to inquire into them. The Anti-Lords Boom.

LONDON, Nov. 11 .- At the Cabinet Council on Friday the Ministry definitely decided to put the resolution for the abolition of the veto power of the House of Lords in the first place on the programme of legislation to be considered at the coming Britain sought to have the United States session of Parliament. Following this measure will come in order the Electoral Registration Bill, the Bill for the Disestablishment of the Church in Wales, and Mr. Morley's Irish Land Bill. The Government supporters are firmly convinced that it is possible to pass the anti-Lords and registration measures before the dissolution of Parliament and have instructed the party managers throughout the country to organize the agitation against the House of Lords and to arrange for demonstrations at various points without delay. The National Reform Union has arrang a series of meetings in the principal Midland county centers and the National Liberal Federation will carry on the agitation in the north and south of England.

All over Great Britain the various local Liberal associations will respond to the impetus from headquarters with alacrity, and the movement against the Upper House promises to become as enthusiastic and widespread as any reform agitation ever known in the country.

A vigorous private canvass among the wealthy Gladstonians has already realized for use in the campaign against the Lords and for election purposes nearly $1,200,000, as the Conservative papers allege.

LONDON, Nov. 11 .- Lord Rosebery, in his speech at the Lord Mayor's banquet in the Guildhall, hinted at the possibility of Prime Minister did not reveal the exact line of diplomacy to be followed to reach the desired end, but stated that it had rewould effect such an arrangement with Russia as would be counter to the French

An article which appeared in the Daily News signed "Diplomat," but known to have been inspired by Lord Rosebery, urges the settlement of both European and Asiatic difficulties with Russia and suggests the construction of extensive Russiain India, making a continuous trading connection. "Diplomat" argues that every advance made by Russia in Asia within with the most positive satisfaction. With regard to the effect upon Europe of au entente such as the one in view, "Diplomat" asserts that the Dreibund has brought the natives of the localities concerned to the verge of bankruptcy. With England and Russia friends, however, all Europe would be compelled to follow their example. The monstrous system now in vogue, he declares, cannot survive to the end of the present century. No policy such as advocated by "Diplomat," however, has been foreshadowed by dating the largest ironclads. any Government organ, and it is generally believed that Lord Rosebery grounds his plans upon the hope that the regime of Emperor Nicholas II. will be favorable to the establishment of close relations bening change" solution of the Ministerial crisis is clearing away and the people are taking a clearer view of the situation in all its bearings two distinct feelings are becoming manifest—one of uneasiness among politicians generally respecting the stability of German home policy, which there is now little doubt will be considerably modified by the advent of Prince Hohenlohe, the new chancellor; and the other a feeling of anxiety openly expressed by the mouthpieces of the Liberal party at the autocratic attitude the Emperor assumed in settling the difficulty. His action was certainly not more arbitrary than upon the occasion of the downfall of Prince Bismarck from power; but the German people hardly expected to witness a repetition of that incident within so comparatively short a period. The National Zeitung gives emphatic expression to this misgiving, and declares that the solidity of the Prussian Cabinet must be re-established if confidence is to be restored. The Radical organs are even more outspoken. The Boersen Courier reminds its readers that two chancellors, four imperial secretaries of state, and fifin a little more than six years. The Grenzboten says: "Clearly confidence in the stability of the vital principles of the Government has been weakened by recent

The most striking utterance, however, comes in the Zakunft, which, in an article printed today on the Emperor's autocratic tendency, makes a rather daring comparison between Emperor William and Charles I. of England, who was forever demanding subjects, with results to himself that will

In this connection the Zukanft remarks: Matters have come to such a pass in the German Empire that the most weighty decisions depend upon accidents and on the company the Emperor chooses to keep, and on the manner his entourage represent hospital, where Dr. Balfour attended to things to him. The citizens themselves who him. preserve and protect this German Empire and maintain the army and the court are expected to rest content, hold their tongues and be always assured that the well qualified This is asking too much."

White-Winged Peace. Events of the last few days in which officials and diplomats of Washington have participated, lead them to believe that a peace between China and Japan will be concluded at an early day. China has at last reluctantly but very fully admitted that she has found herself fully unprepared for war. Japan, on the contrary, smilingly accepts this acknowledgment of her proghow much China will concede as a basis of peace. It remains to be whether Japan will demand too much or China will yield too little, but the inclination of both powers is so strongly toward getting together that it is believed that peace will be effected on the basis of Corea's independence and a cash indemnity for Japan's war expenditures. If, however, Japan urges her demands to the extent of a cessation of a part of China's territory, the present prospect is that China will not humble her pride to this extent, but will continue to prosecute the war as best she can, relying on the bitter winter now at hand to give her a temporary respite and defense. The foregoing briefly summarizes the situation as it is viewed by Washington officials who have recently had most to do with the subject. At the outset Great and the great powers of Europe intervene. The facts as to these negotiations at Washington have not until now been made known. Cable directions from the London Foreign Office first came to Mr. Goschen, the British Charge d'Affairs in the absence of Sir Julian Pauncefote. Mr. Goschen was at the time at his summer house in New London, Ct. The subject was too important to be sabmitted to the mail, so that Mr. Goschen took the first train for Washington. He arriaved Sept. 25 and remained two days. Hesaw Secretary Gresham in person and presented Great Britain's proposition that the United States co-operate with other powers toward peace. A reply was duly given that this country would not co-operate on the ground, it is said, that the policy of the United States was to avoid entangling foreign alliances on questions in which it had no immediate concern. Under these circumstances the present negotiations do not invoive foreign intervention, but a mutual arrangement between China and Japan, to which foreign powers will give their moral support. An official of the United States State De partment conversant with the Chinese attitude says: "China no longer conceals her inability to prosecute a war. She recognizes that she was caught unprepared, and that it is the part of wisdom for her to make the most of a bad situation by getting peace on the best terms possible. She does this with the expectation and assurance that Japan will come half way. Japan began the war for the purpose, as she said, an entente with Russia being reached, The of securing Corea's complete sovereignty, This China will fully concede. It is also possible that China will pay a fair indemnity. This, however, will be in cash and ceived the sanction of the Cabinet, and not in Chinese territory, as I do not think any peace can be arranged which will permit Japan to occupy a part of Chinese Another department official presented the Japanese view of the present negotia- to secure the attendance of students and tions as follows: "Japan recognizes China's craft and she is not likely to be misled by any empty offers of peace on terms which seem to mean much and in truth mean Asiatic railways to meet the strategic lines nothing. The sovereignty of Corea is one of those empty propositions, as China has been driven out of Corea and has nothing to concede as to that country. Neither assigned limits ought to be welcomed does Japan want any Chinese territory, not not only without the least misgiving, but even the Island of Formosa, which is in reality an extension of the Japanese group. What she will undoubtedly expect is a eash indemnity sufficient to recoup her for all her war expenditure. That and the prestige of Japanese arms and the humbling of China will give the full feuits of victory.

