Lord Cecil Is Now in Charge of Blockade as Minister of War Trade

THE Government, through the Marquis of Lansdowne and later through Premier Asquith, announced in the House of Lords that it had decided to turn over all matters connected with the blockade of Germany to one man, who would rank as a full Cabinet Minister. The new post goes to Lord Robert Cecil, who, since the formation of the Coalition Government has been Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs. He will retain this post, joining the Cabinet as Blockade Minister.

The new Minister, whose title will be Minister of War Trade, will be charged with the administration of the order-in-Council regulating the blockade, as well as responsibility for general policy and practice of the Government with respect to trade passing into or from neutral countries.

Lord Robert Cecil is a lawyer of wide experience and a young man, as members of the British Cabinet go. In the Foreign Office he has been intimately concerned with the blockade operations, particularly in their relations to the complicated matters touching belligerent and neutral rights. His elevation to the Cabinet will give the Unionists another representative in the coalition councils.

The whole question of the blockade was threshed out at considerable length in the House of Lords. Baron Sydenham and Baron Beresford making the principal appeals for a stricter blockade, while the Marquis of Lansdowne and Baron Buckmaster defended the Government.

"The conduct of the war," said Lord Lansdowne, "is already in the hands of a small committee, and that committee, so far as the conduct of the war is concerned, has never since it was created been hampered by the interference of the civilian members of the Cabinet."

"It is by no means true that there has been anything approaching a universal increase in the quantity of goods passing to neutral countries in the past year. I maintain that the filtration of goods to the enemy through neutral countries is showing a marked tendency to diminish owing to the measures the Government has taken. Experienced officials say that practically no commodities of military importance are now being imported into neutral countries above the amount legitimately required for home consumption. Our blockade has accomplished some very satisfactory results, and I think the Cabinet scarcely deserves to be stigmatized, as it was the other day, as feeble and nervous. Our nervous policy has killed German export trade and seriously crippled import trade."

"I sometimes wish the people of this country could have experienced, say for a fortnight, of the conditions prevailing now in Austria and Germany. I am satisfied that we would then hear no more of this talk about the Government sitting with folded hands doing nothing."

Baron Buckmaster summed up the Government's position as follows: "Although the principles of international law are flexible and capable of growth and change, we cannot in this great struggle be too sensitive in considering what those principles really are. We should certainly have lost it, when the war ended, it could be charged that, under stress of necessity and because we thought we could thus get an advantage, we had used the power we possessed to infringe the legitimate rights of neutral peoples."

"We would rather have it recognized everywhere that the rights of neutrals were never so safe as when under the power of the British fleet."

Using Pasteboard Money.

Pasteboard sous and pieces representing denominations up to 5 francs are being used in some of the occupied French cities, owing to the scarcity of small change. The pastboards are of different colors and shapes—square, round, octagonal, oval, and diamond shaped.

At Roubaix, Tourcoing, Roncy, and Croix the money is guaranteed by the municipality and good only for use in transactions with merchants of the town where the money is issued. At Lille the pastboard sous were issued by the Bank of Lille.

The city of Valenciennes issues a new denomination of small change in the form of a four soifs piece (20 centimes), guaranteed by the communes of the arrondissement and redeemable four months after the conclusion of peace.

General Booth's Gift to Russia

AT the Guild Hall in London a few days ago General Booth, in the presence of the Lord Mayor and a large company, dedicated five motor ambulances presented by the Salvationists of Canada for the use of the Russian forces. The ambulances were drawn up in the Guild Hall yard alongside, with his Lordship in the semi-State coach and Salvation Army Chaplains serving with the Canadians numerously represented. The Salvation Army flag was in close proximity to the civic regalia. The Lord Mayor said it was the first occasion when a religious body working in a distant part of the Empire had sent Russia help in such a way. His Lordship mentioned he was a supporter of the Salvationist movement when it was not so fashionable as it was now. He also recalled personal friendship with the late General Booth, who received the freedom of the city.

of London on the same spot on which the son was now dedicating the Canadian supporters' gift to an eastern ally.

General Booth described the gift as from one of the Empire's fairest daughters to her mother's friend. "It has been a feature of our work to assist men and women in poor circumstances here to go out to Canada and better their condition. That work has been very useful. We were building better perhaps than we thought when we sent thousands of those men whom we sent from poor circumstances here volunteering for the defence of the Empire. These ambulances have been contributed in no small proportion by the very men and women whom in the past ten years we assisted into better circumstances in Canada." General Booth finished by handing the British Red Cross Treasurer £2,000 from the British Salvationists for five ambulances on the lines of Canada's gift.

Sir George Perley voiced the pleasure of representing the Dominion Government on such occasions. There were a good many Russians, he said, in Canada, who made some of the country's best settlers. Many were serving now in the Canadian army.

The Russian Ambassador, owing to illness, was unable at the last moment to attend personally, but his Counsellor expressed the gratefulness of the Russian nation for the Canadian Salvationists' gift.

A Record for Escapes.

William Gow, chief engineer of the Ropner freighter Dromonby of Hartlepool, will go down to posterity as the record breaking war victim. This is what has happened to him thus far.

October, 1914, chief engineer of the Ropner freighter Colby of Hartlepool; sunk by the German cruiser Kronprinz Wilhelm; taken as a prisoner of war to Newport News; released.

December, 1914, at his home in Hartlepool; his home destroyed by a fire from the German cruisers doing raid.

June, 1915, chief engineer of the Ropner freighter Gadsby of Hartlepool; sunk by German submarine U-39 in the week in which twenty-nine other freighters were torpedoed in the North Sea; picked up by a trawler after being in the water six hours.

January, 1916, chief engineer of the Ropner freighter Dromonby of Hartlepool; sunk by German raider in the Bay of Biscay; brought in the prize ship Appam to Newport News.

And now Mr. Gow is returning to Hartlepool to get a berth on some Ropner freighter still afloat.

Swiss Take War Invalids.

Two hundred consumptive prisoners of war arrived in Bern the other day. Half of them are French prisoners from Germany and the remainder German prisoners from France. They are the first soldiers to be brought to Switzerland under the agreement recently made for the treatment of consumptives at health resorts of that country. The French prisoners are bound for Leysand and the Germans for Davos.

The French and German Governments have given orders to the men to make no attempt to escape, and if any of them should do so they would be treated as deserters and subject to court martial. They will not be watched by the Swiss authorities. Each nation will pay the cost of maintaining its own soldiers.

It is expected that about 20,000 Frenchmen and as many Germans will be permitted to avail themselves of treatment in Switzerland. Three hundred rheumatic prisoners of war from Germany and France will be cared for at Baden, near Zurich.

BLASTING TREE STUMPS.

Government Expert Gives Some Practical Advice to Amateurs.

To amateurs wishing to do their own blasting, here is some good advice from a government expert: While there is an element of danger in their use, any one who is ordinarily careful can safely handle the low grade powders used in stump blasting.

All powders should be used when fresh. Never use or try to use powder that has been on hand for a considerable time or that shows by the wrappers that it has been subjected to varying degrees of heat.

Powder that has been frozen should not be thawed unless for immediate use. Large amounts of explosives should not be purchased unless adequate means of storing them are provided.

Stumps can be blasted most economically when the soil is filled with moisture, as the water fills the air spaces and the stumps leave the earth more easily. Stumps in sandy soil should never be blasted when the soil is dry.

All stumps, except those having a taproot, are blasted by placing the explosive in the earth beneath the stump. For small sized stumps that require not more than one stick of powder the hole may be made with a crowbar. For larger stumps use an earth auger two or three inches in diameter, or if the stumps are very large dig out a hole with a bar and shovel. Usually the force of the charge is directed more toward the side from which it is loaded. So it is best to place the charge slightly beyond the centre of the stump.

No man should attempt to use powder without first thoroughly learning the best methods of handling the explosive he intends using. This can be done by observing others at work and by reading directions furnished by the manufacturer.

Floor for Hayrack.

A floor for a hayrack that may be handy at this time of year and on through the winter months of hauling and feeding is the design of a western man. The bottom boards in this rack are laid crosswise instead of the length of the frame. Take 4 by 4's for the bottom sills, use a 2 by 4 at each end, and the frame may be completed. It does not make much difference what kind of brace you use.

Safe Silage Rations.

Silage is an excellent feed when given with judgment, but in some cases too much is fed and the stock bloats, says the Farm and Fireside. The table below gives the average quantity of silage per day that can be safely fed to different animals. It has the approval of P. G. Holden, the corn expert:

	Pounds.
Dairy cows	35 to 40
Beef cattle	25 to 40
Young stock cattle	10 to 20
Horses and mules	10 to 15
Sheep	5 to 8
Stock hogs	4 to 6

Chickens. All they will eat. The amount of other feed given should naturally be taken into account. Usually it is safer to feed less silage than here listed rather than more.

A Fine Seed Potato.

Mr. M. H. Drain, Norwood, received by mail last spring one potato from his brother at Rosthern, Sask. Mr. Drain planted the potato, and this fall from the one tuber harvested 48 pounds of fine potatoes, not one of which has rotted, although other potatoes in the district were badly affected.

