

WEALTH OF THE YUKON THOUSANDS LINED THE WAY

F. C. Wade, K.C., Says American Capital is Winning All the Gold and Trade.

BRITISH MONEY IS STILL NEEDED

Many Openings in the Far North for Careful and Judicious Investment.

London, May 13.—The arrival in London of F. C. Wade, K.C., Crown prosecutor in the Yukon, serves as a reminder that so far as England is concerned, that district has been almost forgotten.

In the course of a five minutes' talk, Mr. Wade indicated that this comparatively newly-discovered gold-bearing district is booming more than ever.

"Whereas in 1898," he said, "the placer gold mines yielded two millions sterling, the output is now at the rate of $4,800,000 yearly, and $14,400,000 have been produced from the mines since 1897."

But, much to the regret of the inhabitants, English capital has been largely replaced by American. The English companies, as a rule, were not at first represented by men of sufficient experience, and when the men were good they were too often not furnished with sufficient capital to carry out the objects they had in view.

English capital, therefore, was not judiciously invested, is securing not only wonderful returns from the gold mines but is also controlling the trade of the country.

"This trade is very great. Last year, for instance, $8,000,000 worth of material was taken into the Yukon for local consumption, and this freight came mainly from United States factories."

"The Americans are showing such enterprise that the town of Seattle, which was 'staggering' when the Yukon was in its earliest stages of development, is now a large and wealthy city. The cities of Portland and Tacoma have also been developed out of Yukon gold. Five years ago, too, there were no steamers on the Upper Yukon, while today the fleets on the Upper and Lower Yukon are valued at nearly $600,000. Of these fleets, no fewer than 27 steamers are owned by the White Pass Railway."

"It is, too, only five years ago that Dawson City was a mere collection of tents, but the census taken last summer shows that it is now a city assessed in real and personal property at about $2,400,000."

"British capital is still needed, and there are many openings for careful and judicious investment. It is with regret that loyal Canadians see the Americans getting all the cream when with a little more enterprise it should go to the British."

IMPOSING FUNERAL PROCESSION

Body of the Late Principal Grant Laid at Rest in Catteraqui Cemetery.

Kingston, May 13.—Students this morning with uncovered heads carried the remains of the late Principal Grant to Convocation Hall, where the public viewed the bier. Long lines of people sorrowfully looked at and sympathetically patted at the face of the man who did so much to make the names of Queen's and Kingston shine in history's page. Students and graduates acted as guards of honor. All the incoming trains brought in large numbers of graduates and friends for the funeral this afternoon.

Kingston paid singular tribute to the memory of Dr. Grant to-day, for at 2 o'clock all over the city work ceased and the citizens attended the funeral. The streets about the university were thronged. At 3 o'clock the service took place in Convocation Hall, Queen's University. The building could hold only the official bodies of the university and the city and visiting friends.

Rev. Dr. Warden of Toronto, moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, conducted the service, assisted by Rev. Prof. Ross of Queen's and a number of clergymen, prayer and Scripture reading and an address by the moderator, who sketched briefly the life and work of the departed, whose work and influence gave him a place among the best in Canadian history.

F. Harrison, undertaker, arranged the funeral details, students carrying the body to the hearse, followed by the honorary bearers, Sir Sandford Fleming, Ottawa; Justice MacLennan and Col. Davidson, Toronto; Hon. W. Hart and G. W. MacDonnell, Kingston; Prof. Watson, Kingston; Rev. Dr. Milligan, Toronto, and Rev. Dr. Warden, Toronto.

The procession moved off with clergy and students preceding, followed by the sister colleges, trustees, governors or affiliated colleges, of the Senate and Council visitors, graduates of the City Council, the Board of Education, the St. Andrew's Society, the Boys' Brigade and the general public of existence. Half a dozen freight trains, each carrying some 1500 persons, are despatched daily from Deseronto, about a hundred miles from Toronto, in addition to the ordinary traffic.

The railroad station at Blazian is inadequate to hold the refugees, and the wretched crowds bivouac in the open air, suffering from rain, cold and hunger.

PREFERENCE WAY OPENED.

Sir Henry Fowler Sees First Step in Inter-Imperial Trade.

