Regina, Sask., Oct. 6.—The world's record for grain trains is believed to have been shattered by the C. P. R. yesterday.

One mile in length, a monster train of 125 cars of wheat was operated over the line between Stoughton and Arcola. The contents of the cars weighed 8,866 tons which with a tare of 2,980 tons, made a total weight hauled by a single engine of 7,886 tons. The great string of cars contained approximately 185,000 bushels of wheat.

American Hunters Are Up To Average

Fredericton, Oct. 6.—The number of American sportsmen hunting big game in New Brunswick has increased to a level to be about the average although the moose hunting season has not been open long. A change in the distribution of the parties is noticeable however. Fredericton which used to be the main point of entrance for all sections had very few so far. Newcastle and Plaster Rock have had many, however.

The reason for this is assigned to the system followed by the Canadian National Railways in routing American sportsmen from points on lines in the United States operated by the C. N. R. so as to keep them on C. N. R. lines all the way.

CURZON'S STATEMENT CRITICIZED

London Press Impatient that Definite Policy is Not Declared.

ACTION ASKED FOR

Increased Need for British Intervention Urged by The Times.

(Canadian Press Cable.)

London, Oct. 6.—It cannot be said that Lord Curzon's statement before the Imperial Conference received a warm reception from the press. While there are indulgent comments on some parts of the official summary of the news, the newspapers, a majority of the editorial display impatience that no definite British policy was revealed and that this country apparently is to wait to see what France does.

That section of the Liberal press represented by the Westminster Gazette and the Daily News is gratified at being able to deduce from the statement that the Government's attitude towards the rights and wrongs in the Ruhr occupation is unchanged and that Premier Baldwin has apparently continued to maintain the same policy. These newspapers, however, express urgent anxiety that something be done, believing that a revival of British trade and a reduction of unemployment are impossible until something is achieved to relieve the economic situation.

Chronicle Indignant.

The Daily Chronicle, representing the views of David Lloyd George, writes indignantly:

"Rarely were expectations raised so high. Never were they bumped so heavily on to emptiness."

The Daily Mail calls for a definite statement of what the Government proposes to do, and asks whether the Foreign Secretary is trying to lead the Entente.

The governmental Morning Post thinks the statement will satisfy all reasonable Englishmen.

Need For Intervention.

The Times fears that part of Lord Curzon's remarks are likely to provoke resentment in France, and believes the Government should be more definite.

EX-PREMIER RECEIVES OVATION

Welshman and Party Cheered as They Leave for Canada.

GUESTS OF C. N. R.

Strong Police Guard Will Meet Train on Arrival at Montreal.

(Canadian Press.)

New York, Oct. 6.—The five car special train bearing the party of David Lloyd George, former Premier of Great Britain, to Montreal, on the first lap of his tour of Canada and the U. S., pulled out of Grand Central Station at 8.44 a. m. today.

Guests of C. N. R.

After being guided by police and detectives through a cheering throng of admirers in the star-domed concourse of the big station, the dapper little Welshman and party were escorted in the private car "Ottawa," in which, as guests of Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C. N. R., they will live throughout their travels on tour.

Was First Up.

Although he had been first up, after one of the most strenuous days of a long and arduous career, Lloyd George was bright eyed and smiling and the most cheerful of his party. He talked little but smiled a lot, waving his black waist stick and doffing his square crowned derby in acknowledgment of the shouts which accompanied his entrance of limousines from the Waldorf Astoria to the station.

The diminutive statesman was up at 6:30 this morning, long before other members of his party were abroad, and hurried to the train, where he was already having filled with guests eager for a sight of the famous invalid.

Much in Demand.

The flood of invitations from western cities which Lloyd George received yesterday and last night induced him to take under advisement this morning a proposal that he extend his Canadian tour westward from Winnipeg to Vancouver and Pacific coast states, it was announced by Peter B. Krus, U. S. author who is managing the visitor's programme.

Mr. Krus said, however, he "doubted very much whether the present itinerary could be altered." Lloyd George was to have gone from Winnipeg down into Minnesota, to circle south and eastward back to New York.

Montreal's Plans.

Oct. 6.—A military band will play Welsh airs, girls in Welsh national costumes, and some of the most prominent citizens of Montreal will be on the flag-bedecked platform of the Bonaventure railway station when ex-premier Lloyd George arrives here tonight.

Special police arrangements have been made to handle the record crowds which are expected to crowd the station and its environs. The distinguished visitor will be met by Mayor Martin and a civic reception committee.

All Montreal will be in ete for the 48-hour visit of the former Premier, the streets will be bedecked, while the meeting at which he is scheduled to meet before leaving to face his trial.

9-Year-Old Wanders 17 Days In Woods and Comes Out Unharmed

Saskatoon, Sask., Oct. 6.—After 17 days of wandering alone in the wilderness around The Pas, Man., George MacLeod, a 9-year-old Indian boy, was found yesterday unharmed. Except for a quantity of matches, he had no supplies with him in the 100 or more miles of his travels, but according to his story, which cross-examination failed to shake, he made himself a bow and arrows and lived off the country.

Seventeen days previous the child ran away from McKay Boarding School at the Big Eddy, six miles from The Pas. He was found at Sturgeon Landing. To reach there he would have to make his way through bush and around deep bays, and cover a distance of at least 100 miles.

He said that he had made himself a bow and arrows with which he had killed rabbits, chickens and other small game. He had found no difficulty in catching all the fish he wanted, and once got away unscathed with two large bass from a trapper's cabin.

Old timers at The Pas experienced in hiking put the boy through a grueling cross-examination and had to admit the youngster possessed a natural sense of direction and resourcefulness without equal so far as their memory goes.

PHILADELPHIA SALOONKEEPERS DEFY PINCOT'S ORDER TO CLOSE

1,300 Remain Open—Injunction May be Asked by the State.

Philadelphia, Oct. 6.—Most of Philadelphia's 1,300 saloons and cafes remained open Wednesday despite notices warning them to strip their bars and cease business. The joint campaign of Governor Pinchot and the Federal Department of Justice continued without disorder. Traveling in pairs, state police and government agents visited hundreds of places during the day, serving the closing order on the proprietors or their representatives.

The majority of the saloon keepers apparently paid but little attention to the order and continued their business as usual. Francis J. Manney, chief counsel of the Retail Liquor Dealers' Protective Association, after a conference with officials of that organization, characterized the campaign as "meanest," "preposterous" and "without sanction of law." He declared members of the association would ignore the order.

State officials said they had obtained ample evidence of liquor selling and were prepared to go into the Federal courts for injunctions against saloon keepers who failed to comply with the order.

United States District Attorney Coles declared that the government would force the matter to the limit, "no matter how dependent upon it," he said, "the Attorney-General of the United States means business."

UNDECIDED AS YET AS TO HER CAREER

New York, Oct. 5.—Miss Megan Lloyd George, petite daughter of the former British Premier, arrived today with her father and mother and submitted to an interview when coming up the bay from Quebec.

