LORD MORDEN'S DAUGHTER
— 02 —
THE TRAGEDY OF THE CEDARS.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.
"If he makes a clean breast of everything, and promises to get out of the country, we will withdraw our charge," Fairfax said. "It is useless making further exposures, for in the end the poor old grandfather may have to answer for his pretty smuggling practices."

"There is not much more for Marlowe to tell," Rogers replied. "Melville has cleared up his part of the transaction, in deceiving Mrs. Locksley from home."

They had an early breakfast at a hotel, for there is no respectable cafe open for business men in the city of London until ten o'clock. Then they returned to the Temple to complete their arrangements for the morning's work, and were much surprised to find a lady waiting for Mr. Fairfax. The barrister immediately recognized her. It was Lady Clare Monckleff. He had never spoken half a dozen words to her in his life, for the friends of Edmund had found few attractions at "The Cedars."

He greeted her gravely, saying: "I know the import of your visit, Lady Clare. Will you come inside and be seated? This gentleman is a detective, and is in all the secrets of this miserable trouble."

Lady Clare walked into the barrister's office, and he placed an easy-chair at her service. "You have come to the police station," he said pleasantly. "I have." Her lips quivered, and her face was gray with terror. "And they sent me here, after I had seen him?"

"Did they tell you nothing?"

"Not one word."

"And—Melville?"

"He is dead!" sobbed Lady Clare. "Dead!"

Fairfax walked uneasily to the window, and drummed on the pane, while Rogers looked at her, pityingly. "This is awkward," Fairfax observed, "and you must nerve yourself, my lady, for terrible news."

"I am already prepared," she replied, bravely. "My cousin has been in disgrace before, but I cannot understand why he should be allowed to die a prisoner—why two policemen should be sent to 'The Cedars.'"

As gently as he could, the barrister told his terrible story, and Lady Clare did not once interrupt him.

When he had finished, her pallor alarmed him, but she waved him back when he approached with a glass of water.

At last she rose, and half-staggered to the door, moaning:

"So Edmund is dead—murdered by him! And my father! Oh, God! what bitter vengeance is Thine!"

no words with which to answer Dora's mother, but beckoned her to follow. Dora could never understand why her heart leaped with a mad thrill at sight of the closely-veiled stranger.

When the door opened, and she saw that some one was with Madam Bell she was angry, but her anger faded away as quickly as it had come.

The lady walked into the room, and stood motionless in the center of the floor. Then she tossed aside her veil, and held out her arms, murmuring: "My child! my Dora!"

There was no mistaking the mysterious sympathy that throbbled from soul to soul. Dora gave one long look at the sad but lovely face of the stranger. How often had she seen it in her dreams! How long had she cherished it in her heart—the sweet face in miniature photographed in the brooch she ever wore at her bosom? It was younger than this, and the lips were wreathed with smiles; but it was the same—it was the same!

"Mother!" she gasped; and in a moment they were clasped in an embrace that neither ever forgot.

"To you, my child, I must seem like one back from the grave," Lady Morden said, later. "And now that you are old enough to understand, you shall hear my sad story."

Then she related much that is already known to the reader—the story of her love—her marriage, and the deception played upon her by the man she worshipped.

"I was no wife," she sobbed. "That horrible actress brought witnesses to prove it. She showed me her wedding certificate, letters from the man I loved, and proof that her marriage had been duly recorded at Somerset House long years before your father met me, and won my fond, but foolish, heart. I fled, Dora—I went back to my father, with my two babies, you and a little brother, who died. I went back to receive his curses, to be reviled by Esther Marsh, to be treated as a thing whose touch was pollution. Your father wrote to me, but I was not permitted to read his letters. I was very ill, and they would not let him see me.

"Then my baby boy died, and was buried in the little churchyard at Deal. My life almost went at the same time, but at last I recovered, to hear again the taunts of my father, and the sneers of Esther. I was told that I was a burden, and a disgrace, and I went away in secret. I went away, where none should know who and what I was, to earn my own living, and to forget, if I could.

"I changed my name, and was fortunate enough to enlist the sympathy of a middle-aged lady of title, who engaged me as a companion, and who never became curious to learn my history, until we were more like sisters than mistress and servant.

"My father and Esther gave out the news that I was dead, and I thought that it was better for your sake, my innocent child. Why should your future be embittered by my shame? But I kept a careful watch upon you, though none but myself and my kind mistress knew of it. I never meant to reveal myself; I never meant that you should know your unhappy mother. I heard of Lord Morden's death, and I shall ever mourn the memory of the man I loved beyond all things on earth."

She cried, softly, for a little while, then went on:

"And now I have come to you, my darling child—I have come to you in your trouble, so nearly like my own. I heard that you had left your grandfather's house, and then came the news of your deception, and by a man who was good to look upon, but whose heart must be black as hades! I have searched the papers for news of you, then all was revealed to me in the columns of a paper devoted to scandal, and my horror was great when I learned that Edmund Locksley is the son of your father's greatest friend."

Dora listened to all this, her face very white, and a world of bitterness in her heart. When Edmund came back, how could she face him! It was all true—the awful thing that had been hinted by Esther March! She was nameless.

She placed her arms about her mother's neck, and whispered: (To be continued.)

A Milkman Who Takes Water Out!

One of the favorite themes of the jokesmith is the milkman who waters his milk.

Though the joke has little basis in fact, yet you have heard it many times.

But have you ever thought of the milkman who does exactly the opposite—the milkman who takes water out?

That's what the Carnation milkman does—and here's why he does it:

Millions of people, all over the world, use Carnation Milk regularly; it comes to them from some of the finest dairying sections of Canada.

It seems foolish to pay transportation on all the natural water in this milk, so most of the water is removed.

Such removal serves to concentrate and enhance the food values in the milk, making it richer and smoother.

It also explains the satisfaction with which so many people use Carnation Milk undiluted in place of costly cream, in coffee or on cereals and fruits.

Remember, Carnation is simply pure milk, evaporated, sterilized; nothing is added, no sugar or preservative of any kind.

You can restore it to its original strength and consistency merely by putting back the water that has been taken away.

Order with the groceries—several tall (16 oz.) cans or by the case of 48 cans.

British Troops Concentrating Against General Uprising in Afghanistan.

Shanghai Agitators Urge Expulsion of All Foreigners—$50,000,000 Credit Granted by Morgans to Stabilize Italian Exchange—Signs of Wavering in the Ranks of N. S. Strikers.

UPRISING EXPECTED IN AFGHANISTAN.
LONDON, June 2. British forces in India are moving to the vicinity of the Afghanistan frontier as a result of reports of an impending general uprising in Afghanistan against the influence of Soviet emissaries at work in Afghanistan during the past two years.

LOOK GRAVE AT SHANGHAI.
SHANGHAI, June 2. Chinese agitators made public appeals to-night in the streets of Shanghai for a general uprising to drive all foreigners out of the city. Officials of the settlements expressed confidence that they could handle the situation but admitted that the outlook was perhaps more grave than at any time in the city's history. Delegations of students are patrolling the roads into the city intimidating incoming farmers and preventing the shipping of food supplies into the city. A delegation of about 100 Nanking students, alleged Communists, arrived to-night from Nanking to reinforce the trouble-making elements. Tens of thousands of workers in Shanghai industrial plants are on strike. These include mechanics and fitters at the Riverside power station in the east end district from which the major part of the foreign settlement receives its electric cars. Strikers also are forcing the closing down of many cotton mills and lesser industrial establishments. A tour of all sections of the city by the Associated Press correspondent at 10 o'clock to-night showed the situation generally quiet but the tension brought by the disturbance unrelaxed. Armed guards were everywhere to be seen, streets of the west part were deserted, usually crowded theatres were empty. Machine guns were used to clear the streets late to-day, when a patrol was fired upon from houses at the corner of Nanking Road and Thibet Road. One man, Thomas G. McMartin, a United States dentist, was wounded as his horse shot from under him.

