A TRAGIC DEATH

On Thursday evening last death came under peculiar circumstances to Mr Alfred Tackalerry of Oak Leaf. Early in the evening the reflection of a fire attracted attention here and v phone it was soon learned that Mr Tackaberry's barns were burning. Several citizens drove out to his farm and there learned that Mr Teckaberry had not been seen since the discovery of the fire. He had been working with a boy on the farm all day but was not fening well and after supper put on a fur coat, as the evening was chilly, and the boy left him sitting in he went out to milk the house when the cows. The boy was engaged in this work when he noticed that the barn was afire. He rushed out and gave an starm and then busied himself getting the cattle out. He did not see Mr Tackaberry, nor did Mr Botsford or others who were early on

The horrible suspicion soon took possession of the neighbors who had gathered that Mr Tackaberry was in the burning building, and as the fire burned low the body of the unfertunate man could be seen in the flames

The Life-Giving Stream.-Ezek. 47

Commentary.—I. The source of the stream (vs. 1, 2). I. Afterward —Ezekiel had been taken in his vision to Jerusanem, had been shown the temple, rebuirt, and the details of the templ service had been explained to him. He brought me again—The prophet's guide described in Ezek. 40. 1-3 The return to the door of the temple was not to survey the building and study its ap-pointments, but to behold a vision of pointments, but to behold a vision the life-giving stream issuing from Unto the door of the house. The entrance to the temple. Waters issued out from under the threshold. In the prophet's vision the stream, which repre sented the manifold blessings of the pel, had its source in the visible dwell-ing-place of Jehovah. The temple faced the east and the stream, issuing from the right side of the house, flowed east ward at the south side of the altar which was in the centre of the inner court. The only stream actually exist-ing there was from "a fountain con-nected with the temple hill, the waters of which fell into the valley east of the city and made their way toward the - Davidson It was a "small stream whose 'soft-flowing' waters were already regarded as a symbol of the silent and unobtrusive influence of the divine presence in Israel (Isa. 8. 6). The waters of this stream flowed eastward, but they were too scanty to have any approci-able effect on the fertility of the region through which it passed."—Skinner. The stream which Ræskiel saw flowed ap-parently from underneath the most holy place in the temple and passed near the altar of sacrifice. The waters sig-milled the gospel of Christ which went forth from Jerusalem and spread into the countries about, and the gifts and powers of the Holy Spirit accompanying it by virtue of which it spread far and produced blessed results."—Henry. 2. The gate northward—The gate looking eastward was closed as explained in Exek. 44. 2 and 46. 1. When the probability of the product of the probability of the product of the pro phet reached the outer eastern gate he sawthe stream flowing forth from the right, or southside of it. H. An increasing stream (vs. 3-5). 3.
The man that had the line—The prophet's guide. See note on v. 1. A thousand cubits—About one-third of a mile. The distances measured are only im-portant as they indicate the rapid increase in the volume of the stream. The waters were to the ancles. It was as yet and insignificant stream in size but important on account of its source insignificant stream in size 4. To the knees to the loins-This shows a marvelous increase in volume. The stream received no tributaries, hence the increase was due to its inherent energy. There is an energy in the gospel all its own. 5. A river—We are nded of the language of Pas. 46. 4, "There is a river, the streams where of shall make glad the city of God." A river is majestic in its onward sweep. Its course can not be stayed. Barriers may be thrown in its way, but it overflows them or sweeps them away. Some earthly streams are periodical in their flow; sometimes the banks are full, and at other times the channel is dry. The stream that Ezekiel saw is unceasing in its flow. It is a type of the progress of Christianity. At the time of Christ's ascension there was but a handful ascension there was but a handful of his followers. Their number has been constantly increasing until to-day there are five hundred million professed Chris-tians in the world, and their number has increased nearly threefold during the past century. The stream of Ezek-iel's vision is also a type of the grace or could in the soul. It is comparatively small in its beginnings, but its increase is constant as one trustfully obeys the Lord.

III. An efficacious stream (vs. 6-12).

6. Hast thou seen this. The prophet's attention had thus far been directed to the source of the stream and its mar-vellous increase. The next revelation was the effects upon the region through which it passed.

Many trees. Compare Rev. 22:2 The stream was conductive to fruitful ness. 8. Go down into the desert. The figure of the fish refers to the extent, the greatness of the community; this figure of the trees to it nature, in so far as the divine grace transforms it far as the divine grace transforms it into truly living members, who them-selves bear rich food and thereby become a means of life and recovery to others also.—Lange. Fruit according to his months. "This signifies a constant disposition, desire, resolution and en-deavor to bear fruit, not in their own wisdom, power or goodness, or any goodness in themselves, but by the congoodness in themselves, but by the con-tinual supplies of divine grace. Who-ever may he the instrument of plant-ing them, it is divine grace which gives the increase." Leaf thereof for medi-cine. Even the leaves, the holy profession of the righteous, is a spiritual medi-cine. Righteousness is thus encouraged in the world.—Clarke.

PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS.

"Water issued out from under the threshold of the house" (v. 1). Water is a type of spiritual life, the gift of God the father (John 4: 10); God the Son (John 4: 14), and God the Holy Spiirt (Isa. 44: 3; John 7:38, 39). The word of God is the instrument God uses to purify or to satisfy us (Ezek. 36: 25; Eph. 5: 26; Isa. 55: 1; Rev. 22: 17). Water is necessary to human life, health and happiness (Isa. 41: 17; Zech. 9: 11). There is no spiritual life health or hap-There is no spiritual life health or hap niness apart from God to man, "whether in Eden, the garden of the Lord (Gen. 2: 10), or in the dry and weary wilderness" (Isa. 35: 6, 7).

"The waters came down" v. 1). The way from Ged to man is always "down," way from Ged to man is always "down," whether man be living under conscience (Gen. 11:5), under law (Exod. 19: 20), in captivity Daniel 4: 13), or under grace John 3: 13; 6: 38, 41, 51, 58). "The waters came... from... the right side of the house, at the south side of the altar" (v. e). The "right" way is the pright way. The righteous shine here (Matt. 5: 14-16) and hereafter (Dan. 12: 3; Matt. 13: 43). Facing the east the right side is toward the south, the place of warm devotion. "The waters came down from....the altar" (v. l. Type of Calvary, the place of sacrifice. From the wounded side flowed blood and water (John 19: 34). The place of sacrifice is the place of salvation. To sacrifice is the place of salvation. To believe in him who came "by water and blood" (1 John 5: 5, 6) is to overcome by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of our testimony (Rev. 12: 11).

