STEAMER STRUCK BERG DURING DENSE FOG

Chilton Ranger's Bow Plates Badly Dented by Collision With Towing Mass of Ice—Had Engines Been Reversed Liner Would Have Sunk, Says Captain Rea.

MONTREAL, May 11.—(Can. Press.)—Collision with an iceberg in a dense fog was the experience of the Chilton Ranger of the Furness Line, while on her voyage from Hull to Montreal.

Captain Rea, on his arrival here, said: "We were in latitude 46.39 N., longitude 44.40 W., and were going dead slow because of the dense fog which prevented us from seeing more than a few feet ahead."

What I was most afraid of was that an underlyin spur of the iceberg might rip the ship open as was the case when the Titanic struck.

ROOSEVELT, KING OF ALBANIA? JOB IS HIS IF HE'LL ACCEPT

Ismail Kemal, Who Is Filling in Until First-Class Man Is Secured For Vacancy, Says the Colonel's Application Would Be Considered Favorably — Albania Wants a Hustling, Enterprising Ruler.

Special Cable to The World. LONDON, May 11.—(Copyright.) The Toronto World is in a position to offer Theodore Roosevelt, late president of the United States, the throne of Albania. Negotiations have already been carried to the point that the colonel has only to signify his willingness to accept and the crown is his.

The world's audience with Kemal took place in the Hotel Cecil, where he is stopping, accompanied by co-delegates Louis Guracucchi, minister of education, and Nogga, Kunitza and Delejusi. They greeted The World correspondent with marked cordiality and courtesy.

They all showed the greatest interest in and were evidently agreeably surprised by the suggestion as to Roosevelt. Kemal said with a pleased smile: "This is truly an interesting idea, but why should Roosevelt care about becoming ruler of Albania when he is already almost king in his own country?"

of character and would stand no nonsense from abroad, being like the Albanians themselves, a born fighter. To this Kemal replied: "That is true. Roosevelt is a great courageous and upright man; he possesses exactly the character suitable for our king."

Then the correspondent named monarchs sprung from the people who had won him the Albanian crown. He shrugged his shoulders, as if to say that he was unable to controvert the incontrovertible. He added: "I agree that Roosevelt is an extraordinary situation, and that he is the man my country needs at this moment, whom we require a strong man. Roosevelt has only to approach me. I don't propose him, but if he will propose himself, that is a different matter. You have suggested his name to me and my answer is 'Why not?'"

Then momentary doubt seemed to seize Ismail Kemal, who asked: "I know Roosevelt is suited by character, training and ability, and that he could adapt himself to any circumstances, altho history has shown that imported princes have seldom been able to do this satisfactorily, but would he have sufficient money? I have never heard that he is one of the American millionaires. He would need thousands and thousands of dollars to maintain a court even in Albania. This is a point which, unfortunately, we must consider in choosing a king."

Costa Rican Husband Will Brave Dad's Wrath All by Himself.

BRIDE, FORMERLY MAXINE SEAGRAVE, IS PROMISED A BLISSFUL REUNION.

Special Cable to The World. NEW YORK, May 10.—Half an hour before sailing of the steamer Carrillo for Central American and West Indian ports, a handsome couple went aboard. That they were bride and groom was evident. The man was Teodoro Gonzalez. The bride was formerly Miss Maxine Seagrave of Crawford street, Toronto, Ontario.

He told the girl his father had a great plantation outside of San Jose, Costa Rica, and that he was on his way here to spend two weeks purchasing machinery for his father, but he cast business to the winds and followed Miss Seagrave to her home in Toronto. His suit progressed and finally Cupid triumphed and they were secretly married.

Some days ago he broke the news of his marriage to his father. He called him he had married the sweetest girl in the world, and that he would sail with her on the Carrillo. But a few moments before the vessel sailed, a steward handed Gonzalez a cablegram. "A message from my father," said Gonzalez. He tore open the envelope, hurriedly read the message, and then cried: "My God!"

Special Cable to The World. BERLIN, May 10.—"Royal Highness Duchess of Saxony" is the title that will be first borne by Princess Augustine Victoria of the Hohenzollern as the bride of ex-King Manuel of Portugal. She hopes eventually to be the recognized queen of Portugal.

They first met about a year ago in Munich, when Manuel was paying a visit to his kinswoman, the widow of Duke Charles Theodore of Batavia, who was Infanta Maria Joseph of Portugal. They were betrothed in the latter part of last month with the consent of Emperor William. The marriage probably will take place soon.

MANUEL'S BRIDE GETS NEW TITLE

She Will Be Known as the Duchess of Saxony.

WAITING TO BE QUEEN

Hopes Some Day to Occupy the Throne of Portugal.

Manuel was born on Nov. 15, 1859, the day his father's great-uncle, Dom Pedro II, was deposed from the throne of Brazil. He succeeded his father and elder brother on the throne of Portugal after their assassination in Lisbon, Feb. 1, 1908. The revolution in October, 1910, put an end to the monarchy, and Manuel escaped to Gibraltar. From there he went to England, and for some time was the guest of his mother's elder brother, Duke d'Orleans, at Wood Norton. He subsequently took the lease of Kald Sir Harry McLean's house, "Abercorn," Richmond, where he has since resided with his mother, Queen Amelie.

The bride-elect, the only daughter of Prince William, the head of the non-reigning line of Hohenzollern, was born in Potsdam Aug. 13, 1890, and is nine months younger than her fiancé. Manuel is second cousin to his future bride thru her paternal grandmother, Princess Antonia, who was a daughter of Queen Maria da Gloria of Portugal, and so the aunt of King Carlos, Manuel's father.

ULSTER THREATS JUST MERE BLUFF

Only Opposition to Home Rule Is Based on Groundless Fears.

Special Cable to The World. LONDON, May 11.—The home rule bill will again be passed through the house of commons by the middle of July, and present appearances indicate that the house of lords will again summarily reject it.

There is an influential movement in Ireland among the Unionists outside of Ulster to accept home rule, now that it is inevitable, and to work the new system for the general benefit of the country. Sir Edward Carson and his followers repudiate all sympathy with this or any compromise, and he is now in Ulster working up a campaign for armed resistance to the Irish Parliament should it come into being.

The only real hope of the Orangemen is that they may be able to induce the soldiers to join them. That idea is scouted by the military authorities. King George is strongly incensed at the threats of rebellion and the hopes of getting his soldiers to mutiny, and he has frankly expressed to Lord Londonderry, another aristocratic leader of Orangemen, his disgust at the savage treatment accorded Catholic workers in the Belfast shippards by the Orange majority.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. A peculiar pallor or even ghastliness of the skin is the marked symptom of anaemia. The eyelids, gums and lips appear to be almost bloodless. The cause of this condition is the absence of red corpuscles from the blood. The anaemic patient is usually thin and weak, but may be fleshy and inclined to drowsy. Stomach troubles and weakness of the bodily organs are accompaniments.

The line extension of the Algona Central Railway has diverted the bulk of traffic to Little Current, and from there away in that place. He leaves tonight to personally supervise the survey and preliminary work in connection with the colonization road.

BIG YEAR AHEAD OF C. N. RAILWAY

Sir William Has Secured the Cash and Construction Proceeds Apace.

TORONTO AND OTTAWA LINE PRACTICALLY READY FOR OPERATION—C. N. R. CONNECTION WITH EDMONTON.

A construction program for Ontario will be carried out this summer which will be on a scale bigger than that ever attempted by a railway in this section before, was outlined to the Ontario on Saturday by the chief office of the Canadian Northern Railway, who also outlined what remained to be done in completing the Canadian Northern transcontinental line.

The program to be carried out by this railway this season is so extensive that had not Sir William Mackenzie, the president, secured the necessary financial backing on his trip to England, from which he has just returned, the undertakings would have been materially reduced. The money necessary to see the plans through has been secured, however, and this season will in all probability be the greatest construction year in the C. N. R. history.

With the Toronto-Ottawa and Montreal-Ottawa connections practically ready for operation, the Canadian Northern communication between Toronto and the Atlantic coast can be spoken of as ready for service. This will be by a route from Toronto via Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec, and St. John, over which road the C. N. is securing running rights.

Announcement is made that day by day of the work of the Toronto-Hamilton line. The rails are to run parallel to the Electrical Development transmission line of the Ontario Power Commission, and the towers from their old position to the one they now occupy in order to make the right of way for the railway line as narrow as possible. In addition to the Toronto-Hamilton line well under construction, a start will be made on the Hamilton-St. Catharines and Niagara Falls connection. The latter is the large passenger station to be erected at Hamilton, a fine station building, costing several hundred thousand dollars, is to be built at St. Catharines.

