Nujol

FOR CONSTIPATION

CONSTIPATION not only causes the generation of poisons, which are carried through the system by the blood and attack it from within, but also by thus lowering the general stamina makes the weakened system an easier prey to harmful germs from without.

Nujol works on an entirely new principle. Without forcing or irritating, it softens the food waste. This enables the many tiny muscles in the intestines, contracting and expanding in their normal way, to squeeze the food waste along and out of the system.

It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take. Try it.

CHAPTER XXXII.

Gaunt prayed for death at that moment, for this terrible solitude in the midst of the roaring waves was infinitely worse than death. Then his senses left him, and with "Decima!" upon his lips, he relaxed his hold on the spar.

When he came to, he found, to his amazement, that he was lying in a comfortable berth in a luxurious cabin.

Two men were standing beside him. They exchanged a look, and nodded as Gaunt opened his eyes. Gaunt looked round and sighed. At that moment he was not particularly glad to come back to life.

"All right now?" said one of the men who was watching him. He was a young fellow with a pleasant voice and a pleasant smile. He was dressed in yacht costume and was smoking a cigarette.

"Where am I?" asked Gaunt, with an effort.

"On board the 'Sea Wolf,'" replied the young fellow, "my yacht. We picked you up early this morning. You've been wrecked, I suppose?"

"Better not let him talk awhile," broke in the second man.

"All right, doctor," assented the young fellow, cheerfully. "You go to sleep if you can," he said to Gaunt. "You'll be all right after a snooze. We'll leave you quiet."

Gaunt closed his eyes again and slept. When he awoke he found the young fellow standing beside him with a basin of broth.

"Get outside this," he said. "The doctor—he's a friend of mine and has come this trip with me—says that you'll pull through all right."

"Thanks; I've no doubt I shall," said Gaunt, not very cheerfully. "May I ask to whom I am indebted?"

"Oh, that's all right," replied the young man. "My name's Dobson. I'm taking a cruise in this yacht of mine. We lost our reckoning in that fog."

HOW WEAK WOMEN ARE MADE STRONG

Mrs. Westmoreland Tells in the Following Letter.

Harrison, N. Y.—"When my first child was born I did not know about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had a very hard time. I read in the newspaper about the Vegetable Compound and when my second child came I took it and was well during the whole time, and childbirth was a hundred times easier. Ever since then I have used it for any weakness and would not be without it for the world. I do all my work and am strong and healthy. I am nursing my baby, and I will take the Vegetable Compound as it keeps a woman in good health. You may publish my testimonial for the good of other women, if you choose to do so."—Mrs. C. WESTMORELAND, Harrison, N. Y.

Women who suffer from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, headaches and nervousness should lose no time in giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial, and for specific advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

and it's lucky we did, or we shouldn't have come across you."

"I was a passenger on board the 'Pevensey Castle,'" said Gaunt. "She drifted on a sand bank." He spoke with difficulty, and Mr. Dobson had sense enough to stop him.

"All right," he said. "Tell us all about it when you're more fit. Try and go to sleep again. There's nothing like sleep for your case, so the doctor says. I've brought you some books and papers if you can't manage a doze."

He left the cabin, and Gaunt tried to sleep; but his head ached too much, and presently he took up one of the papers.

He turned it over mechanically, and was putting it down again, when his eye was caught by a heading in large type:

"The tragedy at Prince's Mansions. Verdict of willful murder against Lord Gaunt."

He read the account in a kind of stupor, and had the paper still in his hand when Mr. Dobson re-entered the cabin.

"How have you been getting on?" he inquired. "Been reading the paper? That's right."

"Yes," said Gaunt, quietly. "I have been reading the account of the—murder at Prince's Mansions."

"Ah! terrible affair that!" cut in Dobson. "They haven't got that Lord Gaunt yet, more's the pity!"

"No," said Gaunt, raising himself on his elbow. "I am Lord Gaunt, Mr. Dobson. How soon can you take me back to England?"

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The news of the wreck of the "Pevensey Castle" did not reach London until some days after the sad event; but, when it did, it created a sensation only inferior to that which had been caused by the murder in Prince's Mansions.

The boats had reached the harbor of Mogador in safety, and the rescued passengers had given a full and touching account of the founding of the ill-fated vessel and the heroic conduct of the captain and Lord Gaunt. That they had both been drowned, no one seemed to entertain any doubt, and on the principle of speaking nothing but good of the dead, Lord Gaunt's crime was forgotten for the moment in admiration for his heroism.

The papers came out with the whole story, and leaders were written, dilating with editorial unctious upon the dramatic aspect of the affair, and the poetical justice which had been dealt out to, as the writer called him, "this unfortunate nobleman." They all of them, however, failed to inform their readers what the captain had done to deserve death. But that was a mere matter of detail.

To Decima, lying white and wan in the darkened room, no tidings of the outside world were permitted to reach. She had received consciousness, but she lay 'twixt life and death, in that condition of mind and body which resembles stupor. All danger, however, was past; her youth and strength had fought the battle for her and won it, and, as the doctor said, it was only a question of time and careful nursing. For the latter Lady Pauline could be relied on, and gradually the vacant expression of Decima's eyes changed to one which, although it was sadder, displayed some faint interest in life.

On the day the news of the loss of the "Pevensey Castle" and Lord Gaunt's death was running like wildfire through the land, Decima turned to Lady Pauline, and said:

"I suppose I am not going to die, Aunt Pauline?"

Lady Pauline took the now-white hand and patted it softly.

"I hope not, dear," she said. "No; you have been very ill, but you are quite out of danger now. I hope that in a few days I shall be able to take you down-stairs. And then we will go to Walsfield. You would like to go there, would you not?"

Decima thought for a moment, then she replied:

"I think I would rather go home. Father must miss me. And Bobby will be coming home, and—and it is more comfortable for him when I am there."

"We will see," said Lady Pauline, gently. "We will ask the doctor."

Decima was silent for a moment, then she turned her eyes away, and asked:

"Have you seen Mr. Mershon, aunt?"

"Yes," replied Lady Pauline. "I have seen him, and I have told him what you wished him to be told."

Decima breathed a sigh of relief.

"Thank you, Aunt Pauline. I—I am afraid he was very angry, was he not?"

"He was," said Lady Pauline, laconically. "But we will not talk of Mr. Mershon, dear. I trust that he has gone out of your life for henceforth."

"Oh, yes, yes!" she cried. "I—I could not marry him!" She shuddered. "He was very kind, and I—I am grateful to him; but I could not marry him—now!"

She turned her head away and closed her eyes, and Lady Pauline, who thought she was asleep, looked sady at the white face. How much longer could the story of the murder and Lord Gaunt's death be kept from Decima; and what would be its effect upon her? She must know sooner or later; the air was full of it, the newspaper boys were yelling it through the streets.

Later in the day Bobby came in. He was terribly upset, and scarcely master of himself.

"You've heard the news, Lady Pauline?" he said, as he entered the drawing-room.

He had never been able to address her as "Aunt."

"Yes," she said. "It is terrible; and yet—"

"I know," said Bobby, with a kind of groan. "You are thinking that he has escaped a trial for murder, and—perhaps the—conviction?"

Lady Pauline nodded, and sighed. "He never did it!" said Bobby, fervently.

"No; I don't think he did. But we need not discuss that, Robert. I was thinking of Decima."

Bobby drew a long breath.

"She will hear of it directly she gets about again," he said.

"Yes," said Lady Pauline. "That is inevitable. It will be better that she should hear it from us."

"Ah, yes; but who's to tell her?" he demanded.

"I and you," she said, with her usual courage. "She will hear it better coming from us than from strangers. I think she will be strong enough to-morrow. Will you come, in the afternoon, please? I asked her this morning whether she would like to go to Walsfield, but she seemed to want to go home."

"To father—yes," said Bobby. "That's like Decima; she thinks of every one before herself. Father will want her, too, for he's in trouble again."

"What trouble?" asked Lady Pauline.

Bobby groaned.

"Oh, Mr. Mershon has cut up rough. It's that confounded—I beg your pardon, Lady Pauline!"

"There is no need for profane expressions, Robert," she said. "But go on."

"It's that unfortunate company, the Electric Storage, you know."

"I don't know; but no matter."

"It seems that the governor is indebted to Mr. Mershon; it's rather a large sum; and Mershon's lawyer, Mr. Gilsby, has written to the governor—well, demanding payment. Father has given Mershon bills, you know."

Lady Pauline sighed.

"I will help your father to the best of my ability, Robert," she said. "I must go up to Decima now. Come to-morrow, and if she is strong enough, we will tell her about—about Lord Gaunt."

(to be continued.)

Instead of sugar syrup, if desired. This recipe makes 16 ounces of really remarkable cough remedy. It tastes good, and in spite of its low cost, it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. It loosens and raises the phlegm, stops throat tickle and soothes and heals the irritated membrane that lines the throat and bronchial tubes with such promptness, ease and certainty that it is really astonishing.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is probably the best known means of overcoming severe coughs, throat and chest-colds.

There are many worthless imitations of this mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

JAPANESE CASUALTIES.

TOKIO, Dec. 7. Casualties among the Japanese troops in the Siberian fighting to date include 1500 men killed in action and 688 deaths from sickness. It was announced by the War Office to-day. Reports show fifteen hundred wounded in action.

LEFT TO CONSTANTINE.

PARIS, Dec. 7. The Athens Government according to the Temps has decided not to send an official delegation to ex-King Constantine inviting him to return to Greece but will merely send a despatch informing him of the result of the plebiscite, thus leaving to Constantine the responsibility of taking the initiative in the matter of his return. The Greek Government's position adds the Temps, is due to the Allies latest note.

DEFIES PEACE OVERTURES.

PARIS, Dec. 7. Sean O'Connell, (envoy of the Irish Republic in France) denies in an official statement issued to-day that the Dalhambon of his Ministry has made overtures for peace with England.

SIGHTED BERG.

BOSTON, Dec. 7. An iceberg that towered 180 feet above the sea and resembled a Cathedral spire was sighted off Cape Race in the west bound trans-Atlantic line by the Swedish ship Gustavsholm which reached port here from Rotterdam to-day. The big berg was said to be 1000 feet long and 100 feet wide.

COMMISSION REPORT.

LONDON, Dec. 7. Arthur Henderson, leader of the Labor Commission which recently investigated conditions in Ireland, and William Adamson, chairman of the parliamentary Labor Party, had an interview with Lloyd George to-night and reported to him the report of this Commission's inquiries in Ireland and the state of public feeling in Ireland concerning a possible truce. Henderson had previously met the parliamentary party and explained how impressed the Commission had been by the widespread desire for a truce and a conference to negotiate a settlement.

WHAT HE SAW IN CORK.

