Sweet Eva!

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Would things have been any different if Calligan had not come? she wondered. What would Philip have said to her that moment in the drawing-room had there been no interruption?

Only once did she succeed in meeting his eyes, and then the hard bitterness of them made her heart leap.

Was he—oh, could he be jealous after all? But he looked away so quickly she could not be sure.

It had come on to rain heavily when they left the restaurant, and there was trouble in getting taxis.

"We can't all go in one, that's very sure," Calligan said cheerily when only one was forthcoming. He looked round at Peter. "Who's going in this?" he asked. "Will you, Mrs. Winter-dick?"

Eva moved a step towards her husband. It required almost a physical effort for her to speak.

"Philip—shall we—will you—shall you and I—"

He looked down at her with dispassionate eyes.

"No, that's not fair!" he said, laughing a little wildly. "An old married couple like we are! I'm going to take Miss Arlington if she will have me."

Kitty laughed shrilly.

"Of course I will—come along!" She slipped a hand through his arm. Eva had fallen back. She was trembling so she could hardly stand. For a moment everything swam dizzily before her.

PITIFUL WRECK SAVED FROM EARLY GRAVE

"I couldn't sleep, my nerves were all unstrung, I was steadily losing weight."

"My husband is a mechanic and earns good wages," writes one woman. "We have six children between the ages of seven and fifteen. Both my husband and myself have denied ourselves actual necessities to give our children the best schooling we could afford. I have often stayed up all night making clothes for them or doing mending. Besides this, I have always done the washing and ironing for the eight of us. I also do the scrubbing and the cooking. The outcome of this was that I was doing more than any human being could stand and so broke down. I became a complete nervous wreck. I was reduced to a skeleton. I was in such a nervous, high strung condition that the least excitement would start me on a crying fit which I couldn't control. This breakdown meant keeping my children from school to help in the housework, because I couldn't do anything as the least exertion left me a wreck. I was the finest example of a complete nervous breakdown that you ever saw. Ever since that time I have been a wreck. I couldn't sleep, I had terrible headaches, I couldn't describe but can only be understood by those who have had it. I was so weak that I was ready to catch anything that was going. I tried several preparations but none of them did me any good. One day my husband came in and said, 'I see a preparation in a drug store called Carnol. No extraordinary claims are made for it and I have an idea it might do you good. Why don't you get a bottle? They say if it doesn't do you any good they will refund your money.' I believe that advice of my husband's saved my life because seven weeks after I started taking Carnol I was doing more work than I had ever done before and was feeling stronger than I ever felt in my life." Mrs. T.

"I can't—because . . ." She laughed a little wildly. "Well—because it's about you, you see."

"About me?" He sat staring straight ahead of him. "Well, if it's about me," he said lightly, "do exactly as you would prefer—I mean, decide which ever way you feel that you want to."

"You wouldn't say that if you knew what it was," she told him in a quivering voice.

"I should—whatever it was," he answered steadily. "I'm your friend—that is my mission in life. I often used to wonder what it really was—till I met you."

"People say that friendship between a man and a woman is impossible."

"Do they?" He sounded unconvinced. "We must be the exception that proves the rule then."

She looked at him half fearfully. His voice had sounded sincere and honest enough, and his eyes were quite steady as they met hers.

"If I could only be sure—sure . . ." she said almost in a whisper.

Sure that she was not going to irrevocably hurt him, she meant. Sure that this last desperate throw which was all there was left to her would not drag this man into the whirlpool of unhappiness that seemed to be engulfing them all.

"Look here," said Calligan simply. "I don't know what you are worrying about or what is in your mind, but—" he laid his hand over hers. "If there is anything I can do—anything that will be of the least use to you or help you—or make you the smallest bit happier don't hesitate to make use of it. That's why I'm here—"

He smiled suddenly, and for a moment his rather ordinary face looked almost beautiful.

"Honest Injun!" he said.

He pressed her hand hard for a moment, then rose. "I'll just go and see what the heavens are doing," he said.

He came back in a moment.

"Pouring cats and dogs," he said cheerily. "But I've told the gentleman in the shiny mackintosh that we can't wait any longer, and that it will pay him to see that the next stray cab is ours, so we may hope."

He sat down again beside her.

"And is the great decision made?" he said. "And if so, mayn't I know what it is?"

She shook her head.

"I'm afraid to tell you—Oh, please forget that I ever said anything about it."

"You mean that my friendship doesn't count?" he asked.

"I don't understand."

"You mean that you don't trust me sufficiently to be able to tell me this—whatever it is?"

"I do trust you—I trust you more than anyone in all the world."

He held out his hand.

"Then tell me."

A porter approached.

"We've got a taxi, sir . . ."

Eva rose with a sigh of relief; she put on her coat hurriedly.

Outside, the rain had abated; Calligan spoke to the driver just as they started.

eyes. Like one in a dream she saw Philip hand Kitty into the taxi—saw Peter push Calligan aside and follow them determinedly—and the next moment the cab had whirled away, and she and Calligan were left alone in the wet, chilly night.

CHAPTER XXXV.

"Well, that settles it," said Calligan ruefully. He looked down at Eva, but she had drawn the big collar of her coat closely round her throat and he could hardly see her face. The rain was teeming down again, and splashing up from the pavement in miniature waterpots.

"There'll be no chance of a cab yet, I'm afraid, Calligan said. "We'd better go back inside and wait."

He put his hand through Eva's arm and drew her back into the wide lounge from which they had just come. A good many people were in a similar plight; outside in the street there was a perpetual blowing of whistles; commissionaires in shiny mackintoshes dashed out into the rain now and then to try and command a passing taxicab.

Eva had sunk down on one of the wide, soft lounges; her mind was in a turmoil, her heart was throbbing with wounded pride.

She had made her poor little overture and it had been repulsed; it only showed how little that kiss on her hand had meant.

Never again! never again! she told herself wildly; she blamed herself cruelly for having broken through her determination even this once. Kitty did not seem to matter so much—she hardly considered her—but the deliberate snub from Philip had cut her to the soul.

"I've ordered more coffee," Calligan said, rejoicing her. "We may as well be as comfortable as we can. It's useless to think of going on for the present. Let me take your coat."

Eva unfastened it with stiff fingers and let him take it from her; she leaned back against the cushions and tried to shake off the feeling of faintness that was stealing over her.

Calligan's voice and kind eyes looked a long way off; she struggled out of the sea of mists feeling cold and shivering.

The hot coffee did her good—the colour stole back to her cheeks.

"I wonder where the others have gone?" Calligan said. "I never thought to ask . . ."

"I think they will probably go to the flat," Eva answered. "I heard Kitty tell Philip she would like to see it."

"I see. Well, Phil will show that you are safe with me."

"Yes." She hated the thought of Philip showing Kitty their home.

The one grain of comfort she could find lay in the knowledge that Peter was with them—poor Peter!

Calligan had not seen what had happened outside; he was blissfully unconscious of his companion's distress.

"What are you thinking about?" he asked presently.

She raised her eyes slowly to his face.

"I was just trying to—to make up my mind to something," she said.

"Well, what is the difficulty? Tell me and let me decide."

She turned her head away.

Headaches Gone

Perhaps you can imagine what this means to one who has suffered terribly with headaches for ten years.

Read about it in this letter.

Mrs. Tena A. Smith, Country Harbor Cross Roads, N. S., writes:

"I feel that if anyone can recommend Dr. Chase's medicines I certainly can. I suffered for ten years from severe headaches, and although I took all kinds of headache powders they just relieved me at the time. I became very nervous and run-down, and everything seemed to trouble me. I have taken eighteen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and it has made an entirely new person of me. I felt that I could not have lived without it. I do not have any headaches now for every hundred I used to have, and my nerves are good and strong. I just weighed 102 pounds when I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and now I weigh 121. Knowing what this treatment has done for me, I cannot too highly recommend it to others."

