Brighten up!

Sherwin-Williams Paints and Varnishes

"The Real Brighten Up Stuff"

Spring brings a desire to brighten up things about the house, both inside and out. This is a wearisome task unless paint and varnish be used, and an uncertain task unless you use the best. The Sherwin-Williams Co. make a finish for every surface in your house—a piano or a chair—a floor or a picture frame. A little time and money spent this Spring on "Brighten Up" stuff will greatly lessen your work and add very much to the appearance of your house.

Come in and Talk the Matter Over!

J. SUTTON CLARK, - St. George, N. B.

Mr. Asquith's Power

He is a proof and an instance of what has so often been seen in the House of Commons—namely, how a man is never able to show what real stuff there is in him until the occasion comes which gives him the opportunity of revealing his powers. In the first session he was rarely seen on the treasury bench; there was abundant excuse for his absence, for he had just taken the tremendous responsibilities and work of the Chancellorship of the Exchequer. But people shook their heads and thought Mr. Asquith was losing his chance; for not to be constantly in evidence in the House of Commons is to lose ground. There is no place in the world where the saying, "Out of sight, out of mind," has powerful application. This year the very opposition describes Mr. Asquith's appearances. He is not in the House when he is not wanted; but he is always there when he is. He answers questions at question time; and in that sharp, terse way which suggests the click of a lock as it is turned, and gives to the interrogator—especially if he belong to the ranks of the enemy—the unpleasant idea that a door has been shut in his impertinent and foolish face. And never there is a debate on any subject of general policy—whether on the question of naval or military expenditure or the navy—Mr. Asquith is also ready to meet even Mr. Balfour on the question of naval or military expenditure, and to state the general view of the Government as a whole. The shadow of coming greatness is already around Mr. Asquith's head; and in a few weeks of temporary leadership he has shown to all the world that when his hour comes he is ready and fit for it.—T. P. O'Connor in P. T. O.

Copying Canada.

The cry of business interests in this country is for an elastic currency of the present system. The Aldrich Bill only provides a little more leeway for expansion. Artificial contraction, through the arbitrary action of the Secretary of the Treasury, is still the reliance for recovery from the expansion. A glance at the currency movement in Canada is instructive. There the regulation, effected and elasticity is imparted by the same system of redemption that is provided in the Fowler Bill. During three months from the last of October, when Canadian circulation was at its height, there was a contraction of 20.6 per cent. From May of last year to October, Canadian circulation increased 19 per cent. At the end of October circulation was a little larger than the year before. At the end of January of the present year circulation was a little smaller. The course of trade was absolutely parallel. That is natural elasticity. That is a self-regulating system of currency, bearing the true identifying relation to business. It is recognized as good theory in the Fowler Bill. It proves to be equally good in its practical application in Canada. Why should the business interests of the United States be required to operate under an unwieldy and unsatisfactory system? Why is a system which has proved its value in Canada and elsewhere deemed impossible here? Boston Herald.

Girl Masks as Satan; Death Overtakes Her

The disguise of Satan proved fatal to Miss Mary Schmidt, a school teacher at Black Creek, Wis. Miss Schmidt died in Chicago from blood poisoning as a result of having attended a masquerade ball, to which she went disguised as Satan, the poisoning being due to her disguise. She wore a regulation red attire, in which Satan usually is represented as appearing with long, pointed shoes, a forked tail and horns on her head. But the main feature of her disguise was a thick mask, composed of home made grease paints, which made her face most striking figure at the ball. Dancing was kept up at the affair for the greater part of the night, the girls having the prerogative of asking the men to be their partners. None of these attending entered into the gayety of the event more heartily than Miss Schmidt. Satan was here there and everywhere with a laugh and a jest. When Miss Schmidt reached her home in the small hours of the morning, however, she found difficulty in removing the grease paints. She worked at her face for a short time, but only succeeded in scraping off a few atoms of the paint. "Oh, well," she exclaimed to one of her family, "I'm tired to bother with it tonight, and I'll let it go until tomorrow." The next day Miss Schmidt approached the task of getting off the paint with the perfect confidence. To her amazement and horror, however, the more she rubbed at the paint the more firmly it clung. She called in the members of her family to assist. Each had a suggestion and every suggestion was faithfully put to the test. Nothing was of avail. Becoming thoroughly alarmed by the mass of variegated paint, which had now blackened in thick, mixed patches, entirely covering her face and seriously inconveniencing her, Miss Schmidt summoned a physician. He declared there would be difficulty in getting the paint off. He went to work, applied chemicals and exhausted every means his skill and ingenuity could suggest. The paint not only would not come off but it seemed to be working below the skin in places and began to cause intense pain. Other doctors were called in. Physicians from a radius of many miles around Black Creek were sent for. Consultations were held and numerous methods of treatment tried. Nothing did the least good. The paint defied every effort of the medical men, as it had the home applications of Miss Schmidt. Four weeks after the masquerade Miss Schmidt's condition had become such that it was necessary to send her to Chicago for treatment. In Chicago she was given new models of treatment, but once more to no avail. Symptoms of blood poisoning finally developed, the unfortunate girl dying within a few days.

Biggest Fire in History

Boston, April 12.—A north-west gale, fanned a small insignificant fire into a vast conflagration today, completely obliterating one half of Chelsea, destroying 300 dwelling houses, and public buildings, drove fifteen hundred families from their habitations, and rendered ten thousand people homeless. The city Solicitor estimates the loss at $10,000,000. The fire area which was in the form of an ellipse, extended for a mile and a half and was only ended when the water was reached at Chelsea Creek. Starting from a blacking factory at the north western end of the city at about 10.30 a. m. today, it snatched relentlessly through the business section and destroyed tenement houses on either side by the hundreds. Assistance from all the nearby cities was called in, but the great battery of fire apparatus was unable to stop the flames, until nearly dark. In the meantime the fleeing inhabitants were met by such a vast crowd of spectators that it was necessary to call the troops, and the United States Government and the State Militia were drawn up to maintain order and keep the fire line clear for the firemen. All the banks, more than three quarters of the churches, fully half of the business section and nearly all the school houses were wiped out. In the turmoil many of the sick and infirm found difficulty in obtaining assistance and several were forgotten, so that at eleven o'clock the number of dead was four. Three of these had been burned to death and one woman committed suicide at her home, as the building caught fire. The fire burned over an area of one square mile. It started near the corner of Cypress and Third Streets, and the northwest gale set it straight to the southwest which spread out as it advanced until its northerly boundary reached the eastern division of the B. and M. Railway along the tracks of which it extended. At the junction with the tracks of the Boston and Albany railroad over which it swept until stopped by a small creek. On the other side the fire was held along Second Street until Broadway was reached and then along Essex and Middle Streets to the water front at Chelsea Creek. From Third Street, where it started, to the waterfront its greatest width was about a half mile. The fire did not stop at the edge of Chelsea Creek, but jumped over into East Boston where it licked up half a dozen houses and several well filled tanks of the Standard Oil Company.

Mount Temple Floated at Last

Halifax, N. S., April 15.—After having been ashore on the ledges at Ironbound Island, at the mouth of the LaHave River, since November 30 last, the big C. P. R. liner Mount Temple was successfully floated on to-night's tide. The steamer was filled with air, and with the rising tide and the assistance of three tugs, the big liner slid off the rocks into deep water. This was the third attempt made to float her. Under her own steam, the Mount Temple started for Halifax, but owing to a heavy southeast storm setting in she was obliged to make Louisbourg Harbor for shelter at 11.30 to-night. The Mount Temple registers 6,661 tons, and the underwriters agreed to give the salvors $200,000 if they floated her. When the steamer stranded she had over 600 passengers on board, and all were saved she will come to Halifax on drydock as soon as the weather permits. The steamer had been driven hard on the rocks to save the lives of the passengers, and rocks protruded through her bottom in several places. The work of floating her was one of the most difficult even undertaken on the Atlantic coast, and the success of the salvors is, regarded by marine experts as a notable achievement.

