

MARVELOUS RECORD.

It is good that the people of Canada should be kept accurately informed of the splendid growth of our trade and commerce, and particularly of those products which form the staples of our export trade. A knowledge of it tends to inspire confidence in the future of our country and to encourage enterprise. Figures, as a rule, make dry reading, but every Canadian must regard the record of this country since Confederation, and especially during the past few years, with pride and interest. Take for example the record of exports of animals and their products since 1868—they have increased tenfold in a little over three decades.

In 1868 the exports amounted to $6,898,000; in 1878 they had more than doubled; in 1888 they had increased nearly fourfold, and in 1898 were $44,801,000. For the year ending May 31 the total was almost $68,000,000.

For the same products in the shape of provisions—cheese, bacon, butter, etc.—the increase since Confederation has been over twentyfold. In 1868, $3,862,000; in 1878, $8,289,000; in 1888, $12,895,000; in 1898, $29,712,000, and this year it jumped over seven millions, reaching the grand total of $48,613,000 for the twelve months ending May 31. The export of cheese alone has steadily increased from $450,000 to $22,893,000. The export of butter has not increased in the same ratio, fluctuating from two-and-a-half millions in 1868 to less than $3,500,000 twenty years later, but has now increased to $7,128,000. The export of bacon and hams was $783,000 in 1868 and remained practically at the same figure until 1891, when it commenced to increase enormously, and is now $15,871,000.

The deposits in banks have increased from $68,140,000 in 1871 to $424,000,000 in 1902.

Mineral productions have increased during the same period from $6,043,000 to $65,000,000.

Exports of manufactures from $2,432,000 to $18,462,000.

A BACHELOR'S CONSOLATION.

New York Times.

Faint heart never won fair lady, but—
Faint heart never had a breach of promise suit.
Faint heart never had to pay alimony.
Faint heart never had a mother-in-law.
Faint heart never had to buy an Easter bonnet.
Faint heart never had to pay for his own Christmas presents.
Faint heart never had to make excuses for being out all night.
Faint heart never had to walk the floor with a crying child.
Faint heart never—but the advantages of having a faint heart are too numerous to mention.

The Oldest Joke.
It will be difficult to discover an older practical joke than that of the coppersmith and the maker of brazen images for the temple of Osiris, which is embodied in Egyptian inscriptions dating from the reign of Menes, founder of Memphis, who ruled over 7,000 years ago.

According to ancient records there dwell between these two craftsmen a quiet man whose desire was for peace and who was sadly disturbed by the noisy occupations carried on by his busy neighbors. He therefore asked each of them to say for what sum they would change their dwellings. This they did; each calculated the amount required, and he, being satisfied, paid it over to them.

"Now," he asked of the coppersmith, "where is your new dwelling?" "I have taken that of the maker of images," was the reply. "And you?" queried the quiet man of the latter, "whither goest thou?" "To the house of the coppersmith."

This is one of many tales told in all ages which are woven into myth and legend and differ only in local color.

Ball Play in Church.

Was ball playing in church ever allowed?
In the fourteenth century, at Chester and at other places in England, ball playing on Easter Monday was universal in every rank. Even the clergy could not forego its delights and made this game a part of the service. Bishop or dean took the ball into the church, of a size not to be grasped by one hand, and, at the opening of the antiphone, began to dance to its time, throwing the ball to the choristers, who tossed it on from one to another. All presently retired for refreshment, which consisted of a gammon of bacon and stinky pudding to symbolize the bitter sports appropriate to the paschal feast. As old rhyme commemorates these curious customs thus:

A further addition of the following names to the Board of directors: Senator Mackay, Senator George A. Drummond, Mr. R. G. Reid, Mr. David McNicoll, the present Second Vice-President and General Manager of the company, all of Montreal, and Mr. Clarence W. MacKay of New York, son of the late John W. MacKay.

Carrie Nation's summary conviction for selling hatchets in violation of her ordinance, and the fact that Mrs. Nation's conviction was not sustained by the jury, is a very interesting and important case.