REMEMBRANCE TREES MUTILATED.
MONTREAL, June 2. Seventeen trees along the Road of Remembrance, planted in memory of Canada's fallen soldiers, were mutilated by vandals last night and many of them will die.

CONFERENCE OF UNIVERSITIES AT HALIFAX.
HALIFAX, June 2. With nearly fifty delegates representing Canadian, Newfoundland and the United States Universities, the 10th annual conference for Canada (Universities) opened a three days' session in the Arts Building at Dalhousie University this morning, with the President of the Conference, Principal R. Bruce Taylor, of Queen's University, in the chair. The opening session was given over largely to a reception. Reports from the executive and 'treasurer' were submitted. Among those attending the Conference is Dr. W. W. Blackall, St. John's, Newfoundland.

DAUGHTERS OF EMPIRE IN SESSION.
OTTAWA, June 2. At the opening of the first business session of the National Order of the Daughters of the Empire this morning, messages were sent to His Majesty the King, to the Queen and to their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Byng of Vimy. Affectionate greetings were sent to Mrs. Clark Murray, who founded the Order in Montreal in 1906. Reports from the National Chapter of the Bahamas and Newfoundland were presented by Miss A. Stewart Galt, Toronto.

STORM'S DESTRUCTION.
SUDBURY, Ont., June 2. One man killed, another blinded for life, and the destruction of several head of cattle, featured yesterday's storm throughout the district, according to reports which filtered into Sudbury to-day.

THE COAL STRIKE SITUATION.
GLACE BAY, June 2. Rejection by the British Empire Steel Corporation of the offer of Hon. James Murdoch, Minister of Labor, to act as mediator in the present wage dispute, and the indifferent manner in which several United Mine Workers' locals yesterday treated the proposition, which, if accepted, would mean negotiations leading to resumption of mining operations, were the outstanding features of the strike situation here to-day. While practically admitting that the chance of returning to work

STABILIZING ITALIAN EXCHANGE.
ROME, June 2. Finance Minister De Stefanis announced to the Chamber of Deputies to-day that the banking firm of J. P. Morgan and Company had granted credit of $50,000,000 to a consortium of Italian Banks, to be used to stabilize exchange.

MEMBERS IN CONVENTION.
MONTREAL, Ont., June 2. At the second business session of the Canadian Manufacturers Association convention this morning, members were given a review of the immense mass of legislation affecting industry which has been passing through legislatures of the country during the past year. The session concluded with presentation of the transportation committee's report which indicated chaotic conditions of the freight rate structure at the present time.

WOUNDED IN SHANGHAI.
SHANGHAI, June 2. Chinese student rioters to-day fired on horse tops in three directions to Shanghai streets upon a unit of the United States volunteer corps, including Thomas G. McMartin, dentist, in the back and killing the horse on which he was riding.

RYM RENNER CAUGHT.
NEW LONDON, Conn., June 2. The steam trawler Blainmore, which sailed Halifax as her home port, with a cargo of 3000 cases of Scotch whisky and champagne, and 1000 cases of alcohol, was taken in tow by a United States Coastguard cutter at the westerly entrance to Long Island Sound to-day, charged with attempting to run the dry blockade. The cargo valued at $110,000, has been hand-at the 1924 scale is remote, the United Mine Workers' officers to-day were chiefly concerned with the holding together of the district as a unit, and at different mass meetings held throughout the country yesterday this was the paramount point stressed. There is some agitation in the locals for making separate agreements but generally the feeling is that it is absolutely necessary to take the reduction the miners should return to the pits in a body and thus save the Union from destruction.

ARE BIG PURSES RUINING BOXING?
London Writer Is Of The Opinion That They Are.
LONDON.—The ruination of boxing is the enormous sums paid to the boxers, sums which are out of all proportion to the science, merits and education of the men, and out of all proportion also compared with the rewards of the ordinary man in professional life, writes the Earl of Londale.

The Prime Minister and the Archbishop of Canterbury do not earn money in such large sums or with anything like such ease, each of them has had very large sums spent on his education with the idea that it will eventually be of the greatest benefit to him, but nothing he can ever do will produce a lump sum of £60,000 for a few moments' work.

SPLendid RECRUITS WE MISS.
It is certainly true of boxing, at least, that the chief interest of many of these promoters is not sport or the evolution of a high standard of skill, but merely the acquisition of as much money as possible for themselves; they are in the game for what they can get out of it, and that is one reason why we have these hanging, holding, and slugging farces, instead of scientific exhibitions of the sport.

casions in Malines during recent years and have aroused divided opinions among the English Bishops, The Archbishop of Canterbury (speaking on the subject of the reunion of Churches at the Convocation of Canterbury in February 1924) said: I gave what was described as friendly cognizance to a second visit of the Anglican group to Malines in March 1923. I urged upon the five men the necessity of its being made quite clear what is our well-established and coherent Anglican position as set forth by our great divines. The Archbishop emphasized that there had been no negotiations but merely "private conversations about our respective history and nothing more."

A Corn will mar a pretty face

That corn is reflected in your face. Pain is disfiguring. If you keep that corn it will hasten crow's-feet. . . . To carry a corn for days is unfavorable in your looks. The constant dull irritation makes its mark in frown lines which do not always come out. . . . Then there's the undaintiness of it. . . . Long Live the King!

To-day over four hundred millions of citizens within the borders of the Empire will acclaim His Majesty on the occasion of his having attained his sixtieth anniversary.

King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, Emperor of India, His Majesty is in many respects far more intimately associated with his subjects than any Sovereign who has occupied the Throne. He has visited the outposts of the vast territory over which he rules; he has shaken his subjects by the hand in every clime; he has made himself personally acquainted with their affairs; contrary to precedent which dates back to 1743, he has taken his place with his armies on the field of battle, and when his people from all parts of the Empire gather in a great peace demonstration at Wembley, it has been his greatest pleasure to be present to welcome them.

In his own land we hear far more of him as a citizen, mixing with his people, participating in their pleasures and sharing their sorrows, than as an august Sovereign sitting in state in his palace. Scarcely a hospital patient but has been cheered by his hearty greeting, and encouraged by the smile and word of sympathy of his gracious Consort; scarcely a ceremony, but he attends, and what we perhaps appreciate most of all, is his intense love of sport, dear to the hearts of all Britishers.

As regularly as the shooting season comes round, His Majesty is on the moors, and few there are who can claim to be his equal as a shot. During the yachting season, he is in his element, and requires no coaching in the intricacies of sailor craft. An enthusiastic supporter of cricket and football, he is seldom absent from the field when an important match is being played, and he has all the Englishman's keenness—weakness, if you will, which makes him appear all the more human—for the breathless and exhilarating excitement of the race track, and what is more, his own horse is generally among the contestants.

Then when affairs of state demand the King's attention—and the idea that he takes no part in such matters may at once be dispelled—his mind is wholly given to them, and his wide knowledge has as often occasioned surprise on the part of his Ministers as his suggestion has been of material assistance in solving a problem bristling with difficulties.

Those who have read "The Life and Letters of Walter Pater" cannot but have been impressed with the high opinion which that remarkable man held of the King. An American, he was naturally inclined to regard the monarchial system with a certain amount of scepticism, and he was by no means persuaded to alter his views by a closer intimacy with its working on the European continent, but having studied the system existing in Great Britain, he freely admitted its effectiveness, and was equally frank in expressing the high regard in which he held Great Britain's King.

Many thrones in Europe in recent years have crumbled into the dust, but the throne of the Ruler of the Empire remains firm and enduring. Established by the will of the people, by their inborn love for all that it represents, it is cherished and upheld.

