PREFACE

TO THE SUPPLEMENT.

The Criminal Code and the Canada Evidence Act,—as originally passed, and from time to time amended,—have, by the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, been repealed, and, (with alterations in the arrangement and in the numbering of the sections of each),—have (along with other Federal enactments included in the Author's second edition of his annotated work on the Criminal Law of Canada,—some of which enactments are mentioned below—), been re-enacted as separate chapters of the new Revised Statutes,—the Adulteration Act being chapter 133, the Canada Evidence Act being chapter 145, the Criminal Code being chapter 146, the Identification of Criminals Act being chapter 149, the Ticket of Leave Act being chapter 150, the Fugitive Offenders' Act being chapter 154 and the Extradition Act being chapter 155.

This makes it necessary to issue either a new edition of the Author's work, or a supplement thereto; and, as only a little over five years have elapsed since the publication of the Author's second edition, and, in view of the greater time, labor and expense involved in the preparation and publication of a new edition, a Supplement, such as the one now issued, will more expeditiously and economically place, at the disposal of the legal fraternity, the Criminal Law of Canada as it now exists.

Being mainly in the shape of a Concordance,—between the numbering of the sections of the Criminal Code and other Acts (as originally enacted and amended to the end of 1901, when the Author's second edition was published), and the numbering of the sections of the corresponding chapters of the New Revised Statutes,—the present Supplement has three columns, the first column giving the old numbering, and the second column giving the new numbering; while the third column shews what has been omitted from, what has been added to and what changes have been made in the law as contained in the Author's second edition.

Where there is no omission, no addition, no change and no amendment,—any particular section of the old law being the same as a section (corresponding therewith) of the new law,—a statement to that effect is made; but, in case of a change in or of an addition to or of an amendment of the law, not only is there a statement to that effect, but the section of the law, as it now stands, is invariably set out in full; and all important judicial decisions, bearing upon the law of any section, and rendered since the publication of the Author's second edition, (as well as some decisions rendered prior to but not cited and annotated in the second edition), are cited and annotated under the sections of the law to which they apply.

In the Appendix, the same system is adopted of concordance between the numbering of the sections of the old Acts, (contained in the Appendices to the Author's second edition), and the numbering of the sections of the corresponding Acts of the new Revised Statutes; and the latest decisions upon the law contained therein are likewise cited and annotated.

Moreover, the Appendix contains,—(besides the Alien Labor Act, the Fugitive Offenders' Act, the Extradition Act and a part of the Yukon Act),—the Money Lenders Act, the Adulteration Act, a recent Amendment of the Adulteration Act, the Lord's Day Act, a reference to the Quebec Sunday Observance Act (recently passed), a List of Extradition Treaties between Great Britain and Foreign Countries, and an Extract from the Governor General's Proclamation, (of the 10th of June 1907), bringing into force a portion of Part III of the Criminal Code, relating to the Preservation of Peace in the vicinity of Public Works.

J. C.

Montreal, 30th June 1907.

(a) is or continues in arms against His Majesty within Canada; or

(b) commits any act of hostility therein; or

(c) enters Canada with intent to levy war against His Majesty, or to commit any indictable offence therein for which any person would, in Canada, be liable to suffer death; and every subject of His Majesty, who, —

(a) within Canada levies war against His Majesty in company with any of the subjects or citizens of any foreign state or country at peace with His Majesty; or

(b) enters Canada in company with any such subjects or citizens with intent to levy war against His Majesty, or to commit any such offence therein; or

(c) with intent to aid and assist, joins himself to any person who has entered Canada, with intent to levy war against His Majesty, or to commit any such offence in Canada;

.—is guilty of an indictable offence, and liable to suffer death.

Unchanged except as here set forth.

Sec. 69. Sec. 78. Treasonable Offences. — Unchanged, in effect.

There is nothing in the Imperial Naturalization Act, 1870, which legalizes an act which would have been a crime before the statute; therefore, a person, who becomes naturalized in a foreign country under such circumstances that before the statute he would have been guilty of treason, is not relieved by the statute from the consequences of his act. Nor can an act of treason give any rights, by virtue of the statute, to the person guilty of the treasonable act; and therefore, if war has broken out between Great Britain and another country, a British subject commits an act of treason by becoming naturalized in the belligerent country; he is not thereby protected from the consequences of the commission of subsequent treasonable acts. THE CUSTOMS ACT

AND

THE INLAND REVENUE ACT.

The old Customs Act (R. S. C., 1886, c. 32), and the old Inland Revenue Act (R. S. C., 1886, c. 34), — certain sections of which, relating to seizures and forfeitures, are set out at pages 101-106 of Crankshaw's second edition of the Criminal Code, — have been repealed and are now replaced by the new Customs Act (R. S., 1906, c. 48), and the new Inland Revenue Act (R. S., 1906, c. 51); and the following are some of the sections thereof relating to punishments and forfeitures:

THE CUSTOMS ACT.

Forfeiture of goods unlawfully imported. — Section 13 of the new Customs Act provides that no goods shall be unladen from any vessel arriving at any port or place in Canada from any place out of Canada, or be unladen from any vessel having dutiable goods on board brought coastwise, until the entry has been made of such goods and warrant granted for the unlading of the same; and it is provided, by sec. 189, that all goods unladen contrary to the Act shall be seized and forfeited.

Section 22 provides that no goods shall be imported into Canada in any vehicle otherwise than in a railway carriage nor on the person between sunset and sunrise on any day nor at any time on a Sunday or a statutory holiday except under a written permit from a Customs collector and under the supervision of a customs officer, and it is, by sections 192 and 193, declared that all goods imported contrary to the above section and the vehicle, etc., in or with which the same are imported shall be seized and forfeited, and that any goods brought into Canada in the charge or custody of any person shall be forfeited, and may be seized and dealt with accordingly, if the person in charge thereof does not (among other things) come to the Custom House nearest to the point at which he crossed the frontier line or to the station of the officer nearest to such point, if such station is nearer thereto than any Custom House, and there makes a report in writing to the Collector or proper officer of Customs stating the contents of each and every package and parcel of such goods and the quantities and values of the same.

Sections 206, 215, 219, 227, 254, 259 and 260 of the new Customs Act are as follows:—

Sec. 206. Smuggling. — Passing forged invoices, etc. "If any person smuggles or clandestinely introduces into Canada any goods subject to duty, or makes out or passes or attempts to pass through the Custom House any false, forged or fraudulent invoice, or in any way attempts to defraud the revenue by evading the payment of the duty or of any part of the duty on any goods, such goods, if found may be seized and forfeited; or, if not found but the value thereof has been ascertained, the person so offending shall forfeit the value thereof as so ascertained; and every such person his aiders and abettors shall, in addition to any other penalty to which he and they are subject for such offence, forfeit a sum equal to the value of such goods, — which sum may be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction, — and shall further be liable, on summary conviction before two justices of the peace or any other magistrate having the powers of two justices of the peace, to a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year and not less than one month, or to both fine and imprisonment."

Sec. 215. Possessing goods liable to forfeiture. "If any two or more persons in company are found together and they or any of them have any goods liable to forfeiture under this Act, every such person having knowledge of the fact is guilty of an indictable offence and punishable accordingly."

Sec. 219. Dealing in goods unlawfully imported. "If any person knowingly barters, keeps, conceals, purchases, sells or exchanges any goods unlawfully imported into Canada (whether such goods are dutiable or not) or whereon the duties lawfully payable have not been paid, such goods, if found, shall be forfeited, and may be seized. If such goods are not found, the person so offending shall forfeit the value thereof; and every such person shall, in addition to any other penalty forfeit a sum equal to the value of such goods, which may be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction, and shall further be liable on summary conviction before two justices of the peace or any magistrate having the powers of two justices of the peace, to a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year, and not less than one month, or to both fine and imprisonment."

The punishment imposed by this section applies not only to the case where the goods are not found in the possession and keeping of the offender, but also to the case where they are so found; it being apparent that the object of the enactment is to make the person liable to punishment who illegally imports goods without paying duty, whether the goods are found or are not found in his possession or keeping. (8)

Sec. 227. Gaining access without permission to bonded goods. "Every person who without the express permission of the proper officer of Customs, by any contrivance gains access to bonded goods in a railway car or to goods in a railway car, upon which goods the Customs duties have not been paid, — or delivers such bonded or other goods shall, for every such offence, be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year and not less than one month.

Sec. Forged marks or brands. "If any person at any time forges or counterfeits any mark or brand to resemble any mark or brand provided or used for the purposes of this Act, or forges or counterfeits the impression of any such mark or brand, or sells or exposes to sale, or has in his custody or possession, any goods with a counterfeit mark or brand, knowing the same to be counterfeit, or uses or affixes any such mark or brand to any other goods required to be stamped as aforesaid, other than those to which the same was originally affixed, — such goods so falsely marked or branded shall be seized and forfeited, and every such offender and his aiders, abettors and assistants shall, for every such offence, be liable on summary conviction before two justices of the peace, to a penalty of two hundred dollars, — and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding twelve months and not less than two months." (This was sec. 210 of old Act, now omitted).

Sec. 254. Falsifying documents and using documents falsified. — "Every person who forges, counterfeits, falsifies or uses, when so forged, counterfeited or falsified, any paper or document required under this Act, or for any purpose therein mentioned, — whether written, printed or otherwise, — or, by any false statement procures such document knowing the same to be forged, counterfeited or falsified, or forges, counterfeits or falsifies any certificate relating to any oath or declaraiton or affirmation by this Act required or authorized is guilty of an indictable offence."

See sections 259 and 260 of the Customs Act for the respective penalties, punishments and forfeitures incurred by (a) any master or person in charge of any vessel and by every driver or person conducting or having charge of any vehicle who refuses to stop such vessel or vehicle when required by a Customs officer, and (b) by any person who offers for sale any goods under pretence of the same having been smuggled.

Although sections 215 and 254, (above quoted) of the Customs Act declare that the acts thereby prohibited are indictable offences they provide no punishment. But section 1052 of the Criminal Code, post, provides that every person convicted of an indictable offence, for which no punishment is specially provided, shall be liable to imprisonment for five years.

THE INLAND REVENUE ACT.

The following are some of the clauses of the new Inland evenue Act (R. S., 1906, c. 51) by which penalties and forfeitures are imposed:—

Sec. 58. Removal of excisable goods before payment of duty thereon. — "No goods subject to a duty of excise under this Act, shall be removed from any distillery, malt house, brewery, tobacco manufactory, cigar manufactory, bonded manufactory or other premises subject to excise, licensed as herein provided, or from any warehouse in which they have been bonded or stored, until the duty on such goods has been paid or secured by bond in the manner by law required." And section 116 provides that any goods removed from any distillery, malt house, brewery, tobacco manufactory, cigar manufactory, bonded manufactory, or other premises subject to excise, licensed as provided by the Act, or from a warehouse, before the duty thereon has been paid or secured by bond in the manner by law required, shall be seized and detained by any officer of excise having a knowledge of the fact, and shall be and remain forfeited to the Crown.

Sec. 59. Removal of dutiable goods in the night. — "Except under departmental authority in such case specially obtained, no goods subject to a duty of excise under this Act, shall be removed from any distillery, malt house, brewery, tobacco manufactory, cigar manufactory, bonded manufactory, or from a bonding warehouse or other premises licensed as herein provided, between the hours of six o'clock in the afternoon and seven o'clock on the following forenoon"; and section 117 provides that any goods removed in violation of section 59 shall be seized and detained by any officer of Inland Revenue having knowledge of the fact, and shall be and remain forfeited to the Crown.

Sec. 100. Forfeiture of goods and apparatus of an unlicensed distillery, etc. (a) All grain, malt, raw tobacco and other material in stock, (b) all engines, machinery, utensils, worms, stills, mash tubs, fermenting tubs, tobacco presses or knives, (c) all tools or materials suitable for the making of stills, worms, rectifying or similar apparatus, (d) all spirits, malt, beer, tobacco, cigars and other manufactured articles, which are at any time found in any distillery malt house, brewery, tobacco manufactory, cigar manufactory, bonded manufactory or other premises or place where anything is being done or any working carried on which is subject to excise, and for which a license is required under this Act, but in respect of which no such license has been taken out, shall be liable to be seized by any officer of Inland Revenue having a knowledge thereof, and to be forfeited to the Crown, and may either be destroyed when and where found, or removed to some place for safe keeping, in the discretion of the seizing officer"; and "all horses vehicles and other appliances which have been or are being used for the purpose of removing any spirits, malt, beer, tobacco, cigars, materials or apparatus used or to be used in the production of any article subject to excise, in violation of this Act, shall likewise be liable to be seized by any such officer and to be forfeited to the Crown, and may be dealt with in like manner."

Sec. 102. Forfeiture of engines, etc., in case of fraud. — Every steam engine, boiler, mill, still, worm, rectifying apparatus, fermenting tun, mash-tub, cistern, couch-frame, machine, vessel, tub, cask, pipe or cock, with the contents thereof and all stores or stocks of grain, spirits, malt, beer, tobacco, cigars, drugs or other materials or commodities which are in any premises or place subject to excise shall be forfeited to the Crown and be dealt with accordingly, if any fraud against the Revenue is committed in any such place or premises or if the owner of any such place, premises, apparatus, goods or commodities or any person employed by him or any person having lawful possession or control of such place, premises, apparatus, goods or commodities is discovered in the act of committing or is convicted of committing any act in or about such place or premises which is declared by this Act to be an indictable offence."

Sec. 103. Forfeiture of goods for non payment of duty. "Every article or thing subject to duty under this Act and on which the duty hereby imposed has not been paid at the proper time for paying the same shall be seized by any officer of Inland Revenue and shall be forfeited to the Crown and dealt with accordingly."

OFFENCES WITH RESPECT TO EXCISE STAMPS, ETC.

See sections 104, 105 and 106 of the new Inland Revenue Act for the respective penalties, punishments and forfeitures incurred by any person (a) who unlawfully uses any stamped, marked or branded packages, barrels or casks or (b) who being a vendor of the contents of any labelled, branded, marked or sealed package, etc., fails, so soon as the contents have been removed to obliterate such label, mark, brand or seal, or (c) who, except as permitted by the Act, brings into or has in his licensed premises any stamped packages, etc.

Forfeiture of stills, etc. See sec. 109 as to forfeiture of all stills, worms, apparatus, etc., in respect of which any penalty is incurred.

Unapproved weights or measures. See sec. 113 for the penalty and forfeiture incurred by any one using or permitting the use, except as by the Act otherwise provided, of any unapproved weights or measures.

Breaking Crown's Lock.—Abstracting bonded goods, etc. See sections 114 and 115 for the respective punishments and forfeitures incurred by any person, (a) who opens or breaks the Crown's lock attached to any apparatus, etc., or abstracts goods in bond, or (b) who unlawfully removes bonded goods.

Distilling, brewing or malting; or Manufacturing tobacco or cigars without license. Section 180, sections 204 to 207, sections 237 to 239, and section 338, make every person guilty of an indictable offence and subject to certain punishments and forfeitures who, without license, distils or rectifies or assists in distilling or rectifying any spirits, etc., or sets up, possesses or conceals in any place, any still, etc., or brews any beer, etc., except for the use of himself or his family as by the Act provided, or makes any malt or steeps any grain, etc., for malting, or manufactures any tobacco or cigars, etc., except as permitted by the Act.

It is an offence under sec. 180 of the Act to have possession of a "still" without the notice or registration provided by the Act even though such possession be that of a carrier only. The phrase "in any place" used in subsec. (e) of sec. 180 is equivalent to "anywhere": and the context does not limit its meaning to distilleries or places used as distilleries. (8*a*)

Compounding without license. Sec. 191 of the Act provides for the imprisonment of or the infliction of a penalty upon every person who, without license, carries on business as a compounder and for the forfeiture of all goods compounded or in course of being compounded by such person and of every compounding article found on the compounder's premises.

Opening Tobacco or Cigar Packages, boxes, etc., without breaking excise stamps, etc. See sections 341, 342, 343, 346 and 347, for the respective penalties, punishments and forfeitures incurred by any person, (a) who opens any package of tobacco or cigars without breaking the excise stamp thereon, or (b) who, except as permitted by the Act, puts up or has possession of tobacco or cigars in previously used packages, etc., or (c) who sells or offers for sale, except in a licensed tobacco or cigar manufactory any loose or unpacked foreign raw leaf tobacco, or (d) who neglects or refuses to destroy the stamps on emptied cigar boxes, wrappers, or buys or accepts from another any such empty stamped boxes, etc., or the stamps taken therefrom, or (e) who puts tobacco or cigars in any emptied or partially emptied packages, etc., or has possession of or sells any box, etc., stamped with any fraudulent stamp or any stamp previously used.

Affixing forged or previously used stamps. Section 348 makes every person guilty of an indictable offence and liable to a penalty not exceeding $500 and not less than $100 and to imprisonment for any term not exceeding five years and not less than six months, who affixes to any package of tobacco or cigars any forged stamp or any stamp previously used.

Removing tobacco or cigars not properly put up and stamped, etc. — Purchasing such. See sections 349, 351, 352, 356, 357 and 358, for the respective penalties punishments and forfeitures incurred by any person, (a) who removes from any tobacco or cigar manufactory or uses, sells or possesses any tobacco or cigars without the same being put up in proper packages and stamped or without the stamps being properly cancelled, or (b) who knowingly purchases or receives for sale any manufactured tobacco or cigars from any manufacturer not duly licensed, or (c) who purchases or receives for sale any manufactured tobacco or cigars not legally packed, branded or stamped, or (d) who sells or offers for sale or, not being a licensed tobacco or cigar manufacturer, has in his possession any kind of manufactured tobacco or cigars not put up in packages and stamped according to the provisions of the Act, or (e) who sells or offers for sale any imported tobacco or cigars or tobacco or cigars purporting to be imported, not put up in packages and stamped as provided by the Act, or (f) who sells or offers for sale any cigars in any other form than in new boxes as provided by the Act, or who packs in any box any cigars in excess of the number required by law to be put in each box or affixes a stamp on any box denoting a less amount of duty than required by law, or (g) who removes any cigars from any manufactory without being packed in boxes as required by the Act.

Acetic Acid. See sections 362 to 365 as to licenses to carry on the business of manufacturing acetic acid.

In the case of a conviction under the Inland Revenue Act and of a money penalty being imposed and, in default of payment, imprisonment for a fixed term, unless the penalty and costs and charges of conveying the accused to gaol are sooner paid, it is necessary that the amount of the latter should be stated in the warrant of commitment, and, where not so stated, the prisoner is entitled to be discharged on habeas corpus. (9)

PROCLAMATION.

Sec. 143. Bringing this Part into force. The Governor in Council may, as often as occasion requires, declare by proclamation that upon and after a day therein named this Part or any section or sections thereof shall be in force in any place in Canada in such proclamation designated, within the limits or in the vicinity whereof any public work is in course of construction, or in any place in the vicinity of any public work within which he deems it necessary that this Part, or any section or sections thereof should be in force; and this Part or any such section or sections thereof, shall, upon and after the day named in such proclamation, take effect within the place or places designated therein.

2. Declaring this Part to be no longer in force. The Governor in Council may, in like manner, declare this Part or any section or sections thereof to be no longer in force in any such place, and may again, from time to time, declare this Part or any section or sections thereof to be in force therein.

3. No such proclamation shall have effect within the limits of any city.

4. All Courts, magistrates and justices shall take judicial notice of every such proclamation.

WEAPONS.

Sec. 144. Delivery of arms. On or before the day named in such proclamation, every person employed on or about the public work to which the same relates, shall bring and deliver up, to some commissioner or officer appointed for the purposes of this Part, every weapon in his possession, and shall obtain from such commissioner or officer a receipt for the same.

Sec. 145. Seizure of arms not delivered. Every weapon found in the possession of any person employed as aforesaid after the day named in any proclamation and within the limits designated in such proclamation, may be seized by any justice, commissioner, constable or other peace officer, and shall be forfeited to the use of His Majesty.

Sec. 146. Possessing weapons near public works. Every one employed upon or about any public work, within any place in which this Part is in force, who, upon or after the day named in such proclamation, keeps or has in his possession or under his care or control within any such place, any weapon, is liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding four dollars and not less than two dollars for every such weapon found in his possession or under his care or control.

Sec. 147. Receiving or concealing arms, with intent. Every one who, for the purpose of defeating the enforcement of this Part, receives or conceals or aids in receiving or concealing or procures to be received or concealed, within any place in which this Part is in force, any weapon belonging to or in the custody of any person employed on or about any public work, is liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than forty dollars; and a moiety of such penalty shall belong to the informer and the other moiety to His Majesty, for the public uses of Canada.

Sec. 148. Employees carrying weapons. Every person employed on any public work found carrying any weapon, within any place in which this Part is at the time in force, for purposes dangerous to the public peace, is guilty of an indictable offence.

Sec. 149. Return of weapons when this Part ceases to be in force. Whenever this Part ceases to be in force within the place where any weapon has been delivered and detained in pursuance thereof, or wherever the owner or person lawfully entitled to any such weapon satisfies the commissioner that he is about to remove immediately from the limits within which this Part is at the time in force, the commissioner may deliver up to the owner or person authorized to receive the same, any such weapon, on production of the receipt given for it.

INTOXICATING LIQUOR.

Sec. 150. Retail Sale of liquor prohibited. Upon and after the day named in such proclamation and during such period as the proclamation remains in force, no person shall, at any place within the limits specified in the proclamation, sell, barter or directly or indirectly, for any matter, thing, profit or reward, exchange, supply or dispose of, or shall give to any other person any intoxicating liquor intended to be dealt with in any such way.

2. The provisions of this section shall not extend to any person selling intoxicating liquor by wholesale, and not retailing it, if the said person is a licensed distiller or brewer nor shall they apply where liquor is supplied for bona fide medicinal purposes upon the prescription of a duly qualified medical practitioner. (As Amended by the 6 and 7 Ed. 7, c. 9, sec. 2).

Sec. 151. Penalty. Every one who, by himself, his clerk, servant, agent or other person, violates any of the provisions of the last preceding section, is guilty of an offence against this Part, and liable on summary conviction, to a penalty of fifty dollars and costs and, in default of payment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months; and, upon any subsequent conviction, to a penalty of one hundred dollars and costs, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to both, and, in default of payment of such penalty, to imprisonment or to further imprisonment not exceeding three months; and imprisonment in each case shall be either with or without hard labor. (As amended by the 6 and 7 Ed. 7, c. 9, sec. 3).

Sec. 152. Agent's liability. Every clerk, servant, agent or other person who, being in the employment of or on the premises of another person, violates or assists in violating any of the said provisions for the person in whose employment or on whose premises he is, shall be equally guilty with such person, and shall be liable to the punishment mentioned in the last preceding section.

Sec. 153. Recovery of money, etc., paid for liquor. Any payment or compensation, whether in money or securities for money, labor or property of any kind, for intoxicating liquor sold, bartered, exchanged, supplied or disposed of contrary to the provisions aforesaid, shall be held to have been criminally received without consideration and against law, equity and good conscience, and the amount or value thereof may be recovered from the receiver by the person making, paying or furnishing such payment or compensation.

Sec. 154. Transfers for liquor void. All sales, transfers, conveyances, liens and securities of every kind which either in whole or in part have been made or given for or on account of intoxicating liquor sold, bartered, exchanged, supplied or disposed of contrary to such provisions shall be void against all persons, and no right shall be acquired thereby.

2. No action of any kind shall be maintained, either in whole or in part for or on account of intoxicating liquor sold, bartered, exchanged, supplied, or disposed of, contrary to the said provisions.

It is necessary for the prosecution to prove that rent was due and in arrear before a conviction can be made under section 144, (now section 169) of the Code for the offence of wilfully obstructing a lawful distress. (3a)

On such a charge evidence is admissible for the defence in proof that no rent was due. (4)

The retaking of possession by a vendor of goods, under a contract for the conditional sale of them, is not within the term "lawful distress or seizure" as used in clause (b) of section 169 and an obstruction of the vendor's bailiff in regaining such possession is not an offence under the section. (5)

Where the process of an inferior court is void by reason of its containing a direction to a peace officer to seize certain goods at a place outside of the territorial jurisdiction of the court, such process is insufficient, upon which to base a conviction for resisting the officer in its execution. Counselling a person to commit perjury is not subornation of perjury, unless the perjury counselled is actually committed, but it is punishable as an incitement to give false evidence, which is an offence at common law. (11)

PART V.

OFFENCES AGAINST RELIGION, MORALS AND PUBLIC CONVENIENCE.

Interpretation.

Sec. 197. Definitions. — In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires: —

(a) 'theatre' includes any place open to the public, gratuitously or otherwise, where dramatic, musical, acrobatic or other entertainments or representations are presented or given; Added.

Sec. 186*a*. (b) 'guardian' includes any person who has in law or in fact the custody or control of any girl or child referred to;
Unchanged, except as here set forth.

Sec. 207(2). Sec. 197. (c) 'public place' includes any open place to which the public have or are permitted to have access, and any place of public resort.
Unchanged, except as here set forth.

OFFENCES AGAINST RELIGION.

Sec. 170. Sec. 198. Blasphemous Libels. Unchanged.

Sec. 171. Sec. 199. Obstructing Officiating Clergyman. Unchanged.

Sec. 172. Sec. 200. Violence to Officiating Clergyman. Unchanged.

Sec. 173. Sec. 201. Disturbing Religious or other special meetings. Every one is guilty of an offence and liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars and costs, and in default of payment to one months' imprisonment who wilfully disturbs, interrupts or disquiets any assemblage of persons met for religious worship, or for any moral, social or benevolent purpose, by profane discourse, by rude or indecent behaviour, or by making a noise, either within the place of such meeting or so near it as to disturb the order or solemnity of the meeting.
Slightly altered, as here set forth.

This section does not apply to a meeting of electors called by one of the candidates during a municipal election. (1)

See R. S. Q., Articles 2946 and 2964, as to the preservation of order at political meetings. And see sections 126-128, ante, and sections 619-621, post, as to the preservation of order at public meetings.

A person, who enters a hall, leased by a religious association or body while a meeting for religious worship is being held in it under the direction of officers of the association, and, addressing himself to the assemblage, says he is a Catholic and a French Canadian, as most of them are, that they should not stay where they are, and calls upon them to leave, is guilty of an offence of disturbing a religious meeting under the above section of the Code. (2)

The offence of unlawfully obstructing divine service under this section is not made out where the obstructed clergyman had no legal claim to the possession of or use of the church premises and w s in point of law a trespasser thereon himself. (2*a*)

Il a jury sent back to reconsider its verdict of guilty brings in the same verdict a second time contrary to the judge's direction upon a point of law, such verdict must be recorded, and the accused left to his remedy by reserved case or appeal. (2*a*)

SUNDAY OBSERVANCE.

The selling of cigars on Sunday may be prohibited, either directly by a provincial legislature or by municipal by-laws authorized by such legislature; and in either case such restriction is of a merely local nature, to be classed as a police or municipal regulation and not as a matter essentially appertaining to the criminal law, and so within the sole competence of the parliament of Canada. (3) But see the Lord's Day Act, in Appendix, post.

A city by-law, — permitting the sale, on Sunday, of "fruits, cigars, confectionery and temperance beverages," by all persons who sell all these things and are not engaged in trade, — is invalid, as arbitrary and unjust, because it does not authorize the sale of tobacco as well as cigars, and because it does not extend to all persons engaged in the same business. (4)

It has been held in British Columbia that a conviction for "keeping a barber shop open" on Sunday contrary to a municipal bylaw cannot be supported upon the mere admission of the accused when called upon to plead that he had shaved customers in his shop on the day named; and it seems that a barber who exercises his trade at his shop with the doors barred cannot be said to be "keeping open." (5)

The Lord's Day Act, (R. S. (1906), c. 153), forms part of the Appendix to the present Supplement.

Correction. — On pages 157-159 of his second edition of the Criminal Code, the Author cited (among others) the case of R. v. Albertie, which was by error entered there as being reported in volume 1 (instead of in volume 3) of the Canadian Criminal Cases. (6)

Sec. 174. Sec. 202. Buggery. Unchanged.

Sec. 176. Sec. 204. Incest. Unchanged.

Sec. 177. Sec. 205. Indecent Acts. Unchanged.

The word "wilfully" as applied to the offence declared by this section implies that the act was done with evil intent, and without justifiable excuse, while the word "unlawful" does not necessarily refer to criminal penalty or prohibition. (7)

A charge of "unlawfully" committing an indecent act does not sufficiently charge that the act was "wilfully" done; and an accused person who, on his plea of guilty, is summarily convicted upon such a charge and who is sentenced to imprisonment, is entitled to be discharged on habeas corpus, as the commitment and conviction disclose no offence under the Criminal Code. (7)

A summary conviction for indecency under section 205 must find that the act was wilful, and the omission of such finding is a good ground for discharge upon habeas corpus. A statement in the conviction that the accused "unlawfully" committed an indecent act does not cure the defect of not stating that the act was done wilfully in terms of the enactment creating the offence. (8)

tural sense, and directed the jury to acquit, reserving at the Crown's request, a case, (9); and it was afterwards held, by the Court of Appeal, that the trial judge may withdraw such a case from the jury if the advertisement is incapable of such a meaning as was imputed to it, but that if it be held to be capable of such a meaning it should be left to the jury to decide whether or not it actually had such meaning, having regard to the context of certain objectionable words. (10)

To constitute a book or printed matter "obscene", within the meaning of the above section, it must express unchaste or lustful ideas, and tend to corrupt those whose minds are open to such immoral influences and into whose hands the publication may fall. It is obligatory on the prosecution to prove knowledge, on the part of the accused, of the contents of the obscene publication. (11)

Sec. 208. Immoral Theatrical Performance. Every person who, being the lessee, agent or person in charge or manager of a theatre, presents or gives or allows to be presented or given therein any immoral, indecent or obscene play, opera, concert, acrobatic, variety, or vaudeville performance, or other entertainment or representation, is guilty of an offense punishable on indictment or on summary conviction, and liable, if convicted upon indictment, to one year's imprisonment with or without hard labour, or to a fine of five hundred dollars, or to both, and, on summary conviction, to six months' imprisonment, or to a fine of fifty dollars, or to both.

2. Every person who takes part or appears as an actor, performer, or assistant in any capacity, in any such immoral, indecent or obscene play, opera, concert, performance, or other entertainment or representation, is guilty of an offence and liable, on summary conviction, to three months' imprisonment, or to a fine not exceeding twenty dollars, or to both.

3. Every person who so takes part or appears in an indecent costume is guilty of an offence and liable, on summary conviction, to six months' imprisonment, or to a fine of fifty dollars, or to both. Added.

Ordinary ballet-dancing in the customary costume is not an immoral or indecent play or performance within the meaning of this section.

The word "indecent" has no fixed legal meaning, and it devolves upon the prosecution in a charge of presenting an indecent theatrical performance to affirmatively prove that the performance in question was of a depraving tendency. (12)

A provincial legislature has jurisdiction to legislate concerning matters of police regulation of public morals; but, in so far as the same subject is dealt with by the Dominion Parliament, the Dominion legislation will prevail. (13)

Sec. 184. Sec. 214. Seducing female passengers on vessels. Unchanged.

Where a seduction under promise of marriage has taken place and the illicit intercourse between the parties is continued, upon renewals of promise, for more than a year before the commencement of the prosecution, a prosecution for the original seduction is barred, (under section 1140 (c), post), and a conviction is not warranted as for a subsequent seduction within the year, as the girl is not then of "previously chaste character." The term "previously chaste character," in section 212, is not equivalent to previously chaste reputation, but refers to the actual moral status of the girl. (14)

Sec. 185. Sec. 216. Procuring defilement of women or girls. Unchanged.

Upon a charge of procuring a girl to come to Canada from abroad with intent that she may become an inmate of a brothel in Canada the acts of inducement must be shewn to have been committed in Canada, in order to give jurisdiction to a Canadian court, unless the accused is a British subject. A street railway commits a common nuisance by systematically moving electric cars reversely on a public street without fenders and gongs or other signalling appliances being placed at the rear of the cars, while being so operated, and thereby endangering the lives and safety of the public. An indictable nuisance, under the above sections may consist in the mode of using or controlling anything, and it is not essential to the offence that there should be anything dangerous in the thing itself. (15)

An indictment for a nuisance in obstructing a public highway is insufficient to charge a criminal offence under the above sections, if it does not allege injury to the person of some one; and personal injury is not to be inferred from a count which states that "actual" injury has been occasioned to an individual named. ADULTERATION.

At pages 176-190 of the Author's second edition of the Criminal Code, some of the principal provisions of the old Adulteration Act (R. S. C., 1886, c. 107), and of the old Canned Goods Act (R. S. C., 1886, c. 105), and of their respective amendments are set out and annotated. These Acts and their respective amendments are now repealed and replaced by the new Adulteration Act (R. S. (1903), c. 133), and the new Canned Goods Act (R. S. (1906), c. 134); which are now set forth and annotated in the Appendix to the present Supplement.

Sec. 195. Sec. 225. Common Bawdy House defined. Unchanged.

This section enlarges the meaning of the term "common bawdy house," and a conviction for keeping "a disorderly house, that is to say, a bawdy house," should shew further particulars of the offence by specifying the subject of the keeping for purposes of prostitution, i. e. whether a "house," a "room," a "set of rooms" or other "place," so as to come within the definition of the section. (15*b*)

(15*a*) R. v. Reynolds, 11 Can. Cr. Cas., 312.
(15*b*) R. v. Shepherd, 6 Can. Cr. Cas., 463.

By the Criminal Code Amendment Act, 1907, this section, — 225, — has been repealed and re-enacted as follows: — "225. — A common bawdy house is a house room or set of rooms or place of any kind kept for purposes of prostitution, or occupied or resorted to by one or more persons for such purposes."

A woman reputed to be a prostitute living alone in a house and receiving men for the purpose of acts of prostitution with herself alone, but not allowing other women to resort there for a similar purpose is not thereby guilty of keeping a bawdy house. (16)

A prosecution against the keeper of a common bawdy-house may be brought either by indictment or under the Summary Trials procedure, or the keeper may be charged as a vagrant under the Summary convictions procedure; and neither the provision for summary trial nor that for summary conviction abrogates the right of the Crown to bring an indictment. The different methods of procedure with the varying penalties, dependent upon the class of tribunal selected, are not inconsistent but are alternative. (17)

Sec. 196. Sec. 226. Common Gaming House defined. Unchanged.

Where the keeper of a cigar store allowed gaming upon his premises and received the " rake-off," a portion of the stakes, in consideration of his supplying refreshments and cigars to the players, the jury may be instructed that such facts are evidence of keeping the place " for gain " so as to constitute the same a common gaming house, although the amount so received was no more than a reasonable remuneration for the articles supplied.

The question in such case is not whether the accused made an actual substantial profit by the gaming, but whether the receipts of his business were increased by sales to persons who resorted to the store for the purpose of gaming. (18)

The proprietor of a place in which the game known as " darts " or in which a cane and ring game is carried on, under conditions which make the chance of the proprietor much more favorable than that of the customers is properly convicted of keeping a gaming house. (19)

It is a question of fact and not of law whether the use of a slot machine for selling cigars, whereby customers obtained, for the one price, a number of cigars varying according to the working of the machine, is or is not a game of chance, a mixed game of chance and skill, or a game of skill only. (20) R. v. Fortier, 7 Can. Cr. Cas., 417; Que. Off. Rep., 15 K. B., 308.

A person who keeps in his shop an automatic slot machine, for use by customers, is, — when its operation involves a game of chance in which the chances are not alike favorable to all,—guilty of using his shop for unlawful gaming under the English Gaming House Act, 1854. (21)

If, in contravention of a regulation of Ontario License Commissioners, games are played in licensed premises, in the absence of the licensee, the latter may be convicted. (22)

Proof that a game with cards, dice and "chips" was being played by several people seated at tables, each player procuring the "chips" from the accused, the proprietor of the place, and handing over to him the money therefor, and that the accused said that the game was "fan tan," and that he was "doing well out of it," is evidence that the game was a game of chance and that the place was being kept by the accused for gain under the sections of the Code relating to common gaming houses. (23)

Proof that persons, other than those resident at or belonging to the house, room or place, at which the proprietor operates for gain a game of chance or a mixed game of chance and skill, were in attendance there and participated in such game is evidence that such persons "resorted" to such place for the purpose of playing such game, and of the place being a common gaming house. (24)

The publication in a newspaper of an advertisement soliciting bets to be placed upon horse races and also giving the results from day to day of the races is illegal; and the newspaper proprietor is guilty, under section 197 (d) — now section 227(d), — of the Code, of the indictable offence of using the newspaper office for the purpose of facilitating the making of bets upon horse races and of keeping a common betting house. (25)

The manager of a football coupon competition, (being a means of receiving money as the consideration for a promise to pay money on the event of football matches), published in a newspaper, — as an essential part of his scheme, — an advertisement of prizes offered to and the rules to be observed and amounts to be paid by intending competitors, who were directed to fill in coupon sheets or forms appended to the advertisement, and to send them, with the amounts payable, to an address in Holland. He also published, in the same newspaper, lists of the prize winners in previous competitions. The office of the newspaper was opened and kept for the purpose of the competition. Held that there was evidence that the manager of the competition was a person using the office of the newspaper for the purpose of money being received by him as the consideration of the promise to pay money on the event of a game within the meaning of section 1 of the English Betting Act, 1853, and that the registered proprietor of the newspaper was a person knowingly and wilfully permitting the office to be used as aforesaid within the meaning of section 3 of the Act. (26)

It has been held, in England, that any person publishing an advertisement, whereby it is made to appear that an office is used for the purpose of a coupon competition, being a scheme whereby money is received as the consideration for a promise to pay money on the event of a football match, is liable to the penalty mentioned in section 7 of the English Betting Act 1853. (27) It was also held that any person publishing an advertisement whereby it is made to appear that any person will, on application, give information or advice with respect to a coupon competition, — being a scheme whereby, through the medium of an office, money is received as a consideration for a promise to pay money on the event of a football match, — is liable to the penalty mentioned in section 3 of the English Betting Act, 1874. (28)

The proprietor of a newspaper issued, with each copy of the paper, a coupon, so that the purchaser might fill in the names of the probable winners of certain football matches, a prize of twenty pounds sterling being given for the most accurate forecast. No money was paid except the price of the newspaper and any competitor, desiring to send in more than one estimate, could do so by obtaining additional copies of the paper. By far the greater number of copies were sold to the public through agents and not at the newspaper office. The appellant purchased copies of the newspaper at the newspaper office and filled in and returned the coupons to the office. Held that if the money was in fact received for the coupons and not merely for the newspaper, the proprietor had committed the offence under section 1 of the English Betting Act, 1853, of having opened, kept and used an office for the purpose of money being received in consideration of an undertaking to pay money on a contingency relating to a game. In an English case, the defendants were charged with unlawfully using certain premises, occupied by a social club, for the purpose of betting therein with persons resorting thereto, and with keeping a common gaming house, — the defendants being respectively the chairman and secretary of the club, and the betting being exclusively with other members of the club. It appeared that the varions members were not betting with one another indiscriminately, but were divided into two classes, the defendants being the bookmakers and the others going there to bet with them. On many occasions the defendants occupied the same places, sat at the same table, and used the tape list. Held that there was evidence to go to the jury in support of the charge. (30)

Mere acquiescence by a director in prohibited acts of a corporation is not such a participation therein as will constitute him an aider or abetter, or make him criminally liable as a party for the illegal acts of the corporation. The lease by an incorporated jockey club of the betting privileges on the race tracks of the club with the knowledge and acquiescence of the Club's president in the making of the lease and in the use of the covered betting enclosure by bookmakers exercising its privileges, but without the president taking part otherwise in the betting or in the management of the enclosure, does not involve the club's president in criminal liability as the keeper of a common betting house under sections 197 and 198 (now sections 227 and 228) of the Code. (30*a*)

Sec. 197. Sec. 227. Common Betting House defined. Unchanged.

The exemption contained in sub section 2 of section 235, post, as to bets made on the race course of an incorporated association during a race meeting is not to be read into sections 227 and 228, as to the offence of keeping a common betting house.

It is an offence to keep a common betting house whether or not it is kept on the race course of an incorporated association, and is operated only during the actual progress of a race meeting. (31)

Sec. 202. Sec. 233. Frequenting Bucket shops, — (places in which gaming in stocks is carried on). Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to one year's imprisonment who habitually frequents any office or place wherein the making or signing or procuring to be made or signed, or the negociating or bargaining for the making or signing of such prohibited contracts of sale or purchase is carried on. Unchanged. (32*a*)

It has been held, in Montreal, that a broker, who acts as such for two parties, — one a buyer and the other a seller, — without having any pecuniary interest in the transaction, beyond his fixed commission, and without any guilty knowledge on his part of the intention of the contracting parties to gamble in stocks or merchandise, is not liable to prosecution under section 201 (a) and (b) (now section 231*a* and b) of the Criminal Code of Canada, nor as accessory under section 61 (now sec. 69) of the Code. (32*b*).

But it has since been held, in Ontario, that a person, who acts as agent for another in managing a branch office for gambling transactions within this section, (231 of the new Act) knowing that there was no intention of transferring any property or title to property, is liable to conviction as an accessory, although his sole interest in the transactions was in the commissions paid to him for effecting the same; and such agent is also liable under section 232 of the new Act, as the keeper of a common gaming house; and, upon a speedy trial, is liable to imprisonment for five years, under section 1052 of the Code. (33)

It is open for the jury, or the judge trying the case without a jury, to find, notwithstanding the form of the papers, passed between the parties, that there was a secret understanding between them that there should be no delivery of the stocks or property, but payment of differences only. (34)

Article 2920 of the Revised Statutes of Quebec, and the 53 Vic. c. 36, (Que.), in amendment thereof, made provision for the holding of certain bazaars and lotteries in aid of certain religious and charitable establishments. But it was held that this legislation was ultra vires the Quebec Legislature and an unconstitutional encroachment upon the powers of the Dominion Parliament, which alone has the power to legislate on the subject of lotteries; and the Quebec statutes have since been repealed by the 59 Vic., (Que.), c. 26. A sweepstake for money prizes in respect of winning horses in a steeplechase is, where the person suffering it to be drawn makes a profit, an unlawful lottery. (38)

Where tickets for a drawing by lot are sold as part of a scheme for the disposal of goods and the holder of the winning ticket, by the conditions of the drawing, must shoot a turkey at fifty yards in five shots in order to win the prize, such a condition does not necessarily take the case out of the lottery sections of the Criminal Code. It is a question for the jury whether such condition was imposed as a contest of skill, or as a mere pretence in evasion of the lottery law. (39)

A competition for a prize offered for the nearest estimates of the number of votes to be cast at a coming election and the sale of certificates of admission thereto in consideration of money paid or services performed is not a lottery under section 205 (now 236) of the Code. (40)

The advertizing by a firm of shopkeepers in a newspaper of a prize to be awarded, free of cost, to the one of their customers who could make the nearest guess to the number of their cash sales on a given day is not a violation of the provisions of the Criminal Code prohibiting lotteries. (41)

Where a body of students march upon a sidewalk in files of four with arms linked, any of them may be properly convicted of an offence against a municipal by-law prohibiting "walking or marchin a group or near to each other on the sidewalk so as to obstruct a free passage for foot passengers," although sufficient space reremained for persons walking in single file to pass thereon. (45)

There is no legal right at common law for persons to assemble in any numbers upon a highway and to remain assembled there as long as they please to the detriment of others having equal rights of passage over the highway. And it has been held in Nova Scotia that an assembly of a religious character, for instance, the Salvation Army, is subject to this rule, and that members thereof who hold a religious service on a town street and thereby collect a crowd which blocks the free passage of the street are properly convicted under a statute prohibiting persons from standing in a group or near to each other on the street so as to obstruct a free passage for carriages, etc. (46)

It has been held, however, that the mere fact of holding a meeting in a street does not necessarily imply the impeding or incommoding of peaceable passengers, and proof of actual impeding or incommoding is essential to justify a conviction. The law of vagrancy does not apply to persons of general good character, but is intended to apply to loose idle and disorderly persons only. (47)

Slandering a person in a restaurant, open to the public, is not an offence under Vagrancy clauses of the Code, either as an obstruction to passengers by using insulting language or as a disturbance incommoding passengers. (48)

A restaurant open to the public is not a public place within the meaning of the section. (49)

Medical attendance and remedies are necessaries within the meaning of sections 241 and 242; and any one legally liable to provide such is criminally responsible for neglect to do so, as well under the common law as under the Criminal Code. Conscientious belief that it is against the teachings of the Bible and therefore wrong to have recourse to medical attendance and remedies is no excuse. (52)

A parent who omits to provide his child, under sixteen, with medicines and medical treatment when reasonably necessary and when the parent is able to provide the same, is thereby guilty of criminal neglect, amounting to manslaughter, if the death of the child is the result thereof; and a conscientious objection to medical treatment because of a belief in the doctrines of "Christian Scientists," is not a lawful excuse for the omission. (53)

When the husband's failure to support his wife caused no injury to the wife's health, she having been maintained by the charity of friends on the husband's default, such default does not give rise to criminal responsibility under sections 210 and 215 (now sections 242 and 244) of the Code. (54)

Slightly changed.