"Then brought he me" (v. 2). "He brought me" (v. 3). Salvation is all from brought me" (v. 3), Salvation is all from God., All the way it is a "gift" to receive. It is "by grace—not of works" (Eph. 2: 8, 9). If we will "let God" (Rom. 3: 4; Pla. 68: 1), he will lead us on to his "uttermost" salvation (Heb. 7: 25), even to the "salvation ready to be accorded in the leaf time."

revealed in the last time.' "The waters were to the ancles" (v. 3). This suggests spiritual advancement. One of the first things a child learns is to walk. Life precedes walking. The child of God begins fully to walk by faith (2 Cor. 5: 7), in newness o flife Rom. 6: 4), to walk in good works (Ept 2: 10), walk circumspectly (Eph., 5, 15), honestly (1 Thess. 4, 12), then goes on honestly (1 Thess. 4, 12), then goes on to walk in the Spirit (Gal. 5: 16), and wal kafter the Suirit (Romans $: 4); and live always in the consciousness of God's presence. "The waters were to the knees" (v. 4). Water knee deep speaks of spiritual wor-ship (1 Kings 8: 54; Dan. 6: 10). Geo. W. McCalla, in his "Rising of the Waters," says, "True worship is not only in the Spirit and belief of the truth (John 4: 24). Knee-deep waters have to do with sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth (2. Thess. 2: 13): with those who accept Christ as their teacher, as well as their sanctifier; who have not only purity of heart, but are filled with the knowledge of his will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding (Col. 1:9). Many take the Spirit as a purified who know him not as an in-structor: receive him as the comforter, but refuse him as the guide into all truth (John 16: 13). Only a Spirit-given knowledge of the truth gives liberty.

Unless the spirit enlightens us we cannot distinguish the turth of God from not distinguish the turth of of men (Mark 7

"For the waters were risen, waters to swim in, a river that could not be passed over" (v. 5). This is the deep place where Christ is all and in all (Col. 3: 11). No limit, no measure; unfathomable, impassable.

For Farmers

MAKING THE MOST OF THE SOIL Farming in France-Interesting Letter

From "Canadian Farm' 'Reader. A subscriber to Canadian Farm, who is spending his summer abroad, sends the following interesting account of how agriculture in some parts of France is carried on. While the French farmer's methods are primitive as compared with those followed on this side of the At lantic, he endeavors to utilize every por-tion of the land. There are no waste places around the fences. Every particle of land is cultivated and made to pro-duce its quota, thus leaving no room for weeds to grow and take nourishment out of the soil that should go exclusively for plant food:

"The Province of Touraine is known as the garden of France, and the beautiful valley of the Indre, where I have been staying, is the richest agricultural region in the Republic as far as the variety and abundance of its product goes, rival ling even Burgundy in its vineyards. The day-worker .who cares for the vines and superintends the picking of the grapes by the women and children, works for 50 cents a day, but he carries with him to his work a couple of juley lamb cutlets the chores or even a roast chicken, so one may judge from this that his pay is suffi-cient for his needs in this land of Plenty.

"The French farmers reside in towns and set forth every morning to their work, so that the rolling valleys are seen work, so that the rolling valleys are seen for miles without a house, but every inch of the ground is cultivated and checkered with fields of yellow grain and blue vineyards. I do not take an artistic license in saying 'blue,' for the vines are all sprinkled with copper sulphate to destroy the butterfly eggs. The cultivators are also burning nicotine around the vines.

"At all the horticulturists I saw 'An erican Vines' advertised, and asked a French farmer the meaning of this. He told me that good and bad things come from America: that some years ago a worm known as the 'phyloxera' had been brought into the country from America and had eaten the roots of the vines and had eaten the roots of the vines brought into the country from America and had eaten the roots of the vines throughout France, and that now the grape cultivators were grafting the American wild grapes on to their vines in order to atrengthen their roots.

"In the field one sees the harvesters cutting the grain with scythes, followed by women who tie it in bundles, and after the grain has been tied into two.

by women who tie it in bundles, and after the grain has been tied into two wheeled one-horse carts, the gleaners come and pick up little bunches of grain that the reapers have overlooked. A reaping machine of ancient date was pointed out to me with great pride by pointed out to me with great pride by one of the peasants, for it is quite a novelty in this part of the country. "All the southern fruits, except the olive, are found here, and the French farmer is particularly clever in econom izing space; he trains his graps vines up above a stone wall, and forces his frui trees to grow vinelike along the sunny wall below. His flowers are planted round about his yegetable garden, with hedges of roses and daisies, so that the whole place is both beautiful and useful. place is both beautiful and useful whole place is both beautiful and useful. He takes infinite time, spends infinite pains and produces a finer fruit than we do in a smaller quantity.

"A great many women work in the

"A great many women work in the fields, and instead of using a whole herd of cows, you will meet a bent old woman leading a single cow along the roadside, where it crops the grass that grows by the way, or a little girl in wooden shoes taking care of a couple of goats. Horses too, are scarce, and sometimes a dog is harnessed to a push cart to help his master take the tables to market, but most of the farm ers own donkeys, and it is quite a pretty sight to see the little donkeys with their red tassels pulling a cart heaped high with cabbages, carrots and cauliflowers, while a fresh-faced peasant woman in a white cap and red apron walks beside.
"Altogether a more pictures que sight than ours, but far less agrecable."

The Age of the Sire.

(The Farmers' Advocate.) If a bull is properly cared for pro-viding he is healthy and sound constitutionally, he ought to be in better condition and more vigorous at four years of age than he is at one year or eighteen months. Many a bull has lived to be ten or twelve or fifteen years of age, and was vigorous during his entire life. Some of the best bulls of every breed have lived to be that age. As a matter of fact, the value of a bull is not known until he is four years old. There known until he is four years old. There is no way of judging accurately the value of a dairy sire until his heifers become cows. That would be when the make the bull four years old, and this will make the bull four years old. A man would be foolish, after he had paid a good price for a promising sire, a good individual, and one well bred, to dispose of him before his heifers become cows, because that is the only only way in which to judge him. Above all, we want a sire that will transmit individuality and performance to his female offspring, and how can the breeder tell about this until the heifer is old enough to be judged at the milk pail? No promising dairy sire ought to be disposed of until he is four years old. Then, if he does not prove to be what one desires the latest the disposed of the does not prove to be what one desires the latest the disposed of the does not prove to be what one desires the latest not prove to be what one desires, the 2, sooner he is disposed of the better. On the other hand, if he does prove to be prevent the curse of slums in the rapidly growing cities of the Dominion.

When the grass becomes dry, unpalatable and shorn, feed from the silo does much to keep up the milk supply and to make up for the lack of the early fresh grasses and clovers. Corn silage left over from the winter is doubled in its original values as a succulent food.

The Winter Months.

During the winter months there appears another problem. After years of experience in feeding the different kinds of live stock, it is proven that our animales thrive best on succulent food. This portion of the ration was supplied by roots until the advent of the silo made the feeding of silage possible, and the searcity of labor made the profitable growing of roots impossible. The value of corn protected from the elements gives it an important place in our The Winter Months. ments gives it an important place in our farm feed, and the value of the silo as a storage for grain fodder for summer use has long since been recognized. Winnipeg reports say business there continues to move briskly. Orders from the country continue very substantial in character and good shipments of general lines are going forward to country points.