To-day the shout—Long Live the King—caught up by his loyal subjects in the Oldest Colony as the sound travels westward from the Mother Country, will be passed on to Canada, Echoing and reaching throughout the wide Pacific, it will be heard by Asia and Africa, who will speed the message on, and the voice of the Empire, as it reaches England will once again proclaim to the world that we are one in our love and respect for our Sovereign.

Stop the Unidentified Cars

Last night not less than three motor cars without number plates passed one of the busiest junctions in the city in the space of five minutes, and the drivers were not stopped. What is the idea? It is no excuse for drivers or police to say that the failure to carry identification marks on the cars is due to the fact that this year's license have not been issued. The natural assumption is that last year's number plates will be carried until they are replaced by the new issue, and cars which are not so equipped should under no circumstances be allowed to travel through the city or on the suburban roads.

Fishery Reports

Connaigre Bay to Red Islands, Burgeo & LaPole—Total landed, 1840 qts. No traps in water. Dorries, boats and skiffs fishing, 60. Cod-fish very scarce; herring enough for bait. Salmon nets now out.

Fortune to Carmel—Total landed to date, 1400; dorries and skiffs fishing, 40; one banker arrived with 750 qts. Prospects very good; good sign of fish with handline and trawls; bait scarce.

Eagle Point, Long Harbor Point, to Mall Bay, Fortune Bay—Total landed 30 qts., 15 dorries and skiffs fishing; no bankers, boats or skiffs are operating. Nothing doing with fish; herring plentiful. One trap in water, but has done nothing so far. The fishery at present looks very dull.

Richard's Hr. West, to Raymond's Point, East Fortune—Total landed to date 4428 qts.; 220 dorries and skiffs fishing; prospects poor; not sufficient herring for bait.

Belleoram to Rencontre East—Total landed to date, 5560 qts. One trap in water, one banker has arrived; prospects poor; bait plentiful.

Otter's Point to West Point, Burgeo & LaPole—440 qts. landed; 20 dorries and skiffs and 6 boats operating; one trap in water; prospects poor; no herrings.

T. A. Ladies' Entertainment

A card party, supper and dance, under the auspices of the T.A. Ladies' Auxiliary, takes place at the T.A. Hall to-night. The prizes offered for the card games are gold pieces and special prizes will be given for the novelty dance. Supper will be served and a special programme of dance music will be rendered by Our Own Orchestra.

Arbour Festival This Afternoon

This afternoon at 2.30 the Arbour Festival, in aid of the Methodist Orphanage, will be formally opened in the Orphanage grounds by Lady Allardroye. Flowers, ice cream, pantry dainties, candy, etc., will be on sale while there will also be games of skill such as a putting competition, together with special attractions for the children. The promoters have been working zealously to make the Festival a success and the generous patronage of friends will help them to achieve their object. Considering the purpose for which the Festival is being held, it should be largely patronized.

A New Purchase

A crew which left here recently for Holland to bring out a steel motor vessel of 354 tons gross, purchased by Sir William Coaker recently for a company of Port Union citizens, are expected to leave there shortly. The ship has a capacity for about 5,000 drums and is supposed to steam 8 knots. She will be used in the Brazil fish carrying business.

Capt. Gerald Power, who is on the other side on business, has been commissioned to bring out the new purchase.

Thrown From Bicycle

Arthur Murray, while proceeding over Barnes' Road on bicycle at nine o'clock this morning, he collided with a truck loaded with lumber at the foot of that street, and was thrown to the ground. Beyond receiving a few slight cuts on the right hand he escaped uninjured. The front guard on the bicycle was damaged.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

June 3rd—This day feeling mighty ill and having a great ache in my head, do send for Blabbs, the shirurgeon, and he coming, do tell me how my condition is brought about by too much drinking and smoking, and will have me forgo these habits. This, indeed, the worst news that ever I did have given me, and do make me protest that should I do without these pleasures life would be little worth the living at which Blabbs says that to have them will bring about the same consumption. Comes Povey to see me and do sympathize with me warmly, but brings no news seeing how I be none a-bring, now even the Birthday Honours that will be distributed to-morrow. But Lord, I do scarce have 5 minutes talk with him when my wife drives him forth, being that she says I must rest myself all this day, and she will have no idle gossip there to tire me. He do come again in the evening, however, and brings me the late despatches, and do seem to be uprisings in Afghanistan and Shanghai. But as to this, methinks the best solution is to deport the population of Shanghai to Afghanistan and let the rift-raff of both exterminate one another.

A Word for Our Highways and Railways

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—Your editorial of this date strikes a note that is well worth repeating, and is of interest to every well-wisher of Newfoundland. Your note is hopeful and it conveys the impression that you have faith in the development, as well as in attractions, of the country.

This is what we really need, and the present time is most opportune for such sentiments. Long enough have we halted and held back, and while our neighbors of the provinces have asserted their rights we have lain on our oars, and like Macawbee of Dickens fame, we have waited for something to turn up.

And now something has turned up, and the long looked for policy of highways and tourist traffic is getting in shape. This means more to us than we at present imagine; and whether the progress be slow or rapid, it will fully justify itself. Why not? The scenic attractions of Newfoundland are unsurpassed. For wild, romantic grandeur they equal the most picturesque of the great continent; and whether it be in winter or in summer, the majesty is the same. In solemn silence, and in profound solitude, these lonely spots have long stood, and the ages have witnessed their growth; but it seems that at last the spell is to be broken, and the children of men are to see for themselves the splendid heritage which Britain has had for her first-born colonial child.

Parents sometimes misunderstand their children, and the same would seem to apply to our Mother Empire—for certainly it is that from first to last Newfoundland has been a misunderstood country. But the mists are clearing, and the vision of the people is daily widening. The Highway Commission and the Tourist Publicity Bureau will lend wings to advancement, and a better day will burst upon us. This day has been tardy in coming, but now that the dawn has broken, it is quite in order to expect that the high noon will in turn be ours.

Who that has read the splendid series of articles recently published in the Daily News by Victor has not been impressed with the possibility of our West Coast, or with the industrial outlook of the Humber? It is such writings as those that we need, and the editorial of the Telegram of this date has in it the same wholesome force. It would pay Newfoundland to broadcast to its people the sentiments of Victor's notes on the Humber development. It would be well worth while for the entire series to be read in every day school of the land.

We do not teach our children enough of the real Newfoundland as it is. There is a big lesson yet to be learned, and such writings as we refer to will convey this lesson. Long enough have our dark side been shown, and we have rested under the pillar of cloud; but the work of the Publicity Bureau will tend to lead us out to the light of noon.

There is much to be said upon this subject, both from our platforms and in the press. The question is vital to us, hence its importance. Sincerely yours, I. C. MORRIS.

Here and There.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

CANADIAN MINISTER TO WASHINGTON TO BE APPOINTED.

OTTAWA, June 2. (By Canadian Press).—The Canadian Government hopes to make the appointment of a Canadian Minister to Washington very shortly. Premier King announced in the House of Commons to-night, when a vote of $60,000 for a Canadian representative in the United States was before the Commons for consideration. The Premier said the Government had not found it easy to secure the person it wanted to represent Canada, and referred to the necessary personal expenses which went with such a post.

VESSEL SEIZED AND TAKEN TO THE HIGH SEAS.

ST. PIERRE, MIQ. June 2. The French schooner Marie Second, to-night was being pursued on the high seas by the authorities, who charge that the vessel's former captain and five of the former crew stole her from the roadstead here at noon. The schooner was laden with 4,000 cases of whiskey and other liquors. The French authorities wireless the French steam trawler Asl, which was near St. Pierre to chase the schooner. The last report from the Asl was that she was within 800 yds. of the fleeing schooner which was employing every device to escape. If the men who are on the schooner are caught they will be brought here to face trial on charges of piracy, it was stated. The schooner Marie Second, until lately had been under British registry, but of Lunenburg, N.S. This noon the ship was anchored in the roadstead, while Captain Teicheu, who assumed command with her transfer to the French Registry, was on shore obtaining clearance papers for his vessel. The British captain, whose name was unknown here and five members of his crew who had remained on board as passengers, sailed, it was said, despite vigorous protest of the first mate and sailors. One Frenchman had his arm broken and the other to-night was said to be in danger of losing his sight from injuries sustained.