Captain J. T. Walsh

It takes a man with a big brain to preside over a big shipping department. To be successful in such a position he must be an amphibious individual—one equally at home on land or water. Captain J. T. Walsh, the genial Assistant Manager of the Canadian Pacific Atlantic Steamship Lines, is a keen business man, brisk and energetic, ever watchful to see that the lines proceed on their various courses safe and comfortable for the public and profitable for the Canadian Pacific Company. Captain Walsh has little to learn about the sea or about anything on land that concerns the sea, for ever since he was 16 years of age his career has been floating along on the waves. Like Lord Shaugheassy, President of the Canadian Pacific Company, Captain Walsh is the son of Irish parents; he first saw the light in Chichester, England, in 1857. After receiving his education at the schools of the Christian Brothers he began his career as a seaman, and from the outset success followed his track. He had travelled on merchant ships to most parts of the world, and he had obtained a wide knowledge of his business. In 1890 he was commissioned as a Lieutenant in the Royal Naval Reserve. While at Lagos, West Africa, during the Ashanti War in 1900 the dexterity with which he managed the embarkation services gained him honourable mention in the despatches of Colonel Sir J. Wilcox. In 1902 Captain Walsh retired from the Naval Reserve with the rank of Commander. He then took up the responsible position of Superintendent of the Elder Dempster Line in England. But in a short time afterwards, when that concern was absorbed by the Canadian Pacific Company, Captain Walsh became connected with the greatest transportation corporation in the world. Ever since embarking on the steamship business, in 1883, the Canadian Pacific marine service has had a triumphant career. From the outset there were competent men at the helm of the ships and at the head of the various governing departments, but none has filled the post of superintendent with more foresight and general ability than Captain Walsh. During his regime the Saint Lawrence route to the British Isles, thought always popular, has advanced considerably in popularity. At present many of the C. P. R. big vessels are in the service of the Empire. Captain Walsh pays a high tribute to the worth of the Mercantile Marine in the struggle that is being conducted on land and sea. Addressing the Montreal Sailors' Club a short time ago he said: "At one time it was considered that on account of the officers and men being distributed all over the globe the number procurable at short notice would be so small that their value as a naval reserve would not be very great. On this account a short service scheme was created from which men passed into the Royal Fleet service, and through this an immediate reserve was always available. It was found that directly the Royal Naval Reserve was called upon they docked to the rendezvous in such numbers that it was difficult to place them all." On the same occasion he said: "As a sailor I am absolutely satisfied, come what may, that the Mercantile Marine may be relied upon to do its part to the bitter end. When the history of the war comes to be written the splendid services rendered by the Mercantile Marine are likely to find favourable mention, and the C. P. R. vessels are certain to have their meed of praise for the C. P. R. liners 'Metagama' and 'Missanabee' have carried more Canadian troops to the war zone than any other vessels. They also have brought back to Canada many wounded warriors."

The superintendent of these and other Atlantic C. P. R. vessels takes a wide interest in many departments of life in Montreal; he is President of the 'Celtic Sailors' Club of Montreal; member of the Royal Colonial Institute; Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, and Trustee and Vice-President of the Last Post Imperial Navy and Military Contingency Fund. Under the heading of "War and Meritorious Service" the major part of Captain Walsh's official Government services are embodied in Colonel McLean's Royal Naval List.

SALT AS A LUXURY.

In Most European Lands It Is Dear and Used Sparingly.

Along many parts of the Brittany coast where the land is low you may see the sea salt industry being carried on on a large scale. In the United States salt is cheaply produced at inland points by evaporation from salt water pumped from deep wells, but in most of the countries of Europe the bulk of the salt which is consumed is made by the evaporation of sea water.

Sea salt is not so pure as salt which is produced from wells, as it contains a percentage of salts of magnesium, potassium and lime, with traces of iodine and other elements in addition to the sodium chloride which is the desired substance. But it answers the purpose about as well.

The sea water is let into great shallow basins or ponds at high tide, the flow being controlled by gates. The sun, which shines very powerfully on the south Breton coast, gradually evaporates the water, and the brine becomes constantly stronger. More water is let in from time to time until a certain point of saturation is reached, and then the water is allowed to dry up, and the salt is left behind as a thin crust or coating on the bottom of the ponds.

The salt is then gathered by means of rakes and scoops. In this form, of course, it is very impure, for in taking it up a large amount of dirt is taken up with it. It is piled up, and in due course the action of the rain and weather serves to filter out most of the dirt, and the salt is left in fairly pure condition.

As you go along through the salt districts you will see hundreds of these white piles of salt, containing perhaps a ton or so each. The crude salt is finally taken to mills, where it is put through refining processes and made ready for market.

Salt brings high prices in most European countries. It is such a luxury that the people have to be sparing of it. You might wonder why this is when Europe has such a huge coast line and all that is necessary is to let the sea water evaporate under the influence of Old Sol to produce all the salt any one could want.

But here is where the law steps in. The government assumes that the sea is its property, and it will not allow ordinary citizens to make salt from it or in fact make any other private use of it without a license.

Poor fishermen in Turkey were put in prison because they boiled sea water and made their own salt. This illicit making of salt was against the law, just as the making of spirituous liquor without a proper license from the government is against the law in this country.

DANGER IN GASOLINE.

This Substance Is Seven Times More Powerful Than Dynamite.

Do you know that gasoline gas is seven times more powerful than dynamite? asks the National Cash Register News in an article on the use of gasoline with safety in the home. Gasoline is a thin, water white liquid which evaporates rapidly and throws off vast quantities of vapor very inflammable and explosive when mixed with air.

Substances like cotton, linen, silk, especially when unwashed and undyed, become more or less electrified when rubbed or moved quickly in a bath of gasoline, the gasoline becoming negatively charged. Gasoline being a bad conductor, the generated electricity accumulates and reaches such tension that sparks are possible, igniting the gasoline and causing fire and explosion. Weather conditions affect the results decidedly, the dry air of winter being more dangerous than moist summer air. Gasoline explosions in garages are often brought about by static electricity, a fact definitely proved.

In case of fire tight cans are liable to explode, throwing the burning gasoline all over the premises, thereby augmenting the fire. For this reason gasoline should be stored outside the house, preferably in safety type cans (cans with fine wire gauze in neck and spout).

Gasoline used for cleaning should be used outdoors, at least fifty feet from any fire, light or burning substance, never in an enclosed room. The heavy vapors travel long distances and are highly explosive. Never clean gloves or clothing in gasoline should be accomplished by means of a dry stick.

Gasoline stoves should never be filled with a light or fire within fifty feet of the stove.

Tried to Fly.

John Milton in "Britain to the Conquest" says that in youth King Harold, last of the Saxons, strangely aspiring, had made and fitted wings to his hands and feet. With these, on the top of a tower, spread out to gather the air, he flew more than a furlong; but, the wind being too high, he came fluttering to the ground, maiming all his limbs, yet so conceited was he of his art that the cause of his fall was attributed to the want of a tail, as birds have, which he forgot to make.

Recommendation Not Necessary.

"So you're going to leave us, Mary?" "Yes, mum. I've got to." "And do you want me to give you a letter of recommendation?" "It ain't necessary, mum. I'm going to work for a willing to take chances. I'm leavin' to get married."—Detroit Free Press.

STING OF THE AGY.

A Madagascar Plant That Can Drive Men Mad With Pain.

Among the many peculiar and disconcerting plants and creatures that abound in Madagascar, probably none is more surprising and disconcerting than the agy tree, so called, which is not a tree, but a climbing plant. The following incident, quoted by Mr. James Sibree, F. R. G. S., in "A Naturalist in Madagascar," illustrates the painful result of contact with the agy. The story is told by a Mr. Montgomery:

Walking under some trees and pushing aside the reeds and grass, I was startled by a sudden tingling and prickling sensation over the backs of my hands and fingers. I stopped in sudden surprise, for the pain was severe, and I had touched nothing except the grass. But in another minute the pain increased, the tingling, burning sensation seemed to be extending rapidly up my wrists, and I could see nothing to cause it. As I lowered my head to look scalding pain shot into my ears and neck and grew worse every instant. Dazed and bewildered, I stood a few seconds in helplessness, for I could neither see nor guess at the cause of the terrible distress. Then I got back to my company with agony written plain enough on every line of my face.

The men started up when they saw me, crying, "You have been stung by the agy!" Some of them led me to a seat, others rushed for water from the river, and two or three brought sand heaped up in their hands and water to take out the stinging hairs, which they knew caused the mischief. As they rubbed me I felt the pain abate, and after they had chafed me for about a quarter of an hour I was comparatively free from pain. While the men were rubbing me I was able to discern to some extent the cause of my distress. Countless hairs, like tiny arrows, almost transparent, pointed at either end and from a third to a fourth of an inch long had dropped on me in an invisible shower from the agy tree as I stood under it. Before I came away that afternoon, very cautiously I ventured to examine the tree at a little distance and found that the tiny hairs grew outside a thickish pod or shell not quite so large as a small banana. The pods were fully ripe (unluckily for me) just at that time, and the light wind was scattering their coverings.

Battle of the Herrings.

The battle of the herrings was the comical name given to a fight between an English force and a French detachment not far from Orleans in 1429. The English were conveying a large quantity of supplies, mainly herrings, for it was Lent, to the army that was besieging Orleans. The English had 1,600 men, the French 6,000. The former repulsed the assailants and saved the herrings, so the battle was named in honor of the supplies.—London Telegraph

LORD SHAUGHNESSY

LORD SHAUGHNESSY, of Montreal, Canada, and of Ashford, County Limerick, Ireland, as he was then, to give him his baptismal name, Thomas

George (better known to his associates by the brief designation of "T. G."), came to Canada twenty-eight years ago to play the railroad game. He had chosen that career in the neighboring republic, and was then getting a foothold on the ladder of industrial fame. Van Horne had but shortly come over to Canada to give the benefit of his railroad skill to the Canadian Pacific, then in its infancy, and required men of experience to aid him in carrying out the policy to which he had set his hand. It was in 1882, and Mr. Shaughnessy was then in the full flush of youthful vigor, keen and alert, and anxious to make a reputation for himself in the new country.

