LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Writer Favors Asphaltic Concrete

Lindsay, May 12th, 1914.
Editor Daily Ontario.—

Sir,—I have noticed in the press that your city council has decided to adopt asphaltic concrete as a street paving and has awarded the contract to an Ottawa firm.

It will be remembered that some time ago I forwarded a letter to your valuable paper (which I understand you were kind enough to publish) in which I recommended asphaltic concrete as a paving. I did so for two reasons—first because I take an interest in Bellmunt, and secondly because my parents (now deceased) were former well known residents of your city, and secondly because I was anxious to see your city get what I considered the best in a street pavement.

I have the honor to inform you that His Honor, the Lieutenant Governor, has, by order-in-council, dated the 6th inst., been pleased to appoint me a member of the board of examiners under the act respecting embalmers, effective April 1, 1914, and appointment to date from the 6th day of May, 1914.

I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

T. V. Johns,
Acting Asst. Provincial Secy.

This appointment secured for a well-known West Hastings man by the local member, Mr. J. W. Johnson, whose efforts have extended over several years. There were many applicants for this position, only five members to constitute the board for the entire province. There is no question but Mr. Tickell will fill this position with credit to his native city as he is one of the most competent men in his profession in the province.

Mr. J. J. B. Flint Gives Views on "idle Women."

My dear Sir:

The paving scheme has a rest. The celebrated author Oppenheim in his "Idle Women" gives some peculiar ideas of interest to the fair sex. He says the ordinary woman's life is the enemy of the home. The narrow home life hurts woman. The modern home is best served by women who have interests outside of home. The world is full of idle women. Those who are well to do and those who are drudges among the poor. The home does not create a sufficient outlet for her creative energy. In the old days the married woman's life was divided into two classes of direct and secondary sex expression. First husband and children, secondary household and society duties. A woman's concentration upon her husband is apt to wreck the marriage. No human being can stand being the object of another human being's concentrated attention. The idle wife clings too much to her husband; it is unhealthy for the woman; and there is a strain on the part of the husband. It is simply too much. The conventional womanly substitutes for old-time work are not real substitutes at all. Society activities, bridge, dance, craze, fads of fashion, wonder dinners for one class, with the more intellectual clubs. But these things are no real outlets for the vital force of woman's mind. And so it comes about that her outer vital energy is choked up. America is full of neurotic women. The idle wife is seriously wrecked. The creative energy is there turned in on itself working havoc.

And so our marriage conditions have changed. And if marriage is to stand the test as a good and wise thing we must change with it. A time arrives in the history of married women when they must answer the question, "What am I to do with my life?"

Oppenheim thinks that the suffrage movement is simply the opportunity afforded to women to take hold of something as an escape valve for their nervous energy which must be exercised, or which will wreck her life.

I merely present his singular views.

The girls of Bernard College, about 600, are having the time of their lives. They are holding a series of entertainments of a novel character to raise college funds. An Oriental Fair is being held. The translation of their Arabic invitations reads, "Come parent, student, teacher, millionaire. Enjoy yourselves and help the Building Fund of Bernard at the Oriental Fair." Books where sherbet, Turkish delight, sausages, ice cream etc., are served. Games of all sorts. Girls performing elephants, camels, donkeys. A circus in which the clowns ringmaster, racers, and girls. Chariot races in which the girls are harnessed to the chariot. Specialized dances. Every student in Oriental costume.

It is a singular pageant charming with its splendor which will be held here, we might raise a large sum for old Albert or the Hospital.

Recently, I wrote as to the good feeling between the States and Canada. An incident has occurred which will illustrate this in the most viewed manner.

A thoroughbred horse is the most perfect living thing next to man. Canada's great need is for such horses. Under government charter a bureau was constituted in Montreal for breeding of horses. Sires were to be stationed all over Canada for breeding purposes. A number of American gentlemen owning the best thoroughbreds on the continent have presented to this Cana-

A MERITED APPOINTMENT

OBITUARY

LATE EZEKIEL L. PALEN.

The late Ezekiel L. Palen, who died yesterday at the family residence Coleman Street, was born in Milford Ontario, March 6, 1888, the son of Peter Palen and Jane Calgoun. He was the last surviving member of a family of three girls and three boys.

The late Mr. Palen went to Louisville, Kentucky, at the time of the American Civil War, and remained there for five years. Then he went to Chicago where he spent three years. He then returned to this city and entered into partnership with the late A. N. Pringle in the manufacture of cheese, becoming one of the first to introduce them in Ontario. During the spring freshet of the river Moira, the factory plant and stock were carried away.

He was married to Miss Helen Blackmore, daughter of the late James Blackmore, of Belleville, formerly of Stirling.

For several years after the destruction of the factory, Mr. Palen was engaged as a building contractor.

During the past fifteen years he studied the virtues of the different pavements. I returned perfectly convinced that from the standpoint of quality, price, as well as durability, asphaltic concrete could not be equalled. I gave the citizens of Peterboro as well as Lindsay the benefits of my observations, with the result that both municipalities have adopted concrete with gratifying results. The paved streets came through an excellent paving scheme, winter unsathed and are as good as when first laid. Peterboro is laying a number of streets this year, and Lindsay would have done likewise had financial conditions been more favorable. The city council made no mistake in selecting asphaltic concrete.

Yours etc.,

Thomas J. Begley

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION

STOCKDALE

Stockdale.—Mr. Orbie Reid had the misfortune to lose a valuable driver last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kilbank of Trent River visited friends here on Thursday last.

Mr. John McGowan and his bride spent Sunday at his father's, Mr. W. McGowan.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Way were the guests of H. McMurter on Sunday last.

Mrs. Mabel Wood is spending a few days at Trenton.

Mrs. Mary Simons has sold out her business at Cobourg and is staying at her father's for the summer.

Our Sunday school was reorganized on Monday evening with Mr. A. E. Wood as Super. and Mr. G. A. Brown as assistant.

Bellefonte, May 12, 1914

Dear Bro. Winchope,—

We, the members of L.O.L. No. 274, on learning that you are soon to depart from us, to take up your abode in the Queen City, take this opportunity of expressing to you our regret at having to part with a member of such sterling quality, as we have found you to be.

When you came to us a few short years ago, we hoped that it might be our pleasure to have you remain with us for many years to come. But we know now where the paths of life do lead, and are glad it led you to do so much as it has, and hope you may always find your path paved with prosperity.

To you Brother we owe a deep debt of gratitude for the assistance you have given us for though you were often burdened heavily with your professional duties, you have never refused to do anything asked of you and we know your ability were sometimes incalculable of the burdens we put upon you. The earnest endeavors you have put forth for the advancement of Orangianism will be felt in Belleville for many years to come.

By your kindly manner you have become endeared to all of us. We are ready with a pleasant greeting whenever and whenever we meet, both in the lodge and out of it.

We were glad to hear you tell of your parents, and of how, when you were but a lad, they expressed the wish that some day you would become engaged in some of the great and noble order, which stands for civil and religious liberty and, of how, by their teaching, when you came to the age of responsibility, you were, in your heart, conceived with that in view.

Men of the world, we are glad to learn that Benjamin L. O.L. was the birthplace of the result of their early teaching and your inspiration.

As a token of our esteem, we present you with this pocket. May the inscription, through years to come, recall pleasant memories of your associations in Belleville. May the emblem ever bear on your mind the principles of the Brotherhood, and the prayer concealed in this tiny case by the repetition of which you were enabled to wear these symbols, ever prove to you a very present help in time of trouble, and as oft, as you repeat it, may it be with the same earnestness, as did our Saviour in His parson of the Mount.

In your new field of labor we wish you and Mrs. Winchope, God speed.

We hope that you may be able to assist in the advancement of our noble Order there, as you have done here, and we also hope it will be our privilege, to welcome you back with us on frequent occasions.

And now, we pray that, when you have finished your work here on earth, you will enter into that great Grand Lodge singing "Hosanna" and shouting that great password—"He is the King of Kings."

Signed on behalf of Benjamin L. O. L. No. 274

P.M. Wor. Bro. Ruskin made the presentation of a fine gold locket which was mounted with the emblems of the association and bearing the presentation inscription. Bro. Wauchope made a very suitable reply to the brethren, stating his regret at leaving Belleville, but assuring the members that he would be ever faithful to the cause of the association.

Rev. Bro. Sanderson then spoke a few words in commendation of the work done by Bro. Wauchope for the association in Belleville, and expressed his regret at seeing his departure, but stated that our loss would be the gain of the Queen City to which he was going.

The members then partook of refreshments which had been prepared in the banquet room after which they departed for their several homes.

O.B.C. VS. O.S.D.

The Deaf Boys and Business College Play a Close Game.

On Monday afternoon on the grounds of the Ontario School for the Deaf, a close and exciting game of baseball was played between nine representing the School and the Ontario Business College.

As the game took place after school hours only seven innings were played instead of the usual full game of nine. Both teams put up a snappy game in the field and also out loose in the most approved Ty Cobb style on the bases. In fact, that loose did they cut one of the O.B.C. boys, in endeavoring to accomplish the famous hook slide to first ripped his clothes. However, he continued the game. Dorchester, the crack deaf bunch, held the heavy hitting bookkeepers down well and also fielded his position in great style making several difficult catches and stops. After a ding dong struggle in which the teams were tied more than once, the deaf boys finally won out by the score of 7 to 6. Mr. Nurse of the O.S.D. handled the indicator to the satisfaction of both teams.

FOUR LINES NOW TO GIVE A FINE SERVICE TO EAST

New Lines Will Soon be in Operation And Boom Lake Front Towns.

The business men of Toronto, of Ottawa, and of Montreal, not to mention the people of these three cities and the towns and villages between them, ought now to be talking among themselves and conferring together as to an improved train service between those several places. And the subject is up, because the Canadian Pacific have completed their Lake Front Line from Aigincourt (11 miles east of Union Station) to Glen Tay (six miles this side of Perth) and will give a new and improved service between Toronto and Ottawa, and Montreal by way of Whitby, Cobourg and Belleville, on or about the 1st of July, and also because on or before that date the Canadian Northern will also be giving a similar service by the same lake front towns and on to Ottawa and Montreal. The C.P.R. will also be continuing the present service to Ottawa and Montreal by way of Peterboro and which will be the old, or back line, when the front line comes into operation in six or eight weeks hence.

G.T.R. Can Now Give Service to Ottawa.

Furthermore, it is now possible for the Grand Trunk to make arrangements with the Canadian Northern for a direct Toronto-Ottawa service by way of the Grand Trunk to Trenton and then over Canadian Northern to Ottawa. This latter would probably be the best service between Toronto and Ottawa.

Heretofore all the time tables have been made up by the railway management and have often been made without any consideration, or very little, of the requirements of the towns and cities served even though all time tables proposed by a railway are subject to the approval and revision of the railway board of Canada.

The Convenience of a Train Leaving at 6 p.m.

In England, every time table has to be approved by the board of trade, a government office and in that way the public have a hearing, and a very full hearing, as to whether any time table proposed is to the best advantage of the public concerned. One result of government regulation of this kind is that when there are three or more lines, or even two lines running between two points the service is distributed throughout the day in a better way than if the two more lines are allowed to give a service both starting on or about the same time. For instance, would it not appear to be absurd that three or four trains for Ottawa should leave Toronto every morning between 8 and 9 o'clock and that none should run early in the morning or any about midday? The people of Toronto have long desired an early train out of Toronto east, and a great many people have thought that Toronto and Ottawa should be a dining car proposition rather than a sleeping car proposition, which latter it now is. For instance, a lot of business men who have to go to Ottawa including lawyers, and members of parliament, would like to get on a train, say, at six o'clock at night at the Union Station, have their dinner on the train as soon as they enter it, reach Ottawa at 12 o'clock at night, when they could get to bed at their hotel, have a good night's sleep there, have all the next day to do business in a department in the supreme court, appear before a parliamentary committee or attend the house, all this right up to six o'clock when they would get on the return train, dine on that train, and be in Toronto at midnight, and so to their own bed. At the present time anyone who has business in Ottawa has to pass the night in a sleeper and also the following night, going and coming, and the traveler is often in poor shape for business for two days in succession, owing to rough riding and the fact that many do not sleep well on a train.

An Early Morning Train is Much Wanted.

Another thing very much desired between Toronto and the east is an early morning service out of Toronto, taking the mails and Toronto newspapers to all the country east. At the present time not a single train goes east from Toronto except one Grand Trunk at 6 a.m. before nine o'clock, when the C.P.R. express goes out, and the fast train on the Grand Trunk, running in conjunction with the International Limited, also leaves.

What The World holds therefore, is that the boards of trade of Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal, and the small towns between, and the Commercial Travelers' Association should get together and insist that at least a service on one or two of the three roads be made earlier and later distributed better over the twenty-four hours, and dining car services made to take the place of the sleeping car service wherever this can be effected.

Lake Shore Country Will be Boomed.

The World therefore intends to discuss this question fully before these time tables are approved and would like to lead drivers, our readers and the residents of the towns affected, and our columnists are open to this end.

We further believe that the front country between Toronto and the Ottawa River is about to receive a great push forward by reason of this improved train service and that the Grand Trunk, which has hitherto had a monopoly will not suffer, but will benefit by the improved conditions brought about by more railways.