On a trial for murder, if the fact of the death of a human being is established, by direct proof, and the remains of the dead man have been so destroyed by fire that direct identification is impossible, circumstantial evidence is admissible to prove the identity of the remains and also the identity of the person who caused the death. While the fact of death must always be established by direct proof, the fact of the killing by the defendant as alleged may be proved by circumstantial evidence supporting the charge beyond a reasonable doubt. (59)

An indictment charged a person with encouraging persons unknown to murder the sovereigns and rulers of Europe. Held that the indictment was good, as a sufficiently well-defined class was referred to by the words "sovereigns of Europe." (59*a*)

Where two persons are jointly indicted for murder and one pleads "guilty" and the other "not guilty"; and the trial, upon the latter plea, results in an acquittal, leave should be given to the other accused to change his plea to one of "not guilty," if the circumstances are such that the verdict of acquittal already given in respect of the one would be inconsistent with the guilt of the other. conveyed under lawful arrest and the prisoners all struggled to obtain revolvers, two of them succeeding in doing so, whereupon all of them attempted to effect a forcible escape during which one of the peace officers was shot dead by one of the prisoners but by which of them is unknown, proof that the defendant had one of the revolvers in the melee and had ordered another of the peace officers present to "give up" immediately after another of the prisoners had told the defendant to "give it to him" is, with such facts, sufficient evidence of a conspiracy by the three prisoners for an unlawful purpose, to wit, the escape, and of a common design to use for its accomplishment any amount of violence and force; and a conviction of the defendant for murder is, therefore, proper without proof that he fired the fatal shot.

It was proper for the trial Judge to instruct the jury that "where all the parties proceed with the intention to commit an unlawful act and with the resolution or determination to overcome all opposition by force, that if by reason of such resolution one of the party is guilty of homicide, his companions would be liable to the penalty which he has incurred."

The shooting of the constable by one of the conspirators, in the prosecution of such common purpose was an act which was or ought to have been known to be a probable consequence of prosecuting such purpose, and each of the conspirators become under Criminal Code, sec. 61 (2), — now section 69 (2), — a party to the homicide. (61)

Where the accused charged with murder goes into the witness box on his own behalf, and then and there for the first time makes known his claim that he was a mere eye-witness of the murder, and that the principal witness for the prosecution had committed the deed, the trial judge may properly direct the jury that they may draw inferences from the prisoner's previous silence on the matter of such claim, and consider whether the facts in evidence shewed the motive for such silence to be founded on a consciousness of innocence, ex. gr., that he would thereby the better establish his innocence, or to be a design founded on a knowledge of guilt to advance a false defence at the last moment, and to take the prosecution by surprise.

Even if the charge were erroneous in that respect, a new trial should not be granted if there was ample evidence of guilt apart from that question, and if, in the opinion of the Court of Appeal, no substantial wrong or miscarriage was occasioned by the error. (62)

Sec. 242. Sec. 274. Wounding. Unchanged.

Upon an indictment for wounding by shooting with intent to disable, under section 241 (now section 273) of the Code, the jury is properly instructed that, if such intent is negatived, the accused may still be convicted of the simple offence of wounding under section 242 (now section 274), if the jury find that he pointed a loaded gun, and fired it at another and either knew or ought to have known that the gun was loaded. A verdict of "guilty, without malicious intent," upon such an indictment, was held to be a verdict of guilty of such lesser offence. (67)

But this was reversed in appeal, — the Supreme Court of Canada holding that the verdict of "guilty without malicious intent" was equivalent to a verdict of acquittal of the charge laid in the indictment, namely, that of wounding with intent to disable. (68)

Upon a charge of shooting with intent to do grievous bodily harm, in which the plea is self-defence, it is a question for the jury whether the assault upon the accused, which had provoked the shooting, had ended or was still being pursued. It is a mis-direction to charge the jury that, to support a plea of self-defence to the infliction of grievous bodily harm, they must find that the accused could not otherwise have preserved himself from death or grievous bodily harm, it being sufficient justification if the accused had a reasonable apprehension of grievous bodily harm to himself from the violence of the assault upon him and if he believed on reasonable grounds that he could not preserve himself from grievous bodily harm otherwise than by inflicting grievous bodily harm upon his assailant. Sec. 269. Sec. 301. Carnally knowing girl under fourteen. Unchanged.
Sec. 270. Sec. 302. Attempt to carnally know girl under fourteen. Unchanged.

The expression "not being his wife" used in section 301 is an exception, and if required to be stated in the indictment, and negatived, the omission thereof would be a defect which could be remedied by the Judge by an amendment under section 889; so that, where no objection is taken by the defendant before pleading, the omission of the words will not invalidate a conviction upon such an indictment. The objection thereto should be taken, by the defendant's counsel, before plea, by demurrer or by a motion to quash; and then the Court could have amended the indictment, and, not having done so, it was not open to him to take it subsequently. (73)

An accused was committed for trial upon a charge of "unlawful assault with intent to carnally know." On the accused wishing to make election for speedy trial, the Crown contended that the charge was not one in which a speedy trial could be had, as it not only amounted, by its description in the warrant of commitment, to the charge of "attempt to commit rape," but it was the Crown's intention to indict the accused for this offence. Held that though the charge as worded in the commitment might be either that of "assault with intent to commit an indictable offence," punishable under section 263 (now section 296), and, as such, capable of speedy trial, or that of "attempt to commit rape," punishable under section 268 (now section 300) and, as such, not capable of speedy trial, the Court refused to receive the accused's election of speedy trial and left the responsibility with the Crown of preferring an indictment for the more serious charge. (74)

Where the depositions on which the indictment for rape is founded shew that the prosecutrix's statements, relied upon by the Crown to shew that a complaint was made, were not spontaneous, but made in answer to questions by the police officer, evidence of her answers so made is inadmissible against the accused. (75)

On a charge of rape, evidence is inadmissible, for the defence, of the general bad reputation of the prosecutrix for unchastity. (76)

OFFENCES AGAINST CONJUGAL RIGHTS.

Sec. 275. Sec. 307. Bigamy defined. Bigamy is, —

(b) the act of a person who goes through a form of marriage in any part of the world with any person whom he or she knows to be married; or

(c) the act of a person who goes through a form of marriage with more than one person simultaneously, or on the same day.

2. The fact that the parties would, if unmarried, have been incompetent to contract marriage shall be no defence upon a prosecution for bigamy.

3. No one commits bigamy by going through a form of marriage, —

(a) if he or she in good faith and on reasonable grounds believes his wife or her husband to be dead; or

(b) if his wife or her husband has been continually absent for seven years then last past and he or she is not proved to have known that his wife or her husband was alive at any time during those seven years; or

(c) if he or she has been divorced from the bond of the first marriage; or

(d) if the former marriage has been declared void by a court of competent jurisdiction.

4. No person shall be liable to be convicted of bigamy in respect of having gone through a form of marriage in a place not in Canada, unless such person, being a British subject resident in Canada, leaves Canada with intent to go through such form of marriage.

Meaning Unchanged. (77*a*)

5. Every form of marriage shall for the purpose of this section be valid, notwithstanding any act or default of the person charged with bigamy, if it is otherwise a valid form.

Sec. 276. Sec. 308. Punishment of bigamy. Unchanged.

A guilty mind is an essential ingredient of the offence of bigamy, and if a woman, after obtaining information that the man with whom she has gone through a form of marriage is already married, leaves him and marries another man, her honest and reasonable belief that the man she left had a wife living, is a good defence to a charge of bigamy; and it seems that the fact of such honest and reasonable belief may be found from the circumstances of the case, without strict proof of the man's former marriage. (78)

Where both parties to a marriage in Canada are of Canadian domicile, but afterwards become bona fide domiciled in a foreign country, a decree of divorce obtained in the foreign country, while they are domiciled there, will be valid in Canada as a defence to a prosecution of either of them for bigamy in having re-married.

A decree of divorce granted by a court foreign to the domicile of both parties, pronounced by consent or collusion of the parties both temporarily within its jurisdiction and which recites due proof of Sec. 278. Sec. 310. Polygamy. Unchanged.

It has recently been held by a district magistrate in the province of Quebec, that a man who, after going through the form of marriage with a woman known to him to be the wife of another man, cohabits with her in open continuous adultery in Canada claiming to be her second husband and falsely pretending that she had obtained a divorce, is properly convicted of unlawfully cohabiting in conjugal union by an illegal form of contract and by mutual consent, contrary to the provisions of the Code prohibiting polygamy. (80)

The accused, in this case, may have been guilty of bigamy, if his pretension that the woman had obtained a divorce from her first husband were shewn to be false to his (the accused's) knowledge; but, in view of several previous decisions to the effect that section 278 (now section 310) of the Code was intended to apply to Mormons, the district magistrate's holding does not seem to be correct. (a) takes or entices away or detains any child; or (b) receives or harbours any such child, knowing it to have been unlawfully taken, enticed away or detained with intent aforesaid.

2. Nothing in this section shall extend to any one who gets possession of any child, claiming in good faith a right to the possession of the child.

Slightly changed, (not in meaning but in the wording), as here set forth.

The Court has power summarily to commit for constructive contempt, notwithstanding sections 322, 324 and 325 of the Code, as to fair reports of court proceedings and fair comment upon public affairs; but the Court will not exercise the power where the offence is of a trifling nature, but only when necessary to prevent interference with the course of justice.

A statement in a newspaper editorial to the effect that one of the parties to a pending suit will lose the case, is a contempt of Court.

A statement to the effect that a Judge of the Court having taken an active part in a general election, would have to devote his spare moments to schooling himself into forgetfulness of his political career, is not a contempt.

A statement to the effect that the spectacle of such Judge trying election cases is not edifying and that it does not produce a good impression in the public mind, is not a contempt.

A party to a suit has a status to move to commit a stranger to the suit for constructive contempt, although no affidavit is filed by him or on his behalf to the effect that the alleged contempt is calculated to prejudice him in his suit.

Any person may bring to the notice of the Court any alleged contempt; but, unless the offence is of so serious a nature as to make it necessary to inflict summary punishment in order to prevent interference with the course of justice, there should be no committal. (85)

Where a jury disagreed upon the trial of an indictment and a new jury was ordered for another sitting the case is in the meantime still a pending one; and improper and partial newspaper comments thereon passed by one of the accused will constitute a contempt of court by him. The court in imposing sentence upon a newspaper proprietor for a contempt of court contained in a newspaper comment may, in addition to the infliction of a fine and imprisonment, require the accused to find sureties to keep the peace and to refrain from publishing further articles reflecting on the pending case and may order imprisonment for six months or until security is sooner given or until the pending cause is sooner ended. (86) R. v. Charlier, 6 Can. Cr. Cas., 486; Que. Off. Rep., 12 K. B., 385.

It has been held, in England, that the High Court of Justice there has jurisdiction to grant a writ of attachment against a person who publishes improper comments with reference to the defendant in a case, pending before justices, which may possibly, though not necessarily, come before the High Court. (87)

A reception order having been made under the Imperial Lunacy Act, 1890, proceedings were taken under section 49 of the Act for the examination of the patient by two medical practitioners appointed by the Commissioners in Lunacy with a view to his discharge. Reports were made by two medical practitioners under the section, but the Commissioners refused to order the discharge of the patient. A newspaper subsequently published the two reports in an article commenting on the detention of the patient. A day before the publication of the reports an application was made under section 116 of the Act for the appointment of a receiver of the patient's property during his detention, and the reports of the two doctors were made exhibits to an affidavit in these proceedings. Neither the publisher nor the editor of the newspaper knew of these proceedings under section 116, nor did the articles discuss such proceedings. Upon an application to commit for contempt of Court in publishing the reports of the doctors and the article, it was held that, as the proceedings under sec. 49 were concluded, it was not a contempt of Court to publish the reports and the article, and that, as to the pending proceedings under sec. 116, there was no evidence that the respondents knew of those proceedings, and they were therefore not guilty of contempt. (88)

Where a person having been charged before the petty sessions with an indictable offence, triable only at the assizes, matter is published in a newspaper tending to interfere with the fair trial of the charge, the High Court has jurisdiction to attach the publisher of such matter, for contempt of court, notwithstanding that, at the time of the publication the person had not yet been committed for trial. (23)

Sec. " -1. Sec. " -1. All tame living creatures, whether tame by nature or wild by nature and tamed, shall be capable of being stolen: Provided that tame pigeons shall be capable of being stolen so long only as they are in a dovecot or on their owner's land.

Sec. " -3.	Sec. " -3.
Sec. " -4.	Sec. " -4.
Sec. " -6.	Sec. " -5.	Wild creatures in enjoyment of their natural liberty. Unchanged.
Sec. " -7.	Sec. " -6.	Parts of living creatures. Unchanged.

It has been held, in England, that ferrets are "animals kept in a state of confinement," under sections 21 and 22 of the Imperial Larceny Act, 1861, and that, therefore, persons, resisting apprehension by a police officer, who finds them in possession of a ferret, which they knew to be stolen are guilty of murder, if such resistance on their part results in the police officer's death. (28)

Sec. 304-5.	Sec. 346.	Oysters capable of being stolen. Unchanged.
Sec. 305.	Sec. 347.	Theft defined. Theft or stealing is the act of fraudulently and without color of right taking, or fraudulently and without color of right converting to the use of any person anything capable of being stolen, with intent,—
Sec. " (a)		(a) to deprive the owner or any person having any special property or interest therein temporarily or absolutely of such thing or of such property or interest; or
Sec. " (b)		(b) to pledge the same or deposit it as security; or
Sec. " (c)		(c) to part with it under a condition as to its return which the person parting with it may be unable to perform; or
Sec. " (d)		(d) to deal with it in such a manner that it cannot be restored in the condition in which it was at the time of such taking and conversion.
Sec. " -4.	Sec. " -2.	Theft is committed when the offender moves the thing or causes it to move or to be moved, or begins to cause it to become moveable, with intent to steal it.
Sec. " -2.	Sec. " -3.	The taking or conversion may be fraudulent, although effected without secrecy or attempt at concealment. Unchanged. (29)

(28) R. v. Sherriff, 20 Cox C. C., 334.

(29) Except in the arrangement of the clauses, and by the omission of paragraphs 5 and 6 of the old section to make sec. 348 infra.

2ND EDIT.	REVISED STATUTES 1906	REMARKS

Sec. " -3. Sec. " -4. It is immaterial whether the thing converted was taken for the purpose of conversion, or whether it was, at the time of the conversion, in the lawful possession of the person converting. Unchanged. (29)

Sec. " -5. Sec. 348. Agent pledging goods entrusted to him for sale; and Servant feeding horse contrary to master's orders. No factor or agent shall be guilty of theft by pledging or giving a lien on any goods or document of title to goods entrusted to him for the purpose of sale or otherwise for any sum of money not greater than the amount due to him from his principal at the time of pledging or giving a lien on the same, together with the amount of any bill of exchange accepted by him for or on account of his principal.

Slightly changed in the wording.

Sec. " -6. Sec. " -2. Any servant, contrary to the orders of his master, taking from his possession any food for the purpose of giving the same or having the same given to any horse or other animal belonging to or in the possession of his master, shall not, by reason thereof be guilty of theft.

Slightly changed, in the wording.

Fish taken at sea are in the possession of the owner of the smack by which they are taken, as soon as they are taken, and are consequently the subject of theft by taking. A., — who was employed as a skipper of a smack, used for trawling outside territorial waters, — during the course of a fishing voyage, put into port, sold the fish he had taken, and appropriated the proceeds to his own use. Held, properly convicted of theft. (30)

The appropriation for purposes of loading and shipment, of a railway car intended by the railway company for another person who had a prior statutory right to be supplied with a car, is not a fraudulent taking or conversion of the car from such other person, if the latter had not received notice from the railway company that the car had been assigned to him. An applicant for a railway car under the Manitoba Grain Act (Can.) does not acquire a temporary "special property or interest" in the car within section 347 of the Code, until he is informed of its assignment to him. (31)

(30) R. v. Maddison, 20 Cox C. C., 204.
(31) R. v. McElroy, 11 Can. Cr. Cas., 34; 6 Terr. R., 10.

2ND EDIT.	REVISED STATUTES 1906	REMARKS

An unqualified instruction to the jury on a prosecution for theft against the finder of goods, that the pledge of same by him constitutes theft, is a misdirection entitling the accused to a new trial. Whether or not the conversion by the finder is theft depends upon the attendant circumstances, such as the class of goods, the place of finding, the interval between the finding and conversion, and the probability of being able to discover the owner. (32)

On a charge of stealing goods from a store, evidence of the finding, in prisoner's house, of the goods and of the keys fitting the store doors, and of the fact that, at the time of the alleged theft, the goods were in the store exposed for sale and had not been sold, is sufficient to put the onus upon the prisoner of accounting for his possession of the goods. (32*a*)

Where the prisoner was charged, before the County Court Judges' Criminal Court, with unlawfully stealing goods, but the charge did not allege that the offence was committed fraudulently and without color of right, it was held, affirming the decision appealed from, that the offence, of which the prisoner was accused, was sufficiently stated in the charge. THE DOMINION ELECTIONS ACT.

The Dominion Elections Act, 1900, — (63-64 Vic., c. 12), — certain sections of which are set out at pages 519-524 of the Author's second Edition of the Criminal Code, — is repealed, and the Dominion Elections Act, now in force, is chapter 6 of the Revised Statutes, 1906, the principal provisions of which, with reference to the forgery, etc., of ballot papers, and with reference to personation and other offences at elections, are the following:—

Forgery of ballot papers and ballot box frauds, etc. Sec. 255 enacts that "Every one who —

(a) forges, counterfeits, fraudulently alters, defaces or fraudulently destroys a ballot paper, or the initials of the deputy returning officer signed thereto, or —

(b) without authority supplies a ballot paper to any person, or—

(c) fraudulently puts into a ballot box a paper other than the ballot paper which he is authorized by law to put in, or —

(d) fraudulently takes a ballot paper out of the polling station, or —

(e) without due authority destroys, takes, opens, or otherwinse interferes with a ballot box or book or packet of ballot papers then in use for the purpose of the election, or —

(a) forges, counterfeits, fraudulently alters, defaces or fraudstamping of ballots papers, or uses any such stamp for any purpose other than the stamping of ballot papers, or not being a returning officer, has in his possession any such stamp or any counterfeit or imitation thereof, or —

(g) being a deputy returning officer, fraudulently puts, otherwise than as authorized by this Act, his initials on the back of any paper purporting to be or capable of being used as a ballot paper at an election, or —

(h) with fraudulent intent, prints any ballot paper or what purports to be or is capable of being used as a ballot paper at an election, or —

(i) being authorized by the returning officer to print the ballot papers for an election, with fraudulent intent prints more ballot papers than he is authorized to print, or —

(j) attempts to commit any offence specified in this section, — is guilty of an indictable offence, and shall be liable, if he is a returning officer, deputy returning officer or other officer engaged in the election, to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and not less than three hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years and not less than one year, with or without hard labor, in default of paying such fine, — and, if he is any other person, to a fine not less than one hundred dollars and not exceeding five hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years and not less than six months, with or without hard labor, in default of paying fine."

Secrecy of Voting. Section 258 contains special provisions for ensuring the secrecy of voting and for the punishment of any interference therewith.

No flags nor party badges to be used at elections. Section 260 makes it an offence (punishable, on indictment or summarily by fine not exceeding $100 or imprisonment not exceeding three months, or both, in the discretion of the Court), for any person to furnish any party flag, etc., or any ribbon or badge, with intent that the same shall be carried, or worn or used, on or for eight days prior to an election day, for distinguishing the bearers or wearers thereof as supporters of any candidate, or for any person, during such period, to carry, or wear or use any such party flag, etc., or any such ribbon or badge.

Bribery. — Bribery is defined by section 265, and is thereby made indictable and punishable by imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months; and a person guilty thereof is, moreover, rendered liable to forfeit $200 and costs to any one who sues therefor. See sections 266, et seq., as to other corrupt practices, etc., at elections.

Personation at Elections. Section 272 enacts that "Every person is guilty of personation and liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars and not less than fifty dollars, and to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years and not less than three months, who, at an election, —

(a) applies for a ballot paper in the name of some other person, whether such name is that of a person living or dead, or of a fictitious person; or —

(b) having voted once at any such election, applies, at the same election, for a ballot paper in his own name." And, by section 273, it is enacted that "Every person who aids, abets, counsels or procures the commission by any person of the offence of personation shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding two hundred dollars and not less than one hundred dollars, and to imprisonment for a term of two years and not less than three months."

See, also, sections 274 and 275 of the Act as to other offences of the same nature.

By expressly enacting that every person, who, at an election, applies for a ballot paper in the name of some other person, is guilty of personation, section 272 of our Dominion Elections Act follows the view taken by Judge Blackburn in the English case of R. v. Hague, cited at p. 523 of the Author's second edition of the Criminal Code. (40)

Procedure. By section 284 of the Act, it is provided that, (except in cases of indictable offences and offences made punishable on summary conviction), all penalties and forfeitures imposed by the Act shall be recoverable or enforceable with full costs of suit by any person who sues therefor by action of debt or information, in any Court of competent jurisdiction in the province in which the cause of action arises, and that, in default of payment of the amount which the offender is condemned to pay within the period fixed by the Court, the offender shall be imprisoned for any term less than two years, unless such penalty and costs are sooner paid; but, by section 285, it is provided that no action or information for the recovery of any such penalty or forfeiture shall be commenced unless the person suing therefor has given security to the amount of $50 for the defendants costs of defence.

Section 301 of the Act provides that the provisions of Part XVI of the Criminal Code shall apply to all proceedings under the Act against any person or persons accused of personation.

By section 306 of the Act, it is enacted that no indictment for corrupt practices shall be tried before any Court of Quarter Sessions or General Sessions; and section 583 (j), post, of the new Criminal Code provides that no Court of general or quarter sessions has power to try any indictment for bribery or undue influence, personation or other corrupt practice under the Dominion Elections Act.

Section 307 of the Dominion Elections Act provides that every prosecution for an indictable offence under the Act, and every action, suit or proceeding for any pecuniary penalty given by the Act to the person suing therefor shall be commenced within one year next after the act committed and not afterwards (unless the prosecution is prevented by the withdrawal or absconding of the defendant out of the jurisdiction of the Court), and, when commenced, shall be proceeded with and carried on without wilful delay.

FRAUD AND FRAUDULENT DEALING WITH PROPERTY.

Sec. 362. Sec. 412. Obtaining passage by false ticket. Unchanged.

Sec. 364. Sec. 413. Official destroying or falsifying book or valuable security. Unchanged.

Sec. 365. Sec. 414. False prospectus statement, etc., by promoters, directors, etc. Unchanged.

Sec. 366. Sec. 415. Officer or clerk destroying or falsifying book or valuable security, or making or concurring in making any false entry in any book, etc. Unchanged, in meaning.

In an English case taken under the Imperial Falsification of Accounts Act, 1875, section 1, the accused was employed in Paris to receive money on account of his employers in London. It was his duty to pay money so received into a bank, to enter on slips an account of all such sums, and to send those slips to London. A cash account book was kept in London into which those slips were entered by one of the prisoner's employees. The accused received various sums of money which he kept, and intentionally omitted from the slips sent to London, knowing that entries omitted on the slips would likewise be omitted from the cash account book kept in London as, in fact, they were. Held, (Kennedy J. and Channell J. doubting), that the accused was properly convicted, of omitting and concurring in omitting the entries in the cash account book in London, and that, as the offence was completed in London, where the slips were received, the English Court in London had jurisdiction to try the case. (41)

Sec. 367. Sec. 416. False statement or return by public officer. Unchanged.

THE BANK ACT.

The provisions of the new Bank Act, (R. S., 1906, c. 29), relating to returns and statements to be made by Banks, are sections 112, 113, 114, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 153, 154, 155, 156 and 157; which sections are to the following effect:—

Monthly Returns and Penalty for not making same. "Monthly Returns shall be made by the bank to the Minister, (42), in the form set forth in schedule D of this Act.

(41) R. v. Oliphant. 74 L. J., K. B., 591; [1905] 2 K. B., 67.

(42) "Minister" means, according to the Interpretation section of the Bank Act, the Minister of Finance and Receiver General. (See sec. 2, of the Bank Act).

2. Such returns shall be made up and sent in within the first fifteen days of each month, and shall exhibit the condition of the bank on the last juridical day of the month last preceding.

3. Such returns shall be signed by the chief accountant and by the president or vice-president, or the director then acting as president, and by the manager, cashier or other principal officer of the bank at its chief place of business." (Sec. 112 of the Bank Act).

And by section 147 of the Act it is provided that every Bank which neglects to make up and send to the Minister, within the first fifteen days of any month any such monthly return shall incur a penalty of fifty dollars for each and every day after the expiration of such time, during which the bank neglects to make and send in such return.

Special Returns and Penalty for not making same. "The Minister may also call for special returns from any bank, whenever, in his judgment, they are necessary to afford a full and complete knowledge of its condition.

2. Such special returns shall be made and signed in the manner and by the persons specified in the last preceding section.

3. Such special returns shall be made and sent in within thirty days from the date of the demand therefor by the Minister: Provided that the Minister may extend the time for sending such special returns for such further period, not exceeding thirty days, as he thinks expedient." (Sec. 112 of the Bank Act). And, by sec. 148 of the Act, it is provided that every Bank which neglects to make and send in any such special return within thirty days from the date of the demand therefor by the Minister, or, if such time is extended by the Minister, within such extended time, not exceeding thirty days as the Minister may allow, shall incur a penalty of five hundred dollars for each and every day such neglect continues.

Annual Returns. — Section 114 requires the Bank, within twenty days after the close of each year, to transmit or deliver to the Minister returns of all dividends remaining unpaid for more than five years, of all drafts or bills of exchange issued by the bank to any person and remaining unpaid for more than five years, and of the names and addresses of its shareholders and the number and value of their respective shares. And by sections 149, 150 and 151 of the Act, it is provided that every bank, which neglects to transmit or deliver to the Minister, within the time aforesaid, any of such annual returns, shall incur a penalty of fifty dollars for each and every day during which such neglect continues.

OTHER OFFENCES AGAINST THE BANK ACT.

Making a false statement in any return, etc. — Sec. 153 enacts that, "The making of any false or deceptive statement in any account, statement, return, report or other document respecting the affairs of the bank is an indictable offence punishable, unless a greater punishment is in any case by law prescribed therefor, by imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years"; and that "every president, vice-president, director, auditor, manager, cashier or other officer of the bank, who (a) prepares, signs, approves or concurs in any such account, statement, return, report or document containing such false or deceptive statement, or (b) uses the same with intent to deceive or mislead any person, shall be held to have wilfully made such false or deceptive statement and shall further be responsible for all damages sustained by any person in consequence thereof."

Director refusing to make calls in case of suspension. — It is enacted by sec. 154 that, — (a) If any suspension of payment in full, in specie or Dominion notes, of all or any of the notes or other liabilities of the bank continues for three months after the expiration of the time which under the provisions of the Act, would constitute the Bank insolvent; and (b) if no proceedings are taken under any Act for the winding up of the bank; and (c) if any director of the bank refuses to make or enforce or to concur in the making or enforcing of any call on the shareholders of the bank, to any amount which the directors deem necessary to pay all the debts and liabilities of the bank; such director shall be guilty of an indictable offence, and liable, — (a) to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years; and (b) personally for any damages suffered by any such default.

Officers giving undue preference to any creditor. "Every person who, being the president, vice-president, director, manager, cashier or other officer of the bank, wilfully gives or concurs in giving to any creditor of the bank any fraudulent, undue or unfair preference over other creditors, by giving security to such creditor or by changing the nature of his claim, or otherwise howsoever, is guilty of an indictable offence, and liable, — (a) to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, and (b) for all damages sustained by any person in consequence of such preference." (Sec. 155 of the Bank Act).

Unauthorized use of title of "bank," etc. "Every person assuming or using the title of 'Bank,' 'banking company,' 'banking house,' 'banking association,' or 'banking institution,' without being authorized so to do by this Act, or by some other Act in force in that behalf, is guilty of an offence against this Act." (Sec. 156 of the Bank Act).

Punishment of Offences against the Bank Act. "Every person committing an offence declared to be an offence against this Act, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years, or to both, in the discretion of the Court before which the conviction is had." (Sec. 157 of the Bank Act).

CRIMINAL CODE (resumed)

Sec. 368. Sec. 417. Defrauding Creditors by disposing of property, or failing to keep books of account. Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to a fine of Eight hundred dollars and to one year's imprisonment who, —

Sec. " (a) (a) with intent to defraud his creditors, or any of them,

(i) makes or causes to be made any gift, conveyance, assignment, sale transfer or delivery of his property, or

(ii) removes, conceals or disposes of any of his property; or

Sec. " (b) (b) with the intent that any one shall so defraud his creditors, or any one of them, receives any such property; or Unchanged.

(c) being a trader and indebted to an amount exceeding $1,000, is unable to pay his creditors in full and has not, for five years next before such inability kept such books of account as according to the usual course of any trade or business in which he may have been engaged, are necessary to exhibit or explain his transactions, unless he be able to account for his losses to the satisfaction of the court or judge and to shew that the absence of such books was not intended to defraud his creditors. Added.

A finding that, an insolvent has secreted a part of his property with intent to defraud his creditors, is not supported by evidence merely of a discrepancy between two financial statements made by him a few months apart, and the failure of the insolvent to account for the deficit in his affairs other than as being the result of an expenditure of capital in living expenses. Deception is an essential element of the offence of "undertaking to tell fortunes", under this section, and it has been held by the Court of Appeal for Ontario, that to uphold a conviction for that offence there must be evidence upon which it may be reasonably found that the accused was asserting or representing that he had the power to tell fortunes, with intent that his assertion or representation should be believed and with intent to delude and defraud others. (45)

So, that where the prediction of the future was expressly stipuinlated only to be a delineation made pursuant to rules laid down in published works on palmistry, etc., an acquittal was directed as the express contract negatived any intention to deceive. (46)

Sec. 394. Sec. 444. Conspiracy to defraud. Unchanged.

(44) Paragraphs 3, 4 and 5, here omitted, of the old section 392, are made into clauses (q), (r) and (b) of sec. 335, ante.

(45) R. v. Marcott, 4 Can. Cr. Cas., 437.

(46) R. v. Chilcott, 6 Can. Cr. Cas., 27.

It is a conspiracy to defraud a railway company for an employee of the audit office of the railway to agree with train conductors to sell to them secret information as to the time of special audits of passenger tickets on their trains, which information it was the duty of the accused, as such employee, to keep secret. (47)

Upon a charge of conspiracy to defraud the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. by bribing clerks in the company's employ to illegally and fraudulently disclose information of the secret audits to be made on trains and to furnish such information to conductors to enable them to be prepared for audits when made and to be free at other times to retain fares and to allow passengers to ride free or for a reduced fare, the Court properly rejected evidence of conductors to the effect that if they knew the date of a proposed secret audit, they would communicate it to the conductor, whose train was to be audited, for a purpose other than that of defrauding the company. (48)

It is not error for the trial judge to permit proof of acts of the alleged conspirators to be given in evidence before the agreement to conspire had been established if the latter is in fact proved during the course of the trial. (49)

The defendants were indicted for unlawfully conspiring and agreeing together to deprive one W. G. of the necessaries of life, to wit, proper medical care and nursing, whereby his death was caused. Held that this count did not charge the defendants with a conspiracy to commit any indictable offence known to the law and was properly quashed. A second count charged the defendants with having unlawfully conspired and agreed together to effect the cure of W. G. of a sickness endangering life, by unlawful and improper means, thereby causing his death. Held that this count was equally bad and was properly quashed. (50)

An information laid in general terms charging that the accused did in specified years "conspire with others whose names are unknown by deceit, falsehood and other fraudulent means to defraud the public", sufficiently states an offence under section 394 (now section 444) of the Code to give jurisdiction to a magistrate to hold a preliminary enquiry. To effect an entrance to a dwelling-house by further lifting a partly open window is not a " breaking."

Where an indictment for burglary charges only the breaking and entering with intent, — and does not charge a breaking out, — and the evidence shews that two windows had been disturbed sufficiently to allow of an entrance, one of them being previously closed and the other partly open, but it does not appear by which of them the entrance was made, it is error to instruct the jury that an entrance by either is sufficient, and the misdirection is a substantial wrong to the accused entitling him to a new trial. On an indictment for being unlawfully in a dwelling-house by night with intent to assault, a written verdict of " guilty of being in the house unlawfully, also guilty of assault," is a good verdict of guilty on the charge, as the assault necessarily includes the intent. (59)

To complete the offence of being unlawfully in a dwelling-house with intent to assault, it is sufficient that the intent originated after the entry, and that the assault was threatened by the accused in his efforts to escape from the house after being discovered therein. (60)

Sec. 445. Sec. 486. Forgery of Trade Marks defined. Unchanged.

Appellant asked at respondent's shop for two half pounds of tea, and was supplied with two packets, on the outside of each of which was stamped, in ink, a notice that the weight, including the wrapper, was more than half a pound. The Court upheld the refusal of the magistrates to convict, and held that there had been no false trade description within the meaning of the Act. (72)

An article was sold in packets as "S's patent refined isinglass," preceded by the words "By Her Majesty's Royal Letters Patent" and the Royal coat of arms. On analysis, the contents of the packets were found to be gelatine. An information for unlawfully applying to gelatine a false description, and thereby stating it to be isinglass, also with representing it to be the subject of an existing patent, was rightly dismissed on the ground that isinglass was often used for gelatinous matters, and that the words "patent refined isinglass" was not an untrue description. The foundation of a margarine mixture made in France and imported as "Oleo Margarine," was mixed, in Southampton, with a small percentage of Danish butter and English milk. The finished product was called "Le Dansk," and was sold in England in card boxes under the description "Le Dansk French Factory, Le Dansk, Paris." The conviction was affirmed on the grounds that the words were a false description, and the article was obviously represented as a foreign make when it was not. (74)

At his establishment in Ireland, Lipton sold, under the descriptions, — (1) "Lipton's prime mild cured," and, (2) "First quality smoked ham, own cure at Lipton's market," hams which had been manufactured and cured by him in America. The Court of Queen's Bench (Ireland), held that neither of the descriptions was a false trade description. (75)

At Christies, there was sold a piece of china marked, in the catalogue, "Dresden," but on the lot being reached, the auctioneer said, to the assembled, buyers, "Our attention has been drawn to this lot, and we sell it for what it is worth," and put his pen through the word "Dresden." No attempt was made to shew that the article was Dresden China. The Queens Bench Division set aside the conviction of the auctioneers, and held that the defendant might show in his defence that he acted innocently, although at the time of the sale he had reason to suspect the genuineness of the trade description and so be exonerated. (76)

Sec. 447. Sec. 488. Forgery of a trade mark, or false application of a trade mark, etc., an indictable offence. Unchanged.

2. On any prosecution for forging a trade mark, the burden of proof of the assent of the proprietor shall lie on the defendant. Taken from old sec. 710.

Upon a prosecution for falsely applying an imitation of a trade mark, with intent to defraud, it is open to the accused to attack the validity of the registered trade mark: and if, upon the evidence, it appears that the registered trade mark merely denotes the component parts of the goods, the registration is invalid. mark, without consent of owner.. — Every one is guilty of an indictable offence who, —

(a) wilfully defaces, conceals or removes the trade mark duly registered, or name of another person upon any cask, keg, bottle, siphon, vessel, can, case, or other package, unless such cask, keg, bottle, siphon, vessel, can, case or other package has been purchased from such other person, if the same shall have been so defaced, concealed or removed without the consent of, and with intention to defraud such other person;

(b) being a manufacturer, dealer or trader, or bottler, trades or traffics in any bottle or siphon which has upon it the trade mark duly registered or name of another person, without the written consent of such other person, or without such consent fills such bottle or siphon with any beverage for the purpose of sale or traffic.

2. The using by any manufacturer, dealer or trader or bottler, other than such other person, of any bottle or siphon for the sale therein of any beverage, or the having by any such manufacturer, dealer, trader or bottler upon any bottle or siphon such trade mark or name of such other person, or the buying, selling or trafficking in any such bottle or siphon without such written consent of such other person, or the fact that any junk dealer has in his possession any bottle or siphon having upon it such a trade mark or name without such written consent, shall be prima facie evidence of trading or trafficking within the meaning of paragraph (b) of this section.

Changed as here set forth.

A soda water manufacturer who fills, for the purpose of sale, bottles having the name of another manufacturer permanently placed thereon is guilty of an indictable offence under section 449 (now section 490) of the Code, unless the manufacturer whose name appears on the bottles has given a written consent to such filling. It is not essential to the offence that the name on the bottles should be registered as a trade mark. (78)

B., a mineral water manufacturer made use of bottles moulded with the name and address of W., another manufacturer, but caused a paper label, bearing his own name and address, to be put upon the bottles. The delivery was accompanied by an invoice, which left no doubt that B. was the vender. The magistrates dismissed the summons on the ground that B. had acted innocently. But the Queen's Bench Division held that an intent to defraud the purchaser was not an ingredient in the offence, and that B. was guilty of using a false trade description. (79)

Sec. 450. Sec. 491. Punishments. — Every one guilty of an offence defined in this Part in respect to trade marks or names, or in respect to trade descriptions or false trade descriptions for which no penalty is in this Part otherwise provided, is liable, —

(a) on conviction on indictment,, to two years' imprisonment, with or without hard labor, or to a fine, or to both, imprisonment and fine; and

(b) on summary conviction, to four months' imprisonment, with or without hard labor, or to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars; and, in case of a second or subsequent conviction, to six months' imprisonment, with or without hard labor, or to a fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars.

Even if section 1140, post, of the Code, which limits certain proceedings to certain delays after the offence could be held to apply to a prosecution by indictment, it would not apply to bar a prosecution for the above offence, inasmuch as the offence was a continuing one, the association remaining in active operation under the presidency of the defendant up to the commencement of the prosecution. (86)

2ND EDIT.	REVISED STATUTES 1906	REMARKS

A summary conviction under this section for wilful injury to property should specify the act done and the nature of the property injured, or it will be void for uncertainty. (87)

LIMITATION.

Sec. 511. Sec. 540. Fair claim of Right. — And Sporting. — Nothing in the last preceding section extends to, —

(a) any case where the person acted under a fair and reasonable supposition that he had a right to do the act complained of; or

(b) any trespass, not being wilful and malicious, committed in hunting or fishing, or in the pursuit of game. (86)

Sec. 481. Sec. 541. Color of right. — Partial interest. — Nothing shall be an offence under any of the foregoing provisions of this Part, unless it is done without legal justification or excuse, and without color of right.

2 Where the offence consists in an injury to anything in which the offender has an interest, the existence of such interest, if partial, shall not prevent his act being an offence, and if total, shall not prevent his act being an offence, if done with intent to defraud.

Paragraphs 2 and 3 of old sec. 481.

The "color of right" on the part of the defendant, — which, under this section, removes the criminal character of an act of damage to property,, — means an honest belief in a state of facts, which, if it actually existed, would constitute a legal justification or excuse. Proof of such "color of right" in respect of the destruction of a fence complained of under Part XXXVII of the old Code, (now Part VIII of the new Act) ousts the jurisdiction of the magistrate to summarily try the charge. (88)

Upon an information against a game-keeper, under section 41 of the Imperial Malicious Damage Act 1861, for unlawfully and maliciously killing a dog, it was held to be a defence to show that the defendant did the act in the bona fide belief that it was necessary for the protection of his master's property, and that noth-

Jurisdiction as to prize fights. Every judge of a Superior Court or of a county court, judge of the sessions of the peace, stipendiary magistrate, police magistrate, and commissioner of police of Canada, shall, within the limits of his jurisdiction as such judge, magistrate or commissioner, have all the powers of a justice with respect to offences against provisions of this Act as to prize fights. Added. (13)

Sec. 908. Sec. 607. Preserving order in court. — Every judge of the sessions of the peace, chairman of the court of general sessions of the peace, police magistrate, district magistrate or stipendiary magistrate shall have such and the like powers and authority to preserve order in courts held by them during the holding thereof, and by the like ways and means as now by law are or may be exercised and used in like cases and for the like purposes by any Court in Canada or by the judges thereof, during the sittings thereof.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

There is no doubt that any judicial officer, (including a justice of the peace), when trying a case or performing other judicial acts, has the power to order the removal and exclusion, from the place where the trial is going on, of all persons who interrupt or obstruct the proceedings by disorderly conduct, insulting words, or in any other way; such power being indispensable for the proper exercise of the officer's judicial functions. (14) And if, while any judge of sessions, magistrate or other functionary mentioned in the above section 607, is acting judicially, a person charge him to his face of being corrupt or partial, such judge, magistrate or other functionary may commit the offender for contempt, provided the commitment be made out in writing and be for a time certain. (15)

All the powers given by section 607 to the magistrates therein mentioned are not exerciseable by a single justice, who, — although he may order the removal and exclusion of persons obstructing or interfering, by their disorderly conduct, with the business of the court, — has no power to commit for contempt: (16) except to this extent, that, when holding a preliminary inquiry, — he is, by sec. 678, post, empowered to commit for contempt any person who, being subpœnaed or otherwise present, refuses to be sworn or to answer questions, or refuses to produce any documents or to sign his deposition.

When the exclusion of a person, acting in an improper manner, is ordered, it should be done by means of a written order, or a warrant, under seal, to a constable, authorizing the exclusion, and setting forth the grounds and the particulars of the improper conduct.

And, when a magistrate commits a person for contempt, he must do it by a regular conviction; that is, he must call upon the offending party to defend himself and to show cause why he should not be convicted; and, having allowed him to be heard, he should then, at once, enter an adjudication convicting the party, and awarding the punishment; (17) and he should issue a formal warrant of commitment under his hand and seal, setting out the facts which constitute the contempt. For, although a Superior Court of Criminal Jurisdiction has the right to intervene and prevent any usurpation of jurisdiction by a magistrate, treating as a contempt that which there is no reasonable ground for so treating, it has no power to act as a court of appeal from the magistrate's finding upon a matter of fact, nor to review the facts stated in the warrant of commitment; but, if there be no formal warrant issued, the magistrate must, in that case, establish such facts as will justify his action, if it is questioned. (18)

The commitment must be for a definite period; (19) and there is no power to award hard labor.

The contempt may be shown either by language or manner, and even by language, not offensive in itself, if it be uttered offensively. (20)

For a person to say, in court, of a magistrate, in reference to his judgment, "That is a most unjust remark," is a wilful insult and contempt; (21) and so is a reflection, in any way, upon the magistrate's honesty and impartiality. (22)

A magistrate, who is abused and insulted, while acting judicially, may, instead of exercising, himself, the power of committal for contempt, proceed, if he thinks fit, in a less summary manner, by way of indictment against the offender. (23)

A person who indemnifies another against the consequences of contempt involves himself in the same. (24)

The power of a magistrate to commit for contempt does not exist when the abuse or insult is offered while the magistrate is acting ministerially, (25) nor for contempts committed out of court.

Slanderous words spoken of a magistrate, behind his back, out of court, are not indictable; (27) although, like any other person, the magistrate or justice thus slandered may have a civil action of damages, therefor.