CORK, Dec. 7. Members of the Labor Commission who have arrived in Cork for what they intend to be a week's investigation of the situation have already witnessed numerous disorders. There was considerable shooting and window smashing during the night. An Irishman who stepped up to the Commissioners at the entrance to their hotel and requested them to inspect a jewelry store nearby which had been partially wrecked, was arrested by a Black and Tan after rough treatment. The Commissioners also saw a squad of auxiliaries to-day, holding up and searching pedestrians and occupants of vehicles.

THE PRINCE'S TESTIMONY.

LONDON, Dec. 7. Replying to an address of welcome tendered to him to-day by the City of London upon the termination of his tour of the Empire, the Prince of Wales said the "British people were never more firmly united in devotion to the Empire and its head, the King, than they are to-day. It has been no merit of mine, but merely my good fortune to enable that devotion once

Hold-Ups Numerous

Thousands Relieved of Colds

They are hold-ups alright but very different from the dangerous affairs we read of in the papers. In the hold-ups we are talking about, people are not relieved of their money by highwaymen. Not. But Buckley's Bronchitis Mixture is relieving them of their colds, hacking coughs, bronchitis, chronic catarrh and similar ailments. One Montreal man—Herbert Corri—was about to start South in hope that he might get rid of his chronic asthma. Before going, he tried Buckley's Mixture as a last resort, and it literally held him up. He didn't go South. To quote Mr. Corri, "The cough disappeared, the wheezing ceased, and all the discomforts disappeared as if by magic."

What it did for him and for thousands of sufferers, it can do for you. Even the first dose brings amazing relief, and after a few doses the cough vanishes.

Ask your druggist for Buckley's and refuse all substitutes.

Sold everywhere at 75c a bottle. A cast-iron, money-back basis if it fails to give relief. For sale at all Drug Stores or by mail from W. E. BUCKLEY Limited, 142 MONTREAL ST., TORONTO.

GREENWOOD AGAINST TRUCE.

LONDON, Dec. 7. Sir Hamar Greenwood declared in the House to-day amid cheers that he was convinced there "could be no truce of successfully advocacy of a truce in Ireland, until the extremists leaders of the Irish Republican army either surrender and deliver their arms or are arrested."

SOME VOTE.

PARIS, Dec. 7. Ex-King Constantine received 98 per cent. of the vote cast in Sunday's plebiscite on the question of his return to the throne of Greece. It is announced in an Athens despatch dated Monday received by the Greek Legation here to-day.

WATCHING THE ARMY.

LONDON, Dec. 7. A careful watch is being kept upon activities by extremists to affect the army's loyalty. It was declared by Sir Archibald Williamson in the House of Commons to-day.

NOT FEELING BAD.

MONCTON, N.B., Dec. 7. Lindsay Crawford was reported not much the worse for his experience last night when he was mobbed, except for a scratch on his head caused by a piece of ice thrown at him. It was stated to-day that Crawford said he would sue the city of Moncton for damages. He was still at a local hotel at noon.

OFFER PROTEST.

QUEBEC, Dec. 7. A telegram despatched to Lindsay Crawford by Irish Self-Determination League here says, as Canadians we protest against cruel indignities offered yourself and your speech by coward mob at Moncton. Brute force was said to be the argument of the Boche. It is Moncton's right of succession where Twelfth of July bigots alone hold forth unmolested.

NO AGREEMENT.

BELFAST, Dec. 7. Michael Collins, Commander-in-Chief of the Irish Republican army, referring to a report that his safety would be assured in the proposed peace between Sinn Feiners and the British government, said there was no such agreement. There was grave danger the country might stampede on false promises.

CONSTANTINE OFFERS SUGGESTION.

PARIS, Dec. 7. In the course of an interview with Havas Agency, Constantine suggested the League of Nations should appoint an Imperial Commission to proceed with public investigation into events in Greece during the war.

STATE OF WAR EXISTS.

TRIESTE, Dec. 7. A state of war exists between the Regency and Quarrero, said an official statement given out at the headquarters of D'Annunzio.

ANOTHER ARREST.

DUBLIN, Dec. 7. Dr. Richard Hayes, Sinn Fein member of the House of Commons, was arrested here to-day and taken to Wellington Barracks. Councillors Lawless and Lawlor, who were arrested in a raid in the City Hall yesterday, were released this afternoon.

TO PREVENT HOLD UP.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Dec. 7. An order for detention of all negroes found on the streets after nine p.m. who cannot give satisfactory explanations of their identity and business, was issued here to-day by Chief of Police Battersby. This drastic action was taken, Chief Battersby explained, as an attempt to curb nocturnal holdups and other acts of violence attributed to negroes.

RESTRAINT GRANTED.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. Federal Judge Julius Meager to-day granted an injunction restraining the Aircraft Disposal Company, Ltd., the Handley Page Limited, and their representative here from importing into the United States two thousand four hundred British airplanes and thirty-four thousand motors. These machines form part of a lot valued at five hundred millions turned over to the Aircraft Disposal Company at five per cent of their costs for sale here through Handley Page.

GOLD FROM FINLAND.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. The steamer Finland arriving here to-day from Antwerp and Southampton, brought two million seven hundred thousand dollars to Loeb and Company. The consignment was part of the supply which bankers have been receiving from London for several months and which now totals approximately seventy millions.

The Kindly Glean.

HISTORY OF LIGHTHOUSES.

There is much romance in the story of the creation of many of the lighthouses which fringe the storm-beaten coasts of these islands. The primitive means of warning seafarers of the erection of beacons in conspicuous positions in the vicinity. Unfortunately, lawless people in some parts of Great Britain and Ireland were occasionally guilty of lighting fires on headlands in such a way as to entice vessels into peril, for the purpose of robbing by the wreckers washed ashore.

The attitude of mind which prompted such deeds was most regrettable, but it was mainly to be found in lonely spots where the inhabitants were ignorant and bitterly prejudiced against outsiders, their point of view being well described by Sir Walter Scott in his "Pirate." The scenes depicted therein are laid in the Shetland Islands, over 200 years ago. Mr. Baring-Gould has also given realistic pictures of the "wreckers" of South-West England.

The First Lighthouse.

The first lighthouse which found a mortality. In this, as in other human affairs, the only way to eventual success was through many attempts doomed to temporary failure. Amongst pioneers in the construction of lighthouse, the Stevenson family, of whom the author Robert Louis Stevenson was a descendant, are entitled to an honourable place.

Robert Stevenson was largely responsible for the successful erection of the Bell Rock Tower in the Firth of Tay, which was completed in 1810, and his son, Alan, accomplished a still larger feat at Skerryvore, near the island of Tyree, about thirty years later. To build lighthouses on the mainland is a comparatively easy task; but when the materials have to be transported to rocky islets washed by the waves of the Atlantic at high tide, or even submerged, and the work has to proceed under circumstances of considerable danger to those employed, the situation is one which calls for ingenuity, resourcefulness, and daring.—From the "Bellfast Telegraph."

To-Day's Messages.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.
Provisions of the National Prohibition Act extend to United States ships, whether they be in home waters, on high seas, or in foreign waters. Commissioner Williams of the Internal Revenue Department ruled today.

WENT OVER TO REBELS.
TRIESTE, Dec. 7.
The Italian destroyer Dronzetti blocking Fiume, has joined D'Annunzio's forces.

STOLEN FROM MAIL.
NEW YORK, Dec. 7.
A sack of commercial mail from Japan for the British Isles, by way of New York, was stolen here last month while in transit from the Grand Central Station to the foreign station of the Post Office. It was learned today. The pouch was believed to have contained no diplomatic correspondence.

WILSON'S ANNUAL MESSAGE.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.
Both Houses of Congress were in brief session today to hear President Wilson's annual message. It was read by the clerk. Wilson opened his message almost wholly to domestic questions. Only by inference did his message refer to the nearing close of his administration, and that was in the concluding paragraph. The proposals he presented, the President wrote, were not so much a series of recommendations as a confession "of the faith in which I was bred, and which it is my solemn purpose to stand by until my last fighting day."

ESTIMATES TO BE CUT.
LONDON, Dec. 7.
Government supporters in the House of Commons today were brought into line for a second reading of the Dye-stuffs Bill, against which irconcilable free traders are making a dead set. Thursday will witness the debate on national expenditure, which, in view of the outcry for economy, must be important. It is expected that the estimates will have to be cut all around, and the Government is being pressed to prevent any fresh schemes involving further expenditure.

COMMONS MAY SHOW HOSTILITY.
LONDON, Dec. 8.
The House of Lords resumed the second reading of the Agricultural Bill, which is arousing much hostility. It is certain to be materially amended, though it is unlikely to be thrown out. House of Commons yesterday concluded the committee stage of Home Rule Bill. It is not thought that their drastic amendments will smooth the way to further progress, and alterations made in the constitution of Senate and taxation proposals, are sure to arouse disagreement in the Commons.

GREECE WANTS TINO.
ATHENS, Dec. 8.
Returns from the plebiscite, held Sunday, continue to favor Constantine's return to Greece. It is apparent, however, that many failed to vote. It is also rumored that the Cabinet has requested Constantine to delay his return in view of the firm financial note of the Allies.

ARGENTINE'S POSITION.
GENEVA, Dec. 8.
Honorio Pueyrredon, head of Argentine delegation to the League of Nations, informed the Associated Press last night that Argentina's withdrawal from the Assembly would probably be followed by a formal declaration of her intention to leave the League. "The only condition under which Argentina will resume her place, is the adoption of her four proposals in substance," he said.

Yesterday's Messages.

GENEVA, Dec. 6.
The League Assembly today decided to stick to a slow and sure policy in amending the covenant, and to extend that policy to the interpretation of relations between Council and Assembly, with regard to their respective duties and jurisdictions under the covenant. The Canadian amendment, eliminating article 26, and the Argentine amendment declaring that all sovereign states shall be members of the League, that do not remain outside of their own choice, were referred to a special committee, which will study all the proposed changes in the covenant, and report to the next Assembly. The question as to what are the exact relations between the Council and the Assembly was temporarily and partially settled by the adoption of a sort of working basis in the form of four general principles, enunciated in the recent report of a committee, presided over by Balfour, with certain amendments.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

FAMILIAR QUESTION ANSWERED.

It is a familiar experience to have someone say to me: "How can you find something different to write about every day?" So familiar, in fact, that I keep an answer on hand ready to offer: "How is it possible that different things should happen every day?"

No Day Just Like Another. Even in the most commonplace life, day is just like another. One may be to pass through a routine, but the little monotonous duties can arrange themselves in a new pattern from day to day so that no two days are ever just the same.

You have doubtless seen one of those little tin kaleidoscopes which we all had given us when we were children. You apply your eye to one end and in the other you see a lot of colored, vari-shaped particles arranged in a gay pattern. You give the little instrument a twist, and behold the particles arrange themselves in a different pattern. Then you give it another little twist and a different arrangement comes into being. You can continue this as long as you will.

