Please The Children

by making bread that appeals to their taste as well as giving nourishment to their system. Ask the average child which it prefers, bread or cake, and it will invariably answer, "Cake".

That is because the bread is not as tasty as it might be. It lacks that delicate, sweet, appealing flavor that children relish so heartily, and that is just as easy to provide as the nourishing properties.

"Beaver" Flour

is the stand-by of every thinking mother and housewife. You need not be a brilliant cook in order to get good results with this carefully balanced blend of Manitoba Spring wheat and Ontario Fall wheat. You don't have to bother about one kind of flour for bread, and another for pastry. "BEAVER FLOUR" provides the ideal qualities for both—the gluten, or nourishment, of the Manitoba wheat, and the lighter properties of the Ontario wheat that go to make bread white and sweet and pastry crisp and flaky.

"BEAVER FLOUR" makes more loaves to the barrel than any other. It gives the best results in bread, pies and cakes because it adds appearance and flavor to the merit of nourishment.

Don't take anybody's word for it. Try "BEAVER FLOUR" yourself and convince yourself that good baking is easier than you thought it was.

The Great Love OF Peg o' the Wilds

I—The Breaking of Two Hearts.

The low-down scoundrel! The mean skulk! A blackguard that isn't fit to mix with decent folk! Marry a son of his!—and his voice rose to a shout. "Never! My flesh and blood shall never mate with that carrion! D'ye hear, Peg? I'd rather see you in your grave first!"

Poor Peg was beside herself. For the first time in her life she had heard her father's voice raised in anger and seen his face transfigured with rage, and—against the one whom an absorbing passion had suddenly sprang up in her tender heart—a first love, a passion that was true and noble, and that permeated every fibre of her being.

A pallor showed through the tan, and, speechless with amazement and dread, she listened to the outburst in the manner of one whose faculties are suddenly benumbed.

Then, as the storm left her father breathless, slowly, without a word, but with a look that pierced the old man to the heart, she left the room.

"It's like cutting the vitals out of the living body! Mate with a son of his! Never! I'd rather see her dead first!"

And, with a groan of mental agony, he sank into a chair and let his thoughts run riot.

Away back in the bygone they carried him, and from memory's hidden recesses he conjured up the features of the hated rival who at every critical point of his life had crossed and supplanted, working—and always in the dark—to his injury. At school in early business, in his youthful affections—always the same fell influence, the same skulking, baneful personality, lurking like a ghoul in the background and working to his hurt away from the light.

The following days were mournful ones for Peg and her father alike. The old man wandered about with a stern, inexorable look on his face that effectively choked off the subject at issue; while Peg was no longer the bright Peg of old. Rarely did she go outdoors; her face lost its vivacity, and her step its elasticity; and she remained for the greater part of the day shut up in her own room.

So things remained for about a month after the upset.

Then came the great climax. One morning Dan Gordon came down to breakfast at the usual hour, but there was no Peg to welcome him. He shouted her name through the house, he searched high and low, and then, as an awful foreboding crossed his mind, he noticed a note folded and placed near his accustomed seat.

In a maze of bewilderment he opened and read:
Dearest Father—I have left you and gone to Jack. I could not live without him. He has made all arrangements, and we shall be married to-day at X—. Don't grieve for me, father! Be assured that what I am doing is for the best, and that I am and always shall remain, your own loving little "PEG."

The stricken man sank into the chair. The dreaded thing had happened, and he was overwhelmed.

Like one whose senses have temporarily drifted from their mooring, he sat dumb, motionless, tearless. Then, as reason slowly resumed its sway, he sat back in his chair and faced the ruin that had befallen him. His Peg—his little, motherless Peg—the being in whom had centred a his hopes and affections—the one whose existence had kept his own flickering vanity burning—the one being with whom he could claim kinship in all the wide world, had left him in the winter of his days—gone out of his life—and with a message very naive to him spelt his ruin.

This hated enemy was preferred before him who was responsible for her being, and he was left childless, alone, forsaken. With the thought his head sank to his outstretched arms, and a paroxysm of grief racked his frame.

When the storm had spent itself he lifted his head, and then into his eyes there crept the light of another passion—the fires of anger and resentment. He had been forsaken—he would pluck her from his heart. He had been left childless—henceforth he had no child. And as for the man who had caused the havoc—

"Curse him! May destruction dog his footsteps to the grave! The skulk! He hadn't the manliness to face me and ask for what he wanted. Like his craven father, he stole—stole my one eye-lamb. 'Curse him! Let me never get near him!"

And his hands worked convulsively as he gloated in the anticipation of coming to close grips with his enemy's throat.

It seemed as though the elements were in harmony with the spirit of the stricken man—dark and brooding, for suddenly the rain that had threatened all the morning descended in torrents to the accompaniment of thunder's roll and lightning's flash.

Leaving his meal untasted, he got up and placed his chair near the fire, and there he sat, alone with his thoughts, hour after hour.

As the evening drew on—the hour that he had daily yearned for, when Peg was his for the remainder of the day—had craved for his daughter's return, now demanded, in brusque tones:

"Who dares call me father?"

"It is your little Peg, O father! father!"

"I have no child, madam. You have made a mistake. Go—quick! This is no place for you!"

And he made as though he would close the door.

"O father! father!"—and the distraught woman (for one day's experience had wrought the change of years) swayed in the storm and fell to the ground in a faint.

Dan Gordon could stand no more. She was bone of his bone and flesh of his flesh, and inwardly he yearned for her with an unquenchable yearning.

