The News Offered To Sell Its Support To O'Brien For $2500.

CAN ITS AFFIDAVIT MEN SWEAR AWAY THE LATEST CHARGE?

News Manager Told O'Brien The Wilson-Prudhomme People Offered Him $1500.

Weldy Young and Many Others Were Present When Offer Was Made and Refused—Would Not Come Out Flat-Footed For The Independents But Would Pledge Silence and Neutrality—Can The News Explain?—Let The Galled Jade Wince.

It is not in the line, neither is it the policy of the Nugget to thresh over old saws; but when the Nugget of last Sunday stated that the News was bought by the managers of the Wilson-Prudhomme campaign and paid for the same as any other commodity is bought and paid for, it knew whereof it spoke, and was in position to prove and did prove to the eminent satisfaction of every thinking man in the city, even to the News' affidavit men, that the statements made were the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. The Nugget stated then, without giving names, it now states, giving names, that the committee in charge of the campaign of Messrs. Wilson and Prudhomme, which committee is composed of Messrs. A. F. George, Alfred Thompson and A. D. Williams, came to the office of this paper and submitted the following proposition:

- I. That the editorial utterances of the Nugget during the balance of the campaign should be in accord with directions issued by them.
- II. That the front page of the Nugget should be turned over to a paid writer of the committee, whose articles would not be subject to any amendment or alteration from the proprietor of this paper.
- III. That a certain number of copies of each day's issue should be furnished for free distribution.
- IV. That such printing and advertising as the committee desired should be furnished.
- V. In consideration of the foregoing of one thousand dollars was tendered.
- VI. In denial of the truthfulness of the foregoing was embodied in the committee's affidavit as published in the News of yesterday, and why does not the same odium and stigma attach to the attempted purchase of the influence of a newspaper as to the deal which is successfully consummated by the payment of money and the delivery of the goods which is known to almost a certainty to have been the nature of the deal in the case of the News sale.

Will the trio of committeemen deny its offer of one thousand dollars to the will henceforth attach to the paper whose support, it has no influence, is on the market for sale to the highest bidder. Let us see what the reputation of that paper is—that paper to which "no money has been paid nor has been contracted to be paid" for its support of Wilson and Prudhomme.

If the affidavit to the effect that the News is giving its support gratuitously to the Wilson-Prudhomme ticket is true, perhaps that same trio of affiants can get the News out of the box into which the precipitates it:

The affidavits need no comment at present. If anything further is needed to substantiate the statement of the Nugget of Saturday that the News was in the open market with its columns and all that should be sacred to an honest paper for sale to the highest bidder, it can be produced. The Nugget knew whereof it spoke when it said the News was bought, and it is able and willing, if needs be, to further substantiate that statement. Let the galled jade wince.

Water Front.

For the first time in many moons the Yukon between Dawson and Whitehorse is free from boats with the exception of one, the Ora, which passed Stewart river at 9 o'clock this morning. Barring the ice and the scows the Ora now has the right of way and collisions need have no terrors for the pilots. She should arrive here sometime during the afternoon and will start back up the river again tomorrow, and this time there seems no doubt that she will be the last boat to make the Whitehorse run this year.

The Zealandian reached Whitehorse at 11 a. m. yesterday, and the Anglian will sail this evening, probably about

TURMOIL REIGNED

At the Joint Meeting of The Four Candidates Held Last Night.

THE UBQUITOUS DRUNK PRESENT.

Considerable Sweetness Wasted On the Desert Air

OWING TO MALAMUTE HOWLS

Which Drowned the Voices of The Various Speakers—Many Undelivered Addresses.

The joint meeting of the two local factions which have put forth candidates for election to seats on the Yukon council, which was held last night in the Orpheum theater was probably the most densely crowded meeting of the kind ever held in Dawson, the building being crowded from the orchestra pit to the dome, and a more frenzied, howling, consolidated mass of misbehavior was never before assembled on Canadian soil. It was a typical Dawson political meeting in that it had all the component features of the average Dawson meeting of that character. The ubiquitous drunken man, without whom a public meeting in Dawson would be lacking, was, of course, there and was located near the front, from which vantage point he continued to empty himself of drunken splutterings and invectives during the entire meeting. The "brainless pessimist" was there but was not allowed to inflict himself upon the meeting further than to inject a few invectives while others were speaking or attempting to speak. The young man who resents any and all left-hand compliments to the Irish, was there and the way he raved and ranted revived recollections of the bull dog department of a bench show. The speaker who was given respectful hearing, allowed to finish his speech and take his seat without being howled down was the very rare exception.

