WAR DECLARED IN THE CAUCASUS.

Tartars Massacring Armenian Christians Wholesale.

Children Flung to the Dogs—Many Forced to Turn Mohammedan to Save Their Lives.

(See also page five.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 12.—A state of war has been proclaimed in the Caucasus districts of Zangezur and Gabriel, where Tartars are killing the Armenians without distinction of sex or age. The country is flooded with bands of Tartars. Many thousands of Tartar horsemen have crossed the frontier from Persia and joined the insurgents in killing Armenians. At the village of Monkend three hundred Armenians were slaughtered. Despatches say that mutilated children were thrown to the dogs and that a few survivors were forced to embrace Islamism in order to save their lives.

The salt works at Baskunchak have been obliged to close, owing to the scarcity of fuel, and this will paralyze the fishing industry.

TIFLIS, Caucasus, Sept. 12.—A hundred social democrats were killed or wounded today in a conflict with Cossacks at the town hall and many were trampled to death in a subsequent panic. Two thousand social democrats had forced an entrance into the town hall which had been closed owing to the celebration of a religious holiday, the beheading of John the Baptist. Revolutionary speeches were made and the chief of police ordered the meeting to disperse. Part of those present obeyed but the remainder refused and some revolvers were fired. A large force of Cossacks drawn up outside the building then fired repeated volleys into the crowd, killing 30 and wounding upwards of 70. In the panic many persons fell and were trampled to death by their comrades and the pursuing Cossacks.

BATUM, Caucasus, Sept. 12.—There is a growing agitation among the local Mussulmans against the Christians. The authorities have seized documents inciting an outbreak.

HARRY VAIL GREETED ST. JOHN FRIENDS TODAY.

Harry Vail, the well known oarsman, arrived today from Baltimore, and was greeted by a number of friends. He leaves tomorrow morning for Gagetown to join his wife, and also for three weeks' hunting. Mr. Vail has just returned from the middle States regatta, where his crew, the "Ariels of Baltimore," won first place in the four oared race, which was held at Philadelphia on Saturday, over 200 oarsmen taking part. Mr. Vail, speaking of the St. Mary's crew of Halifax, says that if the Halifax crew had taken the right course, the chances are that they would have won. They however got fourth place. He also witnessed O'Neill of Halifax win his race and thinks well of him, although his style is somewhat crude, he evidently never having been coached properly. With proper coaching and more experience he has the making of a good man in him.

Mr. Vail has heard nothing as regards local rowing, and seeing no entries anywhere from St. John, regards it as a great pity. At this regatta a new race for eights was introduced each man plying a pair of oars. His plans for next year are undecided, but he expects to return to Baltimore where he will coach a four oared crew which will be sent to Henley.

RUPERT'S ACCUSER HAS DISSAPPEARED

Boy Who Was Stabbed Can't Be Found.

So Hampton Circuit Court Scheduled for Today Had to be Postponed Until Next Tuesday.

(Special to the Star.)

HAMPTON, N. B., Sept. 12.—The circuit court of Kings County opened this morning on the arrival of the accommodation train from St. John at 10 a. m. The chief justice on the bench. The full panel of twenty-four grand jurors was present, and after choosing James E. Waddell as their foreman they were sworn and addressed by his honor, who first congratulated them upon their attendance and the paucity of crime in the county. He expressed his regret at finding such a lack of accommodation provided for the judges and public officials by the municipality, and contrasted those with the provisions made by the county of Gloucester, which possessed the finest court house in the province. In view of what he had subsequently to say to them, as well as from the fact that whenever witnesses they had to lose their time from their several avocations, as well as their expenses of travel, he thought provision ought to be made to remunerate them for their services.

He then reviewed the case to be considered by them as shown by the evidence given at the preliminary examination in the case of the King on the complaint of William Lowe, an immigrant who was stabbed by a farmer of Norton named Moses Rupert, on the 27th July. Only two witnesses were examined, the complainant and Dr. Wetmore. They would hear the evidence of the latter, but unfortunately the complainant was not forthcoming. From an unknown cause he had not presented himself in court, and it would be necessary to adjourn the court until this day week, to see whether he could be found in the county or in the province.

After the jury retired the complainant, William Lowe, was called to appear and give evidence against Moses Rupert on the charge preferred against him, and as there was no response his recognizances were forfeited.

The petit jury was called, and every man summoned answered his name. The circumstances were explained once more, and they were dismissed till next Tuesday, Sept. 19th, at 10.30 o'clock, on the arrival of the freight train from St. John, to which date the court adjourned, after the return of the grand jury from taking the evidence of Dr. Wetmore.

Gen. W. Fowler, M. P., who appeared for Rupert, informed the chief justice that neither his client nor himself were responsible in any way for the absence of the latter.

The solicitor general was present to conduct the case for the crown, with Mr. H. McKeown, who represents the inland department of the government.

It was said that Lowe left the farm of Moses Burgess on Monday of last week, saying he would not appear in court unless he were paid for his time and expenses. He was subsequently met in St. John by a neighbor, to whom he said he was visiting there.

