No Valedictorian yet

"They seem to be jerking everyone back and forth,' said Eric Gingles.

Its been three months since the election for valedictorian was held, but the winner still has not been declared.

The election had been plagued with problems and protests from the beginning on November 18, 1987. At last Wednesday's Student Union Council meeting, it looked like the whole matter had been settled when Council voted 4-1-1 to declare Eric Gingles as valedictorian.

Following a recount of the ballots Monday night by Student Union President Jane Arnold and VP External James Small, it was discovered that there was a 70 vote discrepancy between the ballots and CRO Larry Long's tally sheet.

The count from the SUB ballot box was inaccurately recorded. Originally, Heather McNaught was reported to have received 77 votes, but the recount showed McNaught only received 7 votes.

Final results for the position of Valedictorian 1988 cast in the

It may not get into the Guiness Book of Records, but Susan Jane Daigle has become the first person to have a board of inquiry hearing into a Human Rights Commission.

Mrs. Daigle was dismissed one skipped rank. on Friday, January 29, 1987, by Chief Tom Powell, because there were complaints about her work and that she had no respect for her senior officers.

After her dismissal, Mrs. Daigle went to the unemployment office. From there her complaint of sexual harassment went to City Administrator John Robinson and then on to the Human Rights Commission, where a formal complaint was not filed until April.

According to Mrs. Daigle, Platoon Chief Keith Hunter asked her among other questions of a sexual nature, "whether my husband was a good lover." Mrs. Daigle said, 'There was always someone else around. I was humiliated and embarassed." Mrs. Daigle spoke to her immediate supervisor about the situation, but as far as she knows, nothing sexual harassment complaint was done. Mrs. Daigle didn't under the New Brunswick go above Mr. Fusk because it was not well looked upon if

As well, Mrs. Daigle did not tell Chief Powell of her harassment by Mr. Hunter "because I knew Keith Hunter was his friend", she said.

According to Marty Mockler, a human rights officer, the Commission looked into the business relationship between Chief Powell and Mr. Hunter, to find that they are two of three owners of T K Enterprises.

Testimony given by Paul Breen, a fire inspector, revealed that he had heard Mr. Hunter ask an explicit sexual question to Mrs. Daigle.

Mrs. Daigle feels that her work performance suffered because of the harassment from Mr. Hunter, as well as from Alan Spurrell, who often played with her hair, and called names such as "sweet thing" and "Susie Q", which she objected to.

Mrs. Daigle's lawyer, Paul lanssens, concluded with his witnesses on Wednesday, February 3rd, 1988. Testimony on behalf of Mr. Hunter and the City of Fredericton resumes on March 15.

UNB prof. gets new job appointing Prof. ln Loughrey, Premier McKenna is making good on a promise to place competent women in positions of authority within the government. As it stands now, only fifteen of the one hundred and eighty-five senior service positions are filled by women. However, Prof. Loughrey does not feel any additional pressure from the knowledge that she will be one of the few women in the upper echelons of power. If anything, she feels that it is her status as an academic coming from outside that might make her transition to public life a bit different.

Prof. Loughrey has been teaching at UNB for eleven years. She says she is definitely sorry to leave, and that she enjoys her students very much. She intends to be back at UNB in two years, but says "There are lots of opportunities out there. I'm not closing any doors."

Psst!

Do you want to know a place where organized robbery is legal? A place where the vendor can steal with impunity and never have to fear making a guest appearance on the Crimestoppers show? I won't keep you in suspense any longer. Just pay a visit to the snack food vending machine in the main lobby of Tilley Hall and you can get in on the action.

In the antiguated vending machine, you will find and extensive variety of your favorite snack food. But there is one little problem. While you can look at the goodies and even attempt to buy something, the machine will simply swallow your change and not give you what you have purchased. In fact, it won't even give you your change back. There is however a little sign conveniently posted in the upper right hand corner informing you that in exchange for a trek to the SUB you can recover your stolen money. But the fact is that most students are either on the way to class or on their way home and can't be bothered going over to the Beaver Foods office for a refund. This writer has been repeatedly victimized by this huge thief standing silently in the lobby. People have tried to solve this problem in a number of creative ways by attempting to shake their purchase and or money out of the machine with varying degrees of success. Some have even had the courage to check and see if the cord was plugged in. If you listen, you will hear the deadly crackle of the electricity in the frayed cord. So forget this approach if you want to survive to write your exams. The problem with the machine is that the items are improperly loaded so that they stick on the end of the ring holding them on the rack. So if you are a junk food addict, you can either continue to pay your money and take your chances or else go on a diet.

Got the midwinter blues?

By ALICE PITRE

It's something that affects most of us, yet something that none of us understands. It seems to come from nowhere to steal away our vitality and drag us into a temporary fit of apathy. Some say it's the weather, and some blame our midterms. But no matter what we call it, it's here - the Midwinter Blues.

But for some of us, the Blues are not so temporary. Some of us suffer day in and day out with feelings that prevent any semblance of good times and laughter. We sit through our classes (when we manage to get there at all) with a sense of dread and dejection. No one seems to understand.

Hold your hat, though. Don't jump off a bridge or step in front of a freight train. And don't imagine the Social Club to be your only friend. There are people on campus who would love to spend some time with you.

Some of these folk are waiting for you at the Counselling Centre downstairs in the Alumni Memorial Building. Three professional counsellors are more than willing to listen to your stories of woe. Are you lonely, discouraged, or under too much pressure to cope? Give them a call at 453-4820 from 8:30 a.m. to noon, and from 1:15 p.m. until 5 p.m. These people will even help with your emergencies after hours. Just call Security at 453-4830.

But personal counselling is not all that's available at the Counselling Centre. This is also the time of year when some of us wonder what on earth we will do with our lives in the future. What we need then may be a session with the career counsellor, or a browse thorugh the well-supplied Career Library. The librarian is always handy to guide you to the information you need. There are files on just about any career you can think of, and some that may have never entered your mind. The Career Library also houses a vast assortment of university and community college calenders. On a more casual basis, the three members of the campus ministry team are available as well. They are usually found somewhere, anywhere, in the SUB, just talking. Their office, though, is also in the Alumni Memorial Building. If it's a spiritual problem that is facing you, if you're wondering about the meaning of it all, or even if you are just lonely, these men are there. As Monte Peters says, time is a big commodity these days, and Campus Ministry has time. Time to spend, and time to give away. They will be your friends when no one else seems to care.

The Campus Ministry team's numbers are as follows: Monte Peters - 454-3525 or 459-5673, Neville Cheeseman - 454-3525 or 454-6507, and John Valk -459-5962 or 453-5089. Besides friendship, they also provide pre-marriage counselling and other pastoral services as required.

One final facility is waiting to help those of us who may be suffering with severe cases of the Midwinter Blues. Although there is no longer a psychiatrist associated with the University, the doctors at the Student Health Centre can refer students to psychiatrists in the city.

In these days of self-reliance and self-sufficiency, it is hard to admit that we need help of any kind. And we often feel we are the only ones who feel so alone. But the Midwinter Blues reach epidemic proportions about this time of year, and it could be affecting you. It won't hurt to turn to the people who can help.

Yes Lana, you are allowed back into the Student Union Building. But not until March 27 and on a conditional basis, according to SUB Director, Kim Norris.

Ms. Grimes privileges were revoked last March 27 for an indefinite period, as a result of an unauthorized election booth set up by the Student Union Inc. Mr. Norris, who asked six times that the booth be removed, took what he considered to be his final alternative by calling in the city police and invoking the petty trespass act on those involved.

Even though the other people involved in this incident have since had their privileges Norris informed her to read the reinstated, the ban was on Ms. fine print on the memo, which

When Lana is allowed in the SUB in March, it will be on a probationary basis. Ms. Grimes said in an interview with the Brunswickan that "I would abide by the SUB rules" which is fine with Mr. Norris since he wants no misconduct, especially any which would involve the police.

When the Brunswickan asked Mr. Grimes whether or not she would hold another Student Union Inc. election in the SUB, she responded "probably not, since I feel there is little support for Student Union Inc. now."

A number of motions were passed February 4th at the Student Senators Committee.

One of the issues discussed was the Aids Policy Proposal. This proposal first appeared in 1987 in the form of a campaign promise by Susan Forestell. Morag Duncan also included this proposal when she ran for office. The proposal is for the placement of condoms in UNB residences and in the Student Union Building. The motion was recommended to the Student Senate Committee. If this is passed, condoms will be placed in the sub on an experimental basis. The motion will be put forth Tuesday, January 16th. Another issue brought up at the meeting was the implementation of a subcommittee for Problem Identification. This committee will be set up to deal with all problems brought forth by UNB

Currently, the UNB Student Union is on a trial membership with CFS. A few years ago, the students of UNB voted in a referendum not to join CFS; however, the current Student Union is re-examining the benefits of being a full member of the organization. Lawrence Hansen, Student Union Vice President (Internal) asked the direct question, "What can CFS do for us?".

The Gripes of Wrath

By SUSAN FORESTELL

Not long ago, a more student conscious student government than the one we have now offered photocopying services for only 5¢ per copy. In the fall of 1986, however, the student council spent about $500 installing wall sockets in the Help Centre only to begin charging 7¢ per copy to make up the difference. Not suprisingly (as the price of supply increases, demand decreases-week one, Economics 1000) volume decreased and profits fell (could this have anything to do with the loss of one photocopier to the new president's office for personal use?) The council's solution was to raise again the price of photocopies, this time to 10¢.