HIS DIARY.
February 16th.—To the office, where I find much work to be done. So to the Board of Trade, where meeting Hon. M. G. Winter, to have discourse with him of the Commission that enquires into the salt and other questions, and he the chairman of it. To my chirurgion, and he tells me that I need not be cut of the appendix, if so be, it is not my wish, at which, I in high good humour. So home, and find my wife dressed in a silly dress, and the skirt of it reaches barely below her knees, and she did it, I think, because her gown is gone to the tailor's, but, together with my being hungry, which always makes me peevish, it did make me angry. In the afternoon to a meeting about a War Memorial Dance, and I made the secretary of it, which I like not, seeing how I have so many divers things to attend to. Vexed and sickish, to bed.

Peace in Ireland Depends on England

Collins Asks for Fair Play -- New England State in Grip of Blizzard--Belfast Disorders Continue

GALE PROBABLE.
NEW YORK, Feb. 16. The Weather Bureau to-day warns that the disturbance now off Cape Hatteras was rapidly moving northward, and probably would reach a point of force this afternoon and tonight. Warnings were ordered Loistad between New York and Eastport, N.J.

BLIZZARD IN NEW JERSEY.
CAPE MAY, N.J., Feb. 16. The worst blizzard in several years struck Delaware Capes to-day. Nine inches of snow had fallen with a forty mile an hour wind.

COLLINS' MANIFESTO.
DUBLIN, Feb. 16. Michael Collins, head of the Provisional Government, to-night sent a telegram to Colonial Secretary Buxton which was in the nature of a manifesto to the British people, asking for fair play for the treaty in relation to the recent happenings in Ulster, and for appointment of blame to them in proper places. Alluding to suspension of evacuation of Ireland by British troops the message said:

Harmsworth understood British ship-owners were required to pay duties in gold, but he declined to answer the question whether German capitalists were behind the movement to purchase Portuguese shipping, and whether that had anything to do with increased duties.

DENMARK LABOUR TROUBLES.
COPENHAGEN, Feb. 16. A general lockout, declared yesterday throughout Denmark, affecting nearly all industries, and about 150,000 employees, had not up to this afternoon been met by the retaliatory move of a general strike, that some of the organizers of labour elements threatened. However, it is practically impossible to obtain fuel here and as a consequence the bread supply is endangered. The trouble arose because of an attempted twenty per cent. cut in wages with longer hours.

26 RELEASED.
LONDON, Feb. 16. Winston Churchill told the House of Commons to-day that according to latest information 26 of the kidnapped Unionists of Ulster had been returned through the efforts of the Provisional Government. He said both Southern and Northern Governments had agreed there should be an impartial investigation of last Saturday's shooting in Clones, accordingly he had notified them that the Imperial Government could place at their disposal any suitable judicial officer on whom they might agree.

BELFAST'S DAILY TRAGEDIES.
BELFAST, Feb. 16. The day opened with the death of a five year old child who was struck by a bullet yesterday while playing in the street. A workman proceeding along the street was shot dead at 8 o'clock.

EXCHANGE RATES.
NEW YORK, Feb. 16. The Canadian dollar was quoted here to-day at three and eleven sixteenths per cent. discount, the lowest quotation since November 1919. The pound sterling was quoted at 4.54 1/2.

WOOD ALCOHOL.
RIDGEFIELD PARK, N.J., Feb. 16. Five residents of this town have died from drinking poisonous liquor, obtained from some source in the last five days, it was learned to-day.

INDICTED.
NEW YORK, Feb. 16. George L. Rickard (Tex), fight promoter, to-day was indicted for criminal assault on two minor girls by the Supreme Court Grand Jury. Rickard pleaded not guilty to both indictments. He was held on $10,000 bail.

THE ILL-FATED ASQUITH.
PLYMOUTH, Eng., Feb. 16. Abandonment of the Newfoundland schooner Asquith in mid-Atlantic and land's cause a century, were made in the House of Commons to-day by Winston Churchill. Such an occurrence was not at all likely, however, in the opinion of the British Government, he said.

A VISION OF UNITY.
LONDON, Feb. 16. The Archbishop of York announces that a small committee of Bishops and representatives of the free churches in investigating the foundations of christian thought and belief, whereon true unity alone can be gained. The Archbishop says he hopes and prays that the distinguished scholar who has been called to the high office of the Papacy will be so guided as to set forward a kindred cause of peace for the distracted world with a divided church.

BREACH OF CONTRACT CLAIM.
TOLEDO, OHIO, Feb. 16. The appointment of a receiver for the United Brotherhood of maintenance of way employees and railway shop labourers is asked in a petition filed in Federal Court here late yesterday by the Bacon Brothers Company, of Toledo, it became known to-day. The company claims damages from the union for breach of contract.

LIGHTS HIS OWN FUNERAL PYRE.
ROCHESTER, N.Y., Feb. 16. Building his own funeral pyre of shavings, seven feet high, Joseph Perry, a farmer living near here, ignited the shavings and laid down on them. When neighbours discovered the fire Perry had been burned to death and part of his barn destroyed.

HARDING FAVOURS SALES TAX.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 16. President Harding informed Congress to-day he considered a general sales tax the only feasible means for raising funds for the proposed bonus to ex-soldiers.

A POSSIBLE COUP D'ETAT.
LONDON, Feb. 16. Predictions that a coup d'etat in Ireland, which resulted in setting up of a Soviet Republic, would ruin Ire-

Enjoyable Dance.
A very enjoyable dance was held last night at the Nurses Home by the Sisters and Nurses of the General Hospital. A large number of friends were invited and the affair proved a decided success. The music was supplied by Mr. Wm. Cooper. During intermission an excellent supper was served after which dancing was resumed and continued until an early hour this morning, when the gathering dispersed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King.

TARTAR.

"Tartar" is a lime-like substance that forms on the teeth. It is composed of saliva, phosphate of lime, etc., and becomes attached to the teeth near the salivary duct. It is porous like a sponge and holds particles of food which decompose and taint the breath with an offensive odor. This tartar once formed increases, always in the direction of the gums; first inflaming them, then causing them to puff up and recede from the teeth, and finally by absorption of the bony sockets, to cause good, sound teeth to drop out for want of support.

Nelson's Flagship

POWED INTO DRY DOCK FOR EXAMINATION.

In accordance with the plan announced in the "News of the World" recently, Nelson's famous flagship, Victory, has been placed in dry dock in Portsmouth Dockyard for examination. Great interest was taken in the operation, as upon the condition of the ancient hull below the water line will depend whether the authorities are able to make her sufficiently sound to be restored to moorings in a sheltered position in the harbour. There are those who believe that she will never again be seen afloat, but a movement in foot to urge the authorities to return her to harbour, the view being expressed that the Dockyard Construction Department can make her sufficiently watertight to permit her weathering the tides for many years yet to come. In this they have the support of the watermen, whose living has depended entirely upon conveying visitors to and from the Victory. The old flagship was last dry docked in 1903, and it is interesting to note that the dock in which she now stands, and which is known in the service as "King Charles" Dock, was in existence in the early days of the yard, when the docking of wooden ships, similar to Nelson's flagship, was a frequent occurrence.

Municipal Council

WEEKLY MEETING.

The weekly meeting of the City Council was held yesterday afternoon. Mayor Cook presided and Councillors Martin, Outerbridge, Viscocomb, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present. A communication was read from the Prime Minister in reference to expropriation of land for widening the South Side Road, asking the Council if they would make arrangements to secure the necessary land so that the relief work may be proceeded with. Taking into consideration present condition of city's finances and of the fact that lands expropriated during relief work of last year have not as yet been paid for, the Council considered they would not be justified in incurring further liability on the Municipality in this connection.

