as Well as Patience, Sympathy and Re-ligion—A Good Time Coming When Doctors Will Not Be Needed. At half-past six last evening long lines medical and other students poured into he Bond street church, having been provided with special passes of admittance. A large number of dectors were also present. The text read "They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick"-Matthew, 9th chap., 12th v.

He announded his discourse as a sort of nedical theology, and went on to remark that all the great estates run one into another and are inter-dependent, nor can another and are interdependent, nor can they be separated. The old motto of "Man, know thyself" was discovered over the portal of an old temple. Mah is fearfully and wonderfully made in his mechanismi, best enigma. The medical students had chosen an ancient and honorable call-ing—one that calls for the brightest in-tellets, the bravest hearts and the most powerful minds. Skill and nerve should be yoked together in the doctor. The responsibilities resting upon him are so great—whether in treating the infant, the human bud whose tendrits are rooted in its mother's heart, the youth who has a bright future before him, or the parent who has his family depending upon him—mistakes or rashness will not be over-tooked. The doctor reminds one of the engineer who has charge of human iffe. Both should be clear headed, sober and careful. Skill must be attained by a thorough knowledge of what the medical art contains or is composed of. Ignorance and bombast will not avail. The best nervine is a thorough preparation and quali-fication for the work to be done. Opporthey be separated. The old motto of "Man,

Frederick Gebhardt, the owner of the amous racehorse Eole, and noted as the "Freddie" whose devotion to that ancient and almost obsolete sort and species of friendship which is designated "Platonic," has attracted now for eighteen months the attention and admiration of American reporters, was present in the Grand opera house on Saturday evening to witness Mrs. Langtry's initial presentation of Julia in the Hunchback.

Mr. Gebhardt has seen the Hunchback acted before; in fact acted before; in fact Sheridan Knowles popular play has been frequently put on the boards in New York, with scenic effects that Toronto (groaning under an N. Modern newspiper requirements and engaterprise have brought before the world a otable class of men peculiar for their ourage, endurance and tact, and of these one of the most famcus was Edmund O'Donovan, supposed to have fallen in the late disastrous engagement in the Soudan. His was a strange career of adventure. He studied for the medical profession at Trinity college, Dublin, but this life was too tame for him, and at the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war he enlisted in the French army. From that time to the present he has led a stirring, adventurous life. He followed the Carlist war from beginning to close (the scene of his first labors as a war corresponden!), was next sent to the Herzegovins, and then to the scene of the Russo-Turkish war. At the termination of the latter he was ordered to explore Central Asia-before that time considered to be an almost impossible undertaking-which he succeeded in doing in the face of innumerable dangers, hardships and difficulties Since the Carlist war he has been connected with the London Daily News, and the newspaper world will regret that such a man has een cut off from the profession.

ASSESSMENT SOCIETIES. To the Editor of The World.

SIR: It seems too bad to allow you espondent A. O. U. W. to mislead and delude the unthinking class of our fellow citizens by his mis-statements re life insurance companies. Bad as the Canada Life company is in collecting dividends for themselvce, they are a thousand times better than any pretended insurance society the assessment plan; for although the stockholders take a large per cent on their capital invested, they give along with others of their line a substantial guarantee that at please call on death the families of the ins red will receive the stipulated sum paid for. Whil'st, if I understand human weakness and human decay, in connection with the regulations and principles of the assessment societies, they (the assessment societies) pay the families of the deceased, providing there is money in the "locker," enly so long as the members respond to the assessments made; and just here is where human, weakness comes in. So long as men are young and healthy but few calls will be made, because but few comparatively will die during the first few year. thus violating both etymology and correct usage. The terms "statesman" and 'politician" are as nearly as possible synnymous, and it is no excuse for an educated man treating them as anything else, whatever the crowd may do. The contrast which a cause.

