Naval Bill to Aid Empire is Passed

First Grant For Pt. Dover Harbor Will Be $75,000

Merely as a Preliminary to Get Things Started—Dominion Government Estimates to Cover Work.

The supplementary estimates to be brought down in the Dominion House there will be $75,000 towards the dredging of Port Dover harbor. The amount, $75,000, will simply be a preliminary sum, as the total cost will reach into large figures. That on completion a line of freighters will be run between Dover and Erie, the leading lake port on the Pennsylvania side, is a certainty. Of the vast importance of this connection with Brantford mention has already been made. It will not only save 76 miles over the present route in the matter of bringing Pennsylvania soft coal and steel to Brantford manufacturers, but it will also place this city some 20 hours nearer than Hamilton for shipments by water to the West. In addition to smaller freight rates, the cost of insurance from Dover will be less, and in addition there will not be any Welland canal tolls to pay, such as shipments from Hamilton have to meet. It is reasserted that the Canadian Pacific Railway is likely to erect one of their modern hotels at Dover. The idea would be to feature this as the popular lake resort for this region up to Galt and beyond.

LORD MORLEY GOES TO VISIT KAISER

A Friendly Visit to Settle Outstanding Questions Between Britain and Germany—King George Also To Go

NEW YORK, May 16.—A cable from London says that Viscount Morley of Blackburn has gone to Berlin on a "purely private" visit, it is understood that Mr. Morley's septuagenarian colleague will not devote all his time to sight-seeing. Lord Morley will meet not only the Kaiser, but also Dr. Von Helldorn-Holweg, the Imperial Chancellor, and all Germany's leading foreign politicians, and discuss with them all the problems in which British and German interests are associated. Baghdad, the Mediterranean and the Turkish questions will certainly be discussed, and the boundaries of the German and British East African possessions will be reviewed. The question of the limitation of armaments will not be touched upon, as it is understood Lord Haldane's visit, and the Imperial Chancellor's visit, nobody in Germany and apparently nobody in Great Britain is anxious to discuss the wedding of the Kaiser's daughter on the following day, and the Emperor will also be present at the ceremony. In this connection an attempt has been made to strip the gathering of any significance. Officially it is nothing more than a purely family formality, but it is generally expected that it will have important political consequences.

Water Board Holds Meeting

The Board of Water Commissioners met in the mayor's office this morning. Present were His orship, Mayor Hartman, City Solicitor W. T. Henderson, John Fair and F. W. Frank, Secretary. Accounts amounting to $2,563.43 were passed. During the month of April 104,123,000 gallons of water were pumped at the Waterworks, being an increase of 15,801,000 over the same month last year. A communication was received in reference to granting the Commissioners the right of way through the O. I. B. grounds for the purpose of laying a water main. Mr. Brewster stated that he would lay the matter before the Minister of Education. The water main going through the grounds would mean a source of better fire protection for the Institute, besides the public in general.

A Sorry Looking Outfit When Navy Bill Passed House of Commons

SUFFRAGETTES GET BETTER OF BRITISH GOVERNMENT

Freedom of The Press is Point at Issue and the Government Cannot Stop Publication of Militant Sheets—They Must Not Incite to Crime However.

LONDON, May 16.—A defeat has been inflicted on the British Government by the "wild women" in their fight over the question of the suppression of the militant suffragettes newspaper, The Suffragette. After Archibald Bodkin, counsel for the treasury, had announced that the Government would prosecute anyone printing the paper in the future, the Labor Press, which are the strongest supporters of the present cabinet, protested that this was an infringement of the liberty of the press. The former-Socialist member of parliament, George Lansbury, and the sitting Socialist member, James Keir Hardie, offered personally to undertake the publication of the paper, the suffragettes declined their offer with scorn. Thereupon the Home Office issued a statement declaring that Mr. Bodkin's pronouncement had been misunderstood and that the Women's Social and Political Union or any publisher could issue The Suffragette so long as it did not contain any incitement to crime. Sydney Drew, the former publisher has written to the Home Office, pointing out that he was compelled to give the undertaking, that "he will not hereafter printing The Suffragette take part in any other organ of the Women Social and Political Union." He wants to know what steps are now to be taken to relieve him from this undertaking. The special interest taken by the Labor party in the question of The Suffragette, was aroused because the Labor newspapers frequently come into collision with the government. This is the case in regard to general conscription for the army and in the event of this becoming the policy of the British Government which Labor party fears the Labor newspapers propose to urge the workmen of the British Isles to resist it. The militant suffragettes have renewed their complaint that the government discriminates between them and the Ulster Unionists. They point out that Sir Edward Carson has gone to Belfast to open the new hall of the Drilling Club there, the object of which is to resist the Irish Home Rule Government if it should be established. The women want to know why Sir Edward Carson is permitted to advocate rebellion, while they are imprisoned for doing so. This week's number of The Suffragette appeared to-day and was freely circulated. It was printed by the firm of Edward Francis. The newspaper says: "Though he has constantly deprecated what he calls our methods, he undertook the work, believing that the freedom of the press was in danger and also gravely doubting the wisdom of those who seem bent on depriving the suffragettes of their legitimate forms of expression." The general tone of the newspaper is much milder than it was before the raid on the militant suffragettes' headquarters and printing office. (Continued on Page 3)

NAVAL BILL TO AID EMPIRE PASSES COMMONS BY 33 VOTES

Tame Finish to Most Memorable Parliamentary Struggle Since Confederation—Five French Conservative Members Vote With the Opposition, While Col. McLean, Liberal, Supports the Government.

OTTAWA, May 16.—The Naval Bill has passed the House of Commons. At half-past eleven last night the most memorable Parliamentary struggle since Confederation came to a tame finish as could well be imagined. Following the long, bitter and often riotous opposition to the Government's naval proposal the final action of the Opposition presented an extraordinary anti-climax. Four amendments were presented on the third reading and rejected. These amendments were: By Mr. German, "that the money be spent under appropriations made annually by Parliament." Defeated on a vote of 95 to 46. By Mr. Lemieux, "that all work be performed under the provisions of the Naval Service Act of 1910." Defeated on a vote of 94 to 49. By Mr. Carvell "that all contracts be let by public tender." Defeated on a vote of 95 to 54. By Mr. Carroll, "that materials be purchased in Canada." Defeated on a vote of 102 to 58. By Sir Wilfrid Laurier, "that this bill be not now read a third time, but on this day six months." Defeated on a vote of 100 to 66. On this division five French Conservative members, Messrs. Achim (Labelle), Boulay (Rimouski (Berthier) and Guilbault (Joliette) voted with the Opposition. Col. Hugh S. McLean, the Liberal member for Queen's-Sunbury, voted with the Government. The final division took place at 11:30 and was witnessed by crowded galleries. The same five French Conservatives voted against the bill, and Col. McLean voted for it. Premier Borden was loudly cheered on rising to vote. The French Conservatives who opposed the bill were greeted with cheers from the Opposition, while Col. McLean, voting against his party, was vigorously applauded by the Conservatives. One Cry of "Shame." The announcement of the vote brought more Conservative cheers, which were repeated when a few minutes later the House adjourned. The Conservative members left the Chamber singing "Rule Britannia." Some one on the other side from habit, shouted "Shame." One of the most notable features of the debate leading up to the passage of the bill occurred in connection with the Laurier motion for the six month's hoist. The charge had been repeatedly made that the Government policy was dictated by the Nationalists, yet when Sir Wilfrid Laurier sat down the man who got up to second his amendment was Guilbault of Joliette, a so-called Nationalist. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in supporting his amendment, argued that the policy of a Canadian navy proposed by him would be just as acceptable to the Admiralty from the viewpoint of moral support. He sought to prove this by an extract from a speech of the First Lord of the Admiralty. This declared that Canada's three ships were absolutely necessary and spoke of the moral effect of the gift. From this point of view alone it approved of the Laurier plan. Premier Borden, in reply, sharply defined the difference between the proposals of the Government and the Opposition, emphasizing the Liberal idea that a Canadian navy could be neutral in time of a British war, whereas the ships to be offered by Canada under the proposal of the Government would be for the common defence of the Empire whenever that Empire was threatened. The Prime Minister stated to the House again that the participation of the dominions in Imperial defence must carry with it some consultation in Imperial affairs. There were difficulties but these must be overcome. (Continued on Page 7)

New Bank Building Will Be Ornament To Business Section

Features of New Bank of Montreal Plans Which Are Now in Course of Preparation—Will Be Fine Structure.

As announced in last night's Courier, the plans of the Bank of Montreal for a new building in Brantford outline very handsome premises. It will be 75 feet by 48 feet in size and of two stories. The present splendid property on Dalhousie and Darling streets will be used, and the building is to face on Market street. It will be set back quite a distance from the street. It is understood that the large remaining area will not be sold, but laid out in an ornamental manner. The bank premises on the ground floor will have a height of 16 feet, or four feet higher than at present. Above there will probably be rooms for the clerks and the caretaker. Mr. Webster, of Barrett, Blackader & Webster, the Montreal architects, who was here yesterday, will report at the head office on the cost of an all-stone structure, and one of brick with stone trimmings. He stated that the interior finish would be of the very best. Among other innovations, a ladies' room is planned and a room where customers can find stationery and conduct any private correspondence which they may desire. Mr. Webster will return in the course of some ten days, when specifications will be issued. He is a well-known architect and was associated with White of New York at the time he was killed by Harry Thaw.

FORMER BRANTFORDITE ARRESTED AT REGINA

Ex-Policeman McCauley is Charged With Theft—Arrested by His Fellow Officers—He Pleads Not Guilty

Roger McCauley, a former Brantford policeman, who got his first start in police work in Brantford, is in trouble in Regina. McCauley left Brantford for Hamilton where he served three years on the force, later going to Regina. With a fellow constable he is charged with theft. While in Brantford he was well liked. He was a pains-taking, although somewhat of a boyish looking officer when here. He left with a good record. The Regina despatch over the Canadian Press Wire referring to the charge against McCauley is as follows: "Yesterday afternoon two members of the city police force, former Winnipeg men, Constables Ogilvie and McCauley, were arrested by order of the police commission on a charge of theft. Chief Skates is chief prosecutor in the case. The men had come to him from Winnipeg. They were sworn and put on night duty. One of their duties was to try all the doors of the business section. One of these constables, it is alleged, found the door of a clothing establishment open and had helped himself to a Panama hat, a raincoat and a suit of clothes. The other finding the door of a wholesale warehouse open, it is alleged, took a supply of candies. The commission promptly dismissed both men and instructed the chief to swear out warrants charging them with theft. The men were arrested by their own companions. They came up in the police court this morning and were charged with theft while on duty. Both pleaded not guilty."

To-Day's Budget With The Brantford Police

Theft, forgery and conversation like unto that of a Cuban Star with a sore throat, featured the case of Kesyl Dutozyl, a young man arrested for the theft of about $30 from Hia Scemenuk, a compatriot. Mr. Martin McEwen defended, and Mr. Louis Stander elucidated. One witness intoning his evidence in D sharp, stated that when suspicion rested on prisoner, he (witness) went to the Grand Trunk station, and after waiting an hour he saw prisoner come along. Accusation followed, and, according to the witness, threats on the part of the prisoner, "I'm going to shoot you for dead," translated Mr. Stander, smiling. Witness said he was very scared, but took the prisoner and his "brother" (who in Canada would be called his cousin) back and had prisoner charged. The plaintiff, whose name will be found above, in his evidence stated that five other men slept in the same room with him, but later prisoner said this was a fallacy—there were eight altogether. The magistrate then examined signatures supplied by both parties, and compared them with that of the prisoner. The general opinion of the P. M. and the counsel was that the signature on the documents were forgeries. Prisoner, giving evidence on his own behalf, said that he had not threatened to shoot a previous witness, but said that he would "fix" him, explaining with a winning smile to the Magistrate, that there was frequent gambling in the boarding house, and that he had won as much as $2 at a session. Prisoner's cousin, surnamed Semoneck, gave evidence corroborating that of Kesyl, and aid that he had lent prisoner $10, and that the prisoner also had other money. There was a good deal of evidence, and a great deal of translating, and in the end the P. M. said there was not enough evidence to convict and discharged the prisoner. V. B. Peobell was charged with speeding, on the summons of P. C. Felker, who said the defendant was going at anything from 25 to 40 miles an hour, but here he differed from defendant, who said 9 or 10 miles was the pace. Mr. Coulbeck said that defendant was speeding, "as if I may be allowed to say so, a great many cars do on Market street," he added. "He's not the only one," said the Chief, "but he got caught." Defendant pathetically stated that he had been nine years as a chauffeur, and he was not going over 9 miles an hour, and reiterated both statements frequently. In reply to a question of the P. M., he stated that his speedometer was not working. "Then you had better get that speedometer working," commented Mr. Livingston. Defendant disparaged his car, said it was old, noisy and slow. He added that three cars passed him on Market street. Mr. McEwen, the Chief and the Magistrate had a talk on the subject of speed, and the Magistrate warned the defendant and let him go without a fine. "I want the Press to take notice of this," he added, "for I intend to impose a penalty in future. This joy riding must be stopped." (Continued on Page 7)

KEEPS LID ON GAS MATTERS

Aldermen Have Asked for Information, But it is Not Forthcoming.