(Special to the Star.)

FREDERICTON, N. B., Sept. 12.—The Supreme court this morning delivered judgment in re petition of Geo. S. Cushing against the Cushing Sulphite Co. for a winding up order. In chambers Judge McLeod granted the order for winding up under the act and the Cushing Co. appealed to the full bench against this order. It was on this appeal that the court this morning delivered judgment.

There were present today Judges Hanington, Landry and McLeod. Judge McLeod made a lengthy judgment of his own in which he upheld the order made by him in chambers and giving his decision that the appeal be dismissed with costs.

Justice Hanington read the judgment of the chief justice in which he contended that the appeal should be allowed. The chief justice said that the company was insolvent and furthermore that the great majority of the creditors were opposed to a winding-up order. Justice Hanington said to his mind it was evident that if the property is sold everybody would be paid in full and those mostly interested had sworn that it would be disastrous to the company and to those concerned to grant a winding-up order. The interest of Mr. Cushing is secured and whether the mortgage should sell or the court appoint a liquidator. It was in the interest of all that a liquidator should do the selling. It had been alleged that the mill should be sold as a going concern. This could be done if the liquidation were granted as it had been shown that there were sufficient funds and business on hand to run the business until sold.

Judge Landry concurred in the judgments delivered by Tuck and Hanington.

AMHERST MAN SEEKING RUNAWAY WIFE HERE

A man arrived this morning from Amherst on the Halifax express, which arrives here at 6.35, and asked the assistance of the officials here in his domestic troubles to help him to unravel the disappearance of his wife and one of his children.

A week ago he said his wife suddenly departed with his youngest child, leaving the eldest one with her father. After some difficulty he succeeded in tracing her to St. John.

On his arrival this morning he showed the official photo and Conductor Crossley, of the C. P. R., recognized her as one of his passengers a week ago. He said also that she had the child with her. The husband therefore left immediately for Boston where he says his wife has relatives. If he does not find her there he will proceed to New York where the other relatives live.

DOMVILLE-EARLE WEDDING TODAY.

One of Most Brilliant Events in Rothesay's History.

St. Paul's Church Crowded by Friends of the Bride and Groom From All Over Canada.

The wedding which to-day is crowding St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Rothesay, to the doors is probably the most brilliant in the history of that fashionable suburb. It takes place at four o'clock this afternoon, when William Zolieski Earle, manager of the St. John street railway, and Miss Isabelle Domville, third daughter of Senator and Mrs. James Domville, will be united in marriage.

At nine o'clock this morning a number of the bride's friends entered the little English church. Loads of flowers, masses of white, yellow and green, the goldenrod of the wayside and the rarest flowers from the conservatories were brought to the door and immediately the work of transformation began. The old walls of the church disappeared and, together with pillars and arches were made gay with floral trimmings. The interior was decorated in green and white with a touch of pink while the entrance from the porch was decked with white and yellow wild flowers.

AUBURN, N. Y., Sept. 12.—Henry Hanzer this morning was electrocuted in the death chamber of Auburn prison. He was escorted to the chair at 6.56 and before a minute had been pinned and the mask drawn over his face. State Executioner Davis immediately made six miles east of Oswego, near the edge of a piece of woods on Sunday, May 28, last, he killed little Cora Sweet, a child of twelve summers. By some means he induced the unsuspecting child to accompany him into the woods where he brutally murdered her by beating out her brains with a stone and then ravished her, according to his own confession. During his confinement in the corridor of the condemned he had read the Bible studiously and had expressed hope of forgiveness.

Fall Suits and Raincoats

READY TAILORED.

The success and continual growth of our Ready-to-Wear department is based on nothing else but good service; on the fact that almost every suit sold means several more to the man's friends. The styles are smarter than you'll get from most tailors. The workmanship is better than you'll find in usual ready-for-service clothing. The fit is perfect or we make it so. The prices are $25.00 to $35.00 for suits and raincoats. You may have 50th Century garments made to your measure, also, at $35.00 to $55.00 a suit. We solicit your inspection.

ACTED JUST LIKE LEO.

(New York Sun.)
A man advertising a trick collar button has kept a crowd about an unattended store on a Broadway corner for several days. He stands in the window in his shirt sleeves in front of a looking glass as if dressing. First he puts up a sign, "The Old Way." He starts to put on a collar with an old-fashioned button. One end catches on easily. Then he begins struggling with the other buttonhole. It won't slip over the button. He wrenches and twists it. His face is puckered up into an expression of rage. His lips visibly give utterance to a concentrated "damn." He looks at his watch; panic appears in his eyes. He tries again. He writhes as if he had a stomach ache. He dances in fury. His lips indicate whole volumes of profanity. At last he dashes collar and button on the floor and collapses in an attitude of hopeless exhaustion.
Then he puts up the sign, "The New Way."
This time he puts one hand behind his back, and with the other slips the button-holes into place with the ease and grace of a prestidigitator.
When he gets through at least half a dozen people always make for the door to buy.
"I think I'll have to get a dozen of these," said a fat woman to the man, and as they joined the stream of one of the performances. "He

BUSINESS ADVICE.

