

IMAGE EVALUATION TEST TARGET (MT-3)

Photographic
Sciences
Corporation

CIHM/ICMH Microfiche Series.

CIHM/ICMH Collection de microfiches.

Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions / Institut canadien de microreproductions historiques

The Institute nas attempted to obtain the best original copy available for filming. Features of this copy which may be bibllographically unique. which may alter any of the images in the reproduction, or which may significantly change the usual method of fllming, are checked below.

Coloured covers/
Couverture de couleur Covers damaged/
Couverture endommagée Covers restored and/or laminated/Couverture restaurée et/ou pelliculée
Cover title missing/
Le titre de couverture manque
Coloured maps/
Cartes géographiques en socour
Coloured ink (i.e. other than blue or bleck)/
Encre de couleur (i.e. autre que bleue ou noire)
Coloured plates and/or illustrations/
Planches et/ou illustrations en couleur

Bound with other material/
Relié avec d'autres documents
Tight binding may cause shadows or distortion along interior margin/
La re liure serrée peut causer de l'ombre ou de la distortion le long de la marge intérieure

Blank leaves added during restoration may appear within the text. Whenever possible, these have been omitted from filming/ Il se peut que certaines pages blanches ajoutées lors d'une restauration apparaissent dans le texte, mais, lorsque cela était possible, ces pages n'ont pas été filmées.

Additional comments:/
Commentaires supplémentaires:

L'Institut a microfilmé le meilleur exemplaire qu'il lui a été posslble de se procurer. Les détails de cet exemplaire qui sont peut-etre uniques du point de vue bibliographique, qui peuvent modifier une image reproduite, ou qui peuvent exiger une modification dans la méthode normale de filmage sont indiqués ci-dessous.

Coloured pages/
Pages de couleur Pages damaged/
Pages endommagées
Pages restored and/or laminated/
Pages restaurées et/ou pelliculées
Pages discoloured, stained or foxed/
Pages décolorées, tachetées ou piquées Pages detached/Pages détachéas Showthrough/Transparence
Quality of print varies/
Qualité inégale de l'impression
Includes supplementary material/
Comprend du matériel supplémentaire
$\square$ Only edition available/
Seule édition disponible

Pages wholly or partially obscured by errata slips, tissues, etc., have been refilmed to ensure the best possible imaga/ Les pages totalement ou partieliement obscurcies par un feuillet d'errata, une pelure, etc., ont été filmées à nouveau de façon à obtenir la meilleure image possible.

This item is filmed at the reduction ratio checked below/
Ce document est filmé au taux de réduction indiqué ci-dessous.

The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

Library of the Public Archives of Canada

The Images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impres. sion, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol $\rightarrow$ (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol $\nabla$ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beglinning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diegrems illustrate the method:

L'oxemplaire filmb fut reproduit grâce al la gendrosite de:

La bibliothdque des Archives publiques du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec io plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformitt avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture on papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la derniere page qui comporte une empreinte d'Impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés on commençent par le premidre page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration ot en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaitra sur la derniere image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole $\rightarrow$ signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole $\nabla$ signifie "FIN".

Les certes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent otre filmés à des taux de réduction différents. Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit on un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supórieur gauche, de gauche à droite, ot de haut on bas, on prenant le nombre d'lmages nócessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

NOVAFRANCIA:

OR, THE  DESCRIPTION  Ofthat Part of  NEW FRANCE,

Which is one Continent with Virginia.

DESCRIBED
In the Three late VOYAGES and PLANTATION made by Monf. de Monts, Monf. du Pont-Gravé, and Monf. de Poutrincourt, into the Countries called by the Frenchonen, La Cadia, lying to the South-Weft of Cape Breton.
TOGETHER WITH

An excellent feveral TREATY of all the Commodities of the faid Countries, and Manners of the natural Inhabitants of the fame.

Tranflated out of the FRENCH into English, by P. E.

NOVAFRANCIA:

THE

Abstract

Three late Voyages and Plantation of Monf. de Monts, of Monf. du Pont-Grave, and of Monf. de Poutrincourt, into the Countries, called by the Frenchmen, La Cadia, lying to the South-Weft of Cape Breton.

TOGETHERWITH
An excellent feveral Treaty of all the Commodities of the faid Countries, and Manners of the natural Inhabitants of the fame.

C H A P. I.

The Patent of the French King to Monf. de.Monts, for the inbabiting of the Countries of La Cadia, Canada, and otber Places in New France.

HE N R Y, by the grace of God, king of France and Navarre. To our dear and well beloved the lord of Monts, one of the ordinary gentlemen of our chamber, greeting. As our greareft care and labour is, and hath always been, fince our coming to this crown, to maintain and conferve it in the ancient dignity, greatnefs, and fplendor thereof, to extend and amplify, as much as lawfully may be done, the bounds and limits of the fame; we being, of a long time, informed of the fituation and condition of the lands and territories of $L_{a}$ Cadia, moved above all things, with a fingular zeal, and devout and conftant refolution, which we have taken, with the help and affiftance of God, author, diftributor, and protector of all kingdoms and eftates, to caufe the people, which do inhabit the country, men (at this prefent time) barbarous atheifts, without faith or religion, to be converted to Chriftianity, and to the belief and pro-feffion of our faith and religion : and to draw them from the ignorance and unbelief wherein they are. Having alfo of a long time known, by the relation of the fea-captains, pilots, merchants, and others, who of long time have haunted, frequented, and trafficked with the people that are found in the faid places, how fruitfui, commodious, and profitable may he unto us, to our eftates and fubjects, the dwelling, icffefion, and habitation of thofe countries, for the great and apparent profit which may be drawn by the greater frequentation and habitude which may be had with the people that are found there, and the traffick and commerce which may be, by that means, fafely treated and negociated. We then, for thele caufes, fully trutting on your great wifdom, and in the knowledge and experience that you have of the quality, condition, and fituation of the faid country of La Cadia; for the divers and fundry navigations, voyages, and frequentatiors, that you have made into thofe parts, and others near and bordering upon it : affuring ourfelves that this our relolution and intention, being committed unto you, you will attentively, diligenely, and no lefs courngeoufly and valorounly, execute and bring to fuch perfection as we defire, have exprefly appointed and eftablifhed you, and by thefe prefents, figned with ourown hands do commit, ordain, make, constitute, and eftablifh you, our lieutenant-general, for to reprefent our perfon, in the countrics, territories, confts and confines of $L_{a}$ Cadia. To begin from the 40 th degree unto the 46 th ; and in the fame diftance, or part of it, as far as may be done, to eftablifh, extend, and make to be known our name, might, and authority. And under the fane to fubject ribmit, and bring to obeclience all the people of the faid land and the borderers thereof: and by the means thercof, and all lawfil ways, to call, make, inftruct, provoke, and incite them to the knowledge of God, and to the light of the taith and Clurittian religion, to eftablifh it there: and in the exercife and profeffion of the fame, keep and conferve the faid pcople, and all other inhabitants in the faid places, and there to command in peace, reft and tranquility, as well by fea as by land: to ordain, decide, and caufe to be executed all that which you fhall judge fit and neceffary to be done, for to maintain, keep, and conferve, the faid places under our power and authority, by the forms, ways and means prefrribed by our laws. And for to lave there a care of the fame with you, to appoint, eftablifh, and conStitute all officers, as well in the alfairs of war, as for juftice and policy, for the firt time, and from thenceforward to name and prefent them unto us ; for to be difpofed by us, and to give letters, titles, and fuch provifoes as thall be neceffary: and, according to the occurrences of aftiirs, yourfelf, with the advice of wife and capable men, to prefcribe under our good pleafure, laws, ftatutes and ordinances conformable, as much as may be poffible, unto ours, efpecially in things and matters that are not provided by them ; to treat and contract to the fame effet, peace, alliance, and confederacy, good anity, correfpondency, and communication with the faid people and their princes, or others, having power or command over them; to enterrain, keep, and carcfully to obferve, the treaties and alliances wherein you thall covenant with them : upon condition that they themfelves perform the fame of their part. And for want thereof to make open wars againt them, to conftrain and bring them to fuch reafon, as you fhall think needful, for the honour, obedience, and fervice of Got, and the eftablifhment, maintenance, and comfervation of our faid authority amongft them ; at leaft, to haunt and frequent by you, and all our fubjects with them, in all affurance, liberty, frequentation, and communication, there to negociate and traffick lovingly and peaceably; to give and grant unto them favours and privileges, charges, and honours. Which entire power aforefaid, we will likewife and ordain, that you have over all our faid fubjects that will go that voyage with you and inhabit there, traffick, negociate, and remain in the faid places, to retain, take, referve, and appropriate unto you, what you will and fhall fee to be moft commodious for you, and proper to your charge, quality and ufe of the laid lands, to diftribute fuch parts and portions thereof, to give and attribute unto thems fuch titles, honours, rights, powers, and faculties, as you h.all fee neceffary, according to the qualities, conditions, and merits, of the perfons of the fame couniry, or others : chiefly to populate, to manure, and to make the faid lands to be inhabited, as fpeedily, carefully and ikilfully, as time, places, and commodities may permit. To make thereof, or caufe to be made to that end, difcovery, and view along the maritime coafts and other countries of the main land, which you fhall order and prefcribe in the aforefaid fpace of the 40 th degree to the 46th degree, or otherwife as much and as far as may be, along the faid coaft, and in the firm land. To make caretully to be fought and marked all forts of mines of gold and of filver, copper, and other metals and minerals, to ruake them to be digged, drawn from the earth, purified, and refined, for to be converted into ufe, to difpofe according as we have prefcribed by ediets, and orders, which we have made in this realm of the profit and benefit of them, by you or them whom you mall eftablifh to that effect, referving unto us only the tenth penny, of that which Chall iffue from them of gold, filver, and copper, leaving unto you that which we might take of the other faid metals and minerals, for to aid and eafe you in the great expences, that the forefaid charge may bring unto you. Willing, in the mean while, that as well for your fecurity and commodity, as for the fecurity and commodity of all our fubjects, who will go, inhabit, and traffick in the faid lands; as generally of all others that will accommodate themfelves there under our power and authority, you may caufe to be built and frame one or many forts, places, towns, and all other houfes, dwellings, and habitations, ports, havens, retiting places and lodgings, as you fhall know to be fit, profitable and neceflary for 2 R

$A$ Defcription of New France.

Vol. Il.
the

A Defcription of New France.

the performing of the fuide enterprize. To eftablith garrions and foldicrs for the keeping of them. To aid and ferve you for the effects abovefaid with the vagrant, idle perfons and marterlefs, as well out of towns as of the country; and with them that be condemned to perpetual banihment, or for threc years at the leaft out of our rcalm; provided always that it be done by the advice, confent, and authority of our officers. Over and befides that which is abovementioned (and that which is morcover prefcribed, conmanded and ordained unto you by the commiffions and powers, which our moft dear coulin the lord of Ampuille, admiral of France, hath given unto you, for that which concerneth the affairs and the charge of the admiralty, in the exploit, expedition, and executing of the things abovefaid) to do generally whatfoever may make for the conqueft, peopling, inhabiting and prefervation of the faid land of La Cadia; and of the coafts, territorics adjoining, and of their appurtenances and dependencies, under our name and authority, whatfoever ourfelves would, and might do, if we were there prefent in perion, although that the cafe fhould require a more pecial order, than we prefcribe unto you by thefe prelents: to the contents whereof, we command, ordain, and mott expreny do erjoin all our juftices, officers and fubjects, to conform themfelves; and to obey and give attention unto you, in all and every the things abovefaid, their circumftances and dependencies. Alfo to give umto you in the executing of them, all lich aid and comfort, help and affiftance, as you thaill have need of, and whereof they thall be by you required; and this upon pain of diobedience and rebellion. And to the cnd, no body may pretend camfe of ignorance of this our intention, and to bufy himfelf in all, or in part of the charge, dignity and authority which we give unto you by thefe prefents; we have of our certain knowledge, full power and regal authority, revoked, fuppreffed and diclared void, and of none effect hercafter; and from this prefent time, all other powers and commiffions, letters and expeditions given and delivered to any perfon foever, for to difcover, people and inhabit in the forefaid extention of the faid lands, fituated from the faid 4oth degree, to the 46 th, whatfoever they be. And furthermore, we command and ordain all our faid officers, of what quality and condition focver they be, that after thefe prefents, or the duplicate of them fhall be duly examined by one of our beloved and trulty counfillors, notaries and fecretaries, or other notary-royal, they do upon your requeft, demand and fuit, or upon the fuit of any our attornies, caule the fame to be read, publifhed, and recorded in the records of their jurifdiction, powers and precincts, feeking, as much as fhall appertain unto them, to quiet and appeale all troubles and hinderances which may contradict the fame ; tor fuch is our pleafirre. Given at Fountaineblean, the eighth day of November, in the year of our Lord 1603 ; and of our reign the 15 th. Signed Henry, and underneath, by the king, Potier ; and fealed upon fingle label with yellow wax.

C H A P. II.

The coyage of Monf. de Monts into New-France ; what accidents bappened in the faid rojuge : The caufis of the ice banks in Newfoundland : The impofing of names to certain ports: The perplexity weberein they zevere, by reafon of the flay of the otber flip.

MOnfieur de Monts having made the commilfions and prolibitions be-fore-laid, to be proclaimed thorough the realm of France, and efpecially thorough the ports and maritime towns thereof, caufed two fhips to be rigged and furnithed, the one under the conduct of cap$\operatorname{tain}$ Timothy of New-baven, theother of captain Morell of Honfleur. In the firft he fhipped himfelf, with good number of men of account, as well gentlemen as others. And forafinuch, as Monf. de Poutrincourt was, and had been, thofe countries a long time defirous to fee of New-France, and there to find out and chufe fome fit place to retire himfelf into, with his family, wife, and children ; not meaning to be the laft that hould follow and participate in the glory of fo fair and generous an enterprize, would needs go thither, and fhipping himfelf with the faid Monf. de Monts, carrying with him fome quantity of armour The fetand munitions of war, and fo weighed ting forth anchors from New-baven the feventh day from $\mathrm{N}_{\mathrm{c}}$ wof March, 1604. But being departed baven. fomewhat too foon, before the winter had yct left off her frozen weed, they found ftore of ice banks, againft the which they were in danger to ftrike, and fo be caft away ; but God, which hitherto hath profpered the navigation of thefe voyages, preferved them.

One might wonder, and not without cuute, why in the fame parallel, there is more ice in this fea, than in that of Irance. Whereunto I anfwer, that the ice that is found in thofe feas, is not originally from the fame climate, but rather come from the northerly parts, driven without any let thorough the valt of this great fea by the waves, forms, and boifterous floods, which the eafterly and northerly winds do caufe in winter and fering time, and drive them towards the fouth and welt: but the French feas are fhettered by Scotland, Eugland and Ircland; which is the caufe that the ice cannot fall into it. Another reafon alfo might be alletged, and that is the motion of the fea, which leareth more towards thofe parts, becaufe of the larger courfe that it maketh towards America, than towards the lands of thefe our parts. The peril of this voyage was, not only in the meeting of the laitl banks of ice, but allio in the ftorms that vexed them : one of them they had that brake the gallerics of the thip; and in thefe turmoils, a joyner was carricel away by a fea or flafh of water, to the next door of death, overboard, but he held himfelf faft at a tackling, which by chance hung out of the faid fhip.

The voyage was long by reafon of con-Winds good in trary winds, which feldom happeneth to March for them that fet out in March for the new
the new found lands. found lands, which are ordinarily carried an calt or northern wind, fit to go to thofe lands. And having taken their The ifle of courfe to the fouth of the ifle of Sablon, or Sablon or Sand, for to fhun the laid ice, they alsand. moft fcll from Caribdis into Scylla, going to frike towards the fiidid inle, during the thick milts that are frequent in that fea.

In the ead, the fixth of May, they came to a ce:tain port, where they found captain Keffignol of New-baven; who did truck for tkins with the fivages, contrary to the king's inhibitions, which was the caufe that his thip was confifeated. This

Port du
Rofignol. port was called Le l'ort da Roffignol, having (in this his hard lortune) this only good, that a good and lit harbour or port, in thofe coalts beareth his name.

From thence coafting and difcovering the lands, they arrived at another port, very fair, which they named L.e Port du Moutton ; by reafon that a mutton or weather, having leapedoverboard and drowned himfelf, came aboard again, and was taken and eaten as good prize. By fuch Capitol of accidents, many names have anciently been given on the fudden, and without any great deliberation. So the capitol of Rome had its name ; becaufe that in dig. ing there, a dead man's head was founcl.
Milan. So the city of Milan hath been called Mediolanum, that is to fay, half wool; for that the Gauls, cafting the foundation thereof, found a fow half covered with wool; and to of fundry others.
Being at the port du Moutton, they cabaned and lodged themfelves after the favage fathion, expecting news of the other flijp, wherein was the victuals, and other necelfary provifion for the food and entertainment of them that were to winter there ; being about an hundred in number. In this port they tarried a month in great perplexity, for fear they had that fome finitter accident had happened to the daid other Chip, who fet out the tenth of March; wherein was Monf. de Pont of Honfletur, and the faid Capt. Morel.

And this was to much the more important, for that of the coming of the faid thip depended the whole fuccefs of the bufinefs. For even upon this long tarrying, it was in queftion, whether they Thould return into France or no. Mont. de Poutrincourt was of advice, that it was better to die there; whereto the faid Monf. de Monts confirmed himfelf. In the mean while, many went a hunting, others to filhing, for to flore the kitchen. Near the faid Moutton port, there is a place fo replenifhed with rabbets and conies, that they almoft Store of did eat nothing elfe. During that time, conies Monf, Champlein was fent with a fhallop to feek farther off a fitter place to retire themfelves; at which exploit he tarried fo long, that deliberating upon the return they thought to leave him behind, for there was no more victuals; and they ferved themfelves with that, that was found in the faid Roffynol's fhip; without which they had been forced to return into France, and foto break a fair enterprize at the very birth and beginning thereof, or to ftarve, having ended the hunting of conies, which could not ftill continue. Now the caules of the ftay of the faid Monf. $d x \quad$ m., , and Capt. Morcl, were two ; the o. . Hat wanting a cock-boat, they employ their time in the building of one, in the land where they arrived firit, which was the Englifh port ; the other, that be- Englifo ing come at Campfeau port, they found port. there four thips of Bafkes, or men of St. Campfauu Fobn de Lisz, that did truck with the port. favages, contrary to the faid inhibitions, from whom they took their goods, and brought the mafters to the faid Monf. de Monts, who ufed them very gently.

Three weeks being expired, and the faid Monf. de Monts having no news of the fhip he looked for, he deliberated to fend along the coaft to feek for them; and for that purpofe difpatched fome favages, to whom he gave a Frencbman for company with letters. The faid favages promifed to return at the time prefixed, being eight days, whereof they failed not. But as the fociety of man and wife, agreeing well together, is a pow-

A Defcription of New France.

ethul thing, fo thefe faviages before their depprature, had a care of their wives and chilulden, and required viftuals for them, which was grantecl. And having hoifted up, fiiks, within few days after, they found thofe that they fought for, at a place called Le: Ray des yles, who were themfelves in no leff fear or grict for the fiid Monf. de Monts, than he of them, becaufe they found not, during their voyage, thole marks and figns that were agreed upon betweenthem; which was, that Monf. de Monts fhould have left at Campfinu fome crofs on a tree, or letter there fixed ; which he dieh not, having far overfhot the faid Compfeau, by reafon that for the laid iced banks, he took his way fomewhat far on the fouth, as we have faid. So having read the letters, the faid Monf. du Pont, and cap- Monf. du tain Morel, gave up the victuals and pro- Pont, to vifion that they had brought for them ehat we tad that fhould winter there, and fo returned mande for back towards the great river of Canada, furrs. for the trade of Thins and furrs.

C H A P. III.

> The leacing of Port du Moutton: The accident of a man loft in the weods for the IDace of fixtect days: Bay Francoife, or French Bay: Port-Koyal: Tbe rivor of LEquille: A copper-mine: The mijchief of golden-mints: Of dianonds: Turky fonts.

