

The Weekly Monitor.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 8, 1883.

The poor wretch Carey has gone to his last account. That he richly deserved his fate no one appears to question, looking at it from the standpoint of his part in the Phoenix Park tragedy, which was only mitigated in the eyes of the law and the public through his turning informant, solely for the purpose of saving his own neck, and not through a righteous feeling of repentance of the horrible deed, or a desire to stay the doings of the fiendish devils, who only cruelly seem to have been murdered. Admitting that Carey's death was a deserved fate, at the same time it is a bad precedent that the "Invincibles" should have succeeded in tracking him, as it will be apt to have the effect of deterring others from furthering the ends of justice by turning informers.

During the past two or three weeks, an unusually large number of strangers, principally Americans, have been visiting the city, attracted probably by the picturesque scenery and salubrious climate of our town, as well as by the approaching vintage, which our citizens understand so well to prepare for. It is reported that J. Sponage, M. D., is about to settle in this village. Dr. Sponage distinguished himself as a student in the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania, and was one of the first to receive the degree of M. D. from that institution. He is now filling a responsible position in the hospital at Halifax.

With but a solitary exception the Halifax strikers have not broken yet; but in St. John a number of the striking operators have gone back to their posts. In the United States the telegraphers are firm, however, and it is rumored that the Telegrapher's Brotherhood will send thousands of circulars to master telegraphers in all parts of the United States and Canada, calling upon them to stand by the telegraphers, even to the extent of declaring a general strike of all branches of trade.

The telegraphic companies continue to report to handle all their business promptly. This must be only a blind, for if such be the case, the term "self-maintenance" could hardly be applied to them, if they have been engaged in paying for years an extra stipend numbering thousands.

On Monday of last week, a wonderful phenomenon was witnessed by a number of people at Weymouth Bridge. The sight was beautiful. About nine o'clock in the evening, it appeared as if Cassville Ferry and Gravelle itself, with the mountains and surroundings were transferred to Mr. Harley John's field near the Bridge. Houses, churches, roads, etc., were as plainly seen as if they actually existed in that spot. The mirage was small, but it was witnessed by more than half a dozen reliable people who will agree as to the details.

On Monday of last week, the second son of the Rev. J. Clark, accidentally received an ugly scythe wound on the outer side of the left leg, just below the knee. Under the skillful treatment of Dr. Miller, of Middleton, the boy is doing well, but it will be some time before he will be able to play foot-ball and leap-frog again.

Local and Other Matter.

Very dry weather. - Fraser's coal will arrive in a few days. - Roger Amero has arrived in Boston. - A reward of $100 is offered for the capture of the Treadwell murderer. - Nearly 1,000,000 people have visited the London Fisheries Exhibition up to the present time. - Digby has become a famous summer resort. - In marriage notices last week, instead of "George Nash" of Halifax, should be "George Nash," Correct notice published this week. - Mr. Arthur Palfrey of this town, carriage builder, has purchased the "Donald," from Mr. David Bell, of Windsor, N. S.

Mr. Albert Ryder launched from his shipyard, Lower Granite, on Tuesday, 24th ult., a handsome little schooner, intended for the fishing province. Further notice will be given in a later issue. - The National Bank of St. Albans, Vermont, has closed its doors. Its troubles were caused by complications with the South Eastern Railway Company Montreal and Newport, Vermont. - Bridgetown boasts of more trout and trout fishing than any other place of its size in this province, and we doubt if there are many places outside of Halifax that can excel it in this respect.

The side wheel steamer Sacor, for the Province, was launched at the East Dock, undergoing an examination on Friday, 7th inst. The vessel is a fine one, and is being fitted out with a thorough outfit, including new boilers, and is again placed on the coast. - The C. P. R. has paid $150,000 for 150 acres of land at Port Arthur. An exchange says this is a substantial evidence of the boom at the landing. - The C. P. R. is now laying 70 miles of track in the West of Winnipeg. - The C. P. R. is now laying 70 miles of track in the West of Winnipeg.

Mr. W. A. Craig, our enterprising founder, met with an accident yesterday morning, which nearly cost him his life. He was walking beside his team, on which a trolley weighing about 800 lbs. was suspended from the Windsor Plaster Works, when the horse suddenly started, and the trolley slipping off the wagon, struck Mr. Craig, knocking him on the head, crushing him to the ground. Fortunately the trolley fell upon him in such a manner, that as he lay between the cross beams, which gave him a spine of about six inches, breaking the crushing force of the weight very much. After he was drawn out from under the trolley he fainted three times, and was with difficulty helped into the house. His escape is simply miraculous, as beyond a large lump being raised on his head and a few bruises on the back we are happy to report he has apparently sustained no injury. Had he fallen on the other side to the right or the left of where he did death would surely have resulted.