Springing forward he bore her into the house and poured a little brandy between her closed teeth. Then he set her on the couch and watched her return to consciousness.

As her eyes opened she saw him, and then came the thought of the day's events. She shuddered and turned her head away. But the old man spoke the thoughts that were in his mind.

"Did he marry you?"

"No, father."

"The scoundrel! Do you mean—"

"He didn't come; he sent a note instead."

With these words did she gloss the treachery of the man who had proved true to his nature—the man who had failed at the pinch and stood out in his true colours—a despicable dastard.

"The villain! Like father, like son. May the curse of Heaven—"

And then he noticed the look of dumb entreaty in Peg's eyes and was silent.

From that moment onward nothing further was said on the subject; each avoided it as an episode to be thought of only.

But did either forget? Did old Dan forget the villain who had shattered his domestic peace and crushed the life out of his darling? Did Peg forget the man who had flashed across her life in its most susceptible period?

Dan certainly didn't, and it was in response to inward promptings on the matter that he sold up his home and removed far from a district whose associations were too poignant for daily reminding.

II.—THE CARAVAN.

For a summer whose climatic conditions had been execrable the beautiful autumn and early winter compensated somewhat, and it was an evening whose sky-glories would have delighted a Turner that brought Dan Gordon out from comparative seclusion for a stretch of the legs and enjoyment of the genial surroundings.

With the life amid new scenes and associations, the old grudge had almost been effaced from his mind, and he fondly hoped that the sore had been healed in the heart of his child.

Anyway, she never complained or referred to the renegade lover, and, for aught he knew, she had put him entirely from her remembrance.

That being so, he would try to lift up his head and look forward to a future rosy-hued and without a cloud to disturb its serenity.

So he thought and talked over to himself as he wandered farther and farther away from his home, attracted by the beauty of the evening.

Had he not been so intent upon his introspection, he would doubtless have become aware of a man who dogged his footsteps, halting as he halted, and springing aside into the shadows if he showed any signs of turning.

It was a man about thirty years of age, whose face, even in the twilight, showed the lines of a dissolute and wild past. At the present moment he was only following out an idea inspired by a chaotic and disordered brain.

As the darkness of night fell, he crept closer to his contemplated victim, and, when the opportunity that he sought showed itself, he pulled a heavy sand-bag from under his coat and lifted it to strike.

At the moment the old man half turned, and that moment probably saved his life, for he received the blow on the side of the face and shoulder—sufficiently severe, however, to fell him like a log.

Again the sand-bag swished through the air, but not before a loud shout for help had broken from the lips of the prostrate man. The call was instantly answered by the shrill blast of a police whistle.

Balked of his anticipated plunder, the robber shot one glance into the darkness towards the danger point, then turned and dashed away.

The stomach is a larger factor in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" than most people are aware of. Patriotism can withstand hunger but not dyspepsia. GIN PILLS Passed It.

JOLLETTE, P. O.
"During August last, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with Stone In The Bladder. He decided on an operation and was assisted by another doctor. They said the calculus was larger than a bean and too hard to crush and they could not take it out."

I returned home suffering greatly and did not know what to do but was recommended by a friend to try GIN PILLS. I bought a box and found relief from the pain at once. I took a second and a third box of GIN PILLS, after which I went back to the specialist. He told me the calculus was reduced in size, still he could not relieve me of it although he tried for two and a half hours.

I returned home again and continued to take GIN PILLS as they reduced the pain very much, but I did not expect that they would relieve me of the stone but to my great joy, I passed the stone on October 3rd, and am now a well man and very happy.

I am sending the stone in to you so that you can see for yourself what a great work GIN PILLS did for me. GIN PILLS are the best medicine in the world and because they did so much for me, I will recommend them all the rest of my life." J. ALBERT LESSARD.

What glorious news to those who are almost going insane from the pain of Stone In The Bladder! Here is ease and comfort! Here is relief! Here is a certain means of getting rid of the stone without being cut to pieces by the knives of a surgeon. GIN PILLS dissolve Stone or Gravel in Kidneys or Bladder because GIN PILLS are the greatest solvent for uric acid the world has ever known.

If your trouble is like Mr. Lessard's, follow his example and take GIN PILLS. Money refunded if they fail to give relief. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. Sample box free if you write us, mentioning this paper.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

PART II.
Should a Girl Tell a Man?

Don't you think the woman who goes to a man without confessing to his greater risk of losing him after marriage than if she had told him every thing? If a man couldn't forgive then, he surely couldn't when he found he had been deceived and he would surely find it out.

"I am a woman with something to confess. I came to the city alone when I was seventeen, believing in the same moral standard for men and women, and that a high one. I was thrown much in contact with a certain college student, and in time came to care very much for him. We had the usual student understanding that if, when through college, if we still cared, we would be married." Follows a pitiful story of a man playing on a woman's affection for him and fear for his physical safety to work her downfall, and then "We were separated soon after this and I no longer hear from him as can be expected.

"Every cloud has a silver lining. I've been telling you about my cloud and now I want to show you its lining. I believe I am a bigger, nobler woman than I would have been, if used to pass over suffering lightly. I cannot now. But most of all my heart goes out to the woman who has fallen. Now I know that if a man loves a girl he will protect her even against himself, because I know the horror of the one kind of love which many mistake for the real. I believe I have a keener appreciation of the real and beautiful. I want to be worthy of being the mother of my husband's children and when temptation comes my way I think of that and it helps me.

"It isn't the losing of one battle that loses a country the war. It is giving up the fight and it's just the same with life. I don't consider my life ruined and I think less should be said about a woman's life being ruined if she makes one mistake.