Eventually, the council was forced to sell most of its photocopiers (they did keep the one in the president's office). Interestingly enough, the buyer turned out to be the University Administration.

Now photocopies can be made in the Help Centre for 10¢. Hardly a bargain considering the poor quality of the copies and the long lineups that are a result of a lack of copiers.

Meanwhile, the library is also charging 10¢ per copy. Luckily, someone is on the side of the students in this issue. Student Senator Barry White has been working for several months on a motion for Senate that would reduce photocopying prices to cost.

The motion was passed in principle by the Senate last month. The matter of determining costs was sent to the Academic Support Committee who determined that operating and copy card expenses make up about half the copy costs (5¢ per copy). The other half, according to the committee, is made up of staff costs. In fact, the committee decided that it takes two full time staff members to run the photocopiers.

Does this mean that if we got rid of the photocopiers two librarians would lose their jobs? I doubt it. Moreover, the money needed to pay librarians for all their duties has already been paid through tuition, government funds and donations. Students aren't required to pay extra to have librarians help them find books so why should they pay extra fees to have librarians put paper in the photocopiers? They shouldn't.

Our esteemed President, Dr. Downey, himself has stated that although UNB students pay the highest tuition in the country, we do not pay add-on costs. Here is a clear cut case of the burden of an add-on cost. Hopefully, the Senate will reject the Support Committee's assessment. And then the University can pick up where that more student conscious student government left off.

MacLaggan becomes smoke free (almost)

As of February 4, MacLaggan Hall is a non-smoking building, with the exception of one designated smoking area. All offices, corridors, and stairwells, as well as the student's lounge and study room are now Non-Smoking areas. The only place where smoking will be permitted is in one stairwell at the back of the building.

Last fall, following revision of the smoking policy for the U.N.B. campus, nursing students declared that they wanted a completely smoke free building. The majority of awareness regarding the the members of the Nursing health risks associated with Faculty also wanted a smoke smoking and with second free building. The new policy however, gives to each Dean, Departmental Chairperson, or Director responsible for building, in consultation with the Safety Committee, the discretion to designate specific smoking areas in the building. Contrary to the nursing students preference, one area has been designated in MacLaggan Hall.

GULF GOOP. The route taken by oil tankers through the Persian Gulf, and the presence of navy warships of many countries contribute considerably to a nasty mess of oil in the gulf. The damage to marine life and the cost of oil demand a solution to this costly problem.

Because of the dust storms with winds gusting between 60-85 km/h and temperatures of 55 degrees celsius, the waters of the Gulf evaporate guickly and have twice the normal salinity of the ocean it flows into.

The air temperature varies from below freezing to 55 celsius and since the Gulf is on the average less that 40 m deep, its temperature also fluctuates between 10 and 30 C.

Because of the harsh evironment, the additional strain of the oil spills threatens many organisms, some of them unique to the Persion Gulf.

Such species include forests of black coral, finless dolphins in the north, and a herd of dugongs which are first cousin to the manatee.

Sharpen up your computer

Sawyer trainees will soon be learning how to saw logs efficiently - without wasting logs, breathing in sawdust or being slowly deafened by noise.

Manufacturing The Technology Centre (MTC) at the University of New Brunswick, in a contract with the Maritime Forest Ranger School (MFRS), has designed a computer simulation program which allows trainees to practise sawing logs in unlimited numbers, sizes and shapes.

"I can give the sawyer trainee all the options he would have if he were sitting in the booth in the mill and operating the equipement," said Campbell Gregg, the MTC engineer who designed the computer graphics program for his master's thesis. Merely by pushing buttons, logs can be created (deformities and all), loaded onto the carriage, and cut to the trainee's specifications. Once the log is cut, the computer will tell the trainee how well he did; for example, the yield in two-by-fours.

Sawyers must learn to cut logs without creating piles of sawdust and woodchips, Mr. Gregg said. "If the sawyer does his job properly, the maximum yield can be obtained from saw logs. If he messes up, no one else in the mill can get back what he's lost. In other words, the sawyer determines the potential productivity of the sawmill."

The MFRS hopes this computer simulation system and a second one on overall sawmill operation will help Maritime sawmills be more productive and therefore competitive, said Ernie Strickland, manager of the school's training sawmill. The ranger school will also benefit because it is less expensive and much safer to introduce the basic concepts of log sawing to sawyer trainees on a computer terminal. 'You can use up a lot of wood and damage expensive equipment learning how to operate a sawmill," Mr. Strickland said. The MTC at UNB and MFRS are also collaborating on the development of computer graphics program which sawmill managers can use to design and/or evaluate mills.

Managers will be able to "operate" their mills for hours, days or weeks, and evaluate many different operations in a short time.

MTC are Rejean Hall, a UNB PhD student and an industrial engineering professor at the Universite de Moncton, and David Jewett and Dan Working on this project for McKeage, two UNB master's students in mechanical engineering.

The Maritime Forest Ranger School received funding for the three-year project from the Canada Employment and Immigration Commission through its Innovations programs. The Manufacturing Technology Centre at UNB was subcontracted to design the computer graphics program.

THE BRUNSWICKAN-7

Fall of an Arrow

By SEAN M. MALONEY

On the 20th of February 1959, the Conservative Government, under the leadership of John Diefenbaker, made the decision to scrap the Avro CF-105 "Arrow" aircraft 13 000 employees of AVRO Aircraft and those of many other smaller support industries were put out of work overnight. These people were the forefront of a quickly expanding Canadian aircraft it. dustry that had already produced the world's first jet propelled passenger aircraft and Canada's own jet fighter, the CF-100 "Canuck".

There is no question that we lost something fantastic," said Bill MacNamara, giving a well informed presentation to an enthusiastic audience in Head Hall last Friday. A 1955 UNB Engineering grad, Mr. Mac-Namara worked on the CF-105 project for Avro Aircraft from 1955 to 1959.

With a stroke of the pen, and some ill-informed shooting from the lip, Diefenbaker destroyed a fantastic episode in Canadian aviation history. The CF-105 "Arrow" world class combat aircraft. With the potential to do Mach 2.5, propelled by the all-Canadian Iroquois engine, and having the most sophisticated fire control and weapons system of the late 1950's, the "Arrow" would have been a hard act to follow at a time when most of the world's combat aircraft had an average speed of Mach 1.5.

Mr. MacNamara dispelled many myths, particularly one of alleged American interference resulting in the cancellation of the project and another of defence economics and export markets. The reason for the cancellation, he says, was the result of vindictiveness on the part of Diefenbaker towards what amounted to a "Liberal" defence project that was under the leadership of wartime industrialist, C.D. Howe.

Government personnel destroy the completed prototypes of the Arrow, a world class Canadian built combat aircraft.

aircraft as well as those under production. After this act of vandalism, the carefully assembled Avro staff and workers left to find jobs in the American aircraft and space industries, eventually assisting the design and production of aircraft such as the American F-14 "Tomcat" and F-15 "Eagle", as well as the Mercury and Apollo space programs.

Morally Guilty ?

Recently a group of historians passed judgment on Austrian President, Kurt Waldheim. The commission formally concluded that he did not commit any war crimes. Informally, as some groups have suggested, they exceeded their mandate and pronounced him morally guilty of "crimes against humanity".

Far removed from the circumstance of the second world war in their sheltered ivory tower, the historians made their decision. Hindsight is supposed to be 20/20, but after forty years that vision fades.

The commission was wrong for finding Kurt Waldheim morally guilty from their vantage point. What would the commissionaires have done had they been in Waldheim's place? Would they have refused orders and risked charges of insubordination or a transfer to the Eastern front and certain death.

Apparently, committee members felt "awkward" about making moral judgments given the documentary evidence at their disposal. Yet they nevertheless had no qualms about pronouncing Valdheim "guilty" of complacency. What were his alternatives?

History also loses one more relevant quality over time too. Objectivity suffers, especially in the case of a World War, since it is the victors who write the history.

More on Andrew McKenna. The "Baron" editor resigned several weeks ago. We received their latest issue several days ago. It seems they're so hard up for staff that McKenna wrote the story on his own resignation.

What does Jane do? Well, our intrepid band of reporters followed Jane around last week. See page 3.

If you happen to be in the cafeteria at 1:00 pm today, look up. CP's will be falling from the sky. Since they couldn't do if for Wintercourse, they've re-scheduled the event for today. Watch out for falling Lyles.

Now, on to this week's special guest Mugwump writer.

Once again, we have witnessed our ever intrepid and fearless Student Union executive faced with a rather serious internal problem and move sideways. Perhaps my years as a student at this University have tarnished my opinion of the general capacity of our Student Union executive officers. I have witnessed the Bosnitch beatitudes, the Fox fumbles, the Hansen (whom I diligently worked for) hedging, and now, finally, the Arnold (Hansen and Small) Axiom: When in doubt, avoid; when in serious doubt, put it off until "everyone forgets about it.