Required to carry on the work for the coming year, $10,000. Amount received to date, $7,375. Balance to be raised, $2,625. This fund is being secured by the city newspapers without any organized canvassing. Acknowledgments will be sent to St. Catharines. The fund has been secured. Address all contributions and promises to Thomas Bradshaw, treasurer T.B.D., 123 Shuter street, Toronto.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY. You will travel and make changes, and the things you accomplish will seem to require a great effort. Your efforts will benefit you unless you carry them to a point where your health is injured.

Those born today will be over-sensitive. To overcome this they should be taught when young that believing things have feelings similar to their own. Success will come to them as a result of their own energy and perseverance.

What Children Should Eat

I have already given you ideas for introducing solid or semi-solid food into baby's diet. And also one complete schedule for meals during the second year.

Today I give you a second schedule which may suit you and baby better. It is started at the fourteenth month. Previous to this the baby has had five bottle meals and one meal of a cereal, swieback and milk from a cup. The arrangement of meals for a day is as follows: 7 a.m. cereal, milk, toast; 11 a.m., eight ounces of whole milk from bottle or cup; 2 p.m., baked potato with a little milk on it, a cup of milk, bread; 6 p.m., eight ounces of whole milk; 10 p.m., eight ounces of whole milk.

At fifteen months a meal made up of one vegetable, mashed fine, besides the baked potato may be given. And an egg may be given on alternate days. The schedule may be changed to: 7 or 8 a.m., cereal, bread, milk; 12 or 1 p.m., egg, potato, vegetable, bread, dessert; 5 or 6 p.m., milk, bread; 10 p.m., eight ounces of whole milk.

At eighteen months, meat is added to this dietary. And since the meat supplies more concentrated nourishment, the 10 o'clock meal is omitted. 7 or 8 a.m., breakfast—Cereal, bread, egg or toast. 12 or 1 p.m., dinner—Meat, potato, one vegetable, dessert. 5 or 6 p.m., supper—Bread, milk or broth, fruit.

Doctor Bennett claims that this last diet should be given to children until they reach adult life. When the child starts school, however, it is not always possible to give the hearty meal at noon and a light supper—which is by far the best arrangement, if it can possibly be carried out. When the hearty meal must be given at night, the child should not go to bed for two hours. Meat should never be given more than once a day. Milk, custards, junket and other desserts made with milk and eggs will help to make the luncheon a nourishing one, so that the active child shall not go from early morning until a late dinner without sufficient nourishment.

CRUDS WERE FOUND IN THEATRE. Crude Bomb Discovered While Fuse Was Spattering—Girl Arrested.

DUBLIN, May 10.—(Can. Press).—A tin canister containing 42 gunpowder cartridges, was found tonight in the lavatory of the Empire Palace Theatre. The cartridges were padded all round with cotton saturated with oil. A cotton card, also oil soaked, was attached to the canister, and the cord was burning when the bomb was found.

A girl, formerly employed at the theatre, was arrested. Nothing is known, however, that would connect her with the suffrage movement. Later in the evening, an alarm clock to which a small box was attached, was found in the telephone booth of the postoffice on College Green. An examination failed to disclose any explosives.

Mr. Rudolf's Recital

Vernon Rudolf, a pupil of W. O. Forsyth, gave a piano recital in the Margaret Eaton Hall, on Saturday evening, before an audience which filled the building. His clear, firm touch, sympathetic and of adequate power when required, provided the agency of a most interesting program of a varied nature, including Beethoven, Grieg, Moszkowski, Bach, Mendelssohn, Kullak, Arensky, Cross, Godard, Chopin and Liszt.

He displayed facility and delicacy in his rendering of Grieg's "Dwarg Dance" and Clarence Lucas's "Moon of Omar" and was beautifully played. The Bach fugue was given with excellent equality of touch and he showed charm and brilliance in the Arensky and Cross numbers.

Miss Anna Ponting assisted with several solos. She has a sweet, clear and sympathetic mezzo of great charm, which was quite marred by a tremolo too persistent not to be intentional. This fault is the greatest in a voice otherwise possessing beautiful qualities.

Mr. Rudolf is one of the most promising of the young players of the season.

"YOUNGEST OLD MAN" C. Luther Wells, Septuagenarian, Lectures Tonight.

Mr. C. Luther Wells, who is to lecture in the Westminster Church tonight, claims to be the youngest old man in America, and is certainly a fine example of the system he is bringing before the people of our city. Mr. Wells was superintendent of schools in the State of Ohio, fifty years ago, and says he is a better man for the position now, than he was half a century ago.

Sixty clergymen of the city have been under his instruction, and have only words of praise for his methods. The lecture will be tonight at eight o'clock, for the men and women. If you want to know how to keep well and enjoy life, hear him. Seats free.

MOTHERS' DAY Special Services Held and Carnations Worn Yesterday.

Mothers' Day, celebrated annually throughout Canada and the United States, was observed in several of the Toronto churches yesterday. The event is conducted in the United States by an advisory board, of which President Wilson, Ex-President Taft and Roosevelt are honorary members. Forty state governors are vice-presidents. The wearing of a white carnation, and writing a letter home by those who are absent from it, are two of the features of the celebration.

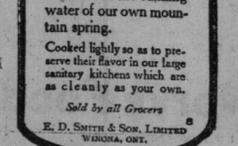

Six hundred white carnations were given away at the doors at the Mothers' Day service at Jarvis street Baptist Church. It was held in the afternoon with special music by an orchestra and choir. Prof. Trotter of McMaster University gave an appropriate address.

Rev. R. M. Burns conducted three Mothers' Day services at Berkeley street Methodist Church. At the evening service his topic was "True Canadian Home," the keynote of which he declared to be the devotion of the mother to the welfare of the family.

Rev. W. L. Prescott observed Mothers' Day at Balmora street Methodist Church by expanding the event to include both parents. In the morning he preached on "My father's God," and at night upon the topic "Our tribute to mother." Many of those present showed their appreciation of the anniversary by wearing a white flower.

At the New Jerusalem Church, Euclyd avenue, Rev. E. D. Daniels, of Berlin, preached on "Motherhood."

Another Outrage. NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, May 10.—Dunholme, a large unoccupied house in this city, was set alight today by an "arson squad" of militant suffragettes. While at their work they were alarmed by the approach of passers-by, and they decamped, leaving behind them cans of petroleum and fire lighters, as well as other inflammable materials. The fire was soon extinguished.

BATTLE OF ROYAL MOTHERS-IN-LAW

Madrid Scents It in News of Princess of Battenberg.

WHO WILL LIVE THERE Queen Victoria's Mother Decides to Leave England For Good.

Special Cable to The World. MADRID, Spain, May 11.—Queen Victoria's mother, Princess Henry of Battenberg, expects to come to Madrid to take up her permanent abode, having sold her English residence, Osborne cottage, on the Isle of Wight. The news has been received at the royal palace with mingled emotions, and there are already signs of a brewing storm, as the king's mother has always strongly objected to the masterful tactics of her son's mother-in-law. It has been a considerable time since Princess Henry has made a long visit to her daughter on that account. The king and queen have gone yearly to the Isle of Wight instead. But these visits will, of course, cease.

King George has signified his desire to place Frogmore House, near Windsor, at the disposal of his aunt after Princess and Princess Christian leave it for their own country place, Cumberland lodge, which is going thru alterations. Princess Henry has, however, informed everybody that she expects to spend more of her time in the future with her only daughter.

Queen Maria Christina, who is greatly loved in Spain for her devotion to her son thru his minority and the conciliatory attitude toward the people during her rule as regent, is receiving a good deal of sympathy at the prospect of having to fight for her position at her son's court with Princess Henry.

The latter was the favorite daughter of Queen Victoria of England, and any one familiar with the inner story of the English Queen's last years knows what a terror Princess Henry was to cabinet ministers, ambassadors and courtiers. She ruled the aged queen and her word was law, not only in the palace, but in the streets of Madrid, but in the most important affairs of state.

She made herself so obnoxious that her brother, King Edward, would not make the slightest move to place a royal residence near London at her disposal. She was kept away, on the Isle of Wight, as far from state affairs as possible. King George appears to feel a little kinder towards his aunt in this respect. But she apparently intends to place the Madrid court under her rule.

Princess Henry and Queen Maria Christina have already had their preliminary skirmishes, and the Dowager Queen of Spain, an imperial archduchess of Austria, has not the slightest intention of allowing the English princess to usurp her position as counselor-in-chief to her son, the king, and Prince Jaime.

It is over the control of the children that the two grandmothers will clash first. Princess Henry is determined that she shall be brought up in the English way, trained at first to be good at sport, with books and manners as secondary; Queen Christina is equally determined that they shall be educated in the Spanish way, with a certain amount of etiquette and ceremony even from the beginning to the end of their lives.

The English grandmother has so far been unable to force her plans in Madrid from the Isle of Wight. But she apparently now takes the bull by the horns in coming to Madrid.

SIXTEEN PRINCES ATTEND WEDDING But Husband Has to Leave His Bride and Report at Barracks.