"I am twenty-three now, surrounded by friends who believe in me, and am often spoken of as the girl who is always happy.

"Someday if I love someone who loves me I can make him just as good a wife as if this had never happened. I shall tell him. If he can't forgive me I shall be glad I told him because I shall not have deceived him, and I shall know that he does not care enough for me. I will lose him, but I shall have lost him anyway and far better before marriage than after.

"Please tell the little girl for me that I am so, so sorry it happened, but that she must make the best of it."

Fads and Fashions.

Large and small turbans of straw, hand-made, are being shown in the shops. The crowns are high and the trimming makes them more so.

Studdings of moonstones, baroque pearls, topaz, turquoise and diamonds are most popular for gold chains, other stones being reserved for the antique silver chains.

Printed materials in quaint patterns and colours will be used. Prune colour, in combination with old blue, is often seen in printed gowns and chifons to be made over blouses.

A jeweled comb for the hair is a long shallow crescent large enough to fit over the top of the head and come down to the ears. It can be worn at the front or back.

For the receptions, the gowns of voile, marquisette and the changeable silks show just a tiny train at the back that is much more becoming than the short round skirts of last year.

The return of the bordered fabric is one of the modistic occurrences on which we can generally rely each spring. The offering in some of the spring and summer goods is beautiful. Auto cases come of chiffon cloth of fine marquisette or grenadine with plain or printed borders in ribbon effects. It is now the fad to use the kinds that are waterproofed and there are several of them.

Tunics of vivid colours over contrasting shades of satin are noticeable. These evening gowns are quite simple, the sleeves and the tunic, perhaps, being treated to a border of fringe of tubular beads of dull silver or gilt cord.

One of the new hats has a crown and inner brim of white lace woven with a silver thread, the outer brim of gray hemp and the sole trimming two immense silk peonies, one of bright shaded pink, the other the colour of dead autumn leaves curiously mottled.

The sleeve cut in two pieces, if fancy at all, is often brought into a band, either just below the turn of the elbow or at the wrist. In plain tailored suits the full-length sleeve is Useful Trees.

Probably the most useful tree in the world is the cocconut palm, every portion of which is put to good use. The trunk is used for building houses, for making furniture and farm implements, and countless other articles; hollowed out, it makes a canoe. Its leaves are used for thatching the roofs, stalks for paddles and fishing lines. The blossoms in bud makes preserves, and pickles, besides serving as a staple vegetable. From the pit of the trunk is derived a kind of sago, and from the flowers sugar and vinegar. The ripe cocconut is a valuable article of diet. The white kernel produces a delicious cream, a good substitute for milk, while the oil is used as a lubricant for soap and candle-making. It is also applied to counteract the stings of scorpions.

The refuse of the oil or oil cake, is valuable as food for animals and poultry, and as a fertilizer for the soil. From the shell drinking cups, spoons, lamps, firewood, and even tooth powder are obtained. The husk supplies fibre for mattresses and cushions, and even the harness for bullocks. The web sustaining the foot stalks is made into strainers and

CHEERED THE LECTURER.

Wednesday night after the close of Rev. J. K. Curran's lecture on "Gladstone and Home Rule," the audience in the Star of the Sea Hall rose to their feet and cheered the rev. gentleman to the echo. The lecture and the sentiments expressed by the rev. gentleman were liberal and pleasing to an audience mostly of people of Irish extraction.

Interred Yesterday.

Yesterday afternoon the remains of the lad Harvey Williams, who died of meningitis at the General Hospital, were interred in the C. of E. Cemetery. The little chap lived at the C. of E. Orphanage and Messrs. Lawrence Bros. had charge of the funeral arrangements. The casket contained several wreaths and Rev. Jas. Bell officiated at the burial. A number of the little orphan boys and other friends were present at the funeral and sang in a very impressive way some favorite hymns. The lad was a favorite in the Orphanage where a younger brother yet resides.

Water St. Deserted.

With the closing of the saloons at night Water Street presents a very quiet appearance, and but for the police and an occasional citizen, few people walk that thoroughfare. The presence of a dissolute class of young women and girls, some of them of very tender years, on this street at night is a disgrace. The language and conduct of these females would do credit to the harridans who inhabit the "Tenderloin" or any other tough district in New York, and the police would be doing a good work by sweeping these off our principal thoroughfare.

Public Health.

We have read with much interest the Report of the Commission on Public Health which was tabled a few days ago in the House of Assembly. The saddest feature of it is the sad showing St. John's makes when compared with the rest of the Colony. The report says:

"The Commission call attention to the contrast between certain rates of mortality in St. John's and the Outports, which do not show to the advantage of St. John's, in fact the higher rate in St. John's corroborates what was reported by the Commission last year, that there was a special problem in connection with the question of public health appertaining to St. John's."

COMPARATIVE DEATH RATE.

Pulmonary Tuberculosis.
St. John's.
1906, Total Deaths 151—3.5 Rate.
1909, Total Deaths 154—3.85 Rate.
The Colony.

1906, Total Deaths 993—4.00 Rate.
1909, Total Deaths 736—3.38 Rate.
The Colony REDUCED the rate near One Quarter between 1906 and 1909.

St. John's remained STATIONARY.

INFANTILE DEATH RATES.

(Birth to One Year.)
For the Year 1909.
St. John's, 22 per 100 births.
The Colony, 14 per 100 births.

GENERAL DEATH RATES.
For the Year 1909.
St. John's, 22 per 1,000 living.
The Colony, 15.43 per 1,000 living.