Small, rosy-cheeked, smiling, the likeness of her mother, Miss Lloyd George unblushingly admitted she was twenty-one years old and "not in love."

She said she had just finished school and was not in a position to say whether she would pursue a political career, or whether she would settle the weighty question of choosing between a career and marriage.

Asked if she approved of women smoking cigarettes, she remarked: "I know nothing about it."

ADMITS KILLING STRANGER. Kels Burned Body and Fled to Let Wife Get Insurance

Eureka, Cal., Oct. 6.—Alex Kels, a wealthy butcher of Lodi, confessed to the authorities that he killed a stranger on his ranch near Lodi, September 12, set fire to a haystack near his automobile to burn the body, and disappeared to enable his wife to collect insurance amounting to $100,000.

Kels told the officers, they said, that his action was taken because he was in financial distress. Who the man was he killed, he declared, he did not know. He picked up the stranger at a Lodi free employment agency, he said, and took him to his ranch, where he shot him. He then put the body in the automobile, heaped hay around the machine, set fire to it and fled.

For nearly three weeks, the body has been believed to be that of Kels. It had been buried after one of the most elaborate funeral services ever held in San Joaquin County, at which 8,000 persons were present.

Kels said he had not expected to realize on the insurance money but to assure his wife of getting it and enabling her to discharge business obligations he had contracted. Mrs. Kels is in a serious condition at her home in Lodi and has not been told that Kels is alive and under arrest. Kels was arrested here Monday night. He said he had been traveling throughout the southwest since his disappearance from Lodi.

A former resident of Lodi recently notified the authorities that he had seen Kels in Reno, Nev., and the latter finally was traced to Eureka.

She's a Nursemaid To Butterflies

MISS GERTRUDE ROSENBERG.

(By Milton Bronner.)
London is a city of some 7,500,000 people and Miss Gertrude Rosenberg has a job for which there is no parallel in all the vast expanse of the giant city.

She is a butterfly girl. No, she isn't a skirt dancer and she isn't in the movies, and she doesn't do a stunt in vaudeville. The title describes her exactly. She deals in butterflies. She collects them. She nursemaids them.

Every morning when she opens her shop in the Kensington district of London she is surrounded by beautifully colored moths and butterflies, most of which were not in existence as such the night before. Some time during the night they had hatched out from their cocoons.

Her father, W. F. Rosenberg, is a well-known naturalist who deals in all kinds of specimens. When the war came, he joined the army and his daughter, who had been secretary to a member of Parliament, took charge of who are mad to keep silk worms. You always find children around the windows watching the newly-emerged moths and butterflies. We keep all kinds in stock. I can supply you with live specimens which are very brilliantly colored, and only cost a few pennies, and then I have others not so showy, but very rare, which would cost you $150."

THE EVENING TIMES-STAR, ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1923

The Evening Times-Star

ST. JOHN, N. B., OCTOBER 6, 1923

The St. John Evening Times is printed at 27 and 29 Centerbury street every evening (Sundays excepted) by the New Brunswick Publishing Co., Ltd., J. D. McClellan, President. Telephone—Private exchange connecting all departments, Main 2417. The Times has the largest evening circulation of any paper in the Maritime Provinces. Special Advertising Representatives—NEW YORK, Frank R. Northrup, 350 Madison Ave.—CHICAGO, E. J. Fowler, 432 North Dearborn St. The Audit Bureau of Circulation audits the circulation of The Evening Times.

THE PROBE

"Robbery" is becoming a familiar word in Toronto newspaper comment on the Home Bank performance. "The curator's report," says The Telegram, "shows that the shareholders in the Home Bank were robbed of nearly $2,000,000 and depositors in the Home Bank were robbed of $10,000,000 because the Home Bank was wrecked by thieves or the dupes of thieves. A bank cannot be wrecked by the mischances of business so long as the directors and other leaders of a bank prove themselves honest and solvent and lend the money of their depositors and shareholders to the bank's customers in commerce. A bank can be wrecked by the crimes of greed and dishonesty when the directors and other leaders of a bank prove themselves dishonest and unscrupulous and lend the money of the bank's shareholders and depositors, to their own confederates in crime."

Here we have a set of accusations, direct or implied, the value of which will be tested as the crisis proceeds.

It is in this, as in all cases where the law steps in, it is advisable not to denounce the accused as guilty before the court has found them so. It is a good rule, not to be departed from. But it is true that the Home Bank was wrecked, and the reasons at hand are sufficient to warrant the demand now ringing from one end of Canada to the other for a fearless and impartial trial of all concerned, a prosecution disregarding everything but the public interest. Sound banking is not on trial in Canada, and around banking or worse is the rare exception. That is to be kept in mind. The case in hand is one marked by exceptionally gross betrayal of the depositors and shareholders—by whom, and whether through folly or criminal action the public may have its opinion but that is for the courts to say.

The Canadian courts may be relied upon. They are no respecters of persons. It is for the prosecution to dig deep and resolutely in producing the facts, and in presenting its significance. Only in that way can the courts get the case the treatment it deserves. The Home Bank case should have a sort of turning point in the history of such matters in Canada. The outcome of it should be the setting of an example too pointed and too sweeping to be forgotten. The scope of the prosecution will not necessarily be confined to the list of men already under charges. It may well be that as the investigation proceeds, others, who can be shown to have been in an extraordinary degree, may be placed on the list.

YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT IT

There is published today in The Times and in the Telegraph-Journal an illuminating story about the wonderfully practical and varied work carried on constantly at the Health Centre, a story every citizen should read because to understand it is to see what is needed. To the average citizen agreeable surprise and a new sense of appreciation will come on reading the facts, and with the knowledge there should come also a conviction of personal responsibility as a citizen. Next Saturday there will be a tag day to secure an indispensable addition to the funds needed to carry on the work of care, of cure, of amelioration, of prevention which has assumed such admirable proportions under skilful and sympathetic direction, and the published facts are a necessary preparation for the day of giving.

What does the Health Centre do? It does with scientific and friendly care a wonderful work which formerly was done in a haphazard way or not at all through the lack of proper facilities and organized personnel. In the Centre, occupying every available space, are all the important health agencies of the city except the hospitals. Here are the Board of Health, the district medical health officer, the social hygiene physician, the day headquarters of the Victorian Order of Nurses, the tuberculosis clinic, eye and ear clinics, the well baby clinic, and the dental clinic where treatment of poor children is free. One speaking illustration of the hour's needs is found in the need for eye-glasses for children whose parents are too poor to buy them. Since the eye clinic for poor children was opened glasses have been supplied in forty-six cases, but the small fund for that purpose was quickly exhausted and today there are at least one hundred unaided children in the city who need glasses but whose parents cannot buy them. The home visiting by nurses, the care of mothers, the work among children below the school age, and the warfare against venereal diseases are other features. Now, the Health Centre itself, conducted by President (Chief Justice) McClellan, and the volunteers of the Health Centre Association, has no salaried staff. The Provincial Department of Health pays Mr. Warwick, Dr. McCarthy, Dr. Mabel Hamilton and Miss Melville, and the Provin-number of additional words. Gripping his young friend's arm he said in a perturbed whisper, "No, I have not heard of it. But, for God's sake, don't tell Choate."

Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, in his address before the Halifax Commercial Club on Thursday evening, quoted Sir Wilfrid Laurier's declaration that it was the intention to have Canadian traffic pass through Canadian channels. "That," he said, "is all we Maritime Province men want; they are the words of a man who saw a great vision. All we ask is that his successors, irrespective of parties, shall join hands to make his dreams come true—that is good enough for us."

The Imperial Conference represents a "real League of Nations," says the Wall Street Journal. It notes that the Premier is not debating the solidarity of the Empire for "the great war demonstrated that in an extraordinary way." "Sensible Americans," it says, "will have nothing but hearty good wishes for this real League of Nations—the world's best guarantee for peace."

Mr. E. A. Schofield, in the discussion of Maritime colonization, very properly asks for something definite and concrete from the transportation companies and others concerned. Increased permanent and satisfactory settlement demands more than resolutions and outlined plans. And there is no more important problem confronting these provinces.

How fast government costs rise! No country escapes the increase. A few years ago the Americans were crying out over the extravagance of the first "billion dollar Congress." Today it is said that if sharp economy is insisted upon next year's expenditures may be kept down to $3,000,000,000.

It is all very well to tell the Americans that George Washington's influence has made the British Empire democratic, but there is some danger that they may take it seriously. In a prohibition country strong wine of that sort is likely to go to the heads of a lot of people—there.

It is significant that the Premier of Nova Scotia goes on record unreservedly against prohibition of the export of pulpwood. He thinks that in this matter the provincial governments should be masters in their own houses.

PERSEPHONE'S FAREWELL (Florence Van Cleve in N. Y. Times). The cock-birds wait for me; see the migrant birds assemble in the sky. The Autumn wind is whispering through the trees; and all things tell me that I must depart.

Our task is done, O Mother! See the beautiful with harvest; see the purple grapes with ripening fruit; see the purple grapes with ripening fruit; see the purple grapes with ripening fruit. Through many a Summer day to bring to pass this consummation of our Springtime dream. We helped the plowman lay his furrow straight; Guided the sower's hand who sowed the seed; Brooded above the tiny infant leaves, and hid their tender buds from the sun's heat. Now comes the harvest—and our task is done.

Demeter, Mother, men forget me now! Their hearts are jubilant with harvest-time; And I were sad but for the thought of you. Who waits my coming in the Under World? His only Spring is my return to him. With summer of apple-blossoms in my hair; His only Summer is my burning lips, Red with the touch of the life-giving sun; And sitting at his side on that dark Throne I'll tell my memories, like carved beads Upon a rosary, and by his heart Who looks to me alone for happiness.

So farewell, Mother—may you not mind It is but for a time; when cold and gloom And bitter winds have tamed the hearts of men. Till they desire me with a strong desire, I shall return, with rapture in my breast. And Spring shall beckon to the world again.

IN LIGHTER VEIN. A Common Mistake. "Most divorces are caused by a very common mistake." "What is it?" "Many a man in love only with a dimple or a curl makes the mistake of marrying the whole girl."

Put Politely. He was a very polite man, and did not know what to reply when his pretty partner asked if he had not met before. He put his hand to his forehead reflectively. "Yes," he said, "I think I have had the pleasure—and you the experience."

Stocking Up. Mrs. Blake—Husbands are strange creatures. Her Friend—Aren't they? John has to ask his garage man a hundred questions about the band and manufacture before he puts a drop of oil into the car, but he never asks his bootlegger a single question for fear of hurting his feelings.

A Business Hit. Senior Partner—What title shall we give our new beauty book? Junior Partner—How would "How to Become Beautiful" do? Senior Partner—Don't believe that would make a hit with most women. Junior Partner—Then we'll call it "How to Continue Beautiful." Senior Partner—Ah, that's the stuff!

Mr. Dooley On "The Gift of Oratory"

By FINLEY PETER DUNNE

"I see," said Mr. Dooley, "that a society has been formed to stop after-dinner oratory and I expect every day to read that the rooms has been raised by the polis. Th' only way you can prevent an after-dinner orator from orating after dinner is to arrange him. It wouldn't do any good not to ask him to th' bank. He'd go anyhow. He'd disguise himself as a waiter or console himself behind th' potted

"I've been thinking a regular meal in a dining lunch he would see an' down to th' waitress see."

palms an' so on as th' dimmy-faces came on he'd leap out an' begin! "Misther Chairman an' gentlemen, I am reminded by this occasion iv a story that I got fr'm me Ol' friend, Dock Hosterter—an' so on."

"I told ye a long time ago what a turrible fist I made iv it, how I forgot to commit any part iv the oration to m' memory an' th' result was th' printed in brackets like: applause, an' prolonged laughter, cries, 'No, no, no, no!' like an' how without utterin' a wurrud I sunk to me chair a mule, inglorious Dun!

"Since then I go to a bank iv th' Dimmycratic club on'y to injure myself by watchin' at the fellows that expect to be called on fr' speeches an' observe th' wealthy contractor that has just been elected gov' without any inhibition because he don't know which fork to use."

"I don't believe in barkin' methods. Little by little th' mind an' body should be strengthened. They shud be encouraged to shut up. All come papers shud be kept fr'm them. NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 38 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent. air and 6 per cent. common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, O. K. Johnson, 246 Craig St. W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

They have to express opinions right off the stove on ivry known subjik in language that ivry man will remember an' repeat, an' that they can't change without somebody diggin' up what they said."

"'Always my friend," said Mr. Dooley impressively; then, with a convincing wave of his hand: "If he's a hard orator I vote again him instinkively, an' if he's a good wan who's awayed me soul I always do so as a kind iv an act of contribution fr' lettin' me feelin' make a fool iv me."

"Divorce O. K.—As Last Resort"

(By George Britt, NEA Service Writer) Chicago—"I am not opposed to divorce, I am in favor of it." This is from Judge Joseph Sabath of the Superior Court of Cook County, who has heard more divorce cases and granted more decrees of divorce than any other judge in the land. But the statement is not complete until it is mentioned that he holds the record also for bringing wrangling, discontented, uncomprehending couples into harmony again. The overwhelming majority of his reconciliations, too, have been permanent.

MANY PATRONS AT ORPHANS' FAIR

The New Brunswick Protestant Orphanage fair in St. Andrew's rink attracted large crowds last night and in various booths and amusements had generous patronage. The Carleton Cornet Band was in attendance and furnished an excellent musical programme. The rink looks most attractive as it has been arranged for the fair and with the large attendance presented an animated scene last night. Tonight is expected to be an even more successful one. The prize winners last night were as follows: Ten pins, T. Campbell; ring toss, Fred Wilson; excelsior, George Oford; shooting gallery, Albert Duffy; devil-among-the-tails, Oscar Taylor; flood-gates, Mrs. Kirkpatrick; bagatelle, G. R. Hatch; ladies' bean toss, Mrs. William Gray; gentlemen's bean toss, John Henderson. The door prize last night was half a ton of coal and the winning ticket was 894, held by Mrs. Fred Thompson of Princess street. Tonight the 62nd Band will be in attendance and the door prize will be a ton of coal.