The power of exclusion and the power of punishment for contempt should be exercised with great forbearance, and with the sole view of maintaining proper order and decorum during the performance by a magistrate of his judicial functions. (28)

The importance of maintaining proper respect for and decorum before magistrates and justices in the exercise of their duty should render them careful not to be guilty themselves of any abuse of

A sworn information merely stating that the complainant has just cause to suspect and believe and does suspect and believe that the defendant has committed the offence charged will not alone authorize a justice to issue a warrant to arrest, in the first instance. It is the duty of the justice to enquire into the facts on which the informant's belief is founded, and exercise his own judgment thereon. When the complaint is laid upon information and belief, and the causes of suspicion are not disclosed therein, the justice should examine the complainant and his witnesses ex parte, under oath, touching the grounds of suspicion; and the justice should grant a warrant of arrest only in case he himself entertains the like suspicion as a result of such investigation. (48)

An information and a warrant of arrest thereunder charging the accused as an accessory to the violation of a statute named, without specifying the fact as to which he is alleged to be an accessory, has, — on habeas corpus proceedings taken for the prisoner's discharge while in custody under a verbal remand upon a preliminary enquiry, — been held void for uncertainty, such a warrant charging no offence and neither it nor the remand thereon being validated by section 669, which provides that no irregularity or defect in the substance or form of the warrant shall affect the validity of any proceeding at or subsequent to the preliminary enquiry before the justice. A justice of the peace who issues a warrant of arrest without enquiring into the grounds which the complainant had to suspect the accused, becomes liable towards the latter, under the laws of the province of Quebec, when the complainant was not justified by any serious reasonable or probable ground. (50)

Where the accused found committing a criminal offence is arrested without warrant by a peace officer, and on being brought before a police magistrate a written charge not under oath is read over to him, and he thereupon consents to be tried summarily, the police magistrate has jurisdiction to try the case although no information has been laid under oath. (51)

MANDAMUS

If, when a charge is laid before a justice, there be no reasonable ground for doubting his jurisdiction or the propriety of exercising it, the justice ought to receive the information or complaint and issue the summons or warrant: and if he should refuse, he may be compelled, by mandamus, or, (by virtue of provincial statutes, in some of the provinces) by a rule, in the nature of a mandamus, to do so, by a Superior Court, which is invested with the prerogative right to compel inferior tribunals,— such as justices of the peace and magistrates,—to exercise the jurisdiction which they possess, and to perform any specific act which it is their legal duty to perform. (52)

A mandamus has been issued to justices ordering them to receive an information and complaint. (53) It has also been issued ordering justices to hear a complaint, when they have declined jurisdiction, and to hear and determine a case within their jurisdiction when they have improperly refused or neglected to do so; (54) and it has been held that the court has a discretion as to granting a mandamus to justices to issue a warrant of distress or commitment against a person summarily convicted by them. (55)

In compelling the performance of a public duty by an inferior officer or tribunal, the court will carefully consider whether the duty be of a judicial or of a merely ministerial character. If the act to be performed be of a purely ministerial kind, the court will, by mandamus, compel the specific act to be done, as a matter of course, and in such manner as the court deems lawful. (56) But, if the duty be of a judicial character, a mandamus will be granted only where the judicial officer refuses to perform the duty in any way whatever,—not where he does it in one way rather than in another way. In other words, the court will only insist upon the person who is the judge acting as judge; but it will not dictate to him what his judgment should be. (57)

Before making application for a mandamus or for a rule in the nature of a mandamus, calling upon a justice or a magistrate or other inferior tribunal to hear and judicially determine a matter, care should be taken to distinguish between those cases in which the judicial officer refuses to enter upon the enquiry, through, for instance, some mistaken view, on his part, of the law upon some preliminary point, and the cases in which, after having entered upon the enquiry, the judicial officer has actually arrived at a decision upon the merits, however erroneous that decision may be. (58)

In the former case, jurisdiction is said to be declined, and the court will compel the exercise of jurisdiction; but, in the latter case, the court will not interfere. (59)

Although a justice, when he has reasonable ground for doubting his jurisdiction, will not be compelled to do an act which might subject him to an action; (60) still, if justices reject an application on the erroneous ground that they have no power to grant it, a Superior Court will interfere to set the jurisdiction of the justices in motion, by directing them to hear and determine upon the application. (61)

In other words, where persons exercising an inferior jurisdiction refuse, on a mistaken view of the law, to hear a case, they are held to erroneously decline to exercise their jurisdiction, and in that case they will be compelled to hear and decide it. (62)

The fact that an inferior tribunal abstains from entering upon the merits of a case, in consequence of arriving at a wrong decision upon a preliminary point of law, is regarded as a refusal to hear; and a mandamus to hear and determine will be granted. (63)

A mandamus will be granted to a justice who, by misconstruing a statute, decides improperly that he has no jurisdiction, (64) or, if he refuses to act, from a mistaken view of his jurisdiction, amounting to a declining of it. (65)

Thus, where, on an application being made, to a magistrate, to swear and proceed upon an information and complaint, the magistrate refused to do so, erroneously holding,—upon a misconstruction of certain statutes,—that the offence charged was not indictable, and that he had no jurisdiction to hold a preliminary enquiry in respect thereof, nor even to try it summarily, it was held that a rule in the nature of a mandamus lay to compel him to proceed. (66)

The offence sought to be charged against the defendant in that case was an offence against the provisions of the Ontario Municipal Act, (which fails to impose the punishment therefor), and it was held that the case came under section 138 (now sec. 164) of the Criminal Code, which makes it an indictable offence to disobey any Act of Parliament of Canada or of any Legislature in Canada, by wilfully doing any act which it forbids, and which imposes a punishment of one year's imprisonment, unless some other mode of punishment is expressly provided by law.

Where a magistrate hears and considers an application and bona fide exercises his discretion in refusing to do an act relating to the duties of his office, — such as deciding to refuse to issue a summons for perjury upon an information setting forth facts on which in his judgment no jury would convict, — the court cannot, under these circumstances, grant a mandamus to interfere with his discretion. (67)

Where, in the exercise of a discretionary power to proceed or to refuse to proceed, a magistrate refuses to proceed, the court will not order him to do so; but, of course, in such a case, he must have actually and really exercised his discretion or judgment in the matter, and, — even if by the statute he is directed to proceed, if he think fit, — he must not refuse to proceed from mere caprice, or from mere notions of what the law ought to be, instead of what it is. (68)

Notwithstanding the general rule that the word "may" in a statute is construed as permissive or optional, and that the word "shall" is construed as imperative, (R. S., 1906, c. 1, sec. 34, subsec. 24) still, if the subject matter shows that it must have been intented that the exercise of the power conferred by the word "may" should be imperative, it will be so. (69)

When the statute, by either of these words "may" or "shall," confers authority upon a judicial officer to do an act, whether judicial or ministerial, a duty is imposed to perform the act when the occasion for it arises, and it is applied for by a person entitled to have it done, and it is imperative. (70)

The word "may" in such cases imports the power to exercise a judicial discretion, and not a power to refuse arbitrarily. It confers authority to consider and decide,—an authority which the officer is bound to exercise. (71)

As the justice is bound to actually exercise his discretion, it has been held that,—if the evidence laid before him, in support of an application for a summons or warrant, be so strong as to induce a belief that, in refusing the application, he must have acted upon a consideration of something extraneous or extra-judicial, which ought not to have affected his decision,—this is tantamount to a declining of jurisdiction, and that a mandamus will, therefore, be issued ordering him to issue the summons or warrant. (72)

If, in a summary case, the magistrate refuse to hear the witnesses for the defence, and he convict, he will be ordered to re-open the case and hear such witnesses, even after the lapse of nearly a year; for the refusal to hear one side is the same as if the case had not been heard at all. (73)

But a mandamus will not be ordered upon the ground that the justice has improperly received or improperly rejected certain evidence, (74) nor if his decision is wrong, in law or in fact, as to whether an offence is made out, provided that he has really and bona fide exercised his judgment and discretion. (75)

A mandamus is granted to compel the performance of an act which it is the legal duty of the officer to perform and which has not been performed. It is not granted to undo what has already been done. (76)

The applicant for a mandamus must have the legal right to the performance of the act required to be done. (77)

It will not be granted on the application of a person who has no interest in the performance of the duty in question, nor to one who is not applying bona fide. (78)

And the officer's jurisdiction to do the act required to be done must be clear. (79)

The officer's obligation must amount to an absolute duty, and a mandamus will not be ordered to enforce a mere discretionary power not amounting to an absolute duty. (80)

A power given for the furtherance of justice, or when the thing to be done is for the public benefit, or in the advancement of public interest, is given to be exercised, and is a command. (81)

A mandamus will be granted at any stage of the proceedings, if the justices illegally decline to proceed. (82)

So that, if, after the hearing of a case, the justices refuse to give judgment, a mandamus will lie. (83)

If there is some other specific remedy equally convenient and adequate, such as an appeal from the justice,—if the appeal be as adequate a remedy,—a mandamus will not, as a rule, be granted. (84)

But, even where there is another remedy, a mandamus will be granted, if the other remedy is not equally advantageous; (85) or if the alternate remedy be doubtful, or, if granting it would work an injustice. (86)

So, that, where a right of appeal was given by statute, it was held that, as the right of appeal was not so adequate a remedy as a mandamus, a mandamus ought to issue. (87)

The court will be vigilant to apply the remedy by mandamus, where it is reasonably applicable (88)

The order for a mandamus is applied for by motion or petition to a judge in chambers, (89) and may be appealed from to the court itself. (90)

It has been held that an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, in cases of mandamus, is restricted to decisions of the "highest court of final resort" in a province, and that an appeal to the Supreme Court will not lie from any court in the Province of Quebec, except the Court of King's Bench. (91)

It has been held, in an Ontario case, that an application for a mandamus against a magistrate is a civil and not a criminal proceeding, although the act which it is proposed that the magistrate shall be ordered to do so is the taking of an information for an offence against the criminal law. (92)

And it has been usual, in the province of Quebec, to apply to the Superior Court, (a court exercising civil jurisdiction), for a writ of mandamus, in all matters, both civil and criminal; (93) and, in the course of such applications, reference is generally made to Article 992 of the Quebec Code of Civil Procedure, which provides that, "If there is no other remedy equally sufficient, beneficial and effectual, a mandamus lies to enforce the performance of an act or duty, whenever any public officer, etc., or any court of inferior jurisdiction, omits, neglects, or refuses to perform any duty belonging to such office, or any act which by law he is bound to perform."

But does this authorize the Superior Court, exercising civil jurisdiction, to issue to a justice, or a magistrate, or a court of inferior jurisdiction, a writ of mandamus, in a criminal matter, as well as in a civil matter?

If so, and if an application for a mandamus in a criminal matter is a civil and not a criminal proceeding, what jurisdiction, with regard to writs of mandamus, in criminal matters, is possessed by our Superior Courts of Criminal Jurisdiction, — as defined by section 2(35) of the Criminal Code? And how are we to apply the provisions of section 573 of the Criminal Code, which provides that every Superior Court of Criminal Jurisdiction may make rules of court, (b) for regulating, in criminal matters, the pleading, practice and procedure in court, including the subjects of mandamus, certiorari, habeas corpus, prohibition, quo warranto, etc.?

In the province of Quebec, there has been a comparatively recent decision; — (based, in the Author's opinion, upon a correct view of this question), — to the effect that a Superior Court of civil jurisdiction does not exercise any control over inferior courts in respect of criminal matters within the legislative authority of the Dominion Parliament, and has no power to quash, by way of certiorari, decisions rendered by magistrates sitting for the summary trial of indictable offences, that the review of such decisions, in so far as they are reviewable, belongs exclusively, in the province of Quebec, to the Court of King's Bench, and that the Federal Parliament has the exclusive right to declare before what court, existing in each province and exercising criminal jurisdiction, proceedings in criminal cases, — including proceedings by certiorari after conviction, — shall be carried on. 2. The warrant shall state shortly the offence for which it is issued, and shall name or otherwise describe the offender, and it shall order the officer or officers to whom it is directed to apprehend the offender and bring him before the justice or justices issuing the warrant, or before some other justice or justices to answer the charge contained in the information or complaint, and to be further dealt with according to law.

3. The justice so ordering shall give a warrant, for that purpose to a constable which may be in form 9, or to the like effect, and shall deliver to such constable the information, depositions and recognizances, if any, taken under the provisions of this Act, to be delivered to the justice before whom the accused person is to be taken and such depositions and recognizances shall be treated to all intents as if they had been taken by the last-mentioned justice. HEARING AND CONNECTED PROCEDURE.

Sec. 585. Sec. 678. Commitment of witness refusing to be examined, etc. Unchanged. (107)

To justify a magistrate in committing a witness under this section for refusing to answer a question put to him upon a preliminary enquiry, it must appear not only that the witness refused, without just excuse, to answer, but that the question asked was in some way relevant to the charge. (108)

Sec. 586. Sec. 679. Preliminary enquiry. — Powers of the justice. — A justice holding a preliminary inquiry may in his discretion,—

(a) permit or refuse permission to the prosecutor, his counsel or attorney, to address him in support of the charge, either by way of opening or summing up the case, or by way of reply upon any evidence which may be produced by the person accused;

(b) receive further evidence on the part of the prosecutor after hearing any evidence given on behalf of the accused;

(c) adjourn the hearing of the matter from time to time, and change the place of hearing, if from the absence of witnesses, the inability of a witness who is ill to attend at the place where the justice usually sits, or from any other reasonable cause, it appears desirable to do so, and may remand the accused, if required, by warrant in form 17: Provided that no such remand shall be for more than eight clear days, the day following that on which the remand is made being counted as the first day;

(d) order that no person other than the prosecutor and accused their counsel and solicitors shall have access to or remain in the room or building in which the enquiry is held, if it appears to him that the ends of justice will be best answered by so doing;

(e) regulate the course of the enquiry in any way which may appear to him desirable, and which is not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act.

2. If any remand under this section is for a time not exceeding three clear days the justice may verbally order the constable or other person in whose custody the accused then is, or any other constable or person named by the justice in that behalf, to keep the accused person in his custody and to bring him before him or such other justice as shall then be acting at the time appointed for continuing the examination.

Slightly altered as here set forth.

It is essential, when there is a remand, that the accused be present before the magistrate. A remand for eight days, for the purpose of a medical examination as to the sanity of the accused, cannot be made on the mere suggestion of the police officer in charge of the accused, and without the accused being personally brought before the magistrate. Thus, where a woman arrested (under a warrant) on a charge of having threatened to kill her sister, was, by the magistrate, (without being brought before him) committed to gaol for medical examination as to her sanity, there being a mere verbal statement that, upon her arrest, she had shown signs of insanity, the commitment was held illegal. The first duty of the magistrate, dealing with a prisoner arrested upon his warrant, is to have such person brought before him, as soon as practicable, and to then make such order as the case may require. (109)

A justice of the peace holding a preliminary enquiry has not only the power, — as provided by clause (d) of the above section, 679, — to exclude all persons other than the parties and their counsel or solicitors, if he considers that the ends of justice will be best answered by so doing: but he has the right to order the removal and exclusion of persons who, by their disorderly conduct, obstruct or interfere with the proceedings; and he may even exclude the counsel or solicitor for gross contempt or improper conduct, if the proceedings are thereby obstructed. (110) But, in such an event as this, the case should be adjourned, so as to afford the party an opportunity of obtaining other counsel.

See pp. 121-124, ante, for further comments on this subject and on the general powers of magistrates to preserve order in Court and to commit for contempt.

A preliminary enquiry commenced before one magistrate cannot be continued before another. But, if the magistrate, who begins the hearing, should die or be dismissed, or withdraw from the hearing, another competent magistrate may take it up, but he should begin the hearing de novo before himself. A magistrate, — who had begun a preliminary enquiry, and, without having concluded it, obtained leave of absence and started on a voyage for Europe, — was deemed to be withdrawn from the proceeding: and, in such a case, with the consent of the Crown, the party, prevented from proceeding, was entitled to obtain, from the magistrate who replaced the absent one, an order for beginning de novo the enquiry; and, in such a case, a writ of certiorari will not be granted to prevent the new magistrate from taking up the case and beginning it again. (111)

Sec. 587. Sec. 681. Bail on Remand. — If the accused is remanded as aforesaid, the justice may discharge him, upon his entering into a recognisance in form 18, with or without sureties in the discretion of the justice, conditioned for his appearance at the time and place appointed for the continuance of the examination. Unchanged in the meaning

Sec. 590. Sec. 682. Evidence for prosecution at preliminary enquiry. — When the accused is before a justice holding an inquiry, such justice shall take the evidence of the witnesses called on the part of the prosecution.

2. The evidence of the said witnesses shall be given upon oath and in the presence of the accused; and the accused, his counsel or solicitor, shall be entitled to cross-examine them.

3. The evidence of each witness shall be taken down in writing in the form of a deposition, which may be in form 19, or to the like effect.

4. Such deposition shall in the presence of the accused, and of the justice, at some time before the accused is called on for his defence, be read over to and signed by the witness and the justice.

5. The signature of the justice may either be at the end of the deposition of each witness, or at the end of several or of all the depositions in such a form as to show that the signature is meant to authenticate each separate deposition. Changed as here set fort.

Sec. 590. Sec. 683. Depositions may be taken in shorthand. — Every justice holding a preliminary enquiry shall cause the depositions to be written in a legible hand and on one side only of each sheet of paper on which they are written: Provided that the evidence upon such inquiry or any part of the same may be taken in shorthand by a stenographer who may be appointed by the justice and who before acting shall make oath that he shall truly and faithfully report the evidence.

2. Where evidence is so taken, it shall not be necessary that such evidence be read over to or signed by the witness, but it shall be sufficient if the transcript be signed by the justice and be accompanied by an affidavit of the stenographer that it is a true report of the evidence.

The above section, 682, expressly provides that the accused, his counsel, or solicitor shall be entitled to cross-examine the witnesses for the prosecution; and thereby, as well as by section 679, ante, the right of the defendant to be represented, at the preliminary investigation, by his counsel or solicitor, is expressly recognized.

A defendant charged with the commission of an indictable offence is not to be called upon to plead; but the case is to be substantiated against him, in the first instance; for, with the exception of the cases provided for by Parts XVI, XVII and XVIII, post, justices have no power, in indictable offences, to deal with the accused, summarily, even though he openly admit his guilt.

The manner of taking the depositions varies: In some places it is usual to take down the evidence in the form of a deposition, at once; in others, abbreviated notes are taken of the examination, copied verbatim, and afterwards read over to the witnesses in the presence of the accused, the latter having every opportunity of cross-examination and of making objections. The former of these two modes is the more correct: but the latter has been approved, and depositions so taken have been held admissible. (111*a*) If the latter plan is adopted, the depositions should be merely a plain copy of the notes; and the clerk should not, in the absence of the magistrate, ask the witnesses any questions to complete the depositions; (112) even though the accused be present at the time. (113)

The evidence must be taken down as nearly as possible in the witness' own words, and the deposition should contain the cross-examination and re-examination as well as the examination in chief; and any interruption or observation which may be made by the accused should also be taken down. It may be evidence against him. (114) But it should be made to appear, upon the depositions, under what circumstances the observation was made. (115)

The witnesses must be before the magistrate when testifying, and the latter must see and hear them giving their evidence. Where, on a preliminary enquiry, the witnesses were sworn by the magistrate and then taken into another room and their evidence in chief taken down by a stenographer out of the presence and hearing of the magistrate, such depositions were held to be illegally taken, although the prisoner's counsel had the opportunity of afterwards cross-examining the witnesses before the magistrate. (116)

Where the cross-examination of a witness for the prosecution upon a preliminary enquiry is interrupted by the witness' illness, and, afterwards, the magistrate, in the absence of the accused and of his counsel, obtains the witness' signature to the deposition, neither the witness nor the prisoner's counsel re-attending the enquiry to complete the cross-examination, there has been no full opportunity to cross-examine so as to admit such deposition in evidence at the trial, upon proof of the continued illness of the witness. There was no waiver of the right to continue the cross-examination, by the failure of the prisoner's counsel to attend on the adjourned enquiry, when the witness was not present, nor by the prisoner himself stating that he had nothing to say. A magistrate should not obtain a witness' signature to a deposition in the absence of the accused. (117)

The manner generally adopted in British Columbia, of swearing a Chinese witness who is not a Christian, is by writing his name on a piece of paper and burning it, at the same time declaring that he would tell the truth; the consumption of the paper by fire signifying the fate of his soul if he should fail to do so. But, when the trial is for a capital offence, the King's Oath or Chicken Oath, —(consisting in the cutting off of the head of a live cock or other fowl),—is administered, instead of the less solemn "paper oath." (118)

The administering of the Chinese "paper oath," to a Chinese witness, at his own suggestion, obligates him to give his evidence truthfully, under the like penalty for perjury as if the witness had affirmed or had been sworn, according to a form of oath recognized by Chinamen as more binding upon the conscience. (119)

It has been held that section 684 (now sec. 1002) of the Code does not forbid an accused's committal for trial upon the uncorroborated evidence of one witness, but that it enacts that he shall not be convicted thereon. (120)

Evidence taken under a commission is admissible not only before the Grand Jury and at the trial of the indictment when found, but also at the preliminary enquiry. (121)

Ordering Witnesses Out of Court.—On the application of either of the parties, an order will, as a general rule, be given for all witnesses except the one under examination, to leave the court. This order may be applied for at any stage of the enquiry, and it is rarely withheld; (122) although the authorities are somewhat conflicting as to whether it can be demanded of strict right, especially with regard to a prisoner. (123)

If any of the witnesses remain in court after an order has been made to withdraw, the justices will have no right to exclude their testimony, however much the witness' wilful disobedience of the order may lessen the value of his evidence. (124)

With regard to ordering witnesses out of court, an exception is made in favor of medical witnesses when their evidence is merely as to medical facts.

Sec. 591. Sec. 684. son, shall ask him whether he wishes the depositions to be read again, and unless the accused dispenses therewith shall read or cause them to be read again.

2. When the depositions have been again read, or the reading dispensed with, the accused shall be addressed by the justice in these words, or to the like effect:

'Having heard the evidence, do you wish to say anything in answer to the charge? You are not bound to say anything, but whatever you do say will be taken down in writing and may be given in evidence against you at your trial. You must clearly understand that you have nothing to hope from any promise of favour and nothing to fear from any threat which may have been held out to you to induce you to make any admission or confession of guilt, but whatever you now say may be given in evidence against you upon your trial notwithstanding such promise or threat,

3. Whatever the accused then says in answer thereto shall be taken down in writing in form 20, or to the like effect, and shall be signed by the justice and kept with the depositions of the witnesses and dealt with as hereinafter provided. Slightly altered.

It is proper for the magistrate to ask the accused to sign the statement made by him under this section, even where his answer to the statutory question is merely, "I have nothing to say;" and it has been held that, the accused's signature to such statement may afterwards,—upon the trial of the charge of forgery upon which he was committed,—be used against him for purposes of comparison of the handwriting with the alleged forgery. (125)

The preliminary enquiry before the magistrate of an offence punishable an indictment, is not, properly speaking, the enquete of the informant, but that of the magistrate; and if, on the preliminary hearing, the enquete has been declared closed and no evidence offered on the part of the accused, the magistrate may, in his discretion, and even after argument on questions of law arising from the evidence given, allow the informant to re-open the enquete and adduce further evidence. (126) Belanger v. Mulvena, Que. Off. Rep., 22 S. C., 37.

Sec. 592. Sec. 685. Evidence of admission or confession.

Unchanged.

The onus of proving that an alleged confession was a free and voluntary one is upon the Crown. (127)

An inducement held out to an accused person, in consequence of which he makes a confession must be one having relation to the charge against him, and must be held out by a person in authority, in order to render evidence of the confession inadmissible. (128)

A "person in authority" means, generally speaking, anyone who has authority or control over the accused or over the proceedings or the prosecution against him. (129)

The reason that confessions, made as a result of inducements held out by persons in authority, are inadmissible is that the authority which the accused knows such persons to possess are supposed, in the majority of instances, both to animate his hopes of favor, on the one hand, and to inspire him, on the other hand, with awe, and so in some degree to overcome the powers of his mind. (130)

If, however, it appears that the alleged confession was made under circumstances in which the accused could not have known or supposed that the person to whom the admission was made was a person in authority, then the evidence of the admission is admissable. (131)

The rector of a cathedral is a person in authority over the choir boys with respect to the investigation of an alleged assault committed by them while on the way to a meeting of the choir; and answers of a choir boy elicited by the rector and the choir master upon such investigation and stated to be only for the purpose of that enquiry, are not admissible in evidence against the choir boy afterwards prosecuted for the assault,—without proof that the statements of the boy were made voluntarily. The onus of proving that the alleged confession was a voluntary one is upon the Crown. (132)

A confession, preceded by a statement from a person in authority, will,—notwithstanding that the statement may have operated as an inducement to make the confession,—be admissible in evidence, if, after the inducing statement and before the confession itself, the person making the confession was duly cautioned by the magistrate who received it. (133) R. v. Lai Ping, 8 Can. Cr. Cas., 467.

There is a distinction between a confession obtained before and a confession made after arrest. The arrest itself constitutes an inducement or pressure upon the accused to speak; and, in order to satisfy the onus resting upon the Crown of proving that a confession, made in answer to questions put by a constable to the prisoner, was voluntary, it must be shewn that the accused was warned that what he said might be used against him. And so it was held that a confession, made by a person, under arrest, for theft, in answer to questions put to him by a police officer, without any warning to the prisoner, is not admissible against him, upon a charge of murder subsequently preferred. (134)

The proper mode of proving that the prisoner's statement was voluntarily made is by negativing the possible inducements by way of hope or fear that would have made the statement inadmissible, and not by merely taking the affirmative answer of the officer under oath that the statement was made voluntarily. (135)

A prisoner's admission to a Crown officer while in custody is not admissible in evidence, if it appears that an admission was suggested to the prisoner by a peace officer with inducements which would make an admission to him inadmissible, and was shortly afterwards made to the Crown officer as a result of such inducement. (136)

DYING DECLARATIONS

Proof of a dying declaration in a homicide case must be restricted to the transaction from which the death ensued but may include all facts immediately connected therewith, and a statement of the circumstances which immediately preceded the fatal injury.

A dying declaration is admissible in evidence either for the prosecution or for the prisoner in a homicide case.

To admit a dying declaration in a homicide case it is requisite that the declarant must have been not only in actual danger of death, but must have had a sense or conviction that his death was impending. (137)

A dying declaration made by a person who cannot speak the language of the country, and which is proved only through an interpreter, is admissible, if shewn to contain the actual purport of the statement made, without proof being necessary of the exact language of the declarant. (138)

Sec. 593. Sec. 686. Evidence for the defence. After the proceedings required by section 684 are completed, the accused shall be asked if he wishes to call any witnesses.

2. Every witness called by the accused who testifies to any fact relevant to the case shall be heard, and his deposition shall be taken in the same manner as the depositions of the witnesses for the prosecution.

Slightly altered.

ADJUDICATION AND SUBSEQUENT STEPS AND BAIL.

Sec. 594. Sec. 687. Discharge of accused, if no sufficient case made out. Unchanged.

A person discharged by a justice on a preliminary enquiry for an indictable offence may be summoned again upon a fresh information for the same offence; and, if the accused is committed for trial at the second preliminary enquiry, the depositions on the first, when he was discharged, need not be transmitted to the trial court. (139)

Sec. 595. Sec. 688. Prosecutor may have himself bound over to prosecute. If the justice discharges the accused, and the person preferring the charge desires to prefer an indictment respecting the said charge, he may require the justice to bind him over to prefer and prosecute such an indictment, and thereupon the justice shall take his recognizance to prefer and prosecute an indictment against the accused before the court by which such accused would be tried if such justice had committed him, and the justice shall deal with the recognizance, information and depositions in the same way as if he had committed the accused for trial.

2. Such recognizance may be in form 21, or to the like effect. (140)

Sec. 595. Sec. 689. Costs in such case; and securily therefor. If the prosecutor so bound over at his own request does not prefer and prosecute such an indictment, or if the grand jury does not find a true bill, or if the accused is not convicted upon the indictment so preferred, the prosecutor shall, if the court so direct, pay to the accused person his costs, including the costs of his appearance on the preliminary inquiry.

2. The court before which the indictment is to be tried or a judge thereof may in its or his discretion order that the prosecutor shall not be permitted to prefer any such indictment until he has given security for such costs to the satisfaction of such court or judge. (140)

The taxation of costs against an unsuccessful private prosecutor who, at his own request, has been bound over to prefer an indictment is controlled by section 1047 post. and the scale of costs in the absence of a tariff for criminal proceedings is the lowest scale in civil suits in the court in which the indictment is tried. (141)

Sec. 596. Sec. 690. Committal of accused for trial.

A magistrate who holds the preliminary enquiry on a charge preferred against an accused, may commit him for trial on any other charge or charges disclosed by the evidence. (143)

A magistrate holding a preliminary enquiry, for an indictable offence, cannot, — upon the evidence adduced on both sides at such enquiry, — proceed to summarily convict for a lessor offence, included in the offence charged, although such lesser offence, if originally charged, would have been within his jurisdiction for summary trial; and, a conviction made under such circumstances is invalid, and will be quashed, although neither the accused nor his counsel made objection before the magistrate. (144)

A warrant of commitment for trial on a charge of theft is sufficient if it states that the chattel was stolen from the informant's building without also stating that the informant owned the chattel. (144*a*)

Sec. 597. Sec. 691. Accused entitled to copy of depositions.

Unchanged.

A Superior Court of criminal jurisdiction may order the restoration, to an accused person committed for trial, of articles taken possession of by the police, and which are not connected with the offence charged and are not required for the purpose of evidence,

Rule as to bail. When any person appears before any justice charged with an indictable offence punishable by imprisonment for more than five years, other than treason or an offence punishable with death or an offence under any of the sections, seventy-six to eighty-six inclusive, and the evidence adduced is, in the opinion of such justice, sufficient to put the accused on his trial, but does not furnish such a strong presumption of guilt as to warrant his committal for trial, the justice, jointly with some other justice, may admit the accused to bail upon his procuring and producing such surety or sureties as, in the opinion of the two justices, will be sufficient to ensure his appearance at the time and place when and where he ought to be tried for the offence; and thereupon the two justices shall take the recognizances of the accused and his sureties, conditioned for his appearance at the time and place of trial, and that he will then surrender and take his trial and not depart the court without leave.

for a term less than five years any one justice before whom the accused appears may admit to bail in manner aforesaid, and such justice or justices may, in his or their discretion, require such bail to justify upon oath before him or them as to their sufficiency.

3. In default of such person procuring sufficient bail, such justice or justices may commit him to prison, there to be kept until delivered according to law.

Sec. 601. Sec. 697. Recognizance of bail may be for appearance at Court of General or Quarter Sessions. Where the offence is one triable by the court of general or quarter sessions of the peace and the justice is of opinion that it may better or more conveniently be so tried, the condition of the recognizance may be for the appearance of the accused at the next sittings notwithstanding that a sitting of a superior court of criminal jurisdiction capable of trying the offence intervenes. (147)

Sec. 602. Sec. 698. Bail after committal. — In case of any offence other than treason or an offence punishable with death, or an offence under any of the sections, seventy-six to eighty-six inclusive, where the accused has been finally committed, as herein provided, any judge of any superior or county court, having jurisdiction in the district or county within the limits of which the accused is confined, may, in his discretion, on application made to him for that purpose, order the accused to be admitted to bail on entering into a recognizance with sufficient sureties before two justices, in such amount as the judge directs, and thereupon the justices shall issue a warrant of deliverance as hereinafter provided, and shall attach thereto the order of the judge directing the admitting of the accused to bail.

(147) These two sections are formed from the old section 601, without any material alteration.

2. Such warrant of deliverance shall be in the form 29. Slightly altered.

Sec. 603. Sec. 699. Bail by Superior Court, in cases of treason and of capital offences.

Meaning unchanged.

Sec. 604. Sec. 700. Application to Superior Court, for bail, after committal. — When any person has been committed for trial by any justice, the prisoner, his counsel solicitor or agent may notify the committing justice, that he will, as soon as counsel can be heard, move before a Superior Court of the province in which such person stands committed, or one of the judges thereof, or the judge of the county court, if it is intended to apply to such judge, under section six hundred and ninety-eight, for an order to the justice to admit such prisoner to bail.

2. Such committing justice shall, as soon as may be, after being so notified, transmit to the clerk of the Crown, or the chief clerk of the court, or the clerk of the county court or other proper officer, as the case may be, endorsed under his hand and seal, a certified copy of all informations, examinations, and other evidence, touching the offence wherewith the prisoner has been charged, together with a copy of the warrant of commitment, and the packet containing the same shall be handed to the person applying therefor, for transmission, and it shall be certified on the outside thereof to contain the information concerning the case in question.

3. If any justice neglects to comply with the foregoing provisions of this section, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, the court, to whose officer any such information, examination, other evidence, or warrant of commitment ought to have been delivered, shall, upon examination and proof of the offence in a summary manner, impose such fine upon such justice as the court thinks fit.

Altered as here set forth. (148)

Sec. " Sec. 701. Order upon such application. — Upon application for bail as aforesaid to any such court or judge the same order. concerning the prisoner being bailed or continued in custody, shall be made as if the prisoner was brought up upon a habeas corpus. (148)

Upon an application to bail a prisoner, after he is committed for trial, the Court is to have regard to the nature of the crime charged upon the depositions, the probability of a conviction, and the severity of the punishment. (149)

With regard to offences which before the Code were misdemeanors, the accused, when committed for trial upon habeas corpus proceedings, is entitled to bail, as a matter of right. But where he is committed for trial for an indictable offence which, before the Code, was a felony, he is not entitled to bail as of right. It is, in that case. discretionary with the court exercising habeas corpus jurisdiction to allow or refuse bail; and, in determining whether or not bail should be granted, the probability of the party appearing for trial, in case of his being bailed, is the principal consideration: so that the question of guilt or innocence may be properly taken into account in considering the degree of such probability. If the evidence upon which the committal for trial is based raises a serious doubt as to the guilt of the accused, or if such evidence stands indifferent as to whether he is guilty or not, the application for bail should be granted. (150)

Where a prisoner committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter would ordinarily be admitted to bail, bail will not be refused because the Crown prosecutor swears to a belief that he can prove the offence to have been murder. (151)

PART XV.

SUMMARY CONVICTIONS.

Interpretation.

Sec. 839. } Sec. 900. } Sec. 705. Definitions. — In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires, —

(a) 'territorial division' means district, county, union of counties, township, city, town, parish or other judicial division or place; (1)

(b) 'the court' in the sections of this Part relating to justices stating or signing cases means and includes any superior court of criminal jurisdiction for the province in which the proceedings in respect of which the case is sought to be stated are carried on; (2)

(c) 'district' or 'county' includes any territorial or judicial division or place in and for which there is such judge, justice, justices's court, officer or prison as is mentioned in the context; (3)

(d) 'common gaol' or 'prison' for the purpose of this Part means any place other than a penitentiary in which persons charged with offences are usually kept and detained in custody; (3)

(e) 'clerk of the peace' includes the proper officer of the court having jurisdiction in appeal under this Part, and, in the province of Saskatchewan or Alberta, and in the Northwest Territories, means the clerk of the Supreme Court of the judicial district within which conviction under this Part takes place or an order is made. ord of magistrates being punished for acting as judges in matters in which they themselves were parties. (5)

Where it appeared, that at the time of a trial before a parish court commissioner, the plaintiff was one of the commissioner's own servants, it was held, upon a review of the commissioner's decision, that it was improper for him to sit, and a non-suit was ordered. (6)

Any pecuniary interest, however slight, even if indirect, will, as a rule, disqualify a magistrate from taking part in the decision of a case. (7)

A magistrate, engaged in the same kind of business as a trader prosecuted under the Transient Traders' License Law, is thereby disqualified from adjudicating upon the charge. (8)

A justice should be entirely free from prejudice, bias or partiality in respect of all matters before him. (8*a*)

Justices should avoid giving any ground for the belief that they influence others in arriving at a decision.

Where during the hearing of an appeal from a refusal to grant a license, one of the justices, who had refused the license, was present on the bench, and conversed with some of the magistrates who were hearing the appeal, on some matter unconnected with the appeal, it was held that, being present, he formed part of the court, and that, although in reality he did not act in the hearing or determination of the appeal, the order of the Sessions was invalid. (9)

Although the interest, in order to be a disqualifying one, need not be pecuniary, it must, if not pecuniary, be of a substantial nature. The mere possibility, — not amounting to a likelihood, — of bias, in favor of one of the parties, does not, ipso facto, avoid the justice's decision. In order to have that effect, the bias, or likelihood of bias, must be shown, at least, to have a real basis; and, if a magistrate has such a substantial interest, — whether pecuniary or not, — as to make it likely for him to have a real bias in the matter, he should take no part in the decision, and should entirely withdraw during the whole case. Where, for instance, at a vestry meeting, which considered the obstruction of a highway, the resolution, directing that the alleged obstructor be notified to remove the obstruction, was the result of a motion made by a justice who afterwards sat, and, adjudicated upon the case taken, against the party so notified, for having failed to remove the obstruction, it was held that the justice was disqualified from trying the case, because his having moved the resolution was ground for a reasonable apprehension of real bias on his part. (11)

The mere fact that a justice, as a druggist, fills medical prescriptions containing alcohol, does not give him such an interest as disqualifies him from sitting on a charge against a person for selling liquor without a license (12) nor does the fact that the justice is a license inspector for a district outside of and adjoining that where the offence in question was committed disqualify him. (13)

With regard to the likelihood of bias on account of relationship, it has been held that where the prosecutor, — who was entitled to a share of the fine, — was the justice's father, the justice was disqualified. (14)

And a magistrate, whose grandfather was a brother of the defendant's great grandmother was held to be incompetent under the Canada Temperance Act. (15)

A magistrate was held to be disqualified in a case in which the defendant herself was the widow of the magistrate's deceased son. (16) But, where the defendant was the husband of the widow of the magistrate's deceased son, it was held that there was no relationship by affinity between the magistrate and the defendant, so as to disqualify the magistrate from hearing the case. (17) And the fact that the prosecutor, — acting as a public officer, but not entitled to any share in the fine, — was the husband of the justice's wife's sister was held not to disqualify the justice. (18)

It has been held that the fact that a qui tam action is pending against the magistrate at the suit of the accused's father is not a sufficient ground of bias. (19)

It has been held that a magistrate is disqualified from trying a case where there is a bona fide action for official misconduct pending against him at the suit of the husband of the accused, (20)

although, if it appear that the action is a mere sham to attempt to disqualify the magistrate, its pendency would not operate as a disqualification. (21)

Where some persons were associated together to aid in enforcing the Canada Temperance Act, and one of these persons, N., with money furnished by the others, purchased liquors so as to maintain a prosecution carried on at the expense of the other members of the association, and, on the evidence of N., (a cousin of the justice who tried the case), the defendant was convicted, it was held that the justice was not disqualified. (22)

When the magistrate is one of a class of persons for whose benefit the prosecution is instituted, this will, as a rule, be sufficient to disqualify him. Thus, where a justice was a member of a division of the Sons of Temperance, which carried on a prosecution for selling liquor, he was held incompetent to try the case, and a conviction obtained before him was held bad. (23)

And justices, who belonged to a temperance alliance of which the president is the party prosecuting, and to which association any fine to be imposed for an offence against the liquor law is payable, have been held, disqualifying from trying a charge; and the proceedings were not validated by the fact that, between the time when the information was received by such justices and the hearing of the charge, the justices had withdrawn from the association. (24)

But where, in prosecutions for offences against the Canada Temperance Act, taken before magistrates who were "thorough-going Scott Act men," it was alleged that these magistrates had said that, in no case of conviction, would they inflict a less fine than $50, and that one of them was, moreover, a member of a local committee for taking prosecutions under the Act; and it transpired that, before the Act came into operation in the county, he had resigned from the committee, it was held that there was no disqualifying interest in the magistrates, nor any real or substantial bias attributable to them, nor any reason why they should not lawfully adjudicate in the cases. (25)

A justice who was a shareholder in a railway company was held to be disqualified from convicting a person of the offence of travelling on the company's railway without ticket. (26)

But it has been held that a justice is not disqualified when he is merely one of the ordinary members of a society on whose behalf the prosecution is brought, and when such ordinary members have no control over or responsibility for any prosecution brought by the society; (27) nor where he is simply an honorary member of the prosecuting society, to whose funds he has contributed a small sum of money, but in whose affairs he has no right to take any part. (28)

Where the justice was a shareholder in a company owning ships insured in concerns of which the prosecutor was agent, the court thought that the justice was not disqualified to act. (29)

In many cases, where the justice, as one of a class, may be remotely interested in the result of a decision, the disqualification is, by statute, expressly removed, and the justice is empowered to act. (30)

But the removal of the disqualification by statute is limited to that therein provided for, and does not extend so far as to relieve a magistrate from disqualification, if the circumstances are such that there is likelihood of his being biassed; as, for instance, where he is not only a member of a municipal council, or of a local board of health, or other body, which passed the resolution directing the prosecution, but was, moreover, present at and voted for the passing of the resolution. In such a case he would be disqualified. (31)

By section 578, ante, of the present Code, it is provided that no person who is a master or the father, son, or brother of a master in the trade or business in or in connection with which any offence of intimidation, under section 501, ante, is charged to have been committed, shall act as a magistrate or justice in any such case, or as a member of any court for hearing any appeal in any such case.

A conviction rendered by an interested or biassed magistrate may, when there has been no waiver of the objection, be set aside by means of a certiorari; (32) or, when the ground of objection is known at or before the hearing, the disqualified magistrate may be prevented from acting, and the proceedings before him may be stopped by means of a prohibition. APPLICATION OF PART.

Sec. 840. Sec. 706. To all cases of summary conviction, etc. — Subject to any special provision otherwise enacted with respect to such offence, act or matter, this Part shall apply to, —

(a) every case in which any person commits, or is suspected of having committed, any offence or act over which the Parliament of Canada has legislative authority, and for which such person is liable, on summary conviction, to imprisonment, fine, penalty or other punishment;

(b) every case in which a complaint is made to any justice in relation to any matter over which the Parliament of Canada has legislative authority, and with respect to which such justice has authority by law to make any order for the payment of money or otherwise.

Unchanged in meaning.

Since the printing of the present Supplement was commenced, the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1907, (6 and 7 Ed. VII, c.), has been passed by the Dominion Parliament. Section 53 of this Act makes it unlawful for any employer to declare or cause a lockout or for any employee to go on strike, on account of any dispute, prior to or during a reference of such dispute to a Board of Conciliation and Investigation in accordance with the Act. Section 58 of the Act provides that any employer declaring or causing a lockout, contrary to the provisions of the Act, shall be liable to a fine of not less than $100 and not more than $1,000 for each day that such lockout lasts. Section 59 enacts that any employee who goes on strike contrary to the provisions of the Act shall be liable to a fine of not less than $10 and not more than $50 for each day that such employee is on strike. Section 60 makes it a criminal offence, punishable by a fine of not less than $50 and not more than $1,000 for any person to incite, encourage or aid any employer to declare or continue a lockout or any employee to go or continue on strike contrary to the provisions of the Act. And section 61 provides that the procedure for enforcing these penalties shall be that prescribed by this Part, — XV, — of the Code.

Ouster of Summary Jurisdiction.—The principle that, — when property or title is in question, or, when there is a bona fide claim of right to do the act complained of, — justices are ousted of their summary jurisdiction, is not only a qualification raised by the law in the execution of penal statutes but it is also the subject sometimes, of special statutory enactment. Thus, it is provided. by section 709, infra, of the present Code, that no justice shall try any case of assault, in which any question arises as to the title to lands., etc., or as to any insolvency or any execution under the process of any court of justice.

When a claim of title to land is set up by the defendant, the question for the justice to decide is whether the defendant's liability for the act charged against him, as a criminal offence, is contingent upon a decision of the question of title. (34)

If the right set up could legally exist, the defendant could plead it in a civil action, but if it could not exist, why should the justices be ousted of their jurisdiction? The reason their jurisdiction is ousted is that they cannot try the right, but where the right cannot legally exist, there is no right to try. (35)

There must be some color for the claim. (36) And it is for the justices to determine, from all the facts of the case, whether a claim of right. when put forward, is made bona fide and with a show of reason. (37) If they determine that it is not so made, it is their duty to proceed with and decide the case. (38) Still, if the grounds upon which they decide against the fairness and reasonableness of a claim of right be insufficient, the court will review their determination and over-rule it. (39)

If the justices believe that there is a bona fide question of title, they have no jurisdiction. (40) And even when the matter is doubtful, it will be enough to stop their proceedings. and they cannot give themselves jurisdiction by a false decision. (41)

A defendant was convicted of the offence of unlawfully and wilfully destroying or damaging a fence upon the complainant's land; and it was held, that, upon the evidence, there was, on the part of the defendant, such an honest belief reasonably entertained, in the existence of a right of way over a lane on the complainant's land as satisfied the section of the Code to the effect that there is no criminal offence under section 507 (now section 530), unless the act of damage is done "without legal justification or excuse and without color of right," and as rendered the conviction bad for want of jurisdiction; (42)

It has been held that the proviso, contained in the Imperial Act relating to malicious injuries to property, to the effect, that nothing therein contained shall extend to any case where the party acted under a fair and reasonable supposition that he had a right to do the act complained of, impliedly restricts the exemption of bona fide claims of right, from summary jurisdiction to cases, where the justices are satisfied of the fairness and reasonableness of the claims. (43)

It has been held that, if the defendants, although bona fide acting upon supposed rights, have exceeded what was necessary for the assertion or protection of these rights, and have thus committed damage, they are criminally responsible for such excess. (44)

But it has also been held that, in assault cases, a question of right is a good defence, even if excessive force was used; because the words of the proviso in the statute are large enough to exclude any case of assault whatever in which a question of title arises. (45)

On the hearing of an information for unlawfully fishing in a non-navigable river, which was the private fishery of another, it was held that as a guilty mind was not a necessary ingredient to constitute the offence, the claim of the defendant as one of the public to the right to fish in the river did not oust the jurisdiction of the justices, and that on such an information the bona fide belief of the defendant that he had a right to fish in the river did not prevent his being convicted. JURISDICTION.

Sec 842. Sec. 707. Hearing by one or more Justices. — Every complaint and information shall be heard, tried, determined and adjudged by one justice or two or more justices as directed by the Act or law upon which the complaint or information is framed or by any other Act or law in that behalf.

2. If there is no such direction in any Act or law then the complaint or information may be heard, tried, determined and adjudged by any one justice for the territorial division where the matter of the complaint or information arose: Provided that every one who aids, abets, counsels or procures the commission of any offence punishable on summary conviction, may be proceeded against and convicted either in the territorial division or place where the principal offender may be convicted, or in that in which the offence of aiding, abetting, counselling or procuring was committed. (47)

Sec. 842. Sec. 708. Any one justice may do all acts before hearing. — Any one justice may receive the information or complaint, and grant a summons or warrant thereon, and issue his summons or warrant to compel the attendance of any witnesses for either party, and do all other acts and matters necessary preliminary to the hearing, even if by the statute in that behalf it is provided that the information or complaint shall be heard and determined by two or more justices.

2. After a case has been heard and determined one justice may issue all warrants of distress or commitment thereon.

3. It shall not be necessary for the justice who acts before or after the hearing to be the justice or one of the justices by whom the case is to be or has been heard and determined.

4. If it is required by any Act or law that an information or complaint shall be heard and determined by two or more justices, or that a conviction or order shall be made by two or more justices, such justices shall be present and acting together during the whole of the hearing and determination of the case. (47)

Notwithstanding sub-section 6 of section 842 of the old Code (now clause 1 of section 708 of the new Act), where a prosecution for an offence under the Canada Temperance Act is to be proceeded with before two justices of the peace, the information must be laid before two justices. (48)

(47) Meaning unchanged: but the old section 842 is now divided into these three different sections, 707, 708 and 709.

