LONDON, Cot. 3 .- The Pall Mall Gazette comments on an article printed in the Paris Politique Coloniale today, which reflects the views of M. Delacasse, French Minister of Colonies. The article in question gives a list of eleven outstanding differences between France and England, exclusive of questions concerning Madagascar and Egypt, many of which, however, it admits have been practically set-tied, and none of which would justify a rupture between the two powers unless one was determined to pick a quarrel with the other, which the article says is not the case. The Pall Mall Gazette says, in spite of these admissions, the Politique Coloniale's article is unfriendly to the verge of discourtesy, and adds: If it reflects the spirit in which the French Ministers intend to discuss the difficulties with England we may prepare for trouble with them. We do not wish to quarrel with France, but, on the other hand, we are indisposed to permit trespassing upon our unquestioned rights. The builying spirits | developed in a few days into acute jaundice. which tell Frenchmen that they have only to byag and bluff enough to force England urrender may easily lead to trouble. A GROUNDLESS SCARE. London, Oct. 3 .- A dispatch to the Daily News from Paris says there is nothing pending between France and England sufficiently grave to justify a scare. Madagascar is the only black spot on the horizon, and, according to Paris opinion Great Britain ought to restrain her officers from drilling Hova troops, or to insist that they quit the British service; but there is no sign of national paroxysm. The anti-Government newspapers, seeking to make capital, denounce the lethargy of the Cabinet in defending the interests of

A dispatch to the Daily News from Berlin says the German Foreign Office sees no cause for alarm, and ascribes the French and English Cabinet meetings to be held tomorrow to the situation of eastern affairs. Reuter's agency virtually denies the report it circulated today that the Madagascar ports have been blockaded. It expresses the opinion that the report arose from the fact that French warships had been ordered to exercise increased surveillance over the Madagascar coast to prevent the landing of munitions of war.

The Chronicle, after its quivering terror over the situation in its issue of vesterday, this morning reads a lecture to the alarmists and trusts they are ashamed of their story of strained relations with France and of the wholly unjustifiable report of a blockade of Madagascar-a re- township, but it would take a good big one port which was an invention on the face of it. The Chronicle professes to state upon authority that the Cabinet was summoned in connection with the reports of maltreatment of British subjects in China.

The Daily News deprecates the scare which was produced on the Stock Exchange today by alarming reports in regard to the relations between France and England and characterizes the alleged anxiety concerning them as a more flurry. The paper admits, however, that the business for whose discussion the Cabinet was summoned is of a most urgent nature, but says a glance at the political horison suggests reason for wonder why Cabinet councils are not held more frequently. The war between China and Japan, the state of the Czar's health, other minor questions affecting France and | the roadside; that the plaintiff could not England supply topics concerning which the | with reasonable care have avoided the ac-Cabinet may well be summoned.

On the Stock Exchange it is believed that the only object of the summoning of the Cabinet concerns the dispatching of troops to the Chinese treaty ports.

The Central News says that arrangements made by the Foreign Office with the Indian Government with a view of drafting English and Indian troops to strengthen the defenses of treaty ports in view of a Chinese uprising were all settled before there was any actual outbreak between China and Japan. The Central News aderes to its assertion that the summoning of the Calinet council is due to the fact that France has made representations to the British Government concerning England's alleged responsibility for the attitude of the Hova Government in continuing their strenuous opposition to the treaty rights of France in Madagascar. It is claimed that France has protested against the shipment of munitions of war from England to Madagascar and the enrollment of British subjects in the military service of the Hovas. Later advices say that there is no foundation for the report that the Madagascar ports have been blockaded. Foreign diplomats regard the situation as hopeful, and believe the difference between England and France will be amicably settled.

The Times says: "We are bound to assume that the Cabinet was not convened without some serious cause." The remainder of the editorial, which is devoted to French questions, concludes: "Most persons acquainted with the situation will be more disposed to seek the cause in the east than anywhere else. These inferences may be wrong, but they cannot be deemed irrational.

In the Case of Bond Versus Lamont.

The Collier-Kilbourne Suit for Seduction Begun.

Defendant's Letters Read in Court.

Wednesday Afternoon.

