A Reminder to HOUSEKEEPERS:

Libby's Evaporated Milk is superior in many respects to ordinary milk

It is pure cow's milk reduced to its present consistency by evaporation.
 It is put up in cans containing a NET weight of 16 ounces.
 By adding one part of water to one part of contents of can a resulting milk product will be obtained which will not be below the American legal standard for ordinary milk.
 The retail price is very little (if anything) higher than the price charged for ordinary milk.
 It is NOT SWEETENED and therefore does not change the flavor of the tea.
 IMPORTANT.—It is carefully sterilized in the process of canning and is guaranteed by Libby, McNeill & Libby to be absolutely pure.

Ask your grocer for a can and try it.

Bismarck—the "Greatest of the Germans"

BISMARCK, like all Germans, prized Personal Liberty as the breath of life—a NATURAL RIGHT to be guarded and defended at any cost. Among our millions of law-abiding German-American citizens there is not a man who does not consider it insolent tyranny of the most odious kind for any legislation to issue this command: "Thou shalt NOT eat this—thou shalt NOT drink that." Germans know that there is no evil in the light wines and beers of their fathers. EVIL ONLY IS IN THE MAN WHO MISUSES THEM. Fifty-seven years ago ANHEUSER-BUSCH founded their great institution upon the tenets of the Constitution of the United States. During these fifty-seven years they have honestly brewed an honest beer—the kind that has added to the temperance of nations. Their great brand—BUDWEISER—is demanded throughout the world. Its sales exceed any other beer by millions of bottles, proving it to be in a class by itself.

CHAPTER XXX.

Close to him now, she could not speak. She could not cry to him. Words of her own her lips refused to frame. In that great crisis volition was all quenched. From a source beyond herself the message rose that laid the evil spirit tugging so hard for one more fainting soul. Gilbert Hurst turned, white as death, toward the notes which sounded like an angel's help.

"Why are you here?" he said, hoarsely. "What brought you?"

"I saw you," she answered, panting, "so near the water. I was afraid for you."

Afraid for him! afraid for him! And had flown to his side thus, in her innocent bravery. Verily temptation had not done with him yet. He moved a step from the water.

"You need not be afraid for me now," he said; "go back;" the cold words so warring with the fires in his breast, they rang out rough and harsh.

"Not without you," said Sydney; speak as he might, she would not leave him thus. "Mr. Hurst, do come." She let her hand fall timidly upon his shoulder; which of them was it who was trembling so? "Do come," she repeated, and to that sweet imploring, that torture too dear to be denied, he yielded. Her light touch holding him in tender charge, silently they regained the house, a journey brief but never to be forgotten. A fitful night-breeze swept her long hair across his hands as they were entering. He started aside as though the soft tresses stung him.

"Go and sleep now, for I am safe enough, Miss Grey," he said, and strode upstairs.

Alone she noiselessly barred the window, then noiselessly crept back to her own room. But there strength suddenly discarded her. Upon her knees she fell beside her bed. Thence sent one great entreating cry to Heaven—

"Safe! Of Thy mercy keep him safe. My love—my love!"

CHAPTER XXXI.

The week bargained for, and three days' grace beyond, Mr. Drayton stayed at St. Clair; long enough for Mary to rub her eyes plenty of times and make quite sure her new-come happiness was no mere dream; long enough for Mr. Vaughan to sun himself in the bright situation with the keen, amused pleasure which almost turns selfish age to youth again; and long enough for Lady Comyngham to be attracted by the tidings to the Gate House, there to make congratulations in such sort as set Mrs. Dacie's maternal pride in a blaze which has never since subsided.

To this day she relates how the countess said, "St. Clair must not expect to find another Miss Dacie in a hurry, but they must beg her to put young Mrs. Duvesne in training before she left, and Edward, with his small parish, must help Mr. Vaughan with his large one, and they must all try and make the bride as little missed as possible."

A programme which, it is pleasant to record, obtained forthwith, and still remains in excellent working order. Then the bridegroom-expectant went off on his less agreeable errand, and having run down to overlook what he had in hand at Granfyde, and returned thence to see after his wedding suit in Bond Street, was putting away a Monday afternoon, before starting the same evening for Paris, by a lounge in the park, when from the herd of idlers he was unexpectedly accosted by Major Villiers, beside whom was Mr. Rupert, whose acquaintance he had not before had the honor of making.

Both these gentlemen were extremely willing to receive a third party into their conversation.

The honest old major was sorely hurt, far below the surface, by what he considered his son's curish conduct at the Dale the summer before. This, combined with the young man's breach of promise as to loo and congeners of that seductive pastime, had set up a barrier between father and son; neither was well at ease in the other's company nowadays. By a

TWO WOMEN SAVED FROM OPERATIONS

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can. — "I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. FRANK EMSLEY, 303 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.

Beatrice, Neb. — "Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILD, Beatrice, Neb.

substratum of selfish sense Mr. Rupert had escaped going to the dogs, but he was imbued with a distaste for the leading strings of prudence, and though now living in bounds of moderation and his actual income—for with his biggest asseveration the major had vowed nevermore to pay a penny of debt for him—he adopted the cynical air of a man to whom the world is a used-up toy, decorum and respectability, just tramways into a wished-for abyss of oblivion.

After a few minutes' stroll, "I have been trying, Mr. Drayton," said the major, who by an effort was always the cheerier of this pair, "to make my son spare me a journey at the end of this week. He could get away from Friday to Monday and have a couple of days at Paris if he would agree to it, but"—with a glance at Mr. Rupert, less proud, less confident, than of yore—"I am afraid he won't contrive to oblige me."

"It is the sort of thing I don't care for, sir," answered the younger man, with his chin in the air, and a tone declaring him bored with the subject. "The Channel always turns me bilious, and I would rather not go."