Vancouver and Victoria reports say business at these and other provincial points continue brisk.

Hamilton reports say both retail and wholesale trade is active. Factories are busy and there is every indication they will continue so for the balance of the season. Business in the surrounding district is fairly brisk. Deliveries of produce and fruit are large, but the de-mand is brisk and prices are steady. London reports say a good steady tone is noted to all lines of trade there.

Douglas Gerant as a scamp, a proflig-ate, a disgrace. I was wild, perhaps foolish and hot-headed; but, Stuart, I never dishonored my name or my father's memory. My brother Eustace and I were never on good terms. He hated me for my wild spirits, my good terms and my greater and my greater and my greater with women, and looks and my success with women; and I on my side had little sympathy with his narrow cramped life and niggardly ways; so one day we agreed to part and never meet except when absolutely necessary. I left him in his dull home at Beocham Park, where his one idea of enjoyment was to scan rigidly the accounts of the estate and curtail the

Among my acquaintances was one whom I held than all: we were bound toby the firmest bond—true friendship. Conway was a handsome fellow with a reckless, dare-devil style that suited my wild nature, and an honest heart; we were inseparable. And next to him in my friendship was a man call d Everest, a strong-willed being with plain face, but having the manners a plain face, but naving the manners of a Crichton, together with a fund of common sense. Everest was a barrier to Conway's and my wildness, and to him we owed many lucky escapes. We were with one accord railers at matrimony, and a very bad time of it any poor fellow had who deserted our ranked to take unto himself a wife. I laughed and bantered like the others, deeming myself invulnerable; yet, when I laughed the loudest, I felt wounded. "We were married. Lady Leverick refused to see, or even receive a letter from my darling; and my brother Eustace, in lieu of a wedding-present, sent a curt note informing me that I was a madman. A madman I was, but my mania was full of joy. Could heaven be fuller of bliss than was my life in those fuller of bliss than was my life in those fuller of bliss than was my life in those first three months? All this time Conway and Everest were our beloved and most inmiate friends, and Gladys seemed to like them both. We christened the child Margery; but she was to me no earthly being—her beauty and delicacy seemed scarcely mortal.e She was like her mother, and both were marvels of loveliness, so much so that Conway, who was a bit of an artist, in-sisted on painting them in angel forms.

We were at the corner of Pall Mall, and, suddenly puting his arm through with the grand ting his arm through mine, he dragged me toward the steps of St. James' Park. Here it was quiet. I can remember how sharp was the pain at my heart when I repeated the vague, yet self-condemning words of Conway's note. I can see again the houses seeming to fly past us as we dashed homeward. I can feel again the agony I endured when, in answer to my hoarse inquiry, the maid said my wife was not at home. Again 1 can feel the agony of suspense, rage, mad-ness I suffered as I strode up and down the road before the house, with Everest standing a little way off, watching me with a calm anxious face, till the sound of light feet came to our ears, and I stood before Gladys. "I can see her paie startled face, her shrinking form, as in a suppressed voice I demanded to know where she hadebeen. She did not answer at once, and her hesitation maddened me. I lost all manliness, Stuart. It haunts me now the misery of her face, the pleading of her lips. But I would listen to nothing. I left my money and the settlement of my affairs in Everest's hands in case of my death, and he promised me to look after Gladys; for, though I deemed her dis-honored, I could not let her starve. He was anxious to stay in England, but I kept him beside me and refused to let him go.

"I crossed to Paris the next day, and sought everywhere for Conway, but could not find him. Everest grew impa-tient, but still I would not release him; and two days passed without incident. On the third day I learned that Conway had never left England, that he was seized with sudden and severe illness at Dover; and, when I reached that place, he was dead.

"Robbed of my revenge, I sunk into gloomy despondency. Everest went to London to look after my wife. My body seemed paralyzed; I seemed no longer a man. My friend was away a week and then returned suddekly told me, with a strange pale face, that Gladys was gone—had disappeared with her child, and could not be found.

"My misery was so great, I scarcely realized the horror of this. My brain was dulled by intense pain. As in a dream, I listened to him, hardly heeding him, and conscious only of a vague re-lief as he left me to go abroad, to shake off, he said, the anxiety he had suf-

I left Dover; it was hateful to me. I travelled to London. A longing, a crav-ing seized me to see Gladys, to look or her once more, though she was dead to me forever. I drove to the house; and the memory of Everest's words came back to me then—that she was gone. Pale and faint with anxiety, I alighted at the well known gate, and I saw at a glance that the house was deserted.

"What had become of Gladys? How had she managed? Was she starving—lost in London, with not a friend in the world? In an instant my rage was quenched. I saw her only in her sweet ness, her beauty, and I leaned against the gate, overwhelmed with the flood of miserable thoughts that crowded up-

"But it was not a time for dreams. I felt I must act. So I hurried to the house agents, feeling sure that they could tell me something. From them I gleaned the barest information. My wife had visited them early in the morn ing following that dreadful night, paid them the rent to the end of the quarthem the rent to the end of the quar-ter, and left the key. I questioned them closely and eagerly, but could gather nothing more, and then I went away, feeling like a man whose life was al-most ended. Over and over again I whispered to myself, with a twinge of remore, that Gladys was innocent, and would have explained all if I had only let her. Then the memory of Everest's words, the damning evidence of Con way's note, returned, and I knew not what to think; but on one point I was certain—henceforth life held no duty for me till Gladys was found. Though the golden dream of our joy was ended, though I doubted her, she must be found

"I began a search—a search, Stuart that has lasted all my life. By good "I began a search—a search, Stuart, that has lasted all my life. By good hap at this time a distant cousin, dying, bequeathed me his property, which, though not large, came like a godsend at the moment, for every available penny I had had been expended in my accord. I was haunted by my wife's ny I had head been expended in my search. I was haunted by my wife's pale, horror-stricken face gleaming in the moonlight, by the memory of my baby-child, whose prattle had sounded like music in my ears. I knew too well the miseries, the horrors, of London, and I could not bear to think that the woman I had held so near and heaven woman I had held so near and—heaven help me!—still treasured in my heart, was thrown into its terrible jaws and left to perish without a helping hand.

"I pray heaven, Stuart, you may never know the darkness of those days, the unspeakable anguish, the depth of deunspeakable anguish, the depth of despair! Weeks passed. I could find no spair! Weeks passed. I could find no trace, and when I was tortured with the conflicting emotions which surged within me an event occurred that put the last stroke to my misery, added the ghastly weight of a wrong to my burden, a wrong which I could never wipe away.

"I had resigned my post at the club, and, in my eager restlessness. wandering about the London streets, either alone or with one of my detectives, I was lost even to the remembrance of the freeven to the remembrance of the frequenters of my old haunts. One day, however, I met a man who had been very friendly with me, and in the course of conversation—i would gladly have avoided him if I could—he told me there were several letters awaiting me

Baby Dreadful Sufferer. Could Not Keep Him from Scratching. Every Joint Affected. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and He Is Well.