At 1:45 o'clock Mr. Cameron, counsel for the defense, in the case of Bond vs. Lamont, began his address to the jury. Mr. Stuart followed, in the plaintiff's interests, for half an hour, Judge Robertson giving an able review of the case. He complimented young Drake on the clever and straightforward manner in which he gave his evidence. It would have to be taken into serious consideration, as he (Drake) said that he saw the horse prancing and toseing its head. Against this was to be taken the contradictory statements of Bond and his wife in regard to this. Bond's evidence could not be relied upon to the same extent as though he were mentally sound; his mind was weak, and for this he asks damages. Mr. and Mrs. Bond's statements and those of young Drake and John Lamont were the only ovidence in direct relation to the accident, and must be carefully weighed. The plaintifi, Judge Robertson thought, should have shown that the harness was in good order prior to the accident. No evidence had been offered in this respect, and it was of vital interest to the case. The judge referred to the suit as a pitiful one. He did not know the value of farms in Caradoc to pay the costs in the action. The jury retired at 4 o'clock, with the following questions to answer: 1. What was the cause of the accident? 2. Was it an unreasonable or improper act for the defendant Lamont to leave the logs on the side of the road? 3. Was it an unreasonable or improper act for the defendant Pincombe to leave his lumber on the side of the road? 4. Could plaintiff by reasonable care have avoided the accident? 5. What sum would you assess as damages? Mr. Stuart made several objections to the judge's charge, and the jury were called back and corrections made. The jury returned at 8:30 p.m., having found that the accident was due to the shieing of the horse at the logs and lumber; that it was unreasonable for the defendthe situation in Madagascar and several ants to have placed the logs and lumber on > cident, and that Bond was entitled to $1.000 and costs. Judgment was entered with full costs. but a stay of proceedings was granted until after the fourth day of the next divisional court sitting. The judge was of the opinion that the question of costs should be spoken to, and granted the defendants leave so to do.

A SEDUCTION CASE. The first criminal case was reached this afternoon, when Edward Kilbourne took his place in the dock. Kilbourne was arraigned on the charge of seducing Edith May Collier, a daughter of a respected North Dorchester farm laborer, in May last. He pleaded not guilty. Miss Collier. who is the chief witness for the prosecution, has been present since the opening of of 10,000,000 of nickel lire. the assizes, but did not enter the room until called upon to testify.

Mr. MacDougall, in opening the case, said: "Kilbourne had won the affections of Miss Collier. She was willing to trust her life with him, until at last, under the promise of marriage, having unbounded confidence in one with whom she was willing to go down life'e journey. she permitted herself to be betrayed by him. The time for the marriage came, but Kilbourne left the country. He returned after some considerable time, however, and

Mrs. Julia Kilbourne, mother of the accused, testified that her son was 26 years Miss Collier's name was next called, and in response a prim-looking girl, apparently about 21 years of age, entered the room and stepped into the box. She wore a neat sallor dress, a long dogskin cape, and a brown hat decorated with several bunches of forget-me-nots. Miss Collier gave her evidence during a two keeping her eyes continually turned toward was the daughter of a North Dorchester an unknown bey. resident and was 21 years old in January last. She first became acquainted with Kilbourne in January, 1893, and for a time he "sparked" her. It was a case of love at the accused to her, saying that he first betrayed her in April, 1893. The child was born on Jan. 24, but died about a month later. Promises of marriage were made on more than one occasion.

Mr. MacI)ougall read letters from Kil-bourne received by Miss Collier when the latter was visiting in Harrietsville, and from which the following are extracte:

"DORCHESTER, April 10, 1893. "Dear Friend Edith,-I received your welcome letter last night, and as I did not get to Nilestown on Saturday night I got Duncan to open the posteffice on Sunday and give the letter to me.

"He did. I have not much more to tell you, for I have been too busy to hear any. thing. We are just moving now. We will stay at Swartz's house tomerrow night. I just seen Mrs. Proctor once since you left, I heard you were going out to the maple sugar social that the Christian Endeavorers are going to have at the church. I may not go, but I hope you will have a good time. Mrs. Proctor says she heard the reason I would not go to see you now was because I was eyes revealed, the finder inquired in afraid she would visit us in the village.