"Paris!" said Richard Drayton. "Why, that is where I am bound tonight. When do you go, Major Villiers?"

"Oh, Thursday, if I must. We've a summons from Mrs. Alwyn to her daughter's wedding on Saturday. I suppose I have to give the young lady away."

"Mrs. Alwyn's daughter! You mean the elder? You don't mean—"

"Yes, yes, the elder. Not Sydney—Miss Alwyn," put in the major, with a quick look at his son, who pretended not to hear what was being talked of—"it is my own niece, Leonora, who I'm given to understand is making a grand match at last. But I wish they had not dragged me over for it. Suppose, Mr. Drayton, you go to them with my compliments and say you'll be deputy for me!"

"When they would send me back with anything but compliments," was the laughing answer. "No, I must decline such a delicate embassy!"

"Ah, you've no taste for these affairs either," sighed the major. "So I must e'en pack up my coat and show up myself, I'm afraid."

"That you must, sir. Though"—with a meaning twinkle—"I am not above taking an interest in such things. In fact, I'm going to take a very strong interest in one somewhere about the end of this month."

"You don't say so!" cried the major. "What have I come on now? Why, who's the lady?"

"Some one you know, sir. I have to fetch her from St. Clair." Mr. Rupert designed to look round at this. "It is Miss Dacie."

"Heyday, sit down and tell us all about it!" said the major, with a clutch at some vacant chairs. "I'm heartily glad to hear again about that friend of—about Miss Dacie. When was it settled? and when does it come off?"

These and sundry more questions Richard Drayton freely answered the much interested inquirer, Mr. Villiers sitting meanwhile a few paces off, consuming cigarettes with an aspect of total indifference. For finale the cause of his expedition to Paris was explained, which his hearer, with many an interpolated "scamp" and "scoundrel," was getting vastly excited over, when a passer-by with friendly greeting claimed "old Villiers," and for a couple of minutes Richard Drayton was left to Mr. Rupert only. By way of civilly saying something, he handed the young man a commonly executed carte-de-visite, remarking, "People should not leave these tell-tales behind them. If I had not picked this up by accident at Granfyde I should never have been able to track out the original, whom I have been telling your father of."

The photograph was that of a young man with marked features, gazing, not straightforward, but sideways from the picture. Mr. Rupert took it carelessly, but at the first glimpse his expression changed. With an ejaculation he flung away his cigarette, then wheeled his chair closer to Mr. Drayton. "I really have not been attending," he said, "but this is a friend of yours?"

"Friend? No! Enemy, rather."

"So much the better for you."

"Why? You know nothing of him, do you?"

"Once upon a time I did. A little. And I knew him for a rascal. You say you intend to find him up for something or other?"

"Yes. To settle scores with him."

"Ah, lucky to be able! Wish I'd the same chance, Mr. Drayton. But if you meet your gentleman you may find it useful to be able to tell him—looking askance to see that his father was out of hearing—"that one of the parties he played with at little St. James' (he'll know where you mean!) on the first of May two years ago undertands about his king of hearts well enough now. In plain English you may tell him he is a card-sharper and a blackleg, and that men in a livery he doesn't love will receive him with open arms if ever he gets foot in London again!"

"And may I mention who says this?"

"He'll be none the wiser. I can not even tell you what he was called though I should know his face among a thousand. We met in a company known only to each other, sooner or later, by two names, fools and rouses. He belonged to the last. I had the slight superiority of belonging to the first class. You perceive—the liveliness imparted by the notion of a blow at his old associate giving place to his former drawing latitude—"I reveal the secrets of my unregenerate days, Mr. Drayton; now nous avon change tout cela, and I'm never going to be naughty no more! "Sh!" Mr. Rupert applied himself to another cigarette, and nursing one knee, as the major returned to his place, and taking up the thread of his interrupted dialogue, remarked regretfully.

"What a pity, Mr. Drayton, your prosperity did not come a year ago, when Miss Dacie's friend, poor Sydney, could have shared its pleasures."

"Just the one drawback we both deplore," said the other man, heartily. "But we don't mean to let it last a day longer than we can help. Mary—Miss Dacie—has written to her through the mother, as usual. If she won't give us leave to go and see her we mean to attack Mrs. Alwyn for permission. We think we know why she is banished. Now we mean to know where it's to."

Then he repeated the countess's conjectures, and asked point-blank if they were correct?

Color Characteristics.

By RUTH CAMERON.

Did it ever occur to you that colors have characteristics just as people do? It seems to me that this Kelley green that we see so much of nowadays is a smart color. I always associate smartness with it just as I do with some people. When I passed a shop window yesterday with a display of Kelly green veils and shoes and stockings, the impression I got was one of smartness just as if I had met a smartly dressed woman.

Dark blue is a quiet, refined color. Like quiet, refined people, it does not obtrude itself upon one's consciousness and yet always leaves a pleasant impression. Neatness and simplicity are also associated with dark blue. It is a tailor-made color. There are probably more plain tailored suits of dark blue than all the other colors put together.

Red, it seems to me, is a friendly, cheerful color. There is a certain cordiality about it like the glow of an open fire. Of course, different tints and shades of the same color do not have the same characteristics as the basic color, indeed their characteristics may be as far apart as the poles. There is nothing the least smart about a good old-fashioned red, but there are certain shades of red such as lobster and cerise have as brilliant a smartness as Kelly green. Again, red has no suggestion of def-ance about it, but its first cousin, scarlet, is distinctly a defiant, flaunting color.

Then, take the different feelings you get from the different shades of pink. Old Rose is distinctly old-maidish and old-fashioned. There is a deadness and primness about it. Shade of pink coral and you get a gentle, thoughtful color, with a touch of quaintness to be sure, but with no flavor of age or primness. Shade again into pink and you get a color with all the characteristic sweetness of youth.