Mr. Kaulback, the Liberal Conservative candidate, is now being tried on a charge of corruption. The following is the latest news: Lunenburg, Aug. 6. - Judge Right's ordered judgment, dismissing all the personal charges brought against the petitioner, Mr. Kaulback. The respondent, Mr. Kaulback, is satisfied, and the election is a foregone conclusion. - We see that a number of our exchanges contain the advertisement of Dr. J. C. Raymond, for curing consumption. We want our readers against him. We had the same advertisement in our paper, and we were quite sure that our readers would be cured of their consumption. - Personal. - Messrs. John S. Town and Co., the popular Lunenburg commission merchants, have appointed Mr. H. V. Barratt, to represent their interests here, in the place of the late Mr. Mitchell. Mr. Barratt is now on his way to this Province.

Fresh Fish.

THE EXTENSIVE TRADE IN BOSWON, AND HOW IT IS CARRIED ON.

The question of food is one of the very first with which every man in every stage of his existence has to grapple, and in all communities has been attained to a degree of civilization, the business of supplying food materials becomes a very important and extensive industry.

Said one of the largest if not the largest fish dealer in Boston to a Globe representative: "Well I don't know how you could get at a valuable average of the number of fishing vessels arriving at Commercial wharf every day. Some days the arrivals are very slim—hardly anything at all coming in; and then the next day they'll come with fresh fish, all in a bunch. Now and then, perhaps, it will run along for a week or two with an average of twenty-five boats a day, then there'll be, perhaps, from seventy-five to a hundred come in in a single day. Yes, all the boats here are in Quincy Market are owners or part owners, at least, of fish vessels, and the way it's worked is this: I own half a vessel, for instance, and I draw one fourth of the catches, and the rest is divided among the crew. That is, of course, after the expenses are paid. How much do these fishing vessels generally cost? Why, all prices. I've got one that I only paid $1,200 for, and there are some engaged in the business which cost $15,000. The crews? The general average is from ten to twelve men, but some carry as high as twenty-five or twenty-six. Most of the fish caught consist of cod (as a matter of course), haddock, and mackerel. The fishing schooners go as far as seventy-five or a hundred miles from land—to the Georges (Middle) Banks, Lullwater Bank, Brown's Bank and South Channel. Mackerel fishing has already commenced down South—always begins about this time, or a little earlier, down by Cape Hatteras, and then northward, past Cape May, as the season advances. I have been in the mackerel fishery myself, and have caught as high as 225 barrels in a single haul. Yes, that's a pretty good one, but I have known hauls of nearly 500 barrels—that is I've heard tell of, but I wouldn't vouch for the truth of the story. As to fresh water fish, that comes from all parts of the country—out West, down East, and the Province, Salmon? Yes, we get that all the year round. The first we got this year came from Nova Scotia as early as April 15, while a consignment from the Province arrived some eight or ten days later. We were speaking of lobsters just now, and that reminds me of the fact that the quantity of that crustacean eaten in this city is something enormous. Why there's Mr. William Prior Jr., of Quincy Market, who sells on an average not far from 2,500 pounds a day, and he is by no means a big dealer in this line."

Food, Drink and Shelter in July and August.

Work horses should be fed hay. I know of many farmers who give their horses all the grain they will eat, but no hay in summer. It is a very bad course of feeding. A horse should be given all the grain it will eat. It is difficult to cure a horse without food from rain, and impossible to keep it in good condition without a more or less of hay. Timothy makes less from rain and exposure. It can be kept in good condition in stacks. The farmer must guard himself accordingly. Work horses should be fed the best of hay. They should have time to eat their meals and to rest a short time before going to work. Time is made in the end. If they have an hour and a half or two hours in the best of the day in which to eat their hay, they will do more work than if they are hurried with no time to rest after eating.

Stock Cattle and Hogs.

Stock cattle are, of course, kept upon pasture. I know of no better pasture than a mixture of clover, timothy and orchard grass. The clover should predominate. They must also be given salt regularly. If it is kept in a trough in the pasture field, it will not eat too much of it, and this is the right way to give it to them—all at once. But if they have been deprived of it too long they will eat too much at a time to do so. Milch cows should be given in addition a little bran sloop and green corn, stalk and all. These two months constitute a critical period in the life of a cow. At this time the germs of disease are most thickly planted. They should have green feed all through the summer. No better way can this be furnished than by providing clover pasture. Clover is his nonpareil food and medicine. The fertility of it and the manure, solid and liquid, of the hogs will pay a good rent for the land, and will get in the two succeeding crops of grain. Hogs should have salt but they will eat too much if allowed to do so. They should be supplied with ashes and charcoal. If the fires in the house do not furnish enough there is a brush pile. They will appreciate refuse, vegetables, slops, milk, etc. Sheep should have good pasture and salt. Mr. Young's Incubator. HIS METHOD OF HATCHING CHICKENS AND HIS SUCCESS.

