An Unwise Example

Once Hudson Tuttle, the Ohio lecturer, was making an address in which he was illustrating the pitfalls of the lecture platform. "One pitfall," Mr. Tuttle said, "is the unwise choice of examples and proofs. A temperance lecturer wished to prove to his audience the deadly power of whiskey. Accordingly, he caused a drop of water to be magnified and thrown on a magic lantern screen. The picture was a terrible one. Worms bigger than pythons, crabs bigger than elephants, spiders the size of ships, fought together in that drop of water like feuds in the infernal region. The lecturer then caused a drop of whiskey to be added to the water. 'Watch, friends,' said he, 'watch the whiskey's effect.' The effect was marvelous; the liquor killed those ferocious horrors instantly. Their vast claws and tentacles and feelers stiffened. All became peaceful and still. An old lady on the front row whispered hoarsely to her husband's ear, 'Wall, babe, that settles me. I'll never drink water again 'thout puttin' some whiskey in it.'" Exchange.

News of the World

Mrs. John Jeffries, of Moncton, sentenced to six months in jail for disorderly conduct was to have been taken to Dorchester Thursday afternoon. She was allowed to go home to pack up for her stay in the county jail but when the officers went for her she was found intoxicated and was put back in the lock-up to sober up.

An injunction was granted by Chief Justice Falconbridge on Thursday against the Western Federation of Miners, to stop them interfering in any way with the men of the Buffalo Mines Limited at Cobalt.

Said Sir Harry McLean has not been set at liberty in Morocco as reported. Superintendent of Streets, Jas. H. Doyle and Common Councilman Jas. H. Hatton, of Charlestown, Mass., were indicted on Wednesday, the former in two counts for offering a gratuity in connection with the recent passage by the common council of a loan bill amounting to $1,000,000, and the latter for perjury, also in connection with the bill.

A committee of the telegraphers called upon the vice-president and general manager of the Great North-western Telegraph Company, Toronto, on Wednesday, and gave their views upon the question of returning to work under conditions now prevailing in the offices of the C. P. R. telegraphs, namely, that any operator may at his own discretion decline to work with an office in the United States or Canada where a strike is in progress. To this proposition consideration was refused.

There is no truth in the report circulated in London that St. Leger Gould, the self-confessed murderer of Emma Levin, had hanged himself in prison at Marselles.

Eleven drownings were reported in the immediate vicinity of New York on Sunday.

A British regiment at Gibraltar is being sent in readiness to go to Morocco to protect British interests there.

There is a movement on foot at London Ont., to secure the running of street cars on Sunday, with the prospect that it will be successful.

Protected by an "immunity bath" voluntarily prepared for it by the government, the Chicago & Alton Railroad, P. H. Harriman, chairman of the board of directors, and his various officials will escape punishment for granting rebates the acceptance of which has brought up on the Standard Oil Company a fine of $29,240,000.

Three Japanese settlements will be established in the State of Rio Janeiro. The government of the State has given its sanction to the project.

A strange case of narrow escape from premature burial occurred at Paris last week. An old woman who was a notorious drunkard was carried on a stretcher dead drunk to the morgue, where she was left asleep on the stretcher pending her transportation elsewhere. In the same room there was lying on a similar stretcher an old woman who was killed by some outer boulevard ruffians. Some employes whose duty it was to put the latter in her coffin made a mistake and placed the sleeping drunkard in the coffin. But when she awoke she realized her position, and the disturbance she made convinced her hearers that she was very much alive.

Odd Things Women Are Doing

Miss Carrie Scamlen, a stenographer of Bloomington, Ill., went to sleep a week ago and is still sleeping.

Abstracting $300 from the family bank, under the mattress—Teresa and Marie Adams, gypsy beauties in their teens left the family fortune-telling bureau in Kansas City and departed, gaily garbed and brightly jewelled. They were intercepted at Vinita, I. T.

Cora Welling, 14, of Tacoma, Wash., whose testimony, with that of her sister, sent her father to the penitentiary a year ago on a grave charge, now makes affidavit that the story was concocted.

Being for divorce Mrs. Mary Barmann, of Oakland, Cal., says that 24 hours after the birth of her child her husband made her milk 100 ows.

Mrs. Aggie Myers, condemned to death in Kansas City, has obtained a writ of habeas corpus and will make a fresh fight for life.

Surrounded by packages of Christmas goods she had bought, Mrs. Mary Gordon of Lexington, Ky., was found in the snow, frozen to death, near her home.

Bears in Lexington asylum, Lucy Darby has died in the Western asylum, Hopkinsville, Ky., so which she was moved in 1884. She was 77.

Birth Clerk, 20, of North Platte, Neb., has been acquitted of murdering John Leisen, who followed her from Vancouver to pass his unwelcome marriage suit.

James Johnson of Nebraska, astute lawyer and civil war veteran met by means of a matrimonial advertisement a Denver woman. He supplied her liberality with funds and spent nearly $1000 in wedding preparations. On the day of the wedding she vanished.

Weary of telling visitors all about Fort Augusta Mrs. Amelia Gross of Sulbury, Mo., has closed the historic place to the public.

Getting her divorce decree, Mrs. Lillie V. Ripple hurried with Frank Rowe to the county clerk's office at Chambersburg, Pa., and took out a marriage license.

When the young women of Yoe, Pa., and elsewhere heard the way Spirie T. P. A. Carman had been jilted they deluged him with offers to fill the vacant place in the new home he had fitted out. The place is still unfiled.

Adelle Strothers of St. Joseph, Mo., coaxed, had her husband jailed after a tiff in which a razor figured. Feeling lonely Christmas eve, she committed a barefaced robbery and spent Christmas with her husband.

