WILL THE ASIATIC RACES ASSUME WORLD CONTROL?

Samuel B. McClure Claims White Races Must Combine to Avert Danger.

HAS STUDIED PROBLEM

Noted Editor Will Address London Chamber of Commerce Next Thursday.

Samuel S. McClure, founder of McClure's Magazine, and long its editor, will arrive in London on Thursday next, to spend some hours here as the guest of the chamber of commerce. The invitation to Mr. McClure was extended by the directors and members council of the chamber, and was accepted, the guest wrote, because he was anxious to see a city of which he had heard much.

Mr. McClure has positive ideas on what he summarizes as "world conditions today." In fact, that is the title of the talk he will deliver in the evening of the day of his arrival, in Masonic Hall, Queen's avenue. His point of view has so startled audiences in the United States, and he has so high a regard for the possibilities of Great Britain and his own country to meet the conditions which he sees, that the chamber of commerce believed London people should have an opportunity to hear him.

Briefly he holds that unless checked the Asiatic races are likely to assume world leadership, wiping out the control now held by the white men of Great Britain and the United States. He backs up his assertions with an array of facts of recent occurrences, and while disclaiming to be an "alarmist," he does put the most powerful emphasis on the statement that there must be a combination of the white races to meet the coming sweep of the Asiatics and colored peoples.

Mr. McClure's point of observation for more than a quarter of a century has been unique. For many years one of the foremost journalists of this continent, he entered the magazine field, where he continued his studies of men, politics and nations. He has traveled more extensively than almost any other journalist, and in those travels he has had unusual opportunities to meet and talk with rulers and statesmen in all parts of the world.

Of late years he has spent a great amount of time in the Far East, where he went repeatedly to obtain first hand knowledge of the events and trend of thought which have fired his imagination with the dangers of the overthrow of the domination of the Anglo-Saxon. Feeling so strongly that civilization is threatened, he has studied the problem with a view to telling how it can be preserved.

AMERICAN DEAD ARE BROUGHT TO U. S. BY BRITISH WAR VESSEL

Cruiser Dauntless Transports Bodies of Victims of Z.R-2 Disaster.

New York, Sept. 16.—The British cruiser Dauntless, bringing home the bodies of the sixteen officers and men of the United States navy who lost their lives in the ZR-2 disaster, arrived off Sandy Hook today, escorted by United States war craft. She was expected to wait outside the harbor until afternoon, and then at high tide come to the navy yard.

LARGE QUANTITIES OF CHAMPAGNE BROUGHT INTO UNITED STATES

New York, Sept. 16.—Champagne for medical use is being imported through this port at an average of more than 600 quarts a day. The latest available records at the customs house today showed imports last month were 19,476 quarts. Imports last year for the whole of the United States were 387,444 quarts, and in the pre-war year of 1913 they were 3,369,936.

MONTREAL WOMAN IS ARRESTED ON CHARGE LAID BY HUSBAND

New York, Sept. 16. — Canadian Press.—Mrs. Anne Gauthier Robin, of Montreal, 26-year-old wife of Marcel Robin, Montreal lawyer, spent last night in a cell at East Sixty-seventh street police station. She was arrested yesterday on the complaint of her husband, who alleges that she left Canada with three trunks of jewelry and valuables, the proceeds of the sale of his house, and a police dog valued at $2,000. At the same time the police took into custody Monte De Lessets, her companion on the trip from Canada. Mr. Robin claims the pair left Canada a week ago in De Lessets' automobile, when he was sent on a business trip to Massachusetts.

HATS SMASHED WHEN "BABE" RUTH CLOUTS OUT 55TH HOMER

New York, Sept. 16.—The keeper of the Polo grounds could wear a different hat every day for more than ten years if he had saved all the straws that were sacrificed yesterday when Babe Ruth broke the home run record with his 55th circuit smash. The fans were waiting for some excuse to get rid of their summer chapeaux, the season for which officially expired yesterday, and when Ruth hit his homer hats fairly rained on the diamond. A demon statistician essayed to count them after they had been raked into a pile by groundsmen, but quit on number 3,799 at dusk, with a big heap still uncounted.

ARBUCKLE WILL BE TRIED ON A MURDER CHARGE

District Attorney of San Francisco Announces That Prosecution Is Ready.

San Francisco, Sept. 16. — It was announced this afternon that Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle will be tried for murder.

District Attorney Brady announced in the police court of Judge Sylvain Lazarus that "the people are ready to proceed on the murder charge" against Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, who is held responsible by the authorities for the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, a motion picture actress.

ORDERS RESERVATION ON TRAIN TO TAKE HIM HOME TONIGHT.

Los Angeles, Sept. 16.—Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, in jail at San Francisco charged with murder, declared that he had ordered a reservation on a train to Los Angeles this evening, and that he was going back to his home, in an interview at San Francisco, published here today.

Arbuckle, according to the article, said that he intended to go back into pictures, and that the case would clear up as soon as the public knew about it. He said that there was a considerable number of people at the party whose names had not been mentioned, some from Los Angeles, of considerable importance. He said he would like to tell about it, and would give full details of the party and all the names at the trial.

He said that he could not understand why the newspapers printed so much about the case. Explaining the ordered reservation, he said that his attorneys were arranging it.

CLAIM 40 QUARTS LIQUOR CONSUMED AT THE "PARTY."

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 16.—More than 40 quarts of liquor were consumed in the party in Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle's suite in a San Francisco hotel that ended with the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, according to information given federal officers here last night by Frederick Fischbach, a member of the party, it was announced early today by Robert Camarillo, assistant United States district attorney.

Twenty bottles of whiskey, Mr. Camarillo said Fischbach told them, were taken in Arbuckle's car from Los Angeles to San Francisco, and while he was at the hotel a case of gin was taken to Arbuckle's suite by a "tall, thin man," and other liquor by "a dark stranger." Officials stated this may lead to the confiscation of Arbuckle's $25,000 automobile.

PICTURES ARE BANNED.

Toronto, Sept. 16. — "Kindly be advised that until further notice from this board all pictures showing Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle shall be prohibited from being shown in Ontario."

The foregoing notice, signed by Major A. S. Hamilton, chairman of the Ontario board of censors.

ACTOR IS DISCHARGED.

Los Angeles, Sept. 16.—Lowell Sherman, motion picture actor, guest at the Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle hotel party in San Francisco on Labor Day, was released from a contract with a large motion picture production company here, it was announced yesterday.

SOLDIERS MAY RUN CUNLIFFE AS A CANDIDATE

Chairman of Housing Commission Considering Request of His Comrades.

RUN AS INDEPENDENT

Favors Sliding Scale Gratuities and Modified Form of Protection.

Should J. W. Cunliffe decide to contest London at the coming general election it would be as a straight independent candidate, he intimated to The Advertiser today.

"Several of the returned men have approached me within the past two or three days," he said, "intimating that it was their desire that I should champion their cause in the Federal contest."

Straight Independent.

Mr. Cunliffe advised that he is reconsidering the proposal, but was unable to take a definite stand either way at this moment. He was insistent, however, that it would not be proper for a returned soldier, upon entering the field to pledge himself to any of the old parties, but he should remain a straight independent.

Modified Protection.

He announces that he is a protectionist, but realizes, he says, that the tariff "could be modified." That the returned men should be recompensed by the Dominion Government in view of the fact that the dollar a day paid the soldier during the war did not represent its actual buying power, is another of Mr. Cunliffe's strong contentions. He also expresses himself as being favorable to an increased gratuity on a sliding scale.

No Official Action.

At this moment he is chairman of the London Housing Commission, and was for some four years or more president of the local branch of the Great War Veterans. He explains that the latter body has not as yet taken any official action toward his possible candidacy, but explains that all representation made to him was purely unofficial.

WORK OF THE POLICE IS HIGHLY PRAISED

Handled the Traffic With Efficiency—Protection At Fair Also Commended.

Much favorable comment has been heard regarding the manner in which the city police force has handled the crowds during Fair week. Although thousands of autos have passed the main intersection at Dundas and Richmond streets every few hours during the past few days not a single accident has been recorded there. Sergt. John Barnhill has been doing good work at this corner, as also have the traffic officers under his direction.

At the Fair grounds the police have worked very efficiently, police and detectives co-operating to protect the visitors and exhibitors from any thieves or pickpockets who might be present. Only one case of theft was reported, and it was not long before the thieves were arrested and confessed their guilt.

R. B. BENNETT WILL RUN AS INDEPENDENT

Former Meighen Supporter Declines to Accept Nomination of Conservatives.

Calgary, Sept. 16.—It was definitely announced here last night that R. B. Bennett, K.C., would not accept the nomination of the Conservative party in West Calgary in the federal election, but would run as an independent. This was accepted as definite evidence that Mr. Bennett has refused a place in the Meighen cabinet.

GREEK CROWN PRINCE NARROWLY ESCAPES CAPTURE BY TURKS

Rusa, Asia Minor, Sept. 16.—Crown Prince George of Greece narrowly escaped capture by a band of mounted Turkish irregulars while en route to this city from the battle front early this week. A band of Turks opened fire on his automobile from a hillside, but the driver speeded up his car and the party escaped.

BRITISH SMELTING WORKS WILL RESUME OPERATIONS

London, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press Cable).—The great smelting works and blast furnaces of the Dowlais Iron Company, which have been shut down for some months, will shortly resume partial operations. This is the announcement of Messrs. Guest, Keen & Nettleford, Limited, who are owners of the plant. The management states that resumption of work will mean great financial loss to the company because of the present stagnation in construction work requiring the products of the plant. In view, however, of the great distress throughout the southern part of Wales from unemployment, and the responsibilities which the firm declares rest on large employers of labor under such circumstances, the works will be partially reopened for an indefinite period.

The business of Guest, Keen & Nettleford and the Dowlais Iron Works were the concerns in which the late Joseph Chamberlain, Birmingham's favorite son and British statesman, is reputed to have made the greater part of his fortune.

KING'S PHYSICIAN SENT TO ATTEND LLOYD GEORGE

British Premier Suffering From Chill and Neuralgia at Gairloch, Scotland.

Inverness, Sept. 16.—Lord Dawson, physician extraordinary to King George, has been sent for to attend Mr. Lloyd George, the prime minister, who is suffering from a chill and neuralgia at Gairloch, it was learned this forenoon. A dentist also has been summoned.

MUST KEEP EXHIBITS IN PLACE TILL 10 P.M. SATURDAY, DECISION

Suggestion That Some Might Be Moved Earlier Refused by Fair Board.

CHILDREN'S DAY

Attendance of City People Shows Decided Falling Off.

All exhibits must remain in place until 10 o'clock Saturday night, is the decision arrived at by the Western Fair directors at their meeting at noon today. Positively no exceptions to this rule will be allowed.

Resolutions intended to permit some deviations from this rule were moved, but finally withdraw after considerable adverse discussion. It was proposed to allow exhibitors of perishable products, such as fruit and flowers, to remove them after 8 o'clock Saturday night, but as this promised to serve as a precedent for special requests for the removal of grain and other exhibits at the earlier hour, for the purpose of showing them Monday at Strathroy and other fairs in the surrounding territory, the directors decided to make no exceptions to the rules already laid down, that everything must be left in place until 10 o'clock Saturday night.

The directors also decided to hold their daily noon-hour meeting at the usual time on Saturday.

Attendance Decreased.

That the business depression was responsible for a falling off in the attendance of city people at the fair was the opinion expressed by the president, Lieut.-Col. W. M. Gartshore, to The Advertiser. The decreased attendance on the part of Londoners, however, has been more than offset by the very greatly increased attendance by out-of-town people, so that with any kind of a crowd at all on Saturday, the attendance figures will show a fair increase over any previous year.

That the 50-cent admission has probably deterred a considerable number of working-class people from patronizing the Fair so far is another admission made by the president, who added, however, that it would not have been possible to add $6,000 to the prize list, as was done this year, had the 50-cent price not been charged on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Dog Show Closes.

With the exception of the dog show, which closes this afternoon, all departments of the Fair will be in full operation this afternoon and evening, and tomorrow afternoon and evening. An extra admission was charged for the dog show, so that actually one can see as much or more today or tomorrow for 25 cents as he could have seen Wednesday or Thursday for 50 cents.

A great many children took advantage of free admission to the Dog Show this morning. They exulted generally

NO INDICATIONS IRISH TRUCE IS TO BE BROKEN

Dail Eireann May Submit a Plebiscite at an Early Date.

DIVERGENT PRESS VIEWS

Dublin Newspaper Places Full Responsibility On Lloyd George.

London, Sept. 16.—Relations between Great Britain and Ireland today stood as they did before Eamonn de Valera came to London on July 14 to discuss with Premier Lloyd George a possible basis for ending the Irish controversy. The Sinn Fein leader yesterday made public his note to the premier affirming his stand that Irish republic plenipotentiaries could enter a conference only as delegates of an independent power, and Mr. Lloyd George quickly announced the cancellation of his invitation of Irish leaders to a parley at Inverness. It was made plain by the premier that he could meet the Sinn Fein delegates only if demands for separation of Ireland from the British Empire were abandoned, but he did not close the door to further exchanges with the republicans. Mr. Lloyd George is indisposed, and is confined to his rooms at Gairloch, Scotland, where he has been spending a vacation, and it is expected here that members of the British cabinet will confer with him before the government takes further steps. When the cabinet met at Inverness on September 8, a committee was appointed to deal with any situation which might develop as a result of exchanges with Dublin. It consisted of Mr. Lloyd George, Austen Chamberlain, Earl Curzon, Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, Winston Spencer Churchill, Edward Shortt, Robert Munro, Lord Birkenhead, Sir Hamar Greenwood and Sir Robert Stevenson Horne. These ministers left Inverness for various parts of Scotland and England immediately after the Inverness meeting, and it would take several days to gather them for a conference on the present critical situation. The British Parliament adjourned on August 19 until October 18, but Prime Minister Lloyd George announced before the adjournment that if the negotiations with the Sinn Fein broke down and the situation became hopeless, the Speaker of the House of Commons would be empowered, after consultation with the government, to summon parliament on 48 hours notice.

May Submit Plebiscite.

There was no indication here today that either the British Government or the Sinn Fein would denounce the truce arranged two months ago.

Two points made by Mr. de Valera in his note to Mr. Lloyd George were closely examined by those who were trying to determine what plan the republicans had in mind. The first was the statement: "Our nation has formally declared its independence, and recognizes itself as a sovereign state, and it is only as representatives of that state and its chosen guardians that we have authority and powers to act in behalf of our people." It was suggested that the Dail Erieann might intend to go to the Irish people with the question, and seek to determine by a plebiscite what the desires of the people are. The result of such a plebiscite would, it was pointed out, either confirm the stand made by the republican leaders, or would give them a mandate to waive the demand for separation and enter a conference with the British Government. There has been a strong party in Ireland that has been urging an election to determine the steps taken.

The other sentence which attracted attention was the one referring, apparently, to the separation of Ulster and Southern Ireland, and it was considered possible that new efforts would be made to approach the Ulster Government with a view to reaching a working agreement and then approaching the British Government once more.

The Belfast correspondent of the Press Association says the Irish News of that city prints a message from a well-informed Dublin source to the effect that the government contemplates an early reassembly of the Irish parliament. This step would be taken, it is said, with a view to declaring a general election, so that a new government might be formed which would be invested with the right to formulate domestic politics.

MURDER OF ERZBERGER PLOTTED BY SOCIETIES

Berlin, Sept. 16.—Suspicion that the assassination of Matthias Erzberger was plotted in Bavaria by Chauvinist secret societies which transferred their headquarters there, so as to be less liable to interference, was confirmed today by a statement of Chancellor Wirth before the Reichstag.

BUSINESS HAS INCREASED VERY APPRECIABLY

Declares H. C. Grout, General Superintendent of C. P. R., in Interview.

That the future may well be faced with supreme confidence and optimism was the general impression gathered by The Advertiser at noon today from H. C. Grout, general superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railroad in Ontario, and Henry Beaumont of Montreal, superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Ocean and Steamship Services. Both officials, after spending Thursday in London, departed at 1 o'clock this afternoon to attend an important conference of railwaymen in St. Thomas.

"Trade conditions comparatively are very fair," advised Mr. Grout. "Business with the road has been increasing appreciably. Although we have yet to experience our level of last year, we are all on a good way toward recovery. However, I believe that the future is bright We are at this moment, of course, handling wonderful shipments of wheat from the west."

Steadying Effect.

Discussing the highly important question of freight rates, Mr. Grout was of the pronounced opinion that the recent decision by the board of railway commissioners, that there will be no general reduction at this time, will have a decided steadying effect upon business generally. The recent reduction in rates for grain shipments will especially have a certain desirable effect, no doubt, he said.

"As in any other branch of business," explained the Ontario superintendent, "everyone is reluctant to purchase, in the face of a falling market. It is the same with the shippers. They were holding on as long as possible, in the case of non-perishable goods, expecting and hoping, as many did, that there would follow a general immediate

W. O. EXPORTERS ARE IN CONFERENCE HERE

H. W. Vaughan Addressed Meeting On Export Conditions and Facilities.

Members of the Exporters of Manufactured and Natural Products opened their second annual meeting at the Tecumseh House today. Between 40 and 50 members from points in Western Ontario were present.

H. W. Vaughan, a director of the Thomas Meadows Company, Limited, the well-known shipping and forwarding agents of Montreal and St. John, addressed the meeting on facilities afforded by a firm of general shipping and forwarding agents.

The members are holding the meeting to try and stimulate export trade of Western Ontario.

Many of the members of the local chamber of commerce, and also of the boards of trade in Western Ontario are attending the meeting.

TWO LANGUAGES USED AT KIWANIS LUNCH

Probably the first bilingual meeting of any prominent organization ever held in London was the Kiwanis luncheon program in the Tecumseh House at noon today. The addresses of District Governor E. J. l'Esperance and District Secretary Fred Cornell of Montreal, and of the other speakers, were delivered in English, while the meeting was conducted in very excellent French by the chairman, T. H. Yull. The meeting was closed by singing "O Canada," and three rousing cheers for the Montreal district officers. Musical numbers were contributed to the program by Rev. T. S. Roy and George Lethbridge.

The weekly drawings were won by Howard Cromer, J. J. Hunt, Gordon Bridgman, Kenneth Murray, in the order of the prizes. The attendance was probably the largest in the history of the local club.

ASK RECOGNITION AS UNION.

Berlin, Sept. 16.—The National Association of German Housewives has asked the Prussian Parliament to recognize it formally as a labor union, but the request was denied when it was learned the organization's constitution had failed to specify whether the housewives were employers or employees.

The rejection of the request disclosed differences of opinion among the members of the various branches, some asserting that women who did their own housework were employees, while housewives having maids or other hired help were employers.

SEND APPEAL TO ASSEMBLY.

Halifax, Sept. 16.—An overture presented by the maritime branch of the Presbyterian Association of Canada, asking that the matter of church union be referred to a vote of the entire congregation, will be sent without approval or disapproval to the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church of Canada by the maritime synod.

WANTS AN EXPERT TO PASS ON ROOFS OF PINE LAWN HOUSES

City Clerk Baker Writes to Housing Director.