Gero, both of Midland, were drowned near here on Friday night, under distressing circumstances. Hodgins was caretaker for the Yankanuck Club, a party from Pittsburgh, who spend the summers on Georgian Bay, and Gero was employed as a guide by the club. The two men went to Sans Souci for the mail at night during a fierce gale, and made the journey in a sailboat with the sail carrying one reef. They reached Sans Souci in safety, and, after getting the mail, indulged, it is said, in a great quantity of drink before starting back. Gero was overcome by the drink, and had to be assisted to the boat, in which his companion started off with him on the return trip of about two miles, over an open stretch of water, which at the time was churned into foam by the gale. Hodgins' father-in-law endeavored to persuade the men to remain all night, but without success. He watched the sail hurry away in the moonlight for about a mile, and then he was lost to view. In the morning, when the men did not return to the club, a search was instituted, and the sailboat was found near the shore, where it had sunk after being swamped by the heavy sea. The bow stood above the water near the shore. Parties have been grappling all day, but no trace of the bodies have yet been found. Gero was a powerful swimmer, and Hodgins was unable to swim. Hodgins leaves a wife and two children, now at Yankanuck, and Gero, who had been at the club for only a few days, leaves a wife and one child at Midland. Gero was about thirty years old, and Hodgins thirty-five. The former had only been married a little over a year. The mail bag and one of the men's hats were all that was found in addition to the sailboat. These articles had floated ashore.

LIPTON'S CAREER.

Has the Yachtman Discovered Aladdin's Magic Lamp?—Rise From Poverty to Hall Fellow With Royalty.

The career of Sir Thomas Lipton has been nothing short of meteoric. His rise from poverty to prosperity and to a position where he is a "hall fellow, well met" with royalty, has the atmosphere of the Arabian Nights about it, and indeed some of us are wondering as to whether or not he has found the famous magic lamp of Aladdin. And with all his wealth Sir Thomas is a royal sportsman. He has spent a fortune on each of his three challenges for the America's Cup and probably stands ready to cast loose the moorings of as many more fortunes if ill luck still pursues him. The third Shamrock has proved herself a dangerous proposition for American yachtmen to negotiate. They must keep a sharp eye to windward and a tricky hand on the tiller when the cup races begin in August, and who can tell but that Sir Thomas will at last satisfy his cup lifting ambitions?

Sir Thomas was born in Glasgow in 1850 of Irish parents. He was first employed as a messenger boy, earning 61 cents a week. He obtained his early education in night school and at the age of fifteen ran away and took a steamer to America. He worked on a South Carolina farm for two years and then staked his way back to Glasgow. Later he obtained a few hundred dollars from his parents and opened a small store in London, which he developed into a commercial house, doing an international business. He is now worth $50,000,000. His income is $7,500 a minute.

He was given a baronetcy in 1902. He contributed $125,000 to the Princess of Wales' (now Queen Alexandra) dinner to the poor of London at the time of the Queen's jubilee. Residence—Osidge, Southgate, England.

NEWS A HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

How The London Times Treated Expected Invasion of England.

An interesting instance of the manner in which newspapers have developed in the last 100 years is now being furnished by The London Times, which, since its centennial anniversary, has each day printed a quotation from its issue of the same day 100 years ago.

Napoleon Bonaparte was busily preparing to invade England with an immense army. One can imagine how a modern newspaper would have treated such a "story" as this. Here is how The Times referred to it in 1803:

"We yesterday received the Paris papers to the 3rd instant inclusive. They continue to be filled with Addresses to the First Consul, and offers of gunboats for the invasion of this country. They also contain directions for the ceremonial to be observed by the Clergy of the different towns, which is to sanctify the reception of the First Consul. Among other forms, the Bishop of the place is to present the Cross to him to be kissed, on his arrival at the gates, that Cross which he so grossly degraded and insulted in Egypt, by displaying it as subject to the spiritual predominance of the Crescent.

"Accounts from Dunkirk state, that the preparations making for the expedition against this country are on a very extensive scale. It is said, that a Camp of 100,000 men is to be formed near St. Omer; one of 60,000 at Cherbourg, and another of 40,000 in Holland."