The Chairman of the Commission called the attention of the City Council to the contrast involved in these comparisons and suggested that some improvement might be obtained if they would put in force Sections 12 and 13 of the last Municipal Act and instruct a regular and frequent inspection of the houses and inmates in certain parts of the town.

Adventure Heard From

HAS WEIGHT OF 30,000.
Messrs. A. J. Harvey & Coy. received the following message late last night from the Adventure:

Monday evening—"Took 2,800 young and old hoods. Estimate weight on board from 28 to 30,000 seals. Patch pretty well cut up. Am looking for old seals."
(Sgd.) JACOB KEAN.

Tax Too Heavy.

Negotiations are now in progress between people at this end and two first class theatrical combines in New York to arrange for a season in this city after Easter. One of them would certainly come but the principal objection is to the Municipal Tax of 4 per cent on the gross proceeds. This is considered excessive. The managers say that they would not mind paying this on the net proceeds but they fear loss if they come forward under present conditions. The promoters here think the Council should modify this tax in the interests of the public.

In Bad Condition.

Allandale Road is in an impassable condition on account of snow and ruts. The people who live in the country beyond the bridge at Coughlin's have been walking over the fields all the winter, now they are shut out by the farmers and have to take the roads.

AT TRINITY. — The S.S. Stella Maris arrived at Trinity this morning on the way south. Capt. Winsor telegraphed Crossbie & Co. that she would have to remain there till the fog lifted.

Danger in Discharging Dynamite.

ACCIDENT MAY WRECK WATER FRONT.

A few days ago we referred to the fact that the s.s. Durango discharged 40 tons or 1,600 boxes of dynamite in the harbor of St. John's. It was placed on board the schr. Jack Tar temporarily, after which it was transhipped to the s.s. Mary and taken to Bell Island to be used in the mines by the employees of the Nova Scotia Steel Co. Shipments of this explosive come at regular intervals and are re-shipped in this harbor and sent to Bell Island. In handling this dangerous material there is always the possibility of an accident occurring, and should anything of the kind occur the result would be terrible. The sensible, thinking men who work on these wharves when the explosive is being handled do so with a feeling of dread over them. Competent and observant men, superintendents of long shore work, say that they would not be surprised to witness a terrific explosion at any time when dynamite in such large quantities is being handled. It is hoisted up from the holds of ships by donkey winches like ordinary cargo, and those who have witnessed men at work on steamers say that the explosive is sometimes handled with carelessness and that they have seen packages broken and dynamite cartridges stream about. In the process of hoisting out this cargo, if a box of it fell from the holds of ships to the hold of a ship containing a lot of the material one of the worst disasters ever recorded in the annals of the city of St. John's would ensue. Only a few weeks ago in New York the careless handling of dynamite created an awful catastrophe by which a barge and two vessels were annihilated and the lives of many human beings sacrificed. So fierce was the explosion that great granite piers near the scene of the explosion were torn in pieces, and buildings on almost the whole island of Manhattan were shaken to their foundations. Men who have seen the material handled here say those working at it do not seem to appreciate the danger in which they stand, and it sometimes occurs that men throw about boxes of the explosive out of a spirit of bravado. When the stuff reaches Bell Island it is handled by men who are expert at the work and none others are allowed to touch it. So careful are the company's employees that men going into the holds of the ships to work at discharging dynamite are compelled to remove their boots and to pass along the boxes with extreme care, and at all costs to prevent them from falling. A few days ago a considerable quantity of the explosive in boxes was drawn through Water Street on flat cars over gulches and ruts with the danger of some of the packages being jolted off and falling into the immediate neighborhood. If through any accident an explosion occurs when steamers are discharging this high explosive near our waterfront it will mean that that portion of the city will be demolished and that hundreds of human lives will be lost. Those who are aware of the danger to which the city is exposed say that this is a matter which should receive the immediate and earnest attention of the Government, and that steamers coming here with it should be compelled to discharge it at Bell Island, where most of it is used and where there is every facility to handle it without accident and where only experts work at it. A dynamite explosion of the kind alluded to would cause irreparable damage to St. John's.

A Peculiar Experience.

Mr. William Martin, a city truckman, had a peculiar experience with his horse on Water Street this morning, opposite Bishop & Sons store. The horse on one of the horse's hoofs got caught in a hole in the street between the paving stones that had been thrown abroad by the frost. He had to spend half an hour working trying to extricate the animal's hoof before he succeeded. The job was accomplished by knocking off the shoe with a hammer.

The Prospero left for the westward at 10 a.m. to-day, taking a fair cargo and as passengers Mrs. M. P. Cashin, H. C. Winsor, J. Winsor, E. Fleming and 20 stevedores.

HOUSEBREAKERS CAPTURED.

The two boys who effected an entrance to Mr. Street's house on Young Street on Wednesday night, as reported in yesterday's Telegram, after getting clear of the neighborhood remained away from their homes and ran countrywards. Yesterday they reached Portugal Cove where the local constable captured them and they were brought into the city to-day and placed in the lockup. The boys will come before court to-morrow.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

—To-day a drunk was discharged, and a disorderly and a drunk were each fined $2 or 7 days. The three boys Peedie, Simpson and Keen, who broke into White-way and Allan's stores and stole a quantity of goods and liquor, were before court to-day and convicted of the offence. Peedie, who is an inebriate, was sent down for 6 months, and the other two, owing to their very tender years, were released under suspended sentence. Several civil cases were tried in the C. D. Court.