We Nick Like a Larger Pattern. Now aren't one's days very much like this? A little twist gives you a different pattern of thought and experience. True, the particles are not always as bright colored, nor the pattern always as beautiful as you would like it to be, but it is at least different from day to day. You don't think the same thoughts one day that you did the day before. You don't have just the same emotions; you don't feel just the same towards your friends every day. Life gives the kaleidoscope a little twist and the pattern changes.

How Many Ways Can 26 Letters Be Combined? In a recent magazine was a series of mental tests. One of them consisted in taking a combination of four figures, shutting one's eyes and seeing how many different ways one could arrange that series in a minute. "But there can't be but four ways," said one woman. "At that rate," answered another woman, "you could only make 26 words out of the alphabet." Most of us do not realize into what infinite combinations even a few factors can fall. How many words are there in your big dictionary? I do not know exactly but there must be tens of thousands. And all these are made out of just 26 different letters. And as many more combinations could probably be made that would not be recognized words.

To return to the main road, life is like this--and since I write, or try to write, about life and the patterns that it is made by the reaction of one personality and emotion and experience on another, it is not so strange, is it, that I should not have exhausted all the possible patterns in a few years. True, I may sometimes have presented the same pattern, but if I have, it has either been done because I thought it worth presenting twice or because I forgot I had presented it before. I hope I don't do the second very often, but surely, if I who write, forget, you who read, must have also forgotten. Am I not right?

Household Notes.

Save all celery tops for soup. Do not keep milk in an open vessel. Nuts are most digestible if salted. Old velvet makes excellent polishing cloths.

Keep nuts cold to prevent their becoming rancid. Boiled leeks are excellent with Hollandaise sauce.

Solled clothing should never be allowed in a bedroom. Brown crumbs can be kept in a tin for quite some time.

It is dangerous to eat fish that is not thoroughly cooked. There is more heat in hickory wood than in any other kind.

The paint brush should be kept soft in turpentine between usings. Iron baby's underwear on the wrong side, as well as on the right.

Skimmed milk is an excellent food eaten with cornbread and butter. If one wishes chicken dressing to be savory, add a little sage and onion. If milk is to be kept for only a short time, it is better to pasteurize than to sterilize it.

If it is necessary to keep beef for a time, immerse it in sour milk.

Cocoanut milk is excellent to use along with milk in making a cocoanut cake.

If you get a grease spot on your spat, rub it with lard, wipe off and wash.

Do not let bread sponge set too long or it will sour and be unwholesome. Denatured alcohol will remove stains caused by oleomargarine coloring.

Sift dry ingredients before measuring if you wish accurate measurements.

If your oven gets too hot, put a pan of cold water inside and keep door shut.

Candied Cranberries are a novel and pleasant addition to the Christmas dessert.

It is always best to stand by the old-fashioned holiday dishes for holiday dinners.

Slices of lemon, topped with grated horseradish, make a tasty garnish for veal.

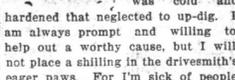

Sprinkle linoleum stains with dried and heated sawdust. Sweep off after a while.

The Japanese sauce made from the black soy bean is excellent for flavoring gravies.

Rub soiled places on the rugs with ammonia. If the color fades, apply chloroform.

THE DRIVE IDEA.

All our lives will be more sunny, and we'll chirp a gladder song, when they quit the "drives" for money, which have bothered us too long. All schemes were gladly pardoned when the Kaiser danced his jig, and the heart was cold and hardened that neglected to up-dig. I am always prompt and willing to help out a worthy cause, but I will not place a shilling in the drivesmith's eager paws. For I'm sick of people telling what I ought to give and where, tired of always digging, shelling, for some scheme that makes me swear. I will give to help the living and I'll give to plant the dead, but I won't be bossed in giving, and I won't be chased or led. In the war time drives were splendid, and they helped to can our foes, but the war is done and ended, and the people need repose. Do not bother friends of neighbors with requests for honest dimes; leave them to their quiet labors, as we did in olden times. Do not think up worthy causes that require financial aid, for we've all been Santa Clauses till our nerves are tired and frayed.

Silkoline is better than cheesecloth for dusters.

St. Deicolus.

St. Deicolus, the elder brother of St. Gall, was born in Leinster, Ireland, in the year 530 and died at Lure, or Lutre, Jura, France, in the year 625 at the ripe age of ninety-five.

Deicolus having finished his studies at Bangor at an early age was selected as one of the twelve workers to accompany Columbanus into France, on a missionary enterprise of the ancient British Church, whence the party went by way of England in the year 576.

A new monastery was founded at Luxeuil and here the little band labored with infinite happiness until the year 610 when Thierry of Burgundy drove them out.

Deicolus, who by this time was eighty years old and unable to suffer the hardships of travel, clasping Columbanus to his heart and giving him a trust at the foot of the heavenly throne, bade him farewell. And after much prayer set out alone, in search of something that would serve the purpose of a home.

The search seemed rather hopeless as the neighborhood was a desolate one until Deicolus came upon a swineherd, tending pigs.

"Can you tell me of any cave or other commodious spot where I can take up my abode?" asked the saint.

The swineherd answered that there was such a place at Luthra the Lake, but that it was some distance away.

"Lead me thither, I pray," begged Deicolus. "I gladly would but I cannot drive my pigs to such a distance, nor dare I leave them."

"Have no fear for thy pigs," Deicolus assured him. "I will drive my staff into the ground and I pledge my word thy swine will neither stray from it, nor be stolen until thy return."

Taking the saint at his word, the swineherd left his pigs and led the way to the Lake of Luthra, where beside a fresh spring of clear water, a tiny chapel stood, dedicated to St. Martin. Here the swineherd left the saint, and returning found the pigs as he had left them.

Charmed with the spot, St. Deicolus at once set to work to build himself a hut of boughs, so that he might make daily visits to the chapel.

Weifhardt, who had built the chapel for his own private use hearing a stranger used it daily, ordered his foresters to put brambles and thorns at the doors and windows and thus bar the intruder out. But this proving of no avail, Deicolus was seized by the foresters and given a severe beating. Nothing daunted, he continued to use the chapel.

Will it Wear?

This is a question that the economical woman must needs ask about all her clothes.

When she asks it about a Corset, we answer confidently: It will indeed!—if it is a Warner's Rust-Proof Corset.

It will wear longer than you thought possible and it is "guaranteed not to rust, break or tear."

Prices from $3.60 pair up.

Sole Agents for Newfoundland.

Shortly after this, Weifhardt falling ill Deicolus went to see him, and offered up prayers for his recovery. Upon his recovery Weifhardt, as a thank offering gave the Saint the farm at Luthra, the wood around it and the little chapel.

Deicolus greatly delighted, now settled down to a life of calm and contemplation.

One day when sitting in his chapel, reading, Clothaire II. King of that part of France, came into the forest, on a hunting expedition. The quarry was a wild boar and as the chase got hot the boar, terrified and spent, dashed into the chapel and fell panting at the foot of the altar.

Love for the animal filled the kindly heart of the saint with protective pity. Standing over the quivering prostrate animal, he said:

"Believe me, friend, because thou hast sought refuge in the love of thy brother thy life shall be spared today."

And upon the arrival of the hunters and dogs, the saint stood guard at the door, barring the way.

The King, admiring the courage of the saint, not only gave the boar its liberty but made Deicolus warden of game and fish, and also gave him a vineyard as well.

It was after this that Deicolus being joined by other monks, began to build a monastery, where he himself reigned as abbot and saw the evangelism of that whole district, and where, full of joy and peace, he ended his days.

Fish Regulations and Bay de Verde.

"Those who talk against 'Regulations are political desperadoes, who are too small to accept the medicine forced down their throats last fall, and are, in my opinion too small to be trusted... I am absolutely convinced today that had there been no regulations last winter, spring, summer and the present fall, that there would not be half a dozen solvent exporters in the country, and severe destitution would exist throughout the country.'"

These words form a portion of the address of Hon. W. F. Coaker, made to the F.P.U. Convention at Port Union, not so very long ago, and their tenor and import will be yet fresh in the minds of those who heard them. It is and ever has been an unchangeable characteristic of Mr. Coaker that all who do not profess and call themselves his followers, are dubbed by him in such uncomplimentary phraseology, as smoothly and easily comes to his facile lips. Everybody who does not see eye to eye with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries is either classed as a political desperado or "a tool of influences," (whatever that may mean) and is invariably euhemistically mentioned in complimentary language by the "Wordy" President.

"Had there been no regulations last winter, spring, summer and this fall," said Mr. Coaker, "severe destitution would exist throughout the country." Well, if the honorable gentleman wants evidence that destitution does exist, and that his Fish Regulations are responsible for certain conditions, let him ask the people of Bay-de-Verde, who are in town, at the present time. Let him ask the business men how his regulations have affected them and their trade, built up after the toil and industry of years, only to be knocked out of existence by the enactments approved by the man who once styled himself the friend of the fishermen, whose every interest held first place in his heart. Men who have steadily labored to build up a lucrative business, have this season witnessed the crumbling of their industrial fabric, have seen it disintegrating gradually, undermined by the iniquitous and ill-applied regulations. If Mr. Coaker wants the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, as to the high regard in which the men of Bay-de-Verde district hold his regulations, let him ask the O'Neils, the Lockyers, the Broaders, the Normans, the Emberleys, the Moores, the Blundons of Bay-de-Verde proper. Let him ask the Quilans, Hatchers and Hydes of Red Head Cove. Let him seek corroboration from the Averys, Meaduses and Snelgroves of Grate's Cove. Let him go further and solicit the opinion of the Hopkins, the Strongs, Marches and Howells, of Old Perlican: of the Culls, of Caplin Cove: of the Hudsons, Morrisises, Garlands, Willards, and Brodricks, of Lower Island Cove. He can also get the truth from the Tuckers and Stockwoods of Burnt Point: from the DoYLES, of Gull Island: from the Hogans, Howells and Johnsons, of Northern Bay: from the Parsons, of Ochre Pit Cove and from the Kennedys and Crummeys, of Western Bay. We recommend that Mr. Coaker personally interview all these, and tell them that because they oppose his Fish Regulations, they are "political desperadoes," and the "tools of influences."

Bay-de-Verde district has suffered because of Mr. Coaker's autocratic policy, and the time is not far distant when the men whom his regulations have irreparably injured will not be slow in seeking satisfaction.

Relief for St. Barbe.