Pink and blue are distinctly young colors. They belong to children and young people and they somehow suggest the youth, innocence and sentimentality of young folks.

Black is peculiar in that it does not seem to have any invariable characteristics of its own, but takes its character from the wearer. Perhaps this is because it is not a color, but merely the absence of color and hence its negativity has to be made positive by that with which it is associated. Black may be sad; it may be dull and unobtrusive; it may be dowdy; or it may be smart and stunning, according to its association.

Colors ought to be studied by every woman who wants to be really well dressed, for the relation of a color to the person who wears it is an important factor in making a costume successful or unsuccessful. Colors which becomeing or unbecoming, not only to complexions but to personalities. Every woman has certain colors which belong to her either by the right of harmony or of contrast.

What are your colors?

Divorced Life

By Helen Hessong Fuesle

"The Divorced Tree"

Ann's studio was cluttered with painted landscapes. Marian, her guest, was no connoisseur, but her color-sense responded strongly to the moods embodied in the various canvases. Some of these moods flowed like overpowering magnetic currents from the painted surfaces transferring the same mood to the beholder, filling the eye, laying hold of the imagination.

Among them was a picture of a tree standing alone, a shapely fir, nearby was the stump of what had been the tree's mate, showing the destructive work of the axe. Chips, resulting from the gashes cut by the tree-feller's blows, lay in the picture's foreground. The canvas showed a cloudy, brooding day, gray and forlorn. On the horizon were faint traces of sunset color. A little clump of younger firs stood shivering in the distance.

Ann's studio was cluttered with painted landscapes. Marian, her guest, was no connoisseur, but her color-sense responded strongly to the moods embodied in the various canvases. Some of these moods flowed like overpowering magnetic currents from the painted surfaces transferring the same mood to the beholder, filling the eye, laying hold of the imagination.

Among them was a picture of a tree standing alone, a shapely fir, nearby was the stump of what had been the tree's mate, showing the destructive work of the axe. Chips, resulting from the gashes cut by the tree-feller's blows, lay in the picture's foreground. The canvas showed a cloudy, brooding day, gray and forlorn. On the horizon were faint traces of sunset color. A little clump of younger firs stood shivering in the distance.

Marian stood for a long time, gazing at the picture. It was unframed. Turning it around, she saw its title pencilled on the back: "The Divorced Tree." The title startled her. Again she returned to the painting, and drank once more its austere mood. No picture had ever affected her as this one did. The dark branches of the solitary tree seemed to reach out and talk to her. There was a startling pathos in its mute appeal. It held and fascinated her. Divorced! Low in its key, the lonely fire seemed to be chanting in plaintive minors the inexpressible melancholy it felt.

Marian wondered whether Ann, the painter, had purposely put these things into the picture. During the remainder of her stay at the studio, she stood often before the picture, searching its significant details, feeling its spell go through her. Later, she thought of it often; it had imprinted itself indelibly upon the sensitive receptivity of her mind; the symbolism of the picture was destined to fill her many times during the passing years with waves of self-pity.

During the rest of her visit, Ann talked on the glories of a woman's independence, enthused over the fun of playing the game, and making men dance to a clever woman's fiddling. Yet, though she made her guest thrill with enthusiasm and courage, the latter doubted whether Ann genuinely meant what she said. The thought was provoked by a surreptitious glance at "The Divorced Tree," chanting the low and plaintive song of its woes, and chanting them more eloquently than Ann had ever succeeded in singing the glories of woman's independence.

One day the two bade each other good bye at the little railroad station, and Marian settled into her place in the day coach for the ride back to the city and its turmoil. She was returning to the fight with the knowledge that her week in the country had provided her with more courage and vim than she had ever had before for the struggle that impended. She had learned a good deal from the painter. The other had broadened her horizon, had charged her with some of the dynamic force of her rollicking vitality.

A HAMILTON MIRACLE

Whole Country Amazed at Wonderful Cure of Mr. John Herman

573 JAMES ST. NORTH, HAMILTON, ONT.

Gentlemen, Four years ago I was taken down with inflammation of the bladder. During the attacks, which occurred more and more frequently, the agony was unbearable, and I became so weak I could not walk across the floor. The doctors could do nothing to relieve or cure me.

My wife sent for a box of GIN PILLS to try and see if they would help me. From the first they did me good—the pain was relieved at once, and the attacks began to come at longer intervals. I continued taking the pills for six weeks, and then, to my surprise and delight, the stone I sent you some time ago came from me and my pain stopped. It is now three years since GIN PILLS cured me. I have had no return of the trouble, and I have not lost a day's work on account of it since.

There is not the slightest doubt that GIN PILLS saved my life.

Yours gratefully, JOHN HERMAN.

GIN PILLS are wonderful in their action on the Kidneys and Bladder. They neutralize Uric Acid, soothe the irritated Bladder, and completely cure suppression and incontinence of the urine. They are also mildly laxative and help to regulate the bowels.

If your dealer does not handle GIN PILLS, do not take substitutes, but order direct from us, enclosing the regular retail price—50c for one box or $2.50 for six boxes. Money cheerfully refunded if GIN PILLS do not do all that we claim for them. Sample free if you mention this paper. National Drug and Chemical Co., of Canada Limited, Toronto.

If your stomach and bowels are out of order and you need a stronger laxative take a few NATIONAL LAZY LIVER PILLS. 25c. a box.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office,—its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is modern and dependably equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-WERNICKE CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percie Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland.—

OLD CY.

Red McGhee says: Some guys wear heroes' crowns like hats or balmacaans or loud cravats. They last a month, a year, or many years in several seasons long, like some folks sing a long-dead song an' keep it from its bier. Con o'er the heroes in your mind. Just sit 'em down an' you will sure find the list gets mighty slim. There's one old top who always sticks. He's got the key to all time's tricks—y'a gotta bow to him.