In this connection it ought further to be appointed out that the greatest apple orchard on the face of the world will be made out of the country between the eastern boundaries of the county of York and extending as far as Kingston and lying between the shore of Lake Ontario and the Canadian Northern line parallel to it at the north. There is also a great gardening country there and a great country for farming homes and summer residences and so on.

The World expects a great development in this district, and to help to bring this about the best possible train service should be secured, and it is to this problem that The World now proposes to devote itself.—Toronto World.

An Oil That is Prized Everywhere—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil was put upon the market without any flourish over thirty years ago. It was put up to meet the want of a small electric light, but as soon as its merits became known it had a whole continent for a field, and it is now known and prized throughout this hemisphere. There is nothing equal to it.

NEWS CLIPPED FROM OUR MANY EXCHANGES

Chapter of Misfortunes

As John McManus was driving through the woods the other day a small branch was caught in some portion of the harness without his noticing it, and upon its liberation sprang back and struck him across both eyes with such force as completely to injure the right eye and severely injure the left. To add to this misfortune, the day after his going William had one of his eyes nearly destroyed by the bursting of a gun when shooting a crow.—Newcastle Independent.

Resigning His Charge

After spending nearly twenty years in charge of the Anglican Mission of Apsley, Rev. C. Lord has severed his connection therewith. The Mission of Apsley includes the town of Cheltenham, parts of Armstrong and Burleigh, with a loop lake of considerable size in the center of it. It includes the new settlement Mission, lumber camp, Clydesdale, and Rose Island, as well as Glenala, Ownanbrook, Laggan, and Methuen already mentioned. Rev. Mr. Lord's flock recently presented him with a purse of gold and a suitcase together with an ad-

Women Appeal

The appeal of Jos. Cournoyer against the judgment of the local magistrate in the recent liquor case, in which he was convicted of keeping liquor for sale in a local option district was won by the applicant, the appeal being heard at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, on Tuesday.—Tweed Advocate.

Firebugs in Town

Fire broke out about 11 o'clock on Sunday night at Jas. White's tannery between Toronto and the Ottawa River. Fortunately Mr. Harry Gray happened to be going by and noticed the flames before they had attained much headway, and a few pails of water soon put the fire out. That the fire was the work of an incendiary is beyond question, it being plainly evident that the building was set on fire from the gable end foundation.—Havelock Standard.

Domestic Blows

One of our magistrates was aroused from his slumbers at an early hour on Sunday morning to find an irate spouse, accompanied by constable Post and a sympathetic gentleman friend of the lady seeking the arrest of an erring husband, and one who had sinned so much as to assault the woman who bore his name. The lady's appearance was sufficient evidence that she had passed through a strenuous scuffle with some one, being covered with blood and her apparel somewhat disarranged. However the Magistrate had no warrant on hand, and the Justice seekers departed in search of another magistrate. The man in the case may appear in the police court to answer a charge of aggravated assault.—Havelock Standard.

Lacrosse Becoming Popular

Lacrosse is "Taking" in Norwood and prospects for the rejuvenation of the game looks bright. Already fifty-six sticks have been sold. Mr. Alex Kempf is looking after the handling of the sticks.—Norwood Register

"Doc's" New Purchase

Dr. Zwicker is doing a lot of work fixing and repairing the buildings and farm he purchased at Glen Ross. This is an ideal situation and no doubt in the course of a few years the doctor will have the show place of the vicinity.

Runaway

On Monday a horse belonging to Rev. A. H. Creagan became frightened at the antics of a boy on a bicycle, knocked the boy over, unseated him, and started off at a lively clip up the street minus the buggy. The buggy was pretty badly broken, but no one was injured.—Deseronto Post.

A Generous Meal

One pound of beefsteak and one half pound of cooked meat was an order for supper filled for a local houseman who was lamenting the fact that he was compelled to cook his own meals in the absence of the housekeeper. We presume that when he got on the outside of that decoration he would not require the services of a cook until next noon at least.—Tweed Advocate.

Licensing the Movies

Two local gentlemen approached the council regarding license fee for forming a theatre which they proposed opening, and if satisfactory arrangements could be made. Councillor FitzGerald was opposed to granting license, branding such an institution as a "planned nuisance" to the community, while councillor Gartley was in favor of the proposition and thought the license should be about the same as a pool license, $15 a year; and was of opinion that the establishment of a moving picture gallery would be instrumental in attracting people to town. Councillor Murray thought it would be a good thing if it had an influence such as spoken of by Councillor Gartley. After some discussion it was decided to fix the license at $15 for the first 3 months and $25 for the following three months.—Tweed Advocate.

License to Sell Cigarettes

A bylaw fixing a license fee of $0.00 for the sale of cigarettes was passed through its several readings. The bylaw prohibits the sale of cigarettes on Good Friday, Christmas, Sundays and all other days from the hours of 10 p.m. to 7 a.m. The penalty for an infraction is not less than $10 or more than $50, and dealers are only given until the 15th instant to dispose of their present stock should they not take out a license. The license year expires on Dec. 31st next.—Havelock Standard.

Lacrosse Making Progress

The public and high school lacrosse teams are making excellent progress under the able guidance of the old veteran lacrosse player, Mr. Samuel Battams. Tomorrow (Friday) evening Mr. Battams will pit ten of his best players against a picked team at the exhibition grounds and he is optimistic enough to believe that his boys will win out.—Tweed Advocate.

Troublesome Gypsies

This is the time of the year that gypsies make their appearance around this section of the country. Last week a band from Western Ontario put up their camp just outside of Deseronto Road. They had been creating considerable disturbances in the town and finally Chief-of-Policeman Donaldson put in his appearance and ordered them to move on or suffer the penalty of the law. They at once took the hint and moved on eastward, passing through Napanee on Wednesday evening.—Napanee Beaver.

Telling Fortunes

A lot of gypsies have been camping on the Napanee Road just across the boundary in Richmond township, where they have been visited by several of our townspersons. A couple of their women folk came into town on Monday and started telling fortunes. Chief Donaldson was soon on their trail and threatened them with arrest if they persisted, and ordered them out of town. Before they went, however, they induced several of our gullible citizens who wanted to earn a lot of rubbish told about themselves to part with their coin. This beat all that people who would become hopping mad if you called them fools will pay out money to hear such trash, but it was ever thus.—Deseronto Post.

Low Prices for Churches

The sale of the three Baptist churches brought very low prices. Mr. Zwicker purchased the Stirling building at $250 as it was originally taken off his property will again make it complete. The doctor will likely turn it into a dwelling.

The Hubble Hill church was purchased by W. H. Scott which was also on his property and the Simeon one was purchased by Joseph Coutts, one will likely tear it down for the brick and lumber to be used in a house he expects to build shortly.—Stirling News Argus.

A New Broom Device

Mr. Joseph Anson has recently called at this office to show us his latest invention in the way of a broom. He has patented a scheme where a broom of the ordinary broom corn make can be adjusted to a handle and reversed at will. The idea seems to us both novel and expedient, and will enable a handle to be used for a short time and when necessary a new broom inserted as well as to be used for a mop or scrub brush. The cost is low and the new broom will likely be largely used for a mop or scrub brush. The cost is low and the new brooms will likely be largely used.

We congratulate Mr. Anson on his invention. A company for the manufac-

Busy Trenton

OUR daily news
this thriving town
furnished by The Ontario's special representative.

Trenton, May 6.—A convention of officials connected with the Electric Power Co. will be held here tomorrow.

We have not heard that the visitors are to be officially welcomed by the Mayor and President of Board of Trade.

It is quite probable that the Fire,
Market and Police Committee, will be authorized, at the next meeting of the Council to purchase a team of horses for use on the streets and for fire purposes.

The Weddell dredge "Trenton" has arrived in the harbor.

Mr. H. F. Whittier has purchased from Mr. Dench her fine residence on Marmora Street. Mr. and Mrs. Whittier will be a welcome addition to the Marmora Street colony.

Prof. Drake has commenced getting his chorus workers into shape for the
I.O.D.E. production of "Jephtha."

A syndicate of Campbellford men has bought thirty lots near the C.P.R.
Divisional in East Trenton and are today looking over the ground with a view of letting contracts for the erection of fifty houses on the property.

The recent milk inspection resulted as follows.—Proportion of butter fat
Ketcheson 31; Frauts 31; Meyers
34; T. White 42; W. R. White 33.

The Board of Education met last evening in connection with the proposal to build a new High School. No action was taken on the report of the architect was not at hand. Under the School Act, the Council can issue orders covering the necessary expenditures for school accommodation and if this be refused the Board can command that a by-law be submitted to the rate-payers, which if carried makes it compulsory for the Council to provide the funds. It would be much better to spend $50,000 on a new school than to throw away $15,000 on alterations to the old one.

Trenton, May 8.—The Toronto
Globe reports in today's issue that
D. H. Coleman, school teacher late of
Milverton on Friday last and has not
since been heard of.

Col. Hon. Sam. had a strenuous
day trying to get his militia estimates
through. The debate ended with no
alterations to the old one.

Trenton, May 7.—Mr. C. R. Stork has purchased the fine new residence on

Cedar Street, recently built and occupied by F. E. Croutier.

Mr. J. F. Kern, of the Standard Bank, who has been on sick leave for a few weeks has returned to town.

Mr. C. V. Wilkins, of Queen's University is spending the holidays at home with his parents.

Bell Telephone Linemen are placing a line of poles on Cedar Street today.
We also hear that the long proposed street will soon be laid. Telephone poles and electric poles, as well should before many days pass, be buried underground.
They are a dreadful eyesore in

Morris Mulherin and Martin, of the C.P.R. Freight Department, Toronto, were in town today.

A Clark, of Trinity College, Toronto, addressed the scholars of the High School on Tuesday last.

The clean-up movement is taking hold. We drove over the town yesterday and noticed that many citizens had made a good start. It is expected that the town will provide for the gathering up of waste paper, if Councilor Loomis can get his plan taken up.

Mr. H. F. Whittier was a Toronto
attorney yesterday.

Morris Stewart, the man accused of having fired the Sratachona Hotel was acquitted at the assize court held in Belleville, yesterday.

A couple of horsemen are making a race course of the main streets this afternoon. They certainly know little about the art of horse-back riding.

Trenton, May 8th.—The Toronto Globe reports in today's issue that the D. H. Coleman, school teacher late of
Milverton on Friday last and has not
since been heard of.

Col. Hon. Sam. had a strenuous
day trying to get his militia estimates
through. The debate ended with no
alterations to the old one.

thing doing. As Mr. Farde stated, the $14,000,000 proposed to be expended in this department, is much more needed for the development of the country than for the perpetuation of militarism.

The electric luncheon given by the management of the Electric Power Company, in the handsome office building occupied by the Trenton unit, was a great success, and was greatly enjoyed by all who were fortunate enough to be invited. A detailed account will appear in another column of this paper. Among the guests from Trenton, we noticed Mayor Kidd, President Cuff, of the Board of Trade, Mr. Robert Weddell, and Messrs. E. V. Ilsey and H. A. Thomson. The Standard Bank is opening a branch office in Windsor, Ont, which is to be in charge of Mr. E. V. Ilsey, the Bank's local manager.

The members of Trenton Lodge No.
13, I.O.O.F., will attend Divines at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon next. Members will assemble at the lodge room at 2 p.m.

Mr. M. W. Murdoff, representing Plant & Co., of Boston, leaves tomorrow on his regular spring business trip to the Pacific Coast.

We expect to have to report the serious illness of Dr. McLean.

A large lake freighter, the "Henry E. Packard" of Cobourg, is in port today, receiving repairs to her engine.

We are having a strenuous time
these days, keeping clear of the charming young ladies from Belleville who are dropping in on us with a growing frequency. We have the drop on most of the other fellows, however, by pleading that a fellow with six children ought to be exempt from all unnecessary expenses. We hope every man who has not got an excuse of this nature gets soaked.

Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P. of Belleville, will address the members of the Canadian Club this evening.

***

Trenton, May 8.—A newspaper paragraph tells how a man in Colling-wood secured a verdict of $93.97 a against the water and light commission of that town for the damage done to some shade trees by the agents of the hydro-commission. The paragraph adds that according to the law as interpreted by the courts, no body, even when backed by the authority of the municipal councils, has a right to cut down or mutilate any shade trees without the consent of the owner of the property in front of which the trees are standing. It is well that this should be kept in mind
One can never tell when such information may prove useful.

We have heard with great surprise this morning, that it is the intention of the council to attempt to police the town with two men. Have the citizens of East Trenton no rights whatever! Even when we had three men on the force it was a rare occasion when any one of them succeeded in getting across the bridge. We are supposed to pay taxes to ensure police protection of our property, but the Daughters of Rebekah will take the lead in a good cause, the men of the subordinate lodges will not be hind. There are many things that can be done—but we believe that an I.O.
O.F. Supervised Playgrounds for little tots would be greatly appreciated, and would be following Mr. Farde's idea to some extent. The turnout yesterday was a splendid one,
and attracted many people to the main streets.

We are pleased to notice the great improvement in the I.O.O.F. band.
There is less noise but more music, in our opinion, than there was formerly, and we think it an improvement. The new uniforms are soon to be handed out.