It was rumoured yesterday that the Government had been compelled, by the insistent demands for relief from the District of St. Barbe, to set aside $100,000 for this purpose, and that supplies were being sent from Humbermouth by the Sagona. These supplies will, it is said, be distributed under such conditions as will make some kind of return necessary from those who receive any of them. Relief is also urgently needed on the West Coast, where, so it is reported, there are over 500 families in dire need. We understand that this matter was to have been considered by the Government last night.

Premises Flooded When Pipes Burst.

Much Damage Done in Store of Hon. S. Milley.
The turning on of the water after last night's fire caused the pipes in the premises of Hon. S. Milley, Water Street, to burst, owing to the great pressure to which they were subjected. When the burst was opened this morning, the ground floor was covered with water to the depth of 4 inches, and water was also dripping from the ceiling, like heavy rain. The second floor was in the same condition, the burst pipes being on the top floor. Quite a large part of the stock, especially goods displayed for Christmas trade, was damaged, the loss running into some thousands of dollars. Insurance against damage of this sort was carried, and the loss will therefore be a heavy one. Mr. Milley hopes to be able to re-open on Friday morning, when that part of the stock which was not partially damaged will be sold at greatly reduced prices. The interior of the shop is now in a chaotic state. Not only the Christmas goods, but all the decorations were also destroyed. When the water system was improved recently, the pipes were not changed, and the old ones were not strong enough to withstand the increase of pressure, and the sudden turning on of the water this morning was more than they could resist.

Not Yet Extinguished.

Up to noon hour to-day, the Trade Bakery fire has not been extinguished. Several streams of water taken from the hydrant at the foot of Fraser's Hill is being played on the burning mass of coal. Some 1200 feet of hose were used to get the water along to the scene of the fire. Up to early this morning the mill wheel continued to turn despite the fact that the whole structure around it had burned down.

Will Re-build Modern Plant.

The directors of the Trade Bakery met this morning, and discussed the matter of rebuilding their plant destroyed by fire last night. We understand that the directors favor putting up a more up-to-date factory on the old site. This will be welcome news to the large number now out of employment, and the Trade Bakery directors are deserving of every praise in again promoting an industry of so much vital necessity to the country.

Dramatic Production.

The B.I.S. Dramatic Co. are now working on a first class production which the public will have the pleasure of witnessing about the last of January at the Casino Theatre. The C.C.C. Band have also arranged for the occasion. This play will rank amongst some of the biggest dramatic productions staged here for some years.

Lecture on Norway.

MR. PENNEY ADDRESSES BOARD OF TRADE—NO STATE CONTROL OF FISHERIES.
At the Board of Trade Rooms to-day before some 20 members of the Board, Mr. W. F. Penney delivered an account of his recent trip to Norway. The speaker was introduced by Mr. Brookes, after which Mr. Penney rose and explained that if he undertook to speak without notes he would probably cover a lot of unnecessary ground, thereby occupying valuable time. He had, therefore, prepared his lecture, which he would read. The discourse covered such subjects briefly as Norwegian weather, fishing grounds, stockfish, preparing fish for the Italian market, where it goes with the ends of the tails and napes cut off; the Norwegians as fish consumers, and State control of fisheries. Mr. Penney's address was very interesting and was listened to with much attention. The most astounding announcement made by the speaker was in answer to a question by Mr. A. B. Morin, who asked what was meant by State control of fisheries as applied in Norway? Mr. Penney replied and astonished his hearers by saying that there was only State control in times of stress and it did not apply there now.

DIED.

Passed peacefully away, on Dec. 2, Mrs. Mary Emberley, wife of the late Henry Emberley, Bay de Verde, aged 79 years, leaving to mourn six children, Mrs. William Thompson, Victoria, B.C., Mrs. Wm. Deana and Mrs. Harold Douglas in California, Mrs. James March, Hamilton, Ont., and two sons, John and James Emberley at Bay de Verde, twenty-three grandchildren and one great-grandchild and many friends to mourn her sad loss.
A precious one from us is gone. A voice we loved is still. A place made vacant in our home. Which never can be filled.
At Newark, New Jersey, Nov. 20th, Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Joseph Daymond, to Dr. Raymond Tilton, of Elizabeth, N.J.

IN LOVING MEMORY
of our dear son and brother, Samuel Sparkes, R.N.R., who lost his life in the North Sea, Dec. 8, 1916.
Brave boy we mourn your fate.
Your life was wholly given:
Far from home and far from friends
You gave up earth for heaven.
No stone to mark the place
Where our sorrow boy is laid;
But in our hearts he has a place,
A spot of memory made.
—Inserted by Mother and Sister.

IN EVER LOVING MEMORY of Corpl. Herbert Wills, 1st Nfd. Regt., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wills, Grand Falls, who was killed in action, Dec. 8, 1916.

Rt. REV. H. T. RENOUF

Consecrated Bishop of St. George's.

His Grace Archbishop Roche, Bishop March of Harbor Grace and Bishop Morrison of Antigonish Perform Ceremony--Solemnly Magnificent and Impressive Ritual.

At the R. C. Cathedral of St. John the Baptist this morning, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception, a large number of people assembled to witness the imposing ceremony of consecration. Amongst the distinguished gathering present were His Excellency the Governor and suite, the Premier, Hon. Mr. Coaker and other members of the Executive, members of the Legislative Council, Guards of honor from the Holy Name Society, P.C.C. and Boy Scouts were also present. The ceremony began with a procession through the Ambulatory, the cross with acolytes leading, followed by the clergy, amongst whom were Rt. Rev. Monsignor McDermott, V.G., Rt. Rev. Mons. McCarthy, Rt. Rev. Mons. Donnelly, Very Rev. Dean Tierney, Rev. Fr. Nolan, Rev. Fr. Fyne, Rev. Fr. McCarthy, Rev. (Dr.) Carter, Rev. Fr. Sheehan, Rev. Fr. Wilson, Rev. Fr. Nolan (Fortune Hill), Rev. Fr. Flynn, Rev. Fr. Pippy, Rev. Dr. Kitchin, Rev. Fr. Dee, Rev. Fr. O'Callahan.

Bishop-elect was bound with a linen cloth. The Veni Creator Spiritus being intoned, the head of the Bishop-elect was anointed with Holy Chrism, an Anthem and Psalm being sung during the anointing of the hands.

CONFERRING THE CROZIER.

In conferring the Crozier, the Consecrator bound the hands of the newly-consecrated with a linen cloth, and presented to him his Pastoral Staff, the emblem of his charge as the Shepherd of his flock, saying: "Take this Staff of the Pastoral office, that in correcting vice thou mayest be mercifully severe, maintaining judgment without anger, that while encouraging virtue, thou mayest gently soothe the souls of thy hearers, nor neglect, in thy calmness, the due severity of justice. R. Amen."

CONFERRING THE RING.

The ring, the symbol of the new Bishop's espousals to his Church, was then placed on the fourth finger of the right hand, the Consecrator, saying: "Take this Ring, the signet of faith, that adorned with faith undefiled, thou mayest without blame guard the Bride of God, which is His Holy Church, R. Amen."

Then taking the Book of the Gospels from his shoulders, he delivered it closed to him, saying: "Take the Gospel, and go, and preach to the people entrusted to thee; for God is able to increase His Grace in thee. Who liveth and reigneth unto the ages of ages. R. Amen."

The Consecrating Bishop, and after him the Assistant Bishops, now gave him the Kiss of Peace, saying: "Peace be to thee."

Bishop—Aid, with thy spirit."

Then the newly-consecrated Bishop, accompanied by his assistants and attendants, withdrew to his altar, where the Gospel, intoned 1-57-68, was read. The Gospel being read Bishop Morrison entered the pulpit and preached a splendid sermon on the ceremony, emphasizing the necessity of both law and order in the ceremonial of the Church.

At the conclusion the celebrant continued the Mass, intoning the Credo. During the offertory the newly-consecrated Bishop presented his offerings, two lighted torches, which refer to those words of Christ in Luke XII. 35: "Let your loins be girt and burning lamps in your hands." Two loaves of bread and two barrels of wine, which are symbols of the sacrifice of the New Law, and of which the Bishop is a High Priest; for the Episcopate is the perfection of the Priesthood. The celebrant having received the offerings, turned to the Altar, and the newly consecrated Bishop standing with his assistants at the corner of the altar, said with him the rest of the Mass word for word.

THE KISS OF PEACE.

The new Bishop receiving the Kiss of Peace immediately before the post Communion, from the celebrant, the assistant Priest, the Deacon and sub-Deacon each ascended the altar and received the same satisfaction from the celebrant, who having himself commended of Holy Communion to the newly consecrated Bishop under both kinds.

Following the Sacrament the celebrant, bowing before the altar, said: "O Holy Trinity! let the performance of my homage be pleasing to Thee." He then turned to the people and said: "May Almighty God, Father, Son and Holy Ghost bless you."

CONFERRING THE MITRE.

After the Blessing the celebrant sat down and placed the mitre on the head of the new consecrated Bishop saying: "I now set on the head of this Bishop, Thy champion, the helmet of defence and of salvation, that he may comely face, and with his head armed with the horns of either Testament, he may appear terrible to the gain-sayers of truth, and may become their vigorous assailant, through the abundant gift of Thy grace, who didst make the face of Thy servant Moses to shine after familiar converse with Thee; and didst adorn it with the resplendent horns of Thy brightness and Thy truth, and commendest the Mitre to be set on the head of Aaron Thy high-priest. Through Christ our Lord, R. Amen."

With the aid of the assistant Bishops, he then put on his Gloves, saying the while:

APOSTOLIC BRIEFS AND EXAMEN.

The Secretary then read the Apostolic briefs all remaining seated. The Examen was then proceeded with the Consecrator putting the questions, which were responded to by the Bishop-elect.

HIGH MASS.

Rising, He Continued:

Let us pray, dearest brethren, that the loving-kindness of Almighty God may, in the consideration of the profit of His Church, bestow a plentiful Grace on the Bishop-elect. Through Christ our Lord, R. Amen. The Bishop-elect then prostrated himself while the clergy sang the Litany of Saints, these three special invocations being added by the Consecrator: "That it may please Thee to bless this Bishop-elect here present."

R. We beseech Thee to hear us.

That it may please Thee to bless and to sanctify this Bishop-elect here present.

R. We beseech Thee to hear us.

That it may please Thee to bless and sanctify and consecrate this Bishop-elect here present.

R. We beseech Thee to hear us.

THE IMPOSITION OF HANDS.

At the conclusion of the Litanies the Consecrator placed the Books of the Gospels open upon the shoulders of the Bishop-elect, to signify that though he is to govern others, yet he himself is to be subject to the Law of the Gospel. Immediately after the Consecrator and assistant Bishops solemnly imposed hands, saying, Receive the Holy Ghost."

ANONING THE HEAD.