Yet, strange and incompatible as it appeared, this audience applauded every time the matter of self-government in the Yukon was mentioned.

At 8:30 o'clock Ben Ferguson stepped on the stage, and in behalf of Theatrical Manager Alex Pantages, announced the reopening of the Orpheum in a grand sacred concert next Sunday night to be followed during the week with a first-class vaudeville show. Immediately following Ferguson's announcement Candidate O'Brien moved that H. T. Willis be seated as chairman of the meeting. Candidate Wilson seconded the motion, which was put by O'Brien, and Mr. Willis was unanimously chosen. After a few opening remarks the chairman turned at once to the business for which the meeting was called and introduced the first speaker in the person of Candidate Thomas O'Brien.

The candidate was loudly received, many cheering, others howling, as was the case all through the meeting when anyone appeared on the stage to speak.

O'Brien took up the platform on which he is running and discussed it section by section. He was frequently interrupted by questions from the audience regarding tramways, whisky permits, etc., but to all questions he returned the soft answer that turneth away wrath. He stated that the laws of the Yukon as they exist are bad; that a person does not require more than three days' residence in the district to know that the laws are nefarious and unjust. He especially denounced the law that imposes a charge of $10 on a man for a miner's license before he can even work one day in a mine, and said this law should be "rebolished." At this stage of the proceeding the electric lights which had previously cast a redish-tinted, wierd light over the vast throng, went out entirely and darkness such as we are told reigned in Egypt prevailed until with his characteristic movement in cases of emergency, Joe Clark came to the rescue with a convenient lamp, when the speaker continued his address, the gallery being still shrouded in darkness except for the fiery end of an occasional cigar which peered out through the darkness like a distant star. Mr. O'Brien continued to discuss the platform and proceeded to point out many defects in the present laws that should be remedied. He paid but little attention to such interruptions from the audience as "Why didn't you think of these things three years ago?" Once or twice he answered questions from the audience and answered them in a manner which left no doubt as to his conviction as to the subjects in question. He said he is opposed to the special permit system and that it is injurious to the interests of good government. O'Brien strongly condemned the present tax system of the Yukon and denounced the tax on the gross turnover of business as being unjust and unheard of in well governed countries. O'Brien spoke for 20 minutes.

Candidate Alex Prudhomme was the next speaker and he, too, was greeted with thunderous applause. He agreed with O'Brien that we want a general change of laws, but he gave it as his opinion, which was not contradicted, that the people do not want O'Brien to be the man who will be placed in position to bring about the desired changes. "Only three months ago," said the speaker, "Mr. O'Brien said that people of Dawson and vicinity were entitled to but one representative on the council, and now he tells you he is in favor of an entire elective board." The speaker declared that such lightning changes of expression are inconsistent and not becoming in a man who asks support at the hands of the people. "That gallery is falling!" shouted a voice, and as it really looked as though such was the case, Chairman Willis requested that the crowd sit thin on which was done for a few minutes. But as the gallery bore up last night, it is not probable that it will soon, if ever again, be so strongly tested, as there were fully 400 people on it last night. The gallery excitement having subsided, a dog fight took place, after which Mr. Prudhomme continued his address. He segregated the platform on which he stands and showed in what respect it is superior to the laws, as they now exist. He made a strong point on the nefarious concession system as it exists and was greeted with cries of "come off," the audience not thinking that such flagrant wrongs as the concession system needed condemnation. He pledged himself, if elected, to work hard for reform, and a voice from the gallery asked if he will endeavor to do away with the woodpile. The speaker referred scornfully to what he termed "O'Brien's liquor graft," and closed by following the example set by O'Brien in that he asked the voters to take the Yukon party ticket straight, O'Brien having enjoined, his friends to vote for him and his running mate.