ALL Nev-France in the end being contained in two hhips, they weighed anchors from port du Montton, to employ their time, and to dificover lands as much at might be befiore winter. We came to Cape de Sable, or the Sandy Cape; and from thence we failed to the bay of St. Mary, where our men lay at anchor fifteen days, whilf the lands and panfiges, as well by fea as by river might be deffried Fars place and known. This bay is a very fair place to to mtabit, inhabit, becaufe that one is readily carried Mire of thither without doubling. There are mines irran and of iron and filver, but in no great abunthitur. dance, according to the trial made thereof in Framce. Having fojourned there foime twelve or thirteen days, a ftrange accident lappened, fuch as I will tell you. There was a certain churchman of a good family in Paris, that had a defire to perforn the voyage with Monf. de Monts, and that "gainit the liking of his friends, who fent exprefly to Honffeur to divert him thereof, and to bring him back to Paris. The tort in the St. Mary, be put hiwfelf in company with noods lourteen days. fome that went to fport themfelves in the woods. It came to pafs, that having ttaid to drink at a brook, he forgot his liword, and followed on his way with his company; which when he perceived, he returried back to feek it; but having found it, forgetful from what part he came, and not confidering whether he fhould go eaft or weft, or otherwife (for there was no path) he took his way quite contrary, turuing lis back from his company ; and fo long travelled that he found himfelf at the fia flore, where no thips were to be feen, (for they were at the other fide of a nouk of land far reaching into the fea). He imagined that he was forfiken, and began to bewail his fortune upon a rock. The night being cume, every one being retired, he is found wanting; he was afked for of thofe that had been in the woods; they report in what manner he departed from them, and that fince they had no news of him. Whercupon a proteftant was charged to have killed liun, becaufe they quarreclled fomectimes for matters of religion. Finally, they founded a trumpet thorough the foreft, they fhot off the cannon divers times, but in vain; for the roaring of the fea, fronger than all, that did expel back the found of the faid cannons and trumpets. Two, three and four days pals, he appeareth not. In the mean while, the time haftens to depart ; fo having tarried fo long that he was then held for dead, they weighed anchors to go further, and to fee the depth of a bay that hath fome 40 leagues length, and 14 (yea 18) of breadth, which was named La Baye Frangoife, or the Frencb-bay.
In this bay is the paffage to come into La Bmer a port, whercinto our men entered, and Franguic: made fome abode; during the which they had the pleafire to hunt an cllan, or ftag, that croffed a great lake of the fea, which maketh this port, and did fwim but eafily. This port is invironed with mountains on the north fide : towards the fouth be fmall hills, which (with the faid mountains) do pour out a thoufand brooks, which make that place pleafanter than any other place in the world: therc are very fair falls of waters, fit to make mills of all forts. Ac the eaft is a river between the fiid mountains and hills, in the which, flips may fail fifteen leagues and more; and in all this diftance, is nothing of both fides the river but fair meadows; which river was named $I$ ' Equille, becaufe that the firt The iver. fifh taken therein was an equille. But the ofLL Fgyuil. friid port for tho beauty thereof was call- ${ }^{\text {- }}$ ed Port Royal. Monf. de Poutrincourt, PorrRegal. having having found this place to be to his liking, demanded it, with the lands thereunto aljoyning, of Mc i. de Monts, to whom the king had by commifion, belore inferted, granted the diftribution of the lands of New-France, from the 4oth degree to the 45 th. Which place was granted to the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt, who fince hath had letters of confirmation for the fame of his majefty; intending to retire himfelf thither with his family, and there to eftablifh the Chrittian and Frencb name, as much as his power Thall Itretch, and God grant him the means to accomplifh it. The faid port containeth eight leagues of circuit, belides the river of $L^{\prime} E$ quille. There are within it two ines very lair and pleafant ; the one at the mouth of the faid river, which I deem to be of the greatnefs of the city of Beauvais; the other at the fide of the mouth of another river, as broad as the river of Oife, or Marne, entering within the faid port; the faid ine being almolt of the greatnefs of the other; and they both are woody. In this port, and right over-againt the former ifle, we dwelt three years after this voyage. We will fpeak thereof more at large hereafter.

A Defcription of New France.

From Port Royal, they failed to the copper mine, whereof we have fooken before elfe-where. It is a high rock between two bays of the fea; wherein the copper is conjoined with the ftone, very fair and very pure, fuch as is that, which is called Rozette copper. Many goldfmiths have feen of it in France, which do fay, that under the copper mine there might be a golden mine; which is very probable: for if thofe excrements that nature expelleth forth be fo pure, namely, fmall pieces that are found upon the gravel at the foot of the rock, when it is low water, there is no doube that the metal which is in the bowels of the earth is much more perfect; but this is a work that requireth time.

Things firt to be provided in new plantatiolis. The firlt mining and working is to have bread, wine and cattle, as we have faid elfe-where. Our felicity confifteth not in mines, efpecially of gold and filver, the which ferve for nothing in the tillage of the gromad, nor to handicrafts ufe. Contrarywile, the abundance of them is but a charge and burthen, that keepeth man in perpetual unquiet, and the more he hath thereof, the lefs reft enjoyeth he, and his life leffer aflured unto him.

Before the voyages of Peru, great riches might have been fetup in a fmall place; inftead of that, in this ourage, by the abundance of gold and filver, the fame is come at no value or efteem : one hath need of huge chefts and coffers to put in that, which a fmall budget might have conthined: one might have travelled with a purfe in one's neeve, and now a cloak-

Vol. II.
bag and a horfe mult exprefly be had for that purpofe. "We may juftly curfe the " hour, that the greedy avarice did carry " the Spaniard into the weft, for the wo" ful events that have enfued thereof. For " when I confider, that by hisgreedinefs he " 'lath kindled and maintained the war tho" rough allChriftendom, and his only ftudy " hath been how to deftroy his neighbours " (and not the Turk) I cannot think that " any other but the devil hath been the " author of their voyages. And let not " the pretence of religion be alleclged unto " me ; for (as we have faid elle-where) "they have killed all the offspring of the "country with the molt inhuman tor" ments that the devil hath been able " to excogitite. And by thair cructies " have rendered the name of God odious, " and a name of offence to tholic poor "prople; and have continually and daily "blatphemed him in the midft of the " Gentiles, as the prophet reproacheth to "the people of Ifrael: witnefs hiin that " had rather be damed, than to go the "paradife of the Spaniards."

The Romans (whole covetoufne is hath been unfatiable) bave made cruel wars to the nations of the earth, but the Spanifs cruelties are not to be found out in their hiftories. They have contented themfelves to ranfack the nations which they have overcome, and not to deprive them of their lives. An ancient heathenifh author, making trial of his poetical humour, findeth no greater crime in them, but that if they found out or difcovered fome people that had gold, they took them for their enemies. The verfes of this author have fo good a grace, that I muft needs infert them here, though I intend not to alledge much latin.

Orbem jam totum Romanus viltor babebat, Quì mare, qui terra, qui fidus currit utrumquc, Nec fatiatus erat, gravidis freta pulfa carinis Fain peragrabantur : fiquis finus abditus ultra,
Si qua foret tellus que fulvum mitteret aurum,
Hoffis erat: fatifque in triffia bella paratis
Querebantur opes Petronius Arbiter.
But the doctrine of the wife fon of Sirach teacheth us a contrary thing. For knowing that the riches which are digged up, even from as deep as Pluto's dens, are that which fome one hath faid, irritamenta malorum, he declared, tbat man to be bappy tbat batb not run after gold, and batb not put bis bope in filver and treafures; adding, that be ought to be effeemed to bave done wonderful things among all bis people, 9 S and to be the example of glory, whirch bath been sempted by gold, and remained perfett. And fo by a contrary fenfe, the lune to be unhappy that doth otherwife.

$A$ Defcription of New France.

Now to return to our mines. Among thefe copper rocks, there are found fometimes imall rocks covered with diamonds fixed to them: I will not affure them for fine, but that is very pleafing to the fight. There are alfo certains hinsing blue ftones, which are of no lefs value or worth than Turriy ftones. Monf. de Cbampdore, our guide for the navigations in thole comuries, having cut within a rock one of thofe flones, at his return from New-

Frame, he hrake it in ewo, and gave one part of it to Monf. De Mons, the other to Monf. de Poutrincourt, which they made to be put in goll,, and were found worthy to be prefented, the one to the king, by the faid Poutrincourt, the other to the queen by the faid de Monts, and were very well accepted. 1 rememberthat a goldimith did offer fifteen crowns to Monf. de Poutrincourt for that he prefented to his nuijefty. There be many other fecrets, rareand fairthings within the ground of thofe countries, which are yet unknown unto us, and will come to the knowlonge and evidence by inhabiting the province.

C II A P. IV.

The difiription of the river St. John, and of the ine St. Croix.

HAVING viewed the faid mine, the company paffed to the other fide of the French bay, and went towards the bottom of the fame; then turning back came to the river of St. Yobn, fo called, as I think, becaufe they arrived thither the four and twenticth day of 'June, which is So. "Jobn Baptift's day. 'There is a fair port, but the entry or mouth is dangerous to them that know not the beft ways, becaufe that before the coming in, there is a long bank of rocks, which are not fien nor difcovered but only at low water, which do ferve as for defence to this port, within which, when one hath gone about a league there is found a violent fall of the faid river, which falleth down from the rocks, when that the fea doth ebb, with a marvelous noife ; for being fometimes at an anchor at fea, we have heard it from above twelve leagues off; but at full fea one may pafs it with great thips. This river is one of the faireft that may be feen, having ftore of iflands, and fwarming with fifhes. This laft year, 1608, the faid Monf. de Cbampdore, with one of the faid Monf. de Mon's men, hath been fome fifty leagues up the faid river, and do wit. nets that there is great quantity of vines along the fhore, but the grapes are not fo big as they be in the country of the Ar mouchiquois ; there are alfo onions, and many other forts of good herbs. As for the trees they are the faireft that may be feen. When we were there we faw great number of cedar trees. Concerning fifhes the faid Chompdore hath related unto us, that putting the kettle over the fire, they had taken fifh fulficient for their dinner before that the water was hot. Moreover this river, ftretching itfelf far within the lands of the favages, doth marveloully thorten the long travels by means thereof. For in fix days they go to Gafhepe, coming to the bayor gulph of Cbaleur, or heat when they are at the end of it , in carrying their canoes fome few leagues; and by the fame river, in cight days, they go to Tadoufar, by a branch of the fame which cometh from the north weft, in fuch fort, that in Port Royal one may have, within fifteen or eighteen days news from the frenchmen dwelling in the great river of Canada, by thefe ways, which could not be done in one month by fea, nor without danger.

Leaving St. Fobn's river, they came The infe of following the coalt, twenty leagues from St. Crcix. that place, to a great river, which is pro- twenty perly fea, where they fortified themfelves leagues in a little ifland feated in the midtt of this from som's. river, which the faid Cbampdore had been to difcover and view; and feeing it ftrong by nature, and of eafy defence and keeping, befides that the feafon began to fide away, and therefore it was behoveful to provide of lodging, without running any farther, they refolved to make their abode there. I will not fift out curioully the reafons of all parts upon the refolution of this their dwelling ; but I will always be of opinion, that whofoever goes into a country to poffers it, muft not ftay in the illes, there tó be a prifoner; for, betore all things the culture and tillage of the ground mult be regarded; and I would fain know how one fhould till and manure it, if it behoveth at every hour inthemorning, at noon and the evening, to crofs a great paffage of water, to go for things requifite from the firm land. And if one feareth the $c$ nemy, how fhall he that hußbandeth the land, or otherwife bufy in neceffary affairs, fave himfelf, if he be purfued; for one findeth

ADefription of New France.

findeth not always a boat in hand in time of need, nor two men toconduet it; befides, our life requiring many commodities, an illand is not fit for to begin the eftablifhment and feat of a colony, unlefsthere be currents and freams of fweet water for to drink, and to fupply other ncceffaries in houlhold, which is not in fmall illands s there needeth wood for fuel, which alfo is not there; but above all, there mult be fhelters from the hurtiul winds and cold, which is hardly found in a finall continent, environed with water on all fides. Neverthelefs the company fojourned there in the midet of a broad river, where the north wind and north weft bloweth at will, and becaufe, that two leagues higher there be brooks that come crols-wife to fall within this large branch of the fea, the ifle of the Frencbinen's retreat was called St. Croix, twenty tive leagues diftant from Port-Royal. Whilif that they begin to cut down cedars, and other trees of the laid ifle, to make neceffary buildings, let us return to feek out matter Nicbolas Aubri, loft in the woods, which long time fuce is holden for dead.

As they began to vifit and fearch the ifland, Mons. de Cbampdere, of whom we fhall henceforth make mention, becaufe he dwelt four ycars in thofe parts, conducting the voyages made there, was fent back to the bay of St. Mary, with a minefinder, that had been carried thither for to get fome mines of filver and iron, which

Return to the bay of they did; and as they had croffed the St. Mary Frencb bay, they entered into the faid bay where the of St. Mary, by a narrow Atreight or pafloft man fage, which is between the land of Portwas found Rogal, and an inand called the Long ile, againg ine. where ifter fome abode, they going a fifhLung ine. ing, the faid Aubri perceived them, and began with a fecble voice to call as loud as he could, and for to help his voice he advifed himfelf to do as Ariadne did heretofore to Tbefeus; Candidaque impofui longe velamina virge, Scilicet oblitos admonisura mei: for he put his handkercheif and his hat on a ftaft's end, which made him better to be known; for as one of them heard the voice, and afked the reft of the company if it might be the faid Monf. $A u$ bri, they mocked and laughed at it, but after they had fipied the moving of the handkerchiel and of the hat, then they began to think that it might be he; and coming near, they knew perfectly it was himfelf, and took him in their bark with great joy and contentment, the fixteenth day after he had loft himfelf. Divers in this latter age have ftuffed their books and hiftories with many miracles, whercin is not to be found fo great caufe of adminrition as is this s for during thefefixtecn day; he fied himidelf hut by, I know not whit, fimall fruits, like unto cherries, without kernel, yet not fo delicate', which are fearcely futud in thofe woods. And indeed in thefe latt voyages a jurcial grace and favour of God hath beme evident in many occurrences, which we will mark as occafion thall be offerect. 'The poor slubri, I call him to by reafon of hisaftiction, was, as one may eafily think, marveloufly weakened, they gave him food by meafure, and brought him bick again to the conypany at the ifland of St. Croix, whereof every one received an incredible joy and confolation, and efpecially Monf. de Moms, whom it concerned more than any othcr. Do not alledge unto me the hiltory of the maid of Confolans, in the country of Poiftou, which was two years without cating, fome fix years agos, nor of another near Berve in Swifferliand, which loft, not yot full ten years ago, the defire and appetite of eating, during all her life-time; and other like examples; for they be accidents happened by the difordering of nature ; and concerning that which Pliny reciteth, lib. vii. cap. 2. that in the remoteft parts of the Indies, in the inferior parts of the fountain an. 1 ly pring of the river Ganges, there is a mation of Afloms, that is to fay, mouthele's people, that live but wieh the ouly odour and exhalation of certain roots, flowers, and fruits, which they affiume through their nofes; I would hardly belicve it, but would think rather that in fmelling th:y might bite very well of the faid roots and fruits; as allo thofe that fames guarticr mentioneth to have no mouths, and to eat nothing, by the report of the favage Donacona, whom he brought into France to make recital thercof to the king, with other things as void of common fenfe and credit as that. But imagine it were true, fuch people have their nature difpofed to this manner of living, and this cafe is not alike. For the faid Aubri wanted no fomach, nor appetite, and hath lived fixteen days, partly nourifhed by fome nutritive force, which is in the air of that country, and partly by thofe fmall fruits before fpoken of, God havinggiven him Itrength to endure this long want of food, preferving him from the Itep of death: which I find ftrange, and is fo indeed. But in the hiftories *of our times there be found things of greater marvel ; among other things, of one Henry de Haffeld, merchant, trafficking from the low countries to Berg, in Norway, who having heard a belly-god freacher fpeaking ill of the miraculous falts, as though it were not in God's power to do that which hec hath done in times part, provoked by it, did effay to taft, and abitained himielf three days from eating; at the end whereof, being pinched with hunger, tooka morfel of bread, meaning to fwallow it down with a glafs of beer, but all that fluck fo in his throat, that he remained forty days and forty nights without either eating or drinking ; that time being ended, he vomited out by the mouth that which he had eaten and drunk, which all that while remained in his throat. So long an abftinence weakned him in fuch fort, that it was needful to fuftain and reftore nim with milk. The governor of the country having underitood this wonder, callcd him before him, and caquired of the truth of the matter ; wherco being incredulous, would make new trial of it, and having made him carefully to be kept in a chamber, found the thing to be true. This man is praifed for great piety, efpecially towards the poor. Some time after being come for his private affairs to Bruffels in Brabant, a creditor of his, to bercave him of hisdue, accufed him of herefy, and fo caufed him to be burned in the year 1545 .

And fince one of the canons of the city of Liege, making trial of his ftrength in fafting, having continued the fame even to the feventeenth day, felr himfelf fo weakered, thatunlefs he had been fuddenly fuccoured by a good reftorative, he had quite perifhed.

A young maid of Bucbold, in the territory of Munfter, in Weftpbalia, afflicted with grief of mind, and unwilling to ftir or go abruad from home, was beaten by her mother for the fame, which redoubled her dolour, in fuch fort, that having loft her natural reft, was four months without either drinking or eating, faving that fometimes the did chew tome roafted apple, and wafhed her mouth with a little Ptifan.

The ecclefiaftical hiftories*, among a great number of falters, make mention of three holy hermits, all named Simeon, which did live in ftrange aufterity and long fafts, as of eight days, and fifteen days continuance, yea longer, not having for all their dwelling but a column or hermitage where they dwelt and led their lives, by reafon whereof they were named Stelites, that is to fay Columenaries, as dwelling on pillars.

But all thefe before alledged, had partly refolved themfelves to fuch fafts, and partly had by little and little accuftomed themfelves to it, fo that it was not very ftrange for them to faft fo long, which was not in him of whom we fpeak, and theretore his faft is the more to be admired by fo much as that he had not in any wife difpofed himfelf thereto, and had not ufed thefe long aufterities.

After he had been cherifhed, and they fojourned yet fome time, to order the bufinefs, and to view the lands round about the ifle St. Croix, motion was made to fend back the fhips into France before winter, and fo they that went not thither to winter prepared themfelves for the return. The mean while the favages from about all their confines came to fee the manners of the Frencbmen, and loiged themfelves willingly near them; alfo in certain variances which happened amongtt themfelves, they did make Monf. de Monts judge of their debates, which is a beginning of voluntary fubjection, from whence a hope may be conceived, that thefe people will foon conform themfelves to our manner of living.

Amongft other things happened before the departing of the faid flips, it chanced The faone day, that a favage called Bituani, thority in finding good relifh in the kitchen of the marriage. faid Monf. de Monts, fettled himfelf therein, doing there fome fervice; and yet did make love to a maid, by way of marriage, the which not being able to have with the good liking and confent of her father, he ravilhed her, and took her to wife. Thereupon a great quarrelienfucth, and in the end the maid was taken away from him, and returned to her father's A very great debate was like to follow, were it not that Bituani complaining to the faid Monf. de Monts for this injury, the others came to defend their caufe, faying, to wit, the father affifted with his fiiends, that he would not give his daughter to a man, unlefs he had fom, means by his induftry to nourih and maintain both her and the children that fhould proceed of the marriage ; as for him he faw not any thing he could do, that he loitered about the kitchen of the faid Monf. de Monts, not excercifing himfelf in hunting; finally, that he fhould not have the maid, and ought to content himfelf with that which was paft. The faid Monf. de Monts having heard both parties, told them, that he detained him nor, and that the faid Bituani was a diligent fellow, and Chould go a hunting to make proof of what he could do. But yet for all that they did not reftore the maid unto him, until he fhewed effectually that which the faid Monf.

[^0]
A Defcription of New France.