London, May 13.—In the House of Commons last night Sir Henry Fowler directly challenged the government to sign that the duties on wheat and flour were not the first step in preferential treatment of the colonies. He said it was impossible that the British mind should now advance to reciprocal Canada's preferential tariff by saying it is against British interests.

Canada would reply that it only wants to be put in the same position as Britain, and that all members of the same empire, with common interests, may be benefited by a tariff which may be the first step in inter-imperial trade.

Mr. Renwick, who represents a large working class constituency in New South Wales, pointed out that it is possible for Mr. Chamberlain to inaugurate a preferential policy.

The Westminster Gazette to-night warns the ministers that their attitude gives away the best British reply to colonial demands for a preference.

GENERAL VILJOEN IN EXILE.

Writes an interesting Letter Telling How He Was Captured. Amsterdam, May 13.—General Ben Viljoen, writing in English from Broad Bottom Camp, St. Helena, to a friend in Holland, says:

"Here I am, a prisoner of war, banished, I am told, for life. My capture was a most unfortunate occurrence, as I wished to see the end in the field; and, in truth, they ambushed me at the mouth of the rifles whose movements information leaked out."

"It was like a concert in Hades with Mephistopheles absent. We were then marched to Lydenburg. The officer commanding at that place was kindness itself, and treated me as a prisoner, and whom I treated as it should be, so that I was in good hands."

SHE PATIENTLY BORE DISGRACE

A Sad Letter From a Lady Whose Husband Was Dissipated. How She Cured Him With a Secret Remedy.

"I had for years patiently borne the disgrace, suffering misery and privations due to my husband's drinking habits. Hearing of your marvelous remedy for the cure of drunkenness, which I could give my husband secretly, I decided to try it. I procured a package and mixed it in my food and coffee, and, as the remedy was odorless and tasteless, he did not know what was thus so quickly relieving his craving for liquor. He soon began to pick up his health, and we now have a happy home. After he was completely cured I told him what I had done, when he acknowledged that he had been his saving, as he had not the resolution to break off of his own accord. I heartily advise all women afflicted as I was to give your remedy a trial."

MOST TALKED ABOUT MAN

John Pierpont Morgan, Who Treats Millions as Others Do Dollars.

A MASTERFUL MAN'S METHODS

A Steady Thinker and a Hard Worker Who Leaves Business With His Office.

London Daily Mail. Mr. Pierpont Morgan, says Mr. R. S. Baker, 'impresses one as a large man, black of chest, with a big head set close down on burly shoulders, features large, an extraordinarily prominent nose, keen grey eyes deep set under heavy brows, a high, fine forehead, a square, bulldog chin.

His hair is iron-grey and thin, and his mustache is close cropped. For a man of his age and size he seems unusually active, moving about with almost nervous alertness. He is a man of a few words, always sharply and shortly spoken.

'When a man comes to him Mr. Morgan looks at him keenly, waiting for him to speak first, and his decision follows quickly.

Quick to Decide. 'A young broker who had never met Mr. Morgan before went to him not long ago to borrow a large sum for a client.

'He told Mr. Morgan what he wanted in half a dozen words and handed him the list of securities to be deposited as collateral. Mr. Morgan looked sharply at his visitor—looked at as if he saw clear thru him, as the broker expressed it—then glanced swiftly down the list. 'I'll take the loan,' he said, and passed the borrower on to his partner.

'That was all. The whole transaction, involving a larger loan than the bank had not taken a minute and a half, and Mr. Morgan's side of the conversation had consumed not more than a dozen words.

If the best informed men of affairs in the United States to-day were asked to name the most masterful personality in the country, perhaps in the world, most of them would name the great banker.

Within a few months, by his strong hand, three of the greatest transactions in the history of practical affairs have been consummated—the great consolidation, which gives one 'community of interest' control of great systems from ocean to ocean, the trans-Pacific travails, and the great steel corporation, and the combination of the Atlantic liners.

He is the most prominent of American financiers to-day, because he thinks steadily and hard while he is in his working.