Let me refresh our readers' memories. Some time ago, we held a general election. During this election, the position of valedictorian was hotly contested. At this time, one Heather McNaught was elected, by a margin of four votes, over one Erik Gingles. Now we are informed that this result, subsequent to a recount, was incorrect, and that Miss McNaught has received seventy fewer votes that she acutaly had. This recount was undertaken three months after the actual election and then only after the recommendation of a third party (Mr. MacKay). Now the executive of the Student Union is quite satisfied that justice has been servied. I am not, nor should any of the candidates in this particular election.

Justice in this case has not been served on several counts. The first and most important is the cavalier meanner in which the count, recount and acceptance of council of the results of the recount. The intial ballot count show a difference of four votes between the top two candidates. In some jurisdictions, any result between the top two candidates of less than 150 votes calls for an immediate recount of the results, and then an official recount of the ballots within twelve days. This efficient body did not recount these two hundred plus ballots (and then only after they had been lost) until three months had elapsed. Then after these irregularities, six voting councillors, in a vote of four in favour, one opposed and one abstention, passed these new results only two days after they had become known. Only six councillors, a bare quorum, of the entire body of twelve or more passed these "results" and then after objections having been raised by the chair.

The major problem with the above matter is, simply put, fraud. We see no proof of a reconciliation between the number of eligible voters and the number of votes cast, nor do we have any proof that subsequent ballot tampering did not take place. In no other democratic institution (with the possible exception of Haiti) would this festering electoral ore have been allowed to have gone untouched for so long. The Student Union is setting a dangerous precedent. This body is so afraid of doing something wrong that they are unwilling to do something right. This, in their logic, would be tantamount to admitting failure. The Student Union must not only do justice; they must be seen to do justice. The Student Union has only one recourse, and that is to call for another election for the position of valedictorian. Until this done, justice will not have been served. If we, as is students, and members of the electorate, do not demand a new election, then the Student Union has, by precedent, given itself the authority to hold final election results in abeyance for any period of time of their chosing, possibly allowing for either growth of some results or the shrinking of others. Seventy votes is a large change for the vote results. It is seven sets of ten fingers. University students do not normally make mistakes with simple addition, but three months could (and did) make a vast difference in results. Call another election. Have some guts. Admit that you are fallible. DO JUSTICE.

The commission did, however, define "moral guilt" for our benefit: "A certain guilt could arise just from knowing about violations of human rights in the place where a person was stationed, if the person concerned - out of lack of strength or courage - violated his human duty to take steps against injustice." Given this, under similar conditions, most of humanity would be found guilty.

It is ironic, though, that groups similar to the ones who are Mr. Waldheim's most persistent accusers seem to overlook atrocities committed by Joseph Stalin, the Khamer Rouge and even the Israeli defence forces.

A victory was scored with the Supreme Court decision on abortion handed down on January 28, 1988. Strides were made in acknowledging the rights of women. The pronouncement was hailed as liberating.

A Victory ?

That, at least, is the way in which ardent "pro-choicers" received the decision. "It's wonderful. It goes beyond my wildest dreams," cried one feminist. For the elated young women gathered in front of Dr. Henry Morgantaler's clinic in Toronto, screaming triumphantly with their clenched-fist salute, the entire controversy appeared to be a black and white issue: for or against the rights of women to make decisions about their own bodies.

The difficulty, however, is that few things in life are as simple as black and white. If the issue was merely about women's rights, the controversy would not be taking the dynamics it has. Was it a victory then?

When individual rights were enshrined in the Constitution, affirmed was the belief that individuals in this land have certain (God-given) rights by virtue of the fact that they are human. That was an advancement in Canadian history.

However, this so-called "advancement" has also served to fuel the fires of an increasing individualism. The irony is that when we think only in terms of our own individual rights, when we adopt a "me first" attitude, we lose sense of what it means to be human. For, to be human means being concerned about the health, welfare and preservation of "the other." It does not entail the selfish absolute "Stay out of my space."

That is why I have difficulty with the pro-choice campaign. It smacks too much of individualism. I have yet to hear a convincing argument from them regarding concern for the unborn. More often than not, that is entirely ignored. What sort of protection might they be given? Do they not have rights under the Constitution? Or, are they of no concern, when some women are faced with embarassment or inconvenience? The conclusion of the 1977 Badgley Report stated that most abortions were done for "social" reasons. Do these sufficiently justify terminating a new life?

Let us be abundantly clear, and no longer dilly-dally, about when a new life begins. A fetus in any stage of the pregnancy is a human being. In the first tri-semester, it is not just potentially human, it is human. The new life, shortly after conception, takes visible human form. To speak about a fetus as if it was some sort of bio-chemical blob that may or may not become something human is only to ignore what medical science has even confirmed. Dr. Morgantaler stated that January 28 was a "sweet day for women." In his own twisted logic, he added, "It is also a victory for children." There may be an element of truth in that, but it is not a victory for the unborn. Granted, children who are born ought to be those who are wanted and who will be loved. But, in what way will the right to abortion guarantee this? Abuse has been heaped upon many children who were once much wanted.

There is an extremely ironic twist to the entire issue. Some women who can conceive children, seek to abort them. Others who cannot, agonize over the harsh reality of their infertility. That is increased by the fact that there are few, if any, available for adoption. Where then is the victory, and for whom?

It would be heartless to insist that abortion must not take place under any circumstance.

Conception sometimes occurs as a result of violence against a woman. Sometimes it is clear that the new life begun will have little hope for survival, or severely limited growth, outside of the womb. In these situations, abortion may be the lesser of two evils. Nonetheless, it continues to be an evil.

If we affirm the sacredness of life, taking it, in any form, is to be avoided. That is why all must be done to alleviate the circumstances that drive women to seek abortion as a solution to the difficulties in which they find themselves. This includes providing emotional and, if need be, financial support. We must all act compassionately to those carrying the unborn. But above all, we must not forget the unborn themselves.

losing sleep?

Dear Editor:

By its ad in the Brunswickan, the Canadian Federation of Students resurrected Albert Einstein to report him on a first name basis as having been losing sleep over the lack of books in underfunded libraries.

I find the ad singularly distasteful, misleading and provocative. Why should the dear 'Alvert' sleeplessly worry about the depleted Harriet Irving's Library while, Harriet's husband and Presidents Jim and Jane are regularly getting their beauty sleep?

Would anyone please reassure me in this matter. I love to stand corrected.

Stop complaining

Dear Editor:

I am presently in my fifth year at university and in my second here at UNB. I enjoy reading the university paper but as my time here at UNB progresses one thing has become blatently obvious, you people love to complain. You complain about your student council, you knock down your sports teams, you insult your school pub, you complain about each other. What is wrong with everyone here?!

Is this the spirit of UNB? No, wait, you complain about the lack thereof. The student fees are too high, the student council is not doing its job, the president of the university is letting us down. Why doesn't everyone put away their biases, prejudices, jealousies, etc., and get on with their year. If the complainers would stop worrying about everyone else and concentrate on doing the job they're assigned, a large part of the problem would be solved. I was asked the other day "why does UNB lack school spirit and what can we do to change it?" by a fellow in the phys. ed. faculty. He was starting to think about doing something to change the situation here. If more people had this attitude things could get done.

had trouble finding a seat or had to plan on getting there half an hour early so as to ensure a good vantage point? Why does this not happen? There are 6000 plus students at this university yet school spirit seems to be at an alltime low.

I asked a graduating fourth year student what he though of the UNB hockey team. He replied that he had never attended a game, ever!!!!.

I'm dwelling on the athletics since they are usually synonimous (sic) with school spirit, but there are a wide variety of other aspects to take in. What about a debate? A debate about what? Well, usually any arguement is fun to watch and take in if both sides are well prepared and confident in their answers.

The spirit in the residences seem relatively large compared to that of the off-campus people. The off-campus students seem to be cut off from the university in the sense that notices of special or upcoming events are few and far between. The Bruns does keep these activities posted yet this only comes out once a week. Is there an off-campus rep. on the student council? Forgive me for stereotyping the off-campus crowd for I know that a good number do enjoy their UNB year through special events and sport teams.

Doubling back to student fees. The fees took a hike last year and a good many were knocked for a loop. If you look at the total cost of running the student activities for the university you would not even raise an eyebrow. The amount of money the student spends throughout the academic year is quite substantial, I know, but this small hike was necessary and yet provided fuel to the complainers. The university I attended previously had a student fee of 100 dollars back in '83 so I'm sure the students at UNB have been given a fair shake in this regard.

Let's talk "The Gripes of Wrath" for a moment. I'm sure attendance. The circle has to be interrupted by an outside source.

I apologize for all the complaining, it seems ironic, yet hopefully the point I'm offering will be understood. Yours sincerely,

Regan Steeves

Let the Bruns answer

Dear Editor:

Seems to me Karen Braun has a complaint or two. Her desk was broken into - that's an invasion of privacy, and her sanitary napkins were made the subject of office jokes - that's sexual harassment . I'd like to hear the Bruns answer both complaints responsibly that's democracy. Yours sincerely,

Stats on women

Dear Editor:

I read with dismay the responses to last week's Viewpoint question: "What do you think of feminism?" Although I have been a student on this campus for several years, I find the level of social ignorance among those old enough to attend university appalling.

Perhaps a more salient question might have been: "What do you know about feminism?" Why is it that those who know the least think they know most? Do the learned respondents featured know, for example, that:

- although women comprise 42% of the labour force, that women earn 60 cents for every dollar earned by men?