Slare ot Calmon.
Desers.
Eswer:

- Watabeacbiace hricelets, or luch - ninc.
de Nonts hal promifed of him. Finally, he goeth a filhing, taketh great fore of falmons, the maid is redelivered him, and the next day following he came, cloathed with a tair new gown of beavers, well fet on with Mataibias*, to the fort which was then a building for the Frencbmen, bringug his wife with him, as triumphing for the vitory, having gotten her as it were by dint of fiword, whoun he hath ever fince loved dearly, contrary to the cuftom of the cther favagis, giving us to undertland that the thing which is goten with pain, sught to be much cherilhed.

By this action we fee the two mort confiderabic points in matter of marriage to be obfurval among thefe prople, guided only $\mathrm{b}_{\mathrm{y}}$ the law of nature, that is to fay, the futherly authority, and the hufband's indultry; a thing which I have much almircd, fecing, that in our Chriftian church, by 1 know not what abute, men have lived many ages, during which the fitherly anthority hath beendefpied imd fet at andegh, untl that the ecelefiatical conventions hive opened their eyes, and known that the fime was even againft nature itfelf, and that our kings by laws and edicts havereeftablifhed in his force this fatherly authority, which notwithftanding in pipitual marriages and vows of religion hath not yet recovered his ancient glory, and hath in this refpect, his propbutupon the courts of parliament's orders, the which ottentimes have conttrained the detainers of children, to reftore them to their parents.

Derip

BLFORE we fpeak of the fhip's return into France, it is mect to tcll you how hard the ille of St. Crois: is to be found out, to them that were never there; for there are fo many ifles and great hays to go by, before one be at it, that I wonder how ever one might pierce fo far for to find it. There are three or four mountains, imminent above the others, on the fikes; bit on the north fide, from whence the river runteth down, there is but a tharp-pomteci one, above two leagues diftant. The woods of the main land are fair, and adnuirable high and well grown, as in like manner is the grals. There are right over aguintt the illand frefh waterbrooks, very pleatiant and agreeable, where divers of Monf. de Monts's men did their bulinels, and built there certain cabins. As for the nature of the ground it is moft excellent and moft abundantly fruitlul; for the faid Monf. de Monts having caufed there fome piece of ground to be tilled, and the fame fowed with rye, for I have feen there no wheat, he was not able to tarry for the maturity thereof to reap it; and notwithltanding, the grain, fallen, hath grown and increaled fo wonderfully, that two years atter we reaped and did gather of it, as fair, big, and weighty, as any in France, which the foil hat brought forth without any tillage, and yet at this prefent it doth continue ftill to multuply every year. The faid inland containcth fome half a league of circuit, and at the end of it on the fea fide, there is a mount or fmall hill, which is, as it were, a little ifle fevered from the other, where Vol. II.

Monf. de Mrus's cannon was placed; there is alfo a little chapel built atter the havage falfion ; at the foot of which chapel there is fuch tore of muleles as is won- Srore of dertul, which may be gathered at low wa- nuftes. ter, but they are fmall; I believe thit Mond. di Monts's people did not forget to claufe an I take the biggedt, and left there but the fmall ones to grow and increafe. As for the exercife and occupations of our Frembmen, during the time of their abode there, we will mention it brichy, having firt conducted back our fhips into Franc:
The fea and maritime charges in fuch enterprizes as that of Monf. de Monts, be fo great, that he who hath not a good ftock and foundation fhall eafily fink under fuch a burden; and for to lupply, in fome fort, thofe expences, one is forced to fuffer and bear infinite difcommodities, and put himfelf in danger to be difcredited among unknown people, and which is worfe, in a land which is unmanured, and all overgrown with forefts; wherein this action is the more generous, by fo much as the peril is more evidently dangerous: and notwithftanding all this, fortune is not left unattempted, and to tread down fo many thorns that fop the way. Monf. de Monts's fhips returning into France, he remaineth in a defolate place, with one bark and one boat only, and though he is promifed to be fent for home at the end of the year, who may aflure himfelf of Eolus's and Neptune's fidelity, two evil, furious, unconftant and unmerciful mafters? behold the eftate whereunto the faid Moni. de Monts reduced himfelf, hav$\rightarrow$. 1 ing

A Defcription of New France.

ing had no help of the king, as have had all thofe voyages that havebeen herctofore diferibed, except the late lord marquis de la Roibe's, and yet it is he that hath done more than all the reft, not having yet loft his hold: but in the end I fear he thall be conitrained to give over and forfake all, to the great fhame and reproach of the lrench mame, which by this means is made ridiculous and a by-word to other nations; for, as though one would of fet purpote oppofe himlelf to the converfion of thefe poor weiterly people, and to the fetting forward of the glory of God and the kings, there be men ftart up full of ararice and ency, men which would not give a froke, or cra: their fivords forthe King's fervice, as Monf. de Poutrincotit, fhewed one day to his majefty; men which would not endure the leaft labour in the world for the honour of God, which do hinder that any profit be drawn fromi the very province itfelf, to furnifh to that which is necellary to the eftablithment of luch a work, chuling rather that Englijb. man and Hollenders reap the profit thereof, than Frinchanch, and feeking to make the name of God unknown in thofe parts of the world; and fuch men, which have no fear of God, for if they had any they would be zealous of his name, are heard, believed, and carry away things at their pleafure.

Now let us prepare and hoift up fails.
 $\therefore$ Pautin- into thefe parts with fome men of good Prance. fort, not to winter there, but as it were to find out a land that might like him; which he having done, had no need to fojourn there any longer. So then the Hhips being ready for the return, he thipped himfelf, and thofe of his company, in one of them. The mean while the tame was from all lides in thefe parts, of the wonders made in Oftend, then befieged by their highnefs of Flanders, already three years pafled. The voyage was not without ftorms and great perils; for amongft others, I will recite two or three which might be placed among miracles, were it not that the fea accidents are frequent enough, not thar I will, for all that, darken the fpecial favour that God hath always thewell in thele voyages.
The firtt is of a gult of wind, which in the midtt of their navigation came by night inftantly to frike in the fiils, with fuch a violent boifteroufnets, that it overturned the thip, in fuch manner, that of the one part the kecl was on the face of the water, and the fail fivimming upon it, without any meaus or time to right it, or to loofe the tacki.s. On the fudden the fea is all on fire, and the mariners themfilves all whe, and did feem to be all compafied with Hlames, fo furious was the fia; the f.uilors call this fire St. Goudrans fire; and by ill fortume, in this fuilden furprife, there was not a knife to be found for to cut the cables or the fail. The poor fhip during this cafualty, remained overturned, carricd continually, one while upon mountains of waters, then another while funken down even to hell. Briefly every one did prepare to drink more than his belly full, to all his friends, when a new blaft of wind came, which rent the fail in a thoufand pieces, ever after unprofitable to any ufe. Happy fail! having by his ruin laved all this people ; for if it had been a new one, they had been caft away, andt never news had been heard of them. But God doth often try his people, and bringeth them even to death's door, to the end they may know his powerful might and fear him. So the hip began to ltir, and rife again by little and little ; and well it was for them that fhe was deep keel'd, for if it had been a fly boat with a flat buttom and broad belly, it had been quite overturned upfide down, but the ballaft, which remained beneath, did help to ftir her upright.

The fecond was at Cafquet, an ine or rock in the form of a calk, between France and England, on which there is no dwelling, being come within three leagues of the fame, there was lome jealeuily between the matters of the fhip, an evil which oftentimes dettroyeth both men and fair enterprizes, the one faying that they might double well mough the faid Cafquet, another that they could not, and that it behoved to caft a little from the right courfe for to pafs under the ifland. In this cafe the worft was that one knew not the hour of the day, becaufe it was dark by reafon of mifts, and by confequence they knew not if it did ebb or flow ; for if it had been flood, they had eafily cloubled it; but it chanced that it was turning water, and by that means the ebb did hinder it ; fo that approaching the faid rock, they faw no hope to fave themfelves, and that they neceffarily muft go ftrike againft it. Then every one began to pray to God, to crave pardon one of another, and, for their laft comfort, to bewail one another. Hereupon captain Roflignol, whofe thip was taken in New France, as we have faid betore, drew out a great knife, to kill therewith captain Timotby, governor of this prefent voyage, faying to him, doft thou not content thyfelf to have undone me, but wilt thou needs yet caft me here away? but he was held and kept from doing that he was about to do; and in very truth it was in him great folly, yea great maduefs, to go about to kill a man that was going to die, and he, that went to give the blow, in the fame peril. In the end as they went to frike upon the rock Monf. de Poutrincourt, who had already yiekterd his foul and recommended his family to God, afked of him that was at the top if there were any hopes, who told there was none: then he bad fome to help him to change the fails, which two or three only did, and already was there no more water but to turn the fhip, when the mercy and livour of God came to Selp them, and turned the fhip from the perils wherein they faw themfelves. Some had put off their doublets for to feek to fave themfelves by climbing tupon the rock, but the fear was all the harm they had for that time, faving that few hours atter, being arrived near to a rock called Le nid a L'agle, the eagle's neft, they thought to go board it, thinking in the darknefs of the mift it bad been a Their return to fhip, from whence being again efcaped, Neaba- they arrived at Newbaven, the place from von. whence they firlt fet out. The faid Monf. $d e$

A Defcription of New France.

Poutrincourt having left his armours and provilions of war in the ine of St. Croix, in the keeping of the faid Monf. de Monts, as a gage and token of the good will he had to return hither.

But I may yet fet down here a marvel. lous danger, from which the fame veffel was preferved, a little after the departing from St. Croix, and this by a fad accident which God turned to good: for a certain tippling fellow being by night ftealingly come down to the bottom of the fhip tor to drink his belly full, and to fill his bottle with wine, he found that there was but too mach to drink, and that the faid Ghip was already half full of water, in fuch fort, thit the peril was imminent, and they had intinite pains to Itanch her by pumping. In the end, being come about they found a great leak, by the keel, which they ftopt with all diligence.

C H A P. VI.

The buildings of the ifle St. Croix. Uuiknoren fickucfs, &xc.

DURIN G the foreliid navigation, Monf. de Monts's people did work about the fort, which he feated at the end of the inind oppofite to the place where he had lodged his cannon: which was wifely confidered, to the end to command the river up and down: but there was an inconvenience; the faid fort did lie towards the north, and without any fhelter, but of the trees that were on the inf fhore, which all about he combianded to be kept, and not cut down. And out of the fame fort was the Swizzers lodging, great and large, and other fmall lodgings, reprefenting, as it were, a fuburb. Some had houfed themfelves on the firm land, near the brook. But within the fort was Monf. de Monts's lodging, made with very fair and artificial carpentry work, with the banner of France upon the fime. At another part was the ftorehoufe, wherein confifted the fafety and life of every one, likewife made fair with carpentry work and covered with reeds. Right over-againft the fiid ftorehoufe, were the lodgings and houfes of thefe gentlemen, Monf. D'oruille, Monf. Cbamplein, Monf. Cbampdore, and other men of reckoning. Oppofite to Monf. de Monts's faid lodging there was a gallery covered for to exercife themfelves, either in play, or for the workmen in time of rain. And between the faid fort and the platform, where lay the cannon, all was full of gardens, whereunto every one exercifed himfelf willingly. All autumn quarter was paffed on thefe works, and it was well for them to have lodged themfives, and to manure the ground of the inand before winter ; whinlt that in thefe parts pamphlets were fet out under the name of mafter Guillaume, ftuffed with all forts of news : by the which, amonglt other things, this prognofticator did fay, Monf. de Monts did pull out thorns in Canada: and all well confidered, it may well be termed the pulling out of thorns, to take in hand fuch enterprizes, full of toils and continual perils, with cares, vexations, and difcommodities. But virtue and courage that overcometh all thefe things, makes thofe thorns to be but gilliflowers and rofes, to them that refolve themfelves in thefe heroical actions to make thentelves praifeworthy and tamous in the memory of men, defpifing the vain pleafures of delicate and effeminated men, good for nothing but to coffer themfelves in a chamber.

The moft urgent things being done, and Three difhoary fnowy father being come, that is to commodifay, winter, then they were forced to keep tiesinwinwithin doors, and to live every one at his tering at own home: during which time, our men had three fpecial difcommodities in this inland, viz. want of wood (for that which was in the faidine, was fpent in buildings) lack of frefh water, and the continual watch, made by night, fearing fome furprife from the favages, that had lodged themfelves at the foot of the liid inand, or fome orher enemy: for the malediction and rage of many Chrittians is fach, that one mutt take ${ }^{\circ}$ hicel of them much more than of intidels. A thing which grieveth me to fpeak: wo lld to God I were a liar in this refpeet, and that I had no caufe to fpeak it! when they lad need of water or wool, they wete conftrained to crots over theriver, which istlirice Ife rives as broad on every lide as the river Sienne. of $8 . . . \%$. It was a thing painful and tedious, in fuch foet that it was needful to keep the boas it whole day, before one might get necefli:ats. In the mean while, the cold and fowes came upon them, and the ice fo Arons, that the cyder was frozen in the veftels, and every one his meafure was given him out by weight. As for wine, it was diltributed but at certain days of the weck. Many ille huggifh companions drank fnow water, not willing to take the Unknown pains to crofs the river. Briefly, the unfickeefes. known fivikeffes, like to thofe defribed uno tis by gumes $\mathfrak{O}$ ㅂarticer in his relation, anhiled us; for remedies there were none to be found: in the man while, the poor fick creswures did langeith, pining away by little fir want of fiveret meats, as milk or froon-meat fer to futtain dexir fomachs, which could not receive the hard meats, by reaton of let, proceediug from a rotten nleh which grew and over-abounded within their mouths; and when one thought to root it out, it did grow agaia in one nights fpare more abundintly than before. As for the tree called Amedda, mentioned by the faid $\mathcal{Q u}_{\text {fartier, the finages of thefe lands }}$ know it not ; fo that it was molt pitiful to behokl every one, very few exceptet, in this mifery, and the miferable fick folks to che, as it were full of life, without any poffibility to be fuccoured. There died of this ficknefs thirty-fix, and thirty-fix or forty more, that were Itricken with it, recovered themfelves by the help of the furing, as foon as the comfortable feafon appeared. But the deadly feafon for that Danger- ficknefs is inthe end of fanuary, the inonths cus
nonths. of February and March, wherein moft commonly the fick do die, every one in his turn, according to the time they have begun to be fick: in fuch fort, that he which began to be ill in February and March, may efcape, but he that fhall over-hafte himfelf, and betake him to his bed in $D e$. cember and January, he is in danger to dic in February, March, or the beginning of April, which time being pafled, he is in good hope, and as it were affured of his fifect. Notwithttanding fome have felt fome tonch thereof, having been fharply handled with it.

Monf. de Monts being returned into France, did confult with our doctors of phylic upon the fichinde, which, in my opinion, they found very new and unknown, for I do not fee, that when we went away, our apothecary was charged with any order for the cure thercof: nowithftanding it feemeth that Hippocrates bath had certain knowlelge of it, or at lealt oi fome that was very like to it. For in the bobls de intemis affitt. he fpeakech of a certain malady, whare the belly, and afterward the fplen do fwell and harden itfelf, and feel griesous and tharp gripes; the fkin becometh black and pale, drawing towards the colour of a green pomegranate; the ears and gums do render and yield a bad feent, the faid gums disjoining themfelves from the teeth; the legs full of blifters, the limbs are weakeneil, $\mathcal{E} c$.

But efpecially the northerly people, are Northerly more fabject to it than other more fioutherly reopic nations: wimels, the Hullanders, Frifhahi. dubet to men, and ochers thereabour, amongtt whom the tand the fiad Hollamders do write in their navi- Nizo gations, that going to the Euf-Indies many Fratco. of them were t.ben with the fane difare, being upon the coalt of Guiney; a dangerous coatt, bearing a peltiferotis air a hundred leages far in the feat: and the fane, 1 man the /H:laders, bing, in the year t cob, gove upon the coant of Sfain, to keep the limac coaft, and to annoy the $s_{p a-}$ nifo mayy, were conitraned to withdraw themelves by reaton of this difeafe, having caft into the fa two and-twenty of their dead. And if one will hear the wimels of Olaus Magms, writing of the northerly nations, of which part himfelf was, let him hearken to his report, which is chis: There is, faith lie, yot anotber marial fikk. wefs (bat is, a fickifis that affilitetib then who follow the wars) wbitb tormentetb anac afficieth thein that are befiegal, fucb celoof limbs thickeicd by a certain fiefoy beavinefs, and by a corrutted blood, wobich is between the fieph and the frin, dilating tifelf like wax; tbey fink acitb the leaft imprafoon made on tbem ecith the finger; and disjoinetb the teeth as ready to fallout; cbangetb tbe wibite colour of the fint into blew, and caufetb a besumbing, weth a dilajte to tate phyfak; and that dijeafe is called in the vulgar tongue of the country Sorbet, in Greek navizix, feradventure, becaufe of this putrifying Joftwefs wbich is under the fkin, webich feemeth to proceed of indigefting and falt meats, ald to be continued by tbe cold exbalation of the cualls: but it Ball not bave fo much force abbere the boufes are inward wainfolled ceitb boards. If it continuc longer, it muft be driven out ly taking every day wormwood, as one ex- 1 t esh pelletb out the root of the flone, by a aecoltion cine wor of fale beer drank with butler. The fame the tome. author doth yot fay, in arother place, a thing thing much to be noted: In tbe beginning, faith he, they fuftain tbe fiege witb force, but in the end, tbe foldier being by continuance weakened, 'tbey take away the provifions from tbe invaders by artificial means, fub. tilties, and ambußments, efpecially tbe fleep, which they carry away, and make tben $t o$ grafs in grafly places of their boufes, for feat tbat through want of frefs meats they fall into the loiljomeft ficknefs of all fickSortut, or neffes, called in the country language Sorbut, fcurys. bbat is to fay, a wounded Alomach, dried by cruel torments and long anguißes; for the cold and indigefting meats, greedily taken, feem to be the true catife of this ficknefs.

$A$ Defcription of New France.