HIGH-PRICED SHINGLES

Who Will Pay For Necessary Repairs, Is Burning Question.

City Clerk S. Baker has written to J. A. Ellis, of Toronto, provincial housing director, requesting him to send an expert on roofing to inspect the roofs of the dwellings erected for the London Housing Commission on Pine Lawn. This action is in accordance with the wish expressed by members of the commission at Thursday's meeting.

The question now arises who will pay for relaying the shingles on these roofs if such is found necessary by the inspector. The contractors declare that they purchased a carload of cedar shingles at a high price, but were prevented from laying them on the roofs by Architect McBride, who ordered rubber roofing. They now have the shingles on their hands, and have suffered a financial loss because of a subsequent drop in price.

In view of this fact some members of the commission are of the opinion that the contractors should not be compelled to bear the cost of relaying or repairing the roofs, and that whoever the blame for this state of affairs rests upon should be required to stand the expense entailed.

Civic officials declined to make any statement today for publication on the admissions that the Pine Lawn roofs are unsatisfactory, declaring that such action would be unwise until after the result of the inspection is announced.

ADVISES CO-OPERATION TO REPLACE COMPETITION

Newcastle, N. B., Sept. 16.—Addressing a meeting here last night of farmers of Northumberland, Gordon Sharpe of Woodstock, N. B., secretary of the United Farmers of New Brunswick, emphasized the necessity of substituting co-operation for competition. He also urged co-operation as far as possible with the Labor party. It was decided to call a meeting of the executive board of the farmers for the purpose of making final decision respecting the selection of a candidate for the coming federal elections.

FREIGHT RATES BIG FACTOR IN CATTLE TRADE

Live Stock Men Are Cautious About Expressing Opinion On Lifting of Embargo.

COSTS $57 A HEAD

Some Stockmen Anticipate Higher Prices For Cattle Will Result.

Freight rates will be the deciding factor as to whether it will prove profitable to ship Canadian cattle to the old country, now that the embargo on Canadian cattle is likely to be lifted. This was the general opinion of stockmen who are showing at the Western Fair this year.

Several of the men interviewed were rather cautious about expressing an opinion, stating that they would sooner wait for developments before finally making up their minds. The whole thing would appear as a matter of experiment in the minds of many.

John Jones of Delaware, thought that the lifting of the British embargo would undoubtedly help the eastern farmer at least.

Higher Prices.

"It will mean higher prices for our cattle," he said, "and will help both the beef and dairy farmers. Freight rates will likely be reduced, and we will have the advantage of another market."

James L. Robson, former reeve of London Township, did not think that the lifting of the embargo would mean much difference in the price the farmer actually received for his cattle, either on the hoof or as chilled beef.

Costs $57 a Head.

He pointed out that at the present time it cost about $57 to lay down one animal in Britain. He figured ocean space at $30, feed on ocean $10, another $10 at a British port for handling, $2 for insurance, and attendance, and $5 embarkation charges. "This is but a modest estimate," said Mr. Robson.

"Stockers today," he continued, "are worth about $70, making the cost laid down in Britain to the nglish buyer about $127. You can lay about seven dressed carcasses in the space occupied by one live animal.

Need Freight Reduction.

"Frankly, unless freight rates are materially reduced I do not see where the Canadian farmer is going to benefit, while the western stock raisers will not be able to compete at all.

"The Englishman, so I am told, likes his beef fresh-killed, and the small butcher in the small English town would prefer to buy from an English farmer rather than make a trip to London or Liverpool for Canadian stuff, and most of them like to see what they are getting.

"It will mean that the big packers in England will buy practically everything, just as they do in Canada today. I had to ship a carload of cattle to Toronto at the beginning of the week, because the London butchers refused to buy, stating that they bought all their meat from the packers. This means that the consumer must pay for the freight to Toronto and back, and give the packer his profit.

Shipped at Profit.

"Outside of the English buying some high-class breeding stock here, I cannot see where the ordinary Canadian farmer is going to benefit. It is logical that a certain number of dairy cows will be shipped to England. Prices, I believe, are much better there, and I think that they could be shipped at a profit."

Mr. O'Neil of Denfield, who with his brother is showing Herefords at the fair, thought that the lifting of the embargo would be of great benefit to the industry, but would make no further comment.

Capt. Tom Robson of London, who is a renowned judge of cattle from coast to coast, stated to The Advertiser this morning that the matter of benefit was indeed a problem.

"It may possibly mean that the good stuff will find its way to England, while the Canadians will be forced to buy the remaining poor quality stuff," he said. "If the freight rates are lowered it may benefit Canadian stockmen, but just at the present time I cannot see where the benefit comes in."

Plans to Encircle Globe in Aeroplane

Ottawa, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—The first round-the-world trip by aeroplane is contemplated by Sir Ross Smith, the British airman who last summer successfully negotiated the flight from England to Australia. The starting date is not yet announced, but it is understood that the trip is to be made before the winter sets in. He will use a special type of machine of amphibian design, allowing for alighting with equal facility on land or water. The route is to take in Canada, from British Columbia to Cape Breton.

Starting from England, the line of flight will probably be Middle Europe, Mesopotamia, India, China and Japan. Thence northward across the Bering Sea to Alaska. Sir Ross will come into Canada from Wrangel, Alaska, on the northern boundary of British Columbia. In this conection the Canadian Air Board has mapped out, at the request of Sir Ross Smith, a combined seaplane and aeroplane route across the Dominion, from Kadiak Island, Alaska, to St. Johns, Newfoundland. The first Canadian stopping point will be Prince George, then Edmonton, Moose Jaw, Winnipeg, Fort William, Sault Ste. Marie, Montreal, Fredericton and Sydney, a total distance of 3,755 miles over Canadian territory. The stages will average 400 miles each. The air board has given Sir Ross particulars as to landing fields available at each point, as also notes as to repairing, refueling and housing facilities at each place.

The air board has also supplied an alternative route to the south after arrival at Winnipeg, taking in as stopping points St. Paul, Chicago, Pittsburg and New York, then north again to Yarmouth and Sydney.

HOUSING COMMISSION ASKS FOR INSPECTION OF ROOFS BY EXPERT

Architect Admits Shingling On Pine Lawn Houses Is Bad.

A decision to request J. A. Ellis, provincial housing director, to send an expert on roof construction from Toronto to inspect the roofs of dwellings erected for the London Housing Commission on Pine Lawn was reached at a meeting of the above body held on Thursday afternoon. The report of Commission Architect McBride in reply to criticism of the houses erected under his supervision by Provincial Housing Inspector E. W. Hammett and Building Inspector A. M. Piper, was laid over to be dealt with after the roof inspection, to be requested from the Toronto official.

Architect McBride admitted that the roofs of the Pine Lawn houses are not laid properly, and suggested two means of making them satisfactory. One manner of fixing them up, he said, would be to relay the shingles, while the other method would be to patch the leaks with cement.

Still Leaking.

"The roofs, I understand, are still leaking," commented Vice-Chairman D. J. Tallant.

Architect McBride replied that there are two or three leaks which have been overlooked, but that there is not nearly as much trouble as experienced after the big July storm.

"They are leaking now without the storm," said Commissioner Tallant, to which the architect replied that he is doing his best to check up the leaks.

Commissioner Tallant then moved that the roofs of the 42 houses be relaid, to which Commissioner Dennis added, "We certainly want these roofs satisfactory. Relaying is drastic, but if it is necessary it must be done. We want good roofs, as the present ones are not satisfactory."

Motion Carries.

The motion of Vice-Chairman Tallant was not seconded, E. R. Dennis then moving that the provincial housing inspector be requested to send along a roofing inspector as outlined above. His motion was seconded by R. Hessell, and carried by the commission.

3. It is understood that if the report of this inspection warrants same, relaying of the roofs will be ordered.

Architect McBride explained that the absence of medicine chests, picture moulding and drains in the houses were minor and left to his discretion, being sacrificed in the interests of other extras and economy. Similarly, paper under the roofs was omitted. He declared that they were not omitted in the original specifications because "original specifications are not customary to be altered for extras."

Not in Minutes.

"I fail to find anything in the minutes showing that authority was granted to leave these things out," said Vice-Chairman Tallant. "Why submit specifications entirely different to those the contractors worked on?"

"I have explained that in my report," answered the architect. "It would look nice to change the original specifications, wouldn't it?"

"I notice you changed some of them, but it was not anything that you were giving us," retorted Mr. Tallant. "It was what you cut out."

Knows Building.

"I think you are quibbling on small things because you are not familiar with building, Mr. Tallant," interrupted Commissioner Hessel. "I know a little about building."

"Yes, you know it all!" said the vice-chairman warmly.

"You won't listen to an explanation," continued Mr. Hessel. "If you will listen to the contractors and architect you will get somewhere."

"Don't you think that the commission has a right to ask about these specifications?" queried Commissioner Tallant.

"You question the liability of other members of the commission," suggested Hessel.

"I do no such thing," retorted Tallant angrily. "I never questioned the liability of anyone but the architect, and I ask the chairman to make you retract that statement."

Asks Calm Discussion.

"Let us discuss this thing calmly," pleaded Commissioner E. R. Dennis.

"What I object to is cutting out medicine cabinets and drains when they are in the specifications," said D. J. Tallant. "It looks like two sets of specifications." The architect denied that two sets of different specifications existed.

"If these are the real specifications we must abide by them," opined Chairman Cunliffe.

"What I understand by Mr. Tallant is that there should be no two sets of specifications," explained E. R. Dennis. "He is quite right in his contentions."

"I cannot see where we can leave out what's in the specifications unless authorized to leave it out," said Tallant. "It ought to be in the minutes."

Some Changes Made.

City Clerk S. Baker then recalled a meeting of the housing commission "where some changes were made in the types of houses used, reducing the cost."

E. R. Dennis, "Where do we stand now?"

Architect McBride, "There are some little things to be done yet."

E. R. Dennis, "Is it customary, Mr. Piper, to make changes in the specifications?"

"No," replied the building inspector, "No important changes like that are made, such as leaving out drains, without consulting the owner."

"What about the roofs and shingles?" asked the chairman, "Are they equal to the Brantford or not?"

"The contractor says they are," replied Mr. McBride.

"Are they laid right?" queried Chairman Cunliffe.

Not Properly Laid.

"No, they are not laid properly," said the architect. "I admit that." Mr. Cunliffe then produced narrow-headed shingle nails, which, he said, were replicas of those used to hold the composition shingles in place and blamed them for the leaks. He added that he personally inspected the roofs where these nails are exposed. A decision was then reached to solicit the services of a provincial inspector.

Chairman J. W. Cunliffe and Vice-Chairman D. J. Tallant were deputed to attend the Ontario Town Planning and Housing Convention in session at Toronto, October 31, next, as representatives of the commission.

PRICES ON LOCAL MARKET INTEREST VISITORS TO FAIR

Farmers Do Not Spend All Their Time at Grounds.

The prevailing opinion among citizens in general is that their country cousins on arriving in London to attend the Western Fair make a beeline for the grounds and spend the entire day taking in the sights.

However those farmers who regularly attend the city market can tell a different tale. Both market days this week they have been "pestered" with inquiries as to the various prices of fruits and vegetables from those interested in these lines from outside points.

"What do you get for your Reine Claude plums?" one fruit-grower asked.

"Eighty-five cents a six-juart tasket," was the reply.

"Just what I get," came the triumphant rejoinder. "I come from Blenheim, and sell my fruit in Chatham, and plums are going fine there right now. I have tons yet to pick.

"You're in luck, then, for plums are about over here," said the London man.

"Yes, I know I am. Last year I couldn't get rid of my crop, but this year there is no trouble.

"Fair week is always the poorest week in the whole market year," one vegetable grower told The Advertiser. "Outsiders throng the market asking prices, while the city people are too busy to attend, so you can see that sales are practically null and void.

"Furthermore, we don't look for a big day this Saturday, because the people will simply not have the money to spend, and a draggy market will result. I am always glad when the Fair is over."

RETIRING COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS "CANED" BY HIS ASSOCIATES

Presentation Made to C. E. Elliott by Customs House Staff.

Charles H. Elliott, who recently retired as collector of customs for the port of London, after fifteen years' valuable service in that capacity, was the pleased recipient on Thursday of a handsome gold-headed walking-stick, a gift from the members of the customs house staff.

The presentation was made by George Tyler, following an address by "Barney" McCann. The retiring collector replied briefly, expressing his appreciation. The esteem in which the retiring collector was held by his former associates may well be realized by the following extract from the address:

"Throughout your connection with this port you have always identified yourself with every movement in its interest. You were foremost to hold out a helping hand when help was needed, and have contributed largely by precept and example to the feeling of good fellowship and comradeship that has distinguished our branch.

"It is in recognition of your many fine personal qualities, as a testimony to your worth as a man, that we ask you to accept this gift as a remembrance from the staff here, and we ask you also to accept with it our warmest wishes for the many happy years to come."

Visitor to London Was Taking No Chance of Trouble.

An amusing story is said to be current in local police circles today of how a visitor to the fair yesterday protected himself against a possible O. T. A. charge.

Evidently knowing the record of the London police for finding bottles in places where they ought not to be, the visitor, whose home is in Ingersoll, was taking no chance when he visited the Western Fair.

Using the one stone to kill two birds he seized upon the occasion to secure a quart bottle of whiskey at the Government's dispensary by means of a prescription, which he thoughtfully obtained before he left hom. But what to do with it puzzled him. He wished to spend the day at the fair, but he could not leave the bottle in the car without the risk of a heavy fine, and, as everyone knows, when a bottle is carried on one's person it creates an exclusively shaped hump. Then a bright idea dawned upon him. He drove to the police station, and penetrating to the very heart of the enemy's camp he said to the officer in charge: "Sergeant, I have a parcel which I wish you would keep for me until I return tonight." The obliging officer, asking no questions, locked it away.

Near midnight the man again appeared before the desk, and the bottle was returned to him. Just to prove that he knew by instinct where liquor is to be found, one of the policemen called out as the man was leaving, "There is no hootch in that parcel, is there?" When he was answered in the affirmative he said: "Ah! Bring it here. We have some glasses."

But the visitor retorted, as he hastily left: "I have a car out here. You drive home with me and you may have all you want."

The sergeant smilingly admits that it was the first time in his knowledge that anyone had played the game so safely.

DYNAMITE CAPS FOUND IN POSSESSION OF TWO MEN ARRESTED BY POLICE

Prisners Plead Guilty to Theft Charges —Remanded for Sentence.

Flenord Hutchinson, colored, of Chicago, and Henry Badwell of Winnipeg, each pleaded guilty to three charges of theft preferred against them in police court this morning, and were remanded a week for sentence. Dynamite caps were found in their possession.

They pleaded guilty to stealing a club bag, bulb and claw hammer, valued at $15, from D. J. McKinnon; an alligator wrench, cast-iron wrench and stove bolts, valued at $4, from Fred Rawlings, and three wrenches, valued at $1.50, from William A. Lawrence. All thefts were committed at the Western Fair grounds, where the prisoners were employed.

On account of the dynamite caps found, it was decided to inquire at Winnipeg and Chicago as to their police records. Inspector of Police Thomas Lucas and Constable William Middaugh arrested the men.

Scalped Fares.

Two London and Port Stanley Railroad conductors, who reside in London, pleaded guilty to stealing money from the company during July and August. They had been giving passengers slips for fares and turning in vouchers to the company with less mileage than was recorded on the corresponding slip given the passenger, and pocketing the difference, Crown Attorney J. B. McKillop, K.C., stated. Both men were remanded for sentence.

DE LUXE PIANO TONE

Superb in architectural design as are the pianos bearing the name of Ye Olde Firme, Heintzman & Co., Limited, 242 Dundas street, London, after all the great charm of these pianos is the tone and touch which has won the praises of many of the world's greatest artists. It was because of its beautiful tone, more than anything else, that Tetrazzini placed an order for a piano for her own home in Italy, and the same reasons prevail with Melba, who had a Grand piano shipped to her home in Australia for her personal use. A piano is something that is not bought for a day, and it hardly needs the suggestion that any reader who is thinking seriously of placing a piano in their home will find the greatest satisfaction in the purchase of a Heintzman & Co. piano. b

WANTS AN ASSISTANT

E. W. G. Quantz, Supervisor of Music in Schools, Declares Duties Heavy.

E. W. Goethe Quantz, supervisor of music for public schools here, will recommend to the board of education that an assistant to him be appointed as soon as possible. He informed The Advertiser today that his duties are becoming too onerous, and that under present conditions each public school class is limited to one music lesson per month.

Asked whether the assistant should be male or female, Mr. Quantz replied that it would be a matter for the board of education to decide, and that in so far as he is concerned, a suitable assistant of either sex is desirable. He pointed out that he experiences difficulty with first-grade pupils in getting their voices attuned to his during lessons, owing to the depth of the latter's tone, and for this reason intimated that he might be inclined to favor a lady assistant.

Mr. Quantz also declared himself in favor of free music lessons to public school children who show ability to learn the intricacies of violin and piano-playing.

SERIOUS CHARGES PREFERRED.

CIVIC OFFICIALS NOT ANXIOUS TO HAVE ANY SALARIES PUBLISHED

Commissioner Pocock of P. U. Also Condemns the Proposition.

GIVES HIS REASONS

Questions Whether Business Men Who Signed Petition Are Public Spirited.

Civic employees do not take kindly to the petition presented to No. 1 committee of the city council Tuesday night asking that their salaries be published in pamphlet form. The petition was signed by several businessmen of this city. In addition to arousing the wrath of the civic servants, the petition has been condemned by Philip Pocock, one of London's most prominent wholesale merchants, a member of the London Railway Commission and public utilities commission.

"The wages paid by the different private organizations to which I belong and which are all progressive, and the wages paid by the public utilities will bear a very favorable comparison," Mr. Pocock informed The Advertiser today. "These gentlemen signing the petition say that they want public business conducted the same as a private concern. I want to ask them if there is any private corporation which will publish the salaries of its officials and employees.

"If such a step is not good practice in private, why is it good in public? Good feeling is desired in both with no heartburnings necessary. It is quite all right to publish the total amounts spent on salaries in each department, or a committee could be appointed constituted of responsible men to investigate the salaries. The gross amounts could be taken and compared with any other organization doing an equal amount of business."

Let Them Come Out.

"If these petitioners are so patriotic, why do they not come out for public office? I am in public office because I am trying to be public spirited. It is their duty to come out. I do not know who they are, but are these gentlemen rally public spirited?"

"I would like them to compare the hydro power situation in London with other cities. We are paying $5 per horsepower more than Toronto or Hamilton, which is $20,000 more for 12,000 horsepower. We are absorbing the difference in first cost and selling the power for lighting and domestic purposes for the same rates as Torntoo and Hamilton."

"This is being done by good management and by cutting our cloth better with more economy. I say the same of the waterworks department. Rates here spring water are less than those paid for filtered water elsewhere. Toronto and Montreal consumers buy spring water. How can a man say we are not running things well?"

"Compare our parks costs with Hamilton or Toronto or other cities. The proof of the pudding is the eating. We have a surplus today in the public utilities of one million dollars invested in the extension of our plant. It is a very profitable investment of nearly two million dollars, while our total liabilities are less than $700,000."