Some time ago a request was made in the City Council for certain information which the books of the Brantford Gas Co. contained. The Mayor of the city being a director of the company ex-officio, and the city having $20,000 worth of stock, in the concern, members of the aldermanic body believed they were entitled to know what was what in regard to the company's affairs. The Brantford Gas Co., however, is objecting strenuously to any publication of its affairs and the aldermen are still in the dark. A conference is being called between the mayor, civic representatives and the gas company officials to decide just how much information should be handed out to the public. Some of the aldermen have developed recently a remarkable inquisitiveness.

Suffragettes

(Continued from Page 1) More Bombs Found. LONDON, May 16. The militant suffragettes campaign of coercion by means of "bombs" placed in public institutions in order to intimidate the British Government into granting the franchise to women was carried on in several quarters of London and the provinces today.

A very workmanlike canister of explosives with a clockwork attachment was found in the Rotherhithe public library in the south of London this morning. It was labelled "Votes for Women." The bomb was placed, according to the belief prevailing in some quarters, by a man, many of whom the police suspect have been engaged by the officers of the militant suffragette society for this work. Another machine was found today in the letter box of the Wandsworth district post office in the extreme southwest of London. It consisted of a glass tube containing fluid. A partly burned fuse was attached to one end. The police declare that the placing of the bomb was apparently the work of the militant suffragettes. Still another canister of explosives with a partially burned fuse was found today in Holy Trinity Church at Hastings, a popular watering place on the south coast, where the millitant suffragettes have been most active during the past week. A bridge over the Great Western near West Borne Park station in the west end of London, was also the object of a suffragette "bomb" attack. The canister in this case was a larger one than those usually employed. It was filled with live cartridges enclosed in cotton wool, which was saturated with paraffin oil. The attached fuse had been ignited, but had gone out. The whole machine was wrapped in militant suffrage literature.

Militant Operated Upon

LONDON, May 16.—Miss Zelle Emerson, militant suffragette, of Jackson, Mich., was operated on today for appendicitis, which is said to have developed owing to the privations she underwent while she was carrying out a "hunger strike" in Holloway jail. She was released on April 25 on account of her weakened condition and some time afterward was taken to a private hospital in the country to prepare herself for the operation. She had been sentenced to six weeks imprisonment on February 14 for smashing shop windows.

WHEN BABY CRIES.

When the baby cries continually do not put it down for pure ugliness—that is not the baby's nature—it is to be happy and laughing. Every baby should cry on an average of fifteen or twenty minutes a day—that is how he strengthens his lungs. But mothers, if your baby gives sharp piercing cries or low sobbing wails, he is in pain and needs attention. Nothing will relieve the little one so quickly as Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the stomach and bowels, expel worms, break up colds, and will make baby healthy and happy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Very Beautiful Sun Porch Home

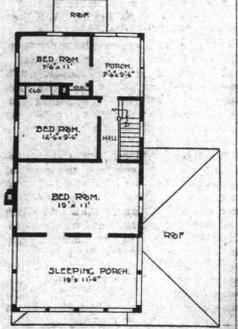

Designed By Chas. S. Sedgwick, Architect

The striking feature of this small house is its large piazza floor space both on the first and second floors, all of which are designed to be enclosed with glazed sash and also screened. The size of the main house exclusive of piazza is 20 feet wide by 32 feet deep. The piazza on the first floor is 12 feet in width across the front and extends back ten feet in width on the right hand side, making an unusually large floor space that can be furnished and used as a living room. Above in the second floor is a sleeping porch 12 feet in width and 20 feet in length, also enclosed with glazed sash and wire screening.

This house is equally well suited for a permanent all year round home or for a summer home. The living room is 11 feet by 19 feet with a wide stone fireplace at the left side and small windows above with book shelves beneath, at the right of the doorway. The dining room opens wide in connection with the living room with a columned arch. In the rear is a kitchen, also a bath-room and a closet opening off from the dining room. The second floor is divided into three sleeping rooms in addition to the sleeping porch. The small rear sleeping room opens off from a glazed porch and is for servant's use. There are two chimneys, one for the front fireplace and one for kitchen use and furnace. There is a full basement under the main part. This house is estimated to be built for $1,000, exclusive of heating and plumbing. The floors are of hardwood and the finish of fir stained and the walls plastered and tinted. The construction throughout is good. The outside is covered with wide drop siding to the window sills and above the walls are cemented. All of the outside woodwork is left rough and stained brown with the roof and shingles stained a dark reddish brown.

RECITAL PROVED CLEVER AFFAIR

Canadian Authors at Conservatory Hall—Artists Showed Much Talent.

The Canadian Authors recital given by Misses Emma Jackson, Ina May Jones and Mae Forestelle McGraw, pupils of Miss Squire, at the Conservatory Hall last evening, pleased a good sized and appreciative audience.

This was the last of a series of four recitals given this past season by these three young ladies and they are to be congratulated for their success in having pleased the people of Brantford entertainingly and comprehensively the works of Tennyson, Riley, Browning and Canadian authors.

The platform was prettily decorated with flags and maple leaves making a truly Canadian background. The programme was opened by an instrumental by Miss Tobias which was well given.

This was followed by a lecture by Miss Jackson on Canadian Authors, which went to show that Canada has produced many brilliant writers and added not a little to the good literature of the world. The late Miss E. Pauline Johnson was especially featured, each of the readers giving selections from her works. Miss Jones followed the lecture with

"At Hall Mast," which was exceptionally well rendered and proved to be her most popular number.

"Ragging" by Ernest Seton-Thompson was a charming little story of a rabbit.

Miss McGraw then read "The Corn Husker" and "Brier" by Miss Johnson, "The Maple," by Chas. G. D. Roberts and "When Folks Come 'Four House," by Edmund Vance Cook, the latter being a sweet little characterization of a wee tot.

"O Canada" was sung by Mr. Neil McLeod in his own inimitable manner.

"The Cattle Thief" was dramatically rendered by Miss Jackson and in "At Winnipeg Station," by Bengough the humor was fully brought out, and thoroughly appreciated as was shown by the enthusiastic applause of the audience.

The second part of the programme opened with a well rendered instrumental solo by Miss Tobias, after which Miss Jones read "The Raid" by Sangster and "In Sunflower Time" by Jean Blewett in pleasing manner.

Miss McGraw read "Bill Cavers," adapted from "The Second Chance," by Nellie McClung. This was one of the best numbers on the programme and was intensely interesting throughout.

Miss Senn sweetly sang, "Good-Bye" and "The Songster" by Miss Johnson.

The programme closed with two numbers by Miss Jackson "Johnnie Courteau" by the late W. H. Drummond, which brought down the house, and "Esther" by Miss Crawford, which was sympathetically rendered.

The recital was a brilliant success and will tend to awaken a lively interest in Canadian literature. Much credit is due Miss Squire and all connected with these recitals, the proceeds of which will be donated to the Tuberculosis Hospital.

A PLEASING FEATURE

It is pleasing to note that United States papers of the better class are still most vigorously protesting against the proposed breach of faith with Great Britain over the Panama Canal Treaty.

Recently Senator Chamberlain, one of the leaders with regard to the matter, openly proposed, with an unblushing face, to have Uncle Sam renounce all treaties with the Old Land on the subject.

The Buffalo News, among other papers, takes the Senator severely to task for his action.

It points out that it is rather a new doctrine of international law that when a treaty has been made between two powers covering a subject completely to the satisfaction of both, that some one shall come along later and say that prior to the institution of the treaty one of them had rights which were not intended to be, when in fact no such rights were pointed out and indeed never existed.

The margin by which men who are working in the interests of the coastwise monopolies seek to hold their advantage, so that the ship-owners personally may make profit out of the canal, to the loss of the treasury, is not the most creditable to be assumed by those who try to hold the treaty in spite of the wrong involved in doing so.

Mr. Chamberlain asserts that the idea of later control over the territory by the United States justifies her tearing up the treaty, though the treaty provided expressly that no matter what power should later exercise control over the isthmus, the two parties to that treaty should be bound by the terms of the treaty.

In fact, says the News, there isn't a leg to stand on for the advocates of those who want to make a present to a few American ship-owners under the guise of protecting our own flag. It is a sham and a cheat on its face.

GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES

At a recent meeting of the Dominion House, Hon. Mr. Pelletier moved that the Government Annuities Act be increased from $600 a year to $1000 a year.

In response to the queries of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. Pelletier said:

The proposed amendment is one which has been suggested to me by Mr. Bastedo, the head of the Annuities Branch. My right hon. friend knows that the Annuities Branch was formerly under the Department of Trade and Commerce. At the commencement of the last session it was transferred to the Post Office Department, so that the 14,000 postmasters in the country might become agents for this Government insurance.

On account of the increased cost of living, Mr. Bastedo and Doctor Coulter, the Deputy Postmaster General, have found that $600, the present limit of an annuity ought to be increased to $1,000. Some persons who have applied for annuities and who have been told that the maximum amount payable is $600 have said that this amount is not enough to cover the necessities of old age, and as a result Mr. Bastedo has suggested that the amount should be increased.

This is the sole object of the present legislation. My right hon. friend has inquired about the general working of the Annuities Branch of the Post Office Department. I may say that this law as passed by the Government of my right hon. friend is to my mind one of the best that could have been placed on the statute book. I have taken some interest in the matter, and I think this form of insurance should be considered as being greatly in the public interest.

The cost of a board of administration and the expenses incidental to this kind of insurance are borne by the Government for the benefit of the people. The business has been increasing year by year, although during the past year it has been practically stationary, owing to the fact that the statute was taken advantage of the first year it was put on the statute book, and those who had been engaged to deliver lectures with regard to the plan did not have as much success as they had during the first year. With this increase, and with the very efficient work of Mr. Bastedo in doing, we believe that this system of annuities will increase very much and that the people will derive great benefit from it.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier expressed his entire concurrence, and said he had urged Sir Richard Cartwright to make it $1000 in the first place.

Bill Gets Third Reading. The Naval Bill came in like the proverbial lion, but its final passage was certainly of a very lamb-like nature.

Without closure the measure was adopted by a large majority, and it now goes to the Senate.

The scenes in the House over this measure have been a disgrace to Canada. Certain of the Laurierites lost their heads completely, and they carried on in a manner which would have been more befitting a set of fishwives.

That the party has lost, and lost heavily, in the estimation of a vast majority of the people cannot be questioned.

They will lose still more heavily if the Grit majority in the Senate is fatuous enough to throw out the measure.

They will lose still more heavily if the Grit majority in the Senate is fatuous enough to throw out the measure.

They will lose still more heavily if the Grit majority in the Senate is fatuous enough to throw out the measure.

They will lose still more heavily if the Grit majority in the Senate is fatuous enough to throw out the measure.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Miss May will kindly take immediate notice that most of us like ours with the chill off.

And it was for that tame fizzle the Pugsleyites and the Mugsleyites lost so much beauty sleep.

That Liberal boast of fighting to the last ditch evidently encountered some barbed-wire entanglements.

It is said that Lt.-Col. Hendrie may be the next Lt.-Governor of Ontario. He would do all right, but isn't there any other place that can grow them in Ontario except Hamilton?

Five Nationalists, whom the Grit organs pretend to say boss Borden, voted against his navy proposal, and one Liberal, Col. H. McLean, voted for it. The Colonel evidently possesses a keen appreciation of public sentiment.

What the Other Fellow Thinks.

The Senate's Chance.

The Quebec Chronicle:—"When Sir Wilfrid Laurier was respectfully approached, by the sincerest friends he ever has had during his public career, with the request that he would keep the naval question out of the ferment of party politics, he was given in haste to assert himself as true Canadian statesman."

That chance, he unfortunately for himself and Canada, turned his back upon. And every one now knows why he did so. And now the Senate of Canada is about to be given a similar chance of standing by Canada, outside of partisanship, with no one venturing to give its members advice beyond what Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his irrelevant inner circle of partisans in the House of Commons have been giving of late rather gratuitously.

The Spread of Baseball.