Indigestion & Dyspepsia

In all its Forms can be Cured.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say, "Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache, I feel too tired to do anything, I have no heart to exert myself and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden."
Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when in their power to get cured by taking a Bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription A. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles can be obtained at Clever Newfoundland Girl Captures Gold Medal.

From the "Normal College News" of Ypsilanti, Michigan, U. S. A., of the 28th inst., we learn that Miss Lillian B. Treadwell, a native of this city, but residing for some time past at Somerville, Mass., has been the winner of the Michigan Normal College final oratorical contest, winning over seven men and five women and taking a gold medal for the excellent work which easily led her to outstrip her literary opponents. Miss Treadwell is only 19 years of age and her retirement entitles her to represent the college against eight other State Colleges before the Oratorical League of Michigan. She is a writer and speaker of ability and in the theme which brought her such high honour was most difficult to handle and was entitled: "The Strangers in our Midst." Miss Treadwell's oration was listened to by 500 students from different cities and States, and the College News speaks in glowing phraseology and premises for her a very brilliant career. It also publishes her oration in toto. Miss Treadwell is a grand-daughter of Mr. Clowin who formerly carried on a large business in St. John's, and her father, Mr. Treadwell, was one of the pioneers of the lobster industry in years gone by. We heartily congratulate the young lady and her relatives on obtaining such a distinguished position and upon the ability which made such possible.

MINARD'S LINIMENT RELIEVES NEURALGIA.

Ireland Under Home Rule.

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, To-Day.

Mr. John Redmond, the leader of the Nationalists, has made a statement to the Daily Mail setting forth what in his opinion Ireland would be like under Home Rule. His predictions are much different from what some people anticipate. The existing political dissension would be replaced by economic and educational questions. The lines of cleavage would be different from present day lines of political cleavage. New classes of men would enter the political field and become members of the Irish Parliament. There would come first from the ranks of the Irish the country, who have hitherto held aloof, because they opposed the principle of Home Rule. They would be an acquisition to political life and with these the question of religion would never rise. Next, the Irish Parliament would be recruited from the ranks of the business and commercial classes, owing to the industrial revival which would be certain to follow the granting of Home Rule. With regard to the Protestant minority, Mr. Redmond was ready to accept any safeguards, consistent with ordinary democratic principles, but he was convinced that 12 months experience of Home Rule would lay such a bogey for ever.

Patient From Lamaline

Last evening Mr. Gear, M.H.A., received a message from Dr. Lynch of Lamaline asking him to make arrangements for a female patient who was on the train. The authorities of course had done nothing and Mr. Gear obtained lodging for the patient last night, provided a carriage to take her there, and this morning arranged for her admittance to the General Hospital.

Mr. Pat Kennedy, whose wife died so suddenly at Brooklyn, N.Y., a couple of weeks ago, returned there a few days ago. Owing to the delays on the journey here, he asked for and obtained from the naval authorities an extension of leave of absence.

Another Policeman Leaving.

Another policeman of the Eastern Station intends resigning next week and will leave here for East Cambridge, Mass., where he has secured work in the carpentering business. So many have resigned from the force of late that the question of adequately policing the city will soon be a grave one. About 25 men have left in two years, and the senior man in the East End is only a member of the force for that period. With transfers and resignations our city police is now almost reduced to a minimum, and no wonder considering the beggarly tender granted the men who have been told by the "People's Party" save the mark, that if they do not like what they receive they can get out. The police, like the rest of the country, will have a chance shortly to fire the "policemen" and place in power men who will give them fair play.

FRIDAY, March 31, '11.

You will remember the English Process Elder Flower Soap a splendid accessory to the bath. A good quality, hard mild soap, with a pleasant odor suggesting elder flowers, mild and bland to the skin, and very reasonable in price. It ought to be the very thing for the purpose. And so many have found it. We confidently put it forward for this purpose, and even as a general toilet soap. It is far superior to the lobbly colored strong smelling stuff sometimes sold as toilet soap. Half pound bars, 15c. each.

A Walking Saloon.

About 6.30 last evening Constables Whalen and Squibb picked up a drunk on Water Street and conveyed him to the station, as he could not get home. In arrival at the lockup there was found in his possession a big bottle of rum and another of whiskey, and he evidently intended to have a good time after the saloons closed. On New Gower Street last night and Wednesday night young men could be seen drinking from flasks and bottles procured before the saloons closed at 6 o'clock.

Jackman's New Store.

The new store of Jackman the Tailor on Water Street, adjoining his old premises, opened a few days ago, is one of the most attractive of the city. On the ground floor of the new building is the dry goods department, profusely stocked with new goods. The addition in the rear connects the two stores and affords a large space for shelving goods. On the second floor, over the new store, are the new offices, the show room, millinery room, ladies' tailoring, dressmaking and fitting room. They are all conveniently located and have the most up to date appliances. The third floor contains the work room, fitting room, cleaning and pressing department, ladies' tailoring, dressmaking departments and factory for boys' and men's readymades. All this is in addition to the custom tailoring and gents' furnishing departments, which are in the old building and are still carried on there with a full staff. Mr. Jackman has shown great enterprise in this new undertaking and we hope that he will meet the success that his efforts deserve. The two buildings are stocked fully with new goods, and the tailoring department carries the fullest supply of the latest and most fashionable suitings.

Children Had Eczema

Treatment prescribed had no effect—DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT made thorough cure. Mrs. Oscar Vahocit, St. Antonio, Sack, writes—"I have found Dr. Chase's Ointment to be a permanent cure for Eczema and other skin diseases. One son, while nursing, broke out with running watery sores all over his head and around the ears. Many sores were prescribed to no effect. The child's head became a mass of scabs and he suffered agony untold. He became weak and frail and would not eat and we thought we would lose him.