Taking off his mitre, the Consecrator prayed while the head of the

The new Bishop was then solemnly enthroned, the Consecrator leading him by the right hand, and the senior assistant by the left. His Pastoral Staff was handed to him, and returning to the Altar steps, the Consecrator intoned and the Choir took up and sang the Te Deum.

The newly consecrated Bishop meanwhile proceeded round the church where he blessed the faithful.

SOLEMN BENEDICTION.

Returning to the altar, the celebrant and the assistant Bishops retired to the Gospel side, where solemn Benediction was given from the highest steps by the new Bishop, who afterwards saluted the celebrant on his knees 3 times, saying: "Unto many years." He then retired to his throne.

The first Chapter of the Gospel according to St. John, concluded, the impressive ceremony.

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 8, 1920.

Colds in the head are not uncommon at this season of the year, and in order to save what is sometimes a great deal of annoyance, it is well to attempt to stop a cold in the head as near the start as possible. About the most effective application for this purpose that we have come upon, is that preparation known as V.E.M. It is a compound Eucalyptus Ointment, and so far resembles several other popular remedies of the kind. But the real merit of V.E.M. is the effective manner in which the remedy is applied to the inflamed and irritable mucous membrane. By means of the simple tube provided, the Ointment is placed in direct contact with the whole of the inflamed surface of the nose, and at once begins its soothing work, with the result that the cold is soon relieved and then cured. Price 70c. a tube.

FORMER ARMY NURSE HAS FULLY RECOVERED.

"I Can Never Express My Gratitude For What Tanlac Did For My Wife," Says Husband—Never Felt Better in Life.

Bud Morris, 277 University St., Montreal, P.Q., Sergeant in the Canadian Army during the late World War, and whose wife accompanied him overseas as a trained nurse, comes forward with an interesting statement regarding the merits of Tanlac. Mr. Morris is at present traveling in the interest of the Great War Veterans' Association.

"I must say," said Mr. Morris, "I can never fully express my gratitude to Tanlac for what it has done for my wife. For two years she suffered with indigestion, lost her appetite entirely, and what little she forced herself to eat bloated and distressed her terribly. At times she suffered with severe headaches, and her nerves were in such bad condition that even the ringing of the telephone would upset her; and it was impossible for her to get a good night's sleep.

"She became very weak and run down, and, in fact, not even the fatigue and hardships she endured as an army nurse caused her anything like the suffering this trouble did. We tried a number of different medicines but nothing helped her until she got Tanlac.

"Well, she is not like the same person now. Her appetite is so good she is always ready for a hearty meal, and her stomach never gives her the least pain or distress. Her nerves are in fine condition, and she sleeps like a child and is rested and full of energy in the mornings. In fact I just received a letter from her, from Toronto, here she is spending a vacation, saying she never really felt better in her life. Since Tanlac has done so much for her, it always gives me pleasure to say a good word for it."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Paradise by Mrs. Martin F. Byrne, in Upper Gullies by Heber Andrews, in Portland by H. C. Haines, in St. Joseph, Salmonier by Mrs. J. Gushue, in Millertown by Ex-nichols Valley Royal Stores, Ltd., in Flat Island by William Samson, in Jamestown by Christopher Haines, and in Lewisporte by Uriah Freahe.—adv.

Howlers and Psychology

Wherever teachers gather nowadays, talk turns on tests of intelligence. Those who think of the teacher as a purveyor of unconsidered trifles of information are alarmed at a proposal to test the capacity of a pupil rather than to measure his knowledge. Free places in secondary schools are commonly assigned to candidates from primary schools on the results of a special examination. Much weary examination of the papers set at such examinations justifies the assertion that they have all the wiles that they are far below the kind of examination paper which a modern class-teacher sets for his pupils. Here and there the work may be well done by that rare being, an examiner who has some knowledge of psychology, a fairly accurate recollection of his own boyhood, and a sense of humor, three characteristics as infrequent as a luck-bringing as white heather or a fourleafed clover. But most of the papers set all over England are such that the success of a candidate depends upon this teacher, more precisely, on his teacher acting as a crammer, and not upon his being a lad of parts. A candidate for a Free Place in a Secondary School should win, like Beowulf, by the strength of his grip, not by the loads he bears on his back.

As the questions in these examinations have commonly no relation to the boy's experience, he sets himself to wrest some significance or value out of the questions taken at their face value. From such a valiant struggle howlers are born. They are often cited as proving the stupidity of boys; they rather convince of the dullness of examiners. With the irrefragable instinct of the rationalist, and with courage never to submit or yield, the candidates will impose a meaning or wrench a phrase to significance, and be made the butt of the classroom for his "howler," while he really deserves the laurel that Lucretius would give to those who seek to know the causes of things.

Here are some authentic howlers, which prove much about examiners. To the question in a General Knowledge paper "What is a limited company?" a candidate gave relations. If the statement had been consciously made, we would have named it an epigram. The question was, of course, out of place, for a correct answer would have proved only that the candidate had been told the meaning of the phrase by some teacher. And what the teacher told is not evidence of the capacity of a candidate.

Another howler, "homage is the district around our home," similarly reveals an alert intelligence indomitably facing the Sphinx. Some teachers approve such courage by saying, "Don't guess," forgetting that education is training to guess, learning to leap from the spring-board of knowledge into the unknown. Pasteur guessed, Einstein guessed, shooting their arrows of surmise into the air, and still clutching the inviolable hope got their arrows "in the clout," like Locksley.

A similar over-emphasis on Biblical teaching may be asserted of the studies of the boy who wrote that a Jacob-bite was "one of the tribes of Jacob."

It is not always possible to see light through the howlers; there are passages which lead to nothing, as when a candidate, being asked what a dilemma is, wrote "you may often get into a dilemma when playing in the woods because you may catch your foot somewhere and not be able to get it out."

It was the happy chance of his misspelling that gave effect to the saying ascribed to a miner, "It's a very descent job to work in a mine."

Some perversions of words are as good as if Lewis Carroll had devised them. A girl describing spring-cleaning wrote, "we have tea in the scullery, and that is the nicest thing about spring-cleaning." Parallel knowledges that meet in confusion may be traced in such a palimpsest as "the wall-flower belongs to the chrestaceous family." So one may guess at what is meant and described by "ashfelt."

paths" and "rosedandruma." "Sonnets belong to the solar system, they are like small-planets" is at its face value good literary criticism. Pragmatism is assuredly the philosophy of the young. Some examiners delight in such a question as "Tell what you know of this or that historic figure." Here are some replies that show confusion, but not stupidity. "George Fox occupied the same position as Lloyd George does to-day." "James Watt was a very great writer; and his great subject was to find the composition of the mind and perhaps, by chance, you have read the very interesting book called Watts on the Mind." It is clear that the candidate did not know Isaac Watt's Improvement of the Mind, but it is equally clear that he knew there was such a book, which was rather exceptional knowledge or opportunity in a boy of twelve.

There may be more, too, than a malapropism in the statement, "Robin Hood and his men were called the out-lawsers of England." Omar Khayyam wondered why the vintners ever sold their wine. I have a similar wonder if boys ever learn half as much from teachers as teachers may learn from boys.—Stewart A. Robertson, M.A., Dundee.

The Unhappiest Woman in Europe.

"She looked eagerly towards the future when she would know peace, and the image of a small house on the edge of the Gulf of Mexico would rise before her weary eyes.

"She would see herself sitting beside a man whose earnest grey eyes were tenderly looking into hers."

Such are the picture-dramas of the ex-German Crown Princess, drawn by Princess Catherine Radziwill in "The Disillusions of a Princess," who declares that the brutality and infidelity of her husband, his callousness and savagery, have been such that time after time she has threatened to divorce him, and only the persuasions of the ex-Kaiser and his advisers have prevented her taking this step.

Now, however, says Princess Radziwill, romance has again entered into her life. The man with the earnest grey eyes is an American who has long loved the Princess in secret, and whose love is now returned by the woman who has scarcely known a day's happiness since her wedding in 1905.

For the first year her husband did not actually ill-treat her. He sneered at her and neglected her, and practised refined cruelty. The first real hardening of her heart towards him was his indifference to her health at the time of the birth of their first child, when the ex-Crown Prince went off on a hunting excursion, though well aware of the expected birth.

With what irony must Princess Cecilie have thought in those early days of the prophecy of her old nurse, who told her one day that a Fairy Prince would appear and carry her off to a magnificent palace, where she would spend a life of joyous splendor. A Prince did carry her off her feet by reason of his high position and dazzling prospects, but he was no ideal Fairy Prince. On the contrary, he proved himself to be a vicious black-guard and the most unmitigated cad in Europe.

Romance came to her before her marriage, when, according to Princess Radziwill, she met the mysterious American with the grey eyes at Cannes. They danced together several times, and although there was no question of love-making between them, he warned her against her intended husband.

Princess Asks Advice.

The marriage, however, duly took place, and it was after Princess Cecilie had discovered the true character of her husband that she again met her American lover in Egypt. It was a poignant meeting, for the Princess, in her misery, opened her heart to the man she felt she could trust. She told him of her unhappiness and asked him what she should do.

He tried to comfort her, and assuring her of his readiness to serve her in any way in his power, kissed her hand and disappeared.

The Princess determined at last to leave her husband and go back to her mother. It was then that she received evidence of the watchfulness of her American lover in the shape of an unsigned letter from Paris, which read:

"In your own interest I urge you to return to Berlin. You would commit an irreparable mistake if you delayed doing so. In remembrance of the Sphinx I entreat you to follow my advice."

The Crown Princess decided to follow the counsel of her anonymous lover, but that decision led to a terrible scene with her husband. He caught her reading the letter.

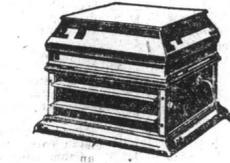

"In flames of jealousy," to quote Princess Radziwill, "he tore it from her, heaped on her accusations of unfaithfulness, and thrashed her with a riding-whip until his own servants interfered."

The Crown Princess tried to run away, but was caught and brought back. The war, however, brought matters to a climax. The Prince's dissipated life at the front led to a final break, and to-day we are told she is waiting for the divorce which will enable her to marry her American lover, the man with the "earnest grey eyes."

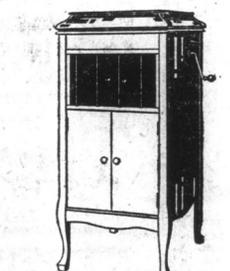

"And all the world is full of cheer Old Xmas comes but once a year."

Christmas !!!

Christmas !!! No season so looked forward to by young and old, no other so well-loved, none so merry. Full to the last happy minute of joy, laughter and music. The smallest cottage, the largest mansion has within its walls Christmas music, or Christmas would lack one of its greatest sources of amusement and happiness.