(Albion Argus.)
Up in Tioga county, N. Y., where very large families are the rule, the mother of ten children called her husband's attention to the fact that the cradle in which she had lulled all her babies to sleep was becoming useless—the rockers had been worn flat.
"I'm afraid it's nearly gone," she said.
"That's right," assented the husband. Reaching into his pocket he pulled out ten dollars. "Here you are. Next time you go to Oswego get a new one. Get a good one this time—one that'll last."

ST. JOHN STAR.
ST. JOHN, N. B., SEPT. 12, 1905.

FIVE YEARS AGO AND NOW.

Yesterday was the Star's fifth birthday.
Thank you! Thank you, very much! We are not modest enough to believe our congratulations are altogether undeserved and we shall endeavor to be worthy of your good wishes.

Five years is a short time for a newspaper to grow from the Star's small beginning to its present assured position in this community, especially considering the handicap under which it started. For it began shortly before an election contest, and people persisted in regarding it as an evanescent affair, a campaign sheet, issued for political purposes and soon to be abandoned. Consequently the first few years brought uphill work. But the effort to put out an interesting and reliable newspaper has never been relaxed, and now it has been rewarded a glance at the following brief autobiography will show.

The Star entered journalistic life September 10, 1900, as a four page paper, six columns to the page. During the first year of its existence it had to be content with an average daily circulation of 1,996, with only about six columns daily of advertising.

September, 1902, found it with 2,580 circulation and about eight columns of advertising of which only about half a column was made up of "want" advertisements.

It is unnecessary to state that the paper was not making any of its owners rich at this rate; but there was no thought of giving up and the next year saw the Star over the hardest part of its climb.

By September, 1903, its circulation had increased to 3,261 daily, and its advertising had so grown that it had been necessary to enlarge the paper from the six column to the seven column size, and to print eight pages on Saturday.

Since that time the growth has been rapid and steady in all departments. In the year 1903-04 the daily circulation was increased by 2,000, two more pages added, the advertising increased to about seventeen columns daily, including about two columns of Want Ads.

During the past year almost another thousand has been added to the daily sale—which averaged for the year 6,000 and for the past three months 6,223—the paid advertising, in spite of its increased rates runs from ten to thirty columns daily, eight pages are printed almost every day and ten on Saturday and the want advertising business—the best index of a paper's popularity—has increased until it far exceeds that of any other paper in the city.

At the opening of its sixth year the Star has:
A larger circulation in St. John than any other newspaper;
More "want" advertisements than any other St. John paper;
More news of interest to St. John people than any other paper.

And that's not a half bad record for five years' work against keen competition.

That no wave of general business has yet struck this country is shown by the fact that insolvencies in the Dominion of Canada during the month of August were 99 in number and $46,337 in amount, defaulted in debt. Although there was little numerical change as compared with failures in the corresponding month last year, when 103 defaults occurred, liabilities were scarcely more than half the total of $851,952 reported in August, 1904, while two years ago the amount involved was $846,821 in manufacturing industries there were nineteen failures for $31,077, against eighteen last year involving $129,207. Trading defaults numbered seventy-nine, but liabilities were only $241,732, while a year ago there were eighty-two defaults for $250,119.

It was altogether fitting that Sir Wilfrid Laurier should be the man to turn the first and of the G. T. P., considering that this first ad was turned on the branch line, the purpose of which is to divert traffic from the main line to Fort William on Lake Superior, whence it will be carried by boat to Georgian Bay, where the Canada Atlantic—now the property of the Grand Trunk Company—will carefully receive and speedily transport it to the Grand Trunk's terminus at Portland, Me. Yesterday's ceremony was a fitting climax to the premier's distinguished efforts which have earned him the gratitude and admiration of every man in Portland.

The common council's action yesterday was an eminently sensible one. The contractors who may want to do the work are the best judges of the possibility of finishing some of it this winter, and their alternative tenders for this winter and next fall will place the council in possession of facts upon which to base their decision, not only against the immediate beginning of the work.

THE OPPOSITION CANDIDATE.

Some of our contemporaries continue to announce that Mr. John E. Wilson has been chosen by the provincial opposition as the candidate against the Tweedie government in the by-election.

that is expected. It may be stated again as a historical fact that no candidate has yet been chosen by the opposition. No candidate will be chosen privately or by any other persons than a regularly assembled convention of delegates. Mr. Wilson, when seen by reporters, has invariably stated that the candidate has yet to be chosen, and that while he is not eager to contest the constituency, and is prepared to support another candidate, he will not refuse a nomination if it comes to him. The name of Mr. Wilson came naturally to be mentioned from his connection with the ticket at the last general election. His state of health was such at the last by-election that he would not allow his name to be brought before the convention. At present Mr. Wilson is understood to be at the service of the opposition either as candidate or as a supporter of the candidate—Sun.

