

MUSICAL IN MUSICAL CIRCLES. In my notes of last week the types made me say that Mr. G. S. Mayes was the 2nd bass of the male quartette at German Street baptist church.

Things musical are generally very quiet, owing I suppose to the Lenten season. There have been a few small Sunday school entertainments, but not of sufficient importance to chronicle so long after their occurrence.

I have had sent to me, an extract of the choir from the annual report of the priest in charge of the Mission church, which I had not seen before.

The year has brought changes in the matter of our music, with some serious disappointment perhaps, and a present longing for what is just now unobtainable. Yet, we have gained very much in the general spirit and conduct of the choir.

The first sentence is very fine indeed; but I cannot all agree with the rest. I do not see that the choir shows a gleam of "general spirit and conduct," when it is an almost acknowledged fact that the most useful men would have left long ago, if it were not for the sense of duty that pervades them in not deserting their church in her distress.

My suggestion does not seem to have taken kindly to Mr. Stratton as to the supplied choir union. As I do not hear of any such movement taking place I am sorry for this, as I feel sure it would be a step in the right direction.

The Oratorio Society will have a heavy bill to fill if the philharmonic club do not revive very soon and start practicing. A scratch orchestra, picked up at the last minute, will be very unsatisfactory to the public, the society, and I should think to themselves also.

I did not like to accuse Mr. Collinson of accompanying badly at the E. of P. concert last week as I was sure that there was an honest reason that was not apparent to the public. It appears that the piano chosen by him was not sent, but a very inferior instrument.

Richard Mansfield has ordered his manager to discontinue the use of posters and window cards, and to confine all the advertisements of his company to newspapers.

This is a peculiar old world. Here is New York raving over Georgia Cayvan's gowns in "American Abroad" in one breath, and in the next rejoicing because Eleanor Duse doesn't care a rap apparently what she wears, and fairly subordinates dress to her art.

The Sultan of Turkey is an excellent pianist, and spends five hours every day practicing. He devotes a couple of hours daily to teaching his daughter how to play.

Mrs. Frances Crosby, author of "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and three thousand other hymns, is sixty-four years old. She lives in New York, and has been blind since she was six weeks old.

Some time ago it was known that the further collaboration of Mr. W. S. Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan had become merely a question of time. The conjunction is now accomplished, and the musical public may expect another Gilbert-Sullivan opera next fall.

The old adage that shoemakers should stick to their lasts is in need of revision. Herr August Enns, the young Danish composer, whose opera, "Die Hexe," has recently been produced with such success in Berlin, was the son of a shoemaker, and brought up to the bench himself.

Figures have been published showing the earnings of the London music-halls. The Empire dividend is at the rate of 66 per cent. per annum, and its shares are at 400 per cent. premium. The Tivoli shares are at 80 per cent. premium, while the dividend is at 20 per cent.

Madame Christine Nilsson has given $5,000 towards founding a hospital for the cure of throat diseases in France. This is the result of a vow made in the greatest prima donna's girlhood.

The influence of Liszt on the destiny of the piano was immense, says the composer Saint-Saens. I can best compare it with the revolution brought about by Victor Hugo in the mechanism of the French language.

TALK OF THE THEATRE.

Edwin Booth probably will never act again.

Eleanor Morrett signed with John Stetson to play the part of Mrs. Eastlake Chapel in "The Crust of Society," No. 2 company.

Eleanora Duse, after her present American tour, will go to Paris and rest for two weeks, and will then play in London for six weeks.

Rufus Somerby and his trained horses were snowed out in Vermont last week. They are filling dates, though, and doing a large business.

Last week Lewis Morrison and Rosabel Morrison played opposition engagements in St. Louis. Both did well.

aid in the development of a local industry, and at the same time get value for their money, it is right for them to do so rather than to give their money to a foreign corporation or its representatives.

"That is why the company I represent have gone into business. You cannot pick up a newspaper but you will see in it a great number of advertisements of patent medicines; chiefly American. It is an unquestioned fact that there is a large demand for such medicines. Every druggist, every country store-keeper will tell you of the demand. It is very convenient for families living some distance from a physician, or who may not feel that a case is serious enough to require medical aid, to have at hand a small stock of reliable remedies for the ills to which people are most subject. I know that many physicians speak lightly of these things or even denounce them, but experience is better than mere opinion and patent medicines have come to stay.

"So far as the company I represent is concerned, we are satisfied of success because of the principle I first stated, which of course assumes that we can give value for money paid. We can prove the value by an array of testimony no man in New Brunswick can successfully dispute. Look at our testimonials. This is not a new thing. These remedies have stood the test of thirty years in actual use. What would you say if I told you that Hawker's Tonic was recommended to patients by a leading St. John physician a quarter of a century ago? Or that another, highly endorsed Hawker's pills? And so I might go on at great length.

"Very well. If we have remedies that have effected many and remarkable cures, and if those physicians who have looked into the prescriptions endorse them as excellent; and if the public learn these facts, why should not this local industry develop to immense proportions and furnish employment to a large number of persons?

"We have nothing to say against any other preparations. We simply argue that 'home industry first' should rule in this as in other lines of business. And we believe it will.

"William Hawker is not an unknown man. He stakes his reputation and the company stake their capital on the merits of the remedies that bear his name. There you have it all in a nutshell."

WILLIAM HAWKER.

THE originator of the various popular remedies which bear his name, was born in England, and came to this country with the troops in January, 1862, at the time of the Trent affair, in charge of the hospitals and care of the sick, having been promoted to that position after a careful and thorough training under Surgeon-Major Dyce, Healy Ferguson and the late Surgeon-Major Wolsely, a brother of Lord Wolsely. He continued in charge of the hospitals in St. John and Fredericton until 1864, when he left the service and entered into the drug business, to which his previous valuable experience and knowledge had especially adapted him.

HAWKER'S NERVE AND STOMACH TONIC, a great invigorator and blood builder and a valuable restorative tonic in all cases of nerve exhaustion and general debility.