There are few men of great business concerns who are more easily approached. It has happened many times that Morgan's idea that the constant running of an office boys with the cards and college is necessary, he calls them. He is capable of riding himself of the unwelcome of the untimely visitor as quickly as he could return an answer to one of his boys.

Moreover, should the visitor be one with whom he desires to talk, the gentleman wastes the time of both. Another of the great qualities of Morgan's is that he is never too busy to see a man who has a real reason for seeing him finds him easily accessible.

Mr. Morgan believes in doing himself all the work that he can do without wasting time; but he does nothing that one of his partners or subordinates can do without his supervision. For instance, he himself meets visitors, high or low; but he seldom, if ever, signs a cheque with his own hand.

His Office Work.

From the moment he reaches his office in the morning, he is nearly always in his office in time to hear the stock ticker signal at 9 o'clock in the morning, he leaves at 5 o'clock in the afternoon he might seem to be a casual observer but he is the least occupied man in his office.

He walks about among the desks, glancing over his clerks' shoulders at the books. He seldom, if ever, shows them along bodily to accelerate their pace, and clasps his hands together cheerily to make them jump.

If a friend comes in at such a time, Mr. Morgan will call to him gleefully thru the hubbub, saying: 'How is this? Are you doing things at this rate over at your office?'

Visible evidence that the house is active and energetic is a tonic to him.

Arranging a Deal.

But all his apparent aimlessness of supervision is part of the method of the man. He knows every act of his clerks, he knows every act of his clerks who have charge of them. He can turn at once to the record of any stage of any transaction past or present in which the house has had a part. He is probably the only man under the roof who knows everything that is going on there.

It was after some weeks of just such apparent aimless wandering about his office that Mr. Morgan called his partners together and told them that he had bought the New York and Northern Railroad, and sold it to the New York Central and Hudson River Railway Company, at a profit of a year's labor.

Up to that moment not one of his partners had known of the transaction.

tion. But nearly every one of them had done something, at Mr. Morgan's direction, towards bringing the matter to a successful conclusion. They had known that some business of importance had absorbed him even more than usual.

Mr. Morgan said His Subordinates. One perhaps had bought a block of stock; another perhaps had executed a banking transaction on the floor of the Stock Exchange, and another had prepared an opinion on some point in the law; but all the things had been done as in the regular progress of the firm's business. The shaping of these tasks into the consummation of the particular business in hand had been the work of Mr. Morgan.

Such a method does not imply distrust of his subordinates and colleagues; nothing could be further from the truth.

To a man who knows exactly what he wants to do, and exactly how he wants it done, nothing can be more satisfactory than the knowledge that his orders are being carried out literally by men whose responsibility is limited to their own part of the work.

Mr. Morgan's method is not a matter of course, but it is a matter of habit. He has learned it by long experience, and he has learned it by long practice.

Never a Wrecker. From the days in 1850, when he drove Gould and Wyck from the disabled Albany and Susquehanna Railroad and made it again a self-sustaining property, Mr. Morgan has never been a wrecker, and never a wrecker.

When his hand has been laid upon a railway, he has always been a promoter, and never a wrecker. He has always been a promoter, and never a wrecker.

On more than one occasion when the other interests have been eliminated, Mr. Morgan has been a promoter, and never a wrecker.

Of late it has been a peacemaker between quarrelsome neighbors. He has always been a promoter, and never a wrecker.

He has always been a promoter, and never a wrecker. He has always been a promoter, and never a wrecker.

What is Distilled Water Good For?

Whole books are written on the subject—distilled water is without a peer as a wash for keeping the skin clear and soft; as a beverage, with a few drops of phosphoric acid added; since it is pure, and is a solvent of the undesirable lime deposits abounding in food. For Summer Cottages and Cool Verandahs

The open air life of Canada's summer has brought the furniture manufacturers to recognize the possibilities in designing of open-air furniture. This season we show a charming development of the idea. Evidently as much care and taste has been exerted in combining art with rusticity as in the most elaborate indoor furniture.

Some of it, despite its evident purpose, would not be out of keeping with the luxurious appointments of a drawing room. Torontonians who are furnishing cottages on the Island, in Muskoka, or any of the suburban summer places, should not think of selecting their furniture until they have seen our imported grass cloth suits.