Special Cable to The World. BERLIN, May.—(Copyright)—The chief social function of the week in Berlin was the wedding last Tuesday of Count Roger von Seher-Thoss (brother of Count Hermann Seher-Thoss, who married former Ambassador White's daughter Muriel) and Countess Fedora Matuschka, a cousin of Ella Holbrook Walker, of Detroit.

Countess Herman Seher-Thoss wore a marvelous gown of real Brussels lace, having sold her English residence, Osborne cottage, on the Isle of Wight. The news has been received at the royal palace with mingled emotions, and there are already signs of a brewing storm, as the king's mother has always strongly objected to the masterful tactics of her son's mother-in-law. ESCAPED FROM JAIL WRECKED IN TITANIC

Court Holds Experience Equal to Three Years' Imprisonment.

Special Cable to The World. PARIS, May 11.—A survivor of the Titanic disaster has just been before the Paris courts on a charge of that committed in 1911.

Former Sergeant Lagnel, who received a sentence of five years for his crime, escaped from prison and sailed from England last April in the ill-fated ship. As the liner sank he jumped overboard, and was finally rescued by the lifeboat which contained Mrs. John Jacob Astor.

The court this week reduced the former sentence from five to two years, the judge holding that the prisoner's terrible experience in the "Titanic" should be taken into account as punishment in itself.

REINCARNATED BUDDHA Refuses to Obey Order to Return to Madras.

Special Cable to The World. LONDON, May 11.—Krisnamurtha, the Brahmin youth who is claimed by Mrs. Annie Besant and the Theosophists to be a reincarnation of Buddha, now declares himself superior to all earthly decrees or tribunals and refuses to obey the order of a Madras supreme court to return to his father.

The father, G. Narayan Iyer, claims improper conduct on the part of a noted Theosophist named Leadbeater, to whom Mrs. Besant originally gave the care of Iyer's two sons. The judge decided that the accusation of immorality was not proved against Leadbeater, but pronounced him an immoral person, unfit to have charge of the youths.

The boys are in the care of Miss Bright, daughter of a famous British statesman, John Bright. She is a woman of the highest character, who is preserving youths not only from improper influences, but from worldly influences.

The court has, nevertheless, directed that both boys be returned to their father, against which order an appeal has been taken. Meanwhile Krisnamurtha and his brother are living quietly in Sussex, England.

THE FARMER OF TOMORROW

Frederick Irving Anderson, in this, his latest book, says there are possibilities for the farmer today that were undreamed of by our ancestors of a generation or two ago. Free land is gone; the rich homesteads of a decade or two ago, to be had for the asking, are forever gone, but today opportunities await the gleaner in the path of reclamation which is now setting toward floodtide. He goes on to say that fertility of the soil is one of national importance; it determines not only the fortunes of the farmer in the field, but, in the end, the life of the nation. The theory that the mineral elements of the soil are inexhaustible, an assumption which the history of China, whose soils are unimpaired, indeed are the richest in the world after four thousand years of intensive cultivation, seems to justify, is carefully taken up by the author of this most valuable work.

THE WIDOW BY THE STREET

This drama by John Masefield, author of "The Everlasting Mercy," is a universal illustration of the fate of the life-forgoer, who, in the human lives, waits for the favorable opportunity, sometimes, mercifully never reached to leap and destroy. It is the old story of a mother who has "stitched all day until her eyes were red, and had to stitch, because her man was dead."

And in this way provided for her little son who was all her life's delight. "To make him plump she starved her body thin, and he, he ate the food, and never knew He laughed and played as little children do."

So years went on till Jimmy was a lad, and went to work as poor lads have to do, and then the widow's loving heart was glad To know that all the pains she had gone thru And all the years of putting on the screw, Down to the sharpest turn a mortal had borne their fruit, and made her child a man.

One thing alone, made life not perfect sweet: The mother's daily fear of what would come When woman and her lovely boy would meet. When the new wife would break up the old home. Fear of that unborn evil struck her dead, And when her darling and a woman met, She shook and prayed, "Not her, O God; not yet!"

Rage ran in Jimmy as he tramped the night; Rage, strongly mingled with a youth's indignation, as he found a woman light, And all her precious beauty dirty dust. A fateful mishap glided over just, Nothing but that. He sat him down to rage, Beside the stream whose waters never age.

He trod his last free journey down the street; Treading the middle road, and seeing the school, the inn, the butchers selling meat, The busy market where the town then spat the tanpits full of stinking hides, And up the lane to death, as weak as pith. "By Jove, I hate this, Jimmy," said the smith.

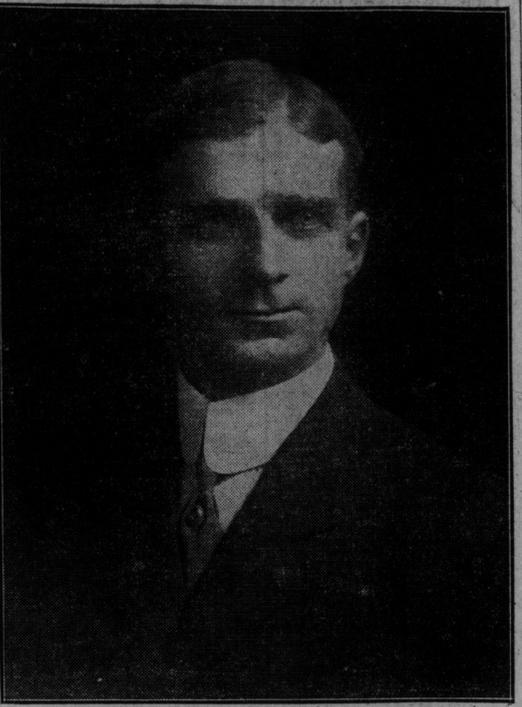

"The Widow in the By-Street" is in every way the equal of "The Everlasting Mercy," and it was the last mentioned poem that won for the writer the Polignac prize of $500, awarded by the Royal Society of Literature. J. M. Dent & Sons are the publishers.

RED HARVEST

As editor of "The Story-Teller," Mr. Newman Flower brings to his task a literary acumen that augurs well for the success of his first book "Red Harvest." The story has a thoroughly topical appeal—its interest of love and intrigue centres in the Serbian court as it existed just before the murders of Queen Draga and her consort. Mr. Flower, in the treatment of his subject, is wise to the occasion, and has given to all who like a thorough sound and readable story just what they desire. "Red Harvest" is well devised and well written, and Cassell and Company are the publishers.

WILD FLOWERS AS THEY GROW

This beautifully illustrated series of natural studies as well as "Trees and How They Grow" by G. Clarke Nuttall, is published by Cassell and Company. This series has established itself so well in public favor as the pioneer of successful color-photograph compilations that it seems almost unnecessary to announce the publication of the fifth series. The color plates clearly show the flowers as they grow. In the volume "Trees and How They Grow" with the aid of the text and color plates it is possible for anyone to identify, at any season of the year, the more common trees to be found in Great Britain.

WITH THE WRITERS

Miss Caroline Lockhart, author of those popular western stories, "McSmith" and "The Lady Doe," is extravagant in her hobbies, of which she has three. They are the prevention of cruelty to animals, the preservation of big game, and a violent antagonism to medical diploma mill graduates. The latter hobby is particularly in evidence in her last story, "The Lady Doe," in which she pictures the tragedy which results from allowing one Emma Harpe, M. D., to practice in a little town in the far west.

Crittenden Marriott, author of "Sally Castleton, Southerner," is said to be a man of the most untiring industry and versatility. For eight years he has helped to edit the geological survey, a task that calls for expert knowledge of geology, mining, water resources, and the like. "This work occupies his days; at night he plunges into the world of romance, most of the short tales that are readily accepted by the magazines. His published output for the past four years has amounted to more than a million words.

Mrs. George McClellan, who, under the nom de plume of Harford Fleming, wrote "A Carpet Knight," a picture of society life in Philadelphia; "Cupid and the Sphinx," and "Broken Chords," has had these excellent novels republished, the complete stock having been destroyed in a fire a few years ago.

In London recently a remarkable triple bill was put on by Manager Frohman—three one-act plays, by Bernard Shaw, Sir Arthur Pinero, and J. M. Barrie, billed in the order named. Shaw's was only a partial success, Pinero's was a failure, and Barrie's scored.

Charles A. Beard's new book, "An Economic Interpretation of the Constitution," published about two weeks ago, promises to be as interesting as its view-point is new. The more important portions of the volume are based upon manuscript materials which have not been used heretofore in the study of the constitution, and which have been unnoticed by all the scholars who have dealt with the subject.