On the eve of their Kellie Kershner of Springfield, O., told John Reel she did not love him as she should. Invitations were recalled and gifts returned.

"I have no money for my fare. Please take my baby and I will walk to the depot and meet you," said a prepossessing young woman to Mrs. Rosa Anderson of Tearkana. Mrs. Anderson still has the child.

Mrs. Milo Cummings of Des Moines, wife of the clergyman charged with arson, has gone to Maripalumbo, Ill., on the same train as her shackled spouse.

Hearing she was being traded Miss Ella Preston, teacher of Barryton, Mich., horsewhipped Leonard Campbell and then struck his mother on the nose and also gave her a black eye. She admits it was undignified, but is prepared to prove she is a lady.

Boarding a car in Memphis, a woman counted her eight children and told the conductor to go ahead. Half way over the bridge she found the count had been all right, but one of the children was not hers.

WHAT TO DO WITH LEFT-OVER POTATOES.--Baked potatoes that have been left over from a meal are, as a rule, no good for future use; but, if mashed while still warm, a little milk, butter and salt added, and the mixture beaten together till light, and then placed in a pie-dish, they will be delicious heated for another meal. New potatoes are excellent cut into rather thin slices and fried in butter until a delicate brown. Fat is too heavy or new potatoes, and seems to destroy their flavor.

Tight Shoes

A shoe which compresses the foot retards circulation of the blood, much as the compression of a rubber hose retards the flow of water.

It is as foolish and unhygienic to wear such shoes as it would be to sleep in a poorly ventilated room, in a bed several feet too short to accommodate the full length of the body. Can you imagine greater discomfort or one more calculated to destroy the health?

You cannot think of the body as a small square foot into a shoe a size too small is worse than squeezing the head into a stiff hat that is too tight.

This trying to live up to false standards of fashion and beauty—a veritable "tyranny of fashion"—is a disease which affects not only individuals but communities, and even some nations, for generations. If we could only be brave enough to assert ourselves and allow nothing that is unhygienic to be fashionable, we should be far better off physically and mentally.

A Noble Soul

The letters of a western clergyman to a female parishioner were read recently in court. In one he promised to spend an afternoon with her, and to show that he was a good provider, thoughtful, tender, sollicitous, he wrote: "Will bring with me a pint of oysters and a quart of milk." Those who have eaten oyster stew at church services will appreciate the generosity, the nobility of this clergyman. A pint of oysters to a quart of milk! The usual recipe is a pint of milk for two oysters.

Stomach troubles, Heart and Kidney ailments, can be quickly corrected with a prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The remedy is a reliable relief which this remedy immediately brings is entirely due to its Restorative action upon the controlling nerves of the Stomach, etc.

Country Vs. Town.

(From the Denver Republican.)

The chief reason why men reared on farms are so often much better equipped for the battle of life than those born in cities is because the former, taught to work when they are very young, have acquired habits of industry. They know what it is to work. They are prevented from driving the harmful conclusion that life is a holiday and that the thing above all to get rid of is the discharge of duty. Whether better in other respects or not than city boys, country-bred boys have the invaluable habit of industry; and, thus armed, they go forth to the battle of life, recognizing its serious character and not in the slightest degree daunted by the fact that the price of success is labor.

The Good Old Sort

An old-fashioned statesman who writes his own letters with his own hand, who is a stickler for the use in honour and endeavour will bring us from England no encouragement for the clipped spelling. Long life to James Bryce and his old-fashioned ways!—Herald.

For the year ended June 30 last the Intercolonial Railway shows a surplus of $400,000, compared with $65,000 the year previous. For the nine months ended March 31st, the surplus was $219,000. In 1905 the deficit on the Intercolonial was $1,725,000, and the year before that it was $900,000.

Send us names and addresses of your friends and relatives residing away from home and we will send them a few sample copies of Greetings.

Monument to Dr. Holden

A very fine monument is to be erected in Fernhill in memory of the late Dr. Charles Holden. The following committee have had the matter in charge: Hon. J. G. Forbes, chairman; W. H. Thorne, George McAvity, H. C. Rankine, Dr. J. R. McIntosh, and D. C. Clinch. The design is by F. Neil Brodie, Michael Kane of Carleton, had the contract for the construction, and it is understood that he submit the polishing and lettering on the monument to the St. George Granite Works. The monument is in the form of an obelisk, and stands sixteen feet from the sub-base to the apex of the pyramid. The obelisk and base are highly polished. The sub-base is hammered and has the name Holden in bold relief. Above, on the base, a wreath has been beautifully carved in stone and on another side appears the following inscription:

IN MEMORY OF CHARLES HOLDEN, M.D., L. R. C. S. "The Beloved Physician." Born in This City January 2nd, 1845. Died May 2nd, 1906.

This monument has been erected by his friends as a lasting memorial of his life and work, and as an evidence of the love and esteem of all who recall his many virtues.—Times.

A Generous Act

The Legislature of Quebec a short time ago shows its recognition of the unselfish heroism and devotion to duty of Miss Sarah Maxwell, the Montreal teacher, who sacrificed her life in the Hochelaga School fire, by unanimously voting a pension of $300 a year to the widowed mother. As was stated in the resolutions and the preamble of the bill, presented by Premier Gouin, "it is proper to publicly manifest the appreciation felt for the devotion displayed by Miss Maxwell and as she was the sole support of her mother, it is expedient to provide, by the creation of a pension, to supply the needs of the latter." This graceful and generous act on the part of a French-Canadian Premier, unanimously supported by a House that is overwhelmingly of that nationality, will rebound to the credit of Quebec, exemplifying as it does the generosity of the majority to the minority of another race and creed in that Province. Hon. Mr. Weir, in thanking the Premier and the House on behalf of the Protestant minority, said that nothing could possibly bind the two elements more closely together than generous acts of this kind, coupled with their common sorrow for the loss of so noble a woman, and their joint admiration for her heroism. It was another proof of the force of the old saying that one touch of nature makes the whole world kin. Canadians everywhere will rejoice at this fresh manifestation of broad-mindedness and the timely recognition of a noble deed.