"I am speaking for the city departments with which I am conected," concluded Mr. Pocock, who is a director of two banking concerns, and one large manufacturing concerns, acting president of another factory, a director of an insurance company, and a member of the board of governors of Western University, in addition to public offices which he holds.

Names of Petitioners.

The petition was favored by No. 1 committee members, who recommended to the city council that the desired information be published. It appeared in The Advertiser last Wednesday, and was signed by T. F. Kingsmill, E. D. Young, H. Ashplant & Sons, John E. Thomas, James Cowan, Harry S. Mara, John Graham, W. J. Clark, H. Line, John Garvey & Sons, John Jones, W. E. VISITORS AT THE FAIR. — General Superintendent H. C. Grout, of the Ontario lines of the C. P. R., accompanied by H. Beaumont, a representative of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Steamship Service, were visitors at the Western Fair on Thursday as the guests of Lieut.-Col. W. M. Gartshore and John Weld. The two officials were very much interested in the splendid exhibits, and were exceedingly surprised to learn that the Western Fair attracted so many people.

reduction in rates. I believe that now that the final decision has been awarded by the commissioners 'the air will be cleared.' The shippers need not now fear to ship large quantities of their products at a certain rate, and then subsequently witness any big drop."

Track Improvements.

A big program of track improvement has been outlined for the eastern lines of the Canadian Pacific, Mr. Grout intimated, although the London division will hardly be affected to any great extent in this one respect until 1922, he believes. Work has already commenced from Montreal west, and the present rail is being systematically replaced with 100-pound steel. This will be first completed as far east as Smiths Falls. Then the project will be extended from there west through Toronto and London to Windsor. It is the company's intention to continue the task on a straight line, and not here and there at intervals. In this way the district west of Toronto will not be reached for more than a year.

In the meanwhile, however, he advises the work of local improvement will be maintained throughout the district as has been continued despite the period of depression. Extensive rock ballasting is being undertaken at this moment at various points throughout the system.

Wanted to See Fair.

The superintendent was an interested visitor at the Western Fair on Thursday and declares that he included London on his tour this time as much for that purpose really as anything else. It was a splendid exhibition in his opinion, he says, but he was inclined to believe that the grounds were slightly inadequate to hold such big crowds. "The park appeared rather congested to me," he explained, "but then again that may also be regarded as a good sign."

Comparing the price of admission with the Toronto fair, he admitted that although perhaps the fee to enter the grandstand in Toronto was only a quarter "it entailed waiting in line three or four hours, and then eventually forfeiting another substantial sum to get a seat."

More Hotels Needed.

Mr. Grout was reluctant to express his own opinion as to whether a union depot would be suitable for London or otherwise, explaining that, although he had glanced over some proposed plans seven or eight months ago, he had taken no active interest in the question.

"What London does need, however," he volunteered, "is more hotel accommodation. It is not London alone that lacks in this respect, either. I have concluded by my visits throughout the Dominion that what most Canadian cities require is proper hotel facilities for the traveling public."

He was particularly interested in London's proposed skyscraper hostelry, and trusted that the project had not been dropped.

Business Remarkable.

Henry Beaumont of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services was likewise optimistic relative to the future. Business in his department has been remarkable, he said, under the circumstances, and he also like Mr Grout, anticipated an appreciable improvement generally in all branches of trade and industry.

He discussed the immigration problem briefly, and was emphatic that the exemption regulation rule was rigidly adhered to. This refers to the two classes of immigrants that the Government allows to enter Canada without the minimum sum of $250, the prospective domestic servants and farm laborers. He was very skeptical as to the different reports that mechanics and others posing as farmers had been coming into the Dominion in large numbers. He added that close watch is maintained on immigrants even after they have been placed at their respective destinations.

This afternoon Mr. Beaumont will read a paper on ocean and steamship traffic before the gathering in St. Thomas. Superintendents, station agents and other officials of the western district will attend this meeting today.

"RALPH CONNOR" WILL VISIT CITY SHORTLY

Many lovers of the "Sky Pilot," "The Man From Glengarry," and "The Sky Pilot of No Man's Land," will be delighted to know that their distinguished author, the Rt. Rev. Dr. C. W. Gordon (Ralph Connor) of Winnipeg will visit the city at the end of this month on his official round as moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly. While in the city he will address the local presbytery on September 20, and will probably speak at a public meeting on the evening of that day. One of his chief duties while in London will be to officiate at the induction services at the First Presbyterian Church on the evening of September 29, when Col. William Beattie, D.D., C.G.M., will become the pastor of the church. Col. Beattie and Ralph Connor were closely asssociated in the chaplain service overseas.

CIRCULAR LETTER IS SENT TO CITIZENS

Chamber of Commerce Takes Preliminary Steps in Campaign For Members.

As a preliminary step in a strenuous drive to be undertaken by the local Chamber of Commerce during the next few weeks to increase its membership and to strengthen its position generally in the community, the following circular letter signed by its president, John Bridge, has been sent out to the citizens of this city:

"Dear Sir,—Plans have been adopted and preparations are under way for an expansion of the London Chamber of Commerce. The period for which the chamber's membership was originally pledged will expire with this month.

"All who appreciate the importance and the necessity for maintaining an efficient promotional agency for the community will wish to renew their support. More than that is desired, however. We should not be content with renewing the present membership, but every effort should and will be made to expand the organization so that there will be no element in the community without representation within the body.

"Decision to strengthen the organization is in response to a definite need. We want to make the Chamber of Commerce more serviceable to you. Especially we want to give you opportunity to be of greater service to your community.

"The London Chamber of Commerce is going to be, as in the past three years, a great big progressive organization of the most modern type as to form and operation. Carrying out the wishes of the members will continue to be its outstanding characteristic. Service by and for all the people of London's community all the time will be the sum of its accomplishments.

"This is a serious effort to continue to build along permanent and effective lines. With the hearty support of every citizen whose present and future are tied up in London, we can begin at once to capitalize a new era of prosperity.

"The board of directors urge you to give this matter your serious consideration. We need your assistance to maintain in London the right kind of a Chamber of Commerce; we ask you to join with us in making London a better place in which to live and do business."

LATE MARKETS

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Sept. 16.—(Wall Street, 10:30 a.m.)—The uncertain trend of prices at the active opening of today's stock market indicated further divergence of speculative sentiment. Baldwin, Studebaker and Reading one-point gains, but Baldwin promptly reacted under pressure. Fractional gains in Mexican Pete, General Asphalt, Crucible Steel, General Electric and American International were offset by heaviness of Royal Dutch, National Pacific, St. Paul, preferred, Texas Pacific and specialties comprising the rubber, chemical and copper divisions.

1:30 p.m.—Call money's decline to 4½ per cent at noon coincided with a broad demand for steels, equipments, motors, shippings and specialties. Crucible, Republic and United States Steels advanced 1½ to 2¼, and American Locomotive, Studebaker, Mercantile Marine preerred and Atlantic-Gulf 1 to 2 points. Oils, tobaccos and sugars also hardened. [Reported by Jones, Easton, McCallum Company for The Advertiser.]

At 9 o'clock last night, just before the G. T. R. flyer arrived from Toronto, a lady at the depot called Walter, at phone 4100, for a city taxi to meet her. She was nervous because she had not ordered it before. Walter said, "Don't worry, lady, just stey out at the back of the depot and wait two minutes please." The city taxi was there. FIVE MORE ACTIONS SET DOWN FOR THE SUPREME COURT HERE

Eight Civil Actions Now On Docket Include Two For Seduction.

Eight civil actions, including two cases of alleged seduction and one for alimony, have been set down for the supreme court session which opens at the courthouse on September 26. Five were entered today.

Minnie Spieran is suing her husband, Hartwell Spieran, for alimony and interim alimony. She claims that they were married November 17, 1920, and had a daughter. She says that she has been a good and lawful wife, but that he has refused to support her and the child or to provide a home for them since January. She is now boarding.

He denies the allegations, stating that prior to the time that his wife went into Bethesda Hospital he supported them, and has since offered to do so, but that she has deserted him. J. M. McEvoy for the plaintiff; McKillop & Douglas for defendant. This is the second non-jury case entered, and the only one set down today.

Wage Case Re-Entered.

The case of Louis Wort vs. Frances Wort, has been re-entered on the jury list. The plaintiff claims $5 a week for keeping house for her father, the defendant. She says that in all $1,350 is due her for five years' work. Her claim is that after her mother died, the defendant requested her to keep house for him and his sons, and promised to pay her. She says that the only remuneration she received was board and lodging.

The defendant declares that the plaintiff did not reside at his house as a housekeeper, and that she retained the money received from boarders and roomers. He says that if she was there in any other capacity it was as one of his children. J. W. G. Winnett for the plaintiff; Buchner & Ramsay for the defendant.

Suing Stepmother.

Walter Earl Scott is suing his stepmother, Eliza Scott, for possession of house No. 790 Hamilton road, for damages for wrongful withholding, and for rent for the time occupied.

He claims that he purchased the house and lot from his father, and that the defendant has been residing on the property. He claims that he wanted possession of the house, but that the plaintiff refused to vacate. He served her with a notice to do so. He further states that there has been no lease or no arrangement for occupation, and that she has not paid any rent.

The defendant claims that under an agreement with J. Scott, the plaintiff's father, that she was given possession of the house during her lifetime. She says that the plaintiff purchased the property having full knowledge of the defendant's estate and lands. J. W. Winnett for the plaintiff, Meredith & Meredith for the defendant.

Suit For Damages.

Samuel Mendelsohn, by his next friend, Louis Mendelsohn, and the latter, are suing the Columbia Handle and Lumber Company and W. J. Allen for $2,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been received by Samuel Mendelsohn.

The plaintiffs claim that in September, 1920, W. J. Allen was driving a truck for the defendant company, and invited the plaintiff, Samuel, to go to the country for a load of lumber. During the trip, it is alleged, the defendant asked Samuel to get out of the truck and go to a railroad crossing to see if a train was coming. After he returned and was about to get on to the truck, he claims, Allen negligently and carelessly started the car, causing a wheel to run over Samuel's foot. The plaintiff claims that he was in the hospital more than three weeks, and was permanently injured.

Allen denies the claim, and says that he was not responsible for the plaintiff being injured. The Columbia Handle and Lumber Company also claim that they are blameless. J. W. G. Winnett for the plaintiffs; J. M. McEvoy for Allen, and E. W. Scatcherd for the company.

Alleges Seduction.

John Alexander Robinson of Newbury is suing Thomas Edward Pound of London for $10,000, claiming that he seduced his daughter, Annie Pearl, of whose last will and testament the father claims to be the executor and sole devisee. He claims that in April, 1920, Pound seduced the girl, and that a child was born in December.

The defendant denies the allegations, and also claims that the plaintiff has not any status to bring action, as the deceased was 30 years old and had been making her way in the world for a long time.

Brackin & LaMarsh of Chatham, for the plaintiff; A. O. Jeffery, for the defendant.

MUST KEEP

over the wide variety of dogs shown, and debated with great zest and interest among themselves over the various kinds and breeds of dogs. It was noticeable, however, that three out of every four children were boys. Had it been a cat show, possibly the girls would have been more interested. But the girls who did take the trouble to visit the show were delighted with the great number of fancy and toy dogs, the Pomeranians, Pekinese, spaniels and small terriers.

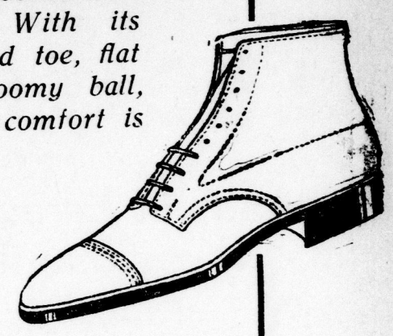

Towards noon the attendance was noticeably increasing today. With the exception of Monday, Wednesday and Thursday there have not been any great crowds on the grounds before noon this year. But from 12 o'clock on the crowds grow larger and larger. There is every prospect of today's attendance making a new record for Friday, and the automobile races on Saturday quite possibly will make the attendance tomorrow one of the largest days for this year's Fair.

Harry Thompson has delighted thousands of Western Fair visitors at Queen's Park by singing Canada's latest song hit, "Lord Byng, Canada Welcomes You," before the grandstand during the afternoon and evening performances.

ATTENDANCE AT FAIR PLEASES THE DIRECTORS

President of Board Expresses Satisfaction Over This Year's Achievements.

AUTO RACES SATURDAY

Midway Will Remain in Place Until the Very Last Minute.

Thursday, the sixth day of the Western Fair, measured up to the high standard maintained on the previous days in all departments. The turnstiles were estimated to have clicked 35,000 times, more or less, during the day. Although the attendance figure is a little below that of Wednesday, the directors were well pleased, for it compares favorably with the corresponding day of the 1920 exhibition.

President Satisfied.

The president, Col. W. M. Gartshore, expressed himself as being well satisfied by this year's achievements, and specially with the efficient manner in which everything has been handled. Secretary A. M. Hunt expressed a similar opinion.

During the afternoon and evening the grandstand performance and the C. A. Wortham shows were the main attractions for the amusement-seeking crowds. The Wortham shows estimate that there were over 50,000 paid admissions to their midway shows during Thursday. The 50,000 mark was almost reached on Wednesday.

On a par with the big diving girl show and the motordrome as attraction is the Verne Tantlinger's Tex-Mex Wild West show. Tantlinger is a former government scout, who worked with Buffalo Bill in the Indian frontier wars. He has gathered together the cream of the cowboys and horses of the west. Among his talent is Lulu Bell Parr, champion woman bucking horse rider.

Dare-Devil Riders.

The high diver, at great personal risk, has held her audience spellbound numerous times daily by diving from a dizzy height into a shallow tank. The girl riders in the motordrome also caused crowds to gasp as they performed their dare-devil stunts. Of equal daring is one of the male riders, who defies death by riding above the safety lines on the perpendicular part of the saucer arena. "Bill" Floto, who is press agent for the shows, is also a good entertainer, keeping the visitors in good humor wherever he goes.

The poultry and live stock exhibits can be removed if the exhibitors so desire, but every other attraction must remain in place until closing time Saturday night.

Today and Saturday a special posing act will be presented before the grandstand by Y. M. C. A. boys, under the able direction of experts from Brantford.

The dog show is wide open to children today, no fare being charged them to see one of the best collections of canines ever gathered together at one time on the continent.

Automobile Races.

On Saturday afternoon automobile races will be an added feature of the exhibit. This in an attraction well worth seeing, and in itself worth the price of admission to the grounds and stands.

Police protection will be afforded exhibits until Monday at noon. The grounds will be closed all day Sunday, but city police will be on guard.

The midway will be in place until the curtain is rung down on the 1921 exhibition on Saturday night. The shows will leave early Sunday morning for Allentown, Pa.

Directors and other officials of the Fair are satisfied that this year will keep up the record of other years in surpassing the quality and patronage of the exhibitions of the previous one. All signs pointed to this yesterday, and with today and Saturday expected to beat by far the records established on these days previously, Western Ontario's big annual event will have passed another milestone in its history.

Many Newcomers.

One of the outstanding features of this year's exhibition is the large number of newcomers in the cattle business who are showing their prize stuff for the first time. Although some of them did not get very high in the prize money, they were all greatly encouraged, and promised to make it warm for the big fellows at next year's fair.

The Advertiser man wandered down through the cattle sheds yesterday, and had some interesting conversations with the various exhibitors. He was shown the grand champion Hereford bull, Brae Real XIII., who has yet to meet defeat in the show ring. Owned by McNeil & McNeil of Dutton, he was the junior champion at the fair in 1919, and the Canadian-bred champion and reserve in 1920. Brae Real beat the grand champion of Toronto Exhibition here this year.

Prize-Winning Herd.

Brae Dale, another member of the herd, took second money at Toronto and second money here. Clara Aberdeen took first prize for 3-year-old Herefords.

Roy and Malcolm McNeil, who own the herd, have been in the breeding business for the past six years, but last year was their first appearance with animals in the show ring. They have taken five firsts, five seconds, three thirds and two fourths at the Western, and old-timers predict for them a successful future in the Herefords.

O'Neil Bros. of Denfield are showing ten head of Herefords and took seconds and thirds mostly. Their small brother came 12th in Wednesday's calf competition. They are going to show at the Guelph and Royal show in Toronto this winter.

Junior Reserve Champion.

B. Blackburn from the Burncrest Stock Farm, Uxbridge, Ont., is a newcomer at the Fair. Although he has been breeding Aberdeen Angus cattle for some time, he did not feel that he had real quality stuff until this year, and he has reason to feel quite satisfied with his showing. Mr. Blackburn took third on a 2-year-old heifer, third in the senior yearling heifers, second on junior calf heifers and first on junior reserve champion on a senior bull calf.

Herd of Champions.

James Bowman of Guelph took the majority of prizes in the Aberdeen Angus breed. Every one of the sixteen animals shown by Mr. Bowman was in the prize money. Mr. Bowman's cattle took all the female championships, junior, senior and grand, and won the senior and grand championships at Toronto Exhibition.

The Advertiser congratulated Mr. Bowman on winning so many prizes. "I got a reasonable share of them," he replied. "There is a lot of good stuff being shown this year by everybody."

"Why did you pick on Aberdeen Angus?" Mr. Bowman was asked.

"Usefulness without waste," he replied. "They are, I think, the best producers of the very finest quality of baby beef. What more need I say?"

RUGS AND DRAPERIES

THE cost of a rug or carpet is not the price you pay for it—it's the price divided by the number of years you use it. Good rugs and carpets are not expensive—far from it. They are the less expensive, and as years go on and they give you the satisfactory service, keeping the brightness of their color and the closeness of their weave, you will grow to love them as you would any other good friend who serves well.

Then, too, there are the draperies for your home. Many a beautiful home has been a decorative failure because of the fact that the furniture was not in harmony with the hangings. We have a corps of experts, both in rugs and draperies, men whose experience has given them an expert knowledge of their particular field, and they will be very glad, indeed, to assist you in every way to make your selection to the best advantage.

You can afford to buy good rugs, but you can't afford to buy poor ones. Come in and let us show you the reason why a good rug is an investment, and just what the right kind of draperies will do to make your home one of charm and distinction.

Political Tribalism.

Dr. Michael Clark, M. P. for Red Deer, has made a decided stand for progressive government free from the trammels of the group system. He asserts that there is nothing new in the idea of group government, and cites examples of its failure in the past. He says: "There seems to be only one method of working out human affairs in the political sphere. The apostles of progress must unite upon common principles, sincerely held, to resist reaction which is ever present, like a dead weight, to drag down the aspirations of the race for freedom, justice and democracy."

No one will quarrel with Dr. Clark's dictum that "the apostles of progress must unite upon common principles," and it will be noted that in this he agrees with the "broadening out" policy of Premier Drury in Ontario. To reverse this principle, or, in other words, to narrow things down, has been proved by history to lead to forms of tyranny far more formidable and infinitely more detrimental to the liberties of the people at large than the rule of despots. The liberties of the people can never be secured by throwing them into the hands of one particular section, and the only class consciousness which will be indorsed by posterity is the consciousness of the democracy to oppose privilege and injustice, and to maintain at all times the freedom of the masses.