"I am very sorry that you cannot see a fellow in the village, because I can see a girl here. I was not at the Christian En. deavor last night. Your ever-loving EDWARD KILBOURNE." "I will leave room for these you are geting now." (Here followed several X X letter last night. It was too late to write after I got home, so you will have to excuse me for not writing before. Well, Edith, we have got moved at last. I like living here splendid. It is so close to the village. I expect I will like it better after a while. I seen Mrs. Proctor fer a while tonight, but only to speak to her. Miss Short and her fellow were up to the English Church Sunday. They were taking great stock going by here. I seen her, but did not let her have the satisfaction of

"I think I will have to go out to the bee tomorrow night and see if I cannot catch onto a girl, if you are not coming out. It seems like a month since I came here. I will send you some of these, but you may have some." (And here Edward placed several more X X X.)

"We had your pa down helping us to fix up. Christian Endeavor is nowhere with Nilestown meetings. Well, Edith, I must new draw to a close, as there is not much news around Dorchester to send you. I will look for a letter from you next Saturdoy, and will be there good-bye. Your friend, "E. KILBOURNE." day, and will be there when it comes. So

To Mr. Meredith Miss Collier said : mistake had been made in her age. It had been sworn before Equire Aylesworth that she was 20 on Aug. 20, 1894. Further inquiry was made, and it was found that she was born in Sweaborg in January, 1873. Witness visited Harrietsville friends in April, 1893, but came home sconer than was expected. There was talk of marriage in February of last year, and witness consented. Promises of marriage were made after her return to Dorchester, once on Sunday evening, April 24, when he first improperly conducted himself. Kilbourne said that if he left her he hoped bad luck would follow in his paths.

Q.-Were you ever engaged to any other person? A.-No. Q.-Do you know Miss Proctor? A.

Q.-Is she a reputable person? A.-No; I do not think so.

Q .- Didn't she help you to make up wedding outfit before February, 1893? A. Q.-Never engaged to a Mr. King? A.

Q .- You knew him though? A .- Yes. Q .- And Miss Proctor didn't he p you make a garnet cashmere wedding dress? A.-No. Q .- Did you borrow some dishes from Miss Proctor for the wedding? A .- Never. Q .- And you did not tell her that you were 22 years old? A .- Never. Q .- Did you tell her about going to a picnic at Whittaker's Lake and that the young men took several dozen bottles of ale? A .- I went to a picuic at that point, but not with the young men.

It was further stated that Kilbourne promised to marry Miss Collier in the spring of 1894, when his brother promised to start him on a farm.

Like most other people, our folks formerly used lard for all such purposes. When it disagreed with any of the family (which it often did) we said it was "too rich." We finally tried and not one of us has had an attack of "richness" since. We further found that, unlike lard, Cottolene had no unpleasant odor when cooking, and lastly Mother's favorite and conservative cooking authority came out and gave it a big recommendation which clinched the matter. So that's why we always fry ours in Cottolene.

Ample Punishment for the Crime. WINDSOR, Oct. 3.-For the first time since Joseph Truskey was convicted of the murder of Constable Lindsay at Comber. on May 3 last, and was sentenced to hang at Sandwich on the 16th next, he has opened his lips and made a confession, which shows that he contemplated the killing of another man as well, before he put a bullet into himself. Yesterday Truskey sent for Deputy Sheriff Rumble and said that the only thing which troubled him at all was the fact that his brother-in-law, Geo. Taylor, was still alive. 'He was the man I wanted to get at first," said Truskey, "But how I came to shoot

Lindsay before I settled him is more than I know. Truskey expressed himself as not pleased with the attempt made to prove that he was not responsible for the deed, but wishes it understood that he knew well what he was doing. "Had I killed both Lindsay and Taylor," he said," I would be satisfied to go up for five years. But under the circumstances three years is plenty. When I get out I will attend to Taylor, and after serving a few years for that I will settle down, providing no one else meddles in my affairs."

After some spirited discussion from the other members it was found to be the gentiment that skirts to the shoe tops should be worn on a rainy day. Those who did not approve this style were recommended to wear leggins. This, it was rich Hensoldt, Ph.D., contributes the third argued, would be the first step toward dress reform, and the transition from short skirts on a rainy day to short skirts on every day would be an easy one. The paper on the desirability of a business woman knowing how to cook was read by Miss Minnie Miller. The form of this question was found to be too positive to admit of a direct answer, and it was decided to introduce a qualifying clause for discussion at the next meeting.

The association is composed of graduates of the stenographic and typewriting classes from 1887 to 1894. Meetings are held on the first Monday of every month.

Charles Schryver Had Kidney Disease All This Time and Didn't Know It -How He Found Out and How He Was Cured.