How well the choice of Van Horne was justified; how truly "T. G." lived up to the trust reposed in him; and how fortunate Canada was in securing the services of a man who has contributed so materially to the upbuilding of the Dominion, constitute a story which has few if any parallels in the history of this young nation. Like most of the men who have carved out a career for themselves, Lord Shaughnessy is a hard worker. He has no time for idlers. His salary as head of a wealthy and appreciative corporation, combined with successful investments, have assured his future comforts in this world, but he does not work for the mere sake of earning money.

He works with a purpose in view, and that purpose is the prosperity of Canada. He does not believe in riches. "I believe the day is coming," he is credited with saying, "when it will be considered vulgar for a man to have more than a million dollars. I do not believe in the aristocracy of dollars. If there must be an aristocracy, let it be of brain, refinement and work. Let it be above all else an aristocracy of well directed, useful, conscientious work."

He was born in Miller, Ulster, as the name implies, of Irish ancestry. At the age of sixteen, on graduating from a business college, he joined the staff of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, and got along so well in his work that in 1879 he was appointed general storekeeper. Van Horne wanted a good man in that department of the C. P. R., and in 1882 asked Mr. Shaughnessy to take the job of purchasing agent, which he did.

Promotion was rapid. There were no hoary traditions to keep the ardent young man down. Precedents could not be referred to; there were none. The last man in the world to tolerate red tape was Mr. Van Horne, and Mr. Shaughnessy soon became the latter's right hand in the new system. Assistant to the manager, assistant manager, manager, vice-president, general manager, president and head of the system which became vast in the course of a single generation—this is the official record.

A great work of extension and consolidation had been done by Sir William Van Horne, but when Shaughnessy came into complete control, the company was just beginning, as one might say, to reap the fruit of its persistent campaign in Europe. The West made an impression, at last. It got upon the slow mind of Europe that there was a new world, in which all the dispossessed might find independence. The Canadian Pacific Railway had said that in all European language, for years, and Europe did not heed. But there is a Biblical authority for the statement that if you cast your bread on the waters it will come back to you after many days. The West began to fill up, the cultivated acreage was being extended. As Sir William Van Horne often said: "We have built the hopper, but we want the spout." And at the psychological moment Shaughnessy bought a big Atlantic fleet (fifteen vessels in all)—bought it and set it going in connection with the land service—an auxiliary or complimentary arm to feed the railways with traffic from overseas.

Then followed the policy of anticipating the settler by putting down the steel in advance of his coming; the policy of the ready-made farm; the policy of double-tracking, of easier gradients in the mountains, of reclamation in the West, by which some 3,000,000 acres are to be redeemed to usefulness and dividends, the policy of building hotels of high standard to attract the rich tourists of Europe and the United States.

In the business life of Canada there is no one so ably equipped for estimating the trend of events as Lord Shaughnessy. His optimism about the great development which must come in the future is the optimism of certainty, for it is men possessed of his dynamic energy that create prosperity. In large part, the history of the progress made in the past three decades by this Dominion of ours is synonymous with the growth of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the development of which has been the barometer of our material well being. During that time the president has been directly responsible for the expenditure of at least $600,000,000 in extensions and improvements, which have been the means of opening up the country, encouraging immigration, increasing trade facilities, expanding and inaugurating industries and promoting agriculture to an extent that was undreamed of not long ago. In 1912, when business was on the crest of a tidal wave of prosperity the Canadian Pacific offered its stockholders a fresh issue of 600,000 shares at $175 a share, and immediately the stock soared to above $220. Thereupon some short-sighted people cavilled and said the stock ought to have been sold so that Canadian farmers might get the benefit, but in what way the critics did not explain. There were others who asserted that Canadian Pacific should have got its $105,000,000 of new money by selling four per cent bonds at par or at a premium. Other critics asserted that Canadian Pacific had even then $100,000,000 in its treasury and they thought that Canadian Pacific should hold off its financing until its treasury was exhausted.

But that has never been Sir Thomas Shaughnessy's way of doing business. He was planning gigantic extensions and improvements, and he calculated that he had to have fully $200,000,000 to place his company supreme among the great enterprises of the world. He saw ominous clouds floating on the financial horizon, his agents in the Western Canadian prairies and the lumbering district of British Columbia reported to him that Greek and Serbian and Bulgarian settlers were throwing up their employments in Canada to go back to Europe for military service. He found that the dogs of war were about to be let loose, and that that war might involve all the great nations of Europe.

Quick as lightning he tapped the world's money markets for $105,000,000. He took advantage of the charter which allows a new stock issue to retire bonds. The bonds were not due for two years, but he anticipated that and got the money and paid off the bonds, bringing the C. P. R. an additional $70,000,000.

In 1901 he was created a Knight Bachelor. But a greater honor was in store for him at the hands of the late King, who, in 1907, created him a Knight Commander of the Victorian Order. Greatest honor of all, he has been created a Peer of the United Empire. Lady Shaughnessy, who has been a worthy helpmate of her distinguished husband during the years of his phenomenal uplift from a railway clerkship to the presidency of a great corporation, of comparative obscurity to one of great commercial and social prominence, came to Montreal with her husband from Milwaukee, where they were married a couple of years prior to his appointment to his first position on the railway in the history of which he has played such a prominent part.

We all know that the neck should not be too short; should be smaller at the top than where it joins the chest and shoulders; that the shoulders should be neither too broad and well developed nor too narrow; that the bones of the chest and back should not be buried with flesh.

It is not given to every woman to have a beautiful neck and shoulders and chest. But she can make the most of the trio, as nature gave them to her, by massage and exercise. And she can do more.

She can care for the skin so carefully, perfecting the texture and coloring, that the form of the neck and chest and shoulders becomes secondary. Often the skin of the back and chest and shoulders will have small eruptions when the face of the person is clear and free from any such disorder. This is because the clothes cover the body so tightly that the air and sun have no chance to purify the skin beneath as they do the skin of the face.

Frequent baths of sea salt also tend to clear the skin of the neck and bring the blood to the surface, giving it the glow of health. Olive oil or some good cold cream applied to this part of the body keeps the pores open and helps the skin to throw off any secretions which are clogging the pores.

Exercises which stretch the muscles of the back, chest and neck will keep away any superfluous flesh and make the flesh hard and firm.

The neck sometimes gets dark from high and tight collars. For a bleach use the magic of lemon juice diluted one-third with water. Sponge with it and allow to dry on.

Oatmeal is splendid for whitening the skin and may be used freely.

Consider the Stomach.
The evil habit of going too long without food is one from which many people suffer in this present age. Men sit in their offices, women rush about shopping, and both become so absorbed in their respective interests that the period of hunger is allowed to pass and that of fatigue and depression to set in.

The worst feature of such cases is that once the second stage is reached the desire for food is gone, and after this treatment of oneself the stomach is too exhausted to digest a meal when taken. This extreme should be avoided. It is only necessary to take a light diet. A glass of milk, a biscuit, will do to prevent after loss of appetite. And yet those who call themselves sensible prefer to ruin their health rather than take the time and trouble to turn into a restaurant and drink a glass of milk.

SMASHING GAS USERS.

How the British Withstand the German Poison Squads.

How gas attacks, following upon heavy bombardment by the enemy are repelled by the British is described in the following letter from the front, quoted by a British war correspondent.

"For four days before the series of gas attacks which eventually came a very heavy bombardment of our first two lines had done much towards completely shattering both the defences and nerve of those who occupied them.

Casualties were not so numerous as had been expected, but the awful suspense between occasional lulls and the more vigorous continuance, and at the same time the certain foreknowledge of the pending attack, was more terrible than the presence of many dead men.

Towards midnight cover was impossible. One simply stood upright and laughed foolishly. The sky was ablaze with the light of the guns. The ground literally trembled. The air was filled with the thunder of explosions and the pitiless scream of the shells. The shrieks were out of the wounded; they were the outpourings of savage men.

Huge white lights, discharged from special pistols, lit up the enemies' parapets which had hitherto been in shadow. The nozzles of the gas cylinders could be plainly seen. Then the dreadful hiss. One could hear the wind moaning in the shattered wire. Hissing proclaimed the approach of the gas. This grew louder as more cylinders were opened, until one could hear nothing else.

The rest, paradoxically enough, is difficult to forget, and yet more difficult to remember. Some moments remain vividly real and will never fade. Others form but integral parts of one whole dreadfulness.

As I write I can see our own men quiet now, leaning forward on the parapets, braced and waiting. Their eyes gleam through the eyepieces of their helmets.

Then, with a sudden yelling, these foes of ours leap from the ground on all sides—they have crept up during the bombardment of our trenches. Their curious head and face gear, with enormous goggles and distorted features, their blue-grey uniforms—in mass like a swirl of mist approaching with their naked bayonets, their hoarse shouts of defiance, make them as fiends, and they are upon us.

Our men are yet still wonderfully still. A word of command snaps out, is taken up all along the line. But even now, except for the movement of the arm that works the bolt of the rifle and an occasional instinct of excitement which impels a man to lean yet nearer to his enemy, there is nothing but a tense stillness.