HEILMANN AND HORNSBY LEADING

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Harry Heilmann of the Detroit Tigers apparently will be crowned 1923 batting champion of the American League, with Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis succeeding himself as the premier swatter of the National League. With the season closing tomorrow, Heilmann, who won the title in 1921, with an average of .394, has an average of .401, including games played last Wednesday. If this 400 average is maintained in the final games of the race, it will be the sixth time in the history of the American League that a player has batted above .400 for the season. One of the notable achievements of the 1923 race has been the performance of Eddie Collins of the White Sox, who answered the challenge that he was slipping by climbing from twelfth last week to fifth this week, with an average of .380. Collins also is far in the lead in stolen bases, with a record of 47. Ruth is 14 points behind Heilmann.

MEET TO PROMOTE UNION OF CHURCHES

Committee of Methodists and Presbyterians Choose Dr. McIntosh Chairman.

The union committee of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches held a session yesterday afternoon in St. Andrew's church. Rev. R. J. Wilson, of Toronto, representing the general union committee, explained the action of that body in arranging for the conference of the Maritime committee. Executives were organized and arrangements made to hold meetings in the interests of union, at which Rev. Dr. C. W. Gordon will be one of the speakers. Rev. Dr. McIntosh presided.

members responded to their names. Dr. R. J. Wilson was called upon to address the meeting, and briefly set forth the action of the general union committee in arranging for this gathering of Maritime representatives. A Great Movement. He expressed his belief that this union movement was one of the greatest in the history of the Christian church. As illustrating the great need for united effort on the part of the church he cited the facts that in the West there were 300 school sections in which there were no Sunday schools or preaching place of any Protestant denomination. In Saskatchewan there were 800 ministers, missionaries and Christian workers among the old Canadians; among the 200,000 new Canadians there were only 85. He presented the union committee's instructions from General Assembly and suggested it would be helpful to have it given as large publicity as possible. The instructions were as follows: General Assembly Instructions. "The committee is hereby empowered for and on behalf of the General Assembly in its conferences with the like committees of the other negotiating churches and by such conferences with representatives of the minority to use its best efforts by amendment of the proposed legislation or otherwise

AMERICAN EXPERTS STUDYING RAILWAY SYSTEM IN ENGLAND

Interested in Collecting and Delivering Freight Plan at Stage Door.

The English city of Bradford is 280 miles from London. It ships to the metropolis considerable quantities of woollen goods. These with other wares constitute a stream of traffic which flows day after day. The goods are ordinarily delivered to the consignees in London before 9:30 o'clock the next forenoon, and this is done not by the express company or by any extraordinary arrangement, but as part of the routine of the regular freight service of the English railways. Were such a system in effect in this country, goods received at a freight shed in New York at 5 o'clock in the afternoon would be delivered in Boston soon after places of business were opened the next day, the distance from Boston to New York being about the same as that from Bradford to London.

This kind of freight service in England is made possible largely because English railways, operating through affiliated companies, have undertaken the collection and delivery of freight as well as its transportation over their rails. American visitors to London are familiar with the sight of the big motor "lorries" piled high with goods covered with tarpaulins on which are painted the initials of the railways. The trucks are part of a great fleet included in the system of collection and distribution. It is a system in marked contrast to that which obtains in this country. Here the railroads retain the original methods of handling freight at the terminals. It was natural enough in the early days of railroading that the task of the common carrier in the transportation of freight in less than carload lots should be regarded as beginning and ending at the station platform or shed. It is a method of doing business that has persisted regardless of the growth of cities and of the changes that have come in other lines of endeavor. It is haphazard system. Goods coming into the terminal are trundled into a freight shed. The consignee is given notice that the goods are there. He sends for them, either by a vehicle which he owns or securing the services of a truckman. The shipper similarly gets his wares to the railroad freight shed in his own way. The system is one that obviously tends to confusion and delay. And it stands as a barrier to the railroad in the endeavor to "sell" its service to the public.

An English Notion for Yankeland. One of the complaints frequently heard against railroad management in this country is that it devotes time and energy to finances and operation and ignores the methods which in merchandising have been adopted to popularize goods and service. In other words, to use again that perversion of the real meaning of a good English word, the railroad does not "sell" itself. In the matter of freight collection and delivery, it may be said that the railroad is placed at a disadvantage in giving good service, and so in attracting business and this disadvantage arises from practices over which the railroad has no control. Railroad men of vision recognize the necessity of reform. The problem is to find the system best adapted to American needs. As the English plan works well, it is believed that many railroad men that with such modifications as might be advisable to meet somewhat different conditions, it may appear to be strange perversion of English "as she spoke." He will be called upon to remember that the Englishman talks of "cartage" instead of "trucking." Not so easily discerned is reason for calling both the shipper and receiver of freight by the name "trader." The "lorry" is a motor truck. The "van" is a horse-drawn vehicle. Both the driver and the chauffeur are "cartmen." The man who trundles a hand truck in a railway terminal is a "narrower." The cartman who works in a specified district may be called the "roundsman," not implying, however, any connection with the transportation of freight in less than carload lots should be regarded as beginning and ending at the station platform or shed. It is a method of doing business that has persisted regardless of the growth of cities and of the changes that have come in other lines of endeavor. It is haphazard system. Goods coming into the terminal are trundled into a freight shed. The consignee is given notice that the goods are there. He sends for them, either by a vehicle which he owns or securing the services of a truckman. The shipper similarly gets his wares to the railroad freight shed in his own way. The system is one that obviously tends to confusion and delay. And it stands as a barrier to the railroad in the endeavor to "sell" its service to the public.

cellaneous goods," or what, in this country, would be termed by railroad men "less-than-carload" freight. Packages ordinarily weigh 200 pounds or less, each. So into a London terminal flows a vast variety of individual consignments directed to many parts of the world's greatest city. This multitude of packages is first divided with reference to postal districts within the city. As the car is unloaded, a checker, furnished with an invoice, directs the barrower where to take the packages. The British system has been in effect so long that the profession of the barrower is one in which men who enter it in their youth have left it to go on the pension list in their extreme old age. It is not entirely a misnomer to call it a profession. It requires no small degree of specialized knowledge. The barrower becomes acquainted, by name at least, with a great number of London people. They are his familiars. He knows where their goods should be placed without being told. Had Dickens or Thackeray lived in these later days he might have found much material in the observations of a barrower.