A JOLT FOR HALIFAX.

W. J. Lampton, the clever writer of eccentric verse for the New York Sun, visited Halifax this summer. The following is a result:

Ge. Whiz,
What a town Halifax is,
Where Nature has done perfect work.
To make her the Queen of the Sea;
And yet, by the gods,
She sits there and nods
On her throne like a dead energy.
She is dingy, and darksome and ugly.
She is poky and proud and is blind
To the fact that the world is advancing
And she is fast falling behind.

Oh say
Halifax get gay
And don't stay
At the fall of your procession that way.
Brace up and show
That you can go
In the other direction; and say,
Get the move on today.
Scrape off a few of your barnacles,
Wake out of your century sleep,
Prepare for a few dozen funerals,
And bury the dead ones deep.

By gods,
We're giving you no josh
When we say you've got the stuff
If you'll only have push enough
To make it go.

Say, don't you know
A good thing when you see it?
Knock the scales off your eyes
Break away from your ancient notions.
Get onto the fresh and the new,
But into the present and progress
And do what you should, p. d. q.
There, Halifax.

May these few cracks,
And whacks,
Knock the scales off your eyes
And make you wise.
Get busy, oh Queen of the Doless,
Before all the world shall spurn you
As too slow
To go
In the race
For a place.
Get busy, get busy, god-dern you.
See?

—W. J. LAMPTON.

GORTON'S MINSTRELS PLEASE GROWS

At the York Theatre last evening before an excellent audience, Gorton's minstrels gave their entertainment which was of the usual black and tan type. The programme was a very ordinary affair, the fun being chiefly in the hands of Jake Welby and Ralph Kinney. The best results were the best feature of this part of the entertainment.

The second half was made up of specialties, the dumb shows being appreciated far more than the vulgarities, which were much in evidence during the performance of what was described as a laughable travesty "The Female Shopper." It is certainly possible to be funny without being vulgar, and with such material as Messrs. Welby and Lee have at their disposal the entertainment will be repeated this evening.

ROTHESAY SCHOOLS REOPENED.

Both the schools at Rothessay open today, and with a good attendance. At the Rothessay College for boys the total enrolment is 75, 62 of whom are residents and 13 day scholars. Eighteen of the students are new boys. There are no changes in the teaching staff.

At Rothessay, however, considerable change in the staff has been made, as has already been announced, Miss Fletcher and Miss Gannon being in full charge of the school, and Mrs. Armstrong teaching only the scripture classes, while Miss Gannon is in full charge of the school, and Mrs. Armstrong teaching only the scripture classes, while Miss Gannon is in full charge of the school, and Mrs. Armstrong teaching only the scripture classes.

WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOWER

Of The Love Story of Charles Brandon and Mary Tudor, the King's Sister, and Happening in the Reign of His August Majesty King Henry the Eighth

By EDWIN CASKODEN [CHARLES MAJOR]

Copyright, 1898 and 1901, by The Edwin-Merrill Company

Once he said something to her in a low voice, which brought a flush to her cheeks and caused her to glance quickly up into his face. By the time the answer came they were nearer us, and I heard her say: "I am afraid I shall have to forgive you again if you are not careful. Let me see an exhibition of that modesty you so much boast." But a smile and a flash of the eyes went with the words and took all the sting out of them.

After a time the dancers stopped, and Mary, with flushed face and sparkling eyes, sank into a chair, exclaiming: "The new dance is delightful, Jane. It is like flying, your partner helps you so. But what would the king say—and the queen? She would simply swoon with horror. It is delightful, though." Then, with more confusion in her manner than I had ever before seen, "That is, it is delightful if one chooses her partner."

"This only made matters worse and gave Brandon an opportunity. "Dare I hope," he asked, with a deprecating bow. "Oh, yes, you may hope, I tell you frankly it was delightful with you. Now, are you satisfied, my modest one? Jane, I see we have a forward body here. No telling what he will be at next," said Mary, with evident impudence, rapidly averring her fan.

Spoke almost sharply, for Brandon's attitude was more that of an equal than she was accustomed to, and her royal dignity, which was the artificial part of her, rebelled against it now and then in spite of her real inclinations. The habit of receiving only adulation and living on a pinnacle above everybody else was so strong from continued practice that it appeared to her as a duty to maintain that elevation. She had never before been called upon to exert herself in that direction, and the situation was new. The servile ones with whom she usually associated maintained it for her; so she now felt, whenever she thought of it, that she was in duty bound to clamber back, at least part of the way, to her dignity, however pleasant it was personally down below in the denser atmosphere of informality.

In her heart, the princess preferred, upon proper occasions, such as this, to abate her dignity, and often requested others to dispense with ceremony, as in fact she had done with us earlier in the evening. But Brandon's easy manner, although perfectly respectful and gently polite, was very different from anything she had ever known. She enjoyed it, but every now and then the sense of her position and dignity for you must remember she was the first princess of the blood royal—would supersede even her love of enjoyment, and the girl went to the fact that the princess came up. Besides, she half feared that Brandon was amusing himself at her expense, and that in fact this was a new sort of masculine fun. Really she sometimes doubted if it were a worm at all, and did not know what to expect nor what she ought to do.

