YOUNG MAN RAISED P. O. MONEY ORDER.

Bought Order in Favor of Another. Then Raised Five to Fifty Dollars.

NOW IN JAIL.

CHATHAM, Nov. 17.—A good looking man bought a $13 overcoat at Weldon's Thursday evening and presented in payment a postoffice order for $50, dated at Loggieville the same day, and explained that he could not get it cashed in the postoffice at that hour of the evening. He had signed it "Received payment, Fred Watson." Mr. Weldon was somewhat shy, and the man wrote him an explanation to the postmaster, asking the latter to pay the order to Mr. Weldon. When the order was presented to the office on Friday, the postmaster had advice of a $5 order from Loggieville, payable to Everett Graham, Chatham, but no advice of the order in question. Mr. Weldon telephoned to Loggieville and learned that the $5 order had been sold to a young Kent county man named Howard Warman, who had left Friday morning for his home at Molus River. He also ascertained by telephone that Warman had arrived at Molus River and went there on Monday with Provincial Constable A. J. Fraser, arrested the man, and brought him here. The young fellow is the adopted son of a very respectable resident of Molus River, and efforts are being made to save him from prosecution. The raising of the order from five to fifty dollars was cleverly done.

DEAD MINERS STILL IN MINE.

Every Effort to Reach the Entrance of Mine Has Been So Far Unsuccessful.
ALL ARE DEAD.

CHERRY, N. B. Nov. 17.—After four days the St. Paul coal mine in which are still entombed the corpses of 300 or more miners as a result of last Saturday's fire refused today to yield up its dead. After failure to devise any satisfactory method of recovering the bodies left the situation the same tonight as it was last night. The interior of the mine is burning almost as fiercely as ever. The partial opening of the seal over the mouth of the hoisting shaft today allowed puffs of smoke to escape, showing the fury of the internal combustion. While two companies of state troops were present to prevent possible disorder they remained idle except for guard duty about the mine. At a conference of federal, state and local mining experts it was agreed, after five hours deliberation, that immediately descent could not be made into the gas and heat-filled mine.

A MAN IS AS OLD AS HE FEELS

is an old saying, but nevertheless true. When the arteries begin to harden by the deposit of mineral matter from the blood, the resiliency of the blood vessels is destroyed and the circulation becomes poor and sluggish.

Keep the blood rich and pure and the circulation good by supplying it with iron and other necessary elements in the form of VINOL. If aged people in this vicinity only realized how VINOL would restore their strength and vitality we would be unable to supply the demand. "A. McE. McDonald.

AN UNLUCKY GEM

One More Misfortune to Blue Hope Diamond

A telegram to the London Express has been received from Paris, stating that Senor Habid, a wealthy Spaniard who owned the famous Blue Hope diamond was among the passengers who were drowned in the wreck of the French mail steamer La Seyne, according to despatches from Singapore.

This another has been added to the long list of misfortunes associated with the ownership of the famous gem. It is believed that Senor Habid had the diamond with him.

ALICE SHOCKS COURT OF KOREA

Mrs Longworth Cuts Up High Jinks at Reception.

SMOKES CIGARS.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—Fraulein Emma Kroebel, a German woman who was the chief mistress of ceremonies at the court of the Emperor of Korea in 1905, appears as the author of a book, published here today which contains sections dealing with the visit of the then Miss Alice Roosevelt to Korea. In her account of the official reception to Miss Roosevelt she says:—

"Learning that the Rooseveltian party had been invited to the court of the Mikado the Korean Emperor extended the hospitality of his modest establishment to the distinguished travelers. Acceptance of His Majesty's invitation came with such astonishing promptness that the court was in a dilemma how to get a suitable welcome ready in time.

The Emperor finally decided to bestow upon the daughter of the President of the United States the highest honor at his command, namely, a reception at the graveside of his departed consort, the Empress. An imposing suite of dignitaries and flunkies were accordingly dispatched to the grave in a picturesque and secluded spot a mile outside Seoul with tents for a state banquet.

Shortly after the suite arrived a tornado of dust burst upon us, out of which a cavalcade of courtiers emerged. At their head rode a dashing young horse woman clad in a scarlet riding habit, beneath the lower extremities of which peeped a tight fitting riding breeches stuck to glittering boots. In her hands she brandished a riding whip; in her mouth was a cigar.

It was Miss Alice Roosevelt. We were flabbergasted. We had expected a different sort of apparition. Everybody was scrapping in the most approved Korean court fashion, but the rough rider's daughter seemed to think it a joke. As the mistress of ceremonies slammed out a few words of greeting, the guest of honor mumbled a word of thanks but nothing more. She was mainly interested in the colossal figures of rods and the mammoth stone images of animals which hold watch over the graves of the departed members of the Korean dynasty.

"Sipping a stone elephant which seemed to particularly strike her, Alice nudged off her horse and in a flash was astride the elephant, shouting to Mr. Longworth to snapshot her. Our suite was paralyzed out of horror and astonishment. Such a sacrilegious scene at so holy a spot was without parallel in Korean history. It seemed almost an American woman to produce it.