But what of the van loader? He also is the possessor of much specialized knowledge. It is his task to load vans. He must do so in such a manner as to facilitate delivery. The roundsman cannot be expected to turn back upon his rounds because the van loader puts in the front of the van a package which should have been at the rear. So the van loader acquires the memory and the ability to arrange the contents of the van in such fashion that there shall be no lost motion as the roundsman makes his rounds, and the van loader must do this while at the same time he sees to it that a bag of flour does not rest on a package which contains a cut glass vase. It is claimed that, thanks to training and system, this English system of freight delivery keeps the van loader's work as light and untroublesome as that which is regarded as the possible minimum in handling freight on this side of the water.

As the Goods Are Delivered. The work of the actual deliverer of the goods may not seem to be done chiefly in the forenoon. Distances are short in England. The goods train comes in during the afternoon and the van loader are on the job in the early morning. The roundsman makes a circuit of his rounds early in the morning. The delivery is completed by noon. In the afternoon his time is devoted to collections, in order that the goods may not be piled up in the streets. The roundsman is delivered to the consignee before twelve o'clock noon and that it is common practice to give twenty-four-hour notice for this kind of traffic to places 200 miles distant from the point of origin. In the case of the Bradford goods, and in some other cases, the distances are even greater.

These daily collections and deliveries are not only convenient to themselves, but they serve to keep them in touch with the patronage. They afford means for enabling the railways to "sell" themselves to that part of the public which is not in the habit of shipping in the mass mean a vast deal of business.

Where the Motor Truck Comes In. The English system of collection and delivery of freight is not primarily one that concerns itself with the motor truck. It was established before the coming of the truck. Horse-drawn vehicles still have place in it. The truck or lorry has been adopted, not because it made the system possible, but because it was an added facility of great efficiency. In this country, however, the development of motor truck traffic has undoubtedly given great impetus to the demand for the adoption of some such methods as those of the English railways in the handling of terminal business. The competition of the truck with the railroad enters into the consideration of the problem. It goes without saying that the field of profitable operation of the commercial vehicle on the highways will in some degree be determined by the speed and efficiency with which freight is picked up at the store door at one end of a rail route and delivered at the store door at the other. In fact, transportation experts, when they discuss the collection and delivery question, link it up with the question of motor truck competition.

To Meet American Requirements. The proposition to adapt this English system to American requirements is still in the tentative stage, but there is a growing recognition of the fact that our present methods are entirely lacking in that systematization of effort which has been the boast of many of us were the past masters. When it comes to details, two general plans have been suggested. One contemplates the organization of a nation-wide enterprise, comparable to national express, that would act in co-operation with the railroads and handle collection and delivery in the cities. The other plan looks to the creation of

While testimony is at hand to show that in one respect the English critic of their own system, it would not be fair to give the impression that it is not popular. Mr. C. F. Horner, consulting engineer of the General Motors Corporation, who has made exhaustive study of the question, spending a long time in England for the purpose, obtained opinions from a number of representative business organizations, who agreed in saying that it would be regarded as a misfortune were the railroad companies to discontinue collecting and delivering freight. These organizations included the Federated Associations of Boot and Shoe Manufacturers of Great Britain and Ireland, National Association of Biscuit Manufacturers of Great Britain, Association of British Chemical Manufacturers, British Food Manufacturers' Federation, Silk Association of Great Britain and Ireland, and the Leicester Chamber of Commerce. Why Alexander Wept. The teacher was telling about the conquests of Alexander the Great, and related how after he had conquered India, instead of giving a great feast to celebrate his triumph, he sat down and wept. "Now, children," she asked, "why do you think Alexander wept?" "Up went a little hand. "Well, Bobby, you may tell," she said. "Please miss," said the little fellow, "perhaps he didn't know the way back."

Such a success in each city. However, the ownership might be distributed, it is intended of course that these new transportation agencies would work as part of the national transportation system. What is regarded in England as a defect in the system there is the multiplication of services, each English railway having its own agency for collection and distribution. Perhaps there may be here a chance for the Americans to go the English one better. Certain of their lorries. They apparently were as quick as Americans in seeing that time might be saved in furnishing a motor truck with more than one body. The English have also adopted to some extent the container in which goods are packed by the shipper and which is then picked up bodily and transported to the railroad. But we may yet have devices that are now unknown as aids in the handling of package freight and so in making the railroads of greater value, especially to large number of shippers who individually have comparatively little business to offer it.

John Janeda and his dogs. Betty, Jimmy, Brownie, Jack and Daisy were the canine rescuers possessed of the stuff from which heroes are made. While their master slept they kept watch. Suddenly smoke drifted into the bunk house and the crackle of flames eating away rose above the slaps of the river water. Barking and whimpering, the dogs ran to the bed of their master, who had been stupified by the smoke, and pawed at his blankets.

They aroused him and with supreme effort he rose and followed them to safety, only just in time to escape the tongue of fire which ran through the room. Today three of the boat dweller's dog friends lick at the burns received on their rescue mission. But they forget these injuries and scamper joyously when Janeda clumps his way up the gangplank of the houseboat which he is repairing.

DESPITE ITS QUIET, LONDONERS FIND THEIR CITY TOO NOISY

Complain of Tide of Sound Rising All Around Them.

London, Sept. 14.—(By mail.)—One of the first impressions that observers Americans coming from their own noisy, bustling cities, get of London is its serene quiet. Turn off any of the busiest highways, and in a few yards the stillness of the side-streets is soothing to the ear. One may walk blocks and blocks without hearing the sounds of a phonograph coming from any window, and the curbs are almost deserted, automobiles not being so common as in America. Those that do roll down the streets give warning of their coming by old-fashioned horns, never so irritating as ear-splitting sirens. Only in a few offices is the typewriter replaced by the pen.

There is a noticeable absence of children with their noisy games. Except in the poorer quarters they do not congregate on the sidewalks and streets. That is one of the things that isn't done. Yet many Londoners think their capital terribly noisy. Of those who loved the easy, jazzless age before the war, some are beginning to complain of the tide of sound ever rising all around them. Stanley Rowland has just printed at length against "the crime of noise," in an article in the Nineteenth Century. Motor-horns cause him anguish, motorcycles fret his nerves, jazz music he cannot tolerate. But the growing noise of the home fire blins as much as the inevitable racket of the streets, the cafes and dance halls.

Those Mr. Rowland falls with his pen include persons who alarm doors instead of quietly turning the knob, and those who walk with pompous plumpings of their shoes. The man who rustles his newspaper with crackling explosions also bothers the ear. If noise keeps on breeding noise, the writer declares, the prospect is pandemonium.

So far nothing has been done about it.

GIRL CLERK $25,000 SHORT, POLICE SAY

Rose Fritz, 22 Arrested for Larceny in Connection With Checks.

Boston, Oct. 6.—Charged with stealing $1,500 from a Chauncy street silk dealer by whom she was employed, Miss Rose Fritz of Roxbury, 22-year-old bookkeeper, was arrested on a lower court warrant by Police Inspectors Dorsey and Augusta, which was walking on the street in Dorchester.

The police allege that the thefts were effected by means of raised and forged checks, and that there is a shortage of between $20,000 and $25,000 in her accounts. Her employer, William Solomon, said that the amount of the alleged discrepancies in her accounts had not yet been determined. Auditors are now examining her books.