A new novel by Miss Netherole is being published this month. Its title is "Wislan," an Anglo-Saxon expression meaning "goods of God's mercy." They are said to be very real goods, too, in this case, consisting of a very warm and firmly-tied bundle, addressed to a somewhat weak-minded spinster living in southern England. The bundle contains a young child, a survivor of a terrible wreck. It is the life story of a bit of flossam and jet-sam. There is a literary charm in the telling which lends a wealth of distinction to the book. In England the novel has already won unstinted praise.

It was recently announced that Mrs. Spencer Trask's home at Saratoga is ultimately to be turned over to the town for a museum and park. The residence is one of the finest in the country, and the grounds are most extensive and beautiful. Mrs. Trask is known widely for her book, "In the Vanguard," her latest, a peace play, being generally commended not only for its argument, but for the beauty of its construction.

Perhaps no writer at the present time occupies a more prominent place in the eyes of the public than John

Home Made Bread--The Choice of Flour

POOR flour is responsible for most of the woes of the woman who has failed to succeed in making good bread at home.

Just what constitutes good bread flour is simple to determine; in the first place flour is divided into that made from spring wheat and that ground from winter wheat. One is excellent for bread and one is best for finer baking, and known as "pastry" flour.

Many, many women have told me that they cannot remember which is which, and constantly ask their grocers to send them merely a good general purpose flour.

This is wrong, as you will see when I explain briefly the difference in spring wheat and winter wheat flour.

Winter wheat is a soft grain with a large proportion of starch and a small quantity of gluten; spring wheat is hard, very glutinous and has little starch in it. This last is best for bread, as it will absorb less moisture and the glutinous quality of the grain is more nourishing than the starchy.

The winter wheat flour rises more quickly and is moister and whiter than the other, and therefore more satisfactory for quick work.

The bread flour is yellowish in color; feels granular to the touch, and a little washed in water gives a large residue of sticky matter, called gluten, after the starch is washed from it.

When a flour is recommended as being good for both bread and pastry refuse it, for it will not be strong enough in gluten to produce good bread, and it will make heavy cakes and tough pastry.

It is economy to buy both kinds of flour in small amounts. Good bread cannot be made from poor flour, if you have a quantity of flour that is fit neither for bread nor cake, do not condemn it utterly, but refuse to ruin your temper and family's digestion by using it for bread making.

Keep it for other uses; very fine batter cakes can be made with it, it can be used in corn meal mixtures, in connection with rye flours in Graham bread, and Boston brown bread and for thickening. You will be glad to have it in the canister sifter for many uses. And when you buy another sack of flour you will choose it carefully for its exact purpose with the wisdom your experience has given you.

Sometimes flour improves after the sack has been opened a while and dries out and becomes more elastic. Never condemn the first baking from a fresh sack of flour, for often standard brands are not uniform from season to season.

Tomorrow I will give some recipes—for salt rising bread and brown and whole wheat bread, and I will also tell the type who has "bad luck" with her bread, how to use store-bought flour, and how to produce fine home made bread.

There are hundreds of uses to which poor bread can be put, so if at first you don't succeed, hide the bread and buy the baker's stuff and try, try, again.

FORSYTHIA SUSPensa (THE GOLDEN BELL)

I have been trying to reach the description of this lovely thing, for some time, but like house-cleaning time, so many things have cried out for immediate attention, and the space at our command has been so limited that a great number of plants concerning which we should have talked have been of necessity passed by.

Last week, and in some lawn, even the week before, many a careless person found himself stopping short in his mad hurry-scurry to business, and gazing in open-mouthed astonishment at what appeared at first sight to be a fluffy, gauzy yellow cloud, floating half in air, and half on earth, swaying to and fro in the soft morning breeze—a wonderfully lovely thing that might have come straight out of fairy land.

Coming closer, the delighted onlooker would discover a shrub, composed of bare, bare branches, every single inch of which branches was literally hung with yellow bells, deeply cut, about an inch long, half an inch or so across—each bell swinging from the tree branch by means of a frail stem. And day after day, the same onlooker might have watched that bush, apparently quite unchanged until on a sudden one morning, he noticed the bells were no more; but the shrub had, in the quietness of the night, in some mysterious manner, changed its color, and the gauze to one quite as beautiful but a little more substantial; instead of gay bells, tiny palest green leaves were shooting out, growing darker, stronger and larger every sunny day.

There is no shrub so delightful as the golden bell. Of this graceful habit, its long trailing branches, thin delicate, smoothly green, with tiny dark spots on the new limbs, the bush will attain a height of eight feet. The long trailers will lie on the ground and take root themselves if left undisturbed.

This is not a good thing to permit, however. The shrub should be pruned very early in the summer, before the blooming season is over. As the flowers are borne on the wood of the preceding season, the tree should be coaxed to grow in the summer, and all the old wood must be pruned away. Do not be at all sparing with the pruning knife. Cut away all branches of more than six inches, in order to induce free shooting.

As to soil, almost any kind will do for the bush is one of the hardiest. It will grow in any soil, and will give soil as well furnished with nourishment as it is possible to get hold of.

Plant the tree against a background of pink geraniums at the foot of a thickly growing vine, or among a dark evergreen shrubbery. This will bring out a delightful contrast of color, form and habit.

Particularly does the golden bell look when placed apart from any other plant. In the corner of an iron fence, or a wire one, where it will obtain abundance of air, light and sunshine, this shrub will do unusually well.

As regards the value of the golden bells, I would sooner part with my choicest lilacs—which is saying much—than do without them.

N.B.—How about those window boxes that were set away in the cellars to get well rooted, some few weeks ago. I think that they might be put in their places almost any time now, all danger of frost being past—unless you wish to add another plant or two. But remember, one of our most important points do not crowd.

The boxes may look skimpy just now; but do not forget that all plants are quite young yet. It is surprising how few window boxes will look in a few more weeks.

Wilfred T. Grenfell's notable book, "Labrador, the Country and the People," recognized since its publication several years ago to be the most interesting and at the same time the most complete description of that wonderful country, has been revised through and supplemented by two new chapters, one dealing with the mammals of Labrador, and the other with conservation. The volume is attractively bound, showing on the cover a picture of Dr. Grenfell's boat, the Strathcona, while as a frontispiece there is reproduced the latest portrait of the author, with a facsimile of his signature.

"The Quarry," by John A. Moroso, is the first book of this American writer, whose short stories of crime and detection have appeared in many of the leading magazines. He has taken for his hero a country boy seeking work in New York, depicting the young man's arrest for the murder of a night-watcher of a bank; his treatment by the police; his trial and conviction. He is sentenced to life imprisonment; his escape, pursuit and subsequent fate are forcefully narrated and hold the reader spellbound. His characters are exceedingly human; Mike Tierney, the New York police detective, relentless in his search for his quarry, is a masterpiece of character delineation. McClelland & Goodchild are the publishers.

NO OTHER WAY

By Gordon Holmes

"By no means. So I offered a gold-bridge. It seems I won about twenty-five thousand dollars before leaving Boynton on the night of the accident and I gave her the wad. It is a slang expression but terse, and suits a sizable roll of greenbacks."

"And the meeting in New York?" prompted the little man, quietly.

"Took place in the grill room of the Waldorf-Astoria. The wad was discreetly pathetic; but I was adamant—one can do that sort of thing without unnecessary effort in a crowded grill room."

"Have you ever lived in the tropics, Mr. Waverton?" asked Clancy, suddenly.

Waverton was lighting the pipe, and he concluded the operation before replying. "Is that a delicate allusion to Palm Beach—or is the wad a pretty hot in both places at times," he said, with a laugh.

Clancy laughed, too. He rose. Obviously, the curious intrusion of a query as to Waverton's foreign experiences was of no real interest to him.

"I am sorry to have inflicted my presence on you at this inconvenient hour," he said, "but I need hardly explain that I was not here to pry and peer in the most unlikely places for clues or suggestions or motives while following up an enquiry of this sort—which, of course, may be a perfectly natural and straightforward explanation. I may take it, I am sure, that you know practically nothing of Mrs. Delamar's life as a conductor since you left her house at Palm Beach?"

Waverton, too, stood up. "Practically nothing," he replied, "it is too early to suggest a high-ball."

"Yes, sir; but if I may have a cigar—"

"Certainly. Try one of these."

He placed a box on the table. Clancy noticed that he lifted it with his left hand. Waverton saw that the detective smiled.

"What is amusing you?" he asked.

"I was wondering what you would think of my queer way of treating a cigar. I do not smoke, but like the smell of tobacco."

"I don't understand."

"You would think it rude of me if I take a cigar and simply snuff it?"

"Of course not. Every man to his taste, the yours is a peculiar one."

"And, by the way, I was told that when you met Mrs. Delamar last Friday by appointment, had she written to you?"

"Yes. You want the address, I suppose?"

"It would oblige me greatly."

Waverton unlocked a leather box that lay on a side table and searched among some papers. "Here you are," he said, producing a letter. He glanced thru it. "Would you care to see the contents? They are brief and eminently non-committal, shall I say?"