Transplanting Lobsters

A number of efforts have been made to establish the lobster on the British Columbia coast. On several occasions these crustaceans, have been carried from the Atlantic coast waters to the Pacific, but no very systematic attempts were made to care for them or to watch the experiment. Another effort is to be made this month, in the same direction. Between 2500 and 3000 lobsters will be arrived from New Brunswick to British Columbia and placed in Cooper Cove. Mr. Cunningham the Dominion inspector of fish culture, will have charge of the experiment. He is to make an effort to care for the new colony to be planted at Cooper Cove, and will closely watch the result of the experiment. The lobster is not native to British Columbia, but if this experiment succeeds another will be added to the many wealth giving industries of the Pacific province. The importance of the industry to the east is seen from the returns from 1906. In that year 12,317 men were engaged in the lobster industry of the four eastern provinces of the Dominion, 3,658 of them from Nova Scotia. The total value of the lobster industry to these provinces in that year was $3,422,927 of which amount Nova Scotia received $1,935,807.

Catarrh of the Kidneys An Insidious Disease. Many People Have it in Slight Form and Do Not Know It.

INTERNAL CATARRH REACHES THE KIDNEYS. Even when he discovers that the kidneys are affected, he does not recognize the difficulty as being caused by catarrh. Catarrh is sometimes so very gradual in its approach and its earlier symptoms cause such slight discomfort that it is not noticed. Mark Twain on Prohibition.

"Crossing the Atlantic with Mark Twain last summer," said a W. C. T. U. woman, "I asked his opinion of the Prohibition law. His reply was very characteristic, very humorous. 'I'm a friend of temperance and want it to succeed,' he said, 'but I don't think prohibition is practical. The Germans, you see, prevent it. Look at them. I am sorry to learn that they have just invented a method of making brandy out of sawdust. Now what chance will prohibition have when a man can take a rip saw and go out and get drunk with a fence rail? What is the good of Prohibition, if a man is able to make brandy smashes out of the shingles on his roof, or if he can get delirium tremens by drinking the legs off the kitchen chairs.'"

How Times Have Changed.

(From the New York Tribune.) A few years ago many Boers were emigrating from the Transvaal in preference to enduring the monstrous oppression which they were sure the British Government was about to impose upon them. And now one of the foremost of them appeals to the British Government for protection for his family from the unjust and cruel treatment which he declares is prevalent in another country and under another flag. Truly the times have changed since "Oom Paul" threatened to await the coming of the invader, seated on the stoop of his house, elephant gun in hand! The Government will have spent on the National Transcontinental Railway at the close of the present fiscal year the sum of $25,000,000, and when it is remembered that this work is being pushed forward by the country without enrolling any drain on its resources, it surely must be regarded as a great feat on the part of any administration in power in this Dominion. Our rulers had faith in Canada to early sustain this great undertaking and that opinion has been fully justified by the results to date.

Why Mr. Fairbanks Doesn't Use Tobacco

Vice-President Fairbanks does not smoke or use tobacco in any form. He does not care for it, and relates a boyhood experience as his reason for disliking tobacco. "At the time," he tells his friends "when there were a lot of little chaps attending a country school, of whom I was one, the most common way of using tobacco was in a pipe or to chew it. A cigar was a sign of affluence by the inhabitants of that community. "One day a young man came to see our teacher, who was a young woman, and he wore in his face a long black cigar, that meant he had much money in his pocket; was president of a bank or something equally important. When he came in he left his cigar on the outside, carefully put away on a window ledge. Some spirit of devilry or perverseness induced me to fish that cigar, and I divided it up in pieces among my companions. Each of us took a bit, and in about five minutes all of us were wildly groping about for something to hold on to so we would not fall off the earth. That's the way we felt, and that experience made me so sick I have never been tempted to repeat it."

Sure Cure For Sciatica

Sciatica is really inflammation of the sciatic nerve, the largest nerve in the body. This passive inflammation is the product of a run-down condition, and in every case you may be sure the nerves are worn down fine. The pain is the cry of the nerves for more food—for richer, redder blood. Rubbing on a greasy liniment can't help very much—you must treat the blood and rebuild the nervous system. This can be promptly done with Ferrozone. No builder of nerve force is more powerful. No tonic so quickly fortifies the muscular system, imparts such strength, such endurance and vigor. Any traces of Uric Acid and rheumatic poison are quickly driven out by Ferrozone. The lowered condition of the system is changed into a reserve of vigor that defies further attacks of Sciatica. Marvelous in its reconstructive and rebuilding power, quick to give relief, absolutely sure to cure,—where can you find a better treatment than Ferrozone? Thinking it Over