Richard Young, proprietor of the Horton (Delaware county) poultry farm, has an incubator with which he is experimenting—a machine which makes a loud outcry when the atmosphere becomes too sultry for chicken-hatching purposes. The incubator is a rough wooden structure. Its heating apparatus is quite simple. An oil lamp sends heat to an upper compartment built over the entire machine, the sides and top of which are so constructed that the warmth can only escape below through a tin bottom into the drawers where the eggs are being hatched out. The heat here may go slightly below, but must not get above 103 degrees F. On the exterior of the hatching boxes is an electric alarm bell. Two wires to connect with a battery are run into the boxes from the bell, and when the ends of these are connected the circuit is complete, the bell rings and the alarm is given. One of these wires is attached to a small piece of platinum connected with a thermometer that when the mercury gets up to 103 degrees, the platinum reaches up to and touches the other wire, thus completing the circuit. This incubator is at present the only one in use, and on its first trial with 500 eggs, selected, but taken at random from the farmers in the vicinity, hatched out 250 good chickens. Mr. Young has two other incubators, with a capacity of 500 eggs each and which can turn out 80 per cent of good chicks. The new incubator, from properly selected eggs, is expected to realize 80 or 90 per cent. In addition to these incubators, for which there are articles prepared in hatching out young chickens. Each brood of chickens on the farm has its own quarters, which are subdivided into pens, with ten hens and one rooster for each. These pens are about 20 feet by 4 feet in extent, with very high picket fences, and are kept almost as clean as a kitchen floor. A few weeks ago a nest of rats scolded in getting under the chicken house and before they were discovered, killed 130 promising young chickens; there was a rat hunt, and 26 of the largest and fattest rats ever seen in the neighborhood were slaughtered. Precautions were taken to prevent any others getting into the yard and no trouble has since been experienced.

—The N. E. Homestead says: "Leverett Smith, a Springfield farmer, had died in consequence of walking with bare feet through a potato field where Paris green had been used. The poison was communicated to his blood through one slight abrasion of the skin and he has been dying a lingering death. First one toe was amputated and then one leg, but all attempts to save his were futile. It is impossible to be too careful in the use of this deadly poison."

—A singular combat between insects was witnessed by a traveler in South Africa. Pursuing a caterpillar was a host of small ants. An ant would mount upon a caterpillar's back and bite him. Fearing, the caterpillar would turn and kill his tormentor. After slaughtering a dozen or more of his persecutors the caterpillar showed signs of fatigue. The ants made a camp on his back, detaching themselves to attack of grass. The caterpillar climbed up, tall first, followed by the ants. As soon as one approached he seized it in his jaw and threw it off the stalk. The ants seeing that the caterpillar had no strong position, resorted to strategy. They began swarming through the grass. In a few moments the stalk fell and the caterpillar was on the ground, and the ants killed him.

For the Ladies.

Fashion Notes. To invert a vest is one of the best plans of regenerating a luscious or best Tucks in bunches across the skirt in bosoms, and in longwaives rows in front bosoms, are still in favor.

Canrus shoes, low for the house and high around the ankles for walking boots will be worn in the country. A row of silver beads or a dog collar of silver is worn very high around the neck with stylish dark costumes of silk and wool.

Silk gloves in the popular Jersey shape will be worn during the summer, and are embroidered along the back of the hand and across the arms.

Watered silk and satins are employed for combining with other materials, such as camel's hair and broadcloth, but are not used for the entire dress.

Kate Greenway's handkerchiefs of white silk, with gay colored figures of old-fashioned characters on the hem, are knotted as cravats for little boys to wear with their kilt suits.

Tall and slender women will wear the English puffed jackets with a wide collar, and a row of buttons down the front in two long loops that fall over the puffed back drapery.

Damier patterns like the blocks on a checker board are the fashionable caprice for kilt skirts and overdresses, whether of wool or of gingham, to be worn with a blouse of the plain color.

Corried hats in basin and poke shape are made of white linen and of colored gingham to match the summer dresses of little girls. A box pleating of lawn and lace is placed around the crown for trimming.

Berques are made rather short, disclosing the hips, and tabliers are no longer strained and drawn back tightly, but are put on with considerable fullness, giving an easy appearance to the folds and draperies.

Pale yellow and bright gold are the colors triumphant even in floral garlands. The gaily sunflower has sunk into oblivion, but is replaced by primrose, cowslip, marigold, narcissus, marshmallows, and king cups.