It's Old Cy Young, you called it right. Ol' Father time ain't like to blight the fame o' that ol' boy. When I was just a little kid the pitchin' stunts that ol' boy did could bring a mourner joy. He's pitched so long the count's been lost. He quit a winner—not a frost like some dimmed stars go out. Not pitchin' now?—I know he ain't. He quit still wearin' his war paint and none his prowess doubt.

Five hundred wins! Five hundred—say, there ain't another man today can duplicate that mark. And I'll just bet the grand ol' man c'n win some more—I'm sure he can in any ol' ball park. The Tuscarawas county lads all bow to Cy just as their dads did years and years ago. In old Paoli, his home town, his hat will always be a crown. There ain't none greater, bo.

What is that

"Medicinal Brandy Sanator"?

WHY SANATOR? WHY MEDICINAL?

The answer is indeed easy: Sanator (a Latin word) means: that cures. Medicinal means that the Brandy although being not a properly so-called "medicine" is composed with the best known growths for their tonic, digestive properties and of course can be used for medicinal purpose in the family like the Hospitals.

When you taste it, it is quite a revelation and people are accustomed to say: "I have never tasted so fine, so rich Brandy."

When you are sick, weak, suffering with a cold or with bad digestion, try the medicinal Brandy "Sanator" and you will be surprised of its good effects.

That can happen at every moment: ask to-day from your dealer a bottle of Medicinal Brandy "Sanator": it is prudent to have it always on hand.

Extract From an Empire Day Sermon Preached by Rev. Dr. Cowperthwaite.

The quiet forces are the more powerful. The empty cart rattles over the stony street while the heavily laden dray passes along with little noise. The shallow brook clatters over the stones and churns itself into foam, while the deep river moves on noiselessly to the sea.

In nature, fibre and bark, muscle and bone, increase without noise or display. Disorder and disease result in deformity, weakness, agony and grief, but the life blood coursing regularly through the veins and arteries bring symmetry, strength and beauty.

As in the body physical, so in the body social, and the body political and national, that which comes without observation and in silence, is more effective, more enduring than that which is more demonstrative.

We have in the opening years of this twentieth century the spectacle of the most wonderful political and national development the history of the world has ever recorded. That men should meet in the shock of battle and victory should crown the banners of one army or the other, has been the record of nearly all the sanguinary battles that have ever been fought. That States and Kingdoms with seaboard facilities should build ships and spread the white sails of commerce on all the seas, has been of common occurrence.

That States, territorially small, but whose peoples were enlightened and aggressive, should beat back undisciplined hordes of barbarians, and bring their lands under tribute, has not infrequently been the record in the annals of time; but that little isles, removed from the well-beaten pathways of the older nations and older civilizations, should develop through the centuries a system of government, of law and order that conserves the chartered rights of man, and proclaims and maintains his right of private judgment and civil and religious freedom, is a marvellous achievement.

That not the will of the Sovereign should be supreme, but the will of the People, through representative and responsible government, should be supreme, is something of which the older nations and civilizations never dreamed. That on Homeland and Colonies and dominions the sun never sets, is an object lesson for contemporary nations.

And this is Britain, the Homeland, the land of our Fathers, the land of the Pilgrim Fathers and of the Loyalists, who laid the foundations of Empire in this Western Hemisphere, the land of the Covenanters, the land of our Anglo-Saxon race of brawn and muscle, of dauntless courage and world-embracing activities.

Anglo blood, and Celtic blood, and Saxon, and French and Norseland blood, flowing in one common tide, has built up a race the most Masterful the world has ever known, and a constitutional Monarchy the fairest the Sun ever shone on.

It reads like a romance of history how these races all blended into one conglomerate yet dominant race.

John at Runnymede, the Henrys and the Edwards, and the Plantagenets and the Tudors, all heard the mandates of a self-possessed and dominant race and governed themselves accordingly. The Stuarts under Charles the First and Henry the Seventh sought to stay the rising tide of progress but in vain. A free, virile race was in process of evolution and the God of Nations had decreed the completed product.

And now where do we stand to-day? Why, see, Eyes turn from the four quarters of the Globe to the Homeland. It may be to the hawthorn hedges and parks of England, or to the lochs and hills of Scotland, or the Emerald fields of Ireland, but the hearts and eyes of Britons the wide world over, at times, instinctively turn to Motherland, and loyal hearts and true cry:

"Rocks of my country, let the cloud
Your crestéd height array,
And rise ye like a fortress proud,
Above the surge and spray.
My spirit greets you as you stand
Breasting the billows' foam,
Oh, thus forever guard the land,
The severed land of Home."

From Gibraltar and Malta, from India and Australia and New Zealand, and distant Fiji, from sunny Bermuda and the West India Islands, from Canada and Newfoundland, one voice roils in different dialects, like the sound of many waters, on this Empire Day—
"God Save our Gracious King!"

*Her court was pure, her life serene;
God gave her peace; her land reposed;
A thousand claims to reverence closed
In her as Mother, Wife, and Queen.*

A PATRIOTIC SPEECH.

(John of Gaunt hears of the evil ways of the young King, Richard II, and in the following speech laments over the state to which England is reduced.)