Quite recently Lloyd George drew attention to the tendency of the so-called principle of self-determination towards tribalism, and all the endless strife and bloodshed which tribalism involves; why, then, should we have tribalism in politics? for this is really what is involved by the group system carried to its logical conclusion. It is perfectly legitimate for any section of the community to "keep its end up" in any legislature, and to see that no injustice is done to any class, but it is an outrage against the canons of liberty and fair dealing for any particular unit of those intrusted with the framing of laws for the governing of the people as a whole to thrust itself forward as the main object for consideration. Political tribalism would in the long run arise as formidable as racial tribalism, and so chaotic would parliamentary procedure become that no progress would be made in anything that really mattered.

After all, reaction is the greatest enemy of progress; progress is the alter ego of Liberalism, and Liberalism can make little headway against reaction unless it presents a united front; neither can any group or section move out of its own particular rut unless it adopts a broad outlook and follows Liberal principles. There must be no Family Compacts upheld. The apostles of progress must unite upon common grounds to resist their common enemy.

International Court Judges.

Among the judges of the international court of justice of the League of Nations, North America is only represented by one man, John Bassett Moore of the United States, while South America has three representatives, namely, Dr. Ruy Barbosa of Brazil, Dr. Alexandro Alvarez of Chile, and Dr. Antonio S. de Bustamente of Cuba. From this it is quite evident that the appointments have not been based on the populations of the various countries concerned, but on a desire to represent each country as far as possible.

But it will at once be observed that Canada is unrepresented in this international court, and the fact that Sir Robert Borden and Mr. Moore were tied in the first ballot shows very clearly that the assembly of the league voted on the basis that North America should not be entitled to more than one representative. Probably this has arisen from a view similar to that advanced by President Harding in issuing the invitations to the forthcoming disarmament conference at Washington, that the sending of representatives of each of the overseas dominions would give the British an undue preponderance in the discussion of the problems at issue.

The representative of Great Britain chosen by the assembly for this important position is Viscount Finlay of Nairn, a former lord chancellor, and one of the most eminent jurists and publicists that the country has ever produced. As Sir Robert Finlay he was for many years member of Parliament for Inverness burghs, and successively held the offices of solicitor-general and attorney-general. Although in his 80th year, Viscount Finlay is a man of remarkable vigor, and will doubtless prove himself eminently capable in the post to which he has been assigned. His visit to Canada is still fresh in the memory of those who had the privilege of listening to his views on various international subjects.

It seems a pity that Canada has not the honor of furnishing one of this international body, and the fact that the United States, which is not in the League of Nations, should have had the preference, will at once occur; but it must be borne in mind that Australia, South Africa and India have each a claim in this direction, and this consideration probably had some weight with the assembly.

Lord Kitchener.

Lord Esher's book on "The Tragedy of Lord Kitchener" throws new light on the life of this great soldier. It is not the tragedy which was enacted in that terrible storm in which the Hampshire went down that Lord Esher refers to, but the tragedy which overshadowed Lord Kitchener's life when he was so unexpectedly called to the War Office to organize the British forces for the great conflict, which only ended after upwards of four terrible years.

The main feature of the tragedy of Kitchener was, in the estimation of Lord Esher, his inability to adapt his experience of desert warfare and fighting with colored and semi-savage tribes to the colossal task of carrying to a successful issue the Armageddon in which Britain became involved. True, Kitchener had work to do in the South African war, but as Lord Roberts' right-hand man and chief of staff his part was a very different one from that which he was called upon to play when the kaiser's hordes broke loose.

Another drawback to Kitchener's efficiency as the guiding hand which directed the organization and equipment of huge armies was his advancing years. He was a much younger man than Roberts; but Roberts did not feel his age, and Kitchener did. There is a considerable amount of truth in the statement that a man is only as old as he feels, and nothing saps vitality and undermines efficiency so much as brooding on the idea that youth has been passed, and the sere and yellow period is in sight.

Lord Kitchener was essentially a thinker and a planner, if not a brooder, and when he was so suddenly called upon to preside over the War Department, he had no time to collect his thoughts; but one thing at once struck him like a flash, and that was the fact that the war would last at least three years, and that preparations would have to be made accordingly. No other man had his clearness of vision in this respect, and if for no other reason that he could see this far ahead, and that the very magic of his name could cause men to flock in thousands and even millions to the defence of their country, Kitchener will be remembered as the outstanding personality of the greatest struggle that humanity has ever seen. He wept at Gallipoli; were he alive today he would weep that the great sacrifices which have been made have not yet borne the wished-for fruit—the securing of the world's peace for all time.

ENGLAND'S SURPLUS WOMEN.

[Vancouver Sun.]

The people of the British Isles are agitated just now over the fact that their women outnumber their men. They visualize a great problem in the situation, and fear that the faminine preponderance may give the sex a numerical pull of two million over the men.

Of course woman's status in England is not the same as woman's status in Canada. True, English women have the franchise, but they gained it only after a long and bitter fight. Women have only recently sat upon the bench in England; here we have had women magistrates for years. We even have women cabinet ministers in Canada.

If the people of the British Isles would cast aside the antagonism between the sexes, and open up the doors of every activity to their women folk, the "problem" would disappear. As it is, industry, nursing, medicine, teaching, missions are all absorbing women.

Here in Canada women are awakening to their power and their influence. When they have fully awakened it will be all the better for Canada. And England, too, will benefit when she realizes that her women are not a menace, but a great dormant power for good.

POST TENEBRAS LUX.

The following poem by John M. Gunn, barrister, of this city, appears in the September number of The Canadian Bookman:

"Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning:

All night I battled with besieging fears
That thronged upon me with their poisoned breath;
I grappled fiercely, hand to hand, with Death;
I staggered 'neath the weight of all the years;
I cried aloud to deaf and heedless ears,
"Is there a power can make my anguish cease?
Has light gone out for me, and hope and peace?
Is life one dark, sepulchral place of tears?"

Then morning dawned; the birds began to sing;
The dank night mists rolled guiltily away;
The sun smiled down on fields that laughed with glee;
And when my fearsome ghosts had taken wing,
I rose to bear the burdens of the day,
And faith and strength and courage walked with me.

LETTERS

IN HONOR OF PAUL PEEL.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

The enthusiastic reception accorded the group of paintings by Paul Peel at the exhibition in Queen's Park is not only an expression of unerring appreciation for achievements of permanent beauty, but a gratifying and deserved tribute to the praiseworthy judgment and effort through which they were secured. The educational function of collections of distinguished pictures in cultivating the general artistic taste is quite beyond computation, and is one of the most valuable and wholesome services rendered by the fair. What I wish particularly to urge is that the Paul Peel group shown has been an impressive reminder that London has yet to do herself proud by making provision for a more tangible recognition of a son of the city who by his natural gifts and acquired enrichment of skill, earned imperishable fame in the world of art. His canvasses are to be found ranking with the best examples of modern painting in some of the great national galleries, and in the distinguished collections of private connoisseurs. In no other way could London more fittingly express an acknowledgment of his genius and inspire others who are worthily following in his footsteps, than by the acquisition of a representative group of his work as a nucleus of a local art gallery. His paintings have reflected world-wide distinction upon the place of his boyhood and parentage, and if there has been a lamentable tardiness in the past the time is surely long over due for a manifestation of public spirit and loyalty to his name and his achievements.

OTHERS' VIEWS

THE POWER OF THE LIE.

[Vancouver Sun.]

Down in the Southern States lies have been responsible for much rioting and loss of life. A few weeks ago two or three women in Memphis rushed to the police with tales of being assaulted by negroes. Scores of innocent colored men were seized by the police for identification and Memphis came very near to having another race war. As it happened, these women a few days later admitted that their stories were false. One said that her assailant was a white man. The other said that her account was a pure fabrication.

They had deliberately lied, purely for the purpose of causing a little sensation.

A lie, or an exaggeration, as it is sometimes politely called, is a dangerous thing. There is no such thing as a harmless lie.

By the law of cause and effect, every statement, seriously or carelessly made, has a definite and inevitable reaction.

The white lie is just as powerful as the black lie, and sometimes may do twice as much harm. Diplomats have on historical occasions thought it their duty to lie. That kind of diplomacy is out of date. It has failed.

Frankness, truth and a willingness to face facts are the factors of success in any field today.

THE PUREST NATURAL LIGHT.

[W. P. Eaton, in Harper's.]

The scientists tell us that the firefly's light is the purest in nature. Almost all other sources give forth a mixed form of energy that is only in part illumination, to the human eye, at least. But the firefly gives forth light, and nothing else. An ordinary gas flame, for instance, contains but 3 per cent of light rays. Sunlight itself is only 35 per cent pure. It is no wonder, then, that many a child has discovered that when a firefly crawls over a book in the dark you can read the type behind him, provided he is accommodating, and you read rapidly. The illumination is said to come from a photogemic plate of fatty substance supplied with a profusion of fine tracheal branches, which carry a rich supply of oxygen to the fat cells and cause, at the insect's will, a rapid combustion. Probably it is fortunate for the firefly that this combustion does produce pure light, and not 45 per cent of heat waves.

There are two theories to explain the reason for this luminosity. One finds the explanation to be an aid to sexual attraction, the other a defence against birds and other insect-eating foes. It is certainly true that birds will not eat fireflies, and, after one attempt, will not thereafter even snap them up. The firefly, as he flits about over the meadows and through the trees, may well be protecting himself by his constant golden flashes. "Don't gobble me by mistake," he says. "I'm no good to eat." If he is attempting, rather, to attract the female of the species, he certainly would seem one of the most amorous of God's creatures.

GOLF.

[Calgary Herald.]

It is natural that golf should take a great hold upon the people of Canada. We are decidedly an outdoor people, winter and summer. The outside world hears of our winter weather reports as house-locked, seeking warmth. How false this picture is, Canadians and a constantly growing host of winter visitors know. The snow and ice of our winter we convert into vehicles of splendid pastimes, and tobogganing, skating, skiing and snowshoeing make it a time of splendid and exhilarating sport. Then comes the Canadian summer—a season, usually of medium heat, in the west, marked by long hours of sunshine and light. Golf then comes into its own. It is the ideal individual game. To the old it offers its joys as well as to the young. The former are not so energetic, but more thoughtful and patient, possessing perhaps more of the golf temperament, and while age may have to give way to youth when the visible prizes of the games are distributed it reaps equally the rewards that golf gives in other ways—play in the open air and the sunshine, the pleasant companionship of friends, the zest of competition, exercise not too strenuous. It is a game that yields its secrets not readily to any who seek them, and it plays no favorites among the rich or poor; the man of great strength and size has no advantage over his smaller competitor who is able to keep his eye on the ball and make a clean stroke.

THE ARBUCKLE CASE.

[Bay City Times-Tribune.]

The threatened expose of motion picture practices which may follow the arrest of Roscoe Arbuckle will do this great industry no good. The people who have placed their faith in the motion picture art will reluctantly have their confidence shaken. If certain members of the profession have been riding to a fall, and if this is the time of the fall, a vast amount of American admirers of screen artists are going to be rudely shaken. The sham of the whole business will be brought to view.

Arbuckle, who is best known as "Fatty," has done his full share in keeping the American people in good humor. He has laughed and they have laughed. He is the last person in the world who would be thought to be capable of committing the crime of murder. As the public knows him he is a great big, roly-poly human being who laughs at anything and sees humor in everything. The general impression is that he never knew a serious moment in his life. In Michigan and elsewhere the pictures in which Arbuckle appears have been ordered off the screen temporarily. If he cannot establish his innocence miles of film will have to be thrown into the scrap heap.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL MOMENT.

[Providence Journal.]

The phrase "psychological moment" had its origin in a German newspaper in 1870. Discussing the proposal for bombarding Paris, then undergoing a siege, a German military critic wrote that "in all considerations the psychological moment must be allowed to play a prominent part," French wits caught it up, demanding to know "what German pedantry is this? Who ever heard of a 'psychological moment'?" They turned it into a derisory catch word; it crossed the English Channel, and in due time the Atlantic. Such is the outline of its history, from the origin to the arrival of psychological moment" on our shores. It is pointed out that psychology relates to the soul or mind, and that to apply it to a moment of time is nonsense. All this is informing and interesting. On the other hand, half a century of "psychological moment" seems about enough to suggest that the psychological moment has arrived for dropping it.

THE SILVER LINING

By Fullerton Waldo.

WORK AND WAGES.

To think of the pay you ought to get ahead of the work you are to give for it is putting the tonneau before the motor.

Creation's cry goes up on high
From age to cheated age;
Send us the men who do the work
For which they draw the wage.

Your pay isn't yours till you've earned it—till you've delivered the goods.

The hireling going through the motions with his eye on the clock will never be anything but a hireling.

The chief salesman of a big concern in Buffalo is getting about three times as much as a certain other man in the plant who fills a clerkship.

Said the salesman to the clerk: "Why don't you get out into the shop once in a while and meet the men and study the processes and get to know what the company is putting on the market?"

But the clerk looked at him bewildered. "Why—that's not in my line. It isn't my work," he said. He went back to his desk ruffled and indignant.

The game of life for him was that childish pastime, "Still pond, no more moving."

He didn't want to learn. He didn't care to progress. He didn't mean to do a stroke more than he was paid to do.

I knew a young man whose father owned a coal mine. The son took no interest in it. His ambition was to become a tennis champion. He told me with an air of pride that he had never been down in the mine.

The clerk who intended to do no more than he was paid for and the young man who intended to do nothing because his father was rich are types that must give place at no distant day to those that "do the work for which they draw the wage" and are ever on the alert to see how they can make themselves worth more by doing more.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

(Copyright, 1921, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

NO. 67—THE KING WHO VANISHED.

Strictly speaking, James de la Cloche, natural son of the Prince of Wales, who later became Charles II. of England, and a mother who was said to be Margaret de Carteret, was a near-king, rather than a king, but his unexplained disappearance is one of the riddles of royalty which has puzzled historians for more than three and a half centuries.

De la Cloche, which was the self-assumed name of the son of Charles II., was recognized by that monarch as his son, for there are existent records which tell of the expenses incident to the boy's education in France, and of an annuity of £500 bestowed upon him by his royal parent, an annuity which at that time represented far more than the $2,000 or so which it would mean at the present day. In addition, Charles II., in the course of several letters, assured De la Cloche that he intended some day publicly to recognize him as his son, and to secure for him the full enjoyment of the benefits which the patent of royalty conferred, even going so far as to hint that the boy might be made the heir to the throne, as Charles and his Queen had no children.

Meanwhile, however, the King of England imposed the seal of secrecy upon his son, for political reasons, but the youth broke this when he confided the story of his parentage to Queen Christina of Sweden, whom he met at Hamburg, and also when he visited the Pope at Rome. In spite of the fact that Charles II. was a Catholic at heart, it was politic for him to appear publicly as a Protestant, and his annuity to James de la Cloche was made dependent upon the latter espousing the Protestant faith—an injunction which was broken when James went to Rome, for, shortly afterward, he not only became a Catholic, but entered the Jesuit order of priests. Here again we find proof of his paternity, for in the Jesuit archives at Rome is a letter from Charles II. to "our honored son, the Prince Stuart, dwelling under the name of Signor de la Cloche."

Late in 1668 the young prince, disguised and under an assumed name, went to London, where he confidently expected to be declared the heir to the British throne, provided he severed his official connection with the Church of Rome. But Charles II. had other plans in mind. In the first place, he did not feel that the time was ripe publicly to announce his parentage of the unknown heir, and, secondly, he desired to have the benefit of a private messenger between the throne of England and that of the Pope. Accordingly De la Cloche was put off with further promises of future favors, and intrusted with a message to the Holy See, stating that Charles II., the Duchess Henriette of Orleans, and Louis XIV. of France had agreed to combine against Holland, with the view eventually to restore Catholicism in England.

De la Cloche left London. That much is certain. But he never arrived in Rome, as is clearly indicated by the records of the Vatican and the statements of historians of his day. Somewhere en route he disappeared, vanishing completely, never to be heard of again save in the wildest of rumors or speculations.

Some maintain that the imposter Giacopo Stuardo, who appeared at Naples shortly after De la Cloche's disappearance, was the son of Charles II., but this is disproved by the fact that the real son of the King of England would have no reason for posing as other than he was, particularly as he confidently entertained the hope of one day being ruler of England. Other commentators hint that Charles himself, fearing the reaction which would follow his recognition of an illegitimate son and his formal adoption of the Catholic faith, saw to it that the young man was made away with, and there are several who see in this theory a possible explanation of the mystery of the "man in the iron mask." According to this solution of the two riddles, Charles II. appealed to Louis XIV. to help him out of his difficulty, and the Grand Monarch had De la Cloche kidnapped and sent to Pignerol, whence he was later transferred to the Bastille when M. de Sainte Mars was made governor of that prison. This, of course, would explain the fact that the masked prisoner was undoubtedly of royal parentage, but, like the disappearance of De la Cloche himself, the precise explanation of the entire affair must remain concealed behind the veils of royal intrigue and official mystery.

POETRY AND JEST

TO A STRAW HAT.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Good-bye, old top! Thy faithful service ended,
I now consign thee to obscurity;
No longer wilt thou lend security
To this bald pate, which thou has oft defended
Against the sun's hot rays. And of a surety,
To judge by grime-besmeared maturity,
Thou hast me well and loyally befriended.
Old pal, through sunshine and through cloudy weather,
At funerals, dances, picnics, bathing beaches,
On fishing trips, excursions, baseball bleachers,
You and I have suffered much together.
Next spring, if still possessed of health and reason,
I may draft thee to serve another season!

GRACE NOT NEEDED.

Henry had always been kept up to the scratch in the matter of grace at meals, and no exception was made when he was taken to a restaurant for tea one afternoon.

After they had been served, Henry's mother said: "Now say grace, Henry."

Henry looked up in surprise.

"But," he objected, "we're paying for this, aren't we?"

MOTHER.

[From an Old Fifth Reader.]

Often into folly straying,
O, my mother! how I've grieved her!
Oft I've heard her for me praying,
Till the gushing tears relieved her;
And she gently rose and smiled,
Whispering, "God will keep my child."

She was youthful then, and sprightly,
Fondly on my father leaning,
Sweet she spoke, her eyes shone brightly,
And her words were full of meaning;
Now, an autumn leaf decayed,
I, perhaps, have made it fade.

But, whatever ills betide thee,
Mother, in them all I share;
In thy sickness watch beside thee
And beside thee kneel in prayer.
Best of mothers! on my breast
Lean thy head, and sink to rest.

NONE IN STOCK.

The Sub (very junior)—"I want one of those dogs about so high, and about so long. A sort of greyhound; but it isn't quite, because its tail's shorter and its head's bigger, and the legs aren't so long, and the body's thinner. Do you keep that sort?"

The Dealer — "No, sir, I don't. I drowns 'em."

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

THE FASHIONS

INDOOR ACTIVITIES CLAIM ATTENTION.

With the reds and golds of autumn abroad in the land, the less hardy of us put away our golf clubs or our racquets, carefully fold away the summer sports clothes—provided there is enough of them left to fold—and place them in the cedar chest to rest for the season, while we give attention to the fall social activities that are sure to claim our attention before we are prepared to meet them. Preparedness, it seems, has its meaning for individuals as well as for nations, and if one would avoid embarrassment, preparedness begins with one's wardrobe.