2ND EDIT.	REVISED STATUTES 1906	REMARKS

Sec. 842. Sec. 709. Assault cases in which any question of title to land, etc., is involved. — No justice shall hear and determine any case of assault or battery, in which any question arises as to the title to any lands, tenements, hereditaments, or any interest therein or accruing therefrom, or as to any bankruptcy or insolvency, or any execution under the process of any court of justice. (47)

A question of title, to be a defence in an assault case, must be a question of title to land, and not as to personal property. (49)

The question as to whether the right to impound cattle is implied in the right of pasturage is not a question as to the title to land. (50)

The question whether a township is forced to repair a highway, on the ground that it is a public road vested in the Crown as a provincial work, is not a question of title to land. (51)

The question as to the terms of a tenancy has been held not to be a question of title to land. (52)

But where the question is one as to the expiry of the landlord's title, and the defendant has become liable to another person for mesne profits, it is then a question of title to land. (53)

If the question be one as to leasehold land, it ousts the jurisdiction. (54) And so does a question as to the right of way across a railway, (55) or the right of easement on or under land. (56)

It has been held that, in assault cases, a question of right is a good defence, even if excessive force be used: because the words of the enactment are large enough to exclude any case of assault whatever, in which a question of title to land arises. (57)

The above section, (709), does not contain any provision requiring proof of reasonable grounds for the defendant's belief in his claim of title. It enacts that no justice shall hear and determine any case of assault in which any question arises as to the title to land. So that no assault case, however clearly established, can be summarily tried by a justice, if a question of title to land is

INFORMATION AND COMPLAINT.

Sec. 845. Sec. 710. It shall not be necessary that any complaint upon which a justice may make an order for the payment of money or otherwise shall be in writing, unless it is so required by the particular Act or law upon which such complaint is founded.

2. Every complaint upon which a justice is authorized by law to make an order, and every information for any offence or act punishable on summary conviction, may, unless it is by this Part or by some particular Act or law otherwise provided, be made or had without any oath or affirmation as to the truth thereof.

3. Every complaint shall be for one matter of complaint only, and not for two or more matters of complaint, and every information shall be for one offence only, and not for two or more offences.

4. Every complaint or information may be laid or made by the complainant or informant in person, or by his counsel or attorney or other person authorized in that behalf. Altered slightly in the wording.

Although this section requires that every information shall be for one offence only, and not for two or more offences; section 725, post, provides that no information, etc., shall be held to charge two offences or be held to be uncertain, on account of its stating the offence to have been committed in different modes, or in respect of one or other of several articles either conjunctively or disjunctively.

If distinct and separate acts are committed on different days, the offences are distinct and subject to separate penalties. (60) But ambiguity arises upon a repetition of similar acts upon the same day. With regard to cases of this kind, no general rule can be laid down; but the law in each case must be determined, by the nature of the offence and the manner in which the particular statute applicable to it is worded. Killing several hares on the same day has been held to be a single offence; and so, likewise, is exercising trade on a Sunday a single offence, although several sales have taken place. (61)

(58) Ib.
(59) R. v. Edwards, 4 W. R., 257.
(60) R. v. Mathews. 10 Mod., 27.

And a charge of stealing "in or from" a building is a charge of only one offence. (62)

A charge of keeping a house of ill-fame on a date named and on other days previously, does not constitute a charge of a distinct offence upon each of these days, — the only offence charged, by these words, being the continuous keeping of a house of ill-fame during these days. (63)

A charge of unlawfully distilling spirits and making or fermenting beer, on certain premises, without having a revenue license therefor, charges only one offence and not two offences. (64)

Upon a summary hearing of a charge punishable on summary conviction, if the information charges more than one offence all but one should be struck out upon objection taken; and if the objection be overruled and evidence taken upon the several charges until the conclusion of the prosecutor's case when all but one are abandoned a conviction upon that one is invalid, and should be quashed on appeal. (65)

Of course, when there is special legislation to that effect, the information may include more than one offence. Thus, where a Liquor License Act provides that several charges may be included in one information; and, if the magistrate adjudges the accused guilty upon such charges, the fines may be imposed in and by one conviction adjudging a forfeiture in respect of each offence. (66)

On a proceeding by summons, in the nature of a criminal prosecution under the Ontario Election Act, all corrupt practices charged as having been committed by the accused in respect of the same election may be tried together and included in the one judgment of conviction. (67) fore the justice receiving an information for an indictable offence and the provisions respecting the attendance of witnesses on a preliminary inquiry and the taking of evidence thereon, shall, so far as the same are applicable, except as varied by sections immediately following, apply to any hearing under the provisions of this part: Provided that whenever a warrant is issued in the first instance against a person charged with an offence punishable under the provisions of this part. the Justice issuing it shall furnish a copy or copies thereof, and cause a copy to be served on the person arrested at the time of such arrest.

2. Nothing herein contained shall oblige any justice to issue any summons to procure the attendance of a person charged with an offence by information laid before such Justice whenever the application for any order may, by law, be made ex parte.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

A sworn information merely stating that the complainant has just cause to suspect and believe, and does suspect and believe that the defendant has committed the offence charged, will not alone authorize a justice to issue a warrant of arrest. Where the complaint is laid upon information and belief, and the causes of suspicion are not disclosed therein, the justice should examine the complainant and his witnesses ex parte, under oath touching the grounds of suspicion; and the justice should grant a warrant of arrest only in case he himself entertains the like suspicion as a result of such investigation. (68)

Sec. 844. Sec. 712. Backing warrants. — The provisions of section six hundred and sixty-two relating to the endorsement of warrants shall apply to the case of any warrant issued under the provisions of this Part against the accused, whether before or after conviction, and whether for the apprehension or imprisonment of any such person. Altered as here set forth.

Sec. 849. Sec. 714. Hearing in open Court. Unchanged.

Sec. 850. Sec. 715. Counsel for parties. — The person against whom the complaint is made or information laid shall be admitted to make his full answer and defence thereto, and to have the witnesses examined and cross-examined by counsel, solicitor or agent on his behalf.

2. Every complainant or informant in any such case shall be at liberty to conduct the complaint or information, and to have the witnesses examined and cross-examined, by counsel or attorney on his behalf.

Altered as here indicated in italics.

Sec. 851. Sec. 716. Evidence to be on oath. Commissioners to be appointed to take evidence out of Canada. Every witness at any hearing shall be examined upon oath or affirmation, by the justice before whom such witness appears for the purpose of being examined.

2. A Judge of any superior or county court may appoint a commissioner or commissioners to take the evidence upon oath of any person who resides out of Canada and is stated to be able to give material information relating to an offence for which a prosecution is pending under this Part, or relating to any person accused of such offence, in the circumstances and in the manner, mutatis mutandis, in which he might do so under section nine hundred and ninety-seven; and all the provisions of the said section, in respect of matters arising thereunder, shall apply mutatis mutandis to matters arising under this section: Provided that no such appointment shall be made without the consent of the Attorney General. Altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 852. Sec. 717. Prosecutor need not prove a negative: but defendant may prove affirmative of any exemption, etc. Unchanged.

Sec. 853. Sec. 718. Non-appearance of accused. Ex parte hearing, or adjournment until apprehension of defendant. Unchanged.

The hearing before a justice trying a person for an offence punishable on summary conviction may be adjourned from time to time under this section, although the accused be not present, provided the adjournments are made in the presence and hearing of his solicitor or agent. (70)

A magistrate has no jurisdiction to proceed in the absence of the accused in a summary proceeding, without evidence that the summons was served a reasonable time before the hearing. Where the proof of service of the summons was that it had been left with an adult person at defendant's house, on the date preceding the hearing, this does not constitute evidence upon which the magistrate could adjudicate upon the question of reasonable notice, without proof of the hour of service and the distance from the place of hearing. (71)

On default of defendant's appearance to a summons in a summary conviction matter, a justice of the peace cannot legally proceed to take evidence and adjudicate without proof being made of service of summons. (72)

Where an accused failed to attend in pursuance of a summons, and the magistrate, without proof of service of the summons, took evidence in support of the charge, and issued a warrant for the defendant's arrest to answer the charge, the magistrate has no juisdiction to convict the accused, when brought before him, without again taking the evidence. (73)

Where the service of a summons is proved to have been made personally upon the defendant in the town where he was carrying on business and where the hearing was to take place, and the date of hearing was the day following that of service, the magistrate had evidence upon which to find that a reasonable notice had been given, and was entitled to proceed in the defendant's absence. If the service were made at a late hour on the day prior to the day of hearing, it was for the defendant to have applied to the magistrate for an adjournment, instead of ignoring the summons. (74)

On the return of a summons in a summary proceeding before justices of the peace, the person summoned must wait a reasonable time after the hour named in the summons, when the justices are, at that hour, engaged in other official business. (75)

In summary matters before a justice, the information cannot be amended at the hearing, on the non-appearance of the accused, so as to charge a separate and distinct offence from that for which the summons was issued. (76)

Sec. 854. Sec. 719. Non-appearance of prosecutor. Dismissal or Adjournment.. — If, upon the day and at the place so appointed, the defendant appears voluntarily in obedience to the summons in that behalf served upon him, or is brought before the justice by virtue of a warrant, then, if the complainant or informant, having had due notice, does not appear by himself, his counsel, solicitor or agent, the justice shall dismiss the complaint or information unless he thinks proper to adjourn the hearing of the same until some other day upon such terms as he thinks fit.

Altered, as here indicated in italics.

Sec. 855. Sec. 720. Proceedings when both parties appear. — If both parties appear, either personally or by their respective counsel solicitors or agents before the justice who is to hear and determine the complaint or information such justice shall proceed to hear and determine the same.

Altered, as here indicated in italics.

Where separate charges for similar offences are pending before the magistrate, either of which by an amendment could have been tried under the process for the other, the magistrate should not, after hearing evidence on the one offence, adjourn the trial thereof and hear evidence upon the other offence; and a conviction in the second is made without jurisdiction if the evidence in the first was likely to influence the magistrate against the accused in the second charge, although the first charge was dismissed. (77)

A single conviction for two separate offences may be quashed, although the accused did not appear before the justice, if it cannot be ascertained from the proceedings for which separate offence the justice intended to convict. (77a)

Where three separate charges for similar offences each committed within a few days of the other are consecutively tried by a magistrate on the one day, and the magistrate announces a conviction or acquittal at the conclusion of each case, it is no objection to the validity of the trials that they were intermixed by the reservation of the question of punishment, until after the conclusion of all three trials. (78)

Sec. 856. Sec. 721. Arraignment of Accused. — If the defendant is personally present at the hearing, the substance of the information or complaint shall be stated to him, and he shall be asked if he has any cause to show why he should not be convicted, or why an order should not be made against him, as the case may be.

2. If the defendant thereupon admits the truth of the information or complaint, and shows no sufficient cause why he should not be convicted, or why an order should not be made against him, as the case may be, the justice present at the hearing shall convict him or make an order against him accordingly.

3. If the defendant does not admit the truth of the information or complaint, the justice shall proceed to inquire into the charge and for the purposes of such inquiry shall take the evidence of witnesses both for the complainant and accused in the manner provided by Part XIV. in the case of a preliminary inquiry.

4. The prosecutor or complainant is not entitled to give evidence in reply if the defendant has not adduced any evidence other than as to his general character.

5. In a hearing under this Part the witnesses need not sign their depositions.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

If the accused is, in fact, present before the magistrate who has jurisdiction over the person and the offence, the hearing of the charge may be lawfully proceeded with, notwithstanding that the warrant, on which the accused was arrested, was executed by a person not legally qualified for that purpose. (79)

Paragraph 3 of the above section 721 provides for the taking of evidence according to the provisions of Part XIV., ante, section 682 (par. 3) of which Part requires the evidence to be taken down in writing. And, so, it has been held that a summary conviction for vagrancy is bad, if made upon evidence not reduced to writing. (80)

The failure of the justices in a summary conviction matter to take down in writing depositions of the witnesses both for the complainant and the accused, is a ground for quashing the conviction on certiorari. (81)

Sec. 857. Sec. 722. Adjournment. — Before or during the hearing of any information or complaint the justice may, in his discretion adjourn the hearing of the same to a certain time or place to be then appointed and stated in the presence and hearing of the party or parties, or of their respective counsel, solicitors or agents then present, but no such adjournment shall be for more than eight days.

2. If, at the time and place to which the hearing or further hearing is adjourned, either or both of the parties do not appear, personally or by his or their counsel, solicitors or agents respectively, before the justice or such other justices as shall then be there, the justice who is then there may proceed to the hearing or further hearing as if the party or parties were present.

3. If the prosecutor or complainant does not appear the justice may dismiss the information, with or without costs, as to him seems fit.

4. Whenever any justice adjourns the hearing of any case he may suffer the defendant to go at large or may commit him to the common gaol or other prison within the territorial division for which such justice is then acting, or to such other safe custody as such justice thinks fit, or may discharge the defendant upon his recognizance, with or without sureties at the discretion of such justice, conditioned for his appearance at the time and place to which such hearing or further hearing is adjourned.

5. Whenever any defendant who is discharged upon recognizance, or allowed to go at large, does not appear at the time mentioned in the recognizance or to which the hearing or further hearing is adjourned the justice may issue his warrant for his apprehension. Altered as here indicated in italics.

An adjournment of the hearing of a complaint under the summary convictions clauses of the Code cannot be made by the Clerk of the Court in the absence of the magistrate to a date more than eight days after that when the last adjournment was ordered by the magistrate. (82)

It is not competent for magistrates, where an information charges an offence which they have no jurisdiction to try summarily, to convert the charge into one which they have jurisdiction to try summarily, and to so try it on the original information. (83)

DEFECTS AND OBJECTIONS.

Sec. 846. Sec. 723. Proceedings not objectionable on certain grounds. Unchanged.

A conviction by a magistrate on a summary trial for keeping a common bawdy house need not specify the location of the house further than to shew that it was at a place within the jurisdiction of the Court. (84)

A warrant of commitment under a summary conviction must show on its face that the person by whom it is made has magisterial authority at the place where the offence occurred; and an objection in this respect is not cured by the above section 723. (85)

A warrant of remand signed with the addition of the letters "J. P.", after the signature, and containing a reference to the signer "or some other justice" for the county, must be taken to shew judisdiction on its face. (86)

Sec. 847. Sec. 724. Variance or defect, as to time when or as to place where, etc., not to be deemed material. Unchanged.

(85) R. v. Gow. (alias Joe), 11 Can. Cr. Cas., 81.

(86) Ex p. Hilchie, 11 Can. Cr. Cas., 85.

The variance between the information laid and the evidence adduced, referred to, in this section, as not being material is merely a difference between the mode of stating and the mode of proving one and the same thing in substance; and, therefore, where the evidence adduced establishes something entirely different from that charged, the objection to the variance may be taken and allowed. As, if a defendant were summoned for an assault, and the evidence showed, — instead of an assault. — that the defendant did some slight damage to property, for which, if charged therewith, he might have been summarily tried, the variance would be a good ground of objection, and ought to be sustained.

Where an information differs from the evidence by stating the complaints to be "T. B. and his partners," instead of an incorporated company by its corporate name, it is such a variance as is cured by the above section. (87)

But it is different where a manager of a company is summoned instead of the company itself. (88)

An information for the illegal selling of liquor, under the Ontario Liquor License Act, cannot be amended, if the amendment would have the effect of charging an offence of a date more than thirty days before the making of the amendment, there being in the Act a provision limiting the time for commencing prosecutions to thirty days. (89)

A summary conviction for being "a loose, idle person or vagrant", without specifying in what the vagrancy consisted is void for uncertainty. (90)

Sec. 907. Sec. 725. Proceedings not objectionable on certain other grounds. Meaning unchanged.

ADJUDICATION.

Sec. 858. Sec.726. Justice may convict, make an order, or dismiss. Unchanged.

It has been held, in a New Brunswick case, that after the evidence has been heard, the justice is not bound either to convict or discharge the defendant, but that he may allow the prosecutor to withdraw the charge, although another information covering the same charge has been laid by the same prosecutor against the same defendant, and the determination thereof is still pending. A conviction for refusing to close a billiard room, after a closing hour fixed by a municipal by-law, which applied to Saturdays only, is bad, if it does not shew on its face that the offence took place on a Saturday; and a conviction for keeping a billiard room open contrary to a municipal by-law "after the hour of half past eight" is bad, unless it specifies whether the time was in the morning or evening, if the by-law applies to the evening only. (92)

A conviction under a by-law must shew on its face whether the date of the alleged offence was before or after the by-law came into operation. (93)

A conviction is invalid if it awards one fine against three persons for their separate acts. (94)

A summary conviction based upon the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice, who is shewn to have received money to testify against the accused, is properly set aside on appeal. (95)

The magistrate cannot, — when there are two charges against the defendant, — reserve judgment after hearing the evidence in one of them, and then proceed to hear the second, and convict on both charges. (96)

But where, — in the event of a defendant being charged, upon two informations, with two different offences, — the justices apply the evidence in each case to that case alone, they may postpone the announcement of their decision in the first case until they have heard and determined the second. (97)

A summary conviction awarding one month's imprisonment in default of distress under a statute which authorized imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month, will not be quashed for variance from the minute of conviction by reason of the latter stating the term to be thirty days. (98)

Upon a summary conviction for wilful injury to property it is necessary that the conviction should specify the particular act done and the nature of the property damaged, otherwise the conviction will be void for uncertainty and will not support a commitment in similar terms. (99)

Sec. 860. Sec. 728. Disposal of penalties when there are joint offenders. Unchanged.

Sec. 861. Sec. 729. First conviction in certain cases. — Whenever any person is summarily convicted before a justice of any offence against Part VI., or Part VII., except section four hundred and nine and sections four hundred and sixty-six to five hundred and eight inclusive, or against Part VIII., except sections five hundred and forty-two to five hundred and forty-five inclusive, and it is a first conviction, the justice may, if he thinks fit, discharge the offender from his conviction upon his making such satisfaction to the person aggrieved, for damages and costs, or either of them, as are ascertained by the justice.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 862. Sec. 730. Order of dismissal and certificate thereof.— If the justice dismisses the information or complaint, he may, when required so to do, make an order of dismissal in form 37, and he shall give the defendant a certificate in form 38 which, upon being afterwards produced, shall without further proof, be a bar to any subsequent information or complaint for the same matter, against the same defendant. Slightly altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 863. Sec. 731. Minute of order to be served before issuing warrant for disobedience of it.

Meaning unchanged.

Where a warrant of commitment, under a summary conviction adjudging imprisonment, is delivered to a constable, and the defendant, then being at large, deposits money with the constable as security for his appearance when required, and gets the constable to delay the execution of the commitment for a time, the defendant cannot object to a subsequent arrest, accompanied by a return of the deposit, on the ground that it was illegal to make a second arrest under the same warrant. 2ND EDIT.	REVISED STATUTES 1906	REMARKS

Sec. 864. Sec. 732. Assault. Duty of justice not to deal summarily with the offence, when it is found to be more than a common assault.
Unchanged.

Sec. 865. Sec. 733. Dismissal of complaint for assault.
Unchanged.

Sec. 866. Sec. 734. Release from further proceedings.
Unchanged.

No action of damages for assault lies, in favor of the party aggrieved, against an assailant tried and convicted under the above section 732, and who has paid the amount of the fine. (101)

Sec. 867. Sec. 735. Costs may be ordered on conviction or order.
Unchanged.

Sec. 868. Sec. 736. Costs on dismissal. Unchanged.

Sec. 869. Sec. 737. Recovery of costs with penalty.
Unchanged.

Sec. 870. Sec. 738. Recovery of costs when no penalty.
Unchanged.

The word " penalty ", in these sections, is restricted to a pecuniary penalty, because of its association with the terms " paid " and "recover." (102)

The allowance, by the magistrate, on a summary conviction, of excessive costs in respect of mileage to the constable for serving subpoenas on witnesses, is not a ground for quashing the conviction. The making up of the costs is a ministerial act, which does not go to the jurisdiction. If the magistrate, in making up the costs, has not acted bona fide, he is liable criminally, or, if with dishonest intention, he takes too much for costs, he may be made to disgorge, but the conviction is good. (103)

Sec. 871. Fees. (104)

Sec. 872. Sec. 739. Provisions respecting convictions. — Whenever a conviction adjudges a pecuniary penalty or compensation to be paid, or an order requires the payment of a sum of money, whether the Act or law authorizing such conviction or order does or does not provide a mode of raising or levying the penalty, compensation or sum of money, or of enforcing the payment thereof, the justice by his conviction, or order after adjudging payment of such penalty, compensation, or sum of money, with or without costs, may order and adjudge, —

(a) that in default of payment thereof forthwith, or within a limited time, such penalty, compensation or sum of money and costs, if the conviction or order is made with costs, shall be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the defendant, and, if sufficient distress cannot be found, that the defendant be imprisoned in the manner and for the time directed by the Act or law authorizing such conviction or order or by this Act, or for any period not exceeding three months, if the Act or law authorizing such conviction or order does not specify imprisonment, or does not specify any term of imprisonment, unless such penalty, compensation or sum of money and costs, if the conviction or order is made with costs, and the costs and charges of the distress and of the commitment and of the conveying of the defendant to gaol, are sooner paid; or

(b) that, in default of payment of the said penalty, compensation or sum of money, and costs, if any, forthwith, or within a limited time, the defendant be imprisoned in the manner and for the time mentioned in the said Act or law, or for any period not exceeding three months, if the Act or law authorizing the conviction or order does not specify imprisonment, or does not specify any term of imprisonment, unless the same, and the costs and charges of the distress and of the commitment and of the conveyance of the defendant to gaol, are sooner paid.

2. Whenever under such Act or law, imprisonment with hard labour may be ordered or adjudged in the first instance as part of the punishment for the offence of the defendant, the imprisonment in default of distress or of payment may be with hard labour. (105)

Sec. 872. Sec. 740. Imprisonment when ordered in addition to fine. — Where, by virtue of an Act or law so authorizing, the justice by his conviction adjudges against the defendant payment of a penalty or compensation, and also imprisonment, as punishment for an offence, he may, if he thinks fit, order that the imprisonment in default of distress or of payment, shall commence at the expiration of the imprisonment awarded as a punishment for the offence.

2. The like proceeding may be had upon any conviction or order in accordance with this or the last preceding section as if the Act or law authorizing the conviction or order had expressly provided for a conviction or order in the terms permitted by this or the last preceding section. (106)

ENFORCING ADJUDICATION.

Sec. 872. Sec. 741 Warrant of distress and subsequent warrant of commitment. — The justice making the conviction or order mentioned in paragraph (a) of section seven hundred and thirty-nine may issue a warrant of distress in form 39 or 40, as the case requires, and in the case of a conviction or order under paragraph (b) of the said section, a warrant in one of the forms 41 or 42 may issue.

2. If the warrant of distress is issued and the constable or peace officer charged with the execution thereof returns (form 43) than he can find no goods or chattels whereon to levy thereunder, the justice may issue a warrant of commitment in form 44 (107)

Section 872 (a) of the old Code did not authorize the justice,— in issuing a warrant of commitment, (after default of payment of a penalty and costs, and after the issuing of a distress warrant and return of nulla bona), — to include costs of commitment; and it was therefore held, in a Sova Scotia case, that the inclusion, in the justice's warrant of commitment, of such authorized costs, was a ground for the discharge of the defendant, upon habeas corpus. (108) But il will be seen, now, that the new section 739(a) expressly mentions the costs of commitment, as well as the costs and charges of the distress and of the conveying of the defendant to gaol.

(105) Taken from the first 4 paragraphs of the old sec. 872.
(106) Taken from subsections 3 and 4 of the old sec. 872.
(107) Taken from subsection 2 of the old sec. 872.

A summary conviction, in which the costs awarded are directed to be paid to the magistrate, is, in that respect, invalid. (109)

Where a fine is imposed by a summary conviction, and, in default of a payment, the accused is ordered to be committed to gaol for three months with hard labor, unless the fine and costs and the charges of conveying the prisoner to gaol are sooner paid, the conviction is invalid to support a commitment thereunder, unless the latter are fixed by the conviction. (110)

If the justice making a summary conviction adjudges a pecuniary penalty and a distress to realize same, and in default of sufficient distress that the defendant be imprisoned, the costs of the distress and of conveying the defendant to gaol are not in the discretion of the justice, but must be included in the formal conviction. (111)

Hard labor cannot be imposed with imprisonment under the above sections, in default of payment of a fine upon summary conviction, unless imprisonment with hard labor might have been imposed, in the first instance, as part of the punishment for the offence. (112)

A warrant of commitment under the above section (739*b*) in default of paying a fine is bad, unless it includes the expenses of conveying the defendant to gaol. (113)

A warrant of commitment for want of distress, upon a summary conviction, is invalid, and will be quashed, if it recites only default in payment of the fine, and does not show, on its face, either a return of the distress warrant and that no sufficient distress was found, or that a distress was dispensed with in accordance with section 744, post. The provision of the Canada Temperance Act fixing the penalty at "not less than $50, or imprisonment for a term not exceeding one month" applies to so limit the term of imprisonment when imposed in the first instance, and not imposed for default of payment of the penalty. Where a fine is, in the first instance, imposed, the punishment, in default of payment of the fine, may be for any term not exceeding three months, under the above section (739) of the Code. (114)

Sec. 873. Sec. 742. Distress and commitment for costs. — When any information or complaint is dismissed with costs the justice may issue a warrant of distress on the goods and chattels of the prosecutor or complainant, in form 45, for the amount of such costs; and, in default of distress, a warrant of commitment in form 46 may issue.

2. The term of imprisonment in such case shall not exceed one month.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 874. Sec. 743. Endorsement of warrant of distress. — Unchanged. (115)

Sec. 875. Sec. 744. The justice may dispense with a distress, if it would be ruinous to his family, or if defendant confesses, or it otherwise appears, that he has no goods and chattels. Unchanged.

SURETIES TO KEEP THE PEACE.

Sec. 959. Sec. 748. Recognizance to keep the peace in addition to or in lieu of sentence and security to keep the peace, on complaint of a person threatened with personal injury, etc. Meaning unchanged. (115*a*)

The application for sureties to keep the peace, — on account of threats, — should be made soon after the cause of fear, upon which it is based, has arisen, (116) and the threat complained of

should not be merely a conditional or contingent one, to be executed in case only of the complainant doing something which he has no right to do, or which it is not necessary for him to do in the course of his business. But if it is so necessary, then a threat so made may be a proper foundation for the application for sureties. (117)

The Magistrate will form his own opinion and satisfy himself as to whether or not the facts stated amount in reality to a threat of personal violence. It is not enough that the complainant swears to an apprehension of personal violence. He should disclose facts which show that he has reasonable grounds for his fears and that the defendant's conduct is such as would make that impression upon the mind of any impartial and dispassionate man.

If the Magistrate is satisfied upon this subject, he issues either a summons or a warrant to bring the defendant before him. And the defendant, upon his appearance, is asked if he has any cause to show why he should not enter into his recognizance and give the required sureties to keep the peace.

The third paragraph of the above section, 748, expressly provides that the provisions of this Part (XV), — (relating to summary convictions), — shall apply, so far as applicable, to proceedings thereunder, and that the complainant and defendant and witnesses may be called and examined and cross-examined.

Where, on an application for sureties to keep the peace, proof is made not only of the alleged threats, but also of the commission of an assault, not alleged, the justice cannot convict the defendant of the assault, but can only order the giving of sureties as applied for. (118)

APPEAL.

Sec. 879. Sec. 749. Courts of Appeal in the various provinces. — Unless it is otherwise provided in any special Act under which a conviction takes place or an order is made by a justice for the payment of money or dismissing an information or complaint, any person who thinks himself aggrieved by any such conviction or order or dismissal, the prosecutor or complainant, as well as the defendant, may appeal, — the Peace; and in all other cases to the division Court of the division of the county in which the cause of the information or complaint arose;

(b) in the province of Quebec, to the Court of King's Bench, Crown side;

(c) in the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Manitoba, to the county court of the district or county where the cause of information or complaint arose;

(d) in the province of British Columbia, to the county court, at the sitting thereof which shall be held nearest to the place where the cause of the information or complaint arose;

(e) in the province of Prince Edward Island, to the Supreme Court;

(f) in the province of Saskatchewan or the province of Alberta, to the district court at the sittings thereof which shall be held nearest to the place where the cause of information or complaint arose. (As amended by the 6 and 7 Ed. VII, c. 45, sec. 6; but sec. 7 of the Act provides that the Act shall come into force as respects either of the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta only upon proclamation of the Governor General).

(g) in the Northwest Territories, to a stipendiary magistrate; and,

(h) in the Yukon Territory, to a judge of the Territorial Court.

2. In the district of Nipissing such person may appeal to the Court of General Sessions of the Peace for the county of Renfrew, when the conviction adjudges imprisonment only, and in all other cases to the Division Court of the county of Renfrew held nearest to the place where the cause of the information or complaint arose.

3. In the case of the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta, and of the Northwest Territories and the Yukon Territory, the judge or stipendiary magistrate hearing any such appeal shall sit without a jury at the place where the cause of the information or complaint arose, or at the nearest place thereto where a court is appointed to be held.

Altered, as here set forth.

A person who has been convicted under the Summary Convictions Part of the Code upon his plea of guilty may, notwithstanding such plea of guilty, enter an appeal under this section. The plea of guilty concludes the accused only as to the fact that he did what is charged in the information; and he may still appeal either by way of review under section 761 post, or under this section 749, upon the ground that the conviction is bad in law or upon an objection to the information or summons, when such objection has been taken before the magistrate and overruled by him. (119)

Where an appeal has been taken, under section 749, from a summary conviction, and the County Court has confirmed the conviction, the defendant cannot afterwards obtain, from the convicting magistrate, a stated case to a Superior Court, — the decision in appeal of the County Court being res judicata between the parties as to the application for a "stated case." (120)

An appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench, in Quebec, from an order of a justice of the peace, dismissing an information or complaint on a plea of autre fois acquit. (121)

Sec. 880. Sec. 750. Procedure in Appeal. — Unless it is otherwise provided in the special Act,—

(a) if a conviction or order is made more than fourteen days before the sittings of the court to which an appeal is given, such appeal shall be made to the next sittings of such court; but if the conviction or order is made within fourteen days of the sittings of such court, then to the second sittings next after such conviction or order;

(b) the appellant shall give notice of his intention to appeal by filing in the office of the clerk of the court appealed to, and serving the respondent with a copy thereof, a notice in writing setting forth with reasonable certainty the conviction appealed against and the court appealed to, within ten days after the conviction complained of, and shall, at least five days before the hearing of such appeal, serve upon the respondent or his solicitor a notice setting forth the grounds of such appeal;

(c) the appellant, if the appeal is from a conviction adjudging imprisonment, shall either remain in custody until the holding of the court to which the appeal is given, or shall enter into a recognizance in form 51 with two sufficient sureties, before a county judge, clerk of the peace or justice of the peace for the county in which such conviction has been made, conditioned personally to appear at the said court, and to try such appeal, and to abide the judgment of the court thereupon, and to pay such costs as are awarded by the court; and, upon such recognizance being given, the justice, before whom such recognizance is entered into, shall liberate such person, if in custody;

(d) in case of an appeal from the order of a justice, pursuant to section six hundred and thirty-seven for the restoration of gold or gold-bearing quartz, or silver or silver ore, the appellant shall give security by recognizance to the value of the said property to prosecute his appeal at the next sittings of the court and to pay such costs as are awarded against him. Slightly altered. (121*a*)

A notice of appeal from a summary conviction must state the name of the appellant, the intention to appeal, the nature of the conviction appealed against, and the sittings of court at which the appeal will be brought on. A notice of appeal purporting to be from a conviction for "looking on" while another person was playing in a common gaming house, is not a good notice of appeal from a conviction for "playing" in a common gaming house. (122)

(121*a*) The old section 880 is made into the two sections, 750 and 751.
(122) R. v. Ah Yin, (No. 1), 6 Can. Cr. Cas., 63; 9 B. C. R., 319.

A notice of appeal from a summary conviction neither addressed to nor served upon the prosecutor but addressed and served upon one only of the convicting justices of the peace, was, in the N. W. Territories, held insufficient, though it appeared that, when the notice was so served, the justice was verbally informed that it was for the prosecutor. (123)

In the province of Quebec it has been held that where a notice of appeal was served on the justice who tried the case instead of upon the respondent, such notice must show on its face that it is so served on the justice for the respondent. (124)

But, in New Brunswick, in British Columbia and in Ontario, it has been held that a notice of appeal from a summary conviction is sufficient if addressed to and served upon the magistrate or justices, without being addressed to the prosecutor. (125)

A notice of appeal from a summary conviction is not invalid because of the want of signature; and a notice of appeal wholly typewritten is a "notice in writing," under section 750(b). (126)

A notice of appeal from a summary conviction is invalid, if it only shews to what judge and at what place the appeal is to be made and does not state that the appeal will be made at the next sitting nor otherwise define the time of hearing. (127)

The recognizance upon an appeal from a summary conviction must be conditioned that the defendant should "personally appear"; and the omission of the word "personally" makes the recognizance defective. (128)

The giving of proper security upon the appeal is a statutory condition precedent to the carrying on of a successful appeal, but, notwithstanding a defect in the security, the Court has jurisdiction to award costs against the appellant on upholding the objection and dismissing the appeal upon that ground. (129)

A defendant, fined in a summary conviction proceeding, who, thereupon, pays the fine to the clerk of the court, instead of giving a recognizance or applying to the justice under clause (c) of the above section, (750), to fix the deposit on appeal, loses his right of appeal. (130) But payment of the fine does not bar the right of appeal when payment is made contemporaneously with the expression of intention to appeal, and under pain of distress. (130*a*)

The deposit authorized by clause (c) in lieu of a recognizance must include the fine; and the whole sum covering both the fine and the probable costs of appeal must be transmitted to the appellate court with the conviction. (131)

Where the condition in a recognizance on appeal from a summary conviction was for appearance and to abide the judgment, but omitted the words to "try such appeal," the appellate court will have jurisdiction to hear the appeal, if the appellant in fact appears to prosecute it. (132)

On an appeal from a summary conviction the appellant making a money deposit in lieu of recognizance must see to it that such deposit is returned by the justice into the Court to which the appeal is taken, and in default, the appeal cannot be heard.

The fact that the appellant had made such deposit is a matter of record and is not properly provable by affidavit. (133)

Giving notice of appeal is "appealing." (134)

But if the notice be for the wrong sittings, and is therefore inoperative, there has been no appeal. (135)

Where on an appeal from a summary conviction, the appellant does not make the deposit in lieu of recognizance until after the sittings of the appellate court at which he should have brought the appeal on for hearing, and for which notice was given, the appeal cannot be heard. (136)

There is no jurisdiction to award costs against the appellant in respect of the proceedings in appeal at any other sittings than the one for which notice was given. (137)

An appeal not being a common law right the conditions precedent prescribed by statute, must be strictly complied with. So that, on an appeal under the above section, 750, by several defendants, from a summary conviction, the recognizance must be that of two sureties besides the appellants; and the appeal will be quashed if the recognizance be given with only one surety. (138)

The giving of a recognizance under the above section on an appeal from a summary conviction operates as a stay of proceedings

for the enforcement of any pecuniary penalty imposed by the conviction appealed from. (139)

The recognizance required by section 71 of the British Columbia Summary Convictions Act, on an appeal, to a County Court, from a summary conviction, must be given before the appeal is entered for trial; and the giving of the recognizance thereafter, but before the sitting of the Court, has been held to be insufficient. (140)

Where a provincial Legislature has provided that the provisions of the Criminal Code relating to summary convictions shall apply to appeals from summary convictions made under the laws of the provincial legislature, and has also enacted that no appeal in such cases shall lie unless an affidavit of merits be filed, such an affidavit must be taken to be a condition precedent of the appeal, in addition to those contained in section 750, notwithstanding the provisions of section 752. (141)

An ordinance of the N. W. Territories enacting that no appeal shall lie from a summary conviction under a territorial ordinance, unless the appellant shall, within the time limited for giving notice of appeal, make an affidavit, before the justice who tried the case, that he did not, by himself or otherwise, commit the offence, is not ultra vires of the legislative assembly. Such enactment is not inconsistent with section 880 (now 750) of the Criminal Code made applicable to the Territories. The omission to make such affidavit within the time prescribed deprives the court, to which the appeal is given, of jurisdiction, and such omission cannot be waived so as to confer jurisdiction. (142)

On an appeal from a summary conviction, if it appear, on the face of the proceedings, that the statutory counditions precedent have not been complied with, the court must dismiss the appeal, although the point is not raised by the respondent. (143)

The grounds or reasons of appeal must under the above section 750 (b) be served five clear days before the hearing; or, if served later, the appeal is not lodged in due form, and should be dismissed. (144) party, including costs of the court below, as seems meet to the court, and, in case of the dismissal of an appeal by the defendant and the affirmance of the conviction or order, shall order and adjudge the appellant to be punished according to the conviction or to pay the amount adjudged by the said order, and to pay such costs as are awarded, and shall, if necessary, issue process for enforcing the judgment of the court.

2. In any case where a deposit was made on appeal previously to the twentieth day of July in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and five, if the conviction or order is affirmed, the court may order that the sum thereby adjudged to be paid, together with the costs of the conviction or order and the costs of appeal, shall be paid out of the money deposited, and that the residue, if any, shall be repaid to the appellant; and if the conviction or order is quashed, the court shall order the money to be repaid to the appellant.

3. The Court to which such appeal is made shall have power, if necessary, from time to time, by order endorsed on the conviction or order, to adjourn the hearing of the appeal from one sitting to another, or others, of the said Court.

4. Whenever any conviction or order is quashed on appeal, the Clerk of the Peace or other proper officer shall forthwith endorse, on the conviction or order, a memorandum that the same has been quashed.

5. Whenever any copy or certificate of such conviction or order is made, a copy of such memorandum shall be added thereto, and shall, when certified under the hand of the Clerk of the Peace, or of the proper officer having the custody of the same, be sufficient evidence, in all courts and for all purposes, that the conviction or order has been quashed. (144*a*)

(144*a*) The old section 880 is made into the two new sections 750 and 751.

If, when the appeal comes up for hearing, the appellant be surprised by the production of a conviction different from the copy previously delivered to him, he may apply for time, and the appeal should be adjourned. (145)

Sec. 881. Sec. 752. Court appealed to absolute judge of facts and of law. When an appeal against any summary conviction or order has been lodged in due form, and in compliance with the requirements of this part, the Court appealed to shall try, and shall be the absolute judge, as well of the facts as of the law, in respect to such conviction or order.

2. Any of the parties to the appeal may call witnesses and adduce evidence, whether such witnesses were called or evidence adduced at the hearing before the Justice or not, either as to the credibility of any witness, or as to any other fact material to the inquiry.

3. Any evidence taken before the justice at the hearing below, certified by the Justice, may be read on such appeal, and shall have the like force and effect as if the witness was there examined, if the Court appealed to is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise, that the personal presence of the witness cannot be obtained by any reasonable efforts.

Slightly changed in the wording.

Sec. 883. Sec. 754. Judgment to be upon the merits.

Meaning unchanged.

An appeal from a summary conviction is in Ontario to be taken to the Court of General Sessions of the Peace sitting without a jury; and section 881 (now 752) constituting such Court the absolute judge as well of the facts as of the law in respect of the conviction or decision appealed against is intra vires of the Dominion Parliament. (146)

A statutory provision that the appellate court shall try the appeal without a jury is one relating to the procedure and not to the constitution of the Court. (147)

The decision of the Court of General Sessions or County Court in appeal from a summary conviction has been held to be final and

(145) R. v. Allen, 15 East, 346.
(146) R. v. Malloy, 4 Can. Cr. Cas., 116.
(147) Ib.

conclusive, and that a superior court has no jurisdiction to interfere by habeas corpus. (148)

A county court judge who has allowed an appeal from a summary conviction under a statutory provision similar to section 754 of the Code, and has quashed the conviction, as invalid on its face, without hearing further evidence and trying the case de novo, cannot be compelled by mandamus to re-open the appeal for the purpose of hearing fresh evidence. (149)

Sec. 884. Sec. 755. Costs when appeal not prosecuted.

Unchanged in meaning.

It has been held that, where an appeal from a summary conviction is entered and prosecuted, but is dismissed on the ground that it was not lodged in due form, costs cannot be allowed against the appellant, and that the above section, 755, only applies when the appellant fails to proceed with his appeal, without abandoning it according to law. (150)

It has also been held, however, that the court to which an appeal might properly be taken from a summary conviction has jurisdiction to award costs to the respondent on quashing an appeal for want of jurisdiction through a defect in the notice of appeal. (151)

Sec. 885. Sec. 756. Proceedings when appeal fails.

Unchanged.

Sec. 888. Sec. 757. Conviction to be transmitted to Appeal Court. — Every Justice before whom any person is summarily tried shall transmit the conviction or order to the Court to which the appeal is by this Part given, in and for the district, county or place wherein the offence is alleged to have been committed, before the time when an appeal from such conviction or order may be heard, there to be kept by the proper officer among the records of the Court.

2. The conviction or order shall be presumed not to have been appealed against, until the contrary is shown.

3. Upon any indictment or information against any person for a subsequent offence, a copy of such conviction, certified by the proper officer of the Court, or proved to be a true copy, shall be sufficient evidence to prove a conviction for the former offence.

Altered as here set forth.

4. In any case when a conviction or order is required by this Part after appeal to be enforced by any justice the clerk of the court to which the appeal was had or other proper officer shall remit such conviction or order and all papers therewith sent to the court of appeal excepting any notice of intention to appeal and recognizance to such justice to be by him proceeded upon as in such case directed by this Part.

STATING A CASE.

Sec. 900. Sec. 761. Statement of case by justices for review. — Any person aggrieved, the prosecutor or complainant as well as the defendant, who desires to question a conviction, order, determination or other proceeding of a Justice under this part, on the ground that it is erroneous in point of law, or is in excess of jurisdiction, may apply to such Justice to state and sign a case setting forth the facts of the case and the grounds on which the proceeding is questioned, and if the Justice declines to state the case, may apply to the Court for an order requiring the case to be stated.

2. The application shall be made and the case stated within such time and in such manner as is, from time to time, directed by rules or orders under section 576.
Taken from paragraphs 2 and 3 of the old section 900.

A case will not be granted upon a question of fact, but only upon a question of law. The question as to the weight or sufficiency of the evidence is a question of fact; (153) but a question as to whether there is any evidence at all, is a question of law. (154)

The question of law to be decided, in order to be the subject of a case stated, must be one which strictly arises on the trial. (155)

Only questions of law which have first been raised before the magistrate, and which are specified in the formal "case" he has stated to the appellate court, are to be determined upon a stated case. (156)

Where, by rules of court a written request is required for a case stated by justices, such request must be in strict accordance with the above section 761. And where, by such rules of Court, the request in writing must be made within a limited time and must ask that the facts of the case and the grounds on which the proceedings are questioned be set forth in the case stated, a request which is in form a mere request to state and sign a case under the provisions of sub-section 2 of the above section is insufficient. Objection may be taken on the hearing of the stated case to the invalidity of the request therefor, and, if allowed, the appeal must be quashed for want of jurisdiction. (157)

In the absence, in any province, of rules of court fixing the time within which a case shall be stated under the above section, 761, the proceeding by way of stated case may be prosecuted within a reasonable time after the order or ruling in question. The time limited for appeals from summary convictions has no application to a stated case. (158)

Sec. 900. Sec. 762. Recognizance by applicant for a case. — The appellant at the time of making such application, and before a case is stated and delivered to him by the Justice, shall in every instance, enter into a recognizance before such Justice or some other Justice exercising the same jurisdiction, with or without surety or sureties, and in such sum as to the Justice seems meet, conditioned to prosecute his appeal without delay, and to submit to the judgment of the Court and pay such costs as are awarded by the same; and the appellant shall, at the same time, and before he shall be entitled to have the case delivered to him, pay to the justice such fees as he is entitled to.

2. The appellant, if then in custody, shall be liberated upon the recognizance being further conditioned for his appearance before the same justice, or such other justice as is then sitting, within ten days after the judgment of the court has been given, to abide such judgment, unless the judgment appealed against is reversed.

Taken from paragraph 4 of the old section.

A cash deposit cannot be accepted in lieu of recognizance on an appeal by way of "stated case" from a summary conviction. The recognizance required by this section, 762 is a condition precedent to the jurisdiction of the court to hear the appeal. (159)

Sec. 900. Sec. 763. Refusal to state a case. — If the justice is of opinion that the application is merely frivolous, but not otherwise, he may refuse to state a case, and shall on the request of the applicant sign and deliver to him a certificate of such refusal: Provided that the justice shall not refuse to state a case where the application for that purpose is made to him by or under the direction of the Attorney General of Canada, or of any province.

Taken from paragraph 5 of the old section 900.

Sec. 900. Sec. 764. Application to compel the stating of a case. — Where the justice refuses to state a case, it shall be lawful for the applicant to apply to the court, upon an affidavit of the facts, for a rule calling upon the justice, and also upon the respondent, to show cause why such case should not be stated : and such court may make such rule absolute, or discharge the application, with or without payment of costs, as to the court seems meet.

2. The justice upon being served with such rule absolute, shall state a case accordingly, upon the appellant entering into such recognizance as hereinbefore provided.