Walter Gosse called attention to the dangerous condition of Plymouth Road, near St. Joseph's Hall through projecting posts. The City Engineer was instructed to give the matter immediate attention.

Application of T. Rolls for work in connection with the Sanitary Department was ordered filed.

Attention of the Board was drawn to condition of Water Street sidewalks. The Inspector is to place names of persons who have ignored the regulations in the hands of the Solicitor so that legal proceedings may be instituted.

By-Laws are to be prepared for submission to the Board in connection with sidewalks generally in other parts of the city.

The matter of outstanding arrears was again the subject of much discussion. The City Clerk reported satisfactory results were being obtained, many parties having called at the office daily in response to notification sent them and arrangements made for payment. Those who have ignored the notice sent them will be promptly dealt with when the time allowed expires.

Specifications were ordered prepared so that tenders may be called for repairs to Job's Bridge.

Reports of the City Engineer, Health Officer and Sanitary Superintendent were read, requisitions for various departments were accepted; accounts presented were ordered paid, after which the meeting adjourned.

Eddie McGinley

Scores a Home Run

FAMOUS BASEBALL-COMEDIAN AT CRESCENT.

Last night the Crescent was again thronged to the doors with expectant movie fans to see Eddie McGinley in a new vaudeville bill. Eddie had his audience in roars of laughter from start to finish with his original jokes and funny stories. His songs again brought down the house. His wit, his catchiness are the talk of the town. Unlike the usual vaudeville artist Eddie is possessed with a splendid voice which he finds a great asset to his work. He can compose songs at a minutes notice and sing them to any air suggested by the audience. In short he is an all round artist. Tonight he will appear in new turns and has a few surprises in store for those who attend the popular Crescent. For a good hearty laugh and an excellent cure for the "blues" see Eddie McGinley.

A Week-End With the Nickel Vocalists.

ATTRACTIVE VOCAL PROGRAM WILL BE RENDERED.

Miss Ruth Chase and Mr. George Dale have prepared a choice program of popular and celebrated selections for the week-end at the Nickel and patrons are assured of a splendid entertainment both in the line of song as well as pictures.

Robert Warwick in kitties is a feature of "The Fourteenth Man," the picture which is at the Nickel tonight. He has the role of an officer in a Highland regiment whose habit of always helping out the underdog gets him into difficulties and forces him to flee the country. In America he encounters more adventures, including a set-to in a prize ring and a certain pretty girl. However, all ends happily.

Bebe Daniels is the leading woman and a clever cast surrounds Mr. Warwick. It is a Paramount Artcraft picture.

A comedy drama that will appeal to picture lovers of all ages is "The Little Clown," the latest Mary Miles Minter release, which is also at the Nickel.

There is love interest in the story, of course, but the picture is happily lacking in any of the "sex" which has brought reproach on many of the most stuporous motion picture productions of the last year or two.

All children love motion pictures, and parents may well be grateful to Realart for the clean, wholesome stories in which they present Miss Minter.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—In reference to an item appearing in the Evening Telegram of the 16th inst. and headed "Each man pays 20c. a week," we the undersigned Committee wish to say a few words regarding same. We would first like to state that it is obvious by certain statements made in the above item, that your informant was not present at the meeting of the Citizen's Committee held in the Board of Trade rooms on Tuesday night, Feb. 14th, otherwise his conception of a largely attended meeting is very vague, because as a matter of fact there was only seven members of the Citizen's Committee present at the above mentioned meeting. It is true, Mr. Editor, that the delegate stated, that the unemployed committee should have a representative on the Citizen's Committee, and the Unemployed Committee to work for nothing. You will please note, Mr. Editor, that we stated above every man, but unfortunately we have in our ranks "pickers," who do not class with the men, and again we would like to state for your informant's information that the first week we only had about 650 working amongst which number there was a certain percentage who did not fulfill their promise. The second week there was about 800 working, the third the same number as the second, and on Monday past the starting of the fourth week, there was an additional 150 men put to work temporarily for one week only. So they are not included in the voluntary subscribers. And again let your informant kindly remember that this Committee worked strenuously for the week-end at the Nickel and never received one cent in remuneration for their services.

Yes, Mr. Editor, it is obvious that this Committee through its efforts desire to get as many men to work as possible, but not for the insinuating purpose with which your informant states, but because they deem it their duty to do so, and furthermore they believe that this work would not have been started yet, if it had not been for the men who receive that 20c. per week.

In conclusion we wish to convey on behalf of the men we represent, our sincere thanks to the Government and also to the Citizen's Committee for their close co-operation in handling this very serious problem of unemployment. We would deem it a favor, Mr. Editor, if you would publish if possible the cash statement of this Committee submitted with this letter. Thanking you for your very valuable time and space, we remain,

Yours truly,
THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF UNEMPLOYED,

Fashion Plates.

A STYLE GOOD FOR MANY OCCASIONS.

3331-3377. A frock like this may be worn at formal and informal "functions." Made of velvet and brocade it is smart as a dinner gown. In gabardine, with floss silk embroidery, or in serge with braid trimming, it is fine for street or afternoon wear. The blouse has the new wide sleeve. The lines of the skirt are straight, but provide graceful fullness. This design is fine for remodeling. The cape may be omitted.

The Waist Pattern, 3331 is cut in 6 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The Skirt 3377, in 7 Sizes: 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34 and 36 inches waist measure. The width of the skirt at the foot is 54 inches. To make this dress for a medium size of one material, will require 6 yards of 36 inch material. To make as illustrated will require 3 3/4 yards of plain, and 3/4 yards of figured material, 27 inches wide.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 15c. FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

A COMBINATION OF COMFORT, PRACTICAL STYLE AND UTILITY.

3222-3795-3838. What could be more desirable for sports use or general wear, than a suit as here depicted. Comfortable knickers to which a simple blouse is joined, and over which a smart skirt is buttoned, topped by a jaunty jacket, with a convertible collar, and neat pockets. Not only for golf and other sports are the knickers popular, they are filling a long felt want in general dress lines. The Skirt may be finished with a "button clipping" in front, or only trimmed with buttons. Any blouse may be used with the "knickers" in place of the one attached, and the knickers are "good" to wear with any skirt or one piece dress. Serge, velours, duvetyn or gabardine may be used for all models illus-

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

MAGNANIMOUS. WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. United States, Great Britain, Japan and France, as parties to the four power Pacific Treaty, have formally notified Portugal and the Netherlands that they are 'firmly resolved' to respect the rights of those two nations in the Pacific, in the same way that the rights of the four principal powers are to be respected under the treaty.

DIVERSITY OF SENTIMENT.

DUBLIN, Feb. 17. Michael Collins has received a telegram from Thomas Lyons, Secretary of the American Association for the recognition of the Irish Republic, stigmatising as an unqualified falsehood the statement conveyed to Mr. Collins from Dr. Patrick M. Donovan of New York, in a message yesterday, that eighty-five per cent. of the American Association supported a free state. Mr. Lyons declared that the National Executive, and all state conventions, have hitherto supported a republic. Collins has replied to this, by saying that it is evident, from numerous cablegrams, that the free state has immense support in the American Association, the President of which confirms Dr. Donovan.

CRAIG MOVES AMENDMENT.

