THREATS TO BURN BORDEN YIELDS TO A ROYAL PALACE

Violent Harangue of Suffragette Will Continue Smashing Campaign Till They Get Ballot

Premier Asquith's Family Said to Be Threatened With Poisoning by the Amazons—More Windows Broken and More Arrests Made.

Canadian Press. London, Mar. 4.—Addressing a packed meeting of militant suffragettes this evening, Mrs. Frederick Pethick Lawrence, one of the editors of "Votes for Women," who was in November sentenced to a month's imprisonment, declared that the women would not hesitate to burn down a royal palace if it were necessary to gain their ends.

Referring to the threats which have been made to bring a suit for conspiracy under which the suffragettes could be sentenced to seven years' imprisonment, Mrs. Lawrence declared that that would be the best day's work that was ever done for the women's movement. Continuing, she said: "I throw out a message of absolute defiance to Mr. Asquith. We mean to be militant through the season. If Friday's march does not prove strong enough we will terrorize the whole country."

Threatened to Poison Asquith's Family? New York, Mar. 4.—A London cable to the New York Sun, says: Premier Asquith is worried over threats contained in anonymous letters which are being received by his family. The letters threaten to poison Asquith's family.

When the miners went on strike, the said, Premier Asquith and other government officers immediately set to work to pass a law which would force the operators to grant a minimum wage. The miners made themselves a nuisance and the success they met in dealing with the government is a direct incentive with women to carry on their campaign.

Fifty More Arrested. London, Mar. 4.—The much denounced meeting of the suffragettes in Parliament square tonight, to protest against the refusal of Premier Asquith to receive a deputation, proved a fiasco, so far as concerned the sensational display of militant powers and cunning which was predicted by the organizers. About fifty women were arrested. But the damage done was considerable as compared with Friday's raid.

Notwithstanding the watchfulness of the police, the suffragettes succeeded in smashing the fair 'ump' more chortling when that bloomin' kid nips a thimbleful of milk than if you or me was ter get down a barrel of beer!—Tatler.

THE OTHER SIDE OF WOMAN SUFFRAGE

People Who Marry in a Hurry.

The extraordinary spectacle lately presented to the world of three prominent members of a British cabinet finding the authority of their leader by actively supporting a political cause which the prime minister thinks would, if successful, end in disaster, has, at all events, had a good result, in that it has afforded the facts of the opponents of woman suffrage, and led to a rapid development of the anti-suffrage movement.

Since Mr. Lloyd George and Sir Edward Grey destroyed their bridges and burnt their boats by speaking at the Horticultural Hall meeting and Lord Haldane followed their example by sending his resignation, the men of the National League for Opposing Woman Suffrage have developed rapidly. Visitors to its offices in Gaxton House, Westminster, find that it has quite outgrown both its old quarters and its old staff.

The men employed by the provincial government to search for the best of the brown tail moth have searched this locality and from Fredericton to the far down the river they have found seven nests.

Is the forestry question in New Brunswick too big for the politicians to tackle? The time is coming when the present leases will run out, and long before they do expire, it will be necessary to know what policy the province is going to adopt for the years to come.

How to get an army The gaiety of nations is being considerably added to by the action of the girls of a certain London suburb who have bound themselves not to walk, talk with, or notice eligible young men therein who refuse to join the Territorials.

Waiting for a policy The Conservative party once had a policy and accomplished things, but this was in the brave days of old. The Premier now has not even the courage of other men's convictions.

knowledge before the present generation. Modern science, by revealing the laws of the conservation of energy and the evolution of one form of life from another, has made astonishing impressions upon superstitions of a thousand generations standing.

The civilized nations are accustomed to spend each year more than three hundred million pounds that they may keep armaments ready to fly at each other's throats, should occasion arise.

Nations must soon stop slaughtering one another by the thousands to settle a dispute about a geographical boundary. Among the people today the word humanitarianism is coming to have even more meaning than the word patriotism.

That there is yet much of barbarism and superstition among the rich and poor, no one will question. There are millions of men in Europe and America today—despite the fact that they have been taught to read and write—who are more akin to the earlier barbarism than to the standards of their own time.

But the slow and steady awakening of the people will in time remove the great contrasts of wealth and poverty, will break up the grip of monopoly and redress the social balance between wealth and democracy.

The gaiety of nations is being considerably added to by the action of the girls of a certain London suburb who have bound themselves not to walk, talk with, or notice eligible young men therein who refuse to join the Territorials.

that the citizens' committee has somehow failed to do its duty. The publication of the text of the measure explodes that empty charge, for the bill as published follows precisely the lines laid down months ago.

The glowing picture of the goodwill and happiness that would follow the gift of local self-government to Ireland, drawn by Winston Churchill, is only excelled by the peroration of Mr. Gladstone's speech on the same subject just twenty years ago at Glasgow.

That was surely one of the most erring generalizations ever made when political economy was defined as the most dismal science. For political economy with all its mass of detail and concern for the horrid necessity of statistics in the last analysis the science of human well-being.

It was one of the most famous of his perorations. Morley says that just before the carriage came to take Gladstone to the train to convey him to Glasgow for the speech that afternoon, he was hurriedly thumbing the leaves of Horace.

The proposal and prospect of Home Rule have changed the tone and temper of the relations between the two countries. Contention has given place to confidence, and the hope of these better relations finding expression in laws has been cherished through all the intervening years.

Ottawa, March 3—A remarkable dinner was given in Ottawa Saturday night. The Liberal minority in parliament gathered about the banquet board and belated like conquerors.