Toronto, Oct. 1 .- Sixteen years ago kidney disease attacked Charles Schryver, a bricklayer in this city, but he did not know it. It showed itself in the form of pains in the small of the back. They did not amount to much at first, but kept growing worse. Within the past six years Mr. Schryver has almost every week had to quit work for one or two days on account of their severity. Doctors ascribed them to the liver and other causes, and prescribed, but their medicines did no good. Last spring a city physician diagnosed the case as one of in which the principles on which the two diabetes and wanted to prescribe, but Mrs. Schryver said, "No, if it's diabetes, I'll use Dodd's Kidney Pills, which I know will oure me." They did cure him, too, and today Mr. Schryver is free from ache or pain and able to do his day's work, week in and week out, with any man in his trade.

WHAT WE READ.

The Latest Novelties in the Magazines and New Books.

The Century Magazine for October closes worthily a very interesting volume. The number is strong in reminiscent articles, with letters by Edwin Booth and Edgar Poe, and reminiscences of Aubrey de Vere. But it contents do not all refer to bygone times, and a more interesting number of this magazine rarely appears.

+ ++ The October number of Harper's Magazine is excellent. Mr. Edwin Lord Weeks' article on "Lahore and the Punjaub" will convey a new idea of certain parts of India to most persons; Mr. Richard Harding Davis has an unusually charming little essay on the streets of Paris-quite Lamblike; Mr. Ralph begins a series of sketches of tenement-house life in New York; Miss King writes of Iberville and the Mississippi, and Mr. C. W. Whitney tells of golfing in Eugland, some exquisite pictures illustrating his article. The other features of the magazines are present in the expected abundance and excellence.

There is no better aid to the acquirement of a sound literary taste than the continuous reading of the weekly issues of Littell's Living Age. Gleaning as it does from the richest literary field that exists, skillfully and carefully winnowing the wheat from the chaff, it makes the reader acquainted with the best specimens of English literature, and keeps him abreast of the times on all the many questions of public interest; indeed, on every subject that touches modern life or interests the cultivated mind. It is a magazine that should be found in every Canadian home; no other will better supply the tastes of all where good taste exists, or better supply the need where that is lacking. The publishers of this brilliant eclectic are Littell & Co., Boston.

Scribner's Magazine for October is an autumnal number, with a poem by Miss Wharton on "An Autumn Sunset," a description of Lenox by George H. Hibbard, and a poem, "Red Leaves," by Mr. Henry Tyrrell. Mr. Carl Lumboltz continues his account of the Tarahumari Indians. Col. H. C. Prout indicates some of the differences between railroad travel in England and this country; there are the usual continued stories, and other articles that add to the interest of the number.

::: Babyland continues most interesting to the little ones. Beginning next month, it will be enlarged to twelve double column pages, but will still be sold for 50 cents a year. Alpha Publishing Company, Boston.

CHINA'S GALVANIC SHOCK.

It is pretty generally agreed that Japan is getting distinctly the best of it in the war now in progress between that country and China. So aggressive, indeed, is Japan in pushing the battle to the gates, that it is thought by European experts in war more than likely the lively little "Great Britain of the Orient" may soon plant its banners in Pekin, the historic capital of China. Accordingly, as nothing succeeds like success. Japan is being regarded by the western world with daily increasing measures of respect.

China is popularly supposed to be ten times as densely peopled as Japan-say 400,000.000 to 40,000,000. China no doubt swarms with humanity, yet there is no certainty as to the truth of the above figures, which are probably exaggerated. Some things about China are definitely known-namely, that it has allowed Japan to forge ahead, that it has stood in its own light by a moss-backed conservatism and childish contempt for the "outside barbarians" who rule the world. It is also known that it is honeycombed with treason, corruption, and fatalistic indifference.

What is likely to happen? The Chinese Empire may be divided up into different states, to be "protected"-i. e., governedby European powers. Or it may be sliced up between Great Britain, Germany, France, Russia and Japan.

Much of importance has already happened. That part of the earth and that part of the earth's population known as China and the Chinese have received the impact of a lesson not less pronounced than a galvanic shock. Whether in China's present dimensions, or whether as portions of China attached to European powers, that country will be opened up from end to end to the free circulation of western ideas and western methods, including the railway, the telegraph, the electric street car, western education, and, above all, the Gospel. China's sleep of ages has been broken. It seems to be the design of Providence that the ancient nation shall at an early date be modernized and Christianized. More than once or twice has the stern ploughshare of war been the forerunner of the peaceful meadow and the fruitful field.