London's Traffic.

It is an odd reflection on the sixty years' development of the railway system that the road beats the railway easily in London. The street vehicles travel twenty times as far as the train every day, and carry more passengers. It may seem incredible, but it is perfectly true, that the street vehicles of London accomplish a journey every day equal to twenty times round the earth. It is startling, in contrast with this, that the trains cover only 25,000 miles, but the explanation is, of course, the simple fact that for every train there are about fifty other vehicles.

There are always running in London between 4,000 and 5,000 busses and trams, carrying 1,000,000 passengers every day, and when all these are full there is room left for nearly 12,000 cabs, of which 700 stands are provided. "Cabby," one of the best-abused men in the metropolis, is often enough deserving it—driving 120,000 people about London every day.

A Fastidious Clubman.

An unusually bold London pick-pocket tried to remove the valuables of a Piccadilly aristocrat as he sauntered to his club one morning. The fastidious clubman seized the thief by the wrist, gazed at his filthy paw and flung it from him with disgust, saying, "For goodness' sake, my good man, wash your hands before you put them into a gentleman's pocket."

Mirth is an almost infallible sign of good health. A sick woman may force a smile or at times be moved to laughter. But when a woman is bubbling over with mirth and merriment she is surely a well woman.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has made thousands of melancholy and miserable women cheerful and happy, by curing the painful womanly diseases which undermine a woman's health and strength. It establishes regularity and so does away with monthly misery. It dries debilitating drains and so cures the cause of much womanly weakness. It heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures the bearing-down pains, which are such a source of suffering to sick women.

I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for female weakness," writes Mrs. Susannah Ferner, of Pauls Store, Shreveport, Texas. "I was troubled with bearing-down pains in my back and hips for six years, and I wrote to Doctor Pierce for advice. I used his Favorite Prescription and six bottles cured me. I feel like a new person and I thank Dr. Pierce for my health. Life is a burden to any one without health. I have told a great many of my friends about the great medicine I took."

Accept no substitute for "Favorite Prescription." There is nothing "just as good."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the paper covered book, or 50 stamps for the cloth bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

MODERN SPIES OF PEACE.

How Nations Discover What They Must Know in Their Neighbors' Territory, But Are Not Allowed To.

There are many things about each other which nations would like to know, says the London Express correspondent.

In order to discover what they must know but are not allowed to, civilized States employ military spies. They may be Military or Naval Attaches, duly accredited to an Embassy, or secret agents, who are sent to reside or travel in those districts from which information is required by the Intelligence Department.

The work of the first class is not unimportant, but it is not risky. The officer may not overstep the bounds of common honesty, and rarely, if ever, attempts to achieve anything secretly.

He is closely watched, and knows it. If he becomes a strong centre of attraction he may divert the attention of watchers from some secret agent, who is possessing himself of the particulars of the Attache's ostensible so anxious to acquire, but is successfully prevented from securing. The Attache is useful as a clearing agent.

Spies become possessed of facts which are of no real value to those who employ them, but are assumed to be worth much by the agents of other countries, and an exchange of "pieces" is effected. Sometimes apparently useless information is exchanged simply for its exchange value.

For instance, some years ago two British officers created considerable annoyance in Russia by their persistence in hanging about the district in which the autumn manoeuvres were to take place.

When representations were made at the British Embassy, where the officers were unknown, and subsequently they disappeared for a time, only to be discovered at the end of the manoeuvres in one of the five great fortresses which protect the west frontier of Russia, and the one that had been the centre of the military operations.

Had these men been Prussian officers their position would have been dangerous, and an unpleasant international incident might have occurred. The Russo-German frontier is nothing to Great Britain, neither is the Franco-German. We exchange the first "piece" with Germany for the second, and the second with France for a little bit of news about Russia in Asia which India believes to be important. And thus we get home.

Each country has its own peculiar sphere of interest to which it devotes its greatest attention. Great Britain has so many that, properly speaking, it has none. But India is always alarmed as to Russia; and agents—British and native—of the India Department are ever busy securing information likely to be of service when we have to defend an Empire which already in the military sense extends from Aden to Hong Kong.