Gaunt.—Methinks I am a prophet new inspired
And thus, expiring do foretell of him:
His rash, fierce blaze of riot cannot last;
For violent fires soon burn out themselves;
Small showers last long, but sudden storms are short;
He tires betimes, that spurs too fast betimes;
With eager feeding food doth choke the feeder;
Light vanity, insatiate cormorant,
Consuming means, soon preys upon itself.
This royal throne of kings, this scepter'd isle,
This earth of majesty, this seat of Mars,
This other Eden, demi-paradise;
This fortress, built by nature for herself,
Against infection and the hand of war;
This happy breed of men, this little world,
This precious stone set in the silver sea,
Which serves it in the office of a wall,
Or as a moat defensive to a house,
Against the envy of less happier lands;
This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England,
This land of such dear souls, this dear dear land,
Dear for her reputation through the world,
Is now leased out, (I die pronouncing it)
Like to a tenement or pelting farm:
England, bound in with the triumphant sea,
Whose rocky shore beats back the envious siege
Of watery Neptune, is now bound in
With shame,
With inky blots, and rotten parchment bonds;
That England, that was wont to conquer others,
Hath made a shameful conquest of itself.
O, would the scandal vanish with my life,
How happy then were my ensuing death!

Maxims of a Great Englishman.

JOHN RUSKIN.
The first test of a truly great man is his humility.
There are many religions, but there is only one morality.
No great intellectual thing was ever done by great effort.
Let every dawn of morning be to you as the beginning of life.
It takes a great deal of living to get a little deal of learning.
The plea of ignorance will never take away our responsibilities.
It is his restraint which is honourable to a man, not his liberty.
Knowledge is not education, and can neither make us happy nor rich.
The first, as indeed the last, nobility in education is to rule over our thoughts.
Keep what you want, cast what you can, and expect nothing back once lost or once given.
The strength and power of a company depends absolutely on the quantity of good men and women in it.
It is only by labour that thought can be made healthy, and only by thought that labour can be made happy.
The practice of faith and obedience to some of our fellow creatures is the alphabet by which we learn the higher obedience to heaven.
None but the dissolute among the poor look upon the rich as their natural enemies. None but the dissolute among the rich speak in opprobrious terms of the vices and follies of the poor.
Cunning signifies especially a habit or gift of overreaching, accompanied with enjoyment and a sense of superiority. It is the intensest rendering of vulgarity, absolute and utter, with which I am acquainted.

Listen Girls.

When a Bargain Isn't a Bargain.
(By Jessie Roberts.)
The girl who must count every dollar she spends on clothes, naturally wants to make those dollars go as far as possible. And one way is waiting for the semi-annual sales, advertised by the stores at certain seasons.
There is no doubt that you can find excellent bargains at these sales, and that you do well to wait for them. But there are times when the best of bargains is a bad one. If you buy something you don't need, you are throwing away money, no matter how cheap the thing may be.
You should have very definite ideas of just what you want to get before going shopping. Look your clothes over thoroughly, make notes of the things you absolutely must have, and of those you will get if they fall within a certain price. Look over all those little accessories of dress that are so essential, and yet that will run away with your money to a surprising extent unless you watch out, and plan precisely what you need, to the fraction of a yard of ribbon or lace, or the exact sort of neckwear or belt or girdle. Decide whether your underclothes must be replenished now, when you can get bargains, or whether they will tide over to the next event.

Ideas of a Plain Man.

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)
Doing clears the mind. Physical activity has a peculiar luminous effect upon the judgment. The soundest views of life come not from the pulpit or the professional chair but from the workshop. To saw a plank or nail down a shingle to lay a stone square or paint a house evenly, to run a locomotive or raise a good crop of corn, somehow, reacts upon the intelligence, teaching the very inward essential cell of wisdom; provided always the worker is brave, not afraid of his own conclusions, and does not hand his thinking over to some guesser with a large bluff. Doing makes religion. All the religion that is of any account is what we thresh out with our own hands, suffer out with our own hearts, and find out with our own visions. Doing creates faith. Doubt comes from Sundays, and other idle hours. The only people who believe the ten commandments are those who do them. Those who believe the world is growing better are they that are trying to make it grow better. Doing brings joy. The sweetest of joys is the joy of accomplishment. Make love and you will feel love. Quit making love and you will doubt love. Be kind, steadily and persistently, and you will believe in kindness. Be unclean and you will soon sneer at anybody's claim to virtue. Be mean and you will cease to believe there is any goodness in the world.
So a man has his own destiny, his own creed, his own internal peace, his own nobility in his hands—literally in his hands. For all the worth-while wisdom and goodness you have in your head and heart was soaked up from your hands.

Tumors Removed Without An Operation

Silver Lake, Ont., Sept. 20, 1909.
Dear Mrs. Currah—I am enjoying better health than I have for eight years, and I think I am entirely cured. I have none of the old symptoms. I am very grateful for my present health, and think Orange Lily is the greatest treatment for women the world knows. I use in my case caused 12 tumors or growths of some sort to be expelled. Some were as large as a hen's egg, and others smaller, down to the size of a walnut. You may use my case in your advertisement, for it is the solid truth, and you cannot describe all the good it has done for me. Mrs. Louise B. Bolteridge.
This letter gives an indication of the positive benefits that always follow the use of Orange Lily. It is an applied treatment and comes in direct contact with the suffering organs. It produces results from the start in all cases of women's disorders, including painful periods, falling of womb, irregularities, leucorrhoea, etc.
I will send a sample box containing 10 days' treatment absolutely free to any suffering woman who has not yet tried it. It will send me her address. Enclose stamp and address MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

A Bad Record.

Carew, who stole a quantity of new clothing belonging to a fellow shipmate, as previously noted, has an exceptionally bad record. He has a mania for thieving and according to the court records was incarcerated for over five years out of the past eight, having been convicted of many larcenies. On one occasion he was sentenced to sixteen months imprisonment, while he got a half dozen six month periods and several smaller terms. Yesterday he was again committed to the Penitentiary to serve six months for victimizing his companion.

The Highwayman's Shoes

In Two Reels at the Crescent.

The big display of pictures at the Crescent Picture Palace to-day is attracting much attention and is being spoken very favourably of by those who witnessed it last night. The vocalist's song was rendered in first class style.