Clancy took the letter and examined it with slow deliberation, his eyes prising in a man usually so alert and decisive.

"Thank you," he said. "Allow me to apologize once more. Good night."

"One word before you go. I have been rather too much in the limelight of late, and—"

"I see no reason whatsoever why your name should figure in this enquiry," said Clancy, gravely.

"When the deed was done, I told Waverton said aside the pipe. 'I must be cultivating nerves,' he muttered. 'What the dickens did that fellow mean by asking if I had ever lived in the tropics and then dropping it as suddenly?'"

"Then he rang for Rice and bade the valet order a fresh breakfast, as the eatables had gone cold."

Meanwhile, Clancy had consulted a railway folder and found that a train could go on to Narragansett Pier, pass a couple of hours in that charming seaside town and return to New York in the evening.

Clancy, who had been over in the police headquarters before taking the train. On the way he amused himself by jotting down the exact text of the note written by Mrs. Delamar. It ran: "Dear Clo-Clo—Do give me half an hour, somewhere, any day, but soon. Yours ever, 'Feena.'"

"Clo-Clo—his pet name, 'Feena,'" mused the detective. "And his sporty friends call him 'Curly.' I wonder why? Now, he strikes me as the sort of man who doesn't care to answer to either 'Clo-Clo' or 'Curly.' Must be on the principle of the old maid who called her black cat 'Snowball.'"

At Narragansett Pier, he met a man daringly confidential with the manager of the hotel than he was with Rice. Clancy soon ascertained every scrap of fact and every detail about Claude Waverton's brief visit. Especially was he interested in the singular experience of John Stratton Tearle, who, when seated on the veranda, had watched Waverton's remarkable rescue of his own child from drowning.

The detective was in Narragansett during the luncheon hour, it was an easy matter to have a good look at the telescope-using stranger, a well set up, handsome man of the stock-broker type; but, oddly enough, Clancy did not enter the dining room himself, protesting to the hotel manager that he felt compelled to look up some friends in the town.

He made no great effort to see them, however. After a brisk scrutiny of the hotel register, he loitered about the promenade. He was even beginning to look at his watch, when his patience was rewarded by seeing Tearle, who was smoking in his favorite veranda, rise quickly from a chair, and lift his hat to two women who came out of the hotel and entered a waiting carriage.

The three chatted with the ease of old friends until a formidable nurse appeared, leading a little girl by the hand. When these two had been safely disposed in the carriage, the coachman drove off, and the vehicle happened to pass the seat that held Clancy's small boy.

"The wife, the sister, the baby, the nurse, and the villain," said he.

Then he turned his attention to Narragansett; and, as Mrs. Daint's coachman was a most respectable man, it may safely be assumed that the detective was not that sort of a man who ticks off the five persons of whose identity he had taken stock before bidding farewell to the sunlit Atlantic.

It was his custom, when opportunity served, to pass an hour at night in St. Regis's sanctum at Centre Street. There, high above the neighboring buildings, looking out over a lamp-spangled vista of downtown New York, he two men who knew more of the city's secrets than any others then living would discuss the day's events, and of course, Clancy had had a good deal of time to think over what he had seen and heard.

Clancy laughed, too. He rose. Obviously, the curious intrusion of a query as to Waverton's foreign experiences was of no real interest to him.

"I am sorry to have inflicted my presence on you at this inconvenient hour," he said, "but I need hardly explain that I was not here to pry and peer in the most unlikely places for clues or suggestions or motives while following up an enquiry of this sort—which, of course, may be a perfectly natural and straightforward explanation. I may take it, I am sure, that you know practically nothing of Mrs. Delamar's life as a conductor since you left her house at Palm Beach?"

Waverton, too, stood up. "Practically nothing," he replied, "it is too early to suggest a high-ball."

"Yes, sir; but if I may have a cigar—"

"Certainly. Try one of these."

He placed a box on the table. Clancy noticed that he lifted it with his left hand. Waverton saw that the detective smiled.

"What is amusing you?" he asked.

"I was wondering what you would think of my queer way of treating a cigar. I do not smoke, but like the smell of tobacco."

"I don't understand."

"You would think it rude of me if I take a cigar and simply snuff it?"

"Of course not. Every man to his taste, the yours is a peculiar one."

"And, by the way, I was told that when you met Mrs. Delamar last Friday by appointment, had she written to you?"

"Yes. You want the address, I suppose?"

"It would oblige me greatly."

Waverton unlocked a leather box that lay on a side table and searched among some papers. "Here you are," he said, producing a letter. He glanced thru it. "Would you care to see the contents? They are brief and eminently non-committal, shall I say?"

Clancy took the letter and examined it with slow deliberation, his eyes prising in a man usually so alert and decisive.

"Thank you," he said. "Allow me to apologize once more. Good night."

"One word before you go. I have been rather too much in the limelight of late, and

MONDAY MORNING, MAY 12

PAY AS YOU GO.

There is some idea that with certain inevitable salary increases and the estimate of an overdraft at the end of the year of $100,000, the council may decide on a rate of at least 20 mills, the board of control hope to squeeze along on 15. The World has advocated the very proper practice of paying as you go for two reasons, apart from the mere honesty of the proceeding. In the first place a deception is practiced upon the ratepayers by carrying an overdraft at the end of the year. The city is spending more than it is really supposed to be spending, and the overdraft is criticized, though the sums making up the actual overdraft are always for necessities. The real cause of the overdraft, if there be any waste, which is doubtful, or at least cannot be asserted, would be in sums spent earlier in the year.

This deception in connection with the overdrafts, amounting for last year to half a million, gives a false reputation for economy to the council or administration that permits it. The succeeding council must bear the onus. In consequence a second result occurs, in as far as the electors are inclined to punish the wrong set of legislators, if they be not lulled into a fancied security by the tales of low taxation.

The present is the proper time to escape from the overdraft system. The administration of the last three years is almost entirely responsible for the foolish financing which placed the city in the exceptionally weak position from which Mayor Hocken has been able to rescue it. Everybody knows the facts, and is prepared to place the responsibility where it belongs. Neither the council nor the administration generally need have any fear of fixing a rate which would provide for all necessary and legitimate charges, including the overdrafts of the past three years. A plain statement of the finances, the actual expenditure this year, the school rate, and the amount needed for overdrafts from the past, would satisfy every taxpayer where the blame belonged, and the city would be in a position to start next year with a clean sheet.

MAISONVILLE'S LETTER

The Star wants to know why The World speaks of Thorne's letter to Maisonneville as the Maisonneville letter. Simply because Maisonneville organized the conspiracy to make trouble for Hanna. Thorne, Maisonneville's old next door neighbor, wrote a jolly letter to Maisonneville, and being well aware that Harry published everything that a city editor would pay for, warned him it was "not for publication." Maisonneville had his little plot on hand and ignored the ordinary decencies of correspondence, as he had other decencies. The letter was now his. Until Thorne mailed it, it was Thorne's. After he mailed it, it became the property of King George. The Star can verify the statutes. It was probably transferred to Uncle Sam, and finally reached Maisonneville, who then became its owner. He was entitled, as he thought, to do what he liked with it. He decided to use it in his little plot. The Star and some of the other Liberals "fell" for the plot. That's why The World speaks of it as Maisonneville's letter.

ELECTRIC POWER DEVELOPMENT.

No government ever conferred a greater boon on the people whose affairs it administers, than that given Ontario by its hydro-electric legislation. In a province without coal resources, the protection of water powers and the establishment of a publicly owned electric distributing system, immune from stock manipulation for private aggrandizement, were matters of the greatest moment. Extensions in rural districts and the construction of railways linking up the various centres will widely distribute the benefits provided by white coal, and result in a general expansion of agriculture, as well as manufacturing industries. Electricity has already become the most valuable servant of mankind, and the developments it has induced are more remarkable than are generally realized.

In a memorandum prepared by the Harris Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, noting the extensive development in the electrical field of the United States, during the decade from 1899 to 1909, the census figures are summarized. They show that the total value of electrical machinery, appliances and supplies manufactured increased from $10,000,000 to $10,000,000 in that period, and the power requirements of all kinds of manufacturing establishments rose from 493,000 horse power in 1899 to 4,820,000 horse power in 1909, an increase of approximately 980 per cent. or over 11 1/2 times the growth in the use of all kinds of power by manufacturing concerns. Electric power sales grew from 182,560 to about 1,750,000 horse power, an increase of 960 per cent. during the decade. The census report points out that the practice of renting (purchasing) electrical power is rapidly becoming more common among small establishments, and even among large establishments.

GETTING INTO LINE.

We appear to be approaching some degree of unanimity with regard to the electric situation. The Telegram has been the chief dissentient, and in its own peculiar, roundabout, periphrastic fashion has intimated and continues to intimate that unless and except, nevertheless, but and notwithstanding, and in the long run, Tommy Church has the only right idea that it would be absolute folly to buy the street railway which would cost $45,000,000. As Tommy Church is an authority on absolute folly, The Telegram is no doubt wise to hearken to him.