-Prof. Swing, of Chicago is dead. Dr. Swing was rather erratic in his theological views, but he was one of the most interesting of modern fecturers. In his lecture on "The Novel," delivered in this city, he had a beautiful thought. He pointed out that the novel of civilization is a distinct product of Christianity. In the novels of Christian lands, woman is always a central figure. She is elevated in the song and story of christendom. In heathenism, however, they have nothing equivalent to our novel, and woman is degraded, oppressed, and regarded as simply a beast of burden for man's aggrandisement.

MR. LAURIER AT PRINCE ALBERT.

A Northwest correspondent telegraphs that so great was the interest taken in Hon. Wilfrid Laurier's meeting at Prince Albert, N. W. T., that two score people drove 90 miles in a blinding snow storm from Battleford to Duck Lake, and traveled 50 miles further by rail to listen to the honorable gentleman. Mayor Davis and the members of the municipal council presented a corporation address of welcome to the distinguished visitor. The afternoon meeting was an overwhelming success, and the banquet in the evening was no less so. Mr. Laurier's exposition of the policy of trade freedom was warmly indorsed. At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Laurier alluded to the fact that the honor of asking him to offer himself as a candidate in their behalf. He expressed his appreciation of the compliment paid him, and asked time for further consideration before giving a definite answer. Stirring addresses were also delivered by Mr. Fisher, Mr. Gibson, Mr. Fraser and Mr. Sutherland, M.Ps.

ANOTABLE CELEBRATION. The jubilee of Knox College has been a pronounced success. It was to be expected that the celebration of the 50th anniversary of an institution which has given to Canada so many of her gifted sons, and which has been especially useful in forwarding the interests of one of the great Christian bodies in the Dominion would not be allowed to pass without being marked as an important epoch in the history of the country, and so it has proved. The ceremonies attracted a large gathering of eminent Presbyterian and other divines and laymen from all parts of the Dominion, and were eminently CRICKET.

ENGLISHMEN VS. CANADIANS. TORONTO, Oct. 3 .- Rain fell last night and this morning there were some heavy showers, but about noon the sun came out brightly and the Rosedale grounds dried up sufficiently to allow of play being started at 2:15. Lord Hawke won the toss and sent his men to bat. A. L. J. Hill and C. E. De Trafford opened the inning for Englishmen to the bowling of Laing and McGiverin. De Trafford was bowled and caught by Laing without scoring. Score:

Lucas joined Hill. After Lucas had scored five he put an easy ball into the air, which was muffed between Horstead ath Laing. Hill hit Laing to the boundary for four, and then drove a hot one to Laing, which the bowler failed to hold. After 20 runs had been telegraphed, Lucas was caught by McGiverin ofi Laing, after scoring 9, Score: 20, 2, 9.

Mordaunt was the next batsman. Mordaunt, after scoring a single, was clean bowled by Laing. Score: 25, 3, 1. Wright joined Hill and a good stand was made by these batsmen. Wadsworth received McGiverin's bowling at the north end. After 66 runs had been tallied Wright | minutes. was clean bowled by McGiverin for 5. ATHLETICS.

ROD AND REEL, A FISHERMAN'S ECCENTRIC WILL. Mr. Moses H. Katzenberger, deceased, of Memphis, in the State of Tennessee, being presumably of sound and disposing mind, prepared some time ago his last will and testament, in which was the following somewhat unusual provision:

"Should there be a boy born to either of my sisters-in-law, Cora and Lizzie, and I hope there will be, then such male issue is to take share and share alike of all my fishing rods and tackle, except a line and a few hooks to be buried with me, in order that if there is any fishing in the other world I will be provided with tackle to enjoy the sport which has afforded me much delight in the present mode of ex-

Andrew Lang must be responsible for Mr. Katzenberger's delusion. No doubt the following verses have at some time or other fallen under Mr. Katzenberger's eye:

"Within the streams, Pausanias saith,
That down Cocytus Valley flow,
Girdling the gray domain of death,
The spectral fishes come and go;
The ghosts of trout flit to and fro.
Persephone, fulfill my wish
And grant that in the shades below
My ghost may land the ghosts of fish."