She was far more girl than princess, and would have preferred to remain naively girl and let events take their course. There were the other part of her which was princess, and which kept saying, "Remember who you are," so she was plainly at a loss between natural and artificial inclinations contending unconsciously within her. Replied to Mary's remark over Jane's shoulder, Brandon said:

"Your highness asked us to lay aside ceremony for the evening, and if I have offended I can but make for my excuse a desire to please you. Be sure I shall offend no more. Your grace is so seriously that his meaning could be misunderstood. He did not care whether he pleased so capricious a person or not."

Mary made no reply, and it looked as if Brandon had the worst of it. We sat a few minutes talking, Mary wearing an air of dignity. Cards were proposed, and in her heart infinitely preferring pleasure to dignity, she said: "Oh, this is wonderful! Your grace is far less entertaining than your new dance. Do something to make me laugh, Master Brandon."

"If fear you must call in Will Sommers," he replied, "if you wish to laugh. I cannot please you in both ways, so will hold to the one which seems to suit the princess."

Mary's eyes flashed, and she said ironically: "That sounds very much as though you cared to please me in any way." Her lips parted, and she evidently had something unkind ready to say, but she held the breath she had taken to speak it with and after one or two false starts in as many different lines continued: "But perhaps I deserve it. I ask you to forgive me, and hereafter desire you three, upon all proper occasions, when we are by ourselves, to treat me as one of you—as a woman, a girl, I mean. Where is the virtue of royalty if it only means being put upon a pinnacle above all the pleasures of life, like foolish old Stylites on his column? The queen is always preaching to me about the strict maintenance of my 'dignity royal,' as she calls it, and perhaps she is right. But out upon 'dignity royal,' say I! It is a terrible nuisance. Oh, you don't know how difficult it is to be a princess and not a fool. There!" And she sighed in apparent relief.

Then, turning to Brandon: "You have taught me another good lesson, sir, and from this hour you are my friend, if you will be, so long as you are worthy—no, I do not mean that. I know you will always be worthy—but forever. Now we are at rights again. Let us try to remain so—that is, I will," and she laughingly gave him her hand, which he, rising to his feet, bowed low over and kissed, rather fervently and ingenuously, I thought.

Hand kissing was new to us in England, excepting in case of the king and queen at public homage. It was a little startling to Mary, though she permitted him to hold her hand much longer than there was any sort of need—a fact she recognized, as I could easily see from her telltale cheeks, which were rose with the thought of it.

So it was when a woman goes on the defensive prematurely and without cause. It makes it harder to apply the check when the real need comes. After a little card playing I expressed regret to Jane that I could not have a dance with her for lack of music. "I will play, if the ladies permit," said Brandon, and he took Lady Jane's lute and played and sang some very pretty little love songs and some comic ones, too, in a style not often heard in England, so far away from the home of the troubadour and lute. He was full of surprises, this splendid fellow, with his accomplishments and graces.

When we had danced as long as we wished—that is, as Jane wished, as for myself, I would have been dancing yet—Mary again asked us to be seated. Jane having rested, Brandon offered to teach her the new dance, saying he could whistle an air well enough to give her the step. I at once drew uneasy with jealous suspense, for I did not know the dance in question, and fashion with Jane, but to my great relief she replied:

"No, thank you; not tonight." Then, shyly glancing toward me: "Perhaps Sir Edwin will teach me when he learns. It is his business, you know." The only words Brandon ever spoke concerning that evening were just as we retired:

"Jesu, she is perfect! But you were wrong, Caskoden; I can still thank I am not in love with her. I would fall upon my sword if I were." It was upon this point that he told her she had never treated any other man as she had treated him. But I thought best to leave it unsaid. Trouble was for a time of its own accord soon enough.

In truth, I may as well tell you that when the princess asked me to bring Brandon her lute and to play for her, little sport at his expense she looked for a laugh, but found a sigh.

CHAPTER V.
AN HONOR AND AN ENEMY.
A DAY or two after this Brandon was commanded to an evening at the king and queen. He was now eligible to all palace entertainments and would probably have many invitations to be a favorite with both the majesties. As to his standing with Mary, who was really the most important figure socially about the court, it could not be exactly said that she was a mixture of contradictory impulses and rapid transitions, and was so full of whims, but a caprice, the inevitable of her blood, her rank and the adulation which she had always lived, that I could not predict for a day ahead her attitude toward any one. She had never shown so great favor to any man as to Brandon, but just how much of her attitude toward him was a mere whim, growing out of the impulse of the moment and subject to reaction, I could not tell. I believed, however, that the foundation with this changing, shifting quicksand of a girl than with either of her majesties.