However, this $45,000,000 may include more than the street railway, for the Honorable Tommy speaks of the sum as covering the "holdings in the E. and D. Company, The Toronto Power Company, T. E. L. and other holdings." And The Telegram, trying to keep pace with the Honorable Tommy, has this interesting paragraph, which represents in modern fashion that fine, old, Nelsonian naval manoeuvre known as getting into line.

"Toronto is beginning at the wrong end when this city takes over Sir William Mackenzie's agencies for the distribution of electricity and leaves Sir William in control of his sources for the supply of electricity. The purchase of the Toronto Railway system and the Toronto Electric Light system, especially the latter, should not be considered on any terms, unless Adam Beck is prepared to buy out the Electrical Development Company on behalf of the Ontario Power Union or to help Toronto buy out the Electrical Development Company on this city's own behalf."

THE ANTARCTIC TRAGEDY.

Later light on the tragedy of the Scott expedition dispels much of the mystery that no doubt prompted the early accounts of dissension and negligence that promised to cast a dark shadow over an heroic enterprise. From an interview with Mr. W. Bruce, a brother of Lady Scott and second in command of the Terra Nova, it is evident there was no ground for the rumor that "the astonishing failure of Petty Officer Evans" was due to his developing insanity on the return journey. It was simply a case of physical collapse resulting from exposure and privation, all the more surprising in view of the fact that he was selected as one of the Polar party on account of his splendid physique. That the strong man may be the first to fail is no novelty in the annals of exploration.

Every detail added to the story of Captain Scott's dash to the Antarctic Pole heightens the heroism of the men who formed the last relay. There was no waste of time and no loss of way on their part—all the delays happened because they stood together and refused to abandon either of the men who retarded their progress, not of design, but from physical disablement. Nor was their end due to lack of food supplies, and the failure of oil for fuel. Mr. Bruce reports, was attributable to evaporation caused by the deterioration of the rubber washers from extreme cold. Captain Scott was the last of the three who reached the last camp to die and before he succumbed he performed the last rites to his dead comrades. The whole tale, including the self-sacrifice of Captain Oates—it were sacrilege to call it suicide—is one of the noblest pages in the history of British devotion to duty. Captain Scott's diaries are described as wonderful documents, and they may well be this, and because of it an inspiration to his fellow-countrymen.

FARMERS AND COMMISSION MEN.

For the protection of farmers against unfair dealings on the part of commission men, the New York State Legislature has passed a bill, which on Friday became an act, on signature by Governor Sulzer, establishing the principle that commission merchants are the agents and trustees of the con-

DR. SCHOLL'S O-FIXO CORN PLASTER. It will remove any corn, no matter how old, how low or how painful. See a package at all Drugists.

THE POPULARITY

Of The World's coupon plan is being emphatically emphasized since Thursday, as the pennants now being distributed from The World Office, 40 Richmond Street West, Toronto, and 15 Main Street East, Hamilton, are going out in such numbers that the quantity allotted will be exhausted in a very short time. If you would insure securing one of these beautiful decorations, present the coupon, which appears on another page of this paper, together with 22c, and 2c postage if it is to go by mail.

signers of farm produce. In that capacity they will now be held responsible to these consignors for a full and honest accounting of all transactions relating to the sale of consignments. This compels every commission merchant to take out a license from the commissioner of agriculture and to satisfy him as to the applicant's character, responsibility and good faith in the conduct of his business. A bond for $3000 is also required to be filed to secure the proper accounting of moneys due shippers of farm products.

As passed, the act was the result of a conference between the various interests affected and the recognition by the leading agencies that only dishonest dealers could have any real objection to its terms. Legislation to the effect noted has been demanded by the farmers of the state for six years, and they showed that returns for their consignments were not made promptly, and in many instances were absolutely fraudulent. This discouraged shipments, gave a practical monopoly to speculators in food supplies and imposed a great hardship upon consumers. With the protection now afforded it is confidently hoped that consignments will increase and that both producers and consumers will benefit. The commissioner of agriculture is given power to revoke licenses for dishonest dealings and lack of financial responsibility.

The Philosopher of Folly

By Sherwood East SEEDING TIME.

Oh, what so fair as a green lawn besprangled with dewdrops pearly, where the sunshine plays at the peep of dawn on a summer's morning early—when the worms are poking their noses out from the roots of the guarding grasses and the birds are gathering thick about the blue bottles round molasses! Oh, what so gay as a plot of green in front of our humble portal o'er which to trundle a mow-machine—the thought of it makes us chortle, we hasten home from our long day's work, and as it whirrs thru the verdant clover, so now in the month of merry May, when the little red gods are calling, when nature smiles and the fields are gay and our indoor jobs are galling, let's freely sprinkle the lawn grass seed in front of our mow. Whether let's lavishly scatter the sparrow feed which the seedmen now are selling, and let us untrangle our garden hose, when our neighbor laughs and jokes us, and moistens the spots where the brown earth shows till the blamed things burst in the evening breeze blow cold and sweet and the stars above us twinkle, a glad-sight is our little street as we each close up and sprinkle, and comb our patches of near-green grass in the pleasant summer weather, while the young and maids of the village pass, one of each kind together.

COCAINE OR CARDS CAUSE OF MURDER

MONTREAL, May 10.—Jack Desroches, who killed Louis Venne in a north end saloon a month ago, entered a plea of not guilty to the charge in court here today. He blamed the whole trouble on a game of cards that he played five years ago, when he lost $500, and ever since that time he says he has been "queer."

PUNCTURE PROOF AUTOMOBILE TIRE

R. I. Henderson Has Invented One That Won't Allow Air to Escape.

DEMONSTRATION GIVEN

A real puncture-proof tire is the latest boon to motorists. Not only in the experimental stages is this last development in the motoring industry; it has been thoroughly tried and tested. Cars have been fitted up with a set of the new tires and as many as forty nails punched in a single tire, yet not one pound of air pressure was lost. Patents are applied for, and a company is already formed to place the tires on the market. R. I. Henderson of Toronto is the inventor. The outside of the inner tube is ordinary in appearance, but inside is a three inch strip of soft rubber. This rubber is thickest at the very centre, and tapering away at the edges. When inflated this rubber forms a protective tube around the inner tube, and where punctures are likely to occur, a nailhole will automatically close itself from the pressure of rubber aided by the air pressure underneath the rubber. Further advantage of the tires as pointed out by Mr. Henderson, is that while ordinary inner tubes are made from straight ten foot strips of rubber, the new vulcanized on a straight roll, his tube is molded on a circular mandrel. He points out that an ordinary light tube has to stretch approximately one per cent. on the inside to make the circle, and the rubber being so light, invariably blows out when it occurs on the outer casing. His tire, he says, is heavy enough to stand such a strain, does not have to stretch on the outside, and even the a chunk of the outer tube were cut away, the reinforced inner tube will always bring you home.

A practical test of the tire was made on Thursday afternoon by Mr. Henderson before some newspapermen. First driving round a corner at high speed, and explaining the principle, he took them to his car and showed them a nail which had been driven in the tire through the inner tube, leaving a hole in twenty-four hours. A test of air pressure on the tire registered a little less than 75 pounds to the square inch. Taking a heavy iron rod, he drove it into the tire, and then drew it out again with a pair of pliers. With three previously mentioned holes in the tire, he still protruding from the cover, and this last puncture, the party jumped into the car and drove six or seven miles up Yonge street, over a road which Mr. Henderson pointed out was bound to show up any leak which might have resulted from the unusual usage of an automobile tire.

After seeing a nail deliberately driven into your tire and knowing its previous history with regard to the same nail, it must be admitted that it was not without certain qualms and thoughts of a long walk back to a street car line that the reporters launched on the drive. But all the healthy bumps and jolts in a modest Yonge street roadway could not drive any air out of the puncture-proof tire. A test after the drive showed an air pressure of 75 pounds to the square inch, being due, of course, to the heated tires. The tire being air filled and hollow, lacks nothing in resiliency experienced in an ordinary inner tube. The tube weighs but 1 1/2 pounds more than an ordinary tube, and it is thought the cost will not run more than 20 per cent. above the price of an ordinary inner tube.

Mr. Henderson says he has driven a three inch nail into the same hole three times, and every time the hole has automatically closed on itself. This air tube is known as the Simplex Puncture-Proof air tube, and a company has already been formed known as the Simplex Puncture-Proof Tire Co., whose office is in the Toronto Building, Hon. F. H. Phippen, K. C., is the president of the company, Mr. D. B. Hanson is vice-president, and Mr. R. I. Henderson, the inventor, is the third director.