Dinners, dances and theatres hovering in the offing, with invitations to attend coming our way, last years' evening frocks don't seem quite equal to the stress of another season, and besides, beginning the social activities with an old evening frock, is much like getting up the wrong way in the morning—it starts the day awry, and the season is not exempt.

The Fuchsia Shades in Evening Frocks.

The fuchsia colorings certainly dominate the evening frocks. However, there is such a wide range, and the colors shade from the deep dahlia tones to the most delicate orchid, one may choose a becoming color tone and wear it with an unusual amount of personal gratification, knowing, as one must, that both the color and style show up the wearer to advantage.

The little dance frock sketched, was made of satin ribbon, having a full skirt of alternating satin ribbon in light and dark fuchsia shades on a net foundation, there being a panel of silver lace at the front, and a sleeveless V-shaped bodice of purple net, the waistline belted with a silver ribbon.

The combination of fuchsia and silver is adorable, and particularly striking for evening wear. One must remember, however, to have the hem of the net, a trifle longer than the skirt foundation; for while skirts are fluctuating between long and short—there is a vogue for making them seem longer, by breaking the actual hem line.

The Spanish Type Again.

One model designed for evening wear seen recently was a full-skirted black net, distinctly Spanish in type, having red silk flowers appliqued at intervals over the skirt, and also the mantilla drapery worn with it. It was made longer than many of the garments in the same group, and the flower embroidered sash that girdled the gown at the long waistline, hung at the left side, coming to within four inches of the floor.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTES WILL DISCUSS WORLD FEDERATION AT BIG ONTARIO CONVENTIONS

Western Ontario Executive Meets At Local Chamber of Commerce; Medical Certificates Before Marriage, Better Conditions For Indians, Etc., To Be Brought Before Convention Here On November 1, 2 and 3.

With the ultimate view of bringing about a world federation of Women's Institutes, the matter of federating all the Canadian institutes under one executive head will be brought up for discussion at the annual meeting of the Ontario Institute branches held this fall in the three Ontario centers, London, Toronto and Ottawa. The subject will be broached in London by Miss Emily Guest, the department representative and institute organizer for England and Scotland, during the 7th annual convention of the Western Ontario Institutes to be held in the city during November 1, 2 and 3. Miss Guest met yesterday with the Western Ontario executive at the local chamber of commerce rooms, Mrs. George Edwards of Komoka, the Western Ontario president, in the chair. The opinions as to the advisability of such a federation are varied, so that a lively discussion on the subject is anticipated at the November meeting.

Other Matters.

Other matters of public interest to come before this convention in the form of resolutions will concern the question of having a medical certificate before marriage made compulsory, and the giving of greater care to the Indians of Canada. The suggestion will be made that the Government be required to furnish tents for the care of tubercular Indians, and to give them greater freedom as to fishing and hunting, so as to preserve their race, which is fast dying out. Still other matters will deal with child welfare, the illegitimate child, etc., all to be brought before the meeting in the form of resolutions by Mrs. W. T. Meade of Blenheim, the resolutions convener.

Hon. Manning Doherty.

Prominent speakers for the convention will include the Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture for Ontario; George C. Putman, Toronto, superintendent of institutes; Mrs. Todd, Orillia, president of the United Institutes of Ontario; Dr. Hill of the Institute of Public Health, who will speak on "Communicable Diseases"; possibly Dr. McCullough of the Ontario Department of Health; Col Walter Brown of the Western University, on "What the University Has to Offer the Rural Community"; A. D. Jordan of the Institute of Musical Art, on "Music in the Country," and Miss Topley Thomas of the London Conservatory of Music, on "Western Ontario Artists and Authors." Interesting features of the convention will be a trip to the Byron Sanatorium and the annual Women's Institute banquet provided by the city of London, the banquet to take place on the evening of Wednesday, November 2. Immediately following the banquet on Wednesday evening will come the big public meeting of the convention, when the Hon. Manning Doherty will speak.

Program.

The principal business of yesterday's meeting of the institute executive was the arrangement of the program for the convention. Those present were Mrs. George Edwards of Komoka, president, in the chair; Mrs. W. T. Meade of Blenheim, Mrs. Paterson of Gadshill, Mrs. R. T. Phillips of Lucknow, Miss Venner of Hyde Park, Mrs. L. H. Harkness of Mandaumin, Mrs. A. T. Edwards of London, and Miss Emily Guest from the Ontario agricultural department.

The morning of Tuesday, November 1, will be concerned with the billeting and registration of delegates at the chamber of commerce. The address of the president, Mrs. George Edwards, and reports of the institutes presented under the direction of the board of directors and superintendent, will occupy Tuesday afternoon, while Tuesday night's program will include Col. W. J. Brown's address on the "University and the Rural Community," A. D. Jordan's address on "Music in the Country" and Miss Topley Thomas' talk on "Western Ontario Artists and Authors."

The Institute.

On Wednesday morning the institute itself will be the subject of discussion, the condition of the present membership and possible new centres, to be led by Mrs. J. McLennan of Sarnia. A talk on the "Home and School" by Mrs. R. J. Graham of Ripley, and program planning will complete the morning's work, and in the afternoon Miss Yeates of this city will give a talk on "How to Conduct a Meeting," with a practical demonstration by the institute women. Mrs. Patterson of Gadshill, in the chair and Miss Venner of Hyde Park as secretary. "Institute Organization" will also be the subject of an interesting talk that afternoon, given by Mrs. Patterson of Gadshill. Wednesday evening will be devoted to the banquet, and the Hon. Manning Doherty's address. On Thursday morning Dr. Hill will be heard on "Communicable Diseases," probably to be followed by a talk by Dr. McCullough of the Ontario department of health.

The Ottawa section of the convention meets on October 25, 26, and 27, and the Toronto section on November 15, 16 and 17.

LXXX.—A World Topples

"Please don't be melodramatic." As though a stranger spoke Mary listened to her own words. "It looks—and sounds—absurd."

A slow smile dawned on Dick's young face—a smile not cynical, but comprehending. Mary was jealous! She was jealous of Eve Rochester! She did not truly mean a thing she said. Oh, happy thought.

Girls acted in this way, of course. He had read about it often. Of course he had not any experience in actual life. Until he had met and loved Miss Mary Drew women were more or less of a closed book to him.

But now he knew. Love told him. Mary did not mean her words.

Man-like, he blundered hopelessly. He was open in his thoughts.

"You think that I don't care for you—that I'm serious about Miss Rochester! Well, you're mistaken, Mary. There's no cause or reason for you to be so upset! She—she—"

The look on Mary's face might have warned him to desist. But Dick, the ignorant, blundered on:

"It is absurd for you to feel this way, my dear—utterly absurd! I haven't given you any cause for—for—"

"Yes! Pray, go on! This is really interesting!" The slow, chill smile still hovered round Miss Mary's lips. "Cause for what."

"For—for being jealous!" stammered Dick. The moment he had uttered the unfortunate phrase he saw his error. He saw the measure of his own tactlessness.

But, alas! It was too late!

Mary spoke—a very pale, composed young lady who seemed worlds remote from him.

"Jealous? That's a strong word, surely! I'm afraid you flatter yourself, Mr. Calardin, in the use of such a term! Jealous, implies—well—a certain amount of feeling that I—I can't pretend to, though apparently you can!"

"You mean—that you don't care any longer? That you aren't jealous—over—over—"

"There! That will do! Please, don't insult me any further!" Mary, her heart overflowing, turned to go.

"Mary! I must speak to you! I never liked—I mean, loved—Miss Rochester! I—"

His stammering explanations seemed to her proof positive of fickleness! And he had hurt her pride so, with his talk of jealousy! Well, she would do her utmost to hurt him!

"Your feelings are not of such absorbing interest to me as you seem to think!" She flung a queer, unfathomable little smile in his direction. "But I want to tell you now that you're at liberty to like Miss Rochester or any other person that you choose! For I—I do not count—I withdraw from the entertaining little game!"

"Because—because you're really going to marry Carrington Bellairs?" Dick was beside himself with pain, hurt pride, and a queer, inexplicable indignation. "It's true, then?"

Mary made no effort to deny it. Let him think just what he would!

"It's true, then?"

"Suppose it is?" She shrugged her slender shoulders in insouciant fashion. "Suppose it is." Dick bowed.

"In that case I withdraw!" he said. He turned and left her standing, with her whole world toppled to the dust.

"I adore long country walks," said Miss Eve Rochester sitting tete-a-tete with Dick on a "chaise-longue" in the hall and complacent in the consciousness that she was looking very pretty. "The trouble is that I never can get anyone to accompany me!"

She heaved a small, pathetic sigh, one eye on Dick. That young man looked a little awkward.

His heart was very sore tonight. Mary's words were rankling. He had not yet had adequate time to realize their meaning. But the awful thought oppressed him that he'd lost the girl.

Now, nothing seemed to matter. The future was all black and dull.

But—for the sake of politeness—he made an effort to arouse himself from his moody absorption.

"What was that you said—you care for country walks?"

Eve nodded. She thought this out-of-doorish pose would go down well with Dick Calardin. Besides she hoped that he would bring forth some suggestion as to a long, intimate walk together—

"I expect to leave this part of the country almost at once."

"What! Going away?" said Eve, blankly. She looked the utter surprise and chagrin that she felt—which was flattering to Dick's wounded vanity.

"Yes—as soon as I can make the necessary arrangements," Dick replied. "Oh, Mr. Calardin, it surely isn't true?" Real vexation caused Miss Eve to bite her pretty, painted under-lip.

He turned and moodily regarded her. "Are you sorry?" he said brusquely.

"I? Of course I am!" The failure of her plans and schemes caused two tiny tears to appear in Eve's blue eyes. "I—I—words can't express how terribly sorry I am—Dick."

Tomorrow—Dick's Error.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Essex, 44 Gerrard street, was the scene of a very quiet but pretty wedding at 5 o'clock on Saturday, September 10, when Miss Ernestine A. Baker, sister of Mrs. Essex, became the bride of Ernest A. Boug. The ceremony, which took place beneath a beautifully decorated arch of white clematis and ferns, was performed by Rev. N. S. McKechnie, B.A., B.Th., pastor of Wortley Road Baptist Church, and during the signing of the register Miss Thelma Essex sang very sweetly the bridal song, "Until."

The bride looked charming in a gown of cream crepe de chine, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Immediately following the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served in the dining-room, where the decorations were white asters, mauve crocuses and ferns. The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Chandler, Tillsonburg, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday, September 14, when their only daughter, Violet Marguerite, was united in marriage to Mr. Wilfrid Donald Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Campbell, London. Rev. T. B. Howard, rector of St. John's Anglican Church, officiated. The drawing-room, prettily decorated with flowers and foliage, formed a fitting setting for the bride, who was given in marriage by her father, and wore a tailored suit of navy blue broadcloth, smart hat of pearl grey with ostrich trimmings, and carried a shower boquet of Sweetheart roses and maiden hair fern. Miss Hazel Violet Chandler, niece of the bride, made a charming little flower girl. Miss Ada Thompson rendered the wedding music, and during the signing of the register sweetly sang "Until." After the ceremony, the guests repaired to the dining-room and partook of a bounteous wedding dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell left on a two weeks' honeymoon to Montreal, Ottawa and other eastern points. On their return they will reside at 22 Beecher street, London.

"The purple petals falling in the pool,
Made the sad waters with their beauty gay,
Here would the redbird come, his plumes to cool,
And court the flower that cheapened his array."

Attention, Miss Toosey.

Dear Miss Grey,—Just finished my block today, so am sending it to Tip this afternoon.

I am sending you the money I collected for the block. Please let me know through the Mail-Box if you receive same.

Had a dandy letter from a Miss Toosey lately, so look for one from me one of these days Miss Toosey. Am coming up to visit you soon I expect.

I am sending in a recipe for chili sauce. There are lots of ripe tomatoes this year so this will use some of them up; also a receipe for crabapple catsup, which is very good. From, BEPPY.

Chili Sauce—Eighteen large tomatoes, peeled; six onions, also peeled; 2½ cups vinegar; 2½ cups sugar; 2½ teaspoons salt; one teaspoon pepper; ½ teaspoon cayenne pepper; one teaspoon each of allspice and cloves; two teaspoons each of ginger and cinnamon. Mix up and boil for two hours, then seal.

Crabapple Catsup—Eight pounds crabapples, cook till tender, strain through a colander; add one pint of vinegar; 2½ pounds sugar; two teaspoons salt, pepper, cloves, cinnamon and allspice. BEPPY.

Ans.—The money reached the Mail-Box all right, Beppy, and thank you very much for same. You must have a large number of names judging from the amount sent in. Thank you also for the timely recipes, which I am sure are very good.

Dear Miss Grey,—It is quite a while since I have written to you so I thought I'd call again. Lately I have seen where different Boxites have sent in crochet patterns. I would like if you could send me some, Miss Grey, and I'll return them.

I am not having much time at present for fancy work, but soon hope to, as the busy time will soon be over.

Thanking you, I remain, I.L.J.

Ans.—A few patterns have been mailed to you, I.L.J., and I hope they will be just what you want.

Canning Plums.

Dear Miss Grey, — As I noticed my letter in print this morning I remembered sending a stamped enveloped, intending to ask for a sachet. If you have any if please send one; if not kindly put me on file, and maybe some kind reader will supply me some time. This is a good method for canning plums. I have used this method for several years. Wash plums well and drop in warm water, and gradually heat until they can be pierced with a fork, and the skin begins to crack. Have jars sterilized. In cold water and gradually heated until hot. Then with at fork, place plums carefully in jars and have a thick syrup ready and pour over plums, and they will be delicious. The plums stay whole and look so much nicer in jars. The water can be saved and boiled down and jelly can be made by adding sugar according to any jelly recipe. Inclosed find mite. I do enjoy your Mail-Box so much and find many useful hints. Thanks for past help. DRESDENITE.

Ans.—I am sorry, Dresdenite, but there are no sachets in the Mail-Box at present. Thank you for sending us a hospital mite; also for timely recipe.

THE WOLF DOG.

Part Five.

Now, the old mother wolf, who had adopted the puppy, belonged to a pack that was by no means friendly with the dog race. She had to take great care that no other wolf found the puppy in her cave. To do that she had to stay inside the cave all day to keep the puppy company, and at nights she went out to hunt food.

The puppy was a wise little fellow, and soon he began to look on the old wolf as his mother—he was too young to remember his own mother very well, you see. The old wolf became quite fond of her adopted son, too.

The old wolf had several grown-up sons and daughters, members of the pack, but she had been such an unhappy wolf since her last little family had been killed, they had kept away from her, because wolves don't like dismal company. However, now they noticed that she was not coming out with them on their hunts as she should be.

"Our mother is taking the loss of our little brothers and sisters too much to heart," the old wolf's eldest grown-up son said to his brothers and sisters. She does not come out at hunting time, and she prowls around at night, I have heard. Perhaps she has lost her head. Don't you think, brother wolves, that we, as the male members of the family, should call on our mother and find out what the trouble is?"

So that very afternoon they called.

The old mother wolf was filled with fear and trembling when she heard her grown-up sons and daughters approaching. It would never do to have them find the puppy, for they might destroy it, she thought.

"Who is there?" she called out in a stern voice, when her relatives came to the door.

"Your sons and daughters," answered the eldest son for the others.

"Then go your way and leave me alone," said the old wolf. "I am quite angry at you, and I'll bite the ears of the first one that enters," and to make her statement more impressive she growled fiercely.

"Mother certainly must have gone mad," the young wolves said to each other—and they went off to talk it over.

"When the old wolf heard them going she felt quite relieved, but just the same she was a little uneasy, for she knew they couldn't always be sent away so easily.

JUDGE LADIS RULES ON COLOR LINE

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 15.—The local baseball executive were informed by Secretary Hawke of the North Wellington League that the Lucan protest had been lost on receipt of a message from Judge Landis, which declared that there was nothing in the rules of organized baseball against colored players taking part in games. This means that Kelly, the local colored heaver, is eligible to play and the locals will now go into the next round of the North Wellington series. Secretary Hawkes announced that Woodstock would play in Zurich on Wednesday and the return game would be played here on the following Saturday. Both games will commence at 3:30, with Miller and Daley of Stratford as umpires.

TOO MANY YACHT LINES RULES THE MAYFLOWER OUT

Boston Schooner Barred by N. Atlantic Fishermen's Committee.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 15.—The Boston schooner Mayflower, selected by the American committee as defender of the North Atlantic Fishermen's International trophy, won last year by the Gloucester schooner Esperanto, will not be permitted to race, according to a ruling made today by the trustees of the trophy and communicated to Charles D. Brown of Gloucester, Mass., chairman of the American committee. The action of the trustees follows an announcement made some months ago by the chairman, H. R. Silver of Halifax, to the effect that in the event of the American committee selecting the Mayflower as the defender it would then be competent for the trustees to pass upon her eligibility as a contender under the provisions of the deed of gift.

While the telegram notifying the American committee of the Mayflower's ineligibility did not give the reason for the decision reached, it is generally believed to express the feeling prevalent throughout Nova Scotia and said to be prevalent in Gloucester, that the Burgess boat does not measure up to the requirements of a bona-fide fisherman.

NO SURPRISE AT BOSTON.

BOSTON, Sept. 15.—The action of the trustees of the North Atlantic fishermen's trophy in barring the schooner Mayflower of this port from the proposed international championship races off Halifax, reported in dispatches today, was no surprise to New England fishermen. The question whether the Mayflower with the speed and lines of a yacht would be accepted, have been discussed up and down the coast for months. Fishermen back from the Banks, where she has plied the fisheries through the spring and summer, have come back with word of sailing stunts that made the old sails of the fleet withhold entry of their vessels for the championship, conceding that the Mayflower was the queen of the fleet.

HULL WON AT FOOTER.

LONDON, Sept. 15.—(By Canadian Press).—In a Northern Union rugby football game played today Hull defeated Hunslet by 24 to 4.

Dirt Track Champ At Fair Tomorrow

Headed by Fred Horey, world's dirt track champion, holder of numerous Canadian records by reason of appearances in Toronto, Winnipeg and other points, a galaxy of automobile race pilots are now in the city tuning up their powerful special racing creations for the automobile races which will feature the closing afternoon tomorrow of the Western Fair

This will be the first time automobile races have featured one day of the London exposition which is one reason why fair officials anticipate one of the largest, if not the largest, grandstand crowds of the week.

Though all of the speed pilots come from the States, one of them, "Bill" Carey, served with the Canadian forces in Belgium and France, and several of the others were members of the United States expeditionary forces.

Besides Horey and Carey, the list of speedsters includes "Red" Mailey of Iowa State; "Putty" Hoffman, champion of the State of Wisconsin; "Honk" Meyers, who hails from that portion of the States known as Dixieland; "Norske" Larson, the Norwegian from Minnesota State, and Emil Huff from Chicago.

Horey, Meyes and Larson drove in the Toronto races two weeks ago, and earlier this year established many new records at various distances in the Western Canadian circuit of fair races. Horey also lowered a record Monday at Jackson, Michigan.