Most of the Indian agents in Russia are officers of the Indian army, but, needless to state, they do not travel as such. Some affect to be tourists at an innkeeper, but inquiring turn of mind; some go as commercial travelers; some lean to religious propaganda; while others collect curiosities.

These agents have been so energetic and prolific in their disguises that in the South of Russia the bona-fide commercial traveler excites suspicion. The Russians, being licensed and taxed; moreover, the Intelligence Department has found the orders for goods obtained by its travelers somewhat embarrassing.

As a buying agent the spy has also worked well. No Briton now insists across the Caspian to purchase skins any more than to sell hardware or even just to amuse himself, without his letters being opened and the company he keeps carefully noted.

In ordinary circumstances, when the spy is known, he thereby becomes innocuous, and he knows it. If discovered, the impolite Russian way is to forbid him to enter the country, or to declare he comes from a plague-infested port, or that he is a Roman Catholic or a Jew.

The polite way is to offer him a guard, or helmsman, or companion. The spy is then shown what he must see, and as soon as he has seen and reported, the various military dispositions are changed so that the information he obtains is worse than useless, being actually misleading.

The polite British way is to take the recognized spy round the golf links, or give him a glass of whiskey and tell him soft stories as he sits on a stool enjoying (?) interminable regimental cricket, then to send or take him home a happy, talkative man with nothing to tell.

Many are the dodges resorted to by British agents in order to avoid being "spoofed" by their Russian hosts. Their common way is to hunt in couples, each independent of the other so that if one is taken the other may still succeed in getting through with the work.

In the Far East in the matter of espionage, Japan has the game almost to itself. A Japanese can readily become so good an imitation of the Chinaman, Manchurian, or Mongolian that the Russian cannot identify him. The Japanese, however, who does will certainly not denounce him.

He can simulate ignorance, almost infallibly—which the Russian spy is too vain to do—and as merchant, artisan, or interpreter he can go anywhere. Then there are the women! The Japanese woman, apparently stupid and ignorant as a German goose, is really as competent as the average spy in taking notice of things that matter.

What a Japanese does not know of the Russian military dispositions in Manchuria is not worth knowing, and this knowledge, like all careful espionage, makes for peace, not war. Had the British methods of espionage been better there had been no war in South Africa in 1899. Since that date we have improved considerably, but we have yet much to learn.—London Express Correspondence.

YANKEE BOAT WINS ONE

Ironquoit Takes the Third of the Canada Cup Races

Reported to Have Been a Splendid Struggle with Challenger Leading Throughout

Special to The Planet.

Toronto, Aug. 11.—The American challenger Ironquoit won the third race for the Canada cup this afternoon over the triangular course. The wind was strong and the course allowed for three reaches.

The Ironquoit got away fast and the Strathcona never caught her. Several times by superb seamanship, Jarvis lessened the gap, only to lose it again.

The challenger won by nearly two minutes.

Special to The Planet.

Toronto, Aug. 11.—The Ironquoit defeated the Strathcona in the third of the Canada cup series to-day by 11 minutes, 46 seconds, after a splendid race.

(Special to The Planet.)

Toronto, August 11.—Ironquoit, Challenger, won the third race for Canada's cup, finishing at 2:16.55. Strathcona finished at 2:28.02.

Ironquoit had two minutes the better of the start and maintained her lead throughout.

GRAND RACE

Commodore W. R. Phillimore of the Baden-Powell, Describes the Much-Talked-of Canada Cup Race

Commodore W. R. Phillimore, of the yacht Baden-Powell, saw the race on Saturday between the Strathcona and Ironquoit, and also the race yesterday.