Lack of Employment, Despendency and Bad Whisky May Have Bad Semething to Do With It,

Joseph Moisse, living at the corner of Waterloo and Hill streets, attempted suicide on Saturday night by cutting his throat with a razor. He was conveyed to the City Hospital in the ambulance, and at last reports was doing well.

Dr. Logie was called immediately, and, after dressing the wound, had the man conveyed to the hospital. The wound was about three inches long, and, of course, necessitated considerable stitching. Yesterday Moisse could not account for his action of the previous day and was at a loss to understand it. He was despondent on Saturday over his long term of enforced idleness. He is about 30 years old and has a wife and several children dependent on him. The affair happened at 6:30, and Moisse in a frenzy refused to allow the physician who was called to dress his wounds. Mayor Essery's Responsibility for Breaking the Law.

Citizens Prevented from Voting Whether They Wish to Spend Their Own Money.

The deputation secretly sent to Toronto after a secret caucus of aldermen to ask for sanction to breek the law passed at last session of the Legislature has returned, but they maintain as much secrecy regarding the transaction as has Mayor Essery, who recently signed the application to have the law set aside which he pledged the taxpayers would be observed to the letter. Here is the provision of the act passed last winter, which has been ignored by the mayor and aldermen:

"4. Notwithstanding the provisions of any act or law, but with the assent of the ratepayers under the provisions of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1892, in that behalf, the said corporation may borrow, for any period not exceeding 40 years, such sum, not exceeding $50,000, as to the council thereof may seem meet, and the moneys so borrowed shall be expended for additional hydraulic and steam pumping apparatus, repairing or renewing the sluiceway, and extension of mains, and shall be paid over to the water commissioners for the city of London for those purposes."

The money has been spent, the brickwork being done by Ald. Garratt, a particular friend of Mr. Essery, and all this has taken place in face of the stipulation, contained in the law, as stated above, which provided that not a dollar should be spent unless the taxpayers by their vote so de-

What makes the matter worse is the fact that Mayor Essery has now petitioned the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council for leave to prevent an appeal to the people and to have the money provided in some other way. He should have been the Watch Dog of the City Treasury. Instead of that he capitulates to the importunities of others, and breaks the pledge he made to the taxpayers when the law was before the Legislature. If the citizens have immediately to put their hands in their pockets and pay a large sum of money, to the expenditure of which they have been opposed, they will know who is

Bowers and his wife had repaired to the barn to do the chores, he sending her down to the creek to break the ice so that the cows might drink while he cleaned out the stables. Evidently he had had the thing planned, for as Mrs. Bowers had been previously warned by the doctor to keep a sharp lookout for suicide, she hurried back quickly and found him dangling by a plow line to a harness stake behind the horses. She screamed for help and quickly loosed the rope and pulled him to the door, breathing having suspended. Dr. McNeill, of Arva, was quickly summoned and succoeded in resuscitating him. Mr. Bowers has been suffering for over twenty years with epileptic fits, which have terminated ir epileptic insanity.

Borberg and Schroeter, the Chicagoans, Committed for Trial.

Mrs. Heching Released, But She Pities Her Comrades

And Doesn't Want to be Separated From Them-What a Detective Saw Through a Keyhole-Some Warm Passages.

Richard Borberg and Victor Schroeter are prepared to assert that the way of the transgressor is hard. They are the two young men who packed Mrs. Heching's trunks in Chicago and carried them down to the dray. The magistrate held that this was stealing, and sent them for trial for bringing the goods into Canada. "There was a time when this could be done with impunity," said Mr. Parke, in passing on the case; "but," he continued, "that time is past."
The woman was discharged, as the magistrate could not find that she had been guilty of stealing the property that she possessed jointly with her husband. The case dragged itself on for nearly three hours at the police court this morning. The aid of an interpreter was necessary to take the the evidence of Reinhart, the detective and this delayed matters. It was on this man's word that he had seen the prisoners through a keyhole helping to pack the goods that secured for them the commitment. Heching himself was a good witness and spoke out in "meetin" on several occasions. Mrs. Heching interrupted the witness several times to impuga their veracity both in English and in German. When she heard that she was free she was glad. Then she was informed that Borberg and Schroeter were committed for trial and she straightway commenced to cry and wish she had been sent down with them. "You ought to be thankful you are out of it," comforted Mr. Love. "How can I be when they are going down to that tiresome place?" answered the woman. She complained of a severe headache while the case was in progress. Borberg asked permission to say something to the magistrate, but was referred to his counsel.

HECHING TELLS HIS STORY. Heching's cross-examination was continued. The witness admitted having sold | prisoners). some of his wife's goods, but not those covered by the injunction. He sold them because he wanted some money to go on with his divorce trial. The goods were worth $4,000 and were sacrificed for $300. Witness and his wife first separated about four weeks ago, when they were living at 473 Sedwick street. He had a private detective watching her ever since. She stopped at Pretzel's house until a week ago last Wednesday, when they started housekeeping in a flat on West Division street. There was a column or so of argument between Heching and Mr. Love in an endeavor to prove that the trunks, valise and goods that his wife brought away belonged to her. Hechand fast, Heching rather amused the court by saying to Mr. Love: "You make me sick. I tell you that you must not think that I am a green-"You are easily made sick," said Mr. Love, a little later on. "Is that so," retorted Heching. "Well, I am in better condition than you are."