"What! marry on a thousand a year? Don't be such a fool. The two men were sitting in the smoking room of the Buckingham Club. It was the after-luncheon hour. An air of opulent repose enveloped them. Sunk in the depths of vast easy chairs, a score of members some of them young some middle aged, some old, were smoking drinking coffee and liquors, reading the papers, chatting in an undertone, or frankly slumbering. The spring sunshine, prevented by carefully manipulated blinds from flooding the room, yet gained entrance, in pencils of light here and there, and lit up the deep carpet, the massive, well-carved for furniture, the books and prints on the walls, the reposeful members, and the quiet, attentive, liveried waiters. One such pencil of light fell on the bald head of Major General Boldre, wooing slumber in a chair that had been tacitly ceded to his exclusive use for the last 20 years, and caused him a vague, inexplicable uneasiness. A new and timid waiter, seeing him make a motion as though to brush off a fly, would have adjusted the blind, but feared he might wake him in so doing, and left it alone. Another waiter had placed between the chairs in which Sir James Woodroffe and his friends Captain Jervis, were sitting, a little table, and loaded it with a coffee apparatus and two glasses of brandy, so old that it had lost most of its potency, though none of its seductive charm. He had been summoned twice to replenish the tiny glasses. Woodroffe was in the middle 40s, inclined to stoutness and a slightly mottled tint of complexion. His companion was ten years younger. Both of them were tall, good looking men, and were dressed as nearly alike as if they had been sisters consulting with one another every morning as to what was to be the attire of the day. Each wore a well-fitted black coat, striped trousers, carefully creased, varnished boots, a tie with a pearl pin, white waist-coat slips. The hair of each of them—the elder man's fairish beginning to thin. The younger's dark and sleek—was brushed smoothly back. Woodroffe leaned forward. "My dear fellow, it's pefect madness," he said earnestly. "Look at my case. I've got—well, about four times as much as you, and of course, my missus has got a bit, I thought I should be all right. But—well, between you and me—it has spoilt my life." He leaned back in his chair and took a pull at his big cigar. The other looked unconvinced. Perhaps he thought that if it had been a question of his marrying a woman like Lady Woodroffe, pretty —everything! Now you take that from me." Jervis looked down at his shining boots. "I haven't made up my mind yet, he said, irresolutely. "Then make it up quick. Sheer off while you've got time. I suppose you haven't said anything to her yet?" "Well—I—er—sort of sounded her, Of course, I see everything that you say—in a way. If I didn't I should have fixed it up already." "Anyone else in the running?" "There's young Ralph Jodrell poking his nose in." "He's not a very desperate rival. I know exactly what he's got—five hundred a year and what he makes at the bar—say, another ten pounds. When they make Ralph Jodrell a K. C.—" "Who's that talking of making Ralph Jodrell a K. C.?" A young man had come into the room and stood in front of them. He looked as pleased as if he had taken silk that morning. "I'm going to be married," he said, grinning all over his face. "What do you think of that?" "Jervis sat up in his chair. "Whom to?" he asked. "Old Lady Southernwood's niece. We've just fixed it up. You're the first fellows I've told." Jervis fell back. Woodroffe cast a shrewd glance at him. "What on earth are you going to live on?" he said. "What I've got and what I'm going to make, said the young man. "It wouldn't be enough for you, Jimmy, but I wouldn't change places with you. Good-bye, I'm off to do some work." The case demanded two whiskies and soda. "Of course you're struck all of a heap, old fellow, said Woodroffe, kindly. But I tell you this—you've had a lucky escape. When you've found a girl with ten thousand a year you can come to me again, and I'll wish you luck. Till then keep out of mischief, and live your own life. Take a lesson from that young fool and another from the old general. Where would he have been if he'd married? Not enjoying himself here—y'bet!" The warrior in question had just discovered the cause of his uneasiness. He summoned the timid waiter, and was now swearing at him fluently. "Bring me another glass of brandy, he ended angrily, and went to sleep again.—London Mail. Piles are easily and quickly checked with Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment. Transcontinental Railway Nearly every nation of the world has some large project on hand. Japan is trying to be a world power. Russia is picking up the pieces. Uncle Sam is digging his ditch, the Kaiser is cutting kindling, and John Bull is trying to get acquainted with his colonies. In the meantime Canada, the premier colony is building a new Transcontinental Railway so far North that it strikes the collar. It trails through what writers are wont to refer to as the Great Lone Land. And so it was—until a live government quickened by the audacity of an imperial railway manager, sent its trail-blazers into the wilds of Quebec and Northern Ontario, and the Grand Trunk Pacific, which is building the west end, sent its engineers to unravel the mysteries of the mountains and find out the secrets of the silent places, to penetrate the passes, measure the chasms, and sound the great rivers of Northern British Columbia. The Canadian government hit upon a happy plan for solving the transportation problem without committing itself to government ownership—or more correctly speaking, to government operation of railways. It undertakes to build the eastern sections of the new line, Moncton to Winnipeg, 1,800 miles, to build it to a standard set by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, who build from Winnipeg west to the coast, 1,750 miles. This work by the government is done under a construction commission. When the road is completed, and the Atlantic is linked to the Pacific, the railway company will take over the government section and work it, paying to the Dominion an annual rental equal to three per cent. on the cost of construction. The first seven years, however, the company is to pay only operating expenses. Naturally, under this arrangement, the Grand Trunk Pacific, while insisting that the line be up to a certain standard of excellence, is anxious that the work be accomplished at the lowest possible cost, for upon this the rental is based. On the other hand the Dominion government guarantees the bonds up to a stated amount per mile of the western section. Therefore the government is anxious that that portion be up to its own standard. It is interesting to note that Canada with less than eight millions of population is building a single line of railway across this continent, building it to a standard undreamed of two decades ago, and building it without scandal or contention of any sort, and that it will cost, when completed, almost as much as the Panama Canal will cost the United States with all its wealth and population. By the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific main line and branches, some two hundred million dollars will be set circulating. While the expenditure of this vast amount of money within the short space of ten years is of itself sufficient to keep the wolf from the door of the Dominion, this is but one of the incidents—insignificant, when we take into account the great benefit to mankind accomplished by the opening up of millions of acres, the making of thousands of new homes, and the establishment of hundreds of new industries in the waking wilderness of the north. Those who are anxious that the supply of labor be always below the demand are constantly discouraging working men in every walk of life from coming to Canada, despite the fact that there is, has been for years past, and will be for years to come employment here for all who are able and willing to work. The scheme in its entirety provides for a main line estimated to be 3,600 miles in length with twenty branch lines aggregating 5,000—or a total of nearly 9,000 miles of track. The first 1,500 miles west from the Atlantic will be through a more or less rough and wooded country. Passing out of the Province of Quebec, via the capital of that province, quickening to new life the quaint old City of Quebec, it will cut its way through a wilderness, passing north of the Height of Land and the Highlands of Ontario, and crossing rivers that flow down the northern watershed and spill their surplus into Hudson's Bay. All along this section are timber, iron, copper, silver and gold in paying quantities, and directly north of Cobalt the line lies through a heavily wooded clay belt, fifty miles wide and 300 miles long, which bids fair to become as valuable a farming district as old Ontario. Contrary to popular belief, the climate, if it can be said to change at all, grows milder as one drops down the northern slope and the water in Hudson's Bay is several degrees warmer than that of Lake Superior hundreds of miles south. The reports of engineers, geologists and other experts seem to justify the prediction that the native wealth of this wilderness will surpass even that of some of the open fields. The country through which the prairie section of the road will pass contains land well known to be adapted for the growing of wheat, which in extent is four times the wheat growing area of the United States. This land, which is now being taken up by settlers produces rich crops the first year of cultivation and will furnish a large traffic for the railway as rapidly as it can be extended, therefore amply warranting the company in assuming the payment of the interest charges on the cost of construction, from the beginning. The mountain section, however, passing through the mineral deposits, will require a little longer time for development, and as stated, the government has therefore assumed the payment of the interest charges under its guarantee of three-quarters of the cost of construction, for the first seven years after completion. Crossing the continent as it will, so far the north of all existing lines, the Grand Trunk Pacific, when the company places its ships on both oceans, will shorten the trip around the world by two full days. And because it will have and almost straight and comparatively level line, the duration of the land journey will be greatly lessened. The Grand Trunk Pacific goes around nothing. It bores its way through granite cliffs, bridges, valleys and tunnel hills—so that the finished line will look like a tight rope across the continent. Of incalculable benefit and advantage to his new enterprise is its relation to the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, with its 4,800 miles of railway, on which are situated all the cities and the principal towns in Eastern Canada, among the former being Windsor, Hamilton, London, Toronto and Montreal. Montreal, the first city of the Dominion, situated at the head of ocean navigation on the St. Lawrence River, must, with her splendid harbor and her unlimited resources for industrial growth, always maintain her position as the metropolis of Canada. These advantages are not confined to Canada. Situated on this great railway system are also the large cities of Chicago, Detroit, Toledo, Buffalo and Portland in the United States. With this unrivaled position, which can be obtained by any transportation company only after years of labor and experience, the new transcontinental railway will at once become an exclusive partner, and from the beginning will be placed in possession of an enormous general traffic already created and originating on the Grand Trunk Pacific System, but which has hitherto been carried into the Northwest over other lines. Far-reaching as are the influence and importance of this great railway, in the development of the resources of the Dominion of Canada, they will be felt in an equally large degree by the formation of the shortest route between Europe and Asia. So much has been printed lately concerning the rich farm lands that begin in eastern Manitoba, and reach out to the forest that lies away west of Edmonton—three hundred miles wide and a thousand miles long—that this asset may be counted as an established fact. It is only natural that the new road should have an eye open for grand new scenery. The Grand Trunk Pacific trains will pass through some of the famous scenery of the Maritime Provinces—the land of Evangeline—by quaint old Quebec, race along the shores of Lake Abitibi, and other equally beautiful northern lakes; by the banks of mighty rivers, skirt the classic Qu'Appelle Valley, leap over some of the great waterways of Northern British Columbia, pass along the foot of the highest and mightiest mountain in the Dominion, if we may believe the geographers, cross the Rockies at Yellowhead Pass, and reach the Pacific amid the grand weird scenery of the Sound country, where the Japan Current washes the coast and creates the "Chinook" wind, whose warm breath blows across the range, and renders the great North-fit for the home of the white man.

The Old Hymns.