The local oval is declared extremely hazardous, due to the board fence which extends around the turns. Cheating death while mocking the undertaker, however, is a daily occupation with these death-defying speed demons, and just one more hazard will not prevent them from careening around the turns on two wheels, or whizzing by the grandstand at 90 miles an hour in their quest for added glory and their share of the $2,500 in purses offered.

Experts will take charge of the track tonight to prepare it for record time tomorrow. After it is harrowed, it will be soaked with a solution of calcium chloride to lay the dust, after which it will be rolled by scores of motor cars to make it hard as possible.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—George H. ("Babe") Ruth, a famous slugger of the New York Americans, broke his home-run record here today, as the New York team held the league lead by twice defeating St. Louis, by scores of 10 to 6 and 13 to 5. Ruth hit his 55th home run of the season off Bayne in the fifth inning of the first game with Miller on base. Ruth pulled up lame in the second game after sliding to third, and retired in favor of Fewster.

Williams of St. Louis hit a home run in each game, while Meusel got one in the opener, tying these players for second place to Ruth with 23 each. Miller and Pipp also hit circuit clouts. New York piled up 28 hits and 23 runs in the two games. The scores:

Put Question of L.C.I. Field Day To Student Vote

Three Propositions Will Be Submitted Sometime Next Week.

The committee in charge of the annual track and field day of the London Collegiate decided yesterday to put three distinct propositions to a vote of the school students, and thus settle in the only fair way a controversy which has arisen over changing the locale of the annual field day from Tecumseh Park to Queen's Park and changing the program.

The questions upon which the students will vote are:

First, rugby and basketball games to be played on different day from regular track and field meet to be held at Queen's Park.

Second, general sports day to be held as usual at Tecumseh Park.

Third, that sports day be held at usual time at Tecumseh Park, and that track and field events be held at Queen's Park early in May before big field day of all secondary schools of Western Ontario.

The voting matter will be distributed to the students about the first of the week, and the voting will probably be staged on Wednesday.

EMMA HARVESTER IN A GRUELLING WIN

Both Geers and Cox Take Dust in Last Two Heats.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 15.—Before the largest crowd which has attended the present meeting of the grand circuit at the New York State Fair, Emma Harvester, owned by the Brooke Farm, Goshen, N. Y., and driven by Cane, flashed through a winner in the 2:08 class trotting, the governor's cup event, in a gruelling race this afternoon. The veteran driver "Pop" Geers behind Wiki Wiki, took the first heat of the feature event, and E. Colorado, driven by Walter Cox, got the second. Emma Harvester, however, snatched the third and fourth, finishing in both no more than a nose in front of both the other horses. Her best time was 2:04¼ in the third heat.

Geers was the one big feature of the afternoon. The veteran driver piloted an entry in two races, and in addition was the guest of the governor in the latter's box in the grandstand. Geers was met at the track entrance by the governor, and remained in the executive box until called for the third race—the Governor's cup.

Geers, behind Wiki Wiki, piloted the horse to victory in the first heat in 2:06¾, but after that could not equal the speed of Emma Harvester and E. Colorado.

Only three contenders met at the wire for the opening event on the program, the 2:06 pace, and one of them was distanced in the first heat and withdrawn. Hazel Keustner, a bay mare driven by Pitman, after finishing second in the first heat, won the last two and captured the event.

Peter Pater, a brown gelding, had an easy time in the 2:18 trot, the second event. He won the three heats in a row, and was never in danger.

Reid, Taylor To Coach Western and L.C.I. Rugby Squads This Year

"Board of Strategy" Has Been Decided Upon and With Crews Will Be Out Next Week For a Regular Start.

It has been definitely decided after a conference that Col. Eric Reid and A. T. Taylor will constitute the "board of strategy" in charge of both Western U. and L. C. I. rugby this fall and both squads will take to the grid next week and start their preliminary canters.

Although Coach Reid will be at McGill for two weeks around the last of this month and the first of next, this will not seriously interfere with either of the squads, for their games will not start until after his return. And anyway a good deal of their A B. C's will be mastered by then.

Western squad will start the season with most of the players who played last year under Mel Brock. Practically a bunch of novices the year before, they have gathered a lot of experience in two seasons and will be a harder crew to beat this year. They performed inconsistently last year, for which inexperience was wholly to blame.

The L. C. I. also have some good material and this year will enter the scholastic section of the O. R. F. U. with St. Thomas, their old rivals, as probable group opponents in a two-team group.

The intercollegiate and interscholastic will provide London's rugby bill this fall as the O. R. F. U. intermediate group, usually composed of Sarnio, Petrolea and London, will have to struggle along without the local outfit this season.

Charlton's Retirement in Norfolk Blights Govt. Hopes

[Special To The Advertiser.]

SIMCOE, Sept. 15. — Consternation reigned among supporters of the Meighen Government in Norfolk today, when Hon. W. A. Charlton, Liberal Unionist member, and the oldest member of the House of Commons, decided definitely to retire from politics. In a public statement he gave as his reason pressure of business. Regarded as the only hope of the Government in Norfolk, it was confidently expected that he would consent to seek re-election, and his decision came somewhat as a bombshell.

The only candidate in the field at present is J. Alex. Wallace, U. F. O. nominee, and Mr. Charlton was regarded as the only man who might down the farmer candidate. Now that he has definitely retired, according to local opinion, Mr. Wallace will be returned unopposed.

Not Likely To Run.

Although the town of Simcoe usually showed a Conservative majority, the remainder of the riding has always showed itself so anti-Conservative that no government supporter is willing to run. Hugh Pinnes, K.C., was suggested as straight Conservative candidate, but he has refused to run with the odds so greatly against him. The township of Townsend is the Charlton stronghold. On the reciprocity issue, Mr. Charlton running as a straight Liberal, lost only five votes in that township. His opponent, Alexander now Senator McCall, was defeated by a small majority. Mr. Charlton is so personally popular in this riding that his candidacy was always considered an election.

Mr. Charlton's Letter.

Addressing his public statement to William Sutton, president of the National Conservative and Liberal Association of Norfolk and Frank Reid, secretary, Hon. Mr. Charlton said: "I was elected in 1917 to support the Union Government. Its strenuous efforts were to see that Canada did her full share in bringing to a speedy and successful termination the terrible world war raging at that time and following that to undertake the necessary reconstruction work of the nation, problems arising out of war, demobilization, soldiers' civil re-establishment, soldiers' settlement, pensions, readjustment of industries, immigration, education, development of natural resources, agriculture, planning taxation in a way to give relief without overburdening the people, in fact to do in various ways what would be in the best interests of the people. I have faithfully done all in my power through five sessions of parliament since 1917, and during all the intervals between sessions to assist in all matters of legislation and otherwise in the best interests of Canada and especially on behalf of the people of Norfolk without regard to party affiliation.

Cannot Consent.

"Assuming that you might desire to select me as a candidate for the coming election, I am taking this early opportunity to inform you that for various reasons I could not consent to be a candidate. My duties are more numerous and more urgent than ever, and although I do not in any way feel the weight in years, yet the records show that I am 80 years of age. For this reason and because numerous demands are made upon my time and energy, it would be imprudent and unwise for me to undertake another campaign during the early part of the winter, when many other matters require my attention, very important among which is the consumptive hospitals work and matters connected with the Victorian Order of Nurses.

Takes Presidency.

"Since the lamented death of the late Sir William J. Gage, with whom I had worked for 25 years, since starting the consumptive hospital in Canada, I have at the earnest request of the boards of directors, accepted the position of president of the National Sanatorium Association, and the local hospital for consumptives. We are caring for nearly 700 patients and have large building operations under way. There is no remuneration connected with the consumptive hospitals work nor the Victorian Order of Nurses, but there is the great satisfaction of knowing that we have given and can continue to give relief to the poor and sick, and comfort the dying, and that we have saved and will save many lives.

Has Done His Duty.

"I shall not mention other duties which make it unwise for me to undertake an election campaign at present, if requested to do so, but I may say that it is now 35 years since my first entry into the political field in Norfolk and my record should satisfy the people that I have done one man's share in public life work and am entitled to an honorable discharge in order that I may pursue other important duties so long as my strength remains.

"I have no reason to regret being a supporter of the Union Government. That Government has administered the affairs of Canada during the most difficult period of our history and notwithstanding this and the fact that Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden, leader of the Government, and some members of the cabinet have through overwork become exhausted by the way, the work has been successfully carried on under the leadership of Rt. Hon. Sir Arthur Meighen, who succeeded Sir Robert Borden as prime minister by strictly constitutional procedure. The work of the Government by legislation and otherwise since 1917 is free from scandals and charges of wrongdoing and every department has been administered in an efficient and businesslike manner. The name of the Union Government has been changed to the National Liberal Conservative Government, but it is the same government. I am a supporter of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, who is eminently qualified both as to ability and honesty to be our leader in Canadian National affairs, and not only that, but to represent Canada in international work for the establishment of peace and prosperity throughout the world."

COLLINGWOOD SAILOR KILLED NEAR HESSON

John Matthews' Auto Went Over Bank and Turned Turtle.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

LISTOWEL, Sept. 15.—John Matthews, aged 34, of Collingwood, a sailor, was killed, and Edward A. Reid, a marine engineer, also of Collingwood, painfully injured late this afternoon near Hesson. They left Brantford this morning on their way home after a motor trip which had lasted all week. When near Hesson, which is eight miles from Listowel, Matthews' car ran into a washout, and went over a bank. It dropped eight feet and turned turtle.

Matthews was suffocated by the weight of one side of the car which lay across his chest. Reid lay under him for three-quarters of an hour until a farmer came along. The position in which the car lay made it dangerous for any attempt at rescue. From his position under the dead man Reid gave directions to the farmer, telling him not to attempt to move the car, as if he did so Reid would be killed. Reid sent the farmer for help and was not released until the farmer had returned some time later with block and tackle and other men. Among these were H. B. Morphy, M. P., and W. O. Long.

An inquest will be held by Dr. Wilson of Moorefield, and the jury viewed the body of Matthews tonight at the home of a farmer named Linsman, after which it was brought here. Matthews' parents are coming from Collingwood Friday.

The spot where the accident occurred is a dangerous one, and a suit for damages may be instituted against the council.

CONSTABLE FOUND GUILTY OF ASSAULT

[Special To The Advertiser.]

GUELPH, Sept. 15.—A case which has been attracting considerable interest in Guelph and vicinity for some time past was finally disposed of this afternoon, when Constable Wm. Cringle of Mount Forest was brought on trial before Judge Snotton, charged with assault occasioning bodily harm on one George Harper of the same town. Cringle was found guilty of the offence and fined $25, without costs.

The evidence showed that the assault was committed on June 17 at Mount Forest, when in placing Harper under arrest for drunkenness, Cringle used force striking the plaintiff over the head and inflicting a nasty scalp wound. Cringle admitted striking Harper, but claimed that he had acted in self-defence, after Harper had resisted arrest.

LOSS IS $60,000 IN ARNPRIOR FIRE

OTTAWA, Sept. 15.—Starting at 5 a.m. today a fire at Arnprior, Ont., 38 miles from here wiped out two blocks in the heart of that town. No loss of life is reported, but property damage will run up to between fifty and sixty thousand dollars. The blaze is believed to have been started at the rear of a pool room and spread with great rapidity. Within three hours, however, it was under control.

SAYS PRISON FARMS CAPABLY HANDLED

Hon. H. C. Nixon Tells Brantford Rotarians of His Work.

BRANTFORD, Sept. 15.—Making a plea for general recognition of the work of the provincial prisons, Hon. H. C. Nixon, provincial secretary, addressed the members of the Brantford Rotary Club at noon today in Burford. Mr. Nixon outlined the tremendous task of the prison farms, and told of the capable manner in which they were being handled. The proportion of escapes was small, and was remedied immediately, as was the case in Guelph when recaptured convicts were given severe sentences. The jail escapes were partly due to the complexity of the system of appointing officials. The Rotarians motored to Burford for their weekly "stunt," and had luncheon in Trinity Church parish hall.

The Ontario Institute for the Blind reopens here on September 28. Miss Jean Burns of Brantford will teach high school work in place of Miss Summerbee. Jack Pollock is athletic instructor this year. The provincial minister of education, Hon. Dr. Grant, and Dr. Calhoun, deputy minister, were in this city last evening making a general survey of conditions.

Reduced to a straight dollars-and-cents proposition, the electric range is the one to own.

If gas for cooking is costing you $5 a month, hydro will do the same work in a better way for $1.65 or less.

If you are using such old-fashioned fuels as oil, coal or wood you will find electricity cheaper than any.

Besides an electric range needs no matches, no kindling, no lugging in of fuel, or lugging out of ashes.

Just turn the switch and like a gift of the fairies comes intense, quick heat for frying or boiling, or an evenly-distributed temperature for oven work that no other stove can equal. Ask your neighbor in the house with THREE ELECTRIC WIRES; she owns a hydro range.

You Must Order Quickly to Get the Reduced Price.

During this month only, The Hydro Shop offers McClary Electric Ranges, installed, complete, with all necessary wiring changes, at prices not equalled elsewhere in Canada. To every purchaser is given a specially designed covered Roasting Pan as a Free Premium.

BRANTFORD TRUSTEE WANTS INFORMATION

[Special to The Advertiser.]

BRANTFORD, Sept. 15.—"As a member of the board of education I appeal to the board for a reasonable answer which might be given to reasonable people," was the statement of Mrs. Ballachey, chairman of the dental and medical committee, at the meeting tonight, regarding the action of the buildings and grounds committee in failing to follow the recommendations to purchase adjustable seats for the city schools.

"It is evidently no use to refer it to my own committee," concluded Mrs. Ballachey.

Following warm discussion over the action of the buildings and grounds committee the board adjourned and conferred informally with Dr. C. C. Alexander, school medical officer.

LOSS IS $20,000 AS FIRE SWEEPS BUSINESS BLOCK

Orange Hall and Adjoining Stores Burned At Mount Brydges.

[By Staff Reporter.]

MOUNT BRYDGES, Sept. 15.—Fire of undetermined origin believed to have started in Barnett's Bakery immediately below the Loyal Orange Hall, destroyed at 2 a.m. today that entire building as well as the adjoining premises, George Brown & Sons' general store and residence. Richard Fonger and J. H. Neill, whose places of business were situated beneath the Orange Hall are heavy losers as well. The former conducted the village machine shop, while the latter maintained a shoe-making establishment. The total loss of the block is roughly estimated at well over $20,000.

Hand Pump Broke.

That Brown's general store was not saved is due, the villagers say, to the fact that their only piece of fire-fighting apparatus, a hand pump, broke soon after it was hurriedly placed in action. It is a well-established fact that only the heroic efforts of every available resident of Mount Brydges prevented the destruction of the remainder of the houses on the street, if not in the entire southern section of the community.

School in Danger.

The continuation school directly opposite, was in danger, as well as those residences on the same side of the street as the fire. Several times sparks fired the roof of the school, but these blazes were promptly extinguished by members of the volunteer bucket brigade, who had been quick to realize the importance of stationing themselves at this point for just such an emergency.

Did Splendid Work.

Too much credit cannot be tendered the Strathroy Fire Department. Responding quickly to the appeal for aid several members of the organization took immediate advantage of Sam Oakes' motor truck, and reached here, a distance from Strathroy of eight miles, in approximately fifteen minutes. Quickly realizing that it was already too late to save the stores, the firemen joined in the effort to prevent the blaze from spreading.

In this they were successful. Although the residences of George Innis and Richard Fonger, on either side of the doomed buildings, were badly scorched and blackened, the watchful bucket-line won out eventually. Furniture and other property of value to the owners were removed from the houses along the street in case of a general sweep. Fortunately there was no high wind to add to the danger. The street was declared out of danger at 3:30 a.m.

Gave the Alarm.

To Mrs. Richard Fonger is awarded all credit for giving the first alarm. The Fonger home is next but one from the Orange Hall. A small frame building between is also Fonger property, but was occupied by Jas. Barnett, the owner of the bake shop. The Fongers were sleeping on the top balcony, and Mrs. Fonger stated that she had been unable to rest properly last night and about 2 o'clock was attracted from her bed by what she surmised to be the crackling of fire. She discovered that the rear of the hall was in flames.

Woman Collapses.

Her husband lost little time in sounding a general alarm, first, however, arousing Mr. Barnett and the Browns. Being of a natural nervous temperment Mrs. Brown broke down absolutely under the strain. The suddenness of the fire and the subsequent dash for safety was too much for her. Reaching the premises of Mr. Edward Hunt, across the road, she collapsed. In the afternoon she regained consciousness and late tonight she is reported as much improved.

Mr. Barnett is loud in his praise of Cyril Mills, the Grand Trunk agent, who lives three doors away. He stated to The Advertiser tonight that after being awakened, his first move was to try to force an entry through a window of the burning building.

"Cyril Mills pulled me back," he said, "or I believe that I would never have got out again. The fire swept the place in no time."

Burned Rapidly.

The Orange Hall is a frame structure with a brick foundation, while the Brown store is brick throughout. Between the two is a narrow lane, but against the Brown store was a shed that was utilized for the storage of oils and paints. It was thought possibly that it was here the fire gained its start.

Another opinion is that the blaze commenced in the wooden structure. Small fires are still fitfully burning tonight among the debris, one in the vicinity of the grocery and the other toward the rear of the bakery, where, Mr. Barnett explains, he had just stored seventeen barrels of flour.

Mr. Barnett holds strenuously to his contention that the fire did not start in his oven as was claimed earlier today. He is at a loss to explain the cause of the outbreak. This evening he pointed out that the oven itself was closed and had been so since the day previous. He emphasizes his point that the blaze was not at its worst in the vicinity of his oven.

Saved Clothes.

Archie Brown, a son of George Brown, stated that after the pump went out of action they saved their best clothes and a few articles of value. He is confident that had the pump remained in order their store would have been saved. The Browns live above the place of business, and arrangements were about completed for the transferrence by sale of the premises to a W. Hobbs on the Muncey road. "We were to commence stock-taking on October 1," commented Archie Brown tonight, "but it is all off now," he added philosophically.

Loss Is Heavy.

Mr. Fonger's losses are severe. They include in main, a brand new buggy, two pairs of new scales, a valuable gasoline engine and a quantity of roofing. The loss attending J. H. Neill, who conducted the little cobbling shop, is complete. Several hundred dollars will be required to replace his stock alone. The Loyal Orange Lodge face the total loss of their building and fixtures in their own rooms, among the latter being their splendid and comparatively new banner, valued at $100.

HOPES THAT EMBARGO WILL BE LIFTED SOON

Hon. Manning Doherty Believes British Government May Act.

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—Hon. Manning Doherty, Ontario minister of agriculture, expressed the opinion today that the British Government would adopt the recommendation of the commission whose report has just been published, and remove the embargo upon Canadian cattle.

"The opening to us of the overseas market for our store cattle will so stimulate the industry here that our breeders will import from Great Britain many times the number of pure-bred animals that they do at present," said the minister.