Ottawa Journal: That no finer game can be seen than a first class lacrosse match is unquestionable, yet equally beyond question the popularity of baseball is growing so rapidly in Canada that the old national game is taking a second place. Why this should be so is perhaps not hard to say. The chief reason is that lacrosse is too strenuous to be possible as a steady diet. No team could possibly stand four or five matches a week for any length of time—no even for a single week without loss of snap. Consequently, no schedule of first-class lacrosse matches could be arranged so as to give to the public a daily or almost daily availability of entertainment. Correspondingly, the possible game receipts are much larger in baseball than in lacrosse; and with the larger game receipts comes the ability to pay more for players, and to make the game a regular business which draws into it not only capable athletes for the playing teams, but astute brains into their management.

Also as appetite grows by what it feeds on, the public appetite keeps veering to baseball simply because the diet is ample and steady.

Another reason sometimes advanced is that lacrosse has become somewhat discredited by rough play. If so, this is another thing in which lacrosse is necessarily failing to hold its own against baseball. In lacrosse there is a personal contact and a personal rivalry which are sure to breed rows occasionally. Players come into collision in lacrosse as they do not in baseball; players have to measure themselves directly against each other in personal competition in lacrosse as they do not in baseball and for both reasons, tempers are liable to be lost and rough play follows—sometimes foul play, when a man's temperament is mean. This does not occur in baseball; there may be loud talk, there may be verbal abuse of other players of the umpire—but not once in baseball to fifty times in lacrosse has had temper a chance to get as far as a foul blow or trip—and from the nature of the game, no manager or executive committee can check violence in lacrosse as effectually as is possible in baseball.

A Diamond Rope

Or, The Mystery Solved

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Rogers thrust the morning newspaper under my nose and pointed to the glaring headlines.

"Read that," he commanded.

"I have read it, confound you!" I growled.

"You can't stir up any sensational argument in this office today, Jack. I don't care if Mrs. Slashtin Goebsy has lost her diamond necklace! She hasn't consulted us. She is no client of ours."

"True, true—sadly true," agreed my partner, sitting down on the edge of the table and pushing his hat back with an excited gesture.

"Never forget that the pleasant side line or diversion, avocation, or whatever you call it, of this particular law firm is to do a bit of amateur detective work, especially when there's a reward of real money out."

"Real money, Jack? I pricked up my ears.

"Five thousand dollars reward," returned my partner crisply.

"I whistled. 'I'd like to get hold of that, Jack.'

"Same here. Want to try for it?"

"Where shall we begin? What do you know about it?"

"Only what it says in the paper here, but I've drawn my own conclusions."

"I picked up the newspaper. 'I'll read it over carefully, and we can compare notes,' I suggested, and Jack nodded assent and lit his pipe. At last I threw aside the sheet. 'Fire ahead,' I said.

"In the first place, Mrs. Goebsy declares that she removed the rope of diamonds from her neck and laid it on her dressing table. She passed into her boudoir for an instant, and when she returned the rope had disappeared. It was 2 o'clock in the morning. She had just returned from a function of some sort and had ordered that her maid need not be in attendance. She was practically alone. Her husband was in Washington. She neither heard repeated several times as we questioned her in our capacity of private detectives.

"She is French?" I asked.

"Yes; she has been with me for five years and is most reliable."

"Where is she now?"

"In the house somewhere—perhaps in her own room. She was much upset by the robbery as well as by the police command that no one leave the house."

"That is a detective in the lower hall?"

"Yes. He came a half hour ago. I have felt easier since he has been on duty."

Mrs. Goebsy showed us the dressing table whereon she had laid the rope of diamonds which had so mysteriously disappeared during the few minutes she was absent from the room.

We looked the room over carefully without result. There was no chimney, no hole or mode of escape for man or beast of any shape or size. It was a charming room, this dressing room of fashionable beauty—the walls papered with trellised roses that rambled over the ceiling and almost appeared to hang in clusters over our heads.

The ceiling attracted me strangely. When I stood on a chair and poked my cane at a spot over the dressing table a look of intelligence came into Rogers' expressionless face.

"What are you doing?" half laughed Mrs. Goebsy. Then she added, "How very odd!"

It was curious, odd, absurd, anything you care to call it for my cane had poked right through one of those lovely pink roses on the ceiling, and there dropped down to the carpet the cut out rose itself and left up there an ugly little hole through ceiling, plaster and lath.

"I guess we'll find a loose board up there in the room of your maid," suggested Rogers.

"As well as a long, slender stick with a hook on one end," I added briskly, for I could see that $5,000 reward in the distance, and it looked good to me.

"Oh, do you believe that that is the way it happened?" cried Mrs. Goebsy, quite unmoved by the discovery we had made. "I cannot believe that Felice would do anything of that sort."

"If you will accompany me upstairs," I suggested, leaving my partner in the dressing room on guard.

We found the door of the maid's room wide open and the bird flown, by what underground route we never found out.

I pulled up the rug from the floor and searched until I found the loose board in her closet. When I pried it up I could look right down on to the dressing table, from which the diamond necklace had disappeared.

"How is this for a fishing pole?" I asked after a search of the rug, and brought forth two strips of bamboo, perhaps six feet each in length. Once they had formed part of a bamboo porch screen. On the end of one strip there was fastened a piece of wire firmly twisted into a strong hook.

When one pole was fitted into the other and thrust down the hole we were enabled to fish up almost anything from the dressing table below.

Now that the method of robbery had been solved, it remained to catch the clever maid, who had disappeared with the diamond necklace. A search of the house resulted in nothing. No one had seen her since the belated breakfast from Mrs. Goebsy, and, having that lady's assurance that our discoveries should remain a secret for the time being, we went on our way rejoicing, large visions of the $5,000 reward dazzling our eyes.

"If you were a French maid and had attached yourself to a fortune in diamonds what would you do?" I asked Rogers the next morning.

"I'd make tracks for the French line pier!" he exclaimed, and I was with him instantly. So we were soon whirling down Houston street to the French line pier.

Passengers were straggling aboard, and for several hours we watched them, finding no one who came within a mile of the description Mrs. Goebsy had given us of her maid Felice.

Two black garbed nuns hastened past us, and Rogers' grip on my arm brought me to instant attention.

One of the nuns bore the description of Felice. We could not see her hair because of the stiffly starched linen.

The other woman was stout and commonplace looking, but somehow they did not have the serene expression of the sweet sisters of the church.

The small, dark one, like her companion, wore a heavy rosary of large, black, irregular beads. It swung from her waist and swung in and out of the thick folds of her skirts. I caught all this at a glance as they passed, and we followed them aboard.

I was almost ashamed of my suspicions, but Rogers was whispering in my ear.

"The short one—notice her rosary! Looks like black wooden beads or jet, eh? Caught a glimpse of a sparkle that would dazzle your eyes."

"What is it, Jack?" I asked.

"The diamond rope painted black. What do you think of that? Just step ashore and call an officer. Telephone to headquarters if you think best. I'll watch here and see that they don't get away or suspect."

"You're sure?" I insisted as I went ashore.

"Sure as guns!" he said.

And he was right! When the heavy black rosary was taken from the defiant, scorching, biting little French woman and the beads were carefully scraped with a knife they revealed the brilliant sparkle of the gossamer diamonds.

It was a clever trick, and its discovery won us the $5,000 reward.

Large Attendance.

At the Echo Place Improvement Association meeting held last night at Mohawk Park school, several reports of committee's were presented. The Road Committee reported that the township council decided to commence work at once to improve the Hamilton Road and ditches also at certain sections of road, where boulevards of residents are running into the road; the road to be widened at those points. The committee on drainage reported work to commence at once on drainage system. A large number of new members were enrolled last night. Votes of thanks were given the various committees for their efforts and were in the interest of Echo Place.

Order Not Good

The orders that Police Magistrate Livingston issued to Detective Chapman and P. C. Tyrell for $20 each as a reward to catching men who were afterwards convicted in the police court on a charge of horse stealing, will likely be turned down when they are presented for payment at the City Treasurer's office with the remark "no funds." It appears that similar cases have occurred in the past and the last time a police officer presented an order for such a reward, the city council at its next meeting passed a by-law rescinding the former one. The Magistrate was possibly not aware that the old by-law had been rescinded.

CAUDWELL & BECKETT

Naval Bill Passes Commons

the meantime there were much that could be done locally, the construction of dry docks, the training of officers and men, the establishment of shipbuilding plants, the formation of ports were naval works were situated, and the addition of coal cruisers to the hydrographic and fisheries protection services.

The Welland Amendment
When the third reading of the bill was moved, Mr. German (Welland) presented the first of the proposed amendments to the Opposition. It was the same as the one which was voted down at the close of the debate in committee, and declared that the appropriation for the construction of battleships should be voted annually and expended under the supervision of parliament and not the Governor-in-Council. Mr. German indicated that there might be immediate action by the House if the Government would abandon its own policy for that of the Opposition by voting money under the Laurier Naval Service Act. The idea caused some laughter, and Mr. German closed with the assertion that the Senate would kill the bill.

The Prime Minister denied the existence of any pledge given to the Nationalists which had not been made in public. He had asked Parliament in a strictly non-partisan speech, to do what the Admiralty advised. If the bill passed and the Liberals were returned to power they would be in a position to carry out their policy.

Mr. German's amendment was voted down by 85 to 46, a Government majority of 39.

Mr. Lemieux then moved that the bill be amended by the insertion of the following words: "That all works under this act shall be executed under the provisions of the Naval Service Act."

The member for Rouville discussed the suggestion, which in fact provided for the formation of a Canadian navy, and Mr. Middleboro (N. Grey) replied to him. The member for North

Grey pointed out that Mr. Churchill and the Imperial Government recognized that the policy embodied in the bill before the House was not of permanent contribution. He accused the Opposition of gross unfairness in representing the Government's policy as one of concurrent contributions to the British navy.

Wanted an Announcement.
Mr. Sinclair (Guelphboro), occupied some time in asking the Prime Minister to announce his permanent policy, and to say whether or not he favored the establishment of a Canadian navy. He predicted that the Liberal majority in the Senate would reject Mr. Borden's bill.

The Senate, he said, had voted for a Canadian navy and had nothing had since happened to make its members change their views.

The proposal of Mr. Lemieux was voted down—Nays 94, yeas 49; a government majority of 45.

Then came Mr. Carvell (Carleton, N. B.), with an amendment providing "that all the works executed under this act be by contract awarded under the provisions of the Naval Service Act." He said that the Naval service act provided for the construction of ships by contracts awarded by tender and he reasserted the Opposition's "no emergency" argument.

The Prime Minister once again traversed his statement on the subject. There was no difference of opinion between the parties as to the manner in which contracts should be awarded, and there was no intention to depart from the recognized practice. At the same time the government hoped to utilize the experience and expert knowledge of the British Admiralty as were employed in the case of vessels of the Imperial navy. One or more of the ships might be constructed in a Royal dockyard and not by a private firm.

A third division was then taken, and Mr. Carvell's motion defeated by 95 votes to 54.

Then Mr. Carroll (S. Cape Breton) moved the proposed amendment which was the pretext for Saturday morning's disorderly scene. It read: "Whenever practicable in the construction of the ships provided for by this act, the constructors or builders shall be bound to accept steel and other material produced in Canada."

The South Coast Briton member said that members who voted against his proposition would be voting against certain industries and the men employed in them, and would be voting to develop the great shipbuilding industry of Britain. About one-third of the cost of a battleship was the cost of material, and therefore, at least $1,000,000 out of $15,000,000 could be expended in Canada.

Had a Happy Sound.
Mr. Borden said that Mr. Carroll had had a grievance a few days ago and now had an amendment. The suggested new clause had a happy sound but on examination proved to have little in it. The hull of a battleship was composed of plates of large dimensions angles and other things not made in Canada. At present no company in Canada made such things. He had been told upon inquiry that certain angles would require an investment of ten million pounds sterling. The quantity of this material for Canada's three battleships would cost between $675,000 and $750,000. No corporation would establish a plant to secure orders to that amount. Neither would a firm establish a plant to roll armor plate at a cost of twenty million pounds unless the country was going to produce Dreadnoughts by wholesale.

Mr. Borden said that the Government was anxious to see shipbuilding developed in Canada, but he did not think it possible to start with the construction of three huge Dreadnoughts and then stop. No one would establish a plant merely to build three ships. He estimated that Canada would have to export from ten to fourteen million dollars to do work on these ships to the value of seven or eight million dollars.

Mr. Langset (La Prairie) continued the debate and Hon. Martin Burrell followed. The Minister of Agriculture said that every member was about to assume the grave responsibility of expressing approval or disapproval of a most important measure which five months ago the Government had introduced, after consultation with the Imperial authorities.