In the matter of an editorial in the Dawson Daily News, newspaper of October 15th, entitled, "Room for the Leper."

I, Thomas O'Brien, of Dawson, in the Yukon territory, merchant, a candidate for a seat on the territorial council of the Yukon, do solemnly declare as follows:

On or about the 25th day of September last, Mr. J. H. Caskey, business manager of the Dawson Daily News Publishing Company, came to me at the O'Brien Club and stated that, while his paper could not give Mr. Noel and myself an out and out support in the present contest, he could arrange that for a consideration of $2500 his paper would remain neutral. At the same time he stated that his paper had been offered $1500 to support the candidacy of Messrs. Wilson and Prudhomme. I refused to entertain the proposition in any way whatever. There were several other gentlemen present when this proposition was made and refused.

And I make this solemn declaration, conscientiously believing the same to be true, and of the same effect as if made under the criminal evidence act of Canada.

Nugget on the terms which the latter declined to accept, because it was not bartering its principle about the street ready to deal with the person who had the longest sack? Why did not the committee attempt to clear its own name by making another affidavit that it had never offered or attempted to buy the support and influence of this paper for $1000 or any other sum? The question needs no answer.

The whole effort was to relieve the News of the odium; the stigma, the undying disgrace which time will not efface nor palaver obliterate, which

CONCERNING AFFIDAVITS.

In last night's issue of the Daily News appeared an affidavit signed by certain members of the Prudhomme-Wilson committee respecting the nature of the deal into which they entered with the Daily News for the support of that paper in the present campaign.

As might have been anticipated the gentlemen who signed the affidavit came to the rescue of their hiring to the very best of their ability, but that best was an extremely weak effort. None of the detailed and circumstantial evidence which the Nugget published on Saturday night was denied. No effort was made to rebut the main facts in the Nugget's arraignment of the poor, miserable News. There was no effort to deny the truth of the Nugget's statements respecting the proposition made to this paper for the simple reason that those statements were absolutely uncolored presentations of fact and the committee cannot and will not deny them. The affidavit in question endeavors to shield the News behind the plea that the blood money which the committee turned over to the News was in compensation for printing and advertising only.

We ask the public again to note the circumstances which attended the consummation of the deal. Prior to that date the News' editorial support of Prudhomme and Wilson had been worse than no support at all. It had been conducted in such a manner that a flop on either side could be made at the right moment. After the deal was made, the News began a bitter personal fight upon O'Brien and Noel, but only after all possibility of money from that source was shut off.

Again bear in mind the fact that the front page of the News was practically turned over to the paid writer of the Wilson and Prudhomme committee. Did the News make such a concession for nothing?

Now then, to crown this story of infamy, comes the affidavits which are published on the front page of the Nugget today.

In Saturday's issue of this paper we said that the News had "hawked its influence about the streets of Dawson," and when we said that we meant every word of it. We didn't say it for theatrical effect, nor because the words have a pleasing sound, for they haven't. We said it because it is the living truth and in today's issue of this paper is presented the evidence that establishes beyond the peradventure of a doubt the absolute truth of the Nugget's assertions.

Will anyone discredit the affidavits published in this paper? We don't believe they will. We don't believe the News itself, with all its monumental gall and brazenness, will dare deny them. And if it does so deny them, there are others to follow in their wake.

The News has brought this entire load of infamy down upon its own shoulders. It attacked this paper without cause or reason, and compelled us in our own defense to expose its own despicable methods. This we have done and done for no reason aside from the fact that we refuse to submit peaceably to continued and unjustified attacks so long as we have the means at hand with which to defend ourselves. From this time on the name of the Daily News will serve to recall everything that is worthy of condemnation from the standpoint of reputable journalism. The News has ceased to be a newspaper. It is a thing. A commodity. Its support, or what goes for such, is up at auction and the highest bidder gets it. Step up gentlemen and examine the goods. No tenders will be rejected!

THE PROSPECTOR'S TURN.