Taken from paragraph 6 of the old section 900.

The case should be so stated as to contain every question to be submitted for the opinion of the court: and it should be signed by the justice.

The case should be drawn up by the party asking for it; and a notice of a time and place for settling it should be served; and, when the case has been settled, a copy of it, as settled, together with notice of hearing thereon, should be served on the respondent.

The provision, in section 87 of the British Columbia Summary Convictions Act, that the Appellant shall, within three days after receiving the case stated, transmit it to the District Registry, is a condition precedent to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the appeal. (160)

Sec. 900. Sec. 765. Hearing of Case. The Court to which a case is transmitted shall hear and determine the question or questions of law arising thereon, and shall thereupon affirm, reverse or modify the conviction, order or determination in respect of which the case has been stated, or remit the matter to the justice with the opinion of the court thereon, and may make such other order in relation to the matter, and such orders as to costs, as to the court seems fit; and all such orders shall be final and conclusive upon all parties.

2. No justice who states and delivers a case shall be liable to any costs in respect or by reason of such appeal against his determination.

Taken from paragraph 7 of the old section 900.

Sec. 900. Sec. 766. Amendment of case. — The court for the opinion of which a case is stated, shall have power, if it thinks fit, to cause the case to be sent back for amendment; and thereupon the same shall be amended accordingly, and judgment shall be delivered after it has been amended.

Sec. 900. Sec. 767. Enforcement by justice of confirmed conviction. — After the decision of the court in relation to any case stated for their opinion, the justice in relation to whose determination the case has been stated, or any other Justice exercising the same jurisdiction, shall have the same authority to enforce any conviction, order or determination which has been affirmed, amended or made by such court as the justice who originally decided the case would have had to enforce his determination if a case had not been stated.

2. If the court deems it necessary or expedient any order of the court may be enforced by its own process.
Taken from paragraphs 10 and 11 of the old section 900.

Sec. 900. Sec. 768. No certiorari required. — No writ of certiorari or other writ shall be required for the removal of any conviction, order or other determination in relation to which a case is stated as aforesaid, for obtaining the judgment or determination of a Superior Court on such case.
Taken from paragraph 12 of the old section 900.

Sec. 900. Sec. 769. Statement of case precludes appeal. No case to be stated when no appeal allowed. — Every person for whom a case is stated as aforesaid in respect of any determination of a justice from which he is entitled to an appeal under section 749, shall be taken to have abandoned his said right of appeal finally and conclusively and to all intents and purposes.

2. Where, by any special Act, it is provided that there shall be no appeal, from any conviction or order, no proceedings shall be taken to have a case stated or signed as aforesaid in any case to which such provision as to appeal in such special Act applies.

Taken from paragraphs 14 and 15 of the old section 900.

If the point has already been brought before and been decided by the Court, it is res judicata, and will not be again entertained on a case stated. (161)

The appellant, by obtaining a case to be stated, elects that mode of appeal and cannot revert to any other mode of appeal. (162)

On the quashing of a conviction, costs are given against the prosecutor. (163)

Where an appeal, by way of stated case, is abandoned or dropped, costs are ordered against the appellant. (164)

PART XVI.

SUMMARY TRIAL OF INDICTABLE OFFENCES.

Interpretation.

Sec. 782. Sec. 771. Definitions of "Magistrate", "Common gaol", and "Property". — In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires, —

(a) 'magistrate' means and includes,

(i) in the provinces of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba, any recorder, judge of a county court if a justice of the peace, commissioner of police, judge of the sessions of the peace, and police magistrate, district magistrate or other functionary or tribunal, invested by the proper legislative authority with power to do alone such acts as are usually required to be done by two or more justices, and acting within the local limits of his or of its jurisdiction,

(ii) in the provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, any recorder, judge of a county court, stipendiary magistrate or police magistrate, acting within the local limits of his jurisdiction, and any commissioner of police and any functionary, tribunal or person invested by the proper legislative authority with power to do alone such acts as are usually required to be done by two or more justices of the peace,

(iii) in the provinces of British Columbia and Prince Edward Island, any two justices sitting together, and any functionary or tribunal having the powers of two justices,

(iv) in the province of Saskatchewan or Alberta, a judge of any district court or any two justices or any police magistrate or other functionary or tribunal having the powers of two justices, and acting within the local limits of his or its jurisdiction,

(v) in the Northwest Territories, any stipendiary magistrate, any two justices sitting together and any functionary or tribunal having the powers of two justices,

(vi) in the Yukon Territory, any judge of the Teritorial Court, any two justices sitting together and any functionary or tribunal having the powers of two justices,

(vii) in all the provinces, where the defendant is charged with any of the offences mentioned in paragraphs (a) and (f) of section seven hundred and seventy-three, any two justices sitting together;

(b) 'the common gaol or other place of confinement,' in the case of any offender whose age at the time of his conviction does not, in the opinion of the magistrate, exceed sixteen years, includes any reformatory prison provided for the reception of juvenile offenders in the province in which the conviction referred to takes place, and to which by the law of that province the offender may be sent; and,

(c) 'property' includes everything within the meaning of "valuable security" as defined by this Act.

2. In any case where the value of any valuable security is necessary to be determined it shall be reckoned in the manner prescribed by section four.

Altered as here set forth, and as amended by the 6 and 7 Ed. VII, c. 45, sec. 6).

One alteration is the making of the first part of paragraph (v) of subsection (a) of the old section into paragraph (vii) of the new section; while the remainder of paragraph (v) of subsection (a) of the old section is made into a new section, — 797, post; which new section provides that when any of the offences mentioned in paragraph (a) or paragraph (f) of section 773, post, is tried in any province, under the present Part, — XVI, — an appeal lies from a conviction for the offence, in the same manner as from summary convictions under Part XV, ante, with this exception, that, in the province of Saskatchewan or the province of Alberta, there is no appeal if the conviction be made by a judge of a Superior court.

A district magistrate in the province of Quebec may hold a summary trial under this Part, but only for the offences set out in section 773, post, and he does not possess the extended jurisdiction given to police and stipendiary magistrates by section 777, post. (165)

A district magistrate in the province of Quebec may hold a "speedy trial" under Part XVIII post; but his jurisdiction in that respect, does not attach until the accused has either been committed for trial at preliminary enquiry, or has been bailed to appeal for trial under section 696, ante. (166)

(165) R. v. Brockenridge, 7 Can. Cr. Cas., 116; Que. Jud. Rep., 12 K. B., 474.

(166) Ib.

The statutory conditions upon which jurisdiction depends cannot be waived by the accused. (167)

A justice of the peace, not having the powers of two justices, has no jurisdiction to hold a summary trial under this Part. (168)

APPLICATION OF PART.

Sec. 808. Sec. 772. Part XVII not affected. — Nothing in this Part shall affect the provisions of Part XVII, and this Part shall not extend to persons punishable under that Part, so far as regards offences for which such persons may be punished thereunder. (169)

JURISDICTION.

Sec. 783. Sec. 773. Offences dealt with under this Part. — Whenever any person is charged before a magistrate, —

(a) with theft or obtaining money or property by false pretenses, or unlawfully receiving stolen property, where the value of the property does not, in the judgment of the magistrate, exceed ten dollars; or

(b) with attempt to commit theft; or

(c) with unlawfully wounding or inflicting grievous bodily harm upon any other person, either with or without a weapon or instrument; or

(d) with indecent assault upon a male person whose age does not, in the opinion of the magistrate, exceed fourteen years when such assault is of a nature which cannot, in the opinion of the magistrate, be sufficiently punished by a summary conviction before him under any other Part; or with indecent assault upon a female, not amounting, in the magistrate's opinion, to an assault with intent to commit a rape; or

(167) Ib.
(168) R. v. Coté, 8 Can. Cr. Cas., 393.
(169) Taken from the latter half of the old section 808.

(e) with assaulting or obstructing any public or peace officer engaged in the execution of his duty, or any person acting in aid of such officer; or

(f) with keeping or being an inmate or habitual frequenter of any disorderly house, house of ill-fame or bawdy house; or the magistrate may, subject to the subsequent provisions of this Part, hear and determine the charge in a summary way.

(g) with any offence under section 235;

A magistrate. upon the summary trial before him of a prisoner on a charge, under the above section, paragraph (a), of having committed theft, may convict him of the offence mentioned in paragraph (b), of having attempted to commit theft. (171)

It has recently been held, — disapproving of R. v. France, (172), and approving of Ex parte John Cook, (173), — that the term "disorderly house", used in clause (f) of the above section, is to be governed by the statutory definition of that term, given in section 228, ante, and that it includes, not only a common bawdy house. but also a common gaming house and a common betting house, so that a police magistrate has jurisdiction to summarily try a charge of keeping a common gaming house, without the consent of the accused. (174)

A conviction upon a summary trial by two justices, under the above sections 771 and 773, for keeping a disorderly house at a specified address, from the 3rd of May to the 3rd of November, is a bar, under a plea of autrefois convict, at a speedy trial of a charge under section 228 of keeping such a house on the 3rd of November only. (175)

Where the name of the accused, the place of the offence and the character of the offence are the same in the certificate of conviction produced in proof of a plea of autrefois convict and in the charge then being tried, it will be presumed that the accused is the party named in such certificate, without parol evidence of identity. (176)

powered to summarily try the offence of being an inmate of a house of ill-fame and other offences, and to impose six months imprisonment and a fine not exceeding $100, is not restricted as to that offence by the fact that if the accused were prosecuted under the "summary convictions" clauses of being a "vagrant," by reason of being such inmate, the fine could not have exceeded $50 in addition to six months imprisonment. (177)

A prosecution against the keeper of a common bawdy house may be brought either by indictment or under the Summary Trials procedure, or the keeper may be charged as a vagrant under the Summary Convictions procedure, and neither the provision for summary trial nor that for summary conviction abrogates the right of the Crown to bring an indictment. The different methods of procedure with the varying penalties, dependent upon the class of tribunal selected, are not inconsistent but are alternative. (178)

Sec. 784. Sec. 774. Absolute jurisdiction of magistrate in respect to houses of ill-fame. — The jurisdiction of such Magistrate is absolute in the case of any person charged with keeping or being an inmate or habitual frequenter of any disorderly house, house of illfame or bawdy-house, and does not depend on the consent of the person charged to be tried by such Magistrate, nor shall such person be asked whether he consents to be so tried.

2. The provisions of this part shall not affect the absolute summary jurisdiction given to any justice or justices in any case by any other Part of this Act. (179)

Sec. 784. Sec. 775. Absolute jurisdiction in Quebec and Montreal as to seafaring person. — The jurisdiction of the Magistrate is absolute in the case of any person who, being a seafaring person and only transiently in Canada and having no permanent domicile therein, is charged, either within the city of Quebec as limited for the purpose of the police ordinance, or within the city of Montreal as so limited, or in any other seaport city or town in Canada where there is such Magistrate, with the commission therein of any of the offences in this Part previously mentioned, and also in the case of any other person charged with any such offence on the complaint of any such seafaring person whose testimony is essential to the proof of the offence.

2. Such jurisdiction does not depend on the consent of any such person to be tried by the magistrate nor shall such person be asked whether he consents to be so tried. (179)

Sec. 784. Sec. 776. Jurisdiction absolute in certain provinces. The jurisdiction of the magistrate in the provinces of British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Alberta and in the North West Territories and Yukon Territory under this Part, is absolute, without the consent of the party charged, except in cases coming within the provisions of section 777 and except in cases under sections 782 and 783, where the person charged is not a person who, under section 775, can be tried summarily without his consent. (179)

Sec. 785. Sec. 777. Summary trial, in Ontario and in cities and towns elsewhere, of certain cases. — If any person is charged, in the province of Ontario, before a police magistrate, or before a stipendiary magistrate in any county district or provisional county in such province with having committed any offence for which he may be tried at a court of general sessions of the peace, or if any person is committed to a gaol in the county, district or provisional county, under the warrant of any justice, for trial on a charge of being guilty of any such offence, such person may, with his own consent, be tried before such magistrate, and may, if found guilty, be sentenced by the magistrate to the same punishment as he would have been liable to if he had been tried before the court of general sessions of the peace.

2. This section shall apply also to police and stipendiary magistrates of cities and incorporated towns in every other part of Canada, and to recorders where they exercise judicial functions: Provided that when the magistrate has jurisdiction by virtue of this section only, no person shall be summarily tried thereunder without his own consent.

3. Sections seven hundred and eighty and seven hundred and eighty-one do not extend or apply to cases tried under this section. Slightly changed, as here set forth.

It has been held, in New Brunswick, that a police magistrate holding a commission for a county with a statutory jurisdiction in a city situate in such county is not a police magistrate of a city within the meaning of subsection 2 of this section, and that such county police magistrate has no jurisdiction to hold a "summary trial" under this Part (XVI) of the Code. (180)

This section, — 777, — comprises the summary trials of indictable offences (triable at General Sessions) other than those specifically mentioned in section 773 ante.

It has been held in New Brunswick that, although there are no courts of General Sessions except in Ontario, subsection 2 of this section, 777, is not, therefore, inoperative, but gives to a city or town magistrate, in other parts of Canada, the jurisdiction created for Ontario by the first paragraph of the section: it being also held that it is within the legislative powers of a provincial legislature to enact that every police magistrate shall constitute a court with such jurisdiction as the Dominion Parliament confers or purports to confer or may hereafter confer upon him. (181)

A person accused of perjury may, with his own consent, be summarily tried before a police magistrate; and where a defendant sought and consented to be tried summarily under section 785, (now section 777), pleading "not guilty," and the magistrate heard the evidence, adjudicated summarily and dismissed the charge, it was held that the magistrate was right in afterwards refusing to bind the prosecutor over to prosecute an indictment against the defendant under section 688 of the Code, ante; for, (see section 784 post), the magistrate has the right to determine before the defence is made whether he will try the case summarily or not. (182)

A police magistrate of a city or town may, in a summary trial for assault, under section 777, impose the same punishment as is permitted on a conviction for that offence under indictment. (183)

PROCEDURE.

Sec. 786. Sec. 778. Proceedings on arraignment of accused. — Whenever the Magistrate, before whom any person is charged as aforesaid, proposes to dispose of the case summarily under the provisions of this Part, such Magistrate, after ascertaining the nature and extent of the charge, but before the formal examination of the witnesses for the prosecution, and before calling on the person charged for any statement which he wishes to make, shall state to such person the substance of the charge against him,

2. If the charge is not one that can be tried summarily without the consent of the accused, the magistrate shall then address to him these words, or words to the like effect: 'Do you consent that the charge against you shall be tried by me, or do you desire that it shall be sent for trial by a Jury at the (naming the court at which it can probably soonest be tried)'

3. If the person charged consents to the charge being summarily tried and determined as aforesaid, or if the power of the Magistrate to try it does not depend on the consent of the accused, the Magistrate shall reduce the charge to writing and read the same to such person, and shall then ask him whether he is guilty or not of such charge.

4. If the person charged confesses the charge, the Magistrate shall then proceed to pass such sentence upon him as by law may be passed in respect to such offence, subject to the provisions of this Act; but if the person charged says that he is not guilty, the Magistrate shall then examine the witnesses for the prosecution, and when the examination has been completed, the Magistrate shall inquire of the person charged whether he has any defence to make to such charge, and if he states that he has a defence the Magistrate shall hear such defence, and shall then proceed to dispose of the case summarily. Slightly altered.

The magistrate, in putting the accused to his election, must expressly name the court at which the charge can probably be soonest heard; and the fact that the accused is represented by counsel who was probably aware of the time of the next jury sittings does not abridge the magistrate's statutory duty to, himself, inform the accused; nor is the right of the accused to be informed by the magistrate as to the next jury court waived, by a statement of his counsel that he elects to be then and there tried by the magistrate. (184)

A consent to "summary trial," under the above section, when given, without the option of a jury trial being expressly stated to the accused, or without the accused being specifically informed of his right to a trial by jury, is invalid; and a prisoner held upon a conviction based upon such consent must be discharged upon habeas corpus. (185)

When the magistrate merely asks the accused, "How do you wish to be tried, — before me or before a jury?" the provisions of the above section are not complied with; and the magistrate is without jurisdiction to hold a "Summary Trial," although the accused, in answer, consents to be tried by the magistrate. (186)

In a Nova Scotia case, in which the defendants were convicted, before a magistrate having the powers of two justices, of the offence, — (mentioned in the old section 144, subsection 2 (a), now section 169 of the Code), — of resisting a peace officer in the execution of his duty, it was held that such magistrate can try the charge only under the Part relating to "summary trials of indictable offences," and not under the Part relating to "summary convictions," and that, in order for such magistrate to try the charge, the accused must elect that mode of trial under section 778; and an order was made discharging the prisoners. (187)

Upon a summary trial under this Part, where the consent of the accused is essential to the jurisdiction, the charge upon which the accused has elected that mode of trial cannot be enlarged or extended by amendment, without giving him the right to re-elect. (188)

(187) R. v. Carmichael, 7 Can. Cr. Cas., 167; R. v. Crossen, 3 Can. Cr. Cas., 152, followed.

(188) R. v. Walsh, supra.

It has been held in Nova Scotia that an information charging the accused with being "the keeper of a disorderly house, namely, a common bawdy house," must be taken to be a charge under section 198 (now section 228) of the Code for the indictable offence of keeping a common bawdy house, and that it is not cognizable under the special jurisdiction given to magistrates by section 773 (f), because not laid in the exact language of the latter section, and that such charge could not be summarily tried by a city stipendiary magistrate without the consent of the accused under section 775. (189)

Upon a summary trial with consent upon a charge of assault occasioning bodily harm, the magistrate may convict of the lesser offence of common assault. Sec. 713 (now 951) of the Code applies to summary trials as well as to trials upon an indictment. The word "count" as used in the old section 3 (1), — now section 2 (16), — and in section 951 includes an information before a justice for an indictable offence. (190)

The offence of carnal knowledge of a girl under fourteen includes the lesser offence of indecent assault; and a police magistrate trying an accused, with his consent, summarily, upon the greater charge of carnal knowledge, has the same power to convict of the lesser offence as a Court of General Sessions would have upon a trial under an indictment. (191)

Sec. 779. Proceedings when accused is a minor of about sixteen. Whenever the person charged appears to be of, or about, or under the age of sixteen years, and is not represented by counsel present at the time, the magistrate shall not proceed under the last preceding section without first asking the person charged what his age is.

2. If such person then states his age as being sixteen years or less, the magistrate shall defer any further action, and shall at once cause notice to be given to the parent or parents of such person, living in the province, if any, or if he has no such parents, or if his parents are unknown, then to the guardian or householder, if any, with whom he ordinarily resides, of such person having been so charged, and of the time and place when such person will be called on to make his election as to whether he will be tried by the said magistrate.

3. Such notice shall allow reasonable time for the said parents, guardian or householder to be present and advise the said person charged before he is called on to so elect.

4. At the time fixed by such notice, or if it appears to the satisfaction of the magistrate that there is no person for whom notice is provided as aforesaid, or that all reasonable means to give such notice have been taken without success, then, at the earliest convenient time, the magistrate shall proceed as in the last preceding section provided.

5. If any person notified as aforesaid is present at the time so fixed, the magistrate shall afford him an opportunity to advise the person charged before he is called upon to elect.

6. The notice provided for by this section may be given by registered letter, if the person to be notified does not reside in the city, town or municipality where the proceedings are had. Added.

Sec. 787. Sec. 780. Punishment on conviction of offences under (a) or (b) of section 773. In the case of an offence charged under paragraph (a) or (b) of section 773, the magistrate, after hearing the whole case for the prosecution and for the defence shall, if he finds the charge proved, convict the person charged and commit him to the common gaol or other place of confinement, there to be imprisoned, with or without hard labor, for any term not exceeding six months. Slightly altered.

Sec. 788. Sec. 781. Punishment on conviction of an offence under (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), or (i) of section 773. In any case summarily tried under paragraphs (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), or (i) of section 773, if the magistrate finds the charge proved, he may convict the person charged and commit him to the common gaol or other place of confinement, there to be imprisoned, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding six months, or may condemn him to pay a fine not exceeding, with the costs in the case, one hundred dollars, or to both fine and imprisonment not exceeding the said sum and term.

2. Such fine may be levied by warrant of distress under the hand and seal of the Magistrate, or the person convicted may be condemned, in addition to any other imprisonment on the same conviction, to be committed to the common gaol or other place of confinement for a further term not exceeding six months, unless such fine is sooner paid.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

Where, — under the 32-33 Vic., c. 32, sec. 17, (which was to the same effect as section 781 of the Criminal Code), — a prisoner was condemned to both fine and imprisonment, it was decided that hard labor could not be added to the sentence. (192)

A conviction, (upon a summary trial of an indictable offence), whereby it is adjudged that, in addition to the imprisonment ordered, the accused "do pay a fine of $5, to be paid and applied according to law," is invalid, for want of any adjudication of forfeiture of the fine, and the accused imprisoned under a warrant of commitment based thereon should be discharged. (193)

Where the sentence imposed upon a summary trial by consent before a city stipendiary magistrate, for common assault, was, in the first instance, three months imprisonment without mention of hard labor and the minute of adjudication did not include hard labor, a formal conviction, including hard labor, and a commitment thereon in similar terms are invalid, and the accused will be discharged on habeas corpus. (194)

Where a conviction, made by a City Police or Stipendiary Magistrate, for being an inmate of a disorderly house follows the Code form WW, (now form 32), and does not recite that the accused was charged before him in the words of form QQ, (now form 55), the inference is that the prosecution is brought under the vagrancy clauses of the Code, and not under the Summary Trials of Indictable Offences Procedure. (195) R. v. Carter et al., 5 Can. Cr. Cas., 401.

Where the proceedings are taken under the Summary Convictions Procedure, a conviction inflicting a punishment in excess of that authorized on summary conviction cannot be supported, — in habeas corpus proceedings, — as a conviction on summary trial of an indictable offence, under which the punishment inflicted is authorized, notwithstanding that the magistrate was one authorized to hold a summary trial of an indictable offence, and that the offence was of the class for which the consent to trial is dispensed with by statute. (196)

Sec. 789. Sec. 782. Procedure when the theft, or false pretense or receiving is in respect of property exceeding ten dollars. When any person is charged before a Magistrate with theft or with having obtained property by false pretenses, or with having unlawfully received stolen property, and the value of the property stolen, obtained or received exceeds ten dollars, and the evidence in support of the prosecution is, in the opinion of the magistrate, sufficient to put the person on his trial for the offence charged, such magistrate, if the case appears to him to be one which may properly be disposed of in a summary way, shall reduce the charge to writing, and shall read it to the said person, and, unless such person is one who, under section 775, can be tried summarily without his consent, shall then put to him the question mentioned in section 778, and shall explain to him that he is not obliged to plead or answer before such magistrate, and that if he does not plead or answer before him, he will be committed for trial in the usual course.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 790. Sec. 783. Punishment on plea of guilty; and as to plea of not guilty. If the person charged as mentioned in the next preceding section consents to be tried by the Magistrate, the Magistrate shall then ask him whether he is guilty or not guilty of the charge, and if such person says that he is guilty, the Magistrate shall then cause a plea of guilty to be entered upon the proceedings, and sentence him to the same punishment as he would have been liable to if he had been convicted upon indictment in the ordinary way; and if he says that he is not guilty, he shall be remanded to jail to await his trial before him in the usual course. Unchanged.

A magistrate under section 771, ante, authorized to hold a summary trial by consent for theft of property exceeding $10 in value, but not being a police or stipendiary magistrate of a city or town having the additional jurisdiction conferred by section 777, ante, must first proceed with the charge as on a preliminary enquiry until it is ascertained whether or not the evidence for the prosecution is sufficient to put the accused on his trial. If the magistrate is then of opinion that the evidence for the prosecution is sufficient to put the accused on his trial, and that the case is a proper one to be disposed of summarily, he may proceed with a summary trial under the above section 782. (196*a*)

Where, on a charge of theft of property of a value exceeding $10, the accused consented to a summary trial before a city stipendiary magistrate, in Nova Scotia, it was held that such magistrate was not bound to remand the accused to gaol, upon his pleading "not guilty," but that, apart from the above section, (783), he had jurisdiction, under section 777, ante, to try the charge, and on conviction, to impose the same punishment as might be imposed in Ontario by a Court of General Sessions. (197)

Sec. 791. Sec. 784. Magistrate may decide not to proceed summarily. Unchanged.

Sec. 792. Sec. 785. Election of trial by jury to be stated on warrant of committal. If, when his consent is necessary, the person charged elects to be tried before a jury, the magistrate shall proceed to hold a preliminary inquiry as provided in Parts XIII. and XIV., and if the person charged is committed for trial, shall state in the warrant of committal the fact of such election having been made. Slightly altered, as here set forth.

(ii) in the province of Quebec, in any district wherein there is a judge of the sessions of the peace, such judge of sessions, and, in any district wherein there is no judge of the sessions of the peace but wherein there is a district magistrate, such district magistrate, and, in any district wherein there is no judge of sessions of the peace and no district magistrate, any judge of the sessions of the peace, or the sheriff of such district.

(iii) in each of the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, any judge of a county court.

(iv) in the province of Manitoba, the chief justice or a puisne judge of the Court of King's Bench, or any judge of a county court.

Offences triable under this Part, by consent. Every person committed to gaol for trial on a charge of being guilty of any of the offences which are enumerated in section 582, as being within the jurisdiction of the general or quarter sessions of the peace, may, with his own consent, be tried in any province in Canada, and, if convicted, sentenced by the judge.

2. An entry shall be made of such consent at the time the same is given.

3. Such trial shall be had under and according to the provisions of this Part out of sessions and out of the regular term or sittings of the court, and whether the court before which, but for such consent, the said person would be triable for the offence charged or the grand jury thereof is or is not then in session.

4. A person who has been bound over by a justice or justices under the provisions of section six hundred and ninety-six, and has been surrendered by his sureties, and is in custody on the charge, or who is otherwise in custody awaiting trial on the charge, shall be deemed to be committed for trial within the meaning of this section. (As amended by 6 and 7 Ed. VII, c. 45, sec. 6 (g)).

It has been held, in the province of Quebec, that the election of a speedy trial by a person, — who, at the preliminary enquiry, was bailed to appear for trial, — must take place before a true bill has been found by the Grand Jury and filed of record in the jury court, and that, unless so made, the jury court will have exclusive jurisdiction; that jurisdiction to hold a speedy trial is strictly limited by the terms of the above section, 825, and is only conferred where the accused has been committed to gaol for trial or is otherwise in custody awaiting a trial on the charge against him. (204) It has also been held that, in order to waive trial by jury and to elect to be tried by a Judge having jurisdiction under the Speedy Trials clauses, an information must have been laid before a justice of the peace, a preliminary enquiry must have been had, depositions containing evidence concerning the offence charged must have been taken, and the accused must have been committed for trial. (205)

PROCEDURE.

Sec. 766. Sec. 826. Sheriff to notify judge after committal of accused. Notice to prosecuting officer when judge does not reside in county. Unchanged.

Sec. 767. Sec. 827. Arraignment. The judge or such prosecuting officer upon having obtained the depositions on which the prisoner was so committed, shall state to him,—

(a) that he is charged with the offence, describing it;

(b) that he has the option to be forthwith tried before a judge without the intervention of a jury, or to remain in custody or under bail, as the court decides, to be tried in the ordinary way by the court having criminal jurisdiction.

2. If the prisoner has been brought before the prosecuting officer, and consents to be tried by the judge, without a jury, such prosecuting officer shall forthwith inform the judge, and the judge shall thereupon fix an early day for the trial and communicate the same to the prosecuting officer.

3. In such case or if the prisoner has been brought before the judge and consents to be tried by him without a jury, the prosecuting officer shall prefer the charge against him for which he has been committed for trial, and if, upon being arraigned upon the charge, the prisoner pleads guilty, the prosecuting officer shall draw up a record as nearly as may be in form 60.

4. Such plea shall be entered on the record, and the judge shall pass the sentence of the law on such prisoner, which shall have the same force and effect as if passed by a court having jurisdiction to try the offence in the ordinary way.

(205) R. v. Wener, Que. Jud. Rep., 12 K. B., 320; 6 Can. Cr. Cas., 406.

(206) The new section, 827, is taken from paragraphs 1, 2 and 3 of the old section 767, — paragraphs 4 and 5 thereof being made into section 828, infra.

An election for speedy trial, under this Part, must be a general one to be tried by a judge having jurisdiction, and is invalid, if restricted to trial only by the judge before whom the arraignment takes place. (207)

The waiver by the accused, upon a preliminary enquiry, of the taking of depositions, and his consent to be committed for trial, without any depositions, deprive him of the right of speedy trial, as the charge must, under section 827 be stated to the accused from the depositions on which he was committed. (208)

A prisoner, who, — after being committed for trial, — has elected in favor of a speedy trial, but who breaks gaol before a day for such trial has been fixed, may, on his re-capture, claim the right to a speedy trial for the offence for which he was committed for trial, notwithstanding that the Grand Jury has, in the meantime, found an indictment against him for such offence; but, where, without a preliminary enquiry, an indictment, for the offence of breaking gaol, has been found against the accused, he cannot elect for a speedy trial, without a jury, upon the charge of breaking gaol. (208*a*)

After a committal for trial at the instance of the Crown upon a charge of manslaughter and arraignment thereon under the speedy trials clauses and election of the accused for speedy trial without a jury, the proceedings in the County Court Judge's Criminal Court will not be stayed at the instance of the Crown to enable a charge of murder to be substituted. (209)

It has been held, in Nova Scotia, that where an accused has been committed to gaol for trial upon a charge which is within the jurisdiction of a County Court Judge's Criminal Court, under the speedy trials clauses, the jurisdiction of that court, in regard to the charge laid, is not ousted by the fact that a more serious offence, (which that court cannot try), is disclosed by the depositions upon which the charge was founded. (210) In British Columbia, however, it has since been held that, — after a commitment upon a charge of unlawful assault with intent to carnally know, — the accused cannot insist upon a trial without a jury, under the Speedy Trials clauses, if the Crown express an intention of indicting him for an attempt to commit a rape, which latter offence is beyond the jurisdiction of a county judge's criminal court and is disclosed on the depositions returned. (211)

A charge of theft preferred under the speedy trials clauses of the Code is sufficient, if it states that the defendant "unlawfully did steal," etc., without specifically averring a taking or converting "fraudulently and without color of right and with intent," etc., in the words of section 347, ante. (212)

Depositions to which the magistrate had affixed his signature, although such signature was not placed at the foot or end thereof, in accordance with section, 682, ante, are sufficiently signed for the purposes of a "charge brought thereon, under the speedy trials clauses." (213)

Sec. 767. Sec. 828. Demand of jury trial; and Re-election. If the prisoner on being brought before the prosecuting officer or before the judge as aforesaid demands a trial by jury, he shall be remanded to gaol.

2. Any prisoner who has elected to be tried by jury may, notwithstanding such election, at any time before such trial has commenced, and whether an indictment has been preferred against him or not, notify the sheriff that he desires to re-elect, and it shall thereupon be the duty of the sheriff and judge or prosecuting officer to proceed as directed by section eight hundred and twenty-six.

3. Thereafter unless the judge, or the prosecuting officer acting under subsection two of section eight hundred and twenty-six, is of opinion that it would not be in the interests of justice that the prisoner should be allowed to make a second election, the prisoner shall be proceeded against as if his said first election had not been made. (214)

Where a defendant, on arraignment before a county court judge, elects speedy trial, he cannot afterwards withdraw such election and obtain a trial by jury. (215)

Sec. 769. Sec. 830. Re-election after electing under Part XVI or XVII. If under Part XVI. (217) or Part XVII. (218), any person has been asked to elect whether he would be tried by the magistrate or justices, as the case may be, or before a jury, and he has elected to be tried by a jury, and if such election is stated in the warrant of committal for trial, the sheriff, prosecuting officer or judge shall not be required to take the proceedings directed by this Part.

2. If such person, after his said election to be tried by a jury, has been committed for trial he may, at any time before the regular term or sittings of the court at which such trial by jury would take place, notify the sheriff that he desires to re-elect.

3. In such case it shall be the duty of the sheriff to proceed as directed by section eight hundred and twenty-six, and thereafter the person so committed shall be proceeded against as if his said election in the first instance had not been made. Slightly altered.

prove the charge, to attend at the time appointed for such trial, and the judge may proceed to try such prisoner, and if he be found guilty sentence as aforesaid shall be passed upon him.

2. If he be found not guilty the judge shall immediately discharge him from custody, so far as respects the charge in question.

3. The prosecuting officer in such case shall draw up a record as nearly as may be in form 61.

Upon a speedy trial, the informant at whose instance the prosecution was begun has no locus standi, and is not entitled to prosecute through his counsel unless authorized to do so by the Attorney General. (220)

Sec. 773. Sec. 834. Preferring charges other than those for which the accused is committed. The county attorney or clerk of the peace or other prosecuting officer may, with the consent of the judge, prefer against the prisoner a charge or charges for any offence or offences for which he may be tried under the provisions of this part other than the charge or charges for which he has been committed to gaol for trial, although such charge or charges do not appear or are not mentioned, in the depositions upon which the prisoner was so committed.

2. Any such charge may thereupon be dealt with, prosecuted and disposed of, and the prisoner may be remanded, held for trial or admitted to bail thereon, in all respects as if such charge had been the one upon which the prisoner was committed for trial.

Altered, by the addition of paragraph 2.

But when any such other charges are preferred against the accused, his consent to a speedy trial of such other charges must be shown. Thus, where some prisoners were charged with having defrauded the prosecutor by means of the three-card monte game, they consented to be tried summarily. When they were brought up for trial, the Crown attorney applied for and obtained leave to substitute a charge of combining to obtain money by false pretences; but the prisoners objected. The trial was then proceeded with, without their consent to a summary trial for this substituted offence being obtained. And, upon error brought, it was held that the consent of the prisoners to be summarily tried on the substituted charge should distinctly appear, and that, by reason of its absence, the conviction was bad. (221)

A new charge cannot be added without the leave of the judge, although it be founded upon the same depositions; and the leave of the judge to prefer another charge against the accused must be obtained before the additional charge is preferred. (222)

The judge, at a speedy trial, should not, against the wish of the prisoner, give his consent to any other charge being preferred than that upon which the prisoner was committed for trial, unless it is clear that, while it may be more formally or differently expressed, it is substantially the same charge as that on which he was committed for trial. (223)

A speedy trial at a County Judge's criminal court in Ontario and a conviction thereon are not invalidated by the judge having taken evidence upon another charge against the same accused pending an adjournment of the hearing of the principal charge and after part of the evidence therein had been taken, if the charges were different as to time and place and the judge certifies that he was not influenced as to the principal charge by the evidence in the other. (224)

Sec. 774. Sec. 835. Powers of Judge on trial. — The judge shall, in any case tried before him, have the same power as to acquitting or convicting, or convicting of any other offence than that charged, as a jury would have in case the prisoner were tried by a court having jurisdiction to try the offence in the ordinary way, and may render any verdict which might be rendered by a jury upon a trial at a sitting of any such court. Slightly altered.

Sec. 775. Sec. 836. Bail if accused elects trial by judge without jury. If the prisoner elects to be tried by a judge without the intervention of a jury the judge may, in his discretion, admit him to bail to appear for his trial, and extend the bail, from time to time, in case the court be

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO COUNTS.

Sec. 611. Sec. 852. Statement of substance of offence, in popular language, or in words of enactment, etc. — Every count of an indictment shall contain, and shall be sufficient if it contains in substance, a statement that the accused has committed some indictable offence therein specified.

(1) This new section, 850. contains only the third paragraph of the old section 624, the first two paragraphs of the old section 624 being made into section 869, post.

2. Such statement may be made in popular language without any technical averments or any allegations of matter not essential to be proved.

3. Such statement may be in the words of the enactment describing the offence or declaring the matter charged to be an indictable offence, or in any words sufficient to give the accused notice of the offence with which he is charged.

4. Form 64 affords examples of the manner of stating offences. (2)

Sec. 611. Sec. 853. Details of circumstances. — Every count of an indictment shall contain so much detail of the circumstances of the alleged offence as is sufficient to give the accused reasonable information as to the act or omission to be proved against him, and to identify the transaction referred to: Provided that the absence or insufficiency of such details shall not vitiate the count.

2. A count may refer to any section or subsection of any statute creating the offence charged therein, and in estimating the sufficiency of such count the court shall have regard to such reference.

3. Every count shall in general apply only to a single transaction. (2)

An indictment should describe the offence charged with such particularity as will inform the accused of the specific acts for which he is called upon the answer. (3)

An indictment for obstructing a clergyman in celebrating divine service will not be quashed for failure to allege therein that the clergyman was in lawful charge of the church or place of worship. (4)

An indictment for unlawfully conspiring together and with each other to deprive another of the necessaries of life, to wit, proper medical care and nursing, whereby such other's death was caused, but not alleging any duty to supply such care and nursing, is bad, as not disclosing an offence known to the law, because of the omission of such allegation: and an indictment for a conspiracy to cure another of a sickness endangering life, "by unlawful and improper means," and thereby causing such other's death, is likewise bad, and should be quashed because it does not specify the unlawful and improper means nor indicate the specific crime or wrong intended to be relied upon. (5)

Each count of an indictment must contain a statement of all the essential ingredients which constitute the offence charged; and in charging the offence of uttering a forged instrument the indictment must aver that the defendants made use of or uttered the instrument knowing it to have been forged. (6)

A count, charging the accused with having committed perjury during his examination as a witness, at an inquest before a coroner and a jury, is not invalid by reason of its omitting, — in describing the tribunal at which the alleged perjury was committed, — to mention the jury, it being held that the tribunal was sufficiently identified. (7)

An indictment that "A. B. attempted to kill and murder C. D.," sufficiently discloses an indictable offence; and the court has the power to allow it to be amended so as to read that "A. B., with intent to commit murder, shot at C. D." (8)

Where the statutory form of indictment is not followed but the indictment contains all the averments which the statute requires, the addition of other unnecessary averments does not invalidate the indictment, although it might not be sufficient at common law. (9)

Sec. 612. Sec. 854. Offences may be charged in the alternative. A count shall not be deemed objectionable on the ground that it charges in the alternative several different matters, acts or omissions which are stated in the alternative in the enactment describing any indictable offence or declaring the matters, acts or omissions charged to be an indictable offence, or on the ground that it is double or multifarious. Sec. 613. Sec. 855. Count not objectionable or insufficient because of omission of certain statements. — No count shall be deemed objectionable or insufficient for the reason only, —

(a) that it does not contain the name of the person injured, or intended, or attempted to be injured; or,

(b) that it does not state who is the owner of any property therein mentioned; or,

(c) that it charges an intent to defraud without naming or describing the person whom it was intended to defraud; or

(d) that it does not set out any document which may be the subject of the charge; or,

(e) that it does not set out the words used where words used are the subject of the charge; or

(f) that it does not specify the means by which the offence was committed; or

(g) that it does not name or describe with precision any person, place or thing; or

(h) that it does not, in cases where the consent of any person, official, or authority is required before a prosecution can be instituted, state that such consent has been obtained.

2. No provision contained in this part as to matters which are not to render any count objectionable or insufficient shall be construed as restricting or limiting in any way the general provisions of sections 852 and 853. Altered as here set forth.

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud is valid without setting out any overt acts; and the name of the person injured or intended to be injured need not be stated therein. (11)

An indictment for conspiracy to defraud may properly charge that the conspiracy was with persons unknown, if there was no definite information of the identity of the alleged co-conspirators; and where, at the trial of such an indictment, the name of one of the co-conspirators is, for the first time, disclosed in the testimony of a Crown witness, that information may be added to the statement of particulars of the indictment. Sec. 617. Sec. 860. Copy particulars to be supplied to the accused. Unchanged.

The ordering of particulars to be furnished to the accused by the Crown in respect of an indictment for theft is a matter of judicial discretion.

Where the Crown is unable to specify in detail the several sums alleged to have been received and misappropriated by a Government employee and the prosecution is laid for theft of a sum aggregating the deficit appearing upon the employee's books and returns, particulars should be ordered against the Crown only with regard to the direct proof of details so as not to exclude general evidence based upon the balances returned from time to time.

With the consent of the Crown, an order may be made for the delivery of particulars showing what statements of account made by the accused are proposed to be put in evidence for the prosecution, and what sums are alleged to have been wrongfully omitted therefrom or wrongfully inserted therein. 3. On the trial it shall be sufficient to prove that the matter published was criminal either with or without such innuendo.

Sec. 616. Sec. 862. Sec. 623. Sec. 868. Indictment for theft by public employees. Unchanged in meaning.

Sec. 624. Sec. 869. Indictments for offences respecting letter bags and other mailable matter. — When an offence is committed in respect of a post letter bag, or a post letter, or other mailable matter, chattel, money or valuable security sent by post, the property of such post letter bag, post letter, or other mailable matter, chattel, money or valuable security may, in the indictment preferred against the offender, be laid in the Postmaster General; and it shall not be necessary to allege in the indictment, or to prove upon the trial or otherwise, that the post letter bag, post letter or other mailable matter, chattel or valuable security was of any value.

2. The property of any chattel or thing used or employed in the service of the post office, or of moneys arising from duties of postage, shall, except in the cases aforesaid, be laid in His Majesty, if the same is the property of His Majesty, or if the loss thereof would be borne by His Majesty, and not by any person in his private capacity. PREFERRING INDICTMENT.

Sec. 870. Order by Judge, for prosecution, when perjury committed before him. — Any judge of any court of record, before whom any inquiry or trial is held, and which he is by law required or authorized to hold, may, if it appears to him that any person has been guilty of wilful and corrupt perjury in any evidence given, or in any affidavit, affirmation, declaration, deposition, examination, answer or other proceeding made or taken before him, direct such person to be prosecuted for such perjury, if there appears to such judge a reasonable cause for such prosecution.

2. Such judge may commit such person until the next term, sittings or session of any court having power to try for perjury, in the jurisdiction within which such perjury was committed, or permit such person to enter into a recognizance, with one or more sufficient sureties, conditioned for his appearance at such next term, sittings or session, and that he will then surrender and take his trial and not depart the court without leave.

3. Such judge may require any person he thinks fit to enter into a recognizance conditioned to prosecute or give evidence against the person so directed to be prosecuted. (21)

Sec. 641. Sec. 871. Any one bound over may prefer indictment. Any one who is bound over to prosecute any person, whether committed for trial or not, may prefer a bill of indictment for the charge on which the accused has been committed, or in respect of which the prosecutor is so bound over, or for any charge founded upon the facts or evidence disclosed on the depositions taken before the justice.

2. The accused may at any time before he is given in charge to the jury apply to the court to quash any count in the indictment on the ground that it is not founded on such facts or evidence, and the court shall quash such count if satisfied that it is not so founded.

3. If at any time during the trial it appears to the court that any count is not so founded, and that injustice has been or is likely to be done to the accused in consequence of such count remaining in the indictment, the court may then quash such count and discharge the jury from finding any verdict upon it. (22)

Sec. “ Sec. 872. Crown Counsel may prefer indictment. — The counsel acting on behalf of the Crown at any court of criminal jurisdiction may prefer against any person who has been committed for trial at such court a bill of indictment for the charge on which the accused has been so committed or for any charge founded on the facts or evidence disclosed in the depositions taken before the justice. (22)

Sec. “ Sec. 873. Attorney General, or any one by his direction, or any one with a Judge's written consent, or with consent of Attorney General, or by order of the Court, may prefer an indictment. — The Attorney General or any one by his direction or any one with the written consent of a judge of any court of criminal jurisdiction or of the Attorney General, may prefer a bill of indictment for any offence before the grand jury of any court specified in such consent.

2. Any person may prefer any bill of indictment before any court of criminal jurisdiction by order of such court.

3. It shall not be necessary to state such consent or order in the indictment and an objection to an indictment for want of such consent or order must be taken by motion to quash the indictment before the accused person is given in charge.

4. Except as in this Part previously provided no bill of indictment shall be preferred in any province of Canada. (22)

Sec. 873A. Mode of charge in Saskatchewan and Alberta. — In the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta, it shall not be necessary to prefer any bill of indictment before a grand jury, but it shall be sufficient that the trial of any person charged with a criminal offence be commenced by a formal charge in writing setting forth, as in an indictment, the offence with which he is charged.

(22) The old section, 641, is divided into these three new sections, 871, 872 and 873, without any material alterations.

2. Such charge may be preferred by the Attorney General, or by any person with the written consent of the judge of the court or of the Attorney General, or by order of the Court. (Added by the Criminal Code Amendment Act 1907, 6 and 7 Ed. VII, c. 8).

Where the order or consent of the presiding judge is necessary to validate the preferring of an indictment, such order or consent must be put in writing before the indictment is brought in, and it cannot be afterwards made nunc pro tunc. (23)

Sec. 642. No trial upon a Coroner's Inquisition.
Omitted here. (24)

PROCEEDINGS BEFORE THE GRAND JURY.

Sec. 643. Sec. 874. Oath of a witness before a grand jury need not be taken in open court. Unchanged.

Sec. 644. Sec. 875. Oath may be administered by foreman. Unchanged.