"I've seen two races for the Canada cup," remarked Mr. Phillimore, "and it was the greatest race I ever saw. Those who have seen all the races for the Canada cup say that it was the finest of them all. There never was more than 15 seconds difference between the two yachts, excepting at the finish, when Commodore Jarvis beat Capt. Barr by 20 seconds. Twice Barr had the race right in hand and Jarvis beat him. The first mistake that Barr made was after standing out enough to make the buoy, he came around it very fast, worked out, expecting to cross the Strathcona's bow. He misjudged his distance and Jarvis nipped him and forced him to go about. Jarvis went about on the port tack, gaining several lengths. After sailing a mile on this tack, Jarvis made one of the prettiest bluffs ever seen in a yacht race. He came around on the Strathcona's back as if to cross the Ironquoit's bow. He had no room to do so, nor did he wish to do so, being close to the challenger. He had barely time to fill his canvas, which gave him his rights on the course and compelled Jarvis to go about. Jarvis went about on the port tack, and while the challenger hung in, Jarvis made use of the defender's headway to swing on the port tack again, gaining another lead of several lengths, and so went around the buoy first by 15 seconds ahead of the Ironquoit. It was then a close race to the second buoy. Both yachts were fighting jibs, but the American sailboats were very fast. The American boat footed it very fast, worked out to windward, and beat Jarvis around the second buoy by 15 seconds. It was then a broad reach home; both boats hung on to their beating jibs, Barr not wishing to let Jarvis work to windward of him. Jarvis presently set a balloon jib, and soon Barr did the same. Jarvis kept edging up all the time. Presently both eased away a little, and Jarvis seeing he was not gaining, set his mainsail. Barr was seemed aware of this, and was pretty close to him. A luffing match with spinners set is not a very comfortable thing for a crew, but both would huff their teeth again. Finally both boats went forward, and flapped against the jib stays and it was a case of get them in as best they could. Jarvis kept pushing him further north till the time, and just at the right time Jarvis set spinners again and squared away for the home buoy, having the Ironquoit to the leeward, and the challenger couldn't catch the defender. It was a great exhibition, enough to delight the heart of any yachtsman. If the Americans want the cup they will have to send somebody better than Capt. Barr, of New York. He is no match for Commodore Jarvis. Perhaps the Americans could get Archie Park. The handling of the head sails by the Americans was very slowly compared with the work of the Strathcona's men.

There is little to choose between the two boats. Twice Barr had the race on Saturday, and twice Commodore Jarvis took it away from him."

The sales of academy pictures during the exhibition at Burlington House show a great improvement over those of last year, when the war and the coronation of the King combined to reduce the aggregate sales to £10,455. This year the total realized was £20,177, the highest since 1890.

THE POPE CROWNED.

Impressive Ceremony Witnessed at the Vatican.

Rome, Aug. 10.—The ceremony of the coronation of Pope Pius X. took place yesterday in the Basilica of St. Peter's, in the presence of the Princes and high dignitaries of the Church, diplomats and Roman nobles, and with all the solemnity and splendor associated with this, the most magnificent rite in the Roman Catholic Church.

From the throne Pius X., surrounded by his suite, walked to the high altar, standing over the crypt of St. Peter's, into which meanwhile Cardinal Macchi descended to pray. The appearance of the Pope in that elevated position called for another burst of enthusiasm. The Pope then blessed the altar and after saying the "Indulgentiam," the maniples, a symbol of the cord with which Christ was bound, placed with great ceremony, upon the Pope's arm. At the same time prayers for the coronation were recited by Cardinals Vannutelli, Mocenni, Agliardi and Satolli. Returning from the crypt Cardinal Macchi placed upon the shoulders of the Pope the Pontifical pallium and attached it with three golden jewelled pins, saying: "Receive this sacred pallium as a symbol of the fullness of the Pontifical office, in honor of Almighty God, the most glorious virgin Mary, His mother, the blessed apostles, St. Peter and St. Paul, and the holy Roman Catholic Church."