The victory of Hon. George P. Graham in South Renfrew was the immediate occasion of the gathering. It was a dinner to good cheer, to Thomas Low, who resigned to open the constituency, and to the workers in the campaign, many of whom were present.

SCOTTISH HOME RULE APPROVED IN BRITISH HOUSE

Principle Adopted by a Large Majority Despite Tory Opposition

ROSS RIFLE IS ALL RIGHT

British Authorities Have No Objection to Weapon, But Think Sight is Not Suitable for War Purposes—Influenza Epidemic Hits the Royal Family—Motor Car Robberies and Murders in Europe.

London, March 1.—The court is seriously concerned regarding the influenza epidemic and somewhat severe illness of several of the royal family. Queen Alexandra is confined to her room with influenza, also Princess Victoria and Prince Louise. Neither attended the Duke of Fife's funeral and none is able to make an engagement.

European thieves are adopting the methods of American "depredators," and motor car robberies and murders are becoming everyday occurrences. The latest in the case of thieves who stole a car in Paris, were stopped by the police, shot one dead and escaped to Vienna, also the case of a sleeping jeweler on a train who was robbed of $50,000 in pearls and diamonds, and $750 cash, the thieves escaping.

The difficulty concerning the participation of Canadian team at Biele does not appear so great as was supposed. Lord Chylesmore, speaking for the National Rifle Association, declared the only objection is to the pattern of the sight, not to the Ross rifle as such. He declares the sight used is not suitable for war purposes, and would obstruct, instead of assist. There is a great desire here that the difficulties be overcome. Meanwhile, a libel action has been brought against the news agency responsible for the first statements.

Scottish home rule was discussed in the commons today on motion of Dr. Chandler, who quoted the Canadian precedent. The principle was approved, after Bonar Law spoke in opposition, by 225 to 128.

More Window Smashing. London, March 4.—The suffragettes started operations again early this morning. A small band of them, armed with hammers and stones, went through the Knights' Bridge and Brompton road district in the west end of London, breaking the plate glass windows of the big dry goods stores situated in the neighborhood.

As usual, owing to the disturbance being unexpected, the police on duty in the district were unable to cope with the suffragettes, who were distributed over a wide area. The store-keepers and their staffs of employees were compelled to do sentry duty in front of their premises, but in many cases were unable to keep the women from doing damage.

A detachment of mounted police was the first reinforcement to arrive on the scene. One of them was immediately dragged from his horse by excited women. In one store alone damage to the extent of $1,250 was done. Thirty women were arrested.

The windows of the Marquis of Crewe's house and the lord chancellor's residence were smashed with hammers during the suffragettes' raid. Ellen Pitfield, a suffragette who attempted to set fire to the general post office of London last evening was today committed for trial at the Old Bailey session.

HULL FARMER HELD FOR THE DEATH OF HIS CHILD

Wife and Daughter Tell of Father's Inhuman Treatment of Little Girl.

Ottawa, March 4.—Albert Cossette, the Marchand farmer, charged with the murder of his seven-year-old daughter, Madeline, was committed to stand his trial at the term of the criminal justice which commences at Hull on March 6.

Mrs. Cossette, wife of the accused, was the first witness called. She stated that in November last her husband had, in a fit of temper, thrown Madeline, then seven years of age, against the wall striking her head so hard that she remained unconscious for an hour afterwards. That after this, the child had always complained of pains in the head and was sick, and eventually died the following spring. She did not know what had caused the child's death, but the doctor had said it was from some disease in her head. She stated that her daughter, Albertine, was present in the room when the father assaulted Madeline.

Dr. C. Cartier, of Ammanico, who attended the injured child, who was the next witness called, stated he first attended the child on May 4, 1908, and that he found her suffering from muscular rheumatism and meningitis, which at the time he attributed to the unsanitary surroundings in which the child had been living.

In answer to a query by Attorney Brooks, he stated he had been unaware that the child had sustained any injuries, and that it would be impossible at this date to prove whether her death could have been caused through an injury to her head or not.

Albertine, the eleven year old daughter of the accused, in her evidence corroborated that given by her mother, stating she had been present when the incident occurred. Asked as to whether her father had cautioned her against telling anyone about the affair, she stated that he had threatened to kill her mother if she ever opened her mouth.

move the chain, the police uprooted the tree with the suffragette still attached, and carried them both off to the police station. The aspect of the streets, not only in the vicinity of parliament but a considerable distance away, during the demonstration was a scene of confusion.

More Window Smashing. London, March 4.—The suffragettes started operations again early this morning. A small band of them, armed with hammers and stones, went through the Knights' Bridge and Brompton road district in the west end of London, breaking the plate glass windows of the big dry goods stores situated in the neighborhood.

As usual, owing to the disturbance being unexpected, the police on duty in the district were unable to cope with the suffragettes, who were distributed over a wide area. The store-keepers and their staffs of employees were compelled to do sentry duty in front of their premises, but in many cases were unable to keep the women from doing damage.

ALBERT COUNTY MARSH OWNERS GIVE UP FIGHT

Hopewell Hill, Feb. 29.—The proprietors of the Hill and Great Marsh division, who sought to quash the assessment of $18,000 made by workmen, and whose application was dismissed by the supreme court, have decided to pay up, and the collectors have already taken in upwards of $800.

One of the most unfortunate features of the case is that the Boyd marsh, which has to pay half of the whole indebtedness, a small district of ninety acres, is practically worthless, being without protection, while the owners are taxed heavily.

The marriage took place last week at the late John Duncan, and Miss Lily McGill, of Nova Scotia. Rev. Mr. Stewart, of St. Martin's, formerly of the Baptist church here, performed the ceremony.