Dr. Sutherland can fall back upon popular usage for his justification. We noticed a few days ago the demand of the London Record-an avowed organ of the Roman catholic hierarchy-for certain changes in the school law of this province. The changes asked for amounted to the complete extinction of our public school system and the substitution for it of two separate and distinct systems-one protestant and the other catholic. Since that tim the demand of the Record has been in substance endorsed by the Toronto Tribune, another avowed organ of the Roman cathosystem are not merely comprehended unde lic hierarchy. the term politics" rightly understood, but

As in the case of the Record we do not deem it necessary just now to argue the matter with the Tribune, though we are prepared to do so whenever the occasion arises We do not believe that the great majority of the people of Ontario need to be convinced of the expediency of maintaining their pub lic school system as far as possible from further encroachment. What they need i have is the demand of the hierarchy a made public in the organs named above.

If the assumption that the Record and Tribune are merely voicing the opinions and wishes of Archbishop Lynch and his fellow-ecclesiastics is unwarranted it may soon be set at rest by a disclaimer ; if no disclaimer is put in the public will be justified in assuming that the demand for the entire abolition of the public school system is made by the recognized authorities of the Roman catholic church, and that in their opinion the time for pressing that demand has come. The sooner the matter is forced to an issue the better, for nothing can be gained in the public interest by postpone-

One point in connection with what has already taken place is too significant to be and over. The Toronto Tribune is now edited by the Hon. T. W. Anglin, who was for many years the editor and proprietor of of thought on the part of his hearers. the St. John Freeman, a journal holding a position in New Brunswick analogous to that occupied by the Tribune here. Some years ago the people of New Brunswick undertook to reconstruct their school system and make it more efficient, they altered the mode of levying taxes for the support of public schools. Mr. Anglin for years bit erly and strenuously opposed this change and was a party to various attempts to get the school law of New Brunswick overruled, both in the dominion parliament and by the judicial committee of the privy council. The efforts of himself, Mr. Costigan, and others, were in vain, however, and the public school system of New. Brunswick still remains comparatively intact-much more so indeed than our own. Now i the Tribune is not speaking under the order or at the instance of the Ontario hierarchy it is speaking the opinion of its editor, Mr. Anglin. The latter can choose for himself which of these positions he wishes to be placed in, and it is a matter of wishes to be placed in, and it is a matter of perfect indifference to us. The public will Ireland three. Canada has more not: however, the consequences of each a ternative. If Mr. Anglin, who is avowedly a trusted Nestor in the inner courcils of the liberal party, is speaking for the hierarchy on this question, how can the public be sure that he is not speaking for them on all others? And if he is simply their mouthpiece the liberal party had b ther consider whether his present position in their c. uncils is conducive to their ultimats trumph. On the other hand, if Mr. Anglin is ut ericg his own views when he demands through his paper the abolition of the public school system then, as before, the liberal party had better take stock at or ce of the situ tion, and ask themselves what they had better do about it? And both Mr. Aughn and the hierarchy had better follow their example. There is such a thing as the possibility of a demand for further concessions leading to the withdrawal of those already granted. There are some questions that cannot bear discussion, and we should say tha, from the point of view of the Roman catholic church no less than of the liberal party, this is one of them.

PUBLIC AND SEPARATE SCHOOLS.

But it is easy to show that incalculable nischief has already been wrought by the degradation of the terms "politic" and "politician," and that the obscuration of their real meaning leads to a most pernicious and prevalent confusion of thought. We often hear, for instance, that politics should not be allowed to interfere with municipa government, or with the administration of the educational system; and yet both municipal government and the educational are amongst the most important matters so included. To attempt the severance of politics from education would be as impossible as to play "Hamlet" and omit the role of the Prince of Denmark. Nothing is more common than the class of Pecksniffs who are constantly declaring that they "cannot bear to have anything warning, and the best warning they can to do with politics," and Dr. Sutherland in his speech came perilously near the border land of Pecksniffism. Politics is the science of government, and on the correctness of the principles underlying the practice of government defends very largely the character of that practice. It is easy rail at the politician, but those who do so confess themselves unworthy of a freeman's birthright if they content themselves with turning up their noses at what they call "the dirty pool of politics." The distinction between politics and statesmanship is not merely fastitious, but misleading, and the sooner these terms are used in their correct enses by those who are able to understand them the better. We have no more toler ation for the blind partisan than Dr. Suth-