Enclosed find my son's photo and I feel writing these few lines to you I am only my duty, as my son was a dreading sufferer from eccema. At sufferer from eczema. At the age of two weeks he began to get covered with red spots on his legs and groins, which mother thought was red gum or thrush; but day by day groins, which mother thought was red gum or thought was red gum or thrush; but day by day it grew worse until every joint and crevice were affected and baby started and the second of the was one of the worst cases he had seen, the other did not think it so serious; one ordered ointment for rubbing in, the other a dusting powder. I followed their prescriptions for over four months and still baby kept getting worse. I could not keep him from scratching so great was his agony.

"When he was five months old I tried the Cutleura Remedies and I am very thankful to say my baby is to-day free from all his suffering. His groins were bleeding when I started and other parts affected were the lower part of his body, under the knees, arms, in arm joints, eyebrows and neek; but after twice using Cuticura Ointment I began to see a difference and by the time I had used one tin, along with the bathing with Cuticura Soap, aboy was nearly cured. I still kept on using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and although he is now ten months old, has not had any further return of the trouble. (Signed) Mrs. G. "I went for the letters, urged by a wild hope that Gladys might have written. She had. It was a letter that is graven on my heart in characters of blood. Heaven give me strength to tell you; for even now, after so many years, I grow faint when I think of it! It was a long, hurriedly written letterthe letter of a distraught woman. I will not give it to you here; there were no reproaches, but there was a clear statement of facts given by a broken heart. In my anxiety I could scarcely read the first lines, but some words further on caught my eyes, and held them as by magnetic power. They spoke as by magnetic power. They spoke, Stuart, of the persecution she had en-dured for weeks from Hugh Everest, Again and again, Gladys wrote, she felt urged to speak to me, but she knew I valued him as a friend, and she trusted that his honor, his manliness, would overcome his baser feelings, and that he would go away. Of Guy Conway she spoke tenderly and earnestly. The let-ter I had brought forward as a proof of their guilt was indeed written him; but it referred to a painting was engaged upon of herself and her child, which she had intended leaving at her aunt's house, hoping that the sight of the baby's angel-face would break down the icy barrier which caused her such pain. This had been a little plan of his, suggested when he saw how the estrangement troubled her. She was at Conway's studio, but only for the purpose of discussing the delivery of the picture; and, catching sight of Hugh Everest, in a moment of agitation and dislike above one of the picture. dislike she openly expressed a wish not to see him. Conway at once undertook to see him. Conway at once undertook to prevent their meeting, with what terrible result you know. My wife ended her letter by stating that she was gone from my life Yorever with her child. The shock of my suspicions had destroyed all joy or happiness evermore for her; but, though separated, she would live as become my wife and the mother of my child, for whose sake alone she could now endure life. This ended it: there ow endure life. This ended it; was no sign, no clue no werd me to her.

was not a man, Stuart, when I had read that letter; I was a brute-a savage animal. Had Hugh Everest been near me, I should have torn his cruel heart from his body, and his tongue from his false, lying lips. A fury seized me to find him—find him though I searched the world round; face to face with him, I could breathe out the passion, remorse, revenge, scoren and agony of my bursting heart. But I could not leave England till I knew where my darling was, my sweet, wronged ange—till I had knelt in the dust—at her feet, and bowed my head in shame; and so my search went on. "Years passed, but only a slight clue turned up now and then, always with the same ending. I have wandered —led by these disheartening clues—from one country to another; and at last the men I employed grew weary, and I had to work alone. But I was kept alive by my love and my desire for revenge. Everest never came to England—coward and villain—but the day came, a day came, a day not long past, when we men and on his dying hear tortest him to confess his wrong and own his deceit. Then, when he was gone, the misery of my wasted life returned, and I sunk for a while beneath my load of care. (To be Continued.)

"We are called upon to repair all kinds of damage," said a furniture dealer the other day. "But the most puzzling defacement I ever saw was puzzling defacement I ever saw was that which appeared on a beautiful mahogany table brought in for re-finishing.
All around its margin were rows of scratches and small indentations which were hard to explain, as the table was otherwise uninjured.

"What happened to it?" I asked when the owner came in.
"Well,' she replied, 'the baby insisted on cutting his teeth around the edge of it. Of course, it was rather expensive, but we both think there is nothing too good for the baby."

JAPANESE KITE FIGHTS

Clever Manoeuvres That Bring Rival

In: Japan there is an annual feast day for boys, when each house having male children hangs out strings of paper carp, which inflated by the breeze become life-like monster fish.

"It was on this feast day," says a writer in the Wide World, "that we left Yckohama for Kamakura, once the eastern capital of Japan, now merely a quiet little seaside village.

"As it was such an important occasion, the whole world made holiday, some families hurried to the seashore to fly their enormous humming kites, from which the parents appeared to derive quite as much enjoyment as the children. The loud hum emitted by the soaring kite is caused by a piece of this bamboo, which is stretched tightly acress from shoulder to shouder.

"This taut bamboo filliment hot only acts as an acolian harp, but bends the whole kite, so that its surface is concave instead of being, as in our kites, a plane. The noise when some threecone or so of these monsters are in the air at the same time is deafening.

"The Japanese kite has no tall, but is furnished with numerous long streamers. Great competitions are held by the owhers of the kites, and occasionally a mimic battle will be fought in the air, the rival factions endeavoring by means of powdered glass, which has been previously worked into a definite length of the kite strings to saw through a rival's string, and so bring the vanquished kite tumbling ignominously to the ground."

adventurer upon the ocean has ever been possessed of a temperament incomprehensible to landsmen by reason of his belief in signs and happenings considered to be omens of good or evil. Although many superstitions died out with the advent of steam into marine affairs yet there are many curious beliefs still prevalent.

All are aware of the ill-luck which All are aware of the ill-luck which is said to belong to the ship whose name has been changed, but it may not be so generally known that a belief prevails among seafaring men that the vessel whose name ends in A rest also under an evil spell. Indeed, it would almost seem that the latter superstition is not wholly unfounded, if we consider but a few of the disasters at sea in our own times wherein ters at sea in our own times wherein the ill-fated ships have borne names which ended with the first letter of the burned in harbor at Malta. The fate of the last named vessel, in the light of the two superstitions already mentioned, may be fairly said to have been preordained, for in addition to her name ending with the letter A, she had during her career borne at least one other, viz., Gulf of Corovovado. Needless to say, many ships have been wrecked whose names did not bear the unlucky final letter, and there are hundreds afloat which do possess it, and in which it is safer to travel than on the railway.

For instance, cites The London Globe, H.M.S. Victoria, sunk in the Mediterranean, is still fresh in the memory of Englishmen. Other well-known instances are the Stella, lost off the Channel Islands; the Arequipa, ashore on the west coast of America; the Cobra, a destroyer which broke her back in the North Sea on her maiden voyage, and the Sardinia, burned in harbor at Malta.