While this is the wrong season of the year for very much being done in the line of actual prospecting for new diggings, still the effect of the new and liberal regulations is easily seen. Small prospecting parties have scattered out over the hills adjacent to the different creeks now working and many have gone farther into interior points.

The only reason that can be assigned why further discoveries have not been made during the last two years is the fact that until very recently the laws have been such that the prospector has practically been out of business. He could not prospect on the creeks near Dawson, nor could he go into the interior because nearly all creeks at all within reach of a prospecting trip had been staked and reverted to the crown by reason of the working of the law whereby all unrepresented ground reverted to the crown. This law is now a thing of the past and the prospector is welcome to go when and where he pleases in search of new diggings.

What these alterations in the mining regulations mean to Dawson and the Yukon territory the next twelve months will accurately reveal. We believe it absolutely safe to predict an unprecedented era of business activity due to the opening up of new ground, and the fact that a large area of heretofore unworkable ground can now be profitably developed. Dawson cannot prosper unless the mining industry flourishes. If the miners on the creeks cannot afford to buy goods, merchants in Dawson must go out of business. We believe, however, that there will be more business in Dawson next year than during the past, and we also believe that for years yet to come the volume of trade in the town will continue to grow and increase. There can be no other result if the government's present liberal attitude toward the Yukon continues.

The Most Ungrammatical.

A literary man who has just returned from the anthracite coal region of Pennsylvania says that he found a great quantity of "local color" there. He also says he heard the most ungrammatical sentence while there that ever came under his notice. He was strolling through a mining village in Schuylkill county when he heard a woman calling, and at some distance off saw several children who were playing in the road. When he reached them, he said kindly:

"Your mother is calling you, children."
The largest child, a girl of about 10 years, turned to him and said:
"Her ain't a-calling we; us don't belong to she."—New York Times.

The Avenger's Wrath.

The brother of one of the victims of "Jim" Cullen certainly had reason for his wrath. Cullen had hacked to death the Presque Isle deputy sheriff and his companion, who went out into the woods to arrest the big, hulking scoundrel. It was a particularly brutal and unprovoked crime, and "Jim" Cullen was lynched by the infuriated citizens of the section—but that is a story that I have no time to tell here.

When the news of the double murder came out to Presque Isle, the brother of one of the victims became fairly frantic in his rage. He stormed, he cursed and raved, and he begged to be allowed to get at the villain who had done the deed.

The people said one to another, "We mustn't have another tragedy. What's his name will be sure to kill Cullen if he gets at him, and so we must keep them apart."

Therefore two or three men were detailed to keep guard over the raving brother and look to it that he didn't form any connection with Cullen.

The murderer was guarded in a little store all the day after the crime. He was to be kept there till arrangements could be made to take him to Presque Isle village. The store was filled with curiosity seekers and the posse that had arrested him.

All at once the door of the store flew open and in strode a fierce and wild man. His eyes were rolling, his face was convulsed with rage and grief. It was the brother of the victim. He had in some manner escaped from those that guarded him, and here he was ten miles from Presque Isle looking for the man whom he had sworn to chew into mince meat.

So fierce was the brother's demeanor that the crowd instinctively broke before him. A clear aisle was left between him and the cowering Cullen.

The brother strode forward. Some of the bystanders turned away their heads. They expected to see blood fly all over the place. The men were face to face. The brother—the avenger—raised both his fists. Then he shouted: "Whang blank you to blanknation, I'm a good mind to kick your jaw off'n ye!"

That was all there was to it. Then they led him gently away and shut the door on him.

I've seen men a great deal like that myself. Have you?—Ex.

Theatres Produce Good Plays of a Different Nature.

You Play Sympathize With Rip Van Winkle or Laugh at Two of a Kind.

"Rip Van Winkle," that dear old Chinese legend with a Dutch name and an American stage setting; the piece which has been made famous the world over by the large personality of Joe Jefferson, was produced in a most creditable manner at the Standard last evening, and it may be said in passing that the stage settings for this play were the best and most artistic ever seen in Dawson. This means a great deal to the minds of any who happen to be familiar with the play and what is required in that direction to give the lines their full effect. Mr. Thorne and Casey Moran are entitled to special mention for their efforts in the scenic and mechanical effects which contribute largely towards the success of "Rip Van Winkle."