Taxi Rides, She Says
Miss Fritz, who lives in Roxbury, was taken to police headquarters and booked, then confined in the city prison. When asked at headquarters what she had done with the money she vaguely replied, according to the officers, that she had taken "rides in taxis and spent it for things of that sort."

Involved in the case, the police say, is a check which was raised from $122 to $222, and a $250 check bearing the forged signature of William Solomon. Five other checks, all of them alleged to have been forged, are in the hands of the investigators. All these checks were drawn on the Boylston National Bank.

The girl lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Fritz, and her four sisters at Roxbury. Her relatives were astounded when they learned from newspaper men of her arrest.

For the past two and a half years she had been bookkeeper for Mr. Solomon, having charge of all his accounts, including the payroll of his employees, who were, in addition to herself, only a salesman and an office boy.

Mr. Solomon said that she had impressed him as an honest and modest girl, and the last person he would suspect of doing a wrong. Supt. in control on her last Monday, when Mr. Solomon, in going over the bank statements, noticed that a check which should have read $122 was for $222. It is alleged that he also found a forged check for $250.

For an explanation she said: "I know nothing about them." She then left the office on her last Monday. He informed the police, and her arrest resulted. Auditors have been working on the books since Monday.

Arrangements for the series of gospel services which will be held this winter were made yesterday at the meeting of the spiritual committee of the King's Daughters and approved by the general meeting which followed. Last year the gospel service had for their theme "The Christian Armor" and that was the first year in which a subject was decided upon to cover the whole of the series. The subject decided upon for this year is "The Manhood of Christ." Mrs. Austin, the convener, presided at the meeting of the spiritual committee and Mrs. Edith Stevens, vice-president, was in the chair for the general meeting. At the general meeting satisfactory reports were presented by the various committees. The sum of $25 was voted towards Japanese relief.

HEAD IS FOUND FOR UNIDENTIFIED BODY

Man's Form in Pittsburgh Bath- house Is Discovered By Boys.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 6.—Three boys playing on the bank of the Monongahela river found the head of a man imbedded a foot or more in the sand. It is believed to be that from the body of a white man found in the girls' dressing room of the southeast bathing pool. The boys, among hundreds of others who had attracted the river bank all day, were attracted by a few wisps of hair in a pile of small rocks. Polking among the rocks and sand with sticks, they uncovered the head, which was taken to the morgue and placed beside the headless body.

The body remained unidentified, but language experts declared that an inscription in Arabic tattooed on the left arm was the name, "Hassan Mahmud." The head of a woman was tattooed on the right arm and above it another inscription which the experts have been unable to interpret.

City detectives declared they were without a clue to the mystery. After examination of the body at the morgue it was declared that the man had been beheaded by an unusually large knife and the opinion was advanced that more than one person was involved in the killing.

A snapshot photograph of three girls found in the man's clothing, which had been placed beside the huddled body, was the only clue, and detectives have been unable to identify the young women.

SENDS NEWS FROM EARTHQUAKE ZONE

Rev. E. C. Hennigar Writes of the Great Japan- ese Disaster.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hennigar, 25 Orange street, have received a letter from their son, Rev. E. C. Hennigar, a missionary to Japan, describing his experiences in the earthquake which devastated that country early last month.

The letter was written on September 5, four days after the disaster. Rev. Mr. Hennigar was in his home at Karuzawa on September 5 and was upstairs when the first shock was felt. He rushed downstairs and from the house. As he stood on the lawn he watched the house reel like a drunken thing, while the ground around it moved up and down in undulating waves. The shock continued for about three minutes, and on its cessation he went back into the house. Hardly had he got inside when another shock began. These continued at gradually lengthening intervals for four days. When the letter was written they were very slight, infrequent and of short duration.

The damage in Karuzawa was slight, only two small houses collapsing, and other damage of a minor character occurring. The residents first thought that Mount Asama, a neighboring volcano, was in eruption, and as all communication between them and Tokio was cut off it was not until the day following the first quake that they learned even an inkling of the full extent of the damage, and the terrible disaster that had befallen Tokio and Yokohama.

A party of men started for Tokio as soon as they got word of the destruction there, but they had to go on foot as all railway communication was interrupted and bridges destroyed. The word they brought back was that half of Tokio and almost all of Yokohama was in ruins.

Mr. Hennigar wrote that the fire in Tokio caused even more damage than the earthquake. The effects were worse in the centre of the city, the outer rim escaping fairly well. The Central Park was destroyed, but the Central Compound was only partially wrecked. The Asulin school escaped sprang up in all directions. A strong wind began to blow and there was no means of checking the flames as the water mains were broken.

The destruction was even more complete in Yokohama where it was reported that only two buildings were left standing and they were partially burned. The Standard Oil Company tanks burst, flooding the harbor with blazing oil which menaced the shipping.

Early reports informed them that Dr. Coates had lost his life in the disaster but fortunately these proved to be without foundation. Miss Minnie Robertson, of St. John, also was safe, although badly shaken up. The letter mentioned the good work done by the

Puffed Wheat and Milk— a complete food

Puffed Wheat and Milk make a combination which is practically a complete food. Wheat in itself contains sixteen of the essential food elements. Milk supplies the vitamins. In Puffed Wheat, all the food elements are retained, but the grains are made more palatable and digestible by steam explosion, which breaks up every food cell.

SATISFACTION

A seemingly low price for an article is always attractive, but unfortunately frequently misleading. How often is heard the remark—"I would rather have paid a little more and got the quality I wanted."

As a matter of fact that "little more" was necessary to obtain the better quality. Good goods require a higher price to be good.

There are cheaper than "KING COLE"—but would you be satisfied with their quality?

Dry Chief Chains Beer To Ry. Tracks

New York, Oct. 6.—Prohibition Director Chamberlin of Newark directed that a freight car loaded with high-powered beer from Philadelphia be chained to the tracks of the Lehigh Valley Railroad in the South Broad street station until the railroad gives a bond for its removal.

A chain and padlock were also placed upon the door of the car and the doors were sealed with the Government seals. Chamberlin adopted this novel method of enforcing the prohibition law when his agents reported they had intercepted trucks carrying cartons of the Philadelphia beer from the railroad yards.

BOSTON BARBERS ALL CUT UP BY WOMEN'S DEMAND TO JOIN UNION

Request Causes a Storm at Meeting—Action of International Awaited.

Boston, Oct. 5.—The Boston barbers, for the first time in their professional career, are face to face with a perplexing problem that is beginning to cut deeply into their peaceful ways and pursuits. It is all because Boston women tonorial artists demand admission into the barbers' union.

Request Causes a Storm at Meeting—Action of International Awaited. This question of admitting women to members of the union nearly caused civil war at a meeting of the members of the Barbers' Union, local 182. The barbers forgot all about close shaves and trims and many bitter words were exchanged—all, of course, about women trying to get into the union. All that was given out about the session, which was heralded as "decidedly hot," was that "some members favored the idea of letting the women artists in, but many held to their guns and opposed the idea on many grounds."