A New Fish Story

From Gloucester last week came the remarkable story of a big hake captured by the netting schooner Arrow, Capt. Elias Jewett, on the Maine coast. Ordinarily the point of a remarkable fish story lies in the remarkable size of the fish. But this is somewhat different. According to Captain Jewett and the crew of the Arrow, the big hake when hauled on deck wore a stylish satchel cap, perched in jaunty fashion over his left eye. The cap which bore the emblem of a fashionable Bar Harbor yachting club, was held in place by some silken shreds entwined in the hake's gills. It only remains now for some venturesome Gloucester fishing skipper to capture a monster horse mackerel attired in a dress suit and patent leather shoes.

A Clever Retort

One of our popular young ladies who is evidently contemplating matrimony, was this morning handed a statement by her father, with the left turned down at the following passage: "He who gives in marriage doeth well; but he who giveth not in marriage doeth better." She immediately returned with the following reply written in pencil: "Dear father, I am contented to do well; let those do better, why can." The good old gentleman could not keep the secret, but received our promise not to publish names.—Ex.

Not Ethereal

(From the Chicago Record-Herald)

A London physician says people would be healthier if they ate less. Under the present schedule of prices they would also be much richer.

Booze and Pulp

The output of the Miramichi pulp mill for the last two weeks was the largest in its history, 577 tons, although many of the men were demoralized for two days by the horse races. If it had not been for drunkenness of some of the workmen the mill would have produced 600 tons. The drink mania is the most serious drawback to industrial life. If all the workmen were rational enough to refrain from intoxicants, all industries would be much more productive than they are.—Chatham World.

Profitable Abstinence.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux has done well to make a substantial increase in the salaries of rural postmasters. A portion of the handsome surplus of the Post Office Department could not be devoted to a better purpose.—Exchange.

About Boarding Houses

The severity of boarding houses in this town has quite often been referred to in these columns. It is reported that in these boarding houses the new female teachers of the school were allowed to stay in the boarding houses. It is reported that some of the young ladies who were in the boarding houses at the school had never been to a boarding house before. The young ladies who were in the boarding houses at the school had never been to a boarding house before. The young ladies who were in the boarding houses at the school had never been to a boarding house before.

Useful Remedies

A mustard plaster mixed entirely with white of egg will neither scar or blister. Any suffering from rheumatism will find relief if he constantly keeps a mass of sulphur in the foot of his stockings. People who suffer with sluggish livers would derive benefit from lemon juice. Take the juice of one lemon in half a tumbler of cold water without sugar every morning fasting. Cure for heartburn.—Nothing is better for heartburn than a quart of a teaspoonful of baking soda mixed in a little sour milk, and taking it will give instant relief. An inflamed toe-joint.—A boracic poultice is excellent for this. Steep a piece of lint in boracic acid solution, lay this on the joint with a piece of oiled silk over, keeping it in place with amarron bandage. Do not wear shoes that press on the feet in any way. Bruises and sprains.—Soap liniment is one of those harmless and useful things that should find a place in every home. It can be had ready for use from any drug store. It is excellent for bruises and sprains. The ingredients are: Soft soap, camphor, oil of rosemary and spirits of wine.

Sick-Room "Don'ts"

Don't appear anxious, however great your anxiety. Don't be unkind of yourself if you are in the responsible position of nurse. To do faithful work you must have proper food and stated hours of rest. Don't forget that kindness and tenderness are needful to successful nursing. Human nature longs to be soothed and comforted on all occasions when it is out of tune. Don't permit currents of air to blow upon a patient. An open fireplace is an excellent means of ventilation. The current of air may be tested by burning a piece of paper in front.

EMPIRE LINIMENT

"One ounce of preventative is worth one pound of cure." By keeping

EMPIRE LINIMENT

Household Hints
A NEW USE FOR POTATOES.—Two potatoes grated in a basin of warm water are far better than soap for washing delicate silk, flannel or woolen goods.
WHEN COOKING BY GAS always place a tin of water in the oven. A bowl of vinegar and water placed beside the stove will prevent the smell of cooking from spreading through the house.
A HINT FOR THE COOK.—If, when baking, the oven should get too hot, place a basin of cold water in it. This will prevent the contents from burning.
TO REMOVE OIL-STAINS FROM WOOL.—Mix pipeclay and water together till it forms a stiff paste, and spread it over the stain. If left till next day and then carefully removed, all trace of the stain will have disappeared.
TO REMOVE COPPER STAINS.—Rub thoroughly with pure, clean glycerine; this will remove stains caused by coffee from woolen and other materials. The place should be afterwards well washed with lukewarm water and ironed on the wrong side till dry.
TO ECONOMIZE COAL.—If coal is kept in a dry and airy place it will burn much better than if placed in a close, badly ventilated cellar. Coal that is excluded from the air soon gets rid of its gas, and the absence of this renders it more wasteful when burned.
TO REMOVE RUST, INK AND MIL-DRW MARKS from white garments, nothing is better than salt and lemon juice. Moisten the salt with the juice and spread over the stains, allow it to remain on for a short time, and, if necessary, repeat the process. Rinse well afterward in clear water.

