BRITTON FEELINGS ON THE PROS PECTS OF WAR.

large quantities of ammunition were de thought.

This rather curious placidity of politics, coming as it does so soon after the violent storm of last week, is the legitimate result of the Russian menace on the Afghan border, and it grows more and more evi-dent that the ministry acted on this ex-barrassment, in order to grab all that it is safe to touch short of provoking actual hostilities. England wants war even less, but she is in the awkward position of having declared that certain things would be a casus belli, and these things Russia has coolly done. The Russian forces on the frontier are under command of Gen. Komaroff, who is a hot-headed Slavophile, and who, it is quite likely, has exceeded at least the spirit of his instructions, but the imperial authorities are too proud to order him to withdraw.

On the other hand, England has had to him to withdraw.

On the other hand, England has had to solve her doubts of the ameer's fidelity by giving pledges to defend every inch of his territory, and Sir Peter Lumsden, who is at the head of the English half of the bound-ary commission, has had to forestall the he head of the English half of the boundary commission, has had to forestall the Russian attempts to bribe the Afghan garrisons at the outposts by advising them to fight if the Russians advanced and by promising English aid. It seems difficult to discover whether the territory in dispute really belongs to the ameer or not, for there is a mass of testimony on both sides, but nothing is clearer than that three years ago the Russian frontier was 500 miles away from Herat, and now it is a short march from Herat. Saraks itself is only 200 miles from Herat, pul l'katum is only 150 and the frontier proposed by M. Lessar is only eighty miles. The frontier whoh was rearranged by the Russians in the recent general staff map is only thirty miles distant.

Of course there is the usual talk that everything depends on Prince Bismarck whether war is permitted, and the timorous souls and quid nuncs find great comfort in the visit of Bismarck's son, Count Herbert, whom they suspect of having an olive branch concealed on his person. As Herbert, whom they suspect of having an a matter of fact in the present situation much more is likely to depend on the strength of Gen. Komaroff's potations and certainly did not begin their present game without an understanding at Berlin that they were to be allowed to play it out in they were to be allowed to play it out in their own way, and it is too late now for the German chancellor to interfere, even if he desired to do so, and no number of family visits can change the situation. This is the only intelligent inference from his recent speech, which was that he washed his hands of the consequences of Mr. Gladstone's foreign policy.

A great deal is said also about the initial liberal mistake of abandoning a German liberal mistake of abandoning a Germa alliance for an illusory friendship with pe alliance for an illusory friendship with per-fidious and selfish France, which deserted England the moment the Egyptian trouble arose, and much is further necessity of a reversal now, as Lord Palmerston reversed his policy in 1859, when he turned sharply around to the Austrian side after France had annexed Savoy.

Englishmen are much mystified by the intricate essays of their newspapers on the balance of power in Europe and disturbed to the very soul by the wretched way that things seem to be going all around, but they are quite willing to have it out now with Russia if needs be, and they would resent very stoutly any sign on the part of the ministry of backing down before the Russian advance. There is a general resolution that if England must fight, to do it so thoroughly that the Russian bear will be limp for the next half century. No doubt much of this feeling is due to the widespread mortification over the in glerious collapse of the Soudan campaign to elevate the retreats across the desert and down the Nile to the dignity of a withdrawal, and the late talk of a concentration at Dongola, or somewhere near Dongola, further humiliates the British pride. Hence it is only human nature to find a sort of consolation in the prospect of hitting somebody else.

England is better prepared for an Asiatic war than might be imagined from the fact that the Soudan reinforcements have so disturbed the home system that there are scarcely soldiers enough to spare in London to perform messenger duty at the war office; for England could concentrate So, 000 good soldiers at Candahar in a few weeks, and here in England the trouble arises more from a lack of sense in the sys tem than from a lack of men. No one doubted here that Russia would be terribly whipped in the event of war, unless there should be unsuspected treason in India.