HAWKER'S TOLU AND WILD CHERRY BALSAM, a certain cure for coughs and colds, and all throat and lung troubles. It soothes and heals the irritable throat and lungs and removes all inflamed and congested matter.

HAWKER'S LIVER PILLS, a safe and sure remedy for all bilious and stomach ills, endorsed and approved by the highest local medical authorities as a most valuable family medicine.

DR. MANNING'S GERMAN REMEDY, a positive cure for rheumatism and neuralgia, and a valuable household liniment and pain killer, both internal and external; and HAWKER'S CATARRH CURE, a certain cure for that annoying, offensive and debilitating complaint to which so many are subject in our climate. These remedies can be obtained of all druggists and general dealers throughout the country, or sent by mail on receipt of price.

MAJOR GENERAL DASHWOOD, in a recent letter, states that Mr. WILLIAM HAWKER, CHRISTOPHER, served with him in her Majesty's service, and had charge of the hospitals and general care and management of the sick, and that he was highly esteemed and considered most efficient in his position. No doubt the wide experience of disease and medicine obtained by him have largely tended to the success of his remedies.

MARCH 1.—The Methodist choir concert which was the great event of last week and which much-loved people have been looking forward to for some time, was on Friday evening. It was an unparalleled success in every particular.

Mrs. Harrison was in excellent voice and her first solo, "Let the Bright Seraphim," responded by singing "The Ivory Gates and Golden." Mr. S. M. Hayes, of St. John, made his debut before a Sackville audience, on this occasion.

Mrs. Harrison and Mr. Hayes sang with great expression "Flow Gently Sweet Devo," and this was thought by many to be the piece of the evening, and he received a well-deserved encore.

Mr. Dobson sang "The Golden City" in his usual good style. Miss Ayer's violin solo, "Boulevard de Fosse," was played with great skill and she was complimented to an encore, which she did by playing "The Last Rose of Summer" in a truly artistic manner.

ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, MARCH 4, 1893.

BOSTON HAS SOME SNOW.

HOW THE OLD FASHIONED WINTER AFFECTS THE HUB. The Citizens Have Had Enough of this Reminder of the Good Old Times—Their Depths of Discomfort—The Trick Played on a Newspaper Man.

Boston, Feb. 28.—"Well, this is a regular Canadian snowstorm," is the way they put it here nowadays and give a grunt of satisfaction which indicates that the problem as to what it all means has been solved, and there is nothing more to do but buy snow shovels and get it out of the way.

When the thermometer gets down past the cipher, its Canadian weather, and when the snow gets in its fine work it is looked upon as on a footing with the British American Association—very Canadian.

Talk about snow! Seventeen inches of it has fallen in Boston within a week, and to look at the streets one would think it was seventeen feet. It is drifted of course, but as a drifter the wind is not in it with the street railway company. Somebody suggested a sub-way across the common, a short time ago, and now the people have an illustration of what the cars would look like if half way beneath the surface.

For the cars must run, no matter what comes or goes, and now they are running through snow banks. If they did not stop at regular stations and one could get off and on whenever he pleased, like in the days of the old horse cars—the people would have to climb the mountains on snow shoes, or sink to the neck.

In St. John, the snow gets a fair show. The street railway recognizes the rights of a respectable storm, and trots out those little boxes with hay on the bottom. Out in Boston a vehicle of that kind would have a crowd of small boys running after it, and the circus waggons would become commonplace. Then again street superintendent Martin would devote all his energies to levelling the snow, so as to give the people a "good old-fashioned winter."

Here the "beautiful" is looked upon as an intruder and the great object is to get it out of the way. There is no levelling. It is either carting or piling and the street railway does most of the latter.

They try to keep ahead of the storm, and the moment the first snow flakes fall on the derbies of the superintendents, the electric ploughs come out—nearly 150 of them, big boxed up infernal machines, that scrape and plow, and apparently try to give an imitation of public works Director Smith's steam elephant. The West End street railway has 280 miles of track to keep clear, and in weather such as we have had during the last week it is expensive work. It costs $4,000 a day to do it. Four hundred teams are employed by the railway to cart the snow away, and an army of 1,000 men do the shovelling.

Then the city has to do its share of the work, at an expense of $2,000 a day. The municipal shovel brigade numbers 1,300 men, and beside the regular city teams which were pressed into service from all departments, 400 outside teams were engaged—all of which dumped about 3,000 loads of snow a day on the common or into the Charles river.

And the walking! Nothing but knee boots are of any use whatever, and then it is almost necessary to glue one's feet into them, to pull them out of the slush. Nobody who appreciates the clean, dry trodden snow, that makes one light and frisky, and anything short of a dog trot an impossibility, has to go out into the country; for in town there is nothing but slush. Not slush that you know in St. John, the slippery, juicy, flakey slush that one can leave the print of his footsteps in—but a crumbly, dirty, deep slush, more like salt than anything else. Walking is impossible. Everybody is on the run, skipping, jumping and wading, and the entire male population has its trousers turned up. The women—well it would be great weather for the crino-line.

After the snow, the next thing in importance is President Cleveland's cabinet. It is all made up, and remarkable inasmuch as it is the first cabinet ever selected in the United States before inauguration day.

Talking of this reminds me of a little incident of the last election which I do not think I mentioned at the time, although a provincialist was the leading figure in it.

When the democratic ticket was being made up in Boston, the committee came to the conclusion that it would be the proper thing to do to nominate a newspaper man for a member of the school board. City Editor Wetmore of the Herald was offered the nomination. He had not solicited it, and considering the matter decided to go on the ticket, but in view of certain things which transpired during the next week changed his mind and declined the honor.

William F. Murray, on the Herald city staff, and a Halifax man who has been in Boston about fifteen years, and has been active in politics, thought he would like to be a member of the school board.

WHAT A GREAT PROTECTION!

A Fredericton Lady Who Found Identification Difficult.

THE CASE OF COMEDIAN HATFIELD.

Buried Unknown to His Relatives by Friends.

Appalling Story of Hotel Ruins.

No Way to Tell Who Are Among the Dead.

An Identification Plan Explained.