LONDON, Feb. 17. In moving the second reading of the Irish Free State Bill in the Commons yesterday, Winston Churchill laid stress on the necessity of giving effect to the treaty by clothing the Provisional Government with powers, and enabling it to hold an election as soon as possible. Capt. Charles Craig, leader of the Ulster Unionists, moved an amendment that the House decline to proceed with the second reading until the Government gave assurance that provision for the creation of the boundary commission should only take effect after any decision of the boundary commission should only take effect after approval of the Northern Parliament had been given. Captain Craig predicted that if the commission did anything more than make the most inevitable changes in the boundary, the inevitable result would be bloodshed and chaos.

A STRONG PROTEST.

BELFAST, Feb. 17. The executive of Sinn Fein in Belfast have sent a telegram to Professor John McNeill, Speaker of Dail Eireann in Dublin as follows: 'On behalf of religious and political minority in Belfast, forming 100,000 citizens, we protest against misleading and lying statements contained in a telegram addressed by Craig (Sir James Craig) to the Premier of England, in which he states that recent murderous atrocities, to which our people have been subjected, were the outcome of raids in Tyrone and Fermanagh, and the affair at Clones station. We assert that it can be easily proved that our people were being murdered almost daily, for a week, before either of the occurrences mentioned. Furthermore, we are convinced that Craig deliberately made this misrepresentation for the purpose of excusing or justifying the cruel and cold blooded murders being inflicted on a minority in this city, on whose behalf we speak.'

Also, they could get the best expert opinion as to how much power was actually there, and then advertise to the world the fact, offering a lease to the company that would pay most for it.

The Law and Lotteries.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—As several persons have been asking me how the action of certain bakers in putting tickets in some of their loaves constitutes a breach of the Lottery Act, I thought it well to write a few notes on the law relating to lotteries. Lotteries were allowed in England at one time. In fact, the Bank of England was once saved by a lottery. About the beginning, however, of the nineteenth century all lotteries were forbidden, except those run by the Government, and an end was put to these also about the year 1825. For many years lotteries were allowed in Newfoundland by permission of the Magistrate. All lotteries were, however, forbidden by an amendment passed at the beginning of the present century. The amendment was introduced by the late Hon. H. J. B. Woods. Last year a further amendment was made to the law permitting lotteries in certain cases.

WHAT IS A LOTTERY.

Now, what is a lottery? In the first place, it is of the essence of a lottery that it must be decided by pure chance. In the second place, the lottery must be for a valuable consideration. Thirdly, the gains or losses of those who participate must be unequal. The form of the lottery does not matter, if the above conditions apply. By 'pure chance' I mean that nobody shall exercise judgment or skill. If everyone, for instance, chooses freely the name of the ship which he thinks will arrive first, that would not constitute a lottery. Cutting cards for stakes would be a lottery. A game in which hands are dealt and the best poker hand wins the pool would be a lottery. If, however, the players bid on their hands, that would be an exercise of skill and judgment and would not be a lottery. Gambling does not always take the form of a lottery. Betting—whether legal as in the race course, or illegal as in England at the doors of a factory—is always gambling and never a lottery. The lottery must be for valuable consideration. If a party of young men decide, by tossing a coin whether they shall turn to the right or take the turning to the left when out for a walk, they do not participate in a lottery. Unequal gain is of the very essence of a lottery. I do not necessarily include the person running the lottery. I mean that there must be some who lose more or gain more than other ticket holders. If every person for the same expenditure gets the same number of coupons of the same value, that would not be a lottery either though the person selling the coupons—should get a profit or advantage thereby. When I say advantage I include the advantage gained from the advertisement. An auction is not a lottery. In the first place, every one bidding is supposed to use his judgment when to stop. In the second place only one person can possibly lose or gain at an auction—excluding, of course, the person conducting the auction and those for whom he is acting. Lotteries may be of many forms, such as cards, dice, wheel of fortune, the drawing of the longest or shortest straw, and events such as the arrival of a steamer or the number of flies that will in a given time pitch on a lump of sugar. In Newfoundland there are two classes of lotteries, namely the legal and the illegal. Legal lotteries must fall within one of the following classes:— 1. When the heirs of a deceased person or the owners of a joint property decide by lot who shall have first choice. 2. When the fishermen in any locality having lawfully marked out trap berths decide by lot as to the persons who shall set their traps in the different berths. 3. When a licence has been legally granted by a magistrate. All other lotteries are illegal.

WHEN AUTHORITY APPROVES.

The Magistrate may licence any person to conduct a lottery provided that such person shall satisfy him that the lottery will be properly conducted and that the net proceeds will be devoted to a lawful purpose. The net proceeds are found by deducting the value of the prizes, reasonable expenses and a reasonable commission from the gross takings. The Magistrate may make any reasonable condition he may see fit—such as the possible for the amount of the ticket. No one can sue for the prize. Anyone can withdraw from an illegal lottery at any time before or after the event, provided it is before the prize has been distributed, and he may get back all the money he put into the lottery, but no more. Anyone may sue a person who conducts an unlawful lottery and is entitled to half the fine. Advertising a lottery which is not lawful is an offence, and in some cases a newspaper item may amount to an advertisement. A person who cheats at a lottery, or at any game of chance, lawful or unlawful, may be indicted for obtaining money by a false pretence. Betting on a sure thing, though unprofitable, is not a breach of the law unless the bettor does or says something calculated to deceive. One of the stock arguments used by extremists is that what their opponents call a reasonable law will be no better observed than the extreme law. I think that the public should show them that they are wrong. In this way we shall do away with a lot of fanciful legislation. In any way could be devised to regulate lotteries for gain—that is, lotteries which give a profit to private individuals conducting them—there could be little objection to the lottery run by the bakers. Until then, we shall have to observe the law.

Don't Fail To-Night.

Just as a reminder to those who wish to put in a couple of hours of real enjoyment and pleasure, we merely suggest that they buy tickets for the play "Billeted," which is being repeated at the Casino Theatre to-night. The object no less than the play itself should be sufficient attraction for all those who believe in the advantages of education, when applied to the orphans and Mount Cashiel is an institution which deserves all the support that the public can give. So go and see "Billeted" to-night and help the cause.

A Contradiction.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—We wish through the columns of your paper to contradict a statement in the "Twillingate Sun" in January's issue where it says that the Government bungled by sending the Prospero to Springdale for herring, as she got caught in the Bay by so doing or words to that effect. We wish to say to the Prospero went around Cape John to LaSce, after taking every herring from Springdale, and we believe the Captain reported no ice in sight when he went around Cape John. Capt. Field did the best he could, and no man is exempt from making mistakes, not even the Editor of the "Sun." We write this as an explanation. Springdale was about as clear of ice as it would be in summer as far as hindering the Prospero goes when she last left this.

World's Wonder Liner.

Facts About a Floating Palace. The decision that such a scheme advertising constitutes a lottery rests on a case tried years ago in England and in this case—Hunt vs. Williams—is cited in all the courts of the Empire and in those of the United States. Hunt, the appellant before the higher court, had been sending candy to a penny package. Every package contained a real pennyworth of candy. In addition, some of the packages also contained a penny and some a half-penny. Thus every purchaser was not treated alike and the judges decided that this method of advertisement was a breach of the lottery law.

THE MUTUAL FORM.