It was a critical moment, the suspense was relieved only by the passing of tea and refreshments. Alice remained oblivious to what was going around her. Not a word of thanks for her reception was forthcoming. She chatted casually with the wife of the American minister, Mrs. Morgan, and partook bravely of the champagne and other delicacies.

"Suddenly she gave orders for the saddling of her horse and galloped away with her male escorts like a 'Buffalo Bill'."

PETITION NOW AGAINST AUTOS

Restigouche Farmers Will Isolate To Give Them Some Protection.

COPY OF THE PETITION.

DALHOUSIE, Nov. 18.—The farmers in this section have been very much annoyed this year by the running of autos on our high ways.

They have decided to make known their views to the people and a petition is now in circulation for signatures, to be presented to the House of Assembly at the coming session.

The following is a copy of the petition which will be signed in Restigouche county.

To the Honorable Lemuel J. Tweedie, L. L. D. Lieutenant Governor of New Brunswick and to the Honorable Members of the Legislative Assembly of the said Province.

The petition of the undersigned residents and ratepayers of the County of Restigouche.

Humbly Sheweth—

That the reckless running of automobiles upon country roads is a serious menace to the lives, limbs and property of the people, who have to drive horses thereon, and upon some highways the farmer and his family are seriously inconvenienced.

We therefore pray that legislation be passed at the coming session of the legislature, setting apart at least two of the working days of the week during which no automobiles be allowed to run upon the highways of the province between the hours of 6 a. m. and 10 p. m.

And in duty bound will ever pray.

Invitations have been issued for a Basket Social by the teachers and trustees of Eel River to be held in their school house on Wednesday evening, 24th inst.

Mr. H. Lounsbury of Chatham, spent Sunday in town with friends.

The young ladies of Dalhousie who formed a sewing circle last year to enjoy the long winter evenings, met for the first time this season at the home of Mr. Jas. Harquail, Sr. where the Misses Harquail entertained the guests in royal style.

Mr. W. D. Duncan of Campbellton, spent Monday in town.

Mr. Willie Mott of Campbellton, who left home on Saturday evening last to go goose hunting, arrived in Dalhousie on Sunday morning, after a rather thrilling experience. His two companions having separated from him with a canoe, and the engine of his launch having got disabled, with no oars nor anchor, he drifted down till he reached the shiretown in safety.

Mrs. Ed. Watts spent Monday in Campbellton.

Mr. Ed. Harquail, father of Jas. Harquail, barrister, who has been ill for several years, has been causing his friends some uneasiness this fall. According to latest reports he is somewhat better.

—Messrs. Robt. McNeil, Wm. Donahue and Jos. Elsiger, three pilots who left here early in the week to meet a steamer, were caught on Tuesday in the big gale outside of Charlottetown. They lost an anchor and nearly all their passengers were among Miss S. Meagher of Halifax is in safety.

visiting her sister, Mrs. Peter Sheehan.

Miss Sarah Wallace of Halifax, who is visiting Mrs. Peter Sheehan for a few days, is going to Boston to spend the winter.

—David Ritchie gave a box of cock tea on Monday in honor of Miss Wallace of Halifax.

EVIDENCES OF GRAGT ON INTERCOLONIAL

Jgly Rumors Are in Circulation Concerning Use of Stolen Passes.

OTHER IRREGULARITIES.

The Moncton Times Wednesday had the following item:

"Rumors have been current for some days in regard to the discovery of the use of stolen and apparently also forged passes on the Intercolonial. The business is said to have been carried on for a considerable length of time and some reports place the extent of such operations at thousands of dollars. It is said books of passes were being stamped in the railway offices and the names of some of the heads of departments have been—forged—calculated, they would have been useless. It is understood the matter is now being investigated. A railway employee whose name has been connected with the business has left town, but it is not yet known for what reason. There have also been rumors of irregularities in regard to the issue of passes."

The Transcript published later than the Times had no reference to the matter. The St. John Standard says: "A story comes from Moncton to the effect that a grant has been carried on for some time by two clerks employed in the audit office there. It is said that one clerk always had extra passes on hand and these he would sell at reduced rates to people who wished to make trips and who he felt certain would say nothing about it. In this way he made quite a sum, which was divided with his confederate. Murder will out, and the thing got abroad on Monday. It is said that some of those who had benefited held a secret meeting, and as a result the clerks were each presented with a check for $1,000, and advised to leave town immediately. This they have done, but whether they will be brought back again or whether there will be an investigation, remains for the railway to say."

When a cold becomes settled in the system, it will take several days treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a normal and healthy condition. Sold by all druggists.

A VERY LARGE ESTATE

FREDERICTON, Nov. 18.—Announcement was made this morning that the late H. H. Gunter, president of the William Richards Co. who met such a tragic death at Campbellton last week, died intestate. His estate was estimated at all the way from $200,000 to $300,000 and this morning his solicitor, R. W. McLellan, stated that the estate would probably be entered as about $200,000. This afternoon members of the late Mr. Gunter's family and their solicitor are having a conference and it is likely that William Gunter, who was associated in business with his father, will apply for letters of administration in the estate.