The latest information is that Russia ha sent another conciliatory assurance that she will make no further advance on Herat and that Lord Granville, after a long con-aultation with the cabinet, has decided to answer that this assurance is very gratifying, but that the Russian force must positively retire from the disputed territory which she now occupies. This the Russian authorities have already twice declined

Probably two pence more will be taxed, but even two pence more will be taxed, but even that smount would still fail to meet the present great expenses. The Times suggests the raising of the duty on tea to nine pence, and the testoralers vigorously fight this with a demand for an increased taxation. Spirits or beer cannot well be touched without altering the customs rates, and tobacco carries the fullest possible tax now; yet in some way £5,000,000 or £6,000,000 extra must be raised at all events and muc ade his troops farewell to-day. He thanked Col. Denison and the Canadian boatmen for their courage and energy in sharing the dangers of the campaign. The Defence of Suakim.

SUAKIM, March S .- The following plan has been adopted for the defence of Suakim: An Indian contingent will camp on the right of the city and the guards on the left, while a semi-circle of redoubts 400 yards apart will be formed 1800 yards from the inner line of the defences onnecting with the latter. The water supply is abundant. Osman Digna has sent letter to the British commander here recounting the Arab successes, announcing that she fall of Kassals is imminent, and warning the English that they will be defeated and driven into the sea if they venture outside the city. Osman has also sent a letter to the chief of the friendly tribe of Amorars now in Suakim threatening him with death unless he rejoins the mahdi's army, and telling him the Britishare doomed, as 7000 dervishes have arrived to reinforce his (Osman's) army. There is constant stream of transport steamer rriving here.

The Reinforcements for Suakim. SUAKIM, March 8 .- Steamers are arrivng daily with reinforcements. To-day six transports anchored here, having on board a body of engineers, commisariat corps, detachment to conduct balloon operations, medical contingent and transport corps. Transports also brought a number of horses and mules, as well as supplies of various kinds for the garrison.

Hostile Arabs at Tawai are becoming alarmed at the number of ships arriving The Awaiai tribe is ready to desert Osma Digna whenever an opportunity presentitself. Food is scarce and the Hasher Arabs are sending their women and cattle into the mountains.

The transports on the way to Suakim with guards, etc., are detained at Suez awaiting Gen. Greaves' report regarding the water supply at Suakim. The transports, it is also said, await orders whether ports, it is also said, await orders whether to proceed to Kurrachee, where an immense supply of stores is being accumulated.

An advance beyond Sinkat is not intended until autunn. The intention is to encamp the main body at Sinkat during the hot weather, the site selected being 3000 feet above the sea level and three days' journey from Suakim. A successful battle with Osman Digna will have to be fought before the camp can be safely established.

An Advance Ordered Upon Korti. SUAKIM, March 8.-A re from Suakim to-day disclosed the presence of detachments of the enemy in different localities aggregating 10,000. ation of your courage and self-devotion. To have commanded such men is tigme a seurce of the highest pride. No greater honor can be in store for you than that I look forward to leading you, please God, into Khartoum before the year is out. Your noble effort to save Gen. Gordon, through no fault of yours, was not a success. On the river and in the desert you have borne hardships and privation without a murmur, and in action have been uniformly victorious. You have done all men could do to save your comrade, but Khartoum fell by treachery two days before you could reach there. A period of comparative in action was expected. The army was not formed with a view of the slege of Khartoum. We must content ourselves to prepare for autumn advances. You will, I know, face the heat and the work that remains for us to do with the same courage and endurance as heretofore. I thank you heartily for your actions in the past, and can wish nothing better nor ask nothing more for the future than the same uncomplaining devotion to duty that characterized your conduct in the other operations.

Lord Wolseley's written opinions about newspaper correspondents amply explain his despotic dealings with the despatches. In "The Soldier's Pocketbook" he says:
"Newspaper correspondents and all that race of drones are an incumbrance to an army. They eat the rations of fighting men and do not work at all. Without saymen and do not work at all. Without saying so directly you can lead your army to believe anything, and as a rule in all civilized nations what is believed by the army will very soon be credited by the enemy, having reached him by spies or through the medium of these newly invented curses to Evolution was the subject of a lecture last evening in Albert hall by Mr. Watts, who announced it as introductory to a course of six lectures on this theme. The hall was crowded, and the applause frequent and hearty. Among the points alluded to as being component parts of the evolution philosophy he enumerated: 1. The indestructibility of matter; 2. The continuity of motion; 3. The persistence of force; 4. The absurdity of attributing anything to a supernatural cause when we have not the slightest knowledge of any such cause; 5. This last becomes doubly absurd when science gives a perfectly simple and natural account of the phenomena in question.