A Sure and Simple Method at a Nominal Cost.

How many thousand persons are buried every year in an unknown grave; are buried at the expense of their fellow men, away from home, away from friends, unknown and unwept?

Statistics will not say, but we have the records before us every day. Yes, morning, noon and night, in the newspapers which come into our homes, they speak in a hundred ways of the mysteries of the living world.

The electric telegraph, from every hole and corner in this country, flashes the news to and fro, that men and women are dying daily in the big cities, friendless and homeless, the guests of charity, yes, unknown sometimes even to themselves.

The rich as well as the poor are victims, and, in fact, their cases are mainly brought to our attention. Accidents do not respect persons, and thousands of men wealthy in their own cities, have found themselves away from home, unknown, without a dollar and without any chance of proving their identity.

To prove one's identity—that is the point; to be able, living or dead, to prove that you are Mr. — of St. John, and no one else, is worth a good deal.

It is absolute security, not only for yourself but for your friends. It secures you respectful, honored treatment in case of sudden death or unconsciousness, and it means everything to your family if your life is insured and death overtakes you among strangers or in a foreign country.

Insurance companies require positive proof that your body is that of — before they will pay over your insurance.

THIS BADGE WILL IDENTIFY ME (SEE OTHER SIDE)

TELEGRAPH THIS NUMBER 4873 TO THE DOMINION IDENTIFICATION CO. SAINT JOHN, N. B. THEY WILL NOTIFY MY FRIENDS FIFTY-FOUR UNKNOWN.

crashing through a railroad bridge, but you don't know; you might meet just such a fate. You go to theatres, you sleep in hotels, you travel on railroads; death is always with us.

How to overcome all this—to be able to know that, wherever you go or wherever you are, that no matter what happens to you, it will be possible to prove your identity, is the aim and object of the Dominion Identification company of St. John, N. B.

Its plan is simple and perfect, and the cost is so trifling that to recognize its advantages persuades one to possess it. When you give your name and address to this company, you at the same time furnish them with some particulars regarding your age, height, weight, complexion and other identification marks.

You also give them the name of some friend or relative and his or her permanent address. They in return give you a metallic badge that will stand the test of fire or chemicals, upon which is a number corresponding exactly to your registration number on their books.

If at any time it became necessary to prove your identity and to show that you are M — of —, a telegram to the Dominion Identification company stating what the number is on your badge, will ensure a prompt and satisfactory reply.

If you meet with sudden death or unconsciousness and cannot be identified by any personal property, the identification badge will tell your friends, for upon it is the simple instruction as follows:—To identify me, Telegraph this number 0000 to the Dominion Identification Co., St. John, N. B. They will notify my friends.

There is nothing superfluous about that; it means exactly what it says. If there is nothing left of you but your bones and this badge, those bones will be insured a decent, honored burial.

People travelling in large cities, they meet with accidents; they are unconscious, are taken to the hospital and die, before being restored to consciousness—no means of identifying them. What is their fate? Their body is sent to the morgue, perhaps dissecting-room, and buried as thousands of others, in an unknown grave.

How many people have disappeared, and their whereabouts have always remained a mystery to their home and friends. Perhaps they have met with just such a fate.

What a protection our badge would have been, and have saved them from the miseries of the morgue, hospitals or dissecting room.

It is possible to multiply incidents by the score to prove what an advantage, in fact, what a blessing such a badge might become to a man in certain situations. There is not room in this paper to do so. A few incidents are given below in which accidents chiefly figure, and the difficulty there has been in proving just who a man is, when taken from the ruins, either of a railroad smash-up, a burning building, or an explosion, or any accident which might befall them.

One, however, might be mentioned where it proved a matter of the greatest difficulty, in the principal city of this Canada of ours, to prove that a young society lady, well-known in this province, was not a much-sought-for criminal of Montreal. Almost everybody recollects the case, how Miss — of Fredericton, went to Montreal to visit a friend; how when she was there but a few hours, she was arrested by a detective of the Montreal police on a serious criminal charge; how she was unable to summon one person in that large city, who could prove that she was Miss — of Fredericton. She was examined, kept in gaol, and not released until the President of the College from which she had obtained her degree, was summoned by telegraph, and travelled several hundred miles to prove that she was herself. If the Dominion Identification Company had been in existence at that time, and Miss — been possessed of a badge, she could not have failed to establish her identity when arrested, and at once have been restored to liberty.

This is only a local case, there are hundreds of similar ones happening every week, almost every day, all over this big country.

The Number of Bodies Unidentified in the Brooklyn Fire.

Dec. 5th.—It was an awful fire that destroyed the Brooklyn theatre, when Kate Claxton was playing "the Two Orphans." How many lives were lost it is impossible to tell, but the estimated number is two hundred and seventy-one, of which two hundred and seventeen were identified. The remaining fifty four were buried in an unknown grave at the city's expense. What a benefit this badge would have been.

ROYAL HOTEL, NEW YORK.

Burned Early in the Morning.—Seventy-six Guests Missing, and at Least Thirty are Dead.

According to the most reliable reports, about one hundred and fifty people were sleeping in the hotel last night. How many are lost may not be estimated for several days. Already several dead bodies have been found, a number of injured persons are in the hospital, and sixty-three have been reported alive. There are about twenty-six persons still missing. There are among the bodies recovered, ten who are unidentified.

Drowned While Skating.

Boston, Feb. 12.—Three unknown persons were drowned today in Mystic River near the foot of Baldwin street, Charlestown, while skating. How great would have been the value of such badges to the relatives of these three people.

Not One Body Identified.

READING, Pa. Jan. 9.—The cyclone this afternoon did enormous damage to this vicinity. A silk mill employing two hundred and fifty girls blew down just before closing hour, and over fifty lives were lost. The explosion and fire in the same neighbourhood burned eight men to death. At ten o'clock the most reliable estimates of the loss of life by this afternoon's cyclone is sixty killed and one hundred injured. Thousands of citizens turned out to search the ruins. Huge bonfires were built around the ruins to aid the search and up to 10-30 o'clock a dozen bodies were taken out, not one of whom can be identified.