The annual meeting of the Richards Company will be held next month and it is not likely that the vacant position of the president will be filled until that time. Wm. Gunter will likely take his father's place on the board of directors.

THE I. C. R.

The recent attack on the Intercolonial made by Lord Northcliffe, and the wide publicity given his statements by Upper Canadian papers, has caused many patrons of the I. C. R. to rally to its defence in a spirited manner that is causing the management a good deal of satisfaction. Letters from prominent business men who have travelled extensively, are being received daily, these being expressions of appreciation of the train service generally, and particularly of that given between Montreal, St. John and Halifax by Canada's famous train, the Maritime express. These letters are written in many instances by men who have travelled on nearly every railroad on this continent, and who, therefore, have a keen appreciation of the comforts that tend to render pleasant a long journey by rail. Their opinions are likely to be more widely appreciated than those of Lord Northcliffe, whose unreasonable criticism has aroused so much comment. It is quite evident the Intercolonial has still many firm friends left to it, and among them those who patronize it most and know it best.—Telegraph.

It is what we might call one of the "queer things" of civilized life that while one country is overcrowded with people who find that work is hard as they may, it is hardly year by year to make ends meet, and that some times, however willing to work they may be, they cannot always find employment, another country is crying aloud for men. Incredible as it seems, the picture is true.

rison will reside at the Leger Hotel during the winter months. Sewing circles are being held every Wednesday evening at the Convent, where a large number of useful and fancy articles are being made, which will doubtless be disposed of late in the season. Orders are also received by these busy workers, for any thing in the way of needlework and orders given to them are sure to be promptly attended to, and delivered without delay.

The Colonial Stock Company, which has been making a name for itself on the North Shore, and which is just completing a week's engagement at Campbellton will open at the Opera House, Bathurst Monday evening. The opening bill will be "As a Man Soweth," which is one of the best plays ever produced on the North Shore, and one which any person no matter how much prejudiced against theatres, can see and enjoy. Every one should see it. This company will put on a new bill each night of the entire week. Seats on sale at the usual places.

BALMORAL

BALMORAL, Nov. 18—Another memorable death which has been entered into our records, is the death of Mrs. Richard Liberty, which took place last Sunday, at the age of about forty years, after a long lingering illness of sixteen years. She leaves a devoted husband, four daughters and five sons, also a large number of relatives and friends. Interment took place last Tuesday evening, and many loving hearts who regret her departure, conducted her to her grave.

Quite a serious accident has happened at St. Maure last Sunday, when Paul LeBelle, aged 14 years, son of Mr. Frank LeBelle while driving home the cows, slipped, fell and broke his left arm above the wrist. ## COLONIAL STOCK CO. HAD GOOD WEEK Company Has Made a Name For Itself in Campbellton.

PATRONS DELIGHTED

The Colonial Stock Company's engagement here is drawing to a close and many patrons who attended the performances at the Opera House have only kind words of it.

The bills for the entire week have been strong, but that of Wednesday night, "As a Man Soweth," was an exceptionally fine one, the large audience, despite the very disagreeable weather, being unanimous in saying that it was the best ever seen here.

The Colonials can rest assured of good houses should they decide to return to Campbellton. Tonight the Colonial Stock Company will present the greatest of all detective plays, "The Third Degree, or a Woman's Victory." Much time and expense has been given to this production. The scenery and costumes are designed especially for the play. Those who enjoy a thrilling drama of extraordinary merit must not miss this opportunity of seeing the Colonial Stock Company at their very best.

Saturday matinee there will be a gala matinee for ladies and children. The Little Princess will be produced with as much care as any of the evening performances. A solid gold ring and a pair of solid gold cuff links will be presented to the girl and boy making the largest number of words from the letters in Colonial.

For their farewell performance the Colonials will be seen in "A Wife's Peril," a play abounding in clean comedy and exciting incidents. The costumes worn by the ladies are unusually beautiful. A Wife's Peril will prove one of the strongest of the weeks offerings.

It is with much pleasure that Manager Dimock announces the return of the Colonials early in the spring, when an entirely new repertoire will be produced including Mrs. Fiske's greatest success, Leah Kleschna and a magnificent revival of the Two Orphans.

I. C. R. REST HOUSE IN MONTCTON PREY TO FIRE

Five Hours Fight for Firemen—Thirty Clerks Forced into Temporary Quarters

MONTCTON, Nov. 17.—Burning with such rapidity that if it had been in the centre of the town, great destruction would have been caused, fire early this morning completely destroyed the building known as the I. C. R. rest house. The fire started a little after 3 o'clock and for five hours the firemen labored before the conflagration was put out. As a result of the fire two offices have been put out of commission and thirty clerks have taken up temporary quarters in the old mechanical offices.

The offices out of commission are the car accountants' and superintendent's of car service. Six typewriters were destroyed, as also were seven car records and correspondence and the building has been completely demolished. A shunting engine was passing the rest house and the crew saw a blaze in the express room of the building. They gave the alarm. Fifteen minutes later the city firemen arrived and the flames were then shooting skyward.