Mr. Love could get little satisfaction about the trunks and he turned to the wedding presents and other silverware in dispute. All the articles were claimed by the witness. They were wedding presents made by his parents and relations.

"But your wife claims some of them' urged Mr. Love. "Is that so. Then you know better than I do.

THE WITNESS WAS "SICK."

brought up from the trunks. Heching would not admit that his wife owned any of them. Those which were not wedding presents to himself were, he claimed, bought with his money.

"Is this yours?" asked Mr. Love, holding up the eighth or ninth table cover.

"Do you know where you got it?" "No," answered the witness. "You make me sick." Mr. Love-I can make fellows like you sick every time. Heching-Oh, you can? Mr. Love—Yes, sir. You talk to me outside and I will show you what I can do. Mr. McKillop-Heching, Heching, stop! P. M. Parke-Mr. Love, that won't do at he could not restrain a smile and all the court smiled with him at this wordy passage at arms. Heching induced his wife to come back and live with him about four days before she came to Canada. There was some sharp questioning as to Heching's motive for establishing his wife in furnished quarters on Division street. SHE WENT BACK TO THE FURNITURE. Mr. Love-Notwithstanding what you had sworn against her in your bill of divorce you wanted her back? Heching-Although I suspected infidelity and had witnesses to prove that she was unfaithful, I said I would furnish a flat and we would live together again.

tody of the the goods pending settlement of the case. Mr. McLean held that the table linen was dutiable and should remain in custody of the customs. Mr. Parke decided for the purposes o the trial that the goods belonged to Heching. Then Mr. Love submitted that he had a right to place Mrs. Heching on the stand to prove that they did not. Mr. A couple of armfuls of goods were Parke maintained that he could not, as in that case he would have to try the case, which he did not intend to do. The trunks he said should remain in charge of the court, and the clothes belonging to Heching's boy were handed over by consent. Mr. Mc-Lean said that he would not let the matter drop there. OTHER WITNESSES. Then the private detective, Richard Reinhart, was put on the stand, and Carl Lange was sworn in as an interpreter. The witness' detective exploits appeared to be confined to keyhole peering. In this manner he said he saw both Shroeter and Bor-berg packing the trunks.

Detective Rider gave unimportant evidence. The only thing new elicited was the fact that Shroeter walked into the police station here of his own accord on Wednesday morning to inquire of his friends in custody and was taken in. A revolver among the goods produced was identified as the property of Shroeter. The lawyers then argued their cases, and the magistrate decided as above stated.

Chicago for the arrest of the two prisoners. MARRIED TOO YOUNG. The Chicago Times says: "Fritz Brunhoff, a step-brother of Constant Heching, says his brother's troubles were the natural result of marrying too young. Mrs. Heching, he says, is a very pretty and vain woman. Mrs. Heching first left her husband six weeks ago going to live with Schroeter, who is a saloon waiter, and Borberg, a drygoods clerk. The husband found all three together in spartments on Division street, near Milwaukee avenue. A suit for divorce followed, but in the meantime Mrs. Heching affected contrition, and last week her husband took her back, fitting up rooms for her near North avenue and Sedgwick street. She remained only two days, and last week eloped again with Schroeter and Borberg, taking her child along, as well as $1,100, some silverware and other valuables, all the property of her husband, it is WATFORD, Nov. 11 .- Last week the council granted Chief Mathers a month's leave of absence and on Friday night the hoodlums of the town, to the number of about 30, congregated on Main street and made the night hideous with their drunken revelry. Snow-balling was freely indulged in, and a number of citizens passing by came in for a share of the flying missiles. Rev. W.H. Madili, who was driving in from the country, was also attacked and his horse taking fright became almost unmanageable. Several windows were broken in stores and offices. The citizens feel indignant that the town should be left without an efficient policeman, and think that all who took part in the disgraceful affair should be punished.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.-The letters of Dr. McCormick, of Richmond, and of Dr. E. A. Ros. of Portland, recently published over their own signatures and testifying to their complete cure from Bright's disease and Diabetes respectively, by the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills, have established to the satisfaction of medical men generally, that the pills do all that is claimed for them by their manufacturers. Both physicians are known as men well up in their professions, whose word can be absolutely relied on and who rarely make mistakes. The result of these letters will be an enormous sale of Dodd's Kidney Pills in Montreal.

FROM NORTHERN HORWAY

A Valuable Discovery Made in lat Far-Off Land.

The Wonderful Remedial and Nouhing Properties of Cod Liver Oil A Priceless Gift from the Land of the Midnight Sun.

There has been nothing discovereby medical science to take the place of pd cod fish a nourishment and remedial ant which cannot be supplanted by some cer food-medicine, but, nevertheless, such ine undisputed fact. How Cod Liver Oil was discovered isot definitely known. It is certain, hower, that up in the cold regions of the northe natives long ago made use of all the parof made available for food, and it is proble that the Laps of Northern Norway he known the virtues of Cod Liver Oil for century. They found that in Cod Liveril were nourishing powers not possessedy any other food or medicine within tir reach, and they were not slow to ail themselves of the benefit of a substanceo easy for them to obtain. About 50 years ago the medical worlin civilized countries became impressed th Cod Liver Oil, and by close observationad gation proved that after Cod Liver Oil as taken into the system it became an eal-sion, just as milk is an emulsion of buer. This knowledge resulted twenty years on the appearance of Scott's Emulin, which has now become a world-famedreparation. Scott's Emulsion has taken the pla of Cod-liver Oil, that is, in its raw ste. Scott's Emulsion and Cod-liver Oil a of course one and the same thing, except nat in Scott's Emulsion the taste of the cis completely disguised, and all of theobjections advanced by a nervous person ith a weak stomach are entirely overcne. Scott's Emulsion saves the digestive oans the work of converting the oil into an aulsion, but it does not result in any unnairal process of digestion and assimilation.