Now I have left to the last consideration of a particular class of lottery, namely the mutual one. By a mutual lottery I mean one in which all the money collected is paid out in prizes. It seems the least objectionable form of lottery. I am not prepared to say whether such a lottery would come under the clause relating to property owned by joint owners. If so, it would require no licence at all; but in that case it would be unlawful to give anyone a free ticket or to return him a percentage on the prize, or even to deduct the expenses. If it is desired to give the person running the lottery something for his trouble, the best thing, in my opinion, to do is to set aside some portion of the takings for charitable or other lawful purpose and then apply for licence. Both expenses and commission could then be deducted. Any ticket holder can sue the stakeholder in an illegal lottery for the actual amount he paid for his ticket; but he cannot sue after the prize money has been given to the winner unless he first notifies the stakeholder. In any case when the stakeholder is so notified he is responsible for the amount of the ticket. No one can sue for the prize. Anyone can withdraw from an illegal lottery at any time before or after the event, provided it is before the prize has been distributed, and he may get back all the money he put into the lottery, but no more. Anyone may sue a person who conducts an unlawful lottery and is entitled to half the fine. Advertising a lottery which is not lawful is an offence, and in some cases a newspaper item may amount to an advertisement. A person who cheats at a lottery, or at any game of chance, lawful or unlawful, may be indicted for obtaining money by a false pretence. Betting on a sure thing, though unprofitable, is not a breach of the law unless the bettor does or says something calculated to deceive. One of the stock arguments used by extremists is that what their opponents call a reasonable law will be no better observed than the extreme law. The greatest difficulty in sailing the ship will be experienced when entering port. From twelve to twenty tons will be required to get her berthed safely in New York Harbor. The Majestic is one of the vessels which were taken over from the Germans. She was built in 1914, was named the Bismarck, and was bought from the Government by the White Star Line for something like a million pounds. When she sails from Plymouth to New York next April she will be under the command of Sir Bertam Hayes, whose career has been as romantic as that of the great liner he will control. At present in charge of the Olympic, he was born at Birkenhead and went to sea at the age of sixteen on board a sailing barge.

Next Week Children's Week.

AT THE PRINCE'S RINK.

IN view of the many times that it has unfortunately been necessary, on account of soft weather, to close the rink in the afternoons this season in order to have ice for some important fixture, the management have decided that next week will be "Children's Week" at the rink, and the boat will be on the other foot—in other words the rink will open every afternoon (if there is any ice at all) and if league and other evening fixtures have to be postponed. It is hoped to give the kiddies a fair share, and hockeyists and other sports who are going to kick at a decision are reminded of the fact that it had been necessary to close the rink four afternoons out when they were kids, the chances they would not be playing hockey skating to-day.

In connection with the holding of "Children's Week" next week, Mr. Campbell has good news to be undertaken to stand the cost of Bennett's Band for the children on the afternoon: Mr. Bennett and his associates who have already given services free to the children on the last two Saturday afternoons, have intended to play free one afternoon next week and the rink will give the band for the other four afternoons. The afternoon sessions began at 3 o'clock sharp on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, and at 2:30 on Wednesday and Saturday.

"Children's Week" will close with a Children's Carnival on Saturday, February 25th, at which ten prizes will be offered for the best costumes.

MISS ANGELA McGRATH "WATCH
ED" BY B.L.S.

By the S.S. Rosalind, which sailed from here on Wednesday night, there went as passenger to New York Miss Angela McGrath, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. McGrath of this city. Miss McGrath goes to New York for the purpose of perfecting her studies in Dramatic Art, Physical and General Culture Courses, and to this effect, will enter the New York School of Music and Arts, which institution stands supremely first in the States the cultivation of music and fine arts to the highest degree of perfection, engaging as it does, some of the most famous instructors both of Europe and America. From babyhood Miss McGrath has been a pupil of the Academy of Our Lady of Mercy, 3511-tary Road, where under the excellent training and most refined environment of that institute, those natural talents which she possesses, were fostered and encouraged, so that the many thousands who witnessed her different appearances on the stage, with the I.S. Knights of Columbus, and Llewellyn Dramatic Companies, are loud in their praises of her more than ordinary ability, though she only attained her sixteenth birthday in September last. Seldom do we find in one young such perfect acting as displayed by her with the B.I.S. Dramatic Club, in the "Old Homestead," "Daughter of Erin," "Deacon Dubbs," and "Under the Gaslight," and with the Llewellyn Dramatic Company in "What Happened to Jones." Besides these performances, when but a mere tot at school, she always played a leading part with marked success in the different school plays of her Alma Mater.

On the evening of her departure for New York a deputation from the B.I.S. Club called at her home and presented her with a very valuable gold wrist-watch, handsomely engraved, as a mark of appreciation of her services, and as an evidence of the esteem in which she is held by them.

Apart from numerous school friends and others who called to bid her success, and say good-bye, many members of the B.I.S. went on board the Rosalind just before sailing to wish her bon voyage. It is Miss McGrath's intention after the completion of her course to return to her native land. She is accompanied by her brother, Wilfrid, who goes to New York on a short visit to friends.

Race Horse Took Fright.

On Wednesday morning quite a number of horsemen had their animals on the course at Quidi Vidi practicing for the coming meet. Amongst those present were Messrs. Macpherson, Parkins and Brennan. A colt owned by the latter took fright and dashed up the pond at a mad pace. At the head of the Lake the animal was stopped at great risk by Messrs. T. Kearsey and E. Cooper, who were on their way to witness a flight by airman Cotton. The rig to which the colt was attached was considerably damaged.

Says Paris Innocent of Murder.

While relentless time hastens the day of his execution, March 30, John Paris, the colored boy convicted of murder of nine-year-old Sadie McCauley in St. John last summer, passes the hours reading from his bible and practicing writing by copying verses from hymn books. While friends in both New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are working hard to procure a new trial, the convicted young man sits in the condemned cell of the St. John county jail patiently awaiting the day when he will be led to the scaffold, resigned to his fate yet maintaining his innocence and declaring that he will face his Maker with no sin upon his soul.

Bravest of the Brave.

LEADER OF AIR SQUADRON DIES OF PNEUMONIA.

The Air Ministry mourns the death of one of the bravest men who ever entered the service, Group-Capt. Alan John Lance Scott, commander during the war of the famous 60 Squadron, in which Colonel Bishop, Capt. Ball, and Major McCudden won their V.C.'s, fell a victim to pneumonia. He was an intimate friend of Lord Birkenhead, with whom he returned recently from St. Moritz, and it was on his way home that he contracted the disease. Capt. Scott at the outbreak of the war was a Regular officer attached to the Sussex Yeomanry. He immediately transferred to the Royal Flying Corps on its formation, but before he could get to France he had a bad crash and broke both his legs. He left for France as a flight-commander in the autumn of 1916, and rose by rapid promotion to the command of that great unit, the 60 Squadron. He was awarded an M.C. while fighting with his unit, but not long after was again seriously wounded and invalided home. He was piloting Mr. Winston Churchill in July, 1919, when the machine crashed at Croydon. He was badly hurt. One of the most fascinating books of the war—"The History of 60 Squadron"—written by Capt. Scott last year, will remain to perpetuate the memory of this famous aviator. At the time of his death he was Air Secretary at the Ministry, which carries with it the post of principal private secretary to the Secretary of State for Air.—News of the World.

Blair's
NEW SALE SYSTEM
of
"DIFFERENT SELLING"

MEANS BARGAIN PRICES FOR YOU.

Owing to changing and present conditions of business, we are considering this year running our merchandising and selling differently. Part of this change will be the cleaning up of goods of which we have an overstock, or goods the season of which is passing, at prices which will not necessarily mean any consideration of the cost of these goods. Customers will however note that all such prices can hardly be expected to be held indefinitely and they will do well to seek advantage of same early. In our "Different Selling" Campaign we also aim to achieve other results which will be unfolded later.