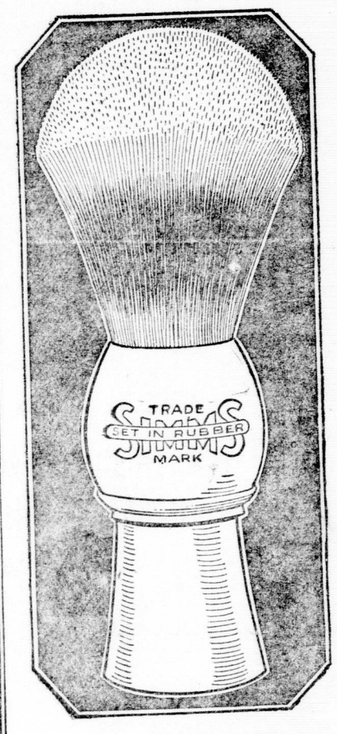

Mr. Doherty said it would be the duty of the Federal Government, in the event of the removal of the embargo, to provide transportation facilities equal to the demand that would be put upon them.

Dunlop Big Mileage 30 x 3½ Tires

Every one of the tires shown above is made of the best fabric it is possible to buy—"Egyptian" cotton. They also contain the same quality of rubber friction—the wonderful wear-resisting tread—and, in every other respect, are similar except in size, to larger DUNLOP TIRES.

Many cheap 30 x 3½ Tires contain "Peeler" Cotton and other shoddy materials which might be compared to the shoddy used in cheap clothes.

When you think of Dunlop 30 x 3½ Tires, think of them as comparing, not only with Dunlop larger sizes, but with high-grade woollen clothes—from which you get lasting value.

DUNLOP FABRIC TIRES are manufactured by a special mileage-making process. This process places DUNLOP FABRIC TIRES far beyond all competitors by adding an average of 20% more mileage.

Present-day DUNLOP FABRIC TIRES have perfect shape and balance, stronger side-walls to resist curb and rut abuse and rim-cutting; have wear-resisting anti-skid treads; special wear-longer fabric treatment; larger air-chamber; greater resiliency, etc.

That means that every user of a "Briscoe," "Chevrolet," "Ford," "Gray-Dort," "Maxwell" or "Overland" car, or any other car taking 30 x 3½ tires, has available at the new low prices DUNLOP FABRIC TIRES made in such a way as to give mileage to a degree heretofore unknown.

When you can obtain high-grade 30 x 3½ Tires, made by DUNLOP, carrying practically an unlimited guarantee as to workmanship and materials—and at such low prices—why take a chance on shoddy or "built-down-to-a-price" 30 x 3½ Tires?

When you buy DUNLOP 30 x 3½ Tires you do so knowing that you are getting the best 30 x 3½ that long experience can produce.

Be watchful of the seller who offers you big discounts from fictitious price lists of tires manufactured by practically unknown makers!

TOWN MAY FORECLOSE MORTGAGE ON PLANT

Interesting Clash At Listowel Between Constable and Bailiff.

[Special To The Advertiser.]

LISTOWEL, Sept 15.—A clash of some interest occurred here today between the town constable and a bailiff representing a Toronto machinery firm, when the bailiff, it is alleged, broke into the factory of the Perfect Wheels, Limited, and attempted to remove machinery on which it was claimed the Toronto firm has a lien. The constable was acting in the town's interests, as some time ago the ratepayers carried a bylaw to loan the firm $25,000.

An interesting technicality is involved in the town's claim, in that the constable claims the bailiff acted without giving the company any notification. As the matter now stands the machinery company has agreed to delay action until Monday.

At a special meeting of the town council today a committee composed of Mayor Malcolm, and Councillors Donaldson and McDonald, was appointed with instructions to protect the town's interests, and to secure legal advice.

It is stated tonight that the town may now foreclose the mortgage it holds. This may force the company into an assignment. About $20,000 worth of stock is held by Listowel people, who subscribed in an effort to secure the industry for the town. The town, it was stated to The Advertiser tonight, got a line on the firm when an advertisement was inserted drawing attention to the advantages of Listowel from an industrial standpoint. The men behind the proposition were Detroiters, and planned to manufacture disc wheels for autos and other equipment.

UNEMPLOYMENT DUE TO RUSH OF COUNTRY RESIDENTS TO CITIES

Joint Fund To Provide Work Suggested by Conference.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—Institution of a fund by the Dominion, Provincial and Municipal Governments for launching undertakings to provide employment this winter was suggested at the provincial unemployment conference which opened this morning. A report submitted by the sub-committe, which has been investigating the unemployment situation for the last six weeks recommended renovating government buildings, construction of a national highway, transportation of firewood and rock to the city for sale, clearing up arrearage of clerical work in municipal, provincial and federal government departments, construction of sewers and opening new streets to provide employment this winter.

From the Country.

The sub-committee's report set out reasons for unemployment as being the influx of rural residents to the cities during times of industrial activity, who failed to return to the country when they were unable to obtain industrial employment; seasonal conditions; financial conditions; fluctuation in industry; permitting immigrants to enter the country who are unfitted physically or financially for farm work, and lack of organization of productive industry with a view to continuous employment.

Favor Conference.

All delegates present favored a federal conference called by the minister of labor. Representatives were chosen to represent Manitoba should the conference be called.

British Columbia and Saskatchewan representatives attended the conference and stated their provinces were faced with the same problem as Manitoba. J. D. McNiven, deputy minister of labor for British Columbia, said the only solution was the dealing with the matter in a nation-wide manner, as this would put a stop to the migration of unemployed from one province to another.

NOTABLE EXHIBITS AT WESTERN FAIR

Wash With Simplicity

The Miss Simplicity Electric Washing Machine, which is on display with the Hydro Shop exhibit in the annex of the Crystal Palace, is receiving much attention. This machine is manufactured by the W. A. Kribs Company, Limited, of Hespeler.

Miss Simplicity washes every article clean, towels, bed linen, table linen, even lace curtains—any and all the clothes in the house that need washing, and does not injure the sheerest fabrics or the finest laces. Miss Simplicity does the biggest family washing for less than a nickel.

Miss Simplicity will give cleaner clothes, more leisure time, and more pleasanter homes. Make it a point to have one of these machines exhibited to you.

"Keep Your Eyes On Thomas"

"Keep your eyes on Thomas," because they are very good reasons.

One of Thomas' slogans is to buy made-in-Canada goods, and as far as possible for them to be made in London. This keeps fellow Canadians employed, as well as going towards helping making London a bigger and better city.

The quality of goods sold by Thomas' is the best that can be had. The huge buying power of Thomas' enables this firm to give merchandise to its patrons at the lowest prices possible.

The service that is given by Thomas' is almost incomparable. It is all for the benefit of the customers. Thomas' are laying a very substantial foundation for their business.

Thomas has made exceptionally big cuts in prices of his merchandise since last winter. It will be remembered that last year Daven-Os were selling at $185. The price this week is $80. Chesterfields were selling at $300, and now they are selling at almost half this price. Coal ranges, selling last winter at $85, sell for $42 now, and heaters are sold at $19 and up.

These are only some of the reasons that you should "Keep your eyes on Thomas."

Drink Orange Crush

Many people wonder when they visit the Fair what to drink. The most popular drink this year is Orange Crush. This may be obtained at any of the booths on the grounds. This exceptionally soothing drink is bottled in krinkly bottles. Orange Crush is the favorite drink of 1921. It is made from the juice of the choicest of California oranges. It is healthful and appetizing, and something the kiddies should have.

Orange Crush is a new drink. It has only been on the market for two months, and today at Western Ontario's Greatest Fair it is a winner. One drink will convince you of its increasing popularity.

Simplex Ranges

"Keep your eyes on Thomas," when you visit the Fair this year. He has two exhibits, one in the Crystal Palace, and the other in the Machinery Hall. Persons who are intending to buy a davenport should make it a point to see the display of Kroehler Daven-Os in the Main Building. If you want stoves of the better kind visit the Machinery Hall.

The stove exhibit is creating quite a sensation at the present time, because they are made in London. Mr. Thomas guarantees every stove that leaves his building, and, if it does not satisfy, he will refund the money. The prices are within reach of all, and when you buy made-in-London goods you are keeping your fellow Canadians employed.

McClary's Simplex Ranges are on exhibit by Thomas'. They are combined into 42 inches of space. They are suitable for coal or gas. The gas top is complete in itself, and can be used at the same time you are burning coal, if desired. If you are heating your own oven with more heat without increasing your coal fire, just turn the handle and your gas is ready. Turning the handle turns on the gas, and opens the ventilating damper automatically. Examine the Simplex and you will be delighted with its conveniences and appearance. Use it for a while and as it perfectly meets every emergency you will develop an admiration and respect for it that will make you wonder how you ever did without it.

Don't forget to "Keep your eyes on Thomas," when you visit the Fair.

Difficult To Exhibit

The product which Westervelt School has been so successfully turning out for the past 36 years is not to be found at their exhibit in the Machinery Building. It is simply because this product is not the machinery made of wood and steel, but clear-thinking, trained brains of bookkeepers, stenographers, and all kinds of office workers. The exhibit includes the names of hundreds of young people who have recently attended the school, and are now in London offices.

At the rear of the exhibit is a large picture of a recent class. Mr. Westervelt can tell where nearly every student in the picture has been working. Of course, as one would naturally expect, many of the girls are already married, and have relinquished their positions to another generation of Westervelt graduates.

The college representative, who is at the exhibit, takes pride in telling the prospective students of the accomplishment of the college in training its scores of young people each year, and one leaves the exhibit convinced that it pays to patronize a school which has for its motto: "A Business College of Strength and Character."

Kroehler Daven-Os

"Keep your eyes on Thomas," if you are contemplating to purchase a davenport. The Thomas Furniture Company are agents for the Kroehler Daven-Os. These davenports are considered the best on the market. They are manufactured in Stratford by the Kindel Bed Company, Limited. This firm is known from coast to coast for its products.

A Kroehler Daven-O in the parlor or living-room will serve as a bedroom at night for members of your family or guests. It is made in two sizes. The Kroehler Short Daven-O is the davenport for small rooms. Each contains, concealed under the seat, a full-size, luxuriously comfortable bed, equipped with a thick, removable mattress, not a mere pad. The mattress is removable for dusting or airing purposes. It is supported by an all-steel wire fabric and helical springs, which are firmly attached to an all-steel bed frame. When you buy a davenport, be sure it's the best, and in order to make sure buy a Kroehler Daven-O.

"Keep your eyes on Thomas," when you want to buy one of these.

Gorman-Eckert's Spices

A display that all should see at the Fair this year is that of the Gorman-Eckert Company, Limited, in the Pure Food Building. Special interest is being taken in this, because the products of the concern are prepared in London.

Rideau Hall Coffee, which is one of the most popular brands on the market today, is prepared by the company. This gratifying coffee can be obtained at nearly every grocery store in the city, as well as in the rural districts.

Other products manufactured by Gorman-Eckert Company are: Club House olives, catsup, spices, extracts and baking powder, etc. Be sure and visit this exhibit.

Charm Dirt Away

In the course of the research work when the war was at its height, the discovery of an entirely new method of cleaning was made. This method is being made adaptable for household and other purposes, and is now being offered to the public as the chemical product called Charm. This product is manufactured by the Galt Chemical Products, Limited, of Galt.

Charm is becoming the friend of the housewife. It softens hard water, makes clothes easier to clean, makes dish-washing more simple, takes the grease off cooking utensils, shines cut glass, silverware, windows and mirrors, cleans sinks, bathtubs, tables, shelves and ice boxes, softens the skin and make it white.

Do not fail to get a sample of this splendid product.

Standard Motor Car Value

Six years ago Dodge Brothers undertook to do something that had never been done before. They undertook to, and did establish a standard of motor car value; a standard by which motor car value could be judged. How did they go about to do that? They determined, first of all, they would not build a car to conform to a price, but instead they would build a car to conform to an ideal which existed in their minds. This car today is on exhibit in the Motor Show Building at the Fair. They are handled in this city by W. B. Pennock.

Two decided features on the Dodge Car today, which go a long way to make it amongst the leading cars on the market for its price, are the radiator and the starter-generator. Dodge Brothers tested all the types of radiators before they decided on their standard. The tubular type of radiator was found to be the most efficient; it was made of brass. Later this radiator was made of copper, and it was found that this type was 6 per cent more efficient than the brass one. Dodge Brothers tried every starter-generator on the market, and decided on the Northeast one. This starter-generator was procured. It cost more than any other by a wide margin, but it was used because it was the best.

The present cars are equipped with these. There are many more reasons why the Dodge Car is amongst the best. Call and have one exhibited to you.

Be Suspicious of Tender Gums

Be suspicious of any tenderness or bleeding of the gums. This is usually the first stage of Pyorrhea—an insidious disease of the gums that destroys the teeth and undermines bodily health.

Gradually the gums become spongy. They inflame, then shrink, thus exposing the unenameled tooth-base to the ravages of decay. Tiny openings in the gums form gateways for disease germs to enter the system.

Medical science has traced many ills to these infecting germs in the gums weakened by Pyorrhea.

They are now known to be a frequent cause of indigestion, anaemia, rheumatism and other serious conditions.

So watch carefully for that first tenderness or bleeding of the gums. Try Forhan's immediately. It positively prevents Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease) if used in time and used consistently.

And in preventing Pyorrhea—it guards against other ills.

Forhan's (For the Gums) cleans teeth scientifically as well. Brush your teeth with it. It keeps them white and clean.

If gum shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment. 35c and 60c tubes in Canada and U. S. If your druggist cannot supply you, send price to us direct and we will mail tube postpaid.

CLARK'S SECESSION HITS PROGRESSIVES

Action of Red Deer Member Is Causing Keen Comment.

OTTAWA, Sept. 15.—The secession of Dr. Michael Clark of Red Deer from the National Progressive party is causing the keenest comment today in both camps of the older parties. On the whole, however, the step taken by Dr. Clark has not caused very great surprise. It was rather expected that sooner or later Dr. Clark would cut away from the Progressive movement. Dr. Clark was the orator of the Progressives. It was he who, last session, gave to the followers of Hon. T. A. Crerar the name of National Progressive party by which they have since been known. Current comment in Ottawa is that his defection will be a heavy blow to the Progressives, especially in view of the terms of his letter to Mr. Crerar.

Dr. Clark is a former Liberal who left Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the conscription issue. He was elected in 1917 as a supporter of the Union Government, but following conclusion of the war joined the cross-benches and finally the National Progressive party from which he now announces his severance.

STANDS BY PRINCIPLE.

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—The Star says editorially:

Michael Clark of Red Deer is one of those antediluvian back-numbers who still value an almost-forgotten thing called principle. It is true that in our opinion the principles which govern Dr. Clark are usually based on error. But that is a mere side issue which no more affects the fact of the doctor's devotion to principle than it does his serene confidence that he is right. The point we want to make, however, is that in this shifting age of superficial opinions and swift judgments—of the rule of whim and the reign of passing passion—there is one man in the far west who maintains certain standards or principles by which he measures any public questions that come up before him for judgment.

Hint To Farmers.

Today though a radical of the radicals, he finds his principles in sharp conflict with the gospel of his fellow-radicals of the prairies.

It is clear from the context of Dr. Clark's letter that when he says "group government" he means class government. If the farmers are well-advised they will listen to Dr. Clark. He is their friend and not their enemy. Some of the visionaries and "elocutionaries," who are marshalling the growers of the west into a class movement in politics are preparing for their dupes an immense disaster. Class movements are certain to beget class movements and the very worst thing that could befall the men of the soil would be to sting and inflame the men of the town against them in a spirit of a self-defence.

THE GAZETTE'S VIEW.

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—The Montreal Gazette says:

For some time it has been apparent that efforts to unite the Liberal party and the Farmers or Progressive party in a combination to defeat the Government in the coming elections were doomed to meet with small success. Their prospects will be further darkened by this declaration of a leader whom both parties—Liberal and Progresive—seemed to claim.

Hon. W. A. Charlton Was Veteran Campaigner

THE retirement of Hon. W. A. Charlton of Norfolk, removes one of the best-known political figures in Canadian history. His first appearances was in 1886, when he unsuccessfully contested South Norfolk, Mr Morgan being elected. In 1890, however, he defeated Mr. Morgan by 65.

The election was voided and another contest held January 23, Mr. Charlton winning by 97.

He was re-elected at the general election in 1894 and 1898. In the general election of 1911 he went to the Ottawa House and was returned in 1917 by a majority of 1,286.

RANEY LIKELY TO PUT BAN ON RACING FORMS

Attorney-General Has Question Under Consideration At Toronto.

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—Although a definite decision has not been made, it is understood the attorney-general's department will shortly institute prosecutions with a view to stopping the sale in Toronto of the various "racing forms," sheets containing racing results and entries and selections for races.

Hon. W. J. Raney said tonight that the matter was under consideration by the department and the crown attorney, Eric Armour, K.C., and that if it appeared that there would ground for prosecutions they would be launched.

Under the criminal code the sale of racing forms is held to be illegal where it involves the dissemination of information to be used in betting. According to the legal advisers of the attorney-general's department, however, it is necessary to prove that vendors have knowledge that the information being dispensed is to be used for betting purposes. About six years ago the attorney-general was successful in a prosecution of this sort, he having been able to prove knowledge by the vendor of the use to which the racing form was to be put. On an earlier occasion, however, the prosecution failed, because this point of knowledge was not established. It was said tonight that in view of these judgments each case would have to be dealt with separately. A successful prosecution in one case might not establish the guilt of another vendor, although he might be selling the same racing form. It would appear, therefore, that the attorney-general will have to go after each vendor individually.

The "racing forms" are published daily, the one in most common use being a Buffalo publication, sent into Canada by express. At least one racing form is, however, published daily in Toronto, appearing on the streets in the early evening.

SHAREHOLDERS ASK FOR INVESTIGATION

TORONTO, Sept. 15. — The meeting today of the Rockwood Oil and Gas Company, Limited, at which authority was given the company to go into voluntary liquidation was not entirely harmonious. Some of the shareholders demanded an investigation. It was claimed that dividends were paid when they were not justified, and that these distributions tended to attract buyers of the company's stock.

The company in its short career of three years drilled eight wells and paid two dividends of one per cent. Total receipts from oil and oil bounties amounted to $65,608. The wells have gone dry.

ASK RECONSIDERATION OF FREIGHT DECISION

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—Immediate reconsideration of the decision of the Canadian Board of Railway Commissioners declaring for no reduction in freight rates will be sought by businessmen through their various organizations, it is forecast by trade board officials here today.

THRESHING UNDER WAY IN WESTERN CANADA

TORONTO, Sept. 15.—Threshing is general over all the areas served by the Canadian National Railways lines in Western Canada, according to a report by agents, received at headquarters of that system here today. "Threshing in progress" was reported by 401 agents out of a total of 485, while threshing was reported as completed at two points only. Rain falling over wide areas has halted operations to some extent. Fall plowing has begun at three points.

The estimates of yields made by agents vary widely, but a summary shows 76 agents reporting 10 to 20 bushels per acre in wheat; 27 reporting 20 to 30 bushels, and five indicating 30 to 40 bushels.

DRESSED MEATS ON DOWN GRADE — DROP $4 A CWT. TODAY

Lambs Also on Slide—Hay Scarcity Causes Advance in Price.