THE ARBITRAMENT OF ARMS

It is goodly, then, that I think you better go first; there is a big man coming now. And with this last thrust before he could detain her she glided away into one of the alcoves that opened near at hand. He looked up the street following her parting gesture. There was a figure moving there. It stopped under a light for a second, then it too, passed out of sight into an alley.

The officers from the war vessel had crowded seats in the little theatre for the dramatic performance the next evening. They were rowed ashore at dusk, resplendent in their glittering, close fitting uniforms and climbed the endless stone stairs towards the upper town in chatting groups. Bainbridge was with O'Connor. He had found occasion to restore his old relations with the other man.

O'Connor had welcomed the move, though nothing had passed between them as to the cause of their difference, according to the other's advantage as to a tacit admission that he had been right in his interference the day before.

They occupied adjoining seats in the theatre and at the close of the first act passed out into the miniature lobby for a breath of air. As they came through the doors a group of men at the left parted suddenly and a tall, thin man moved toward them. They did not notice him until, in passing, he jostled roughly against Bainbridge. The middleman looked up quickly and recognized Cochrane. He was about to protest, but the Englishman did not look back. Bainbridge was indignant.

"Did you see him?" he asked O'Connor.

"Yes; but it was probably an accident."

They walked slowly back and forth on the short promenade, talking over political affairs at home. They did not know that Cochrane was practising with a pistol on the shore east of the harbor.

"Is Joe handy with firearms?" asked O'Connor.

"Never shot at a mark in his life, sir."

"That explains a few things," said Bainbridge, pacing the deck. "This second of Cochrane's put in a subtle suggestion that I fix the distance at twelve paces. Probably Cochrane supposed that Joe would challenge him on the spot when he jostled him. That would have left him free to set his own distance, which as I gather from the way second, a twelve paces. How did you learn this?"

"Two of us men on shore saw him when they walked out in the morning and again in the afternoon." O'Connor met Cochrane's second, Captain Overly, by appointment, at one of the boats following a term.

They exchanged formal greetings and began at once a discussion of the preliminaries.

"My principal will fight with pistols," said O'Connor. "Overly bowed and rubbed his hands."

"That is satisfactory, Lieutenant. At the usual distance of twelve paces, I take it, you would call it the usual distance, sir, but he will fight at four paces." The other started up in amazement and alarm.

"Four paces. Four. Why, my dear sir, that is nothing short of murder. Does your principal know nothing of these affairs? The meeting is to settle a point of honor. I take it, the purpose is not butchery."

"My principal has been advised in this matter by me," returned O'Connor. "As to the purpose of the meeting, my principal, as the challenged party, has decided that his own interests demand an opportunity for full satisfaction."

"But my dear Lieutenant I recognize, of course, that your principal is well within his rights. Still, I must insist that four paces be little or nothing to maintain his skill and everything to mere chance."

"Such is my understanding of it. I am glad to see that your judgment confirms my own. Now, Captain, as to the word of command—"

And O'Connor led the irritated Overly on to the remaining clauses of the agreement. It was decided that the duel should take place early the following morning at a certain point on the shore about five miles from Valetta. Bainbridge, with O'Connor, O'Connor, a surgeon, left the vessel just at dawn. They were rowed outside the harbor and along the coast to a small bay where they were able to make a landing. They found themselves the first on the ground, and during the interval of waiting O'Connor talked with his middleman principal.

"I did the best I could for you, Joe, in the distance. If you were further apart he would pick you off and you'd stand not the slightest chance. At four paces you are as good as he is. All I want is some kind of a fair chance at him, sir," said Bainbridge. He was cool and his young, smooth face was set resolutely. O'Connor looked at him over approvingly.

"You'd do it might have named out names but he has inches over you in reach, besides a tougher frame. With you backed near a clump of pines, you could hit him. Here they come."

O'Connor appeared overland with Overly and a military surgeon. The group halted near a clump of pines, a short distance off and the two seconds advanced to the middle of the ground. After salutations they proceeded to fix the distance with great care. When the marks were fixed the weapons, furnished by O'Connor, were laid out. The barrels were rather shorter than was usual, a feature ap-

Why Stanfield's Use Nova Scotia Wool

THE chief reason is because the Stanfields have never found any other wool that makes Underwear so peculiarly suited to Canadians.

The salty, ocean breezes and healthful climate, coupled with the rich grazing, give Nova Scotia wool a quality which is not found anywhere else.

Nova Scotia wool is perfectly blended. It is soft and smooth, yet staunch and strong. It can be spun like silk and wears almost like steel. Garments, knitted of this fine wool, give the desired warmth and are not heavy or bulky.

It is no exaggeration to say that the Stanfields get the pick of the Nova Scotia wool. The founder of these mills did much to develop the sheep-raising industry throughout the Maritime Provinces. The farmers saved their best wool for him, and continue to send their high grade wool to the Stanfield mills.