The swearing of the grand jury should take place after its members are duly empanelled, and the foreman's oath should be taken in the presence of the other grand jurors, — they being afterwards sworn to observe the same oath. (25)

It is not necessary for the prisoner to be present in court when the grand jury is sworn. (26)

In the province of British Columbia it is imperative that thirteen jurors should be summoned for service on the grand jury, although seven of those appearing are sufficient to constitute a grand jury; and where the sheriff summoned only twelve, and omitted to summon the thirteenth because he was informed that the latter had become demented, seven of such twelve do not constitute a grand jury; and they are not competent to find an indictment. (27)

Objections to the constitution of the grand jury are, by sec. 899, post, restricted to cases where the accused is prejudiced by the irregularity; but this restriction or limitation does not apply where a grand jury was never legally constituted. (28)

Where the provincial statute governing the selection of jurors requires that only the first six names on the previous grand jury list shall be omitted and that six new selections be made to fill their places, the drawing of twelve new men as grand jurors is ineffectual to constitute a grand jury, and an indictment brought in by them while assuming to act as a grand jury will be quashed on motion. (29)

Sec. 645. Sec. 876. Names of witnesses to be endorsed on bill. Unchanged.

The requirement that the foreman of the grand jury shall initial upon the bill of indictment the names of the witnesses examined before the grand jury is imperative, and not merely directory; and the failure to observe such requirement is good ground for quashing the indictment. (30)

The omission to endorse, upon the bill of indictment, the names of witnesses summoned by the grand jury of its own motion does not invalidate the indictment; but the court may send for the grand jury and direct the names of such additional witnesses to be endorsed and initialled, so that the accused may have notice upon whose testimony a true bill has been found. (31)

Sec. 646. Sec. 877. Names of witnesses must be submitted to grand jury. Unchanged.

Depositions taken at the preliminary enquiry can only be read to the grand jury in cases where such depositions can be used as evidence before a petty jury at the trial. (32)

The evidence taken under a commission is admissible before the grand jury. (33)

The grand jury is at liberty to examine the Crown witnesses in any order they see fit, and the examination of a single one of the witnesses constitutes neither an irregularity nor an illegality, when it is admitted that this witness was in a position to establish full admission on the part of the prisoner. (34)

The presence in the grand jury room during the deliberations of the grand jury, of an unauthorized person, (summoned as a grand juror but not impanelled), will not invalidate an indictment then under consideration, if such person was excluded from the grand jury room before the presentment, unless it be shewn that the accused was thereby prejudiced. (35)

On discovery that a person summoned as a grand juror and coming into Court with the grand jury to present an indictment had not been sworn and had been admitted to the grand jury room during their deliberations, the court may exclude such person, and direct the grand jury to retire to reconsider the bill, without requiring the grand jurors to be re-sworn. (36)

A prosecutor bound over at his own request to prefer an indictment, after the discharge of the accused on a preliminary enquiry, is only permitted to appear by counsel before the grand jury when the practice of the court so authorizes; and the practice, in the district of Montreal, requires a formal application to the court for permission; and the accused may apply for security for costs, under section 698, ante, at the time of the prosecutor's application for leave to go before the grand jury. (37)

Sec. 649. Removal of prisoners in case of unfitness, etc., of gaol. Omitted.

This old section, 641, is transferred to the Prisons and Reformatories Act, (R. S., 1906, c. 148), and made into sections 4 and 5 of that Act.

PROCEEDINGS WHEN PERSON INDICTED IS AT LARGE.

Sec. 648. Sec. 879. Bench Warrant. — When any one against whom an indictment has been duly preferred and has been found, and who is then at large, does not appear to plead to such indictment, whether he is under recognizances to appear or not, the court before which the accused ought to have been tried may issue a warrant for his apprehension, which may be executed in any part of Canada.

2. The officer of the court at which said indictment is found, or, if the place of trial has been changed, the officer of the court before which the trial is to take place, shall, at any time after the time at which the accused ought to have appeared and pleaded, grant to the prosecutor, upon application made on his behalf and upon payment of twenty cents, a certificate of such indictment having been found which may be in form 65, or to the like effect. Sec. “ — Sec. 880. Warrant by justice on certificate of indictment being found. — Upon production of such certificate to any justice for the county or place in which the indictment was found, or in which the accused is or resides or is suspected to be or reside, such justice shall issue his warrant to apprehend him, and to cause him to be brought before such justice, or before any other justice for the same county or place, to be dealt with according to law.

2. The warrant may be in the form 66, or to the like effect. (38)

Sec. “ — Sec. 881. Committal of accused or admission to bail.— If it is proved upon oath before such justice that any one apprehended and brought before him on such warrant is the person charged and named in such indictment, such justice shall, without further inquiry or examination, either commit him to prison by a warrant which may be in form 67, or to the like effect, or admit him to bail as provided in other cases: Provided that if it appears that the accused has without reasonable excuse broken his recognizance to appear he shall not in any case be bailable as of right. 2ND EDIT.	REVISED STATUTES 1906	REMARKS

PLACE OF TRIAL.

Sec. 650. Sec. 883. Order for removal of prisoner to place of trial. — If after removal by the Governor in Council or the lieutenant governor in council of any province of any person confined in any gaol to any other place for safe keeping or to any other gaol, a true bill for any indictable offence is returned by any grand jury of the county or district from which any such person is removed against any such person, the court into which such true bill is returned may make an order for the removal of such person from the place for safe keeping or gaol in which he is then confined to the gaol of the county or district in which such court is sitting for the purpose of his being tried in such county or district.
Slightly altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 651. Sec. 884. Change of venue. (39)

Sec. " Sec. 885. Transmission of record. (39)

Sec. " Sec. 886. Order sufficient authority for removal of prisoner. (39)

Sec. " Sec. 887. Order in Quebec for changing place of trial. (39)

Sec. 640. Sec. 888. Offence committed entirely in one province not triable in another. — Nothing in this Act authorizes any court in one province of Canada to try any person for any offence committed entirely in another province: Provided that every proprietor, publisher, editor or other person charged with the publication in a newspaper of any defamatory libel, shall be dealt with, indicted, tried and punished in the province in which he resides, or in which such newspaper is printed. (40)

AMENDMENTS.

Sec. 723. Sec. 889. In case of variance, etc. — If on the trial of any indictment there appears to be a variance between the evidence given and the charge in any count in the indictment, either as found or as amended, or as it would have been if amended in conformity with any particular furnished as provided in section eight hundred and fifty-nine, the court before which the case is tried may, if of opinion that the accused has not been misled or prejudiced in his defence by such variance, amend the indictment or any count in it or any such particular so as to make it conformable with the proof.

2. If it appears that the indictment has been preferred under some other Act of Parliament instead of under this Act, or under this instead of under some other Act, or that there is in the indictment, or in any count in it, an omission to state or a defective statement of anything requisite to constitute the offence, or an omission to negative any exception which ought to have been negatived, but that the matter omitted is proved by the evidence, the court before which the trial takes place, if of opinion that the accused has not been misled or prejudiced in his defence by such error or omission, shall amend the indictment or count as may be necessary.

3. The trial in either of these cases may then proceed in all respects as if the indictment or count had been originally framed as amended. (41)

Sec. 723. Sec. 890. Adjournment, if accused prejudiced. — If the court is of the opinion that the accused has been misled or prejudiced in his defence by any such variance, error, omission or defective statement, but that the effect of such misleading or prejudice might be removed by adjourning or postponing the trial, the court may in its discretion make the amendment and adjourn the trial to a future day in the same sittings, or discharge the jury and postpone the trial to the next sittings of the court, on such terms as it thinks just.

2. In determining whether the accused has been misled or prejudiced in his defence the court which has to determine the question shall consider the contents of the depositions, as well as the other circumstances of the case.

(41) The old sec. 723 is made into these two new sections 889 and 890.

3. The propriety of making or refusing to make any such amendment shall be deemed a question for the court, and the decision of the court upon it may be reserved for the Court of Appeal, or may be brought before the Court of Appeal by appeal like any other question of law. (41)

Sec. 724. Sec. 891. Amendment to be endorsed on record. — In case, an order for amendment, as provided for in the two last preceding sections, is made it shall be endorsed on the record; and all other rolls and proceedings connected therewith shall be amended accordingly by the proper officer and filed with the indictment, among the proper records of the court.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

The words "not being his wife" in section 301, ante, providing for the offence of defiling children under fourteen, is an exception, the failure to negative which in the indictment will not invalidate a conviction thereon where no objection was taken before pleading. Had the objection been taken by the prisoner, before plea, by a demurrer or a motion to quash, the Court might have amended the indictment. (42)

Sec. 612. Sec. 892. Application to amend or divide counts. — The accused may, at any stage of the trial, apply to the court to amend or divide any count of an indictment which charges, in the alternative, different matters, acts or omissions stated in the alternative in the enactment describing the offence or declaring the matters, acts or omissions charged to be an indictable offence, or which is double or multifarious, on the ground that it is so framed as to embarrass him in his defence.

2. The court, if it is satisfied that the ends of justice require it, may order any such count to be amended or divided into two or more counts, and, on such order being made, such count shall be so divided or amended, and thereupon a formal commencement may be inserted before each of the counts into which it is divided. (43)

(42) R. v. Wright, 11 Can. Cr. Cas., 221; 39 N. S. R., 103.

Sec. 621. Sec. 893. Amendment at trial when property wrongly laid. — Upon a prosecution for any offence under section 378 or 424, any variance, when the property is laid in a person or corporation, between the statement in the indictment and the evidence adduced may be amended at the trial.

2. If no owner is proved, the indictment may be amended by laying the property in His Majesty. (44)

Sec. 655. Sec. 896. Copy of depositions. Meaning unchanged.

Sec. 658. Sec. 897. Documents to be delivered to the accused in a case of treason. Unchanged.

OBJECTIONS, PLEAS AND RECORD.

Sec. 629. Sec. 898. Objections to an indictment for apparent defects to be made by demurrer or motion to quash. Meaning unchanged.

A count of an indictment charging the defendant with having, with intent to defraud, unlawfully made use of and uttered a promissory note, alleged to have been made and signed by one of the defendants by procuration without lawful authority or excuse and with intent to defraud, is defective if it does not also allege that the defendants knew it to have been so made and signed; and such a defect is one of substance, which cannot be amended under the above section, 898. (45)

Sec. 656. Sec. 899. No plea in abatement. Objection to constitution of grand jury may be by motion. Meaning unchanged.

(43) This section, 892, is made up, (with slight alterations), of the latter part of paragraph 1 of the old section 612, and of the whole of paragraph 2 thereof; the first part of par. 1 of the old section being made into section 854, ante.

(44) Taken from the latter half of the old section 621, and altered as here set forth; the first half of the old section being made into section 866, ante.

(45) R. v. Weir, (No. 5), 3 Can. Cr. Cas., 499.

An objection, that a member of the grand jury, by which the indictment was found, was not indifferent as between the Crown and the accused, because of alleged interest in the subject matter of the prosecution, and was therefore disqualified from acting as a grand juror in respect of such indictment, is not an objection to the "constitution" of the grand jury, which, under the above section 899 must be raised by motion to quash the indictment. (46)

Sec. 657. Sec. 900. Plea. Refusal to plead.—When the accused is called upon to plead he may plead either guilty or not guilty or such special plea as is in this Part subsequently provided for.

2. If the accused wilfully refuses to plead, or will not answer directly, the court may order the proper officer to enter a plea of not guilty.

Sec. 631. Sec. 905. Special pleas.—Autrefois acquit, autrefois convict, pardon, etc.—The following special pleas and no others may be pleaded according to the provisions hereinafter contained, that is to say, a plea of autrefois acquit, a plea of autrefois convict, a plea of pardon, and such pleas in cases of defamatory libel as are hereinafter mentioned.

2. All other grounds of defence may be relied on under the plea of not guilty. (47)

Sec. " Sec. 906. Such pleas may be pleaded together. — The pleas of autrefois acquit, autrefois convict, and pardon may be pleaded together, and if pleaded shall be disposed of before the accused is called on to plead further.

2. If every such plea is disposed of against the accused he shall be allowed to plead not guilty.

(46) R. v. Hayes, (No. 2), 9 Can. Cr. Cas., 101.

(47) These three new sections 905-907 are formed from the old section 631.

3. In any plea of autrefois acquit or autrefois convict it shall be sufficient for the accused to state that he has been lawfully acquitted or convicted, as the case may be, of the offence charged in the count or counts to which such plea is pleaded, indicating the time and place of such acquittal, or conviction. (47).

Sec. " Sec. 907. Issue on pleas of autrefois acquit and autrefois convict.—On the trial of an issue on a plea of autrefois acquit or autrefois convict to any count or counts, if it appear that the matter on which the accused was given in charge on the former trial is the same in whole or in part as that on which it is proposed to give him in charge, and that he might on the former trial, if all proper amendments had been made which might then have been made, have been convicted of all the offences of which he may be convicted on the count or counts to which such plea is pleaded, the court shall give judgment that he be discharged from such count or counts.

2. If it appear that the accused might on the former trial have been convicted of any offence of which he might be convicted on the count or counts to which such plea is pleaded, but that he may be convicted on any such count or counts of some offence or offences of which he could not have been convicted on the former trial, the court shall direct that he shall not be convicted on any such count or counts of any offence of which he might have been convicted on the former trial, but that he shall plead over as to the other offence or offences charged. (47).

Sec. 632. Sec. 908. Evidence of identity of charges.—On the trial of an issue on a plea of autrefois acquit or autrefois convict the depositions transmitted to the court on the former trial, together with the judge's and official stenographer's notes if available, and the depositions transmitted to the court on the subsequent charge, shall be admissible in evidence to prove or disprove the identity of the charges.

Slightly altered in the wording.

In a case, in Nova Scotia, where the jury found a verdict of not guilty of shooting with intent and of not guilty of common assault, but guilty of unlawful wounding, (there being in the indictment several counts charging these offences), and a new trial was ordered, on a case reserved at the request of the accused, because of an irregularity occurring upon the trial, it was held that it was competent for the accused, upon the new trial to support a plea of "autrefois acquit" to the charge of unlawful wounding, by shewing that the charge was based on the identical acts of shooting which were the foundation for the other charges. (48).

Sec. 633. Sec. 909. Indictment substantially charging same offence, with circumstances of aggravation; or manslaughter after murder, and vice versa. Unchanged.

Sec. 634. Sec. 910. Plea of justification in libel case. (49).

2. Such court or judge shall, upon such certificate being so submitted, immediately stay such criminal proceedings, and the same shall thereupon be deemed finally ended, determined and superseded. (50).

Sec. 913. In any criminal prosecution for or on account or in respect of the publication of any copy of such report, paper, votes or proceedings, the defendant may submit to the court or judge before which or whom such prosecution is pending a copy of such report, paper, votes or proceedings, verified by affidavit, and the court or judge shall immediately stay such criminal prosecution, and the same shall thereupon be deemed to be finally ended, determined and superseded. Since the coming into force of the Criminal Code. it is no longer necessary that the first juror sworn should be added to the triers appointed to decide on the challenge of the second juror. (52).

Sec. 667. Sec. 927. Calling the panel. The name of each juror on a panel returned, with his number on the panel and the place of his abode, shall be written on a distinct piece of card, and all such pieces of card shall be as nearly as may be of equal size.

2. The cards shall be delivered to the officer of the court by the sheriff or other officer returning the panel, and shall, under the direction and care of the officer of the court, be put together in a box to be provided for that purpose and shall be shaken together.

3. If the array is not challenged or if the triers find against the challenge, the officer of the court shall in open court draw out the said cards one after another, and shall call out the name and number upon each such card as it is drawn, until such a number of persons have answered to their names as in the opinion of the court will probably be sufficient to provide a full jury after allowing for challenges of jurors and directions to stand by.

4. The officer of the court shall then proceed to swear the jury, each juror being called to swear in the order in which his name is so drawn, until, after subtracting all challenges allowed and jurors directed to stand by, twelve jurors are sworn.

5. If the number so answering is not sufficient to provide a full jury such officer shall proceed to draw further names from the box, and call the same in manner aforesaid, until, after challenges allowed and directions to stand by, twelve jurors are sworn. (53)

Sec. " Sec. 928. Calling the jurors who have stood by. — If by challenges and directions to stand by the panel is exhausted without leaving a sufficient number to form a jury those who have been directed to stand by shall be again called in the order in which they were drawn, and shall be sworn, unless challenged by the accused, or unless the prosecutor challenges them and shows cause why they should not be sworn: Provided that if before any such juror is sworn other jurymen in the panel become available the prosecutor may require the names of such Jurymen to be put into and drawn from the box in the manner hereinbefore prescribed, and such Jurors shall be sworn, challenged, or ordered to stand by, as the case may be, before the Jurors originally ordered to stand by are again called. (53)

Sec. " Sec. 929. Who shall be the jury to try the indictment. The twelve men who in manner aforesaid are ultimately drawn and sworn shall be the jury to try the issues on the indictment, and the names of the men so drawn and sworn shall be kept apart by themselves until such jury give in their verdict or until they are discharged; and then the names shall be returned to the box, there to be kept with the other names remaining at that time undrawn, and so toties quoties as long as any issue remains to be tried.

2. If the prosecutor and accused do not object thereto, the court may try any issue with the same jury that has previously tried or been drawn to try any other issue, without their names being returned to the box and redrawn, or if the parties, or either of them, object to some one or more of the jurors forming such jury, or the court excuses any one or more of them, then the court may order such persons to withdraw, and may direct the requisite number of names to make up a complete jury to be drawn, and the persons whose names are so drawn shall be sworn.

3. An omission to follow the directions of this or the two last preceding sections shall not affect the validity of the proceedings. (53)

Sec. 668. Sec. 930. A ground of challenge that Jurors' names are not on panel is tried upon the voir dire. If the ground of challenge is that the Jurors' names do not appear on the panel, the issue shall be tried by the Court on the voir dire by the inspection of the panel, and such other evidence as the Court thinks fit to receive. (54) aforesaid, the two jurors last sworn, or if no jurors have then been sworn, then two persons present whom the court may appoint for that purpose shall be sworn to try whether the juror objected to stands indifferent between the King and the accused, or has been convicted as hereinbefore specified or is an alien, as the case may be.

2. If the court or the triers find against the challenge the juror shall be sworn.

3. If they find for the challenge he shall not be sworn.

4. If, after what the court considers a reasonable time, the triers are unable to agree, the court may discharge them from giving a verdict, and may direct other persons to be sworn in their place. (55)

Sec. 668. Sec. 932. Peremptory challenges by accused. — Every one indicted for treason or for any offence punishable with death is entitled to challenge twenty jurors peremptorily.

2. Every one indicted for any offence other than treason, or an offence punishable with death, for which he may be sentenced to imprisonment for more than five years, is entitled to challenge twelve jurors peremptorily.

3. Every one indicted for any other offence is entitled to challenge four jurors peremptorily. (56)

On an indictment for unlawful wounding, in which is included a separate count for assault, the accused is not entitled to claim the total number of peremptory challenges of jurors as he would have, if the charges were contained in two separate indictments, but is limited to the largest number allowed in respect of any single count. (57)

Sec. 668. Sec. 933. Peremptory challenges and stand-asides by the Crown.—The Crown shall have power to challenge four Jurors peremptorily, and may direct any number of Jurors not peremptorily challenged by the accused to stand by until all the Jurors have been called who are available for the purpose of trying that indictment.

2. The accused may be called upon to declare whether he challenges any Jurors peremptorily or otherwise, before the prosecutor is called upon to declare whether he requires such Juror to stand by, or challenges him either for cause or peremptorily. (58).

A direction to a juror to "stand by", at the instance of the Crown, is, in substance, a deferred challenge for cause, and cannot be made after the juror has, by direction of the clerk of the court, taken the book to be sworn. (59).

Sec. 669. Sec. 934. No right in libel cases to stand jurors aside. Unchanged.

Sec. 668. Sec. 935. Challenges for cause.—Every prosecutor and every accused person is entitled to any number of challenges on the ground,—

(a) that any juror's name does not appear in the panel: Provided that no misnomer or misdescription shall be a ground of challenge if it appears to the court that the description given in the panel sufficiently designates the person referred to; or,

(b) that any juror is not indifferent between the King and the accused; or.

(c) that any juror has been convicted of any offence for which he was sentenced to death or to any term of imprisonment with hard labour or exceeding twelve months; or,

(d) that any juror is an alien.

2. No other ground of challenge for cause than those mentioned in this section shall be allowed. (60)

The fact that a juror has made remarks indicating a leaning for or against an accused will not of itself furnish ground for a new trial where the verdict does justice, and there is no reason to suppose that the juror's opinion was not derived from the evidence.

Where a juror has been challenged for cause of favor the finding of the triers as to his competency is conclusive although the accused and his counsel were not then aware of remarks alleged to have been made by the juror which would tend to shew a bias against the prisoner. Upon grounds of public policy, the testimony or the evidence or other sworn statement of a juror will not be received to impeach a verdict nor to shew that the jurors agreed on their verdict by a majority; and for the same reasons a juror cannot shew that he did not agree to the verdict as rendered or that he consented to it without concurring in it, in order to secure his discharge. But affidavits are admissible from the other jurors to support and confirm the presumption that the proceedings of the jury were correct, and that there has been no misconduct. (61) And these holdings were confirmed in appeal. (62)

Sec. 668. Sec. 936. Challenge may be required to be in writing. If a challenge on any of the grounds aforesaid is made, the court may, in its discretion, require the party challenging to put his challenge in writing.

2. The challenge may be in the form 70, or to the like effect.

3. The other party may deny that the ground of challenge is true. (63) enable the prisoner to personally understand the evidence is not a limitation of his right to make "full answer and defence" to the charge, and will not invalidate a conviction. (64).

Sec. 660. Sec. 943. Presence of accused at trial.

Unchanged.

Sec. 661. Sec. 944. Prosecutor's right to sum up.—If an accused person, or any one of several accused persons being tried together, is defended by counsel, such counsel shall, at the end of the case for the prosecution, declare whether he intends to adduce evidence or not on behalf of the accused person for whom he appears; and if he does not thereupon announce his intention to adduce evidence, the counsel for the prosecution may address the jury by way of summing up.

2. Upon every trial for an indictable offence, the counsel for the accused, or the accused if he is not defended by counsel, shall be allowed, if he thinks fit, to open the case for the defence, and after the conclusion of such opening to examine such witnesses as he thinks fit, and when all the evidence is concluded to sum up the evidence.

3. If no witnesses are examined for the defence the counsel for the accused, or the accused in case he is not defended by counsel, shall have the privilege of addressing the jury last, otherwise such right shall belong to the counsel for the prosecution: Provided, that the right of reply shall be always allowed to the Attorney General or Solicitor General, or to any counsel acting on behalf of either of them.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

It has been held, in Manitoba, that, where no evidence is offered for the defence, the counsel for the defence has the right to the last address to the jury, notwithstanding that the prosecution is conducted by counsel acting for the Attorney General, and that the "right of reply" permitted, by section 661, (now section 944), to the Attorney General or to counsel acting on his behalf is the right to again address the jury at the close of the evidence and before the address of the defendant's counsel, when the defence offers no evidence. (65).

(64) R. v. Long, 5 Can. Cr. Cas., 493.

But the contrary has since been held in Ontario, in a case in which it was decided that a crown prosecutor acting on behalf of the Attorney General of the province has a right of reply, although no witnesses are called for the defence. (66).

The informant at whose instance an indictment has been preferred for perjury has no locus standi to appear by counsel and take part in the trial, without the consent of the Crown. (67).

Where several persons are jointly indicted, the order in which each of them shall enter upon his defence is generally subject to the discretion of the trial judge. Where there is a difference in the degree of criminality with respect to the charge made against several persons jointly indicted, they should be called upon for their defence, the greater before the lesser, according to the seriousness of the charge against each, as disclosed both by the indictment and by the evidence for the prosecution, e. g., the principal before the accessory, and the thief before the receiver. Where there appears no such difference in degree of criminality, in respect of several persons jointly indicted, the order of defence is the order in which their names appear in the indictment. (68).

The evidence of the witnesses called on behalf of any defendant is effective as regards the other defendants, whether beneficially or adversely, and counsel for the other defendants may, therefore, cross-examine such witnesses before their cross-examination by counsel for the prosecution. (69).

Sec. 673. Sec. 945. Continuous trial. Jurors not to separate in capital cases.—The trial shall proceed continuously subject to the power of the court to adjourn it.

2. The court may adjourn the trial from day to day, and if in its opinion the ends of justice so require, to any other day in the same sittings.

5. In other cases, if no such direction is given, the jury shall be permitted to separate.

6. No formal adjournment of the court shall hereafter be required, and no entry thereof in the Crown book shall be necessary. Altered, as here set forth.

The trial judge is not bound to exclude the jury during any part of a criminal trial: and the fact that an application to exclude an alleged dying declaration was made in the presence of the jury, and that, on the cross-examination of a witness in reference to it, parts of the declaration were read by counsel cross-examining, is not a ground for a new trial, when the declaration was ruled out and explicitly withdrawn from the jury. 2. Disobedience to the directions of this section shall not affect the validity of the proceedings.

When the jury is polled and one or more jurors dissent from the verdict as announced by the foreman, it is not necessary that a disagreement should be recorded and the jury discharged; they may be sent back for further deliberation, and a unanimous verdict, then brought in, is regular. (73).

jury, and proceed with the second trial at the same sittings of the court. The reference, in the above section, 930, to the "impanelling" of a new jury, is to the selection of the twelve who are to try the charge and not to the impanelling of jurors under the venire to the sheriff. A second venire is unnecessary to constitute a second jury qualified to re-try the case at the same sittings. Upon such second trial at the same sittings, it is not necessary to ask the accused to plead again to the indictment or to again read the indictment to him. (74).

EVIDENCE ON TRIAL.

Sec. 690. Sec. 978. Admissions may be taken on trial.

Unchanged.

Where two prisoners are being jointly tried for an offence, a voluntary admission made by one of them is evidence against himself only, and if it implicates a fellow prisoner the trial judge should warn the jury that the statement is evidence only against the person making it and should not be considered in weighing the evidence against the fellow prisoner. It seems, moreover, that where the Crown intends to make use of such a confession, the prisoner jointly charged, and likely to be implicated by such a statement of the other accused, would have ground for applying, before the commencement of the trial, to be tried separately, so as to prevent the statement being put in as evidence at his trial, even with the judge's warning. (81)

This section permits an admission of any "fact" to be made, at the trial, by the prisoner or his counsel, so as to dispense with proof, but the section does not apply to an alleged consent of prisoner's counsel to put in, as evidence, previous depositions of other persons which are not properly evidence against the prisoner. (82)

Evidence given on the trial of another person, including the evidence of the prisoner then called as a witness, may, with the consent of the prisoner's counsel, be admitted in evidence both for and against the prisoner. (83)

At the trial of an indictable offence, the presiding judge may with the consent of counsel for the Crown and for the accused respectively, adjourn the hearing to a private house within the same county for the purpose of taking there the evidence of a witness,

Sec. 707*a*. Sec. 989. Evidence of property in cattle, cattle brands or marks. — In any criminal prosecution, proceeding or trial, the presence upon any cattle of a brand or mark, which is duly recorded or registered under the provisions of any Act, ordinance or law, shall be prima facie evidence that such cattle are the property of the registered owner of such brand or mark.

2. When a person is charged with theft of cattle, or with an offence under paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of section three hundred and ninety-two respecting cattle, possession by such person or by others in his employ or on his behalf of such cattle bearing such a brand or mark of which the person charged is not the registered owner, shall throw upon the accused the burden of proving that such cattle came lawfully into his possession or into the possession of such others in his employ or on his behalf, unless it appears that such possession by others in his employ or on his behalf was without his knowledge and without his authority, sanction or approval.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 708. Sec. 990. Evidence of property in timber. Evidence of theft thereof. — In any prosecution, proceeding or trial for any offence under section three hundred and ninety-four a timber mark, duly registered under the provisions of the Timber Marking Act, on any timber, mast, spar, saw-log or other description of lumber, shall be prima facie evidence that the same is the property of the registered owner of such timber mark.

2. Possession by the accused, or by others in his employ or on his behalf, of any such timber, mast, spar, saw-log or other description of lumber so marked, shall, in all cases, throw upon him the burden of proving that such timber, mast, spar, saw-log or other description of lumber came lawfully into his possession, or into the possession of such others in his employ or on his behalf.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 709. Sec. 991. Evidence of enlistment in cases relating to public stores. — In any prosecution, proceeding or trial under sections four hundred and thirty-three to four hundred and thirty-seven inclusive for offences relating to public stores, proof that any soldier, seaman or marine was actually doing duty in His Majesty's service shall be prima facie evidence that his enlistment, entry or enrolment has been regular.

2. If the person charged with the offence relating to public stores mentioned in section four hundred and thirty-five was, at the time at which the offence is charged to have been committed, in His Majesty's service or employment, or a dealer in marine stores, or a dealer in old metals, knowledge on his part that the stores to which the charge relates bore the marks described in section four hundred and thirty-two shall be presumed until the contrary is shown.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 710. Sec. 992. Evidence in cases of fraudulent marks on merchandise.—In any prosecution, proceeding or trial for any offence under Part VII, relating to fraudulent marks on merchandise, if the evidence relates to imported goods evidence of the port of shipment shall be primâ fâcie evidence of the place or country in which the goods were made or produced. Altered by omitting par. 2 of the old section.

Sec. 716. Sec. 993. Proceedings against receivers. Evidence of possession of property previously stolen, etc. Meaning unchanged.

EVIDENCE TAKEN APART FROM TRIAL.

Sec. 683. Sec. 997. Evidence may be taken out of Canada under commission. Unchanged.

The evidence taken under a commission is admissible as well at the preliminary enquiry as before the Grand Jury and at the trial of the indictment when found. The order should provide for the return of the commission into the court from which it issues and should not direct the transmission of the evidence by the commissioner to the magistrate holding the preliminary enquiry. (91)

A commission to take the evidence of witnesses abroad in a libel case is properly ordered at the trial where the evidence to be taken on such commission relates wholly to a plea of justification just entered of record, the defendant not being bound to anticipate his plea to the indictment and being entitled to all of the time up to his arraignment to consider whether he would plead justification; so that the application for the commission is rightly made after and not before plea. (92)

An order may be made for taking, in Canada, under commission, the evidence of a material witness who ordinarily resides out of Canada, but who is temporarily within the jurisdiction and about to return to his own country. (93)

ADMITTING, ON TRIAL, EVIDENCE PREVIOUSLY TAKEN.

Sec. 686. Sec. 998. Deposition, taken under commission, of a sick person, may, under certain circumstances, be read in evidence at trial. — If the statement of a sick person has been taken by a commissioner as provided in section nine hundred and ninety-five, and upon the trial of any offender for any offence to which the same relates, the person who made the statement is proved to be dead, or if it is proved that there is no reasonable probability that such person will ever be able to attend at the trial to give evidence, such statement may, upon the production of the judge's order appointing the commissioner, be read in evidence, either for or against the accused, without further proof thereof, if the same purports to be signed by the commissioner by or before whom it purports to have been taken, and it is proved to the satisfaction of the court that reasonable notice of the intention to take such statement was served upon the person, whether prosecutor or accused, against whom it is proposed to be read in evidence, and that such person or his counsel or solicitor had, or might have had, if he had chosen to be present, full opportunity of cross-examining the person who made the same. Slightly altered in the wording.

Sec. 687. Sec. 999. Deposition on preliminary enquiry may, in certain events, be read in evidence, at trial. — If upon the trial of an accused person such facts are proved upon oath or affirmation that it can be reasonably inferred therefrom that any person, whose evidence was given at any former trial upon the same charge or whose deposition has been theretofore taken in the investigation of the charge against such accused person, is dead, or so ill as not to be able to travel, or is absent from Canada, and if it is proved that such evidence was given or such deposition was taken in the presence of the person accused, and that he or his counsel or solicitor if present had a full opportunity of cross-examining the witness, then if the evidence or deposition purports to be signed by the judge or justice before whom the same purports to have been taken, it shall be read as evidence in the prosecution, without further proof thereof, unless it is proved that such evidence or deposition was not in fact signed by the judge or justice purporting to have signed the same.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

The absence from Canada, required by this section to be shewn in respect of a witness, before his deposition on the preliminary enquiry can be used as evidence for the prosecution at the trial, must be of a permanent nature; a mere temporary absence is insufficient; and the onus of shewing that the witness' absence from Canada is not merely temporary is upon the prosecution. (94)

It has been held, in Nova Scotia, that a finding that the witness is "absent from Canada" is justified, if it be proved that he shipped as a sailor on a sealing voyage, which would ordinarily last six months, and that he was seen on the vessel just before its departure three weeks before the trial. (95)

Evidence that a witness at the preliminary enquiry was a corporal in the N. W. Mounted Police, that he had been sworn in as a member of "Strathcona's Horse," for active Service in the South African war, that he had left the post at which he had been stationed to join the latter force, and that, in the opinion of the deponent, if he had left the latter force he would have returned to the former post, as in fact it would have been his duty to do, which fact would thereupon have become known to the deponent, was sufficient evidence of the absence of such witness from Canada to justify the admission, as evidence at the trial, of the deposition of such witness taken at the preliminary enquiry. (96)

Absence of a witness from Canada is not sufficiently proved under the above section to admit in evidence his deposition taken at the preliminary enquiry, by shewing the receipt of letters and telegrams from him despatched from an adjoining territory of the United States, the latest despatch being six days prior to the trial. (97)

idence on the homicide trial, on the deponent's death, illness or absence from Canada, as a deposition on a preliminary enquiry would be, and the above section, 999, does not apply to depositions taken before coroners. (98)

But the signed deposition of a witness at a coroner's inquest may be used on the cross-examination of the witness at the homicide trial for the purpose of contradicting the witness' testimony, although it is not certified to have been read over to the deponent and although it does not appear thereby that the deponent had no further testimony to add. CORROBORATION.

Sec. 684. Sec. 1002. Cases in which evidence of one witness must be corroborated. — No person accused of any offence under any of the hereunder mentioned sections shall be convicted upon the evidence of one witness, unless such witness is corroborated in some material particular by evidence implicating the accused:

(a) Treason, Part II., section seventy-four;

(b) Perjury, Part IV., section one hundred and seventy-four;

(c) Offences under Part V., sections two hundred and eleven to two hundred and twenty inclusive;

(d) Procuring feigned marriage, Part VI., section three hundred and nine;

(e) Forgery, Part VII., sections four hundred and sixty-eight to four hundred and seventy inclusive.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

On a charge of allowing a girl under eighteen to be upon premises for immoral purposes, the evidence of the girl proving that she shared with the proprietor the money she obtained by prostitution there carried on is sufficiently corroborated, by the evidence of another witness tending to shew that the place was a bawdy house. On a charge of criminal seduction under promise of marriage, corroboration is essential; but the corroboration need not be as to every fact and it is sufficient if it confirms the belief that the prosecutrix is speaking the truth. (101)

Evidence not in support of the charges laid in the indictment, but referring to charges not laid cannot be received as corroborative evidence; and evidence of what the child told others could not be received. (102)

It has been held that the corroborative evidence required to support a charge of seducing a girl under 16 years of age is not necessarily that of another witness or witnesses to the acts charged. (103)

Where a prisoner is charged with forgery by writing three false signatures as endorsements on the back of a promissory note, and each of the parties, whose signatures are thus made to appear, swears that the signature purporting to be his is not his and is a forgery, there is corroborative evidence to support the charge. (103a)

Sec. 685. Sec. 1003. Evidence of child not under oath may be received in certain cases, but must be corroborated. Unchanged. (104)

Upon the trial of a charge of attempted carnal knowledge of a girl under fourteen who is too young to understand the nature of an oath, a conviction for that offence is not warranted, unless her evidence not under oath is corroborated by some other material evidence implicating the accused; but the accused may be convicted of common assault upon the charge so laid if there be, — as required by section 25 (now section 16) of the Criminal Code, — corroboration merely by some other material evidence, the words "implicating the accused" not being in section 16 of the Canada Evidence Act. (105)

SENTENCE, ARREST OF JUDGMENT AND APPEAL.

Sec. 733. Sec. 1004. Question to be put to accused, if found guilty.—If the jury find the accused guilty, or if the accused pleads guilty, the judge presiding at the trial shall ask him whether he has anything to say why sentence should not be passed upon him according to law: Provided that the omission so to ask shall have no effect on the validity of the proceedings. (106)

Sec. 626. Sec. 1005. Sentence justified if sustained by any one of several counts.—If one sentence is passed upon any verdict of guilty on more counts of an indictment than one, the sentence shall be good if any of such counts would have justified it. (107)

Sec. 733. Sec. 1006. Where sentence carried out when venue changed. — When any sentence is passed upon any person after a trial had under an order for changing the place of trial, the Court may in its discretion, either direct the sentence to be carried out at the place where the trial was had or order the person sentenced to be removed to the place where his trial would have been had but for such

Sec. " Sec. 1007. Motion in arrest of judgment. — The accused may at any time before sentence move in arrest of judgment on the ground that the indictment does not, after amendment, if any, state any indictable offence.

2. The court may in its discretion either hear and determine the matter during the same sittings or reserve the matter for the court of appeal as hereinafter provided.

3. If the court decides in favour of the accused, he shall be discharged from that indictment.

4. If no such motion is made, or if the court decides against the accused upon such motion, the court may sentence the accused during the sittings of the court, or the court may in its discretion discharge him on his own recognizance, or on that of such sureties as the court thinks fit, or both, to appear and receive judgment at some future court or when called upon.

5. If sentence is not passed during the sittings, the judge of any superior court before which the person so convicted afterwards appears or is brought, or if he was convicted before a court of general or quarter sessions, the court of general or quarter sessions at a subsequent sittings may pass sentence upon him or direct him to be discharged. (d) because any person has served upon the jury who was not returned as a juror by the sheriff or other officer.

2. Where the offence charged is an offence created by any statute, or subjected to a greater degree of punishment by any statute, the indictment shall, after verdict, be held sufficient, if it describes the offence in the words of the statute creating the offence, or prescribing the punishment, although they are disjunctively stated or appear to include more than one offence, or otherwise. Slightly altered.

Sec. 735. Sec. 1011. Verdict not to be impeached for certain omissions as to jurors. Unchanged.

Sec. 1012. Appeal from conviction by a judge in a trade conspiracy case. — An appeal on all issues of law and fact shall lie, from any conviction, by the judge without the intervention of a jury, for any offence mentioned in section 498 to the Court of appeal in the province where such conviction is made; and the evidence taken upon the trial shall form part of the record in appeal, and, for that purpose, the court before which the case is tried shall take note of the evidence and of all legal objections thereto. (110)

Sec. 742. Sec. 1013. Appeal in other cases of indictable offences. An appeal from the verdict or judgment of any court or judge having jurisdiction in criminal cases, or of a magistrate proceeding under section seven hundred and seventy-seven, on the trial of any person for an indictable offence, shall lie upon the application of such person if convicted, to the court of appeal in the cases hereinafter provided for, and in no others.

2. Whenever the judges of the court of appeal are unanimous in deciding an appeal brought before the said court their decision shall be final.

Slightly altered.

Sec. 743. Sec. 1014. No proceeding in error. — Reserve of any question of law for the opinion of the court of appeal. — No proceeding in error shall be taken in any criminal case.

2. The court before which any accused person is tried may, either during or after the trial, reserve any question of law arising either on the trial or on any of the proceedings preliminary, subsequent, or incidental thereto, or arising out of the direction of the judge, for the opinion of the court of appeal in manner hereinafter provided.

3. Either the prosecutor or the accused may, during the trial, either orally or in writing, apply to the court to reserve any such question as aforesaid, and the court, if it refuses so to reserve it, shall nevertheless take a note of such objection.

4. After a question is reserved, the trial shall proceed as in other cases.

5. If the result is a conviction, the court may in its discretion respite the execution of the sentence or postpone sentence till the question reserved has been decided, and shall in its discretion commit the person convicted to prison or admit him to bail with one or two sufficient sureties, in such sums as the court thinks fit, to surrender at such time as the court directs.

6. If the question is reserved, a case shall be stated for the opinion of the court of appeal. Slightly altered.

It has been held by the Supreme Court of the North West Territories that, — although the trial judge may, if he sees fit, grant a reserve case, during or after the trial, either upon application therefor, or of his own motion, — leave to appeal against the trial judge's refusal to reserve a question of law cannot be granted by the court of appeal, except in the case of an application, to reserve the question having been made to the trial court during the trial, and refused. (111)

It is a question of fact and not of law, whether the use of a slot machine for selling cigars, — whereby customers obtained for the one price a number of cigars varying according to the working of the machine, — is or is not a game of chance, a mixed game of chance and skill, or a game of skill only. (112)

If the trial judge has no doubt that there was evidence of the offence to go to the jury, he should not reserve a case upon that point. (113)

On an application for a reserved case, the evidence of a juror is not admissible to shew that he and another juror had refused to agree with the opinion of the other ten jurors and had failed to object, on the recording of the verdict favored by the ten, because some of the latter had told them that the agreement of ten was sufficient to carry the verdict. (114)

Sec. 744. Sec. 1015. Appeal from refusal to reserve. — If the court refuses to reserve the question, the party applying may move the court of appeal as hereinafter provided.

2. The Attorney General or party so applying may on notice of motion to be given to the accused or prosecutor, as the case may be, move the Court of Appeal for leave to appeal.

3. The court of appeal may, upon the motion and upon considering such evidence, if any, as it thinks fit to receive, grant or refuse such leave. (115)

Sec. 746. Sec. 1018. Powers of Court of Appeal upon hearing.— Upon the hearing of any appeal under the powers hereinbefore contained, the court of appeal may, —

(a) confirm the ruling appealed from; or,

(b) if of opinion that the ruling was erroneous, and that there has been a mistrial in consequence, direct a new trial; or,

(c) if it considers the sentence erroneous or the arrest of judgment erroneous, pass such sentence as ought to have been passed or set aside any sentence passed by the court below, and remit the case to the court below with a direction to pass the proper sentence; or,

(d) if of opinion in a case in which the accused has been convicted that the ruling was erroneous, and that the accused ought to have been acquitted, direct that the accused shall be discharged, which order shall have all the effects of an acquittal, or direct a new trial; or, rejected, or that something not according to law was done at the trial or some misdirection given, unless, in the opinion of the Court of Appeal, some substantial wrong or miscarriage was thereby occasioned on the trial: Provided that if the Court of Appeal is of opinion that any challenge for the defence was improperly disallowed, a new trial shall be granted. (116)

Sec. " Sec. 1020. When some count only affected, sentence as to rest. — If it appears to the Court of Appeal that such wrong or miscarriage affected some count only of the indictment, the Court may give separate directions as to each count and may pass sentence on any count unaffected by such wrong or miscarriage which stands good, or may remit the case to the court below with directions to pass such sentence as justice may require.

2. The order or direction of the court of appeal shall be certified under the hand of the presiding chief justice or senior puisné judge to the proper officer of the court before which the case was tried, and such order or direction shall be carried into effect. (116)

Leave to appeal will not be granted by an appellate court, on the ground of the admission of irrelevant evidence, if, in the opinion of the court, the reception of such evidence did not occasion any substantial wrong or miscarriage on the trial. (117)

Even if the trial judge should, in his charge, to the jury, direct them erroneously on a certain point, a new trial should not be granted if there was ample evidence of guilt apart from the point in question, and if, in the opinion of the court of appeal no substantial wrong or miscarriage was occasioned by the error. (118)

An unqualified instruction to the jury, on a prosecution for theft against the finder of goods, that the pledging of same by him constitutes theft, is a misdirection entitling the accused to a new trial. (119)

is a substantial wrong to the accused, and entitles him to a new trial. (120)

The temporary absence of a juror for a few minutes without the permission or knowledge of the court is not such a defect as necessitates a new trial regardless of the question whether any substantial prejudice of the accused has resulted therefrom. Where the only evidence given during such temporary absence was unfavorable to the accused and no possible prejudice has resulted, a reserve case should not be granted nor leave given to appeal. (121)

A person charged with perjury committed in a civil action is entitled to have put in evidence those parts of his testimony in the civil action which may explain or qualify the statements in respect of which the perjury is charged; and the refusal to admit such testimony is a "substantial wrong." (122)

Where a conviction has been made without the legal proof required by law of an essential part of the crime, such defect is a "substantial wrong or miscarriage at the trial," and the conviction must be set aside. (123)

Where an indictment for burglary charges only the breaking and entering with intent, and does not charge a breaking out of the dwelling-house, and the evidence shews that two windows had been disturbed sufficiently to allow of an entrance, one of them being previously closed and the other partly open, but it does not appear by which of them the entrance was made, it is error to instruct the jury that an entrance by either is sufficient, and the misdirection is a substantial wrong to the accused entitling him to a new trial. (124)

Where on an indictment for a principal offence and for an attempt to commit such an offence, the evidence is wholly directed to the proof of the principal offence, the jury's verdict of guilty of the attempt only will not be set aside, although there were no other witnesses in respect of the attempt than those whose testimony, if wholly believed, shewed the commission of the greater offence. It is within the province of the jury, to believe, if it sees fit to do so, a part only of a witness' testimony and to disbelieve the remainder of the same witness' testimony, and it may therefore credit the testimony in respect of a greater offence only in so far as it shews a lesser offence. An indictment for stealing under a power of attorney which charges that the money appropriated was the proceeds of a sale made by the defendant while acting under a power of attorney will not be quashed for failure to allege that the power of attorney was one for the sale or disposition of property (Code, new section 356), but particulars will be ordered as to the date, nature or purport of the alleged power of attorney. The defect, being only a partial one, was cured by verdict, and cannot be given effect to upon a reserved case as to whether a verdict of guilty on such indictment was valid or not. A count in an indictment charging that the defendant acting under a power of attorney fraudulently sold certain bank shares and fraudulently converted the proceeds "and did thereby steal the said proceeds" is not bad as charging two offences, and the reference to the fraudulent sale and fraudulent conversion are to be taken as descriptive of the means whereby the offence of stealing under a power of attorney was committed. (126)

Where all of the evidence went to the jury on a charge of keeping a common gaming house but the trial judge gave an erroneous instruction favourable to the accused as to the meaning of the term "for gain," and the jury acquitted the accused although there was evidence unaffected by such instruction which, if believed, was sufficient for a conviction, an appellate court on a case reserved by the prosecution should decline to order a new trial which would place the accused a second time in jeopardy. (127)

On a plea of insanity raised to a charge of theft a verdict of acquittal upon that ground cannot be disturbed on a reserved case granted to the Crown if there was any evidence, however unsatisfactory, to support the plea. (128)

Where, although the reception of opinion testimony as to the illegality of a transaction is improper, a case is sufficiently made out without such opinion testimony, and the trial is without a jury, the conviction ought to stand. (129)

If upon a case reserved, the appellate court finds that important depositions were improperly received in evidence, and is unable to say that no substantial wrong or miscarriage was occasioned by the irregularity, the conviction should be quashed, but a new trial may be ordered. (130) should not be granted to a private prosecutor except under exceptional circumstances. (131)

Leave to appeal will not be granted to a private prosecutor from the decision of a police magistrate holding a summary trial by consent merely upon the ground that the magistrate erred in rejecting certain evidence which was properly admissible but corroborative only.