On Monday and Tuesday a series of pictures and song has been selected by the management and it is predicted that the opening performance of next week will be in line with the best ever presented at the Crescent.

The feature story, The Highwayman's Shoes, a wonderful Eclair picture in two reels, is the headliner of a list in feature subjects. Sidney Earnshaw, the popular soloist, will sing another pleasing ballad in his own fascinating style. A number of first class stories in two and three parts is now expected and should arrive in the course of a day or two; the first to be shown is Laska, a two part illustration adapted from the famous poem and it is likely it will be the feature during the coming week changes.

J. I. FLICK, ESQ., District Manager, Canada Life Assurance Co., New Glasgow, N.S.

Dear Sir,—I wish to state that I am well satisfied with the results which your Company have given me in connection with my Endowment Policy No. 4775, which matures on the 15th of March.

I find that the returns give me over $424.00 more than I have paid in premiums, in addition to the protection that I have had during the Policy term. I consider this all the more satisfactory taking into account the fact that the dividends were applied as a Bonus every five years. I, therefore, received a return beyond Bank interest, in addition to the protection.

Yours very truly,

The influence of artistic dress on the lives and character of men has been felt all through the ages, and as men gather power, dignity and influence they find a way of expressing it by the adoption of a higher standard of dress.

We respectfully request the attention of parents, guardians and the young lads of Newfoundland to this subject. The question of male clothing is a large item in a family budget, and can be divided into three parts.

FIRST: THE CHILDREN'S CLOTHING.—In this line we carry a large selection of fancy suits for little boys. These suits are made for us by the greatest specialists in children's clothing in Great Britain.

SECOND: BOYS' & YOUTHS' CLOTHING.—Our experience in boys' and youths' clothing is that when boys leave school for work they want to get Custom Tailored Suits; but their earnings are not sufficient to enable them to pay almost men's prices for their suits. We have gone into the question, and to meet this demand we have produced a high-grade Ready-made garment cut in the latest American style, made and trimmed well and of fine texture. These suits are miles ahead of an ordinary shop ready-made, in fact they are almost in the same class as a Custom Tailored Suit. They are not as cheap as the shop ready-made, but are perfect fitting and thoroughly reliable.

THIRD: MEN'S CLOTHING.—In our Custom Tailoring Department our cutter, Mr. W. J. Goss, is maintaining the high standard of cut and finish that specially marks a "JACKMAN" cut garment.

In our men's ready-made department we have hundreds of suits in prices from $10.00 to $15.00. These are not a cheap class of Ready-made. They are made of good cloth, well trimmed and cut in the very latest American style. Cuff bottomed and all extras.
Mail order patrons will please give the ages of Boys and Youths when ordering suits.
When buying clothing it is always well to remember "that the good article is never dear." It is the cheapest in the end.

Empire Day.

To-morrow is Empire Day, and in many of the Churches, services of a specially patriotic character will be held. It will be remembered that for all the years of Queen Victoria's exceptionally long reign, this day was kept throughout the Empire to celebrate the birthday of that honored sovereign, and it was deemed appropriate that the day should be still observed as the day on which the people of the Empire might specially show their loyalty to the sovereign and hold celebrations in honor of that Empire to which they belong. In the past, especially in England, comparatively little attention was given to these matters. Indeed, there was a time in England, and that not a generation ago, when the bulk of the people did not know the 24th of May was Queen Victoria's Birthday and children were not taught either to honor their flag or pay an observance to the birthday of the sovereign or celebrate an Empire Day at all. For instance in the Government schools, as a rule there was neither flagpole nor flag, and the birthday of Queen Victoria was not observed as a holiday, nor was any attention whatever paid to it. The need of a change was clear. It was desirable that school children should be directed to observe these festivals and that they should be taught to be loyal to their sovereign, to honor their flag, and to be proud of their Empire.

VICTORIA.

Edward, Duke of Kent, fourth son of George III., had died in 1820. His daughter, Victoria Alexandra, succeeded, therefore, and being incapable, as a woman, of ruling Hanover, the two kingdoms, after a personal union of 123 years, were once more separated. The Hanoverian escutcheon disappears from the Royal Arms, and another tie of England with the Continent is severed. Coming to the throne when only 18 years of age, a great and wonderful prospect lay before the Queen. How great and wonderful only the experience of sixty-four years ultimately proved. In every branch of human activity, social, political, religious, it was to be a period of unparalleled progress. Discovery, invention, art, literature, science, education, the arts of peace, the arts of war—all were the subjects of a renaissance that can only be compared with that which rose from the decay of the middle ages, and of infinitely greater power and extent. Through all the wise and generous love of the great Queen provided the centre and rally point of every fresh movement, uniting all in a devotion to her person and her throne that gave stability, nobility, and inspiration to the whole. As Elizabeth was called upon to unite in personal loyalty to herself the factions and inspirations of a rougher age, so in Victoria the hopes and strivings of a century equally notable for its social and political activities found their centre and their crown.

Helpful Hints for Guidance in Bying R. J. & W. Preferred Stock

Robin, Jones & Whitman 4 p.c. Cumulative Preferred Stock sells for $5 p.c. with a 25 p.c. bonus of Common Stock.

This means that one $100 Par value share of the Preferred costs $85.00 and includes a quarter share of Common as a bonus. The remaining three-quarters to make up the full share of Common can be had at the rate of $35.00 a share—or $26.25.

Therefore ONE share of Preferred and ONE share of Common will together cost $111.25. Such a desirable investment would give you a share of Preferred yielding 7.07 p.c., and a share of Common on which a 2 p.c. dividend was paid last year and on which an average of almost 6 p.c. was earned yearly for the past four years.

Any number of shares may be had at this attractive rate—either on the outright or the $10 down and $10 monthly plan.