Canada's Unique Position
He spoke of the high plane upon which the proposals had been submitted, of the reference of the Prime Minister of Great Britain to the heavy and long-endured burden of the Empire which had been borne by the British taxpayer, and referred to the unique position which Canada had so long enjoyed of pursuing peacefully her task of development undisturbed by outside interference, thanks to the power and might of the British navy.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, while declaring that Britain was in any danger, declared he would be the first to go to the assistance of the Mother Country, if danger threatened. But when the clock was on the stroke and the day of trial was on he would be too late with his preparations and his prof- er of aid.

The best security was the strength of the British navy, the first line of Imperial defence. The measure proposed was the free assistance of a free people, involving no danger to our autonomy, binding us in no way to permanent contribution, but leaving us policy of defence as we might decide upon.

There had been talk from the other side of "government from Downing Street." He wished to depreciate the impression thus sought to be conveyed that the statesmen of Great Britain were animated by any desire other than to have Canada work out her own destiny as part of the Empire. It was Hon. Dr. MacNanara, the only Canadian Minister in the British Cabinet, who upon the introduction of the present Naval Bill, said that the spirit of the finest tribute to the statesman who in years past had laid the foundation of the Empire.

The Hand of a Friend
Right Hon. Winston Churchill had likened the visit of the Canadian Premier and his mission to England last Summer to "the touch of the hand of a strong friend in the hour of trial." Had Sir Wilfrid Laurier on December 5th acquiesced in the proposals of Mr. Borden, he would have given to the world the strongest evidence of the determination of Canada to assist in the maintenance of the Empire, and if that assistance had not come in the whole-hearted way that the people of Canada desired, it was the fault of the right hon. gentleman who led the Opposition. The debate had shown that

As to the Liberals' claims that there should be a general election, which would show that the people were opposed to the Government's proposals, there were no signs if it as there were when reciprocity was introduced. On that occasion many prominent Liberals, some of them in the House, differed from their leader. The only advantage in the matter of the naval proposals, however, was that Col. McLean, a staunch Liberal member and one of the men best posted on the subject of defence, had approved of the Government's policy, declaring that the question to be decided was not the definition of the word "emergency," but what was our duty.

Mr. Burrell pointed out that in the Province of British Columbia, which he represented, there had been a unanimous expression of approval of the Government's naval policy.

Mr. K. D. MacKenzie (N. Cape Breton) followed and the Carroll amendment was then defeated by 102 votes to 58, a majority of 44.

The Last Protest.
Sir Wilfrid Laurier arose when the House resumed at 8 o'clock to make "the last protest" against the bill. He argued that it would complicate the whole problem of defence, which must come forward again, so that it was fitting that Parliament should lay down a present policy for the future. There should be no cause for surprise at the strenuous opposition of the Liberals; they would be recreant to their duty had they failed to oppose the bill as they had. The people should have been consulted and, when the time came, the Liberals would arrange the Government before the people, the first count of the indictment being that there was no foundation in fact for the claim of an emergency.

And what danger, he asked, could be averted by sending three empty ships into the firing line—not even into the shadow of the Rock of Gibraltar? The Liberal policy had been to have two feet units, one on each ocean, to replace Imperial ships withdrawn to European waters. The answer had been that the Government was making an emergency contribution. The Finance Minister had cited a speech delivered by Mr. Churchill on March 31st, containing the statement that the Canadian ships were absolutely necessary for the whole world defence of the Empire from the end of 1915.

Sir Wilfrid laid great stress upon a sentence used by the First Lord after he had spoken of the great moral effect of the Canadian offer. Mr. Churchill had said that "from this point of view" the difference in Mr. Borden from that of that late-seeing Imperial statesman, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was not of vital importance. The leader of the Opposition admitted that the Admiralty had expressed an opinion as to which method would be most convenient, quickest and most helpful and best for the common good of the Empire, but he said the Admiralty had always favored a contribution rather than an autonomous organization. "We told the Admiralty," he continued, "that although they preferred a contribution we would not have a contribution, but an autonomous organization." Now, he said, Mr. Churchill has testified that the policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier was just as acceptable to him as the policy of Mr. Borden.

It has been stated that we owe a debt of gratitude to Britain; so say I, never said anything else." But Sir Wilfrid did not agree with the reasons given by other persons in support of this assertion. If every country to which Britain had lent money were to give a Dreadnought, the ocean would not have space to hold the British fleet. It was childish to say that because Britain had lent her money for her development Canada owed any debt of gratitude. Neither did he think Canada owed a debt of gratitude because Britain had been spending money to defend this country. Sovereignty implied defence.

Prince at Halifax.
HALIFAX, N. S., May 16.—Prince Albert was given shore leave yesterday and inspected the city in company with a number of his fellow cadets. Few in the streets realized they were rubbing elbows with the King's second son. The prince is looking the picture of health and is apparently enjoying his first visit to Canada.

With The Police

D. J. Aiken, an electrician, was charged as a vagrant. The Chief stated that he had found an arresting prisoner that he was in hard luck and asked for his discharge, which was promptly granted.

Two men were initiated into the first degree of the Ancient Order of Arrsted Drunks, and departed Scot free. They were entered on the charge sheet as "baited out," the official stomach pump presumably being out of order.

Garnet Broderick was arrested on a charge of drunkenness. He had stated that he had been drugged and robbed, but Mrs. Magistrate could find no real reason to believe him, and assessed him $3.

The trespass pass when a foreign lady with an unpronounceable name, and an almost unprintable one (though it was given as Jakschka or thereabouts) and her gentleman were separately fined from an exercise was adjourned until Monday in order that the two material witnesses, McMeans and Mrs. Harrison might be subpoenaed.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.
The W. C. T. U. held a very interesting meeting yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Winters, 85 William Street, about 35 ladies being present. Several of the ladies assisted in the programme by reading extracts from an exercise prepared by Miss Sprule, the W. C. T. U. missionary in Algoma. Miss McLeod of Chicago, gave a very interesting talk on W. C. T. U. Training School in Chicago. Mrs. Chrysler gave a report of the attendance at the mass meeting of temperance workers held at the Y. M. C. A. on Monday evening. Tempting refreshments were served by Mrs. Winters.

It is said that equal parts of ammonia and turpentine will take out out of clothing no matter how hard or dry it may be. Saturate the spot two or three times and then wash out in soap suds.

While salt may be a preservative in some cases it has exactly the opposite effect on rubber and should never be allowed to remain in hot water bags and other rubber articles used for medicinal purposes. It will very soon rot the rubber.

A comedy by George Ade called "Speaking to Father," capably acted by Milton Pollock and company, will be one of the Orpheum circuit features next season. The little playlet is typically "George Adeish" and is replete with that brand of humor responsible for the author's universal fame.

The hostesses for the weekly tea at the Brantford Golf and Country Club to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon, will be Mesdames J. Arnew, C. W. Aird, N. Ashton, B. C. Bell, and Miss Ashbury and the Misses Brooke.

A new kind of chiffon veil now in vogue has a square of shadow lace veiling placed so that it just covers the face, the chiffon quite surrounding it. This allows the wearer more air and easier vision. The veil measures one and three-fourths yards in length and may be had in pale blue chiffon with white shadow insertion or in taupe with white, or in all white with white, or white with black shadow insertion.

The greatest surprise of the season is having the sleeve of an entirely different material from the body of the waist. To be sure, there is generally some harmonizing connection between the sleeve and the waist, but there is also sufficient contrast to make it possible for the woman who desires to remodel an old gown by adding new sleeves to make use of this idea in many ways. Here will suffice to draw the sleeve into harmony with the body of the waist.

George was famous for being late at his appointments. He was engaged to be married to a young lady in a neighboring city, and when the day of the ceremony arrived, George, as usual, did not put in an appearance. The bride was on the verge of nervous prostration when the following telegram was received from the missing bridegroom:

"Dear Helen—Missed the early train. Will arrive on the 4.31. Don't get married until I get there, George."—Ladies' Home Journal.

"O, what some power the giftic gie us, to see ourselves as others see us." So wrote Robert Burns, and the young men of Paris have just found that "power" in a "Magazine" called "Paris Taste," which has recently concluded a vote of its lady readers as to which are the seven worst faults of the young men of to-day. Egotism, it is interesting to learn, takes first place easily with 10,614 votes. Laziness and self-sufficiency run a dead heat for second place with 7,400 votes, and fast living, gambling, intemperance, and abuse of sport comes next with from 6,490 to 5,000 votes. Foolishness is last in the list.

Prince Henry, one of the younger sons of King George, has just enjoyed a neat joke at the expense of his sister, Princess Mary. The latter wrote to him while he was at Newquay, for a holiday, asking him and his brother, Prince George, to send her any flowers they could obtain for a birthday. Prince Henry wrote her how fond of flowers of any description he is. "Prince Henry rose to the occasion in capital style, and a day or two later there arrived at Buckingham Palace a small basket addressed by Prince Henry personally, and this was gleefully opened by the young Princess. When this was done it was found to contain—half a dozen cauliflower.

For Sweet Charity's Sake.

Once more the generosity of Brantfordites was in evidence yesterday when an enormous table filled to overflowing displayed the various articles sent to "Wynarden" for the kitchen and miscellaneous shower in aid of the Brant Sanatorium and for which Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Yates so graciously loaned their house and grounds on Thursday afternoon. Kitchen utensils of every size and description from ice cream freezers and reading lamps down to egg-timers, were there, the articles numbering about one hundred and fifty pieces. Mops, brooms, scrubbing brushes, pails, pots, pans, meat choppers, dish towels, gem jars, scales, clothes baskets, hampers, chairs, waste paper baskets, all looking so absolutely good and useful and everything given with such good cheer. Six dollars in money was also received and promises of many more things to come. The cosy morning room had been given up for the purpose—a bright fire burning in the grate. Huge bowls of fragrant lilac blooms here and there, and after all the pieces had been duly inspected and approved, "afternoon tea" was provided by the hostess in the dining room. The pretty polished table, beautiful centre piece and doilies of filet lace and decorations of red begonia, lily of the valley, and ferns and laden with dainty refreshments was presided over by Mrs. Gordon Smith and Mrs. Joseph Stratford, vice-regents of the Brant chapter of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, under whose auspices the "shower" was held. A transfer of all the donations to the Sanatorium will be held at an early date and great appreciation is felt by the board of directors to the many who so generously responded to the necessities of the new hospital, as well as to Mr. and Mrs. Yates and the Brant Chapter I. O. D. E. for their share in the support of the good work.

YOUNG WIDOW SHOT.

Sick Man Who Said He Wished to Die Like Captain Oates.

A strange explanation of a shooting tragedy at Edmonton was given on Tuesday at the inquest on the victim, Mrs. Alice Maude Connelly. She had been attending an elderly lodger named Frank Smith, an engineer's fitter, who suffers from heart disease, and was taking a cup of tea into his bedroom on April 24, when she was shot with a miniature rifle and died on the way to the hospital. It was stated that after Smith's arrest he said to the police: "I had the gun in my bed intending to shoot myself for I am sick of it all. Feeling better in the afternoon, I tried to unload the rifle. On hearing Mrs. Connelly coming back to the room I put the gun under the clothes, when it went off. The landlady of the house stated that Smith had said he wanted to die, he expressed a wish that, like Capt. Oates, of the Antarctic expedition, he could crawl out and die. The bedclothes were produced in court, and it was seen that they had bullet holes in them. Dr. Wilcox, the Home Office physician, expressed the opinion that the rifle was not aimed deliberately at the woman. The jury had returned a verdict of "Death by misadventure." A solicitor mentioned that Smith, who had been recommended by the magistrates, lay critically ill in the prison infirmary.

Blessed Damozels

By WALT MASON

Full soon the sweet girl graduates in white attire will rise, and tell, in forty-seven states, where Italy now lies.

The beautiful maidens of the land, the bold, aspiring youths, on platforms flower-bedecked will stand and hand us vital truths.

Life seems to them an easy thing; a banner's all they need; a motto in the air to fling, so he who runs may read.

A watchword couched in ancient Greek will smooth the road to fame; ah me, when roses tint the cheek, life seems an easy game!

But mark these women old and worn, who, at commencement time, gaze on the festival and mourn—their presence seems a crime!

They found this life a harder road than e'er they dreamed it was, with more of whip and spur and goad than of the world's applause.

There is a shadow on each brow, stilled is their buoyant spirit, their eyes are weak and faded now, for they have wept so long.

They're bent from bearing heavy weights, from toiling day and night; they once were sweet girl graduates, serene in white, "Beyond the Alps," we heard them say, high purpose in their eyes, upon a bygone happy day, "the land Italian lies!"