The poor as well as the rich will alike have an interest in the success of our plan. Working girls crowded in factories always take such risks as these, but our badge will protect them from burial in an unknown grave.

Another Mystery.

BOSTON, Jan. 28.—The dead body of an unknown man was found this morning frozen on a cake of ice on the Mystic river near Mystic wharf, Charlestown. There was a large gash on the top of his head.

CAR STABLES BURNED.

The Boston West End Building Destroyed, and at Least Two Lives Lost.

Boston, Dec. 21.—The car stables of the West end street railway at Medford were burned to-night. Two bodies were taken from the ruins, one so badly disfigured that it could not be identified. Four other employees are missing, but they may be in the ruins.

Nothing whatever to show who these men were; not a feature to be recognized. The badges of the Dominion Identification company will not burn.

A Body Identified.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Oliver Cummings of Truro, N. S., a merchant, identified G. Fulton as one of the men who died in the International hotel, Park Row, from the effects of blowing out the gas. He visited the coroner this afternoon. He states that the dead man had been in business and was considered wealthy in Onslow, where he lived. He was a large miller, and was probably in the city on lumber business. Cummings arranged to send Fulton's body home. By a curious coincidence Mr. Cummings happened to be in New York the same time Mr. Fulton died. If he had not been there who could have identified the dead man? Who would have notified his friends? The plan of the Dominion Identification Company provides for all this.

WHO WERE IN THE HOTEL.

The Building Burned, and the Hotel Register Missing.

HARTFORD, Feb. 10.—The main portion of the Park Central Hotel facing on High and Allyn streets fell down this morning a few minutes before five o'clock, burying in the debris at least fifty people. The cause of the accident is not known at present, but is supposed to have resulted from the explosion of boilers in the basement, and from the havoc created by it; the explosion theory seems most probable. It is the most horrible accident that has ever been known in Hartford, and when the list of the dead and wounded is completed, it will be found to be a horror, equal to any that has taken place within the last half century.

The loss of life is believed to be less than fifty, but it cannot be definitely stated as the night clerk is among the missing and his books destroyed. The entire section of the hotel was gone, only a pile of brick and timber remaining. The scene about the ruins was horrible. In the centre of the spot where the building stood was a man, his wife and little girl. No help could get to them and they finally fell back into the flames and died in plain sight of the spectators. In an alley near the annex the shrieks of a woman caused the blood of the people looking on to turn cold, as they saw a young girl lying with her body half across a beam. There was look of agony on her face. Finally the support fell and she disappeared from sight.

The hotel was a five story brick structure and had eighty bed-rooms all of which were occupied last night. The horror of the scene was increased by fire which immediately broke out in the ruins. Only one person in the main building escaped.

The death list includes regular boarders and transient guests and will reach towards sixty or seventy.

Note the fate that the registration books of the hotel were burned. Our badges cannot burn and your name is always registered on our books.

Lost With All Hands.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Oct. 7.—During yesterday's storm, the schooner "Mary Jane," owned by Capt. Burton, of Wallace, N. S., was wrecked off the north beach of Jourmain island, near Cape Tormentine. A man's body was found on the beach near by, and on him a card addressed Franklin Seaman, Wallace, N. W.

Identified by a card; please recollect that every member of the Dominion Identification company will possess an unperishable card in the shape of a numbered metallic badge.

Named by His Own Buttons.

PRINCETON, Ont., Feb. 22.—The body of a man was found in the woods near here yesterday. The man's name had been cut from several parts of his clothing and the only thing found on him that might lead to identification was a pair of cuff buttons marked W. West.

Identified by his name on his cuff buttons; Not one man in a thousand has a name engraved on his cuff buttons, or on anything else in his possession, for that matter. Your name is not engraved on our badge, but your name is on our books, and the number of your badge corresponds to the number opposite your name on our books. If such an accident as the above happened to you or your friend how desirable would the badge be to you.

Comedian Hatfield's Funeral.

Chicago Mail, Dec. 16.

Heber Wolsey Hatfield, the well-known and popular comedian, and a member of Haverly's Minstrels, who died suddenly Tuesday afternoon, was buried in Oakwoods cemetery today. The funeral services were held in Klammer's undertaking establishment at 240 Wabash avenue, Chicago, all of Haverly's company being present. Mr. Haverly was unable to find any of the dead comedian's relatives, and took charge of the service himself. Mr. Hatfield was well known in the theatrical profession and had many friends and admirers. He was one of the brightest lights in Haverly's company.

Mr. Hatfield was a native of Norton, King's County. His last visit to this city was in 1877.

Thousands of people who are thinking of visiting the World's Fair will do well to stop and think of the advantages of such a badge in a city where there will be more strangers than the resident population; where the multitude of people will render identification under ordinary circumstances next to impossible. If you propose to visit Chicago this summer, spend one dollar before you start for a badge.

The only expense necessary to obtain our badge and be registered on our books is one dollar, on receipt of which by the Dominion Identification Company, of St. John, N. B., our badge will be forwarded to any address.

BOSTON HAS SOME SNOW.

honor and succeeded in getting on the ticket. Mr. Murray is secretary of the Press club, and all the Boston papers gave him good notices, but after the election he made a discovery.

South Boston is a very democratic district, if there are any provincialists in that section, they are not British Americans—for in Boston a Red hot orangeman is the equivalent of a Red hot American in St. John. Mr. Murray is not a British American, and lays no claim to the distinction. In fact the association is one of the last in Boston to which he would look for support.

On the day, after election, however, he learned that somebody had been industriously advertising him, and his name was held as that of a British American. He now has one of the cards as a memento of the campaign, and it reads something like this:

BRITISH AMERICANS vote for a provincialist for member of the School Board, WILLIAM F. MURRAY. These were industriously circulated in South Boston, and every card was like a red shirt in the face of a bull. Every democrat who saw one of them voted for another man.

The whole democratic ticket for the school board was defeated, but Mr. Murray was pretty far down on the list, and the man who conducted his advertising and whose name he would like to know, was largely responsible for it.