- that a woman with a university degree earns the same as a man who has completed junior high? - that 62% of women who are employed fulltime work in low paying areas such as clerical, sales and service?

the 10% of domestic assaults that are reported, only 2 in 10,000 are ever prosecuted? That is two onehundredths of one percent?

If women are considered equal in our society, why do these figures exist?

Men on this campus may or may not act as individuals in the oppression of women but they are members of a class which actively perpetuates discriminatory and illegal practices. As for the young women on this campus, if it were not for the energies of feminists, do you think you would even be allowed in these hallowed halls? If you have not yet had the misfortune of being included among the statistics, be patient; it is a long life.

I realize that this letter will bring yet another rain of criticism down upon my aching head and everything from my "attitude" to my personal life will fall to public review. So be it. It is a small price to pay for attempting to effect a social change that I firmly believe in.

I could sign this "A feminist who is concerned for other feminists who are concerned for feminists" but I think I will just sign my name. I have learned that if you are going to go around poking sticks at dinosaurs, the stick might as well be sharp.

Karen Jean Braun

Dear Editor:

I am stymied by students who staunchly oppose feminism on the grounds of HUMANISM. A humanist is a person who actively promotes human welfare. He/she rejects notions of rigid detirminism (sic) in history, believing instead that people reflect apon (sic) the human condition and react creatively to bring about social change. Feminism, as a social and political movement that actively promotes equal rights for women, has its roots firmly entrenched in a tradition of humanism. My suspicion is that people on this campus avoid using the word feminism because they are afraid of offending the boys at the Bruns, and those sensitive and gentle (not to mention ineffective) people on the student union. The recent events at the Brunswickan, and the student union's unwillingness to deal swiftly and decisively with an obvious case of sexism, has made it abundantly clear that to proclaim oneself a feminist on this campus is to invite slander and abuse. Yours sincerely, Donna Young

Dear Editor:

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rm. 35, Student Union Building, UNB Campus DEADLINE: 5 p.m. Tuesday

> Being an Ex-UNB student, I read the Brunswickan every week to keep in touch with the university community. Over the past few months however. I have been reading more about sexism and civil rights violations than university news.

Judging by what I have read in the paper, Ms. Karen-Jean Braun has undermined her own cause. The vicious attack on Chris Kane for his comic strip of 30 October 1987, along with her personal glimpses on daily life at this campus effectively recalled in people's minds the feminist movement of the late 1960's and early 70's. The movement was seen as being very anti-male and promoting reversechauvinism. The movement today is seen as being an opportunity for men and women to work together to achieve a better, more productive society. It is unfortunate that Ms. Braun does not wish to be a part of it.

I believe in equality. I believe that there are problems yet to be resolved. Working together is the only way to realize productive solutions. Isn't it time we started? Sincerely yours Kenneth Tompkins

Apathy in elections

Dear Sir:

For the past several years candidates have competed for the position of comptroller of the student council (whether it was under the title "comptroller", "VP (Finance)" or "treasurer"). However, in the last two elections, the position has been acclaimed. Is it a coincidence that this pattern of apathy follows the establishment of the Foundation for Students? With the Foundation, the essential duties of the Treasurer no longer include the financial administration of the council but now entail begging the university administration's permission to use the students' own finances. It was Rousseau who pointed out that no one who was sane would agree to a contract from which he did not benefit. Apparently Larry Hansen and the other councillors . who agreed to the Foundation were not Rousseauites (assuming they were sane).

Susan Forestall is a respected contributer to the Bruns. But let's not go overboard by setting up a column just for complaints. I've followed Susan's letters to the Bruns over the last while and its clear that complaining seems to be coming a trait in her work. Can't we talk about some of the positive points of UNB?

Your school pub, the Social Club was and probably still is in financial hot water. How could this happen? A university's pub should be a cornerstone and trademark. Granted, UNB has to compete with the Fredericton establishments, so it must offer its students more. The bad layout of the Social Club is apparent but the renovations cost money, which is scarce with low

- that 60% of elderly women live below the poverty line and those who are lucky enough to receive pensions receive 68% of that received by men?

- that one in three Canadian women can expect to be raped sometime in their lifetime?

- that one in ten Canadian women are subject to physical abuse and of

In any event, even the acclaimed Treasurer has resigned. The fact that no one student on this campus is willing to take on a job - and a paid job at that - that is so obviously a farce should come as no surprise.

Further evidence of the uselessness of this position is the fact that the student council has decided that an interim treasurer is" not necessary. What is truly not necessary, however, is the perpetuation of the myth that the council actually has any sort of financial authority.

Sincerely,

Susan Forestell

Sick and tired

Dear all you hyperactive women:

I am a female who is SICK and TIRED of all this talk about sexism and sexist remarks! Why don't you all GROW UP!! I thought all the hype over the ICU comic strip was ridiculous! I happened to think was hilarious! I wish that I could be witty and talented enough to write my own comic strip! Hats off to you Chris Kane!!

I pick up the Brunswickan, hoping beyond hope, to read something that will entertain me, instead of which I throw it down and decide to write a letter!! (In no way is and its people. I'm referring to the overactive females who write those letters!) I think maybe things are getting out of hand. There are many other causes which should be getting as much if not more attention than sexism! Why not use your energy to get more people to give blood, or try and bring up morale at UNB?! I'm sure if you took a poll, the concept of sexism as a cause to get excited about, would be so far under, you would have to dig until you die to find air! Just so that you ladies out there will know, I happen to be in the faculty of Forestry. If you can remember correctly, the ratio of males to females is approximately 10:1 (heck, it may even be 20:1!!). Also, our building is shared with the Forest Engineers and the Geologists which increases the number of guys tenfold! So, twentythree other girls and I are surrounded by men. Yes, they are crude once in a while, but it is all in fun, and half the time they say stuff just to rile the girls - I repeat ALL IN FUN !! I can't begin to tell you the respect we girls get from the

I feel sorry for the women who find it necessary to stir up sexist messes because they miss out on the camaraderie you can have with

Dear Editor:

After having just own a battle against the Daily Gleaner and Telegraph Journal before the Atlantic Press Council, I can quote first hand experience with a press which refuses fair, equitable coverage. Under Miss Mair's guidance, the Brunswickan was guilty of the same abuse of its power to influence public opinion. The difference with Miss Mair's Brunswickan was that slanderous and libelous letter, editorials and even "news" articles were published on a regular basis. These articles, editorials, and letters were directed against myself and other individuals and included everything from accusations of naziism to embezzlement.

Had I the funds of the university at my disposal, I would not have hesitated to launch legal action against Miss Mair and the Brunswickan. Slander and libel are very serious matters. They can destroy a person's future and even place that person in danger of physical harm. After having read the letter which Lana Grimes submitted to the Bruns, I can only say that I found it to be very informative. That is much more than can be said for some of the absolute rubbish printed by Miss Mair's editorial board of the past. Sincerely,

Anthony S. English

Sport talk

Dear Editor:

Alas our Bloomers lost. We dressed up, we went, we saw, we cheered, we jeered, we cried, we had our pictures taken, we took pictures, we went to the Social Club. Now what I want to talk to you about is what you are going to print about the game. Somehow I just know you are going to say that they blew it, that they gave up, that they beat themselves. Well that is really easy to say from where you are, at a desk in an office. What I want to know is have you ever been there? I mean really been there? Have you ever practised for a game so hard that you made yourself sick? Have you ever played in front of your home crowd and pushed yourself to the limit only to lose in the end? Have you ever seen your coach with tears in her eyes? Have you ever been on the bench and watched the clock run down while the other team was ahead? Have you ever played on an ankle that hurt so bad that you wanted to fall down but never because you had such a desire to win?

If you have never done these things, then you have no right to print that they blew it, that they are losers. If you do, then it is you that is the loser. When you write about the game, please do a good job. Just once I would like to be proud of the Brunswickan, not just the Bloomers.

Just a Fan

Bias viewpoint

Dear Editor:

How is it that all eight of the answers to the Viewpoint questions in the Feb. 5th issue ("FEMI-NISM - What do you think of it?") managed to convey only one viewpoint? Specifically, an anti-feminist viewpoint. This lack of diversity in no way reflects the controversial attitudes toward feminism which I've seen on this campus. But maybe I'm wrong in thinking that the purpose of Viewpoint is to reflect anything as it really is. After all, how can eight people adequately represent the opinions of the whole student population, especially in fewer than ten words each? The eight individuals themselves aren't represented very well in such brief quotes. So whose viewpoint are we getting? That of the Brunswickan staffers who decide who gets asked, and who gets in.

With all due respect to the quoted individuals (I acknowledge their lack of control over the representation of themselves), I would like to comment on the Brunswickan's portrayal of feminism. Four of the quotes are enigmatic, to say the least, and humorous in as much as they are nonsensical. I usually like nonsense humour myself, but these examples are tainted with an anti-feminist sentiment that's too real to be funny. As for the others, just what are the distinctions between "feminists" and "real women;" or "feminism" and "female chauvinism"? The use of these terms, set forth without any context to help us define them, give the illusion that there are coherent arguments behind the terminology. Nonsense! Feminists are real women; the women's movement is feminism; and "female chauvinism" is an

Inside, the caterpillar of my existant is changing and growing. It is I who nurtures its' hungering heaven of hope.