In fact, I thought he rested upon her heart itself. But to guess correctly what a girl of that sort will do or think or feel would require inspiration.

Of course most of the entertainments given by the king and queen included as guests nearly all the court, but Mary often had little fetes and dancing parties where guests were smaller, more select and informal. These parties were really with the consent and encouragement of the king, to avoid the responsibility of not inviting everybody. The larger affairs were very dull, and small ones might give offense to those who were left out. The latter, therefore, were turned over to Mary, who cared very little who was offended or who was not, and invitations to them were highly valued.

One afternoon a day or two after Brandon's presentation a message arrived from Mary notifying me that she would have a little fete that evening in one of the smaller halls and directing me to be there as master of the dance. Accompanying the message was a note from no less a person than the princess herself, inviting Brandon.

This was an honor indeed—an autograph invitation from the hand of Mary! But the masterful refusal did not seem to consider anything but the duty to his king. He had no note upon his return from the hunt he simply read it carelessly over once, tore it in pieces and tossed it away. I believe the Duke of Buckingham would have given 10,000 crowns to receive such a note and would doubtless have shown it to half the court and then upon confidence before the middle of the night. To this great captain of the guard it was but a scrap of paper. He was not to have it, nevertheless, and with all his self-restraint and stoicism could not conceal his pleasure.

tender heart and a quick, responsive sympathy. After a few seconds of painful silence she went softly over to the window where Brandon stood. "Sir, forgive me," she said, putting her hand prettily upon his arm. "I should have known. Believe me, I would not have hurt you intentionally."

"Ah, my lady, the word was thoughtlessly spoken and needs no forgiveness. But your heart shows itself in the forgiving, and I thank you. I wanted but a moment to throw off the thought of that terrible day." Then they came back together, and the princess, who had tact enough when she cared to use it, soon put matters right again.

I started to tell one of my best stories in order to cheer Brandon, but in the midst of it Mary, who, I had noticed, was restless and uneasy, full of blues and hostilities and with a manner as new to her as the dawn of the first day was to the awakening world, abruptly asked Brandon to dance with her again. She had risen and was standing by her chair, ready to be led out.

"Gladly," answered Brandon as he sprang to her side and took her hand. "Which shall it be—La Galliard or the new dance?" And Mary, standing there, the picture of waiting, willing modesty, lifted her hand to his shoulder, tried to raise her eyes to his, but failed and softly said: "The new dance."

This time the dancing was more soberly done, and when Mary stopped it was with serious, thoughtful eyes, for she had felt the touch, yes, even the subtle drawing of the lodestone for the passive iron—had come into her life. She felt that she was to be a woman, a real woman, with all the irresistible, infinite attractions that a woman may have for a woman, the subtle drawing of the lodestone for the passive iron—had come into her life.

I do not mean that Mary was in love, but that she had met and for the first time felt the touch, yes, even the subtle, unconscious, dominating force so sweet to woman, of the man she could love, and had known the rarest kind of pulses in that choicest of all God's perfect handiwork—a woman's heart—the throbs that go before, the John Baptist as it were, of coming love.

It being after midnight, Mary filled two cups of wine, from each of which she took a sip, and handed them to Brandon and me. She then paid me the 10 crowns, very soberly thanked us and said we were at liberty to go.

The only words Brandon ever spoke concerning that evening were just as we retired: "Jesu, she is perfect! But you were wrong, Caskoden; I can still thank I am not in love with her. I would fall upon my sword if I were."

It was upon this point that he told her she had never treated any other man as she had treated him. But I thought best to leave it unsaid. Trouble was for a time of its own accord soon enough.

CHAPTER V.
AN HONOR AND AN ENEMY.
A DAY or two after this Brandon was commanded to an evening at the king and queen. He was now eligible to all palace entertainments and would probably have many invitations to be a favorite with both the majesties. As to his standing with Mary, who was really the most important figure socially about the court, it could not be exactly said that she was a mixture of contradictory impulses and rapid transitions, and was so full of whims, but a caprice, the inevitable of her blood, her rank and the adulation which she had always lived, that I could not predict for a day ahead her attitude toward any one. THE DANGER OF MILK PRESERVATIVES.
"Whatever difference of opinion there may be as to the use of most quantities of food, the use of milk as a food of infants, and the young of different species have been shown to be very susceptible to their effect. Not only is the preservative itself probably harmful, but by its use the poorest quality of milk can be palmed off on the consumer. Dirty milk is still dirty and dangerous, even though its souring point has been artificially changed. We may be certain that neither farmer nor dealer is going to use one extra precaution or an ounce of ice more than is needed to get his milk to market in good condition, and if he knows that he can fall back on the chemical to conceal that fatal sign of souring, he will send milk that is dirtier and nearer to spoiling, and thus this double burden of bad milk and the action of the preservative is laid on the digestion of the little ones, who, if we may judge from the vital statistics, have a hard enough time at the best to get through their first five years of life. All of the large cities insist that very little preservative is now added to milk, yet prosperous-looking agencies continue to sell it, and well-informed people insist that immense quantities are used. Are the cities, with their small force of analysts unable to make thorough examinations, or are preservatives now in use that are less easily detected? It is that vigilant inspection diminishes the evil, and where fines do not deter, imprisonment will still more import in reducing the use of preservatives is the enforcement of sanitary regulations at the farm and the use of ice in transportation."