Presently, and just in time, the blue mist fades. Stalwart as they are, and great men to fight against, they fall and fall. The rest waver, turn and run, falling unthinkingly.

Back to their trenches they stumble "shattered and sundered." Another hour of agony and bombardment and they come again—again, and then all is finished.

"Report: Some bombardment; 'Enemy employs gas; 'Attack repelled.'"

Austrians Pot Germans at Times
How the Austrians avenged the shooting of their comrades by German soldiers is described by a correspondent.

"On one occasion," he says, "the Germans retreating and eventually dying before the attacking Russians, came under the fire of the Austrian Maxim and rifles, which inflicted terrible losses upon their own allies. 'One Austrian officer when questioned regarding this incident, only said, 'It was dark, and we made a mistake.' Another significantly added, 'Well, we soon discovered our mistake, but the beggars deserved all they got.'"

How many times have Germans fired upon our fellows when retreating, besides freely calling us all cowards, and saying that every man who gave ground ought to be killed like a dog? Well, we just acted up to their ideas; they ought not to have retreated."

These flying Germans were fired upon by their Allies for 15 minutes up to the moment when they burst into the Austrian trenches. The Russians were following hotly on behind with bayonets, and made a heavy capture of prisoners.

"This is the first recorded instance of Austrians retaliating on the Germans in their own coin."

A Good One.
"I don't see so much in these witticisms aimed at the mother-in-law."

"Think she is usually jostled, eh?"

"I do. Mine lives with us and when my wife storms at me the old lady takes my part quite frequently."

HEARING AND SEEING.

The Ear and the Eye and the Power of the Brain to Memorize.

Is the ear more retentive than the eye? Are we more impressed with what we hear than with what we see? There is a familiar legend of Macanlay reciting a good part of "Paradise Lost" during a voyage to India and of the historian's ability to rise from a book and repeat word for word what he had read. There are also records of John Stuart Mill's ability to remember the printed word.

But the balance of evidence seems in favor of the power to memorize that which passes through the ear into the brain. "Memory" Woodfall, who lived in the latter part of the eighteenth century, could attend a debate and report it exactly without notes, a pure feat of aural memory. Tuscanni can conduct a number of difficult operas without the score before him. Thomas Beecham, the London orchestra leader, conducted from memory Strauss' "Rosenkavalier" upon twenty-four hours' notice. Von Bülow is said to have memorized a Stanford symphony on the train between Hamburg and Berlin and to have conducted it without the score in the latter city. Dr. Kunwald can conduct from memory a large number of orchestral works, with all their nuances of interpretation.

It is a question for the psychologist. The popular verdict probably would be in favor of the prowess of the ear rather than of the eye. There are a large number of people who can remember an air exactly, but to whom the printed word is an evaporated thing as soon as it passes from their eyes.

The Microscope.
A spectacle maker, Jan Leijpersheim by name, living in Holland, invented a crude magnifying glass in 1608. Anton von Leuwenhoek, born in Delft in 1632, improved this clumsy toy and evolved a compound microscope which has become the most valuable sanitary tool yet devised by man. That first microscope was as far removed from the high powered instrument of today as is the modern American from the original cave man. Yet by this faulty means Leuwenhoek, naturalist, physician and botanist, discovered certain minute bodies which he called "little animals." He made drawings of these, and today they are known for those useful friends and malignant enemies of man.

Getting at His Motive.
"Will you have my seat?" he inquired politely.

"On the ground that I am aged and decrepit?" the woman asked.

"No, indeed, madam."

"That I am young and beautiful and possibly not averse to a flirtation?"

"Certainly not. That is."

"Then it must be because you are a gentleman, in this respect differing from the fat person on the left and the scrawny specimen at the right. I am glad to learn your principles, sir, but here is my street. Good day."

Nothing to Worry About.
The wife was tenderly sympathetic.

"Why, George, dear," she said when she noted her husband's tense attitude and set eyes, "what is the trouble?"

He looked at her absently, as upon a total stranger.

"Oh," he said at length, "there was something I was going to worry about—I know there was—but for the life of me I can't think what it is."

Forewarned.
Little Harold was spending a few days at his aunt's house. Just before they sat down to the dinner table he took his aunt aside and whispered:

"My mamma don't allow me to ask for a second helping of dessert. I thought I'd let you know, so you wouldn't think I didn't like the kind of pie and things you make."

A Good Guess.

THE HERALD.

TUESDAY, MARCH 7TH, 1916

Premier Hearst and Mr. N.W. Rowell closed the debate on the Address in the Legislature, both declaring for advanced temperance legislation.

THE war stamp represents the deception of the Federal Government in a marked degree. Not a cent of this tax goes to the purposes of war. It is all used for current expenses, and even then there is a deficit, says the Kingston Whig.

EVERY agency that now appeals to the British people for collections towards public schemes, patriotic and otherwise, must file with the Government a statement of the facts, the names of the men who are behind it, of the secretary treasurer and auditor. A very reasonable requirement.

NOTES FROM THE LEGISLATURE.

Toronto, March 4.—In an inconspicuous paragraph in the speech from the Throne this year there occurred one of the most important sentences for a long time—"A bill relating to the prohibition and sale of intoxicating liquor in the province and for the submission of same to the electors."

No details of the prohibition or referendum proposal have yet been made public, but the decision is expected to be made soon. There are rumors that a vote on the measure will be given to all Ontario soldiers in England and at the front as well as in the training camps at home.

Rumor, well defined rumor at that, claims a large number of Conservative members of the House to be angered at the Government for committing the party to the prohibition proposal without a consulting caucus. It was apparent, almost painfully noticeable indeed, that Premier Hearst's remarks on prohibition were received very coldly and with little applause from the Government side, although they were vigorously applauded by Mr. Rowell and the Opposition.

WHAT MR. ROWELL SAID.
"I am prepared cordially to support the Government in carrying out the proposals they submit, if these proposals are, as I understand them to be, as outlined in the speech from the Throne."
Mr. Rowell read a statement made by him in the House two years ago, in which he offered to cooperate with the Government in wiping out all bars, shops and clubs, either by legislative action or by a bill followed by a referendum.

"I stand where I stood two years ago on this matter," said Mr. Rowell. "We should present a united front."
"I shall be glad to join the Prime Minister in going before the people and asking their endorsement and ratification of the measure."

BYE-ELECTION RECORD.

The contest by-elections since the general election of 1914 and their results are as follows:

Hamilton W., C. maj. 1411 C. maj. 36 Dundas, C. maj. 673 C. maj. 62 Peel, C. maj. 627 L. maj. 305

In Hamilton West, therefore, the Government majority was reduced by 1,375; in Dundas by 611 and in Peel the Government lost the seat with a change of 932. In these three bye-elections, therefore, the change against the Government amounted to 2,918, or an average of almost a thousand.

If the slump continues, or if it continues half as much as in these three cases, the Government majority will be entirely wiped out at the next election, and Mr. Rowell will be in power by a comfortable majority.

FRENCH LINE IS FIRM

Crown Prince Fails to Break Through at Verdun.

Saturday Night Attack is Repulsed and Sunday Morning Effort is Likewise a Fiasco—After Fourteen Days of Fierce Conflict the Position is Deadlocked With Chief Fighting Around the Douaumont Plateau.

PARIS, March 6.—Another attempt by the Crown Prince's army to break through the French line was made Saturday night, but the line held and the Germans fell back to their own trenches under the fire of the French artillery. Sunday morning a German force attacked in the woods just east of Vacherauville, a little to the west of the line against which the assault of last night was directed, but with no success.

In the contest for the possession of Verdun the operations have narrowed for the time being to the short sector about the plateau of Douaumont. The Germans concentrated their artillery fire Saturday on the restricted front between the Haudromont wood and Douaumont village. The bombardment was very violent. After great quantities of heavy shells had been thrown, the German infantry made its charge at six o'clock Saturday night. The attacking waves at once were brought under the barrage fire of the French guns and rifle-firing co-operated, and were unable to reach the French trenches. At the village of Douaumont itself, where the Germans hold the village proper and the French are entrenched in the southern outskirts, fighting of considerable liveliness lasted well into the night, without changing the situation.

The German artillery continued its firing with some intensity throughout the night on the whole front east of the Meuse, and west of the river at Le Mort Homme and the Cote de L'Oie.

Early Sunday morning the bombardment increased in violence along the whole of this front, especially on the sector which had been the scene of Saturday night's attack, but the attack was not repeated here. Instead the Germans shifted their assaulting columns to the west, and sought to make an opening through the woods east of Vacherauville. Here again they were completely repulsed.

German troops being brought up to the fighting front were brought under the fire of the French artillery to the north of Vacherauville and near Louvemont, north-west of Douaumont.

No infantry action is reported from the Woivre, but the artillery of both sides was very active about Fresnoes and east of Haudromont. The French artillery conducted a heavy bombardment Saturday night and Sunday on the German position near the Binarville road, north of the La Harzee, and the Haute Chevauchee in the Argonne.

The German official statement issued yesterday announces the evacuation by the German troops of the trenches captured by them from the French near the forest of Thailville, north-east of Badonville, in Lorraine, on February 28. The evacuation was ordered to avoid unnecessary losses under the concentrated fire of the French artillery.

No Change in Position.
LONDON, March 6.—The Paris correspondent of The Daily Mail, telegraphing Sunday, says: "The fourteenth day of the Battle of Verdun finds the Germans still vainly hurling forces against the impregnable wall of Creusot guns and dauntless infantry holding from Pepper Hill (the Cote du Poivre) to Douaumont."