Scott's Emulsion aids the digestic of other foods in the stomach, and is hen passed on and assimilated in the nairal way. Anything which is either digestl or assimilated in an unnatural manner shuld be taken only on a doctor's prescription

The indorsement by physicians of Sett's Emulsion is no bombast or buncombe In all diseases or unhealthy condition in-dicated by excessive wasting, Scott's Inul-sion aids medical science more that any other nourishment. Scott's Emulsion elps a dyspeptic person by aiding the digetion of other foods, and to a person who isail. ing in health it gives increased appetit and promotes the making of solid fleshand gives vital strength. It enriches the bood, makes new lung-tissue and overcoms all wasting tendencies. In cases of inflammation of throa and lungs Scott's Emulsion has no equl in power to afford quick relief. It cure the most stubborn cough, soothes and ures sore throat, and overcomes all the arly stages of consumption.

In the wasting of the vital elements of the blood Scott's Emulsion also works wonlers. Anaemic or scrofulous persons are nade well by it, and there is restored the pure skin and healthy color.

It is almost useless to refer to Scott's Emulsion as a nourishment for babies and children. Its name is a household vord in hundreds of thousands of families where there were thin babies and childrn who were thin and pale. Babies and mildren thrive on Scott's Emulsion. It inures a healthy growth.

-The Toronto News, which has been booming Mr. Essery, now concedes that he will probably be beaten on the 20th inst.

-The Toronto News, which is opposed to the Mowat Government, accounts for the fact that our Ontario institutions cost the people less than similar ones cost in the United States by the lower prices at which supplies are purchased here, and the absence of boodling.

-One of Lord Aberdeen's declarations, just before he set out to become Governor-General of Canada, was, "Liberalism, rightly understood, is indeed the Christianity of politics." Lady Aberdeen is also a strong Liberal. But of course in Canada both keep out of political life.

-The Strathroy Age, taking up Mr. Essery's platform estimates of Mr. Essery, and judging by his appearance in that town, says that no one would ever suspect the opponent of Mr. Hobbs "of being temperate in language whatever his habits

-Sir Oliver Mowat resolutely declines to give place to Mr. Marter with his 25 followers in a House of 94. By the way, he will not even have 25 at his back when the House meets. London, West Algoma, Kingston and other places will be represented by supporters of the Government.

-The Cobourg World is amused at the assurance of Mr. Marter asking Sir Oliver to resign. It points out that Mr. Marter's followers comprise about one-fourth of the Legislature. This certainly is not the oc. casion upon which the caudal appendage will swing the canine.

-The Foresters had enough of Mr. Essery's management. What regard had he for these workingmen when he took his brethren into a law court and, as the judges decided afterwards, illegally, and then stuck them for all the costs-hundreds of dollars in amount? Mr. Fordham's letter in another column is a revelation that will open the eyes of many.

TONIGHT'S MASS MEETING.

This evening, the Grand Opera House will no doubt be crowded to listen to the addresses of Hon. Geo. W. Ross, Minister of Education, and Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture. It is years since the silver-tongued orator of the Legislature paid a visit to London, and doubtless all his old friends and many new ones will assemble to listen to him. Hon. Mr. Dryden has never spoken in London before, but Honest John has a Provincial reputa tion as an able administrator and an enter taining speaker. Mr. Hobbs, the candidate, and others will also speak.

IT RUNS AWAY.

Mr. Essery has asked to be elected on his municipal record, but the Free Press pleads that his municipal record should not be taken into account. Well may those who are asked to support Mr. Essery ask, "Where are we at?" The newspaper advocate wishes to run away from the issues raised by Mr. Essery himself, because it knows how effectively the pretensions of its new-found agent have been exposed. And the half is yet to be told.

GRAND OLD SIR OLIVER. In the occusion of t he recent visit of the Premier of the Banner Province of Canada to this city, the Toronto Star said: "We have in Ontario such a Grand Old Man if we would recognize it; a statesman with an intellect ripened and matured by experience, and with an energy which years of political battle have not made inactive. To, at 74 years, address in the most forcible manner an electorate and defend a long-lived administration is a remarkable achievement. Let party men forget their partisanship for a moment and fit and proper person to represent the city remember that Ontario has a Premier to be admired and revered.

MR. ESSERY'S "ABRUPTNESS OF SPEECH."

Our esteemed local contemporary now calls the violent personal attacks which Mr. Essery has from time to time made on nearly every prominent citizen of London, Conservative and Liberal, "abruptness of speech." Abruptness of speech is a good

Yes, Mr. Essery has been long noted for 'abruptness in speech," whether in one time attacking the leaders of both parties, as in Lambton last November, when playing the non-party role; or in making an un. manly attack at the meeting in No. 4 ward on Mrs. Thornley; or in attacking Sir Oliver Mowat; or in violently attacking Mr. Carling or Mr. Meredith. Everybody in turn has to partake of what our contemporary calls Mr. Essery's "abruptness of speech."

It is not so long ago that Mr. Essery used his "abruptness of speech," as follows, in the City Hall, respecting the whole Conservative party: "The Bible and Beer-if the Tories knew as much about the Bible as they know about beer, it would be a God-send to the people."

It is not so long ago that Mr. Essery in the City Hall used his "abruptness in speech" to make the following observations respecting Mr. Carling: "Mr. Carling is a bloated corruptionist who would load a steamer with beer and a band, and carry gentry around free and charge the expenditure to colonization roads."

Nor is it so long ago that Mr. Essery employed his "abruptness in speech" to make the following characterization of Mr. W. R. (now Chief Justice) Meredith: "Mr. Meredith is a traitor. He should not have allowed Sir John Macdonald to turn him from the path of duty in relation to Ontario's rights. He should have taken his stand for Ontario, and said to Sir John Macdonald 'Hands off, and let Ontario's property alone! Had he done that he would have been Premier of Ontario today; but he never will now if he lives so long as Methuseleh and his billy-goat combined. He has sold his birthright for a mess of pottage and must stand the consequences."

KEEP DARK' ABOUT THE ELEC-TRIC RAILWAY.

The electric street railway has not been

Hundreds of workingmen have been deprived of work this summer and fall who would have been employed if there had been a directing head of the council who could have pushed arrangements along in a

And the only excuse formulated for the man chiefly responsible for delay is that he was hampered by outsiders!