Brewer as Novelist.

Mr. Temple Thurston, whose dramatized novel, "Sally Bishop," was recently presented at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, was originally intended for a brewer, and did, in fact, enter his father's brewery at the age of fifteen. The first intimation Mr. Thurston had that his son was really seriously inclined in the direction. Mr. Thurston had that his son was really seriously inclined in the direction of authorship was the sight of a review of a small volume of poems which were published at young Thurston's expense. The sequel is, perhaps, best told in the author's own words: "My father called me into his presence and told me to take a month off, during which time I was to satisfy him as to my literary capabilities. During that time I wrote a lot of miscellaneous matter, including 1.700 lines of verse which I a tot of miscellaneous matter, in-cluding 1,700 lines of verse, which I read over to my father. After that," adds Mr. Thurston, somewhat am-biguously, "he did not say a single further word about my going back to the brewery.'

The Wickedest City.

There is no doubt about it—Irkutsk is the wickedest city in the world! One would hardly come to Irkutsk for a rest cure. With a population of 120,000 persons crammed into a couple of square miles on a bend in the Angara river, it produces 500 murders a year, with an average of one arrest for each fifty killings. And for each ten arrests there are but five convic-tions. This is not buncombe; it is a transcription from the city's criminal records. In one day not long ago there were twenty-two murders and attempted murders within the city

Irkutsk is pretty gay at nights now, but the citizens look back enviously to the zenith of its career to the days of the recent Japanese war. Then champagne and wines were often cautiously transported free of freight charges from St. Petersburg and Mos-cow in steel cars labeled "powder" ears militant with painted imperial eagles and Cossack guards.

It has a Battery Perhaps Unequalied In the World.

It has always been known that Gibraltar, which belongs to Great Britain, is one of the strongest forts for both defence and offence in the world. It is said that an immense fleet could be sent to the bottom before getting within five miles of Gibraltar. Not even a torpedo boat could succeed in entering the bay unobserved on the blackest night. The most eminent naval experts are of the opinion that this world's greatest fortress is almost impregnable.

Gibraltar never sleeps. By day and night two perfectly equipped signal stations, proudly flaunting Britain's flag of ownership, sweep the seas around to a distance of fifteen miles on a clear day, instantly reporting the coming and going of each vessel.

Modern "needle" guns, the finest in Europe, are installed on all the most prominent points. They are unreachable from the sea, even as they are indiscernible, owing to the skill with which they are planted and draped to match the surrounding vegetation, while huge screens drop automatically before them as each shell is fired. They have a range of fifteen miles and could drop shells on Ceuts, in Africa, opposite, quite comfortably, One gun weighs 110 tons and is capable of throwing a shell weighing three-quarters of a ton. In that marvel of engineering under great difficulties, the galleries, are concealed guns for every day in the year.

These galleries are divided into three sections, entry to which is guarded, while one is closed even to high officers, containing preserved stores, munitions of war, rain water (for Gibraltar has no springs) and a complete condensing plant — all cal-

The firing is the most mathematically perfect imaginable. The surrounding waters are mapped out into squares, upon which certain guns are kept ready trained, so that it is almost impossible to miss.

Mr. J. M. Barrie has given us a whimsical description of Prof. Campbell Fraser, who was presented to the King at the garden party at Edinburgh, the famous author and dramatist having been at one time one of the professor's pupils. "I see him rising in a daze from his chair," says Mr. Barrie, "and putting his hands through his hair. 'Do I exist,' he said, thoughtfully, 'strictly so called?' The students looked a little startled. This was a matter that had not previously disturbed them. Still, if the A Startling Lecture. viously disturbed them. Still, if the professor was in doubt there must be something in it. He began to argue it out, and an uncomfortable silence held the room in awe. It is no wonder that the students who do not go to the bottom during their first months of metaphysics begin to give themselves air, strictly so called. It contained a provision in these words: "For the purposes of this act (the factories act) a Chinaman shall be deemed to be a girl under eighteen years of age."—London M.A.P.

A good story has been told of Field Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood's attachment to a regiment of Highlandera, when the latter were stationed at Portsmouth. Sir Evelyn, then a captain, one day returned from London, and with great hurry proceeded to array himself for parade. When he at last emerged he observed that his men were evidently at great pains to conceal their laughter, and he quietly questioned his subaltern as to the probable reason. "Well, sir," replied the latter, "you are dressed correctly as to kilt, sporran, and all the rest of it; but you have forgotten to remove your tall hat!" Kilt and Silk Hat.

Anatole France's Sarcasm.

Anatole France finds a certain sat-isfaction in the reflection that all men, whatever their status, are equal be-fore the law. The law, he says, in its majestic equality forbids the rich as well as the poor to sleep under bridges, to beg in the streets and to steal bread.

> > THE FAIRS

The Clerk of the Weather was anything but kind to the agricultural fairs of this district.

Brockville was served up with a mixture of cold and moisture that sadly interfered with the attendance. Lyndhurst came next and a perfect downpour of rain on the second day rendered the gate receipts next to nothing. Then came Delta where a record attendance was expected, and on the second day there was an average crowd present, but on the third day, when a large number had calculated on being present, the gentle rain that prevailed almost continuously dampenend the spirits of everybody, spoiled the track, and caused general disappointment.

Frankville fared a little better though the excess of moisture was agaiu in evidence, and the receipts will probably be considerably below

The bad weather caused disappointment to many exhibitors and pleasure seekers, but chiefly to the members of the different boards who since last January have been preparing the prize liste and programmes

"Better luck next time" will be the watchword of the manngers, and the fall fairs will be with us next fall as usual. Some if not all of these fairs carried weather insurance, and will ome out alright financially.

A PARTING HONOR

Haileybury, the last northern town where liquor may be legally old, has a live branch T. U., and when the late Mrs John Besley was leaving for Hamilton for medical treatment she was presented with the following address

Dear Mrs Besley,-It is with feelings of the deepest regret that the members of the Haileybury Women's Christian Temperance Union learn of your departure from among us for a season, but we are hopeful that the change will build up your health so that you will return to us fully restored.

We feel that you have always been a faithful and consistent mem-ber of our society—faithful in attendance and strong to uphold our principles. We regret very much that we have not been able to do more to lift the burden that comes with prolonged illnes, but only lack of strength, not lack of sympathy, has kept us from what our hearts prompted and willing hands wanted to do. We are thankful to-day that this is a Christian Temperance Union and that our Heavenly Fath er-who knoweth the sacrifice and patient long-suffering of these many years, the striving of the mother hand to lead her little ones in the high pathway of righteousness and church service-will look down in loving kindness and uphold you in his arms and keep you trusting in His infinite love and mercy.

The railway men are already busy along this line, and Rev. Geo. Gilmour of Fingal, Ont., chairman of the Farmers Bank Relief Committee, says:

"All necessary steps are being taken to secure for the depositors their money. The matter will be presented to the new government. A great many of the candidates for the Federal government who have now been returned, promised to see that we would secure the money. Pressure will be brought to bear on them to keep their promises."