"Thursday night the Germans held half the village of Douaumont and the French the other half. To-day the relative positions are much the same, though the French probably have the advantage. During Friday and Saturday there were see-saw combats incessantly. On Friday the Germans were driven out by attacks, in which grenades and bayonets played the major part. During the night the Germans prepared another assault, which was delivered early Saturday morning, and was attended with some success. The French, unable to obtain a solid foothold, had to give way."

"The French, however, just before dusk again held all but one or two houses on the north side of the hamlet."

"At 6 o'clock the Germans came on again for something like the 21st time, and made a general attack on the whole plateau from Haudromont to Vaux, and again got the worst of it. They were stopped more than a hundred yards from the French lines and fell back. Their losses in these desperate affairs are described as fearful—at least four times those of the French."

"The military critics are somewhat surprised that the Crown Prince after a fortnight's incessant shelling of Goose Hill (the Cote de L'Oie) and Dead Man's Hill (Le Mort Homme) has not attempted an advance in that direction. The only plausible explanation is that the Germans lack sufficient troops to extend their attacking front, and therefore are making enormous sacrifices with the object of gaining the Douaumont plateau and piercing the French centre."

Carmen Sylva Conscious to Last.

LONDON, March 6.—A despatch to The Times from Bucharest says the late Queen-Mother Elizabeth (Carmen Sylva) left her property to charitable institutions. The Queen-Mother, says the correspondent, maintained consciousness almost to the last, and one of her last acts was to dictate a reply to a telegram of inquiry from the German Emperor at Verdun.

RICH BOOTY AT BITLIS

Russians Take 20 Krupp Guns With Turkish City.

Stronghold Which Has Fallen Into Hands of Grand Duke Was a Depot for Military Munitions—Russians Avenged Turkish Cruelty at Bitlis—Entire Van Region Now in Russian Control.

PETROGRAD, March 6.—Having fought desperately and failed to repulse the Russians' assault on a hill-top fort in the vicinity of Erzerum, the last survivors of a Turkish guards regiment, rather than be taken prisoners, leaped to death, one at a time, over a precipice, according to the stirring account given by an eye-witness.

The following official communication regarding the capture of Bitlis was issued by the War Office:

"Details of the capture of Bitlis show that our troops attacked the position without firing a shot. The attack was made at night during a snowstorm. About 3 o'clock in the morning a bayonet charge was ordered, and the Turks after a desperate resistance were dislodged. The Turkish artillery position was stormed after hand-to-hand fighting, as the result of which the defenders, who fought with the greatest desperation, were all killed."

"On the position and in pursuit of the enemy we captured 20 guns of the latest Krupp type, all of which were in good condition. We also captured on the positions a huge quantity of gun and rifle cartridges, and in Bitlis itself a large depot of artillery munitions. During the pursuit numerous Turks were sabred. The number of prisoners has increased, and includes 40 officers."

Two Turkish divisions, reinforced by troops that had fled from Erzerum, are the forces that had been operating against the Russians on the line running through Mush, Bitlis, and Van.

With the occupation of Bitlis, it is pointed out the entire Van region passes under the control of the Russians, while the Russian success separates the two Turkish forces operating in the regions of Mush and Lake Urmiah, respectively.

With the loss of Bitlis, it appears, Turkish reinforcements coming from Mesopotamia would be compelled to travel by roundabout routes in order to reach the third Turkish army.

Russians Took Terrible Revenge.

LONDON, March 6.—The Russian soldiers at Bitlis, according to a Petrograd despatch to The Morning Post, took a terrible revenge on the Turkish troops for the cruelty which the Turks were alleged to have practised toward the Armenians in that district. The correspondent says:

"A terrible slaughter followed the capture of the Turkish position at Bitlis. The Russian troops had witnessed at Van, Mush, and many other places an appalling sight, the massacre, namely, by Turkish fanatics of tens of thousands of Armenian Christian men, women, and children. It was unlikely after such deeds that any quarter should be given. The most killing complete, the destruction of the Turkish third army."

ENVER PASHA ATTACKED.

Turkish War Minister is Said to Be in a Critical Condition.

LONDON, March 6.—Rumors are recurrent of internal trouble in Turkey and of a movement towards peace. As the reports mainly emanate from Rome and Athens, they must for the present be regarded at least as doubtful.

The Athens correspondent of the Daily Mail, referring to a reported attempt to assassinate Enver Pasha, says it is stated that the Minister of War was gravely wounded, and that his condition is critical.

An Athens despatch to Reuters' Telegram Company says:

"Advices from a diplomatic source in Constantinople are to the effect that an attempt has been made to assassinate Enver Pasha, the War Minister, who was wounded. The Duke of Mecklenburg, in view of the gravity of the situation, has telegraphed the German Emperor urging him to send reinforcements to Constantinople."

Positions Retained.

LONDON, March 6.—The British official communication issued last night says:

"Grenade fighting continued last night in the craters northeast of Vermelles. To-day the enemy artillery has been active about Loos and northeast of Ypres."

"The situation in Ypres-Comines Canal is quiet, and our troops retain the ground gained there March 2."

Noted Professor Dead.

LONDON, March 6.—William Angus Knight, professor of moral philosophy in the University of St. Andrews from 1876 to 1902, died Saturday at his residence at Keswick, Cumberlandshire. In recognition of his eminent services to English literature, Dr. Knight was pensioned by the Government about six years ago. He was born February 22, 1836.

Earthquake at Sivas.

ATHENS, March 6.—It is reported here that Sivas, in Asia Minor, is afloat, following the explosion of munitions caused by an earthquake. Sivas is some 430 miles east of Constantinople, and a hundred miles south of the Black Sea, with which it is connected by railway.

New French Marine Chief of Staff.

MOEWE REACHES PORT.

Daring German Raider Gets Home With Gold and Prisoners.

BERLIN, March 6.—Official announcement was made here yesterday that the German cruiser Moewe arrived yesterday in "some" German port (Wilhelmshaven). She had on board a large number of British prisoners and $200,000 in gold bars. The announcement says fifteen vessels were sunk by the Moewe, which also laid mines at several points. One of these mines, it is said, sank the British battleship King Edward VII. The statement says:

"The naval general staff states that the Moewe, Commander Burggrave, Count Dohna-Schlodien, after a successful cruise lasting several months, arrived to-day at 'some' home port with four British officers, 29 British marines and sailors, 256 men of crews of enemy steamers, among them 103 Indians, as prisoners, and one million marks in gold bars.

"The vessel brought up the following enemy steamers, the greater part of which were sent as prizes to neutral ports: The British steamships Corbridge, 2,687 tons; Author, 3,496 tons; Trader, 3,608 tons; Ariadne, 3,035 tons; Dromonby, 3,627 tons; Farrington, 3,146 tons; Clan MacTavish, 5,816 tons; Appam, 7,781 tons; Western, 3,300 tons; Herare, 3,335 tons; Flamenco, 4,629 tons; Saxon Prince, 3,471 tons; the sailing vessel Edinburgh, 1,473 tons; the French steamer Maront, 3,100 tons, and the Belgian steamship Luxemburg, 4,322 tons.

"At several points on enemy coast the Moewe also laid out mines, to which, among others, the battleship King Edward VII. fell victim."

Count von Dohna, the Moewe's commander, has been awarded the Iron Cross of the first class and the members of the crew have received the Iron Cross of the second class. Count von Dohna has been ordered to meet Emperor William at headquarters.

RIOTS IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

German Troops Suppress Rising of Women in Turk Capital.

ODESSA, Russia, March 6.—It is reported from Constantinople that Turkish women broke into the railway yards, whence troop trains were about to leave, shouting protests against sending the men "to go to their death." They threw themselves on the rails in front of the trains. The authorities refrained from using force to remove them, these ladies say, fearing a mutiny among the soldiers. The men were taken from the cars, but later were sent off secretly by night.

It is also reported that the Turkish general staff declined to summon before a court-martial Kiazil Pasha, commander of the Turkish army in the Caucasus, on account of certain disclosures which might be made. Consequently the commander will receive an honorable discharge.

These reports say further that the people of Constantinople were led to believe that the German army had achieved a much greater victory at Verdun than was actually gained, and that when the facts were ascertained rioting occurred. It is stated German troops suppressed the rioting.

Forty persons are reported to have been killed in the wreck of a passenger train on the Berlin-Constantinople railway near Nish, Serbia. Investigation showed that the rails had been loosened, and many arrests have been made.

BREWSTER ELECTED.

Liberal Leader in B. C. Defeats Provincial Treasurer Flumerfelt.

Flumerfelt, whom Premier Bowser had made Provincial Treasurer. Brewster secured 4,972 votes to 2,526 polled for Flumerfelt, who therefore only saved his deposit by forty votes.

Mr. Brewster, the victor in Saturday's fight, is the leader of the Liberal party in British Columbia. He came to the coast from New Brunswick, his native Province, in 1906, and has since then been actively interested in the fishing business.

Zeppelins Visit England.

LONDON, March 6.—A Zeppelin raid took place Sunday night, when two hostile airships crossed over the north-east coast of England. The official statement announcing the raid gives no information as to the damage done.

"At the time of this report," the statement continues, "their movements have not been clearly defined. Some bombs were dropped, which fell into the sea near the short, but information is not yet available as to whether any damage was done on land. A further communication will be issued later."