High Honor for Secretary Star Ass'n

A very pleasing and popular event took place at a meeting of the Star of the Sea Association on Sunday, when Mr. W. F. Graham, for many years Secretary of the Society, was made Hon. Secretary. Many pleasing references were made by the several speakers to the work of Mr. Graham since his connection with the Association, and the President, Mr. P. Cashin, eulogized his work in regard to the revision of the rules which had just been passed. The honor conferred on the Star of the Sea Association for work well performed. At the meeting 25 applicants were admitted to membership. The announcement that the Star would build a new boat was hailed with enthusiasm. She will, it is understood, be called the "Star."

WORLD SHALL BE ESTABLISHED.

The Victoria Hall, on Sunday at 7 p.m., Mr. A. Horwood, president of the International Bible Association, set forth the evidence that the literal earth which we live and move and have our being upon will never pass away, but will remain as it is, and that upon this literal earth a new order of affairs will be permanently established. The Bible passage that will be permanent is that which is found in the Scriptures. One of the keys to the understanding of the Scriptures is the symbolic language, the meaning of which cannot be understood until something occurs to bring to the mind the meaning of the symbols. Let us take a passage as an example: Isa. 2-3 reads thus: "The mountain of the Lord's House shall be established in the top of the mountains and all nations shall flow unto it. This passage cannot be accurate literally. It would be worse than meaningless to try to think of the literal mountain set on top of the mountains and of nations being led and flowing up hill into a rock.

At this time the symbolic meaning of the word "mountain" was brought to the mind. It was found in Daniel's description of a great image upon which fell a stone which broke up and destroyed the whole image by becoming a great mountain which filled the whole earth. When the Divinity provided evidence is given that this mountain is a great kingdom that shall be the whole earth; the Kingdom of God.

During this explanation of the passage we find that Isaiah was really prophesying that in due time the Kingdom of God shall be established upon the earth, overtopping or engulfing all the other kingdoms of earth; that all the people shall be brought to that kingdom and that as a result men shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks, neither shall they war any more.

By similar methods we have learned that the word "earth" is often used symbolically in the Bible. The prophet Isaiah says: "The mountain that I may assemble the kingdoms upon them mine indignation, even all my fierce anger: for the earth shall be devoured with fire of my jealousy." At one time we may have supposed that this was a reference to the literal burning of the earth with literal fire. But if so, we would have passed hastily for the explanation "fire of my jealousy" suggested a peculiar kind of fire, a literal one. The next succeeding verse shows that neither "the earth" is literal, for the people will be through the fire and learn great things because of it. The verse reads: "Then will I turn to the people a pure language that they may upon the name of the Lord be glorified with one consent." This passage is merely to show that that transformation is coming in the society, evil conditions are being destroyed (burned up as the Bible used), and upon their ashes will rise a new and better perfecter of things. A new earth, a condition in which every man will love his neighbor as himself and peace shall reign from Pole to Pole.

When we had stopped to consider the verse, we should not have known that the vice man says: "The earth shall be destroyed." (Ezek. 26) He meant that "the earth abided for ever" and if we had stopped to consider the significance of the Prophet's words, "He created it (the earth) and he formed it; he should not have been misled by the thought that He made it to be destroyed.

The House of Youth

a Splendid Feature

ADAMS AND CHENEY in a REMARKABLY FINE PROGRAMME AT THE MAJESTIC.

The audience at the Majestic Theatre last night enjoyed the bill immensely. The feature, "The House of Youth" was an ideal story full of intensity, interesting situations and very much appreciated. The star, Jacqueline Logan, was never seen to better advantage. She was assisted by an all star cast, including Richard Travers and Gloria Grey. "The House of Youth" is based on Maud Warren's great novel, a drama which merited world wide notice. The feature is a true to life dramatization of modern times and is a veritable triumph.

Adams and Cheney, who are now playing their final week at the Majestic are submitting their best act. These artists are indeed marvels and the many who heard them last night were pleased beyond expression. Their offerings are of such a character that their entire programme appeals to all. Their programme not including encores, is as follows:—

- 1—Scherzo, Van Coes.
- 2—Beautiful Girls, Song.
- 3—The Old Refrain, Kremler.
- 4—Variations on Scarf Dance, Chamade.
- 5—Irish Medley.

The programme will be the same to-day and it will be repeated afternoon and night.

C. L. B. Cadets

Tuesday's parade was an "old timer" Companies, Recruits and Bugle Band paraded in great strength. Lt. Col. W. F. Rendell, C.B.E., Major Outbridge, M.B.E., Brigade Major Williams, Captains Len Stick, Adjutant, P. B. Rendell, H. Hayward, N. French, Lieuts. W. R. Moty (mutt), A. B. Perlin, Era Chafe, Eric Jerrett, Rev. J. Brinton, Hon. Lieut. Col., Battalion Chaplain, were on duty. Sixteen recruits were sworn in by the Chaplain who gave the Battalion a very instructive address on "The Birthday of the Church." He referred to the Whit-Sunday of old time, and how that the Church, the Bible and the human race will be three of the things which will last as long as the earth or the world exists. The circulation of the Bible is increasing and is printed by the British and Foreign Bible Society in 588 languages. Books may come and go but the Holy Book goes on for ever. The Outerbridge Shield Presentation takes place on June 18th and the annual outdoor sports on Wednesday, June 14th. The Old Comrades Athletic Committee with competitors will meet to-morrow night at 8 o'clock to discuss the Forth business. Monday night's broadcasting concert programme merited much enthusiastic approval everywhere. Lt. Vavasour, Bandmaster, and his artistes musical efforts were wonderful. The solo of "Kathleen Mavourne" was excellent, and in fact every item was a gem. Capt. Stick was the announcer and his announcing was well done, his five minutes' talk on the Brigade being most interesting. In order to make the C.L.B. Band radio concerts a success this Fall the Brigade needs a piano badly. We shall be glad to have any subscriptions towards a piano from radio fans and other friends. If we get a piano we hope to be regularly on the air next Fall with a full concert programme; so friends help along the movement to raise the piano! Captain Stick thanks Major Dave of Bay Roberts and others for kind messages. The Officer Commanding announces that Camp 1925 will be held July 25 to August 1st at Topsail. Fees same as last year. Lads going for one day or part of a day to pay twenty cents per day. Overseas mail brings us this week some photographs from Serjt. Gunner Groves of St. John, N.B., an ex-C.L.B. veteran. Gunner Groves sends kind regards to all ranks. His photographs show the artillery firing the noon salute on the anniversary of Queen Mary's birthday. Our South African Regiment has sent us copies of their April official Gazette. They are making great progress. Six Battalions are busy. All the members were looking forward to the visit from the Prince of Wales. They have also organized the Church Girls' Brigade there. We notice with great interest that a C.L.B. Company is flourishing at St. Helena, famous as the residence of Napoleon. Lt. Col. W. F. Rendell, C.B.E., Officer Commanding and Staff will specially to express their appreciation of the kindness and courtesy extended to the Battalion Band by J. J. Collins, Parade Street, for placing his broadcasting station 830 at the disposal of the Band for their recent concerts. Thank you, Mr. Collins.