I have delighted myfelf to recite here the very words of this author, becaufe he fpeaketh thereof as being ikilful, and fets forth lufficiently enough the land difeafe of New France, faving that he maketh no mention of the ftiffening of the hams, nor of a fuperfluous flefh which groweth and aboundeth within the mouth; and that if one think to take it away it increafeth till ; but well fpeakech he of the bad ttomach. For Monf. de Poulrincourt made a negro to be opened, that died of that fickners in our voyage, who was found to have the inward parts very found, except the ftomach, that had wrinkles as though they were ulcered.
Ceures of And as for the caufe proceeding from falt the faiddi- meats, it is very true, there are many other caufes concurring which feed and entertain this ficknefs : amongft which I will place in general the bad food, comprehending with it the drinks; then, the vice of the air of the country, and after, the evil difpofition of the body : leaving the phyficians to fift it out more curiounly. Whereunto Hippocrotes faith, that the phyfician ought alfo carefully to take heed, in confidering the feafons, the winds, the afpects of the fun, the waters, the land itfelf, the nature and ficuation of it, the nature of men, their manner of living and exercife.
Whatfood As for the food; this ficknefs is caufed caufes the by cold meats, without juice, grofs and land dif- corrupted. One mult then take heed of eale. fale meats, fmoky, mufty, raw, and of an evil fcent, likewife of dried fifhes, as Newfoundland $\mathrm{fi} h$, and tinking rays: briefly, from all melancholy meats, which are of hard digefting, are eafily corrupted, and breed a grofs and melancholy blood. I would not, for all that, be fo fcrupulous as the phyficians, which do put in the number of grofs and melancholy meats, beevesflefh, bears, wild boars and hogs-flefh, (they might as well add unto them beavers flefh, which notwithftanding we have found vcry good) as they do among(t fifhes, the tons, dolphins, and all thofe that carry lard; among the birds, the herns, ducks, and Vol. If.
all other water-birds : for in being an overcurious obfervator of thefe things, one might fall into the danger of ftarving, and die for hunger. They place yet among the meats that are to be fhunned, bifket, beans, and pulfe, the often ufing of milk, cheefe ; the grofs and harh wine, and that which is too fmall, white wine, and the ufe of vinegar ; beer which is not well fodden, nor well fcummed, and that hath not hops enougln ; allo waters that run through Bad wa. rotten wood, and thofe of lakes and bogs; ters. ftill and corrupted waters, fuch as are much in Holland and Friefland, where is obferv'd that they of Amferdam are more fubject to palfies and ftiffening of finews than they of Rotterdam, for the abovefaid caufe of ftill and neepy waters; which, belides, do ingender dropfies, dyfenteries, fluxes, quartan agues, and burning fevers; fivellings, ulcers of the lights, hhortnefs of breath, ruptures in children, fwelling in the veins, fores in the legs: finally, they wholly belong to the dileafe whereof we fpeak, being drawn by the fpleen, where they leave all their corruption.
Sometimes this ficknefs doth alfo come by a vice, which is even in waters of running fountains; as if they be among or near bogs, or if they iflue from a muddy ground, or from a place that hath not the fun's afpect. So Pliny reciteth, that in the voyage which the prince Cafar Germanicus made into Germany, having given order to his army to pafs the river of Rbine, to the end to get ftill forward in the country, he did fet his camp on the fea-fhore, upon the coult of Friefand, in a place where was but one only fountain of frefh water to be found, which notwithltanding was fo pernicious, that all they that drank of it loft their teeth in lefs than two years fpace, and had their knees fo weak and disjointed that they could not bear themfelves: which is verily the ficknefs whereof we fpeak, which the phyficians do call Stomaccace, Stomatcathat is to fay, mouths fore, and Scelotyrbi, ce, Scelowhich is as much to fay, as the fhaking tyrbe. of thighs and legs. And it was not poffible to find any remedy, but by the means of an herb called Britannica, or fcurvygrafs, which befides is very good for the finews, againft the fores and accidents in the mouth : againft the fquinancy, and againft the biting of ferpents. It hath long leaves, drawing in colour to a dark green, and produceth a black root, from which liquor is drawn, as well as from the leaf. Strabo faith, that the like cafe happened to the army that EElius Gallus brought into Arabia, by the commiffion of Auguftus the emperor. And the like alfo chanced to king S. Lewis's army in Egypt, as the lord de foinville reporteth. Other effects of bad 9 U waters
waters are feen near unto us, to wit, in Savoy, where the women, more than men, becaufe they are of a colder conititution, have commonly fwellings in their throats as big as bottles.
What air
Next to waters, the air is alfo one of the ternth. fathers and ingenderers of this ficknefs, in boggy and waterifh places, and oppofite to the fouth, which is often molt rainy. But there is yet in New France another bad quality of the air, by reafon of lakes that be thick there, and of the great rottennefs in the woods, whofe odour the bodies having drawn up, during the rains of autumn and wintcr, ealily are engendered the corruptioms of the mouth, and fwelling in the legs before fipoken, and a cold entreth infenfibly intoit, which benumbeth the limbs, ftifteneth the linews, confraineth to creep with crutchcs, and in the end to keep the bed.
And for as much as the winds do participate wich the air, yea, are an air running with a more vehement force than ordinary, and in this quality have great power over the health and fickneffes of men, we will tpeak lomething of it, not (for all that) itraying ourfelves from the fequel of our hiltory.
The eafterly wind, called by the Latins, Subjolanus, is held for the healletfifulef of all, and for that caufe, wife builders give advice to fet their buildings towards the afpect of the eaft. The oppofite to it is the wind called Favorinus, or Zephirus, which our fuamen doth name weft, which in thefe parts is mild and fructifying. The fouthern wind, called Auffer by the Latins, is in Africa hot and dry: but in croffing the Micititerranean fea, it gathereth a great movitnefs, which makes it tormy and putrefying in Provence and Languedoc. The oppoofite to it , is the northern wind, otherwife called Borcas, Bize, Tramontane, which is cold and dry, chaceth the clouds and tweepeth the airy region. It is taken for the wholfomeft next to the eatt wind. But thefe qualitiese of the wind found and noted in theie parts, make not one general rule through over all the earth; for the north wind beyond the equinoctial line is not cold as in thefe parts, nor the fouth wind hot, becaufe that by a long croffing, they borrow the qualities of the regions through which they pars: befides that, the fouth wind at his firtt iffue is cooling, according to the report of thofe that have travelled in Africa. In like manner, there be regions in Peru, as in Lime and the plains, where the north wind is unwholfome and noifome And thorough all that coaft, which is about 5 oo leagues in length, chey take the fouth wind for a found and frefh cooling wind, and which more is, moft mild and pleafant:
yea alfo, that it doth never rinin by it, according to that which 耳ofepl Acffa writeth of it, clean contrary to that we fee in this part of Europe. And in Spain the ealt wind, which we have faid to be found, the fame Acofta faith, that it is noifome and unfound. The wind called Circius, which is the north weft, is fo ftormy and boilterous in the wefterly fhores of Norway, that if there be any which undertalieth any voyage that way, when that wind bloweth, he mult make account to be lolt and caft away: and this wind is fo cold in that region, that it fuffereth not any tree, fimall or great to grow there: fo that for want of wood they mult ferve themfelves with the bones of great filhes, to feeth or roaft their meats, which difcommodity is not in thefe parts. In like fort, we have had experience in New lirance that the north winds are not for health: And the north ealt (which are the cold, ftrong, fharp and ftormy Aquilons) ya worfe; which our fick folks, and sici: fulks they that had wintered there the former and beafts year, did greatly fear, becaufe that likely do feel the jome of them drooped away, when that weand and wind blew, for indeed they had fome fen- coming. fible feeling of this wind: as we fee thofe that be fubject to ruptures endure great pangs when that the fouth wind doth blow: and as we fee the very beafts to prognotticate by fome figns the change of weather. This noifome quality of winds proceedeth (in my judgment) from the nature of the country through which it paffeth, which, as we have faid, is full of lakes, and thofe very great, which be, as it were, ftanding and ftill waters. Whereto I add the exhalation of the rottennefs of woods, that this wind bringeth, and that in fo much greater quantity, as the north weft part is great, large, and fpacious.

The feafons are alfo to be marked in Scafons. this difeafe, which I have not feen nor heard of, that it begins to work, neither in the fpring time, fummer, nor autumn, unlefs it be at the end of it, but in winter. And the caufe thereof is, that as the growing heat of the fpring maketh the humours clofed up in the winter to difperfe themfelves to the extremities of the body, and fo cleareth it from melancholy, and from the noifome humours that have been gathered in winter; fo the autumn, as the winter approacheth, draweth them in ward, and doth nourifh this melancholy and black humour, which doth abound efpecially in this feafon, and the winter being come theweth forth his effects at the cotts and griefs of the poor patients. Galen yieldeth a realon for the fame, faying that the humours of the boily, having been parched by the burning of the fummer, that which may reft of it, after the heat is expulfed, becometl forthwith cold and dry; that is to fay, cold by the privation of the heat, and dry in as much as in the drying of thefe humours, all the moitnefs that was therein hath been contumed: and thereby it cometh th.ut fickneflies are bred in this feafon, and the farther one goeth the weaker nature is, and the intemperate colanefs of the air being entered into a body already thereto difyofed, loth handle it, as it were, at a beck and at will, without pity.

[^1]
A Defcription of New France.

I would add willingly to all the forefaid caules the bad food of the fea, which in a long voyage brings much corruption in man's body. For one muft of necellity, after four or five diays, live of falt mear, or bring fleep alive, and fore of poultry; but this is but for matters and commanders in fhips: and we had none in our voyage but for to referve and multiply in the land whither we did go. The mariners then and paffengers do fuffer difcommodity as well in the bread as in the meat and drink ; the bifker becometh dampih and rotten, the fifhes that are given them alike, and the waters ftinking ; they which carry fweet ments, be it flefh or fruits, and that uife good bread, good wine and good broths, do cafily avoid thofe fickneffes; and I durft, in fome fort, be anfwerable unto them for their healths, unlefs they be very unhealthful by mature. And when I confider that this difeafe is as well taken in Holland, Fiefland, in Spain and in Guiney, as in Canada, I am brought to believe that the chief coule thereof is in that which I have faid, and not peculiar nor particular to New France.

After all thefe caufes and confiderations, fome of ours, yea, of Sagamos + Memberton himfelf, who playeth the foombiner among the fivages, who, arriving in that councry, fidd, that I hould never return into France, nor Monf. Boullct, fometimes capthin of Monf, de Poutrimctur's regiment, who, for the moft part of the time, hath had agues there, bat he did fare well. And they themfelves did advife our labourers to take but fnalll labour in their work, which counfel they could very well obferice; for I may fiy, and that truly, that I never made to muel bodily work, for the pleafure that I dill take in drefling and tilling my gardens, to iaclofe and hedge them, againit the gluttony of the hogs, to make knots, to draw out alleys, to build arbours, to fow wheat, ryc, barley, oats, beans, peafe, garden berbs, and to water them; fo much defire had I to know the goodnefs of the ground by my own experience. So that fummers days were unto me too floort, and very often did I work by moon-light. Concerning the labour of the mind, I took a reafonable part of is; for at night, every one being retired, among the pratinge, noifes, and hurfiburlies, I was thut up in my fudy, reading or writing of fomething. Yea, I will not be afhamed to fpeak, that being requefted by Monf. de Poutrincoart, our commander, to beftow fome hours of my induftry, ingiving Chriftian infructions to our fuall company; for not to live like beafts, and for to give to the fivages an example of our manner of life, 1 have done it according to the neceffity, and breing thereof requefted, every Sundoy, and fometimes extraordinarily, almoft during all the time we have been there ; and well was it for me that I bad brought my bible, and fome books unawares; for otherwife it had been very difficult for me, and had been caule to excufe me of that work. It hath not been withour fruit, many witneffing unto me, that they had never heard fo much good talk of Got, not knowing before any principle of that which belongeth to Chrittian doctrine : and fuch is the ftate wherein live the moft part of Cbriftendom ; and if there were any edifying of one part, there was back biting on the other, by reafon, that ufing a French liberty, I willingly fpake the truth : whereupon I remember the faying of the prophet Amos, They bave bated, fairh he, bim that reproved them in tbe gate, and bave bad in abomination bin that jpake in integrity. But, in the end, we became all good triends; and amongtt thefe things God gave me always a found and a perfect health, always a good

A Defcription of New France.

a good tafte ; always merry and nimble, Siving that having once lain in the woods, near to a brook in fnowy weather, I was touched with a cramp, or Sciatica, in my thigh a formight's fpace, not lofing my appetite nor ftomach for the fame ; for indeed I took delight in that which I did, defiring to confine there my life, if it would pleafe God to blefs the voyages.

I fhould be over tedious, if I fhould fet down here the difpofition of all perfons, and to fpeak concerning children that they are more fubject to this ficknefs than others, for that they have very often ulcers in the mouth and gums, beciufe of the thin fubfance that abound in their bodies: and alfo that they gather many crude humours by their diforder of living, and by the $q^{\text {mantity }}$ of fruits they eat, being never fill'd with it, by which means they gather great quantity of waterifh blood, and the fpleen being fopped cannot foak up thofe moiltures. And as for old folks that have their heat weakened, and cannot refift the ficknefs, being filled with crudities, and with a cold and moift temperature, which is the quality proper to ftir up and nourifh it: I will not take the phyfician's office in hand, fearing the cenfuring rod: and notwithftanding, with their leave, not touching with their orders and receits of Agaric, Aloes, Rbubarb, and other ingredients, I will write here that which I think more ready at hand for the poor people, who have not the ability and means to fend to Alexandria, as well for the prefervation of their health, as for the remedy of this ficknefs.
Advicefor. It is a certain axion, That a contrary fickrenfes mult be healed by his contrary. This of $N_{\text {cit }}$ of Nete ficknefs proceeding from an indigeftion of crude, zrofs, cold and melancholy meats, which offend the ftomach, I think it good, fubmitting myfelf to better judgment and advice, to accompany them with good fauces, be it of butter, oil, or fat, all well ipiecd, to correct as well the quality of the meat as of the body inwardly waxen cold. Ler this be faid for crude and grofs meats, as beans, peafe, and fifh; for he that fhall eat grood capons, good partridges, good ducks, and good rabbets, he may be affured of his headth, or elfe his body is of a very bad conftitution. We have had fome fick that have, as it were, been raifed up from death to life; for having eaten twice: or thrice of a coolice made of a cock, good ing their mouths fpoiled, and not being able to eat, have never loft their tafte of wine, which they took with a fipe. The fame hath preferved many of them from death. The young buds of herbs in the Herbs in fpring time be alfo very fovereign. And the fpring befides that reafon requircs to believe it, I ime. have tried it, being my felf gone many times to gather fome for our fick people, before that thofe of our garden might be ufed, which refored them to their tafte again, and comforted their weak fomachs.

And as for that which concemeth the exterior parts of the body, we have found great good in wearing wooden pantoffles, or pattens, with our fhocs, for to avoid the moiftnefs. The houfes need no opening, nor windows on the north-weft fide, being a wind very dangerous, but rather on the eaft-fide, or the fouth. It is very good to have good bedding (and it was good for me to have carried things neceffary to this purpofe) and above all, to keep my felf near. I would like well the ufe of ftoves, stoves. fuch as they have in Germany ; by means whereof they feel no winter, being at home but as much as they pleafe. Yea they have Sloves in of them in many places in their gardens, gardens. which do fo temper the coldnefs of winter, that in this rough and Marp feafon, there one may fee orange-trees, lemon-trees, fig-trees, pomegranate-trees; and all fuch fort of trees bring forth fruit as good as in Provence: which is fo much the more eafy to do in this new land, for that it is all covered over with weods (except when one come in the Armoucbiquois country a hundred leagues further off than Port.Royal.) And in making of winter a fummer, one fhall difcover the land; which not having any more thofe great obftacles that hinder the fun to court her, and from warming it with his heat, without doubt it will become very temperate, and pield a molt mild air ; and well agreeing with our humour, not having there, even at this time, either cold or heat that is exceffive.

The favages that know not Germany, nor the cuftoms thereof, do teach us the fame leffon, which being fubject to thofe fickneffes (as we have feen in the voyage of Fames $Q^{\text {uartier }) ~ u f e ~ f w e a t i n g s ~ o f t e n, ~ a s ~ i t ~ T h e f w e a t-~}$ were every month; and by this means ings of the they preferve themfelves, driving out by favages. fweat all the cold and evil humours they might have gathered. But one fingular prefervative againft this perfidious ficknefs, which cometh fo ftealingly ; and which having once lodged itfelf within us, will not be put out ; is to follow the counfel of him that is wife amongt the wife, who having confidered all the afflictions that nang gives to himfelf during his life, hath lound nothing better than to rejoice bimjelf, and do good, and to take pleafure in bis oven works. They that have done fo in our company, have found themfelves well by it ; contratiwife fome always grudging, repining, never content, ille, have been Means of tound out by the fame dife.nfi. Truc it is, mirth. that for to enjoy mirth it is good to have the fweetnefs of frefh meats, Hehh, fifhes, milk, butter, oils, fruits, and fuch like, which we had not at will (I mean the common fort ; for always fonse one or other of the company did furnifh Moni. de Poutrincourt's table, with wild fowl, venifon or frefl fifh.) Andif we had had half a dozen kine, I believe that no body had died there.

It refteth a prefervative neceffary for the accomplifiment of mirth; and to the cond one may take pleafure on the work of lis hands, is every one to have the honer company of his lawful wife; for without that, the chear is never perfect ; ones mind is alwuysupon that which onc lovesand defircth: there is lilll fome forrow, the body becomes full of ill humours, and fo the ficknelis doth breed.

And for the laft and fovereign remedy, Tree of 1 fend back the patient to the tree of life life. (for fo one may well qualify it) which Fames Guartier doth call Annedla, yetunknown in the coalt of Port-Royal, unlefs it be, peradventure the Salfafras, whereof Safafi..t there is quantity in certain places. And it is an allured thing, that the faid tree is very excellent. But Moni. Champlein, who is now in the great river of Canada, paffing his winter, in the fame part where the faid $\mathfrak{Q}_{\text {wartier did winter, hath charge }}$ to find it out, and to make provifion thereof.

C H A P. VII.

The difcovery of lands by Monf. de Monts: Fubulous tales and reports of the river and feigncd towin of Norombega: The refiting of the autborsthat baew written thereof : Fifl: banks in Newfoundland: Kinibeki : Chovacoet : Mallebarre: Armouchiquois, Ec.

THE rough feafon being paffed, Monf. de Monts wearied with his bad dwelling at St. Croix, derermined to feck out another port in a warmer country, and more to the fouth; and to that end made a pinnace to be armed and furnifhed with victuals, to follow the coaft, and difcovering new countries, to feek out fome Monf. de happier port in a more temperate air. And Monts's becaufe that in feeking, one cannot fet forvoyage for ward fo much as when in full fails one gothe difco- eth in open fea; and that finding out bays very of new lands. and gults, lying between two lands, one moft put in, becaufe that there one may as foon find that which is fought for, as elfe where, he made in this voyage but about fix fecre leagues, as we will tell you now. From St. Croix to fixty leagues forward, the coaft lieth eaft and weft; at the end of which fixty leagues, is the river called by

Kinibcki
fixty leigues from St.
from St the favages Kimibeki. " From which place " to Mallebarre it lieth north and fouth, Crix. "and there is yet from one to the other
" fixty leagues in a right line, not follow" ing the bays. So far ftrercheth Moni.
" De Monts's voyage, wherein he had for " pilot in his veffel, Monf. De Cbamp"dore. In all this coalt fo far as Kinibeki,
" there are many places where fhips may be " harboured amongft the illands, but the " people there are not fo frequent as is beVol. 11 .
" yond that." And there is no remarkable thing (at leatt that may be feen in the outfide of the lands) but a river, whereof many have written fables one after another, like to thofe that they (who grounding themfelves upon Hannos's commentaries, aCartbaginian captain) have feigned of towns built by him ingreat number upon the coafts of $A$ frica, which is watered with the ocean feal; for that he play'd an heroical part in failing fo far as the ifles of Cape Verd, where long time fince no body hath been; the navigation not being fo fecure then upon that great fea, as ai is at this day by the benefit of the compafs.

Therefore without alledging that, which the firft writers (Spaniards and Portugueze) have laid, I will recite that which is in the laft book, incituled, The univer fal biftory of the Weft-Indies, printed at Doway, the laft year 1607, in the place where he fpeaks of Norombega: for in reporting this, I fhall have allo faid that which the firt have written, from whom they have had it.
" Moreover, towards the north (faith Fabulous " the author, after he had fpoken of Vir- tales of " ginia) is Norombega, which is known the river
" well enough, by reafon of a fair town, garon
" and a great river, though it is not found " from whence it hath its name; for the "Barbarians do call it Agguncia: at the 9 X " mouth
" mouth of this river there is an ifland " very fir for filhing. The region that " grethalong the fea, doth abound in fith; " andtowards Neev France, there are great " numbers of wild beatts, and is very com" modious for hunting; the inhabita", cs do
" live in the fiame manner as they of New
"France." If this beautifultown hath ever been in nature, I would fain know who hath pulled it down: for there are but cabins here and there made with pearkes covered with bark of trees, or with ikins; and both the river and the place inhabited, are called Pemptcgoel, and not Agguncia.
called herctofore the ille of Bacaillos) the coaft turneth to the welt, and weft fouthweft, as far as the river of Norombega, "s newly difcovered (faith he) by the Por.
" Iugueze and Spaniards, which is in thirty "d degrees : adding that this river hath " at the entrance thercof many ifles, banks, "6 and rocks ; and that fifteen or twenty " leagues within it, is built a great town, "where the people are fmall and blackilh,
" like them of the Indies; and are cluath-
" ed with skins, whereof they have a" bundance of all forts. Item, that the "bank of Newfoundland endeth there ;
" and that that river being paffed, the coant
" turncth to the weft, and weft north-
"welt, above two hundred fifty leagnes
" towards a country, where thereare both " towns and caftles. But I fee very little " or no truth at all, in all the difcourfes
" of this man :" and well may he call his voyages adventurous, not for him, who was never in the hundredel part of the places he defcribeth (at leaft it is cafy fo to think) but for thofe that will follow the ways which he willeth mariners to follow. For if the faid river of Norombega be in thirty degrees, it mult needs be in Flori$d a$; which is the contrary to all them that ever have written of it, and to the very truth itfelf.