Several classes of dressed meats showed reductions this morning. Cow beef, 400 to 500 lbs, dropped from $12 50 to $8 and 9 per cwt. Heifers and steers, 500 to 600 lbs, dropped from $14 and $15 to $10 and $12. Lambs dropped from $22 and $24 per cwt to $18 and $20. Live hogs from $17 and $18 to $14 and $15.

Scarcity of hay was a live topic on the market today, only one load being offered. This was quickly snapped up at $25 a ton. The prevailing prices on Thursday were $19 to $24 50, according to quality. Threshing and other necessary farm work is given as a reason for the failure of farmers to bring their hay to the market.

Peaches made a further advance in price, selling at $1 40 to $1 65 for an 11-quart basket.

Potato offerings were small, with a good demand, at $1 75 to $2 25 a bushel.

Corn—Dec., 53⅜c; May, 57¼c.

Oats—Dec., 39c; May, 43⅜c.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Bears had an advantage in the wheat market today, owing to sterling exchange depression. Complete ending of the Argentine drought tended also to weaken the market. Commission houses led the selling, and there was an absence of any aggressive support. Initial quotations, which varied from ⅛c to 1¼c lower, were followed by a decided further setback and then something of a rally.

Corn was easier with wheat, opening unchanged to ⅜c lower, and then sagging all around.

Talk of better export cal lin prospect tended somewhat to steady oats. After starting unchanged to ⅜c off, the market declined a little more and then recovered in full.

MONTREAL STOCKS

Montreal, Sept. 16.—The local stock exchange experienced the quietest session it has known for several weeks during the first half hour this morning, only two of the principal issues putting in an appearance. These, Brompton and Laurentide, were both unchanged at their yesterday's closing levels, viz., 20 and 71 respectively.

Trading continued dull and uninteresting, and the close this morning was unfeatured. Abitibi was up a half point at 31, as was also Atlantic Sugar at 30½. Brompton remained unchanged at its opening figure, as did Laurentide, National Breweries appeared at 52½, its closing level yesterday afternoon, and Spanish River strengthened to 53¾.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 16.—Gains and losses were for the most part confined to fractions in the Toronto Stock Exchange today, with no definite trend either way.

C. P. R. opened at 127½, which was ½ point higher than yesterday's close, but failed to hold, dropping to 126. Bell Telephone was up ¼ at 106. There was a better demand for Victory bonds.

IN MEMORIAM.

WYATT—In loving memory of Edythe R. Wyatt, dearly beloved and only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt, Grosvenor street, who went from among us on Sept. 16, 1920. Loving in her friendship, faithful and cheerful in her service, patient and uncomplaining in suffering, she was a true servant of the Master.

As some sweet blossom droops and dies,
When blighted by the frost;
She faded from before our eyes,
And all too soon was lost;
But in God's garden, free from pain and sorrow,
Where grow His fairest flowers,
We know that we will find again
This vanished bloom of ours.
—Father, Mother, Brother, Uncles.

WYATT—In loving memory of our dear friend, Edythe Wyatt, who entered into rest Sept. 16, 1920, one year ago today.

Over her grave the branches wave,
Lies our true and loving friend.
You are not forgotten by us, Edythe, dear,
Nor will you ever be.

The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left your vacant space
This world can never fill.
—Inserted by Her Girl Friends. b

WANTED NICE DAY FOR HIS WEDDING

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 15.—An insurance risk of $500 against unfavorable weather on his marriage day, taken out by the bridegroom, a Boston man, was recently issued by a local insurance company, it was stated today. The bridegroom declared his intention of being married on the date set, but he wished to avoid extra expense should rain have altered the carrying out of the arrangements. The company found the risk a good one as the sun shone on the bridal couple and the stars twinkled as they left on their honeymoon.

SHAREHOLDERS TO PAY HON. WM. TAFT'S FEE

OTTAWA, Sept. 15.—(By Canadian Press.)—In reference to a newspaper report that Hon. William H. Taft would collect from the Government of Canada a very large fee for his services as arbitrator for the railway on the Grand Trunk Arbitration Board, it was stated today by a high official of the department of railways and canals that this was incorrect. By the terms of the agreement between the shareholders of the Grand Trunk Railway and the Government the Grand Trunk shareholders must pay the fee of their own arbitrator. The Government of Canada, it was stated by this official, is not responsible for one cent of Mr. Taft's fee.

W. Wood, Ingersoll.

CLAIM MORALS OF CHILDREN MENACED

WOODSTOCK, Sept 15.—Earl Faulds of Tillsonburg was brought here last night and today was charged in police court under the criminal code with conduct such as to make the home of several children a place where their morals were in danger. It is alleged that Faulds has been frequenting the home of a widow of a soldier in Tillsonburg, and that his conduct there would come under the above charge. The children were taken and placed under the care of the Soldiers' Aid Commission, while Faulds was remanded to jail for a week.

"Made in Canada" Equipment

Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways.

An added attraction for Western Fair visitors is the magnificent all-steel train of the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways, conveniently placed near the exhibition entrance. Conspicuous signs advertise the fact that it is "Made in Canada," and much favorable comment is forthcoming.

The train consists of huge Pacific type locomotive, all-steel Standard Sleeping Car and Dining Car, similar to those in use on the "Continental Limited" and the "National," daily all-steel trains from Montreal and Toronto respectively to the Pacific Coast. The berths are made up ready for occupation, and the tables in the dining car are set, the glittering silver and the spotless linen making a very pleasing appearance. The kitchen is a marvel of compactness and is the envy of every housewife. How do they ever manage in such small space? is the general question.

Visitors are welcome to examine the locomotive and all parts of the train, and courteous attendants will answer all inquiries. S.13.14.16

LIVESTOCK MEN AT FAIR ARE OPTIMISTIC OVER TRADE OUTLOOK

Many Famous Breeders Exhibit Prize Cattle Here This Year.

The midway and the grandstand performance may be the large sources of attraction to many Western Fair visitors, but the livestock exhibits proved to be the mecca for the thousand of farmers who thronged the Western Fair grounds Thursday.

Livestock men interviewed by The Advertiser all agreed that the cattle industry has hit bed-rock and looked for a steady improvement in conditions. They have not lost faith in their business and are steadily going ahead and improving their herds.

"As a matter of fact, now it the time to buy," declared one prominent livestock man who did not wish his name quoted. "I am grabbing all the good stuff that I can right now, for conditions are bound to improve and I wil lthen have some good quality stuff, procured at very reasonable prices."

Takes Edge Off.

J. L. Stansell, Straffordville, was disappointed that there were not more entries in the Ayrshires.

"We had practically no opposition, and it takes the edge off winning," he stated to the Advertiser.

"Just why are you strong for Ayrshires?" he was asked.

"Well, they are the happy medium between Holsteins and Jerseys," was the reply. "They are a little lower in production than the Holstein, but higher in fat, and vice versa compared with the Jerseys."

He stated that he would not show at the Guelph fair in December, but would have his best animals at the Royal Fair in Toronto, where milk tests and the showring both count. At Guelph, a cow was judged by production only.

Seventeen Firsts.

Rettie Bros., Norwich, Ont., are showing an animal for every year they have been in the business, namely 24. They took seventeen firsts, two grand championships and showed the junior champion Holstein bull at this year's fair.

This is the ninth show for them this year, as they have toured the Canadian West and brought back some $7,000 in prize money from the Western provinces, taking in exhibtions at both Calgary and Edmonton.

Mr. Rettie stated that he preferred Holsteins to any other breed because they were "the cows that made the money. You know they are the cows that pay the mortgage on the dear old farm," he added with a twinkle in his eye. "They may not test so high as other breeds, but they give more milk and when it comes to total fat, why they are there a thousand ways, and it is the total that counts."

H. A. Schweyer of Selkirk, Ont., proprietor of Erledale Farm, is a newcomer to the Western Fair, showing this year for the first time. He took third in the senior yearling heifer class and promises to come right back again next year with some improved stock.

"I am very well pleased with the treatment I have received," he said, "but I did better in Toronto with the same six animals."

T. A. Trick of Goderich is showing Holsteins at the Western for the second time. His "Nellie Zoo Mercedes" came first in the aged milk class, while he was fourth in senior herd and fifth in cow class.

NEW HEALTH NURSE COMES FROM EMBRO

Miss Annie Marshall Has Been Appointed At Stratford.

STRATFORD, Sept. 15.—Miss Annie Marshall of Embro has been appointed public health nurse at a salary of $125 per month. Miss Marshall is a 1920 graduate of the Toronto General Hospital, obtaining the price in obstetrices and the scholarship in social service given by the Toronto General Hospital Alumnae of Nurses. She is a graduate of Woodstock Collegiate and Stratford Normal School.

That reckless motorists would go to jail without the option of a fine was the announcement today of Chief of Police Broadley.

A wedding of much interest took place at the home of Mrs. George McLagan today, when Dorothy McLagan was married to Major James E. Hahn, D.S.O., M.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hahn. Miss Wynnifred McLagan was bridesmaid, and Major-Gen. J. H. McBrien, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., of Ottawa was groomsman.

The bride was attired in a simple gown of heavy white satin, the satin court train being lined with shell pink georgette and covered with lace to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Hahn will reside at 209 Madison avenue, Toronto.

After a lingering illness, the death occurred today of Donald McKean, aged 62 years. Eight years ago he moved from Scotland, settling in Stratford. His wife and three daughters survive.

MONTREAL 'MURRELLS' BALKED IN ESCAPE BY PRISON WALLS

Saw Through Fifteen Steel Bars, But Couldn't Scale Fence.

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—Ordered extradited to the United States, where he is wanted on a forgery charge in Omaha, Neb., Charles Harmon and a fellow prisoner named Joseph Fleming, last night sawed their way through fifteen steel bars over the window of their cell in Bordeaux jail, made a rope of their blankets and dropped into a yard. They were unable to make their way out of the jail yard because of a 20-foot high wall surrounding it and were found this morning in a great state of exhaustion after their efforts to scale the wall.

TOLMIE TELLS B. C. TO BUILD EMPIRE TRADE

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Sept. 15.—"We must build up trade with the empire," declared Hon. S. F. Tolmie, minister of agriculture, at a gathering of farmers here last night. "There are 68,000 cattle ready today," he continued, "according to reports of our department, and every head should go to the British market."

It was proposed to give more support to experimental farms and agricultural education generally, he said.

NO CANDIDATE CHOSEN.

SARNIA, Sept. 15.—Despite the fact that Conservative chieftains held a conference tonight no candidate was named to represent them. According to information given out no name will be made public until the week-end. At the meeting a number of the old political generals were in secret session, but beyond announcing that no candidate was picked, no statements were forthcoming concerning the conference.

Being a Spectator Is Easier Than Leading in This Battle

The Chesley Enterprise, in a recent issue, discusses the political chances in its district. There will in all probability be a three-cornered fight in both the Bruces and a straight fight between the Farmers and Conservatives for the two Grey seats. Already it is being figured out that Truax will be the Liberal candidate in South Bruce. Findlay has received the U. F. O. nomination, and the Conservatives will have for their standard-bearer John Purvis of Kilnoss, ex-Warden Brown of Chesley or George McCallum of Walkerton. We asked the latter on Monday if he was a prospective candidate, and like the astute politician he is, George refused to be drawn out, but he didn't say he would turn down a nomination if it were tendered to him. In North Bruce there is nothing surer than that there will be three in it. In Grey the Liberals will have no chance of electing their man and will let the Conservatives fight it out with the Farmers. Ball hasn't a ghost of a chance of being re-elected in South Grey, and the party stalwarts are looking to Dr. Jamieson as their political Moses. The Farmers are not inclined to send professional men to Parliament, and we believe the genial medico from Durham will bide his time. For the U. F. O. nomination Bob Brigham, the well-known Allan Park auctioneer, once a red-hot Tory, George Binnie of Glenelg, a former dyed-in-the-wool Grit, and Bob Atchison of Williamsford are mentioned as candidates with Miss McPhail as runner-up. In the north riding Capt. Rutherford of Sydenham Township is likely to be brought out by the agrarians against Lawyer Middlebro, and he will certainly make it hot for the prospective cabinet minister from Owen Sound. It is certainly far less nerve-racking to sit at one's desk and watch the contest growing warm than to be a leader in the fray.

THEATRES

AT THE ALLEN.

A story of great human interest is the William Fox production "Over the Hill," appearing as one feature only of the big special program at the Allen Theatre the latter half of this week.

The hero of the story was the black sheep of the family, and predained seemingly, as are thousands of his kind in real life, to get more hard knocks, beatings and ill-luck than all the others, but through it all there was one who trusted and believed until the end.

She was the little mother—and there are millions of her kind also in the world today—serving and sacrificing always that her own shall succeed through the years to come. But when it narrowed down to the last analysis, it was the black sheep who, when all the rest had miserably failed, was the one to save the father from disgrace and the old, frail, dim-eyed mother from a pauper's ending.

Royal Canadian Band.

As the feature attraction at the Allen all this week, the already-famous Royal Canadian Military and Concert Band threatens, to judge from the crowded houses during the week, to take by storm this city, as it did all Europe.

This is the same body of musicians, and under the same director, Captain M. Ryan, which was selected to attend the coronation of King George V., and which subsequently went overseas during the great war. They were signalled out for special distinction by General Sir Arthur Currie, and were ordered from Passchendaele to attend the exhibition of war photographs at Paris. In addition to this, they were further honored by receiving the Prince of Wales upon his arrival at Halifax from overseas.

In their careful selection of this week's bill the thoughtful management has not overlooked the comedy turn, and the irresistible Snub Pollard is seen in another of his swift-moving, rollicking tales.

AT LOEW'S THEATRE.

"The Brute Master" appearing at Loew's Theatre during the last half of this week is based on a most powerful story from the pen of Mrs. Jack London, depicting the struggles of a soul torn between right and wrong. It is a tale of the sea and of southern islands, permeated through and through with stirring scenes of adventure. As the star, Hobart Bosworth, gives an ideal characterization of a brutally-strong sea captain whose soul is reclaimed through love. He is well supported by some outstanding film stars.

Of the three vaudeville acts the Rose Revue presented by two women and a man is the most pretentious. Rarely has the theatre-loving public of London been treated to cleverer dancing than the toe-dancing and the classical work of the two women. The man sings fairly well and dances a little. Johnston and Crane present an act of talking and singing. The act contains an abundance of clever lines and considerable spice. With a mouth organ, a one string violin and other instruments, Parama treats his auditors to some novel music.

A Torchy comedy proved a great favorite when it was shown as a special feature. A "Snub Pollard" production, a news film and other features completed a bill which will be repeated today and on Saturday.

DAY NURSERY TO ASK CITY OF LONDON FOR FINANCIAL HELP

Will Have To Close Doors in Spite of Increase of Attendance Unless Help Given.

The local day nursery board is going to the city council next week in order to find if they will undertake at least part of the support of that institution. The work has grown enormously, and last week ten women were turned away from the day nursery at King street, because the small staff there was unable to take charge of their children. An average of 28 children are cared for there daily, thus allowing their mothers to go out and earn the very necessary money for their families. All cases are investigated, and no children are taken where the family is not in great need of the financial support of the mother. None of them are mothers' pensions cases.

Last year the nursery was supported by a splendid donation from the Red Cross Society. This was given by the Red Cross to establish the nursery, but was not continued this year. A budget was put into the General Welfare fund, but was cut in half by that body, so that unless assistance is given the nursery this year from some other source it cannot go on. The day nursery board feels that it has been a great benefit to the community, and hopes that the community will support it. In Toronto a number of day nursery members undertake to get $25 each towards the nursery support, thus paying half of its support. The city itself pays an equal amount. In Toronto there are several nurseries, each costing $6,000 to run. London should have at least one of the same proportions, and the London Board is putting the cost of running the nursery at the modest sum of $5,000.

The local board is taking every method of lessening the cost of running the institution, and just now they are asking for donations of crabapples and fall fruits, to be canned at the nursery.

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 15.—The marriage of Miss Margaret Mildred Moore, daughter of William Moore, 34 Devonshire place, and Walter George Ball, Guelph, took place yesterday at the Baptist Church parsonage, Rev. J. R. Turnbull officiating. There were no attendants. Following a wedding supper Mr. and Mrs. Ball left for Detroit They will reside in Guelph.

"CLEANED" OF $12,000.

MONTREAL, Sept. 15.—Conrad Labelle of Champlain, N. Y., is now in Montreal minus a roll of $12,000 which he had brought from his home with the intention of making a large purchase of whiskey. Two men, who are being sought by the police, opened negotiations for the sale of the liquor with Labelle at his home. He agreed to come to Montreal and brought the $12,000 in small bills at the suggestion of the two men. On the way to an alleged cache of liquor near Montreal, Labelle handed over his money to them and they made off with it in a car.

MRS. T. G. DOCHSTADER IS TAKEN BY DEATH

Was President of Women's Music Club For Three Years.

The news of the death of Mrs. Thos. G. Dochstader, which occurred yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, will be received with deep regret by the women of London, among whom she was an energetic worker for the past twenty years. In musical circles especially Mrs. Dochstader was an outstanding figure, holding the presidency of the Women's Music Club during the years 1917, 1918 and 1919. Saturday Night considered her a musician of enough importance in Canada to give a sketch of her life in its pages slightly over a year ago. And many a Londoner has been delighted with her voice of rare sweetness. Mrs. Dochstader was also an ardent worker in connection with the Women's Guild in St. James' Church, South London.

MRS. THOMAS G. DOCHSTADER, prominent in London musical circles, whose death occurred at her home in South London yesterday.

She came to the city about twenty years ago from Aylmer, where she was born, Effie Jean Browne, daughter of the late A. C. Browne and Mrs. Browne of Aylmer. She is survived by her husband, Thomas G. Dochstader; her son, John Dochstader; a sister, Mrs. H. P. D. Evans, of Toronto; a brother, C. D. Browne of Walkerville, and an aunt, Miss Louise Hillis of Aylmer. The funeral will be private, held at 2 o'clock on Saturday afternoon from her late residence, 125 Wortley road, to Woodland Cemetery, the services being conducted by the Rev. W. Leslie Armitage of St. James' Anglican Church, assisted by the Rev. J. W. J. Andrew of St. Thomas, formerly of Aylmer.

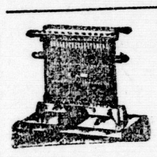

CAPT. JANNEY 40 DAYS WITHOUT BITE TO EAT

LETHBRIDGE, Sept. 15.—On the 40th day of his hunger strike, though weakening in his condition, Capt. Janney still holds out. His case has become a puzzle to the doctors, and his holding out is attributed to a strong constitution. He now takes tea, as well as water, and this may be helping him.

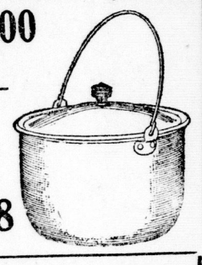

Janney's solicitors have wired the provincial attorney-general, protesting against "alleged illegal and inhuman treatment while awaiting trial," and asking for an immediate investigation in the interest of justice and to save Janney's life. Janney, his solicitors state, will not end his strike until the investigation is ordered.