There's lots o' music in 'em, the hymns o' long ago; An' when some gray-haired brother sings the one's I used to know I sorter want to take a hand—I think o' days gone by— "On Jordan's stormy banks I stand, and cast a wistful eye." There's lots o' music in 'em—those dear, sweet hymns of old, With visions bright of lands of light and shining streets of gold; And I hear 'em ringing—singing, where memory dreaming stands, From Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strands." They seem to sing forever of holier, sweeter days. When lilies of the love of God bloomed white in all the ways; And I want to hear their music from the old-time meetin' rise, Till "I can read my title clear to mansions in the skies." We hardly needed singin' books, in them old days, we knew The words, the tunes, of every one the dear old hymn book through! We had no glaring trumpets then, no organs built for show; We only sang to praise the Lord, from whom all blessings flow." An' so I love the dear old hymns, and when my time shall come— Before the light has left me and my singing lips are dumb— If I can only hear 'em then I'll pass, without a sigh, "To Canaan's fair and happy land where my possessions." BIG BUTTER CONTEST National Buttermakers' Association Won as Usual by Users of DE LAVAL Cream Separators

On March 11th, 12th and 13th there was held at Minneapolis, Minn., the big annual butter scoring contest of the National Buttermakers' Association. 504 of the best buttermakers in the United States competed in this contest, which makes the results especially interesting and important. The first prize was won by J. C. Foster, Hector, Minn., with a score of 97.2 p.c., the second prize by E. O. Blomquist, Centre City, Minn., with a score of 97.1 p.c., and the third prize by G. P. Sauer, East Troy, Wis., with a score of 97 p.c. All three of these victorious buttermakers, of course, use De Laval cream separators. This contest, as has every similar contest held within the past sixteen years, shows a complete victory for butter made from De Laval separator cream. A clean sweep of all highest prizes was made by De Laval butter at the big National Dairy Show held in Chicago last October, as well as at sixteen of the more important state fairs of 1907. Going further back, De Laval made butter received the Grand Prize at the St. Louis World's Fair, as well as the Grand Prize at the Paris Exposition. Invariably in these big contests more than 90 p. c. of the contestants who receive a score of over 90 p. c. on their butter have been found to be De Laval users. In hundreds of such contests the world over during the past twenty years, the superiority of the De Laval Separator over all others for making fine butter has been conclusively proven. A postal card will bring our handsome new catalogue illustrating and describing the new 1908 improved De Laval machines in detail, and affording a complete education in the production of the finest quality cream for making prize winning butter.

HOW DIVERS ARE TRAINED.

Schools in England—How Science Has Helped Them to Work in Sea.
The Admiralty trains divers, and every British warship carries at least one representative of the craft and frequently more. There are training schools at Portsmouth, Devonport, and Sheerness.
One of the difficulties with which divers have to contend is probably not realized by a landsman, namely, that the greater the depth the greater is the pressure of water on the man's body and the greater the labor and exhaustion of working. The naval authorities limit their men to a depth of 120 feet. The greatest depth to which a man has descended is said by Siebe to have been 504 feet, and the pressure at that depth was extraordinary, namely, 58 1/2 pounds to the square inch. One wonders how any human being could stand it. Twelve fathoms, or about 70 feet, would be enough for most men. The ears and nose would probably begin to bleed and the pressure on the head would begin to be very serious. A practiced diver can, of course, do a practice diver without such unpleasant sensations.

His dress consists of more than a hundred yards of 1/2 inch of lanneed twill and rubber and made in one piece, with a big opening at the neck. The helmet is of copper and screws on to the shoulders so tightly that the water cannot penetrate the joint. Air is pumped down to him by a pipe made of canvas and rubber, and outlet valves, which only open outwardly, are placed at convenient places to permit the vitiated air to escape. These valves are extremely important, as by them the diver can regulate his supply of air.
In addition to this pipe the diver has a lifeline extending him to communicate with his assistants above water. This was formerly done by a series of conical tugs or jerks on the line, but the method is being superseded as a means of communication by the telephone, the wire being conveyed by the lifeline. He therefore touches the button and talks as if he were in the city.
Another great improvement is the use of the electric lamp, though in some West Indian waters a diver can see clearly at some distance. In other waters again the darkness is intense to 30 feet down. The weight of the dress is extraordinary, and is necessary to enable the diver to maintain his stability. His helmet weighs considerably over a quarter of a hundredweight, and his boots, taken altogether, about as much, while if these be not sufficient, he may lead upon his shoulders.—London Daily News.

IRELAND SEES THE KING.

His Majesty Receives Cordial Welcome on the Emerald Isle.
King Edward had an exceedingly warm and cordial welcome from his Irish subjects when he visited their country recently. The visit was not an official one, but arose from the King's desire to see the Dublin Exhibition, and to testify his interest and sympathy with the aspirations of the Irish people for industrial development.
He dwelt upon this theme in his speech at the Exhibition, and gave further encouragement to Irish effort in the letter which he caused to be sent to the Lord Lieutenant. Ireland needs all the encouragement which can be given to her in this direction, and the King's practical help will impart a great impetus to the movement which aims at an agricultural and industrial revival. It is notable that there was no overt manifestation of party feeling during the brief tour, and that no discordant note was sounded. On the contrary, the King was greeted everywhere with loyalty and affection, which indicated that, sadly torn by faction though Ireland may be, its heart is in the right place.

Donkeys in Australia.

Donkeys are at a discount in South Australia. The Government recently found that two thousand of them were running wild on crown land. It was decided to sell them by auction in one lot, the purchaser giving an undertaking to capture them, and the Government giving him a permit for three months to enter on the crown lands for the purpose. The chances of capturing the couple of thousand wild asses did not appeal to the average speculator as a business proposition, but a sporting Irishman secured the whole lot with a bid of $51. He proposes to construct long lines of fences gradually converging into trays. Donkeys are not the only nuisance in South Australia. Foxes are also becoming a plague, and the Government has just paid $5,000 in bonuses for the destruction of 7,712. Foxes, like rabbits, were originally imported to provide sport for Australians.

The Fire Drill.

The chark or fire drill consisted merely of a piece of soft, dry wood with a hole drilled in the centre, into which a red-hot hardwood ash or oak was placed and caused to revolve with rapidity, either by the hands or by a cord passed round it and pulled or slackened at each and alternately.

ABOARD A MAN-OF-WAR.

Life Largely Made Up of Scrubbings, Regulations and Inspections.
The day's programme aboard a man-of-war is calculated to make the boy who wants to run away to sea sit up and think twice. It varies somewhat according as the ship is in port or at sea and under different commands, but in any case, from 5 o'clock in the morning till 7:30 at night, it is a rather strenuous round of scrubbings and drills. The recruit realizes very soon that the expression "shipshape" means a good deal.
Saturday morning is a tremendous cleaning time, called "field day," which is followed by a half holiday in the afternoon, and on Sunday morning the captain himself inspects his ship from keel to truck. The marine band is stationed just below on the hurricane deck, and the bluejackets stand on the port side of the quarter deck and the marines on the starboard, all ready for inspection.
But life isn't all scrubbings, regulations and inspections. On the larger ships the government furnishes athletic supplies, and each man-of-war has her champion boxer and baseball and football teams. These teams are managed or supervised, at least, by officers, and many a constant lieutenant who has won his "N" at the Naval academy plays shoulder to shoulder with his bluejackets. Such familiarity would have scandalized old Commodore Porter beyond words.—St. Nicholas.

A PARASITE CREEPER.

New Zealand's Vegetable Caterpillar is a Most Peculiar Plant.

The most extraordinary object I have ever seen is the New Zealand vegetable caterpillar. The caterpillar is a parasite creeper which first destroys its forest host and then craves it to death and, usurping its skeleton, becomes a tree itself. If the caterpillar is dug up it is found to be springing not from a seed, but from the head of a perfectly formed caterpillar.