We open our "Different Selling" Campaign with the following Reductions and Bargains:

- CORTICELLI WOOL in balls. Regular 25c., at19c. ball
- LADIES' ENGLISH WOOL GLOVES. Regular $1.25 and $1.35 pair, at89c. and 99c. pair
- LADIES' BLACK FLEECE WOOL CASHMERE GLOVES. sizes 6 to 8, at the ridiculously low price of35c. pair only
- MEN'S TAN LINED KID GLOVES, as sold elsewhere at $3.00 to $3.50 pair. Blair's "Different Selling Price" $1.95 pair
- LADIES' BUTTONED GAITERS—Medium heel; sizes 2 1/2 to 6. Regular $3.60 for $2.95 pair
- LADIES' HIGHEST QUALITY RUBBERS—Medium and high heels. Regular $1.30 to $1.40 pair. Now $1.10 pair
- LADIES' WHITE CASHMERE STANFIELD COMBINATIONS. Price last year was $7.00, this year $5.50. Blair's "Different Selling Price" to clear only $3.95
- WOMEN'S WHITE AND NATURAL CASHMERE "NEW KNIT" WOOL VESTS AND PANTS—Prices ranged from $2.00 to $2.80. Now only $1.25 each
- WOMEN'S WHITE FLEECE VESTS AND DRAWERS. "Blair's Different Selling Price" 63c. each only
- WOMEN'S BLACK AND NAVY SERGE SKIRTS. Our price was $9.50 each—as they were bought when Serges were high. Our price now is $3.50
- These are Wool Serges makes and this ridiculously low price is under present cost. We don't expect many will be left now.
- We are also chopping the prices of all other Costume Skirts to reduce the quantity we have in stock.
- WOMEN'S AND CHILDREN'S WINTER COATS. If you are interested in these, we are offering them at ridiculously low prices rather than carry them over till next season.

Boys' Winter Overcoats

Never Again Will You Get Such an Offer.
BOYS' LONG WINTER OVERCOATS—All with good Italian linings; ages 8 to 17 years, only $5.90 each
It is unnecessary to say these cannot be made at this price.

Men's Winter Overcoats

LONG LENGTHS, WELL LINED.
One Coat was priced last season at $22.00. We are clearing it up now $7.50 each only
Other Men's Overcoats we offer you now at $12.00 and $15.00 each
The $15.00 ones were priced last season at $35.00.

Ladies' Fur Sets, Collars & Muffs at HALF PRICE.

Owing to so many Fur Collars being worn on coats and so many Wool Scarves being used now, Fur Sales have been off the past two seasons. We are clearing up our stock of Furs at absolutely HALF PRICE only, as our highest price. Never again will you have Fur Values like these offered you.
It hits us, really, to have to make some of these prices, but we are out to give you values that you will always remember.
DON'T WAIT! BUY EARLY! AND AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT.

The Prince at Madras.

PICTURESQUE GREETINGS FROM NATIVE CHILDREN.

Madras, like other places, has succumbed to the charm of the personality of the Prince of Wales. Remarkable enthusiasm, for instance, was shown for the Prince when he inspected the boy scouts and the girl guides at Government House. In mass horse-shoe formation the boys and girls greeted the Prince with a chorus of "Madras welcomes you." After various evolutions, "cub bows" and much cheering, the Prince addressed a few words to the delighted youngsters. Less than half an hour later His Royal Highness was inspecting 12,000 European and Madras school-children gathered on the side of the "island" bordering the river Cooum. On his arrival a dainty, richly-dressed little Indian girl presented him with a bouquet. When the Prince had ridden around the "island" a group of children gave a display of Indian gymnastics, and the European children sang "God bless the Prince of Wales." It was a very pretty picture, amid a vivid tropical environment, upon which the sun beat in tingling splendor. Shortly before noon the Prince reviewed about 800 police on the "island." Contingents from the city, the "Mofussil," and Chingleput districts formed three sides of a square facing the Munro statue, and the Prince proceeded through the ranks, occasionally pausing to speak to the men. His Royal Highness next turned his attention to a parade of ex-Service men, and some of them with distinguished records were presented to him by the Officer Commanding the Pensioners' Camp. The most interesting event, however, was the inspection of the First Battalion of the Prince of Wales' Leinster Regiment (Royal Canadians). On entering Fort St. George by the Wallajah gate, the Prince was received with a royal salute, after which the usual ceremonial evolutions were carried out. Before lunching at the officers' mess the Prince visited St. Mary's, the FIRST ENGLISH CHURCH IN INDIA, which was finished in 1680. He saw there the tombs of the missionary Schwartz, Sir Thomas Munro, Sir Henry Ward, and Lord Pigot and Herbert. He also inspected the stone which is still on the original site where Elihu Yale was buried, whose father founded Yale College, America. Leaving this momentous edifice, the Prince looked in at the sergeants' mess of the Leinster Regiment, and stayed there for a brief while chatting. Madras, languorous in a deep heat, is amused at the morning activity of the Prince. Although he was dancing in the Adyar Club until midnight, he was away snipe-shooting on the Ghats, 30 miles off, early next morning. In the afternoon he attended the races at Guindy, being heartily cheered all along the five miles route and receiving a great ovation on his arrival at the course, about which he strolled freely. In the evening he dined with the members of the Madras Club, and was much amused at the traditional custom of tossing the Governor over the bar counter—said to be the longest in India—"just to show equality." From the terrace he watched a grand fireworks display upon the island, afterwards motoring to the Central Station, where amid a crescendo of enthusiasm, he left for Bangalore, the first stage on his track through Central India.—News of the World.

A FORM OF PAINLESS GIVING.

What fun anyone with an imagination can have making a will. It is such a pleasant way of giving things away without having to give them up—in fact one of the few forms of painless giving I know.

And when I speak of making a will I do not mean necessarily a formal instrument disposing of portentous sums of money. That must be fun, too, but even if one has little or no money it is interesting and worthwhile to make plans for the disposition of one's little treasures in a way that will prevent any possible ill feeling among one's relatives; and will give whatever trifles one has to leave a special value in the minds of those to whom they go because each thing will carry with it the assurance of one's thoughtfulness and regard for the recipient.

We All Have Treasures. I know a woman who greatly enjoys making a will every two or three years leaving the pretties she has accumulated to different friends and relatives. Her new evening gown is to go to a friend who is very near her heart and favors the same colors she does. Her fur coat is to be left to one of her in-laws who would never have a fur coat otherwise. Her dearly loved wrist watch is to go to her favorite niece. The amber beads which are her choicest treasures are to go to one sister and her lovely new travelling bag to another.

One might think that in any respectable family a mere list of what one wishes done with one's little treasures would be binding on the natural heirs without legal formalities, but such is the instinctive acquisitiveness, such is the ability of human nature to justify itself in any course it wants to follow, that one cannot always be sure.

How Is This for Meanness? I know a case where a legal will was made disposing of a few little treasures and a few hundred dollars, which the wife had earned herself. Her mother outlived her and the wife left the money to her as she greatly needs it. The husband who dislikes his mother-in-law is trying to get the court to let him use the money for funeral expenses. Yet he is distinctly well to do. How is that for the kind of meanness that may crop up in the most respectable family?

Better make your will legal, if you can, and then when you are thinking how your heirs will bless you in that time (which you are willing to contemplate in this hazy way but do not seriously expect ever to come) when they are given your little pretties with a touching message—your visions need not be marred by a doubt as to whether they will ever get them, after all.

THE SPEEDING YEAR.

WALT MARCH

It's labeled Nineteen-Twenty-Two, this blessed year of grace, and it will soon be out of view, so swiftly does it race, to join the sad and phantom crew in Time's dark dumping place. So let us waste no useful days, but clinch them as they pass, and saw our wood and hoe our maize, and cut all kinds of grass, or in our old age we shall raise the future's cheap alas. Our years of usefulness are few, soon fails the strong man's vim, and lethargy attacks the thew, and feeble grows the limb; so mark the days of Twenty-two, and nail them as they skim. How mournful is the pilgrim hoar, who for lost chances weeps? How futile is the bustled bore who in the porchouse slumbers! The year that's gone comes back no more, it's looped the loops for keeps. So let us labor with our hands, and with our heads and feet, in offices or peanut stands, in fields of shredded wheat; and when old age upon us lands, we'll find life's winter sweet. The brave new year is speeding by, its cylinders all lit, it's climbing all the hills on high, and throwing dust and grit; so grab the bright hours as they fly, the minutes as they fit.