University Confederation. louge et Noire of Trinity college has an able article on this question; liberal but tudiously non-committal. The whole case, however, is admitted in these words: The special characteristics of social and eligious culture, which the college system The special characteristics of social and religious culture, which the college system in its entirety can alone consistently develop, are fully maintained, whiles the necessity of reduplicating the most expensive scientific apparatus, collections, buildings, etc., is avoided. By means, too of the saving thus effected, apportunities oat be afforded for post-graduste and other work upon a large scale, to which, for some at least, none of the universities of Ontario can ptherwise hope to attain. These advantages alike from an academic and a patriotic standpoint, have been heartly recognized both by the representatives of Trinity at the conference, and by the formal action of the corporation. Perhaps, to none of the Ontariouniversities would the scheme so readily commend itself at first sight as to Trinity, seeing that it is an attempt to reproduce upon Canadian self a fac simile of those great seats of learning in England, with which Trinity and her professoriat have from the first been so intimately connected.

With this admitted the writer insists on three conditions under which alone Trinity three conditions under which alone Trinity could enter the federation and locate her self in Queen's park: (1) the preservation of her own special characteristics in regard to christian teaching; (2) the principle of confederation as opposed to absorption must be frankly and sincerely adopted; (3) the state must prove itself ready to provide the necessary funds for starting and equipping the new university in a thoroughly liberal way.

On the whole the article is in the right direction. If we are ever to have a great university in Canada, one that will form part of our national life, it is by federations by the denominational colleges uniting with the state-endowed institution, and by accepting the principles, both of co-operaand of division of labor. Each pursuing its own line in its own way will only leave us with several one-horse universities on our hands.

Tendencies in Life Assurance. transition: what the cutcome will be we do not attempt to say. But there are certain tendencies readily observable. Life insurance is or ought to be getting cheaper. We see all sorts of benefit and assessment societies springing up (often, too, toppling over) as a protest against the high premiums of the old line companies, which premiums are based on a rate of mortality proved to be, by the figures of the companies of the comp The life insurance world is in a state of the ritualistic section of the anglican orproved to be, by the figures of the companies themselves, higher than what really is the case. Moreover, the premiums have | England and the colonies, the ritualistic needs been high to meet the extravagant cost of management. All those officials, those directors, those palatial buildings, commissions to agents, are expensive, and must be met out of the premiums. With a lowering of the mortality tables and a reduction in the cost of administration, life insurance must become cheaper, even in the best of the companies. The old line companies to succeed must be prepared to fight the assessment concerns on their main ground - that of cheapness. On every other issue the old-companies have the lead, notably in that of security. But they must first revise their figures before they hope to beat the others off the field,

Methodism and the Salvation Army. lately, first preference shares having fallen The Christian Guardian gives prominent place, though not exactly its approval, to no less than thirteen points within less a proposal made by Rev. Hugh Price than three days. Hughes, editor of the Methodist Times (England). To most people it will appear a startling one, being no less than thisthat the methodist church and the salvation arms unite forces, and become one organization. As the Guardian informs us, Mr. Hughes had recently, by appointment, an interview with Gen, Booth, in which he propounded a great many questions, which, with Mr. Booth's answers, have since been published in the Times. These answers throw considerable light upon the whole plan of operations. The army has made little impression upor Roman catholics. He said their accounts are regularly audited. In reply to a ques tion respecting the present strength of the army, he said: "We have 1684 paid officers, 647 corps that maintain officers. and, in addition, 303 villages that are regularly visited. Our own people contributé about £300,000 a year. We get about £20,000 from outsiders."