Germans Imprison Belgian Patriots. AMSTERDAM, March 6.—The Handelsblad says that the German court-martial in Brussels has sentenced three more Belgians, one of whom was a woman, to imprisonment with hard labor. ## CROSS FRETFUL BABIES.

The cross fretful baby is a sickly baby—the well child is always happy and smiling. Mothers, if your baby is cross and cries a great deal something is wrong. His little stomach and bowels may be out of order; his teeth troubling him, or he may be bothered with worms. The mother should immediately give him Baby's Own Tablets. They never fail to relieve the baby. Concerning them Mrs. Ronald Hurley, Gilks, N.B., writes:—"I know of nothing so good for cross, fretful babies as Baby's Own Tablets, and I am pleased to recommend them to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The remains of Nursing Sister Elsie G. Ross were given final military honors at Stratford.

HAVE YOU WEAK LUNGS?

Do colds settle on your chest or in your bronchial tubes? Do coughs hang on, or are you subject to throat troubles? Such troubles should have immediate treatment with the rare curative powers of Scott's Emulsion to guard against consumption which so easily follows.

Scott's Emulsion contains pure cod liver oil which peculiarly strengthens the respiratory tract and improves the quality of the blood; the glycerine in it soothes and heals the tender membranes of the throat. Scott's is prescribed by the best specialists. You can get it at any drug store. Scott & Bowne, Toronto, Ont.

MURDER WILL OUT.

"The Best Laid Schemes of Mice and Men Gang Aft Agley."

Once upon a time there was a lady who wished to have her real age kept a secret. In order to get away with it she instructed her son, in case any one asked how old he was, to knock off about 50 per cent.

She told people the boy was large for his age and explained the gruff tones of his voice by saying that his tonsils needed attention.

One day the rector of the church called, and while waiting in the drawing room for the lady to put the finishing touches to her makeup he talked with the boy, who was pretending to read "Little Lord Fauntleroy" for the seventeenth time. The boy volunteered the information that the next day would be his birthday.

"Ah," said the rector, "and how old will you be then?"

"Ten years old," replied the boy, as per instructions.

"Indeed!" said the rector. "I dare say you haven't any idea what your mother is going to give you for a birthday gift."

"Oh, yes, I have," was the unexpected answer. "She promised to give me a safety razor."

When the rector rushed into the hall to see what had caused the loud crash he had heard he found the boy's mother lying on the floor in a dead faint.

Moral—Old Father Time calls all bluffs.

The Rat and the Bulb.

According to the French naturalist De Parville, a gardener planted one afternoon 250 tulip bulbs on a terrace, and next morning he noticed that the ground had been disturbed and that the bulbs had all been taken away. He was confident that rats had done the work, and, taking a spade, he began to dig in the hope of discovering their nest. Soon he unearthed a large female rat, which he killed, and after digging a few more minutes he discovered an underground chamber lined with hay and leaves and connected by a corridor with two holes, which were evidently used as storehouses, for in them he found the 250 tulip bulbs. This was remarkable, but more remarkable was the fact that they were neatly arranged in two rows and that not one of them had been gnawed or otherwise injured.

All Are on Time at Sydney.

At Sydney, Australia, any telephone subscriber can obtain correct standard time by calling up the Sydney observatory, says the Scientific American. If he wishes merely to check his watch or clock he asks for "Time," and is connected with an operator who reads off the correct time to the nearest half minute from a clock controlled by the standard clock of the observatory. If more accurate information be required he asks for "Exact time" and is connected with a high frequency buzzer which transmits the actual beats of the observatory clock.

The Safe Spot.

"So when you had 200 feet start to escape you ran instead directly up to the bear when your gun failed to work? I don't know whether you were a foolhardy hero or a rattled fool!" declared the doctor as he sewed up Smith's numerous wounds.

"I was neither," explained Smith. "I used remarkable judgment at a critical moment. You see, the bear was between Jones and myself. I saw Jones was about to fire, so I took shelter at the safest spot—with the bear."

Mighty In Titles.

The ruler of Turkey in addition to the titles sultan and kha-khan (high prince and lord of lords), also claims sovereignty over most districts, towns, cities and states in the orient, specifying each by name and setting out in each of his various titles "all the forts, citadels, purlieus and neighborhood thereof" in regular legal form. His official designation ends, "Sovereign also of diverse nations, states, peoples and races on the face of the earth." All this is in addition to his high position as "head of the faithful" and "supreme lord of all the followers of the prophet," "direct and only lieutenant on earth of Mohammed."

The Great Eastern.

The dimensions of the one time world famous Great Eastern were as follows: Length, 692 feet; width, 83 feet; depth, 60 feet; tonnage, 24,000 tons; draft when unloaded, 20 feet; when loaded, 30 feet. She had paddle wheels fifty-six feet in diameter and was also provided with a four bladed screw propeller of twenty-four feet diameter. She had accommodations for 800 first class, 2,000 second class and 1,200 third class passengers, 4,000 in all. Her speed was about eighteen miles an hour. The Great Eastern was finally broken up for old iron in the year 1880 after a checkered career of some thirty-one years.

SOCIAL CONDITIONS ON THE FARM

During the year 1915, the Commission of Conservation conducted an agricultural survey on 400 farms in Ontario. The survey included 100 farms in each of the Counties of Dundas, Waterloo, Northumberland and Carleton. Various phases of farm life were investigated, and some interesting conditions presented.

Social conditions, and other incentives to keep the young people on the farms are to a great extent neglected, as may be seen from the following report of the survey.

Ten per cent of the farmers visited have had boys leave and go to the city. Seven per cent have sons married who are farming. Nineteen per cent stated that they were following some form of book-keeping, but only one man was following a complete method. Sixty-seven per cent take agricultural papers, seventeen per cent take story magazines, and seventy-seven per cent take a daily paper.

In 53 per cent of the families visited there were young people over 14 years of age while 31 per cent had a horse and buggy or an automobile for the young people. Sixty-one per cent of the farmers attend some kind of community event during the past year, chiefly church socials and picnics.

Here it may be stated that the rural churches have a great opportunity to develop the social side of their activities, to reach more of the young people in the county and interest them in clean amusements, sports and recreations. The local fairs also are prominent among the community events attended by the farmer. In Dundas and Carleton counties no organized clubs for games were met with, while in Waterloo, 13 reported a football club, and in Northumberland, six reported baseball clubs. Only one of the 400 farmers visited mentioned attending a literary society. Twenty-five per cent of the homes had no musical instrument of any kind; 39 per cent had pianos.—F.C.N.

BREAKING IN MOTHER-IN-LAW

THE deputy assistant Society Editor looked at the tired little golden head against the window sash and stared across at Lewis, where a church spire caught the last sun of its cross-tip. She was so done out she couldn't remember her own name except in patches. But she was triumphant just at telling for she was pulling off the stunt of her career!

"Miss Nevinson," she could hear the City Editor saying, "I wish to heaven you'd had more experience, but I've nobody else I can spare. Jacqueminot is going to Quebec on her honeymoon and you gotta follow her. They're good for a column or two to begin with. Don't worry or they'll get on to you. We'll keep faking till your first stuff comes through."

"Yep, to-night. Eleven-thirty from the Central Station. Here's your ticket and some expense money. Your room's reserved by wire."

The deputy assistant caught her breath as she remembered it.

Jacqueminot! The thrice or more wedded stage beauty whom she'd seen a miraculous once across the footlights. In the movies times without number, and via the Sunday Supplement pretty nearly every week, had just capped her successful divorce by annexing Dickie Updike, whose mother lived on Michigan Boulevard whenever she deigned to come home and run social Chicago. Jacqueminot's little toes had kicked holes in many a money bag before now, but not even the dancer's heaviest backers would have thought her capable of reaching Mrs. Updike's lounge.

The deputy assistant—whose name was Lucille Larose on the staff and Mary Imogen at home—packed her suitcase with more grins and groans than gauds and gowns. How she was to remain a week at the Chateau Frontenac with one navy blue serge suit, half a dozen blouses and a black evening gown she didn't know, but the City Ed. was inexorable and besides, twenty-two and blonde is nifty anyhow.

The train—a perilous glimpse into the Updike private car—a long, thrillsome, fakesome story reeled off in the lower berth between a blonde and two and posted by an obliging porter—the Canadian boundary—Montreal and a spanking drive across town in a gorgeously befringed sleigh—train again—and at last the sunshine of Quebec and the quick cries of "Veuillez, veuillez, M'selle!" which reminded her that she and her prey had reached a foreign speaking and most picturesquely different land.

There was a room reserved for her as near the Updikes as possible and they actually went up in the same elevator, so close that Mary leaned out and touched the beauty's silver fox fur, just so's she could say she'd done it. Jacqueminot was even perter and prettier in reality than she was in the supplements. Incidentally Mary saw her looking at her new husband under her long lashes in a way that suggested the thought—but it wasn't probable, surely!—that the nimble-toed lady had a heart under her radiance blouse. Anyhow the glance would make stunning good copy.

Just as they got out of the elevator—Mary last as belittled blue serge—a man passed through the corridor. He was tall—over six feet. Or at least he had been. Now he was bent a bit and he leaned on another man's arm. Both were in khaki, but the tall man's shoulder strap bore a crown and his face—oh, it was a drawn, white parchment, scribbled with ghastly tales of bombs and wet trenches, wire entanglements and the green mist of deadly gases.

"Poor chap!" said Jacqueminot aloud, "back from the front and all torn up!" The man raised his eyes but instead of looking at the dancer his gaze somehow leaped straight for Mary. What happened next was hard to understand in retrospect, but at the time it had seemed quite natural. Their eyes had held each other for a full minute, then hers had filled suddenly with big hot rebellious tears and she had run into the shelter of the door that the astonished bell boy held open for her.