A reserved case upon an objection, taken before pleading, that the charge upon which the accused was arraigned for a speedy trial was not founded upon the evidence adduced at the preliminary enquiry should not be heard by the Court of Appeal until after the trial has been concluded, and then only in case of a conviction. (132)

The improper reception of evidence before a county judge trying a case without jury under the "speedy trials" clauses will not entitle the prisoner to a new trial upon a case reserved, if the county judge certifies therein that, apart from the evidence objected to, there was sufficient evidence to compel him to find the prisoner guilty. (133)

Upon an application for leave to appeal, after refusal of a reserved case, ample notice of the application should be given to the Attorney General, and the notice of motion should set forth the grounds relied upon. (134)

It has been held that an accused person tried and acquitted in a criminal court is entitled to a copy of the record of such acquittal and of the indictment, without the fiat of or intervention by the Attorney-General of the province, and that a mandamus will lie to compel the delivery of certified copies. (135)

Sec. 747. Sec. 1021. Leave to a convicted person to apply for a new trial. Meaning unchanged.

Sec. 748. Sec. 1022. New trial by order of Minister of Justice. Unchanged.

Leave to apply, — under the above section, — 1021, — to the Court of Appeal, for a new trial on the ground that the verdict is contrary to the evidence, cannot be granted unless there has been a denial of justice: and this defect cannot be attributed to the verdict by reason of the jury, in rendering it, not considering the evidence of the accused as to facts tending to his acquittal. The jury, being sole judge of the weight of such evidence, was at liberty to refuse to believe it. (136)

In deciding whether there should be a new trial on the ground that the verdict against the accused was against the weight of evidence, the question is whether or not the verdict is one which the jury as reasonable men ought not to have found. A new trial will not be granted merely because the trial judge is dissatisfied with the verdict and favors an acquittal. (137)

A motion for a new trial can only be made before the court of appeal, upon leave therefor granted by the court before which the trial has taken place. (138)

An application for a new trial on the ground of the discovery of new evidence, instead of being made under section 1021, should be made to the Minister of Justice under section 1022. (139)

It is misdirection, — entitling the accused to a new trial, — for the trial judge to charge the jury that the onus is upon the accused to prove, by a preponderance of testimony, an alibi set up in defence. (140) Where the defence is an alibi, and there is evidence tending to support it, the Court, — in view of the universal rule that the burden is upon the prosecution to shew, beyond a reasonable doubt, the commission of the offence by the accused, — should tell the jury that, if they have a reasonable doubt of the presence of the accused at the time when and the place where the offence was committed, they should acquit. (141)

Upon a criminal trial it is the duty of the trial judge, in his charge to the jury, to define the crime charged, and to explain to the jury the difference between it and any other offence for which the jury may convict the accused under the same indictment. Failure to instruct the jurv in a trial for murder upon the distinction between murder and manslaughter is a ground for ordering a new trial. A court of criminal appeal should direct a new trial upon a case reserved by the trial judge after the trial in respect of such omission in the judge's charge to the jury, although no objection thereto was taken by the defendant's counsel during the trial. (142)

There is no provision in the Criminal Code authorizing the Court to grant a new trial to the Crown on the ground that the verdict of acquittal is against the weight of evidence. (143)

Sec. 749. Sec. 1023. Suspension of sentence in case of appeal. — The sentence of a court shall not be suspended by reason of any appeal, unless the court expressly so directs, except where the sentence is that the accused suffer death or whipping.

2. The production of a certificate from the officer of the court that a question has been reserved, or that leave has been given to apply for a new trial, or of a certificate from the Minister of Justice that he has directed a new trial, shall be a sufficient warrant to suspend the execution of any sentence of death or whipping.

3. In all cases it shall be in the discretion of the court of appeal in directing a new trial to order the accused to be admitted to bail. Slightly altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 750. Sec. 1024. Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada. — Any person convicted of any indictable offence, whose conviction has been affirmed on an appeal taken under section ten hundred and thirteen may appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against the affirmance of such conviction: Provided that no such appeal can be taken if the court of appeal is unanimous in affirming the conviction, nor unless notice of appeal in writing has been served on the Attorney General within fifteen days after such affirmance or such further time as may be allowed by the Supreme Court of Canada or a judge thereof.

2. The Supreme Court of Canada shall make such rule or order thereon, either in affirmance of the conviction or for granting a new trial, or otherwise, or for granting or refusing such application, as the justice of the case requires, and shall make all other necessary rules and orders for carrying such rule or order into effect.

3. Unless such appeal is brought on for hearing by the appellant at the session of the Supreme Court during which such affirmance takes place, or the session next thereafter if the said court is not then in session, the appeal shall be held to have been abandoned, unless otherwise ordered by the Supreme Court or a judge thereof.

4. The judgment of the Supreme Court shall, in all cases, be final and conclusive.

Altered, as here set forth.

So that where an accused was convicted of stealing bank notes, but there was no evidence to identify them with the bank notes found on and taken from the prisoner when arrested, and no application had been made after conviction for an order of compensation to the prosecutor for his loss, an order may be properly made, ex parte, for the restoration to the prisoner of the money so taken from him. (a) when any one is sentenced to imprisonment in a penitentiary, and at the same sittings or term of the court trying him is sentenced for one or more other offences to a term or terms of imprisonment less than two years each, he may be sentenced for such shorter terms to imprisonment in the same penitentiary, such sentences to take effect from the termination of his other sentence; and,

(b) when any one is sentenced for any offence who is, at the date of such sentence, serving a term of imprisonment in a penitentiary for another offence, he may be sentenced for a term shorter than two years to imprisonment in the same penitentiary, such sentence to take effect from the termination of his existing sentence or sentences;

(c) in the province of Manitoba, any one sentenced to imprisonment for a term less than two years may be sentenced to imprisonment in any one of the common gaols in that province unless a special prison is provided by law. (7)

Sec. 955. Sec. 1057. Imprisonment in common gaol to be with or without hard labor.—Imprisonment in a common gaol, or a public prison, other than a penitentiary or the Central Prison for the province of Ontario, the Andrew Mercer Ontario Reformatory for females or any reformatory prison for females in the province of Quebec, shall be with or without hard labour, in the discretion of the court or person passing sentence, if the offender is convicted on indictment, or under the provisions of Parts XVI, or XVIII., or, in the province of Saskatchewan or Alberta, before a judge of a superior court, or in the Northwest Territories, before a stipendiary magistrate or in the Yukon Territory, before a judge of the Territorial Court.

2. In other cases such imprisonment may be with hard labour, if hard labour is part of the punishment for the offence of which such offender is convicted, and if such imprisonment is to be with hard labour, the sentence shall so direct. (8).

The first paragraph of the old section 955 is omitted from the new Code, and is made into section 42 of the new Penitentiary Act, (R. S., 1906, c. 147), as follows:—

Imprisonment in the Penitentiary.—"Every one who is sentenced to imprisonment for life or for a term of years not less than two, shall be sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary for the province in which the conviction takes place."

Paragraphs 7 and 8 of the old section 955 are omitted from the new Code, and are made, (as to paragraph 7 and a portion of paragraph 8), into section 43 of the new Penitentiary Act, as follows:—

Convict subject to penitentiary regulations.—"Every one who is sentenced to imprisonment in a penitentiary shall be subject to the provisions of the statutes relating to such penitentiary and to all rules and regulations lawfully made with respect thereto;" and

"2. The term of imprisonment in pursuance of any sentence shall, unless otherwise directed in the sentence, commence on and from the day of passing such sentence; but no time during which the convict is out on bail shall be reckoned as part of the term of imprisonment to which he is sentenced."

Another portion of par. 8 of the old section 955 is made into the first paragraph of section 12 of the new Prisons and Reformatories Act, (R. S., 1906, c. 148), as follows:—

Prison rules.—"Every one who is sentenced to imprisonment in any gaol or other public or reformatory prison, shall be subject to the provisions of the statutes relating to gaol or prison and to all rules and regulations lawfully made with respect thereto."

Paragraph 5 of the old section 955 is omitted from the new Code, and a portion of such par. 5 is made into the first paragraph of section 62 of the new Penitentiary Act, as follows:—

Employment of penitentiary convicts. — "Imprisonment in a penitentiary shall be with hard labor, whether so directed in the sentence by which such imprisonment is adjudged or not."

Another portion of paragraph 5 of the old section 955 is made into par. 2 of section 12 of the new Prisons and Reformatories Act, as follows:—

Employment of convicts in Central prison, etc.—"Imprisonment in the Central Prison for the province of Ontario, in the Andrew Mercer Ontario Reformatory for females, and in any reformatory prison for females in the province of Quebec, shall be with hard labor, whether so directed in the sentence or not."

Paragraph 4 of the old section 955 is omitted from the new Code, and is made into section 137 of the new Militia Act, (R. S., 1906, c. 41), as follows:—

Imprisonment of naval and military offenders in penitentiary or in gaol.—"Any prisoner sentenced for any term by any military or naval authority under this or any Military Act, may be sentenced to imprisonment in a penitentiary"; and

"2. If such prisoner is sentenced to a term less than two years, he may be sentenced to improvisonment in the common gaol of the district, county or place in which the sentence is pronounced, or, if there is no common gaol there, then in that common gaol which is nearest to such locality, or in some other lawful prison or place of confinement other than a penitentiary in which imprisonment may be lawfully executed."

A warrant of commitment of a convict to a penitentiary after a trial under the Speedy Trials clauses is sufficient, without further specification of the place of the offence than the marginal reference to the county in which the trial takes place. It is unnecessary, in a sentence of imprisonment to a penitentiary, or in the warrant issued in pursuance thereof, to state a date from which the imprisonment is to run, as the law expressly provides that the term of imprisonment counts from the date of sentence, unless otherwise ordered. (9).

If the certificate of sentence to imprisonment in a penitentiary is irregular, for omission of the date of sentence, leave may be given, on a habeas corpus motion, to return an amended certificate correcting the omission. (10).

Sec. 956. Imprisonment in Reformatory. Omitted.

This section (956) of the old Code, (as amended and added to by the 2 Ed. VII, c. 13, sec. 4), is transferred to the Prisons and Reformatories Act, (R. S., 1903, c. 148), and made into section 29 of that Act, in the following terms: —

Section 29 of the Prisons and Reformatories Act.—"The Court or person before whom any offender whose age at the time of his trial does not, in the opinion of the Court,, exceed sixteen years, is convicted, whether summarily or otherwise, of any offence punishable by imprisonment, may sentence such offender to imprisonment in any reformatory prison in the province in which such conviction takes place, subject to the provisions of any Act respecting imprisonment in such reformatory.

"2. In no case shall the sentence be less that two years' or more than five years' confinement in such reformatory prison.

"3. Such imprisonment shall be substituted in such case for the imprisonment in the penitentiary or other place of confinement by which the offender would otherwise be punishable under any Act or law relating thereto; Provided that in every case where the term of imprisonment is fixed by law to be more than five years, then such imprisonment shall be in the penitentiary.

"4. Every person imprisoned in a reformatory shall be liable to perform such labor as is required of such person.

"5. This section shall apply to the Halifax Industrial School and Saint Patrick's Home at Halifax, although the age of the offender exceeds sixteen years, if it does not exceed eighteen years; and in any case of imprisonment in the said School or Home, the sentence may be for a term of one year or more, but not exceeding five years."

A father having, under the law of the province of Quebec, the care of his minor children, may, with the consent of the management of the school, place his child in a reformatory school authorized for the commitment,—(under section 956 of the old Code, now section 29 of the new Prisons and Reformatories Act),—of youthful offenders; and the detention of the child for purposes

SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

Sec. 971. Sec. 1081. Conditional release of first offender; and suspension of sentence when punishment of offence not more than two years imprisonment. Unchanged

If no previous conviction is proved against the accused upon a summary trial for an indictable offence, and the magistrate's power to award imprisonment is limited to a term of less than two years, such magistrate may, upon conviction, release the accused upon suspended sentence; and where the person convicted upon a summary trial, is released upon suspended sentence and is directed to pay the informant's costs, such costs are payable forthwith, unless otherwise ordered. (16).

The proper time for taking evidence of a previous conviction to exclude a magistrate's jurisdiction to release on suspended sentence is after the finding of guilty on the present charge, and not during the hearing of the charge. If the Crown does not adduce evidence of a previous conviction, the magistrate may, on his own initiative, call for the records under his own control and custody and hold an enquiry upon the question whether the defendant had been previously convicted before him, as well as on the questions of identity, age and antecedents of the defendant, for the purpose of considering the appropriate punishment or a release on suspended sentence, where the latter is permissable. (17).

Where a convicted person, instead of being sentenced, is discharged from custody upon entering into a recognizance with sureties to appear and receive judgment when called on, it is only on motion of the Crown that the recognizance can be estreated or judgment moved against him. PART XXII.

EXTRAORDINARY REMEDIES.

Sec. 752. Sec. 1120. Further detention of person accused on enquiry as to legality of his imprisonment.— Whenever any person in custody charged with an indictable offence has taken proceedings before a judge or criminal court having jurisdiction in the premises by way of certiorari, habeas corpus or otherwise, to have the legality of his imprisonment inquired into, such judge or court may, with or without determining the question, make an order for the further detention of the person accused, and direct the judge or justice, under whose warrant he is in custody, to take any proceedings, hear such evidence, or do such further act as in the opinion of the Court or judge may best further the ends of justice.

Under this provision, the accused, who has taken proceedings to have the legality of his imprisonment enquired into, may be sent back to the court, judge or justice, under whose order he is held, for further evidence to be taken, or to be dealt with by a fresh warrant of commitment; (32) and, — although, in speaking of the person in custody, the section uses the expression, "the person in custody charged," it has been said that a person convicted of an indictable offence still remains a person charged with an indictable offence, — (33) it may be that, as the proceedings to which the section refers are not only to proceedings by way of habeas corpus but also proceedings by way of certiorari, the powers which are conferred are to apply as well after as before conviction.

Where, however, a writ of habeas corpus was issued and an order was made suspending a part of the sentence (the penalty of whipping), and, on its return, the judge quashed the writ of habeas corpus on the ground that the petitioner was in custody under a sentence legally pronounced by a competent tribunal, it was held by such judge that, being unable to find a single case in which the above section had been interpreted as being capable of application after condemnation, he was unable to do more than order the quashing of the writ of habeas corpus and of the order of suspension, and had no power to direct the tribunal to execute the part of the sentence which had been suspended. (34)

Where the conviction itself was lodged with the gaoler as his authority for the detention, in lieu of a warrant of commitment, the judge, before whom the prisoner is brought upon habeas corpus, may properly order the further detention of the prisoner for a limited time until a warrant in due form can be obtained from the magistrate. (35)

Where the evidence as to the commission of the alleged offence is conflicting, and the term of imprisonment imposed by the conviction is in excess of that authorized by law, the judge before whom the case is brought on habeas corpus should not exercise the powers conferred by above section, — 1120, — of making an order for the further detention of the accused. (36)

Where a justice, — having no summary jurisdiction over the offence charged other than to hold a preliminary enquiry and commit for trial, — has himself tried and convicted the accused, no order should be made, in habeas corpus proceedings, for the further detention of the accused and his return to the justice's court for a preliminary enquiry. on summary conviction which has been affirmed, or affirmed and amended, in appeal, shall be quashed for want of form, or be removed by certiorari into any Superior Court, and no warrant or commitment shall be held void by reason of any defect therein, provided it is therein alleged that the defendant has been convicted, and there is a good and valid conviction to sustain the same. Altered, as here set forth.

CERTIORARI.

The writ of certiorari, — which is a writ issuing out of a Superior Court for the purpose of bringing up before it the proceedings of such inferior courts and officers as exercise judicial functions,— does not lie to such as exercise merely ministerial functions, nor to bodies exercising legislative functions, such as town councils passing resolutions which are illegal or beyond their powers. (38)

Express words taking away the right of certiorari are inapplicable not only to cases where the convicting justice has not jurisdiction over the subject matter of the conviction, or where he exceeds his jurisdiction, or where the tribunal has been illegally constituted or the conviction has been obtained by fraud; (39) but they are also inapplicable where there has been improper conduct on the part of the magistrate, or the fundamental principle, entitling a party to a fair trial, has been overlooked, and, in such a case, a certiorari will be granted. (40)

In such exceptional cases, as where a gross perversion of justice has occurred through the misconduct of the magistrate, the court will grant a certiorari, although another mode of reviewing the conviction is provided by statute, and although there is a provision that no conviction shall lie when an appeal is taken. Thus, where an appeal was taken from a summary conviction, but lapsed, because of the failure of the magistrate to return the conviction, a superior court afterwards issued a certiorari and quashed the conviction, — notwithstanding the abortive appeal, and notwithstanding the provision contained in the above section, 1122, — upon the grounds that the magistrate had deprived the accused of a reasonable opportunity of making their defence and had acted collusively with the prosecutor, and that the defendants had been thwarted in the prosecution of their appeal, without any fault on their part.(41)

The making up of costs is a ministerial act, and does not go to the jurisdiction, so that, where the magistrate, on a summary conviction, allows excessive costs in respect of mileage to the constable for serving subpoenas upon witnesses, it is not a ground for quashing the conviction. (42)

An improper reception of evidence, not allowing full cross-examination of a witness for the prosecution, and the improper refusal of an adjournment do not go to the jurisdiction. (43)

But it has been held that a refusal to allow a defendant to give evidence is a matter going to the jurisdiction. (44).

By section 5 of the Imperial Act, 13 Geo. II, c. 18,—which has been held to be in force in Ontario, (45), and in British Columbia, (46), and which, no doubt, is in force, also, in other provinces, though not, as it seems, in New Brunswick, (47), nor in Nova Scotia, (48), it is provided that no writ of certiorari shall be granted to remove any conviction, judgment, order or other proceedings had or made by or before any justice or justices of the peace of any county, city, town-corporate, etc., or the respective general or quarter sessions thereof, unless applied for within six calendar months next after such conviction, etc., and unless it be duly proved upon oath that the party suing for the same has given six days' written notice thereof to such justice or justices, so that he or they or the parties therein concerned may show cause against the issuing or granting of such certiorari.

It has, however, been held, in England, that the 13 Geo. II, c. 18, sec. 5, while in force, there, (it having been some time ago repealed), applied only to convictions, etc., of justices of the peace, and that where an application for a certiorari was not made under that Act, the party applying was not limited to six months, but might apply at any more lengthened period as the Court, under the circumstances, might think reasonable. (49).

It has been held that the giving of the six days' notice (now provided for, in England, by No. 39 of the Crown Office Rules, 1886), is a condition precedent to an application for a certiorari, that the court has no jurisdiction to grant it, unless the notice has been given and that the service of a rule nisi for a certiorari,—though made returnable six days or more after service thereof,—is not a good substitute for the notice of application, and, therefore, not a sufficient compliance with the statute. (50).

It has also been held, however, that the objection of want of the six days' notice may be waived. (51)

An application for a certiorari must be supported by an affidavit showing the grounds upon which it is sought; (52) and a copy of the proceedings sought to be removed should be produced with the application and be verified by affidavit, or, if a copy of the proceedings cannot be obtained, it should be shown what the proceedings were, and what efforts have been made to procure a copy of them and why a copy cannot be obtained.

Where, in a New Brunswick case, a copy of the proceedings was not attached to and exhibited with the affidavits upon which the rule nisi for certiorari was obtained, and where it was not shown what the proceedings were, nor that a copy of the proceedings sought to be removed could not be obtained, the court discharged the rule. (53).

For Forms of Motion for certiorari and of Affidavits in support thereof, see pp. 340-341, post.

The rule for the issuing of the certiorari must specify the omission or mistake or other defect objected to in the conviction, order or judgment sought to be removed. (54).

The question of the validity of the conviction or commitment is sometimes argued on the application for certiorari; and, if the proceedings are then decided to be valid, a certiorari will be refused. (55).

A writ of certiorari is properly addressed to the officer having the custody of the papers sought to be removed, and, therefore, if the conviction has been returned to the clerk of the peace, under section 757 of the Code, the writ of certiorari need only be addressed to the latter. (56).

For Forms of Writ of certiorari, of recognizance upon application therefor, and of Return to certiorari, see pp. 976-998 of the Author's second edition.

Where proceedings pending before an inferior court are,—after a finding against the accused, but before the date to which the case was adjourned for sentence,—removed by certiorari into a superior court, a warrant of commitment issued by the inferior court, in enforcement of the judgment and sentence pronounced by it, on the latter date, is invalid. (57).

Preliminary objections to a writ of certiorari must be raised promptly and objections to matters of form in the certiorari proceedings,—such as that the magistrate had not had six full days' notice of the application for the writ,—will not be entertained on the motion to quash the conviction, when, since the return, three months have elapsed, without a substantive motion being made to quash the writ; this delay being held to be a waiver of the right to take the objection. (58).

The objection of want of notice or other objection to the proceedings may be raised by a substantive motion to supersede the writ of certiorari; but that course is not always essential, and the objection may be one that can be raised on the return of the motion to quash the conviction; although defects of form or of a trifling nature will not be allowed to be brought up on the motion to quash the conviction; and a substantive motion will be necessary so as to give an opportunity for ordering an amendment if proper; but if the defect forming the ground of objection to the writ of certiorari is a fundamental one, it is not too late to bring it up on the motion to quash the conviction. (59).

The same rule applies to an objection to the certiorari proceedings on the ground that the required security is defective or has not been properly given. (60).

It has been held in Ontario, that, if a motion to quash an irregular recognizance in a certiorari proceeding is not brought on until the return of the motion to quash the conviction, the court may concurrently quash both the conviction and the recognizance, if both are found to defective. (61).

In order to avoid a waiver of an objection,—for instance, of want of notice, — the justice or the prosecutor should either make a substantive motion to supersede the certiorari, or cause notice to be served that he will take the objection on the return of the motion to quash the conviction.

Should he not do this, he may, by acquiescence in the motion to quash, or by delay, or by allowing an adjournment to be ordered, without raising the objection, be held to have waived it. (62).

Under the provisions of the Crown rules, Nova Scotia, 1889, a motion to rescind an order for certiorari must be made by way of appeal. (63).

A second application for a writ of certiorari will not be entertained by the court, although the dismissal of the first application was upon a preliminary objection. (64).

Where, in the course of certiorari proceedings, an order nisi to quash the conviction has been issued, but, before service of the same upon the informant prosecutor, the latter dies, the proceedings do not lapse and can be continued by serving the magistrates. (65).

It has been held in the North-West Territories that costs of quashing a conviction by certiorari proceedings will not be awarded, except in cases of misconduct on the part of the informant or of the justice. (66)

In the Province of British Columbia, costs are allowed, — it being held there that the practice in certiorari proceedings of never awarding costs either in favor of or against the Crown is to be considered as no longer in force in that province. (67)

But, in the Province of Ontario, it has been held that, in certiorari proceedings respecting a criminal charge under Dominion laws, the High Court has no jurisdiction to award costs against the prosecutor or the magistrate on quashing the conviction; although, as against an unsuccessful applicant for the writ, costs may be allowed either on account of the recognizance which he enters into to pay the costs, or of the inherent power of the court to give costs as a punishment for erroneously putting the jurisdiction of the Court in motion. (68) R. v. Bennett, 5 Can. Cr. Cas., 456.

The Quebec License Law, 1900, provides that an accused, who, on being convicted, applies for a certiorari, must make a deposit of the amount of the fine and costs awarded, plus $50 to meet future costs; and it has been held that this deposit is a deposit in security and not in sequestration, that the accused's application for certiorari could not, on the certiorari being set aside, take away from him his right of option to serve the term of imprisonment to which he had been condemned, in place of paying the fine and costs awarded, that, although the writ of certiorari suspends the execution of the sentence, the effect of quashing the writ is merely to render the person liable to the term of imprisonment, and that, if he makes option to undergo the imprisonment, he has a right to be reimbursed the portion of deposit representing the fine and costs, the extra $50, however, being applied to the payment of the extra costs in connection with the certiorari proceedings. (69)

Certiorari does not lie to bring up a warrant of commitment to be quashed upon grounds not affecting the conviction under which the warrant issued, nor will the court quash the warrant in certiorari proceedings, in which the conviction is also brought up, if the conviction itself is valid. The proper proceeding for reviewing, upon grounds not affecting the conviction, the validity of a warrant of commitment under which the accused is in custody, is by way of habeas corpus. (70)

The remedy by habeas corpus not being open to one imprisoned under the sentence of a competent court, having general jurisdiction of the case, such prisoner cannot, on the return of a writ shewing such sentence, demand an ancillary writ of certiorari for the production of the record in the case in which the sentence was pronounced. (71)

A writ of certiorari and a return thereto by the convicting justice are necessary preliminaries to an application to quash a summary conviction, notwithstanding the fact that the original conviction is on file in the court having jurisdiction in certiorari matters. Where the same court has jurisdiction both in appeal and upon certiorari, and a summary conviction has been transmitted by the magistrate and filed in such court under section 757, ante, the writ of certiorari cannot be dispensed with for the purposes of a motion to quash the conviction. WHAT COURTS CAN DEAL, BY WAY OF CERTIORARI, WITH CRIMINAL MATTERS?

Under subsection 35 of section 2, ante, the Superior Courts of Criminal Jurisdiction of the various provinces are the following:—(a) in the province of Ontario, the High Court of Justice, (b) in the province of Quebec, the Court of King's Bench, (c) in the provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and British Columbia, the Supreme Court, (d) in the province of Prince Edward Island, the Supreme Court of Judicature, (e) in the province of Manitoba, the Court of King's Bench (Crown Side), (f) in the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Supreme Court of the Northwest Territories, and (g) in the Yukon Territory, the Territorial Court; and, by section 576, ante, every Superior Court of Criminal Jurisdiction is authorized to make rules regulating, in criminal matters, the pleading practice and procedure in the Court, including the subjects of mandamus, certiorari, habeas corpus, prohibition, etc.,—there being, however, (as to Ontario) an exception by which the authority, for making such rules of court applicable to Superior Courts of Criminal Jurisdiction, is vested in the Supreme Court of Judicature.

As, since Confederation, the provincial legislatures have no power to deal with the practice and procedure in criminal cases, over which the Dominion Parliament exercises legislative authority, (73) and as, (by section 576), the Criminal Code expressly provides for the making,—by every Superior Court of Criminal Jurisdiction,—of rules of Court regulating, in criminal matters, the pleading, practice and procedure in the Court, including the subjects of mandamus, certiorari, habeas corpus, prohibition, etc., it seems only reasonable to conclude that the authority of the Superior Courts of civil jurisdiction, in the various provinces, to deal with the subjects of mandamus, certiorari, habeas corpus, prohibition, etc., is confined to civil matters and to offences against and in contravention of provincial laws, and that the only courts which have the right to deal, by way of mandamus, certiorari, habeas corpus, prohibition, etc., with criminal cases over which the Dominion Parliament exercises legislative authority, are the Superior Courts of Criminal Jurisdiction; although, this conclusion may seem to be at variance with some decisions of the Superior Court in the Province of Quebec, (exercising civil jurisdiction), holding that that Court had power, by way of certiorari, over convictions made by a justice of the peace in criminal cases; —the ground taken being that the power of the Superior Court to control all inferior jurisdictions is to be found in the statutes consolidated and incorporated in the Revised Statutes of Quebec, Article 2329 of which gives to the Superior Court, power and control over all courts except the Court of King's Bench. (74).

But, is not the power and control, here referred to as being vested in the Superior Court of the Province of Quebec,—which is a Court of civil jurisdiction,—a power and control limited to civil matters and to offences against and contraventions of provincial laws, and not extending to criminal matters within the legislative authority of the Dominion Parliament?

It has also been held that, where the Montreal Harbor Commissioners, acting under the Montreal Harbor Commissioners' Act, 1894, deprived,—by their conviction,—a pilot of his license, their conviction was subject to proceedings, by certiorari, of the Superior Court, the principal ground of this latter decision being, that, in the opinion of the Court, the right of appeal provided by the then section 879 (now 749) of the Criminal Code does not apply to a matter of discipline such as is represented by a sentence or order cancelling a pilot's license. (75).

In a comparatively recent case, it has, however, been held in the province of Quebec, that provincial statutes in force at the time of Confederation, regarding certiorari in criminal matters, are not in force, in so far as they have been repealed by or are inconsistent with Dominion legislation; that the Federal Parliament has the exclusive right to declare before what court, existing in each province and exercising criminal jurisdiction, proceedings in criminal cases, including proceedings by certiorari after conviction shall be carried on; that the Superior Court has no jurisdiction to quash, by way of certiorari, decisions rendered by magistrates sitting for the summary trial of indictable offences; and that the review of such decisions, in so far as they are reviewable, belongs, in the province of Quebec, exclusively to the Court of King's Bench. (76).

HABEAS CORPUS.

Habeas Corpus may be applied for whenever a person, by or on whose behalf it is applied for, is, in any manner, illegally restrained of his liberty.

See cases, on this subject, cited at pp. 950-952 of the Author's second edition.

An application for a writ of habeas corpus must be accompanied by the affidavit of the prisoner, or by evidence that he is so coerced that his affidavit cannot be obtained. (77).

A writ of habeas corpus to test the legality of a child's detention is not irregular because issued on the petition of the child himself, who, being a minor, is under disability to bring action in respect of civil rights. (78).

A writ of habeas corpus issued in Ontario should be signed by the judge who awards it as well as by the officer who issues it. (78*a*).

An affidavit of the gaoler verifying a copy of the warrant claimed as the cause of detention may be accepted as a return to a writ or order of habeas corpus. (79).

It has been held that, on habeas corpus proceedings, proof by affidavit may be admitted to shew that a preliminary enquiry and committal for trial took place on a Sunday; (80) or that the constable's return to a warrant of distress,—to the effect that there was not sufficient property to satisfy it,—is false, and that, therefore, the commitment based thereon and under which the party is imprisoned was issued improperly. (81).

The duty of a judge under a writ of habeas corpus is to examine whether the committing magistrate has jurisdiction, whether the committal is legal, and whether any crime known to the law is alleged to have been committed, but not to enquire into or reverse the magistrate's decision as regards its propriety or impropriety on the merits. (82).

A prisoner detained under a warrant which is, in form, one of committal for trial but which charges an offence punishable only on summary conviction, will be discharged on habeas corpus. Although there may, in fact, have been a summary hearing and summary conviction thereon, if the warrant of commitment returned as the cause of detention is bad on its face, in not alleging that the defendant has been convicted, a formal conviction cannot be received to remedy the defect as section 1122 ante applies only to cases in which the warrant alleges a conviction. (83).

An accused person, who is summarily convicted on his plea of guilty upon a charge of "unlawfully" committing an indecent act, and who is sentenced to imprisonment, is entitled to be discharged on habeas corpus, inasmuch as the commitment and conviction disclose no offence under the criminal law. (84).

Where a summary conviction and the commitment thereon charges no offence, the prisoner will be discharged; as, for instance, a conviction for being "a loose, idle person or vagrant," without specifying in what the vagrancy consisted. (85). And an information and warrant of arrest thereunder charging the accused as an accessory to the violation of a statute named, without specifying the fact as to which he was alleged to be accessory was held void, and the accused was discharged. (86).

A commitment by a tribunal of inferior jurisdiction, may be severable, and where imprisonment is ordered for a term, and a further term in default of payment of a fine and costs, the prisoner is not entitled to his release on habeas corpus during the first term because of the costs not being ascertained in the commitment, but leave will be reserved to him to re-apply at the expiration of the first term. (87).

Where the warrant of commitment was issued in one county against the accused, who was not then in custody, and he was arrested thereunder in another county, without any endorsement of the warrant, and was brought back to the county in which the warrant issued, and there imprisoned as the warrant directed, the irregular arrest is not a ground for releasing the accused on habeas corpus. (88)

Chinamen passing through Canada in bond in the custody of a transportation company for shipment from Hong Kong to the West Indies cannot change their destination to the United States boundary, even upon tender of the fare from the line of transit to the boundary, nor are they entitled, upon habeas corpus, to be set at liberty in Canada, unless they have paid the Chinese immigration tax imposed by the Canadian Government and have been duly entered as immigrants to Canada. (89)

Where a return to a writ of habeas corpus or to an order in the nature of such a writ specifies two warrants of commitment for the same offence, and neither the second warrant nor the return declares the second warrant to be in substitution for or in amendment of the first, which is irregular and bad, the prisoner should be discharged. (90)

Where proceedings in an inferior court are removed by certiorari into a superior court, after a verdict or finding against the accused, but before the date to which the case was adjourned for sentence, a warrant of commitment issued by the inferior court in enforcement of the judgment pronounced by it, on the latter date, is invalid and the prisoner will be discharged from custody. (91)

The fact that at the time of the application, the person against whom the writ is asked has not in his custody or power the person said to be detained is no ground for refusing the writ, if it appear that the person has illegally parted with such custody; for although, as a rule, when the detention has ceased, the writ is inapplicable, still, when a counterfeited release has taken place, and a pretended ignorance of the place of custody or of the identity of the present custodian is insisted on, the Court ought to examine into the facts. (92)

It has been held, in Nova Scotia, that a person, made a respondent to an application for habeas corpus in a criminal matter, who does not appear of record to be the prosecutor, and who does not appear on the application, is not liable for costs on the discharge of the prisoner in the habeas corpus proceedings, although the conviction in question was for stealing his property. Leave may be given on the hearing of a habeas corpus application to substitute an amended conviction and an amended commitment for the invalid conviction and commitment attacked, whether the defect be one of form only or one of substance. (94)

If the certificate of sentence to imprisonment in a penitentiary is irregular for omission of the date of sentence, leave may be given, on a habeas corpus motion, to return an amended certificate correcting the omission. (95).

Under section 754 ante and 1124, post, the Court has power to make certain amendments in a summary conviction returned on certiorari, whether the certiorari is one preliminary to a motion to quash the conviction or is in aid of a writ of habeas corpus. (96).

A conviction which is invalid on its face should not, upon habeas corpus proceedings, be amended under section 1124, post, unless the Court, if trying the accused in the first instance, would have convicted upon the same depositions. (97).

Where concurrent proceedings are taken by certiorari and habeas corpus in the province of Quebec, and the writ of habeas corpus is maintained upon an objection appearing upon the face of the warrant of commitment. the order for costs against the prosecutor in respect thereof should not include the costs incurred upon the writ of certiorari, inasmuch as it appeared on the face of the warrant that the justice had exceeded his jurisdiction and that recourse to an ancillary writ of certiorari was unnecessary. (98).

In Manitoba, it has been held that there is no appeal to the full court of King's Bench there, from the decision of a single judge of that court refusing a motion for habeas corpus to discharge a prisoner from custody, but that successive applications for the writ may be made to each judge. (99).

Sec. 820. Sec. 1123. Conviction or warrant under Juvenile Offenders' Part.—No conviction under Part XVII shall be quashed for want of form, or be removed by certiorari or otherwise into any Court of record; and no warrant of commitment under the said Part shall be held void by reason of any defect therein, if it is therein alleged that the person has been convicted, and there is a good and valid conviction to sustain the same. (100).

Sec. 889. Sec. 1124. Conviction or order removed by certiorari not to be held invalid for irregularity, — When. No conviction or order made by any justice, and no warrant for enforcing the same, shall, on being removed by certiorari, be held invalid for any irregularity, informality or insufficiency therein, if the court or judge before which or whom the question is raised, upon perusal of the depositions, is satisfied that an offence of the nature described in the conviction, order or warrant, has been committed, over which such justice has jurisdiction, and that the punishment imposed is not in excess of that which might have been lawfully imposed for the said offence: Provided that the court or judge, where so satisfied, shall, even if the punishment imposed or the order made is in excess of that which might lawfully have been imposed or made, have the like powers in all respects to deal with the case as seems just as are by section seven hundred and fifty-four conferred upon the court to which an appeal is taken under the provisions of section seven hundred and forty-nine.

2. Any statement which, under this Act or otherwise, would be sufficient if contained in a conviction, shall also be sufficient if contained in an information, summons, order or warrant.

Sec. 890. Sec. 1125. Irregularities within the preceding section. — The following matters amongst others shall be held to be within the provisions of the last preceding section: —

(a) The statement of the adjudication, or of any other matter or thing, in the past tense instead of in the present;

(b) The punishment imposed being less than the punishment by law assigned to the offence stated in the conviction or order, or to the offence which appears by the depositions to have been committed;

(100) Taken (but somewhat altered) from par. 2 of the old sec. 820.

(c) The omission to negative circumstances, the existence of which would make the act complained of lawful, whether such circumstances are stated by way of exception or otherwise in the section under which the offence is laid, or are stated in another section.

2. Nothing in this section contained shall be construed to restrict the generality of the wording of the last preceding section.

Where a perusal of the depositions returned on certiorari satisfies the court that an offence was committed as stated in the conviction, and of the date and place of same, which had not been stated in the conviction, the irregularity in not stating such date and place is cured by section 1124, unless an excessive punishment has been imposed by the magistrate. (101)

A summary conviction purporting to be under the Ontario liquor license law for unlawfully allowing liquor to be sold (which is not in terms an offence under the statute) has been held, upon certiorari proceedings, to be amendable, if the evidence warrants it, so as to make it a conviction for selling without a license, such an amendment being permissible under the Criminal Code which is made applicable, by provincial enactment, to prosecutions under Ontario laws. (102)

Sec. 892. Sec. 1126. General order prescribing security with regard to motion to quash conviction.

Unchanged.

Sec. 895. Sec. 1127. No writ of procedendo necessary on motion to quash being refused.

Meaning unchanged.

Sec. 894. Sec. 1128. Conviction, etc., not to be quashed for want of proof of proclamation, etc. — No order, conviction or other proceeding made by any justice or stipendiary magistrate shall be quashed or set aside, and no defendant shall be discharged by reason of any objection that evidence has not been given of a proclamation or order of the Governor in Council or of any rules, regulations or by-laws made by the Governor in Council in pursuance of a statute of Canada or of the publication of such proclamation, order, rules, regulations or by-laws in the Canada Gazette.

2. Such proclamation, order, rules, regulations and by-laws and the publication thereof shall be judicially noticed.

Altered slightly, as here set forth

Sec. 896. Sec. 1129. Conviction not to be set aside for defect in form. — Whenever it appears by any conviction made by a justice or stipendiary magistrate that the defendant has appeared and pleaded, and the merits have been tried, and the defendant has not appealed against the conviction, where an appeal is allowed, or if appealed against, the conviction has been affirmed, such conviction shall not afterwards be set aside or vacated in consequence of any defect of form whatever, but the construction shall be such a fair and liberal construction as will be agreeable to the justice of the case. Altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 800. Sec. 1130. Proceedings under Summary Trials Part not quashed nor voided for want of form.— No conviction, sentence or proceeding under Part XVI. shall be quashed for want of form; and no warrant of commitment upon a conviction under the said Part shall be held void by reason of any defect therein, if it is therein alleged that the offender has been convicted and there is a good and valid conviction to sustain the same.

Altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 891. Sec. 1131. No action against official when conviction quashed. — If an application is made to quash a conviction, order or other proceeding made or had by or before a justice or stipendiary magistrate, on the ground that such justice or stipendiary has exceeded his jurisdiction, the court or judge to which or whom the application is made, may, as a condition of quashing the conviction, order or other proceeding, if the court or judge thinks fit so to do, provide that no action shall be brought against the justice or stipendiary by or before whom such conviction, order or other proceeding was made or had, or against any officer acting thereunder or under any warrant issued to enforce any such conviction or order.

Altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 1132. Proceedings relating to Part III not void for defect of form. — No action or other proceeding, warrant, judgment, order or other instrument or writing, authorized by any provisions of Part XII relating to Part III, or necessary to carry out its provisions, shall be held void or be allowed to fail for defect of form. (103)

PART XXIII.

RETURNS.

Sec. 902. Sec. 1133. Returns respecting convictions and moneys received. — Every Justice shall, quarterly, on or before the second Tuesday in each of the months of March, June, September and December in each year, make to the Clerk of the Peace or other proper officer of the Court having jurisdiction in appeal, as herein provided, a return in writing, under his hand, of all convictions made by him and of the receipt and application by him of the moneys received from the defendants.

2. Such return shall include all convictions and other matters not included in some previous return, and shall be in form 75.

3. If two or more justices are present, and join in the conviction, they shall make a joint return.

4. Every justice, to whom any such moneys are afterwards paid, shall make a return of the receipt and application thereof,

5. In the province of Prince Edward Island such return shall be made to the Clerk of the Court of Assize of the county in which the convictions are made, and on or before the fourteenth day next before the sitting of the said Court next after such convictions are so made.

6. Every such return shall be made in the district of Nipissing, in the province of Ontario, to the Clerk of the Peace for the county of Renfrew, in the said province. (104)

Sec. 902. Sec. 905. Sec. 1134. Neglect to make return, or making false return, or taking unlawful fees. — Every justice, before whom any conviction takes place or who receives any such moneys, who neglects or refuses to make such return thereof, or wilfully makes a false, partial or incorrect return, or wilfully receives a larger amount of fees than by law he is authorized to receive, shall incur a penalty of eighty dollars, together with costs of suit, in the discretion of the Court, which may be recovered by any person who sues for the same by action of debt or information in any Court of record in the province in which such return ought to have been or is made.

2. One moiety of such penalty shall belong to the person suing, and the other moiety to His Majesty, for the public uses of Canada.

3. Nothing in this section shall have the effect of preventing any person aggrieved from prosecuting, by indictment, any Justice, for any offence, the commission of which would have subjected him to indictment immediately before the first day of

July one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three. (105)

Sec. 105. Sec. 1135. Return by Justice of certificates. — When any certificate is granted under section one hundred and eighteen of this Act, the justice granting it shall forthwith make a return thereof to the proper officer in the county, district or place in which such certificate has been granted for receiving returns under this Part. On default of making such return within ninety days after a certificate is granted, the justice shall be liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty of not more than ten dollars.

Sec. 1136. Monthly returns under Part III. — Every Commissioner under Part III of this Act shall make a monthly return to the Secretary of State of all weapons delivered to him, and by him detained under Part III. (106)

Sec. 903. Sec. 1137. Posting up returns. — The Clerk of the Peace of the district or county to whom returns under this Part are made, or the proper officer, other than the Clerk of the Peace, to whom such returns are made, shall, within seven days after the adjournment of the next ensuing General or Quarter Sessions, or of the term or sitting of such other Court having jurisdiction in appeal as aforesaid, cause the said returns to be posted up in the court-house of the district or county, and also in a conspicuous place in the office of such Clerk of the Peace, or other proper officer, for public inspection, and the same shall continue to be so posted up and exhibited until the end of the next ensuing General or Quarter Sessions of the Peace, or for the term or sitting of such other Court as aforesaid.

Sec. 823. Sec. 1139. PART XXIV.

LIMITATIONS.

Prosecutions for Crimes.

Sec. 551. Sec. 1140. Limitations of time for commencing certain prosecutions. — No prosecution for an offence against this Act, or action for penalties or forfeiture, shall be commenced, —

(a) after the expiration of three years from the time of its commission if such offence be

(i) treason, except treason by killing His Majesty, or where the overt act alleged is an attempt to injure the person of His Majesty — section seventy-four,

(ii) treasonable offences — section seventy-eight,

(iii) any offence against Part VII. relating to the fraudulent marking of merchandise; or,

(b) after the expiration of two years from its commission if such offence be

(i) a fraud upon the government — section one hundred and fifty-eight,

(ii) a corrupt practice in municipal affairs — section one hundred and sixty-one,

(iii) unlawfully solemnizing marriage — section three hundred and eleven; or,

(c) after the expiration of one year from its commission if such offence be

(i) opposing reading of Riot Act and continuing together after proclamation — section ninety-two,

(ii) refusing to deliver weapon to justice — section one hundred and twenty-six,

(iii) coming armed near public meeting—section one hundred and twenty-seven,

(iv) lying in wait near public meeting — section one hundred and twenty-eight,

(v) seduction of girl under sixteen—section two hundred and eleven.