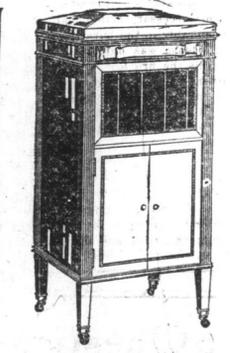

Why not let "Columbia" supply your Xmas music? Why not let your gift to your friends be some worth-while offering of a nice selection of good records? Why be without Christmas music when Columbia Grafonolas bring good music within the reach of all? Think it over, and let this 'sound' advice sink in.

The Columbia Graphophone Co. take a pride in adding to their already famous list of singers and instrumentalists all the world's best artists as soon as humanly possible. Broke the Bear's Heart.

The performing brown bear had escaped from the menagerie and he roamed eagerly around the countryside in search of prey. Suddenly he caught a sweet maiden standing beside a tree, waiting for her sweetheart. Stealthily creeping up behind her, the bear seized her in his tremendous paws and pressed her to him in a mighty hug. For five minutes he held her thus, and was just about to drop what he thought was her lifeless body to the ground when he heard her murmur:

"I don't think you are quite so strong as you used to be, Harry." That night a miserable bear crept back into his cage. The modern grip had broken his spirit.

Its perfect realism has been tested over 4000 times. More than fifty noted vocalists and instrumentalists made these tests. Spectacular Fire.

Trade Bakery Razed to Ground—
Loss in Vicinity of $100,000.

What was probably the most spectacular fire seen here for several years occurred last night, when the Trade Bakery, situated on the right bank of the River, was razed to the ground.

It was not until 7:30 that the fire was discovered, and by that time it had gained considerable headway. Some nearby residents noticed the flames rising from the building, and the alarm being rung in the Central and East End Companies were quick to arrive. By the time the firemen arrived the whole of the main building was ablaze, and the lurid flames were shooting skywards, making a reflection which could be seen for miles around. Thousands of people, attracted by the reflection, hurried to the scene of the fire, or to places from which they could obtain an unobstructed view. The firemen were at a disadvantage from the start as there was not sufficient water supply in the vicinity, and it soon became apparent that the splendid buildings and plant were doomed to destruction. The main source of water was got from the River, whilst another was obtained from the hydrant situated at the foot of Ronnie's Hill. This was the only available water supply and the firemen had a hard proposition before them. They, however, got down to work and under their chiefs did all that was in their power but it was of no avail. The fire soon spread to the northern store-room, and in a very short time the main building in which was the manufacturing plant, and the store-rooms was a mass of flames and with no possible chance of doing anything to arrest its progress. The northern store-room contained over 2000 sacks of flour and a large quantity of manufactured goods consisting of fancy biscuits, etc. It also contained 200 tons of Anthracite coal which the company had stocked as their main supply of this necessary article. These 200 tons considerably to the burning and the whole mass was quickly destroyed. Up to this time the fire had not reached the southern end of the plant which consisted of another large store-room, the stables and offices. These buildings were erected last year and were completed early last month.

The firemen exerted themselves energetically working like Trojans in an attempt to save these buildings, but the all-devouring element soon enveloped the southern annex, and all the fire fighters efforts were unavailing.

their increasing business, had enlarged their plant, at considerable expense. The year's stock of Sydney and Anthracite coal amounting to 200 tons had also been stored on the premises, and with the large stock of goods, both manufactured and otherwise, together with the machinery and buildings would place last night's loss in the vicinity of $100,000.00. The President of the Company is Hon. F. Steer and Mr. G. R. Williams is Secretary and the Manager is Mr. Geo. Williams. One very serious result of the fire is that the 35 employees of the plant will now probably be out of work for the winter. The coal which was stored in the northern building was still burning early this morning, and necessitated the firemen remaining on the spot.

The insurance on the buildings amounts to approximately $85,000, divided amongst eighteen companies.

Opera at Casino a Great Success.

A delightful and spectacular rendition of the Opera "The Prince and Pedlar," produced by Professor C. Hutton, assisted by the Sisters of Mercy, Military Road, and Mrs. Isabelle Cleary, was given at the Casino last night before a large and appreciative audience, by the pupils and ex-pupils of the Mercy Convent, Miss Ida Howlett, well known to our local theatre-goers, portrayed the part of the Prince, in her usual splendid manner, whilst Miss Annie Lawlor also deserves great credit for her representation of the Pedlar. Miss Madeline Kavanagh's beautiful voice and charming appearance contributed in no small way to the success of the production. Miss Angela McGrath played the part of the Robber Chief with her usual attractiveness. The other young ladies who distinguished themselves in their different roles were Misses Wylie, Walsh, Howley, Armstrong and Fortune, all of whom were heard to great advantage. The Gypsy and Fairy dancers were features of the performance demonstrating the marvellous ability of the pupils of the Convent of Mercy, and met great credit on their teacher, Miss Cleary. The mirth-maker of the production was the Robber's Imp, played by Miss Anita Kearney, who added much to the enjoyment of the sera, and brought down the house, owing to several encoures. A Chorus consisted of 100 voices of the different numbers were all splendidly delivered, and on the last night's production was in excess of its own, and all are to be attributed to the excellence of performance. A special word of praise must be given to the Orchestra, led by Messrs. F. Bradshaw, J. Marshall and J. Cronan, Miss McNeill and Sister Baptiste, who, under the direction of Prof. Hutton, added materially to the success of the "Prince and Pedlar." The Opera will be repeated to-night and as the proceeds are being devoted to the new school building, all who did not see last night's performance should attend to-night.

Unfortunate Mishap.

THE STORY TELLIN' MAN.
Sometimes there is a funny man comes to our house for tea.
An' when we're finished supper he just takes me on his knee.
An' tells all sorts of stories about pirates an' their ships.
Or cowboys that go walking with real pistols on their hips.
An' the Indians who used to scalp their victims: till it seems as if all night I am a cowboy killin' Indians in my dreams.

When I know that he is comin' you bet I don't go out.
To race around the streets an' play, but I jus' wait 'bout.
Till he's finished with his supper, then I climb up in his chair.
An' Ma says I'm a nuisance, but he says he doesn't care.
An' he starts another story an' afore he's half way through,
My nerves get excited coz it seems so real an' true.

The story-tellin' man just knows the tales I like the best.
With men an' horses in 'em an' the mountains way out west.
An' the prairies an' the fightin' an' the stars that shine at night.
With the red skin in the distance fixin' up to start a fight.
Once I asked him where he learned 'em an' he grinned at me an' said:
He couldn't tell, they just popped into his head.

I'm trying to remember all the things he's told me, but the pirates, coz of the cowboys an' the pirates, coz some day 'preps it may be.
When I'm grown up just like he is, I may meet some little chap who will want to hear some stories an' will climb into my lap.
An' I'll tease the way I tease him—then I'll do the best I can.
To be that little fellow's happy story-tellin' man.

Marvels of the Jungle.

To see seven hundred elephants on the move, to photograph an old charging cow at 25 feet and to save his life by grabbing the tusks of an angry bull and swinging between them to the ground are some of the thrilling experiences of Mr. Carl Akeley, a representative of the American Museum of Natural History, in search of specimens in the forests of British East Africa. His stirring story is told in the World's Work.

That elephants will stay and take care of a wounded comrade is a human trait revealed to the astonishment of Mr. Akeley by some of that vast herd of seven hundred in the Budongo forest. Says Mr. Akeley: "I stood watching them a little time and suddenly caught sight of a fine tusk—an old bull, and just what I wanted for the group I was working on for the Museum of Natural History. I ran up behind a bush at the edge of the clearing and peeked through it. There, not more than twenty yards from me, was my bull, partially exposed and partially covered by the other animals. I could not get a shot at his brain as he was standing, but the foreleg on my side was forward, exposing his side so that I had a good shot at his heart—a shot I had never made before. The heart is eighteen or twenty inches long and perhaps a foot up and down—a good mark in size if one's guess at its location is accurate. If you can hit an elephant's vertebrae and break his back you can kill him. You can kill him by hitting his heart, or by hitting his brain. If you hit him anywhere else you are not likely to hurt him much and the brain and heart shots are the only safe bets. I fired at his heart, with both barrels and then grabbed my other gun from the gun by, ready for their rush, but the whole herd, including the old bull, made off in the direction of the forest, raising a cloud of dust. I ran around and climbed an anti-hill four or five feet high to keep them in sight.

"When I caught sight of them they had gone about fifty yards and had stopped. And then I did learn something about elephants. My old bull was down on the ground on his side. Around him were ten or twelve other elephants, trying desperately with their trunks and tusks to get him on his feet again. They were doing their best to rescue their wounded comrade. They moved his great bulk fifteen or twenty feet in their efforts, but were unable to get him up. I don't know of any other big animals that will do this. I did not see the end of their efforts to raise the bull that I had shot.

In an interesting description of the remarkable equipment of the elephant Mr. Akeley states that it is known that an elephant has never been known to lie down. "In many other ways, besides its smelling ability," says Mr. Akeley, "the elephant's trunk is the most extraordinary part of this most extraordinary animal. A man's arm has a more or less universal joint at the shoulder. The elephant's trunk is absolutely flexible at every point. It can turn in any direction and in whatever position it is and has tremendous strength. There is no bone in it, of course, but it is constructed of interwoven muscle and sinew so tough that one can hardly cut it with a knife. An elephant can shoot a stream of water out of it that would put out a fire. Lift a tree trunk weighing a ton and throw it easily, or it is delicate enough to pull a blade of grass with. He drinks with it, feeds himself with it, smells with it, works with it, and at times fights with it. Incidentally a mouse that endeavored to frighten an elephant by the traditional nursery rhyme method of running up his trunk would be blown into the next county. There is nothing else like an elephant's trunk on earth.

"And, for that matter, there is nothing else like the elephant either. He has come down to us through the ages, surviving the conditions which killed off his earlier contemporaries, and he now adapts himself perfectly to more different conditions than any other animal in Africa.

"He can eat anything that is green or ever has been green. Just so long as there is enough of it. He can get his water from the aloe plants on the arid plains, or dig a well in the sand of a dry river bed with his trunk and fore feet, and drink there, or he is usually at home on the low, hot plains of the seacoast at the equator, or on the cool slopes of Kenya and Elgon. There are elephants on Kenya that have never lain down for a hundred years. Some of the plains elephants do not lay down, but no one ever saw a Kenya elephant lying down or any evidence that he does it down to rest. On good ground a good horse can outrun him, put on bad ground the horse would have no chance, and there are few animals that can cover more ground in a day than an elephant, and, in spite of his appearance, he can turn with surprising agility and move through the forest as quietly as a rabbit.