The great weight of Mr. Lang's authority as an angler, added to the charm of his verse, may have been sufficient to fill Mr. Katzenberger's mind with a belief, or at least the hope, that there are fish to be caught in the next world. BASEBALL.

A Good Show at Glencoe-Excellent Exhibits at Essex.

[Special to the ADVERTISER.] GLENCOE, Oct. 3 .- The nineteenth annual exhibition of the Mosa and Ekfrid Agricultural Associations yesterday and today was probably the most successful ever held here. Tuesday was preparation day, and not much was done besides getting things in readiness. There was a fair attendance in the evening, and the opinion was general that the exhibits were more numerous and of a better class than

Today in spite of threatening weather there were nearly 3,000 people on the grounds. There was an especially good exhibit of live stock, both in quantity and quality. The special attractions were unavoidably cut short. In the double team trot John Ackland's team took first, Pearce Bros.' second, Mitchell Walker's third.

The farmers' trot resulted as follows: Nellie Mack...... 1 Black Fly.... J G 5 Fannie B 3

The track was very wet and heavy. Miss Thompson was awarded the prize for the most graceful rider on horseback, and Miss Gilbert and Miss Thompson first and second respectively for lady driver.

THE SOUTHWESTERN. Essex, Ont., Oct. 3 .- The Southwestern Fair opened here yesterday, but owing to very unsettled weather the attendance was only fair. The exhibits far exceeded those of last year, and but for the bad weather the fair would have been a grand success. Today, in addition to speeding in the ring, baseball match was played between and Dan Cupid lowered his from 2:113 to Windsor and the home team, resulting in favor of the visitors, the score being 14

> HURON CENTRAL. CLINTON, Oat., Oct. 3 .- The Huron Central Fair opened yesterday afternoon. It is conducted entirely on the lines of an agricultural fair, having no sideshow attractions, and has been more than ordinarily successful. The entries are far in excess of previous years. There was an exceptionally good exhibit of apples, dairy produce, roots and vegetables. The other indoor classes were also well contested.

NORTH BRANT. Paris, Out., Oct. 3 .- The North Brant Agricultural Show opened here today with splendid prospects. The entries in the main building exceed any previous year. The exhibits of flour and fruit were exceptionally fine. Dairy products, cattle, horses, pigs, sheep and vehicles were up to the average. Poultry very fine, especially among the game. The fate of the show was apparently settled when a heavy rain continued all this morning, but just at noon the weather cleared and gave a large crowd an opportunity of attending. On the whole the directors were well satisfied with the INGERSOLL. INGERSOLL, Oct. 3.—A drenching rain, which set in at midnight and lasting up till ll o'clock this morning, had a very bad effect upon the prospects of the fair of Ingersoll and Northwest Oxford Agricultural Society, which closed this evening. Exhibits and visitors kept flocking into the town, and when the sky cleared there as a very respectable attendance. The showing of working horses was very good and in cattle the Jerseys were excellent. The exhibits of sheep and swine was not quite as large as usual, but were of fine quality. Grain and fruits were ahead of many previous years. The exhibition of cheese was up to the reputation of this district.

THE G. T. R. CONDUCTORS.

Leave to Appeal Denied-Must Go to Montreal for Trial.

TORONTO, Oct. 3. - Before a crowded court Mr. Justice MacMahon at noon today gave judgment against Conductors Fred Tamblin and Charles Defues, refusing an order for their discharge or an inquiry into their respective cases here.

Counsel for accused then asked for a stay of proceedings and for leave to appeal.

After argument by counsel on each side Mr. Justice MacMahon expressed doubt as to his power to grant the appeal, and inti-mated that he would give judgment at a later hour. Subsequently Judge MacMahon gave judgment ordering the accused back into custody, and that their trial must take place at Montreel, as he has not the jurisdiction or power to grant them leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal.

AN UNAPPRECIATED AGITATOR. 'Rev." Victor M. Ruthven Run Out of

Dunkirk. BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 3.—"Rev." Victor M. Ruthen, who created so much disturbance with his charges against Rev. Dr. Paton and served a term in the penitentiary here for swindling ministers by collecting moneys for evangelization in Australia, has turned up in a new role. Tuesday after-noon he lectured in Dunkirk on "Convents and Convent Schools, or Life Within a Numery," and the same evening on "Rome, the Enemy of Cur Public Schools." He was to speak on "Priests and Their Victims," but this morning he was waited on by a committee of Dunkirk citizens and ordered out of town, and he took the hint, leaving within an hour.