Gen. Booth says "every soldier in the army is willing to obey and wait for orders:" and he thinks the great weak point of methodism is the want of authority in its officers. He admits, says the Guard. | perch fishing through the in its officers. He admits, says the Guardian, that they are practically a church without sacraments; but trusts that God will in due time supply this defect. Mr. Hughes asked him: "Could you not have avoided all these difficulties and secured full liberty of action, if the salvation army had been Canon Westcott, in the very room, offered me great liberty of action in the established church. But in those days the most excitable and the least educated of but is sent to the provinces. Here I must point out one of the mys terious doings of the trade, which can only be explained by the monopolizing business. The fish you buy at Dover or other seasid town, where it may have been netted, costs you more than in London, whither it is despatched as soon as caught, and where the fishmongers of Dover and of the seaside towns have to get it. Provincial butchers from at least the nearest counties send also not unfrequently to London for their meat, and so do, on a larger scale still, the coun try retailers of early foreign vegetables and fruit, and of foreign eggs and butter. I means that his eyes have been opened to see that his followers cannot continue to work on as they have been doing so far, and that seme other religious "mathod" is rapidly becoming as necessary for them as Wesley in his time believed it to be for the church of England; from which it happened that he became the leader of "the people called methodists." We should say that Gen. Booth gives signs that he is really becoming alarmed, and would fain see his wagons, gigantic vans, gargantuan drays means that his eyes have been opened to

In much less time than A conviction that Gen. Booth is anxious it would take a lady to fix herself for an to come more than half way to meet some afternoon call, I have seen the contents of fields and fields of potatoes and cabbages unloaded in Covent Garden. The Monday "church with the sacraments" seems to have been what inspired Mr. Hughes to much as a living tiger. The place was so encumbered with poultry, meat game, and other provisions that the difficulty of the buyers to get at the sellers was only equalled by the impossibility of the latter to sally on the former. A Spanish ambassador once told Charles II. that more providers and in that mart than lin all ganization. Long has England ceased to enough food for her children. In an average year, say 1883, the London central markets sold 181,026 tons of English meat and as much as 42,884 tons of foreign meat, 26 799 tons of which were from the United States. Each year the proportion of foreign meat landed here increases. The full official report for the year 1884 has not been published, but I know that Australia and New Zealand have during that year sent over here no less than 686,185 carcasses of mutton. The American trade, which has been dull for a little while, is looking up again and those interested will no doubt. been dull for a little while, is looking up again, and those interested will no doubt hear with pleasure that the private company, principally composed of salesmen having their stores at Smithfield market, which had built hard by some cold-air stores for the keeping of all perishable provisions, are considerably extending them. These stores can already take in from 800 to 900 tons of meat, and will soon be capable of sheltering double that We regret to observe that Grand Trunk securities have sustained a terrible tumble from 800 to 900 tons of meat, and will soon be capable of sheltering double that quantity. Salesmen will, therefore, be able to keep the meat as long as they can get a remunerative price for it, instead of having to throw it away after a certain time regardless of loss. I have visited these stores. Their temperature, kept down by splendid Hazlam engines, was almost Siberian. The charges for renting them is 2½d, per week for eight pounds, f which is cheap, and lower rates are granted for larger quantities. Granted that the objection was well taken, we wonder if it ever struck Senator Riddleberger, Congressman Finerty and Richelieu Robinson that it was possible to be too much of an Irishman.

Already one of Sir Leonard's tariff changes has proved itself no dead letters but a live enactment, that is going to be enforced. A large consignment of articles, the manufacture of prison labor in the United States, was seized the other day in London, being imported into this country contrary to the law which came into effect on Tuesday last, prohibiting the importation of articles so manufactured. Among the things imported were many articles which enter into competition with our own manufactures to the detriment of the workingmen of Canada.

Catarrh-A New Treatment. Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern science has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of 2000 patients treated during the past six months, fully ninety per cent, have been cured of this stubborn maiady. This is none the less startling when it is remembered that not five per cent, of the patients presenting themselves to the regular practitioner are benefitted, while the patients medicines and other advertised cures never record a cure at all. Starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissues, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination; this accomplished, the eatarrh is practically cured, and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him four years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present season of the year is the most favorable for a speedy and permanent cure, the majority of cases being cured at one treatment. Sufferers should correspond with Messrs, A. H. DIXON & SON, 306 King street west, Toronto, Canada, and enclose stamp for their treatise on catarrh.—Montreal Star, 26

You didn't think I'd stay locked up in a cow-shed when I had an engagement with a lady, did you? I just burned the lock off with my cigar and came away. I intended to give you a fright in return for your trick. I suppose it's what you call a practical joke in the country; but I didn't think of anything serious. I'm really sorry."

felt like a fool; but that was not as bad as feeling like a murderer.