Concerning that which he frith of the The great bank of Newfoundland, it endeth (by the bank ut report of mariners, about the ifte of Sab. Nawn. lon, or Sand, about cape Breton. True it foumdlan.t. is, that there are fome other banks, that are called Lebanquerearl, and Lebancjacquet; but they are but five or fix, or ten leagues, and are divided from the great bank of Newofoundland; and touching the men in the land of Norombega, they are of fair and high ftature. And tofay, that this river being paffed the coaft lieth weft, and weft north-weft, that hath no likelihood. For from cape Breton, fo far as the point of Florida, that lieth over againft the ille de Cuba; there is not any coaft ftanding weft north-weft, only there are in the parts joyning upon the true river called Norombega, fome fifty leagues coaft, that ftardech eaft and weft. Finally, of all that which the faid Jobn Al. fonfe doth report, I receive but that which he faith that this river, whereof we fpeak, hath at the coming in many illands, banks and rocks.

The river of Norombega being paffed, Kinibrki. Monf. de Monts went fill coafting, until he came to Kinibeki; where a river is, that may fhorten the way to go to the great river of Canada. There is a number of favages cabined there; and the land beginneth there to be better peopled. From Kinibeki going farther, one findeth the bay of Marcbin, named by the captain's name

A Defription of New France.

The bay of Marbin.
Crova. ruet.

The Ar.
moulit.
quois.
traitor,
and thieves.

Shoals fretching far into the fea.
that commandeth therein. This Marchin was killed the year that we departed frons NewFrance in $\mathbf{1 6 0 7}$. Farther is another bay called Cbovacoed, where, (in regard of the former countries) is a great number of people ; for there they till the ground, and the region beginneth to be more temperate ; and for proof of this, there is in this land fore of vines; yen even there be inlands full of it, (which be more fubject to the injuries of the wind and cold) as we Thall fily hereafter. There is between Cbovacoes and Mallebarre, many bays and ifles ; and the coalt is fandy, with fhallow ground, drawing near to the fuid Mallebarre, fo that fearce one may land there with barks.

The people that be from St. Fobn's river to Kinibeki (wherein are comprifed the rivers of St. Croix and Norombega) are called Elechemins; and from Kinibeki, as far as Mallebarre, and farther, they are called Armoucbiquois. They be traitors and thieves; and one had need to take heed of them. Monf. de Monts, having made fome itay at Mallebarre, victuals began to be fcarce with him; :ind it was needful to think upon return, efpecially feeing all the coaft fo troublefome, that one could pafs no further without peril, for fhoals that ftretch far into the fea, in fuch wife, that the farther one goeth from the land, leffer depth there is. But before departing, a carpenter of St. Maloes died cafually ; who going to fetch water with fome kettles; an Armoucbinuois feeing fit opportunity to fteal one of thofe kettles, when that the Frenclman took no heed, took it, and ran away fpeedily with his booty. The Malovine running after, was killed by this wicked people; and although the fame had not happened, it was in vain to The fwist - purfue after this thief; for all thefe Arneío of the moucbiquois are as fwift in running as greyArmuw $b i$ - hounds; as we will yet further Gay in fpeakyuois. ing of the voyage that Monf. de Poutrin. court made in the fame country, in the year 1606. It grieved fore Monf. de Monts, to fee fuch a thing; and his men were earneft for revenge (which they might do ; for the other barbarians were not fo far from the Frenchman, but that a mufket fhot might have fcared them; which they had already on reft, to level every one at his man) but the faid Monf. de Monis, upon fome confiderations, which many other of this place and dignity might have miffed to confider; made every one to put down their murkets cocks, and left them alone, not having hitherto found a tit place to make a fettled dwelling. And fo the faid Monf. de Monts, caufed all things to be in a readinefs for the recurn to St. Croix, where he hat left a good number of his men, yet weak by the witter ficknefs, of whole health he was careful.
Many that know not what belongeth to the fea, do think, that the fetting of an habitation in an unknown land is eafy: but, by the difcourfe of this voyage, and others that follow, they fhall find that it is far eafier to fay, than to do ; and that Monf. de Monts, hath exploited many things this Grft year, in vicwing all the coaft of this lind, even to Mallebarre ; which is four hundred leagues, following the fame coaft, and fearching to the bottom of the bays; befides the labour he forced to, in caufing houfes to be made at St. Croix ; the care he had of thofe which he had brought thither, and of their return into France; if any peril or Thipwreck hould come to thofe that had promifed him to fetch him at the end of the year. But one may run and takes pains to feel: ports and havens, where fortune favoureth; yet the is always like to herfelf. "It is "s good for one to lodge himfelf in a fweet " mild climate, when one may chufe, "" notwithttanding death follows us every The mor" where." I have heard of a pilot of Nerv- tality of baven, that was with the Engli/bmen in the FingVirginia twenty-four years ago; that being ginian like. come thither, there died thirty-fix of them that of the in three months. Neverthelefs, Virginia Fronch in is taken to be in the 36 th, 37 th, and 38 th Neru degrees of latitude, which is a good tem- Franes. perate country. Which confidering, I the tem yet believe (as I have already faid before) per of 1 ir. that fuch mortality cometh by the bad fare ; ginia. and it is altogether needful to have in fuch a country, at the very beginning, houmold, and tame cattel of all forts ; and to carry ftore of fruit trees and grafts, for to have there quickly recreation neceffary to the health of them that defire to people the land. That if the favages themfelves be fubject to the ficknefs, whereof we have fpoken; I attribute that, to the fame caufe of evil fare. For they have nothing that may correct the vice of the meats which they take; and are always naked amongit the moiftures of the ground, which is the very means to gather quantities of corrupted humours ; which caufe thofe fickneffes unto them, as well as to the ftrangers that go thither, although they be born to that kind of life.

C H A P. VIII.

'The arrival of Monf. du Pont to St. Croix : retarn of Monf. de Monts into Prance: Thbe Furniture of the joidd Monf. du P'ont for the difibivery of new lunds beyond Mallebarre, ƠC.

THE fpting.time feafon being paffied in the voyage of the Armoncoiquois, Monf, de Monits, did temporife at St. Croix for the time that he had agreed ufon; in the which if he had no news from Irance, he mighe depart and come to lick fome fhip of them that come to Nevefoundland for the drying of fifh; to the end to repafs into France within the fame, he and his company, if it were poffible. This time was already expired, and they were ready to fet fails, not expecting more any fuccour nor refrething ; when Monf. du Pont, furnamed Gravh, dwelling at Honfeur, did arrive with a company of fome forty men, for to eafe the faid Monf. de Morts and his troop; which was to the great joy of all, as one may well imagine; and cannon thots were free and plentifilat at the coning according to cuftom, and the found of trumpets. The faid Monf. dut Pout, not knowing yet the thate of our frencbmen, did think to find there an affured dwelling, and his lodgings ready ; buc coulidering the accidents of the ftrange licknefs whereof we have fooken, he took advice to change place. Monf. de Monts was very defirous that the new habitation had been about forty degrees, taac is to fay, four degrees farther than St. Croix: buthaving viewed the coait as far as Mallibarre, and with much pain, not finding what he defired ; it was deliberated to go and make their dwelling in Port Royal, until means were had to make an ampler difcovery. So every one began to pack uptheir things; that which was built with intinite labour was pulled down, except the ftore-houfe, which was too gre:t and painful to be tranfported; and in executing of this, many voyages are made. All being come to Port Royal, they found out new labours; the abiding place is chofen right over againit the inand, that is at the coming in of the river L' Equille ; in a place where all is covered over and full of woods, as thick as poffible may be. The month of September did already begin to come ; and care was to be taken for the unlacing for Monf. du Pon's Mip, to mike room of them that fhould return back into France. Finaily there is work enough for all. When the fhip was in a readinefs to put to cails, Monf. de Monts having feen the begiming of the new habitation, Alipped himfelf for his return, with them that would follow him. Notwithitanding, many of gool courige (lorgetting the griefs and lab) urs paffied) did tarry behind, amongt whom were Monf, Cbamflein and Monf. Champdore; the one for grography, and the other for the conducting and guding of the voyages that fhould be neceffary to be made by fea. Then the faid Monf. de Monts hoifted up fails, and leaveth the fail Monf. du Pont, as his lieutenant and deputy in thefe patts ; who wanting no diligence (according to his nature) in making perlect that which was ncedful for to lodge both himifelf and his people, which was all that miglet be done for that year in that country. For to go far frons home in the winter, and after fo long a toil, therc was no reafon : and as for the tillage of the ground, I believe they had no fit time to do it ; for the faid Monf. du Pout was not a man to be long in reft, nor to leave his m:n idle, if there had been any means for it.

The winter twing come, the fivages of Trafick the country did affemble themfelves, from with the lar to Port Royal, for to truck with the ravages frenchmen, for fuch things they hadd ; fome bringing beavers fkins , andotters (whichare Beavers. thofe whereof moft account may be made otters, and in that place) and alfo ellans or ftags, ${ }^{\text {tags. }}$ whereof good buff may be made; others bringing tefh newly killed, wherewith they made many good tabagies, or feafts, living merrily as long as they had wherewithal. They never wanted any bread, but wine did not continue with them till the feafon was ended. For when we came thither the year following, they had ' "en above three months without any wine, and were very glad of our coming, for that made them to take again the tafte of it.

The greatelt pain they had, was to Handgrind the corn to have bread, which is milisvery painful with hand-mills, where all the ftrength of the bidy is requifite: and therefore it is is not without caufe, that in old time, bad people were threatned to be fent to the mill, as to the painfulleft thing that is; to which occupation poor naves were fee to, before the ufe of water and wind-mills was lound out, as the prophane hittories make mention; and the fame of the comming of the people of Ifrael out of the land of ARyp : where, for the lan fourge that Gool will fend to Ploaraob, hedeclareth by the mouth of Mofer, that about midnight be will pafs tborough Egypt; and every firg-born foall die tbere, from sbe firls Lornof Pluaraoh, tbat Jould fit upon bistbrome. to the firft born of the maid fervant whicb grindetb the nin $^{\text {in }}$ Aud this labour is fo great, that the hivages (although they be very poor) cannot lear it s and had rather to be without bread, dian to take fo nuach pains, as it hath leen tried, offering them balf of the grinding they fhould dn, but they chufed pather to have no corn. And I might welf believe that the fame with other things, hath loeen great means to breed the ficknefs fpoken of, in fome of Monf. du Pont's men ; lor there died fome half a dozen of them that winter. True it is, that I find a defect in the buildings of our firencbmen s which is, they had no ditches about them, whereby the waters of the ground next to them did run under their lowermutt rooms, which was a great hindrance to their health. I add betides the bad waters which they ufed, that did not run from a quick fpring, but from the nearett brook.
The fur: niture of The winter bcing paffed, and the fea niture of navigable, Mons. du Pont would needs atMunf. do chieve the enrerprize begun the year beIont to go fore by Monf. de Monls, and to go feek the difco- out a port more foutherly, where the air new lands. miglit be more temperate, according as he had in charge of the faid Monf. de Mouts. He lurnifhed then the bark which remained with him to that effect; but being fet out of the port, and full ready, hoifted up fiils for Mallebarre, he was forced by contrary winds twice to put back again; and at the third time, the faid bark Atruck againt the rocks at the entry of the faid port. In this difgrace of Neptune, the men were faved with the better part of provifion and merchandific; but as for the batk it was rent in pieces. And by this mis-hap the voynge was broken, and that which was fodefired intermitted; for the habitation of Port Royalwasnot judgedgood; and notwithftanding it is on the north and north-weft fides, well fheltered with mountains, diftant fome one le:gue, fome half a lengue from the port and the river L'Equille. So we fee how that enterprifes take not effect according to the defires of men, and are accompinied with many perils; fo that one must not wonder if the time be long in ettablifhing of colonies, efpecially in lands fo remote, whofe nature, and temperature of air is not known, and where one mult fell and cut down forrefts, and be conitrained to take heed, not from the people that we call favages, but from them that term themfelves Chriftians; and yet Vol. II.
have but the name of it, curfed and abo. minable prople, worfe than wolves, enemies to God and human nature.

This attempt then being broken, Monf. du Pont knew not what to do, but to attend the fuccour and fupply that Monf. de Monts promifed, parting from Pors Royal at his return into France, to fend him the year following. Yet for all events he buile another bark and a Shalop for to feek Frencb finips in the places where they ufe to dry fim: fuch as Campfeaw. Port, Englifb Port, Mifamicbis Port, the bay of Cbaleur (or heat) the bay of Morves or Codides, and others in great number, accorting as Monf. de Monts had done the former year ; to the end to hip himfelf in them, and to return into France, in cafe that no hip hould cotiae to fuccour him. Wherein he did wifely, for he was in dan. ger to hear no news from us, that were appointed ts fucceed him, as it thall appear by the difcourfe following.

But in the mean while we mutt confider The comthat they, which in thefe voyages have pring of tranfported themfelves into thefe parts, have ter voyahad an advantage over thofe that would ger voya plant in Horida; which is, in having that reluge beforefaid, of Fronch hips that frequent the Newfoundlands for fifhing, no: being forced to build great Thips, nor to abicte extream famines, as they have done in Florida, whofe voyages have been lamentable for that refpect, and thefe by reafon of the fickneffes that have perfecuted them : but they of Florida have had a bleffing, for that they were in a mild and fertile country, and more friendly to man's health then New France, fpoken of elfewhere. If they have fuffered famines, there was great fault in them, for not having tilled the ground, which they found plain and champion ; which before all other things is to be done, of them that will lodge themfelves fo far from ordinary fuccour. But the Frencbmen, and almoft all nations at this day (I mean of thofe that be not born and brought up to the manuring of the ground) have this bad nature ; that they think to derogate much from their dignity in addicting themfelves to the tillage of the ground, which notwithftanding is almoft the only vocation where innocency remaineth. And thereby cometh that every one fhunning this noble labour, our firt parents and antient kings exercifed, as allo of the greateft captains of the world, feeking to make himfelf a gentleman at others coits, or elfe willing only to learn the trade to deceive men, or to claw himfelf in the fun, God taketh away his bleffing from us, and beateth us at this day, and hath done a long rime with an iron rod; fo that in all parts the people lan-
$9 \mathbf{Y}$
guifbeth
guifheth miferably, and we fee the realm of France fwarming with beggars and vagabonds of all kinds; befides an infinite number, groaning in their poor cott-iges, not daring, or afhamed, to flew forth their poverty and mifery.

C H A P. IX.

The firf motion and acceptation of the soyngeby Morf. de Poutrincourt, tegither with the cuther, into New France : Their departure from Paris to go to Rochel.

ABOUT the time of the before mentioned fhipwreck, Monf. de Monts being in France, did think carefully upon the means how to prepare a new fupply for New France : which feemed hard and difficult to him, as well for the great charges that that action required, as becaufe that province had been fo difcredited at his return, that the continuing of thefe voyages any longer did feem vain and unfruittul. Befides, there was fome reaton to believe that no body would adventure himfelf thither: notwithflanding, knowing Monf. de Pontrinicurt's defire (to whom before he had given part of the land, according to the power which the king had given him) which was to inhabit in thofe parts; and there to icttle his fanilily and his fortune, together with the name of God; he wrote unto lim, and fent a man of purpofe to give him rotice of the voyage that was in hard; which the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt acrepted of, leaving all affairs, to attend on this saction, though he had fuits in liw of great weight, to the profecuting and defence whereof his prefence was very requifite. And that at his firt voyage he had tried the malice of fome, which during his abfence profecuted againft him with rigour; and at his return gave over and became dumb. He was no fooner come to Paris, but that he was forted to depart, not having fcarce time to provide for things neceffary ; and, I having had that good hap to be acquainted with him fome years before, afked me if I would take part in that bufinefs; whereunto I demanded a days refpite to anfwer him. Having well confulted with my felf, not fo much defirous to fee the country, for I Thecaufes knew well that there were woods, lakes of the au- andrivers; and that one muft go over feas thors royage.
nent quality, whom I have always honoured and reverenced : which fentence at my return hath been recalled, by order and fentence of the court of partiament, for which I an particularly obliged to Monf: Seruin, the king's advocate general, to whom doth belong properly this cloge, attributed according to the letter, to the mott wife and mot magulicent of all kinge, Thou haft loved jullice and bated iniquity.

So it is that God awaketh us fometimes, to flir us up to ggenerous actions; fuch as be thefe voyigec, which (as the world doth vary) fome will blime, othe: forne will approve. But without anfwering any body in rlisis retipet, I care not what difcourfes ide men, or thofe that cannot, or will not, htp me, may make, enjoying contentment in my fiff; and beisg ready to renier all fievice to Godiund to the king in thofe remote lands, that bear the name of France, if either my fortune or condition call me thither, for there to live in quict and reft, by an acceptable pleafing habour, and to flum the hard and niferable lifte, whiento I fee reduced the molt part of men in this part of the woris.
To return then to Monf. de Poarrincourt : as he hald dif pathecl fome bufinefis, he inquircd in fome churches if fone learned prieft might be found cuat that would go with him; to rcieve and cale him, whom Mour. de Ments had teft clecre at his voyage, whom we thought to be yet living. But becaufe it was the holy week, in which time they are cmployed, and wait on confflions and frivitgs, there was nonc to be found ; fome exciffing themelves upon the troubles and difcommodities of the fa, and the length of the voyage; others deferring it tilf iffer Eafter: which was caufe that none could be had out of Paris: but by reation the feafon hafted on; for time and tide sarry for no man, we were forced to depart.

There refted to find out fit and neceffary workmen for the voyage of New France, whereunto fome were fpecdily providel, and a price was agreed upon for their wages, and money given before hand in part thereof,

A Defcription of New France.

thercof, to bear their charges to Rocbel, where the rendezvous was, at the dwelling houfes of matt:r Macquin, and mafter Georges, worfhipful merchants of the faid town, the affociates of Monf. de Monts, which did provide our furniture and provifion.

Our meaner people being gone, three or four days after we took our way to Or leans, upon Good-Friday, for there to fo-lemnife and pals our Eafter, where every one accomplifhed the duty ufual to all good Chriftians, in taking the, fpiritual food; that is to fay, the holy communion, feeing we did undertake, and were going on a voyage. From thence we came down the river Loyre to Saunur, with our carriage ; and from Saumur we went by Gours and Maran to Rochel, by hackney horfes.

C H A P. X.

> Of what fogid at Rochel, bijore they fot out on their voyact.