The bus stops and I walk home. The sun is meeting the clouds and toge they make a beautiful sunset. I smile and my eyes join with beauty

"Hello!" l express and my heart is dancing a chance.

DEBORAH RUTH WILTON

EMOTIONS

Trailing leaves, mystic notion.

Drifting sand in a desert land.

Reaching Stars, take my hand,

Clouds drifting silently create,

Sunbeams caress unknown fate.

Paths unending filled with emotion.

WAITING

ne mood is changed by the cold in the air frost on the trees the snow in the wind it by myself on the lone wooden bench Hoping to see you When you walk to class My memory is filled with visions of past anisyour image with cheer lways had smiles when we would meet t never we stopped e did we speak t once for me to be yours t soft touch nd so fine w this thought can never come true von't permit ust wish it be will lead us once to meet Kthe fat will know hope yo eaks. is I who sit by ay if not alone now. know you are here, Your presen felt.

A TIME LIKE THIS

A lazy haze of white has settled soft this night the lands of bitter frost Soothed beneath this morning's wintery hand. Now 1 understand; now that 1'm alone -Alone amidst the steady hum of blue and grey, As countless sparkles dance and play to silent melodies in my mind.

At times like this my thoughts are lost to your distant heart and love full-grown; your hand not to share with this vision our to find.

Globe and Mail - Report on Business/Fabulous Freak Brothers.

The N.B.L.C. Catalogue Alcool-7 J,J,C,D,K B.S.

It was a wild evening. The Downtown Blues Band - a vascillating conglomerate of local musicians - opened up for T.O.'s Jeff Healey Band. The Healey Band, with Joe Rockman on drums and Tom Stevens on bass features, twenty-one year old guitar wizard Jeff Healey on guitar.

Close to five hundred blues fans battled the elements last Thursday night to take part in a double blues bill at the Social Club.

When I arrived (needless to say, late) I heard strains of har-was right there and Munn's voice shocked the hell out of me. I met "quiet" Matt a couple of weeks ago and wouldn't have believed that he had such a wailing presence of a voice. Live and learn.

"...From Toronto, yours truly, Jeff Healey on guitar" opened up the featured band on an instrumental note. I would say, for lack of a better word, the audience was stunned into quiet. Although many have heard of Healey, few have seen him.

Thick blue's rounded out the set and with a promise of a surprise in the second set, the band took a break.

The second set was essentially a blues jam ... impromptu and all the better for it.

his lap, behind his head, up against his chest - you name it, he probably could have done it. Adriana was the tune and the audience loved it. I am looking forward to the band's first Lp which should be out on yourself. It is a show well worth going out of your way to see. This band is going places and I plan to watch them... closely. Hey, what more do you want... they are Canadian.

THE RANGE OF TUNES HE HAS MASTERY OVER IS PHENOMENAL

Downtown Blues harmonica, quitar, and vocals came back on stage and the REAL fun started. Let me see, I was having sooooo much fun ... Jumpin' Jack Flash was one and I think Sunshine of Your Love RCA+Arista records someday soon.

I could go on and on, but my Editor is rolling his eyeballs at me. I did get a chance to chat with the drummer - a Saint John native - by the way. He they plan on playing more of the same. Let us pray!

If you missed Healey this time, the second time he has been here recently, slap

The effort put forward to bring this show to UNB should be recognized. First and foremost...a big fat thank you to the performers. Next in line... Tim Judah and Marc Braithwaite from Campus Entertainment for their continued efforts in the Labbatt's Blue Live Series. And finally, the Social Club managers (Paul Richards and Matt Harris) and staff for planning for and putting up with all the 'partyers'.

monica as I entered the bottom of the SUB - always a good sign of blues. Sure enough, when I entered the Club, Hutch was going right for it on the harmonica with Joey and Jon and the crew belting out Movin' On Over. A Skynard tune followed that up as I made my way to the bar.

The D.B.B. is great, they play here and there on one night stands. Although the band is never the same twice, year. there is a core - Joey Kilfoil, Richard Hutch Hutchins, Jon

The band cruised into a Neil Young tune (I think) and then into an original My Little Girl which was well recieved. That was one feature of their show that I really liked - strong originals are slowly coming to the fore. While Healey's talent is the mainstay of the band, they are coming into their own as a trio. And ...drumroll... Rock Express Magazine just voted them best band of the

I don't really know what to say about Healey that someone was another. The audience partied and had a great time.

Having dedicated the jam set to rock and roll fans, Healey did not leave the audience waiting. True to his form only, Healey played on said that because of the ecstatic reaction they recieve from campus audiences (notice I did not say students), Weaver, Joan Rooney, Kevin Keys, Paul Williams and Rob McPhee. I don't mean to forget anyone, but there were faces I didn't recognize and couldn't identify. Hey! It's a changling band. They are versatile, accomodating and for rent! Check them out.

I must say here, that I thought rock and roll fans had died on campus. On any given night, drivel music pours forth from residence windows. But no, even if they barely knew what they were listening to, everybody was having a good time.

Anyway, back to the music. The D.B.B. was really hot. Admittedly, I am partial to harmonica, but Kilfoil's guitar better qualified hasn't already said. With such tunes as Hendrix's Foxy Lady and a Cream tune (etc...etc...etc), the band thrilled the audience. An audience, by the way, which was not dancing but standing smack in front of the stage to get a better look! Healey runs rings around any guitarist I have ever seen. The range of tunes he has mastery over now and the range he will have mastery over ten years down the road is phenominal. I can't wait.

Healey continued blues cruising with his video release single See The Light another solid original. And, of course, Dylan's All Along the Watchtower was well deserved of the extended intro by Healey.

PEELING STRANGE FRUIT

"Right from the start I decided that it would be a good idea to release the sessions," says John Peel, "but the whiff of commerce didn't appeal to the BBC at all. They were more interested in records like "Great ters to Winston Churchill By A Lady Of Leisure", and there was even a record of advice to people who wished to grow particular kinds of roses.

The history of the Peel Session EPs is a fraught one. Now the streets are filled with them; currently over $\times^{\circ} - \pm'$ singles that range from the one minute

Wyatt's eight minute musings, from stately New Order sessions and unaccompanied June Tabor songs to the raucous early days of The Damned and a young electric T Rex. We almost take for granted the fact that nowadays one can buy music that was previously only available by late night taping sessions or market stall bootleg cassettes, but in the misty old days of the Light Programme, the Peel Session was a fraught bloom.

"What BBC sessions meant at the beginning was that people who had been demobbed from the war and who had learnt to play the trumpet in a pit orchestra in Warrington would be guaranteed employment in the Northern Dance Orchestra or something," recalls Peel, "I particularly remember with something approaching affection a version of the Northern Dance Orchestra had done of a Jimi Hendrix song which was quite wonderful. . When it came to the guitar solo, the guitarist obviously decided that the best way to approximate Hendrix's style was to drop the guitar down a flight of stairs."

So the 't's passed without Peel's Hendrix, Cream, Bonzo Dog and Pink Floyd sessions appearing on record. Then in -@11 John Peel decided to approach Richard Branson.

"I went along to Richard Branson but he seemed more interested in an engagement he had with his father; they were going to go out and lay waste elwood said they would establish the Strange Fruit label.'

Clive and Shirley Selwood, man and wife, are respectively Feel's former manager and Peel's current manager. Clive first came across John in the mid-'†°s as head of Elektra Records in the UK and therefore was the man responsible for giving us Love and The Doors. Selwood approached Peel and John Walters with the idea of bringing out the sessions and they said yes.

"And after a year, BBC Records gave us approval."

Clive Selwood adds, "Me and John got together and picked out the, er, first division sessions and I've been wending my way through a pile of about a hundred groups ever since. And for every session you bring out, you have to find every member of the band on it, owing to the nature of the agreements, and then you have to go back to the record company. And - 00 sessions means = °° individual contracts, and every release means a few dozen signatures. . .

Peel's involvement is more to do with choosing material; his incentive for releasing the sessions is moral rather than historical. Clive says of him, "He's more interested in tomorrow's music than yesterday's.

The Peel sessions contain looser versions of familiar tunes, insane rambles and a great deal of oddness. Who can forget, once having heard them, The Undertones' impressions of blustery gales of "Here Come The Summer", Linton Kwesi Johnson's unaccompanied poetry session, and The Cure's quite amazing song, "Desperate Jour-nalist in On-Going Review Situation"? Not me for a kick-off.

Then there are the bands who people just collect for different and unreleased product. New Order's two sessions have sold about = °, °°° copies on this basis, which makes them the flagship of Strange Fruit.

Clive Selwood: "New Order are the ideal band, popular but with credibility. I'm very anti-street cred, but that band has it and it's reflected in the sales. Credibility's actually more important to our sales than a past chart record - XMal Deutschland sell as well as Madness do. And we broke our asses trying to get Siouxsie And the Banshees; we were very wound up in their success, we'd recorded them a year before they got a record deal, and they touted that session about to get the deal, we went through enormous difficulties getting the two members who had left, all that. . . and it didn't sell well." The repertoire must be a salesman's nightmare. Strange Fruit release things like Twa Toots and Electro Hippies, but don't put out The Jesus And Mary Chain, David Bowie or Jimi Hendrix. Worst of all, some megabands didn't even get offered sessions. . . John Peel says with perverse joy: "Some bands we've recorded have gone on to considerable fame -- Simple Minds are one name. Other I'm quite proud I turned down, like Dire Straits and U±. I felt what they were doing wasn't quite interesting or innovative enough.