Mass was then celebrated with great pomp and ceremony, the ceremony of the Pope becoming gradually more firm and sonorous until it was even audible in the most distant corner of the immense church. Following this, Cardinal Macchi performed the rite of incensing the Pope, whom he subsequently kissed three times on the cheeks and chest, as did Cardinals Sogni and Vannutelli. Upon the Pope's return to the throne the Cardinals offered their last obedience to the Pontiff, kissing his hand and feet and The Bishops and Archbishops kissed his foot and right knee, while the abbots kissed only his foot. The Holy Father then walked to the shrine of St. Peter for the culminating rites of the extremely fatiguing ceremony. The whole sacred college gathered about the Pope singing Palestrina's "Corona aurea super caput ejus," while the choir burst forth into song, giving the dramatic touch. Cardinal Macchi then recited the "Pater Noster" and offered the following prayer:

"Omnipotens et ever eternal God, sovereignty, grant Thy servant, Pius X., grace to fruitfully govern Thy Church so that he, who by Thy clemency becomes and is crowned as father of kings and rector of all the faithful, through Thy wise disposition may govern well." "Amen" rang out from all corners of the cathedral. Cardinal Deacon Segna then raised the Pontiff's mitre, and senior Cardinal Deacon Macchi placed on the venerable white head the chain burst forth from the ringing of bells, the blowing of silver trumpets, the triumphant strains of the choir and the acclamations of the multitude which could no longer be repressed. When comparative silence had been reached Cardinal Macchi addressed the Pope in Latin as follows:

"Receive the tiara ornamented with three crowns. Remember thou art the father of Princes and Kings, the rector of the world, the vicar on earth of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, who is the honor and glory of all centuries."

"Amen" rang out from all corners of the cathedral. Pope Pius was quite overcome and had scarcely strength left to impart the apostolic benediction. Cardinals Macchi and Sogni granted a plenary indulgence to all present and then the procession reformed and left the Basilica in the same form as it came. The Pope was visibly fatigued, and his right hand shook as he raised it time after time to bestow his blessing. When the Basilica was over all the exits to the courtyard were opened and within less than an hour the vast cathedral was empty.

That is what we intend our clerks shall have. We have and are now keeping our store open until 9 p.m. or later. That is entirely too late. We have therefore, in conjunction with our brother hardwaremen, decided on and after Aug. 24th to close at 7 p.m., Saturdays and evenings before holidays excepted, and we trust that our customers will help us in our efforts to make life more enjoyable to our clerks by shopping early enough to allow us to lock up sharp at 7.

MORLEY & CO.,

THE HAMILTON ASHORE.

R. & O. Boat is Beached Just Above Cornwall.

Montreal, Aug. 10.—Word reached here from Cornwall that the steamer Hamilton of the R. & O. Navigation Company, bound from Hamilton to Montreal, loaded with passengers and cargo of freight, lies beached in the St. Lawrence a short distance above the town of Cornwall. As the steamer was running the Long Sault Rapids at an early hour Saturday morning she struck a rock and stove a hole in her stern. The water kept coming in very rapidly, and Capt. Baker decided to run the ship ashore in the bay, just above the Ottawa and New York bridge, where she now lies. Although the passengers were all on deck to see the rapids, there was no commotion or panic, as they were unaware that anything was wrong until the boat was beached. The steamer Grenada transferred the passengers to Cornwall this morning, and they went east on the Bohemian this afternoon. It is likely that the Hamilton's freight will be unloaded, and that the boat will be pumped out and taken to Montreal to the dry dock.

The Saturday evening hop at the Pavilion was well attended and the music excellent.

Unfortunately it was shorter than usual, owing to a sore hand of one of the musicians.

An old landmark disappeared from the bar on Saturday, when the Thetis went up in smoke. It had been run ashore on the Chippewas grounds. Question—Who had a bon-fire on Saturday night, the Silent Seven, or a Breezy Time? Address answers to Capt. Stevens.

These poor fishermen of Erieau have a hard time of it. Eight of them from the West End rose at four yesterday morning and incidentally woke everyone else within earshot. Home who not extend the cottages to suit these ambitious fishermen. They were after big game. First they tried the Creek, then the middle of the Eau. Finally at half past two in the afternoon they wound up at De Boy's Bay.

It might interest their friends to know that they wound up empty handed. While these extensive expeditions were going on a young boy caught a five pound bass a few feet from the West End shore.

MODERN SPIES OF PEACE.

How Nations Discover What They Must Know in Their Neighbors' Territory, But Are Not Allowed To.