(vi) seduction under promise of marriage — section two hundred and twelve.

(vii) seduction of a ward or employee — section two hundred and thirteen,

(viii) parent or guardian procuring defilement of girl — section two hundred and fifteen,

(x) householders permitting defilement of girls on their premises — section two hundred and seventeen; or,

(d) after the expiration of six months from its commission if the offence be

(i) unlawful drilling—section ninety-eight,

(ii) being unlawfully drilled — section ninety-nine,

(iii) having possession of offensive weapons for purposes dangerous to the public peace—section one hundred and fifteen,

(iv) proprietor of newspaper publishing advertisement offering reward for recovery of stolen property — section one hundred and eighty-three, paragraph (d); or,

(e) after the expiration of three months from its commission if the offence be

(i) cruelty to animals—sections five hundred and forty-two and five hundred and forty-three,

(ii) railways and vessels violating provisions relating to conveyance of cattle—section five hundred and forty-four,

(iii) refusing peace officer or constable admission—section five hundred and forty-five; or,

(f) after the expiration of one month from its commission if the offence be improper use of offensive weapons under sections one hundred and sixteen and one hundred and eighteen to one hundred and twenty-four inclusive.

2. No person shall be prosecuted, under the provisions of section seventy-four or seventy-eight of this Act, for any overt act of treason expressed or declared by open and advised speaking unless information of such overtact, and of the words by which the same was expressed or declared, is given upon oath to a justice within six days after the words are spoken and a warrant for the apprehension of the offender is issued within ten days after such information is given. Altered, as here set forth.

Sec. 930. Sec. 1141. Limitation of action for penalty or forfeiture. No action, suit or information shall be brought or laid for any penalty or forfeiture under any Act, except within two years after the cause of action arises or after the offence for which such penalty or forfeiture is imposed is committed, unless the time is otherwise limited by any Act or by law. Slightly altered.

Sec. 841. Sec. 1142. Limitation of prosecutions of offences punishable on summary conviction. In the case of any offence punishable on summary conviction, if no time is specially limited for making any complaint, or laying any information, in the Act or law relating to the particular case, the complaint shall be made, or the information shall be laid, within six months from the time when the matter of complaint or information arose, except in the Northwest Territories and the Yukon Territory, in all which Territories the time within which such complaint may be made, or information laid, shall be twelve months from the time when the matter of the complaint or information arose. Altered, as here set forth. (107)

The time limited for the commencement of a criminal prosecution begins to run as soon as the act which constitutes the offence has taken place. (108)

Sunday must be counted, unless expressly excluded. (109)

"Bringing the prosecution" is not the hearing of trial, but it is the initiation of the proceedings by the prosecutor. (110)

Where the law requires the party to be prosecuted or the prosecution to be commenced within a limited time after the commission of the offence, it is sufficient to make the complaint or lay the information within that time, although the conviction may not take place until after the expiration of the time limited. (111)

But where the law requires the party to be convicted within a stated time after the commission of the offence, the mere laying of the information within that time will not suffice; in that case, the conviction itself must be made within the limited time, or it will be void. (112)

(107) And as since amended by the Criminal Code Amendment Act, 1907, (6 and 7 Ed. VII., c. 8).

WITNESSES.

Sec. 4.	Sec. 4. Accused and husband and wife competent

2ND EDIT.	REVISED STATUTES 1906, c. 145	REMARKS

Sec. 4. Sec. 4. Witnesses for defence, and in certain cases, compellable witnesses for prosecution. Every person charged with an offence, and, except as in this section otherwise provided, the wife or husband, as the case may be, of the person so charged, shall be a competent witness for the defence, whether the person, so charged, is charged solely or jointly with any other person. (1)

2. The wife or husband of a person charged with an offence against any of the sections 202 to 206 inclusive, (2) 211 to 219 inclusive, (3) 238, 239, (4) 244, 245, (5) 298 to 302 inclusive, (6) 307 to 311 inclusive, (7) 313 to 316 inclusive, (8) of the Criminal Code, shall be a competent and compellable witness for the prosecution without the consent of the person charged. Added.

3. No husband shall be compellable to disclose any communication made to him by his wife during their marriage and no wife shall be compellable to disclose any communication made to her by her husband during their marriage. (9)

4. Nothing in this section shall affect a case where the wife or husband of a person charged with an offence may, at common law, be called as a witness, without the consent of that person. Added.

5. The failure of the person charged or of the wife or husband of such person, to testify, shall not be made the subject of comment by the Judge or by counsel for the prosecution. (10)

As originally worded, the clause now forming the first paragraph of this section, 4, created a division of judicial opinion upon the question of whether an accused or his wife or her husband was thereby made a competent and compellable witness for the prosecution, or merely competent, if willing, to give evidence for the defence; and in 1903, it was decided in appeal by the Supreme Court of Canada, (one at least of the judges, however, strongly dissenting), that the accused and his wife or her husband were not only competent but compellable witnesses for the prosecution principally upon the ground that the section did not contain any limitation, as it might have done by stating that the accused and his wife or her husband should be competent witnesses for the defence. (11) But, in the clause in question, as now framed, these words "for the defence" are inserted.

Where the trial judge, in his charge to the jury, called attention to the fact that the prisoner, who was charged with theft, was not called to testify on his own behalf, and warned them that they were not to take that fact to his prejudice, but stated that, if the accused were innocent, he could have proved that he was not in the locality at the time, this was held to be a prohibited comment within the meaning of the last paragraph of the above section, 4, entitling the accused to a new trial. (12)

A direction to the jury upon a criminal trial that the accused has failed to account for a particular occurrence when the onus is upon him to do so, is not a comment upon the failure of the accused to testify. (13)

A statement by the Crown counsel, in his address to the jury, that the prisoner's counsel "took the very best and wisest course in not having the accused go on the witness stand," and that he, the Crown counsel, thinks it was wise for the prisoner himself, is a comment unfavorable to the accused on his failure to testify on his own behalf, and is within the prohibition contained in the above section. (14)

Where such prohibited comment has been made, upon the failure of the accused to testify, the same is a substantial wrong to the prisoner and entitles him to a new trial. (15)

The person "charged with an offence" is one actually on trial; and when two persons are jointly indicted but tried separately, the one not on trial is a competent witness, irrespective of this Act; and the provision contained in paragraph 5 of the above section does not prevent the judge from commenting on the failure to call him. (16) R. v. Blais, 11 Ont. L. R., 345.

An accused person examined as a witness on his own behalf, may be cross-examined as to whether he has been previously convicted of an indictable offence, whether or not the charge upon which he is being tried sets out the fact of a previous conviction, and although no evidence of good character had been adduced for the defence. The question is relevant to the issue as affecting the credibility of the accused as a witness. (17)

It has been held in England since the coming into force there of the Imperial Criminal Evidence Act 1898, that where one of two persons jointly charged gives evidence on his own behalf the other accused is entitled to cross-examine him. (18)

Sec. 5. Sec. 5. Criminating Answers. No witness shall be excused from answering any question upon the ground that the answer to such question may tend to criminate him, or may tend to establish his liability to a civil proceeding at the instance of the Crown or of any person.

2. If with respect to any question a witness objects to answer upon the ground that his answer may tend to criminate him, or may tend to establish his liability to a civil proceeding at the instance of the Crown or of any person, and if, but for this Act, or the Act of any provincial legislature, the witness would therefore have been excused from answering such question, then, although the witness is by reason of this Act, or by reason of such provincial Act, compelled to answer, the answer so given shall not be used or receivable in evidence against him in any criminal trial, or other criminal proceeding against him thereafter taking place, other than a prosecution for perjury in the giving of such evidence. Meaning unchanged.

This section applies to the evidence of a party as well as to the evidence of an independant witness. (19)

The deposition of a judgment debter upon his examination as to means may be proved in evidence against him upon a criminal charge of disposing of property in fraud of creditors unless, at the time of the examination, he objected to answer on the ground that his answer might tend to criminate him. 2nd Edit.	Revised Statutes 1906	Remarks

Sec. 6. Sec. 6. Evidence of Mute. Unchanged.

Sec. 7. Expert witnesses. Where, in any trial or other proceeding, criminal or civil, it is intended by the prosecution or the defence, or by any party, to examine as witnesses professional or other experts entitled according to the law or practice to give opinion evidence, not more than five of such witnesses may be called upon either side without the leave of the court or judge or person presiding.

2. Such leave shall be applied for before the examination of any of the experts who may be examined without such leave. Added.

Sec. 8. Comparison of disputed writing with genuine. Comparison of a disputed writing with any writing proved to the satisfaction of the court to be genuine shall be permitted to be made by witnesses; and such writings, and the evidence of witnesses respecting the same, may be submitted to the court and jury as evidence of the genuineness or otherwise of the writing in dispute. (21)

Sec. 9. Contradicting a party's own witness when adverse. A party producing a witness shall not be allowed to impeach his credit by general evidence of bad character, but if the witness, in the opinion of the court, proves adverse, such party may contradict him by other evidence, or, by leave of the court, may prove that the witness made at other times a statement inconsistent with his present testimony; but before such last mentioned proof can be given the circumstances of the supposed statement, sufficient to designate the particular occasion, shall be mentioned to the witness, and he shall be asked whether or not he did make such statement. (22).

Sec. 10. Cross-examination as to former written statements by witness. Upon any trial a witness may be cross-examined as to previous statements made by him in writing, or reduced to writing, relative to the subject-matter of the case, without such writing being shown to him; Provided that if it is intended to contradict the witness by the writing, his attention must, before such contradictory proof can be given, be called to those parts of the writing which are to be used for the purpose of so contradicting him; and that the judge, at any time during the trial, may require the production of the writing for his inspection, and thereupon make such use of it for the purposes of the trial as he thinks fit.

2. A deposition of the witness, purporting to have been taken before a justice on the investigation of a criminal charge and to be signed by the witness and the justice, returned to and produced from the custody of the proper officer, shall be presumed primâ facie to have been signed by the witness. (23)

Sec. 11. Cross-examination as to previous oral statements.—If a witness, upon cross-examination as to a former statement made by him relative to the subject-matter of the case and inconsistent with his present testimony, does not distinctly admit that he did make such statement, proof may be given that he did in fact make it; but before such proof can be given the circumstances of the supposed statement, sufficient to designate the particular occasion, shall be mentioned to the witness and he shall be asked whether or not he did make such statement. (24)

The party on whose behalf a witness is called, is not debarred from proving, by other witnesses, any relevant facts inconsistent with or contradictory of such witness' testimony, and, in such a case, a ruling that the witness is hostile to the party calling him is not necessary. (25)

The witness' deposition at the preliminary enquiry may be shewn to him, on his examination in chief at the trial,—for the purpose of refreshing his memory, but neither the examining counsel nor the witness may read the deposition aloud; and, on the witness having silently read his deposition taken at the preliminary enquiry, the question,—put to the witness before shewing him his previous deposition and to which he had given an unexpected answer,—may be re-put to him; and only in case of the witness, after so refreshing his memory, persisting in the same unexpected answer, can the question be put to him in a leading form from the deposition. The opposite party is entitled, then, to cross-examine, not only upon the witness' examination in chief at the trial, but also upon the previous deposition shown to the witness for the purpose of refreshing his memory. (26)

Where, on the cross-examination of a witness, inadmissable matters are introduced whether volunteered by the witness or given in answer to questions put by the cross-examining counsel, the opposite party will be entitled to re-examine thereon, unless the cross-examining party applies to have the inadmissable evidence struck out. (27).

Sec. 12. Questioning of witness as to whether he has been convicted of any offence.—A witness may be questioned as to whether he has been convicted of any offence, and upon being so questioned, if he either denies the fact or refuses to answer, the opposite party may prove such conviction.

2. The conviction may be proved by producing,—

(a) a certificate containing the substance and effect only, omitting the formal part, of the indictment and conviction, if it is for an indictable offence, or a copy of the summary conviction, if for an offence punishable upon summary conviction, purporting to be signed by the clerk of the court or other officer having the custody of the records of the court in which the conviction, if upon indictment, was had, or to which the conviction, if summary, was returned; and,

(b) proof of identity. (28)

The prosecution is not entitled to give evidence of the prisoner's bad character, unless or until the prisoner adduces evidence to prove his good character, either by examining his own witnesses on that point or by questioning the Crown witnesses thereon as a part of their cross-examination; and a new trial will be ordered where such evidence is wrongly admitted against the prisoner, although no objection was raised to it by the prisoner's counsel. (29)

Evidence to character can only be as to general reputation. Evidence of particular facts must be put out of consideration altogether; and rebutting evidence to meet evidence of good character brought forward by the accused must be of the same kind and kept within the same limits. (30)

Although the prosecution may not, — for the purpose of impeaching the character of its own witness, — adduce general evidence apart from facts relevant to the issue, evidence as to any fact, which is in issue upon the indictment, may be given although the effect of such evidence may be to contradict the testimony of a witness called by the same party, and may therefore tend to discredit such witness. (31)

Where the question of motive is an important element in the case, and the motive charged depends on the alleged improper relations of the accused with a certain female, evidence is admissible to prove such relations, although it tends to shew that he is of bad character, and notwithstanding the general rule which prevents the prosecution from adducing evidence of the general bad character of the accused as a circumstance in proof of the charge. (32)

Where evidence is adduced on behalf of the accused as to his general good character, the witnesses may be cross-examined by the prosecution as to the grounds of their belief, and as to the particular facts on the question of character of which they have knowledge (33)

Upon a charge of obtaining goods by false pretences evidence of other similar acts committed by the accused is not admissible in corroboration of the fact that he committed the act charged, but, upon due proof of the act charged, such evidence may be given in proof of criminal intent or of guilty knowledge. (34)

Evidence of other similar criminal acts may be relevant in a charge of theft, if such evidence bears upon the question whether the taking was designed or accidental. Where such evidence is relevant to the issue it is not necessary, to render it admissible, that it should establish conclusively that the accused had been

Sec. 44. Upon any examination of parties or witnesses, under the authority of any order made in pursuance of this Part, the oath shall be administered by the person authorized to take the examination, or, if more than one, then by one of such persons. Added.

Sec. 45. Any person examined under any order made under this Part shall have the like right to refuse to answer questions tending to criminate himself, or other questions, as a party or witness, as the case may be, would have in any cause pending in the court by which, or by a judge whereof, such order is made.

2. No person shall be compelled to produce, under any such order, any writing or other document that he could not be compelled to produce at a trial of such a cause. Added.

Sec. 46. Court may make rules for carrying this Part into effect.—The court may frame rules and orders in relation to procedure, to the evidence to be produced in support of the application for an order for examination of parties and witnesses under this Part, and generally for carrying this Part into effect.

2. In the absence of any order in relation to such evidence, letters rogatory from any court of justice in any other of the dominions of His Majesty, or from any foreign tribunal, in which such civil, commercial or criminal matter is pending, shall be deemed and taken to be sufficient evidence in support of such application. Added.

APPENDIX

THE ALIEN LABOR ACT. (1)

(R. S., 1906, c. 97).

Sec. 1. Short Title.—This Act may be cited as the Alien Labor Act. Added.

Sec. 1. Sec. 2. Importation of foreign labor prohibited.—It shall be unlawful for any person company, partnership or corporation, in any manner to prepay the transportation, or in any way to assist, encourage or solicit the importation, or immigration of any alien or foreigner into Canada, under contract or agreement, parole or special, express or implied, made previous to the importation or immigration of such alien or foreigner, to perform labour or service of any kind in Canada. Meaning unchanged.

Sec. 3. Sec. 3. Penalty for infringement of prohibition.—For every violation of the last preceding section, the person, partnership, company or corporation violating it by knowingly assisting, encouraging or soliciting the immigration or importation of any alien or foreigner into Canada to perform labour or service of any kind under contract or agreement, express or implied, parole or special, with such alien or foreigner, previous to his becoming a resident in or a citizen of Canada, shall forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, nor less than fifty dollars.

Slightly altered. (2)

As the offence is that of knowingly assisting, etc., the immigration or importation of any alien or foreigner into Canada to perform labor, etc., a conviction which does not recite that the alleged offence was done knowingly, is bad, as not disclosing an offence known to the law. (3)

Sec. 3. Sec. 4. Recovery of penalty by civil action.

Unchanged. (2)

(1) See pages 1063-5 of the Author's second edition of the Criminal Code for the old Act.

(2) These four new sections, 3, 4, 5 and 6, are taken from section 3 of the old Alien Labor Act.

Sec. 3. Sec. 5. Recovery of penalty upon summary conviction.—Such sum may also, with the written consent, to be obtained ex parte, of the Attorney General of the province in which the prosecution is had, or of a judge of a superior or county court, be recovered upon summary conviction before any judge of a county court (being a justice of the peace), or any judge of the sessions of the peace, recorder, police magistrate, or stipendiary magistrate, or any functionary, tribunal, or person invested, by the proper legislative authority, with power to do alone such acts as are usually required to be done by two or more justices of the peace, and when recovered shall be paid to the Minister of Finance. Unchanged. (3a)

The purpose of requiring the consent of a judge to a summary prosecution under this Act is to prevent frivolous complaints, and the consent must therefore contain a general statement of the offence alleged, the name of the person in respect of whom the offence is alleged to have been committed and the time and place with sufficient certainty to identify the particular offence intended to be charged. A consent signed by a judge and which is in general terms, specifying merely the person accused but not otherwise identifying the offence charged under the Act is not sufficient to confer jurisdiction upon a magistrate and a summary conviction founded upon such general consent must be quashed. (4)

Sec. 3. Sec. 6. Separate proceedings for each alien. Unchanged. (3a)

Sec. 2. Sec. 7. Certain contracts, with aliens for services, void. Unchanged.

Sec. 4. Sec. 8. Punishment of master of vessel knowingly bringing such aliens as aforesaid to Canada. Unchanged Sec. 5. Sec. 9. Exceptions or exemptions. Meaning unchanged.

Sec. 6. Sec. 10. Return, — to the country whence he came, — of an immigrant landed in contravention of the Act. Meaning unchanged.

It was held that the expression, "returned to the country whence he came," intends the actual depositing, on foreign soil, of the alien who is in custody for deportation, and that the extra-territorial constraint thereby assumed is beyond the power of the Dominion Parliament to authorize, that the language necessitates not simply the prisoners' conveyance to the boundary, but their arrival on foreign soil, and that the custody of the prisoners from then until their release was consequently invalid, and their discharge was ordered. (5)

But this holding has been recently reversed by the Privy Council, which decided that the Crown undoubtedly possesses the power to expel an alien from Canada or to deport him to the country whence he came, that the Alien Labor Act, assented to by the Crown, delegated to the Dominion Government that power and that the fact that extra-territorial constraint must be exercised in effecting the expulsion does not invalidate the warrant authorizing the same. (6)

Sec. 7. Sec. 11. Share of penalty may be paid to informer by the Minister of Finance. (7)

Sec. 8. Sec. 12. Advertising for foreign labor deemed a violation of the Act.—It shall be deemed a violation of this Act for any person, partnership, company or corporation to assist or encourage the importation or immigration of any person who resides in or is a citizen of any foreign country to which this Act applies, by promise of employment through advertisements printed or published in such foreign country. Slightly changed, as here set forth.

2. Advertisements, resulting in the coming of such aliens, deemed contracts.—Any such person coming to this country in consequence of such an advertisement shall be treated as coming under a contract as contemplated by this Act, and the penalties by this Act imposed shall be applicable in such case; Provided that this section shall not apply to skilled labor not obtainable in Canada, as hereinbefore specified.

The usual manufacturer's advertisement of "Mechanics' wanted" is only an invitation to apply for employment and not a

Where, upon a prosecution, under Alien Labor Statutes, it appears that, although the workman was born in the United States, his father was born in Canada, and no evidence is given that either the workman or his father became United States citizens by naturalization, it is to be inferred that the workman is a British subject and not an alien. Sec. 9. Sec. 14. Evidence of foreign law. Unchanged.

Sec. 15. Powers of Dominion and Provincial Governments as to immigration saved. Added.

A judge of a county court, in New Brunswick, has no jurisdiction to convict for an offence under the law against the importation and employment of aliens, when such offence is not committed within his territorial jurisdiction. (10) advertises, or announces himself, or holds himself out in any way, as carrying on that business, and who makes a practice of lending money at a higher rate than ten per centum per annum, but does not comprise registered pawn brokers as such.

Sec. 3. Not applicable to Yukon. — This Act shall not apply to the Yukon Territory.

Sec. 4. Limitation as to small loans. — This Act shall not apply to any loan or transaction in which the whole interest or discount charged or collected in connection therewith does not exceed the sum of fifty cents.

Sec. 5. Act not to increase existing rate of interest. — Nothing in this Act shall operate to increase the rate of interest that may be recovered in any case where by law the rate is fixed at less than twelve per centum per annum.

Sec. 6. Interest limited to twelve per cent. per annum. — Notwithstanding the provisions of the Interest Act, no money-lender shall stipulate for, allow or exact on any negotiable instrument, contract or agreement, concerning a loan of money, the principal of which is under five hundred dollars, a rate of interest or discount greater than twelve per centum per annum; and the said rate of interest shall be reduced to the rate of five per centum per annum from the date of judgment in any suit, action or other proceeding for the recovery of the amount due.

Sec. 7. Power of enquiry by court, and relief of debtor. — In any suit, action or other proceeding concerning a loan of money by a money-lender the principal of which was originally under five hundred dollars, wherein it is alleged that the amount of interest paid or claimed exceeds the rate of twelve per centum per annum, including the charges for discount, commission, expenses, inquiries, fines, bonus, renewals, or any other charges, but not including taxable conveyancing charges, the court may re-open the transaction and take an account between the parties, and may, notwithstanding any statement or settlement of account, or any contract purporting to close previous dealings and create a new obligation, re-open any account already taken between the parties, and relieve the person under obligation to pay from payment of any sum in excess of the said rate of interest; and if any such excess has been paid, or allowed in account, by the debtor, may order the creditor to repay it, and may set aside, either wholly or in part, or revise, or alter, any security given in respect of the transaction.

Sec. 8. Exception in case of bona fide holder of a negotiable instrument. — The bona fide holder, before maturity, of a negotiable instrument discounted by a preceding holder at a rate of interest exceeding that authorized by this Act, may nevertheless recover the amount thereof, but the party discharging such instrument may reclaim from the money-lender any amount paid thereon for interest or discount in excess of the amount allowed by this Act.

Sec. 9. Existing contracts and existing judgments. — The principal of any sum of money, originally under five hundred dollars, due and payable before the thirteenth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and six, in virtue of any negotiable instrument given to a money-lender, or of any contract or agreement entered into with such money-lender in respect of money lent by him, shall not, from and after the said date, bear a rate of interest greater than twelve per centum per annum; and from and after the said date no rate of interest greater than five per centum per annum shall be recovered upon any judgment, rendered before the said date, upon any such negotiable instrument, contract or agreement for the payment of money lent by a money-lender, and which allows a greater rate than five per centum per annum.

Sec. 10. Unmatured instruments and contracts. — In the case of any such negotiable instrument made before the thirteenth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and six, and maturing after the said date, and in the case of any such contract or agreement made before the said date and to be performed thereafter, the foregoing provisions of this Act shall apply only from the date of maturity or performance, as the case may be.

Sec. 11. Penalty. — Every money-lender is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding one year, or to a penalty not exceeding one thousand dollars, who lends money at a rate of interest greater than that authorized by this Act.

Slightly altered in the wording.

It has been held in England that where a purchaser asks only for "milk," no offence is committed by selling skimmed milk. (11) But see section 23, post, of our Act, which provides that cans in which skimmed milk is sold must bear on their exterior the word Skimmed in letters of not less than two inches in length and be served in measures similarly marked.

(11) Lane v. Collins, 54 L. J. M. C., 76.

The physical condition of the milk supplied is the test, irrespective of the intent. (12)

Sec. 15. Sec. 16. Sec. 17. — Sec. 4. Articles adulterated so as to be injurious to health. — The following articles sold, offered or exposed for sale shall be deemed to have been adulterated in a manner injurious to health:—

(a) Milk, after any valuable constituent of the article has been abstracted therefrom, or water added thereto, or when it is the product of a diseased animal, or of an animal fed upon unwholesome food;

(b) Vinegar, if any mineral acid or any soluble salt having copper or lead as its base has been added thereto, either during the process of manufacture or subsequently;

Sec. 2. Sec. " (h) — Sec. 6. Adulterated agricultural fertilizer. — Every agricultural fertilizer sold, offered or exposed for sale shall be deemed to be adulterated within the meaning of this Act,— percentages whereof are to be specified in the certificate required by the Fertilizers Act to be produced to the inspector if the agricultural fertilizer is in bulk, or, if not in bulk, required to be affixed to each barrel, box, sack or package containing any such fertilizer; or,

Sec. 2 (f) Sec. 7. Adulterated Drugs. — Every drug shall be deemed to be adulterated within the meaning of this Act if its strength, quality or purity falls below the professed standard under which it is sold, or if, when offered or exposed for sale under or by a name,—

(b) recognized in any foreign pharmacopœia, such as Le Codex Medicamentarius in France, or the Pharmacopœia of the United States, with the name of such pharmacopœia plainly labelled upon it; or,

(c) which is not recognized in any pharmacopœia, but is found in some generally recognized standard work on materia medica or chemistry;

it differs from the standard of strength, quality or purity laid down therein.

A company by a written contract agreed to buy pure new milk with all its cream each churn to bear a written warranty. To each churn was attached a label "Warranted pure milk with all its cream delivered under contract." The company also agreed verbally to buy milk and that a written warranty should be given with each consignment. To a churn delivered under this agreement was attached a label, "Warranted pure milk with all its cream." Prosecutions for selling milk not of the nature substance and quality demanded by the purchaser, having been instituted, under the English Act, notice was given, in accordance with the Act, and copies of the labels were enclosed. Held that the requirements of the Act had been complied with, and the company was discharged from the prosecutions. (15)

It is not necessary that there should be a specific written warranty with each consignment of milk delivered under a contract. A general warranty in writing that future deliveries of milk shall be "new, unadulterated, and with all its cream on," protects the retail dealer. The connection between the milk delivered under such a warranty and that which may subsequently be the subject matter of an alleged offence may be established by evidence. (16)

DAIRY PRODUCTS.

There is, — at pages 191 to 193 of the Author's second edition of the Criminal Code, — a summary of some of the provisions of the old statutes relating to dairy products, including the Sale of milk to Cheese Butter and Condensed Milk Makers, the making and sale of skim-milk cheese, the Registration of Cheese Factories and Creameries, the sale of Canadian Butter and Cheese, and the prohibition against the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine and butterine.

These and other provisions on the same subject are now consolidated in Part VIII (consisting of sections 279-318) of the Inspection and Sale Act, (R. S., 1906, c. 85).

FRUIT AND FRUIT MARKS.

The provisions of the old statutes relating to this subject are now consolidated in Part IX (consisting of sections 319-336) of the Inspection and Sale Act, (R. S., 1906, c. 85).

It is an offence against the Fruit Marks' Act, to have in possession, for sale, apples packed so that more than fifteen per cent. of the contents of the barrel is substantially inferior in grade to the faced surface, although the sale actually made was to a purchaser who inspected the bulk, and, consequently, was not defrauded, — it not being essential to the offence that there should be a fraudulent intent on the part of the accused; and the offence is complete, although the accused neither knew of the fraudulent packing nor was negligently ignorant of it. (20)

THE FERTILIZERS ACT. (21)

The provisions of the old Fertilizers Act, (53 Vic., c. 24), are now contained in the new Fertilizers Act, (R. S., 1906, c. 132).

Part I.

EXTRADITION UNDER TREATY.

Application of Part.

Sec. 3. Sec. 3. To foreign state with which there is an arrangement.

In the case of any foreign state with which there is an extradition arrangement, this Part shall apply during the continuance of such arrangement; but no provision of this Part, which is inconsistent with any of the terms of the arrangement, shall have effect to contravene the arrangement; and this Part shall be so read and construed as to provide for the execution of the arrangement. (36)

Taken (slightly altered) from par. 1 of the old sec. 3.

The procedure under this Act applies to offences made extraditable by a treaty made subsequent to the passing of the Act. (37)

JUDGES AND COMMISSIONERS.

Sec. 5. Sec. 9. What Judges and Commissioners may act under this Part. Meaning unchanged.

The part of this section which purports to empower the Federal Government to appoint Extradition Commissioners to act judicially in extradition matters, within the limits of one province, is within the legislative powers of the Dominion, and does not contravene the exclusive power conferred on provincial legislatures respecting the constitution, maintenance and organization of provincial courts. (39)

Assuming that an extradition commissioner so appointed is a "court", that court is a federal one and not an inferior tribunal under the supervision of a provincial superior court, and Article 1003 of the Quebec Code of Civil Procedure authorizing writs of prohibition is not applicable to it. (40)

A writ of prohibition will not lie to determine the title of a de facto judicial officer, the appropriate proceeding for determining the title to a public office being that of quo warranto. (41)

A judge of the Court of Kings Bench of the province of Quebec held that there was a right of appeal, from a decision of that Court, to the Supreme Court of Canada, upon the affirmance, by the former Court, in prohibition proceedings, of the validity of appointments, by the Governor General, of extradition commissioners. (42) But the Supreme Court of Canada overruled this holding, and held that an application for a writ of prohibition to restrain an extradition commissioner, from holding an enquiry upon a demand of extradition for larceny, is a proceeding arising out of a criminal charge within the meaning of the Supreme Court Act, and that no appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada from the refusal by a provincial court of such a writ, although prohibition is sought upon the ground that the extradition commissioner was not appointed by competent authority. (43)

By sec. 31 of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act (R. S. C., c. 135) "no appeal shall be allowed in any case of proceedings for or upon a writ of habeas corpus arising out of any claim for extradition made under any treaty." An application to the court to fix a day for hearing a motion to quash an appeal from an order refusing a habeas corpus in an extradition matter should be refused, the matter being coram non judice and there being no necessity for a motion to quash. (44)

The Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act (R. S. C., 1886, c. 135) has been repealed, and has been replaced by the Supreme Court Act (R. S. 1906, c. 139), — which relates to the Supreme Court of Canada, — and by the Exchequer Court Act, (R. S. 1906, c. 140), — which relates to the Exchequer Court of Canada; and the above quoted clause of section 31 of the repealed Act has been re-enacted and now forms part of section 36 of the new Supreme Court Act.

EXTRADITION FROM CANADA.

Sec. 6. Sec. 10. On what grounds a warrant to apprehend a fugitive may issue. Report to Minister of Justice. Unchanged. (45)

According to this section, there must, in a case of extradition, be a warrant to arrest, either from the authorities of the foreign state or from an extradition commissioner or judge in Canada, in order to have the alleged fugitive arrested. In other words, an arrest to answer an extradition charge cannot be legally made without a warrant.

For instance, an arrest made in Canada, upon a mere request by telegram or letter from the police officials of a foreign state, will not be legal. (46)

And, where an alleged fugitive was so arrested, a warrant subsequently issued and served upon him, while in custody, did not validate the previous arrest nor legalize his further detention thereon; but it was held that he should have been set at liberty before the issue and service upon him of the warrant afterwards issued. THE EXTRADITION ACT.—Continued.

It has also been held that a warrant of arrest in extradition proceedings must not be executed by the constable who makes the information for obtaining the warrant, and that a person so arrested is entitled to be released on habeas corpus; and, further, that the information for an extradition warrant of arrest must show that the accused is, or is suspected to be in Canada, and that the information is insufficient if made upon information and belief without disclosing the facts upon which the information and belief are based. (48)

It seems that if a commissioner acts upon a foreign warrant, the original foreign warrant must be produced; and it must be established that it is still in force. (49)

The jurisdiction of an extradition commissioner or judge extends over the whole of the province for which he is appointed, and is not limited to the judicial district for which he is a judge; and he may, therefore, order a prisoner to be brought before him from any part of the province in which such prisoner is arrested. (50)

It has been held that an extradition information, upon which a warrant of arrest is issued, may be valid although it is made on information and belief only and does not disclose the grounds of belief. (51)

Sec. 8. Sec. 12. Surrender not to depend on time when offence committed. Meaning unchanged.

Sec. 9. Sec. 13. Fugitive to be brought before Judge.

Sec. 9. Sec. 14. Evidence of charge. Unchanged.

Where a prisoner is brought before an extradition judge in pursuance of a warrant of arrest, and charged with an extradition offence, he may be remanded for the purpose of affording the prosecution an opportunity of adducing evidence. (52)

It has been held, in Ontario, that a County Judge, acting as an Extradition Judge, has no power to bail the accused pending the enquiry before him; (53) and, although in a later case in the Province of Quebec the Court intimated that an Extradition Judge or Commissioner has the power to admit to bail up to the time of commitment, it was held that, under ordinary circumstances, the accused should not be admitted to bail pending the reasonable delay required by the prosecution to bring witnesses from the foreign country to prove the charge. (54)

It seems, according to another case in the province of Quebec, that an extradition commissioner has, pending the extradition enquiry, a discretion to admit to bail. (55)

Where a prisoner whose extradition was sought was brought before a Judge of the Superior Court on a writ of habeas corpus issued before the committal of the accused, and before the conclusion of the enquiry before the commissioner, it has been held, in the province of Quebec, that the powers of the Judge are limited to determining whether the commissioner has jurisdiction to make the enquiry. (56)

But afterwards it was held, by another Judge, that the legality of the arrest and of the warrant of arrest in extradition proceedings may be enquired into upon habeas corpus, without awaiting the conclusion of the Extradition Commissioner's enquiry; also that the quashing by a judge of one writ of habeas corpus issued during the enquiry does not prevent the issue of another writ by another judge, — the matter not being res judicata, if other grounds are taken in the petition for the second writ, and if the petitioner has abandoned the first writ before the judgment quashing it; and, further, that the time of the commission of the alleged offence is an essential element in describing it, and when the warrant does not mention the date of the alleged offence, — which is one not covered by an early extradition treaty, but covered by a later treaty which is not retroactive, — the warrant is invalid as not alleging an extraditable offence and as not disclosing jurisdiction to issue the warrant. (57)

But, on an appeal to the Privy Council, the latter decision was reversed; and it was held, among other things, that,—when an accused, on being brought before an extradition judge, is remanded to give the prosecution an opportunity of adducing evidence, — a return to a writ of habeas corpus, issued pending such remand, is good, if it discloses an information duly laid before an extradition judge having jurisdiction over the subject matter of the enquiry, the appearance of the accused before such judge, and the latter's warrant of remand; and, further, that the omission to shew, in the warrant of remand, that the alleged offence was subsequent to an

Sec. 9. Sec. 15. Evidence may be received to shew that crime is a political one. Meaning unchanged.

Sec. 10. Sec. 16. Depositions, etc., taken out of Canada. Unchanged.

Ex parte affidavits taken in the foreign State and duly authenticated are admissible in evidence upon an extradition proceeding; and such ex parte affidavits may be sworn and authenticated either before or after the laying of the extradition information. (58*a*)

Sec. 10. Sec. 17. When to be deemed authenticated. — Such papers shall be deemed duly authenticated if authenticated in manner provided, for the time being, by law, or if, —

(a) the warrant purports to be signed by, or the certificate purports to be certified by, or the depositions or statements, or the copies thereof, purport to be certified to be the originals or true copies, by a judge, magistrate or officer of the foreign state; and,

(b) if the papers are authenticated by the oath or affirmation of some witness, or by being sealed with the official seal of the Minister of Justice, or some other minister of the foreign state, or of a colony, dependency or constituent part of the foreign state; of which seal the judge shall take judicial notice without proof. (59)

Depositions taken in the foreign state, which are certified to have been sworn to at a date subsequent to that of the foreign warrant of arrest are irregular, and extradition will not be granted on such evidence. (60)

The indictment of the accused in the foreign country is hearsay evidence only, and is not admissible as evidence in the enquiry before the commissioner. (61)

States of the United States of America is an "officer of the foreign State" for the purpose of certifying the information laid in that Court for an extraditable offence; and a copy of the information so certified under the seal of his Court is duly authenticated, if certified by the Governor of the State and the "Secretary of State" of that State under the State seal and accompanied by the certificate of the Secretary of State of the United States under his official seal certifying such State seal and by the certificate of the British Embassy verifying the latter certificate. (62)

The State Attorney for the county in which the charge was laid is an "officer of the foreign State" for the purpose of authenticating an original deposition of a witness taken in that county to be used as evidence in obtaining the extradition; and such authentication may be made by the deposition of such State attorney duly certified by the State and Federal authorities. (63)

The Governor of a State in the United States is not a "Minister of the foreign State," within the meaning of subsec. (b) of the above section 17. (63*a*)

Various cognate offences arising from the same transaction may be included in one commitment for extradition. And a committal for extradition may properly include a new charge for which a supplementary information was laid pending the extradition enquiry, if the additional charge relates to the same transaction and a prima facie case in respect thereof is made out upon the evidence. (64)

A commitment for extradition on a charge of forging admission tickets is improperly made when no genuine or forged ticket is in evidence on the extradition enquiry, and no facts are shewn to legally excuse the non-production. (65)

Proof of an indictment, verdict and sentence for conspiracy to defraud will not alone support a commitment in extradition for the fraud itself. (66)

Sec. 11. Sec. 18. What evidence sufficient for committal.

(b) in the case of a fugitive accused of an extradition crime, if such evidence is produced as would, according to the law of Canada, subject to the provisions of this Part, justify his committal for trial, if the crime had been committed in Canada;

the judge shall issue his warrant for the committal of the fugitive to the nearest convenient prison, there to remain until surrendered to the foreign state, or discharged according to law.

2. If such evidence is not produced, the judge shall order him to be discharged.

Slightly altered, as here set forth.

Before ordering the extradition from Canada of a fugitive, an extradition commissioner must be satisfied that the offence charged is a crime against the law of the country demanding the extradition, as well as that it would, if committed in Canada, be an offence against Canadian law, and that it is within the treaty with the foreign country. (67)

In extradition proceedings for an assault with intent to commit murder, the prosecution must prove such intent as well as the assault, and a committal for extradition is only authorized where the evidence,—had the crime been committed in Canada,—would have justified a "committal for trial" for the extradition crime charged and not merely for a less serious offence included therein. (68)

A warrant of arrest issued by an extradition commissioner may properly describe the offence by the phraseology of the country in which it issues. (69)

It is not essential to an extraditable offence that it should be described in identically the same terms in both the demanding and the surrendering country, but there must be the essential elements of a like extradition crime in each country. (70)

The question of probability of conviction is not one for the consideration of an extradition commissioner, if he finds sufficient evidence of guilt to justify a committal. (71)

form is not objectionable for a failure to shew on its face that the statutory pre-requisites of the commissioner's jurisdiction have been complied with. (72)

A warrant of commitment for extradition is valid as to form if it follows the forms prescribed by the Extradition Act, without reciting specifically that the commissioner finds upon the evidence a prima facie case. (73)

Foreign law is to be proved in extradition matters by the evidence of experts, and is to be dealt with as a matter of fact. (74)

Sec. 12. Sec. 19. Judge's information to fugitive on committal. Habeas corpus. Transmission of evidence to Minister of Justice. Unchanged.

Upon habeas corpus proceedings following a commitment under an extradition warrant, the Court is not justified in referring to the depositions returned, and inferring therefrom facts material to the proof of the offence, if the warrant of commitment is in itself defective in that it does not recite a finding of such facts. (75)

The Court may revise the commissioner's decision on the question of whether or not there was legal and competent evidence tending to prove the commission of the crime, but it will not review the commissioner's decision as to the sufficiency of the evidence to justify the committal. (76)

Under ordinary circumstances bail should not be granted to a person committed for extradition. Where bail was granted to the accused in extradition proceedings pending a habeas corpus application on his behalf, and afterwards the application for his discharge under habeas corpus was refused, the accused must surrender himself into close custody before a fresh application will be entertained to bail him pending an appeal from the order refusing his discharge. (77)

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus may be refused if the Court is satisfied that the writ would, if issued, be quashed upon the petitioner's own shewing. (78)

EXTRADITION BETWEEN CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES.

The Ashburton Treaty (of 1842) between Great Britain and the United States, and the subsequent supplementary conventions of 12th July, 1889, of 13th December 1900 and of 21st December 1906, make provision for the extradition, between Canada, (as a part of British Territory), and the United States, of fugitive criminals accused or convicted of any of the following crimes:—

Murder.

Piracy.

Arson.

Robbery.

Forgery; Uttering of Forgeries.

Manslaughter when voluntary.

Counterfeiting; Uttering Counterfeit Money.

Embezzlement; Larceny; Receiving any money, valuable security or other property knowing the same to have been embezzled, stolen or fraudulently obtained.

ber or officer of any company, made criminal by the laws of both countries.

OBTAINING money, valuable securities or other property BY FALSE PRETENCES.

PERJURY; SUBORNATION OF PERJURY.

PROCURING ABORTION.

RAPE; ABDUCTION; CHILD STEALING; KIDNAPPING.

BRIBERY, defined to be the offering, giving or receiving of bribes made criminal by the laws of both countries.

OFFENCES, — if made criminal by the laws of both countries, — AGAINST BANKRUPTCY LAW.

BURGLARY; HOUSE-BREAKING; SHOP-BREAKING.

PIRACY by the law of nations.

REVOLT or CONSPIRACY TO REVOLT by two or more persons on board a ship on the high seas against the authority of the master; WRONGFULLY SINKING OR DESTROYING A VESSEL AT SEA; or ATTEMPTING to do so; ASSAULTS ON BOARD A SHIP on the high seas WITH INTENT to do grievous bodily harm.

CRIMES AND OFFENCES against the laws of both countries for the suppression of SLAVERY AND SLAVE TRADING.

WILFUL and UNLAWFUL DESTRUCTION or OBSTRUCTION of railroads, which endangers human life.

PARTICIPATION in any of these crimes, provided such participation be punishable by the laws of both countries.

Extradition lies from Canada to the State of New York for an offence named in the extradition treaties between Great Britain and the United States, although such offence is not against a federal law of the United States, if, by the laws both of Canada and of the demanding State, the offence charged is criminal and within the list of crimes specified in the treaties. (90)

Conspiracy to defraud is in itself not an extraditable offence between Canada and the United States, but extradition will lie as for a separate crime in respect of any overt act (of a conspiracy) which constitutes one of the crimes mentioned in the extradition arrangement. The extraditable offence of larceny, or participation in larceny is sufficiently charged in an information laid on instituting extradition proceedings therefor, if, — following a charge of conspiracy to defraud between the accused and another person, and of an embezzlement and theft by such other person in pursuance of such conspiracy, — the information alleges that the accused "did participate in the said offence of embezzlement and theft." (91) U. S. v. Gaynor; Re Gaynor & Greene, (No. 3), 9 Can. Cr. Cas., 205.

Where extradition is sought upon a charge of participation in a theft alleged to have been committed of property of the government of the demanding country, and the demanding country produces, in support of the charge, an indictment found in such country upon a charge of conspiracy wherein the acts of theft are alleged as overt acts of the conspiracy, the demanding State is not thereby estopped from treating such overt acts as independent acts of theft for the purposes of extradition. (92)

A charge of "grand larceny" is within the extradition arrangement with the United States, it being a species of "larceny." (93)

It has been held that merchandise is not "other property" within the meaning of the phrase "receiving any money, valuable security or other property knowing the same to have been embezzled, stolen or fraudulently obtained," contained in the Extradition Convention with the United States, that these words "other property" refer only to property ejusdem generis with "money" and "valuable security," and that extradition does not lie for the offence of receiving an article of merchandise knowing it to have been stolen. (94)

A customs officer of the United States is an "agent" of the government of that country, within the meaning of the phrase "fraud by a bailee, banker, agent," etc., contained in the Extradition Convention with the United States, and he may be extradited from Canada for "fraud by an agent made criminal by the laws of both countries," in respect of the fraudulent appraisal of goods for customs duty; and proof of a United States statute imposing a fine or imprisonment as alternative punishments for frauds by customs officers is evidence of the criminality of such frauds, although the statute does not expressly declare the same to be crimes. (95)

Upon a demand of extradition for perjury it is not necessary to prove that the oath was administered with the formalities essential under Canadian law. It is sufficient if, in the foreign State, there were such observances as, in substance, constitute the administration of an oath, and such as are there recognized as the taking of a valid oath. (96)

In the absence of evidence to the contrary, the crime of "child stealing" mentioned in the convention with the United States should be assumed to be identical with the offence so designated by Canadian law; but the accused may shew that the crime of

"child stealing" under the foreign law is not covered by the facts disclosed by the depositions; and where such is shewn the accused should be discharged. (97)

The child's own father may be guilty of child stealing, if, after a divorce by a Court of competent jurisdiction and the award, thereon, of the custody of the child to the mother, the father wilfully removes the child from her custody; and an objection, by the husband, to the validity of the divorce, on the ground of collusion, cannot, where the collusion is denied on oath, be adjudicated upon by the extradition commissioner, but extradition should be ordered notwithstanding such objection, and the accused left to his right to contest the divorce decree at his trial by the foreign Court. (98)

Where a divorce decree of a Court of competent jurisdiction, in the United States, has awarded the custody of a child to the father against the mother, and the mother subsequently removes and conceals the child, to evade the decree, a prima facie case for extradition is thereby made out against the mother upon a charge of child stealing; and it seems that the offence of child stealing may be complete against the child's mother, although the father to whom the child's custody has been awarded has never had any actual separate possession of the child.