Wedding Superstitions
There are many superstitions regarding marriage, and among the quaintest are the following:
The bride who dreams of fairies on the night before her wedding will be thrice blessed.
The bridegroom who carries a miniature horseshoe in his pocket will always be lucky.
If a bride should by any chance see a coffin as she starts off on her wedding tour she should order the driver of the carriage to turn back and start over again. She may miss a train by doing so, but if she neglects the precaution she will rue it, it is a sure omen of evil.
Never give a telegram to a bride or bridegroom on the way to the church.
Marrages on board ship are considered unlucky. If you can't be married on dry land, remain unwed.
If during the marriage ceremony the wedding ring should fall down, the bride's fate will not be an enviable one.

Lepreux Iron Mines
Mr. C. V. Wetmore is in the city today. Talking with the Globe about the Lepreux iron deposits, Mr. Wetmore said that arrangements had at last been made with a very large concern which will at once start development work. Upwards of two hundred thousand will be spent, he said, and he expected to see operations commenced in a few weeks. It remained to be seen whether or not the new concern would eventually establish a manufacturing plant there, or whether they would ship the ore to be manufactured elsewhere. The latter course would be the one followed for a time at least, but he hoped to see it give place to a more substantial development.

Iron Gates From Canada
London, Sept. 4.—It is seldom that a public gift has met with more general appreciation than the contribution of the Dominion of Canada to the Queen Victoria Memorial. Who first suggested the happy thought of adding to the architectural beauties of London by giving not some second-rate statue of marble or bronze, or even some pretentious building, but a splendid gateway, does not seem to be known, but whoever it may have been deserves the deep gratitude of the people of the city.
The gates are now in position at the end of the new road through the Green Park, to the immediate left of Buckingham Palace. In the scheme of the Queen Victoria Memorial they form one of the five outlets from the circle now known as Queen's Gardens, in the centre of which stand Brock's statue of the Queen. The gates will be the means of passing out to Piccadilly. They are of wrought iron, with designs emblematic of the maple leaf. They are masterpieces of this recently revived art can be easily seen by the untrained observer.
It is a pity that London cannot obtain a few more gifts like this.

See to the Kitchen
Just so long as people live principally upon cooked food, just so long will cooking and the kitchen be, as they now are, exceedingly important features of every household, impossible to ignore or overlook with impunity.
Many a good cause has been lost for the time being—and many a bright future has been darkened—by someone's indigestion. Indigestion is at the root of almost as many of humanity's troubles as selfishness itself. But, of course, ignorance, is at the root of them all. Whenever people know better they avoid and escape the woes that come through ignorance.
Without a good digestion health is impossible, and lack of health is misery. Poor cooking produces about as much indigestion as bad temper. In fact, it is a case of action and reaction. Indigestion, low spirits, bad temper. Bad temper, low spirits, indigestion, and so on interminably. Bad cooking, bad temper, low spirits all belong together. They propagate each other. Since poorly cooked food produces indigestion, poor cooking should be abolished. It can be abolished by all those who set about it by paying attention to having the very best possible cooking for each meal, however simple it may be.
The managements of the Montreal Cotton Co., whose 2,500 operatives at Valleysfield mill are on strike for increase of 10 per cent. in their wages, declare that they will not submit to the demands. They have already, they say, given the hands two increases and rather than give in to what they claim an unjust strike they will close the mills down.

Don't Gamble!
"Don't gamble! You cannot win!" That is the advice to young men of one who has run a gambling-house for years, and has made a fortune out of the losses of his patrons. "Any man," he continues, "who thinks he can beat the game is an ass. You cannot do it. The professional gambler alone gets the money in the end. You come to a gambling house and the proprietor is glad to see you. Why? Because he knows he will get his money back, and yours, too. The percentage is in his favor. You keep on betting with him, and he'll have all your money at the end of the game. It's only a question of time. A man who cannot afford to lose should never gamble, and the majority of people haven't enough money to spare to hand it over to the gambler. So, my young clerk, please stay away from the gambling business. It is hell and damnation in the end!"

Appearances to The Contrary. By CECILIA A. LOIZEAUX. Copyrighted, 1907, by E. C. Parwell.

"What are you going to wear this afternoon?" inquired Mrs. Holton in an elaborately careless voice. "Nothing—that is, I'm going to wash my hair, since there is not a place in this metropolis where I can have it washed for me."

She gained the stair closet just in time and softly pulled the door shut after her. And then, safely hidden, she called herself a goose. "Why didn't you go back out into the yard and reach your room door?"

Agatha, lifting her skirts daintily, tripped around the corner from the fashionable avenue where she lived to the dingy little side street, with its miniature shops and pretentious signs.

"It was an awfully white thing for you to do, anyway," Agatha replied, her eyes twinkling. "And I am under deep obligations to you, Mr. Black."

Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy "ALL DEALERS". I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism. Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn boys grown back to boys again.

Agatha, lifting her skirts daintily, tripped around the corner from the fashionable avenue where she lived to the dingy little side street, with its miniature shops and pretentious signs.

"I'm afraid not, thank you," Agatha replied, checking her momentary display of emotion. "But the young man was so politely solicitous that Agatha, in her distress, forgot her dilemma, and, in a flash of intuition, she said to herself, 'Why not?'" daughter's watch. You had to come back, while she was alone, you understand, and try to rob my house. Search his pockets, Agatha?

"Well, what have you to say for yourself?" he demanded harshly. "I'm not a thief," Mr. Black said huskily. "I wish to explain how I came by the watch. Your daughter must have dropped it this afternoon outside the locksmith's. The man in the cigar shop found it on the sidewalk, and when I went back with the keys he gave it to me and asked me to find out if it belonged to this young lady."

"That isn't half so bad as checking him," was Mr. Anderson's useful comment. "Some months after this dramatic He-He incident Agatha discovered that she had been robbed again. This time she felt sure young Mr. Bainbridge was guilty, but she shrank from facing him with the accusation. She was saved that ordeal, however, by the sudden confession of the criminal himself."