BEING come to Rorbel, we found there Monf. de Monts, and Monf. Wi Poutriucourt, that were come poft, and our Thip calld the Fonas, of the burthen of 150 tuns, ready to pafs out of the chains of the town, to tarry for wind and cide. The tide I fay, becaufe that a great fhip laden, cannot come to fea from Rochel, but in fyring tides, upon the new and full moon ; by reafon that in the town soad there is no fulficient depth. In the mean white we made good chear, yea fo good, that we did long to be at lea to make dict; which we did but too foon, being once come thither; for during two whole monehs we faw not a whit of land, as we will farther tell anon. But the workmen, through their good chear (for they had every one two thillings a day hire) did Therrair play marvellous pranks in St. Nicbolas es of $R_{0}$. quarter, where they were Iodged, which chil. Was found itrange in a town to reformed as $R$ ucbel is; in the which no notorious riots nor diffolutions be made; and indeed one mut behave himfelf orderly there, unlels he will incur the danger either of the cenfure of the mayor, or of the minitters of the town. Some of thofe difordered men were put in prifon, which were kept in the town-houfe till the time of going ; and had been further punifhed, had it not been upon confideration of the voyage, where they knew they fhould not have all their eafes, but fhould afterwards pay dear enough for their mad bargain; in putting the faid mafter Macquin and maiter Georges to fo much trouble, to keep them in order. I will not, for all that, put in the number of this difordered people, all the reft, for there were fome very civil and refpective: but I will fay that the common people is a dangerous beaft ; and this maketh me remember the Croquans * war, amongft whom I was once in my life, being in Querci. It was the ftrangeft thing in the world to fee the confufion of thofe wooden fhoed fellows, from whence they took the name of Croquans (that is to fay Hookers) becaufe that their wooden fhoes, nailed before and behind, did hook or ttick faft at every itep. This confufed peoplehad neither rhime nor reafon among them; every one was mafter there; fome armed with a hedge-hook at a ftaff's end, others with fome rufty fword, and fo accordingly,

- Our fonas having her full load, was in the end rowed out of the town into the road, and we thought to fet out the 8 th or $9^{\text {th }}$ of April. Capt. Foulques had taken the charge for the conducting of the voyage : But as commonly there is negligence in mens bufinefs, it happened that this captain (who notwithftanding I have known very diligent and watchful at fea) having left the fhip ill manned, not being in her himelf, nor the pilot, but only fix or feven mariners good and bad; a great fouth-ealt wind aroie in the night, which brake the Fonas cable, faftened with one only anchor, and driveth her againft a forewall which is out of the town, backing and proping the tower of the chain, againft which the ftruck fo many times, that the break and funk down; and it chanced well that it was then ebbing, for if this mifhap had come in flowing time, the fhip was in danger to be overwhelmed with a far greater lofs than we had, but fhe ftood up, and fo there was means to mend her, which was done with fpeed. Our workmen were warned to come and help in this neceffity, either to draw at the pump, at the capitan, or to any other thing, but few there were that endeavoured themfelves to do any thing, the moft past of them going away, and moft of them them made a mock of it. Some having gone fofar as to the oar, went back, complaining that onehad caft water upon them, being of that fide that the water came out of the pump, which the wind did fcatter upon them. I came thither with Monf. de Poutrincourt, and fome other willing men, where we were not unprofitable. Almoft all the inhabitants of Rocbel were beholding this fpectacle upon the rampiers. The fea was yet ftormy, and we thought our flip would have dafhed oftentimes againft the great towers of the town; in the end, we came in with lefs lofs than we thought of. The fhip was all unladen, being forced to tackle and furnifh her anew ; the lofs thereby was great, and the voyages almoft broken off for ever; for I believe, that after fo many trials, none would have ventured to go plant colonies in thofe parts; that country being fo ill fpoken of, that every one did pity us, confidering the accidents happened to them that had been therc before. Notwithftand-
The courrage of M. ing Monf. de Monts and his affociates, did ${ }_{d i}$ Monts bear manfully this lofs; and I muft needs and his af be fo bold as to tell in this occurrence, lociates. that if ever that country be inhabited with Chriftians, and civil people, the firft praife thereof muft of right be due to the authors of this voyage.

This great trouble hindered us above a month, which was employed in the unlading and lading again of our fhip, during that time, we did walk fometimes unto the places near about the town, and chiefly unto the convent of the Cordeliers, which is but half a league off from the town; where being one Sunday, I did marvel how in thofe places of frontier, there is no better garrifon, having fo ftrong enemies near them. And feeing I take in hand to relate an hiftory of things, according to the true manner of them ; I fay that it is a fhameful thing for us, that the minifters of Rocbel pray to God every day, in their congregations for the converfion of the poor favage people, and, alfo, for our fafe conducting, and that our churchmen do not the like. In very truth, we never required neither the one nor the other to do it, but therein is known the zeal of both fides. In the end, a little before our departing, it came to my mind to afk of the parfon or vicar of Rocbel if there might be found any of his fraternity that would come with us, which I hoped might eafily be done, becaufe there was a reafonable good number of them: and befides, that being in a maritime town, I thought they took delight to haunt the feas, but I could obtain nothing; and for all excufes, it was told me, that nonewould go to fuch voyages, unlefs they were moved with an extraordinary zeal and piety;
and that it would be the beft way to feek to the fathers jefuits for the fame ; which we could not then do, our fhip having almoft her full lading: whereupon I remember to have heard oftentimes of Monf. de Poutrincourt, that after his firt voyage, being at the court, an ecclefialtical perion efteemed very zealous in the Chriftian religion, demanded of him what might be hoped for in the converfion of the people of Nise France, and whether there were any grear number of them; whereunto he anfwered, that a hundred thoufand fouls might be gotten to Jefus Chrift, naming a number certain for an uncertain, this clergyman making finall account of fuch a number, faid thereupon by admiration Is tbat all! as if that number did not deferve the labour of a churchman. Truly, though there were but the hundredth part of that; yea, yet lefs; one muft not fuffer it to be loft. The good fhepherd having among an hundred fheep one a ftray, left the ninety nine for to go and feek out the one that was loft. We are taughit, and I believe it fo, that though there were butone man to be faved, our lord Jefus Chrilt had not difdained to come, as well for him, as he hath done for all the world. In like manner, one muft not make fo finall account of the falvation of thefe poor people, though they fwarm not in number, as within Paris or Conftantinople.

Seeing it availed me nothing in demand- Cuflom of ing for a churchman, to adminifter the theancient facrament unto us, be it during our navi- Chritians gation, or upon the land; the ancient cut- carrying tom of the Chriftians came into my mind, rit in the cir which going in voyage, did carry with voyages. them the holy bread of the eucharift, and this they did, becaufe they found not in all places priefts to adminitter this facrament unto them, the world being then yet full either of heathens or hereticks; fo that it was not unproperly called viatic, which they carried with them travelling on the way; yet notwithftanding I am of opinion that it hath a fpiritual meaning. And confidering that we might be brought to that neceffity, not having in Nero France but one prieft only, of whofe death we heard when we came thither, I demanded if they would do unto us as to the ancient Chriftians, who were as wife as we. I was anfwered that the fame was done in that time for confiderations which are not now at this day. I replied that Satirus, St. Ambrofe's brother, going on a voyage upon the fea, ferved himfelf with this fipiritual phyfic, as we read in his funeral oration made by his faid brother St. Ambrofe, which he did carry in Orario, wiich I take to be a linnen cloth, or taffeta; and well did it happen unto him by it ; for having made hipwreck, he faved himfelf upon a board

A Defcription of New France.

board, left of his veffel's wreck; but I was as well refufed in this as of the reft, which gave me caufe of wondring, feeming to me a very rigorous thing to be in worfe condition than the firt Cliriftians ; for the eucharift is no other thing at this day than it was then ; and if they held it precious, we donot demand itto make leffer account thereof.

Let us return to our fonas. Now fhe was laden and brought out of the town into the road, there refteth nothing more than fit weather and tide, which was the hardeft of the matter. For in places where is no great depth, as in Rocbel, one mult tarry for the high tides of the full and new moons, and then peradventure the wind will not be fit, and fo one muft defer till a fortnight's time. In the mean while the feafon goeth away, as it was ahmoft with us; for we faw the hour that after fo many labours and charges, we were in danger to tarry for lack of wind, becaufe the moon was in the wane, and confequently the tide. Captain Foulques did not feem to affect his charge, making no ordinary ftay in the fhip, and it was reported that other merchants, not being of Monf. de Monts's fociety, did fecretly folicit him to break off the voyage; and indeed it hath been thought that he caufed us to make wrong courfes, which kept us two months and a half at fea, as hereafter we fhall fee; which thing the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt perceiving, him. felf took upon him the charge of captain of the fhip, and went to lie in her, the fpace of five or fix days, for to get out with the firft wind, and not to lofe the opportunity. In the end, with much ado the eleventh day of May, 1606, by the favour of a fmall eafterly wind he went to fea, and made our fonas to be brought to the Palifle*, and the next day being the twelfth of the fame month, came again to Cbef de Bois, which be the places were fhips put themfelves for fhelter from winds, where the hope of New France was affembled, I fay the hope, becaufe that of this voyage, did depend the continuance, or total breach, of the enterprize.

Hardueds to come forth from a port. Eic.

C H A P. XI.

Thair defurture from Rochel : Sundry meetings of Jips, and pirates: an account of forms and winds, porpoifies, and of the banks of ice in Newfoundland,

THE Saturday, Wbitfun-eve, the thirteenth of May, we weighed our anchors, and failed in open fea, fo that by little and little we loft the fight of the great towers and town of Rocbel, then of the illes of Rez and Oleron, bidding France farewel. It was a thing fearful for them that were not ufed to fuch a dance, to fee them carried upon fo moveable an element, and to be ar every moment, as it were, within two fingers breadth of death. We had not long failed, but that many did their endeavour to yield up the tribute to Neptune. In the mean while we went ftill forward; for therewas no moregoing back, the plank being once taken up. The fixof a pirate teenthol May we met with thirteenHolland. or outlawed.
ers, going for Spain, which did enquire of our voyage, and fo held their courfe. Since that time we were a whole month, leeing nothing ellic out oi our floating town but fky and water; one fhip excepted, near about the Azores, well filled with Englifh and Dutchmen. They bare up with us, and came very ncar us, and, according to the manner of the fea, we afked them whence their Chip was ; they told us they were Newfoundlandmen, that is to fay, going a fifhing for Newfoundland filh; and they afked us if we would accept of their coimpany, we thanked them; thereupon they drank to us, and we tothem, and they took another courfe ; but having conindered their veffel all fet with green mofs on the belly and fides, we judged them to be pirates, and that they had of a long time beaten the fea in hopes to make fome prize. It was then that we beganto fee more than before, Neptune's Theep to Rkip up, fo do they call the frothy waves, when the fea beginneth to ftir, and to feel the hard blows of his trident; for commonly in that place before named the fea is ftormy; if one afk me the caufe why ? I will anfwer, that I think it to proceed of a certain con- Why the flict between the eaft and wefterly winds, fea is forwhich do encounter in that part of the fea, the Azores. and efpecially in fummer, when the weft winds do rife up, and with a great force pierce and pafs thorough a great diftance of fea, until they find the winds of thefe parts, which do refift them ; thenit is dan${ }_{9}$ Z
gerous

[^2]gerous for a hip to be at thele windyencounters. This reafon feemeth the more probable unto me, in this, that until we came near the Azores we had the wind fit cnough, and afterward, we had almoft always eithcr fouth-weft or north-weft, little north and fouth, which were not goodtor ins, but to fail with the bowline ; foreaftcrly winds we had none at all, but once or twice, which continued nothing with us to fpeak of. Sure it is that the wefterly winds do reign much along that lea; whether it be by a certain repercuftion of the eaft wind, which is itiff and fo. 't t under the equinoctial line, whereof we have lyoken elfewhere, or beciufe that this weltern land, being large and great, alfo, the wind that iffueth from thence doth abound the more, which cometh efpecially in fummer, when the fun hath torce to draw up the vapours of the earth, for the winds come from thence, ilfuing from the dens and caves of the fame; and therefore the pocts do feign that /Eolus holdeth them in prifons, from whencehe draweth them, and giveth them liberty when it pleafeth him. But the fipirit of God doth conlirm it unto us yet better, when he fiart by the mouth of the prophet, that almighty God, among other his marvels, draweth the winds out of his treafures, which be the caves whereof Ifpeak; for the word treafure fignificth in Inebrew a fecret hidden place.

He bringeth forth the clouds, fiom the cartb's furtbeft parts,
The lightnings with the rains be mokes, and them imparts,
On fome in bis anger, on otbers for pleafures:
The winds be drawetb forth out of bis deep treafures.

Pfalm cxxxv.

And upon this confideration, Cbriftopher Columbus, a Genoefe, firf navigator of thefe laftages, unto the inlands of America, did judge that there was fome great land in the weft, having obferved, falling on the fea, that continual winds came from that part.

Continuing then our courfe, we had fome other forms and hindrances procured by winds, which we almoft had always contrary, by reafon we fat out too late; but they that fet out in Marcb have commonly good winds, becaufe that then the eaft, north-eaft and northern winds to reign, which are fit and profperous for Purroifes thele voyages. Thefe tempefts were veforegart of the fhip, with harping irons in their hands, which met with then fometimes, and drew them in, aboord, with the help of the other fiulors, which, with iron hooks, which thry call Gaffes, tied at the cud of a long pols, pulled them up. We have taken many of them in that fort, both in going and coming, which have done us no harm. There be two forts of them, fome of which have a blunt and The debig nofe, others which have it fharp; we imptem took none but of thefe laft, but yet 1 re. wither member to have feen in the water fome: of the thort nofed ones. This fifh hath rwo lingers breadth of fat, at the lealt, on the back; when it wass cut intwo, we did wafh our hands in his hot blood, which, they fay, comforteth the finews. He hath a marvollous quantiry of terth along his jaws, and I think that he holleth fait that which he once catcheth; moreover the inward parts have altogether the tafte of hogs flefh, and the bones not in form of fith bones, but like a four footed creature; the moft delicate meat of it is the fin which he hath upon the bue'; and the tail, which are neither fifh nor tefh, but better than that, fuch as alfo is in fubftance of tail, that of the beavers, which feemerh to be fealed. Thefe porpoiffes be the only fifhes we took, before we came to the great bank of Morues or cod-fith. But far off we faw other grear fifhes, which did Shewout of the water, above half an acre's length of their backs, and did thruft our in the air, above a fpears height, of great pipes of water, thorough the holes they had upon their heads.

But to return to our purpofe of ftorms. During our voyage, we had fome which stormsand made us ftrike down fail, and to ftand with theiret our arms acrofs, carried at the pleafure of the waves, and toffed up and down after a ftrange manner. If any coficr or chet was not well made faft, it was heard to rowl from fide to fide, making a foul noife; fometimes the kettle was overturned, and in dining or fupping, our difhes and platters flew trom one and of the table to the other, unlefs rhey were held very faft. As lor the drink, one muft carry his mouth and the glafs according to the motion of the fhip. Briefly it was a fport but fomewhat rude, to them that cannor bear this jogging eafily: for all that, the moft of us did laugh at it: for there was no danger in it, at leaft evident, being in a good fhip, and frong to withfland the waves. We had alfo fometime calms, very tedious and wearifome, during which we walhed ourfelves in the fea, we danced upon the deck, we climbed up the main top, we fung in mufick. Then when a little fimall cloud was jerecived to iffue from under the horizon, we were forced

Wher to rive over thole exercifes, for to take what, , heed of a guft of wind, which was wrapp'd what it is, hour it is sisuts . grumbling, finorting, whitting, roaring, torming, and buzzing, was able toover rurn our flip up-fide down, unlefs men had been ready to execute that which the mafter of the hip, (who was captain Foulques, a man very vigilant) commanded them. There is no harm in flewing how theie gults of wind, otherwife called forms, are formed, ind from whence they proceed. Pliny fpeaketh of them in his natiral hiftory, and faith, that they be exhalations and light vapours raifed from the earth to the cold region of the air, and not being able to palis further, but racher forced to return back, they fometimes mect fulphury and fiery exhalations, which compals them about and bind to hard, that there come thereby a great combat, morions, and agritation, beween the fulphury heat, and the airy moiftnefs, which being conitrained by the ftronger enemy to run away, it openeth itfelf, tuakech itfelf way, whittech, roareth, and ftometh; briefly, becometh a wind, which is great or leffer according that the fulphury exhalation which wrappeth it, breaketh itfelf and giveth it away, fometimes all at once, as we have fhewed before, and fometimes with longer time, according to the quantity of the matter whereof it is made, and according as, either more or lefs, it is moved by his contrary qualitics.

But I cannot leave unmentioned the wonderful cournge and affurance that geod failors have in thefe wiady conaicts, froms, and tempefts, when as a thip being carried and mounted upon mountains of waters, and from thence let down, as it were, into the protound depths of the world, they climb among the tackling and cords, not only to the maintop, and to the very height of the main malt, but alfo without hadderfteps, to the top of another matt, fattened to the firft, held only with the force of their arms and feet, winding about the highelt tacklings. Yea much more, that if, in this great toffing and rowling, it chanceth that the main fail, which they call $P_{a t} \cdot b i l$ or $P_{a t e f i u f}$, be untied at the higher ends, he, who is firft commanded, will pur himfelf itraddling upon the main yard, that is, the tree which croffed the main maft, and wish a hammer at his girdle, and half at dizzen mils in his mouth, will tie again and make faft that which was untied, to the peril of a thoulind lives. I have fometimes hearil great account made of a Switzre's ioldnefs, who, aiter the fiege of Laon, and the city being rendered to the king's obedience, climbed and ftood ftraddling upon the thwat branch of the crots of our haty's church fteeple of the faid town, and ftood there forked-wife, his feet upward; but that, in my judgment, is nothing in regard of this, the faid Switzer being upon a firm and folid body, and without motion, and this contrariwife hanging over an inconftant fea; tofs'd with boifterous winds, as we lave fometimes feen:

After we had left thefe pirates fpoken of before, we were, until the 18 th of 7 une, toffed with divers and almolt contrary winds withoutany difcovery', but of one fhip far of from us, which we did not board, and yet notwithftanding the very fight thereof did comfort us: and the fame day we met a hip of Honfleur, wherein captain la Rocle did command, going for Necefound. land, who had no better fortune upon the fea than we. The cuftom is at fea, that when fome particular fhip mecteth with the king's fhip (as ours was) to come under the lee, and to prefent herfelf, not fide by fide, but bias-wife: alfo to pull down her flag, as this captain la Rocbe did, except the llag, for the had none, no more had we, being not needful in fo great a voyage, but in approaching the land, or when one muft fight. Our failors did caft then their computacomputation, on the courfe that we hadtion of the made: for in every fhip, the mafter, pilot, voyage. and mafter's mate, do write down every day of their courfes, and winds that they have followed, for how many hours, and the eftimation of leagues. The faid la Rocbe did account that they were then in the forty-fifth degree, and within a hundred leagues of the Bank; our pilot, called mafter Oliver Fleuriot, of St. Malo, by his computation, faid that we were within fixty leagues of it; and Capt. Foulques within one hundred and twenty leagues: I believe he gave the beft judgment. We received much contentment by the meeting this thip, and did greatly encourage us, feeing we did begin to meet with Mips, feeming unto us that we did enter in a place of acquaint . ance.

But by the way a thing mult be noted, which I have found admirable, and which givett us occafion to play the philofuphers. For about the fame 18 th day of $\mathcal{F}$ une, we found the fea-water, during three days fpace, very warm, and by the faid warmth our wine alfo was warm in the bottom of our fhip, yet the air was not hotter than before. And the 2 Ift of the faid month, quite contrary we were two or three days fo much compaffed with mifts and colds, that we thought ourfelves to be in the month of Fanuary, and the water of the fea was extreme cold. - Which continued with us until we canse upon the faid Bank, by reafon of the faid mifts, which outwardly did procure this cold unto us. When I feek out 'The reathe caufe of this Avtiperiftafe, I attribute lon of this it to the ices of the north which come Antiperif.
floating the caufe
of the ice floating down upon the coaft and fea adof Nicw- joining to Newfoundland and Labrador, land. which we have faid elfewhere is brought thither with the fea, by her natural motion, which is greater there than elfewhere, becaufe of the great fpace it hath to run, as in a gulf, in the depth of America, where the nature and fituation of the univerfal earth doth bear it eafily. Now thefe ices, which fometimes are feen in banks of ten leagues length, and as high as mountains and hills, and thrice as deepin the waters, holding, as it were, an empire in this fea, drive out far from them that which is contrary to their coldnefs, and, confequently, do bind and clofe on this fide, that fmall quantity of mild temperature that the fum.
mer may bring to that part, where they come to feat and place themfelves. Yet for all that, I will not deny but this region in one and the felf-fame parallel is fomewhat colder than thofe of our part of Europe, for the reafons that we will alledge hereafter, when we thall fpeak of the foulnefs of feafons. Such is my opinion, being ready to hear another man's reafon. And being mindful herenf, I did, of purpofe, take heed of the fame at my return from New France, and found the fame warmnefs of water, or very near, though it was in the month of Septenber, within five or fix days failing on this fide of the faid bank, whereof we will now intreat.

BEFORE we come to the Bank, froken of before, which is the great Bank where the fifhing of green cod-filh is made, fo are they called when they are not dry, for one mult go a-land for the drying of them, the fea-faring men, befides the computation they make of their courfe, have warnings when they come near to it, by birds which are known; even as one doth them of thefe our parts, returning back into France, when one is within 100 and 120 lcagues near it. The moft frequent of thefe birds, towards the faid Bank, be Godes, Fouquets, and others called Happefoyes, for a reaion that we will declare anon. When thefe birds then were feen, which were not like to them that we had feen in the midft of the great fea, we began to think ourfelves not to be far from the faid Bank. Which made us to found with our lead upon a Tburfday the 22d of $\mathcal{F} u n e$, but then we What the found no bottom. The fame day in the found is, evening, we calt again with better fuccefs; and howit for we found bottom at thirty-fix fathoms. is caff.