Life leads through tangled wilderness, and not through bosky dells, but 'd discourage or distress the Blessed Damozels?

SPORTING COMMENT

Aye, pal, the baseball season's here. 'Twill soon be balmy June; But though the time is drawing near Don't take 'em off too soon.

Frankly, it wouldn't do a bit of harm to win a game.

We absolutely refuse to knock until they are in last place, and that's impossible as long as London is in the league.

Rumor has it that up in London they are having a director's meeting every hour.

There is a good prospect of Brantford securing a real clean-up pitcher. No new man will be secured however unless he is of the clean-up variety.

What a difference a few games make in the percentage table.

When the Red Sox win a couple of games everything will be forgotten.

Pitcher Herbert, the Ottawa pitcher with Toronto, has been sent to Scranton to develop.

Hans Wagner had five put outs, two assists, made two singles, and a home run in five time a that. This was all against New York yesterday. Can you beat that for a man about 40 years old?

Falkenberg, the big pitcher, who was formerly with Toronto, won his seventh straight game for Cleveland yesterday.

Brooklyn and Philadelphia, in the National League, are keeping up their dizzy pace.

Pretty cold weather for baseball.

All the good pitchers in the league are getting beaten. Bramble, Tracey, and Collins were the victims yesterday.

BIG DAY TO-MORROW IN LOCAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Four Clubs Will Battle For Supremacy--Teams Are Strengthening Up-- Interesting Club Notes For Courier Readers--The Line-Ups of the Various Teams Which Play Tomorrow.

Games To-morrow.

Tutela vs. Y.M.C.A. at Tutela Park. Holmedale vs. Dragons at O.I.B. Cockshutt United vs. St. Andrew's at Mohawk Park.

Dufferin Rifles vs. S.O.E. at Agricultural Park.

The teams in the city football league will be into the game again to-morrow afternoon and some good sport is in store for the football loving public. Some of the teams who have not been on the winning streak so far will make a desperate effort to boost up the percentage by pulling out a win and shooting in a few extra goals.

The teams seem to be pretty well and evenly matched and the team that wins the championship this year will have to step pretty lively. New material is constantly coming in and the captains have their hands full in selecting the players to take part in the matches, as it is pretty hard some-times to make the selection.

Dufferin Rifles. The following is the team selected to play for the Duffs against the S. O. E. on Saturday: Dudden, Cog, Richardson, Harris, Rogers, Myring, Coale, Humphries, Bingham, Mercer (Capt.), Hutchinson, Reserves, Mahott, Perrin, Lofly, Referee, G. Elliott.

The above game ought to be the pic of the football programme for to-morrow. Both teams are out to win and a very fast game is anticipated. We advise all football enthusiasts to Park. Kick off at 6 p.m. promptly. All players are requested to report on the field by 5.30.

Trainer Blues reports the team in perfect condition. The committee inspected the trainer's cap and found it the same size as when he started to train the team. Swelled heads are very easily gotten this weather.

Brant Dragons. The Dragons and Tigers will meet on Saturday next and a fierce tussel will ensue. Both teams are in good condition and great things are expected. Manager Garrow will select his team from the following: Harhour, Atkinson, Marlatt, Lord, Weir, McDonald, Garrow, Whelan, Bonner, Brown, Daniel, Darch, Matta, Holmes, McCann, Pratt and Woodcock; all of whom are requested to report on the O.I.B. grounds at 5.45 p.m.

A practice will be held at Recreation park to-night at 6 p.m.

The Tigers are some players but the Dragons can sting—and will.

The Bronchos friendly lead. On the ball Buller.

Remember—He that giveth freely at the Charity Cup games, helpeth the hospital.

S. O. E. Football Notes. The S. O. E. are determined to stop the onward march of the Duffs on Saturday. Harris, the S. O. E. right back, leaves on Friday for Detroit. He will be greatly missed, having shown good form in the three games played.

The S. O. E. have a great half back line in Biggs, Clark and Mitchell.

The two new forwards shaped well last Saturday, Smith being a big improvement on the other centre forwards.

Miller played a good game at inside right. Capt. Biggs played a fine game at left half and is very popular. Keithley has scored the only goal scored.

The S. O. E. are the only team not having won a game, but have been very unlucky, only losing by a penalty in the first game against Cockshutt; and against Tutela they were conceded to be the best team. In the Cup tie it was a tale of lost chances, the forwards having more chance to score than Cockshutt, but were weak in front of the goal. The forwards are wearing their shooting boots and are expecting to win on Saturday.

F. Castle, the popular manager of the S. O. E. is in bed with typhoid fever.

The S. O. E. have arranged to play their home games at Recreation park, where the Dragons are not playing there, it being a better field than Tutela.

The following team will line up for the S. O. E. against the Dufferin Rifles at Agricultural Park: Goal, W. Holmes; backs, J. Stewart and J. Smith; half backs, W. Mitchell, E. Clark and F. Biggs (capt.); forwards, D. O'Donnell, D. Miller, Walter Smith, J. Keightley and A. Johnson. Reserves, Wright and H. Arthur. Kick off at 6 p.m.

The S. O. E. will be without the services of Harris, their right back, who left to-day for Detroit.

Cockshutt United. The Cockshutt boys turned out last evening for practice and did some fine work. Several new players were watched under the critical eye of the selection committee. Two of the new comers will get a trial in Saturday's match with St. Andrew's. Several changes in the team for Saturday.

London Takes It Awfully Hard

In London they have a sport writer on The Advertiser named Jinx. He puts the jinx on the Cockneys in the following paragraphs, which The Courier reproduces for the entertainment of local fans.

His Complaint.
He was lying in the gutter. And I heard him groaning there. In the depth of his despair. So I telephoned a doctor.
And when the doctor came, I heard that poor gink utter, "London's lost another game."

We presume that Mr. Deneau's favorite little ballad is "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep."

A calm perusal of the box score leads us to suspect that the Deneau Dauntless Ones are losing because of a deficit of runs.

For the first time since its entry into Canadian League the Peterboro team is not occupying last place. We'd hate to hurt anybody's feelings by telling who is, though.

The gink that writes the "Few Lines of Most Anything" column, on the editorial page, claims he writes all our best paragraphs. For that matter, anybody can write them. We are the guy that sits up all night and thinks them out.

However, we have elected that F-L-O-M-A guy a charter member of the Ananias Club. He's too fresh. First thing we know he will be sneaking out of the office with our new summer lid on.

Our demon athletes who are past-timing in Hamilton with Mr. Deneau, our general manager, seem to be suffering from an over-supply of hits and a famine of runs.

It is not often that Linneborn heaves a pastime away with one wild lunge. For Mr. Linneborn's sake we are glad that it is not.

Never mind, Liny, we still think you are the best little second baseman in the league. And we have not withdrawn that offer to buy the Fellys, either.

Hint to the London fans: The Toronto ball team started off bad, very bad, at the opening of the season. T.S.—The Toronto team has now won three games in a row.

That loud noise in the office which can be heard at a distance of one foot with the aid of an ear trumpet, is Amby Kane chuckling over the fact that he let "Wild Bill" Baker go last summer.

After gleaning the present position of Mr. Deneau and his athletes in the league standing we are filled with hope. No matter what happens, the London team cannot get any lower.

We stated yesterday that Mr. Keenan's team is woefully lacking in hitting ability. And then Mr. Bill Baker comes along and proves to us just how woefully.

Del Chaput, the Copper Country puckeasher, who heaved in behalf of Mr. Deneau and his crowd on Monday, is resting in London. Mr. Chaput says that the mountain air at Hamilton did not agree with him. After glimpsing the result of Monday's game, we can quite agree with him.

The work on the St. Thomas grandstand is still going ahead merrily. In fact the two men who are working in it are quite confident that they will have it completed in time for the opening game in the world series between St. Thomas and New York in the year 1920.

Mr. Cook and his Cookies will be with us to-morrow. Somehow or other, this fails to arouse any hectic enthusiasm on our part. We cannot help thinking of what happened to Mr. Shaughnessy's Senators the past two days.

Smile, Darn You, Smile. It's easy enough to be pleasant.

When they win every day in the week. Oh well. Brundage has come back. But the fan worth while is the fan who can smile. When the team hits a losing streak.

Sporting Comments

Oh well. Brundage has come back. He got two hits yesterday.

There were about 3,000 paid admissions at Ottawa yesterday.

Ray Collins lost his first game in the Canadian League yesterday.

Imagine Wagner having three errors.

Shaughnessy got a horse shoe and then made a home run. The question is how he have made the hit without the horse shoe?

If the Red Sox keep up, they will be easier to beat than reciprocity.

Twelve hits and then we couldn't win.

Just a trifle worried about our pitchers.

On last year's record, the Red Sox hurling corps should be O.K. It is simply a case of wait for a little warmer weather.

Peterboro seemed easy for St. Thomas. What kind of a team have those Saints got?

The Red Sox are a long way from home.

Has it occurred to anyone that Kane has simply a gang of youngsters in the field? They may arrive in due time.

Brantford had five errors yesterday and Ottawa four.

Rogers is supposed to be Ottawa's best pitcher. At that, the Red Sox secured seven runs off his delivery.

Football

will be noticed in the line up. Plant replaces C. Richardson as centre forward and George goes back to his original position as outside right. W. Richardson, who will play outside left, plays his first trial—a brother of George and Robert. He has played as amateur for the Dalzell Rovers, a well-known junior combination in Scotland. Harry Carey, who gets his first try-out between the props, has played two successive seasons for the Woodstock Locomotive Works. His brother is the well known referee, G. Carey.

Players are requested to be on hand at 5:45 p.m.

The Cocksbutt team will line up in the following order:
Goal, H. Carey; backs, J. Lockley, C. Stubbs; half backs, A. Maich, T. Robertson, J. Gouick; forwards, G. Richardson, R. Richardson, R. Plant, A. Paul, W. Richardson; reserves, Small, Roach, Gray, Hepper, Referee, Mr. Goatley.

St. Andrews.
The following will represent St. Andrews against Cocksbutts at Mohawk Park at 6 p.m. sharp to-morrow.
Goal, Short; full backs, Hoag and Lock; half backs, Johnston, Wallace and Scott; forwards, Spence, Hutchings, Brown, Johnston, Morrison (capt).

The St. Andrews team will meet at St. Andrew's Park at 5 o'clock sharp to catch the 5:10 Paris car for Mohawk Park.

The Tutela Eleven.
The Tutela boys are out to do battle with the Y.M.C.A. boys on Saturday at Tutela park. Tutela have not had the best of luck in the last two matches, but they are looking forward to a change of fortune soon. It is hardly to be expected that they will beat the "Y" boys, with such good men as Hingley and Tommy

Tickets For Ad. Readers

The Courier has great faith in the "little jokers," and more people are reading them every day. You will too as soon as you commence to make them your daily companions. In order to create more interest in these advertisements, which appear on classified page No. 2, The Courier presents a proposition that will, of course, meet with your hearty co-operation and approval. It will give away a series of theatre tickets to the readers of these "little ads," and the method will be as follows:

Hundreds of names of thoughtful residents of this city have been collected and placed in a box. Every day one of these names will be withdrawn and printed upon the classified page, interspersed between the advertisements very carefully in order to find them. Perhaps your name will be among them. If it is, simply bring a copy of The Courier, with your name distinctly marked, to the office, and you will be presented with tickets to Colonial or Apollo theatres, free of charge.

Notes on the Games.
Saturday will be a great day in football circles.

The star game will be the S.O.E. and the Sharp Shooters.

By the way, although the S.O.E. are knocked out of the Hospital cup, they are determined to win the Courier trophy.

OTTAWA HAD GREAT PNEUMONIA OPENER

Details of How Red Sox Were Beaten At the Capital--Shaughnessy Drove Out a Homer, After He Was Presented With a Horseshoe.

(Special to the Courier) OTTAWA, Ont., May 16.—The Canadian League champions inaugurated their 1913 debut in the Capital with a 10 to 7 victory over the Brantford Red Sox. The contest marked a break in the losing streak Shag's slanders sustained at Guelph, and added one more to the string of reverses Brantford encountered at Peterboro. Rugby weather figured largely in the quality of ball as well as the size of the crowd.

Over three thousand took a chance on the pneumonia atmosphere and were treated to a free hitting and loose fielding game. Lowering clouds and a frosty air predominated during the afternoon, but nevertheless there were enough thrills to make everyone forget the conditions, and the game was worth while in every respect.

There was no street parade, but on the field, prior to the pasting of the band of the Forty Third Rifles, led the two teams to the outfield where they fell in line of company, marched to the home plate and were introduced to Col. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, Mr. Hal B. McGivern, ex-M. P. for Ottawa and Dr. C. W. F. Gorell.