MILLIONAIRES IN LONDON. American Photographs as Thick as Blackberries Over There Recently—Five of Them at One Hotel.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—American millionaires have been as thick as blackberries in London recently. For instance five multi-millionaires slept at Claridge's Hotel recently. Practically the whole of the first floor was given over to these American representatives of the House of Mammon. The millionaires who inscribed their names on the hotel register were:

Mr. William Rockefeller, vice president of the Standard Oil Company and railway magnate whose fortune is estimated at $100,000,000. Mr. George Westinghouse, the inventor and proprietor of the famous Westinghouse air brake, who is worth $50,000,000.

Mr. George Jay Gould, banker and railway owner, worth $50,000,000. Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, railway magnate and inventor, worth $10,000,000.

Harry Payne Whitney, banker and financier, $10,000,000. A very simple sum in addition will demonstrate that the elevator boys at Claridge's have enjoyed the novel sensation of hosting a quintette of capitalists representing about $200,000,000.

Though they occupied the entire first floor the members of this millionaire quintette, a word from them would shake the houses of the world, led the simplest lives at Claridge's. They enjoyed their stay at the hotel, and paid few calls. So exclusive, so terribly select was this little coterie of Croesus that except for a daily drive in the park and a little shopping their days passed without event. These millionaires made no attempt at lavish display. Apparently they went to the extreme and became adepts in the fine art of cutting down expenses. The wives of these mighty millionaires passed through the stately corridors of Claridge's wearing the plainest of gowns while the simplest of menus were adopted by the millionaires themselves. Twice a day a formal dinner of five courses was served. A simple little dinner of a few courses was their favorite meal—clear soup, a vegetable, little game and sweet. Little wine was taken. Mr. Rockefeller's beverage being limited to a word from them would shake the houses of the world.

Conversation at these meals when the millionaires met at Claridge's was limited to discussions regarding the weather. Never by any chance did they touch upon the money market.

FACTS AND FANCIES.
When a man compares the present with the good old times, when there were no inferior men in existence, is it not fair to presume that he speaks the days before he was born?

The papers are forever telling us of persons meeting with accidents, but people who are not so fortunate as to meet with accidents or how?

Every man is the architect of his own fortune. This may account for the fact that so few men succeed in building up a fortune. An architect's plan is not infrequently defective. When the policeman was pelted with rotten eggs he remarked that he was not a very respectable citizen, and he got himself built up.

Of many a public man it has been said that when he opens his mouth he puts his foot in it. Which shows that the foot-and-mouth disease is not confined to dumb, driven cattle.

How blessed is the lot of the civil justice. He can sit all day and hear people lit about about one another, himself tranquil and indifferent, and get well paid for the fun beside.

Rev. Mr. Johnson—De choir will now render that beautiful hymn, "Oh for a thousand tongues to sing," an while they are rendering it, de congregation will line in grateful prayer that de aforsaid choir ain't got but one tongue apiece.

A passenger on an English railway train pulled the "communication cord" for other passengers to stop the train. When the guard came to the compartment in which the cord had been pulled, he found a distressed woman passenger. She had been looking out of the window and had dropped her false teeth. She wished to go back and find them.

It was probably an Irish error which announced in his paper that "no anonymous communications will receive any notice unless accompanied by the name and address of the sender."

EARLY CLOSING IN RUSSIA.

(From the London Saturday Review.) Some of those who are fond of speaking of Russia as an uncivilized country should turn to the Times on Thursday. They will find there a summary of a House Early Closing Bill drawn up by the Russian minister of finance, which would be a credit to any country.

It marks a stage of social reform higher than we have reached here. Especially important is the provision for local committees for carrying out the act—representing employers and employed in industry and commerce. It would be hard to find an instance of government concern for labor equal to it in the American Republic, which the journalist wrote out as the happy land in contrast to terrible Russia.

THE OLD AND THE NEW HAT PINS

BY MISS MANHATTAN.

New York — Flowers are always associated with pretty women, but even poets in their most fantastic flights did not think of the flower siesta for the fairest of their sex. The fairest did, and the thought has grown and blossomed until now these pretty creatures have made the sleep of beauty one in which the head is embowered in a favorite flower.

There is much wisdom and some sentimentality in the idea of the oint on the effect different flowers have on different particular blossom which thrive while some other flower would wilt at the individual's touch. I have never seen as there is a spiritual one passing from the individual to the individual.

Be that as it may everyone must admit that there is a spiritual effect on flowers of all kinds. There are some women who seem to have a special influence over them. They come in contact with them, and there is a spiritual influence. Probably you have noticed that some flowers seem to have a special influence on flowers at a ball or a reception and instead of coming from her hands apparently gives them renewed life. It is the same with the dead. I have seen a dead looking spirit will seem to thrive in the hands of a woman who has a spiritual while the sturdiest plant that grows will shrivel.