$11,000 IN PRIZES AT WINTER SHOW IN OTTAWA

There is probably no exhibition in Canada which is making more rapid growth than the Eastern Ontario Live Stock and Poultry Show, the great educational show held each January in Ottawa. In recent years the attendance has been increasing over fifty per cent annually, while the gain in the number of exhibits has been almost as great. This result is largely due to the generous prize list which is suffieient to bring out very high quality exhibits in large numbers. The different departments and the total of prizes fered in each are as follows Horses

Dairy cattle	1400.00
Beef cattle	1600.00
Sheep	850.00
Swine	850.00
Poultry	2750.00
Seeds
Total	$1100 00

There are in all 148 sections in the prize list representing 197 breeds and varieties. The individual prizes are large and in a great many cases more than one prize may be won by the same animal.

A new feature of the prize list this year is the introduction of several classes open only to exhibitors who have never won a first prize at exhibi tions held at Ottawa, Toronto, London or Guelph. These will offer special inducements to new exhibitors as they may also show in open classes. The dates for the next show are January 16 to 19, 1912. Our readers may secure prize lists by sending a request by post card to D. T. Elderkin, Secretary, Ottawa, Ont.

W.J. CURLE,

THE PERSONAL PROPERTY AND AND AND AND THE

ABBE LISZT.

What The Great Master Did for Modern Music.

But he introduced into the musty academic atmosphere of musical Europe a strong fresh breeze from the Hungarian puzta; this wandering piona player of Hungarian-Austrian blood, a genuine cosmopolite, taught music a new charm, the charm of the unexpecced, of the improvised. The freedom of Beethoven in his later works and of Chopin in all his music, became the principal factor in the style of Liszt. Music must have the style of Liszt. Music must have the shape of an improvisation. In the Hungarian rhapsodies, the majority of which begin in a mosque and always end in a tavern, are the extremes of his system. His orchestral and vocal works, the two symphonies, the masses and oratorios and symphonic poems, are full of dignity, poetic feeling, religious spirit, and a largeness of accent and manner. Yet the synav clance and synav wice. Yet the gypay glance and gypsy voice lurk behind many a pious or pompous bar. Apart from his invention of a new bar. Apart from his invention of a new form—or, rather the condensation and revisal of an old one—the symphonic poem—Liszt's greatest contribution to art, is the wold, truant, rhapsodic extempore element he infused into modern music; nature in her most reckless, untrammelled moods he interpreted with fidelity. But the drummers in the line of moral gasoline who controlled critiof moral gasoline who controlled criticism in Germany refused to see Liszt except as an ex-piano virtuoso with the morals of a fly and a perverter of art. Even the piquant triangle in his piano concerto was suspected as possibly suggesting the usual situation of Frenc

The Liszt-Wagner question no longer presents and difficulties to the fairminded. It is a simple one, for men still living knew that Wagner, to reach his nusical apogee, to reach his public, had to lean heavily on the musical genius and individual inspiration of Liszt. The later Wagner would not have existed traversing the garden of Liszt. This is not a theory, but a fact.—From "Franz Liszt—The Real and Legendary," by James Huneker, in the October Scribner.

SLEEP, GENTLE SLEEP.

Should Not Be Too Particular About Noise When Children Sleep.

Mr. Alfred H. Harmer, lecturer on physiology and hygiene at Wandsworth Technical Institute, writing in the Sani-

Technical Institute, writing in the Sanitary Record, says,

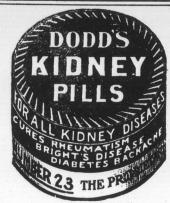

"As most people spend at least one-third of their lives in sleep and as the conditions under which they sleep must influence the whole of their lives, it would be wise for all to consider whether their sleep is of the most healthful and refreshing types. There are sound hygienic methods by which sleep may be induced. It is, of course, essential that plenty of pure air should be admitted into the sleeping apartment. Oxygen is as necessary to should be admitted into the sleeping apartment. Oxygen is as necessary to the body cells during the hours of sleep as at any other time. Perhaps in the case of children it is even more necessary for, them to sleep is the time of anabolism, growth and repair. That there are yet large sections of the community which do not understand this cambe casil varoused by a walk through ca nbe easil yproved by a walk through out town and country roads any night after the occupants of the houses have retired to rest. The old prejudice against open windows still exists, particularly among the class inhabiting the smaller houses. Dust in the rooms, an imaginary draught, the fear of colds, and many other like stupid reasons are advanced in excuse for this perniciou

The ergans of the body should also be considered, and no excessive work should be given to the heart or di-gestive organs before retiring to rest. High pillows lead to an increase in the heart's force at a time when the the neart's force at a time when the heart should have the slightest work. Very low pillows may cause headaches, and even sleeplessness, through an ex-cess of blood being in the brain. Heavy cess of blood boing in the brain. Heavy late suppers are very unwise, but a light meal followed by such moderate exer-cise as a short walk, is generally con-ducive to sound sleep. The light meal causes a withdrawal of blood from the causes a windrawal of blood from the head into the stomach area and the body generally. The body is therefore warmed, and this is very important. Cold extremities, particularly cold feet, cause sensory stimulations which produce sleeplessness, often for hours. ple who suffer in this way should take neans to artificially keep their feet warm by using sleeping socks, or slipper baths, or by the use of hat water bot tles, and by sleeping between blankets.
It is, of course, fatal to sound sleep to go to bed "with anything on the mind." In these sensational and place. mind." In these sensational and pleasure-lowing days we often retire to rest after receiving a long series of very vivid sensations which often account for hours of sleepless tossing. Sometimes this may be relieved by a gentle friction of the head with a medium hard brush. We cannot hope to always drive away the disturbing sensory impulses, for, built as man is, joy, suffering, grief, re-means least, must find their place in his life at some time or other. Life without these would be at best a mere istence, and so we must pay the bill at such times. And even then fatigue must cause sleep ere long.

Under ordinary circumstances, quiet is essential to refreshing sleep. It is well known that the brain can be trained to sleep during the continuance of sound constantly repeated. The confused din of traffic, the rattle of passing trains and many other noisea do not seem to disturb the rest of those accustomed to them. But, ordinarily speaking, quiet should precede and accompany sleep. In this connection it may be wise not to be this connection it may be wise not to be too particular about noises when little children are asleep. At some future time they may be thankful for learning to sleep while a certain amount of noise is going on. For instance, there is no rea-son why they should not be accustomed to sleep while a piano is bein gplayed in another room in the house.

The members of the men's Sunday school class of the wich and fashionable Lake Avenue Episcopal Church, Pasadens, have all taken what they term the "Help the Other Fallow Pledge." Here are some of the promises included in the niedge.

are some of the promises included in the pledge:
Not to shop after # p. m. Saturday.
Not to ride on street cars Sunday.
Not to get mad at telephone girls, no matter how bad the telephone service is.
Not to require tise butcher, baker or greer to deliver his wares more than once a day. To do Christmas shopping a month and a half before Christmas.
Some of these promises will be hard to keep, but they are all for the better. Other people would be helped considerably were these pledges faithfuly observed.