Poison-Gas Test
Made on Experts
Doctors Watch Effects of Fumes Through Glass Wall.
In the quest for new antidotes and defensive devices against poison gases scientific investigations are being conducted at the camp of the Chemical Warfare Research Downs, about seven miles from Salisbury.
Thirty chemists and other experts are engaged in the work, and doctors are also studying the physiological effects of the gases.
Members of the research staff volunteer to act as subjects for the tests and go into a room filled with fumes. Occasionally when a new type of mask is being tried respirators are worn, but usually the men have no protection. The room has one wall of glass, through which the doctors watch the symptoms and any after-effects which they may feel. The experiments are not without risk to their health, and even their lives. In the case of such gases as "mustard"—which burns and causes blistering of the skin—a concentration of the gas is applied to a man's arm or leg, and the place is afterwards treated with a chemical compound in the search for a paste or lotion which will neutralize the poison when smeared on the body.
The other protective devices which are tested include various types of masks and respirators, finely balanced machines to detect the presence and register the strength of fumes, and clothing of a texture which will resist gas.

THE BAD GOLFER WHO WAS GOOD.

"I'm a golfer, St. Peter," the spirit proclaimed, "and of much I have done I am truly ashamed, I have fubbed and I've dubbed to my pitiful cost. But I blamed not the caddy whenever I lost.

"I've sliced and I've hooked and I've been in the rough. Twenty years I've played golf, I've had 'trouble enough' and I've cursed when in sand traps, of that there's no doubt. But I've covered by footprints before I went out.

"I'm a golfer, St. Peter; just one of the nuts! My sins they are many, I've taken three putts. Countless times when I shouldn't, my record is black, but always the divots I cut, I put back!

"I'm an old handed shooter; I thought I was great. When ever I finished around ninety-eight; I was slow at the game, I confess it to you. But I never refused to let others go through."

"Come in," said St. Peter, "come in and sit down! Come in and I'll give you a harp and a crown! I've welcome for you, with the saints you may dwell, for it takes moral courage to play bad golf well."

Three Must Hang in India Slaying

TWO ACQUITTED, FOUR ARE SENTENCED TO BANISHMENT FROM THEIR COUNTRY.

BOMBAY, May 25.—(A.P.)—Sentences of death were pronounced yesterday on three of the nine men accused of murdering Abdul Kadir Baula, on Malabar Hill, near Bombay, January 12th.

Baula, a Mohammedan merchant, was attacked by a gang while riding in an automobile with Mumtas Begum, who had escaped from the palace of the Maharajah of Indore, where she at one time was the favorite dancing girl. She was befriended by Baula after her escape.

The judge took six hours for summing up, and then the jury deliberated for one hour and ten minutes. The men sentenced to death were Shaif Ahmed, Sergeant-Major of the Indore mounted police; Sham Rao Dighe, of the Indore Air Force, and Ponde, an officer of the Maharajah's household.

In his last appeal for mercy, counsel for Shaif Ahmed stated that Shaif "did not do it for his sake; he was only a hireling and did it for others." Counsel for Dighe and Ponde also stated that some "exceedingly powerful influence must have been brought to bear upon the accused, to which they succumbed, and they did not attack Mumtas and Baula for their own sakes."

Anand Rao Phanse, Adjutant-General of the Indore State forces, was sentenced to banishment from the country, together with three other men. Two of the accused, Syed Mahomed and Karamat Khat, were acquitted.

The King Mobbed

Wembley Crowd Annoyed at Repetition of Request to Shake Hands.

Resentment was shown by the crowd at Wembley Exhibition recently when two visitors began to trespass on the good nature of the King during his visit with the Queen. A man pushed through the crowd and, imitating the example of the American earlier in the week, asked the King to shake hands.

The King seemed a trifle embarrassed, but eventually shook the man's hand.

When another man attempted to approach the King the crowd exhibited strong disapproval and there were cries of "Leave the King alone."

The King retired without another handshake, and the royal party proceeded without further interruption.

Believes Britain Should Collect

Lord Bradbury Thinks France Could Pay About $40,000,000.

London, May 27.—(A.P.)—Lord Bradbury, who was a member of the British delegation to the Reparation Commission, addressing the commercial committee of the House of Commons last night on International indebtedness, expressed the belief that not more than 50 per cent. of the Dawes annuities would be paid by Germany.

It was not practical politics, in his opinion, for Great Britain to make any final arrangement with France and Italy at the present moment, because the whole position was still obscure. But, since a settlement probably would do more than anything else to bring about a revival of international trade, he thought Great Britain ought to try to make some arrangements, and his idea was to secure by negotiation at the earliest date, reasonable contributions from Britain's European debtors. These had been rather small in previous years, and with a suitable moratorium he believed France was sufficiently prosperous to make an annual contribution to the British and United States debts of something between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 apart from the reparations she might receive from Germany.

WEDDED BLISS.

VALT MACH

When Algernon Upjohn de Vere beseeched the damsel for her hand, Jane Impson made her platform clear, she took a firm, determined stand. "I'd surely like to be your bride," she said, in accents low and sweet, "if you are willing to provide all things we wear and use and eat. For many years I've been a clerk in Book & Bulger's beeswax store, and I would gladly quit that work to be your own for evermore. But if I quit that grievous task, which brings me in some iron men, you mustn't plan to have me ask to get my old job back again. Too often in these modern days a damsel weds some tinhorn gent, and then goes back to work to raise the coin he needs to pay the rent. Your little sunbeam I will be, and make your home a haven nice, if you will pledge yourself to me that I won't have to raise the price." "I fear that scheme would never do," said Algernon, with downcast dome. "It takes the salaries of two these modern days, to run a home. I counted on your handsome wage to help us buy a motor car, to patronize the helpful stage, and take us where the bright lights are." "I may be prejudiced," she said, and donned her costly snow-white lid. "I may be wrong—but when I wed, I wish to do as mother did. She supervised our household joys, she cooked the meal and swept the stair, and trained a family of boys with maidens gilded wined here and there. She tottered around her quilting frame, and went shopping through the grid, and recked not whence the Kopecks came—that sort of thing was up to dad."

SILVO

for all Silver and Nickel

For years, in homes throughout the British Empire, Silvo has been the polish for all valued silver and nickel. Indeed, it is the world's standard of quality among all polishes for this purpose.

Silvo is a liquid. You simply pour a few drops on a soft cloth—a short, bristly rag—and the result is almost magical. Even the dulled, most neglected silver yields instantly to the cleansing, beautifying qualities of "Silvo."

Promise to Revolt His Canadian Ranch in Coming Autumn.

MENARD'S LINIMENT FOR BACKACHE.

EDITED BY JOHN. M. CLAYTON.

The average radio fan who lives near any coast and who listens in much as he listens to a broadcasting station's announcer say, "We are sorry the station was closed down. Owing to an S.O.S. call we were forced to cease broadcasting." If, also, you are the average human being you have been greatly vexed over the interruption in broadcasting. But there are two sides to this story, also. The other side is the freighter or liner or trawler that has been fighting high seas and for for days and days and finally has given up the ghost. There may be a ship to answer that S.O.S., but that ship may be 40 miles away or 500 miles away. The S.O.S. goes out. It is not sent until all hope of navigating the ship under its own power has been lost. It is quite often not sent until the ship is about to sink. At sea, when an S.O.S. signal is sent all telegraphing ships MUST cease transmission. Untold interference would result if ships even a thousand miles away were allowed to carry on with their transmitting. The sinking ship sends its position and the ship which is nearest answers the S.O.S. and proceeds to aid the vessel in distress. On land the same procedure is carried through. The land stations have priority over ships. The ship must do as the land station directs, as far as radio communication is concerned. The land station gets in touch with ships near the distressed vessel and if no ship is near, the land station directs the relief vessel which goes out from port. These land stations have as much interference from broadcasting stations as you do from the land station. So in order to keep the broadcasting station from interfering with the land station (and ships, too, as far as that is concerned) all broadcasting in the vicinity of the land station must cease.