This is not a valid excuse for any one who knows all the circumstances, as the people of London generally do. The fact is that an electric railway agreement was on the eve of completion when Mayor Spencer left office, and the intelligent direction of the council would have secured an early bargain, acceptable to the whole people, long before now. That was twenty months ago, and we have had the question dawdling along ever since, while many workingmen, to whom steady employment would have been a boon, have

This is a phase of his career that Mayor Essery conveniently ignored when boasting about his management of civic affairs the other evening, at which time he endeavored to make believe that HE alone was responsible for all that had been done right during the last year or two, and his fellow-citizens were accountable for all that had been done wrong. The Free Press argues that "mum' should be the word regarding the electric railway until the election is over. But why should Mr. Essery's mismanagement regarding that enterprise, and his failure to protect the taxpayers against the illegal expenditure of $50,000 for waterworks changes, not be included in Mr. Essery's achievements? If Mr. Hobbs had been guilty of such conduct the town would be ringing with the denunciation of him. And rightly, too.

THE FORESTERS' CHARGE.

Their Extraordinary Treatment by Mr. Essery.

He Takes Workingmen Into Court, Is Beaten by Them, But He Sticks Them for the Costs.

I am a member of Court Pride of the Dominion, Ancient Order of Foresters, No. 564, in this city, and a workingman. There are many workingmen in the court who, like myself, cannot afford to lose any of their earnings. Yet we were compelled by Mayor Essery to defend ourselves in a lawsuit into which he forced us ten years ago. The case was decided against Mr. Essery in the first court. He was not satisfied with losing there, but took it to the Court of Appeal. The judges there unanimously decided that he had no business to take a lawsuit against us, and condemned him to pay all costs. Through Mr. Essery's failure to observe the rules of the order and determination to make us defend ourselves in a court of law we were compelled to spend, in law costs, $382 of our hardearned money, and this sum the judges said Mr. Essery must reimburse us. He did not pay our costs then, ner has he paid them since. We had to foot the bill ourselves. We have watched patiently for eleven years to get our rights from him, and new patience being no longer a virtue we ask our fellow-cit zens if a brother who treats his fellow-brethren in this way is a in the Legislature or anywhere else.

At the morning service in Dundas Street Center Methodist Church, Rev. Mr. Lanceley, the pastor, made an appeal to the congregation for aid to the King's Daughters in providing for the wants of the poor. The reverend gentleman highly praised the organization, which last year collected and distributed among the poor of the congregation, the poor of other churches, and the poor connected with no church at all $426. A large portion of this the King's Daughters had provided themselves. Mr. Lanceley said that old clothing would be welcomed, and could be left with the members or at the parsonage.

AN ELOQUENT DETROIT DIVINE. The anniversary of the King Street Methodist Church was celebrated on Sunday, and at both services the congregations were very large. In the morning the pastor, Rev. Dr. Potts, of Detroit, one of the most prominent palpit orators on the continent. Dr. Potts will lecture tonight in the church on "A Boy in Blue," and will relate his war experiences.

GREAT GATHERING OF MEN. Rev. Anna Shaw, who has before now charmed London audiences, talked to men only at the Grand Opera House yesterday. The building was crowded to the doors and presented a wonderful sight. Mrs. Shaw was practical in her discourse, and her eloquent voice and charming manner held the attention of her vast audience from first to last. The chair was occupied by C. R. Sayer. Excellent music was furnished by the Grand Opera House orchestra and a quartet of male voices. These Sunday afternoon meetings draw larger crowds week after week.

LONDONS THE CHAMPIONS. Was it muddy? Rather, but London's name was hardly mud.

The final match of the intermediate series of Ontario was played on Saturday on the Dundurn grounds, Hamilton, amidst snow, mud and water, with a cold wind cutting down from the west. When the London boys arrived on the grounds they found Mayor Stewart superintending a squad of men and teams engaged in clearing away the snow. Fully an hour was lost in this work, when the referee, in disgust, ordered the workmen off the field, and called the game. After this only an occasional shoveler could be seen sneaking on the field and furtively securing a shovelful of snow from a few of the little snow-palaces that decorated the grounds.

At exactly 12 o'clock the whistle of the referee sounded, and the opposing teams lined up in the following order:

LONDON. Pope (Capt.) Minhinnick rumphrey Stringer Lind A. Sippi G. Sippi dillespie Evans

Pope won the toss and elected to kick against the wind. Queen's kicked off by putting the ball well out in their right wing, but Doe Sippi secured it and managed to break through Queen's forward line, but was well tackled by Mooney. Here. the first scrimmage was formed, and the ball heeled out to Lind, who passed to Pope, but it was too juicy to hold, and several dives were made before the ball was recovered by London. After this the play consisted in a series of scrimmages, until a pass was made by Lind to Pope, who passed to Reid. Reid punted well down into Queen's territory, but the ball was quickly returned. Soon after this Queen's, by a rush and dribbling the ball, managed to secure a rouge, scoring one point. The ball was again brought into play by Pope, and by some hard play was taken down into Queen's territory, but they fought well, and managed at the call of half-time to keep London from scoring, thus leaving the score I to 0 in Queen's favor.

After five minutes' rest the teams again lined up, and before Queen's could realize that the game was on London had forced the ball well down the field, where a scrimmage was formed, and Lind passed to Pope, who kicked behind the line and secured a touch in goal-one point. After this the ball was kept pretty well into Queen's ground, and scrimmage after scrimmage was formed, with the result that Lind passed to Pope, and the latter kicked the ball twice over the tence, thus securing two more rouges for London. Score, 3 to 1 in London's favor. Here Queen's men again came on with a rush and dribble, but Skey came to the front and made a dive in a puddle of water after the ball, allowing two of the Queen's men to fall over him, when he immediately sprang up and dodging Mooney started across the leld, being followed up by the lett wings. He passed to Doc Sippi, who punted up the field. Letellier missed it and Hinhinnick intercepting the rebound, (started up the field followed by the notorious Stringer, Skey and Sharp. Minhinnick was tackled about ten yards from the goal line, | but Stringer began to push, and with the assistance of Skey and Sharp succeeded in getting across, thus securing a "held in goal"-4 points. Score, 7 to 1.