Then, too, this wool reaches the mills in the best possible condition. There are no long railroad hauls—no lengthy journeys, in the holds of tramp steamers. The wool is shipped direct to Truro as soon as sheared. Experts sort, clean and make it ready at once for its trip, of transformation into Stanfield's Unshrinkable Underwear.

Stanfield's Underwear is made by the only process which takes the shrink out of the wool before the garments are knitted.

The value of this discovery—made by the founder of the Stanfield Mills—is shown by the growth of this business, which is now capitalized at $750,000.00 and employs over 350 operatives.

Stanfield's Unshrinkable Underwear is made in 3 standard weights—Light (Red Label), Medium (Blue Label) and Heavy (Black Label) and 17 other weights and qualities to suit the needs and requirements of every man and woman.

The best dealers everywhere handle Stanfield's Underwear. Catalogue showing styles, and sample of fabric, sent free for your address.

appropriate to these quarters.

As the principals moved toward the marks the members of both parties watched their actions and appearance closely. Cochrane's face, was its usual dead white, his eyes were steady and his steps deliberate. A dangerous opponent was O'Connor's quick comment to O'Connor. Bainbridge appeared confident and at ease. His eyes flashed for a moment as they met those of his antagonist, and his friends knew that he would give a good account of himself that day.

"Now, gentlemen," said O'Connor, as both were in position the word was given. "One, two, three fire stop!" You will be at liberty to discharge your weapons at any time during the utterance of the five syllables. No shot may be fired after the word stop!" It was understood that a blow having passed the meeting should continue until one is unable to continue, or both are disabled.

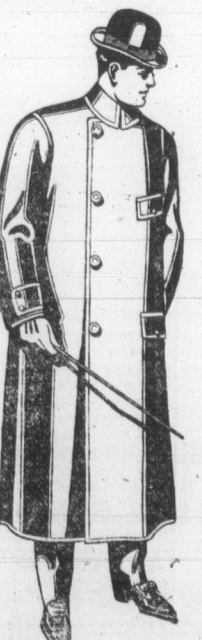

The weapons were handed to the duellists and the seconds stood aside. O'Connor, who had won the right to fire, was to give the signal.

"Are you ready?" he asked. The gun was just rising and the keen rays cut sharply along the sparse vegetation of the stretch on which they stood, throwing long shadows from the trees. There was no tree to break the simple setting of sea and sky and sweeping hill. A light breeze made its gentle touch felt. O'Connor's hand took one swift, comprehensive glance about him. There was no fear in it, only the tribute from youth to life that had been sweet.

"Ready," echoed Cochrane. "Now load. His lips were drawn back a little into the faintest shadow of a smile."

"One!" At the first word both men had brought their pistols to a level. The second Cochrane fired and the heavy report set the gulls to cawing far down the shore. Bainbridge did not move.

"Three!" The weapon of Bainbridge spoke. All eyes turned upon

HER DEATH WAS HOURLY EXPECTED

Enterprise, Ont. Oct. 1st, 1908.
For seven years I suffered with what physicians called a "Water Tumor." I could neither sit, stand, nor lie down. Hypodermics of morphia had to be given me to ease the pain.

MRS. JAMES FENWICK

My cure seemed hopeless, and my friends hourly expected my death. I was so bad that I wanted to die, and it was during one of these very bad spells that a family friend brought a box of "Fruit-a-Lives" to the house. After much persuasion I commenced to take them, but I was so bad that it was only when I had taken nearly two boxes that I commenced to experience relief. I kept up the treatment, however, and after taking five boxes I was cured, and when I appeared on the street my friends said, "The dead has come to life," and this seemed literally true, because I certainly was at death's door.

(Signed) MRS. JAMES FENWICK.
"Fruit-a-Lives" are sold by all dealers at 6c a box—6 for $2.50, or trial box, 25c, or sent post-paid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-Lives Limited, Ottawa.

"Bronchitis."

THE SYMPTOMS ARE

Tightness across the Chest, Sharp Pains and a Difficulty in Breathing, a Soreness of the Throat, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color, coming from the bronchial tubes when coughing, especially the first thing in the morning.

Bronchitis is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather and when neglected will become chronic.

Chronic Bronchitis is one of the most general causes of Consumption. One of the first symptoms of Bronchitis by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

*****
Miss Martha Bourget, Little Falls, N. Y., writes: "Last spring I was very poorly and had a bad cough, sick headache, could not sleep, and was tired all the time. I consulted two doctors, and both told me I had bronchitis, and advised me to give up teaching. I tried almost everything but none of the medicines gave me any relief. One of my friends advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I had scarcely taken the first bottle when I began to get better and when I had taken the fourth bottle I felt as well as ever, my cough had left me and I could sleep well." Dr. Wood's is the original Pine Syrup. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and the price 25 cents. There are many imitations of Dr. Wood's, so be sure you receive the genuine when you ask for it.

INVALUABLE TO EVERY FARMER

Its Wonderful Power in Curing Sick Cattle and Colicky Horses Makes "Nerviline" Worth Its Weight in Gold.