Single Court. Before Latchford, J. Re Woodhouse—W. B. Miihken, for Christie Brown & Co. E. Meek, K.C., for Woodhouse. An appeal by Christie Brown & Co., under sec. 140 of Land Titles Act, from decision of master of titles at Toronto, of April 25, 1914, held that the company is precluded from bringing any action against John Woodhouse for possession, and debarred from objecting to the registration of Woodhouse and his wife as the absolute owners of the land.

Judgment: It seems clear to me that in filing the objection the company was not bringing an action. While the company cannot sue Woodhouse to recover possession of the property, it can I think be heard when it objects that he and his wife should not be registered as owners of the land under the provisions of the Land Titles Act. With the shield provided by that act the company can, in my opinion, defend its paper title against aggressors, using the weapons forged by the same statute. Appeal allowed with costs and matter remitted to the master of titles.

Before Middleton, J. Martin v. Howard—J. T. Mulcahy (Orilla) for plaintiff. W. H. Kennedy (Gravenhurst) for defendant. Action by horseman of Gravenhurst to recover $1000 damages from defendant, a boarding stable keeper at Empress Hotel, Gravenhurst, for alleged illegal, wrongful and unlawful sale of a valuable stallion of plaintiff.

Judgment: The statute provides that after the board is unpaid for two weeks, defendant would have the right on giving two weeks' notice by advertisement in a newspaper published in the municipality. An advertisement was published in issues of The Gravenhurst Banner of 5th and 12th December of a sale to be held on 14th December. This was not two weeks' notice, and as the notice is a statutory condition of the right to sell, there was no right to sell at that time. Manifestly the right to sell must be a sale to some third person, and vendor cannot himself be the purchaser. Judgment for net sum of $300 and costs. I do not think it is a case in which I should interfere as to costs.

Saves $68 per week in delivery expense. Figures of actual cost of operation are convincing to the wideawake merchant. The economy and efficiency of store delivery service by electric trucks is forcibly shown by the following extract from a letter just received:

"According to the record of the Company, this two-ton electric truck does the work of three wagons and six horses, and saves $68 per week in delivery expense. The entire cost of operation has not exceeded $6 per day. The truck has never run out of current, even in the fourteen-hour-a-day grind on hills and in snow. The truck does not require a mechanic to run it. Its driver never rode in an automobile before."

This typical case provides sufficient good reasons for any live merchant who is supporting a horse delivery service to investigate thoroughly the merits and claims of the commercial electric vehicle.

Have You $1,400?

If so, it is in all probability the result of savings. Many people who have earned sufficient in the past ten years to be possessed of several times $1400 are today without anything to their credit. If any of these had begun ten years ago to deposit even ten dollars a month with us, and had continued to do so each month, there would now have been at the credit of each the sum of $1437.73. If you are one who has neglected your opportunities, begin now. A deposit of One Dollar will open an account. Canada Permanent Mortgage Corporation Toronto St., - Toronto Established 1855. 135

BORDEN MEETING IS ALL ARRANGED

A Great Reception Will Be Given Premier a Week From Tonight.

PROMINENT SPEAKERS Sir James Whitney and Other Ministers Will Be Heard.

Plans are now well under way for the big Borden meeting, to be held in the Mutual Street Arena, a week from tonight.

The premier will be his first public utterance of importance on the vexed question since the passage of the naval bill, and this fact adds no little special interest to the meeting.

Mr. Borden will deal with the international situation so far as marine armaments are concerned, contrasting the government's policy with that of the Liberal opposition, and justifying the closure in securing passage of the naval bill.

The problem of providing accommodation for all who desire to hear the premier is giving much concern to the committee in charge of arrangements.

The floor of the arena is to be reserved for members of the ward associations participating in the procession, to the number of 5000, and the galleries, which will be thrown open to the general public at 7 o'clock, whether ticket holders or not, will be strictly outside accommodation only about 5000.

The procession, which will form at the York street bridge, will be led by the Grenadiers' Band, wards one and two following. The Queen's Own Bugle Band will lead wards three and four, while the 12th York Rangers will precede wards five and six.

The Borden Club and the South Toronto Conservative Association will bring up the rear. A place of honor will be found in the front ranks by the Army and Navy Veterans, 100 strong. After the meeting a torchlight procession is expected to escort the premier to the station.

Sir James Whitney, who will speak; Hon. W. J. Hanna, and a number of the provincial cabinet ministers, have already intimated their intention of being present.

MUSTN'T PAY TO SEE NUDE DANCE

It's the Dollar That Makes Performance Improper, Says Paris Court.

Special Cable to The World. PARIS, May 11.—(Copyright.)—Adonez Villany, the Hungarian danseuse, whose "physiological and psychological" nude dancing earned her a fine in Munich and recently a fine of 440 francs in Paris, is very indignant at such treatment.

To combat the sentence she organized a tribunal to be presided over by sculptor Rodin, who became the recognized protector of the dancing profession by defending Nijinsky from the critics last season. Then she hired a hall to which admission was to be only by invitation issued to artists and literateurs. Unfortunately for her scheme, a detective succeeded in getting admission by paying a dollar at the door and witnessed the performance.

The artist in nude dancing explained that the art could only be fully expressed by naked dancers, because the society rhythm was communicated to the body, which, as an instrument of expression, is more important than the face; therefore the body must be undraped even if the face is uncovered.

The court held that the offense to public morality lay only in the lack of strict enforcement of means of admission, the performance being proper for artists and literary men, but improper for mere paying spectators.

Boy Scouts to Fight Caterpillar Pest

MONTREAL, May 10.—Montreal is threatened with the greatest caterpillar plague it ever knew. The civic authorities issued an appeal to all good citizens to join with them in a war on the pest.

The boy scouts have been enlisted, too, and a big battle is on. Mount Royal is a danger of being stripped of its beautiful foliage unless the scourge is beaten at once. Westmount, Outremont and Montreal are in the fight to save the trees. The cold snap has been a great aid in the undertaking.

At one o'clock Monday afternoon to the Labor Temple. This will be headed by a band of hundred pieces, which will be followed by the international officers, the hundreds of delegates to the convention, and the members of the local body.

The route of the parade, which will form up in the vicinity of the King Edward Hotel, will be King to Church, thence south to Wellington, west on Wellington to Bay, north on Bay to Queen, around the city hall, up James, and thence along Albert and Shuter to the Labor Temple on Church street.

On reaching the Labor Temple they will be welcomed to the city by the mayor, the board of control and Ald. Robbins, the labor member in the city council. They will be followed by addresses by International President Weber, President Edward Jarro, President Wm. Holl of the district trades council, Dave Carey, Dominion representative on the international executive, International Secretary M. Miller of St. Louis, and International Treasurer Otto Ostendorf. E. J. Garopp of Toronto, will be sergeant of arms at the convention, which will hold its meeting at the Labor Temple during the entire week.

Montreal Rangers Whitewash Ottawa

LANSDOWNE PARK, Ottawa, May 10.—(Special)—The Ottawa and Montreal Rangers met here today in the first Big Six soccer fixture. The cold, raw weather kept the attendance down, altho about 1000 were out to witness the struggle. The teams lined up as follows: Montreal Rangers—Goal, A. Woodside; right-back, W. Crichton; left-back, H. Neighbour; right half, J. Ward; left half, H. Bingham; inside half, A. W. Reid; outside right, W. Reynolds; inside right, J. Angell; centre forward, T. Bennett; inside left, W. Rimmer; outside left, E. A. Huff. Ottawa—Goal, A. P. Damon; right back, P. Weeks; left back, R. Dugan; right half, A. Huxman; left half, A. C. Robertson; inside half, A. W. Reid; outside right, W. Reynolds; inside right, J. Angell; centre forward, T. Bennett; inside left, W. Rimmer; outside left, E. A. Huff. At the first, Huff and Reynolds kept the play nearly altogether at Ottawa territory, only the phenomenal work of Damon in the Ottawa nets saving scores. The Montreal forwards played superior to the Ottawa forward line, and for fully half an hour the home team got but one shot on Woodside. At the very start he made a beautiful save from right in front. For a time Ottawa kicked up and pressed, but the half finished with no score. Just after half-time Bennett got right thru, but was bodily and hurt. Ottawa saved the goal from Bennett. C. A. Reynolds and Bennett combined for a goal, and Bennett scored the first goal. The Ottawa forwards could not cope with the Montreal men and play hung at the goal nets. The good work of Damon in the Ottawa nets saved several goals for his team. The Rangers holding the play altogether at Ottawa nets. Rimmer finally got a shot in a scuffle around the nets and scored the second for Rangers. Angell