Lost 16 Ubs. in Weight'

as Kept Down by Billious Indigestion, and When in Despair

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cured

In the following interesting letter Mrs. H. R. Plunkett, well known in her home town of Hewtonville, tells how she conquered bilious indigestion: "I think it was drinking ice water on a very hot July day two years ago that caused an inflamed condition in my stomach, which gave me euch repeated and weakening attacks of bilioueness and stomach trouble. So severely did I suffer, that my strength was impeired, and I lost sixteen pounds in weight. My whole body was weakened, both kidneys and bowels failing to keep the system in natural condition. Food fermented, skin was dry and yellow. I had flushes of heat, and prickling sensations in various parts of the body. In the winter I had cold feet and clammy hands, and not until I commenced to take Dr. Hamilton's Pills cured the bilious dyspepsia, and in a month I gained almost four pounds. The pain over the liver disappeared, the bowels acted regularly, and I kept on improving so rapidly that in three months I was vigorous and well. I recommend Dr. Hamilton's Pills to every one in poor health."

THE RESURRECTION PLANT.

One of the most extraordinary plants in the world is undoubtedly that known to bontanists as anastatica, commonly called the "Resurrection Plant," or occasionally the "Rose of Jericho." It is an annual inhabiting the Egyptian desert. It is so highly hygrometric that when fully developed it contracts its rigid branches so as to constitute a ball. Exposed then to the action of the wind. it is blown hither and thither toward the sea, when it is gathered and exthe sea, when it is gathered and exported to Europe. If, then, when apparently dead and dried up, its roots is plunged into water, the buds swell with new life, the leaves of its calyx open, the petals unfold, the flower-stalk grows, and the full-blown flowers appear as if by magic. When removed from the water the plant returns to its original apparently dead condition, until again placed in water—hence its title of the "Resurrection Plant."

JAPANESE FRUIT TREES.

Among the many ways of their own that the Japanese have for doing things is their system of pruning and training fruit trees. The system is call-ed "tana" and consists in training the branches overhead on trelliswork made of bamboo or wire, supported on wooden posts about five and a half feet high. This offers advantages in gathering the fruit, and not only serves to protect the trees against wind and storms, but it is about 10 percent of the trees against wind and storms, but it is about 10 percent of the trees against wind and storms, but it is about 10 percent of the trees against wind and storms. is said to increase production. Only very light pruning is done, and that usually in the winter time. This system is generally adopted for pears and vines, less often for apples and plums.

ELECTRIC POWER FROM WIND.

There has never been a time when the forces of nature were subjected to such searching scrutiny to determine their availability for the development of mechanical power as they receive at present. This arises mainly from the progressive use of electricity.

Among other things it is believed that the wind can be utilized to a far gerater extent than in the past, especially for electric lighting. With this objection in view the average state of the wind has been investigated in England. It is found that for approximately half the time the mean wind velocity is ten miles an hour, and for about one-third of the time fifteen miles. In the winter the average and for about one-third of the time teen miles. In the winter the av-is higher. The great difficulty a from the calm periods, which may days, or even a week, but it has shown that ecolomical lighting can be based upon wind power by viding gasoline motors to take up work whenever the wind falls.—Ch

Five Few Presidents Take Place of One.

Managers Think There Will be No Strike.

New York, Oct. 2 .- The new adminstrative scheme of the Harriman lines, which will go into effect at once, invests the big railroad system with five new presidents in place of Judge R. S. Lovett, who, like Mr. Harriman, has been president of them all. Judge Lovett, as chairman of the executive committee, retains the chief executive authority, with two chief lientenants to assist him in his New York headquarters. The two lieutenants are Julius Kruttenschnitt, director of maintenance and operations and L. J. Spence, director of traffic.

The new presidents are: U. P., A. L. Mohler. whose offices are in Omaha; So. Pac., William Sproule, who is now president of Wells, Fargo & Co., but his resignation takes effect immediatey; Thornwell Fay is the directors' se-ection as head of the Harriman lines n Texas and Louisiana, with headquar-ters at Houston and New Orleans. Toronto despatch: Nine hundred dollars per annum is the stipend which the Presbyterian Augmentation Committee Executive is anxious to see paid to every minister by next March in Ontario and Quebec. In Northern Ontario the minimum aimed at is $1,000, and the same sum is fixed for the prairies, while in British Columbia the aim set is $1,-100. To accomplish this, an increase of fifty per cent. in the present funds will be necessary; in other words, instead of $41,800, at present available, there will be needed $63 000.

The Presbyteries are to be urged to exert themselves to aid, and the hope is that through the greater interest now being aroused in the question of the adequate support of the ministry the work of this committee in supple-menting the salaries of ministers who are not now receiving a sufficient sti-pend, it is expected, he will not be forced, as so many feel themselves forced, to leave the ministry or else to turn to various commercial or other shifts to eke out a livelihood.

Claims for the past quarter, up to September 30, were passed by the Exe-cutive yesterday, which met for the first time with the new convener, Rev. Dr. D. M. Ramsay, of Ottawa, who succeeds Rev. Dr. S. Lyle, the latter having re tired from the active work.

LEASE CAPLE LINES.

London, Oct. 2. - At meetings of the stockholders of the Anglo-American Cable Co. and the Direct United States Cable Co. to-day the agreement to lease their lines to the Western Union Telegraph Co. for a period of ninety years was unanimously provided. The agreement will become effective on its ratification by the Western Union.

RAISED BIG SUM. ITALY DECLARES

Report That Italian Troops Have Landed.

Fatal Riots in Italy-Germany Anxious for Peace.

Rome, Sept. 28.—Italy has declared war on Turkey.
Rome, Italy, Sept. 29.—It is officially announced here that Italy and Turkey are in a state of war, beginning at half past two o'clock on the afternoon of riday, Sept. 29.
The reason is given that Turkey has failed to meet the demands contained in the Italian ultimatum, italy will provide for the safety of italy will provide for the safety of Italians and all other foreigners in Tripoli and Cyrene, using to this end all the means at her disposal. Rome, Sept. 29.—The Minister of Marine is believed to have sent wire orders to the Italian State of Tai.

orders to the Italian fleet off Tri-poli to act immediately. This action followed a meeting of the Cabinet at II o'clock at which it was decided to proceed with the measures provided they are determined on.

Constantinople, Sept. 29.—The Turk-ish reply to the Italian ultimatum demanding assurance that there will be no resistance to the Italian millery occupation of Tripoli and Cyrene was com-municated to the Italian Charge, Signor Di Martino, at 6.30 o'clock this morn-

The message was couched in friendly terms, and expressed surprise at the se-tion of Italy, in view of the cordial re-fations existing between the two coun-tries. It pointed out that Italian inter-ests in Tripoli had not been threatened, and expressed the hope that Italy would desist from her contemplated measures. Assurance was given of Turkey's desire or a settlement of the matters pending beween the two governments. reply also stated that Italian subjects in Ottoman territory were exposed to no danger, as the authorities afforded them protection, and added that the Turkish military measures had been suspended during the period of the negotiations for a settlement of differences.