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 18, 1906

At this time, as indeed at all other times, every man should be a politician to the extent of acquainting himself with the political conditions of his country, and discharging his citizenship duties with intelligence, discrimination and conscience. The government of the country will not be what it should be till every citizen is a politician in this sense. To study the conditions and vote accordingly is the privilege and duty of every man.

While we are interested in every department in connection with the government of our country, our special interest at this present time is in the department of Railways and Canals. The I. C. R. is the greatest public work Canada possesses, and upon its proper management much depends, especially so far as the Maritime Provinces are concerned. It seems a pity that Hon. H. R. Emmerson should not have been re-appointed to the position of Minister of Railways and Canals so as to have developed the plans so well made, and which before fully matured, showed themselves to be wise and beneficial to the country. By his wise management it has been proved that the road can be made to pay.

Hon. Mr. Graham has declared his policy, which is practically that adopted by Mr. Emmerson. We await with interest its development. It can hardly be expected that an Ontario man can understand the needs of the Provinces as did one of our own, yet we can expect that these needs will be studied and supplied. The new minister's readiness to increase facilities in St. John, in yard improvement, and the building of a floor warehouse, promises well.

We are not unmindful of the fact that it was never intended that the I. C. R. would be a dividend earner, and we do not expect it today, but we are of the opinion that the day has come when it must pay expenses. It has been proved that it can do this, and continue to be of great commercial value to their provinces.

By The Way.

The "Knocks" the town council get is scarcely a fitting tribute for services performed for a "small salary."

If rumors are true concerning one of our public institutions, it is time that some action was taken to restore harmony among the officials. No public business can be carried on successfully where there is constant friction among those in charge. Public opinion will not endorse business carried on in this manner.

There seems to be a growing disposition, in town, to discourage the building of sidewalks.

The most absorbing question, among the active politicians, is whom shall we elect from St. George, to the local legislature? It is generally conceded that the town should have a representative at Fredericton.

All things must follow in their natural order, night unto day, and so forth; but the turning of the leaves on the maples is the first decided reminder of the summer's exodus.

Make the new sidewalk wide enough for four women to walk along in platoon fashion. The odd pedestrian will have to stay behind, or scrape by with danger of injury to his anatomy.

"Why is a Hen?"

There is an old and foolish conundrum, "Why is a hen?" and to this there is no logically satisfactory answer. This conundrum might, however, have been asked recently to some purpose in a London court room.

A hen flew into a bicycle. It upset the rider and smashed the machine. Was the owner of the hen liable for damages? One lawyer contended that he was, for the hen was trespassing on the highway. The other lawyer said: "No," for there was no proof that the hen might have been expected to act in a violent and destructive manner. The judge agreed to this, and gave judgment for the defendant.

But should not a bicyclist feel reasonably secure on a highway from unprovoked assaults of domestic fowls? A wild fowl is capable, like Habakkuk, of anything. Suppose a cock should peck a hole in the tire of a standing devil wagon?

The stone weighs over 4 1/2 tons, and it was built by L. A. McAdam. It is of handsome white marble, and the design massive and impressive: it is surmounted by a large open Bible. The monument was erected by the loving family of the deceased lady, who has been greatly missed in Sussex circles. —Sussex Record.

Russell Waycott Dies From Injuries Received in the Pulp Mill

One of the saddest accidents in the annals of St. George occurred on Wednesday 11th inst., when Russell Waycott met his death in the pulp mill. With another young man he was engaged in running a belt on a pulley, in the department known as the wood mill. While no one witnessed the accident, it is the general opinion that he slipped and his head came in contact with the pulley on the fast revolving shaft. His assistant was on another side of a partition holding the belt, when he saw Waycott fall—a small aperture being in the partition. He ran round quickly and found the poor fellow on the floor unconscious and in a dying condition. He was tenderly moved from the mill to his home and Dr. Taylor summoned. The doctor saw at once that he was past all earthly hope. He made him as comfortable as possible, and in a short time one of the best known young men in the community breathed his last.

The funeral was held on Friday and was one of the largest seen in St. George for years. The Canadian Order of Foresters, of which deceased was a member, attended in a body. The floral offerings were beautiful, especially the wreath from the employees of the Pulp Co. A loving mother, three brothers, one sister and a wide circle of friends mourn the loss of this bright young man who met such an untimely death.

BOWSER'S NEW KODAK

He Does Not Score Much of a Success With It.

GOES OUT AFTER SUBJECTS.

Encounters Three, Who Prove to Be Belligerent—His New Fad Attended With Difficulties, and He Finally Has It Out With Mrs. B.

(Copyright, 1917, by Homer Sprague.)
When Mr. Bowser came home a few evenings since with a bulging package under his arm and a glad smile on his face, Mrs. Bowser, of course, had a natural curiosity to know what he had purchased. He would not give her any satisfaction about it until after dinner, and then he asked:
"My dear, has it ever struck you that I had the instincts of an artist about me?"
"No, I can't say that it has," she honestly answered.
"That's because your mind has been on bargain sales. If there is a sale of women's forty-cent stockings at 25 cents a pair, you never fail to observe the advertisement."

A CAT'S HEAD WHERE THE COLE ORBIT IS.

"Do you think you have the instincts spoken of?"
"Think! I know I have. I have known it for years. One can't deceive himself about such things. There isn't the slightest question in my mind but that I was born for a great artist."
"Was that why you were going to paint the front fence blue and the gate red this spring?"
"Could not understand him.