his will do about as much harm as good, the gradual decay of these prime elements nother difficulty is want of the democrats themselves. At present they seemed to have determined on the election of Randall of Pennvivania as speaker of the next house. This eans that they are unwilling to the present tariff system. The question of free trade in

is an interesting one for Canada. THE SPIRITUAL EFFECTS OF DRUNK ENNESS. A writer in the Century has an instruc ive article under this head. Too much at-ention, he says, has been paid to the ecoomical side, the statistics. It is in the piritual realm that the ravages of drink are most terrible.

Body and mind are so closely related that when the one suffers the other must share the suffering; and the injury of the physical health resulting from intemperance must therefore, be accompanied by similar injury of the mental and moral powers. But the inclination of the popular thought is so trongly toward the investigation of physical phenomena that the spiritual conseof drunkenness are often over looked. Degeneration of tissue is more palpable than degeneracy of spirit; a lesion of the brain more startling than a breach of faith; but the deeper fact, of which the senses take no note, is the mors important fact; and it would be well if the attention of men could be fixed upon it. The phenomena to which we have r ferred often report themselves to the quick ened perceptions of those who stand nearest to the habitual drinker. Many a mother observes, with a heart that grows heavier day by day, the signs of moral decay in the character of her son. It is not the flushed face and the heavy eyes that trouble her most; it is the evidence that his mind is becoming duller and fouler, his sensibilitie less soute, his sense of honor less commanding. She discovers that his loyalty to truth is somewhat impaired ; that he deceives her frequently, without compunction. This effect is often observed in the character of the inebriate. Truthfulness is the fundamental virtue; when it is impaired the character is undermined : and at:ong drink makes a deadly assault upon it. Coupled with this loss of truthfulness is that weakening of the will which always accompanies chronic alcoholism. The man loses, little by little, the mastery over himself; the regal faculties are in chains. How many of his broken promises are due to a debilitated will, and how many to a decay of his veraciousness, it would be impossible for the victim himself to determine. Doubtless his intention to break off his evil habit is sometimes honest, and the failure is due to the paralysis of his will; doubtless he often everates that such is his purpose at the noment when he is contriving how he shall obtain the next dram. SIR : I noticed in your issue of Nov. 20 communication from Mr. Gage on the above question. He seems to dread the above question. He seems to dread the an'h risation of the Royal Canadian series, and states that they have been rejected by the central committee. Mr Gage need not fear if his books are as superior as he claims them to be, and as to their rijection he should not forget that his so called Can-adian series—compiled from Campbells, Meikejohn & Co., Scotland—were rejected not once but several times by that same Meikejohn & Co., Scotland-were rejected not once but several times by that same committee. The ownership of a series of books is of very little moment What the people want is the best book at the lowest price. Mr. Gage's fear (f monopoly is very amusing. The same gentle-man has for years, and is now, enjoying almost the entire monopoly of the school book trade. I hope you will open your columns, Mr. Editor, to a discussion, not only on the Reader question, but the entire school book management by the educational department. It will bear ventilating. Now here are five points and these two c clever men set their heads together to effect the purposes of each of the five movements That is to be effected of course by combina-tion. And Grip being the middle move-ment is chosen as the basis. Accordingly Grip goes to S. Franc, the speculating bidder, (contract broker is what the Globe used to call Charley Mackintosh of the Ottawa Citizen) and offers him $5000 to turn the contract over to them. He to turn the contract over to them. He accepts. Then the wily two turn the other accepts. Then the wily two turn the other way and see the poor Globe languishing under the load of its job room. So they send Grip to the Globe and offer a great price for the job room, which is greedily accepted. But before making either of these combination moves they of course have an understanding with the Ontario government that Grip will be given the printing contract at S. Franc Wilson's