In Buffalo since his release from the penitentiary he has posed as a martyr, charging that Dr. Paton and his friends at the Montreal Convention destroyed his good name and caused his incarceration here on trumped-up charges.

The Flour Market.

The Northwestern Miller says: Prices of flour are a trifle easier. The export market is still far from satisfactory. Prices abroad lower than ever before, and considerable stuff is being consigned by some of the biggest mills in hope that when it arrives prices will have firmed up there. The market at home is no better, and millers are getting awfully tired.

VAN HORNE ON WHEAT.

Not a Prophet, But Wheat Must Go Up -The Question of Rates. WINNIPEG, Oct. 4. - In an interview here Sir William Van Horne said it was extremely difficult to account for the continued slump in wheat, and he did not see how it could possibly last. One unfortunate circumstance was that wheat had lost every friend it had on the continent. Men who had stood by it and kept on buying long had all been bitten so that they had finally chucked up the job, and, in disgust, left wheat to take care of itself. While in Minneapolis he had talked the question over with Mr. Pillsbury, and that gentleman had agreed that wheat surely could not long stay where it was. At the present time it was cheaper, pound for pound, than corn. When it is remembered that wheat produces more high wines, starch and in fact every other article which it and corn are used for than corn does, it must be self-evident that wheat must go up. "Or else corn go down," suggested the reporter.

"Well, yes, that might be the result, but Pillsbury seems to think wheat will go up. However, I have retired from the business of a prophet on wheat or anything else, and I really don't know that I have any definite opinion to offer."

Asked regarding lower freight rates on wheat, Mr. Van Horne said: "The rates are reasonable, and if people only knew how little the actual profit to the con-pany is on wheat, all things considered, they would not be disposed to blame us. But I do not desire to go into any defense of the company. We will leave time to set us right.

"It is reported on good authority that the position of chief justice of the Court of Common Pleas, rendered vacant by the recent resignation of Sir Thomas Galt, has been offered to Mr. W. R. Meredith, Q.C. When seen regarding the report, Mr. Meredith declined to be interviewed or to make any statement about the matter. Some of his friends say, however, that he will shortly accept the appointment and retire from political life."

The same journal also warmly eulogizes Mr. Meredith as a jurist.

It is highly probable that there is good foundation for this report. Should it be confirmed it means an early vacancy in tho representation of London.

A special dispatch to the ADVERTISER this afternoon says: "Street talk reports Mr. Meredith's appointment as a certainty. and that he will welcome the opportunity to escape from political worry and municipal small-beer litigation."

CHARLIE MADDOCK'S PIN. Guelph Herald: This afternoon Mr. Samuel Terrell picked up in front of Raymond's brick shop Charlie Maddock's baseball pin. When the boys won the championship in the early seventies their admirers presented them each with a beautiful gold pin, bearing on a shield the words "Champion Nine," and on the reverse side the name of the player. At the time of Raymond's big fire in 1875 Charlie lost his pin, and it is supposed the heavy rain of last night brought it to the surface. The souvenir is as good as new, only that the ball and bats that made up the center piece are broken out. The words "Charlie Maddock, catcher," on the back are quite did so much to win games and glory for the champion nine.

"I hope they will be happy. I think there is no doubt of it. Bessy is very sweet tempered and gentle."

"Yes, I think so. I have seen very little of him. There's Mrs. Gass!" They were passing that lady's house. She at at the open window; a grand amber gown on, white satin ribbons in her cap. Leaning out she shook her handkerchief at them in violent greeting, just as though they had been the bride and bride groom. As Ellen drew back in her corner after bowing, her foot touched something on the carpet at the bottom of the carriage. "Why! what is this?"

They both stooped at once. It was the wedding-ring enclosed in its tissue paper. Captain Bohun unfolded the paper. "Dr. Rane must have lost it out of his pocket," cried Ellen. "He said, you know, that he felt so sure he had put it in. What is to he done with ite?" is to be done with it?"

"Wear it instead of your own until they come back again," said Arthur. "Bessy can then take her choice of the two."

Accepting the suggestion without thought of dissent, Ellen took off her right glove and held out the other hand for the ring. He did not give it. Bending forward, he took her right hand and put it on for her.

"It fits as well as my own did."
Their eyes met. He had her hand still, as if trying how far the ring fitted. Her sweet face was like a damack rose.