Mr. Bowser was walking around the sitting room with his hands crossed behind his back. At the words his face grew red, and he stopped short and gave Mrs. Bowser a look that would have swept all the towels off the clothesline on a wash day and followed it by saying:
"How could I expect that a mind like yours could understand one like mine? You can sit down to a dish of pork and beans and yam-crum over it, but you'll stand by a hotly-baked whole afternoon and never think it was any different from a cornstarch."
"Well, dear, let's not dispute," replied Mrs. Bowser after a moment. "You have said that your grandfather was an artist, and perhaps his mantle has fallen on your shoulders. Are you going to try to paint a landscape?"
"I took Mr. Bowser five minutes to get over his hobby, and he was still sally over it when he said:
"No, I'm not, but I've bought a kodak and propose to take a few pictures this summer. Any objections to that? Got any more snow ready?"
"None whatever. I think it a good thing, and I believe you will make a success of it. I will learn here to operate it, and when you are at the office I—"

"How much you want? It's something not to be fussed with. Took it just as you would a coal hole. I shall do the artist work for this family."

Unwrapped a Camera.

He cut the strings of the package and unwrapped a fine kodak and explained that he had paid only $40 for it because he had once served on a coroner's jury with the man who sold it. It would have been $50 to any one else.
"Wouldn't one for $3 have done just as well?" queried Mrs. Bowser after looking the instrument over. "I mean wouldn't it have been just as well to get a cheap one until you were sure about the artistic instincts?"
"Not by a herned sight. A cheap kodak may do for a scrub person, but I want the best. So you still doubt the instincts? You hear me, Mrs. Bowser, when I tell you that there is more of the born artist in my third-sister than there is in all your relations for ten generations back. Enough, however, I am now going out into the back yard to take a few flashlight pictures. You and the cook can hold one of your heart to heart talks and wonder if I'm not crazy."

Punishment.

Head Inquisitor—You were the chauffeur, I believe, who was continually setting off every ten minutes with your machine.
Late Arrival—Yes, sir.
"Well, go and swallow a cup of boiling cylinder oil every ten minutes till I can think of some punishment to fit your case."—New York Life.

Cook Took No Chances.

"It may be a kodak or it may be an infernal machine," she protested, "and I'm not going to take any chances. I had an aunt who posed in front of one of those things once, and all of a sudden there was a flash-bang, and all I found of her was one rib and a scream of terror."

When Mr. Bowser passed through the house Mrs. Bowser asked where he was going. He replied that he would take a little wander around the streets to catch some character studies. He did not have to go far to find them. On the corner two blocks down stood three old tramps waiting to strike some pedestrian for lodgings money. They represented one of the types he was after. Before he had reached them he had decided to label their pictures "Ambition," "Persistence" and "Integrity," respectively.
"Boys," he began, "I'm an artist, and this is a kodak. Have you any objections to my taking a flashlight picture of the group?"
"If you will come down $2 apiece all around," answered Ambition.
"Nonsense! You ought to be proud to be taken for nothing."
"Oh, we had, and the police wanting us! It's $2 or nothing."
"Then you'll get together, and if I can get the police on I'll do it."
That was an unfortunate remark for Mr. Bowser. One of the three grabbed his hat, another gave him a cuff, and the third made a grab and just missed his nose as they ran away. Mr. Bowser looked around for a statue of Liberty to tear down, but, not finding any handy, he cooled off after a time and went his bereaved way. He had thought to return home after another headpiece, but he suddenly remembered that great artists always went around the streets bareheaded and thus got a name for eccentricity. Three blocks farther along he came upon a short, stout woman carrying a bundle of kindlings on her shoulder and talking to herself about the high price of diamonds. She was the type he wanted for "Hope On, Hope Ever," and he accosted her with:
"Madam, can I speak with you a moment?"
"Can you speak with me?" she replied as she stood and looked at him.
"You can, if you'll tell me if you can get me a diamond point that will set in a ring. I'm a lone woman, sir. I'm a lone woman, sir."
"Yes, yes, but all I want is to take a picture of you. I'm an artist, you know."
"I know nothing of the kind. You may have come from the zoo for all I know. A picture of me! Never! No true lady will allow a man to take her picture and be showing it around in saloons. Sir, you pass on."

Carry Me Spoke.

The conductor was inclined to seek for sympathy. "Do you see that woman on the left hand side of the car, up near the front?" he asked the thin man on the back platform.
"Yes, I see her."
"The one with the dizzy hat?"
"Yes."
"Well, I think she's tryin' to beat me out of a fare. When I went in to collect she never looked around, and I ain't quite sure that she didn't pay me before, although I'm almost positive about it. She looks to me like a woman who'd be glad to stir up a fuss. I can pick 'em out as far as I can see 'em. You never spot a woman with a face like that who isn't ready to bluff her way anywhere. I wish to thunder I knew whether she had paid her fare or not."
"I wouldn't worry about it any more," said the thin man. "I paid the lady's fare some time ago. She's my wife."—Argument.

Live and Die on the River.

"The river population of Manila is a class by itself," said a traveler. "Not to be outside by Canton, she has her own lorchas, supporting 15,000 people within the city limits, where thousands of children are born, grow, live and die on these floating cargo carriers. They never dream of any other world than that which floats about them. These boats are small, but accommodate a family of five to seven. They have a fore-cabin, a platform and a rice kitchen. The cabin or covered portion is very small. In fact, I don't see how they live—and it is a wonder to me that the children don't fall overboard and drown. You will often see a woman sitting at the end of the boat, rowing with a child strapped on her back, looking for all the world like a little monkey."

Seized the Opportunity.

There were bold thieves and bold methods in the earlier days in Holborn. Here is an example:
Said a stout, athletic old gentleman to a well dressed stranger who was passing: "A recent has stolen my hat. I tried to overtake him, but I'm so out of breath I can't stir another lock." The stranger surveyed the other with critical eye. The victim was puffing and panting as for dear life. In the pleasant tone in the world the stranger said:
"If I were you, I'd put the hat in the collar. Fold the revers back and double the coat over, holding it on the center seam. Smash out all wrinkles and lay it on a level surface in the trunk."