MARTIN HARVEY TO TOUR CANADA SOON

Bringing Repertoire to Montreal After Successful New York Engagement.

London, Oct. 5.—Sir John Martin Harvey will sail on October 13 on the Adriatic with his entire company, and will open at the Century Theatre, New York, on October 25, in "Oedipus," under the direction of the blessed Shubert. The production will be that presented at the Covent Garden Theatre with the co-operation of Max Reinhardt. It will be followed by "Via Crucis," a version of the "Everyman" legend, with scenery designed by Sir Aston Webb, president of the Royal Academy. The third week will be given to Maeterlinck's "Burgomaster of Silesland." "Hansel" and "The Taming of the Shrew" will be played in the company's last week in New York. Afterwards it will visit Boston, Montreal and Toronto, and after five weeks in Chicago will continue its tour through Canada.

For its New York performance of "Oedipus" an influential honorary citizens' committee has been formed. The scale on which Sir John's productions are conceived may be judged by the fact that he carries with him 100 wardrobe cases and over 100 tons of scenery, furniture and properties.

NOT READY FOR SELF-GOVERNMENT

India's Position Set Out in Lecture to Canadian Club Here.

Yohan Masih, professor of theology of the Canadian Presbyterian Church at Montreal, delivered an interesting address on political conditions in India before the members of the Canadian Club last evening in the La Tour restaurant. He expressed an opinion that conditions were not ripe as yet for the granting of autonomy to the people of India, because they are not fully educated to the responsibilities of self-government.

COCAINE EVIL IN LONDON IS CALLED WIDESPREAD

The general, political, commercial and social unrest which marks our unhappy time, probably accounts for the dangerous self-pruiging which still continues, though the evidence of it has not been so sensational of late. The low-class Chinaman, the mongrel man of color, and the sexually obsessed have not figured in any recent prosecutions, but it is disconcerting to find that proceedings have more than occasionally been taken against perfectly respectable people for improper possession of cocaine, writes the medical correspondent of "The London Morning Post."

A TIME FOR UNITED ACTION

(Moncton Transcript.) The effort which the Maritime Provinces are making to have their just claims properly recognized is in no sense a question of partisan politics, and any attempt to make it so would be injurious to the whole Maritime cause. Letters from persons who have political axes to grind, or who are inspired by other selfish motives, can do nothing but harm at this time. The people of the Maritime Provinces cannot afford to go in for that sort of thing in this crisis.

CHARLEY WHITE PUTS UP GAME BATTLE AGAINST MORAN; IS BEATEN

New York, Oct. 6.—No greater display of gameness has been witnessed by patrons of Madison Square Garden than that of Charley White, of Chicago, who in the fourteenth round of last night's grueling battle succumbed to a fusillade of hooks and uppercuts from the gloves of New Orleans Pat Moran.

The knockout came as a technical one when Referee Haley, instead of completing the count motion, White's handlers to help him to his corner.

A well timed and viciously delivered right hook to the point of the jaw in the eleventh round of the engagement spelled White's doom as boxing's greatest fighter for Benny Leonard's crown. That eleventh round blow did not send White to the canvas but it stunned him and from that delivery until he crumpled on the padded floor in the fourteenth round, he never regained complete control of faculties other than his indomitable spirit.

Down Several Times. From that punch onward White was at the mercy of his foe. Three times in the last three rounds he was knocked down. On the first occasion the tell alone saved him from a knockout. On the second he managed to regain his feet at the count of nine until the bell once more came to his rescue. On the third he grasped the ropes in a neutral corner and pulled himself once more to his feet before the fatal ten was sounded by the referee. Through-out these rounds he was unable to defend himself and only occasionally could he summon sufficient strength to strike back at his opponent.

White had much the advantage in the first 10 rounds of the battle, and those who had regarded odds of 8 to 1 seemed well content. Moran, however, exhibited remarkable come-back powers, shaking off the effects of White's solid hooks in the early rounds and growing stronger as the bout progressed.

Yankee Injuries Worry Followers

Ruth, Pipp and Meusel Intend to Play in World Series.

The fact that Babe Ruth has been added to the growing list of Yankees injured with the world's series less than a week away was an item of news that American League partisans dithered with a wry face yesterday, says the New York Times. Apparently, the Yankees is not ready for the hospital, but the mere announcement that his right ankle is limping him again and that he is limping perceptibly on it was enough to arouse misgivings in the Yankee camp.

Add to this the fact that Wally Pipp, first baseman, and Bob Meusel, left fielder, are somewhat the worse for wear because of minor injuries, and you have a situation that may arrest the Yankees' chances in the classic which starts next week. All three of the Huggins casualties are likely to start the series, but weak ankles and legs are inclined to give away easily, and some of the friends of the Yankees have forgotten the series two years ago, which Ruth started but couldn't finish.

The Babe played right field for the Giants in the John Day-Jim Nutrie benefit game at the Polo Grounds yesterday and limped through five innings of the fray. He was handicapped decidedly in the field, at bat and on the bases by his weak ankle, and he merely hobbled from the base to another. At that he was constantly turning on the ball and driving it foul by a big margin. All of this, however, was only by way of precaution, and if Ruth had to get out and play a hard game, he could probably give an excellent account of himself.

Ruth Declines to Play.
Ruth refused to play in the Yankees' exhibition game at Baltimore on Tuesday, and at first decided not to appear with the Giants yesterday, but, realizing that his presence had been advertised, he went out to right field for five innings. The workout probably did him no good, but he will take it easy between now and Wednesday and ought to be in shape. The injured ankle is still swollen and he is both limping and sore. He was wrenched it recently, and for a time walked with a cane.

The team will be accompanied by Coach Bridges and Manager J. Holman. The Trojans line-up will be: Fullbacks, Fanjoy and Millidge; quarters, Parry, Shaw, Snow and "But" Wilson; halves, A. McGowan, Herbert, Campbell, Armstrong, Gordon, Wilson, "Les" Kerr, Angevine, forwards, Hollis, McMurray, "Beet" Malcolm, D. McGowan, Bender, Grant, Hatfield, Lawson, Akery, Wilson.

Intercollegiate League.
The intercollegiate League opening was scheduled to take place on the Robesay Collegiate School campus this afternoon when the collegians and the High School fifteens were to meet. The line-up of the teams follows: quarters, Hamilton, McIntosh and Scott; halves, Douglas, Richards, Matheson, Gordon; forwards, Montgomery, Walker, Daisel, McAuley, Bredder, Richards, Lawson; spares, Schofield, Purdy, Silas, Robinson.

Wilbert Robinson Calls World's Series Toss-Up

Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn Dodgers is one of the best qualified of all big leaguers to talk about the forthcoming series between the Yankees and the Giants for the world championship, says the Boston Herald. His club played the Yanks in a spring series this year, as they have for the last few springs. And of course he has been fighting his share of games against the Giants during the N. L. championship season. As a source of interview of the All-New York classic, then, Robby is a royal straight flush. Listen to him:

"A year ago, despite my connection with the National League as a manager and my old-time associations with John McGraw, I really thought that the Yanks would win. I based this on what I thought was the superiority in Yankee pitching.