It is supposed by some that the caterpillar, when on dissection proves to be internally the exact counterpart of its living insect relative, swallows the tiny caterpillar while living and, burrowing into the ground, becomes, instead of a chrysalis, the germinating home of the seed, which by some agency turns its unfortunate foster mother into wood.
Others, however, contend the caterpillar itself is produced by the caterpillar in support of their theory that if springing from a seed the shoot would grow out of different parts of the caterpillar instead of invariably growing from its head on.
The insect vegetable is yellowish, about four inches long and is fully extended. I have seen them freshly dug up and others that have been kept years, and all had the appearance of a perfect insect carved in wood.

The Elevator's Eyes.

One of the greatest hardships suffered by men who run elevators in the tall office buildings downtown is the bad effect it has on their eyes. The cars are run at a high rate of speed, and as the men have to look straight ahead of them most of the time, their eyes soon feel the strain of the constant motion.
"I've worked in the subway," remarked one of these elevator men, "and I thought that was pretty bad, but it isn't a patch to the way my eyes feel after a day's work in these cars. If you ever run across an elevator man who seems unusually bad tempered toward the close of the business day, just look at his eyes and you will be apt to forgive him. They generally show the strain that has been put on them for eight or ten hours."

As Exemplified.

A learned professor was dining with the Diltses and the table was set with the best ware that Mrs. Dilts's china closet afforded. The guest was particularly interested in the display and admired it greatly. Picking up the plate in front of him and noting the stamp of the manufacturer on the bottom of it, he remarked:
"I presume you know that china, or the art of making it, was discovered by accident?"
Just then there was heard in the kitchen, where the maid was busily at work, a loud crash.
"Yes," answered Mrs. Dilts, with a pained smile, "and most of it is broken in the same way."

Wigs and Fans.

"There is one thing I want to warn you about," said the wigmaker to the man who was buying his first wig, "and that is the electric fan. Whenever you see an electric fan in motion give it a wide berth. If you don't it is apt to embarrass you. Electric fans and wigs are deadly enemies. Nothing outside of an Indian and a tomahawk will lift a wig from the wearer's head quicker than an electric fan in motion."

A Fairy Tale.

Dear little Maudie awoke about 2 o'clock the other morning and asked mamma to tell her a fairy tale.
"It's too late, darling," mamma replied. "Daddy will be in shortly, and he'll tell us both one."

Our Language.

"He's the coming man."
"Yes; he's one of the best fellows going."

The great republic shall live as long as the poorest citizen freely expresses his personal and political opinion, and no longer.—Baltimore American.

A CHARACTERLESS OPPOSITION

As Mr. Hasen takes the reins of government in hand we would urge that he be given a chance, and that he be not hampered in his legislation by an Opposition having no higher ambition than that of hampering him.

This government are where they are by the will of the people. Let not the minority seek to thwart them without purpose, as they attempt to carry out the will of the people. From the start let the Opposition seek character. Give credit where credit is due. Blind partisanship will not do this. Prejudice will not give credit for any just motives in the enactment of measures for the country's good.

There is too much of this in the federal house at the present time. The Laurier government has made Canada a nation, and yet the Opposition overlook this in their attempt to hit the administration. The financial policy of the government is a marvel of success, yet who of the Opposition will admit it? The government has added to the Dominion the vast treasures of the Yukon, the Opposition see only imaginary defects in the internal economy of that territory. The government has given full self government to two new provinces, carved from the prairies, and yet the Opposition see only "timberlimits." Canada has added to her population, possibly 200,000 annually for the past few years, the Opposition can see only a few Doakborders. The government has inaugurated its wonderful Transcontinental Railway policy with marked success, the Opposition cry "extravagance." The Government secures a Franco-Canadian and a Japanese-Canadian treaty, the Opposition cry—cheap Japanese labor.

If there is one outstanding feature in our political life today, it is the utter characterlessness of the Opposition. They seem to have removed entirely from the role of His Majesty's loyal Opposition and abandoned the cherished traditions of parliamentary usage, to become the flotsam and jetsam on the waves of circumstance. A strong Opposition with character means financial and moral health to the country. A blind partisan indeed must be he who could entertain hopes that a characterless Opposition can reach power before there be a transformation and reformation.

So we say in Provincial affairs at least, let not the Opposition start out with a determination to see no good and give no credit, but "honor to whom honor is due" and credit to whom credit is due.

THEY HAVE A CHOICE

A good deal is heard in some business centres about hard times and lack of employment. In many cases it is "won't work." A short time ago a thousand men in Toronto walked on the Mayor demanding employment. At the same time men from districts outside of the city were offering good and steady employment with good pay to any man willing to work. These men sought in vain for the help needed. Why? These men demanding employment, had a choice as to where they should work and they preferred the precarious living of the city to the freedom and certainty of the country.

Such men are evidently filled with Socialistic doctrine, but it is one that will soon bring society to an end. It is not the practice which has developed, Canada from a wilderness into a prosperous, growing nation. "Do what your hand finds to do" and "do it with your might" has been the motto of those who have helped Canada to be what she is today. Saiting themselves to environment and conditions they have made success for themselves and their country. Good doctrine is laid down in the best of all books—"That if any would not work, neither should he eat."—doctrine that will commend itself to those who believe in honest labor, wherever it can be found.

That there is work for all who will work is easily shown by the fact that the Salvation Army in its policy of immigration has secured places in advance for every person they have brought or are bringing out. In so doing they displaced no worker in Canada but sent their charges where needed,—most of them into country districts where the gentlemen of the city would not go. Thousands of places have been filled and as many more unfilled. It speaks well for our country and also for the character of these people that are being brought into it by the Army.

Beware of Substitutes!

Greedy dealers endeavor to plan off a substitute for Putnam's Corn Extractor. Insist on "Putnam's" only—it cures corns and warts thoroughly. The imitation may fail.

BY THE WAY

Trust your aldermen, and select aldermen whom you can trust.

The person who peddles a scandal is no better than the one who starts it.

The town hall is built and paid for, "what are you going to do about it?" You have but to repeat a scandal in order to become a detestable peddler of the same.

There never was a person with genius enough to insure success without work. If you ever reach any ambition you must literally "work your way to it."

It is too bad that turning down the school board from an economical standpoint, and voting a bonus which sprang the same evening. Rather inconsistent.

Harry Orchard is now in training for his next appearance as the state's chief witness against Steve Adams in May. Most indications of repentant villain, he continues to earn his salt.

The Boston pastor who advises young men to marry giggling girls is unjust to the young women. All normal and healthy girls have a giggling propensity, but the game of marriage cures them.

Summer is really here was the confident assertion of several misguided individuals as a flock of wild geese, making a great noise, passed over the town one warm day last week. The weather evidently chilled the enthusiasm of the geese, for none have ventured this way since.

What is needed in every town is an intelligent administration of municipal affairs by town officers, who know and are competent to judge and manage its affairs with executive ability and discretion, and who are able to tell the voters what is best for the interests of the town, and their future prospects.

Ald. Johnson and Dewar at the meeting of the Council on 13th inst., said that, in one of our neighboring towns, one man performed the duties of Marshall, tax collector, Scott Act inspector, wharfinger and commissioner of street. It's up to the new Council to study a few lessons in practical economy.

How can a man say that a woman has nothing to do? In one year she gets dinner 365 times, washes the dishes 1095 times, gets the children ready for school twice a day for 180 days, puts the baby to sleep 1,469 times, makes about 300 calls; as she wishes for something she has'd every minute, she wishes 60 things an hour or $25,600 things in a year. Who says that a woman has nothing to do.

An absolutely new dog story has been found, says the Chicago Journal. We clipped it from a London paper. Here it is (salt to taste): A gentleman was out shooting the other day when he had the misfortune to shoot his dog. For a moment he was too much overcome to see what damage he had done, and before he had recovered himself, the animal, a black retriever, had come up to him, bringing in its mouth—its own tail, which had been shot clean off.

Dalhousie has sold $62,000 worth of bonds, mostly in St. John, and will ask authority to issue $15,000 more to complete a most up-to-date water system. This will make the debt of the town $75,000. The people are hopeful of development for the lumber and other business.—E.x.

