewing school, and now you see what's come of it. Is the carriage ready?"

"Yes, sir," answered Joe.

"Why, Oliver," said Mrs. Cromwell, "there aint no use goin' to Providence. They'll be married before you can get there."

"Spouse maybe they will, but it sha'n't be said I didn't try," was his reply.

"Well, Oliver," said she, "If you will go, I'll go with you." So saying, she drew on a bonnet and a light shawl, and in less than one minute they were on the road to Providence, going as fast as Dobb'n could be persuaded (by the free use of the whip) to go. They had proceeded but little more than a mile, when they saw Roddy and Susan coming very leisurely along. They immediately stopped old Dobb'n, got out and stood one on each side of their wagon, some twelve or fourteen feet away, each a whip in hand, waiting the approach of the runaways. Roddy saw the movement, and putting whip to his high-spirited animal, passed by on Mrs. Cromwell's side of the wagon on the keen run, not forgetting to give Mr. Cromwell's horse a smart blow with the whip as he went by, which Mr. and Mrs. Cromwell in their excitement failed to notice, so that when they turned toward their horse, he was nowhere in sight. After standing awhile in a kind of stupor, Mr. Cromwell ventured the remark, what has become of our horse?"

"Gone to Providence to be married," said Mrs. Cromwell, "and now you may go and find him if you can. I don't pity you one bit. I told you not to come. And now I may walk home in these old, thin shoes, and then suffer with rheumatiz in my feet and ankles, dear knows how long."

"Couldn't you wrap your face wale around 'em?" said Mr. Cromwell. "I'm sure it would cure 'em right off."

"I haven't got any lace wale," she shouted, "nor don't suppose I will, now Susan has gone and got married." She then threw her whip in the middle of the road and began moving towards home, while Mr. Cromwell with a whip in each hand started in some haste toward Providence, in hopes of finding his horse somewhere on the road. In this he was not mistaken, for Dobb'n had worked all through spring work and did not feel very ambitious. As soon, therefore, as he found there was no one urging him, he began slacking his speed and in less than a mile he had stopped and was eating grass alongside the road. Finding things all right, Mr. Cromwell managed to get home as soon as his wife. But how they spent that evening we are left to conjecture. We know, however, that Roddie took his wife home to his mother's till he got his own house finished, and the

THE STEVENSON PIANO.

The following is an unsolicited testimonial as to the merits of this excellent Piano:—
To Stevenson & Co.:

Dear Sirs,—As a matter of justice I wish to give my unsolicited recommendation of the Stevenson Piano. The Stevenson Company warranted the Piano for a term of years. They have thus far more than fulfilled their contract. The Piano in our Parlor in Albert College delights all musicians who test its fine qualities. After the instrument had been in use a few weeks, I gave a willing testimony to its many excellencies. Now, after nearly two years of constant use, my opinion has not changed, except for the better. The true test of a piano is in using it one or two years. The Stevenson Piano has borne that test. I am more than satisfied.

THE END.

NEWS OF THE WORLD.

All the important events of the week ending on Tuesday evening.

A little son of Mr. Hussey, of Toronto, on Tuesday swallowed a copper tack, and before assistance could be procured died in great agony.

Miss Sarah J. Richardson died last Sunday, near Morpeth, very suddenly from picking her fingers with a needle, causing blood-poisoning.

Judge Torrance, at Montreal on Friday, fined Cleophas St. Onge, hotel-keeper, $100 and costs for selling liquor to Octave Roy, an habitual drunkard, after the latter's wife had given him notice to desist.

Diphtheria is epidemic in many towns and villages in Eastern Connecticut and Western Rhode Island. The disease has made frightful ravages among the children of Norwich, New London and Western Rhode Island.

While going to Kingston an engine tender and one car jumped the rails near Verona, and skipped over a culvert. There were fifteen passengers on the train, but no one was hurt. During the night the passengers held a Scott Act meeting.

A little girl named Trepanner and another child named Boyer were playing with a loaded pistol in a house in Montreal, unknown to their parents, when the former pulled the trigger and shot her companion dead. The revolver was left in an open drawer within reach of the child.

All the approaches to the parliament buildings at Ottawa, except the main entrance, have been closed after dark to visitors and kept closed till 10 o'clock next day. A large number of guards, placed only a few yards apart, are on watch all night, and every precaution is taken to see that no visitor enters the place. This extra precaution, it is said, has taken place owing to letters received by both Speakers advising them to beware of dynamite.

In the Nova Scotia Legislature on Thursday Mr. Power gave notice that he proposed to question the right of the Parliament of Canada to impose a duty on flour. Another member, Mr. Fraser, brought down a resolution stating that the union with Canada had been injurious to Nova Scotia, and recommending an appeal to the Imperial authorities for leave to withdraw from the Dominion and resume its old status as a colony.

Fire-works.

Our local pyrotechnic professor illuminated the rink on Saturday evening, by means of cat-tails dipped in kerosene. The illumination was a brilliant success, and we hope the professor's morbid craving for light was entirely satisfied, and that he will refrain from giving any further exhibitions.

Agricultural.

Messrs Jas. Bissell, of Algonquin, and F. H. McCrea of Spring Valley, met at Toronto this week, attending a meeting of Holstein Cattle breeders. It is proposed to open a Holstein Herd Book, and arrangements for that purpose will no doubt be made at this meeting.

Pay up.

Quite a few of our subscribers have not paid for the REPORTER. All who wish to avail themselves of the 75 cent rate must send in the money before the 20th inst. All subscriptions remaining unpaid then, will be charged $1.00.

Judgement Against the County.

At the last meeting of Counties Council, Wm. Stafford, Esq., ex-warden of Leeds and Grenville, presented a bill for services as chairman of the county property committee for last year. The council refused to pay the bill, and Mr. Stafford entered an action in the Division Court in Brockville to recover the amount. The case came up before Judge McDonald, on Wednesday last, 4th inst. Mr. Stafford was the only witness examined, and a verdict for the full amount, viz.: $52 and costs, was awarded.

Left Out.

Look out for Kaufman's add., some local matter and communications left out of this issue, for want of space.

Sugar Social.

There will be a sugar social in the Methodist Church of this place, on Tuesday evening, March the 17th. A splendid program of entertainment has been provided. Admission, 15c.

The Storm.

"Old Prob." promised fine weather on Monday last, but didn't send enough to last all day. The forenoon was fine, but in the afternoon one of the severest windstorms of the season set in and continued all night.

High School Entertainment.

The monthly entertainment of the L. M. A. will be held on Friday evening next. The entertainment will consist of music by the orchestra, instrumental solos, songs, vocal duets, trios, essays, readings, recitations, etc. The programme will be presented by the students of the High School, and this is sufficient guarantee that the entertainment will be in every respect first-class. Admission, as usual.

The Saved Army.

The detachment of the Saved Army stationed here, are holding services every evening in the town hall. The hall is crowded nightly, and though there have not been many conversions, there has taken place a general awakening among church members, and the Army have the sympathy and countenance of all in their earnest endeavors to raise the fallen and redeem the lost.