The day's work was to follow the Updikes and the deputy assistant did it thoroughly. They got a sleigh with a coachman furred up like Ursa Major—they drove ten miles out into the sparkling champagne-aired morning and across the three-foot ice of the St. Lawrence.

(N.B.—They held hands—at least Dickie did, to judge by his face.) They lunched in their room. They tobogganed in the brisk fashion of afternoon Quebec. Mrs. Updike appeared in the latest of sports costumes which Mary described from the enchanting scarlet cap to the bottom of the short full white skirt, which came several inches below your feet ever have thought it could. It's owner's laugh shined from the king's bastion of the Citadel straight across DuRoi's terrace. And nobody who heard it could have blamed Dickie a bit.

(N.B.—He told her after the third trip that her cheeks were American beauties—there's no doubt—and her lips also might be collected for. Done. Reported. And despatched to Chicago.) They tested at the Chateau of course, met the Shillingtons from New York, who introduced—Mary caught her breath at her quiet little corner table—"Major Torrington of the Sixteenth Canadian, wounded at Festubert."

Mrs. Updike appeared in all the latest sports costumes.

The Major bowed, smiled, but didn't join in the badinage directed at the honeymooners. Instead, Mary saw with a jerk of the heart, his eyes wandering restlessly over the tea room as though he were looking for somebody. But whoever it was didn't happen to be there. Or perhaps there was less light in the corners than one would think.

All this in retrospect. Now, her big evening dress dooped, the big French rose fastened for sole color in the corsage, her eyes tired but triumphant under the rebellious little curls, Mary leaned against the sash and looked across the river at Lévis. It was lone some work chronicling the doings of honeymooners in a hotel where you knew nobody. She had heard Jacqueminot say something to Marion Shillington. There were two long unoccupied hours before that time.

Suddenly her eyes dropped to the terrace below. Two men went painstakingly along its border. One was intent on his job as steady. But the other raised his eyes to the hotel front and searched the facade restlessly. Mary was a little late for dinner. The Updike-Shillington party had two tables in the centre and the Major was with them. Mary got the gayety and the gowns verbatim. She also received a few glances that were more interesting to her than either, though they didn't figure in her letter to the City Ed.

But the shattering adventure didn't come till twenty-four hours later. Clad in her black gown, Mary had played variations on the girle and corsage bouquet and had done her hair differently. It was all the re-costuming she could manage. She was painfully conscious of her utter unchateaufiness and she slipped unobtrusively elevatorward.

The door of the Updike suite was open and Jacqueminot could be seen perched on a chair arm. From beyond came a shriek of feminine merriment, accompanied by two male guffaws. Jacqueminot was declaiming something to which the shrieks were oblique.

Mary didn't mean to listen, but there are some things that haul you up by the heartstrings. And one is the retail of your own production. The little dancer was reading aloud the thrillsome, fakesome narrative that the deputy assistant had scribbled in the sanctity of the lower berth!

"No, you don't care, you witch," she heard Dickie Updike's voice, when the merriment had died to ripples. "But what about my poor mamma? She's had that reporter imprisoned for life and both hands cut off if she got hold of him."

For a galvanized second Mary's heart ceased to beat. Then, somehow she felt that odd sense of eyes behind that tells us we're watched.

It was Major Torrington. For the second time his gaze met hers for a startled heartbeat. Then, precipitately, filled with unreasoning terror, the deputy assistant turned and ran into her room!

She didn't go to dinner. Her head ached. Her heart pounded. That night she dreamed fitfully. The City Ed. was on one side of her in his shirt-sleeves, his pipe gripped in a menacing mouth. On the other side stood Mrs. Updike, Senior, with a look that would glaciate a volcano.

At the entrance to the dining room next morning a man stepped forward, a dapper little man with a smile. "Miss Nevinson?" he breathed, "just a word with you, if you don't mind. Let me show you the view from the west window here in the writing room."

Mary didn't need the card he passed under her startled eyes. In fact she didn't even read the name and address, though she took in unconsciously that it said Chicago. One word standing out like a nightmare was that menacing horror, "Detective!"

"Now," he said evenly, when he had led her to the farthest window, "no one will disturb us here. You are covering the Updike ho. moon. Not to waste time, I have the honor to represent Mrs. Updike, Senior. You will return to Chicago by this morning's train."

Mary opened her mouth and shut it again. She could fairly hear the click of heels.

"If you go without making any trouble no one need know," he went on, "if not—"

"Pardon me," said a voice at his elbow. It was so cold, so incisive and withal so unexpected that the little man jumped as much as Mary did.

"Pardon me," the Major repeated. "But I fear you are annoying my cousin. If you have any business to discuss you can do it with me. She leaves everything of the sort in my hands."

The man looked at the Major. The Major looked back. It was the sort of look that went with the D. S. O. that he had won and the newcomer knew it. There would be no trenches abandoned in this war.

Mary looked at them both and her number brain fell into action with a click. He couldn't prove anything since all her stuff had been posted not wired. But if she could only play up to this heaven-sent Major—

"Come, Mary," said the latter imperiously, "if this—er—gentleman wishes to speak to me he can do it later."

Pardon me, I fear you are annoying my cousin.

"You'll breakfast with me, Miss Nevinson?" he said, as soon as they were out of earshot. "It's absolutely necessary. And in the meantime for heaven's sake give me your arm. This is the first walk I've had alone since Festubert!" "Lie?" he queried later, over the toasted crumpets, "but I don't honestly believe it is. Wasn't your mother Selma Norton and didn't she come from Dub. lin? Then we are cousins—oh very distant ones I assure you, but still cousins. I recognized the family resemblance to my mother's people as soon as I saw you."

When it came near dinner time Mary had an impulsive phone call from Jacqueminot. "My dear!" gurgled that irrepressible, "our darling Major's so hard hit that he had to tell me all about it! And I think you're positively the cleverest thing that ever happened. I've had reams of press notices but never such a scream as yours. I could cut every word of it! And he says you've done a column every day!"

"Say, dearie, he told me—oh pshaw, you know about that darn fool who gave you such a scare and how you said you'd no doubt it was 'cause you had no clothes. Well, I've got six trunks—or I guess eight. And the duckiest things too, straight from Paris. Come on up and take your choice. Dickie's a dear, you know, but—gee, I needed somebody to help me break in my mother-in-law!"

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson XI.—First Quarter, For
March 12, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Heb. xi, 32, to xii, 2—Memory Verses, xii, 1, 2—Golden Text, Heb. xii, 1, 2—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson on the heroes and martyrs of faith was probably suggested to the committee by the previous lesson on the death of Stephen. If a word or phrase gives the key to a chapter or portion this is certainly the "faith" chapter of the Bible, for the word is found twenty-four times in this chapter. But we must look at chapter x, 38, for the reason why of this chapter, "The just shall live by faith," a sentence quoted three times in the New Testament, the other two places being Rom. i, 17; Gal. iii, 11, and all three quotations of Heb. ii, 4. Before we can live by faith we must be justified by faith, made just or righteous (Rom. v, 1), and that takes us to the first "believe" in the Bible in connection with righteousness (Gen. xv, 6). "He believed in the Lord, and He counted it to him for righteousness." This also is quoted just three times in the New Testament (Rom. iv, 3; Gal. iii, 6; Jas. ii, 23), so these must be very important sayings.

Our first great need is righteousness, the kind that God requires and has provided fully in Christ and can be obtained only by faith (Rom. x, 3, 4).

Then, being saved, we must glorify God by a righteous life, and this also is by faith, for as we have received Christ Jesus the Lord so must we walk in Him (Col. ii, 6). Faith and patience are the two essential things in the daily life of the believer, steadfastly beholding the Lord Jesus, implicitly believing His word and waiting patiently for His return (Heb. vi, 12, 15; x, 35-37; xii, 1-3). Faith is not what we feel or see, but is a simple trust in what the God of Love has said of Jesus as the Just. Unsaved people cannot possibly please God (Rom. viii, 8), and only by faith and obedience can saved people please Him. By believing Gen. i, 1, with Ps. xxxiii, 6, we know how the world was made.

Abel believed that the only way for a sinner to approach God was by sacrifice and shedding of blood as taught to his father in Gen. iii, 21. Cain did not believe God, and therefore his rejection by God. Enoch was fully agreed with God in everything and was willing to bear the scoffing of the ungodly (Amos ii, 8; Jude 14, 16). Noah believed in an approaching judgment and in obedience to God prepared for it. Abraham did not consider himself nor Sarah nor Isaac impossible, but was fully persuaded that God was able and would do what He promised (Rom. iv, 19-21). The word of God concerning things to come sustained Isaac and Jacob and Joseph and the parents of Moses and Moses himself. The unseen heavenly city and the recompense of the reward were veritable realities to Abraham and to Moses, enabling the one to live as a stranger and a pilgrim here and the other to turn his back upon all the pleasures and treasures and prospect of preferment in Egypt. Daniel feared not the lions' den, nor his friends the fiery furnace, nor David the giant Goliath, because to each the living God was a glorious reality.