The faid found is a piece of lead of feven or eight pound weight, made piramidalwife, faftened at one or divers lines; and at the biggeft end, which is flat, one putteth fome greafe to it, mingled with butter; then all the fails are ftriken down, and the found caft ; and when that the bottom is felt, and the lead draweth no more line, they leave off letting down of it. So our found being drawn up, brought with it fome fmall fones, with a white one, and a piece of hell, having moreover a pit in the greafe, whereby they judged that the bottom was a rock. I cannot exprefs the Thearriv: joy that we had, feeing us there, where we al to the had fo much defired to be. There was not Fi/h bunk. any one of us more fick, every one did leap for joy, and did feem unto us to be in our own country, though we were come but to the half of our voyage, at leaft for the time, that paffed before we came to Port Royal, whither we were bound.
Here I will, before I proceed any further, of the decipher unto you, what meaneth this word word Bank Bank, which peradventure putteth fome in and the de pain to know what it is. They fometimes of the finh call banks a fandy bottom which is very ing Bank. Ahallow, or which is dry at low water. Such places be mortal for hips that meet with them. But the Bank whereof we fpeak, is mountains grounded in the depth of the waters, which are raifed up to thirty, thirty-fix, and forty fathoms, near to the upper face of the fea. This Bank is holden to be of 200 leagues in length, and eighteen, twenty, and twenty-four leagues siouli, which being paffed, there is no more butiom found out, than in thefe parts, uncil one come to the land. The fhips being there arrived, the fails are rowled up, and there, fifhing is made of the green fifh, as I have faid, whereof we thall fpeak in the book following. For the fatisfying of my reader, I have drawn it in my geographical map
map of Newfoundland, with pricks, which is all may be done to reprefent it. There are farther off, other branches, as I have marked in the faid map, upon the whicl: good fifhing may be made; and many go thither that know the places. When that we parted from Rocbel, there was, as it were, a foreft of fhips lying at Cbef de Bois, whereof that place hath taken its name, which went all in a company to that country, preventing us in their going but only of two days.

Having feen and noted the Bank, we hoilted up fails and bore all night, keeping ftill our courfe to the weft. But the dawn of day being come, which was St. Yobn Baptif's eve, in God's name we pulled down fails, paffing that day a tifhing of cod fith, with a thouland mirths and contentments, by realon of frefh meats, whereof we had as much as we would, having long before wifhed for them. Monf. de Poutrincourt, and a young man of Retel named le Feure, who, by reafon of the fea-ficknefs, were not come out from their beds nor cabins, from the beginning of the navigation, came upor the harches that day, and had the pleafure, not only of fifhing of cod, but alfo of thofe birds that be called by French mariners, Happe-foyes, that is to fay Livercatchers, becaufe of their greedinefs to devour the livers of the cod-fifh that are caft into the fea after their bellics be open'd, whereof they are fo covetous, that though they fee a great pole over their heads, ready to ftrike them down, yet they adventure themfelves to come near to the Chip, to catch fome of them at what price foever. And they which were not occupied in finhing did pafs their time in that fport. And fo did they, by their diligence that we took fome thirty of them. But in this action one of our thipwrights fell down in the fea. And it was good for him that the fhip went but flow, which gave him means to five himfelf by taking hold of the rudder, from which he was pulled in aboard, but for his pains was well benten by Cape. Fonlques.

Sea-dogs
In this fifhing we fometimes did take fea dogs, whofe ikins our joyners did keep carefully to fmooth their work withal: Item, fifh called by Frenclomen, Merius, which be better than cod, and fometimes another kind of fifh called Bars: which diverfity did augment our delight. They which were not bufy in taking either fifh or birds, did pafs their time in gathering the hearts, guts, and other inward parts fautiges made wit made win the inwards of cod.
we did eat of them with a very grod ftomach.

On the evening we made ready to continue our courfe, having firf made our cannons to roar, as well becaufe of St. Fobn's holy day, as for Monf. de Poutrincourt's fake, which beareth the name of that faint. The next day fome of our men told us they had feen a bank of ice. And thereupon was recited unto us, how that the year before, a fhip of Olone was caft away, by approaching too near to it, and that two men having faved themfelves upon the ice, had this good fortune that another fhip, paffing by, the men took them in aboard them.

It is to be noted that from the 18th of Fune until we did arrive at Port Royal, we have found the weather quite otherwife to that we had before : for, as we have already faid, we had cold mifts or fogs, before our coming to the Bank, where we came in fair fun-fhine, but the next day, we fell to the fogs again, which a-far off we might perceive to come and wrap us about, holding us continually prifoners three whole days, for two days of fair weather that they pernitted us: which was always accompanied with cold, by reafon of the fummer'sabfence. Yea, even divers times we have feen ourfelves a whole fev'nnight, continually in thick fogs, twice without any fhew of fun, but very litte, as I will recite hereafter. And I will bring forth a reafon for fuch effects which feemech unto me probable. As we fee the fire to draw Thecaufes the moifnefs of a wet cloath, oppofite unto of mifts on it, likewife the fun draweth moiftnefs and the weft vapours both from the fea and from the fea. land. But for the diffelving of them there is here one virtue, and beyond thofe parts another, .ccording to the accidents and circumftances that are found. In thefe our countries it raifeth up vapours only from the ground, and from our rivers : which earthly vapours, grofs and weighty, and participating lefs of the moift element, do caufe us a hot air, and the earth difcharg'd of thofe vapours becomes thereby more hot and parching. From thence it cometh that the faid vapours, having the earth of the one part, and the fun on the other which heateth them, they are eafily diffolved, not remaining long in the air, unlefs it be in winter, when the earth is waxen cold, and the fun beyond the equinoctial line, far off from us. From the fame reafon proceedeth the caufe, why mifts and fogs be not fo frequent nor fo long in the French feas as in Newfoundland, becaufe that the fun, paffing from his rifing above the grounds, this fea, at the coming thereof, receiveth almoft but earthly vapours, and by a long fpace retaincth this virtue to diffolve very foon the exhalations it draweth to iffelf. But when it cometh to the midft of the ocean, and to the faid Newfoundlond, having elevated and affimed in fo long a courfe a great abundance of vapours, from this moift wide ocean, it cloth not fo cafily diffolve them, as well, becaufe thofe va. pours be cold of themfelves and of their nature, as b:canfe the element which is neareft under then doth fympathize with them and preferveth them, and the fun beams being not holpen in the diffolving of them, as they are upon the earth : which is even feen in the land of that country, which, although it hath but fmall heat, by reafon of the abundance of woods, notwithftanding it helpeth to difperfe the mifts and fogs, which be ordinarily there in the morning, during fummer, but not as at fea; for about eight o'clock in the morning they begin to vanifh away, and ferve as a dew to the ground.

10 A

A fina!l
bank.

Land

marks.

I hope the reader will not dillike thefe fmall digreffions, feeing they ferve to our purpofe. The 28 ch of 'yunc we found ourfelves upon a litele fimall bank (other than the great bank whereof we have fpoken) at forty fathoms ; and the day following, one of our failors fell by night into the fea, who had been loft if he had not met with a cable hanging in the water. From that time forward, we began to defcry landmarks (it was Newoundland) by herbs, moffes, flowers, and pieces of wood that we always mer, abounding the more, by Thedifo- fo much we drew near to it. The 4th of iery of St. Fuiy our failors, who were appointed for poter's the laft quarter watch, defcried in the inard. morning very early, every one being yet abed, the ines of St. Peter; and the Friday, the feventh of the faid month, we difcovered on the harboard a coaft of land, high raifed up, appearing unto us as long as one's fight could ftretch out, which gave us greater caufe of joy than yet we had had, wherein God did greatly fhew his merciful favour unto us, making this difcovery in fair calm weather. Being yet far from it, the boldeft of the company went up to the main top, to the end to fee it better, fo much were all of us defirous to fee this land, true and moft delightful habitation of man. Monf. de Poutrincourt went up thither, and myfelf alfo, which we had not yet done. Evenour dogs did thruft thcir nofes out of the fhip, better to draw and fmell the fweer air of the land, not being able to contain themfelves from witneffing, by their geftures, the joy they had of it. We drew within a league near unto it, and the falls being let down, we fell a fihhing of cod, the fifhing of the Bank beginning to fail. They who had before us made voyages in thofe parts, did juige us to be at cape Breton. The night clrawing on, we food off to the leaward: the next day following, being the cighth of the faid month of fuly, as we drew near to the bay of Campfaut, came about the evening milts, The Lay which did continue eight whole days, dur- of C $C$.". ing the which we $k e p t$ us at fca, hulling form. ttill, not being able to go forward, being refifted by welt and louth-weft winds. During thefe cight days, which were from one Saturday to another, God (who hath always guided thele voyages, in the which not one man hath been loft by fea) fhewed us his fpecial favour, in fencling unto us, among the thick fogs, a clearing of the fun, which continued but half an hour; and then had we fight of the firm land, and knew that we were ready to be calt away upon the rocks if we had not fycedily ftood off to fea-ward. A man doth fometimes feek the land as one doth his beloved, who fometimes repulfeth her fiwectheart very rudely. Finally, upon Saluriay the 15 th of 7uly, about two o'clock in the afternoon, the fky brgan to falute us, as it were, with cannon Mots, fhedding tears, as being forry 10 have kept us fo long in pain ; fo that fair weather being come again, we faw coming Arait to us, we being tour leagues off irom the land, two thallops wih open fails, in a fea yet wrathed. This thing gave us Marvelmuch content: but whilf we followed on lous our courfe, there came from the land odours ocours incomparable for fweetnefs, brought with from the a warm wind, fo abundantly that all the laud. orient parts could not produce greater abundance. We did ftretch out our hands, as it were to tuke them, fo palpable were they, which I have adnuired a thoufand times fince. Then thet wo fhallops did approach, the one manned with favages who had aftag painted at their fails, the other with Frencbmen of St. Malo, who made their fifhing at the port of Campfeau, but the fivages were more diligent, for they arrived firt. Having never feen any before, I did admire The favaat the firt fight their fair fhape and form ges goodly of vifage. One of them did excufe him- men. felf, for that he had not brought his fair beaver gown, becaufe the weather had been foul. He had but one red piece of frieze upon his back, and Matacbias about his neck, at his wrifts, above the elbow, and at his girdle. We made them to eat and drink ; during that time they told us all that had paffed, a year before, at Port Royal, whither we were bound. In the mean while, them of St. Malo came, and told us as much as the favages had ; adding that the Weinefday, when that we did fhun the rocks, they had feen us, and would have have come to us with the faid favages, but that they lefe off, by reafon we put to fea: and moreover that it had been always fair weather on the land; which made us much to marvel; but the caufe thereof hath been Shewed betore. Of this difcommodity may be drawn hereafter a great good, that thefe mifts will ferve as a rampier to the country, and one fhall know with fpeed what is pafs'd at fea. They told us alfo, that they had been advertifed, fome days before, by other favages, that a hip was feen at cape Breton. Thefe Frencbmen of St. Mato were men that did deal for the aflociates of Monf. de Monts, and did complain that the Bafks, or men of St. Fobns de Lus, againft the king's inhibitions, had trucked with the favages, and carried away above fix thoufand beavers-thins. They gave us fundry forts of their lith, as bars, marlus, and great The care fletans. As for the favages, before todeof the fa- part, they anked bread of us to carry to vates for their wives. their wives, which was granted and given them, tor they deferved it well, being come fo willingly to fhew us in what part we were; for fince that time we failed fill in affurance, and wihout doubr.

2

At the parting, fome number of ours went a-land at the port of Campleau, as well to fetch us fome wood and frefli water, whereof we had need, as for to follow the coalt from that place to Port Royal in a flallop, for we did fear left Monf. du Pont fhould be at our coming thither already gone from thence. The favages made offer to go to him thorough the woods, with pronife to be there within fix days to advertife him of our coming ; to the end, to caufe his fay, for as much as word was left with him to depart, unlefs he were fuccoured within the 16th day of that month, which he failed not to do ; notwithftanding, our men, defirous to fee the land nearer, did hinder the fame which promifed us to bring unto us the next day the faid wood and water, if we would approach near the land, which we did not, but followed on our courfe.

The Tueflay, the 17 th of $7 u l y$, we were, according to our accultomed manner, furprized with mifts and contrary wind, $;$ but the Thurflay we had calm weather, fo that whether is were milt or fair weather, we went nothing forward. During this calm, about the evening, a fhipwright wathing himfelf in the fea, having before drank Drunken- too much Aqua vita, found himfelf overnefiscauies taken, the cold of the fea water ftriving divers pe- againft the leat of this fpirit of wine. Some rils. mariners feeing their feflow in danger, caft themfelves into the water to fuccour him, but his wits being troubled he mocked them, and they not able to rule him; which caufed yet other mariners to go to help; and they fo hindered one another, that they were all in danger. In the end, there was one of them, which among this confufion, heard the voice of Monf. Ac Pou. trincourt, who did fay to him, John Hay look towards me, and with a rope that was given him he was pulled up, and the reft withal were faved. But the author of the trouble.fell into a ficknefs that alnoft killd him.
After this calm we had two days of fogs. The Sunday the 23 d of the faid month, we had knowledge of the port du Rod/ignol, Port iu, and the fame day in the afternoon, the fun $R: V_{i \sigma^{\prime}}=$ thining fair, we caft anchor at the mouth of port du Moutton, and we were in danger to tall upon a hooal, bcing come to two fathoms and a half depth. We went a-land feventeen of us in number to fetch the wood and water, whereof we had need. There we found the cabins and lodgings, yet whole and unbroken, that Monf. de Monts made two years before, whohad fojourn's there by the face of one month, as we have faid in its place. We faw there, be- What ing a fandy land, ftore of oaks bearing grows in acorns, cyprus.trees, fir-trees, bay-trees, he land as mufk-rofes, goofeberries, purflain, rafpies, Moutton. ferns, Lyimacbia, (a kind of Sammonce) calamzs odoratus, angelica, and other fimples, in the fpace of two hours that we tarried there. We brought back in our thip wild peafe, which we founci good. We had not the leifure to hunt after rabbets that be there in great number, not far from the port, but we recurned aboard as foon as we had laden ourfelves with water and wood; and fo hoifted up fails.
Titefday the 25 th day, we were about the Le Cap do cape de Sable, in fair weather, and made Sabli. a good journey, for about the evening we $L$ ang . came to fight of Long I/fe, and the bay of The bay St. Mary, but becaufe of the night weput St. Mary. back to the feaward. And the next day we cart anchor at the mouth of Port Royal, where we could notenter, by reafon it was ebbing water, but we gave two cannon-hot from our fhip to falute the faid port, and to advertife the Frencbmen that we were there.

Tburfday, the 27 th of fuly, we came in with the flood, which was not withour much difficulty, for that we had the wind contrary, and gufts of wind from the mouncains, which made us almoft to frike upon the rocks. And in thefe troubles our hip bare ftill contrary, the poop before, and fometimes turned round, not being able to do any other thing elfe. Finally, being Thebeauin the port, it was unto us a thing marvel- ty of the lous to fee the fair diftance and largenefs of port, it, and the mountains and hills that invironed

$A$ Defcription of. New France.

soned it, and 1 wondered how fo fair a place did remain defert, being all filled with woods, feeing that fo many pine away. in the world, which might make good of this land, if only they had a chief governor to conduct them thither. By little and little we drew near to the ifland, which is right over-againit the fort where we have dwelt fince: an inand, I fay, the mott agreeable thing to be feen in her kind that is poffible to be defired, wifhing in ourfelves to have brought thither fome of thofe fuir buildings that are unprofitable in thefe our parts, that ferve for nothing but to retire wild fowl in, and other birds. We knew not yet, if Monf. du Pont was gone or no, and therefore we did expect that he fhould fend fome men to meet us; but it was in vain; for he was gone from thence 12 days before: and whilft we did hull in the midit of the port, Membertou, the greatelt Saga. mos of the Souriquois (fo are the people call'd with whom we were) came to the Frencb fort to them that were left there, being only two, crying as a mad man, faying in his language, Wbat 1 you fand bere a dining (for it was about noon) and do not fee a great Jip tbat cometh bere, and we know not what men they are! Suddenly thefe two men ran upon the bulwark, and with diligence made ready the cannons, which they furnifhed with pellets and touch powder. Membertou, without delay, came in a canoe made of barks of trees, with a daughter of his, to view us: And having found but friendihip, and knowing us to be I'rencbmen, made no alarm. Notwithftanding one of the two Frencbmen left there, called La Taille, came to the fhore of the port, his match on the cock, to know what we were, though he knew it well enough, for we had the white banner difplay'd at the rop of the matt, and on the fiudden four volley of cannons were thot off, which made innumerable ecchoes : and from our part, the fort was faluted with three cannon fhots, and many murket thots, at which time our trumpeter was not nack of his duty. Then we landed, viewed the houfe, and we paffed that day in giving God thanks, in feeing the favage-cabins, and walking thorough the meadows. But I cannot but praife the gentle courage of thefe two men, one of them I have already named, the other is called Miauelit: which deferve well to be mentioned here for having fo freely expored their lives in the confervation of the welfare of New France: for Monf. du Pont having but one bark and thallop, to feek out towards Newfoundland for Frencb fhips, could not charge himfel: with fo much furniture, corn, meat, a i:d merchandifes as were there, which he had! been forced to calt into the fea, and whicit had been greatly to our prejudice, and we did fear it very much, if thefe two men had not adventured themfelves to tarry there, for the preferving of thofe things, which they did with a willing and joyful mind.

C HAP. XIII.

The batppy mecting of Monf. du Pont; bis return unto Port-Royal; rejoicing; defcription of the faid port; conjecture toucbing the bead and Ipring of the great river of Canada; the return of Monf: du Pont into France; the voyage of Monf. de Poutrincourt unto the country of the Armouchiquois; the exercifes and manner of living in Port Royal, $\mathcal{E} c$.

THE Friday, next day after our arrival, Monf. de Poutrincourt, affected to this enterprife as for himfelf, put part of his people to work in the tillage and ma. nuring of the ground, whilft the others were employed in making clean of the chambers, and every one to make ready that which belonged to his trade. In the mean time thofe people of ours that had left us at Campfeau, to come along the coaft, met, as it were miraculoufly, with Monf. du Pont, among inands, that be in great number in thofe parts. To declare how great was the joy of each fide, is a thing not be expreffed. The faid Monf. du Pont, at this happy and fortunate meeting, returned back to fee us in Port-Royal, and to thip himfelf in the Fonas, to return into France. As this chance was beneficial unto him, fo was it unto us, by the means of his fhips that he left with us. For without that, we had been in fuch extremity that we had not been able to go nor come any where, our fhip being once returned into France. He arrived there on Monday the laft of Fuly, and tarried yet in Port Royal until the 8th of Axguft. All this month we made merry. Monl. de Poutrincourt did fet up andopened a hoghead of wine, one of them that was given him for his own drinking, giving leave to all comers, to driuk as long as it fhould hold, fo that fome of them drunk until their caps turncd round.

$A$ Defcription of Nev rance.

At the very beginning, we were defirous to fee the country up the river, where we found meadows, almoit continually above twelve leagues of ground, among which, brooks do run without number, which come from the hills and mountains adjoining. The woods very thick on the water-fhores, and to thick that fometimes one cannot go thorough them; yet for all that, I would not make them fuch as Fofeph Acofta reciteth thofe of Peru to be, when he faith, one of our bretbren, a man of credit, told us, tbat being gone aAtray, and loft in the mountains, not knowing what part nor wbich way be fould go, found bimfelf among bulbes fo tbick, that be was conftrained to travel upon tbem, withbout putting bis feet on the ground, a whole fortnigbts space. I refer the bclieving of that to any one that will, but this belief cannot reach fo far, as to have place with me.