Collector of Old Line-of-Battle Ships

As far as is known, there is but one man in the world whose hobby is the collection of old line-of-battle ships. His father collected old castles. He is G. Wheatley Cobb, and he dwells in the frigate Foudroyant, moored in Falmouth harbor, England.

When the British Admiralty would have sold the old vessel to the wreckers, Mr. Cobb bought her.

She is, in fact, the last of the thirty-eight gun frigates built in the early years of the nineteenth century. When Mr. Cobb bought her she was called the frigate Trincomalee, because she was built in India, and he renamed her Foudroyant, in memory of the two-decker, 80-gun Foudroyant, in which Lord Nelson hoisted his flag in 1799.

That very ship, Nelson's Foudroyant, of which Nelson wrote that she was the finest in the world to be alongside the largest and finest of French two-deckers, was actually in Mr. Cobb's possession. Her end was as tragic as her beginning was splendid. In 1797, while the Foudroyant was building, Nelson chose her to be his flagship. Had she been completed in time, he would have carried Nelson's flag at the battle of the Nile.

In 1798 Foudroyant commanded by Capt. Sir T. B. B. helped to defeat Commodore Donop's expedition to Ireland. Foudroyant served in the Mediterranean under the great Lord St. Vincent, took her share in the blockade of Cadiz, and in watching the French fleet in Toulon. In Toulon harbor some years earlier had lain the French two-decker Duguay-Trouin, which afterwards became the British Implacable, and which Mr. Cobb has also collected. After Toulon, Foudroyant went to Palermo, where Lord Nelson shifted his flag from the Vanguard to Foudroyant, which he placed under the command of Captain Hardy.

A NOTABLE HISTORY.

Then the Foudroyant became the seat of the government of the kingdom of the Two Sicilies whose king and queen dwelt on board, flying their help available. Mr. Cobb heard her cables part, one after the other. . . . The fine old ship grounded heavily; high seas battered her; her mast went by the board, and her back was broken. The vessel heeled over and her guns hung over the shattered sides held by their tackles.

When morning came and the tide ebbed, the noble ship was left high and dry on the sand. One hundred and fifty thousand dollars and years of work had gone in a single night, and Nelson's old flagship was a wreck.

It was found impossible to save the Foudroyant. Mr. Cobb and his crew worked for weeks to save what they could. With immense toil they got the guns on shore, and saved a few of the many relics of the old navy with which the ship was stored. The guns and other treasures are now in the present Foudroyant.

Now comes what is perhaps the most wonderful part of the story. Inside three months, Mr. Cobb, quite undefeated, and bought the frigate Trincomalee, and renamed her Foudroyant. And there, she lies in Falmouth harbor. Since 1897 Mr. Cobb has used Foudroyant II, as a training ship for the royal navy or the merchant service, and who have all done well.

BELIEVES IN WOODEN SHIPS.

Mr. Cobb believes that a wooden line-of-battle ship makes the finest possible home and school for youth. The ship herself is charged with noble associations of duty and of service. Her structure, with its vast sweep of clear decks, its thick wooden walls, keeping the ship cool in summer and warm in winter, its large square gun ports, giving plenty of light and air, is perfectly fitted for the purpose. Moreover, the economy of a ship teaches a boy cleanliness, order, handiness, and readiness in emergency. He learns the necessity for instant obedience. He is taught how to handle a boat in all weathers.

Mr. Cobb also believes that the extraordinary beauty of the old line-of-battle ships, in which naval architecture found its supreme achievement, is good for the boys. The upper deck, scrubbed to the hue and texture of ivory, sweeps clear from the break of the poop to the bows.

The gun deck below is solemn and still like the nave of a cathedral; running from after cabin to forecabin, its broad planks are the color of honey, and the light flowing through the open ports is interwoven with the shadows, and here and there a patch of sun light slightly oscillates as the ship moves to the brimming tide without.

In the captain's cabin, the wide windows slant inward to the rosy window seat, and thick beams, cunningly framed, make the ceiling. In this noble habitation, the boys learn and work and play and make music. In this austere and cheerful tranquility, the lads become hardy, strong and agile, excellent oarsmen, skilled in seamanship, disciplined, courteous and happy.

THE IMPLACABLE.

Mr. Cobb has never asked help to defray the expenses of his work in the Foudroyant. To-day, by reason of heavy taxation, he can no longer afford to maintain her; and it is open to any kind person who appreciates the enterprise to become responsible for the cost of maintaining a boy, or boys in the Foudroyant.

There is also another project, for Mr. Cobb, in 1912, collected the Implacable, the old two-decker 74-gun ship which was once the French Duguay-Trouin, and which lay in Toulon harbor some years before Nelson's Foudroyant kept watch outside. The Implacable is now waiting to be used as a home and training ship for the Sea Scouts, and an appeal is to be made for the money required to restore and to maintain her.

In the meantime, there she lies, secluded in a wooded reach of Falmouth harbor, the last of the two-deckers, a survivor of Trafalgar, a wanderer of the world, unknown, unnoticed. She has the high, galleried stern, and the ample, rounded sides of the French line-of-battle ships of the eighteenth century. After all her battles and broils her strong timbers are sound as in 1789, about which year she was launched.

THE SHIP THAT SUNG.

In 1798 she was captured by Lord Hood in Toulon harbor, where she was left when the admiral evacuated the town and dockyard. At the Trafalgar she engaged the Victory. A fortnight later she was captured by Sir Richard Sirhan, and renamed Implacable. Forty years of active service did the Implacable achieve, and in her last commission she carried a golden cock at her main truck, the sign of the smartest ship in the Mediterranean fleet, the smartest fleet in the world.

There she lies in Falmouth harbor, dismantled, scarred, solitary, forgotten, yet hale and hearty and invincible. She has one friend, Mr. Cobb. She had another in King Edward by whose orders she was removed from the sale list at the admiralty. Will she find others?

When Mr. Cobb moored her in Falmouth harbor, he brought his boys' band on board, and on the gun deck they played the "Marsellaise." As the wild strains died away, the ship hummed like a volute. "The old ship had singing, too, sir," whispered the bandmaster.

Maine Cat Adopts Five Baby Rats.

Bangor.—Many a Maine cat has acted as mother or stepmother to orphan puppies, but until this week no one ever had heard of a cat mothering rats. T. R. Savage Company, wholesale grocers, have such a wonder on their hands, and people are flocking to see it. A few days ago one of the clerks discovered a family of eight baby rats in a packing box, while nearby the mother rat lay dead, and in a sunny window the store cat sat licking her chops significantly.

The baby rats were dumped out on the floor, in the expectation that the cat would quickly finish them, and, sure enough, she did at once devour three.

To the astonishment of every one, however, Tabby purred and fussed over the remaining five young rats with every show of affection, and marshalled them into a cosy corner where, upon a nest of excelsior, she keeps a kindly and watchful eye upon them. When one of the rat family ventures out of the nest, Tabby takes it gently by the nape of the neck and brings it back. She wants to bring them up, evidently, as home-loving rats. The store forces wait with interest to see that must follow when those five rats get their growth and begin to assert themselves.