Every broadcasting station has its licensed commercial operator directly in charge of the operation of the station. Along the coasts these operators have receiving sets in the broadcasting station. These sets are tuned to the 600-meter wave and the operators are required to keep a close watch on this wave. If an S.O.S. signal is heard the operator immediately closes down the broadcasting station and notifies the station of the telegraph (radio) station. This is usually a naval station, although countless times commercial radio stations have aided distressed vessels.

Please remember that when a broadcasting station shuts down on account of an S.O.S. it is not only being operated in conformity to the law but also is directly aiding in the saving of some ship, and possibly human life. A little more important than your reception of John McCormack even!

THE SHOE COMPLEX.

black shoes went with everything else. If one had one good looking pair in this day and generation! And how mad-dening to anyone except the person with an almost unlimited wardrobe!

For no matter how cleverly the rest of the wardrobe may conceal it, the shoes always stand ready to betray the limited purse.

What Boots It! (Speaking Of Shoes).

What boots it (not deliberate, I assure you) to have a smart grey gown and a good looking hat if you can not afford to buy a special pair of shoes, and must make the black shoes that you also wear with your brown dress do duty with the grey dress too?

It is almost as bad a confession of advanced age as to say that one remembers such popular songs as "The Good Old Summertime" or "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," but the truth will out, and I do distinctly remember the day when there were only two kinds of shoes in common wear. Black shoes and tan shoes. Tan shoes went with tailored clothes and for sport, and black shoes went with everything else. If one had one good looking pair in this day and generation! And how mad-dening to anyone except the person with an almost unlimited wardrobe!

To-day one may have a dozen pairs of shoes in one's wardrobe and yet not have enough. "I love shoes," a friend of mine said to me the other day. "If I ever stole anything it would be shoes. Some lovely shoes that I couldn't possibly afford, and really had to have to go with some gowns."

I wonder if we shall ever have women judges. If we do and some shop-lifter makes a plea like that, I can see the light of sympathy in the judge's eyes. She will be unable to entirely hide it, though she will, of course, be too conscientious to let it affect her sentence.

A Pair Of Shoes A Week.

When we were children and used to talk about what we would do if our rich uncle died and left us a lot of money (not that any of us really had a rich uncle), I used to think I would have a new pair of shoes every week. That is one of my childhood ambitions that I haven't ceased to cherish. I have an array of shoes that would have looked quite ample to my childish eyes if they could have seen it, and I have actually spent as much as a quarter of my clothes allowance for shoes and stockings, and still I haven't enough.

I know several people that have this shoe complex. I wonder if it is a hang-over from the days when hard working fathers found it difficult to keep so many scuffing childish feet in shoes, and one's shoes were always very shabby before one's turn to have a new pair came?

BOMBARDIER WELLS WINNER AT GOLF.

WESTWARD HO, May 26—Bombardier Wells, British soldier, who in recent years devoted himself to golf, came through his first championship encounter on the links with a victory over Captain W. H. Sir Esme Howard Speaks on British Debt

BRITISH AMBASSADOR'S ADDRESS BEFORE AMERICAN IRON AND STEEL INSTITUTE.

It is a great honor to be invited here as the guest of the American Iron and Steel Institute and to have the privilege of addressing this distinguished company assembled from all parts of the country. But like all honours or privileges—if we except the ancient British Order of the Garter, which Disraeli said he particularly admired because there was no damned merit attached to it—it entails some responsibility. I realize that it is no easy matter for me to speak up to such a keen audience as that assembled here to-night, but in any case I can but do my best and the rest must take care of itself.

Following Mr. Ambassador Houghton in London, like whom I am not enamored of the obvious, I propose to drop the "hands across the sea" and the "blood is thicker than water" phrases and take all that for granted. But then looking about for a substitute it struck me that, building on these sentiments as an accepted fact, I might take as my text "goods across the water" as a useful text, since phrases we must have.

Now, gentlemen, the United States, like all modern States, for years has acquired much of her prosperity by "goods across the water," and quite frankly Great Britain has, of course, lived on them for several generations. We must all start out by admitting that in business—unlike salvation as described in Kipling's famous poem, "Tomlinson," "the race must be run by two and two and never by one and one." It takes two to do business as it takes two to make a quarrel—and if the business is to be continuous and not expire it is necessary that

by David Cory

Now let me think a minute or three. There's a dreadful kink in my Memory. How did I finish yesterday's story? Maybe I'll ask Miss Morning Glory, and leaning out of my window I called down to the pretty flower as she clung to the trellis in the flower garden below. But she only smiled with dewy eyes, and if dear little Bobbie Redvest had not fluttered to my window sill, I might not be able to tell you what happened, next, as I promised yesterday.

Little Jack Rabbit and Uncle Lucky were out riding in the dear old gentleman rabbit's motor car—the Luckymobile. Yes, and they were rolling down the Winding Trail through the Shady Forest on their way home to Rabbitville. All of a sudden 'Bang!' went one of the tires, when, of course, Uncle Lucky put on the brakes and stopped just like that.

"Botheration!" he exclaimed, hopping out to investigate—just what means to look into carefully, you know—"the tire on the left hand wheel has a puncture. Here's a peck of trouble and a bushel of worry," and scratching his head with his left hind foot, he opened the tool box.

"I'll help you," cried a voice, and from the top of the Tall Pine Tree Professor Jim Crow looked down on the worried old gentleman bunny.

"I'm glad you can," answered dear Uncle Lucky. "I can't, for the Old Red Rooster has forgotten everything except the air pump. Come down at once."

The next minute down fluttered the wise old professor bird with a piece of pine gum in his bill. "Stick this in the hole," he advised. "Here's some tape Mrs. Crow gave me. Wind it around the tire."

"You're very kind," cried dear Uncle Lucky, and he set to work, and by and by, not so very long, the repairs were made and the tire blown up just as good as new. Then back to his seat the old crow flew, while dear Uncle Lucky, so wise and so plucky, hopped up on the seat all cushioned so neat. "Will you stay to supper?" asked the old gentleman rabbit by and by as they turned into Lettuce Avenue, "or shall I take you back to the Old Bramble Patch?"

Just then whom should they see but pretty Lady Love, the little bunny's mother. I imagine she had been shopping at the Three-in-One Cent Store in Rabbitville.

"Come home to supper with us," cried dear Uncle Lucky, stopping beside the walk. "You and your bundles. Hop in!"

Stick this in the hole

With a smile pretty Lady Love seated herself in the Luckymobile and away they went as fast as a comet, and maybe faster, for the Luckymobile could travel when Uncle Lucky was at the wheel. Goodness me, yes indeed. Turning in through the gate he told the Old Red Rooster to brush the cushions with his feather duster tail and picking up the bundles, he led Lady Love and his happy nephew into his red-shingled house where Little Miss Mousie, his tiny housekeeper, had already baked an Angel Cake for supper. And now that these three dear little bunnies are safely home, we'll leave them for a while, because your Uncle Dave in the next story is going to tell you about somebody else.

both parties should find it profitable.

"Like the Poor Oysters."

A party that wants to do all the selling and no buying will end by doing no selling at all, because his buyers will be like the poor oysters in the "Walrus and the Carpenter," all gone. The seller, like the carpenter, will one day make a beautiful speech and wake up to find himself speaking to thin air because "oysters there were none."

It would seem, therefore, good policy for any country to try and keep the balance even so far as possible and encourage selling to itself where it can buy cheaply and well, in order that the sellers may in their turn buy from it that which they need and can afford to buy. That seems axiomatic. If you drive your customers out of the market by one means or another you will end by having no customers at all, and it will be the worse for you.