"An elephant's foot is almost as remarkable as his trunk. In the first place, his foot is encased in a bag-like skin with a heavy padded bottom, with some of the characteristics of an anti-skid tire. An elephant walks on his toes. His toes form the front part of his foot and the bones of his foot run not only back but up. Underneath these bones at the back of his foot is a gelatine-like substance, which is a much more effective shock absorber than rubber heels or any other device. One of the curious things about this kind of a foot is that it swells out when the weight is on it and contracts when the weight is removed."

Immense Fish Concerns

IN THE HANDS OF RECEIVERS.
The East Coast Fisheries Co., of Rockland, Me., and who last year had a branch of their industry in St. Peter's, is now in the hands of receivers. The Company, perhaps one of the largest on the continent, like all other similar industries, was hit hard by the backward market and other adverse conditions.

A few days ago Colonel Goethals, of Boston, and H. M. Verrill, of Portland, Me., were appointed receivers of the East Coast Fisheries Co., and the East Coast Fisheries Products Co., by Judge Clarence Hale in the U. S. District Court recently upon petition of creditors. Temporary permanent injunctions were ordered giving them possession and the management of all the properties, which are located at Rockland.

The East Coast Fisheries Company is shown by the schedules filed to have liabilities and assets of approximately $13,000,000, each while the subsidiary company incorporated to handle the products of the parent corporation has assets of $7,196,000 with liabilities amounting to $105,590,000 the capital stock of $10,000,000 being included in both cases.

Allegations of the complainants, Harris Lattor & Co., of New York, who have claims of $7,500,000 for services against both corporations and are acting on behalf of other creditors, are admitted by Charles O. Poor, vice-president of both concerns. It is alleged that the total quick and current liabilities of the fisheries company, given as $2,620,765, many times exceed the total quick and current assets, given as $187,000 and that the

Hodson, of "Hodson's Horse"

HERO AND DEVOUT LOVER.
(John O'London's Weekly.)
In the drama of the Indian Mutiny there is no more romantic or heroic figure than that of Major William Hodson, of Hodson's Horse, "the very mention of whom," to quote General Sir Hugh Gough, "was a proverb and war-cry in the Punjab as 'The Great Hodson.'" A born soldier and leader of men, the finest swordsman in India, a man who revelled in risk and danger, and, as one of his comrades said, "won the V.C. every day of his life," he was also a man of singular charm, "combining the playfulness of the boy with the deep tenderness of a woman."

Supremely Happy.
Unfortunately, we know little of the early years of Hodson's love romance. We only know that when he was serving in the Guernsey Militia, after graduating at Cambridge, he first met and lost his heart to Susan Henry, daughter of a naval captain; and that seven years later, as "widow of John Mitford, Esquire, of Exbury, Hants," she crossed the sea and was married to him at the Cathedral in Calcutta on the 6th of January, 1852, when he was nearing his thirty-first birthday. "She is wonderfully little altered," wrote Hodson, "since I saw her in 1844; and, being in better health, she looks younger. Sir Lawrence Peel has placed a house at our disposal here and we are very comfortable indeed and supremely happy." This event, so prosaically described, was the crowning of a mutual love as strong and deep as any in human history; and never has long and weary waiting been more richly rewarded.

Many Partings.
By this time Hodson had already won many laurels. For so energetic a man there was small time for newly-wedded delights; and after a few happy weeks at Agra and Umballa he was called away to Ludhiana "to try a lot of gentlemen who have devoted their youthful energies to strangling their neighbours," leaving his wife to the care of his good friends, Colonel and Mrs. Tervor Wheeler.

Before they met again Hodson had realized his great ambition. Though only a lieutenant, he was appointed to the command of the Guides, which he had so long coveted; and he looked eagerly forward to making a home for his wife at Peshawar, at the mouth of the Khyber Pass. "My good wife and I," he writes later to a friend, "have been separated for some time, with only an occasional 'furlough interval' for a day or two. I am tied to this hill by my official duties; but it disagrees so much with her that I was obliged to send her to Simla. She is now quite well—thank God for her—and rides fifteen miles before breakfast without fatigue!"

But he was rewarded for all his perils and long waiting when, at last, in September, 1853, he was "able to enjoy a little holiday from arms and kitchenery with Susie."

The Mutiny.
Thus, with a few more sad partings followed by blissful reunions, three more years pass, and Hodson is swept into the maelstrom of the Mutiny, in which he was fated to play so heroic and immortal a part.

The Fight at Lucknow.
The story is written in letters that will endure. But the day came when Hodson's lucky star failed him; and it came during the storming of the palace of the Begum Kotli, at Lucknow, on the 11th of March, 1858.

Hodson had gone with the attacking party as a volunteer. The fighting was nearly over when he and Nihal Singh entered the courtyard, in which some of the sepoy were still lurking. "Where are the rebels?" he said. "I pointed to the door of the room," says Mr. Forbes-Mitchell; "and Hodson, shouting 'Come on!' was about to rush in. I implored him not to do so, saying, 'It's certain death—wait for the powder-bags.' Hodson made a step forward and fell back shot through the chest. He gasped out 'Oh, my wife,' but was immediately choked by blood...."

Conclusive.

An amusing after-dinner story was recently told concerning a man who was locked up for being "d. and d." in Trafalgar Square at midnight.

According to the police evidence, the delinquent suddenly flung his walking stick into the fountain. "But I do not see how that proves that he was either drunk or disorderly," remarked the magistrate. "It might have been eccentricity on his part, you know."

The constable agreed, but went on to explain that the prisoner then proceeded to pat one of the lions on the head, and kept remarking to it: "Good dog, fetch it!"

Princess Mary's Real Name.

It is not generally known that Princess Mary should be really called Princess Victoria, for that is her first name, and Mary is her last. Her full christian name are Victoria Alexandra Alice Mary. The reason that she adopts her mother's name is to avoid confusion with her aunt, Princess Victoria, whose other names are Alexandra Olga Mary. Victoria and Alexandra are favourite names in the Royal family. Princess Louise has both of them among her christian names, so has Princess Arthur of Connaught and her sister Princess Maud. The Prince of Wales and his two brothers have both Albert among their christian names, the heir to the throne having more names than any other member of the Royal Family, namely, Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David.

Too Many Wives.

In the cold and chilly dawn the kindly old gentleman was waiting outside the country goal for the discharged prisoners. He went up to one and asked if he needed any help. "What brought you to this, my poor friend?" he asked kindly. "I dunno, sir," replied the man softly; "unless it was attendin' too many weddin's."

"Ah, you learnt to drink at these festivities, or to steal, perhaps?" the old gentleman suggested sympathetically.

"No, it wasn't that. You see, I was alius the bridegroom."

Remarkable Adventures of the Saucy Diamond.

When the late William Waldorf Astor, Viscount Astor of Haver Castle, gave the Clivedon estate to his son, the present Viscount, on the occasion of the latter's wedding with Mrs. Nancy Langhorne Shaw, he presented to his new daughter-in-law a magnificent "flat-top" pear-shaped brilliant, rather off color and with a white feather flaw, said to weigh 53% carats," to quote the experts. It was also said to be valued at $75,000, and to be the Sancy, a stone as well-known to Europe history as to European gem fanciers. The new edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica states of the Sancy that "it now belongs to the son of the late Viscount Astor."

But W. R. Cattelle, author of the interesting book "The Sancy," as cautious a collector as he is an expert, raises the question by declaring that there are but two things upon which writers agree, viz. that the first owner was Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, and that later it came into the possession of Nicholas de Barly, Baron de Sancy, after whom it was named. Following Mr. Cattelle's relation of the conjectural history of this unusual stone, according to some it was an heirloom in the family of Charles the Bold, and was brought from Constantinople by an ambassador. Its history between Charles and the Baron de Sancy is uncertain. Some say it was lost with the former's other treasures at the Battle of Granson, in 1476, when the Swiss soldiers who looted his tent had no idea of the value of the things they found. They supposed his vessels of gold and silver were of tin and copper, and they parted with his diamonds for trifling sums.

Another Account.

Mr. Cattelle speaks of another account which says that Charles wore the Sancy in his helmet at the battle of Nancy, in 1477, and that the Swiss soldiers who found it on his dead body two days after the battle sold the precious stone to a priest for two francs. Other writers assert that the Sancy was bought by King John II. of Portugal in 1479, but as Alfonso, his predecessor, did not die until 1481, he must have bought it either before he became king or acquired it with the crown jewels at his accession. It is said that he sold it to the baron, acquiring it toward the end of the sixteenth century, and tells how he lent it to his sovereign, Henry III., to pawn to the Swiss Government that money might be raised to hire an army of Swiss mercenaries.

On the way to Henry the Sancy had its oddest adventure of all, when the messenger was assassinated in the Forest of Dole and his body buried by a cure in the village cemetery. Knowing his man, De Sancy ordered the body to be opened, and the diamond was found in his stomach.

It is said also that the Sancy was sold by Baron de Sancy to James I. of England in 1684; and that during the civil war in England, Queen Henrietta Maria, wife of Charles I., carried it to France and pledged it with another to the Duke of Epemon. In 1657 Cardinal Mazarin, with the Queen's consent, paid the Duke and took possession of the stone. The writer of this account thinks the diamond referred to be the Sancy of the French crown jewels, inventoried in 1791, stolen in 1792, recovered in 1794, and probably disposed of in 1798 to meet the expenses of the great campaign of that year. Louis XV. had worn it at his coronation in 1722. It was owned in Spain in 1809, and later passed into the possession of the Demidoff family of Russia.

Purchased by Indian Prince. Another account says that it was among the Spanish crown jewels about ten years after it left France and that Prince Demidoff owned it from 1823 to 1865, when he sold it for about $100,000. In 1867 Prince Demidoff's stone was exhibited at the Paris exhibition and later purchased by the Maharajah of Puttiala.

Then there is a tale which has the Sancy stolen from among the crown jewels of France, as related, recovered by Fouche for Napoleon and sold by him to Prince Paul Demidoff, next owned by the Earl of Westmeath, and afterwards passing into the hands of the multi-millionaire, Sir Jamesjee Jejeebhoy. Sir Jamesjee's beautiful stone now adorns a tiara which is the pride of Viscountess Astor, who sits in the House of Commons.

Beautiful but is it the Sancy? With Mr. Cattelle one gathers from the multiplicity of contradictory stories about the history of this diamond that there may have been several stones known by the name. It is also possible that the irregular cut stone of Charles the Bold has been at some time since re-cut without public mention, and that the stone perfectly cut pear-shaped diamond long among the French crown jewels is the same as the larger stone which originally bore the name of Sancy.

Fifty Years in the Priesthood.

VERY REV. MONSIGNOR DONNELLY CELEBRATES GOLDEN JUBILEE.