Play was again resumed and some grand rushes made on the part of the London forwards, the wings especially doing good work and only allowing Pumphrey heeled out to Lind, who passed to Reed, who punted well up the field, and the forwards following well up, George Sippi secured a safety touch-two points. Score, 9 to 1.

Here Queen's captain appealed to his men to rush forward, but it was of no avail, as the London stalwarts stood the charge, and Pope, securing the ball, immediately sent it to the fence and secured a rouge-10 to 1. The oval was brought out by Queen's, but was again punted over the goal line, and Doc Sippi, Evans and Mills forced Letellier to rouge-1 point more. Score, 11 to 1.

Time being nearly up, Queen's came with an effort to score, but the ball had not reached the 30-yard line when Walker got it and was making fast time down the field, and when about to be tackled he passed to Pope, who again punted over the goal line and secured another ronge-1 point. On time being called the ssore stood 12 to 1 in London's favor.

Capt. Pope was carried off the field amid tumultuous applause, and he complimented his team on the great victory they had won. Referee Bayly was unexceptionally decisive in his judgments. NOTES OF THE GAME.

Chenille Auminstor in Philadelphia. From the American Carpet and Upholstery

One of the most important transactions of the past month was the organization in Philadelphia of a company for the manufacture of a genuine chemille axminster by power. This, we believe, has never been attempted in Philadelphia, though handmade axminster of a creditable kind has been made here. The present patent hails from Canada, being owned and made exclusively by the Toronto Carpet Manufacturing Company, of which Mr. James P. Murray is president. Mr. John R. White. of Boyd, White & Co., is the principal organizer of the new enterprise, in the formation of which he has had during two weeks of the past month the active presence and direction of President Murray himself. The fabric to be made was exhibited at the Chicago Exposition in the booth of the Toronto Carpet Manufacturing Company on the main floor of the Palace of Manufactures. The extraordinary heft and deep pile and ingenious back of this axminster W. Andrews J. H. Percival and Stepen to examine. The award given it was the deeply interested such experts as stopped only one granted, so far as we know, to power loom chenille axminster designated as such at the exposition. This fabric, which was perfected at Toronto, is notable for its remarkable wearing qualities, for the tenacity of its pile (sweeping off being almost impossible), the unlimited range of its colors or designs and for its remarkable cheapness. This organization will be styled the White-Murray Carpet Company, its chief business being the manufacture of powerchenille axminster carpeting, rugs and mate. The rugs from this fabric are now widely used over Canada, and the makers of late have been unable to keep pace with their orders. The fabric has the same affinity for light and delicate colors that is observed in moquette, but discloses its strength quite as well in dark, rich colors. A special emblematic design in crimson, recently executed for the Toronto Athletic Ciub, is pronounced a remarkably attractive carnet.

The company has been organized on a basis of $200,000 capital, the intention being at an early date to place the requisite number of looms and to proceed at once to the weaving of goods in Philadelphia. It is presumed that Mr. John R. White will be president of the company and that the board of directors will include some of our leading capitalists. The promoters feel assured of a quick market for their product. the experimental strage having been passed

THE PREMIER OF JAPAN

THE REAL HEAD OF THE GOVERN-MENT IN THE FLOWERY KINGDOM.

How This Great Japanese Statesman Looks, Acts and Talks-His Wonderful History and How He Tried to Drive Out

the Foreigners-His Trip to London. The new Japanese Parliament is now sitting at Hiroshima, and Count Ito, the Japanese Premier, again has things all his own way. About a year ago everything was upside down, but the war has united the Japanese as nothing else could have done. This was largely brought about by Count Ito, who is, perhaps, the brainiest man in the whole Japanese Empire, and whose master mind is directing the war against China. He is the Li Hung Chang COUNT ITO, JAPANESE PREMIER. throne which passes upon measures of state policy, and which, it is whispered, is, to a large extent, the cause of the present war. Still, the world knows but little about him. He is modest and retiring by nature, and he prefers to do rather than to bluster or talk.

Count Ito's history reads like a romance. and it is closely associated with that of Count Inouye who has just gone to Corea to preside over the introduction of Western civilization in that land. The most of the story of Count Ito's life I got from himself, and the other parts were told me by an English officer connected with the Japanese Government, as we sat together one night in the Roku Meikwan Club in Tokio. It is wrapped up in the history of modern Japan, in which Ito and Inouye have been the chief actors. They came of good families, and their fathers were soldiers, and they expected to serve in the army of the Shotguns themselves. This was in the days when the Tycoon or Shotgun governed the country. He had a swell establishment at Tokio, and the Daimios and Samuria made up his army. They swelled about the country with big swords at their sides, acting very much like the "bad man of Bitter Creek," and they considered other people as having no rights which they were bound to respect. In the meantime the Mikado was kept inside the walls of his palace at Kioto, a sort of a sacred puppet, surrounded by his wives and servants Commodore Perry had made his treaty, with gunboats to back him, and there were foreign and anti-foreign parties in Japan. Among the anti-foreigners were Ito and Inouve. They thought that these pale-faced barbarians would ruin the country. They did not know much about them, but they understood they were at Yokohama, and they conspired to get up a party and go there and clean the foreigners from the face of Japan. Without letting their superiors and parents know it about 100 of them sneaked out one dark night and left Tokio to go to Yokohama. They had gotten half way when they found themselves surrounded by soldiers. They fought their way out and returned to Tokio. They soon learned, however, that the killing of the foreigners at Yokohama would only be the beginning of a great war with them. They went to the seacoast and saw the warships, as they floated in the harbor beside their Japanese junks, and they saw that Japan could not successfully fight such things on the sea. Ito and Inouye were in the service of the Prince of Choshin, who was the chief of the anti-foreign faction, and the question of how to get rid of the foreigners was discussed every-

At last the two boys concluded that the only safety for the country was in her having good ships and good guns, and they went to their Prince and told him that they wanted to go to England with three other picked youths of their band. They said that they would there study English customs, would go into the gun works and would master the great secret of naval supremacy, and bring it back to Japan. The Japanese could then build ships of their own, and they could put these guns over the country so that they could drive the hated foreigners away from their coasts. The Prince was pleased with the fdea, and he gave to them $8,000 and arranged with the British Consul to ship them to Shanghai, whence they were to go on to England.