There are many things about each other which nations would like to know, says the London Express correspondent.

In order to discover what they must know but are not allowed to, civilized States employ military spies. They may be Military or Naval Attachés, duly accredited to an Embassy, or secret agents, who are sent to reside or travel in those districts from which information is required by the Intelligence Department.

The work of the first class is not unimportant, but it is not risky. The officer may not overstep the bounds of common honesty, and rarely, if ever, attempts to achieve anything secretly.

He is closely watched, and knows it. If he becomes a strong centre of attraction he may divert the attention of watchers from some secret agent who is possessing himself of the particulars the Attaché is ostensibly so anxious to acquire, but is successfully preventing from securing. The Attaché is useful as a clearing agent.

Spies become possessed of facts which are of no real value to those who employ them, but are assumed to be worth much by the agents of other countries, and exchange of "pieces" is effected. Sometimes apparently useless information is sought simply for its exchange value. For instance, some years ago two British officers created considerable annoyance in Russia by their persistence in hanging about the district in which the autumn manoeuvres were to take place.

Then representations were made at the British Embassy, where the officers were unknown, and subsequently they disappeared for a time, only to be discovered at the end of the manoeuvres in one of the five great fortresses which protect the west frontier of Russia, and the one that had been the centre of the military operations.

Had these men been Prussian officers their position would have been dangerous, and an unpleasant international incident might have occurred. The Russo-German frontier is nothing to Great Britain, neither is the Franco-German. We exchange the "pieces" with Germany for the second, and the second with France for a little bit of news about Russia in Asia which India believes to be important. And thus we get home.

Each country has its own peculiar sphere of interest to which it devotes its greatest attention. Great Britain has so many that, properly speaking, it has none. But India is always alarmed as to Russia; and agents—British and native—of the India Department are ever busy seeking particulars likely to be of service when we have to defend an Empire which already in the military sense extends from Aden to Hong Kong.

Most of the Indian agents in Russia are officers of the Indian army, but, needless to state, they do not travel as such. Some affect to be tourists of an innocent but inquiring turn of mind; some go as commercial travellers; some lean to religious curiosities.

These agents have been so energetic and prolific in their disguises that in the South of Russia the bonafide commercial traveler excites suspicion. The Russians now insist upon all "commercials" being licensed and taxed; moreover, the Intelligence Department has found the orders for goods obtained by its travelers somewhat embarrassing.

As a buying agent the spy has also worked well. No Briton can now go across the Caspian to purchase skins any more than to sell hardware or even just to amuse himself, without his letters being opened and the company he keeps being noted.

In ordinary circumstances, when the spy is known, he thereby becomes innocuous, and he knows it. If discovered, the impolite Russian way is to forbid him to enter the country, or to declare he comes from a plague-infested port, or that he is a Roman Catholic or a Jew.

The polite way is to offer him a guard, or helmsman, or companion. The spy is then shown what he must see, and as soon as he has seen and reported, the various military dispositions are changed so that the information he obtains is worse than useless, being actually misleading.

The polite British way is to take the recognized spy round the golf links, or give him puffs of whiskey, and tell him some stories as to sit on a stool enjoying (?) interminable regimental cricket, then to send or take him home a happy, talkative man with nothing to tell.

Many are the dodges resorted to by British agents in order to avoid being "spoofed" by their Russian hosts. Their common way is to hunt in couples, each independent of the other so that if one is taken the other may still succeed in getting through with the work.

In the Far East in the matter of espionage, Japan has the game almost to itself. A Japanese can readily become so good an imitation of the Chinaman, Manchu, or Mongol that the Russian cannot identify him, and the Chinaman who does will certainly denounce him.

He can simulate ignorance, almost imbecility—which the Russian spy is too vain to do—and as merchant, artisan, or interpreter he can go anywhere. Then there are the women! The Japanese woman, apparently stupid and ignorant as a German goose, is really as competent as the average spy in taking notice of things that matter.