As to the new fashions—A Canada paper gives the following suggestions as a help to drive ants out of a house infested with them. It says: "Take advantage of the fact that ants will not cross a chalk line. They are so averse to crossing it that in order to reach the object at which they wish to go, they will crawl up a wall and drop down on the object. Chalk lines on the floor or around the legs of a stand on which articles of furniture are kept, will therefore greatly abate the nuisance. There are various ways of destroying the pests. Finely powdered borax and chalk sprinkled about is serviceable. A good way is to track them to their nests, and kill them with acidulated water. Pieces of sweet cake placed about will soon swarm with them. Then pick the cake up carefully with forceps and dip it into turpentine. After a few days the ants that remain will learn that the sweet cake is dangerous, and will avoid it so much that few, if any, will be caught in the trap. Then try bits of bacon and cheese in succession, and dead grasshoppers, changing only when the ants avoid the new bait, as they will after a few days. By perseverance in this method of capturing the ants you will probably be entirely rid of them in a few weeks."

Good Taste at Home.—It's wonderful the way a tasteful woman can do in the way of making home attractive. She can make a garret beautiful at little cost, for the beauty of home depends more upon an education and refined taste than upon mere wealth. If there is no taste in the house it matters little that there is a large balance at the bank. There is usually no better excuse for a barren home than ignorance or carelessness. A little mechanical skill can make brackets and shelves for the walls. A trifle saved from daily expenses can now and then put a thoughtful walk in the woods can gather leaves and ferns for adorning the unpurposed rooms. The expenditure of a few shillings can convert the plain window into a conservatory. In these and many other ways a plain, barren room be changed into a scene of beauty.

Be especially careful to talk truthfully in your dealings with children. Don't tell your child you will take his head off if he doesn't shut up, because you won't; and it teaches him to doubt your word. At least that is one reason why you should not say so. Then, too, that expression and other like it are not agreeable to ears polite, and on boats and cars you are in danger of being heard and severely criticised. Being well dressed, or even elegantly dressed, will not convince your fellow-traveller that you are a lady or a gentleman if such is your dealing with your children.

PLAIN TALK TO A GIRL.—Your every day toilet is a part of your character. A girl who looks like a "fury," or a sloven in the morning is not to be trusted, however finely she may look in the evening. No matter how humble your room may be, there are eight things it should contain; a mirror, washstand, soap, towel, comb, hair, nail and tooth brushes. These are just as essential as your breakfast, before which you should make good and free use of them. Parents who fail to provide their children with such appliances, not only make a great mistake, but commit a sin of omission. Look tidy in the morning, and after the dinner hour is over improve the toilet. Make it a rule of your daily life to "dress up" in the afternoon. Your dress may or may not be anything better than calico, but with a ribbon or flower, or some bit of ornament, you can have an air of self-respect and satisfaction that invariably comes with being well dressed.

—Cold boiled potatoes used as soap will clean the hands and keep the skin soft and healthy. Those not overboiled are the best.

—Never does a man believe so strongly in the attraction of gravitation when he sits down in a chair and finds it gone.

—A beautiful young lady tripped into a drug store a few days ago, and told the young man who presides there that she wished some castor oil, and asked him if he could mix it up so as to disguise the taste of it.

"Oh, yes," says he. Presently he asked: "Will you have a glass of soda water, Miss—?"

"Oh, yes," says she. After drinking the soda water the young man asked a while, and then asked him if the castor oil was ready.

"Oh!" says he "you have already taken the castor oil in the soda water."

"I wanted the oil for my young brother," he said.

BENIGNITY TO HEDGE.—Two cents? A judge in Toledo, Ohio, has a little boy aged four years. One day when a company was present, the little lad wanted a seat at the table, but his father sent him away, saying "Your whippers are not long enough for that seat with these gentlemen." The boy took his seat at a table in the kitchen and ate his dinner. While he was eating, the old cat came purring around him. "O go off, cat," he exclaimed, "I had enough to eat for that and you whippers are not long enough for that seat with these gentlemen!" Joker's Corner.

A Dull Pawnbroker. The other day a Detroit pawnbroker received a call from a young man with the tan and freckles of the country on his face and nose, and an old fashioned bull's eye watch in his hand which he desired to pawn.

"Where you live I asked the broker 'Oh, out here a few miles?' 'Where you got that watch?' 'I used to lead it, but he gave it to me.'"

The broker looked him all over with suspicious glances, and asked and received his name, and then asked: "Why you wanted to pawn that watch, eh?"

"Well, I needed a little money." "I don't know the price of it, and I guess I'll get suspicious." "Suspicious! Police?" repeated the young man. "Police, if you don't know the difference between a thief selling his watch and a young man with town with his gal, and that gal wanting peanuts and candy and soda water and street car rides until she's cleaned him out of his last cent, you'd better go and catch a sheep ranch."