As a 20-year sleeper, Edwin R. Lang should be classed at the head of the seven famous in tradition. His rendition of the line, "Here is your good health, and your family's, and may they all live long and prosper," was something good to hear. Mr. Lang is a good actor in any country, and a conscientious one. He not only knows his lines Monday evenings, but he knows the whole part, which shows that he does not believe in letting things go till the last moment and faking the part in the end.

Albert Lawrence as Derrick Von Hoffman, and Alf Layne as the nephew, looked strong supports, in which they were ably seconded by Wm. Bullen as Nick Vedder and J. C. Lewis as Hendrick Vedder.

Frank Gardner doubled the parts of Seth Slough and Jacob Stein.

Julia Walcott is featured as Gretchen, and it goes without saying that she did not disappoint anyone.

The cast is a very strong one, as of course it has to be to produce "Rip Van Winkle" successfully, and there is no doubt about its success.

"Two of a Kind" at the Savoy is a drawing attraction, being just the article to please a Dawson audience.

The scene is laid in New York, and the time, right now. The piece is funny all the way through, and those who have not seen it and do not know the inimitable Jim Post, the fun-making Larry Bryar, and the mirth-loving Billy Onslow, may be quite sure that they will get their money's worth of laugh this week at the Savoy.

The piece boasts of more plot than is generally encountered in plays of this class, but it all hangs as usual upon the happening of the unexpected and the duplicity of married men, who, in the estimation of many, are all rakes anyway.

The two of a kind from whom the piece takes its title are of this sort, who, not finding the comforts of home in their proper place, seek them elsewhere, and seem to like the occupation. This gives rise to all the trouble which is greatly augmented by Helene Bell, as impersonated by Kate Rockwell. Helene is apparently the center of attraction for the two married men, and this fact, coupled with a habit which some married women have, of returning inconveniently and without warning, when they are supposed to be far, far away, makes the piece very funny, and, no doubt, because it is realistic, not altogether without precedent in fact, to many who witness its production from the seats.

The play is well and appropriately staged and any theater-goer who does not see it this week misses something well worth his time and money.

TURMOIL REIGNED.

Mr. Noel Prudhomme asked that the supporters of his platform see to it that both his and Mr. Wilson's names are on their tickets and properly marked. Prudhomme spoke about 30 minutes.

Candidate Noel was the next speaker and he, too, was most effusively greeted. He began with a reference to the Yukon Sun which was the signal for hoots and howls. Then he referred to the Daily News in scathing terms and the howls continued. The speaker denounced the News as the most anti-British, anti-Canadian paper in this country. The audience had kept up an uproar since Mr. Noel's first words, and that gentleman plead for a respectful hearing. He eulogized his colleague, Mr. O'Brien, and a disturber who did not endorse the eulogy made so much uproar that it became necessary to ask the police to remove him, which was done. Mr. Noel did not go over his platform section by section, stating that his colleague had already covered the ground, but said there are five or six features in it that was superior to the planks of the platform of their opponents. The speaker asked the pardon of the English-speaking element present while he addressed his fellow people in the French language. For a few minutes all went merry as a marriage bell, when some one who understood French informed Joe Clarke that Noel was using language which reflected on his (Clarke's) political honor. Clarke rose to a point of order which was not recognized by the chair, and Clarke, declining to rest under the imputation, refused to sit down until the language was explained in English. Barney Sugrue finally got the floor when it came out that the language to which Clarke took umbrage was to the effect that Noel had stated to his French auditors that Weldy Young was authority for the statement that Clarke had told him he was trading Prudhomme off for votes for Wilson. Noel admitted that such had been the purport of his remarks and Clarke stated that only yesterday he had confronted Young with his statement; that Young had first denied it and later acknowledged to having made the statement, but admitted its falsity and said it was legitimate as a campaign lie. Noel then stated that on yesterday Clarke had stated in the Madden house that the independents are trading Noel off for O'Brien votes. Clarke stood pat, admitted having made the statement, and said he could prove that what he said was true; that the independents are offering to trade Noel off for O'Brien votes and he would get half a dozen men to make affidavits to that effect. After a few minutes more talk, during which turmoil held high carnival, the speaker retired after having spoken about 30 minutes.