NEW YORK, To-Day.

Charles Becker was found guilty of murder in the first degree for conspiracy to bring about the death of Herman Rosenthal. The jury reached a verdict in four hours and four minutes.

LONDON, To-Day.

The news from Belfast shows the situation is becoming extremely acute there, so much so that Ulster volunteers in rural districts have been warned that hostilities are practically certain to open within a fortnight.

The sensation caused in Belfast by the publication in the Irish News, the Nationalist organ, of a secret order emanating from Carson's headquarters, the tone of which suggested that the Provisional Government will be put in operation immediately the Bill is given a third reading in the Commons. The text of the order runs:

"In view of the possibility of the passing of the Home Rule Bill, divisional commanders are authorized to take whatever steps they deem necessary to preserve peace, and prevent disloyal processions, bonfires and other provocative displays to be staged in Unionist territory."

As regards the Government's precautions, no official orders have been published, but it is generally understood that military authorities are fully prepared to deal with any disorder in Belfast district.

The torpedo destroyer Porpoise has arrived at Lough Foyle, where she is ostensibly awaiting an oil steamer to fill her tanks. The Times' Belfast correspondent states the Imperial troops there are being reinforced on Monday. But General McCready asserts this had no significance.

In denying the story of the alleged plot on the part of Ulster volunteers to seize Derry, the Times expresses its regrets that such a story should be given currency at this juncture, whilst earnest efforts are being made on both sides to ensure the preservation of order after the third reading of the Bill on Tuesday next.

OTTAWA, To-Day.

A ship load of Hindus who arrived at Vancouver yesterday came in contravention to law and are not to be allowed to land. To permit them to do so would be against the Order-in-Council passed last December and renewed recently, which keeps out all classes of labor. There is also a stantant providing that all Orientals shall come by a continuous passage from the point of origin. This has not been done in the present case. In consequence of these conditions and instructions recently sent immigration officers at Vancouver to prevent the landing, the party will doubtless be sent back by the ship that brought them, which will have to bear the cost of the return of the expedition. Hon. Dr. Roche, Minister of the Interior, is not disposed to discuss the matter at

Supreme Court,

(Before Full Bench.)
Handwriting Expert.

Job Bros, et al, vs. J. McMartin, et al.

This morning Mr. Albert Osborne, an expert in handwriting, was examined. He said he first saw the $100,000 note which is in dispute in the Bank of Montreal in January and subsequently on February 28th, and in March. He took photos of whole note and parts of it, by reflected light and took photos particularly of signatures and parts of them, in natural and magnified to various diameters, some for stereoscopic views, some by reflected, some by direct light. He also identified cheques, photos of signatures which he had in various ways. He observed that an expert cannot always detect a spurious signature and gave instances of difficulties sometimes encountered, as signatures made on a shaky train, decrepit writing, when the writing is very limited in quantity and there is little material for comparison and forgery was so well done that it is impossible to detect them. Fortunately, however expert forgers spend most of their time in prison. The number of photos produced was considerable. Some exhibits were photos of a number of signatures, some of single signatures, some of a single letter of a disputed signature, some of a few letters. This expert will continue his evidence this afternoon.

The parties agreed to take this evidence in order to enable the experts to leave and save expenses. With this object in view Mr. McMartin's examination was deferred.

The Queen's Last Ride.

Written on the Day of Queen Victoria's Funeral.

The Queen is taking a drive to-day. On her last appearance to mortal eyes: They have hung with purple the carriage-way. They have dressed with purple the royal track. Where the Queen sets forth and never comes back.

Let no man labor as she goes by. Shall the flags of all nations be half-mast today. With heads uncovered, let all men wait For the Queen to pass in her regal state.

Army and navy shall lead the way For that wonderful coach of the Queen's to-day. Kings and Princes and Lords of the land Shall ride behind her—a humble band.

And over the city and over the world Shall the flags of all nations be half-mast furled. For the silent lady of royal birth Who is riding away from the courts of earth; Riding away from the world's unrest To a mystical goal, on a secret quest.

Though in royal splendour she drives through town Her robes are simple, she wears no crown: And yet she wears one, for, widowed no more, She is crowned with the love that has gone before. And crowned with the love she has left behind In the hidden depths of each mourner's mind.

How low your heads—lift your hearts on high The Queen in silence, in silence, is driving by. ELA WHEELER WILCOX.

"Wamba" Pleases at the Nickel.

"Wamba, the child of the jungle," attracted large audiences to the Nickel Theatre last evening. It shows most vividly the hard lot of some people, and also illustrates love and devotion to a wonderful degree. All classes of patrons were delighted with the picture. "The song of the sea shells," that tired feeling and similar ailments are delighted with the results obtained. They know now why Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most popular of all family medicines.

Lecture Last Night.

Mr. H. H. O'Neill, who is in the city representing the Bear Rubber Co. of New York, lectured to a large gathering of Knights of Columbus at Columbus Hall last night. After being introduced by the Chairman, Mr. V. P. Burke, the lecturer entertained his audience for over an hour with an interesting discourse concerning the manufacture of rubbers. Beginning with the description of the rubber in its crude form, he explained in an interesting manner the different stages in the process of manufacture, illustrating with samples of the rubber in the several stages to which he referred. Many interesting facts concerning the manufacture of these largely used articles of wear were disclosed by Mr. O'Neill, particularly the number of different pieces used in the making of a long rubber boot. To produce a finished boot not less than 28 pieces are used. Mr. O'Neill shows that he is a past master in his particular line of business and his discourse was both educative and interesting. At the close a hearty vote of thanks proposed by Mr. C. J. Ellis, was unanimously tendered the lecturer for the evening's entertainment.

Sympathy and Support.

Birmingham, April 17, '14.

Walter Clouston, Esq., St. John's.