MUSICIANS INSPIRE HENDERSON EXPLORES WIZARDRY PASSION

A collection of paintings by Andrew Henderson will be on display in the wing galleries of the Playhouse until February 29th. The works show a continuing interest in the shorelines of Atlantic Canada, Mr. Henderson studied at Mount Allison University in Sackville and graduated in 1985 with a B.F.A. His work is also on display at the Owens Art Gallery and included in the collections of the New Brunswick Art Bank and the University of New Brunswick Art Centre.

Twenty-one paintings are included in the exhibition of paintings by An-drew Henderson titled "Along the Shore". The works range from the rivers of New Brunswick, the Fundy Coast, the coves of Newfoundland, to a look at some of the shell life found around their shores. "I have tried in all of the work that I do to communicate the joy of creation, whether that is the way light hits an object in a still life, or the way clouds form after a storm on the Bay of Fundy", says Henderson. Those interested in learning more about the painter or about the purchase of his paintings, may contact Wayne Carnell at Atlantic Galleries at 455-4392.

Artists to be featured in future exhibitions at the Playhouse include: the North Side Art Club (March), Corinne Hersey (April), Sarah Pierce Petite (May) and many more. Artists are welcome to apply for a Playhouse gallery exhibit by contacting Jane Gardner at the Playhouse, 458-8345.

WORKSHOP PRINT RESULTS AT UNB ART CEN-TRE

On Friday, February 12th, the University of New Brunswick Art Centre opens an exhibition entitled The Moosehead Press, Ten Years; 1977 -1987. The Moosehead Press in Winnipeg is a print workshop where artists can use the equipment to make their own prints or have them made by professional printmakers. The founder and master printmaker of the Moosehead Press is David Umholtz who spends his summers on Deer Island. An exhibition of his own paintings, organized for touring by the Winnipeg Art Gallery, opens at the Come hear for yourself the passion and technical wizardry of music-making by two world renowned musicians. Violist Rivka Golani and pianist Louis-Philippe Pelletier embark on their Debut Atlantic tour this month throughout the four Atlantic provinces. You can catch them as part of the Creative Arts Series on February 14, 3:00 p.m. in Memorial Hall on the campus of the University of New Brunswick.

Rivka Golani and Louis-Philippe Pelletier are two of Canada's finest musicians. They have distinguished themselves not only as unique interpreters of the traditional repertoire but also as champions of new music.

The viola has played second fiddle to the violin for much of the last 200 years. Through her dynamic stage personality and colorful performance style, Rivka Golani has contributed forcefully to the renaissance of the viola as solo instrument. Her drive and encouragement have inspired dozens of composers to write pieces especially for her. On this Debut Atlantic tour she is adding to her tally of over 30 works including 10 concertos written for her by composers of international repute. The World Premiere of "In Stillness Ascending" will take place on February 9 in St. John's. Newfoundland. The work will also be played at the Fredericton concert. It has been composed for Rivka by Brian Cherney - a past winner of the Jules Leger prize for chamber music.

Rivka has been featured as a soloist at a number of festivals, including Holland, MIDEM. Malvern, Victoria, Mainly Mozart and London Proms. Collaborating with Rivka Golani is Louis-Philippe Pelletier. Ther are very few pianists in the world who have mastered the most challenging repertoire of the twentieth century, while at the same time being fluent in much of the great piano literature of the baroque, classical and romatic periods. Louis-Phillippe Pelletier is one of them. Both Pelletier's and Golani's recordings have won important awards. Together these two musicians provide a thrilling musical and dramatic experience.

The programme will include works by Bach, Chopin, Hindemith, Brian Cherney, Anne Southam, Gershwin and Brahms. A few rush seats will be available at the door or phone 453-5005. Ticket prices are: Adults $6; Seniors 6; Students/Children $2.

FITZCARRALDO by Randy Campbell

How do you get a large steamboat up one side of the Andes and down the other, without airlifting it or chipping it into firewood?

In Fitzcarraldo (1982), one of the most extraordinary undertakings in the history of cinema, Werner Herzog shows how. Were it just for these scenes alone, shot on location and without cheating, the film would be worth viewing. An excellent second reason is Klaus Kinski. As Brian Sweeney Fitzgerald, dubbed Fitzcarraldo, the eccentric German actor portrays a megalomaniac determined to build an opera house in latenineteenth century lquitos, Peru. To finance the operation he decides to open a heretofore inaccessible tract of rubber trees. This is where the steamboat comes in. Kinski, with his pale hair on end and a white planter's suit picking up the whites of his eyes, looks as crazy as Herzog felt himself going while the film was in production. ("I am running out of fantasy," Herzog says midshoot in Burden of Dreams, the making of the movie.)

Fitzcarraldo will be showing Saturday and Sunday nights at 8 p.m. in Tilley Hall. Admission $3.

Beaverbrook Art Gallery also on Friday the 12th. The Moosehead Press exhibition at the Art Centre coincides with and illuminates the Umholtz exhibition at the Beaverbrook Gallery.

The Moosehead Press operates on several levels. An artist can rent the facilities to make prints. For custom printing an artist can arrange to work in collaboration with a masterprinter. And the Press publishes limited edition of fine arts prints. The Moosehead Press offers printmaking classes for students of every level, and gives special workshops which often bring in experts in a particular area of printmaking.

·e's

By coincidence a print workshop with similar policies begins this month in Fredericton when Dale McMullin opens "New Brunswick Artists & Prints".

Both the Umholtz exhibition at the Beaverbrook Art Gallery and the Moosehead Press exhibition at the Art Centre will continue until March 15th.

DTK Records and CHSR FM are pleased to present the first Maritime Independent Music Festival: DRESS-ED TO KILL 88. Bands from New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Quebec will perform at Fredericton's Memorial Hall on the 26th and 27th of February.

Friday night will be headlined by Fredericton's own VOGONS. Also performing are: from Halifax, THE STRATE-JAKETS: from Moncton, NO EXPLANATION; from St. John, LIZARD, and BROTHERHOOD OF EVIL MUTANTS, and Fredericton, from SCREAM THEATRE.

Montreal's SCUM, newly reformed with two Frederictonians in the band will headline the Saturday night performance. Also playing are: SYSTEM Halifax's 100 OVERLOAD, FLOWERS, and MORAL SUPPORT; Fredericton's NEIGHBORHOOD WATCH, and THE DRUIDS.

Saturday atternoon » show will feature a more esoteric and eclectic sound. Because of the volatile nature of the music, and performers, it's difficult to say exactly who's playing. As of this moment pseudopsycho musical DaDa ists, THE ABSOLUTE CHOKE will perform. Also performing will be the death classical duo, OBITUARY, and bebop, fussion, jazzists THREE PEOPLE. Stay tuned to Entertainmeat for further additions.

All proceeds from DRESSED TO KILL 88 will go towards the production and release of a Maritime compilation album. We do have a thriving independent music scene here in the Maritimes, and now is our chance to prove it.

Festival pass for all three performances: $15.00, check posters for ticket outlets.

For more information contact Peter Rowan or Dawn Wason at (506) 458-9110 or (506) 454-7617.

The UNB Red Bloomers learned the hard way last Saturday night why the UPEI Lady Panthers are the best team in the AUAA. The Panthers used their lightningquick speed to knock off the Bloomers 60-43 to remain the only undefeated team in the conference.

The two teams exchanged early baskets and established a fast tempo from the outset. The Bloomers enjoyed their first and last lead of the ball game at the 9:40 mark. They were up 13-12 but were then outscored 10-0 over the next four minutes. From that point on the Panthers were in the driver's seat, and they took a 30-18 lead into their dressing at the hal

The Bloomers started the second half like a different team. They managed to cut the gap to 39-30 with nine minutes left to play, but once again the UPEI offence responded to the threat. Meanwhile the Bloomers went into a defensive lapse, and they were outscored 12-2 over the next five minutes. UNB was unable to overcome the deficit as they were handed only their second conference loss of the season.

UNB head coach Clair Mitton believes that the real UNB Red Bloomers didn't show up for last Saturday's game. "It's not easy to say, but we certainly didn't play very well. In the first half, we really hurt ourselves. We shot 8 for 27, we had 12 turnover, and we didn't have any continuity in our offence at all."

It was certainly not a typical Bloomer effort. Their offence came up with a less-than spectator performance. Despite Pauline Lordon's game-high 17 points, they were unable to sustain any type of consistent scoring attack. They even had difficulty bringing the ball upcourt at times as the Panthers used a full-court press to their advantage.

UPEI, on the other hand, used a balanced scoring attack to win a game that earned them the right to host the AUAA playoffs at the end of the month. Stephanie Smith had 14 points to lead a parade of four Panthers who hit double digits.

Despite the loss, the Main Gym was rocking with enthusiasm throughout the game that was actually more exciting than the score indicated. "Colour Red Day," as it was billed, permitted some 500 crimson fans to show their school spirit. Yes, there were even four young gentlemen with their faces painted. Great job guys! As well, this clash of the AUAA Titans even had a live halftime show provided by the threehundred and thirty-third Lord Beaverbrook Squadron Marching Band.