The newspapers have met with one great drawback in their endeavor to tell the people all about the new cabinet and the modesty or indifference of the Massachusetts member has been the cause of it. Pictures of the men selected by Cleveland were either stock cuts in the offices, or else aspirants had photographs ready to give the newspapers the moment their appointments were announced, all but Richard Olney, the attorney general. There was a bustle to get a good picture of him, and it was so long in coming that most of the papers had to do without.

PROGRESS had to apologize for his modesty. So it was that Richard Olney was the great stumbling block in making up the pictorial group of the cabinet this week.

The artist of the Herald, however, struck a happy idea. The first page cartoon, showed the triumphal march to Washington, the whole cabinet going in single file, headed by the president. Every face could be recognized without the label, and he got out of the scrape without libelling Mr. Olney. The attorney came last in line, and the picture was cut off short about that time when he had gotten two feet and a hand in it.

Edison, the inventor, is a millionaire. His dad is to wear old-fashioned clothes, and his hobby is his luxurious laboratory, which costs him $200,000 per annum to keep up—a very different establishment from the laboratory which he improvised in a luggage van, when as a railway newboy, he made chemical experiments in the train, and yet found time to print and sell a little paper whilst travelling. Edison is a vegetarian and an inveterate smoker, disposing of twenty cigars daily.

SEEN AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The Administration Building is pronounced the gem and crown of the Exposition palaces. It is located at the west end of the great court in the southern part of the site, looking eastward, and at its rear are the transportation facilities and depots. The most conspicuous object which will attract the gaze of visitors on reaching the grounds is the gilded dome of this lofty building. This imposing edifice will cost about $15,000. The architect is Richard M. Hunt, of New York, President of the American

Across the face of these screens, at the level of the office floor, are galleries of communication between the different pavilions. The interior features of this great building even exceed in beauty and splendor those of the exterior. Between every two of the grand entrances, and connecting the

This building measures 850x500 feet, and with the Machinery Annex and Power House, cost about $1,200,000. It is located at the extreme south end of the Park, midway between the shore of Lake Michigan and the west line of the Park. It is just south of the Administration Building, and west and across a lagoon from the Agricultural

WHICH WAS THE PRINCE?
The Happy Thought that Occurred to Two Gentlemen of London.
Some years ago a masquerade ball was given by the late Lady Marion Alford, and a very distinguished company was invited. As all were to be masked each guest was naturally requested to produce the card of invitation at the door of Alford House. And, naturally enough, several of the masqueraders forgot to bring their cards.
The first of these, being a gentleman of resource, hit, however on a plan to gain admission without the required formula, that proved perfectly successful.
"Your card of invitation, please, sir."
"I am the Prince of Wales,"
The servant bowed low, and the pseudo-prince passed up.
Ten minutes later another guest arrived without his card. By an odd coincidence the same expedient occurred to him.
"I must ask for your invitation-card, sir," said the servant.
The guest stared at him absent-mindedly.
"Oh!" he said, "I have not got it; but it doesn't matter, I think. I am the Prince of Wales."
The second pretender might have had more difficulty in enforcing his claim; but at the foot of the steps was one of the royal carriages, and the sight of the scarlet liveries convinced the servant that he had been deceived by the first pretender and that the true prince stood here in propria persona.
With a murmured apology the official bowed lower than before, and amid the whispers of the bystanders the royal claimant passed on.

His place was taken by a stout gentleman in a marvellous costume of scarlet and crimson.
"Your card, sir."
"I am the Prince of Wales," said the scarlet domino, briefly.
But the servant smiled.
"Oh no!" he said, blandly but firmly.
"I must really thank you to return for your ticket of invitation. His Royal Highness has already arrived."
And the heir apparent of these realms had to remove his mask ere he could obtain a recognition of his identity.
The Countess of Aberdeen.
The Countess of Aberdeen spent much of her youth on her father's highland estate of Guisachan. It was in these days that she made friends with her father's guest, Mr. Gladstone. Mounted on her little pony she often accompanied him on his rides, and he talked kindly to the bright little girl—sometimes concerning principles and people that some statesmen would have thought quite removed from the interest of so young a creature. But time passes quickly, and when, in 1877, Isabel Majoribanks became the Countess of Aberdeen, those early conversations and the personal interest they established had secured for Mr. Gladstone an influential and enthusiastic adherent in the popular young peeress.
Facts About Mother-of-Pearl.
Some of the best mother-of-pearl is obtained from the nautilus, which is a cephalopod and related to the cuttlefish. The fish occupies only the mouth of its dwelling, the latter being composed of a series of empty chambers, each of which it has successfully lived in and vacated as it grew bigger, building up behind it at each move a wall of purest pearl. These vacant rooms of pearl are all connected by a pneumatic tube, which enables the creature to control the air supply to its house as to make the domicile lighter or heavier at will, in order to ascend or descend in the water. The shell is too thin to bear grinding, and muriatic acid is used to remove the outer coat and disclose the exquisite nacre beneath.

The Bishop and the Boy.
There is rather a good story told of the late Bishop Phillips Brooks, who was a very handsome man, over six feet, and with a stately and dignified presence. As he was going along a street in Philadelphia one day, the Bishop saw a very small boy standing on tiptoe before a door and making vain efforts to ring the bell.
"Let me do that for you my little man," said the kind-hearted Bishop, and gave the bell a hearty pull.
"Thank you, sir," said the small boy, holding out his hand, "and now let's run away!"
The Diamond of Marie Antoinette.
Two uncut diamonds, green and white, mounted on a square diamond, on which is engraved the word "Marie," have been creating interest in England. In the same exhibition were two pearl epaulettes worn by the late Emperor of Delhi, and an ornament made of an idol of pearl in a niche of pearl. A black diamond was shown, the largest that has yet been discovered, and which it took a year to cut, losing 100 carats in the operation.

AN APOLOGY TO THE WOMEN OF CANADA.

There was the notion that a woman's life had broader outlook than the embroidery frame, or the sentimental novel. It was hard to make the world believe that.