Candidate Arthur Wilson was fourth on the list and to him, when he stepped to the front of the stage, was accorded the most rousing welcome accorded to any of the speakers. Mr. Wilson was suffering from a severe cold last night and was not in good shape for talking. He spoke quietly but pointedly. He said the supporters of O'Brien and Noel are not the miners but the government officials and allies; that the supporters of O'Brien and Noel are not men who want an assay office established in Dawson, but men whose interests it is to keep an assay office out of Dawson and the Yukon as long as possible. He explained at length a previous slight apology made by Mr. O'Brien, the first speaker, in regard to a reported conversation between Major Wood and the speaker (Wilson) in which O'Brien had admitted that he was misinformed. Wilson had seen Major Wood yesterday and had been authorized by that official to publicly state last night that he (Major Wood) had promised his vote to the candidate, Wilson. This announcement was greeted with deafening applause, as was also the encomium of the speaker on Major Wood. Regarding Mr. Noel's statement that the Yukon Sun is deserving of support for the reason that it is the only Canadian paper in the country, Mr. Wilson said, "If the Yukon Sun is a sample of Canadian papers, may the Lord help Canadian journalism; I deny the imputation that the Yukon Sun is a sample Canadian paper." The speaker closed with a stong plea to his hearers to vote their honest convictions, and to not be bulldozed by any man or set of men into voting against what they honestly believe to be right and for the best interests of the district. He also impertuned his friends to not forget his colleague, Mr. Prudhomme, but to see that the names of both the Yukon party candidates are properly marked on their tickets.

The four candidates having been heard, the meeting dropped further into pandemonium and calls were made for every man in sight to come out and make himself heard, if he could.

Barney Sugrue, in response to repeated calls, arose and made one of his characteristic speeches, always quaint and to the point. Barney began by saying he had followed the O'Brien-Noel funeral procession all over the creeks and that he intends staying by them until the evening of election day to see that they are given decent and proper burial. He told of how three O'Brien-Noel boosters had bothered around Skiff Mitchell on the creek until Skiff had given them $25 to get rid of them, and of how the three men had gone to the Forks, bought $1 worth of candles and $24 worth of whiskey and had an O'Brien torchlight procession; but that Skiff Mitchell was still an unswerving supporter of the candidates he had helped nominate. He closed by referring to Candidate Noel as a broken-down politician, wholly unworthy of support or even of serious consideration.

This brought Noel to his feet, also a long drawn out series of howls from the audience. Prudhomme appealed for a respectful hearing of his opponent, but the howls continued, finally changing to cries for Woodworth, and Noel gracefully yielded the floor. With a free use of sweet oil and the exercise of patience, figuratively speaking, the turbulent waters were calmed for a few minutes until Woodworth said something which brought Noel again to his feet. Noel demanded to be heard and said he would stand on the stage as long as the crowd could howl; that he would stay till morning but that he had his say. Someone tossed a two-bit piece from a box to the stage, but the speaker did not weaken. The chairman interceded in Noel's behalf, and he said his say.

Crown Prosecutor F. C. Wade was the next speaker and, interruptions included, occupied the platform for nearly an hour. He spoke of the wonderful progress of the Yukon since the appearance of the first steamboat landed in Dawson in June, '98. He gave facts and statistics which, when a person stops to realize, stamps the Yukon as having in its short life, made the most remarkable record for advancement of any country on the face of the earth. Mr. Wade's address, had he been permitted to deliver it without interruption, would have been eminently instructive as well as interesting. But frequent interruptions and howls riled up the crown prosecutor and he indulged in a few pointed personalities which were taken by some to reflect on the sons of the Emerald Isle, which brought Barney Sugrue to his feet and started several others who boast Irish ancestry, towards the stage. Barney raised a point of order which the chair declined to recognize and Barney refused to take his seat. For fully 10 minutes Wade and Sugrue stood side by side on the stage, each waiting, hoping and praying that the other would sit down. Finally Barney yielded and Wade continued his speech. On his mentioning Dr. Catto some one in the audience shouted and inquired what became of the letters Catto sent to Ottawa. They were consigned to the waste basket. "They were a damned sight better than anything you ever sent to Ottawa," yelled Catto from the audience; and then the desire to make a speech seized him and he rushed for the platform and endeavored to persuade the chair to introduce him as the next speaker.