Mr. Marshall, the new city engineer, will arrive in town today to commence his duties.

The village of Omemee is a progressive place. We have a letter from one of the citizens there, who states that they have used road oil with great success for the last three years. The first year they put on a cheap oil costing 8 cents a gallon, which had an unpleasant smell, but for the last two years they have used No. 2 Asphaltum Road Oil, costing 10 cents a gallon. Sixty bbls. suffice for the village. Sixty bbls. suffice for the oiling of all the streets in the corporation, put on with an ordinary watering cart. One oiling a year is sufficient. We have not required to put any on this year yet, as there is sufficient left on the streets from last year. Asphaltum road oil is odorless.
Perhaps the new engineer can give the councillors some further information regarding this mode of keeping down the dust.

The meeting of the Canadian Club
last evening was the last of the series, until the coming fall. When looking over the men present, we were struck with the absence of many prominent citizens who should have been present. To Mr. Ilsey, much of the credit of the Club must go. It should be the desire of every man in Trenton, who has any wish to broaden his outlook, to at least turn out to the meetings and engageage those who devote their time and effort to making them a success. Mr.
Ilsey's removal from Trenton was publicly announced last night, and he was the subject of many complimentary and eulogistic remarks. Rev. Mr.
Wilkins moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Ilsey for his untiring efforts in connection with the Canadian Club, which was seconded by Mr. A. E. Cuff, the president of the Board of Trade. Mr. J. W. Johnson
M.P.P., who addressed the meeting at the conclusion of Mr. Studholme's Tax Reform speech, also spoke highly of Mr. Ilsey. President Whyte also spoke feelingly regarding Mr. Ilsey's removal, and stated that his loss would be keenly felt in business and social life.

Mr. Kirkpatrick, one of our popular High School teachers, has resigned and will rest for some time
at his home in Detroit.

Chancellor Boyd, in the Westcott-Webb trial, refused to allow a female witness to be tortured by the opposing counsel, according to a report in today's World.

The Tweed Advocate seems to be persuaded about the cheese outlook. The Editor writes thus—"But the future of the cheese trade does not appear very bright at the moment, although we understand parties on the other side are ready to take our April followers at a price that is so high, it might be well to coax the trade on the other side in order to bring in the demand for the later market."

We notice also that at Madoc recently 400 boxes of white cheese sold for $11.16.

The Belleville Creamery is doing increasing business with the farmers throughout the district. During April the butter output of the factory amounted to 30,490 lbs.

For Trenton May 11—Officials of the C.N.R., making an inspection of the line, prior to taking the contract off the hands of the Metalco Co., and other contractors, passed through here today.

Every boy and girl born in Trenton is entitled to demand from his and her shame," so spoke Rev. D. E. Foster, when addressing the I.O.O.F. at St. Andrews church yesterday. The significance of the Rev'd gentleman's remarks, it is to be hoped, was not lost on the men who were present.

AROUND THE CITY

Presentation at Outlook Club.

At the Outlook Club meeting last night the friends of Mrs. M. H. Mowry presented her with a gold bracelet on the occasion of her leaving for Edmonton to join her husband. Mrs. Mowry has been an active worker in the various departments of the Baptist church and will be greatly missed. The Rev. J. R. Webb of Peterboro, an old friend of the Mowry family was present and made a happy little speech.

Heavy Fine for Selling Liquor.

Last night J. P. Molynes had a liquor case out at Foxboro. Mr. W. J. Lyons, who keeps the Park House, Frankford was up before Clarke and Tufts charged with having liquor for sale on his premises.

Wm. Carnew, K.C., appeared for the defendant, who was fined $150.00 and costs, the costs amounting to $19.00

On Trial Before County Judge

Edward Shiner, a youth is before Judge Deroche on trial today. It is charged that he entered the Smith Hardware store last September, attempted to break into Allen McFee's Jewellery store with tools he is alleged to have taken from a building and owned by Mr. Walter Corham.

King's Birthday.

Even if the King's highway is not paved before June 3rd, it will not dampen the enthusiasm of the crowds who will celebrate the Royal anniversary in our midst. No similar attractions of such magnitude and the like interest can be seen elsewhere in Ontario. The whole Bay of Quinte district, north of Smiths, east and west, will focus on Belleville on the third day of the "lofty month of June."

Lost the Clothes.

The police was called in a case at the G.T.R. station last night. A young fellow had gone away and left a suit of clothes in the waiting room. Some time after much searching, the apparel was found.

Funeral Late Wm. Wickett.

The funeral of the late William Wickett took place on Sunday afternoon from his late residence in Foxboro and was largely attended by relatives and friends. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. Services were conducted at the church of the Rev. Mr. Brown, minister. The bearers were members of the Bible class of which the deceased was an esteemed member. They were Messrs. L. B. Faulkner; Wm. Clarke; Ben Rosebush; Fry Thompson; Ira Simmons and James Gay.

Attending Obsequies.

Mr. and Mrs. John Archibald have gone to Bowmanville to attend the funeral of Mrs. Archibald's niece, who died in Toronto.

Coal Boats Here.

The "Acacia" and "Phelps" arrived here on Sunday from Oswego with coal for local merchants.

Police Jottings

One man was given protection last night.

The police answered a call to Cedar street where a man and his son-in-law were having trouble.

Hearing on Injunction

The motion to have the interim injunction continued to restrain the city officials or representatives from signing a contract with Foley and Gleeson, Ottawa, for paving Front and Bridge Streets, was to have been heard today in Toronto but will not be heard until next Monday.

At Government House

Mrs. P. J. M. Anderson, Mrs. Stewart Robertson, Mrs. W. C. Mike, and Miss Helen Wallbridge were among the guests present at the reception held at the Government House, Toronto, last Wednesday evening.

In Ottawa

Mayor J. F. Wills and Mr. E. Goss Porter, K.C., are in Ottawa today concerning the matter of the railway entrance in the southern part of Belleville and the Front street crossing.

Known in Belleville

Madame Lillian Nordica, the great singer whose death is chronicled in another column, sang here several seasons ago in the course of world-renowned artists arranged by Mr. T. P. J. Power for Belleville music lovers. Mr. David Bispham was one of the great artists heard here.

Amateurs at Matinee

A fair number witnessed the matinee on Saturday of "The Golden Age" in Griffins Theatre.

Mr. J. W. Doyle was unable to be present and his role of Lord Montgomery was very ably taken by Mr. W. Herbert Wright, younger of this city, who gave a clever study of the part without having had the opportunity of much study.

The male choruses were dwindled considerably, but the young ladies were on stage in full force.

Altogether a fairly good performance was given.

Mr. Joseph Nevin Doyle, author and composer of "The Golden Age," returned from Toronto today where he has entered into a contract to conduct the tour of the Australian contralto, Miss Eva Mylott. The tour opens in Ontario and will be through the Maritime Province, Newfoundland, New England, Boston, New York and Philadelphia. Mr. Doyle has a number of agents under his management and leaves again tonight for Toronto.

INDICATIONS POINT TO GOOD SEASON IN ALCONQUIN PARK

May 1st, 1914.

Mr. H. R. Charlton, General Advertising Agent, Grand Trunk System, returned from Algonquin Park yesterday having been up in that district looking into conditions and indications for the coming summer season. Everything is looking well in territory and the indications are that record number of tourists, canoeists, campers and sportsmen will make Algonquin Park their objective point this year. The Highland Inn at Algonquin Station is being touched up and made spic and span. The Nominigan Camp, the new log cabin hotel situated on the eastern shore of the Smoke Lake which was so popular last year, will be open for the reception of the guests about the middle of June, and applications are now coming in for reservations in this delightful camp. Camp Minnesota, ten miles north of Highland Inn, on beautiful Island Lake, is another log cabin camp, similar to Nominigan Camp, and was erected by the Grand Trunk during the past twelve months and will be ready for the reception of guests in June next.

Both Nominigan Camp and Camp Minnesota are reached by stage from the Highland Inn and are situated in the center of one of the finest fishing grounds in Canada—a place where daily excursions can be made from the different points in the Park and where the angler has the choice of a variety of the finest game fish, such as speckled trout and salmon trout. The fishing season this year will be earlier than last year, and it is expected that the ice will be out of all the lakes not later than May 10th. From indications, the fishermen are going up to the Park in goodly numbers this spring, as many applications are being received as to condition of the ice and for reservations.

The Ontario Government this year added seven additional townships to Algonquin Park, which makes the area of this immense pleasure resort over 2,500,000 acres. The Grand Trunk which crosses the south-west portion of the Park, at just the right spot to connect with waterways towards the north and south, has made here and there a clearing, and settled, around which have grown little settlements, consisting of houses or ranger's houses, outfitting stores, and a number of log or frame houses on nearby islands or points. One of the attractive features of this park is that those desiring an ideal canoe trip and an outing of camp life in a primitive easy of access and filled with attractions that appeal to the sportsman and lover of out-of-doors, need not bother with any preparation before starting as he may procure everything that is necessary at the outfitting store that is run in connection with the Highland Inn, and where all the necessities for a trip of this kind can be secured, including canoe, tent, provisions, cooking utensils, guides, fishing tackle, etc.

A new feature that will be added to the attractions of the Park this year is a sort of museum building, which the Superintendent of the Park has already received an appropriation for from the Government. The building will be of concrete and will house the flora and fauna of the Park. The animals will be alive and all species that are found in the territory will be kept in captivity and will be most interesting to visitors. The different species of fish will also be kept in an aquarium and will lend additional interest to those not familiar with the game fish of Ontario.

THE HILL

At Con Sidney, May 12.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Sanford Reddick was well attended on Thursday afternoon of last week. Rev. E. C. Cooke conducted the service assisted by Mr. Scott.

Interment took place in Frankford cemetery. Much sympathy is extended to the sorrowing friends. Those who attended the funeral from a distance were Mr. L. Roblin, brother-in-law of the deceased and his son from Picton. Mr. and Mrs. James Scott from Picton, Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. Reddick and daughter, from Chatterton. Mr. Louis Bell and Mr. Oscar Reddick attended the Odd Fellows service at Frankford on Sunday.

Mr. Roan and daughter, Annie spent Sunday at Mr. Lewis Bell's.

Mr. Nerb and Miss Maggie Gay spent Sunday evening at Mr. Lewis Bell's.

RIVER VALLEY

River Valley, May 11.—Mr. and Mrs. Will Cooney visited at his father's in Stirling on Sunday.

The Women's Institute met at Mrs. Irvin's on Thursday last, when the following officers were elected for 1914:

President—Mrs. W. H. Hanna.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. W. M. Bush.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. T. J. Smith.
Sec. Trust.—Miss J. Smith.
District Representative—Mrs. W. H. Hanna.
Auditors—Mrs. Wm. Robinson, Mrs. M. Vandervoort.

Directors—Mrs. M. Vandervoort, Mrs. Flossie Rosebush, Miss Edith Bus.

Miss Fanny Heasman spent Thursday night at the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Frank Carr.

We are glad to hear Mrs. Frank Irvin is on the gain after a severe cold.

Mrs. Alberta Carlyle took tea at Mr. Bush's on Sunday evening.

A goodly number attended church on Sunday and five persons were received into the church.

Mr. Benj. Hatesfield and Archie paid a flying visit to Michigan last week.

WELLINGTON

Wellington.—There are to be a number of June brides this year.

Work has commenced at our canning factories but canned goods have gone down in price.

Our freight business is very heavy these days. Shipping hogs is the order of the day.

A very large number drive to Picton each Saturday. A number go on Sunday afternoons. It is an enjoyable drive.

A number of people are painting up their verandas these days.

Our Home Dept. in the Methodist church and Friends' church seems to take nicely. Our young folks are very active workers and look after the shanties well.

Mr. Collier is out with his meat cart again. Meat is high here.

Mr. W. Hyatt we notice has a large number of lovely hats of many varieties. They are good wearers we hear.

Mr. Ralph Garratt has some fine hats, which he sells for good prices.

He made a quantity of maple syrup this year but was not able to fill all the orders he had.

Mr. (Rev.) Young has his sister baby from Toronto with him. We are sorry to say his sister is very ill.

We hope for a speedy recovery.

Our bank boys are enjoying Thursday afternoons. The bank is open Saturday evenings.

Mr. Collins of our bank staff is away on his holidays.

Very glad to have the Picton boys and girls visit us on Sunday in their Alewife. A merry party were at Hotel Alexandra.

The grass on the park has been cut and the boys and girls enjoy playing there.

We hope a number of the surrounding places will hold picnics at Wellington this summer.

We hope we may get a trip to Belleville this summer. A number desire a trip on Saturday and return by evening to visit the market and the stores.

Our postoffice staff has a large amount of mail since rural mail delivery has started.

Building operations are going to be very extensive here. Taxes will be high but we hope that will not stop people from coming to reside among us.

A number of people are busy with their gardens.

A number of Hiller and Rose Hall residents call at here on Saturdays to do their shopping.

Miss Terrell of Swamp College was an over Sunday visitor with Miss L. Thomas, of Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Garratt spent Sunday in the country with Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Cronk.

The next meeting of the Missionary Society of Friends' will be held at the home of Mrs. L. H. Dorland.

Our paper hanger is kept busy in both town and country.