Col. Sam, mounted the rubber and Dr. Gorell strapped on the protector and mask, and McGivern, a cricketer of international note, going to bat. The Minister cut one over the inside, which Hal hoisted to short, fully spearing the ball with one hand. This concluded the ceremonies.

Manager Shaughnessy started his big port sider, Ed. Rogers for the first time this season, while the Red Sox sent another side wheeler in, young Collins, to the tower. Both men were hit freely and opportunely but Rogers was more effective in the right places and went the full route. Collins was yanked in the sixth, Donovan replacing him. Eight hits had been made off the youngster for as many runs. Donovan proved just as gassy as his predecessor. In the fourth Manager Shaughnessy was presented with a gorgeous floral horse shoe of American beauties, and upped all traditions by conning the ball to right centre for the longest home run ever made at Lansdowne Park. The reception accorded the big fellow, as he raced over the rubber, well ahead of the relay has never before been witnessed in the Capital.

In all, Shag, copped a single, double and homer in four times up, so that it can be said with emphasis he broke in handsomely. In keeping with the weather, McLaughlin's decisions were very cloudy, and he earned several protests from the players of both sides.

In the sixth he called Shaughnessy out at third on a close decision and a minute later gave one against Callahan at the plate. Both the manager and Callahan kicked so vehemently they were chased to the bench and each fined five dollars. Kane also complained vigorously on McLaughlin's work.

Why Can't We See It?

By RUTH CAMERON

THE shoe clerk deftly slipped my foot into a pair of hygienic shoes and asked me to stand up and try them. I did so and was delighted at the perfect ease and comfort which I felt. But they were such hideous things with their big rounded toes and their flat heels! "Isn't it too bad they can't be pretty like the other shoes," I said regretfully as I surveyed them.

The shoe clerk smiled. "I think they are much prettier," he said. "Why shouldn't they be? They follow the outline of the human foot. Now isn't the line of the normal human foot, as nature made it, far more beautiful than any shape that man has invented? What is there more beautiful about a pointed toe than a rounded toe? 'Curved is the line of beauty,' you know."

It's a perfectly good argument, isn't it? And yet it only convinces the mind; it doesn't seem to convince the eye and the heart—at least of the average woman.

But isn't it too bad that we can't see it that way? Isn't it too bad that we can't realize that a woman dressed in a skirt cut with sufficient fullness to permit her the free use of her limbs, is a much more beautiful object than a woman hobbling awkwardly along with ridiculously hampered gait in a skirt which is a scant three quarters of a yard around the hem?

And yet such is the peculiar blinding power of the abnormal and inartistic if everybody is wearing it. She may know that by all the canons of art it is ugly, but nevertheless it looks attractive to her.

Once in a while art and fashion happen to agree, and we have some mode which has real beauty in itself in addition to the lustre which fashion gives it. But this seldom lasts long, for freakish fashion soon exaggerates a beautiful style until becomes unbecomingly.

Of course we don't always realize how large a share fashion has in making a thing seem beautiful. We fancy we like it for itself, but let the fashion change and see how soon it grows ugly. Look at some picture you had taken ten years ago in a dress you thought most charming and see how homely it looks to-day. Last summer you thought long sleeves hot and ugly; this year they will look very different to you, because they are going to be "the fashion."

Don't you wish there were some way to educate our eyes that we might see fashions as they are and love the truly beautiful instead of the fashionable?

Perhaps after hearing this tirade you'd like to know what I did about the hygienic shoes. Well, then being mentally convinced that they were the best thing, I bought them for walking; but being unconvinced in my heart, I also bought a smart pair of pumps to dress up in.

Hamilton Again Returned a Winner—Saints Beat Petes—London and Guelph Play a Tie.

Hamilton Again.
 BERLIN, Ont., May 16.—Hamilton made its seventh straight win by taking a listless game from Berlin yesterday by a 7 to 4 score. Bramble's wildness, some ragged fielding, together with the Kolt's timely hitting, was responsible for the locals' defeat. Paquette, who worked for Lee's men, was also wild, but tightened up with runners on the sacks and held his opponents to eight safeties, most of them being scratch hits. Manager Keenan has released Firstbaseman Morrissey, and Sweeney, recently of St. Thomas, took his place. White, formerly of Peterboro, was in the outfield, and Dinsmore filled in at short. Getzle being out of the game with a dislocated shoulder. The score: Berlin 000100021—4 Hamilton 012100021—7 12 R.H.E.

Peterboro, Ont., May 15.—The Petes never had a chance in yesterday's game, as Clements, despite the frigid atmosphere, fed the locals an assortment of curves that had them guessing most of the time. Brant scored the Petes only run on his own triple and sacrifice by Rowan. Totten and Rowan reached third and second in the eighth with none out, but there was no score. The visitors started hit-ing in the third and prolonged the ninth with five safeties. Manager Ori got four singles and a pass in his five trips to the plate: St. Thomas 001210103—8 15 1 Peterboro 001000000—1 5 3 London Tied.

LONDON, May 16.—Guelph and London played a 6 to 6 tie in eleven innings in the introductory match of the series here yesterday afternoon. The contest was witnessed by a very fair crowd, despite the fact that London had previously won but one match this season. The Leafs, in their first appearance against the Tecumseh, showed up to excellent advantage, and offered a bitter struggle. Fryer was sent in as pinch hitter in the eighth round when the tally was 6 to 5 in London's favor and by completing the circuit when Dunlop threw over first base, beat the Tecumseh over a victory. Pitcher Anderson of Guelph, was relieved of his duties in the seventh round and was succeeded by Beard, who had previously performed in left guard. Beard held the locals hitless during the succeeding four innings. R. H. E. Guelph 04010001000—6 10 2 London 01210110000—6 10 6

Robbed By Umpire Says Amby Kane

Work of O'Loughlin at Ottawa Yesterday Was The Worst He Had Ever Seen.

President Nelson received a warm message from Amby Kane last night in connection with the work of Umpire O'Loughlin, who has been handling the games in which the Red Sox have been engaged this week. Kane informed the President that the Brantford team was robbed yesterday at every turn by the incompetence of O'Loughlin, and the Red Sox with any kind of umpiring would have been returned winners. The Brantford manager immediately filed a complaint with President Fitzgerald after yesterday's game. The work of O'Loughlin was declared by Kane to have been the worst he had ever seen, and that's going some. The reply of President Nelson to Amby was characteristic: "Nobody is worrying about the ball club. Any one can win games and smile, but it takes a good man to lose."

The presidential boss has all kinds of confidence in his team, and a little hard luck at this stage of the season is not considered too disastrous to overcome. On the record of the players and good work already shown, it is confidently expected the team will come in due time.

... LATEST NEWS FROM THE OLD LAND ...

BRITISH PARLIAMENTARY BUDGET TO EASE LOT OF THE WOMEN

Land Violation is Attacked--Lloyd George Promises to Safeguard Builders' Profits--Mr. Bonar Law and His Little Piece of Land.

Mr. Lloyd George replied in the House of Commons, on Monday, to a vigorous onslaught made by Mr. P. H. Bouverie, the Opposition Front Bench, on the new land value duties.

The Chancellor pointed out that the cost of valuation, which is expected to be about two millions sterling when complete in March 1915, was capital expenditure, and that sum would be more than covered by the revenue collected from the new land taxes, and the increased estate duty.

Mr. P. H. Bouverie had argued that the land taxes had done grave injury to the building trade, small property owners, allotment holders, and market gardeners. It had been a huge expense and worry to property owners, the total value of the land value duties up to March 31st last was—

Increment value..... £ 23,000
Severance duty..... 70,000
Undeveloped land duty..... 120,000
"Finish the statement" said the Chancellor.

Mineral rights duty amounted to £224,000. Mr. P. H. Bouverie went on, but that was not land value duty, and had nothing to do with the valuation. It was a super-tax on the mineral rights which were being under-estimated in the valuation, up to March 31st was £1,393,000. The total number of officials engaged in the Land Valuation Office was 4,533; and the annual salaries £492,626.

The taxes produced practically no revenue. It was the cause of endless litigation, and had turned the Treasury into a little less than a den of usury. (Laughter.)

In the Holmes Ivory case the valuation was increased from £20,000 to £25,000 after a protest. At Hickley the owners had been grossly under-valued, and when their parliamentary representatives protested to the Valuation Department, the valuations were altered on the plea that the value was not very well at the time he made them. (Laughter.)

"We don't know that the other valuers were in the best of health," he remarked. (Laughter.)

At Chatham the government wanted to purchase land, as valued by them, at £450, but the land valuer, knowing nothing of this, fixed the value at £245 for undeveloped land duty. (Laughter.) A certain property in Wakefield was officially valued at £275, yet when sold in the open market it only fetched £150.

Valuation by Default.
There were, perhaps, a million valuations fixed simply by the statutory lapse of sixty days, and to say that these were to be a great Doomsday book on which to base future taxation was surely not a proposal that would be made by any responsible minister.

A species of blackmailing was in progress. When a death duty case had to be settled, the executors and trustees were told that they must be prepared to agree that the same figure which they had accepted for the final value for death duty should also be accepted for the total value under the new land valuation.

Mr. P. H. Bouverie complained that in spite of repeated assurances increment value duty had been levied on small property owners on the plea that the value of property had been increased by fortuitous windfalls.

If the Chancellor was taxing fortuitous windfalls at all let him make a proposal and tax them all. If it was possible to make one pound into ten pounds in three days on the Stock Exchange, that was surely as good a fortuitous windfall as the gain by a man in a legitimate trade. (Opposition cheers.)

The builder made profit on one case and lost on another, just as a man operating on the Stock Exchange made a profit on one transaction and lost on another. If a builder made a profit he was regarded by some as a fortuitous windfall, and was taxed at the rate of 4s. in the pound, whereas the man who did nothing but take advantage of a temporary rise in the price of securities, and did no good to anybody but himself—and not always to himself—was not taxed.

Chancellor's Reply.
Mr. Lloyd George denied that he expected any substantial revenue from the land taxes for the first three years of their imposition, and the proof was that he parted with half the proceeds to the municipalities.

The Lumsden case was the only one in which a builder had been charged increment duty in respect of a house which he himself had built. He proposed to introduce into the Revenue Bill an amendment which would make it impossible for any builder's profits to be taxed.

Unemployment in the building trade was exactly one-third of what it was in the month preceding the introduction of the 1909 budget.

With regard to the statement that the owner of Box Hill had been compelled to offer the slopes for building sites to the public, and as Box Hill was open to the public, and as long as it remained open to the public, under the Act of 1909, not a single penny of undeveloped land duty could be levied upon it. (Ministerial cheers.)

There was no country which more sorely needed valuation, for local purposes, especially, than this country, and it was the only civilized country which had not got it. The present system of assessments taxed improvements so that the landlord who neglected his property was rated less than the landlord who looked after it well.

Out of four and one-half million valuations only three had been challenged, and at the present moment there were one and one-half million valuations had been settled beyond dispute or doubt.

"By March, 1915," he said, in conclusion, "the whole of this country will have been valued, and we shall require very little adjustment to fit the valuation into any proposals for local taxation."

Mr. Bonar Law remarked: "The Chancellor says now that he never expected much from these taxes. I agree. What he expected was votes. (Opposition laughter and cheers.) (Opposition laughter and cheers.)

When he estimated the yield at £4,900,000. The actual yield was £2,800. For 1911-12 he estimated it at £3,000,000. He got £2,800,000. In 1912-13 he estimated it at £2,550,000, and he actually got £1,630,000.

"I really do not think there has been anything so distinctively remarkable in the way of financial genius since the gentleman in 'Gulliver's Travels' who was employed in extracting sunbeams out of cucumbers."

In 1909 Mr. Lloyd George wrote: "When the revenue comes in from land tax next year it will be revenue just as much for Dreadnoughts as for old age pensions." They got £2,800. (Laughter.) Absence of appeals against assessments was no proof that they were not wrong.

He had a small amount of real estate worth about £20 a year. The valuation was absurdly low, but the lawyer's costs would have been heavier than what I would have gained, and so I threw the thing into the waste-paper basket. Hundreds of thousands of people have done the same."

A feature of the debate was the speech of Mr. Sydney Arnold, a stockbroker (L. Holmfrith) who showed a capacity equal to that of Mr. Bonar Law for reeling off statistics and figures without notes.

Mr. Masterman's Voice Falls.
Mr. Masterman, Secretary to the Treasury, spoke glowingly of the remarkable results of the Budget of 1909. While other nations, tormented by the two evils of conscription and protection, were resorting to the desperate expedient of meeting current liabilities by future borrowings, Mr. Lloyd George had been paying off the capital liabilities of this country by means of millions.