Fire Alarm Installed at Grand Falls.

A new fire alarm system has just been installed here which for simplicity and reliability outstrips the Gamewell. It consists of iron telephone boxes of special design, which are placed on poles in different parts of the town. The opening of this box and the taking of the hook registers the number of the box and rings two large bells at the telephone office. The person sending in an alarm will call "fire" through the box, and the operator at the telephone office simply presses a button to blow five whistles, said whistles, although over 500 feet from operator, is so electrically attached that the pressure of the number of boxes the alarm is sent in from is blown. Its strong points are simplicity and durability, as by taking receiver from hook sends in alarm and by calling fire through phone makes a false alarm impossible.

This system was designed by Mr. T. P. Judge, electrical engineer of Grand Falls, and will be known as the "Judge Fire Alarm System."

About 100 men are now employed excavating for extension to mills. It is expected that at least 400 men will be employed in construction work during the summer.

All stores at Grand Falls and Botwood are filled with paper, in fact every place a roll of paper can be put, and about 30 carpenters are erecting other stores to store the present daily output.

The Tritonia leaves England for Botwood on the 1st of April, and it is expected Mr. Beaton and Mr. Serham will be passengers by her.

The Post Office, Telegraphs and Savings Bank in Grand Falls are located in a 10 by 12 shack, which is absolutely inadequate and unfit for the purpose.

Address

Presented to Father Clarke by the School Children of Torbay.

Recently the school children of Torbay presented Rev. Father Clarke with the following address:

Like storm-clouds gathering o'er a summer sky
When all the earth was gay,
We heard thy faithful whisper passing by:
That thou wouldst soon away.

As those whose hearts on pleasure are intent
We would not mar our joy;
We heeded not the warnings murmur sent.
In vain the clouds rushed by.

But soon the storm in all its fury burst,
And sorrow laid us low;
We learned that we would not believe at first,
That thou at last must go.

"What! Take him from us?" whose long life has been Lived always for our gain;
As Father Priest and Friend, calm and serene,
In pleasure or in pain.

As well remove the sun that shines above,
And lights us on our way;
As take him from us, whom we've cherished more each day.

Yet think not that we grudge thy well earned rest,
After thy years of work;
Well know we if thy years could bear
Thy task thou'ndest shirk.

The records of thy greatness firmly stand,
In splendor scattered round;
Schools, Convent, Churches; none through all the land
More splendid can be found.

There's still a prouder boast that thou canst make:
Within our hearts thou'rt king;
The fight of years will never thy kingdom shake.
What'er the future bring.

And in the hearts of thousands still unborn,
By whispered word of prayer,
Tradition will thy memory adorn,
Thou'lt reign forever there.

And when at last you leave this vale of woe,
(Please God 'twont be for years)
When to a high and chosen place you'll go,
Among your saintly peers.

You'll find a treasure that will never decay,
One placed there by our love;
As you have never ceased to show the way,
By prayer to God above.

ANOTHER LECTURE—A lecture on "First Aid" was delivered by Dr. Carbery last night to a class of ladies in the British Hall. Over 40 were present and showed great interest in the discourse.

Interesting Lecture.

At the basement of Cochrane Street Church last night Rev. J. K. Curtis lectured for the Cochrane Athletic Association on the subject "Ancient Revelation and Modern Science." He ably demonstrated that there was nothing in the Bible that clashed with modern science. Some people argued that the book of Genesis is wrong in stating that light could exist before the sun was made. The latest scientific researches go to show that the simple action of force on waves of ether would generate light when there was no sun. With reference to the statement so often made by doubters that the Bible writings say that the world is flat, he quoted from the Old Testament to show that the Biblical writers held no such opinion. Scientists themselves were all the time contradicting each other, especially in regard to the age of the earth and how long the human race is dwelling on our globe. Lyell, the great geologist, says 850,000 years; Sir John Lubbock, 200,000, and Geikie, 80,000; and now come the 20 century scientists like Gilbert and Hainson, whose researches bring the record down to agree with the Bible, viz., about 70,000 years. The account of the Deluge was told in a most interesting way, and a subject that most people regard as "tedious as a twice told tale veiling the dull ear of a drowsy man," the rev. lecturer made the subject most fascinating and the audience were highly pleased. At the close a vote of thanks was carried unanimously.

I stood and watched the auctioneer, who bought things cheap and sold them dear. He had a large, abysmal mouth, the which he pointed to the south, and from its dark recesses poured a flood of

THE AUCTIONEER'S eloquence that soared. He'd dam the torrent now and then, and look upon the throng of men, and slam his fist the desk upon, and thunder: "Going—going—gone!"

What is there in that chaste refrain that makes it linger in my brain? I see the village sport go by, with dark blue breath and bloodshot eye, to try and ease his load of care by taking some of Fido's hair; I see him put his watch in pawn and murmur: "Going—going—gone!" Here's Emma Jane on Cholly's arm; she doesn't mean a bit of harm, but she's acquired a notion wrong that life is but a dance and song.

The peeler says her joyous feet are wearing furrows in the street. "I'll pinch her," says he, "some fine day." Another going—going—gone! So many hit the downward pike! The kind of folks that all men like: the bright, the thoughtless and the gay, all biding down, the same old way! We'll lecture them, and hand them tracts, and load them down with helpful facts, when they are safely laid at last, but who will warn, as they go past, perdition's glaring road upon, these mortals going—going—gone?