Fifteen Dollars in Her Inside Pocket.

Malice—What did Molly mean by saying that joining the Audubon society was a good business proposition? Margy—The dues are only $5, while a hat with feathers on it costs at least $20.

His Promotion.

"So Jack's been made secretary and treasurer of the company, has he?"
"Yes. He has to copy all the letters and take all the deposits from the bank and oh, Mary, I'm so proud of him!"—Harp's Bazar.

Spanish Proverb.

"Highly overstrained turns to wrong."

Calculations offer a great many interesting propositions for the studious. In fact, I. J. Dunk of Baltimore has compiled a rather remarkable arrangement of the title of a song from "Miss Mollie"—"I Want What I Want When I Want It." In the following twenty-five squares the words are so arranged that by beginning in the upper left hand corner and reading across or down, not up, the sentence can be read in 18,421 different ways, according to the arrangement. There is no time this week to verify the count, but you may do so who has leisure. Here is the arrangement:
I Want What I Want
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It
When I Want It I Want It

A Tough Contract.

"Well, Caleb," said Captain W. of Massachusetts years ago, "will you ask a day to saw wood for me? I've got several cords that I want sawed in two for the freestone."
"I should charge you about half a dollar a day if I had a saw," replied Caleb, "but I ain't got none, captain, so I don't see how I can accommodate you."
"If that's all that's lacking I guess we can manage it," said the captain. "I've got a prize new one, keen as a brier, and I'll let it to you reasonable. How would ninepence (2 1/2 cents) a cord do for the use of it?"
"I reckon that's a fair price, captain. I'll be right in the mornin'."
Bright and early that next July morning Caleb was at work, and he kept at it so faithfully that he finished before sunset, when he went to the house to settle.
"Let's see," said the captain, "you were to have half a dollar a day. We'll call it a day, although it ain't sundown yet. That's 50 cents for you, and you were to have ninepence a cord for the use of the saw. There were three cords and a half in the pile. That makes 42 1/2 cents due me. Somewhat, Caleb, you don't have very much come out to you."
"How unfortunate," said Caleb after scratching his head dubiously for half a minute and then looking up quickly as if a new light had broken in upon his mind—"how unfortunate that you didn't have half a cord more, for then we'd 've come out just square."

The First House of Commons.

The earliest traces of the English house of commons are found in the year 1263. That year Simon de Montfort, earl of Leicester, caused writs to be issued in the king's name requiring each sheriff of a county to return to a parliament which he proposed to hold two knights for the shire under his jurisdiction, two citizens for each city within its limits and two burgesses for each borough. The parliament thus called met in London on July 12, 1265, and was practically the first in which the people, as distinguished from the nobility and aristocracy, had ever participated. It was not until the revolution of 1688, however, that the people were fairly and squarely represented in parliament. The house of commons is today the supreme power in England. It will be law, the lords and king being, as Walter Bagehot long ago declared, men "instrumental." The power of the crown in England is merely nominal, as is that also of the house of lords. When the people speak out loudly through their house of commons, that is a general rule settles it.

Are Metals Alive?

"Metals have life," said a metallurgist recently. "Metals have life, but a little. And metals can be stimulated, depressed, poisoned."
Platinum wire, immersed in water, gives off an electric current that may easily be measured. If you put bicarbonate of soda in the water, the stimulated wire gives off a stronger current. Put in bromine of potassium, and the depressed wire gives off a weaker current. Finally, put in oxalic acid, and the poisoned wire gives off no current at all. It will never again give off any current. It is dead.
"Now, I leave it to you. If you can detect the difference in the intensity and finally administer to it a fatal dose of poison, have you not a right to say that the metal has life?"

A Mollified Subject.

Nollekens, the sculptor, was a man of pretty wit and of neat resource in his profession. He had at one time for a sitter a woman of great beauty, but of an extremely nervous and impatient temperament. During her sittings she would constantly change her position, and with each shift of posture her expression changed. At last the sculptor's patience gave way.
"Madam," he cried, "of what avail is your beauty if you will not sit still? I have reduced it in my model? The sinner smiled in a gratified vanity and was as motionless as a lay figure during the remainder of her sittings."
"Strong Even in Death."
There is a characteristic story well known in London that will bear repeating, says a writer in London Truth. The lady is said to have written the following letter to a royal personage:
"Sir—My medical attendants have just informed me that I am in a hopeless condition. I should be happy did I know that you would be represented at my funeral. I enclose a check for £1,000 to cover all expenses."

When He Got Sane.

Husband—Have you still the letters I wrote you before we were married?
Wife—Yes. Why?
Husband—Bring them here. I want to burn them. I am just making my will, and I am afraid that if any of my relations see those letters after I am dead they will think I was of unsound mind.—George Bantler.

Easy, but Heavy.

"I suppose it was hard work to follow my argument?" said the lawyer.
"No," answered the judge. "It was easy to follow it, but it was difficult to keep awake until the destination was reached."

Disappointed.

"Tommy, you've got a new little brother. Aren't you glad?"
"A lady's!" I thought it would be a horse. Papa promised me one for such a long time."

A Foolish Consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds, adorned by little statesmen and philosophers and divines.—Emerson.

Raising Babies by Chart.