I had a pretty pair of hands for the next four weeks; but I didn't mind it as much as if Fanny had not fed me with hers. She petted me as though I were a hero instead of an idiot. I believe she thought I had done something noble and grand. And she's been my wife now—how long, Fanny? Not so long as to have forgotten to be lovers, though my poor boy's head is on a level with his mother's shoulders, and my own is turning gray.

own is turning gray. -How often is the light of the house-hold clouded by signs of melancholy or ir-ritability on the part of the ladies. Yet they are not to be blamed, for they are the result of ailments peculiar to that sex, which men know not of. But the cause may be removed and joy restored by the use of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," which, as a tonic and nervine for debilitated women, is certain, safe and pleasant. —There is danger in neglecting a cold.
Many who have died of consumption dated their troubles from exposure, followed by a cold which settled on their lungs, and in a short time they were beyond the skill of the best physician. Had they used Bickle's Anti-Comsumptive Syrup before it was too late their lives would have been spared. This medicine has no equal for curing coughs, colds, and all affections of the throat and lungs.

Editor World: In yours of March 7 notice a letter from Mr. O'Connor regarding his and Mr. Enright's expulsion from the Don rowing club, stating what he calls the true facts. In the first place he says he advanced money to the club several times. Mr. O'Connor advanced us money on two occasions, first, when he and Mr. Enright were thinking of going to Newark to meet Buckley and O'Connell. There was a subscription being raised by the members of the club to defray the expenses of their trip there. To this Mr. O'Connor contributed two dollars. The second time the club received money from him was when he together with four other members of the club endorsed a note for it. When the note was due the club had no money to meet it, consequently the endorsers each to pay $4.17 to take it up. O'Connor talks about having to pay his own expenses to regattas before he and Mr. Enright went to the Toronto rowing club. We offered to give them $200 as a guaran tee for their expenses for last season, and they refused our offer. Mr. Enright said then that they were under engagements and would not row for the club under any con-sideration. He also said that the boat ccommodation was better in the Toronto rowing club. If so, how was it then that they rented a boat house near the sugar refinery and kept their boats in it from the time they left the Don rowing club? Mr. O'Connor says he was asked for a subscription. tion to the new four-oared boat. Fenquired oall the members who had lists and foun that he was not asked for a subscription He says he and Mr. Enright tendered the resignations to the club. This I also deny.
Thos. Delaney, Jr.,
Sec. Don Rowing Club.

[The above may be an exact statement of the case or not, but the fact still remains that the Don rowing club took no action until certain charges were made against O'Connor and Enright, and the only opin-ion that any fair minded man can come to is that the members then seized the op-portunity to vent their petty spite by agreeing to expel them. As a matter of fact the foregoing letter amply sustains that contention, and proves that all Mr. O'Connor said in his letter published on boathouse down east, it was, we believe imply private property that was placed at heir disposal in order that their racing shells might be more directly under their ewn immediate control, that they might the more conveniently take advantage of the placid waters of the Don on days that bay was rough. and to accom Enright, who complained of the distance he had to walk to get to the Toronto club's