The Luffman family spent Sunday with relatives at Bloomfield.

Mr. John Nixon has gone to board at Mrs. Wm. Staley's.

Look out for the bazaar by the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church. They are working hard for one this summer.

Miss Helen Pettengill of Rose Hall was the guest last week at the home of Andrew Pettengill.

We are pleased to hear Douglas Christy is well.

The wide-tire bylaw is in effect in this place.

We are having quite cold weather for this time of the year.

Mr. Gregg Haight is building a fine barn.

Andrew Pettengill and H. B. Wilson are offering their residences for sale.

We are pleased to know Norman Clinton is home for the summer from Peterboro.

Mr. John Wessells of Belleville was in town last week visiting his daughter, Mrs. G. Thompson, East Main St.

We were pleased to see H. D. Young of Melville plowing his father's garden last week.

The I.O.O.F. lodge and a number of visiting brethren attended divine service on Sunday afternoon at the Methodist church where Rev. Mr. Elliott gave a splendid sermon on Friendship. The sermon was listened to with great attention. The choir gave special music.

Mr. Elliott's family leave this place for Brighton after conference.

They will take with them the best wishes of the people of this place.

On Tuesday afternoon last, the funeral was held at the Methodist church of Mrs. Melvin Pettengill.

Rev. Mr. Young of Friends' gave the sermon and Rev. Mr. Elliott gave a fine talk. The choir gave suitable music.

The interment was at Wellington cemetery. Mrs. Pettengill will be greatly missed as she was a fine Christian lady who has passed to the great beyond. The floral offerings were beautiful. Mrs. Pettengill was in her 68th year. She had been ill for some time. A sorrowful husband, a son and a married daughter are left to mourn the loss of a dear wife.

Mr. James Farnell arrived home on Friday from Orangeville.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clinton of Bloomfield spent a day last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Clinton.

Mr. Harvey L. Miner of Saskatoon is in town visiting relatives.

Lett Smith was down from Toronto over Sunday.

Mr. John Stinson is seriously ill.

We hope for a speedy recovery.

Glad to report Mr. David Thom is better.

A large number have lost their tomato plants. Put them out too early.

Mr. and Mrs. McQuade have moved into the Flannery's lock.

Miss Bedell of Niles' Corners was at Mrs. John Bell's on Sunday.

Very sorry to hear of Mr. Paul Clapp's illness at Hillier. All hope for his speedy recovery.

We were pleased to see Mrs. A. Zufelt outside on Sunday afternoon. She is very lame.

Our doctors are very busy these days as a number are on the sick list in town and in the country.

Miss Mary Boyce of Picton spent Sunday at home.

Mr. Frank Weir from Toronto spent Sunday at home.

Lymon Smith and family spent Sunday at Coneston.

A large number were visitors at Friends' Brich Church on Sunday morning, there being no service in the Methodist church. All enjoyed Rev. Mr. Young's sermon.

A number will go to Picton and Belleville to spend the 24th of May.

All will be pleased to know that Kathleen Triumph and Kathleen Davidson are well and getting on nicely at Clifton Springs as nurses.

Miss Hattie Moriarity is also well and likes it splendidly.

A large number were in attendance at the Methodist and English church on Sunday evening, and each minister gave splendid sermons.

A large number of young folks were in attendance.

Mr. Benj. Hatesfield and Archie paid a flying visit to Michigan last week.

THE month of June will soon be here, the month of pretty wedding, charming brides and Dainty Dresses, the month that marks the beginning of joys and the halving of sorrows. This is the month we are fully prepared for, with the most beautiful collection of Dress Silks, Dress Goods and Trimmings, Ladies' Suits, Coats and Dresses, in fact our store is at the service of all the prospective June brides—we are here to help you select your June Trousseau.

CELEBRATED THEIR 92ND ANNIVERSARY*ANNUAL GRADUATION EXERCISES AT BRIDGE STREET CHURCH—ADDRESSES BY MR. BARTLETT.

Bridge Street Methodist Sunday School yesterday celebrated the ninety-second anniversary; the services of the day were beautiful and impressive. The Rev. S. T. Bartlett, Toronto, General Secretary of Sunday Schools and Young People's Societies for Ontario, was the special speaker of the day.

The morning was wholly devoted to the graduation of the young children from the primary to the intermediate department. The day being "Mother's Day," the ceremonies had additional interest and flowers were in evidence everywhere; His Honor Judge De-roche, superintendent, presided at the service.

The graduation exercises from the senior primary to the intermediate class were interesting.

The honor graduates were those who had committed to memory the following—Ten Commandments, Apostles' Creed, Names of Books of the Bible, Names of Apostles, Beatitudes, 1st Psalm, 12th Psalm, 103rd Psalm, 13th Chapter of 1st Corinthians—

Reta Alkander
Florence Pearce
Arthur Rae Smith
Irvin McPherson
Claude Hutchinson

The Graduates who had memorized the Ten Commandments, 23rd Psalm, and a portion of the other supplementary work—

Dorothy Pearce
Laura Cousins
Evelyn Merriman
Gertrude Blackburn
Daisy Moran
Fred Clark
Heidi Edwards
Croft Smith
Orrell Brickman

After the kindergarten song was sung the honor graduates repeated the thirteenth chapter of first Corinthians and Mr. F. S. Deacon, associate superintendent, presented them with medals. All the graduated repeated the Ten Commandments, Apostles' Creed, and 23rd Psalm and were presented with Bibles by the superintendent and teachers of the primary department.

"Ring wide the rose-wreath portals" was sung by the elementary department after which Rev. Mr. Bartlett delivered an inspiring address to the young before him.

In the afternoon Mr. Bartlett gave an eastern picture talk on Japan. On Saturday evening he also delivered an illustrated lecture on British Columbia to a good sized audience.

TWENTY YEAR'S GROWTH IN THE NEWSPAPER FIELD.

Under the above heading "The Fourth Estate" tells of progress in the journalistic field during the last twenty years. During that time, it says, "great changes have come to the economical, social and political conditions, due to new people, new thought, new forces. The wonderful advancement in the practical attainments of science; the amazing progress in the successful application of the work of our mechanical and inventive genius to the activities of the trades, business, commerce, finance, art and literature, have revolutionized methods and systems, all to the general welfare. The results of these changes and of the coming into the affairs of the country of activities new born, creatures of the later day scientific achievement, and their effect on the domestic economy of the country, are nowhere more strikingly reflected than in the consequential development and widening of the field of Journalism."

Statistics of the newspaper business gathered by the same authority record that at the close of the year 1894 there were published in the United 19,855 newspapers and periodicals of all issues, and in the Dominion of Canada 919, a grand total of 20,774. The towns in which that aggregate of newspapers and periodicals were published in that year numbered in the United States 7,916, and in Canada 359, or 8,275 in all.

Up to present date in the year 1914, the number of towns from which such publications were issued was 10,896 in the United States and 733 in Canada the aggregate number of issues being 22,977 in the United States and 1,650 in the Dominion. Thus there has been an increase of 2,894 towns in American territory and of 370 in the Canadian field, with an enlarged aggregate of publications of 3,122 in the United States and 731 in the Canadian field.

In Canada there are 125 newspapers published in languages other than English. There are fifteen different languages.

Twenty years ago there were only 16 agricultural publications in the Dominion. To-day there are 49, the increase being almost entirely in the West. As for denominational journalism, there has been but very little increase in these publications and in Canada the religious press only increased from 50 of all denominations in 1894 to 53 in 1914. Notwithstanding the development of the West, that part of the country is said to have added no religious publications to Canada's list.

According to one authority, Chester S. Lord, the newspapers of to-day differ from those of twenty or thirty years ago chiefly in size and quality, as they are bigger and better. They are better because increased space permits them to print a greater number of articles, to treat a greater number of topics. The big events of the day are written with a sweep with a breadth of treatment, and with an accuracy of detail unknown a few years ago—with a better appreciation of the importance of the news and a better comprehension of the consequences.

News gathering has become more systemized. The work is laid out with greater care by the city editor and the managing editor. The telephone has saved hours of time for news reports are talked into the office from places 500 miles away. The staff of special writers and reporters are fourfold larger. The payroll is eight or ten times bigger.

Nearly all newspaper articles have doubled some have trebled. Good newspaper writers are in demand at better pay than ever before.

The editorials has changed less. The editorial articles occupy about the same number of columns and present the same typographical appearance.

Their choice of topics has changed greatly from literary topics and the discussion of art, science and religion to commercial topics and, mechanical progress and the practical problems of everyday life.

In so far as the methods of general news distribution and collection are concerned there has been little if any particular change since 1894.

The telegraph is now as then the principal agent in that service, and the news associations, both of wide and local field, are the collectors.

But the use of the telegraph wire has been greatly curtailed in special news service by the telephone, the perfection to which that marvelous production of scientific genius has been brought making long distance oral communication over the telephone wire so easy and dependable that as a medium for the transfer of news the telephone has been made available to the limit of its carrying power to the very material lessening of demand for the telegraph in the telephone area at the newspaper's command or special service.

MR. BRYCE AND GOLDWIN SMITH.

In a very interesting article in the North American Review, Mr. Bryce gives some personal recollections of Goldwin Smith. He recalls that when an undergraduate at Oxford in 1861 he went to him on seeing public notice that the Regius Professor would see undergraduates who were studying modern history at a given hour in the hall of the college:

Entering the large hall I saw a long gaunt figure leaning back in an armchair near the fire, a grim figure apparently buried in meditation. Drawing a chair toward him I sat down and waited. Presently, he said, "Of what did King John die?" I did not know, and admitted my ignorance. "He died of a surfeit of peaches and new ale," said the professor, adding in a reflective tone, "it would give a man a considerable belly-ache."

"Thereupon," adds Mr. Bryce, "he proceeded to deliver in grave and measured accents a discourse upon the Angevin Kings and their policy, which, so far as I can remember it, was exactly what may be found in the History of England, entitled, "The United Kingdom," which he published thirty-eight years later."

In Mr. Bryce's opinion, there was no one among Goldwin Smith's contemporaries who rose superior to him in grasp, and certainly no one who equalled him in the power of expression:

Yet this very gift of expression was a source of weakness or perhaps the revelation of a fault in the structure of his mind. When he came to England 1870 for the first time after his departure in 1868, I invited several eminent historians to meet him at dinner, and among them John Richard Green and Goldwin Smith talked brilliantly, as always and the next time I met Green I asked him how he had been impressed. "He appeared to me," was the reply, "to be always locking the door." Green meant, as he explained, that Goldwin Smith's habit was to sum up all he had to say on a subject in two or three striking phrases, which seemed to leave nothing more to be said, and arrested the further play of mind and talk on the question under discussion.

I remember a remark of E. A. Freeman, made when they were both in Oxford: "Where," he said, "does Goldwin get his knowledge? He is not a great reader, he is not what you would call a learned man, like Stubbs, yet he seems never to make mistakes." He was not very learned, but he had that instinct of a trained historical mind which keeps a man out of errors.

If he knew a thing he knew it right. If he did not know it he knew his own ignorance and avoided the pitfalls into which heedless men stumbled." Then Disraeli's imputation that Smith was "a social parasite," nothing, says Mr. Bryce, could be more absurd.

MANUFACTURERS SEEK WIDER MARKETS

In discussing Canadian industrial conditions at the annual meeting of the Montreal branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association on May 5th Mr. Howard Murray, the retiring chairman of the branch, as reported by The Montreal Gazette, laid emphasis upon the fact "that in the near future new markets must be looked for in foreign countries, many of our Canadian industries having now been brought up to an output equal, or perhaps more than equal, to the demand in the Dominion." As a matter of fact, some Canadian manufacturers have already sought and found wider markets in foreign countries. The millers and the makers of farm machinery, for example, sell their products in outside markets and, incidentally, sell them abroad more cheaply than to the Canadian consumer.

Several comments may fairly be made upon Mr. Murray's statement of manufacturers' opinion. At the present time Canadian manufacturers enjoy high farm protection. It has been given them because of their emphatic assertion that they needed to be safeguarded against outside competition in order that Canadian industries might be developed. Mr. Murray's declaration that "new markets must be looked for in foreign countries" coupled with the fact that Canadian manufacturers already compete successfully in the "home markets" of other countries—sometimes in the face of high tariffs—makes it clear enough that Canadian industries no longer need the tariff protection given them under our fiscal laws. Industries which are looking for new markets abroad because they have become so large and so prosperous that they can more than supply the Canadian market cannot stand in need of tariff favors at home. To continue high tariff protection to them under these circumstances is simply to enrich them greatly and unfairly at the expense of the Canadian people since the amount of the duty levied upon foreign manufacturers is added to the price demanded of the Canadian consumer by the Canadian manufacturer.

It may also be noted that the manufacturers who are now pointing out either in words or by deeds the necessity of wider markets for themselves and their associates in order that they may profitably dispose of their surplus product are the same manufacturers who in 1911 denounced as foolish and disloyal the demand of the Canadian farmers and fishermen and lumbermen for wider markets for natural products of the Dominion. Though they were then unwilling to allow these men the advantage of larger markets under the Reciprocity Agreement proposed by the Liberals the manufacturers are now urging greater markets for the products of their factories. No one will question the wisdom of this latest move on the part of the manufacturers, though it will give new force to the condemnation passed upon them for their attitude in 1911. So far as the Liberal party is concerned it will give support to the plan of widening the markets for our industrial products. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his followers believe in wider markets for all Canadians, for the manufacturers as well as for the farmer and the lumbermen and the fisherman. That is the sensible policy to which the Liberals adhere, the policy which is in the best interests of all Canada and all Canadians.