There was the higher education. That was hard to obtain. There was the idea that a woman could vote as intelligently upon a school-board as a man. There was a bitter fight for the triumph of that idea.

Woman has triumphed all along the line.

An Apology is Due the Women of Canada.

The proprietors of Melissa commenced with the men. The men, through the trade, made such constant demand for Melissa garments, to replace the archaic rubber coat, that manufacture and proofing was confined to them.

The ladies of Canada said:—"Why can't we get Melissa wraps as the men can get Melissa coats?" That was decisive. The demand is answered. Every village, town and city in Canada, can now have its supply of LADIES', CHILDREN'S AND MISSES' RAINPROOF WRAPS in the latest New York styles, without the New York expense. It means an A. I. New York designer and cutter: an imported staff of trained assistants, all men, and all efficient cloak makers. But it means, too, exquisite tailor-made wraps, within a few steps of the home, wherever the home is, at less than the cost of imported goods.

The latest designs; the most perfect fit; the style and smartness of the expensive New York wraps. There is beauty in them. They are purely Canadian. They are right at your door. They are superior to anything of European manufacture.

They express the best in taste and imagination that New York can produce. But the cost is a great deal less.

As simple wraps they are "distingue." Proofed with Melissa, they are both elegant and comfortable, for they are a double protection against cold, and against rain. Either way they are now on the market.

The Melissa proofed wraps cost but a trifle more than the ordinary cloth wrap.

BUT BE SURE YOU GET MELISSA. Don't take, what some unscrupulous salesmen or traders will tell you is the same as Melissa. Or as good as Melissa. They are really only worthless imitations.

You can always tell a genuine Melissa garment by the Trade Mark Label. Just look under the collar inside.

Its long awaited improvements, however, gave it a hearty welcome, and today its following is world-wide and enthusiastic. Thousands of operators have tried and preferred it, and thousands of others—who lack the courage of their convictions—stick to the old machines from force of habit only—already acknowledge it as THE typewriter. And all of this wonderful success of the past has been won with the early model of the Yost, upon which the NEW YOST is a vast step in advance.

A census of the Hungarian gypsies taken on the last day of January this year shows the total number of that curious people in Hungary to be 185,000. In Russia the proportionate number of births is nearly double that of France, while the German population increases faster than that of any other country.

During the reign of Elizabeth English shoes were three feet in length, the toe pointed and fastened up to the garter with golden chains, to which little bells were attached. Carroll D. Wright, chief of the United States Bureau of Statistics, reports that wages in Massachusetts average $1.70 to every dollar paid in England, while the cost of the same mode of living is $1.17 here to $1 in England.

War and glory have been costly things to France. Between 1792 and 1815 she sacrificed one-half of the 4,500,000 soldiers whom she sent to fight her battles. War has cost her in this century not far from 6,000,000 lives.

Sir Archibald Geikie, of the British Association, after careful thought and patient investigation, together with a great deal of figuring, has come to the conclusion that the world is between 73,000,000 and 650,000,000 years old. A custom prevails in Turkey whereby a Moslem is exempted from military service if he elopes with a Christian girl and keeps her in his harem for a time long enough to warrant the presumption that she has embraced Mohammedanism.

Japanese women put up their hair with wooden, ivory or tortoise-shell pins, seven or eight inches in length, and fully half an inch wide. The pins are usually carved, and are often capped with pivoted figures that dance with every motion of the wearer.

The monkey wrench is not so called on account of its fancied or actual resemblance to a monkey, or because it is a handy tool to "monkey" with, but because it is the invention of one Charles Monkey, of Kings county, New York. Although the world has pretty nearly lost track of Mr. Monkey it seems to be a settled fact that he sold his patent for $2,000 and invested the proceeds in a homestead.

It is estimated that there are today in the United States and Canada about 600 young men in every 1,000 having reached the age of 80 who are single. The conjugal condition of the people in other countries is vastly different. In Russia 373 men and 873 women in every 1,000 who marry are married under 20 years of age, while in England 766 men and 829 women in every 1,000 are married between 20 and 30.

An inch of rain falling on an acre of land weighs 100 tons. There are 640 acres in a square mile, so that the same depth of rain falling on a square mile of land would weigh 64,000 tons. The total area of Great Britain is nearly 90,000 square miles, and assuming an inch of rain to fall over the whole of it, it follows that there must have been discharged from the clouds a weight of water in the form of rain amounting to 5,760,000,000 tons.

The review of the last year's work of the London commissioners of sewers discloses some remarkable particulars as to the market value of the rubbish collected from the streets of the city. The total revenue derived last year was from this source over £1,100, and the items included £116 from old bottles, £106 from broken glass, £82 from old iron, £190 from corks, £91 from rags, £26 from old knives, £487 from string and £80 from waste paper.

For Scrofula

"After suffering for about twenty-five years from scrofulous sores on the legs and arms, trying various medical courses without benefit, I began to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and a wonderful cure was the result. Five bottles sufficed to restore me to health."—Bonifacia Lopez, 327 E. Commerce st., San Antonio, Texas.

Catarrh

"My daughter was afflicted for nearly a year with catarrh. The physicians being unable to help her, my pastor recommended Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I followed his advice. Three months of regular treatment with Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Ayer's Pills completely restored my daughter's health."—Mrs. Louise Rielie, Little Canada, Ware, Mass.

Rheumatism

"For several years, I was troubled with inflammatory rheumatism, being so bad at times as to be entirely helpless. For the last two years, whenever I felt the effects of the disease, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and have not had a spell for a long time."—E. T. Hancock, Elkton, Va.

For all blood diseases, the best remedy is

JOHN A. KIMBALL. Neuralgia of the Heart! Chronic Dyspepsia! Awful Constipation! Rheumatism!