What a Japanese does not know of the Russian military dispositions in Manchuria is not worth knowing, and this knowledge, like all careful espionage, makes for peace, not war. Had the British methods of espionage been better there had been no war in South Africa in 1899. Since that date we have improved considerably, but we have yet much to learn. SIR ROBERT STOUT ANGRY.

Why the Chief Justice of New Zealand Threatens to Resign.

Sir Robert Stout, Chief Justice of New Zealand, who is threatening resignation because the King has decided that Ministers in future must have precedence over Judges in that colony, is almost as assertive and determined a personality as Mr. Seddon himself. He and Mr. Seddon were the rival candidates for the Liberal leadership after the death of Mr. Ballance, and there was pretty general surprise when the caucus decided against his claims. Cynical people were heard to say that in making him Chief Justice, Mr. Seddon was actually writing as much by a desire to dispose of a dangerous rival as to reward pre-eminent professional merit. If Sir Robert should resign and re-enter public life, New Zealand politics will become lively and interesting. Sir Robert, who is a native of the Shetland Islands, and still under sixty, was originally a schoolmaster, but became a barrister at twenty-seven, and a New Zealand M.P. three years later. He served as Attorney-General in Sir George Grey's Radical Government of 1873, and attained the Premiership himself in 1884. Before his elevation to the Bench he was the Bradlaugh of the Ingersoll of New Zealand, and he was the leading orator at a Secularist Congress in Melbourne.

Fortunes to Get Public Ear.

Let all those of the outside public who read that some eminent vocalist of the concert-room platform, or some astonishing instrumentalist of the same is drawing enormous fees, take the word of an expert that it is no gift of fortune in the world so difficult and so heartbreaking as that of obtaining the ear of the public in the way mentioned, says London Tit-Bits.

Every season, in London alone, the sums spent by newcomers in their desire to give a concert or to share in one are in the aggregate enormous, and generally the expense only comes as a culmination after both friends and money have been exhausted in paying for a long series of losses in this country and abroad, during which period the student has never earned a shilling. But, after years of study, a hearing must be got at any hazard for the novice, and if she be a girl the very dress on her back has often cost an infinite family sacrifice. In too many cases, though, agents have been appointed and critics have been actually got to come to the concert-room—important concerts often clash on the same day—the result is a deep disappointment, for many a musical genius will break down under the ordeal and be seen at his or her worst.

From the colonies alone fortunes have poured into London that have been speculatively used in concert-giving in behalf of the tyros, but some nineteen out of twenty of the aspirants have been as in the case of home-cultivated variety, comparative failures. One of the greatest concert-agents of the world said to the writer: "I have known scores of cases—I mean scores literally—where service has been made of almost universal adoption. Every wheel with a reputation is fitted with them. Every rider of experience insists on them.

Payment of Genius.

At a recent sale, in London "Deeds of Life and Strange Surprising Adventures of Robinson Crusoe," of York, Mariner," and "The Further Adventures of Robinson Crusoe," two volumes, of 1719, in the original calf bindings, realized $1,585. Such a thing has happened in Poe's own time it is probable that that gifted romancer would have ended his days in a madhouse. Such incidents are the irony of fate. Every other day one reads of a Poe manuscript having been sold at a large price. And then one remembers Poe's miserable life and ill-paid returns. Shakespeare, a prosperous dramatist, considering his time, would gladly have sold not only the manuscript copy, but dramatic rights to "Hamlet" for scarcely a larger sum than that given above. It is said that the King of the Avars, a good business man as he was, did not receive from all his plays what a modern "popular" novelist gains from a single book with its dramatic rights. It looks rather unjust, but Shakespeare still lives, while the novelist sees his reputation flickering before his eyes. It is doubtful whether, taking all things into consideration, Mr. Shakespeare would care to change places with M—; you may fill in your own blank.—Current Literature.

A Remarkable Hat.

According to a French paper, there is a man in London who possesses a remarkable straw hat. For years past he has followed King Edward about at foreign watering places, and whenever he saw the Prince of Wales, he took him a drink, drinking anything through a straw he pounced down upon the straw and added it to his collection. Last year this strange collector had gathered such a bundle of straws that he had a hat made of them.