TO AN ALLEGED DOWN AND OUTER

A person who says he is a man, about 40, with a wife and seven small children; who claims he used to be fairly successful in business and generous enough with his money to win renown among charity workers; but who says he was too trustful of alleged friends, and who, broken in health by losses and worry, now sees nothing ahead but the poor house, writes us to ask if we offer good and convincing reasons why he should not end the family's agonies by a wholesale killing, himself included. The letter—it is anonymous, possibly bogus, though rich in human interest—included this paragraph:

"I pray that your reply be not some soft sophistry, or fancy philosophy as to the necessity of our having to meet and put up with certain crosses, etc. I have heard this preached for more than 40 years; and I have followed the advice to cast bread upon the waters, only to find that my boats come back loaded to the sides with bitter tears. The very ministers who have been loudest in their Christian preaching have been the first to desert me when my money was gone."

To a discouraged, nerve-broken man, who really has the Hamlet hunch to "let death end all" and who lacks the means or help of friends to go into the woods for a saving rest, we can say nothing with any quality of magic in it.

But you might better be a sport than a quitter. Men have upbuilt from worse conditions into careers of honor and value. They have done this by sheer dint of unconquerable will power; by grimly resolving not to give up.

Human will power is the greatest power on earth. Cultivate it. Banish the fog in your brain. It can be done if you want to do it—if you set forth to do it with the whole might of your personality. Sleep outdoors. Take long walks. Find a mild form of outdoor play, and make it your job to force brightness into the shadowed recesses of your mind.

We don't believe what you tell us of the preachers. There may be preachers like you describe but we don't think they are plentiful. Try to find a sympathetic person who has been through the mill of life and who can understand. If you don't happen to know where to look for such a man, hunt for a ripe old doctor. Surely there are such in every community. He may not be able to do much for you with his medicine; and if he's the kind of healer we have in mind, he frankly won't try. But he will have sympathy, comprehension; he will do your soul good.

Failing these, tackle most any chap who has had trouble and human experience. What you need is human fellowship. You've been doing too much brooding. Go to a ball game. Watch a bunch of kids at play. Seek to win the affection of some dumb animal. You're not down and out. You only think you are. No man is down and out until he is carried out feet first. Brace up, old top, and be a sport. Why, at your age you ought to be just learning how to live.—Wichita Beacon.

The trouble with Mexico is that it is a popular government and such a government can be no better than the people who constitute it. The mongrel Latin-American races are simply incapable of self-government.

By lessening the price of implements the abolition of the present duty on farm machinery would also lessen the cost of production on the farm and, consequently, the price of food to the consumer. It was this step that the Liberals proposed in Parliament. Against this step the Conservatives in Parliament showed a solid front. The people pay.

As a result of the Wilson-Underwood tariff it is now within the power of the Canadian Parliament by a single act to secure to Canadian farmers free access to the American market for wheat and wheat products and, at the same time, to secure for the Canadian consumer an immediate benefit in lower prices of flour which is made dear to-day because of the milling combine fostered in Canada by the present high tariff. When Liberal motions in favor of taking this step were offered in Parliament last month they were voted down by the Government and its majority.

A minister has advised young couples to tell each other their faults. That is poor advice, and it is to be hoped that no boy will follow it. Truth should be instilled into every mind from earliest childhood, and it is rarely the case that a man can grace his cause with lie, but he needn't carry his faults around on a banner. When a girl or a wife discovers a man's faults one at a time she can stand the jar, but if he unfolds them all at once she may lose her affection for him and wonder why he is out of prison.

****

During last year it is estimated that $65,000,000 worth of hogs were destroyed by cholera in the United States, the losses falling largely in the Northwestern States. Farm, Stock and Home reports that conditions are favorable for further ravages of the disease again this season. If this does occur estimates of the outlook for the Ontario hog industry this year will again have to be revised. If it does not look out for considerably lower prices next fall. Alberta has made a phenomenal entrance into the hog industry, and the table given in The Sun weekly, showing live stock arrivals in Toronto, points to considerable expansion in this province.

***

When the farmers asked for the abolition of the duty on wheat on the ground that they themselves and the country as a whole would greatly benefit from this tariff change the Government said, in effect, that the agriculturists did not know their own business, and free wheat was refused. When the iron and steel manufacturers and the manufacturers of cut stone asked for increased tariff protection upon their products the Government hastened to do their will, and heavier duties were imposed to do the disadvantage of the Canadian consumer.

***

The potato, the decreasing use of which in Ireland has been deplored, was, says the London Chronicle, a long time finding tabor in Scotland. When Macdonald of Clanranald, in 1743, bought seed potatoes for his tenants in South Uist they objected to planting them because the tuber is not mentioned in the Bible. At a much later period George Bachop, one of the Ochterside tenants, when told by his wife that she had potatoes for supper, cried contemptuously. "Tatties! Tatties! I never supped on them a' my day, and never will. Give them to the herd and get me sown."

MOIRA'S SINGING

When buds are green,

And fields are new,

And bright are Moira's waters,

And twinkling sunlight filters through

The pines by Moira's waters,

When mayflowers shine

In upland glooms,

As blue as Moira's flowing,

And when the first white wind-flower blooms

By quiet Moira's flowing.

Then I shall go,

As other springs,

And float with Moira's singing;

And as my paddle dips and swings,

Glad will be Moira's singing.

THE DOCTOR'S THERE

"When in the cottage blessed with Love's sweet store

A babe is born, and o'er the rustic door

Is hung the crown of Motherhood, and fair Is all within—the doctor's there.

When 'neath the fall of mystic Death's weird spell

A mother's heart is broken by the knell

Of all that's dear, and on the stair

No baby feet—the doctor's there.

When Virtue flees and breath of ruthless lust

Eats into souls as does the gnawing rust,

When no one else can share, With father's touch—the doctor's there.

Where blossoms Life's sweet bud at close of day,

Where withered rose at eve-time slips away

On the south wind—in joy and care;

An uncrowned king—the doctor's there."

The Black Opal

It Brought Good Luck After All

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"So you are going to marry Craveth?" asked Robert Delmore with note of pain in his voice.

Ina Standish turned her beautiful gray eyes upon the young man and spoke coolly enough, although her heart was wildly beating.

"Yes," she said deliberately, "I am engaged to marry Anthony Craveth. Won't you wish me happiness, Bob?"

"Of course I will, Ina although you may not need my good wishes. You have attained your ambition—you have made brilliant match."

"You are unfair—you have no right!" flared the girl hotly. Then as if reading something in his frank eyes, she drooped her head and murmured: "Forgive me, Bob. You are right, as usual. I am horrid, but I've been poor all my life, and you don't know how I hunger for the good things of the world."

"The luxuries you sigh for are not the really good things of the world," said Delmore gravely. "I know that, for I am a rich man, yet I am supremely unhappy."

"Yet—" She was beginning swiftly when the door opened and a servant announced Anthony Craveth.

He entered, a tall, dark man, with a long, sallow face ornamented by a jetty black mustache and imperial. His shining black hair was brushed smoothly down over his high, narrow forehead in a deep curve.

Anthony Craveth was of French parentage, and he was called fabulously rich.

Now, as he came into the room he darted a sharp glance at Robert Delmore and gave him a cool greeting. Delmore tendered his congratulations on the approaching marriage with

A few days afterward Ina sat listlessly regarding the advertisements in the daily newspaper. Suddenly a familiar name caught her eye:

LOST—Stolen from the residence of Anthony Craveth of Sydney, Australia, a valuable ring set with a large black opal surrounded by diamonds. Large reward and no questions asked for information concerning jeweler. Address: MESSRS. LINN & HODDY, Counselors, Wharf Street, Sydney.

"How strange!" cried Ina. "Why, the ring was stolen from my hand! What does Anthony mean? Has the loss of the ring driven him out of his senses?"

She put all these questions to her father, who confessed himself bewildered. In turn he showed the clipping to Robert Delmore.

"I'll take this home with me and study it out," said Delmore gravely, and his first visit was to the nearest cable office, where he sent off a long message to Linn & Hoddy at Sydney. While he waited for a reply he made what investigations he could concerning Anthony Craveth and his family history.

To his surprise, he found that the only Anthony Craveth who was known to be living was a native of Australia and had never visited America. The New York Craveths repudiated any acquaintance with the man who had engaged himself to Ina Standish.

Inquiry at Craveth's hotel revealed the fact that the man had paid his bill and departed four days before. No one knew where he was or the reason for his sudden departure. Robert Delmore asked permission to examine the rooms he had vacated, and there he found a pair of mud stained shoes which proved to fit exactly the footprints around the Standish residence.

Two days after he sent the cable message to Sydney Robert Delmore called upon Ina Standish and her father.

"He slipped the beautiful ring on her slender finger and then kissed her rosy finger tip and the black opal."

"Until you permit me to touch your tip," he murmured reprovingly.

Ina did not appear to hear him. She was staring at the ring with horrified eyes.

"I am afraid of it. I am afraid of it!" she shuddered as she held her hand toward him. "Take it off, Anthony. I cannot wear it."

"Yes, it belonged to him safe enough, and the tradition concerning it was authentic, but it happens that the man you knew as Anthony Craveth was not that gentleman at all, but a thief who stole the ring from Craveth's home in Australia. The real Anthony Craveth is married and has a family."

Ina shuddered. "I was afraid of it," she sobbed. "But it served me right for being such an ambitious wretch! I didn't really care for Craveth, and—"

"Nonsense," laughed the lover, patting her hand. "You are superstitions, us most people are where opals are concerned and especially black opals. They bring good luck to our family."

So, finding that Anthony was so bent upon her wearing the black opal ring, Ina stifled her prejudices and said no more, but that evening when she sat in her room she looked at the opal for a long time.

"I am afraid—afraid—afraid!" was her last thought as she went to sleep.

That night Ina had a vivid dream. She thought that she was walking in the fields and that she wore the opal ring on her finger. A shadow darkened the sky, and she looked up to see a great eagle descending in sweeping circles.

She dreamed that he attacked the opal ring on her finger and carried it away with him, leaving her finger torn and bleeding.

Ina awoke, with a little scream, to find that the early morning sunlight was breaking through her east window.

...and that part of her dream had come true, for the opal ring was gone from her finger and the finger was cut slightly, as though the jewel had been roughly torn away.

It was a moment of intense excitement when Ina faced Anthony Craveth and told him about the loss of the black opal ring.

The incredulous smile on his countenance when she described her dream and told of her awakening to discover that the ring had really disappeared brought a strange terror to her heart.

"What is it, Anthony?" she cried sharply. "Why do you look at me like that?"

"Because I am interested in your story," he replied dryly.

"But—but you look as though you scarcely believed me," persisted Ina nervously. "Of course I know that some one must have entered my room and stolen the ring from my finger, but—but you must understand that the entire transaction appeared as a dream to me and nothing more!"

"Of course I never doubt a lady's word," said the man, with a mocking smile. "But, mademoiselle, you understand that as the black opal engagement ring has vanished, so our betrothal is dissolved!" With a deep bow he vanished from the room, leaving Ina heartbroken over his cowardly insinuations.

Ina's father instituted a close inquiry into the matter of the vanished open ring, and, unknown to the girl, consulted Robert Delmore, who had long been a friend of the family. Robert had long loved Ina and wanted to marry her, but the girl's ambitious nature had clashed against his slow wooing, and she had accepted the more brilliant Craveth, whose courtship had been as brilliant as it was brief.

Both Mr. Standish and Delmore agreed that it would be an easy matter for a thief to steal the ring from Ina's finger, for her bed was drawn close to an open window, which, although heavily barred, was always open at night. It would have been easy for an interloper to have stood on the little balcony outside the window, thrust his arms between the iron bars, took Ina's hand and removed the ring.

They decided that that had been the course pursued, for they found muddy footprints on the floor of the balcony and deep indentations on the flower bed beneath, where some one had jumped to the ground.

THE COLORADO STRIKE

The trouble in Mexico has apparently caused most people to overlook the fact that the State of Colorado has for sometime been virtually in a condition of civil war, and that battles resulting in considerable loss of life have been occurring almost daily. Under the circumstances, therefore, it may be as well to review the situation.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company is a concern operating extensive mining in both northern and southern Colorado. The controlling interest in this country has been entrusted by John D. Rockefeller to his son who is known chiefly for his philanthropic work. According to Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., he has no objection to any of the miners forming a union among themselves or belonging to any organization of more than local extent. He does however, insist on the right of the company to employ non-union labor if it chooses. Apparently about 90 per cent. of the miners of the Colorado company were non-union from choice. It is claimed that the strike was forced from the outside in an attempt of the Western Federation of Miners to coerce the employees of the company into joining the union against their will and to compel the company to recognize only members of the union. It is also claimed that there was no evidence of bad conditions or bad treatment. The New York Journal of Commerce puts the matter thus:—

"The main point at issue is the right of men to the work without belonging to unions, and the right to employ men who do not belong to unions. This is quite apart from the questions of the right to organize unions, and voluntarily to belong to them, and the right to contract for the employment of non-union men exclusively. This later right is undeniable, and is not often questioned. The organization of labor may be a good thing, especially where labor is employed on a larger scale. It has advantages, and may be made beneficial to both parties to a contract for labor: but it is not a thing to be forced by powerful combinations upon those who do not choose to accept it. The right to work without belonging to the unions, and to employ men who do not belong to them, where it is preferred, is equally sacred. That right is more likely to be invaded, and is more in need of protection by public authority. It is for the destruction of that right that strikes for the 'closed shop' are instituted and carried on by organizations to which the victims do not belong."