Dear Sir,—It was with the deepest regret that we heard of the sad catastrophe which befell the Newfoundland Sealing Fleet, and we can readily imagine what a feeling of sorrow and sadness has been cast over the whole island. The greatest outstanding feature of the terrible misfortune was the gallant attempt at rescue made by your fearless sealer, and it must be a source of legitimate pride to the Colony to know that she has such brave sons. We very sincerely sympathize with the sufferers, and are glad to have had the opportunity of contributing to the Disaster Fund.

We contributed to Messrs. Bowring's fund of Liverpool. SCHOLEFIELD, GOODMAN & SONS, Ltd.

Many, Many Thanks!

To the kind and energetic ladies who so kindly managed the tables and served such a nice supper, to the thoughtful Ladies and Gentlemen who sent cakes, drinks and money donations, to the kind Gentlemen who assisted as Floor Managers, Door Assistants and Waiters at the Refreshment Table; and finally to the dancers who by their presence showed their appreciation of the Band's work in the past, the sincere thanks of the C. C. C. Band is due, and the Bandmen take this opportunity of assuring all those who had anything to do with making their Dance of May 11th, such a success both socially and financially, that they shall never forget their loyal friends assistance and support.

Police Court.

Two drunks were discharged. A laborer, drunk and disorderly in his own house, was fined $2 or 7 days. Five boys charged with breaking glass on the South Side had to pay costs.

A cruelty to animals case was dismissed. Customs Detective Morrissey summoned a shopkeeper for selling home made cigarettes. The case was adjourned at 1 o'clock.

Washout on Railway.

DELAYS INCOMING EXPRESS.

Owing to a washout on the railway at Aspen Brook, about six miles east of Badger, the incoming express is delayed and it is not definitely known what time she will reach the city. The washout occurred last night and was caused by the snow which had melted during the past few days, the river becoming swollen in consequence. The dump, which is the name given to the ballasting at each end of the bridge, was carried away, and when the incoming express arrived there at 9 o'clock this morning she was unable to cross. A staff of men who were despatched to the scene arrived there at noon, and the work of repairs have already begun. It is expected that temporary repairs may be made this afternoon in order to enable the train to cross to-night. Should she succeed in getting to the bridge early to-night, she will arrive in the city about noon to-morrow.

A suffragette to-day slashed and damaged five pictures in the National gallery.

ORD, Nebraska, May 27.
Three brothers, aged 17, 15 and 11, years, living on a farm near here, were killed by lightning. The boys were standing in the doorway of a barn, which was struck by the electricity, and they were instantly killed.

LEBAM, Washington, May 22.
A fire started in the boiler room of the Lebam Mill and Lumber Co. destroyed the plant, and swept both sides of this town, burning every business house in the place as well as many residences. The loss is $300,000 with little insurance. Lebam has no fire protection. The homeless are being sheltered in tents.

LONDON, May 22.
Pleas of guilty were handed in by seven out of the nine British Army officers, and all the eight civilians charged in January last with receiving and giving illicit commissions in order to influence the allotment of contracts for supplying Army cauceteens. All the officers except Colonel Whittaker, connected with the quartermaster's department, had risen from the ranks. Sentence was deferred by the Judge until May 25th.

LONDON, May 22.
A mishap to a motor cycle despatch rider has revealed a new plot on the part of Ulster to set up a provisional government, when the Home Rule Bill passes next week. The papers which the messenger carried showed that the orders Ulster volunteers were receiving from Belfast headquarters were to seize certain populous centres, hold up the railroad, steam, mail, telephone and telegraph services generally, and impose rebel rule on the inhabitants.

VICTORIA, May 22.
The steamer Komogasia Maru, with 400 Hindus on board, arrived here last night and was placed in quarantine. This vessel had been chartered to bring several hundred Hindus to Canada to test the immigration laws, and in regard to which an order had been received from Ottawa to prevent their landing on Canadian soil. It is stated that every effort will be made by the Hindus to effect entry into this country, but all precautions have been taken to deal with the situation should necessity arise.

LONDON, May 22.
King George and Queen Mary listened to a harangue from a suffragette this afternoon, while attending a matinee in His Majesty's theatre. A woman rose in the stalls and began to address the King. "You Russian Czar," she shouted, and then the attendants rushed and tried to get her out, but found she was chained to a seat. They had to cut through a link before she could be removed. While this was in progress half a dozen women in different parts of the theatre started shouting at His Majesty. One of them jumped up and began to speak. When she had been thrown out, others began. Eventually all the disturbers were ejected, and the police had a hard struggle to rescue them from a hostile crowd.

Exhibition.

Mr. H. H. O'Neill, of the Wales Goodyear Rubber Co., Naugatuck, Connecticut, makers of the celebrated Bear Brand Rubbers, is showing his samples this week at the sample room of the Cleveland Trading Co., New Martin Building. Mr. O'Neill has a very interesting collection, amongst which are a pair of rubbers one hundred years old, made in Brazil, and a pair made in the United States in 1849. A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to see this exhibition.

Recess Taken in the Becker Trial.

New York, May 16.—A recess to-day in the trial of Charles Becker, former Lt. of Police and head of the Strong Arm Squad, in charge of the suppression of gambling, accused as the instigator of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, gambler, whose revelations it is alleged he feared might stamp him as the recipient of graft, in return for police protection, halted until Monday, the second presentation of the now famous story of the ragedy of the underworld. District Attorney Charles S. Whitman announced yesterday that he expected to finish the presentations of the State's case on Monday and the defence probably will complete its rebuttal by the middle of the week. By this verdict may be expected by a week from to-day.

Interest of the trial has not diminished. Quite the contrary is true, the demand for admission to the Court Room being as eagerly sought as at the first Becker trial, nearly two years ago.