There is always a certain auticipation of fun in the reheareal of the old nursery story of Humpty Dumpty, and the adult folks have a wonderful faculty of becoming children for the nonce, and laughing themselves tired over the absurdities and comicalities of the mirther provoking clown. It is difficult to imagine how a pantomimit can always be original and present new business, but Mr. Miaco has apparently solved the problem. A week ago Saturday deceased had a row with a man named Thomas Lavin, whose tenant he was, on Jarvis street, and in the melee it is alleged that Malone picked up a two-pound weight which he fired at Fairbanks and which regulted in his death. After hearing the evidence of deceased's wife, some neighbors and the physicians, the jury returned a verdict that deceased have of the insides of the Tulleries and other similar products of the conclusion that petroleum, vaseline, neutraline and other similar products of the conclusion that petroleum, vaseline, neutraline and other similar products of the conclusion that petroleum, vaseline, neutraline and other similar products of the conclusion that petroleum, vaseline, neutraline and other similar products of the conclusion that petroleum, vaseline, neutraline and other similar products of the conclusion that petroleum, vaseline, neutraline and other similar products of the conclusion that petroleum, vaseline, neutraline and other similar products of the conclusion that petroleum ought not in future to be allowed to be used by confectioners in their trade. by Martin Malone. The prisoner was re-manded to jail on a charge of manslaughter.

BACK FROM THE NILE.

rrival of the Manitoba Voyageurs in Toronto—Their Experience in Egypt.
The Manitoba contingent of the Canadian yageurs who have been up the Nile with Lord Wolseley's expedition arrived at proportion of them were Cree Indians and half-breeds. They had a pretty good time of it but were not anxious to prolong their erm of service although many of them vere offered increased pay to re-engage for were offered increased pay to re-engage for another three months. Their boats were towed by steamer as far as Wady Halfa, after which the trip to New Dongola was made with oars and sails. The Canadians were solely employed in steering, unless when a cataract was reached when they took a hand at the ropes in pulling the boats over. The boats averaged 33 feet in length and accommodated twelve soldiers with baggage and 100 days rations.

Did you see any of the fighting? asked The World of a six-feet-six half-breed.

No. no. was the reply; we had started to No, no, was the reply; we had started to return before any of the fighting commenced. We didn't go to fight but to

The voyageurs who have returned went no further than New Dongola, which is several hundred miles from Khartoum. A majority of the Indians and half-breeds were dressed alike in blue pilot coats and blue navy pants. They wore all manner of head goar, not excepting the beaded cap so popular with the aboriginies. There was a total absence of war paint and weapons. They carried a couple of hundred dollars apiece, and got outside considerable firewater on Saturday forenoon. Several of them were so overcome that they had to be helped to the station and put aboard the cars by their comrades. The voyageurs who have returned went

Grand Jury Presentment. The grand jury at the general session brought in their presentment Saturday They praised the management of the central prison and delared the food given the prisoners there was better than that served prisoners there was better than that served up in ordinary boarding houses. No one disputes this statement. This is a feather in Warden Massie's hat, who has been much villified in some of the daily papers. The management of the Mercer reformatory was referred to in flattering terms. The cottage system was recommended for luncottage system was recommended for lunatics as enabling physicians to make a more complete classification of patients. The present asylum building was regarded by the grand jury as being inadequate for the wants of the province.

Who Owns the Watch? In the county court Saturday the cas of Murray v. O'Grady was heard. The plaintiff is government detective John Murray, and the defendant John O'Grady proprietor of the Shakespeare hotel. From the evidence adduced it seems that Mr Murray had loaned Ed. Ryan, who form erly kept a hotel at the entrance to the Royal opera house, a gold watch and chain, to keep for him, and Ryan being hard pressed for cash had afterwards handed it over to Mr. O Grady as surety for a loan of $50. Mr. O'Grady, on being placed in the witness box, swore the watch was the property of Mr. Ryan. Indee Royal property of Mr. Ryan. Judge Boyd reserved judgment.

A Liberal and Sensible Idea. In Augusta, Ga., a weekly paper, the Sentinel, has been started in the interes of colored people, and the annexed para graph is in the initial number: "We are living here among the same people that once owned us. We must get on together. There is nowhere for us to go. We could not go if we wanted to. They could no send us if they tried. We should than God for the measure of peace that exists among us. It could be much worse. It only remains for us to educate our children, buy lands, make our homes pure, dignified and comfortable, and save money, and every other right will follow."