CURED BY GRODER'S SYRUP

Saint John, N. B., October 11, 1892. To THE GRODER DISPENSARY CURE CO., LTD., Gentlemen: I, John A. Kimball, of the City of St. John, in the Province of New Brunswick, shemaster, do solemnly declare that:

I cannot speak in too high praise of the wonders that Groder's Botanic Dyspepsia Syrup has worked in my case. It is an act of justice as well as a duty for me to tell the public through you just what your remedy has done for me. I am 45 years of age. My life during the past 23 years has NEVER BEEN FREE FROM SUFFERING UNTIL NOW. Since I began to take GRODER'S SYRUP, I am entirely cured of NEURALGIA OF THE HEART, CHRONIC DYSPEPSIA, AWFUL CONSTIPATION, and SEVERE RHEUMATISM. My distress from SEVERE CONSTIPATION has been an unending torture for the past ten years, but your remedy is fast restoring healthy action of the stomach and bowels.

THAT my long-standing has ceased to trouble me. I am no longer a gloomy, melancholy dyspeptic. There is NO ACID or pain in any part of my body. My food digests readily and causes me no distress whatever. Your medicine is the first of the hundreds I have tried that has given me any relief. I am ready to answer any inquiry concerning this CURE.

My distrest from SEVERE CONSTIPATION has been an unending torture for the past ten years, but your remedy is fast restoring healthy action of the stomach and bowels.

And I make this solemn declaration conscientiously believing the same to be true, and by virtue of the "Act respecting extra-judicial oaths," Done and declared at the City of St. John, in the Province of New Brunswick, this 11th day of October, A. D. 1892.

JOHN A. KIMBALL. Before me, J. E. BAINES, A Justice of the Peace in and for the City and County of Saint John.

At all Druggists, $1.00 per Bottle. The Groder Dyspepsia Cure Co., Ltd. SAINT JOHN, N. B.

CURES PILES.

"PROGRESS" PICKINGS.

Critics—I wonder how it is that so few women stutt when they talk. Witticisms—They haven't got time.

Yes, she said, I shall marry Harold for I know he loves me. He watched me sharpen a pencil and didn't laugh.

Briggs—Isn't that ulster too big for you? Griggs—It wasn't when I got it. I have grown thin carrying it about.

Maud—Who was the friend I saw with you a moment ago? Ellen—He's not a friend. I'm engaged to him.

He—I am very fond of you. She—How well our tastes agree. He—What are you fond of? She—Oh, no. Of myself.

He's a tyrant. Why, he makes his wife cook his meals. And does he eat them? He does. That's not tyrannical. It is heroic.

Gent—Are you happy, now you are married? Lady—Yes, comparatively speaking. Gent—As compared with whom? Lady—My husband!

Mrs. S.—What is the difference between an investment and a speculation, dear? Mr. S.—If you gain, it's an investment; if you lose it's a speculation.

Optician—"All you need is stronger glasses." Patient—"The glasses are strong enough, doctor; but the stuff that comes in them might be a little stronger."

He—I don't see why you need skates at all, Miss Barrows. She—Why not? He—Your feet are so extremely narrow you could skate quite as well on them.

All the world's a stage, but to any one who has witnessed an " amateur theatrical performance the fact is apparent that all the men and women are not actors.

Wife—And so you got your life insured for my benefit? That's lovely! Husband—Yes, my dear, but just remember, if you drive me to suicide you won't get a cent.

Physician—Considering the weak state of your eyes, it will be as well if you gaze as much as possible into empty space. Patient—All right, then, I'll keep looking into my purse.

He—"Do you love me, darling?" She—"Sometimes I think I do; and then again, when you have that hideous, baggy new overcoat on, I doubt the strength of my affection."

He—I own that there is one very unreasonable thing about me. She—What is it? He—It is because I think there is no one in the world worthy of you that I want you to accept me.

Mrs. McCordle—It strikes me that it is awfully disagreeable for you to talk in your sleep every night. McCordle—I agree with you, my dear; but I have to improve my opportunity, you know.

Truth: Goodness—"Don't you know that you should heap coals of fire on the heads of your enemies?" Badm—"Yes; but with coals at the present price, kicking them is a great deal cheaper."

The plain citizen—I see they have named a street after you. You ought to feel proud. The eminent citizen—I am not so certain of that. It starts from a brewery and ends at the goal.

"Making any money these days?" asked Hicks of the mill owner. "Hardly any," said the other. "We are beginning to realize the truth of the old saying that it takes ten mills to make a cent."

Timid Youth—Miss Grace, perhaps my coming here so often may seem—may seem to—to smack of undue persistency. Demure Maiden—George, your coming here has—has never smacked of any thing yet.

Telegram from Nymn Rodd (to man's wife). "Your husband met with an accident, and was killed." Her telegram—"Send on the remains." The answer—"There are none. He met a bear."

"Why did you break your engagement with poor Tom Hotchkiss?" "Hush, don't tell any one, but he was growing so disgusting fat. When grief had pulled him down a bit, I shall take him on again."

Mullatto Barber (surgically) Your hair are very dry and harsh, sir. Customer (gratefully)—Why, your complexion ain't what it might be; but perhaps you don't like to have people reminding you of it.

Jungerman—When I marry, the very first thing I mean to do is to settle the question as to who is boss. Altman—I'd advise you not to. You'll find yourself a sight better off by remaining in ignorance.

Clara—Oh, I wouldn't for the world kiss a man unless I were engaged to him. Priscilla—Why, I saw you kiss Jack Manley last night and Tom Winthrop tonight. Clara—Truly, but I'm engaged to them.

Cleveland—So you want an office under my administration, eh? Don't you think that the office should seek the man? Office Seeker—Most certainly, but the offices in country are not quite educated up to that point.

New Boy—There's a man outside as acts as if he owned the place. Agent—Tell him to get out. (Later) What did he say? New Boy—That if you couldn't stay here and attend to business he would get an agent who would.

There is no beef like the beef of old England, said the Chicagoan to his English host. That is a good deal of an admission from you isn't it, said the Englishman. Oh no, said the other. All the beef of old England is imported from Chicago.

Mrs. Hasbough—Taken the bed from your room? Oh, no, sir! That desk is your bed, the very one you slept in last night. But really, you would never suspect it was a bed, would you? New lodger—No-o-o; not after sleeping in it.