Dalhousie is on the Restigouche river, and has a population of 1200. It's only industry is lumbering. The citizens of St. George can take a valuable lesson from this thriving town, which is putting itself in a position to attract industries. The new Council should take up the question of a water system, electric lighting and a general policy of improvement, and try and build up a larger and more prosperous town. In many respects we are ahead of any town in the province in natural resources, and all we need is push and nibby on the part of our leading citizens to have these resources developed.

Weak women get prompt and lasting help by using Dr. Shoop's Night Cure. These soothing, healing, antiseptic suppositories, with full information how to proceed, are interestingly told in my book "No. 4 For Women." The book and strictly confidential medical advice is entirely free. Simply write Dr. Shoop Racine, Wis. for my book No. 4. Sold by All Dealers.

Dr. Wilson has just returned from an extended trip covering the principal cities of the eastern States, where he was looking into all the latest ideas in dentistry, and is prepared to give his patrons the advantage of the latest and best methods in all classes of work at very moderate fees.

Dr. Wilson is unable to be in St. George this month as he has announced, but will be here in May on following dates: 19, 20, 21 and 22.

The school boys opened the base ball season Saturday with a game between Grades 6 and 7, in which the latter won by a score of 23 to 16. Raymond Morrison and G. Stewart were in the points for Grade 6 and Arthur Johnson and Horace Stewart in same position for Grade 7. The game was a very strenuous one, four Umpires officiating before the finish.

Our people generally were pleased with the lecture by Mrs. Carry Nation and all believe her to be an earnest, good woman. The offering was large and the sale of books and hatchets good. She was the guest of Miss Kitching, in her beautiful home, Rainbow.—Jacksonville Paper.

Mrs. Nation was heard in this town some years ago, when she was engaged by some young men to advance the cause of temperance.

The supper and dance held in Count's hall Monday evening by the ladies of St. Mark's church was a success in every respect. The attendance was large and the ladies are to be congratulated on the success which crowned their efforts. The proceeds will be applied to the building fund of the new church.

A bad accident happened at Gillmer's Mill, Second Falls, Saturday by which Ernest McDougall is laid up with serious injuries. The victim of the accident was carrying lathes, when in some way, he stumbled, and reaching out his hand to save himself came in contact with a circular saw. He was hurried to the doctor at St. George, who on examination found the thumb completely severed, and also found it necessary to amputate two fingers. The young man's escape from further injury was remarkable. He suffered intense pain and will be laid up a long time. He is a sober, quiet and industrious fellow and has the deep sympathy of everyone in his misfortune. He had only been working in the mill two days.

CONSTITUTION of Charlotte County Weir Owners and Weir Fishermen's Union for 1908 AS AMENDED AT ANNUAL MEETING

Sec. 1. This Association shall be known as The Charlotte County Weir Owners and Weir Fishermen's Union.

Sec. 2. The objects of this Union shall be to unite the weir owners and weir fishermen into an organization for the purposes of promoting harmony and united action among the weir owners and weir fishermen of the different localities in Charlotte County in the Province of New Brunswick, to enable them to establish and keep a uniform measure and price for the sale of sardine herring at the weirs and to provide a possible means of communication with each other so as to more effectually discuss and protect their interest, and when necessary to bring their united action and influence to bear for the promotion of legislation for the better protection and regulation of the sardine fisheries, and to promote the interests of the weir owners and weir fishermen of Charlotte County generally.

Sec. 3. That Charlotte County for the purposes of this Union be divided into nine districts, as follows:--

District 1. To consist of that portion of the County lying in the parishes of Dufferin, St. David, St. Croix and St. Andrews.

Dis. 2. The parish of St. Patrick and that portion of the County lying between the boundary line of the parishes of St. Andrews and St. Patrick and that portion of the parish of St. George and that portion of the Magaguadavic river, including the town of St. George.

Dis. 3. From the Magaguadavic river easterly to the Letang river, also Letang harbor, including the islands and Eastern Chops on the west side.

Dis. 4. From the Letang river to the St. John County line.

Dis. 5. That portion of the parish of West Isles lying to the north of the road from North West Harbor to Northern Harbor with adjacent islands.

Dis. 6. The remainder of the parish of West Isles.

Dis. 7. The parish of Campbell.

Dis. 8. That portion of the parish of Grand Manan extending from the northern end to Grand Harbor including Grand Harbor and Long Island.

Dis. 9. All the remainder of the parish of Grand Manan.

Sec. 4. The officers of the Union shall consist of a President, a Vice-President and Secretary-Treasurer, to be elected at the annual meeting in each year, and an Executive Committee of the above officers and three representatives from each district, as defined by Section 3, who shall be elected by the members of the Union in the different districts previous to the annual meeting, but in no case shall more than three members from any one district be allowed to vote on any question before the Executive Committee. Each district shall also have power to fill any vacancies which may from time to time occur in their representation.

Sec. 5. The time and place of each annual meeting of the Union shall be determined by the Executive Committee for the current year, and notice of the same shall be given by publications in the newspapers published in the County at least thirty days before such annual meeting.

Sec. 6. Upon the written request of fifteen members, the Sec'y-treas. shall call a special meeting to consider a specific subject, and notice of the time, place and purpose of such meeting shall be mailed or wired to each member of the Executive Committee, whose duty it shall be to notify all members of the Union in his district.

Sec. 7. Fifty members shall constitute a quorum at any meeting of the Union, and any question submitted shall be determined by a two-thirds vote of the members present.

Sec. 8. The President, and in his absence the Vice-President shall preside at all meetings of the Union, and of the Executive Committee, but in the absence of both President and Vice-President, a meeting of the Union shall elect its presiding officer for the time being.

Sec. 9. The general concerns of the Union shall be managed by the Executive Committee.

Sec. 10. The Secretary-treasurer shall keep the records of the Union, attend to all Union correspondence, keep the accounts of the Union and report thereon to the Executive Committee when required to do so.

Sec. 11. The Executive Committee shall take cognizance of all violations of the Constitution; shall have authority to deal with matters relating to the conduct of members, and may make from time to time such regulations as they shall think necessary for the management and well-being of the Union.

Sec. 12. The fee payable on admission to the Union shall be one dollar payable in advance.

Sec. 13. The annual fee for membership in the Union shall be one dollar payable in advance.

Sec. 14. Meetings of the Union, or of the Executive Committee, may be called at any time by the President, and the President shall call a meeting of the Union or of the Executive Committee, on the written request of four members of the Executive Committee.

Sec. 15. The Secretary shall notify members of the Union of every special, regular and adjourned meeting of the Union as directed by Sec. 6.

Sec. 16. The order of business shall be:-- Calling roll of officers and executive; reading of minutes; receiving new members; reading of communications; collection of dues, report of secretary-treasurer; reports of committees, election of officers; miscellaneous business; adjournment.

Sec. 17. For qualification for membership in the Union an applicant shall be required to show that he is the bona fide owner under license from the government, or part owner on his own account, or held in trust of a sardine weir, or weirs, or holds and fishes under lease or agreement from the owner of a sardine weir and shall sign the roll of membership and pay the entrance fee.

Sec. 18. No member, for three months in arrears for annual dues shall be eligible to any office nor may his vote be accepted upon any election or question.