When the strikers through outside influences began to destroy property, the company called up the state militia for protection and, as the protection which it afforded was insufficient, it proceeded as best it could to employ its own means of defence. Things soon went from bad to worse until at last President Wilson has been obliged to issue a proclamation calling for a cessation of hostilities and to send federal troops into the zone of violence.

For their part the United Mine Workers of America have just issued a statement in which they contradict much of the evidence of Mr. Rockefeller. "For instance," they say "it is not true that the company settled before the strike the five points which Mr. Rockefeller mentioned—the eight-hour work day; semi-monthly pay; check weighmen, regulation of company stores, and increased wages. Indeed, had these points been conceded at the time stated by Mr. Rockefeller, the strike would never have been inaugurated. Nor is it true, as Mr. Rockefeller says, that the question in connection is the unionizing of the mines. That has not been and is not now the issue. But anyone can judge for himself what opportunity individual workmen can have in successfully having the company with all its millions adjust individual grievances. It was hoped that the five points mentioned would be the subject of collective bargaining for their maintenance, and that grievances when presented should not be turned to the injury or to the loss of employment of the individual workmen who have the courage or the temerity to present individually grievances for the rectification of wrongs or the establishments of rights."

Finally they say: "If Mr. Rockefeller's representatives in Colorado will meet the representatives of their employees, either directly or indirectly, hear and adjust the well founded grievances, which they have to present, and enter into an agreement by which individual grievances can be adjusted as they may arise in the future, peace and tranquility can be established in the Colorado fields."

It is to be hoped that both sides will soon get together and adjust their difficulties by peaceful means. There may be right and wrong on both sides. Nothing however, is gained from bloodshed.

BRITISH IMMIGRATION LESSENING

Immigration is less than has been usual at this season of the year. Indications are that it will remain smaller. The reduction of the number from the British Islands promises to be considerable. The cause of this is the present state of prosperity in the old country, and to continued business depression in Canada.

Throughout Great Britain times are good. The disastrous results promised to follow Lloyd George's fiscal policy have not materialized. Instead England has entered upon a period of industrial activity which is giving employment to the workmen of all parts.

That smaller numbers shall come this year from Great Britain is not altogether to be regretted. Canada has now more surplus city population than she can take care of, and we will not be in any better position until we have had opportunity to undo the mischief started in September 1911. With trade stagnation and unemployment, still staring us in the face, further increase of city populations only aggravates what is already a serious evil.

City-bred men have made up a larger proportion of the number of British immigrants and Canada wants above all else men who will stay in the cities but those who will go on the land. Occasionally the city man from the old country does go on the land and when he has "the right stuff in him" he comes out on top. Witness the success of a former city of London man in Saskatchewan, who for three years has grown the oats that have won the world's first prize. But as conditions now stand an easing off of British immigration will give Canada a chance to place all the men the country has at present.

It is interesting to note that the cry to-day for people who will work the soil is exactly the same as that which has gone out from Canada for two hundred years. When Louis XIV was sending settlers to New France at the end of the seventeenth century the governor of Canada wrote complaining of the number who refused to till the soil, who preferred to make a precarious living by gun or line, or kept store in the small communities of the day, thus merely maintaining existence, he wrote, when by adopting agriculture they could be sure of comfort and a competency for their later years.

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE

Every city should take upon itself as a privileged duty the fostering, promotion and guidance of vocations and industry. Every city in such a manner may help greatly the welfare of business and employees and nurture greater prosperity and enlarge the progress of manufacturing. Vocational guidance is not confined to the youth in school; it is equally beneficial and needful for all ages and classes and in all industries. It includes guidance of the lad or girl leaving school and it takes in the work of the employment bureau for those who have reached maturity. Workers and prospective workers need such assistance and such assistance benefits industry and manufacturers.

Buffalo, N. Y., thinks so much of the idea that its chamber of commerce has organized a bureau of vocational guidance and industrial education. This bureau has taken up one at a time the industries of the city, beginning with the most rapidly growing ones, to determine the number of employees needed, the training which such recruits should have, the ability of the public schools to provide this training and the additional facilities necessary in the schools to provide such education. To induce more young people to enter skilled trades in which the supply of apprentices falls below the demand, the bureau issues bulletins setting forth the opportunities in the different lines of work and showing the greater compensation commanded by skilled workers. The bulletins are used in the public schools and the chamber is preparing now a list of all industries in the city for similar distribution.

Cincinnati, Ohio, is engaged also in a thorough study of the industrial and educational fields of that city. Here are the questions being asked by the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce:

"How many workers are there in each industry in Cincinnati?

What are the highest wages paid in each?

What is the average wage paid?

What are the wages paid beginners?

What is the source of supply of workers?

Is there a surplus of skilled employees, or is the demand greater than the supply?

What does the employer expect the worker to know upon entering his employment?

What is the beginner just out of school expected to know?

What should the pupil be taught in school

in order to make him a more valuable worker in the world?

Well might every city conduct such a survey. Well might any city ask such questions. Highly interesting and of utmost importance would be the propounding and solution of such questions of industry in even a small city like Salem.

A similar survey is being conducted in New Orleans. Chicago sent its expert to Europe to get ideas. Boston is gathering facts upon the relationship of vocational education to the needs of the present-day business. Here seems at hand the solution of a great economic proposition, solution of which means vocational perfection and prosperity.

When is Belleville to have its technical school inaugurated?

THE PROFESSIONAL 'TASTER'

The pastime of the professional "taster" who roams about the market scraping up a little butter with a thumbnail or a pickle, and dipping the common spoon into maple syrup, honey and other goods, will be marred by action on the part of the Board of Health if the dealers are not more careful in protecting the citizens than they are at present.

The above item from a Hamilton paper is reminiscent of similar incidents which have occurred in Guelph—and perhaps do now. Have you watched the "taster?" Women are most generally found doing this sort of thing, which has some excuse as a method of ascertaining the quality of what is being bought, but no excuse for the methods used. This sort of thing used to be abused more than it is nowadays—thank goodness. Often in the old Guelph market days I've stood and watched with wondrous eyes the "taster" who sauntered through the market, going from one farmer's wife to another in due succession, asking the price of the butter and digging a sometimes dirty finger nail into the butter and then tasting it. This process would be repeated every time, and the taster would probably buy one or two pounds, neither of them comprising the rolls she had tasted. Some one else got them; the "taster" wanted full weight.

The next akin is the person who handles everything, it may be with dirt-grimed hands or with gloves none too clean. The fruit or vegetable is carefully pawed over one by one, and probably the same process repeated by some one else, while another party altogether purchases the well-pawed articles. It is a reprehensible process, which should not be tolerated with any article to be sold for human food. From all such the world may well pray to be spared.—Guelph Herald.

ONE CLOCK FOR THE WORLD.

Thirty-five years ago our railroads were operated by solar time as recorded on clock-faces at Halifax, Montreal or Toronto. Their time-tables were confusing, even to veteran travellers. Early in 1879 important steps toward reform were taken in Toronto, and quietly enough. At sessions of the Canadian Institute, of which he was a founder, Sir Sanford Fleming proposed that the globe be divided, like a melon, into twenty-four time-zones, each of fifteen-degrees, and that within each zone time should be uniform. He also suggested that the basic clock of the great circle of time-pieces should be the national chronometer at Greenwich Observatory, near London. Like every other architect of genius, Sir Sanford, as the Winnipeg Free Press says, builded better than he knew. His method was soon adopted at home and abroad, bestowing a golden simplification not only upon railroading, but upon the broad field of universal time-keeping. To-day his labors are brought to a further and marvelous utility, thanks to wireless telegraphy.

At the International Time Conference, recently convened in Paris, with M. Darboux presiding, it was agreed that Greenwich time should point the clock of the world. These clocks will beat in wireless pulses, throb by throb, from the equator to either pole. Thus does William Marconi drop the keystone into the arch which first began to arise in Toronto thirty-five years ago, under the hand and the prophetic eye of a great engineer. Twice a day Marconi signals are to be announced from stations which belt the globe; their hours are numbered continuously from 1 to 24, excluding uncertainty as to forenoon or afternoon. The Eiffel Tower in Paris sends signals at 10 and 24 o'clock; San Fernando in Brazil at 2 and 16; Arlington, Virginia, opposite Washington, at 3 and 17; Manila at 4; Mogoschou on the coast of Italian Somaliland at 4; Timbuctoo at 6; Norddeich in Germany at 12 and 22; Massowah at 18; and San Francisco at 20. To this round of stations it is intended soon to add Melbourne in Australia and Tananarivo in Madagascar. Three minutes are occupied in sending each signal, so that its recipient has plenty of time for the due regulation of his chronometer.

"We have long enjoyed," says the Free Press, "time sent by ordinary telegraphy from observatories. This service is much better rendered by wireless waves, which register themselves directly in a clock mechanism. A message by wire need several transmissions on its way from an observatory to an ordinary watch or clock, and these introduce a delay hard to measure. At sea, even more than at land, a simultaneous clock-beat will have supreme value. An error of but four seconds in a chronometer may misdirect a ship by as much as one sea mile. Priceless, therefore, is the boon which absolutely accurate time-keeping now confers upon mankind."

The cynic always has an easy job. It's easy to sneer. It's easy to be disagreeable. It's easy to make folks tired of you. That is, it's easy to do this if you have that sort of a gizzard.

"Traveler," in the Standard of Empire, speaks of Australia as a country without unemployed, in which the minimum worker's wage is nearer fifteen dollars a week than ten dollars, where three-course meat meals can be had for twelve cents, and bread does not cost—a country without hungry men. It would be interesting to have a fuller statement of food prices in Australia. Why should food be cheaper there than in Canada.

The latest attempt to manufacture a scandal out of the Marconi transactions in the Old Country have fizzled out. A London cable reports that the committee of the House of Lords, appointed to investigate Lord Murray's dealings in American Marconi shares, finds that he committed "errors of judgment." There was, however, nothing in his conduct which reflects upon his personal honor. The committee recommends "there should henceforth be an inflexible rule to preclude those who hold any public office from entering upon any speculative transactions in stocks or shares under any circumstances whatever."

The mansions are built without thought of expense.

In Millionaires' Row.

The gardens are fine and the lawns are immense.

In Millionaires' Row.

There's silver and gold on the table all night.

But you don't hear the chirp of the cherubic mites.

In Millionaires' Row.

They all own a dozen or so of machines.

In Millionaires' Row.

They have their coupes and their fine limousines.

In Millionaires' Row.

They have all the gasoline wagons in style.

They smash the speed limit and sport round a pile.

But baby cabs? Gosh, there ain't one in a mile.

In Millionaires' Row.

They liveried servants are always on hand.

In Millionaires' Row.

Their talk is correct and their manners are grand.

In Millionaires' Row.

The luxury in every home is complete.

The lights are ablaze and the music's a treat,

But you don't hear the patter of baby's small feet.

In Millionaires' Row.

In Millionaires' Row.

Without a small voice raised to a high concert pitch,

In Millionaires' Row.

LITTLE BOY BLUE

The little toy dog is covered with dust;

But sturdy and staunch he stands;

And the little toy soldier is red with rust,

And his musket moulds in his hands;

Time was when the little toy dog was new,

And the soldier was passing fair;

And that was the time when our Little Boy Blue

Kissed them and put them there.

"Now don't you go till I come," he said,

"And don't you make any noise!"

So, toddling up to his trundle-bed,

He dreamed of the pretty toys.

And as he was dreaming, an angel song

Awakened our Little Boy Blue—

Oh, the tears are many, for the years are long,

But the little toy friends are true.

Aye, faithful to Little Boy Blue they stand,

Each in the same old place,

Awaiting the touch of a little hand,

The smile of a little face,

And they wonder as waiting these long years

through,

SELVES IN OPERA BOUFFEMr. J. Nevin Doyle's "The Golden Age" Produced at Griffin's to Packed House—Plot of Opera—The Performance.

From Friday's Daily

The Golden Age, a mythical period in the world's history, has proven the touchstone of many of the world's writers and composers. Shakespeare saw it and called it "The Golden World," associating it with Robin Hood fleeing the time carelessly. But Mr. J. Nevin Doyle, of Belleville, has caught the retrospective of the golden days from the standpoint of weary blouse society and has produced a work of art in "The Golden Age" which will stand comparison with the most popular operas on the stage today which have drawn their hundreds of thousands of shekels into the coffers of authors and composers.

Last night's performance at Griffin's by local amateurs was undoubtedly the greatest artistic production Belleville has ever known. Nothing but praise for the author-composer, his assistants and his interpreters has been heard last night and today.