The reply was determined upon at a cabinet council; which concinued at the palace from late yesterday until early to-day.

The Turkish squadron has left Beirut and is returning to Constantinople. Evorder in the capital and through out the province.

READY TO LAND.

Chasso, Switzermand, (on Italian fron-tier) Sept. 29.—The Italian fleet kas been ordered to maintain a close blockade of the Tripolitan coast and prevent even by force the landing of further reinforcements.

Secret instructions have been given for the atrategic distribution of ships also along the Albanian, Macedonian and Syrian coasts the moment action is begun to prevent any attempt by Turkey to attack the Italian coast through Irivateers which would be easy from Albanian coast, which, on the opp side of the Adriatic Sea, is but a few hours' sail from the Italian coast, which is quite undefended. The ships have been instructed also to defend not only Italians, but all foreigners on Ottoman territory, landing forces if necessary or taking fugitives aboard.

The expedition consists of a complete army corps which will be used in its entirety if necessary. It will be c m-manded by General C. Caneya, who has formed his staff with General Briccols. and Gen. Pecori each in command of a division and with Gen. Gastoldelo, of the general staff. His instructions are that the occups tion of Tripoli and Cyrene shall be cor-ducted with the least possible delay, but with prudence to avoid both foreign complications and unnecessary blood-

Admiral Aubrey, in command of the Italian vessels in the waters of Tripoli, has been instructed, when the order to begin the occupation is issued, to em-bark immediately the few Italians who may be left there and any foreigners wishing to leave. These, it is thought, will amount to about 100. EXPRESSES IMPLACABLE HATRED.

Constantinopie, Sept 29-The Tanin in violent article to-day accuses taly of acting as an ordinary brigand and says that Turkey will respond with hat-red and enmity and the ultimatum will be the prelude to the thunder of cannon. It adds: "Turkey is not going to make a It adds: "Turkey is not going to make a pretense of defending Tripoli, and accept peace after the formal exchange of few cannon shots. From this moment there will be implacable hatred between Italians and Turks. Not the face of ar Italians and Turks, Not the face of an Italian shall be seen in our towns. Not an Italian flag in our ports. Vengeance must dominate every other feeling. For vengeance we shall live and we shall

The government has decided to en-force martial law in Constantinople for the present. The population was quiet this morning, but it was feared that an this morning, but it was feared that an actual rupture in the relations—with Italy may lead to riots.

The weakness of the present government is unfortunate in such a crisis, and a change of Ministry is believed to be imminent. It is probable that—former Grand Vizier Said Pasha will be made grand vizier in succession to Hakki Bey.

Telegrams from various towns of the Telegrams from various towns of the empire announce that the Moslem youths are volunteering for a war against Italy. The Italian officers in the Turkish service left last night having been recalled by their government.

Public indignation has been intense since the Italian demands were made known yesterday. The Italian charge presented the ultimatum at the usual weekly reception to the foreign repre-sentatives at the Foreign Office. Immediately afterward the Grand Vizier pro ceeded to the palace, where the Ministers were assembled in a special council meeting. The Ministers continued in ession until after midnight. Their de liberations were carefully guarded, and though conflicting rumors as to the action decided upon were affoat, nothing definite was made known until this morning, when it was stated that the dovernment had sent a conciliatory reply to Italy. In diplomatic quarters doubt was expressed that the reply would delay the purpose of Italy, as the ultimatum made it plain that the only saisfactory answer would be Turkish acquiesence in Italy's plans to occupy Tripoli and Cyrene. acquiesence in Ital Tripoli and Cyrene.

FATAL RIOTS IN ITALY.

Chiasso, Switzerland, Sept. 29.— To-day's advices from Italy deplors the fact that a very small minority of ex-tremists continue the break in the unan-imity which otherwise would support the Government in one of the gravest moments in her foreign pericy since Italian unity was established.

In several places excesses of vandalism continue, notwithstanding the efforts of the authorities to prevent them without he use of arms. Later reports describe the rioting at Langbirano, fifteen miles from Palermo, Jangbirano, fifteen miles from Palermo, as more serious than first appeared, A mob cut the telegraph and telephone wires, and, tearing down poles, used them to obstruct the rallway tracks, with the idea of hindering the movement of troop trains. Carabineers who attempted to disperse them were stoned and wounded, and would have been routed had they not had resort to their weapons. They fired into the mob, killing five persons and wounding twelve ing five persons and wounding twelve others. Among the dead was a woman. The rioters fled before the bullets, but The rioters lied hence the burners, soon afterwards gathered 9gain, surrounded the barracks, letermined to burn the place and lynch the carabineers.

They might have been successful but for the timely arrival of troops, who re-stored order.

GERMANY ANNOYED. Berlin, Sept. 29.—The leading morning newspapers, following the lead of the afternoon papers, for the most part refrain from commenting on the Tripoli situation. The Morgen Post, however, bitterly attacks Italy's action, which is calls "robber foray." It says:

"Italy, a land where there are still housands of case dwellows and the results of the same distributions of the same distributions of the same distributions."

thousands of cave dwellers and the ma-jority of its inhabitants are still illiterate, occupying the lowest rank of cul-ture and filled with superstition, dares to undertake this robber escapade on he grounrs of disorder and neglect. The Italian Government has kept Germany as completely in the dark as she could, for fear Germany might do something to hinder her action. Germany is still treing aven in the dark. still trying, even in the face of accomplished facts, to do what she can to keep the two nations from hostilities. The newspapers strongly criticise the Government's action in issuing a posi-tive statement from the Foreign Office denying that the European governments had received a circular from Italy, whereas a few hours later the ultimatum vas made public.

BRITISH PRESS ANGRY.

London, Sept. 29.—The British press denounces Italy's action in unmeasured terms, asserting that Italy's ultimatum sets forth no sufricient reason for the step, which Turkey can regard only as sets forth no sufricient reason for the step, which Turkey can regard only as an act of war.

The general view expressed is that Italy evidently is bent upon forcibly seizing the Trpoli coast, and has ruled diplomacy out of court by her precipitate action, which gives Turkey no chance to negotiate terms.

The Standard, in an editorial, declares that the Barbary Corsairs had a similar conception of ethics and international rights. The papers also charge the Italian Government with cynical recklessness, because her action may have deplorable consequences affecting all the powers having Moslem subjects in Africa and Asia, besides the likelihood of reopening the Balkan complication.

It is suggested that war between Italy and Turkey might be followed by the Moslems preaching a holy war against the Christians, and possibly by Turkey seizing Thessaly, which might entail a European war and consequences as serious for Italy herself as for the other powers.