Now, it was contrary to the commands of the Shogun for any Japanese to leave the country without permission, and they feared they would be detained, so they took a small boat one dark, rainy night and were taken on a ship just about to depart for China. It took them some days to get to Shanghai, their money having been sent on, in the meantime, to one of the big English trading-houses there, with orders to ship them to England. The orders were not very definite, and so Ito and Inouye could not speak English, the merchants misunderstood them, and when they said over and over again the only two English words that they knew "Navigation" and 'London," the merchants thought they wanted to become sailors and go to London, and instead of sending them to London as passengers, with instructions that they be sent to a good naval school, they were shipped as common sailors on a sailing ship which went around the Cape of Good Hope. They had only a small amount of money with them, the rest having been sent on by draft, and this they spent during their The English officer told me of their troubles in London. "The most of them," said he, "occurred on the day that they landed. And I venture the darkest day of Count Ito's life was when he found himself wandering through the slums of the city without a cent in his pocket. The way it happened was this: The moment the vessel reached the docks the officers and crew departed and left the two Japanese boys to take care of themselves. "They were dazed with the din and the sights and the confusion of the great city. In the centre of millions of people, they knew not which way to turn, not whither to go. The cook was gone, and the locker was shut, and there was not a bit of food to be had. They waited some time, expecting that the merchants might send for them, but after awhile they grew so hungry that they decided to go out and buy something to eat. They had $3 left, but they do not know the value of money in England. They thought, however, that this would buy them some boiled rice and a good meal of raw fish. Taking a paper with them, Count Inouye marked on it a diagram of the route as they went in order that they might find their way back to the ship, and after devious wanderings they came at last to a bakery. There were loaves of bread on the counter, and Ito, who was carrying the money, not knowing the price, laid down his $3 and picked up a loaf. He had no idea how much it was worth, and he supposed that the baker would give him some change. The baker saw he was a foreigner and swept the whole of the $3 into the till. The boys then started to go back to the ship, but Count Inouye found that he had lost the diagram. They walked the streets of London for hours, and it was dusk before they got to the wharves. They ate their bread, however, and the next day a messenger from the merchant to whom their money was consigned came for them and took them in charge. They used their time well. They spent some time in studying English manners and customs. They looked into the army and navy, and their bright minds soon grasped the fact that Japan could never make a successful struggle against such wealth, and such a mighty nation as that about them. They considered it their duty to go back and tell the Prince what they had learned.

"The two boys had some trouble in getting back to Japan, and they finally made their way into the presence of their Prince and told hin their story. It was by no means well received, for he was fighting the foreigners at the time, and his hatred of them was great.

Shortly after this time the Shogun was put down, and the revolution was organized by which the Mikado again became the real ruler of the people, and the Western civilization gradually worked its way in. In every movement toward modern progress both Ito and Inouye have been in the front, and it is due largely to them that Japan now stands shoulder to shoulder with any modern nation on the globe. Count Ito has long been the most influential and powerful of all the Japanese statesmen, and he is now pushing the civilization of which he got his first knowledge in this romantic way into the land of Corea, and there is no telling but that his ambition may be the eventual revolutionizing of China itself. He is certainly a most remarkable man, and all the diplomats who have met him speak of his wonderful ability," Count Ito is about 5 feet 6 inches high, and he weighs about 160 pounds. He is well formed and muscular. His eyes are a bright black, and not so almond in shape as the average Japanese type. His forehead is high, his nose rather thick, and his mouth, which shows through rather thin mustache and whiskers of black, is strong and yet pleasing.

Rhea at St. Thomas. ST. THOMAS, Ont., Nov. 11.—Eiywn Barron's new play, "When Bess Was Queen," was produced last night with great success. Rhea's Queen Bess is a brilliant and charmingly natural impersonation. W. Sharts, as Shakespeare, realized the popular ideal of the great poet and dramarist and delivered his lines with splendid Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 75c. bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every backage, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

TANGLED -

The arrangment for the marriage was as follows: — At half-past eleven o'c.ock, Arthur, Ellen, and Mrs. Cumberland would enter the little church by a private door, and the ceremony would take place. Richard North was to have given her away, but that was over now. Arthur held the license; he had made a friend of the clergyman, and all would be done quietly. He and E len were to go away for a few days; she would then return home with Mrs. Cumberland, and be to the world still as Miss Adair. After that, Arthur would take his own time, and be guided by circumstances for declaring the marriage; but he must, if possible, to at once introduce Ellen to his aunt, Miss Bohun.

And Ellen Adair? Not a scruple rested on her mind, not a doubt or hesitation on her heart; her father had given his cordial approbation-as expressed in the letter to Mrs. Cumberland-and she was full of peace. "Did you feel that, Ellen?" A faint, quivering breeze had seemed to pass over them with sudden sharpness, and to die away in a moan. Some white sails out at sea flapped a little, and the boats turned homewards. "We had better be going, too, my love; or we may have it upon us," She rose as he spoke, and they walked away. The sky was growing darker; the shades of evening were beginning to gather. Mrs. Cumberland had been lying down and was dressing, the maid said—if Captain Bohun would wait. Etten took off her bonnet and mantie.

"Whilst we are alone, let me see that I have not made a mistake in the size. Ellen." Taking from his pocket a bit of tissuepaper, he unfolded it and disclosed a wedding-ring. E len blushed vividly as he tried it on. "I—thought," she timidly began, "that you meant this to be my weddingring"—indicating the plain gold one she habitually wore on her right hand.

"No. Rane bought that one. This will It fitted exactly. Captain Bohun had not allowed for the probability of those fragile fingers growing larger with years. As he held it on for a minute, their eyes met. Ellen suddenly recalled that long-past day in Dallory Church, when she had taken off Maria Warne's ring for Bessy North, the after-scene in the carriage, when Arthur Bohun put the other one on, and his sweet words: lastly, the scene in the garden when he put it on again. This was time the third. "If this should ever become too small for me?" she murmured, as he took it off the finger. "Oh, but that-if ever-won't be for ages

Not for ages and ages! If, in their innocent unconsciousness, they could only have seen the cruel Fate that was already coiling its meshes around them!