While many are mentioned by name in this list of people of God, we cannot but adore the grace which mentions Rahab among such as these and even associates her with Abraham in James ii, 23-25. We wonder as we read of Barak and not of Deborah, but we notice the words "and others" of verse 35 and pray for grace to be willing to be counted among the "others," though not mentioned by name. The Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas.—"After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's step-sister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get your medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ill, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

mystery of the sufferings of the saints we may not understand, but we can trust the wisdom of a God of love and wait patiently for Him to make it plain. This is our faith and patience. These all "and others" died in faith, not having received the promises, but, having seen them afar off, were persuaded of them and embraced them (verses 30, 39). I believe that the believing ones before the deluge saw more of resurrection and glory in the cherubim within the garden of Eden than many believers now see. (Write L. and K., box 216 Harrisburg, Pa., for booklet on the cherubim.) That they without us should not be made perfect seems to me to indicate that they, with us, are waiting for the manifestation of the Sons of God in our resurrection bodies (verse 40; Rom. viii, 19-21).

In the opening verses of chapter xii we are told that even our blessed Lord Himself was sustained in His sufferings by the joy set before Him. He ever lived in the love of His Father and in the glory of the kingdom of which He was always speaking and for which He is still waiting, so Paul prays in II Thess. iii, 5, that our hearts may be directed into the love of God and the patience of Christ (margin). As we consider Him at the right hand of the throne of God and remember His promise that when He comes to His own throne the overcomers shall be with Him there (Rev. iii, 21) such love and such glory should constrain us to lay aside all weights and besetting sins and live no longer unto ourselves, but unto Him alone, for "every one that hath this hope set on Him purifieth himself—even as He is pure" (I John iii, 3, R. V.). Whatever there may be to endure in the conflict, a thought of Him who endured so much for us should keep us from being weary or faint.

Mohammed's Carpet. Once a year a strange custom is observed in Cairo. A piece of carpet on which, according to tradition, Mohammed once sat and which is the most famous sacred relic of Islam is carried through the streets, and the khedive and his troops all receive it in review order and salute it as they pass. The relic is guarded most carefully at ordinary times, and the officer in charge of it each morning must salute it with his sword raised, while the bugler blows three blasts before it.

The Twelve Jurymen. A prisoner is tried by twelve of his fellow countrymen. This custom is a thousand years old, and we get it from the Vikings. The Vikings divided their country up into cantons, which were subdivided into twelve portions, each under a chieftain. When a malefactor was brought to justice it was usual for each chieftain to select a man from the district over which he ruled and compel him to try the prisoner, the verdict of these twelve men being declared by the judge to be final.

Poison in Young Rattlesnakes. Observations on live rattlesnakes show that the poison glands become functionally active as soon as the snakes begin to shift for themselves, which must be very soon after birth. Experiments on the young ones six days after birth proved the presence of venom in small quantities. Experiments made three months after birth showed that considerable venom is secreted, as a pigeon inoculated at this time died in two hours with the usual symptoms of poisoning.

May Break Great Estates.

One of the results of the war, according to reliable information, will be the adoption by the Government of a big scheme of land purchase for England such as has been so successful in Ireland.

Confronted with the twofold problem of providing employment for discharged soldiers both during and after the war and the desirability of increasing home grown food supplies, the Home Office, the Board of Trade, and the Board of Agriculture entered into consultation with the War Office and the Admiralty, and the outcome was the appointment by the Board of Agriculture of a special committee presided over by Sir Harry C. W. Verner.

The report of the committee is said to recommend extensive state acquisitions of land by compulsory purchase for the establishment on a large scale of colonies of small holders and the development of co-operative buying and marketing and of agricultural credit banks, together with a provision for a large state grant to put the proposals into operation.

MRS. PANKHURST HERE

Addreses a Large Audience in Behalf of the Destitute Serbians.

Although only a few hours notice was given of the details of Mrs. Pankhurst's visit to town, she was greeted with an overflow house on Saturday evening. The former Serbian Ambassador, His Excellency Chiddomil Miyatovich, did not come out, having an important meeting in Ottawa on Sunday, so Mrs. Pankhurst and her secretary, Miss Wickham, were the speakers, and it was with great difficulty that they were obtained, owing to train connections, and much credit is due to the ladies of the Shakespeare Club for their perseverance in the circumstances, for they had even to guarantee and obtain a special train from here to Smiths Falls, to get them on, as the ladies had to reach Peterborough for an engagement on Sunday afternoon. They reached here from Ottawa at 6 o'clock, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Sydney B. Johnson of Ottawa. The latter were entertained by Mrs. C. W. Bates, whilst the speakers of the evening were looked after by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Burgess.

The meeting opened shortly after 8 o'clock by the playing of the French, Serbian and British national hymns by the Gordon orchestra, after which Mr. Burgess in a brief address, introduced the celebrated speaker, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, of world-wide fame. The noted suffrage leader did not appear at all as what we might expect from what we have read of her in the past, but is a modest, clear speaker, and for an hour and twenty minutes entertained her audience to one of the finest addresses they have had the pleasure of listening to. She told of the dire needs of the Serbs, who have been driven out of home and home, where not otherwise disposed of by the Huns, and the terrible suffering they have had to endure through no fault of theirs. She referred to the generous aid already rendered by Carleton Place to these people, and assured her hearers that their gifts had not been unworthily bestowed, and assured them that any further aid tendered would be most gratefully received. On resuming her seat the speaker was most heartily applauded.

A musical selection was rendered by the orchestra, after which Miss Wickham, secretary to Mrs. Pankhurst, also a prominent suffragette, spoke for half an hour, recalling incidents of the war, and showing how the great struggle had drawn the people of the world closer together in the common cause of liberty and justice. Her address was also well received.

Mr. Johnson referred briefly to the work of the Serbian Relief Committee at Ottawa, and an historic meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the national anthem.

A silver collection was received at the door, the generous sum of $124.20 being placed upon the plates.

The members of the Shakespeare Club desire to return their thanks to all who assisted in making the meeting a success, the orchestra for the music, to the Boys' Club of St. Andrews for decorating the hall, to Patterson Bros. for the furniture, and others who in any way contributed.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, is sound advice, because in the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Emulsion which is a food, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness. At any drug store.

Presentation to William Barber.

Mr. Wm. Barber, who has been with Bates & Innes Limited, since they started here nine years ago, has severed his connection with the firm, and last evening the employees of the weaving room in the felt-mill called upon him at his home and presented him with a handsome mahogany rocker, and the following address:—

Carleton Place, Ont., Mar. 6, 1916.

MR. WILLIAM BARBER,
Dear Fellow Worker:—It is with much regret that we realize that our fellowship in the workroom has been severed, but we sincerely hope to retain the true friendship that has naturally grown and steadily increased while in association with you. Your conscientious earnestness and fidelity in discharging your numerous duties efficiently and consistently, in the best interests of both your employer and us as your assistants, merits our esteem. Your courtesy, your ever ready and willing assistance has not been in vain, on the contrary we can assure you that all has been appreciated, and as the years roll by, will provide us with the most pleasant recollections of your manly kindness and worth.

In whatever walk of life you engage we hope that you may be blessed with health and prosperity, and beyond these few words in expression of our feelings, we beg you to accept this chair as a token of respect from your fellow workers, with the hearty hope that you may live long to enjoy our best wishes which go with it.

Signed

Mr. Barber was much taken aback by the unexpected visit and the kind words of appreciation expressed, but soon pulled himself together and made a becoming acknowledgment.

RHEUMATISM A MYSTERY

Unless Rooted out of the System It Grows Worse and Worse.

Some diseases give immunity from another attack, but rheumatism works just the other way. Every attack of rheumatism invites another. Worse than that it reduces the body's power so that each attack is worse than the one before. If any disease needs curing early it is rheumatism, but there are few diseases physicians find more difficult to treat successfully. Wet weather does not cause rheumatism as was once thought, though weather conditions may start the aches and pains. Rheumatism is now known to be dependent upon the blood condition and medical authorities agree that the blood becomes thin with alarming rapidity as rheumatism develops. Maintaining the quality of the blood is, therefore, a reasonable way of preventing and curing rheumatism. That it works out in fact is shown by the beneficial results which follow a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich blood which drives out the rheumatic poison, and while the blood is kept in this condition there is no danger of the trouble returning. Mr. W. T. Pell, Palermo, Ont., says:—"I was attacked with a trouble which was ultimately pronounced rheumatism. Often I was barely able to crawl into bed, and seldom able to do a full day's work. In this condition I doctored for a year, absolutely getting no better. Then I consulted another doctor whose chief consolation was that unless I could get rid of the trouble I would be a cripple for life. He prescribed dieting, and I doctored with him for at least six months, but instead of getting relief I became weaker and less able to get around. Then I decided to try a doctor in Toronto, and was under his treatment for about four months with no better results. I gave up the doctors and tried other remedies which were equally futile. Then, one day our store keeper sent me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, saying, that if they did not help me I need not pay for them. I took them and then got some more and found they were helping me. I probably used $10.00 worth before I felt fully cured, but they did cure me, and were cheap as compared with the other treatments which did not help me. The cure was made several years ago, and I have not had a twinge of rheumatism since. To-day I am well and strong and I believe I owe it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Great praise was given the French troops by the British Balkan leader.

A tailor's goose can put a veneer of style into your clothes—but the beauty that is more than skin deep requires careful, skillful masterly hand tailoring—the kind that goes into made to measure clothes.

There's more hand tailoring employed in a custom made suit than in any other kind—hand tailoring is a time-honored custom method—it gives the clothes their style permanency.

Hand tailoring is just one of the advantages that custom tailored clothes provide—their styles are more distinctive and their woollens of a really worth while individuality.