"I trust I may put one on to better purpose some day, Etlen," came the murmuring, whispered, tremulous words. "Meanwhile - if Bessy does not claim this, remember that I have placed it on your

Not another syllable, not another look from either. Captain Bohun sat down in his corner; Ellen in hers, her hot face bent over the glove she was putting on, and fully believing that earth had changed to Paradise.

CHAPTER XII.

The days went on, and Dr. Rane's house was being made ready for the reception of the bride. No time could be lost, as the wedding tour was intended to be so short a one. As Jelly said, they would be at home before fo k could look round. Mrs. Cumberland presented the new carpet for the drawing-room: the furniture that had been he first Mrs. North's, arrived from Dallery Hall. Molly Green arrived with it, equally take up her abode in the house of Dr. Rane, The arranging of these things, with the rest of the preparations, was carried on with a considerable amount of bustle and gossip, Jelly being at the doctor's house continually, and constituting herself chief mis-tress of the ceremonies. Phillis and Molly Green, with native humility, deferred to her in all things.

It was said in a previous chapter that Jelly was one of these who retained an interest in the anonymous letter. She had a special cause for it. Jelly in her propensity to look into her neighbors' affairs, was given to taking up any mysterious cause, and making it her own. Her love of the marvelous was great, her curiosity insatiable. But Jelly's interest in this matter was really a personal one and concerned herself. It was connected with Timothy Wilks. Amongst Jelly's other qualities and endowments, might be ranked one that was pre-eminent - love of admiration. Jelly could not remember to have been without an "acquaintance" for about a month at a time since the days when she lett off pinafores. No sooner did she quarrel with one young man and dismiss him, than she took up another. Dailory wondered that of all her numerous acquaintances she had never married; but, as Jelly coolly said, to have a suitor at your back and call was one thing, and to be tied to a husband was quite another. So Jelly was Jelly still; and perhaps it might be conceded that the fault was her own. She liked her independence.

The reigning "acquaintance" at this period happened to be Timothy Wilks. Jelly patronized him; he was devoted to her. There was a trifling difference in their ages —some ten years probably, and all on Jelly's sidebut such a disparity had often happened before. Jelly had distinguished Tim by the I can enjoy my meals as well as ever, and honor of taking him to be her young man; and when the damaging whisper fell upon him, that he had probably written the anonymous letter resulting in the death of Edmund North, Jelly resented the aspersion far more than Timothy did. "I'll find out who did do it, if it costs me a year's wages and six months' patience," avowed Jelly to herself in the first burst of indignation.

But Jelly found she could not arrive at that satisfactiny result any sooner than other people. It is true, she possessed a slight clue that they did not, in the few memorable words she had overheard that moonlight night between her mistress and Dr. Rane, but they did not assist her. The copy of the letter was said to have dropped out of Dr. Rane's pocket-book on somebody's carpet, and he denied that it had so dropped. Neither more nor less could Jelly make of the matter than this; and she labored under the disadvantage of not being able to speak of what she had overheard, unless she confessed that she had been a listener. Considering who had been the speakers, Jelly did not choose to do that. From that time until this, quite two months, had the matter rankled in Jelly's mind; she had kept her ears open and put cautious questions whenever she thought they might avail, and all to no purpose. But in this, the first week of July, Jelly had a little light thrown on the clue by Molly Green. The very day that damsel arrived at Dr. Rane's as helpmate to Phillis, and Jelly had gone in with her domineering orders, the conversation happened to turn on plum-pudding - Phillis having made a currant-dumpling for dinner, and let the water get into it—and Molly Green dropped a few words which Jelly's ears caught up. They were only to the effect that Mrs. Gass had asked her whether she did not let fall on her carpet a receipt for making plum-pudding, the night of Edmund North's attack; which receipt Mrs. Gass had said, might have belonged to madam, and been brought from the Hall by Molly Green's petticoats. Jelly put a wary question or two to the girl, and then let the topic pass without further comment. That same evening she betook herself to Mrs. Gass, acting craftily. "Where's that paper that was found on your carpet the night Edmund North was taken?" asked Jelly boldiy. Upon which Mrs. Gass was seized with astonishment so entire that in the moment's confusion she made one or two inconvenient admissions, just stopping short of the haifsuspicion she had entertained of Dr. Rane. In the days gone by, when Mrs. Gass was