As Attorney Wade closed his talk, Attorney McCaul threw aside his overcoat and stepped to the front of the stage. Mr. McCaul has evidently been in politics before, as he goes at it like an old timer. He explained that, while he had taken no active interest in the campaign, he had a few words to say as to the respective candidates. He respected Mr. O'Brien as a man and had nothing against Mr. Noel, but would vote for neither of them for the reason that he looked upon them as government candidates, and to elect either of them would be similar in effect to having two more members of the Yukon council appointed from Ottawa by the minister of the interior.

When McCaul yielded the floor Noel made another attempt to speak which, with the aid of the chair, who requested order, was successful for a few moments, when cries for Sugrue were again lustily made. Sugrue arose, and Dr. Catto, whose chance had, he thought, arrived, pushed forward to the front and at the same time Frank Buteau had something to say and likewise worked his way to the front of the stage. But as 12:30 o'clock had arrived and O'Brien and Noel had both left the hall, the chairman decided that the hour for adjourning the meeting had arrived. Owing to the pandemonium which reigned, the chairman could not be heard three feet away, but by a signal announced that the meeting was adjourned. But cries for Sugrue continued and for a few minutes he was heard. He closed by proposing three cheers for Wilson and Prudhomme, which were given. Attorney Wade proposed three cheers for O'Brien and Noel, which were also given. Dr. Catto lifted up his voice and would feign have talked, but in the uproar nobody heard him. Joe Clarke started "God Save the Queen," and Catto's speech died in embryo and Frank Buteau's was never started. A few minutes before 1 o'clock this morning the meeting stopped without the formality of an adjournment.

A Wilson Prudhomme meeting is called for tonight at the same place. O'Brien and Noel will hold services tonight at the Magnet roadhouse.

RECEIVED BY WIRE. BIG STRIKE IS STILL ON.

McKinley Confident of Re-Election, is Not Worrying.

Great Britain's Policy—DeWitts' Victory at Orange River—Chinese Heads Lopped Off.

Philadelphia, Oct. 9, via Skagway, Oct. 16.—The big strike is still on. The mine operators have offered an advance in wages, but the men have demanded further concessions. These have been refused and the miners declare that no additional concessions will be granted. The strikers are very gloomy over the outlook.

McKinley Confident.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9, via Skagway, Oct. 16.—President McKinley has returned to the capital fully confident as to his re-election. He has had reports from all doubtful states and now has no doubt of the result. He feels assured of success in all the Northern states east of the Missouri, and thinks there is no doubt that Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia and perhaps Kentucky will be found in the Republican column. The Pacific coast is regarded as safe for McKinley, owing to the growing trade resulting from the administration's expansion policy. At a cabinet meeting today the president stated that he is fully content to devote the balance of his time during the campaign to public business and give Bryan the monopoly of speech making.

Bryan is making from five to ten speeches each day and is showing signs of weariness. Stevenson has started the campaign in West Virginia.

Britain's Policy.

London, Oct. 10, via Skagway, Oct. 16.—Chamberlain, speaking at Stowbridge on the 8th inst., ridiculed the attempt of the opposition to hold him responsible for the foreign policy of Lord Salisbury. "The whole matter," said Mr. Chamberlain, "is in the hands of the premier and I haven't the presumption to meddle." Britain's foreign policy is to remain on friendly terms with every great country of Europe and more particularly with the government of the United States.

British Victory.

Wedfort, Orange River, Oct. 10, via Skagway, Oct. 16.—After three days' of continuous fighting De Wet's command with 1000 men and five big guns, have been captured. The Boers were dislodged and dispersed.