That is, I suppose, what the old economists meant when they said that there was no such thing as a free lunch, or unfavorable balance of trade. Give and take is as necessary in trade as it is in diplomacy or in marriage or in any other human activity in which the "race can not be run by one and one, but always by two and two."

Now, looking at this question of goods across the sea, that is considering our Anglo-American relations from the point of view of what the Germans used to call "real politik," as opposed to sentimental policy, we find, in the first place, as might be expected, that the United States and the British Empire are to-day each other's best customers, though the United States has the advantage in the visible trade balance. I hate statistics in an after dinner speech, but one has, alas, sometimes to stoop to them.

U.S. Exports to Britain.

United States exports to the British Empire represented in 1923 nearly 44 per cent. of the whole exports, of which nearly one-half went to the United Kingdom, and it was only with the British Empire that the United States had a favorable trade balance of visible exports. It was, indeed, the great excess of United States exports to the British Empire that weighed the total balance, so largely in favor of America. The United States exports to the United Kingdom in 1924 were, as always, made up mostly of raw materials, such as cotton, tobacco, mineral oils and wheat, all of which were presumably to help to manufacture goods for export to the United States and to other countries.

The total exports from the United States to the United Kingdom in 1924 (forgive the figures once more) represented a sum of more than $882,000,000, while the imports into the United States from the United Kingdom amounted to only $404,000,000, or less than half sum. How is the balance paid for? That is the crux.

Before the war the balance used to be paid for by our "invisible exports"—interest on capital loaned, freight rates for shipping, etc., and no doubt also by profits made in trade with other countries. But to-day these invisible exports have shrunk and our foreign markets also have shrunk—in some cases as in Russia and Central Europe shrunk almost to nothing—and we have to keep unemployed British subjects alive to the number of a million and a quarter, according to official statistics, and to more than two million, according to unofficial reports; I have seen, not because they don't want to work, as some people imagine, but because if they still work we could not sell the goods they produced. Wherever we look the horizon is lowering.

Our great trade is very seriously depressed and numbers of small mines have been shut down.

The shipbuilding industry is passing through a serious crisis owing to the absence of new orders.

Conditions in the iron and steel industry are especially as regards heavy iron and steel—very depressed and very discouraging. Out of a total of 162 blast furnaces in Scotland, of which 85 are normal in operation, only 21 are working at the present time.

Demand For Cotton Slumps.

"After a slight improvement in cotton goods the demand for these also has begun to fall off. Conferences are being held to find means to reduce the cost of production, but it is not yet clear whether anything really promising can be done.

Woolen textiles are not in a much better case.

There are some brighter spots, as in the boot and shoe, automobile, coach building, building trades and one or two others. I cannot mention them. But on the whole the outlook is certainly depressing and we cannot yet see from what side help will come. In any case it will come slowly. Emigration, which is about half what it was before the War, may partially help to solve the problem of an overcrowded population suffering from lack of markets in which to sell its products; but only partially.

The main and greatest factor on which we have to rely is the re-establishment of a permanent peace in Europe and the increase of purchasing power in foreign markets. Now, if Great Britain cannot sell her products abroad she cannot, of course, continue to buy raw materials and manufactured goods in the United States in the same heavy quantities as had been her custom. It is, I am sure, fully realized that Great Britain could scarcely carry on an unfavorable trade balance with the United States forever and yet pay the thirty-two odd million pounds per annum to the United States Government.

We intend—we are absolutely determined—to meet our just debts, but there may come a time when, unless the world situation changes for the better, until we can return to something like pre-war conditions of credit and trade, it would be impossible both to make heavy purchases of raw materials from the United States and to pay the interest on our debt. It does not require a high class mathematician to see that. The purchases would obviously have to be cut down. But this is only a small issue, in comparison with the great world issues involved in the general settlement of world questions by which alone we can hope to achieve a return to that state of normality which President Harding rightly declared was the object we should all aim at.

We in Great Britain need a return to real peace in the world perhaps more than any other nation, and I cannot repeat too often that our interests in this matter are so clear, so obvious that they can no longer be the object of the slightest doubt, except perhaps to those who, as Mrs. Gamp said, have to look through a brick to see what's writ on the wall beyond. For this reason British policy at least—whatever Government is in power—should be as regards its search for peace above suspicion. But

I am not speaking now only for the United Kingdom, nor for the British Empire, but for the world at large in declaring that as I see things unless we can shortly restore a firm basis of confidence and credit throughout Europe and a return to the natural flow of trade, unless we can work on the principle of goods across the sea, we are heading for a worse cataclysm than that produced by the actual state of war.

Catholic Women's League to Meet in Hamilton

TORONTO, May 15.—(By Canadian Press)—Hamilton, Ont., will from June 8-12 be the hostess city for the Fifth Annual Convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada. Committees with Miss Florence Barker, Hamilton, as general convener are busy preparing for the comfort and entertainment of guests. The programme arranged by the National Executive while promising many subjects for report and debate also contains the names of eminent speakers who will come from many parts of Canada to address the delegates.

At the opening evening meeting, his Lordship Rt. Rev. J. T. McNally, D.D., will pronounce the Invocation and give an address of welcome. Miss Florence Barker as President of the Hamilton Sub-division will also extend greetings and T. W. Jutten, Mayor, will give the civic welcome. The annual address by the National President, Mrs. W. H. Lovering will be followed by a reception to his Excellency the Apostolic Delegate in Canada and Newfoundland, Most Rev. Pietro di Maria. His Excellency will be the celebrant at the Convention Mass on Tuesday morning in St. Mary's Cathedral, and at the evening meeting will give an address on "Peter the Rock." Other speakers during the congress will include the Most Rev. McNeill, D.D., Archbishop of Toronto; Most Rev. Alfred A. Sinnott, D.D., Archbishop of Winnipeg; Most Rev. J. M. Tmard, D.D., Archbishop of Ottawa; and T. F. Lahoney, M.L.A., Hamilton. Speakers at the luncheon will be M. L. Burnette, Ottawa, who will demonstrate how women's clubs can help their medical authorities. Miss Charlotte Whitten, M.A., Ottawa, Hon. Secretary Canadian Council on Child Welfare; M. Dronillard, Ford, Ont., will address the Junior League on "Girl Guides."

Because of the amount of business to be transacted, social functions have been limited to a reception and Garden Party at the residence of the Bishop of Hamilton; the Convention Banquet at the Royal Connaught Hotel; a motor drive along the Niagara Highway never before in the vicinity, opportunity to see Niagara Falls and other points of interest. A visit to Loretto Convent, Niagara Falls will be a part of the outing.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With Othine—Double Strength.

This preparation for the removal of freckles is so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold by all drug and department stores with a guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil or waste time on lemon juice or cucumbers; get an ounce of Othine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on money-back guarantee. P. O. Box 2616, Montreal, Canada.

Drugging Industry

By A COUNTY COURT JUDGE.

I have read with concern that "Ministerial opinion is in favour of a grant to a firm, or group of firms, to enable them to secure orders which would otherwise go abroad by reason of the British tender being to high."

That would mean a further dose of the sunshadows drug with which we are being paralyzed and which is at the root of the grave trade depression. British workers refuse wages which (with due regard to the cost of living) the foreign workman accepts.

The result is that British goods are driven from the foreign market in one trade after another.

Now, instead of acting on the principle that until times are better the engineering worker must come into line with his competitors, the Government proposes, at the expense of the public, to pay the excess wages he demands. This will invite a like demand from other trades, and, by encouraging uneconomic production, make it certain that the better times will not come.

The whole country is suffering from the blight arising from the nation fostered during the war—that there exist some mysterious, inexhaustible resources enabling everyone in lean times to get better pay for less work

Some men are content with being covered, no matter how cheap the appearance. Others are particular as to their dress, and maintain the highest standards in material, cut and finish. Perhaps the most disquieting feature of all is the way we are destroying the incentive to work and encouraging the view that reward is no longer to be proportionate to effort. The result is a dull and deadly uniformity on bottom gear.