Dye Old Curtains, Sweater or Skirt in Diamond Dyes

"Diamond Dyes" add years of wear to worn, faded skirts, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, hangings, draperies, everything. Every package contains directions so simple any woman can put new, rich, fadeless colors into her worn garments or draperies even if she has never dyed before. Just buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then your material will come out right, because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to streak, spot, fade, or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.

THE LIVING.
You will praise him when he's gone,
When his earthly struggle closes
You may send the florist's roses
His dark hair to lie upon;
When he cannot hear or see,
You very friendly be,
But 'twere better far, he'd vow,
If he had your friendship now.

You will speak about his worth
When he has no need of fame,
You will glory in his name,
When at last he quits the earth;
And if he should die to-day,
Many kind things you'd say,
But I wonder you do men
Always seem to wait till then?

When his front is on his cheek
And his hands lie still and cold,
All his good deeds will be told,
Many kind things you'd say,
When at last his journeying ends
He will pass through lines of friends,
But truly he mustn't know
That his neighbors love him so.

Draw up, friends, on either side
For the man who lives to-day!
Smile at him and smooth his way,
Let the line be long and wide,
Many kind things he'll be said
As you would if he were dead,
Make his living march as fine
As shall be his funeral line.

TARIFF REVISION.—A letter from Mr. A. B. Morine, K.C., on the above subject, will be published in the Telegram to-morrow.

MINARD'S LINIMENT FOR DISTEMPERS.

An Open Letter to the Housewives of St. John's.

Dear Madam:—

Of course all members of your family like Beans, and perhaps you would serve the canned variety more often if you could be absolutely certain they were prepared with the same regard for cleanliness you would observe in your own home.

Let me tell you the story of Libby's Beans as I saw them packed in our mammoth plant at Chatham, Ont., a few weeks ago:—

The Beans used are Canadian grown, unequalled for flavor and appearance, and until ready for processing are stored in light, dry chambers into which no rust nor mildew can penetrate. From this room they are carried through chutes to long endless belts, lined on both sides by girls in white uniforms, who pick out by hand all broken and spotted beans, or foreign substance of any kind. The beans are then thoroughly washed in running water to remove all dust, etc., after which they enter the first cooker and remain there for twenty minutes in live steam, which swells and prepares them for the final cooking.

From this they pass through automatic filling machines which deposit one pound of beans in each can, together with just the proper quantity of Libby's celebrated Tomato Sauce to give them the delightful "tang" you like.

In each can is placed a hand cut cube of choicest pig pork, and the cans are then capped and proceed to large retorts where for two hours the beans are cooked in live steam.

After the beans are properly cooked, the cans are passed through a water bath to test for leaks, then to the labelling machines to receive the well known white and blue label, after which they are cased and are ready for shipment to the six Libby branches served by this factory.

Except for the hand picking operation before washing, Libby's Beans are not touched by human fingers during the entire process, and every machine used is carefully cleaned and sterilized when the day's pack is finished. Libby's Beans are thoroughly cooked, but not crushed in the process, and when you open the can you find nearly every bean in perfect shape.

Order one can from your grocer and serve for tea to-night, and I think you will agree with me that Libby's Beans are without an equal.

Sincerely yours,
E. G. PITMAN.

"The Board of Green Cloth."

The game of billiards has undergone numerous changes since it originated in France in the sixteenth century, the slate bed and cushions being introduced, leather tips fixed to the cue, and chalk used. In fact, so many improvements have been made that there doesn't seem any more left to be introduced.

It was a Bath marker named Carr who first realized the possibilities of side and screwing the ball, and, with the aid of the spot stroke, he was hailed as the first champion. Many players became adept at this particular stroke, however, and many years after W. J. Peall had made a break of 3,204, mostly by its means, it was abolished.

The anchor cannon was an invention which was too good to last long. After once obtaining the necessary position (rod and opponent's ball jammed together in the jaws of a pocket), the best players could literally go on for ever, and T. Reece actually made 249,552 consecutive cannons in a break of 499,135 unfinished.

That killed it.

Star of the Sea Association

OF HOLYROOD HOLD ANNUAL AND MONTHLY MEETINGS.

The annual meeting of the Star of the Sea Association of Holyrood was held in their hall on January 31st, and quite a large assembly of members were in attendance to hear and pass upon the report of the year's work. Secretary Hannon's and Treasurer Maloney's reports showed the Society to be in a sound condition financially, the Secretary reporting a considerable increase in the roll, due in a great measure to the active interest of the Worthy Spiritual Director, Rev. Fr. Finn. The report showed a substantial balance in the treasury, notwithstanding a large amount expended in repairs to hall during the summer. On motion of Mr. Philip Kielly the reports were adopted and the officers vacated their seats. Mr. M. C. Dunphy was appointed chairman to conduct the election of officers, which resulted as follows:— President—Wm. P. Walsh, Vice-President—M. C. Dunphy, 1st Asst. V.P.—P. J. Lewis, 2nd Asst. V.P.—D. Walsh, Treasurer—R. Dwyer, Asst. Treasurer—J. J. Maloney, Secretary—Edward Butler, Jr., Marshal and Deputy—E. Butler, Sr., and Jas. Crawley. Custodian—P. O'Neill. Executive Committee—Bernard Barrett, M. P. Grouchy, M. C. Dunphy, L. Barron Jr., J. A. Hannon, J. J. Maloney and Patrick Walsh. The newly elected officers all thanked the meeting in recognition of their election, and the meeting recorded its appreciation of the services of the retiring President Mr. P. J. Veitch and Secretary Mr. J. A. Hannon, afterwards adjourning. The monthly meeting was held on February 5th, and indeed it opened under very sad circumstances. It was the announcement of the death of our brother member, Capt. John Lewis, one of the founders of the Association and for fifteen years President, whose passing under such sad circumstances in harness in sunny Italy as a fish sales Commissioner is so universally regretted, and whose loss to the country the district he so ably represented and to his beloved Holyrood is so generally recognized. President Walsh in moving the resolutions of sympathy to the widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Lewis, and son, Mr. P. J. Lewis, of our late Bro. member and Mr. P. J. Veitch in seconding them spoke with such warmth of expression and deep feeling of sorrow for our departed friend, and sympathy to his bereaved wife and son that all were filled with grief. Mr. Walsh felt that the Society had lost its best member and the district the best represented the people ever had. Mr. Veitch thought that the loss of Capt. Lewis was irreparable, but his life should be an inspiration to the youth of Holyrood. Honest and fearless, industrious and independent, ambitious and unselfish he was of the type of man that makes a leader among men. The resolutions passed unanimously and were sent to the sorrow stricken relatives, together with his death benefit from the Association of $40.00, which the relatives signed generously as an offering of charity to some poor and destitute families of Holyrood. "Heaven to reward his greatness gave To our statesman this honored grave; The land of Vesuvius held in trust Of a noble Newfoundland the dust."

S. A. Moser Writes of Dr. F. G. Kinsman's Heart Tablets, Dyspepsia Powders.

I can recommend your Heart Tablets with safety to anyone suffering from heart disease, for I have never found a medicine which would give such relief or effect such cures. I had a trouble which three of the best physicians in this country said was heart disease and your Tablets cured it. My father had heart disease for eighteen years and could find nothing to do him good, but after using three boxes of your Tablets has not had a single symptom of the trouble. You are at liberty to publish this letter if desired, for I can stand by these statements anywhere.

FALSE ECONOMY.

It is often remarked by customers, "I must try and make my old clothes do for the winter." Perhaps the winter may mean very much longer. To protect your body against our cold winds you want warm woollens. An investment in a good Suit or Overcoat may save you months of illness. Durable material, cut and moulded to your figure by expert workmanship in the garment at MAUNDER'S. Samples and self-measuring cards sent to your address.