DOUGHERT'S DERBY BY LENGTH

Ten Point Is Second and Foundation Outside the Money

LOUISVILLE, May 10.—A new champion three-year-old of America leaped into prominence today and the Churchill Downs Derby course record was broken before the largest crowd that ever witnessed a Derby here, when Dougherty, a Kentucky colt, nipped Ten Point at the wire, and won the thirty-ninth renewal of the Kentucky Derby. The time was 2:04 1/2. The field was larger than had been predicted, eight starters facing the barrier, and spectators who have witnessed runnings of the Derby for years interested alike for its turf prominence and sentiment of Kentuckians, say it was one of the greatest exhibitions of a real horse race ever presented at a Kentucky Derby contest. In their belief that the west would win from the east in this premier turf event, westerners had pinned their faith to Foundation, believing the Nas-turtium colt to have the best chance to beat the topheavy favorite, Ten Point. L. Asst. Jockey, Ten Point colt. When the horses passed the stand after running a quarter of a mile of the distance, Ten Point had been hustled into a short lead by the others bunching closely behind him. At the turn Jockey Buxton had allowed his mount to take a commanding lead, and at the mile Ten Point was three lengths ahead, with the others fighting hard and with about even chances. As they rounded the last turn, Jockey Goose began to force Dougherty ahead. The crowd had been running with, and started after the leader. The Kentucky colt steadily wore down the favorite in the stretch, and just got up in the last few strides to win by a length. Gowell, a filly sired by Ortwells, was third, and Foundation finished out of the money. Anyone who wants to see the Kentucky Derby may do so free of charge as far as the jockey club management is concerned, and never before had the "free field" been so popular. Early in the day country folk came from far and near, drove their vehicles to the field encircled by the track, spread their lunch and waited for the Derby. On the other side of the track grandstand and betting shed was crowded. Dougherty is by Moccie, out of Algie M., and is owned and trained by T. P. Hayes. COUNTRY GOES TO THE CHIEF

Business Men of United States Are Resigned to the Experiment, But Whether It Will Prove Beneficial Is Decidedly Uncertain—Monetary System Not Elastic Enough to Meet Situation.

(Specially written for The New York World and The Toronto World by S. R. Fontaine.)

NEW YORK, May 11.—With the final passage by the house of representatives of the Underwood bill, the business men of the country have before them the tariff revision program of the administration in its most radical shape. With the small Democratic majority in the senate, the strong opposition to several of the schedules which is likely to develop from senators representing southern and western states whose commercial interests are intimately affected thereby, it is obvious that if any changes are made in the measure during its progress thru the legislative channels that remain, they are likely to be in the nature of a compromise at least. There is therefore no legitimate reason why the financial and commercial community should not begin at once to take stock of itself and to gauge with no great delay the influence which the new tariff system is to exert upon its present interests and its future policies.

Tariff Changes Experimental.

There is no gainsaying the fact that the drastic change in the tariff law is an experiment, the result of which practice can only determine. Whether it will provide the remedy for some of the economic ills to which the country remains a prey, is a problem the future alone can solve. Theoretically, it seems to strike at the cause of the most general discontent—the increasing burden of the wage-earner. Whether it will decrease the cost of living without diminishing the rewards of labor, is a question that the coming years must answer. The people have demanded that the experiment be tried, and the legislative and administrative branches of the government are yielding obedience to public opinion in providing the opportunity. The business men of the country, as a whole, are resigned to the test. They concede that it was inevitable and could not have come at a better time. Fundamental conditions are sound, and there has been no liquidation in any department of the economy and industry with the single exception of labor. If the experiment is a success, they may be avoided; if not, it seems inevitable.

Effect of Low Tariff.

There are more widely divergent views as to the immediate effect of the new tariff bill upon the general business of the country. Discarding these born of self-interest or political prejudice, the opinions of bankers and business men generally agree upon this conclusion: the disturbance, if any, adjustment is facilitated by satisfactory credit conditions. Any great and sudden change in the business methods of the country, such as must necessarily accompany a transition from an established to an untried system of collecting the public revenues, is bound to impose more or less of a strain upon the money market. While a halt in general enterprise under normal conditions automatically provides a contraction in credit necessary such a slow down as may result from tariff revision is probably will, because of the nature of the adjustment required, demand an accommodation of an extension of banking.

Strain on Banks.

From the present outlook the tariff bill can scarcely be ready for the president's signature before the middle of August. Thus, the banking community is to be confronted with the general business requirements of the threshold of what is usually, under our inelastic currency system, the most trying period of the banking year. At that season the money market is at the center of great activity. Surplus funds that have been piled up at the center are suddenly withdrawn to finance their movement, to facilitate the gathering of the harvest, and to finance the primary market. The primary market which now wealth is annually credited, gathers fresh energy and thereby imposes an additional strain upon credit. Surely there is no other currency system in the world that is less fitted to our country, which is peculiarly dependent upon the money market. One of our possessions the anomalous facility of expanding credit at a time when there is little demand for it, and of contracting it when necessity becomes urgent and widespread.

Expect a Stringency.

Current conditions in the money market can scarcely be considered a reliable index of what is likely to occur in the fall. Yet, everywhere, bankers are beginning to advise and to exercise extreme caution. It is considered that the situation in New York, where comparative rate is abnormal, at present is listed for months a most unusual stagnation in the market for securities. During this period financial requirements for a stock market purposes have dwindled to negligible proportions. Demand loans have reached the smallest volume in years. Long continued speculative liquidation has released enormous sums to the banks, yet both surplus reserves are extraordinarily substantially in their hands. It is expected that they will be able to moderately limit their cash holdings during the next three months. The favorable condition, even under the most favorable developments during that period, will probably be below normal when they are called upon to meet the drain of the fall currency movement to the interior.

General Situation Sound.

Fortunately, the general situation here is sound. It has been reinforced by the liquidation of the winter and by the complete suspension by the strong interests of all new financial undertakings. But it is seriously to be doubted if the west is even as well prepared. There business has been active. A great deal of it has been done on borrowed capital. The manufacturer and merchant have reached their credit limit. Now, there is a slight pause. Business is slightly off the edge in the central west.

ACUTE BUSINESS IN TORONTO MARKET

Traders Look Vainly For Signs of Relief From Exciting Apathy.

STOCKS AT DEAD LEVEL

Brazilian Holds Within Narrow Range and General List Is Unchanged.

While speculation showed a disposition to broaden out to certain extent, the Toronto stock market continued in a rut on Saturday. The vast majority of the general favorites were given over to apathy, and even those which came in for attention from traders did not get any material distance from their recent levels. In truth, an absolute lack of initiative was shown, with public interest at a low ebb and no feature observable.

COALERS SLUMPED ON ADVERSE NEWS

Rumors of Further Attacks by Government Are Decidedly Disquieting.

POOR STEEL SHOWING

NEW YORK, May 10.—The decision of the department of justice, as reported from Washington, to institute proceedings under the anti-trust law against certain of the coal-carrying roads, made the stocks of these companies the target of speculative attack today. Bear traders succeeded in hammering down the prices of the stocks to levels which the declines ranged from 1 to 15 points. The effect on sentiment of this movement was underlined by continuation of liquidation of investment stocks, some of which touched the low point of several years. New York Central sold under 30. Low records for the year were made by nearly a dozen stocks.

BULL MOVEMENT IN MINING STOCKS

Quite a Little Enthusiasm Develops in Exchange at the Week-End.

SMART ADVANCES MADE

The mining market ran into quite a bull movement at the week-end, half a dozen of the usual favorites coming in for a renewed demand, with the result that prices were run up in short order. The floating supply of stock was plainly in the hands of those who were making bids were raised. There was clear evidence of the sustained nature of the buying.

BULLS PERSISTENT WHEAT ADVANCES

Cold Weather in Southern Europe Aids Campaign at Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Determined bull leadership in the face of several strong bearish factors today advanced wheat 1/4 to 5/8. Corn finished 1/2 to 3/4 up and oats 3/4 to 1/2 higher. Provisions closed a shade to 1/2 off.

Because of Whitman's holiday at Liverpool, the wheat market was largely home-made. Bull sentiment was apparent from the first, all options except May, which was weak at the start after yesterday's flurry.

Acceleration of movement came when wheat bulged at Minneapolis, shorts there being driven to cover and finding offers in the market.

Receipts of farm produce were 200 bushels of grain, 6 loads of hay, about 10 wagons and buggies containing mixed produce, in the north building, and a fair supply of butter and eggs, but very little poultry.

Wheat—One hundred bushels sold at 80c. Oats—One hundred bushels sold at 40c. Hay—Six loads sold at $16 to $17 per ton.

Potatoes—Prices range from 75c to 90c per bag delivered. Apples—Choice No. 1 Spies are worth from $4.50 to $5.

Butter—The wholesale market is easier and a little lower for the bulk of sales, although the St. Lawrence market also was a little lower for the bulk of sales.

Eggs—The wholesale market for eggs was about one cent per dozen firmer. Eggs sold on the St. Lawrence market as a rule from 25c to 26c per dozen.

Poultry—Since spring light has become more plentiful, the demand for poultry has eased off. Turkeys, hens, 25c to 30c; chickens, 15c to 20c.