"This year I still look favorably on that Yankee pitching, but am inclined to believe that the series is a toss-up. Somehow or other I feel that McGraw will pull through a winner, but to my very best and closest friend I'd say 'toss-up' if asked for my prediction.

"No question to my way of thinking about the two teams outside of their pitching. The Giants are faster and smarter as a team and excel outside of the box. But I said the same thing last year and the pitching of the Giants was remarkable. McGraw had them up there throwing great ball just when it was required of them. In fact the Giants always do their best when hard set pressed.

Last year the Yankee pitchers, as a rule, handed the Giants a lot of fast ball pitching. Now, that fast ball stuff is what the Giants love. Most teams like the speed stuff, rather than the change of pace, but the Giants seem to be particularly fond of the smoke. On the other hand, last year the Giant pitchers, particularly Jesse Baras, gave the Yanks all sorts of trouble with slow balls. The change of pace is what the American League champions do not relish. I don't blame them that sort of pitching is far and away the most valuable today, tomorrow and all the time.

Of course the pitching will decide the series—that and the breaks. Last year I was afraid of McGraw's pitching, but it proved one of his best assets. History may repeat."

DEMPSEY PAYS HEAVY TAX.
(Ottawa Herald.)
Messrs. Dempsey and Firpo pocketed some $600,000 of the $1,200,000 paid for the privilege of witnessing their recent combat in the Polo Grounds, New York. Tex Rickard, the promoter of the evening's entertainment, got most of the remainder. But these gentlemen are not enriched to the extent the figures indicate. The United States Bureau of Internal Revenue announces that Uncle Sam is the biggest winner from the fight. In the first place the revenue department collected $100,000 as its share of the gate receipts. Now it will collect heavy taxes and super-taxes from the fighters and the promoter. It is estimated that altogether about $500,000 of the $1,200,000 will go to the Federal Government. After that the State of New York will demand its share in the form of state income tax and admission tax. The fight was a profitable thing financially for the public.

"ALL THE BROTHERS WERE VALIANT" WAS THE MOTTO of the family of seafaring men, the last of which was young Joel Shore. Unlike the many who had gone before him, who had died bravely and always in sacrifice to someone else's safety, Joel was not sure of his own courage. He was not afraid of danger; he was afraid he might be afraid. He had not yet been tested. Joel wonders, then, at the outset of the story, whether it will be written about him, in the log book of the House of Shore, "All the Brothers Were Valiant." The story is the proof of his worthiness of being included in this proud legend.

TAKE OVER RIVER GLADE ON OCT. 31

Provincial Gov't Then to be in Control—Dr. McAvenny's Regret.

The Province of New Brunswick will, on Oct. 30, take over full control of River Glade Sanatorium. For five years it has been conducted by the Department of Soldiers' Disestablishment, and the province has paid for the care of its own patients there. Now the condition will be reversed and the department will pay the province for soldier patients, while the latter will conduct the sanatorium as a provincial institution.

Hon. C. W. Robinson has written Dr. A. F. McAvenny of St. John that a meeting of the board will be held before the end of the month, in connection with the change. The property will be handed over to the province in first class condition, all necessary repairs and painting being done.

In conversation with the Times this morning Dr. McAvenny referred to the excellent work that has been done at River Glade and in St. John, but lamented that more was not done to combat tuberculosis in most parts of the province. He was convinced that to make a successful fight it must be made a national work.

MANY SPORTSMEN GET THEIR MOOSE

Reports from Lake Utopia and Woods Back of Clarendon.

Joseph Brins of Boston, who is owner of a group of sporting camps at Lake Utopia, near St. George, Charlotte county, is in St. John on a brief visit and will leave on the steamer Governor Dingley tonight for Boston. He brought stories of many moose and deer being seen and good specimens shot in the Lake Utopia country. In five days, up to yesterday morning at least six moose and several deer have been reported bagged by hunters in that vicinity. The records included moose shot by Justice Stewart of St. Stephen, Everett Maxwell of St. George, Curtis Hatt of Utopia, Fred Armstrong of St. George, Hiram Nixon of Waweg and Henry McLean of Elmerston; deer killed by John Armstrong of St. George, Charles Elliot of Black's Harbor and Maurice Eldridge of Beaver Harbor. The locality was upholding its record as a glorious place for the hunter.

Mr. Brins brought along a few large potatoes grown by Edward Mahar at Lake Road, Utopia. There were only four but they weighed 4 lbs 7 1/4 oz., the largest weighed 2 lbs 10 oz., and 1 lb. others 1 lb. 12 oz., 1 lb. 7 oz., and 1 lb. 6 oz.

Mr. Brins has been seeing to the closing of his camps after the summer activities. They are four in number with accommodation for 82 people and lie close to the Lake Utopia shore. Others Successful.

Walter Hinds, who was here last year with Jack Dewdney and with a party of friends is at Jack Doran's camp at Crystal Lake, back of Clarendon, says that it is no trouble to get big game in New Brunswick. Hinds got his moose some time ago; Victor Moore, a member of the party, also shot one, as did Mr. Nobles, another member of the party while Mr. Carpenter shot a fine large buck. Motion pictures of the big game hunt have been taken. Frank Doran, guide of the party, shot a bear.

ASKS IF ST. JOHN WILL HAVE SPORTS THIS WINTER

The Board of Trade received a communication from the New York Evening Post this morning asking for information concerning the possibilities of holding winter sports in St. John during the coming winter.

The letter said that already a great many requests for information of this nature had been received in the United States, from men who instead of going south for the winter, were planning to spend it in the colder climes farther north. They are particularly interested in those places where winter carnivals and programmes of winter sports are to be carried on.

As Hiram Sees It

"Hiram" said The Times reporter to Mr. Hiram Hornbeam, "I saw an odd thing yesterday. Men were loading a sloven with goods from a warehouse. A small dog, with head and tail up, stood in the street and watched them closely. When they had completed the load and the teamster mounted the seat to seize the reins, the dog ran to the horse's head and began to bark. He knew the next move was up to the horse. Not bad for a dog—was it?" "I call it," said Hiram, "that there dog thought he was doin' a lot—just like some folks I seen afore now that stood round an' done the heavy lookin' on—an' coached the fellers that was doin' the real work. Yes, sir—you kin find critters like that wherever there's a job to be done—an' they aint with as much as a good dog. They orto hev a collar put on 'em an' pay a tax fer bein' allowed to live. That there dog was doin' the best he knowed how—an' if every two-legged critter done the same—things 'ud be mighty different—By Hen!"

Two coats will do the work of three coats of Pure White Lead and it covers 25% more surface. It does not turn grey or yellow on exposure, and stands severest weather conditions. Equally good for interior or exterior use. It takes 50% more oil than Pure White Lead and will hide the surface underneath better. Flows beautifully under the brush.