We let machines in the form of nurses and governesses raise our children under precise directions tacked upon the walls. And some mothers are proud of the completeness of their thrall to these charts—actually proud because their babies are "obedient" youngsters.
One day I was shown such a chart—a businesslike, austere product of some pseudo scientist's brain and printer's ink.
"Isn't it complete?" said the nurse. "Read it."
I read: "Aerated milk, 9 a. m. Scraped quarter orange, 9:30 a. m. Pasteurized milk, 10 a. m. Slice of health toast, 1:10 o'clock. 10:15 a. m. Modified milk, 3 o'clock. 10:45 a. m. Walk eighteen steps, 11 a. m. Two teaspoonfuls distilled water, 11:15 a. m."
The rest of the chart was similar to this.
"It is complete," said I. "but I should like to edit the next one they get out."
She opened her eyes and raised her brows. (You know the way superior people, especially the recently superior kind, do it—your you get a taste in your mouth right away as if she had handed you a grapefruit to eat without all the cracks.)
"By putting in a line right here," I said, refusing to be frozen by her manner. "Twelve thirty to 1 o'clock, leave baby a little."
She didn't even thank me for the suggestion—actually, she didn't. Women are peculiar propositions. What?—Böhmenian.

Interviewing a Chinaman.

I remember one distinguished Chinese official in the newspaper men a big surprise. We knew that he was a high officer and that he had come to this country on a mission of importance, but not one of us dreamed of getting from him more than a perfunctory interview through one of his interpreters. Through a secretary we secured the big man our desire for an interview. He talked with his secretary in Chinese for a few moments, and then the secretary in halting English invited us to accompany him and the chief to the officer's suit. We filed in, dropped into the seats to which we were bowed by the statesman and waited for somebody to begin.
As we hesitated a peculiar smile lit the big man's face. Lying back in his chair, he cocked one leg over the other, lighted a cigar and dropped a bomb by saying: "Fire away, boys; I'm ready. But before you begin who won the boat race?"

The Boomerang Contract.

The author of "A Temperance Town" and "A Texas Story" spent much of his time in his country home, but one day he appeared unexpectedly in New York at the Lambs club. Going straight to the cafe, he made one large, inclusive gesture, which brought every man present about him. "It's on me," said Mr. Hoyt. Then he told his story.
It was before the days of electric and gasoline motors, and he had bought a little steam yacht. He engaged as his engineer one of his Yankee neighbors and offered him liberal wages, with the provision that the engineer should find his own coal. It was a long way to the nearest coal yard, and Mr. Hoyt had all the trouble he was looking for to keep his own furnace fed.
"But where shall I get the coal?" the new engineer asked.
"I don't care," said the foremost of American stage humorists, "Steam it." So the bargain was struck. All went well until the early autumn Mr. Hoyt went into his cellar to see how much more coal he would have to purchase for the winter. Of several tons on hand in the spring only two or three scuttles remained. The theft was speedily traced to the engineer.

The Sun and the Telescope.

The popular notion is that the astronomer points his telescope directly at the sun and sees his vision point blank across the chasm of millions of miles. Instead, says a writer in the Ohio Magazine, the errand sun rays are lassoed by a celestiale—a great circular mirror driven by clockwork in such a manner that it throws its light into another mirror above, and this in turn sends the long, concentrated beam far into the interior of the telescope house. The two mirrors were in automatic adjustment to each other, so that the solar beams may be shot into the building, no matter in what portion of the sky the sun may be situated. At the far end of the building the reflected sunbeam strikes a concave mirror which catches the light and, focusing it back toward the opening whence it first entered, focuses it into a perfect image of the sun.

Female Diamonds.

The jeweler held a magnifying glass to a superb white diamond gemstone.
"Do you see those little diamonds on the farther edge?" he said. "They are invisible to the naked eye, but the glass shows them quite plainly, doesn't it? Well, they are the proof that this diamond is a female; hence we say that there are male and female diamonds, the males, of course, being those that don't produce these things."
"Female diamonds are always the finest, in fact nearly all the diamonds of wide world fame are females."

Society of the Cincinnati.

The Society of the Cincinnati was an order established by the officers of the Revolutionary army in 1783 to perpetuate their friendship and to raise funds for the relief of the widows and orphans of those who had fallen during the war. It was so named because it included patriots banded by Washington, between whom and the old Economic farm-general, Cincinnati, there were supposed to be many resemblances.

Present Troubles.

"Ah, pretty lady," said the fortune teller, "you wish to be told about your future husband?"
"No, ma'am," replied Mrs. Galley. "I've come to learn where my present husband is when he's absent."

Royal Remedy.

Mistress—Your cold's very bad, Jane. Are you doing anything for it?
"Oh, yes, ma'am. The chemist 'ere 'st' me some crystallized structure of Queen's Pills—Punch.

Evolution.

"Father," said little Rolle, "what is evolution?"
"Evolution, my son, is a sort of apostasy which man has invented for displaying so many of the traits of the lower animals."

Young Wife—Today is the anniversary of our wedding. I shall have one of the chickens killed in honor of the occasion. Her Husband—Oh, leave it alone. It wasn't the chicken's fault!

GOVERNOR IS HIS OWN PRISONER

Windsor Sept. 4.—Governor John Harmon is his own prisoner at Sandwich jail. Judge McHugh issued an order recently, directing him as governor to commit himself, and for the next twenty days he will fill a dual role. As a prisoner he may be tempted to escape, but as jailer he will be required to keep a close guard over himself.
Before Governor Harmon received his appointment he was a Windsor marble dealer, and he left the business with one or two debts unpaid, among them a bill to the McGrattan Marble company of St. George. He did not repudiate the debt when he became a government official, as he might have done, but felt unable to meet it at once, and asked for time. The company pressed for an immediate settlement, however, and secured a judgment in the division court. On his failure to follow the judge's directions the order to commit him for contempt was secured. He is not required to lock himself in, but can go and come at his own will so long as he does not escape from himself.
This is really the second time the governor has been committed. His appointment was a popular one in Windsor; and at the farewell banquet tendered him his friends held a mock trial, sentencing him to jail on various counts.
The second commitment has created quite as much amusement as the first.