A regular professional company will require eight weeks to work up an opera but Mr. J. N. Doyle with the assistance of his brother, Mr. Wm. L. Doyle, a professional artist and Mr. Dan A. Cameron, director, has in six weeks time trained the seventy-five principals and chorus members so that an excellent production resulted.

Mr. J. N. Doyle's "The Golden Age" is only a work of art from the standpoint of dramatic material, music, but from the view of poetry. Many operas do not succeed in giving a general impression of artistic unity but this excellence Mr. Doyle has attained in an uncertain degree.

The exotic coloring of the "Age" is caught in the scenery and costumes, in the music, in the variety of the characters and classes who tread the banks of the Nile. The verisimilitude is perfect.

The story of the opera bouffe is as follows:

THE STORY.

A party of idle rich tourists drifting in the doldrums of ennui have established under Lord Montgomery's guidance a most original colony in the Vale of Tempe in Greece, where they intend to lead the lives of shepherds and shepherdesses and re-create the innocent pleasures of the world's childhood, when, we are told, human beings were as pure as the very god and goddesses of high Olympus mingled freely with the earth-born.

The movement started with the sudden popularity of a book of poems published anonymously entitled "The Golden Age." Lord Montgomery is the anonymous author of the book but he does not want his friends to know it. Bimushi (Major) Bilkings is the only one to whom he has confided his secret. In the first scene at a festival in a Nile village, Lord Montgomery who has come from Cairo to meet Yodah, the daughter of Amelik Pasha with whom he is secretly in love, and Bilkings are discussing a letter his lordship has received from his wife which reveals the secret. Yodah's father is the shephard who is leading the animals to market. The other characters are all taken with much ability. El. Roe, Mr. T. J. Legate, Mr. Rist, Mr. E. O. Keefer, Mr. Rist, Mr. V. Truich, whirling about like madmen girls being追逐 (chased) by the shephards.

Then comes in rapid sequence Dalmah and the dancing girls Yodah, the Pasha's daughter in a scene of beauty as a vessel made up the Nile heralded by "Who comes over the water? Tis Amelik's daughter."

Soon follows the bewitching refrain of "Forbidden fruit, forbidden fruit why do we love you so?" This theme appears again and again and perfectly matches the atmosphere. The closing number of the first scene is the quartette "It is the Holy Hour of Prayer," a lyric of intense beauty and reverence.

The scene now changes from evening on the Nile to the next afternoon before the Shepherds Hotel, Cairo.

To Allah, Allah, Allah, Allah,

Who thirst beneath the brozen sky

or in the eve awry.

Beneath the shade of date or palm

we bring you Allah's cooling balm

Allah, Allah, Allah, Allah,

Rejoice, rejoice, this world is made for joy, etc.

So runs the opening chorus, the ensemble effects of which are fascinating and in which are given suggestions of the music and themes which pervade the opera. The picture is one of intense beauty, the sober and chaste role of the Mediterranean girl being noteworthy. Then comes in rapid sequence Dalmah and the dancing girls Yodah, the Pasha's daughter in a scene of beauty as a vessel made up the Nile heralded by "Who comes over the water? Tis Amelik's daughter."

Soon follows the bewitching refrain of "Forbidden fruit, forbidden fruit why do we love you so?" This theme appears again and again and perfectly matches the atmosphere. The closing number of the first scene is the quartette "It is the Holy Hour of Prayer," a lyric of intense beauty and reverence.

MOTHER OF SCHOOL GIRL

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 18 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELVIL, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished, are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

HURLED FROM BRIDGE INTO TRENT RIVER

Tragic Death of George Staton At Campbellford.

Completing his forenoon's work at the Weston Shoe Company's factory, yesterday, George Staton, left the place as usual to get dinner, but in one short minute on the way home he was hurled across that river from whence none ever return. It appears to have been the practice of the deceased, along with several others, of crossing the salmon bridge, a short way from home. Yesterday, however, a freight train was coming from the east as several were about to cross the bridge, and the deceased, in spite of warning from companions, started to run across, with the train not far behind. When part way over the engine buried him into the river, several feet below. A crowd immediately gathered, and watching the swirling waters, about one o'clock saw the body rise, but the swift current carried it down stream. Only the unfortunate man's hat was secured.

The deceased had been in town about two months, having secured employment in the shoe factory, and lived with his son at the home of Mr. V. M. Marks, near the bridge. His sorrowing widow, with a family of eleven children, live in Toronto, and are left to mourn the loss of their provider and protector.

We learn he was a member of the Methodist church choir, here at Campbellford.

The death occurred at her home in the 4th Concession of Sidney of Mrs. S. Reddick on May 6th last. Death was due to a paralytic stroke, which Mrs. Reddick was seized with only three weeks since. The late Mrs. Reddick was well known in the neighborhood and was active in church and social work. She leaves besides her husband three sons and three daughters to mourn the loss of a kind and devoted mother. The sons are Charles, of Kingston; Barton, of Finch and Lorne at home. The daughters are Mrs. W. Morey, of Belleville; Mrs. McGuire and Miss Lena at home.

The funeral took place on Thursday and was conducted by Rev. Mr. Cook. A large number of friends accompanied the remains to their last resting place. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved husband and family in their hour of sorrow.

ELECTRICALLY PREPARED LUNCHEON

Served to a Number of Business Men Yesterday at Trenton—What is Now Being Done by Electrical Apparatus.

From Saturday's Daily There is after all something new under the sun, Solomon to the contrary notwithstanding. Had Solomon been at Trenton yesterday he would have been compelled to make retraction and admit that to have a five-course luncheon cooked and baked and prepared by electricity was to him a novel as well as a pleasing experience.

It was the good fortune of a representative of The Ontario to be present yesterday at the luncheon at Trenton where the local representatives of the Electric Power Co. met in one of their periodical foregatherings to discuss problems incidental to their business. In addition to several business men from Belleville and Trenton, the following officials of the company and local representatives were present—A. H. Coville, Solicitor, Toronto; W. S. Robertson, General Manager, Toronto; J. Littlejohn, Treasurer, Toronto; G. B. Smith, Sup't Electrical Dept., Belleville; W. MacEachan, Engineering Dept., Toronto; K. R. McClellan, General Agent, Toronto; Mr. Resor, local manager of Lindsay; and the following local managers—Mr. Walter, Nanapase, Mr. Scott, Belleville; Mr. Herrington, Millbrook; Mr. Duffy, Tweed; Mr. Peeling, Oshawa; Mr. Berry, Bowmanville; Mr. McLean, Port Hope; Mr. Skidmore, Cobourg; Mr. Friend, Peterborough; Mr. Munroe, Peterborough; Mr. Hicks, Trenton.

To say that the electrically prepared menu was a success is but expressing it mildly. The roast chicken and other roast meats had about them that peculiar delicacy of flavor and juiciness that come only when temperature conditions are under absolute control. The other features of the bill-of-fare were equally delicious and appetizing. Even the ice-cream freezer had been operated by electricity.

After the hungry guests had shown their appreciation of all the good things provided in the most practical manner, Mr. Robertson, the general manager took charge of an impromptu toast list. Before calling upon the others he briefly outlined the work of electrical development being carried on by the Electric Power Company. There were over forty miles of line through rural sections from which farmers could now obtain a cheap power and lighting service. The farmers were already saving them the cost of the privilege to a considerable extent, and would probably do so more as soon as they became more familiar with the apparatus.

Major Kidd of Trenton followed and commented upon the value of such gatherings of business men. He spoke of the development of Trenton and the part being played in that growth by the excellent service of the Power company.

Mr. Robert Weddell, president of the Weddell Bridge and Dredging Company, gave a humorous and characteristic address in which he gave an interesting sketch of the progress of industry and invention particularly in the electrical field.

Mr. H. F. Ketcheson, president of the Belleville Board of Trade, expressed his pleasure at being present at so enjoyable a function complimenting Trenton upon the evidences of progress on every hand, and hoped there would be mutual good will and cooperation throughout the district among the various centers.

Mr. C. J. Bowell, publisher of The Intelligencer, in a brief address gave strong words of commendation to the Electric Company for the admirable service they gave at Belleville. The interruptions were negligible.

Brief remarks were offered by Messrs. Willis MacEachan, Oswald H. Scott, J. O. Herty, E. V. Illsley, and A. E. Cuff, president of Trenton board of trade.

After a vote of thanks to Mr. Hicks, the local manager at Trenton, who had been responsible for the preparation of the luncheon, the program was concluded.

The Power Company at Trenton is now housed in a most commodious and handsomely appointed office provided by Mr. Weddell. The offices fittings are most elaborate and the spacious plate glass windows give ample opportunity to display the latest line of electrical cooking and domestic apparatus.

is Wise to Prevent Disorder. Many causes lead to disorders of the stomach and few are free from them. At the first manifestation, that the stomach and liver are not performing their functions, a course of Parke's Vegetable Pills should be tried and it will be found that the digestive organs will gradually resume healthy action. Laxatives and sudorifics are so blended in these pills that no other preparation could be so effective as they.

FAITH CURE DID NOT SAVE LIFE OF W. MILNER

Inquest into Death at Cobourg Where Christian Science Treatment Had Been Practiced

On Tuesday Wallace Milner, of Cobourg passed away at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Anderson, and uncle Mr. George Anderson with whom he resided. The family are Christian Scientists and the boy is also said to have embraced the belief. An inquest was held, Dr. G. M. Ferris presiding, with the object of seeing if the boy was in a condition to decide whether he would have Christian Science or medical treatment. A jury was empaneled and left Mr. Anderson's residence on Wednesday afternoon, with Mr. James L. Wilson as foreman. Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr was present. The evidence of the boy's grandfather, mother and aunt was taken and an adjournment made to Thursday evening, May 1st. It appears that the boy, who was in his 19th year, after becoming ill was first treated by his uncle, Mr. George Anderson, then by Mrs. McNaughton of Port Hope, and later by Mr. Perry, of Toronto; the latter treatment beginning on Sunday evening.

Mr. Anderson authorized the World to state that Wallace Milner was healthy some ten years ago of the same trouble by Christian Science treatment from Mr. Sheridan, of Gananoque.

"Since that time," said Mr. Anderson, "he has been kept in very good health by the same man, all his physical ailments having met by Christian Science. He was told at the beginning of the last illness that he must not go on neglecting himself as he had for several weeks past, but must choose some form of treatment. He was either to get treatment in Christian Science or get a doctor, which ever he liked, but must do something. He chose Christian Science."

"The failure," continued Mr. Anderson, "to bring about the healing was due, I think, to a change of practitioner at the last, and to the fact that a deeper interest in Christian Science was not manifested by the patient himself."

Continuing, "I think it just to state that Christian Scientists today in many parts of the country are under the disadvantage of being continually upgraded in the press and by the Courts for even failure to bring about the healing, while Materia Medica is scarcely ever even questioned as to a case of failure."

"We see evidence of failure," continued Mr. Anderson, "almost daily of Materia Medica, but no one is held when a doctor is in attendance. Is it justice to demand perfect results from Christian Scientists every time and not of other systems? The only legalized ones to fail are the doctors. In view of the fact, he continued, that thousands of people all over the world today are being healed by Christian Science when Materia Medica failed them, would it not be more just for the country and those in authority to see that our laws do not favor 'class legislation'?" Christian Scientists are strong to comply with the demands of their religion, he continued, to live pious lives—"to grow in grace and in the knowledge and spiritual understanding" of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ" so as to thus equip themselves with the power to better work in the healing of sin and sickness—World

GRIM REAPER VERY BUSY IN SHANNONVILLE

Two Prominent Residents Have Passed to Their Reward—Local Talent Much Appreciated.

Mr and Mrs. L. E. Mills and son, Reginald have been in Belleville for a few days owing to the illness and death of Mrs. Mills' father, Rev. W. H. Peake. Our village shares in the sadness of the bereaved family as Mr. Peake was well and favorably known here, having spent three years of his ministry on the Shannonville circuit.

His services were appreciated and lasting impressions made on the minds of all in our midst.

Death has called another of our elderly and respected citizens in the person of Mr. Allan Palmer. For the last four or five weeks he had been suffering from a complication of diseases which brought death rather suddenly and somewhat unexpectedly on Monday, April 27th. The funeral took place the following Wednesday at his late residence, conducted by the Rev. J. G. Robeson. He was laid to rest in the family plot in our village cemetery.

Mr. Palmer had always lived within a short distance of the village, retiring from his farm on the front of Thurlow some seven years ago, locating here. He was seventy-five years of age.

In religion he was a Methodist. There remains to mourn his loss besides his widow, one son, Frank Palmer, general merchant here, also one daughter, Mrs. John L. Brown, who is at present staying at home with her mother. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of the community in their hour of trial.

The death of Mrs. Sylvester Graves came as a shock to the people of Emmonsburg, where very few outside of her own household knew that she suffered from that treacherous and fatal disease, cancer.

The funeral service was conducted by a former pastor, Rev. W. T. Wickett, of Fraserville Interment in the cemetery at Melrose. Deceased was about seventy years of age and among those who went out to mourn his loss is a husband, one son, Sylvester and one daughter, Mrs. See both at home. Sympathy is extended to them in their sorrow.