Cattle Range Exceptionally High.

Local cattle cannot be bought in the market at present, being very scarce, and butchers are mostly selling imported meat. Recently a shipment of cattle was brought from Toronto and sold yesterday at Pitt's. Big prices were realized for these cattle. One bullock fetched 22 cents per pound on the hoof, possibly the highest price ever paid in the city. Owing to the loss of the Bruce no dead meat has been brought here for weeks past, and butchers find it very difficult to keep their customers supplied.

Addresses Presented to Rev. Father Clarke.

To the Reverend M. J. Clarke, P. P.,
From the Benevolent Irish Society,
St. John's, Nfld.

Dear Father Clarke,—On behalf of the Benevolent Irish Society we desire to convey to you an expression of our sincere regret at your departure from amongst us.

Whilst all sections of the community have recognized your great worth, and will appreciate the loss which your retirement will mean, still in an special manner can we point with pleasure and pride to the fruits of your labours and with pardonable sorrow wish you farewell. Your life and work have typified in the highest degree the two cardinal principles of our Society—our aim and our nationality.

Truly "benevolent" may we term your mission during the forty years in which you have ministered to your devoted flock in this country, and proudly shall we remember you as the faithful "Irish" priest—the long recognized "Soggarth Aroon."

Your dominant desire has been to advance the cause of Education with which the aim of this Society is so closely identified, and how well you have succeeded is best evidenced by the changed condition of the people in your present parish. By your work you shall be judged, and the living monuments which you will leave behind you will form permanent records of the extraordinary energy, the remarkable ability, the saintly zeal, and the intense fervour and earnestness which have ever characterized you, whilst even the most casual observation of the moral and social improvements wrought amongst your flock
will serve to illustrate how nobly you have followed the best traditions of our race.

But it is probably your qualities as a man and as a friend that have most endured you to us, for we have at all times found in you a sympathetic and wise counsellor, every ready to interest yourself on behalf of the humblest member in our ranks, and our roll for the one hundred and five years of our Society's existence contains no other name that has shed such lustre upon the institution.

We pray that Divine Providence may bless and comfort your remaining years, and that all earthly happiness will be yours until the day when a well-spent life will receive its reward
through the words, "Well done thou good and faithful servant."

On behalf of the Society,
J. D. RYAN,
President.
W. J. HIGGINS,
Secretary.

REPLY:

President Ryan and Members of the Benevolent Irish Society.

I am extremely grateful for this splendid tribute of esteem and friendship so beautifully and feelingly expressed in the Address presented to me to-night on the eve almost of my departure from Newfoundland. It is evident that the spirit of our race lives and moves and reigns in the hearts of the members of the St. John's Benevolent Irish Society. With that spirit the writer of the Address is certainly largely endowed. The picture of my life and labours so graphically described and in words so beautifully and complimentarily expressed is the work of an artist. But it is the heart that holds sway and hence I find my self represented not as I really am have been, but as seen and observed by friendly eyes. Unworthy as I am of this mood of praise, it comes to me
most gratefully and I am gladdened
to know that when I have passed away from the scene of my labours that shall be remembered and spoken of by the Benevolent Irish Society, by the endearingly historic name, the "Soggarth Aroon." It is a name to con-jure with and thank God it is known and loved in this Newfoundland. I rejoice in the name you have assigned, you could not pay me a higher compliment. I would be false to my profession, false to the traditions of our race, were I unlike the grand old Priests whom our fathers loved, honoured and served and who in storm and in sunshine stood by their people and were ever the partners of their sorrows and joys. That you consider me worthy to be named with those men of renown is an honour indeed.

Within the past few weeks and since it became known that owing to failing health I have been obliged to lay down the work that has occupied the best years of my life, many kind and affectionate farewell messages have reached me. Whilst I appreciate most highly the kindness thus shown me,
this Address of the Benevolent Irish Society appeals to me in an especial manner. With this Society I have much in common and for years have been a member and identified with its work and interests. Thirty-seven years ago I had the privilege of preaching the panegyric of our glorious Apostle, and on that occasion had the honour too of being our guest at dinner in the old Orphan Asylum,
when for the first time I was introduced to Irish hospitality as observed and practised by the Benevolent Irish Society. On other feasts of our Patron I was again called upon to repeat the story of our country's greatness. Justly then am I proud of my intimate relationship with a Society venerable for its aims, famous and distinguished for its works of benevolence, and representative of the best interests of our city life, and justly too, then do I appreciate so highly the honour of your Address.

Your mention of my efforts in the cause of education is most complimentary and gratifying, but I must not take to myself all the credit of success, I worked not alone, or singly handed, but had able advisers and helpers who have been the pioneers of Education not alone in this city but throughout Newfoundland and to whom Education is a profession and science. In the erection of schools and in their management and direction I had the benefit of the practical experience of the Christian Brothers specially of Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Cullane and Mr. Ryan whom I am delighted to see here to-night; I have the advantage, too, of the wise counsel of my good friend, Mr. Burke, the Superintendent of our Catholic Schools and I am glad of this opportunity to give honour to whom honour is due.

From my earliest years, in my very boyhood, I entertained the highest ideal of the Priesthood. During a long College course I was again and again reminded that the Priest is an "Alte-Christus," that he is the Minister of God and the dispenser of the Divine Mysteries; again and again were we admonished: "Do not take to you-selves this office unless divinely called as Aaron of old." Those lessons of my youth and early manhood I have endeavoured to realize, and that I have not altogether failed your Address gives me the very pleasing assurance.