The storm did not come that night. But whether, in revenge for the delay, it chose to expend itself with double violence, certain it was that such a storm had seldom been seen at Eastsea as raged in the morning. The sky was lurid and angry; the sea tossed itself in great waves; the wind whistled and shricked; the rain dashed furiously down at intervals; all nature seemed at warfare.

In much distress lay Mrs. Cumberland, Exceedingly subject of late to outer influences, whether it might be the storm that affected her, she knew not, but she felt unable to rise from her bed. The hour for the marriage was drawing on. It had been fixed for half-past eleven. The clergyman had a funeral at half-past ten; and Mrs. Cumberland had said that she herself could not be ready before that time. At a little after eleven Arthur Bohun came up in the fly that was to convey them to church. Mrs. Cumof its kind. For three years I could not berland sent to ask him to go up stairs to her; and he found her in tears. A curious sight in so self-contained a woman. 'I cannot help it, Captain Bohun; indeed I cannot. Had not the marriage better be put off for a day? I may be better to-mor-

"Certainly not," he answered. "Why should it be put off? I am very sorry for Ellen's sake; she would have felt happier had you been in church. But your presence is not essential to the ceremony, Mrs. Cum-

"Her father and mother were my dear friends. It seems as though I should fail in my duty if I were to allow her to go to church without me." Arthur Bohun laughed. He would not listen to a word—was it likely that he would do so? In less than an hour's time all responsibility in regard to Ellen would be transferred to himself, he answered, for he arould be her husband.

"The marriage will be perfectly legal, dear Mrs. Cumberland, though you do not witness it," were his last words as he went downstairs.

Ellen was ready. She wore an ordinary silk dress of light quiet color, and a plain white bonnet; such as she might have walked out in at Eastsea. There was nothing, save her pale face and quivering lips, to denote that she was a bride. To have to go to church alone was very unpalatable to her, and she could with difficulty suppress her tears.

your sake than you can be," he whispered. used as a word of terror for centuries.

Take a little courage, Eller; it will soon be Among the pains and aches cured we over. Once you are my wife, I will strive to shelter you from all vexation."

But this illness of Mrs. Cumberland's made a slight alteration in the programme. For Arthur Bohun to go out with Mrs. Cumberland and Ellen in a fly, was nothing: he sometimes accompanied them in their drives; but to go out alone with Ellen, and in that storm, would have excited the curosity of Ann and the other servants. Arthur Bohun rapidly decided to walk to church, braving the rain; Ellen must follow in the fly. There was no time to be lost. It was twenty minutes past eleven.

"Shall I put you in the carriage first, Ellen?" he stayed to ask.
"No. I think you had better not."

"My darling, you will come?" Did a doubt cross him, that he should say this? But she answered that she would; he saw she spoke sincerely. He wrung her hand and went out of the door. Had the fly multiplied itself into two flies?-and were they squabbling for precedence? Certainly two were there; and the one wet driver was abusing the other wet driver for holding his place before the door, and not allowing him to draw up to

"Arthur! Good Heavens, how fortunate I am! Arthur Bohun! don't you see me!" Every drop of blood in Arthur Bohun's veins seemed to stand still and turn to ice as he recognized his mother's voice and his mother's face. Madam, driven hastily from the railway-station, had come to bear him off bodily. That his wedding was over for that day, instinct at once told him; she would have gone to church and forbidden the banns. He stepped to the fly door. In after-life, he could never clearly recall these next few minutes. Madam spoke of the telegram that had been received at Dallory. She said—giving to matters her own coloring—that James Bohun was in extremity; that he only waited to see Arthur to die; that he was asking for him; not a moment was to be lost. She had hastened to London on receipt of the telegram, and ad now come down to fetch him.

"Step in, Arthur. We must catch the quarter-to-twelve train," quarter-to-tweive train.

"I—I cannot go," he answered.

"Not go!" screamed madam. "But I command you to go. Would you disobey the last wishes of a dying man?" Well, no; he felt that. "A quarter to twelve?" he said rather dreamily. You must wait, madam, whilst I speak to Mrs. Cumberland. There's plenty of time.'

He went in with his tale, and up to Mrs. Cumberland, as one in a dream. He was forced to go, he bewailed, but not for more than a day, when he should be back to complete the marriage. What could she answer? In her bewilderment, she scarcely understood what had happened. Leaping downstairs again, he closed the door of the sitting-room upon himsif and Ellen, and classed her to his heart. "My darling! But for this, you would have been on your way to become my wife. Come what may, Ellen, I shall be down again with n a few hours. God bless you, my love! Take care of these."

They were the ring and license; he handed them to her lest he might lose them. Before

Ellen could recover herself, whilst yet her face was glowing with his farewell kisses. he was being rattled away in the fly with madam to the station.

Warning to Young Men.

How many young men bankrupt their constitutions, squander their vitality and uin their health by pernicious practices generally contracted through ignorance. Such unfortunates are surely entitled to the tender sympathy, the noblest efforts and the best skill of the medical profession. To reach, reclaim and, whenever possible, to restore such sufferers to health and happiness is the aim of an association of medical gentlemen, who, having had a vast experience in the treatment of the class of maladies herein hinted at, have prepared a scientific treatise, written in plain but chaste language, on the nature, symptoms and curability of such diseases. The World's Dispensary Medical Association, of 663 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y., will, on receipt of this notice inclosed with 10 cents for postage, mail, secure from observation in plain sealed envelope, a copy of this useful work, which should be read by not only every young man in the land, but also by every parent, guardian and teacher having in it; bituminous coal has in it much mon the care of the young.

After shaving bathe the face wit Pond's Extract. It is healing and cooling does not smart nor sting. Reduces reness, checks bleeding. Just as it reduc any inflammation, it sends back the bloc which the rasping of the razor has draw near the surface, so leaves the face whit soft and smooth, without the shinines caused by other lotions. For this purpose far superior to bay rum, cologne or pe fumed water. Best barbers use it. Wh don't you try it?

Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons? Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher.

That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined? Do You Knew that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense? Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless? Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest? Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.