"This Budget," he proclaimed, "has financed the most gigantic scheme of social amelioration the world has ever seen, not only redeeming the miseries of sickness and unemployment, and old age, but—"

At this point Mr. Masterman stopped as if tongue-tied, and strove in vain to give vent to the outburst of enthusiasm which was welling up within him. Again he tried to make articulate his tribute to the Chancellor, who sat by his side, but again the high-pitched voice broke off abruptly. Ever ready with its sympathy the House gave a murmur of encouragement, and Mr. Masterman found his voice again. After thanking the opposition for their helpful cheers, he concluded: "In its encouragement and its triumph over the work of the Chancellor of the Exchequer will be remembered as one of the most amazing financial achievements the world has ever known."

At this there was a chorus of Ministerial cheers, and also clapping in the Strangers' Gallery, which was immediately suppressed, the offender having to leave the house.

The resolutions imposing the tea duty and income-tax were agreed to.

CRYSTAL PALACE
Suggestions that L. C. C.'s Grant of £50,000 Has Been Revoked.

The fate of the Crystal Palace still hangs in the balance. At Tuesday's meeting of the London County Council Mr. J. D. Gilbert asked Major Gray, chairman of the General Purposes Committee, "Is it correct that on Monday, the committee reconsidered its decision arrived at the week before to contribute, under certain conditions, 50,000 pounds towards the 115,000 pounds which the Lord Mayor asked should be provided?"

Major Gray replied that "it was not expedient to anticipate the report of the committee," but he assured the Council that the committee had the greatest sympathy with the proposal to acquire the Palace and grounds, and desired a successful issue to the negotiations.

in a question to Mr. McKenna that 70,000 out of the 800,000 pounds surplus realized by the exhibition of 1891 should be refunded for the purchase of the Palace.

Mr. McKenna asked for notice of such a question.

£20,000 FOR LABORER.
Harbinger of Good Tidings Has to Chase His Man.

How an agricultural laborer earning 15s. a week at St. Oysth, near Clacton, tried to elude a solicitor's clerk who brought to him the tidings that he had been bequeathed 20,000 pounds was reported on Tuesday.

This fortune was left him by a old schoolfellow who emigrated to the United States years ago, and died there recently. A representative of a firm of solicitors made a number of inquiries before he could find any trace of the man. Eventually he went into an inn, the landlord of which knew the lucky farm laborer. They all live in Blythe Hill-lane, Clacton. He was overtake him explained that he thought the man was a detective, though why he should tell, having nothing on his conscience.

KEEPING THE PEACE.
Magistrate Recalls Man's Strange Method of Doing So.

"You are quite obviously lying to shield your brother," said the Greenwich magistrate on Thursday to Patrick Curran. He and his brother John were charged with assaulting each other, in an altercation arising out of a dispute over a dog, while they all live in Blythe Hill-lane, Clacton. John said he only interfered in order to keep peace.

"Yes, I understand," said Mr. Symmons. "I think you are one of those men who will have peace. I recollect there was a man who took up a piece of iron and had one end of it just to get peace. You apparently are determined to have peace among the Curran family. But you are a little hampered by the fetters of civilization, you Curran family; you want a broader, freer field. Still, you have shown brotherly feelings."

The brothers were bound over to keep the peace, and John was ordered to pay the surgeon's fee.

LIVED LIKE A LORD.
Impostor's Six Months' Penance for a Round of Champagne Dinners.

How a man worth nothing contrived to live at the rate of 2,000 pounds a year was related by the chief constable at Lincoln Police Court, on Wednesday, when Arthur Lionel Ashton, aged twenty-seven, was charged with obtaining food and lodging from the Waverley Hotel, Lincoln, by false pretences.

"I have never encountered a man before with such self-assurance," added the chief constable. "He is a man of considerable education and quite an accomplished criminal. He has defrauded twenty hotels at least in Liverpool."

The evidence showed that the accused invariably represented himself as Ernest Shand, the comedian. He arrived in a hired motor-car at the Saracen's Hotel, Lincoln, with two companions, and had a champagne dinner with liqueurs, black coffee, and cigars. After dinner he went to the Waverley Hotel, where he spent a week-end, and then to the Mouson Arms Hotel. At each place he had the best of everything, and paid for nothing.

At one hotel he robbed the box for the Commercial Travellers' Children's School. He was first convicted in Ireland, and had been deported from Canada for false pretences. Recently he had served a term of imprisonment at Liverpool.

Sentence of six months' imprisonment was passed.

A census having been made of farmers' horses in the Romford district by Army officers, the Essex Farmers' Union has decided to ask the War Office who would fix the value of the horses if commandeered in the event of war.

A detective and burglar had a fierce struggle in a beer-house with an off-licence at Sunderland, (Durham), early the other morning. A watch was kept by detective named Herne as the result of the disappearance of a large quantity of beer. After a few hours, a man entered the premises. When the detective appeared the man attacked him. The detective blew his whistle, and a crowd and some policemen arrived. Delay was caused by the door being locked. When the key was obtained and the police entered and captured the man, the burglar required twenty-seven stitches about the face. The detective was not hurt, but was very much exhausted.

A Million Pound Will In Dispute

Sir John Murray Scott and Lady Sackville—A Mysterious Envelope.

A bachelor baronet's will disposing of an estate valued at £1,000,000 and concerning which an action is pending, was mentioned before Mr. Justice Baggrove Deane in the Probate Court on Monday.

The estate was that of the late Sir John Murray Scott who died on Jan. 17, 1912. As a youth he was adopted by Sir Richard and Lady Wallace, and acted in the capacity of private secretary to Sir Richard until the death of the latter in 1890. Sir John occupied much of his time in improving and augmenting the Wallace art collection at Hertford House, which was eventually secured to the nation principally through his efforts and in consideration of which he was made a baronet. Lady Wallace bequeathed to him a large part of her fortune of £700,000.

By his will, Sir John, who possessed many objects of art of rare value, made Lady Sackville of Knole, Seven-oaks, a beneficiary to a considerable extent, and in the proceedings that have come before the court and elsewhere codicils have figured prominently. A year ago before Mr. Justice Baggrove Deane, the executors applied for an order for Lady Sackville to produce in the Probate Division a certain document in her possession. It then appeared that since the death of Sir John she had received a letter in her handwriting containing the following:

"I have left you under my will and codicils a sufficient sum to make you, I hope, comfortable and independent, and I send you the enclosed which I beg you will put in the fire the instant you have received your legacies. But should there be any disposition shown to dispute my will I request that you will at once hand the enclosed to my solicitor, Mr. F. W. Capron."

The enclosure proved to be an envelope with five seals, which was opened by the Judge in the presence of counsel. Mr. Justice Deane remarked: "It is, as I expected, a duly executed codicil."

Unexpected Codicils.
Mr. Barnard, K.C., who appeared for the executor, and had earlier stated that the drafts of two unexpected codicils had been found—out of which considerably reduced Lady Sackville's legacies, and the other penalized any beneficiaries who contested the will—thereupon said: "The difficulty which now presents itself is to finding the other codicil revoking all bequests to Lady Sackville, if ever executed."

A month later there was a further development in the offer of a reward of £20,000 for the supposed missing codicil. This codicil benefited Mr. D. Malcolm Scott, a brother of Sir John, as next of kin, by £500,000, and reduced the bequest to Lady Sackville to a life interest upon £20,000 or £30,000.

The present proceedings occupied but a few minutes and were set down in the list as "Capron v. Scott and Another (Sackville and another cited)—for the examination of a witness." Mr. Hemmerde, K.C., appeared for the defendant, D. Malcolm Scott, called for Jesse Short, and a tall, clear shaven man entered the witness box. In reply to counsel he said he lived at Hanover road, Wilesden, and for thirteen years before Sir John Murray Scott's death he acted as confidential servant to the baronet at Connaught-place, Hyde Park.

"I think you were very considerably in his confidence?" asked Mr. Hemmerde.

Witness: Quite so. Witness added that while in Sir John Murray Scott's services, he saw envelopes in Sir John's drawer, which he supposed contained testamentary documents. He was not aware of the existence of any will or codicil.

Did you ever witness any testamentary paper for Sir John?—So far as I know I did not. I signed several papers but I think they were shares.

The Mysterious Envelope.
Within the last two years of his life did you ever see a codicil by Sir John revoking his will?—I understood the envelope he used to carry in his case held a codicil.

You say there was a copy of the codicil?—No. I never saw it. I saw the envelope marked "private," which I understood since, contained this copy of the codicil.

Witness said he never saw the contents of the envelope and Sir John never told him what they were. "He was very particular that I should always carry it," added the witness, "and I used to take it out after coming back from town and he would lock it up in his drawer. I always used to pack it in his dressing case when we were travelling."

When did you last see it?—At Connaught Place. I handed it to him.

Premier Asquith's Sympathetic Reply to Influential Deputation.

A deputation representing the Women's Trade Union League and the National Organization of Girls' Clubs was received by the Prime Minister, with whom was Mr. McKenna, at the House of Commons on Thursday.

Miss Ward, from the Women's Trade Union League, advocated the need for further legislation for the protection of women and children from accidents and the cleaning of machinery whilst in motion. She urged that the later should be prohibited by law. She also advocated a maximum weight to be carried by women and children.

Mrs. Lovin, of the same organization, said she knew of girls between the ages of sixteen and eighteen who sometimes had to carry loads of a hundred weight and a half up to two hundred weight. There was also a great need for more women factory inspectors.

Miss Gertrude Tuckwell particularly urged that there should be a maximum weight for children. She had been asked to state that a firm working Government contracts of paying the girls six shillings, seven shillings and eight shillings per week, while which they had to pay insurance and sometimes 3d. or 4d. for fines.

Mr. Asquith, who had better give me the name of the firm.

Miss Cave urged legislation to deal with overtime. Miss Myers appeared for a statutory hour for dinner, while Miss Olive spoke against the present hours' spell in non-textile factories.

Mr. Asquith, in his reply, expressed appreciation of the importance of the deputation, and said that as an old Home Secretary he was always ready to listen to any well-founded complaint, such as had been put forward by the deputation. Dealing with the many points raised the Premier said he was quite sure that a reasonable extension of the staff of women inspectors was one of the best safeguards for the women and young persons. The only way in which the provisions in the Factory Acts could be adequately enforced both for women and children was to have an efficient, and as far as possible, an ubiquitous staff of women inspectors.

Mr. Asquith expressed sympathy with the suggestions of the cleaning of machinery in motion, and the carrying of excessive weight, but both these changes were those which could only be effected by legislation. They seemed to him to be prima facie reasonable changes. "I hope," he added, "to secure the assent of Parliament to them. To safeguard the other points a great deal can be done by the action of the Home Office administration to secure the abolition of the evils, and in many respects the Home Secretary would be able to carry many of the suggestions into effect without applying to Parliament for fresh powers.

"As to the weight carrying, it is possible, by making more stringent conditions to apply greater protection in that respect to children and young people. So, again, in regard to dangerous machinery, I am told that regulations are being drafted at the Home Office, and they will very speedily come into force."

In conclusion the Premier promised to consider with sympathy the complaints that had been made, and there would be no exaggerations, and the ladies had spoken from practical experience, which was most valuable.

The suicide of a cyclist who deliberately rode at 15 miles an hour down a concrete slope into the Thames at Putney was described at an inquest at Wandsworth recently. The victim was Solomon Friedlander aged 19. He had been suffering from consumption. Late on a recent Sunday night, a man walking along the tow-path at Putney saw Friedlander riding into the river. A policeman named Ladds waded into the water up to his neck with a pole and afterwards swam out to nearly mid-stream, but without finding the man, whose body was not discovered until next morning. In a pocket-book found in the possession of Friedlander there was written "Approaching the end."

The mystery of the fate of a Plymouth school-teacher, Miss Ruth Grylls, who disappeared from home was solved, the other day, by the discovery of her badly burned body in a field near Tavistock. The body was near a hedge adjoining a main road and by it were three empty bottles which had contained poison and a fourth which smelt strongly of paraffin. Her clothes were destroyed in many places and the burns on her body were severe. It is supposed that she poured paraffin over her clothes and then set them on fire, but whether she previously took poison is not yet known. She had been in poor health for some time.

Alfred Walter Dowsett, a nine-year-old boy scout, was playing at Sittingbourne, when a dog ran between his legs, knocking him backwards down a flight of stone steps. He died later from fracture of the skull.

As there was a total shortage of about 100 in the Basingstoke units of Yeomanry, Horse Artillery, Cyclists and Infantry, a recruiting week has been held, with the result that 101 offered themselves and 141 took the oath, but of these thirty-two had to be rejected, principally on account of health.