It is nearly forty years since I came to Newfoundland on the invitation of Bishop Power, whose memory I shall ever honor and revere. Fortune has my first mission, after a short time I was recalled to St. John's an-nointed assistant to the Venerable Archdeacon O'Connor, the saintly prelate of our diocese. For the almost forty years I have been engaged in the work of this mission, in building up in the neighbouring settlements the material and spiritual temple of the Lord. Most generously and faithfully have the people secured my efforts and to-day our common work is fair to view, creditable like to both Pastor and people.
"Laudis et actionum magister possumationem" is a saying of in-pired wisdom is the counsel of the wise man. In that spirit you are here to-night to bid your fellow-member and co-worker a fond farewell. For my life amongst you has come to a close and my life's work is done. It is that life and work you find something —in your generosity you could say much—worthy of your kind and friendly recognition; for that recognition I repeat my most heartfelt thank and the place you assign me on you roll of membership is an honour faeyond my deserts, but one that I shall always value and esteem most highly forty years is a long term, many have attained honour and distinction only health before arriving at that age—many too have attained fame that made them honoured and renowned of their fellowman and proclaimed them
the benefactors of their age and race.
The forty years of my Priesthood have I think, secured me a fame more desirable, more precious and lasting the respect and devotion of faithful heart-
the outcome of religion and purity.
I can only believe that I shall be satisfied with the joyous greeting: "Weldone thou good and faithful servant"
before I am forgotten by the people o-my labour and my love. The name and place of your presentation call for more than a passing notice. Tonight we are assembled in the hospitable home of our esteemed President and our meeting is graced by the presence of the accomplished Mrs.
Ryan. Under these circumstances the honour of your Address to me is largely enhanced. On behalf of us all I would thank the Honourable Mr. Ryan and Mrs. Ryan for their courtesy and kindness and would wish them many happy years. I would also congratulate the Hon. Mr. Ryan on the many years that he has been President

more than any of his predecessors.
If the voice of the members will prevail, and I am sure it will, many more years will pass before he vacates the chair of the Presidency of the St.
John's Benevolent Irish Society.

Recently a deputation representing Torbay North and South called on Rev. Father Clarke to present him with an Address and a Gift as an expression of their sorrow on losing him, and as a mark of the respect which they cherish for him. The Address was read by Mr. Richard Ryan, and the purse presented by Mr. Peter Cullan. The following is a copy of the Address:—

ADDRESS

bay to the Very Rev. M. J. Clarke, words, no matter how expressive,

could adequately convey our sadness
when we learn that we are soon to be parted from you.

The brighter the light is the more gloomy and oppressive is the darkness
which succeeds it; so it is with us.
For thirty-eight years you have been our Light and our Guide. Your virtue and kindness have shone forth so resplendently that now when you leave us the darkness of grief and despair which surrounds us seems increased a thousand-fold.

Truly may we say: "God has not done so to every people." Few Parishes, if any, have been blessed with a Pastor so loving, so wise and so holy as ours.

In the hours of affliction we have found in you such a fountain of consolation, that it has become a second nature to us to fly to you for guidance whenever any sorrow fell to our lot.

Your piety, your strict observance of duty, and your anxiety for the Spiritual welfare of your flock, have demonstrated your fitness to be a Priest of the Most High; while your gentleness, your unswerving justice, of purpose, and your interest in our temporal affairs, have attested your right to be a director of men.

Always bearing in mind the indisputable fact that Example is the best instructor, your life has been an open book from which your people always learn lessons of Humility, Sanctity,
Love of God and Humanity to all men.
Never, as long as life lasts, can we forget the lessons you have instilled into our minds; you have ever taught us to look beyond this earth and beyond the grave; to remember always in joy or sorrow that "Here we have no lasting City."

You have never lost sight of the fact that the "Child is the father of the man," and that it is in the school that he character of the coming generation is to be formed; consequently you have ever been a most zealous exponent of Education. As a result of your labours in this respect, we can point with pride to the beautiful schools which adorn every settlement in the Parish.

It is always hard to part from a friend we love, and especially so is it for one who have passed under your guidance so many mile-stones on the road to eternity.
Rest assured, Rev. Father, that our everlasting gratitude is yours, and our fervent prayer is: that you will receive, in the closing years of your life that full measure of happiness and peace of mind, to which your labours and trials have given you such a perfect right.

We tender you, Rev. Father, this little gift as a souvenir of our love, and we trust that in years to come, your recollections of us may be as pleasant
as our thoughts of you will be filled to overflowing with gratitude and love.
Signed:—
John Roche, Peter Cullen, Pierce Power, Alexander Tapper, Richard Ryan, Thomas Dodd, James Goss,

Worst Case Of Eczema

Only one case when doctors gave up and DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT
was used.

Mrs. Wm. Miller, St. Catharines, Ont., writes:—"My daughter Mary, when six months old, contracted eczema and for three years the disease baffled all treatment. Her case was one of the worst that had ever come under my notice,
and she apparently suffered what no pen could ever describe. I had three different doctors attend her all to no purpose. Finally I decided to try Dr.
Chase's Ointment and to my surprise she immediately began to improve and was completely cured of that long standing disease. That was four years ago when we lived at Cornwall, Ont., and as not a symptom has shown itself
since, the cure must be permanent."
The record of cures which Dr. Chase's Ointment has to its credit have placed it alone as the standard cure for eczema and all forms of itching skin disease. Do not be satisfied with imitations or substitutes, 60 cents a box at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.