The drama, "Talasse, the Indian Princess" given by the young ladies of the Apex Club of Belleville, and the young members of the Barac Club of the Tabernacle Church, given in the A.O.U.W. Hall under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of Emmens Church attracted a large audience all of whom were pleased with the entertainment.

Rev. W. F. Wickett of Fraserville called on friends here last week.

Mrs. W. N. Bell is visiting her sister.

Mrs. Eddy, of New York

Mrs. Edith White, of Alexandria Bay, is spending a couple of weeks with her parents.

Mrs. Alice Reid of Picton, has been visiting friends here.

STILL IN SESSION

Error in Names of Local Firms—The Awards.

Bellville, May 8th, 1914

The Daily Ontario.

Gentlemen—

We notice that in several reports in your paper of cases being tried at this assizes now being held at this city that you give this firm as acting for Defendant Corporations. In each of these cases this is incorrect, this firm, in every case, for the Plaintiff and not for the Defendant Corporation.

In this connection we may state that we never have nor do we intend to accept any retainer from any railway or other corporation and this has been our position for many years.

We trust that you will give this letter due publication so that you may correct the erroneous impression which you have created.

Here its object. And so I am perfectly content to remain forever the son of Kala, the ape, who reared me after my own mother died.

"I do not admire you the less for your loyalty," said D'Arnot, "but the time will come when you will be glad to claim your own. You must bear in mind that Professor Porter and Mr. Philander are the only people in the world who can swear that the little skeleton found in the cabin with those of your father and mother was that of an infant anthropoid ape and not the offspring of Lord and Lady Greystock. That evidence is most important. They are both old men. They may not live many years longer. And then did it not occur to you that once Miss Porter knew the truth she would break her engagement with Clayton? You might easily have your title, your estates and the woman you love, Tarzan. Had you not thought of that?"

Tarzan shook his head. "You do not know her," he said. "Nothing could bind her closer to her bargain than some misfortune to Clayton. She is from an old southern family in America, and southerners pride themselves upon their loyalty."

Tarzan spent the two following weeks renewing his former brief acquaintance with Paris. In the daytime he haunted the libraries and picture galleries. He learned what he could by day and threw himself into a search for relaxation and amusement at night. Nor did he find Paris a whit less fertile field for his nocturnal avocation.

He was sitting in a music hall one evening sipping his absinthe and admiring the art of a certain famous Russian dancer when he caught a passing glimpse of a pair of evil black eyes upon him. He had had the unenviable feeling for some time that he was being watched, and it was in response to this animal instinct that was strong within him that he had turned suddenly and surprised the eyes in the very act of watching him.

Before he left the music hall the matter had been forgotten, nor did he notice the swarthy individual who stepped deeper into the shadows of an opposite doorway as Tarzan emerged from the brilliantly lighted amusement hall.

As he turned in the direction he was accustomed to taking from this part of Paris to his apartments the watcher across the street ran from his hiding place and hurried on ahead at a rapid pace.

Tarzan had been wont to traverse the Rue Maule on his way home at night. Because it was very quiet and very dark it reminded him more of his beloved African jungle than did the noisy and garish streets surrounding it. If you are familiar with Paris you will recall the narrow, forbidding precincts of the Rue Maule. If you are not you need not ask the police about it to learn that in all Paris there is no street to which you should give a wider berth after dark.

On this night Tarzan had gone two squares through the dense shadows of the squalid old ignomies which line this dismal way when he was attracted by screams and cries for help from the third floor of an opposite building. The voice was a woman's. Before the echoes of her first cries had died Tarzan was bounding up the stairs and through the dark corridors to her rescue.

At the end of the corridor on the third landing a door stood slightly ajar, and from within Tarzan heard again the same appeal that had lured him from the street. Another instant round him in the center of a dimly lighted room. An oil lamp burned upon a high, old fashioned mantel, casting its dim rays over a dozen repulsive figures. All but one were men. The other was a woman of about thirty. Her face, marred by low passions and dissipation, might once have been lovely. She stood with one hand at her throat, cringing against the farther wall.

"Help, monsieur," she cried in a low voice as Tarzan entered the room; "they were killing me."

As Tarzan turned toward the men about him he saw the crafty, evil faces of habitual criminals. He wondered that they had made no effort to escape. A movement behind caused him to turn. Two things his eyes saw, and one of them caused him considerable wonderment. A man was sneaking stealthily from the room, and in the brief glance that Tarzan had of him he saw that it was Rokoff.

But the other thing that he saw was of more immediate interest. It was a great brute of fellow tiptoeing upon him from behind with a huge bludgeon in his hand, and then as the man and his confederates saw that he was discovered there was a concerted rush upon Tarzan from all sides. Some of the men drew knives, others picked up chairs, while the fellow with the bludgeon raised it high above his head in a mighty swing that would have crushed Tarzan's head had it ever descended upon it.

But the brain and the agility and the muscles that had coped with the mighty strength and cruel craftiness of Sabor and Numa in the fastnesses of their savage jungle were not to be so easily subdued as these apes of Paris had believed.

Selecting his most formidable antagonist, the fellow with the bludgeon, Tarzan charged full upon him, dodging the falling weapon and catching the man a terrible blow on the point of the chin that felled him in his tracks. Then he turned upon the others. This was sport. He was reveling in the joy of battle and the lust of blood.

At the end of the corridor without stood Rokoff, waiting the outcome of the affair. He wished to be sure that Tarzan was dead before he left, but it was not a part of his plan to be one of those within the room when the murder occurred.

The woman still stood where she had when Tarzan entered, but her face had undergone a number of changes with the few minutes which had elapsed.

From the semblance of distress which it had worn when Tarzan first saw it it had changed to one of craftiness as he had wheeled to meet the attack from behind; but the change Tarzan had not seen.

They did not handle the woman and the men who had not escaped any too gently when they took them to the station. There were a very sore and unmilitated detail of police.

The officer who had remained in the street swore that no one had leaped from the window or left the building from the time they entered until they had come out. His comrades thought that he lied, but they could not prove it.

When Tarzan found himself clinging to the pole outside the window he followed his jungle instinct and looked below for enemies before he ventured down. It was well he did, for just beneath him stood a policeman. Above Tarzan saw no one, so he went up in stand of down.

The top of the pole was opposite the roof of the building. So it was but the work of an instant for the muscles that had for years sent him hurtling through the treets of his primeval forest to carry him across the little space between the pole and the roof. From one building he went to another, and so on, with much climbing, until at a cross street he discovered another pole, down which he ran to the ground.

For a square or two he ran swiftly. Then he turned into a little all night cafe and in the lavatory removed the evidences of his overproof promenade from hands and clothes. When he emerged a few moments later it was to saunter slowly on toward his apartment.

Not far from them he came to a well lighted boulevard which it was necessary to cross. As he stood directly beneath a brilliant light, waiting for a limousine that was approaching to pass him, he heard his name called in a sweet feminine voice. Looking up, he met the smiling eyes of Olga de Coude as she leaned forward upon the back seat of the machine. He bowed very low in response to her friendly greeting. When he straightened up the machine had borne her away.

"Rokoff and the Countess de Coude both in the same evening," he soliloquized; "Paris is not so large, after all."

Friend in the department and up this matter of the Rue Maule. Come!" Together they entered the office of the police official a half hour later. He was very cordial. He remembered Tarzan from the visit the two had made him several months prior in the matter of the finger prints. Having heard Tarzan's story, he assured him that no harm would come to him from the police as a result of his night's adventure.

On their return to D'Arnot's apartments the lieutenant found a letter awaiting him from an English friend, William Cecil Clayton, Lord Greystoke. The two had maintained correspondence since the birth of their friendship on that ill-fated expedition in search of Jane Porter after her theft by Terkot, the bull ape, from whom she had been rescued by Tarzan.

"They are to be married in London in about two months," said D'Arnot as he completed his perusal of the letter. Tarzan did not need to be told who was meant by "they." He made no reply, but he was very quiet and thoughtful during the balance of the day.

That evening they attended the opera. Tarzan's mind was still occupied by his gloomy thoughts. He paid little or no attention to what was transpiring upon the stage. Instead, he saw only the lovely vision of a beautiful American girl and heard naught but a sad, sweet voice acknowledging that his love was returned.

He shook himself to be rid of his unwelcome thoughts and at the same instant he felt eyes upon him. With the instinct that was his by virtue of training he looked up squarely into the eyes that were looking at him to find that they were shining from the smiling face of Olga, Countess de Coude. As Tarzan returned her bow he was positive that there was an invitation in her look, almost a plea.

The next intermission found him beside her in her box.

"I have so much wished to see you," she was saying. "It has troubled me not a little to think that after the services you rendered to both my husband and myself no adequate explanation was ever made you of what must have seemed ingratitude on our part in not taking the necessary steps to prevent a repetition of the attacks upon us by those two men."

"You wrong me," replied Tarzan. "My thoughts of you have been only the most pleasant. You must not feel that any explanation is due me. Have they annoyed you further?"

"They never cease," she replied sadly. "I feel that I must tell some one, and I do not know another who so deserves an explanation as you. You must permit me to do so. It may be of service to you, for I know Nikolas Rokoff quite well enough to be positive that you have not seen the last of him. He will find some means to be revenged upon you. I cannot tell you here, but tomorrow I shall be at home to M. Tarzan at 6."

"It will be an eternity until tomorrow at 5," he said as he bade her good night.

From a corner of the theater Rokoff and Paulivitch saw M. Tarzan in the box of the Countess de Coude, and both men smiled.

At 4:30 the following afternoon a swarthy, bearded man rang the bell at the servants' entrance of the palace of the Count de Coude. The footman who opened the door raised his eyebrows in recognition as he saw who stood without. A low conversation passed between the two.

At first the footman demurred from some proposition that the bearded one made, but an instant later something passed from the hand of the caller to the hand of the servant. Then the latter turned and led the visitor by a roundabout way to a little curtained alcove off the apartment in which the countess was wont to serve tea of an afternoon.

A half hour later Tarzan was ushered into the room, and presently his hostess entered, smiling, and with outstretched hands.

For a few moments they spoke of the opera, of the topics that were then occupying the attention of Paris of nearly every country in Europe.

"The matter was hushed up by the authorities of the convent. Not even my parents knew of it. But Nikolas met the man afterward and learned the whole story. Now he threatens to tell the count if I do not do just as he wishes me to."

Tarzan laughed. "You are still but a little girl. The story that you have told me cannot reflect in any way upon your reputation, and were you not a little girl at heart who would know it? Go to your husband tonight and tell him the whole story just as you have told it to me. Unless I am much misled something of M. Paulivitch that would send him to the gallows in Russia if it were known by the police of St. Petersburg. I dared him to carry out his plan and then I leaned toward him and whispered a name in his ear. Like that—and she snapped her fingers—he flew at my throat as a madman. He would have killed me had you not interfered."

"The brutes!" muttered Tarzan. "Why do you not turn the scoundrels over to the authorities? They should make quick work of them."

She hesitated for a moment before replying.

"There are two reasons," she said finally. "One of them it is that keeps the count from doing that very thing. The other, my real reason for fearing to expose them, I have never told—only Rokoff and I know it. I wonder why it is that I want to tell you the thing that I have not dared tell even to my husband. I believe that you would understand and that you could tell me the right course to follow. I believe that you would not judge me too harshly."

"I fear that I should prove a very poor judge, madame," Tarzan replied, "for if you had been guilty of murder I should say that the victim should be grateful to have met so sweet a fate."

"Oh, dear, no," she expostulated. "It is not so terrible as that. But first let me tell you the reason the count has for not prosecuting these men; then, if I can hold my courage, I shall tell you the real reason that I dare not. The first is that Nikolas Rokoff is my brother. We are Russians. Nikolas has been a bad man since I can remember. He was cashiered from the Russian army, in which he held a captaincy. There was a terrible scandal for a time, but after a while it was partially forgotten and my father obtained a position for him in the secret service."

"There have been many terrible crimes laid at Nikolas' door, but he has always managed to escape punishment. Of late he has accomplished it by trumped up evidence convicting his victims of treason against the czar, and the Russian police, who are always only too ready to fasten guilt of this nature upon any and all, have accepted his version and exonerated him."

"Have not his attempted crimes against you and your husband forfeited whatever rights the bonds of kinship might have accorded him?" asked Tarzan.

"The fact that you are his sister has not deterred him from seeking to besmirch your honor. You owe him no loyalty, madame."

"Ah, but there is that other reason. If I owe him no loyalty, though he be my brother, I cannot so easily disavow the fear I hold him in because of a certain episode in my life of which he is cognizant."

"I might as well tell you all," she resumed after a pause, "for I see that it is in my heart to tell you sooner or later. I was educated in a convent. While there I met a man whom I supposed to be a gentleman. I knew little or nothing about men and less about love. I got into my foolish head that I loved this man, and at his urgent request I ran away with him. We were to have been married."

"I was with him just three hours—all in the daytime and in public places—railroad stations and upon a train. When we reached our destination, where we were to have been married, two officers stepped up to my escort as we descended from the train and placed him under arrest. They took me also, but when I had told my story they did not detain me, other than to send me back to the convent under the care of a matron. It seemed that the man who had wooed me was no gentleman at all, but a deserter from the army."