Sec. 19. It shall be the duty of each member to lend all the assistance in his power to aid the President or Executive Committee to enforce the Constitution, and all rules and regulations from time to time made by the Executive, to attend all meetings when possible for him to do so, to cheerfully act in any capacity when called upon by the Union, the President or the Executive Committee, to assist them in advancing the interests of the Union, to report to the Executive, or the member or members thereof for his district, any breach of the Constitution or regulations of the Executive by any member of the Union, and to furnish any information in his possession respecting the same when called upon to do so by the Union, the President or any member of the Executive Committee. He shall solemnly obligate himself to faithfully observe the Constitution of the Union and regulations of the Executive, and to cheerfully acquiesce in the will of the Union as expressed by its members. He shall pledge himself to abide by all decisions of the Union and of the Executive Committee. He shall by himself and his employees, or those under contract with him, faithfully adhere to whatever price or prices for fish may be fixed or established by the Union or Executive, in selling or disposing of the catch from his weir, and to abide by any standard of measurement fixed by the Union or the Executive for the disposal of fish; to use his best endeavors to increase the membership of the Union; to dismiss from his employ any person or persons not members of the Union who may violate any of the orders, rules or regulations of the Union or of the Executive. Any member violating any part of his obligations to this Union, or neglecting to report a known violation, shall forfeit his membership in the Union, and be debarred from the same for a period of two years.

Sec. 20. Every man fishing a Union weir on shares must be a member of the Union.

Sec. 21. Any boat or boatman taking fish from a non-Union weir, shall be debarred from taking fish from a Union weir for the balance of the season, and it shall be the duty of any member of the Union to report at once to his member of the Executive Committee, or other officer of the Union, any boat or boatman taking fish from a non-Union weir.

Sec. 22. No member of the Union, shall sell fish to a boatman unless he (the boatman) is provided with the cash or a certificate showing his authority to purchase and for whom.

Sec. 23. Any member of the Union who resigns his membership in any year, shall be debarred from re-instatement for the unexpired portion of the fishing season of that year.

Prohibition in Kansas City

The twenty-one months since the closing of the "joints" have been the best twenty-one months in the history of the city during which bank deposits have about doubled, twenty-one months of the largest activity in building known in the history of the city; twenty-one months in which it has been almost impossible to find a vacant storeroom on the business streets in which to locate a business; twenty-one months of the largest growth in population the city has ever been able to record for the same length of time; twenty-one months of the least crime; twenty-one months of the largest progress made in the building of schoolhouses and in increase of school facilities; twenty-one months of the largest additions to our milling and factory facilities; twenty-one months of the greatest satisfaction among our retail business men; above all, twenty-one months of purest city government we have ever had and this city has ever enjoyed; a twenty-one months during which hundreds of men who were formerly committed to re-submission and who were violent anti Prohibitionists have become wholly converted to the strict enforcement of the prohibitory law and who will use all their influence and a reasonable amount of their time and money to keep the city clean and free from the brewers and distillers, as it is free now.--Charles L. His Mother's Cooking.

He sat at the dinner table
With a discontented frown;
The potatoes and steak were undone
And the bread was baked too brown;
And the pudding too sweet,
And the meat was much too fat;
The soup so greasy, too, and salt,
"Twas hardly fit for the cat.
"I wish you could taste the bread and pie
I've seen my mother make;
They are something like, and 'twould do you good.
Just to look at a slice of her cake."
Said the smiling wife: "I'll improve with age--
Just now I'm but a beginner;
But your mother has come to visit us,
And to-day she cooked the dinner."

Hopewell Cape, Albert Co., April 3.—Ever since it became known that, Thos. F. Collins confessed to the murder of Mary Ann McAuley at New Ireland on the 20th of August, 1906, interest in this county particularly, has centred in learning the story of the crime as detailed by the executed lad to those who attended him in his last moments upon the awful deed which shocked the province was never doubted by the great majority of those who followed the evidence adduced at the different trials and that it was felt that the end of justice had been served.

At the time of the execution it was believed Collins made confession but those entrusted with the condemned man's confidence could not be persuaded to divulge the secret, and so far as the public had knowledge the young sailor went to his death on the scaffold protesting his innocence. But now, several months after the final act in the grim tragedy, comes to light the full confession.

Collins admitted that he killed the priest's defenceless housekeeper in a manner almost identical with the theory established by the crown. The drudger as chore boy and the loneliness of the place were too much for the boy that had knocked about the Liverpool docks and indulged himself in the youthful excesses of a city life he said. He knew that the priest had church funds hidden in his room and he planned to steal them and make his escape to a nearby seaport and get out of the country. It had been arranged that Miss McAuley was to go to Albert on Monday morning, August 20th, to do some shopping, and Collins was to accompany her. The restless sailor laid his plans accordingly. He said his intention was to secure the priest's money and what valuables he could safely carry without detection, and when they arrived at Albert to give the housekeeper the slip. While Miss McAuley was temporarily absent from the house on this fatal Monday morning Collins was proceeding to carry out his plans of robbing the house, when he was caught in the act. Then the trouble which ended in the tragedy began.

Collins was accused of theft and being caught in the act could not deny it. The situation prompted him to the most desperate act. He went to the woodshed, armed himself with the axe and returned to commit his horrible crime. He sought the housekeeper in her room and then a terrible scene followed. Collins said the terror-stricken woman fled screaming down stairs, with him in close pursuit, and attempted to escape from the house. She had reached the outer door in the woodshed, when the murderer with uplifted axe caught her and from behind felled her with a blow of the deadly weapon in the head. The blade of the axe crushed deep into the dead woman's skull, but Collins told those to whom he confessed that he made sure of the job. He deliberately slashed the throat of the dead woman with the sharp-edged axe, coolly wiped the blood off on a pair of the priest's overalls, hanging in the shed and then dragged the body to a place of concealment in the woodpit.

Having put out of the way the only living thing about the house, except the dog, Collins resumed his search for the priest's money, and although he smashed in the locked closet door in Father McAuley's room where the money was actually concealed the murderer failed to find the church funds and fifty dollars.

Although unsuccessful in his search for the money, the murderer robbed the dead woman of a few dollars left her by the priest to purchase groceries, stole her gold watch given her by her sisters living in Boston, gathered up all he could stuff into two valises and attempted to flee from the country as previously described.

One of the main points in the case at the trial was the missing axe with which the murder was committed. At the preliminary trial the crown was unable to produce the axe, although an apparently thorough search had been made for it. Two or three months after the tragedy the missing axe was found, behind the commode in the priests room by a young girl cleaning up the place. The discovery in face of the search made by detectives in this very room was seized upon by the defence to show that the weapon had been placed there by some one else some time after Collins' arrest. The defence succeeded in casting considerable doubt upon portions of the crown's evi-

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more, nothing less. It is not one weak heart in a hundred, it is not one weak nerve in a hundred, it is not one weak brain in a hundred, it is not one weak body in a hundred. It is almost always hidden in the nerves that really is all at least this obscure nerve—the Cardiac or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more energy, more controlling nerve.

ence by this rather remarkable coincidence, but Collins in his confession cleared it, namely behind the commode in the priest's room.

In addition to this confession of the murder, the executed lad gave an account of his wayward life and the records of his family. According to his story his father was executed in England, and his mother, who he said was still living, was a harlot.

Temple of Goddess of Love is 4,600 Years Old.

At the King's College, England, recently, under the auspices of the Egypt Exploration Fund, C. T. Curry gave an account of the excavations at Deir-el-Bahari, and described the progress of the year's work in connection with the discovery of an eleventh dynasty temple in the vicinity of Deir-el-Bahari. Mr. Curry said the original temple had been erected and dedicated to the Goddess of Love. The shrine was built, it was calculated, about 3700 B. C., and it differed entirely from the Greek temple which was built on the site.

It was erected, he said, for man and for man's glorification, and it was put up during a reign of tyranny in Egypt. The Egyptian had always been a man who had been dominated by a governing influence. To-day if the English influence were withdrawn the Egyptian would soon revert to his original instinctive condition. They would still find evidence of the primitive man there. As long as the Egyptian could be driven he seemed to be capable of almost anything, but when the pressure was withdrawn he fell back to the primitive ways.