Witness said that he did not know that Sir John had revoked his will of 1900. "He didn't speak about his will," witness explained.

Mr. Bayford, for Lady Sackville, elicited from the witness that immediately on the death of Sir John he communicated to certain members of the Scott family what he knew with regard to the envelope and where it was to be found. The envelope was found intact, he understood.

"Did you hear," asked Mr. Bayford, "that something had been found in the envelope by members of the family, and it was not the document they wanted?"—That is it, sir.

This concluded the examination.

Witness: Quite so. Witness added that while in Sir John Murray Scott's services, he saw envelopes in Sir John's drawer, which he supposed contained testamentary documents. He was not aware of the existence of any will or codicil.

Under Cupid's Guidance

By ANDREW C. EWING

The most beautiful lake in the world is not the Bay of Naples. Both have been the scene of many a story, real and fictitious; both have attracted visitors from all parts of the world. The beauty of the former bursts upon one at once; that of the latter is of slow growth. Como is always much the same; the Sorrento, overlooking this beautiful bay, is built on a circular ledge of rocks some three hundred feet high, following the curvature of the shores. There are hotels and villas fronting the water, some of them built in the center of or some of them built on a walk, picking an orange by the way, and at the end stood upon a marble balcony looking down upon the waves far below. Yachts and fishing boats were rocking on the surface, and from the island of Capri a little steamer was bounding along toward Sorrento.

A young lady had set up an easel on the balcony and was attempting to transfer the scene to canvas. The gentleman paused a short distance behind her and looked at her work. Conscious of his presence, she turned.

"Pardon me, signorina," he said in Italian and was about to walk on when she said in English:

"I don't understand Italian."

"Ah, you are an American, I perceive."

"Why not English?"

"We Americans are easily distinguished from the English by our accent. Permit me to compliment you on the way you are getting on with your picture."

"I am not getting on at all."

"You have sketched your outline very well."

"But how shall I get that deep blue of the water, how that delicate veil of mist that hangs over Capri and almost hides Ischia farther on?"

"Your work will be the more difficult because you cannot get the same scene on two consecutive days. Tomorrow the water will be perhaps a pale green, and today, quite likely even by noon we shall have Ischia resting on a sea of quicksilver."

The girl leaned back in her chair discouraged.

"I would advise you to put in such parts as will not change their select a certain coloring to transfer to your canvas. If you can get it in before it changes, be it so; if not you must get in as much as you can, then wait till the same conditions come again."

"You are right. But you don't need to copy. An artist doesn't do that. He takes a landscape, a model, any subject you like, and idealizes it. His intention is not to get something better than the original, but something better than the result of an attempt to transfer the original to canvas."

"If I could only get a tinge of what we see before us on the canvas I should be satisfied."

"Are you an amateur or a professional?"

"I simply desire to make a picture to sell on my return to America to help out the expense of my trip abroad."

"Well, don't be discouraged. With your permission I will criticize your work as you proceed. I am a professional critic and may help you."

"Thank you very much, but I doubt if I can produce anything worthy of your criticism."

Acquaintances are formed very easily between tourists, especially where they are fellow countrymen, and Edward Minard improved upon this by beginning to become quite friendly with Lucia Gifford. True to his promise, he conched her in her effort to transcribe some of the various phases that the bay of Naples takes on. From the window of his room he could look out upon it, and often when it assumed the conditions she was trying to get he would send her a word and she would hurry to the balcony to take advantage of the situation.

At times she would rest from her work by riding out on the road winding up the heights lying southwest of the town. At other times she would stroll with friends among the shops picking up bargains in lace or silks. Occasionally on returning from some of these trips her work would look better to her than when she had left it. Minard told her that this was because before going out she saw it through tired eyes. When she came in she saw it through rested eyes. But she noticed the greatest improvement on her return after a couple of days' absence while on a visit to Paestum. It seemed to her on first viewing her picture after her arrival that she had done far better than she had supposed in getting that misty effect of the atmosphere, that cerulean blue of the water. Moreover, she was gradually getting on to the canvas not any of the conditions she had seen, but something conceived, something noble, noble of being represented in paint. She asked Minard how she could have done it, and he told her that it was part accident and part her own art.

At last she had a picture that she was proud to show to her friends. It was a scene of the bay of Naples, with the island of Capri in the distance, and the water of a pale green. It was a picture that she had seen before, but it was a picture that she had seen through the eyes of an artist.

the invention, though the former could not exist without the latter.

Miss Gifford, as all sojourners at Sorrento do, made many excursions, and whenever she returned she invariably saw her work through new eyes. She was very much encouraged, even delighted. But when she concluded that her improvement must be due to the criticisms passed upon her work by Minard. "There may be artistic ability in me," she said to him, "but it would never come out without your drawing it out."

At last her picture was finished, and Miss Gifford took her departure for Naples. Minard advised her to offer her picture in Rome when she arrived there rather for the purpose of disposing of it, than for the chief purchasers of pictures in Italy are Americans, and they usually buy those which bear the names of artists who have made a name.

Minard joined her in Naples, where instead of painting they visited the buried cities of Pompeii and Herculaneum together and the gallery where in are deposited so many art treasures found under the ashes thrown over them 2,000 years before by Vesuvius. Miss Gifford preceded her new friend to Rome, and before her departure he kindly offered to pack her picture for her. She kindly accepted his offer, and when he returned it to her properly boxed he gave her the name of a dealer in Rome, with whom he advised her to leave her picture.

And so it was that the accidental meeting of these two persons at Sorrento was renewed at Naples, and since travelers from the south of Italy must go north it was likely that they might meet all the way up to Milan. And at every parting it was evident that the next meeting would be more cordial.

When Miss Gifford reached Rome she called on the dealer, and he sent her to the hotel for the picture. Soon after this when she saw it framed she was astonished at the remarkable change it had undergone in it. It was the framing had improved in it. It was the framing that had made the difference of the surrounding gilt it was simply beautiful. It seemed to require the illuminating properties to bring out the colors.

The next time she went into the shop the dealer informed her that her picture had been sold. "Sold?" she exclaimed.

"Yes, signorina. You directed me to sell it, did you not? It has not yet been removed. If there is any mistake please let me know it at once. In case of a picture like that I don't wish to make a blunder."

"How much did it bring?" asked the artist, agitated.

"Forty-five hundred francs."

"Forty-five hundred francs?"

"Yes, signorina. Are you disappointed?"

"How did you get so much for it?"

"The artist is a rising young American who is making a name."

"What name?"

"E. Minard."

"Minard?"

"Yes, signorina. The signature is genuine, isn't it?"

Miss Gifford stood mute for a few moments, staring at the dealer, then told him to let her see the picture. He took her to his packing room, and showed it to her, putting his finger on the name in the lower left hand corner. E. Minard.

Miss Gifford stood looking at the few dashes that spelled "Minard" for a long while without speaking. A light was slowly creeping in upon her brain. Two emotions met and mingled. There was disappointment that she had not proved herself an artist and pleasure that her friend had imposed upon her to be advertised for her picture for hers. There was another emotion more in evidence than either of the other two. Surely a man who would do such a thing for a woman must have for her more than a friendly interest.

"Is it all right, signorina?" asked the dealer.

"All right? Oh, yes, of course, it's all right."

"I will give you the money less the commission."

"Certainly."

Miss Gifford took the bills he handed her and left the shop. Minard had given her his address in Rome and had asked her to send him her card on her arrival. She sent it at once, and the same evening he called upon her.

"Mr. Minard, why did you impose upon me?"

"How impose upon you?" he asked shamefacedly.

"About the picture."

"Pardon me," hanging his head.

"How did you manage it?"

"Well, when you went out to drive or to walk or on excursions while at Sorrento I fed the maid to bring me your picture and improved it a bit. Meanwhile I was painting the same scene myself. Then you made it very easy for me by giving me your picture to pack. I packed my own and kept yours. Mine has perhaps a money value above yours, but yours has a value to me beyond price."

She had sent for him to hand him the money she had received from the dealer, but these last few words had a meaning that changed the situation. He declared that the picture she had painted was of far more value to him than the one he had painted himself. The exchange was in his favor. He begged her to permit it.

Nevertheless, since his painting had produced enough money to pay for her trip, she could not reconcile her conscience to accepting it all the matter was compromised by her throwing herself in with her own imperfect work. This was considered as an equivalent bonus, and the couple were married before they left Rome.

A Clear Brain and healthy body are essential for success. Business men, teachers, students, housewives, and other workers, say Hood's Sarsaparilla gives them appetite and strength, and makes their work seem easy. It overcomes that tired feeling.

STRENGTH FOR WEAK STOMACH

Can Only be Had Through Rich Red Blood.

When the blood is poor and thin and the stomach in consequence is imperfectly supplied with oxygenated blood and nerve force, the digestive process becomes slow and fermentations of the food goes on, with the formation of gas and certain acids. The pressure of the gas causes pain in the stomach; sometimes it affects the heart. When the gas is belched out through the mouth the patient is temporarily relieved, the sour risings in the throat, and the burning sensations in the throat and stomach are caused by the acid fermentations. There are plenty of things to neutralize these acids, or to "sweeten the stomach," as it is called, but they do not cure the trouble. Pure, rich blood, which will tone up the stomach and enable it to do the work nature intended it to do, is the only road to a cure. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new rich red blood, and they cure even the most obstinate cases of indigestion. The following is a bit of proof. Miss Minnie Greene, of Hall's, Bridge, Ont., says: "About a year ago I was greatly troubled with my stomach. Everything I ate caused me pain and distress. I would feel as though I was starved, but when meal time came the sight of food caused a feeling of loathing. There were days when I could not even hold milk on my stomach, and my head would ache so that I could hardly keep from screaming. Only those who have suffered from stomach trouble know the torture I suffered. I tried almost every remedy recommended, but found not the least benefit until I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These I used for a couple of months and they worked a perfect cure and I am again enjoying good health and able to eat freely all kinds of food."

If you are suffering from indigestion or any other trouble due to poor watery blood begin to cure yourself to-day by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Dress Forms

By HOWARD L. RANN

THE dress form is an inanimate object which makes it easy for a woman to tell whether a new gown is going to fit in more than one place or not without jabbing a living model full of pin holes.

Before the dress form was discovered a woman never knew whether her dress was fitted in the back or sagged in front until she got to a meeting of the Priscilla sewing circle, when she was informed of it immediately after the reading of the minutes. Women who preferred to make their own clothes rather than wait until Thanksgiving day for a spring suit had to borrow one of the neighbors for a half day, and then circle around her with a mouthful of pins and a critical squint. If she happened to select a hipless neighbor or one who would lose interest in the proceedings and droop wearily to the port side, the finished garment would fit like a rain coat on a Rocky Mountain antelope.

"Germans In Arms"

New Book By Son of Kaiser is Startling

Something like a sensation has been caused in Berlin by the publication of the German Crown Prince's book called "Germany in Arms." The book, which is most reverently dedicated to the German Emperor and the Prussian King, contains the following motto: "The world does not rest more safely on the shoulder of Atlas than does Germany on her army and navy."

This work is only a small one and consists of articles on naval and military subjects contributed by various officer friends of the Kaiser's son. While responsible for the whole the Crown Prince himself writes an introduction, and some remarks, historical and otherwise, about the German Empire.

The Imperial editor asserts that Germany, more than any other land, has to trust to its armaments, and that as its geographical position is unfavorable, and as all nations do not regard Germany with affection, the country has the sacred duty imposed on it always to maintain its army and navy in a state of readiness.

Only in this way, says the Crown Prince, can we maintain that place in the sun which is ours, but which will not be voluntarily conceded to us.

The Crown Prince goes on to say that diplomacy may delay the conflict for a season, but those in responsible positions must know that miles an hour. Witness saw him make a dive, and realized that an accident had occurred. He could not say definitely what part of the machine gave away first, but as the elevator was in front and pieces of it were picked up some distance from broken first. He gave details of the wreckage, he thought second, with broken first. He gave details of the machine, and mentioned that the lieutenant had a habit of looking for instead of feeling for them when flying. Witness had told him he must not do it.

His own opinion was that Lieut. Harrison intended to land, and in feeling for the ignition switch took his eyes for the moment off his machine. In doing so he turned the elevator at too steep an angle. He was then going at full speed. Witness' advice to his pupils had always been never to attempt to descend with the engine running at full speed, because of the tremendous strain of "flattening out." Harrison might, on the impulse of the moment, have tried to pull up too sharply, and given a jar that was too much for the elevator, which broke.

The jury returned a verdict of "Death by negligence" and awarded the community with the relatives and with the Royal Flying Corps at the loss of so promising an officer.