Mr. Stalate—So your sister keeps you well supplied with pocket-money, does she? Tom—Yes. Stalate—I suppose you have to render some little equivalent? Tom—(yawning)—Oh, yes; I have to come in and yawn when visitors are staying too late.

Keeper (in menagerie)—You'd better not go too close to that cage. It's none too strong, and that tiger's a savage one. Visitor—(in trying to get acquainted with him. I believe in keeping on the good side even of a tiger. (Puffing him away)—Then you be careful to keep on his outside.

MEN AND WOMEN TALKED ABOUT

Julian Hawthorne, it is stated, will take up a residence for himself and family on the island of Jamaica.

Mr. Gladstone, within the most exclusive official circles in the English government is plain "Mr. G."

The cheapest dress made by Worth, the Parisian man milliner, even if of cotton, does not cost less than $150.

Lord Chief Justice Coleridge was as bright and witty as ever on his 71st birthday, which occurred not long ago.

Charles de Lesseps in the Mass prison at Paris, is required to make his own bed, clean up his cell and wash his dishes.

Mrs. Robert Johnson, of Sonoma, Cal., has 200 high bred Angora cats, and three servants devote their entire time to them.

Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson, the wife of the novelist, says that her husband's greatest failing is falling in love with every character he creates.

Donna Isadore Coucine of South America, who is said to be the richest widow in the world, has an income of $80,000 per month from her mines alone.

Mrs. Langtry and the Duchess of Montrose have joined John Strange Winter's No-Crinolette League. The league now numbers over 11,000 members.

Mrs. Blaine has sent to the Maine Legislature a letter expressing the thanks of the family for the action of that body upon the occasion of Mr. Blaine's death.

The highest salary drawn by a diplomatist is that of M. Waddington, the French Ambassador to London. His salary is $12,000 a year, besides which he has a large private income.

One of the oldest of British noblemen is the Duke of Northumberland, who is nearly 90. He has been a member of five cabinets, and sat in Parliament for twenty years before he succeeded to his title.

It is a rather striking fact that the members of Mr. Cleveland's cabinet are of Scotch or English ancestry. Col. Lamont's name is the only one that suggests a different origin, and his forbears were Scotch.

The Emperor of Germany recently visited a needle factory, where a workman begged a hair of his head, bored an eye in it, threaded it, and handed it back to the monarch, who had expressed surprise that eyes could be bored in the smaller-sized needle.

Charles Henry Pearson, an Englishman, has written a book in which he claims to have proved that the greater races of the world are losing ground, and that the Chinese, Hindoos and South American half-breeds are the coming leaders of civilization.

The novel called "An Exquisite Fool," which has attracted considerable attention, turns out to be Miss Poynter, the author of "My Little Lady." The publishers thought so highly of it that they resolved on the experiment of issuing it anonymously.

Mrs. Stoll, who now speaks only Latin and Italian, is being instructed by Bishop Keane in the English language. It is interesting to learn that the first word the apostolic delegate was able to utter was "awful," as applied to the methods of the American instructor.

The late Justice Lamar was well acquainted with Miss Susan B. Anthony. One day he introduced her to some friend of his in the following fashion: "Let me introduce Miss Susan B. Anthony; you will find her society pleasant and will find her a perfect gentleman."

The German Emperor uses as a paper weight on his writing desk the summit of one of the highest mountains of Africa. Dr. Buchner, an African traveller of some fame, broke the piece of rock from the highest point of Mount Kilimanjaro, which is on German-African ground, and presented it to the Emperor.

Princess May has invented a "hygienic teapot," applying the Japanese method of preparing tea. The hot water is poured among the leaves in a detached receptacle, whence it finds its way into the pot below, when the upper vessel is removed, and a lid put in its stead. It will be shown at the Chicago Exhibition.

When Professor Tyndall quitted school in 1839 he joined the Ordnance Survey as a draughtsman. He was at that time in receipt of a little under twenty shillings a week, and he remarks that "he has often wondered at the amount of genuine happiness which a young fellow of regular habits, not caring for either pipe or mug, can extract from pay like this."

The "Court Circular," which appears daily in the newspapers, is drawn out neatly upon a sheet of letter-paper and placed at the left hand of the Queen's chair just before luncheon. During the repast Her Majesty makes any corrections that are necessary in the document, and it is then handed over to her private secretary, who, in his turn, forwards copies of the same to the Press for publication.

Ouida, at her home in Florence, has a cemetery of her canine favourites who have departed this life. Each separate and individual dead dog has an appropriate tombstone, on which is inscribed its name and age, together with the peculiarly good qualities which endeared him to his mistress's heart. Touching expressions of her grief at their death, written in flowery language, complete the epitaph.

Among French millionaires may be reckoned Emile Yola, the novelist, who started life as a clerk in Hachette's library on a salary of £3 a month. He is very fond of gardening, and, when not writing, or boating. His home at Medan is a three-roomed cottage near the railway, and upwards of two hundred trains pass his door daily. In this "retreat" he is at rest from the tourist, whose presence in Paris vex his soul.

Russel Sage is very particular about his dress, and when the hoarse outrage was committed in the office of this man, who is reputed to be worth some millions, a malicious story was circulated that his first words were, when picked out of the ruins: "I haven't worn it two years yet. What does it look like now?" His one hobby is horses, but he never allows the public to see them on the trotting track.

Robert Mellidew sat in his comfortable study, and taking occasional sips from a glass of steaming whiskey punch. Outside the rain was pouring steadily down, while the wistful wind howled mournfully round the house, breaking out into occasional gusts that shook the doors and rattled the window-panes as if it were some boisterous giant striving to force an entrance.

of course, the usual result ensued. The demands were renewed again and again, and continued until the drains on his resources became so frequent and exhausting that he saw nothing but ruin staring him in the face.

Comparatively few people know that this design embodies an old Chinese tradition. The story is said to be as follows: In the mansion pictured on the right-hand side of the plate dwelt a mandarin, with his only daughter Li-chi. The latter fell in love with Chang, her father's former secretary, who lived in the island house shown at the top of the pattern (left-hand side.)