Heads Coming Off.

Shanghai, Oct. 9, via Skagway, Oct. 16.—Field Marshall Wattersee has made peremptory demands upon Li Hung Chang for immediate punishment of the ring leaders connected with the recent outrages upon foreigners. In response Li Hung Chang has given assurance that three high officials will be executed. Three princes will be given life imprisonment and Prince Tuan will be banished to the Siberian frontier.

Canadian Elections.

Ottawa, Oct. 9, via Skagway, Oct. 16.—The Canadian gazette has been issued dissolving parliament. Nominations will take place on the 31st inst. and the election will occur on the 7th of November. Premier Laurier's majority was 60. The veteran statesman, Sir Chas. Tupper, is leading the Conservatives. He has passed his 80th birthday.

Orpheum Opens Sunday Night.

On next Sunday the Orpheum will again open to the public in a blaze of electric lights and with the house entirely remodeled and refitted from the proscenium aisle to the foyer of the theater. No small credit is due to the ability of Montague Martin, who has painted an entirely new set of scenery, some of which gives evidence of unusual ability, particularly the forest drop curtain.

The gallery has been rebuilt in the shape of a horseshoe, giving an uninterrupted view of the stage from every point. Twenty-three family boxes are built in this part of the house. The cost of the work runs up to over $8000. An arched entrance will be run from First avenue to the main part of the house, and a private entrance will be used at Gandolfo's. The alley will be well lighted and planked.

The theater will be dedicated with a grand sacred concert next Sunday night and special efforts will be made by the enterprising proprietor, Alex Pantages, to give a high class entertainment. Marion Tracie and Mrs. Leroy Tozier will appear in selected solos. A new arrival in town is Miss Lila Sylvester a famous violin soloist who will delight the audience with her instrument. Celia De Lacy and Arthur Boyle, the tenor, will also appear Sunday night. Professor Parkes with his wondrouscope will introduce new and intensely interesting views and specially developed moving pictures of the parade during the visit of Lord and Lady Minto.

Alex Pantages is heartily congratulated on his reappearance in the theatrical fold, as he has exceptional ability as a theatrical manager and will, without doubt, make the Orpheum a favorite with the theater-going people of Dawson. The following Monday the house will open with a first-class vaudeville show.

POLICE COURT NEWS.

Yesterday afternoon the case against Fred Sola, of the Central hotel, charged with selling liquor on Sunday in violation of the Sunday ordinance, was dismissed for lack of evidence.

The woman Annie Galina who was charged with having robbed Albert Grant of $60 while in a cabin on Second street, was sent behind the bars for two months, and the man Doewitte, who was found guilty of being supported by the Galina woman, was given 30 days in which he will take daily exercise on the regal wood pile. It is to be hoped that he will develop sufficient muscle to walk out over the ice.

Business was very dull in the police court this morning, there being but one case before the magistrate for hearing. That case goes toward forming the history of John Case, who, whether or not he drank case goods, was arrested for being under the influence of something of that description, and while in that delightful condition having made more noise than is compatible with the peace and dignity of the city. For these reasons he was elected to pay a fine of $10 and costs, after which he went his way rejoicing greatly that what had befallen him was no worse.

Saloons Must Close.

An order has been issued by the Northwest mounted police requiring that all saloons shall be kept closed tomorrow, the 7th inst., during the progress of the election. All saloon proprietors are notified to take notice accordingly.

Glad to See You, Cap.

Capt. Woodside, of Yukon Sun fame, is again in town looking several years younger than when he left Dawson. When asked if he was to take charge of the Sun again he answered that he had not made any arrangement as yet in that direction. "I have come back," said the captain, "to grow up with the country."

Brimstone & Stewart have received their carpet sewing machine.

Married.

Saturday evening in the Catholic church, Father Demarias united in the holy bonds of matrimony George H. Hanbury and Miss Julia Kennedy. The young man is well known and highly esteemed for his many good qualities and genial manner. The bride recently arrived from Seattle, where she is well known, and has hosts of friends who will be pleased to learn of the consummation of the object of her journey to Dawson.