The stockman or farmer that doesn't know of the thousand and one uses of "Nerviline" around the stable has a great deal to learn. Why I wouldn't think of leaving my stable door at night without knowing I had a supply of "Nerviline" on hand. I always get a dozen bottles at a time from my druggist. To cure colic, indigestion, and bad stomach in a horse or cow there is no remedy on earth in the same class as "Nerviline." Last summer I had a $250 horse that got the colic, and I would have lost him if I hadn't been able to give him "Nerviline." I poured a full bottle of "Nerviline" in a pint of water down his throat and saved his life. I know of neighbors who have saved many heads of valuable stock, stricken with colic, just by using "Nerviline." It is equally good as a rub-on liniment, and I know from my experience that for man or beast, internally or externally, "Nerviline" is worth a dollar a drop—James E. McCullough, Stock Breeder, etc.

You will not regret using "Nerviline" but see you get it and not something else. 25c per bottle, or five for $1.00, at all dealers, or The Caturrhoeum Company, Kingston, Ont.

THE ARBITRAMENT OF ARMS

Weaving of brilliant colors, laughing faces and bright eyes brought through the late afternoon sun flooded Valetta in orange and gold. The massive, brooding battlements of the Maltese citadel took warmth to their somber surface. Curtains were drawn aside in balcony windows. Vendors began to cry their wares. The hum of stirring street life rose in pitch and volume as a tempering breeze circled through the purple shadows, bringing the city to its real awakening for the day.

The two midshipmen from the American war vessel that had been lying for two weeks past in the harbor below drifted leisurely through the throng. Malta had not ceased to be a source of eyes' wonder and delight to them, and as they walked they were alert to note every quaint detail of color, form and sound.

"Why do you bear to the right, Bainbridge?" asked O'Connor the elder of the two suddenly, as the other edged into the press. "It is more comfortable to stay with the procession on this side."

"You forget," said Bainbridge, with a laugh. "I must have the daily boutonniere from Nests. My little flower girl—mine, I said, O'Connor. O'Connor frowned but offered no further objection. They tacked through the crowd and reached the outer fringe of the traffic to the right, close to the row of booths, where graceful, dark-skinned Maltese maidens offered fruits, sweets and shawls for sale.

They drew up at one of these booths piled high with rich and fragrant blossoms of the island, a wild riot of single white roses. At the side of the stand stood Nests, who greeted them gayly, waving a slim hand at O'Connor and nodding with more familiarity to Bainbridge. Hers was the purest type of Maltese beauty, with soft, gleaming Oriental eyes, delicate features and trim figure. With light caressing touch she began to fasten their flowers, smiling the young man in her broken phrases of English.

"No, Captain," she said, shaking her head decidedly at O'Connor who had sought to do his own selecting without reference to her. "I will give you shall be for you. Perhaps now a prickly pear, eh?" It was Nests's invariable plan, and not a bad one, to address all naval men as captain. She triumphed with this move, for O'Connor gave her his clumsy effort with a short laugh.

"Here is for you, Captain Bainbridge," she went on, and held out a single white rosebud twined with a sprig of green.

"But what am I to do with it, Nests?" asked the boy in mock despair. "Carry it in my hand? Must for I have no skill in wearing it?" It was the daily comedy. He would not hear her protests and so she must leave her booth and fasten the flower in his lapel, while he made no disguise of his admiration of her, and her olive cheeks took just the faintest flush. She wore three pannies, almost velvet black, for O'Connor.

"Because you look like me," she said, trying to imitate his disapproving tone. But he made no offer that she fasten his flowers into his cap. He handed them to him with a little toss. As O'Connor moved away, after paying her, Bainbridge leaned to the stand and whispered a phrase. Then he hurried after his companion. O'Connor had turned in time to see the incident.

They walked in silence through the city's bustle, thoughtful for some minutes. O'Connor was occupied with trying to make his the only serious face in all that bewildering, shifting kaleidoscope. Bainbridge, with a smile upon his lips, paid no attention to the other's abstraction, finding employment in amused observation of costumes, houses and the figures of the streets. O'Connor's words came without warning.

"You've been meeting this girl," he said, and his mouth was set for opposition. The younger man turned to him, quick color sweeping to his handsome face.

"What's that to you?" he asked sharply. "Nothing to me as far as she is concerned. But everything as far as you are."

"Explain, please."

"Perhaps you haven't heard that Cochrane, the English secretary, has filed a prior claim," said O'Connor. "That's all nonsense," returned Bainbridge, impatiently.

O'Connor took him up readily, as one who has planned his speech. "Now look here Joe, I'm not going to quarrel with you, but you ought to know the facts. It's common report that Cochrane is mixed up with this woman in some way. For Heaven's sake don't go and start a flirtation with her. What do you know about these people? They're three quarters Arab and they can't understand you, nor you them. Cochrane lives here if he wants to make a fool of himself over a flower girl he knows how to manage it. Let him. I know you mean no harm, but he won't. You'll have trouble if you go on."

"What business is it of Cochrane's or yours either?" returned the boy, hotly. "And she's not Arab, she's half Italian."