I have known so many cases of this kind that it needs no sympathy. I believe that it is a spiritual influence. I make no believe that there is some long

The violet girl has a disadvantage in the short season in which these flowers appear and also in their delicacy. The carnation lasts considerably longer, and the strong spicy odor with which it is associated acts as a stimulant to the carnation girl. At other times it soothe her as though it were laden with poppy seeds and the sliest into which she falls is pure sweet sleep on account of the surrounding of flowers; for, of course, if she is one of the newest of the faddists she has her pillow laden with her favorite flower and its rare and expensive perfume. Not every night or every 40 winks in a summer afternoon is taken with her head buried in blossoms. This would be too great a stimulant, and the sweet sleep would soon begin to cloy and result in headaches; but occasionally, when she feels the need of something to soothe her nerves the flower alecta is taken. It would seem to be a most efficacious tonic, only the former is accompanied with pleasant feelings while the latter is taken with a grimace.

Another curious feature about the flower alecta is the quickness with which certain flowers put some women

Fancy Kimonos.

Realizing the American woman's penchant for kimono, the Japanese have made some special designs for her with which to charm her fancy. The handkerchiefs are of silk or crepe and are elaborately embroidered in great flowers that are wrought either all in one color or in natural tints. A beautiful white crepe kimono had a pale pink lining which rolled up at the bottom in true Japanese style and over the entire front and the sleeves were worked great bunches of purple and white wisteria. The same thing was duplicated in faint yellow crepe and purple flowers. A which the gown had the prettiest of the patterns which the Japanese do, and, as every blossom, while a fourth in pale lavender, the rest were a pale pink, the gown was very like the gown of the lovely Iri. There are ovals with these gowns, and the Iri's gown had a very wide collar, and the sleeves were held in a girdle. She liked the gown very much, and she was naturally in a good mood. The woman who had the gown was a fair-haired sister entirely. No Japanese woman would have such a gown. The woman who had the gown was a fair-haired sister entirely. No Japanese woman would have such a gown. The woman who had the gown was a fair-haired sister entirely. No Japanese woman would have such a gown.

Italian Underwear.

Among all the styles of undergarments for feminine wear there is none quite so cool and soft to the touch as the silken ones from the looms of Italy. Almost any undergarment can be purchased in this weave, and they may be as elaborate as one chooses to have them. Singlets and chemises for this season are much trimmed, the whole fronts showing an inset of lace medallions, insertion and embroidery.

Novel Automobile Coats.

From all appearances automobilizing will be the diversion par excellence for society this season and to provide for such an event, the automobile costume has been designed with a special view to filling every requirement of the feminine automobilist. Leather coats and whole costumes are presented in the most attractive fashions imaginable. Who would have thought a few years ago that a woman would be able to wear a coat of glaze leather, stitched and strapped with the same precision of a cloth garment?

lining of taffeta adds nothing to the weight of these skirts, but it makes them slip on with greater ease and serves to cover the rough inner side of the leather. Several rows of stitching make a trim finish around the bottom of such skirts, and if there is piping this is put on as a heading for a three or four-inch applied piece straight

A Child's "Romper" Garment.

The healthy lad and lassie should above all have plenty of time to run about and stretch their growing limbs and no problem more frequently disturbs the mother than the question of what the children may wear while playing. An idea which should ease this burden is that of a "romper," a simply made suit of strong but cheap material which can be worn over the more dressy costumes. Striped percale is the best material for a "romper," but chambray may be substituted for little girl's costumes or the seashore.

around the lower edge of the skirt. An entire leather hood that is gathered around the face is one of the newest ideas for this department. The dress shown was in soft wood brown with a full bow of ribbon the same shade surmounting the top like "granny" bonnets children wear, and the hood was fastened securely by a tie of broad ribbon strings to tie under the chin. For warm weather the hood could be removed. It is uncomfortable but for long tours late in the season it is a most desirable feature. It would be just the thing.

Even the automobile enthusiast may have her vanity case when touring. These are of leather to match the costume, if one likes, and are fitting oblong packages. They often carry a pocketbook and they carry a net for pocketbooks and they carry a necktie puff. It suggests a bicyclist's kit bag. It is appearance and ability to pair damage.

Fashion Notes.

Straight foot ruffles from four to six inches in width are now much used on shirtwaist suit trimmings, and an even number desired may be used, so arranged that each ruffle just touches the top of the one beneath it.

A very smart costume can be made of blue taffeta lace with white taffeta lace and for the front

For little girls flowered organdies with lace flouncing and the shirred draw shoulder berthe are in the best of taste. Deep colors and heavy trimmings should never be worn by the schoolgirl on occasions of importance, no matter what the girl's age may be. To do so is to offend one of the few inexorable canons of good taste which no possibility of style or richness in the costume can make