In other action last Saturday, Dalhousie beat St.FX 65-43 to move into a second place tie with the Bloomers. Both teams have identical eight and two records.

The Bloomers have a pair of conference games on the road this weekend. Tomorrow they play St.FX, and they're in Halifax to play Dalhousie on Sunday in a game that will decide second place in the conference

Athletes-of-the Week

Katie Naylor, 19, from Wolfville, Nova Scotia, was selected as UNB Female Athlete-of-the-Week. The second year arts student won her way through to the final of three events this past weekend during a swim meet at Acadia. Katie recorded personal best times and came very close to attaining the national championship qualifying standard in three races: 50m, 100m and 1500m free-style. Coach Bruce Fisher commented that "Katie has set herself up to win medals in the approaching AUAA Championships, and to register CIAU qualifying times. I think she can do it," he added.

They attended a training camp held at the DalPlex at the University of Dalhousie, where they were joined by other area divers from Halifax. Over the past weekend UNB also attended the Little Rhody Diving Invitational in Providence, Rhode Island. UNB was the only Canadian diving club present at the meet while other clubs were from Boston, Maine, New York, and Rhode Island itself. Because of the large number of divers in attendance, the meet consisted of the 1 meter and 3 meter board held being events simultaneously.

With only 3 conference matches remaining, the Reds are finally showing what they're made of.

Reds defeating the St.FX squad 2 matches with scores of 15-10, 15-9, 15-13 on Friday night and 11-15, 15-12, 15-7 and 15-5 on Saturday.

"I could tell my squad was finally ready after our previous weekend play against the #2 ranked team UdeM." Against UdeM, the Reds lost 3-1, won a tight game 16-14, the lost 13-15, 12-15, and 13-15.

Being a very young team with usually four rookies starting many games, the Reds did not look one bit our of place this season. "Each team we played built confidence and added game experience. I'm very proud of the fact that I can play so many rookies against much older and more experienced conference teams and still be tough competition, no one team has ever walked away with a match."

THE BRUNSWICKAN-27

Herb's NHL Puck-Ups

Nobody was happier to see the All-Star break than the Toronto Maple Leafs. They had only 1 win in their last 20 games. Harold Ballard arrived back in Toronto fresh from his Miami hospital bed, and ready to make changes. The question was, who bites the dust? This time it was general manager Gerry McNamara. Ballard gave him a chance to resign but he opted to be officially fired. McNamara had failed to bring in the talent needed for Toronto to reach respectability. Also fired this week was Harford coach Jack Evans. He was dumped in favor of 2-time Whaler coach Larry Pleau. The Whalers have talent but have really struggled this year. The Whaler's hope Pleau's firing will alleviate the problem.

The All-Star break brought managers, scouts, and players together in St. Louis. A couple of trades were made. The Kings traded defenceman Grant Ledyard to Washington for Craig Laughlin. Also the Flyers acquired Gordie Roberts from Minnesota for a draft pick.

In the game itself a dull 1st period saw the Campbell Conference take a 2-1 lead. Then the Wales scored 3 unanswered goals. In response to this spurt Luc Robitaille scored for the Campbell's. Lemieux had a goal and 2 assists in the period. Peter Stastny and Mike Gartner had the other goals.

In the 3rd period the level of play rose when Robitaille assisted on a Denis Savard goal early to tie the game. Lemieux put the Wales back in front only to see Robitaille knot it back up again.

The last 3 minutes of regulation and the overtime was hockey at its finest as both sides pressured for the winning goal. Mario Lemieux ended the game on a fine passing with Mats Naslund. This final goal gave him a hat trick.

Lemieux was exceptional in the game. His 6 points broke the game record of 4, held by many including Gretzky. He exploded every time he was on the ice and even killed penalties. He worked very well with linemate Mats Naslund. Naslund had 5 assists. That also being a new record. Maybe the Penguins should try to snatch Naslund away from the Canadiens.

Lemieux's play proved once again that he is one of the best player's in the game. He made me wonder who Gretzky was. He might of been slumping before this game but he rose for the occasion. I think this serves notice that he will battle Gretzky to the finish for the scoring title.

SHUTTLES! Never again - once was more than enough. And to go it all off the idiot savant that they've given me for an editor won't authorize my bribe to the guard at Star City to let me take the place of a gibbon (something about Soviet-Cameroon relations). The passenger, a gibbon from Cameroon escaped and is presumed at large - apparently making its way to the socially progressive people's nation of Nicaragua. RWAN-DA! - Oh no he's back, batten down the hatches, hide the expense claim forms. I feel a massive headache coming on.

Calgary '88 - all right! Wasn't easy getting the credentials but the local attach9 helped out - knew making local bartenders official embassy staff was a great idea. After all who else knows everyone in a town?

Went on the official training excursion today - they made a mistake, a really big screw-up. I specifically told the Rwandise Minister of Sport that I wanted to be on the curling team. After all they're the great partyers right night even get to swill booze between innings. Sounds good doesn't it? Too good to be true - so it isn't. The former, now deceased Minister of Sport (poor old Ralph, I told him to get his brakes checked) put me in as the Rwanda representative in the Goddamn CUGE event!

Luge - you remember luge - don't you? The event for the mentally incompetent wherein one is given a helmet, a skintight suit and one of those old kiddie racer sleds AND pushed down a track that looks like an acid freaks version of a giant bowling gutter lane. IT'S INSANE! And they didn't even get me drunk first. Fortunately, I had my emergency supply of sedatives, I hope chitty chitty Barbarians don't trigger the drug tests. Drug tests! Drat - I guess that means I'd better not win. Shit, that's not fair - I had the second best practice time. I was really going to enjoy standing on the podium. And then selling the stupid medal.

New Rec Program

In the old days, all work and no play made Jack a dull boy. In the 1980s, all work and no play is more likely to send Jack and Jill to stress management courses.

Recognizing that people need less stress and more leisure in their lives, the faculty of physical education and recreation at the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton is expanding its course offerings in recreation and leisure. "Recreation is social and emotional, as well as physical," says Ian Reid who is developing the recreation courses at UNB. "We've gone beyond getting fit. We're realizing that work isn't everything, that we need to cherish the recreational aspects of our lifestyles. It's a whole value change." Other changes are creating a demand for recreation experts: "Compared to two decades ago, we have far more free time, more holidays. And a lot more money is spent on recreation today." Prof. Reid cites the vast sums spent on boats, snowmobiles and other recreational and sports equipment.

"I don't think we have to convince people that they need leisure activities. But we do need to educate people on the proper use of leisure, how it can be constructive to them, their families and their communities. And we need to tell them what agencies provide what services." program would include courses in education, business administration, sociology and psychology. Management, outdoor recreation, special populations and tourism could be areas of interest.

"Most of the students will be physical recreation oriented, and we will try to broaden that," Prof. Reid says. For example, the UNB program would introduce its students to drama and ceramics, not "to make them actors or artists, but to give them an appreciation for these activities." Prior to joining UNB last fall, Prof. Reid developed a recreation program at Red Deer College, an affiliate of the University of Alberta. A past president of the Alberta Parks and Recreation Association, he is completing a doctorate in management and marketing at the recreation, parks and resource management school in the TEXAS A é M University System.

Recreation specialists, who are really recreation administrators, can teach people how to look after their own leisure, rather than rely on agencies, Prof. Reid says. "People in the municipal recreation field can identify needs and resources, form community groups and get people involved."

Prof. Reid would like to have a recreation degree program phased in at UNB by the early 1990s. Because recreation is largely a humanistic and management discipline, the

MODSEHEADINTRAMURALREPORT Intramural Ball Hockey

By Louis G. Brill

The men's intramural ball hockey league has wrapped up for another year after a most exciting and competitive playoff season.

In round one of the three round event, the top 4 teams from each division were matched in a cross-over format with first playing fourth, second playing third, etc. Most picked division one teams to dominate the round as seemingly the bulk of the leagues talent lied therein. Along with the undefeated regular season champions the New Jersey Devils, the defending champions the Pine Rats, and preseason favorites the Alpines came from the first dvision. Domination, however, was not the case as round one turned out to be the most exciting set of ball hockey games to be played at UNB in the past four years.

The N.J. Devils kept up their winning ways by knocking off the hayshakers 6-2. Bridges Blues Brother's on a dramatic last second goal by Curt (The Box) Bocx eliminated the Blues team 8-7. Game 3 proved to be the most exciting game of the playoffs as the much improved Free Agents took the favored Alpines from STU to a triple overtime shoot-out and then advanced on a great goal by Mike Boudreau. Todd Dorion's 3 goals led the Pine Rats to a nail-biting one goal victory over the Bandits to wrap-up round one.

In round two, (2 game total goal) it appeared the N.J. Brother's had become known Devils had finally found a test for their never-say-die all out for themselvs as the hard hussle style of play. While fighting Free Agents were giv- down by 3 going into game ing them all they could handle. After 2 periods, Scott Clements' 3 goals had kept the Free Agents tied at 5. The bubble burst in the 3rd period however, as the slick teamwork of the Devils resulted in 8 unanswered goals and a 12 - 5 series lead. Terry Vickers and Jamie Melanson both had hattricks for the winners. Game two was more of the same as Louis Brill's four goal perfor-mance led the Devils to a 14-9 win. It was the 11th straight victory for the Devils as they captured the series 26-14 over the Free Agents.