O'Connor could have smiled at the inconsequential defense had not the affair not seemed too weighty. Meanwhile he was not exactly sure of the ground, he stood upon. Joseph Bainbridge was to him as a brother and he meant to give advice whether or not it was asked or desired.

"Answer me plainly, Joe. You don't think you're in love with the girl, do you?"

"No, of course not."

"Well then, don't you see what a light you're putting yourself in? There is only one construction these people will put upon your actions, and now Cochrane will put upon it. Didn't go any further with it, Joe. I don't quite understand myself what Cochrane's interest is, but probably it's just much to his credit. It's no place for you, Joe."

"I'm quite capable of attending to my own affairs," said Bainbridge stiffly.

"Oh, very well. If you feel that way there's nothing more to say. I think I'll return to the landing."

They parted with salutes and Bainbridge went on alone. The boy was a little uncomfortable. He had met the girl, had strolled among the shops and along the harbor with her. She attracted him and he saw no reason why he could not meet and admire a young woman here on the same footing that he would at a home port. Nests had the prettiest face and the neatest ankle in Malta, and if he chose to play sentiment before her, according to the ancient privilege of the mariner, why, what harm and whose affair? He decided that O'Connor was merely presuming on his two years' advantage in age. As for Cochrane a thin-faced, arrogant person, whom he had met once or twice, he refused to believe that the other man had a right to say who should and who should not be the flower girl's admirer. But now O'Connor looked so much! That puzzled him a little, for while not assuming of his attention to Nests, he had certainly not advertised it.

An hour after dark he waited for her on one of the narrow, precipitous streets down near the harbor. She was a little late, but presently she glided toward him. He could not quite see her face in the faint light from a lamp over a doorway, but there was an air of uneasiness in her manner and her voice as she answered his greeting. She glanced back over her shoulder as she came.

"One would think you were afraid of something," he said, ruffled a little at her preoccupation. She spoke softly and he missed the usual tone of banter.

"And if I am, Captain?"

"Oh, if you are it does not become you."

"We cannot meet again here," she began hurriedly. "Even now somebody sees us. Come, there is a house I know."

"But why should you be afraid?" he said, surprised and uneasy.

"I tell you, some one after me into this street here. I feel him."

He did not relish the situation; it seemed artificial, overstrained, to him. He sought to pass it off. "You are dreaming, Nests. Who would follow?"

"Come. Let us climb to the Rue des Droits de l'Homme, where the lights are and every one can see us if they want to. Let them look. There's no mystery about this to suit me!"

She shrank back in terror when he caught her arm. "No, no, Captain. You do not know. It would be bad, very bad for me."

"What is this all about, Nests?" he cried, losing his patience. "It is strange enough that O'Connor should have seen fit to warn him—him, the way people would take his flirtation. Now the girl herself is acting as if they were engaged in some dark intrigue, eluding watchful and jealous guardians, like the figures in some ghouly romance. The boy's healthy mind resented the introduction of such a note into his relations with her."

She was peering at his vexed face intently. She did not answer for some minutes. "It is sure you know, Captain, what you have done, coming here many times," she said as one stating an evident fact.

"What I have done? No I don't. What harm was there in it?" He had struck the centre of the matter there. She moved away from him and drew her hand closer.

"Ah, then it is true that you are a child," she said, her voice rising scornfully. "Yes, I think so. You not understand. It is sure you know, I tell you there are men, not children, who follow Nests. You cannot play with her like a boy."

Her fierce, tone words shocked him, revealing an attitude wholly foreign and strange. It was true that he could not understand all. But he saw dimly that his position was a false one, that he had taken steps which, to this girl's Eastern mind meant some things he had not dreamed of. It was his error. He knew now what O'Connor had meant.

Ordinarily the boy would have been angered by a taunt as to his youth. But from her it merely served to measure the distance between her point of view and his own. Here was an atmosphere of intrigue and mystery of passions alien to him. He had merely treated her as he would some laughing, friendly, sensible fair one at home. His journey was to drop the affair instantly. But one thing detained him. If it should chance to be true, as she had intimated, that she ran some danger in meeting him in this harmless way he must stand by her. It was absurd, of course, but he must clear that point.

"You are right Nests," he said, slowly. "I was a bit of a fool."

"Thought only to pass a pleasant hour with you nothing more. Still, if there had been a misunderstanding, I would have been a misundarid; eling."

where that may make trouble I will offer all necessary explanations."

Her laugh was still sharper this time, but it did not sting him as she

TEED-SMITH

A very interesting event took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sargeant on Nov. 17, when their niece, Miss Carrie Smith, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Teed. The bride, who presented a very charming appearance, was attended by Miss Mary Cameron, while Mr. John Collin acted as best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev.
P. J. Stackhouse in the presence of immediate friends. After the ceremony a beautiful repast was served. Mr. and Mrs. Teed will reside in Campbellton.

SNOW STORM

Snow commenced to fall at an early hour Wednesday morning and by noon the ground was well covered. By night three or four inches had fallen, which has made better sliding than wheeling, but a few inches more is needed to make good hauling.