The danger caused by the spread of this poison among the rising generation is incalculable. Young women for whom, if for no other class, is plentiful will have none of the dote, or its slack administration affords every inducement for idling.

The "Call to Action" Manifesto and a Church Crisis

VARYING OPINIONS ON A DISPUTE WHICH "COMES AT A CRITICAL TIME."

"On Tuesday, February 17, 1925, the House of Clergy of the Church Assembly passed a resolution in favour of observing, under another name, the festival of Corpus Christi. This festival was initiated in France, in consequence of a nun's supposed vision, in order to emphasize the dogma of transubstantiation adopted in 1215, and to furnish a special occasion for adoring the Body of Christ in the consecrated Host. It was formally instituted by Pope Urban IV, in 1264, when Juliana's vision was confirmed by a priest who reported that when he was celebrating Mass at Bolsena blood flowed miraculously from the water after consecration. Again, on Wednesday, February 18, the same House, seriously discussing, though it did not pass, a resolution to give the Feast of the Assumption (described as 'The Falling Asleep of the Blessed Virgin') a place among the Saints' days, with Collect, Epistle, and Gospel.

"These two resolutions in favour of adopting two most distinctive festivals of the Roman Church were moved by Dr. Darwell Stone, who is one of the leaders of the party which claims a monopoly of the title 'Anglo-Catholic.' The fact that both were strongly supported, and one of them actually passed, in the House of Clergy compels us to recognize a crisis which threatens to change the character of the English Church. For it means that the 'Anglo-Catholics,' having for years successfully defied authority, are now claiming to wield it, and to impose their will upon the Church as a whole."

—From the "Call to Action."

One of the greatest events of the history of the Church of England of recent times is the publication of a manifesto entitled "A Call to Action," the two most important clauses of which appear above.

The letter is signed by Church dignitaries, leading parish clergy, members of the Church Assembly, by headmasters, professors, Heads of Colleges and Fellows of Universities, and leading laymen such as the Provost of Eton, John Murray, George Macmillan, A. C. Benson, and the editor of the Spectator. The signatures of Archbishop Lowther Clarke, Bishops Chas. Chevasse, Graham, Ingram and Knox, Deans Burroughs, Moore, Edie, Inge, Page, Weldon, Canons Charles, de Candole, Gamble, Raven, Simpson, Storr, Professors Bethune-Baker, Kennet, Margolouth, several peers, and a long array of scholars.

"The Church of England has a great history; it is closely entwined with the national life," says the Times, "because it embodied in a truly English form the universal Gospel. It has made a contribution to the development of the English character more far-reaching than is always realized. In a day when authority is impugned and all standards of morality and right conduct are by many cheerfully relegated to the limbo of a forgotten past, in a day when forces are at work that threaten the foundations of society, those who see below the surface, do well to rally to the defence of an institution that has to a remarkable degree learnt how to combine the complementary virtues of order and liberty. A Call to Action is needed, and we hope that a wide response will be made to it."

What is to be the Outcome?

"What is to be the outcome of it all? The manifesto demands that there must be action, and concerted action. For an inert mass is always at the mercy of an active and highly organized minority. Precisely. It is important to remember that these demands are made by a minority," states the Church of England Newspaper.

"But the vitally important question is—What 'action' do those who signed this document contemplate? Is this 'call to action' going to end as so many others have done before, or are those responsible for it determined to do their utmost to organize, in the spirit of Jesus Christ, loyal Churchmen in defence of these basic principles which have been, and are, the glory of the Church of England?"

"We have long been convinced that this is the only effective method of restoring discipline and saving the Church from disruption, and thus enabling the Church to carry out her primary business—the evangelization of the world. . . . Is this manifesto really going to lead to constructive and resolute action, or shall we be compelled to write it down as 'another lost opportunity?'"

"The English Church as a distinctive entity (though not, of course, as regards its historical unity) owes its existence to the Reformation, which was a revolt against certain alleged corruptions of the true Catholic faith. If in its observance, if were to go back to the days before the Reformation, it would, in the opinion of many, cease to have any reasonable validity as a separate body of Christendom," writes "A Layman" in the Sunday Times.

"Undoubtedly, in determining upon a revival of ante-Reformation usages, the Anglo-Catholics are raising a controversy the end of which cannot easily be foreseen, for it calls the whole purpose of the Reformation into question.

"Clearly, then, the affair is one of first-class importance, fraught with immense seriousness for the future of the Church of England. It comes at a critical time. Work upon the revision of the Prayer Book is now almost complete, and the Bishops will shortly have to determine what alterations shall be permitted and what shall be disallowed.

"The signatories to the 'Call to Action' claim that the conflict is in essence one between a determined minority—disciplined among themselves, but undisciplined in their relation to authority—and a hitherto over-tolerant majority. If 'Englishmen,' they conclude, 'wish to enjoy the privileges of their historic Church, they must show the spirit of their forefathers who made it what it is.

"They must awake from their torpor; they must care more for truth than for peace; they must waive lesser differences and unite in defence of basic principles.' The next move is with the Anglo-Catholic party." As to this point, the Church Times takes up the challenge. It writes:— "The Evangelicals are blinded by prejudice. They cannot see that, whatever differences may exist, and we do not underrate them, between Anglo-Catholics and themselves, yet they are united with us by deeper bonds of conviction and principles with regard to the Incarnation and Atonement and the Deity of the Son of God than they are with the Modernists who reject these doctrines. Are not Anglo-Catholics loyal in these essentials? There is not one article of the creed that Anglo-Catholics deny. Can Evangelicals say as much of their Modernist associates?"

Incongruous Opposition, Says the "Church Times."

"The fact is that the incongruous nature of an opposition which could not put forward any constructive policy on which all members could agree, tells strongly in favour of the school to which it is opposed. A union of this kind is bound to disintegrate; for it is held together by a common dislike, common prejudice, common fear, but not by a common faith."

"The signatories call upon Churchmen who are loyal to Protestantism (though we notice that the use of the word 'Protestant' is skillfully avoided) to insist that Anglo-Catholics shall explain what is their relation to the Church of England," asserts the Christian World.

"This document appeals for unity and concerted action in defence of basic principles. At last Episcopal, Evangelical and Modernist seem to have seen the necessity for sinking their own differences so as to present a united front against the Anglo-Catholic menace to the integrity of their Church."

"The call is to English Churchmen to 'rouse themselves from their apathy to tolerance.' But it is by no means clear what effective action can be taken by and in a Church whose pride in its comprehensiveness is not a terminological inexactitude," says the Glasgow Herald.

"There are Broad Churchmen today who would stand at the bar if it were the fashion to press charges of heresy. But no one would dream of putting a distinguished Churchman in the pillory who has satisfied himself that science and religion are not incompatible revelations of the One Creator, nor do we think it credible that there can be any renewal of attempts to suppress the Anglo-Catholic movement by further appeals to the law, however suggestive may be the phrase 'supine tolerance' used in the manifesto."

"A comprehensive Church must fulfil the law of its being and supply a common roof for those whose fundamental beliefs strike deeper roots than are to be found in Tridentine decrees, or Reformation principles, or Modernist dogmas.

"All the elements comprised under the terminology applied to ecclesiastical divisions within the Church of Grammer and Laud have contributed powerfully to its strength and influence. Christianity in England was revitalized by Wesley, the author of The Christian Year, and the men who refused to follow Newman stirred the currents of life, and by the force of reaction stimulated an Evangelical revival, while a Dean Inge to-day is a preacher of righteousness of whom any Church would be proud.

"And so it will be, we imagine, in the future. There is no need to despair of 'crises.' They are a symptom of life, a pledge of intellectual and spiritual vigour."