Mr. Curry observed that the year's work had been one of great importance to antiquarians and scientists. Inscriptions and columns symbolic of the early life of Egypt were continually being discovered, and which went a long way to clear up the myths of Egypt's early history.

Fish Out of Water.

A fish with very singular habits exists in New Zealand, called by the Maoris the kakawai. It is generally discovered when a man is digging out rabbits in the summer-time, and it lies a depth of a foot or two feet under the soil. The character of the soil, whether sandy or loamy, does not seem to matter. The fish is from two to three inches long, silvery, shaped like a minnow, but rather more slender and tapering. It appears quite torpid when exhumed, and if dug up in summer and put into water it dies at once.

If, however, it is brought to daylight in May or early June (the end of autumn), when the rains are beginning to make the soil thoroughly wet, and put into a tub of water, a curious thing happens. After a day or two it casts its skin, which sinks to the bottom, and the fish plays about bright and lively. Of course, in winter there must be marshy spots or pools in which the fish can swim, but often all evidence of such nation disappears in summer, and the hot, dry, waterless ground seems the last place on earth in which to find a fish.

Jewish Marriage Custom.

"The Jews have a number of interesting marriage customs," says a writer in Cassell's Saturday Journal. "One usually takes place before the ceremony, and consists of a declaration on the part of the bride that, should her husband die before her, she will not call on his brother to marry her. This is required of her because by the law of Moses—which is still in force—a widow has the right to make such a claim on her late husband's brother, and because, though in a monogamous country like ours she could not insist on his espousing her in the event of his being already married, she might make his position decidedly awkward. On the one hand, the poor fellow would be bound by the ties of religion to fulfill his obligation; on the other, he would be liable to imprisonment for bigamy."

He Was Superstitious.

"This being Friday," said the farmer who had just staked the hobo to a handout, "I reckon you wouldn't start 't' work."

"Not me," replied the unlaundersed traveler. "I ain't got 't' queer no luck by startin' 't' work on Friday, nor Saturday, nor Sunday, nor Monday, nor Tuesday, nor Wednesday, nor Thursday, nor."

Are You Pale, Anemic?

Anemia means colorless blood—means languor, blanched lips, faded cheeks. You grow listless, nervous, suffer functional irregularity. This condition can't exist if there is plenty of healthy blood. Ferruzone makes good blood, rich nutritious blood—that's why it cures. In concentrated form Ferruzone contains certain rare qualities that render it unfailing in Anemia, languor, poor color and loss of weight. To build up—feel young and vigorous, nothing is better than Ferruzone. At all dealers in 50c. boxes.

The Easter Breezes

By the Rev. Arthur B. O'Neill, C.S.C. Do you know what they are saying, Round the fresh, new-budded leaflets on the trees so lately bare?

Can you tell what they are singing To the grass-blades gently swinging As they bend them to the music like to choirful nuns at prayer?

Do you see how at their voices Every tiny brook rejoices, And goes bounding with new vigor o'er its pebble-bottomed bed?

How the wavelets on the river Leap for very joy and quiver With the gladness and the glory that the Easter breezes spread!

Ah! their words scarce need the telling To the Christian heart now swelling With the jubilant emotion that is born of Easter Day:

"Christ, Our Lord, is truly risen From His stone-sealed, gloomy prison, And all dread of death that's endless has His rising swept away."

A Canadian Picture

"The other day I saw the Lady herself in the shape of a tall woman of twenty five or six, waiting for her tram on a street corner," writes Mr. Kipling in the London Morning Post. "She wore her almost flaxen-gold hair waved, and parted low on the forehead, beneath a black astrachan toque, with a red enamel maple-leaf hat-pin in one side of it. This was the one touch of color except the flicker of a buckle on the shoe. The dark, tailor-made dress had no trinkets or attachments, but fitted perfectly. She stood for perhaps a minute without any movement, both hands—right bare, left gloved—hanging naturally at her sides, the very fingers still, the weight of the superb body carried evenly on both feet, and the profile, which was that of Gudrun or Aslaga, thrown out against a dark stone column. What struck me most next to the grave, tranquil eyes, was her slow, unburied breathing in a hurry about her. She was evidently a regular fare, for when her tram stopped she smiled at the lucky conductor, and the last I saw of her was a flash of the sun on the red maple-leaf, the full face still lighted by that smile, and her hair very pale gold against the dead black fur. But the power of the mouth, the wisdom of the brow, the human comprehension of the eyes, and the outstriking vitality of the creature have my country drawn, were I a Canadian—and hung in Ottawa Parliament House for the discouragement of preparators.

Memories

(W. Foley in the New York Times.)
Somethin' about an old sweetheart—some dream about an old flame, Feller named O'Reilly wrote it—don't just remember the name;

Heard it last night at the lecture—girl that knew how to recite Had it committed to memory—knew how to bring it out right.

Some perfect stranger set near me, back pretty well to'rds the door, Feller just dropped in, I reckon—I never saw him before:

Feller 'bout fifty or sixty, party well dressed I could see, Dropped in to pass a dull evenin' and took a seat right nex' t' me.

Somethin' about an old sweetheart—I don't remember it all, But it was still when she spoke it—wasn't a sound in th' hall;

I don't go much on recitin', but when she spoke it, you see, I couldn't help listenin' to it, she seemed to talk right at me;

Somethin' about an old sweetheart; say, but she knew how to speak, Somethin' in her or O'Reilly made me all wet on my cheek;

And when I looked at the stranger, hopin' that he didn't see, His cheek was wet an' a tear rolled down on the side nex' t' me.

Somethin' about an old sweetheart—I don't remember the words, But it brought memories to me, Spring-time an' flowers an' birds;

Brought back th' spring an' th' June-time—thoughts that were misty and dim, An' I looked over an' wondered what it was bringin' to him.

I saw him take out his handkerchief, lookin' about sort o' sly, An' when he thought I wa'n't lookin' rub somethin' orten his eye;

He didn't seem like a stranger—you know how sympathy is— Somethin' about an old sweetheart—maybe some kindred o' his!

Two Monster Ocean Steamers For the Atlantic Traffic

New York, April 4.—It is a rapid age in which we live. So are the new Cunarders that one has not had time to lose wonder over these gigantic liners to cease to marvel at their immensity of length and tremendous power. It looked as though these 790-foot steamships were to be the last word in marine construction and that their 68,000 horsepower marked the limit of motive strength.

But now, while one is just marvelling at these new marvels, the cables bring announcement that the White Star Steamships Company, has contracted for the construction of a steamship that is to have the amazing length of 1,000 feet, a length of 210 feet greater than that of the Lusitania and 320 feet more than was the length of Brunel's great failure—the Great Eastern.

Such was the word the cables brought the other day. Bruce Ismay, the general manager of the White Star Line, who arrived from England a few days ago, not only confirmed the report, but added still further interest to it by the statement that the company was planning to build not one, but two of these giant vessels; to send one down the ways six months after the other had gone overboard, and to place both of these great vessels in the New York Southampton service.

These two steamships, said Mr. Ismay, are intended to be far ahead of anything yet designed. They are to be approximately 1,000 feet in length, perhaps a few feet more or perhaps a few feet less. But if not exactly 1,000 feet it will be but a trifling difference from that figure, one way or the other, that length will make them considerably greater than any vessel yet projected. I do not know what beam has been decided upon, but this will naturally be commensurate with their length.

Good Times (From the North Sydney Herald.)

As a result of a little conference between representatives of the P. W. A. and the management of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company, held in Mr. Brown's office last week, it was learned the average wage paid to machine fitters and shot fitters at the Company's collieries was $4.06 per day throughout the year 1907. When it is considered there are scores of miners making just double that amount, the outside reader can form some idea of the prosperity which prevails in this one of the most progressive little places in the Dominion. But still there are the kickers, the blue-rin fellows, whom no person pays any attention to.