CHILDREN DEAD

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Ellsworth of Dawsonville, have the sympathy of all in the death of their little daughter, which took place Thursday morning.

tor of the Flatlands Matapédia field. Mr. Stackhouse will preach Sunday at Moore's Settlement in the morning, Matapédia in the afternoon and Flatlands in the evening. Mr. Stackhouse is a brother of Rev. P. J. Stackhouse, pastor of the Baptist Church here.

ANOTHER ESCAPE

Another of Campbellton's bad boys confined in the Provincial Reformatory at St. John, has made his escape. The latest is twelve year old John Copeland, who was sent down from here
some months ago. He got away early in the week, and has not been heard of since, though the police are on the lookout for him. He is serving a two year sentence.

YOUNG BANK MANAGER

The youngest bank manager in the service of the Royal Bank of Canada and probably of any bank in the Dominion, is Harry
A. Watson, formerly of the Fredericton branch of the bank and son of Rev. Robert Watson of St. Mary's. Mr. Watson is not yet 22 years of age, and was recently appointed manager of the Royal Bank of Canada in Salmó, B. C. Mr. Watson is well known on the Miramichi, having lived for years at Douglastown, N. B.

HALIFAX, Nov. 18.—Chas.
Gallagher and Herbert Hassen, the two young men who laid on Cashier Foot, of the Dartmouth rope works, and attempted to rob him, were sentenced this morning by Judge Wallace to eight years in Dorchester Penitentiary. They pleaded guilty.

The Best Cough Medicine we know of is Allen's Lung Balsam.

OBITUARY

The bright four and a half year old son of Mr. and Mrs.
John T. Reid died at their home on Gerrard street west last evening, after an illness of some weeks. The little fellow took sick while at Escuminac, visiting Mrs. Reid's home, but he recovered somewhat and was then brought to his home here, where everything that medical skill and kind attendance was done to ease his sufferings. He passed peacefully away last evening.
Mr. and Mrs. Reid have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement. The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon at 2.30, interment being in the Rural Cemetery.

ARE BUILDING A NEW MILL.

Nepisquit Lumber Company to Have Up-to-date Plant at Bathurst.

ST. JOHN, Nov. 17.—Fred P. Morse, of Springfield, Mass., who is connected with the Nepisquit Lumber Co. is at the Royal. He reached the city yesterday afternoon from Bathurst, where he has been for the past month in the interest of the company. He says that the old mill belonging to Adams & Burns has been entirely torn down and a new mill erected on the site. The new mill is of the type known among lumbermen as the two sided variety. It is 64 feet by 192 feet. The machinery will be all new and contracts have just been signed for it. The entire equipment including band saws, circular saws, etc. will be supplied by the Clarke Bros. Co. of Belmont, N. Y. The burner for the disposal of the mill refuse, which will measure 25 feet by 100 feet, will be supplied by the Waterman Engine Works, Brantford, Ont. while the contract for six 130 horse power boilers went to E. Leonard & Sons, London, Ont. through George H. Evans of this city.

Mr. Morse says the company will feel its way for a time to ascertain the possibilities of manufacturing its lumber in Canada. This winter they will get out about 8,000,000 feet of logs. In their shingle mill, which will not be started till next spring, they have on hand about 3,000,000 feet of cedar logs and in addition they expect to cut this winter 1,500,000 feet.

In reply to a question, Mr. Morse said that the condition of the American lumber trade at present is very quiet and probably it will remain so for the balance of the year. The Bathurst mill will be equipped for the production of laths but at present there is little inquiry for these anywhere. Mr. Morse will leave for Springfield this afternoon.

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. See any drug dealer.

PRESENTATION
On Friday evening the members of Rev. Mr. Millar's congregation assembled at the manse and presented him with a beautiful writing desk and Mrs. Millar with a 'kitchen shower.' About fifty people were present and an enjoyable time was spent. During the evening luncheon was served and the following address read by Miss Ethel Rogers:—
To Mr. J. R. Millar:—
We, the members of your congregation are assembled here this evening for a two fold purpose, that of welcoming your return to Bass River with the companion of your choice, and to present to you this mark of our appreciation and esteem. We desire to congratulate you on the pleasing circumstances under which you return to the people of your charge and express our sincere wishes for your continued happiness.

We rejoice to extend to you and Mrs. Millar a thrice hearty welcome to our society and our homes. We sincerely hope and trust that you will be blessed with long life; that within the magic circle of home's soft amenities you will ever find enjoyment and comfort and peace; and that, even to your old age, He will carry and will deliver you.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Canifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was ulcers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles. For it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. LETITIA BLAIR, Canifton, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ill, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to suffering women.

DALHOUSIE
DALHOUSIE, Nov. 18.—The funeral of the late Emily Johnson of River took place today from her home to the Presbyterian Cemetery at Dalhousie. He was 43 years old and leaves two children to mourn his loss. Mrs. Johnson, nee Miss Hamilton, died a few years ago. The late Mr. Johnson was a Norwegian by birth.

By his last will and testament which was read before the funeral service, he leaves his property to his two children. Estate worth about $2000, goes mostly to his daughter, Peter J. Golden, Executor.