Wednesday, December 1st, will go down in the annals of the parish of Conception as a re-blessed day, as it was the day set apart by the people to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the ordination to the Priesthood of their beloved Pastor, the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Donnelly, P.P. Everything that the people could do to make the day worthy of the event it commemorated was done, and when the only thing that was needed, a fine day, dawned fresh and bright, success was assured. The magnificent harbor shone like a mirror in the glorious sunshine, and reflected the many flags and arches that decorated the streets of the village, while the joy of the people was shown in their faces. From an early hour the guests came pouring in and by 11 a.m. the church was crowded. High Mass was sung, Coram Pontifice, by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor with Rev. W. McC. Murphy as Deacon, and Rev. W. Cullen as Sub-Deacon, (fittingly the oldest priest of the Diocese, assisted by the youngest), while the Rev. Dr. Greene acted as Master of Ceremonies. His Lordship Bishop March presided, assisted by the Rt. Rev. Monsignors McDermott and McCarthy. Rt. Rev. Bishop-elect Renouf was attended by Rev. Dr. Murphy, Brigus, and Rev. J. McGrath, Bell Island. A special choir with Rev. Dr. Carter as organist, sung a Gregorian Mass suited to the occasion. His Lordship Bishop March ascended the pulpit and preached a masterly sermon, taking as his leading idea, the chief duties of a priest, to offer sacrifice, to absolve, and to preach, and applying all with special reference to the Monsignor's career in the exercise of these duties for fifty years. Immediately after the sermon His Lordship imparted the Papal Blessing. Mass concluded the Rev. Dr. Murphy, P.P., Brigus, approached the Monsignor, read an address and presented him with a beautiful set of vestments on behalf of the priests of Harbour Grace Diocese. Addresses were also read and purses of gold presented by Mr. Patrick St. John on behalf of the people, and by Dr. W. E. Jones for Dalton Council, K. of C. The addresses we append below. Space does not permit us to give the replies of the Monsignor, but he spoke of the great joy it gave him to see so many of his brother priests, their great kindness in coming to do him honour, and of the cordial relations that had always existed between them and of the unfailing courtesy he had always experienced from all. To the people he spoke as a loving father, delighted with his children assuring them of his fatherly care and protection, his deep appreciation of what they had done for him and that they had made him very happy. Though taken by surprise by the kindness of the Knights of Columbus, he thanked them sincerely, spoke of their noble deeds of kindness and charity, which were especially shown during the Great War, and of his proud privilege to be a Knight. At 1:30 all the guests were invited to the Hall to a performance of an Operetta cleverly written for the occasion and beautifully produced by the Convent children, under the direction of the Sisters. Here also the Monsignor was the recipient of an address, bouquet and purse from three little tots on behalf of the children of the Parish. After the performance the Monsignor entertained at dinner in the Parish House His Lordship Bishop March, Rt. Rev. Bishop-elect Renouf, Rt. Rev. Monsignors McDermott and McCarthy, Very Rev. Dean Tierney, Rev. Drs. Murphy, Whalen, Greene and Carter, the Rev. Fathers Slesan, W. P. Finn, D. O'Callaghan, J. Rawlins, J. Pippy, J. Ashley, J. J. McGrath, P. Kelly, E. O'Brien, M. F. Dinn, E. Wilson, P. Sheehan, A. Dea, T. O'Neill, R. J. St. John, T. J. Flynn, W. Casey, F. J. Pamprey, W. McC. Murphy, N. J. Cullen and Mr. Justice Kent, Mr. D. F. Kent, Mr. P. J. Kent, Mr. F. W. Bradshaw, Mr. W. L. Donnelly, and Dr. W. E. Jones, His Lordship Bishop March proposed the toast of the Monsignor's health, which was responded to by the Rev. Jubilarian in his inimitable way. Speeches were also made by Rt. Rev. Bishop-elect Renouf, Monsignors McDermott and McCarthy, Mr. Justice Kent, Dr. W. E. Jones and Mr. F. Bradshaw. During the day the Monsignor was in receipt of many messages of congratulation, among them one from His Grace Archbishop Roche, who regretted his being unable to be present, but sending his best wishes and congratulations.

Address of the Clergy.
Rt. Rev. Monsignor Donnelly,
Dear Monsignor—We, the priests of the Diocese of Harbour Grace, your confreres in the sacred ministry, have come here this morning to tender you our united and cordial congratulations upon the attainment of your Golden Jubilee, and at the same time to express to you the profound satisfaction which we in common with the whole Catholic body, have felt at your elevation to the rank of Domestic Prelate. To look back over fifty years of sacerdotal ministry is a privilege granted to few. This privilege is yours, and we interpret it as a signal mark of Divine approval of the zeal and devotedness with which you have labored in the Master's vineyard during the past half century. Among the many and varied feelings which stir your heart this morning there is one we are sure that dominates all others, that of gratitude to God, and while your lips to-day repeat in Holy Mass those precious words, "What shall I render the Lord for all that He has rendered unto me," we heartily join with you in thanksgiving to the Almighty for the many years of priestly life He has given you—years of good, earnest service and full of enterprise for the cause of religion. Finally, we ask your acceptance of the accompanying gift as a slight token of our esteem and loving fellowship, and we pray you may be long spared to enjoy the dignity with which the Holy See has crowned your devoted services.

Signed on behalf of the Priests of the Diocese of Harbour Grace,
F. D. MCCARTHY, V.G.,
R. M. SHEAN,
J. MURPHY.

ADDRESS OF THE PARISHIONERS

To the Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. V. Donnelly, P.P., on the Occasion of His Golden Jubilee.
Dear Monsignor Donnelly—
With feelings of great joy we approach you to-day to offer you our most sincere and humble congratulations on the attainment of your fiftieth year as a Priest; and we wish to say that the joy which we feel is not confined to us alone, as it is shared by many from Holyrood to Bay de Verde and even on cold Labrador, who have known you as their Spiritual guide and benefactor by your ministrations. Monuments in the shape of buildings are not wanting in these places to testify to their material progress while under your charge, but it is chiefly in the spiritual impressions left by you on the character of the people that your influence as a Priest of God is best known. Since coming amongst us but two short years ago, you have endeared yourself to us by the charm and sterling worth of your personality, and by your every effort to impress us materially and spiritually. Evidences of this are seen in the various improvements made to the church and schools and especially in the new school recently built in Colliers. As a consequence of all this His Lordship the Bishop was pleased to appoint you Administrator during his last Ad Limina visit, and the Holy Father to make you a Domestic Prelate. At that time we rejoiced, but to-day we don't rejoice. We feel it a privilege to have you as our pastor, a Priest! What a wonderful privilege! And what a wealth of happy memories the day must recall! Fifty years spent in saving souls! Fifty years visiting the sick and soothing the afflicted; freeing the sinner, and offering up the Holy Sacrifice; a lifetime given for others. Ah, yes, what a glorious privilege! To-day the prayers of the souls you save will surely ascend for you before the Great White Throne, and we assure you of our prayers also, as you are our father and we are your children and your joys are our joys and your sorrows, our sorrows. Ah, yes, we are your loving, faithful children and we offer with this little purse the pure gold of our affection and sincere affection, which will be yours as long as you are destined to remain with us.

Address of English's of Columbus.
Right Rev. Mons. Donnelly, P.P.,
Pt. Rev. Sir and Brother—On behalf of the Officers and Brothers of Dalton Council, No. 1448, K. of C., we wish to express to you our congratulations on this happy occasion, the 50th anniversary of your ordination to the Sacred Priesthood. We realize that you have reached the summit of fifty long years spent in earnest labouring for the Glory of God, and the salvation of souls, and each and every one of us share in the joy that you must feel, and the honour that is yours reflects itself on your country, your parish and also on the K. of C., of which you are the senior member. We ask you then to accept the accompanying "little gift" as a tangible proof of the esteem and veneration in which you are held by every member of our Council.
Signed on their behalf:

M. F. DINN, Grand Knight.
W. S. MADIGAN, Deputy Grand Knight.
M. T. JONES, Financial Secretary.

Address of the Children.
Right Rev. and Dear Monsignor:—
Though we are only little children, we would not have felt satisfied to-day if we had not been allowed to extend to you our most humble congratulations, and we have flattered ourselves enough to think that among those offered you ours will not be the least appreciated as none certainly could be more sincere and heartfelt. We are glad to see so many distinguished guests present—gathered to do you honour on your jubilee day and testifying by their presence to their appreciation of your solid worth and popularity. They are assured of a

The Dear Old Lady Who Gave Me Neckties for Xmas

How I remember those happy Xmas mornings—mornings when the daylight seemed never to come, and even then I stole down in the semi-darkness greedy for a first look. There it was, just as I knew it would be, a gorgeous striped thing of warm colouring—gee! it gave you a Xmas feeling all 'round your heart to look at it. And so regular as rain, it happened every Xmas. Yet I was not disappointed to receive the same old gift every year. It rather tickled me to discover what new color she had chosen—for she never gave me the same tie twice. I wore it proudly all that day, covering it carefully with a napkin for fear its hues should be dimmed by the gravy.

My heart feels warm for that good old lady yet—and how dreary Xmas morning feels now without that Xmas tie.

Mr. Cullen Receives a Threatening Letter.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Yesterday afternoon I received a threatening letter, dated Dec. 7, 1920. It was worded as follows:

"I, Cullen, Esq.
"Dear Sir.—You are hereby advised by an unknown friend that unless you discontinue your open attacks on the Roman Catholics and the Roman Catholic Church of this city and country you will receive a satisfaction that in the severity of its application (upon your person), will teach you the lesson not to treat with disrespect a religious body whose honour and name you are aiming at. Be warned and desist. From such future dangerous work.
Sincerely Yours,
A FRIEND."

Now, sir, I am at a loss to account for the meaning of this letter, or the intention of the person who sent it. But he insinuates a distinct lie, for in none of my letters have I made any mention of "the Roman Catholics and the Roman Catholic Church in this city and country." My writings dealt solely with the Irish question and Irish history, and had nothing whatever to do with this country, nor any other but the one mentioned. Consequently, I do not offer any apology to any person in this country, nor to any institution in this country, for I do not consider that there is any apology due. But I do assert my right to free speech on any subject concerning the British Empire, and, as a patriot, I mean to maintain that right, which I shall use in defence of that Empire. And I say to you, Mr. "Friend," that anonymous letters and threats will not deter me from writing to the press whenever I think it necessary. I am of English blood, and while a drop of that blood remains in my veins, I mean to use it in the cause of that mighty and glorious nation of which I am so proud. And I beg to suggest, Mr. "Friend," that if you wished to turn two-thirds of the people of Newfoundland against the idea of an "Irish Republic," you could not have thought out a better way of accomplishing it than by sending anonymous threats, for there's nothing that makes the blood of a good Protestant boil like underhand methods of procedure; cowardice is not a thing that we can admire. I beg to advise that just as long as I may deem it necessary I shall continue to refute mis-statements made by separatist advocates.
Yours sincerely,
CULLEN.