Petroleum in Provisions. At a recent meeting of the hygienic council of the Seine department, several curious revelations were made as to the employment of petroleum by the bakers in Paris. It is pressed into their service. under the form of vaseline and other compounds, as an excellent substitute for butter or salt in the fabrication of cakes, and its merits in this department of industry may at once be explained to the intelligence of every one, however little acquainted made the Toronto university would secure all the best graduates in medicine, and the profession throughout the province would be immensely benefitted. too long, petroleum, on the other hand, retains all the flavor which it had when Look out for the big bankrupt it had when first mixed with flour and currants, and not culy keeps itself in a high state of preservation, but also prevents any other part of the composition from betraying its age. If it has business somewhere and has to get there, it puts two miles behind it every minute it keeps its wings flapping, and does it as easy as you or I would step into Fritz' and call for beer. If you don't believe it, just fire square at the leader of a string of canvasbacks that are out on a business carrier. business cruise some time when you get the hance. Duck-shot travels pretty quick, but if your charge brings down any one of these ducks at all, I'll blow you off to a pair of the best there is in the market, with trimmings and all, if it isn't the fifth or sixth one back from the leader that drops. If you have the faintest idea that you will bring the leader down, you must aim at space not less than ten feet ahead of him. Then he'll run plump against your shot. When he drops you will find him a quarter of a mile or so off.

> The Queen and Her Troops. From the London World It is said that the Guards are not overcleased at going to Suakim. They are, of course, eager enough to take part in any campaign afoot, but in the present they are only made a convenience of. They ought, they say, to have been employed from the first. It is said that the queen was very loath to give her consent to their employment. Lord Harrington went down personally to Windsor to ask her approval and had a difficult task to obtain it. People are not generally aware that her majesty allows no movements or changes to be made in the stations of the Guards without her express permission. On this point she has always been most tenacious. Whatever ministers may choose to do with the rest of the army, she reserves to herself the absolute control of her household brigade. This control ex-tends to even the smallest details—the position of sentries and the number of men position of sentries and the number of men on guard. Another ancient institution which the queen personally controls is her majesty's tower. Most people have heard of the ceremony of handing over "Queen Victoria's keys," which takes place every night, but few are aware that at the time of the recent explosion all the reports were addressed to the queen direct by the officials of the tower.

Irish Poplins all the Go. have seen some of the Irish poplins that the queen has ordered for princes Beatrice's trousseau from Fielding of Dablin. They are, as might be expected, superb in color and in fabric. There is one of a warm fawn color, with a kind of pink of a warm fawn color, with a kind of pinkish glow upon it that is quite indescribable. Poplin is to be very fashionable this year, both in Paris and in London. Worth is using it, as well as the best London houses. I have always delighted in it, for it drapes so gracefully and is of such an unapproachable sumptuous softness that I am very glad it is to be worn. The French fashion journals (and indeed many of the English ones) call it bengaline, so when you see a dress described as being of that material you will know it means Irish poplin.

The Order to America for Ammunition The Mahdi's Troops Getting Tired of Their Allegiance—Graham's Program. LONDON, March 9 .- In the house of commons this evening Lord Edmond Fitzwith Germany, in which Earl Granville maurice read a letter from Earl Granville concerning the recent colonial controversy with Germany, in which Earl Granville says he has good reason to hope that the friction is past. The reading of the letter was received with cheers.

The marquis of Hartington said the cost of the Nile expedition, would probably be covered by the money already voted. The increase in the army would be 15,000 men.

Lord Fitzmaurice stated that the government does not regard North Borneo as under British sovereignty.

Lord Hartington in moving a vote of 3000 additional men for the army said Gen. Graham's force would disperse the rebels, occupy Osman Digna's positions, and prevent the rebels from again concentrating. Gen. Grah an would then open the route to Berber as ar as possible. If he reached Berber as are as possible. If he reached Berber in time he would co-operate with Lord Wolseley in his advance on Khartoum. The Suakim railway will be purely a military structure, but would doubtless eventually lead to the establishment of a permanent line. The motion was adopted.

The American Order For Ammunition. LONDON, March 9 .- In the house of commons to-morrow the government will be asked whether it is true that they have given large orders for ammunition to an American firm. It is stated the health of the employes at the Woolwich arsenal is failing on account of the severe strain required to fill orders for ammunition.