In series two, Todd Dorion once again led the Pine Rats to victory scoring three in a 7-4 victory over the Bridges Blues Brothers. By now, the Blues two. Bridges' relentless attack minutes to pay. The excitequickly evened the score. It became clear the undermanned Pine Rats would not return as champions when Jim English potted 4 to lead the Blues Brothers to a 10-5, 14-12 come from behind series victory and a berth in the finals.

The finals (two out of three) shaped up to be a classic Oilers-Flyers type confrontation with the leagues top offensive team, N.J. Devils, vs the top defensive club, the Bridges Blues Brothers.

After two periods in game one, a defensive struggle was indeed underway as the incredible goaltending of Brian Barnett kept the Devil's fire power under control, the score being 3-3. Once again, however, the third period belonged to the skillful Devils as Alex Scholten led the way to an 8-3 victory with 5 goals. Game two started with Bridges in full gear, three quick goals and the Devils were faced with their largest deficit of the year. With an undefeated season on the line, N.J.'s defense led by goalie Pat Davidson settled down, after two the Bridges lead was cut to one goal, the score 4-3. Play intensified as the score became tied at 5. each team trying everything to score the decisive marker. Jamie Malanson of the Devils scored what proved to be the winner with just over four ment continued to the last second as the champions were penalized and forced to play the last three miutes short handed. In the end a 6-5 victory for the N.J Devils who became the first team to go undefeated in the UNB men's league.

Congratulations to the Devils for and excellent season. roster: Marcel Team Arsenault, Jamie Melanson, Louis Brill, Terry Vickers, Pat Davidson, Blaine Westrate, Alex Scholten, Dan Arsenault, and Rob McLean.

Congratulations are also in order to the Bridges Blues Brothers on their runner-up performance and excellent sportsman like conduct throughout the entire season.

A special acknowledgement is also due to Don Bastrache and Ken LeBlanc who did an outstanding job of officiating the hard fought and close games played throughout the playoffs. Your committment is much appreciated by all.

To close for the season, I would like to thank all eighteen managers and all the officials who helped assure the continued success of our league. With the increased parody and continued high interest, all signs point to a highly competitive 88-89 season...all the best in the off season.

Challenge of the Hearts

from the Runners Maritimes, Quebec, and New England are ON THE MOVE in preparation for the Tenth Annual New Brunswick Heart Marathon. The Marathon is a major fund-raising event for the New Brunswick Heart and Stroke Foundation, with all funds going to further medical research.

This annual event began in 1979, when two UNB Physical Education students (Doug and Garth Davidson Cochrane) undertook the organization of this unique and exciting sporting event. The tradition is being carried on, and on Sunday, April 10, 1988 Fredericton will again be hosting the runners.

CHALLENGE OF THE HEARTS 1988

TIME:

Saturday, Feb 13 10:00 - 11:30 am 1:00 - 3:00 pm

The runs include a full marathon (26.2 miles), a half marathon (13.1 miles), and a quarter marathon (6.5 miles). There will also be a competitive relay (26 miles, 4 runners), and a recreational relay (26 miles, 4 to 10 runners). Recognizing that not all people are runners, there will be a two mile walk so that more people can participate in this special event.

Social Dance Classes

This year the Marathon is also the New Brunswick Provincial Championship Race.

Red Blazers Feel Ready

By Terry Sloane

The UNB Red Blazers have the toughest test of their women's hockey schedule slated to begin this weekend but feel they are ready.

Tomorrow at the Aitken Center at 6:30 and Sunday at 10:15 am the Blazers will play the first two games of the New Brunswick Senior A Women's Hockey finals against the Moncton Jaguars. The Jaguars are the defending Provincial Champions.

UNB and Moncton have met only once this year, in the UNB Invitational Tournament, two other exhibition games were abandoned because of bad weather. In the tournament game Moncton won 6-2. "We have come on quite a bit since that game," says UNB coach Mike Power, "we lost that game by coming out in awe of the Jaguars, we were down 4-0 after 7 minutes but came back well after that." Power also says that in the month since that game some rookies have stepped in and taken some responsibility, "We have a different look up front, Andrea Stilwell and 'Gonzo' Gray have started playing the kind of hockey we knew they could, in fact Gonzo is only getting better each game." The UNB coach believes with the young players filling some holes in the lineup, his team is ready. "I think we are playing our best hockey of the season. I'm quite confident that we will be tough."

Last weekend UNB warmed up for the playoffs by traveling to the Concordia University Tournament in Montreal. The Thursday blizzard caused them to leave almost a day late, Northeastern University of Boston refused to reschedule their first round game with the Red Blazers and claimed it by default. In the second round UNB suffered an 8-1 defeat at the hands of New Hampshire University, one of North America's most powerful female teams. In the lower bracket consolation game Sunday, UNB dominated John Abbott College of Quebec, only the Quebec team's strong goalkeeping kept the score to a close 3-2 win for UNB. "It was a great experience," says Power, "the Northeastern thing was kind of petty, but that's how some people work. We learned a lesson about what happens when you run around and don't play your position against New Hampshire. But the best part was the

Rebels Fly Past Eagles

By NORMAN CODY

The UNB rebels played good solid volleyball this past weekend to easily breeze past the U de M Blue Eagles 3 - 0. This victory came despite the fact that a last minute change in the time scheduled for the match prevented some players from making the match and other players from having the time to warm-up properly. However, the players present had their minds set on winning to improve their record so as to avoid a fourth place finish in regular season play. The team that does finish fourth will face the Dalhousie Tigers in the semi-finals. The Tigers will be the hardest team to beat to make the finals.

Rebels in action against U de M

On Saturday, the first game of the match was close and it appeared as though the rest of the match would be this way also. The Rebels did not obviously see it this way as they secured the match rather easily with scores of 17-15, 15-5 and 15-4.

Steve Nissen, 6' 5" middle hitter, put forth the best all around performance for UNB scoring 8 kills and 7 blocking stuffs. Guy Gallibois, also strong on the attack, recorded 10 kills. Leading the match with 11 kills was Michel Ross, captain of the U de M team.

This vietory was a great booster for UNB. The Rebels had a goal in mind and entered the match with a very positive attitude. Continuing to face matches with such determination should see the team right to the AUAA finals.

This weekend the Rebels have a chance to rest a prepare for their last four matches. Next match for them will be at the AUAA touney at U de M on February 20 and 21. They will have an opportunity to play all other AUAA competition.

Help the Red Devils Help Paul

Paul Campbell (#23) is a first year student on the Red Devils. You may have seen Paul in one of your last year Arts classes

On December 26th, Paul was involved in a tragic car accident in Kitchener, Ontario, where he suffered severe head injuries. He is still in the hospital. Paul was transfered home a week ago to the Oromocto Public Hospital to continue with his progress.

Paul Campbell requires 24 hour attention. As you can imagine, this is costly.

The UNB Red Devils are raising money to help off set Paul's medical costs.

PLEASE, HELP US HELP PAUL.

Paul Campbell (#23) Center, Lincoln New Brunswick

Paul Campbell, a native New Brunswicker, is a first year history student who hopes his course work will eventually result in a career in Law.

In just 12 games as a Red Devil, Paul has four goals and six assists for 10 points. He is second on the team for plus/minus rankings with a minus three. The Red Devils utilize his offensive talents on the power play as the offensive zone "quarterback".

After starring for Oromoctor High School for two seasons,

Paul epitomizes the Red Devils' philosophy of combining academics with athletics and to help mold a solid, winning, maritime team. Obviously, Paul's stats shows he adjusted quickly to the exciting A.U.A.A.

Paul Campbell was involved in a tragic car accident on December 26th. He sustained severe head injuries and is still in hospital recovering from the accident.

Recently, he was transferred to Oromocto where he receives twenty-four hour attention.

Medical costs are high and the Red Devils are helping Paul. On Wednesday (Feb. 10) the Red Devils are hosting the St. Thomas Tommies, billed as "The Paul Campbell Benefit Game".

The donations received at the game will go to off set Paul's medical costs.

Help the Red Devils, Help Paul.

Continued from p. 11 ironic label since this Viewpoint (and the Brunswickan in general) does not give women the chance to show any enthusiasm for their own sex, let alone the excessive enthusiasm associated with chauvinism. Finally, to say that you are "more into humanism" when asked your opinion on "feminism" is not to say that you support all people, rather than just one group (be that group women, blacks, or otherwise). It is to deny the voice and problems of the group in question. In this way the problems are left unvoiced and unsolved. Those already in power continue to dominate all others. This plea for humanism merely supports the dominant ideology; it does not strive towards a world of greater equality for all.

... and even more letters

This Viewpoint's attitude is unfortunately typical of the Brunswickan . Chris Kane's cartoon in the same issue reads like a taunt or challenge to women to say that such depictions of women are not accurate. Our silence on these issues will only confirm the convictions of people like Kane that women can and should be treated as butts for sexist humour.

In brief. Viewpoint - what do I think of it?: "Thpppt. Ack." Yours sincerely, Pam Lougheed