Now in the land whereof we fpeak, the woods are thinner far off from the fhores and waterifh places; and the felicity thereof is fo much the more to be hoped for, in that it is like the land, which God did promife to his people, by the mouth of Mofes, faying, The Lord thy God doth briug thee :into a good land, of rivers of waters, with fountains and deptbs, which do fpring in fields, &c. A land whers thou Balt eat thy bread witbout fcarcity, wherein notbing 乃all fail thee, a land whofe Atones are of iron, and from wobofe mountains thou Joalt dig brafs. And further in another place, confirming the promifes for the goodnefs and ftate of the land that he would give them. The country, faith he, wherein you are going for to poffefs it, is not as the land of Egypt, from whence you are come forth, where thou didft fow thy feed, and watered it with the labour of thy.feet, as a garden of herbs. But tbe country thorougb which you are going to pafs, for to poffefs it, is a land of mountains and fields, and is watered with waters that rainetb from beaven. Now according to the defription that heretofore we have made of Port-Royal, and the confines thereof, in defcribing the firt voyage of Monf. de Monts, and as yet we do mention it here, brooks dance of lirooks.
Abun-
tical fountai ; and, alfo, th at a part of thofe countries is called $\boldsymbol{A}_{1}$ uain, for the fame confideration. As it the ftones Ironfones which our God promifed fhould be of iron, Mountains and the mountains of brafs, that fign of braf. eth nothing elfe, but the mines of cop of iron, and of fteel, whereof we have al.' ready heretofore fpoken, and wild fuck yet hereafter. And as for the fields, wherce of we have not yet fyoken, there be fome on the welt fide of the faid Port Royal, and above the mountains there be fome fair ones, where I have feen lakes and brooks, even as in the valley ; yea, even in the paflage to come forth from the fane fort, for to go to fea, there is a brook which falleth from the high rocks down, and in falling difperfeth itfelf into a fmall rain, which is very delightful in fummer, becaufe that at the foot of the rock, there are caves, wherein one is covered, whilft that this rain falleth fo pleafantly; and in the cave, wherein the rain of this brook falleth, is made, as it were, a rainhow, when the fun fhineth; which hath given me great caufe of admiration. Once we went fromourfort as faras the fenthorough the woods, the fpace of three leagucs, but in our return we were pleafantly deceived, for at the end of our journey, thinking to be in a plain champion country, we found ourfelves on the top of a high mountain, and were forced to come down with pain enough, by reafon of fnows. But mountains be not perpetual in a country. Within fifteen leagues of our dwelling, the country thorough which the river $l$ Equille paffeth, is all plain and even. I have feen in thole parts many countries, wherc the land is all even, and the faireft of the world, but the perfection thereof is, that it is well Country watered; and for witnefs whereof, noton- well waly in Port Royal, but alfo in all New France tered. the great river of Canada is proof thereof, which at the end of four hundred leagues, is as broad as the greateft rivers of the world, replenifhed with ines and rocks innumerable; taking her beginning from one Conjecof the lakes which do meet at the ftream tureon the of her courfe, and fo I think, fo that it 1pring of hath two courfes, the one from the eaft the great of towards France, the other from the weft Canada. towards the fouth-fea; which is admirable but not without the like example found in our Europe: for the river which cometh down to Trent and to Verone, proceedeth from a lakc, which produceth another river, whofe courfe is bent oppofite to the river Lins, which falleth into the river Danube. ${ }^{\text {S }}$ So the Nile iffueth from a lake that bringeth forth other rivers, whichdifcharge themfelves into the great ocean.

Let us return to our tillage ; for to that What is we mutt apply ourfelves; it is the firft the firt mine that muft be fought for, which is mine.

10 B
more
more worth than the treafurcs of Atabali. pu ; and he that hath corn, wine, cattle, woollen and linnen, leather, iron, and afterward cod-fifh, he needeth no other treafures for the neceflaries of life ; now all this is, or may be, in the land by us deleribed; upon the which Monf. did l'onsou ing of frimourt having caufed a fecond tillige to coln.

Citufe of che as far into the fouth as he could, and leek made into out a place very fit to inhabit, beyond Malthe coull ty ot the Atrmewti givo.. be made, in fitteen days after his arrival thither, he fowed it with our Hench corn, as well wheat and rye, as with hemp, flax, turnip, feed, radifh, cabbages, and other feeds, and the eighth day tollowing, he faw that his libour had not been in vain, but rather a fair hope, by the production that the ground had already made of the feeds which the had received; which being thewed to Monf. du Pont, was unto him a fair fubject to make his relation in France, as a thing altogether new there.
'The twenticth day of Auguff was already come, when thefe fair hows were made, and the time did admonith them that were to go in the voyage to make ready, whereunto they began to give order, fo that the twenty-filth day of the fame month, after many peals of ordnance, they weighed anchor to come to the mouth of the port, which is commonly the firt days journey.

Monf. de Monts being defirous to reach libarre, had requefted MonS. de Poutrinccurt to pafs further than yet he had done, and to feek a convenient port in good temperature of air, making no greater account of Port Royal than of St. Croix, in that which concerneth health. Whereunto the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt being willing to condefcend, would not tarry for the fpring time, knowing he fhould have other employments to exercife himfelf withal. But fecing his fowings endcd, and his field green, refolved himfelf to make this voyage and difcovery before winter. So then he difpofed all things to that end, and with his bark anchored near to the fonas, to the end to get out in company. Whilit they lay there for a profperous wind, the fpace of thrce days, there was a whale of mean bignefs, which the favages do call Maria, who came every day into the port, with the morning flood, playing there within at her pleafure, and went away back again with the ebb. And then, taking fome leifure, I made in French verfes, a farewel to the faid Monf. du Pont, and his company, which I have placed among the muies of New France.

The twenty eighth day of the faid month, each of us took his courfe, one, one way, and the other another, diverlly to God's keeping. As for Monf. du Pont he purpofed by the way to fet upon a merchant of Ronil, named Boyer, who contrary to the king's imhibitions, was in thofe pirts to truck with the livuges, notwith. Itanding he had leen deliveredout of pr:fon in Kocbel, by the confent of Monl. we Poutrincourt, under promife he fhould no. go thither ; but the haid Boyer was alrcady gone. And as for Monif. de Posirincourt, he took his courfe for the ifle of $s t$. Croix, the Frenchmens lirit abode, having Monf, dachaniphore for matter and guide of his bark; tue being hindered by the wind, and becaule his bark did leak, he was forced twice to put back agaim. In the end he quite paifed the bay liranfoife, and viewed the faid ille, where he found ripe corn, of that which two years lefoure was fowed by Moni. de Monts, which was fair, big, weighey and woll fillet! Ile fent unto us fome of that corn to PorsRoyal, where I was requefted to flay, to look to the houfe, and to keep the reit of the company there in concord; whereunto I didagree, though it was riferred to my will, for the alfarance that we had among ourflves, that the year following we fhould make our habitarion in a watmer country, beyond Mallibarre, and that we fhould all go in company, with them that fhould be fent to us out of lirance. Inthe mean while, I employed myfelf in dreffing the ground, to make inclofiures and partitions of gardens, for to fow corn and kitchen herbs. We caufed, alfo, a ditch to be made all about the fort, which was very needful to receive the waters and moiftucfs that before didrun undernesth among the roots of trees, that had been fallendown, which peradventuredid make the place unhealthful. I will not ftand in defcribing here, what each of our other workmen and labourers did particularly make. It fufficeth that we had ftore of joiners, carpenters, mafons, ftonc-carvers, lock-finiths, tailc is, board-fawyers, mariners, $E_{0} c$. who did exercife their trades, which in doing their duties, were very kindly ufed, for they were at their own liberty for three hours labour a day. The overplus of the time, they befowed it in going to gather mufcles, which are at low water in great quantities before the fort, or lobfters, or crabs, which are in PortRoyal under the rocks in great abundance, or cockles, which are in every part of the ooze, about the fhores of the faid port; all that kind of fifh is taken without net or boat. Some there were that fometimes took wildfowl, but not being fkilful, thcy fpoiled the game ; and as for us, our table was furnifhed by one of Monf. de Monts's men, who provided for us in fuch fort that we wanted no fowl, bringing unto us, fometimes half a dozen of birds, called by Frencbmen, Outurds, a kind of wild geefe, fometimes as many mallards, or wild geefe whiteand grey, very often two or three dosen of larks, and other kinds of birds. As for bread, me boxly felt want thereof, and every one had three quarts of pure and grood wine a day, which hath continued with is as longas we have been there, five mg that, when they, who came to fetch us, inttend of bringing commodities unto us, hetped us to lipend our own, as we Mrall have ercafion hereafter to declare, we wereforced to reduce that portion to a pint, and notwithtanding there was very often fonething more of extraordinary. This voyage, for this refocet, hath leens the bett voy.ge of all, whereof we are to give much praifes to the hiad Monf. de Monts, and his afficiates Monl. Macquin, and Monf. Georges of Rocbel, in providing io itbundautly for us. For truly, I find that this Septembral lipuor, I mean wine, is ameng other things, a fovereign prefervative againit the ficknefs of that country. And the ipiceries, to correct the vice that might be in the air of that region, which nevertheles's I have always tound very clear and pure, notwithitanding the reafonsthat I may have alleelged for the tame, lipaking heretofore of the fame ficknets. For our allowance, we had pealf, beans, rice, prunes, raifins, dry corl, and fale thenh, lefides oyl and butter. But wheniuever the lavages, Iwelling near us, had taken any quanrity of fturgron, falmon, or limall fifhes; item, any beavers, Ellans, Carabous, (or f.llow deer) or other beafts mentioned in my farewel to New France, they brought unto us halli of it; and that which renained they expofed it fonetimes to file publickly, and they that would have any thereof did truck bread for it ; this was partly our manner of life in thofe parts. But although every one of our workmen had his particular trade or occupation, yet for all that it was neceltary to cmploy himfelf to all ules, as many did. Some mations and itone-carvers ay. plied themfives to baking, which made us as good bread as is made in Paris. Alio onc of our dinvyers, divers times made us coals in great quantity.
Wherein is to be noted a thing that now I remember: it is, that being necelfary to cut turts to cover the piles of wood, heaped to make the faid coals; there were found in the meadows three foot deep of carth, not carth, but grais or herbs, mingleal with mudd, which have heaped theminelves ycarly one upon another from the beginning of the world, not having been moval. Neverthelefs the green thereof ferveth for patture to the cllans; which we have many times feen in our meadows of thole parts, in herds of three or four, great and fimall ; fuffering themfelves lometines to be approachect, then they ran to the woods: but I may lay moreover, that I have feer, in crofling two leagues of our faid meadows, the fame to be all trodden with tracks of ellans, for I know not there any other cloven-footed beafts. There was killed one of thofe bealts, not far off from our fort, at a place where Monf. de Monts having caufed the grafs to be mowed two years before, it was grown again the faireft of the world. Some might marvel how thofe meadows are made, feeing that all the ground in thofe places is covered with woods: For fatisfaction whercof, let the curious reader know, that in high fpring tides, fpecially in March and September, the flood covercth thote fhores, which hindereth the trees there to take root. But every where, where the water over-floweth not, if there be any ground, there are woods.

C H A P. XIV.

Thir departing from the ifle of St. Croix : The bay of Marchin : Choüakoct: A defcription of the Armouchiquois, $\mathcal{E} c$.

LE T us return to Monf. du Poutrin. court, whom we have left in the ille of St. Croix : having made there a review, and cherifhed the favages that were there, he went in the face of tour days to Pemtegoct, which is that place fo famous under the name of Norombega. There needeth not fo long a time in coming thither, but he tarried on the way to mend his bark; for to that end he had brought with him a fmith and a carpenter, and quantity of boards. He crofled the illes, which be at the mouth of the river, and came to Kinibeki, where his bark was in danger, by reafon of the great ftreams that the nature of the place procureth there. This was the caufe why he made there no ftay, but paffed further to the The bay bay of Marcbin, which is the name of a of Marcaptain of the favages; who at the arriv- cbin.

A Defcription of New France.

al of the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt, began to cry oualoud $H h^{\prime} H{ }^{\prime}$; whereunto the like anfwer was made unto him. He replied, afking in his language, what are ye? they anfwered him, friends : and thereupon Monf. de Poutrintourt approaching, treated amity with him, and prefented him with knives, hatchets, and matachias; that is to fay, fcarfs, carknets and bracelets made of beads, or quils made of white and blew glafs. whereof he was very

Confederacy. glad ; as alfo for the confederacy that the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt made with him, knowing very well that the fane would be a great ind and fupport unto him. He diftributed to fome men that were about him, among a great number of people, the prefents that the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt gave him, to whom he brought fture of Orignac, or ellans fleth (for the Bafks do call a ftag, or Ellan, Orignac) to refrefh the company with victuals. That done, they fet fails towards Cboiin aThe river koet, where the river of Capt. Olmechin of Olmc- is, and where the year following was made Port de the war of the Souriquois and Etecbemins, Port de Cbsiathoct. under the conduct of the Sagamos Membertou, which I have defcribed in verfes, which verfes I have inferted among the mufes of N $\sigma \omega$ France. At the entry of An illand the bay of the faid place of Cboüakoet, of vines. there is a great ifland about half a league compals, wherein our men did firt difcover any vines (for, although there be fome in the lands near to Port Royal, notwithftanding there was yet no knowledge had of then, $\cdots$ hich they found in great quar. tity, having the trunck three and four foot high, and as big as ones fift in the lower part, the grapes fair and great, and fome as bigg as plumbs, others lefler, but as black, that they left a ftain where their liquor was fpilled. Thofe grapes, I fay, lying over bufhes and brambles that grow in the fume ifland, where the trees are not fo thick as in other where, but are fix or feven rods diftant afunder, which caufeth the grapes to be ripe the fooner; having befides a ground very fit for the fame, gravelly and fandy. They tarried there but two hours; but they noted, that there were no vines on the north-fide, even as in the ifie St. Croix are no cedartrees, Lut on the weft-fide.
The river From this Illand they went to the river of Oime- of Olmecbin, a furt of Cboiiakoet, where aiv. Marcbin and the faid Olmecbin brought to Monf. de Poutrincourt a priloner of the Souriquois (and therefore their enemy) which they gave unto him freely. Two hours after there arrived two favages one an Etechemix, named Cbkoudun, captain of the river St. Fobn, called by the favages Oigoudi: The other a Souniquois, named Meflamet, Capt. ar Sagamos of the river of the port de la Heve, where this prifoner was taken. They had great ftore of merchandife trucked with Frenchmen, which they were coming to utter ; that is to fay, great, mean, and finall kettles, hatchets, knives, gowns, fhort cloaks, red waftcoats, birket, and other things; whercupon there arrived twelve or fifteen boats, full of favages of Olmechins fubjection, being in very good order, all their faces painted, according to their wonted cuftom, when they will feem fair, having their bow and arrow in hand, and the quiver, which they laid down aboard. At that hour Meffamoet began his oration The Ora" before the favages; hewing them, tion of " how that in times paft, they often had Mi Dimicet.
" friendhip together; and that they " might eafily overcome their enemies,
" if they would have intelligence, and
" ferve themfelves with the amity of the "Frenchman, whom they faw there pre-"
" fent to know their country, to the end
" to bring commodities unto them here"after, and to fuccour them with their " forces; which forces he knew, and he " was the better able to make a demon-" ftration thereof unto them, by fo much " that he which fpake, had before time
" been in France, and dwelt there with
" Monf, de Grandmont, governor of Bay-
" onne." Finally, his fpeech continued almoft an hour with much vehemency and affection, with a gefture of body and arms, as is requifite in a good orator. And in the end he did caft all his mercinandizes (which were worth about three hundred crowns, brought into that country) into Olmecbin's boat, as making him a prefent of that, in affurance of the love he would witnefs unto him. That dune the night hafted on, and every one retired himfelf: but Meffamoet was not pleafed, for that Olmecbin made not the like oration unto him, nor requited his prefent; for the favages have that noble quality, that they give liberally, cafting at the feet of whom they will honour, the prefent that they give him : But it is with hope to receive fome reciprocal kindnefs, which is a kind of contract, which we call, without name, I give thee, to the end thou hould'f give me; and that is done thorough all the world. Therefore Meffanoet from that day had in mind to make war to Olmecbin. Notwithftanding a cornthe next day in the morning, he and his country, people did return with a boat laden with beans, that which they had, to wit, corn, to- $\begin{aligned} & \text { andgrapes. }\end{aligned}$ bacco, beans and pompions, which they diftributed here and there. Thofe two Capt. Olmechin and Marcbin have fince been killed in the wars : in whofe ftead was chofen by the favages one named Beffabes, which fince our return had been killed by Englifbmen ; and inftead of him they have made a captain to come from within the lands, named Afticou, a grave man, valiant and redoubted, which, in the twinkling of an eye, will gather up one thoufand favages together, which thing Olmecbin and Marcbin might alfo do. For our barks being there, prefently the fea was feen all covered over with their boats, laden with nimble and lufty men, holding themfelves up ftraight in them; which we cannot do without danger, thofe boats being nothing elfe but trees hollowed after the fafhion that we will fhew you in the book following. From thence Monf. de Poutrincourt following on his courfe, found a certain port very delightful, which had not been feen by Monf. de Monts. And during the voyage they faw fore of fmoak, and pcople on the fhore, which invited us to come a-land; and feeing that no account was made of it, they followed the bark along the fand, yea moft often they did out-go her, fo fwift are they, having their bows in hand, and their quivers upon their backs, always finging and dancing, not taking care with what they fhould live by the way. Happy people! yea, a thoufand times more happy than they which in thefe parts make themfelves to be wormipped; if they had the knowledge of God and of their falvation.

A Defcription of New France.

Monf. de Poutrincourt having landed in this port, beheld among a multitude of favages a good number of fifes, which did play with certain long pipes, made as it were with canes of reeds, painted over, but not with fuch an harmony as our fhep herds might do ; and to new the excellency of their art, they whittled with their nofes in gambolling, according to their fafhion.

And as this people did run headlong, to come to the bark, there was a favage which hurt himfelf grievoully in the heel againft the edge of a rock, whereby he was inforced to remain in the place. Monf. de Poutrincourt's chirurgeon, at that inftant would apply to this hurt that which was of his art, but they would not permit it, until they had firft made their mouths and mops about the wounded man. They then laid him down on the ground, one of them holding his head on his lap, and made many bawlings and fingings, whereunto the wounded man anfwered but with a.Ho, with a complaining voice, which having done they yielded him to the cure of the faid chirurgeon, and went their way, and the patient alfo after he had been dreffed; but two hours after he came again, the moft jocund in the world, having pur about his head the binding cloth, wherewith his heel was wrapped, for to feem the more gallant.

Vo L . II.
The day following, our peoile entered farther into the port, where being erone to fee the cabins of the faviges, an old woman of an hundred or fix feore years of age, came to caft at the feet ol Monf. de Poutrincourt a loaf of bread, made with the wheat called Mchis, or Mais; and in thefe our parts, Turky or Saracen wheat, then very fair hemp of a long growt 1 : item. beans, and grapes newly guthered, becaufe they hall feen Frencbmen eat of them at Cboüakoet; which the otiter filvages feeing, that knew it not, they brought more of them than one would, emulitiay one another; and for recompence of this their kindnefs, there was fet on their fore- The f.mheads a fillet, or band of papir, wet with picity and fpittle, of which they were very proud. ighraso It was fhewed them, in preffing the grape of the into a glafs, that of that we cid make the wine which we did drink. We would have made them to eat of the- ginpe, but having taking it into their mont: $s$, li:-y fpit it out, to ignorant is this prople of the beft thing that Gine! hath givee to man, next to bread. Yet notwithemading they have no want of wit, arki miggit be brought to do fome geod thangs, if they were civilized, and had the ure of handicrafts. But they are febtil, thievilh and traiterous; and though they be naked, yet one cannot take heed of their fingers; for if one turn never fo little his eyes afide, and that they fipy the opportunity to fteal any knife, hatchet, or any thing elfe, they will not mifs or fail of it; and will put the theft between thcir buttocks, or will hide it within the fand with their foot fo cunningly, that one fhall not perceive it. Indeed I do not The bail wonder if a people poor and naked be nature of thievifh, but when the heart is malicious, the $A r$ it is inexculable. This pcople is uch mucis. that they mult be handled with terror ; for if through love and gentlenefs, one give them too free accefs, they will practife fome furprize, as it hath been known in divers occations herctofore, and will yet hereafter be feen. And without deferring any longer, the fecond day after our coming thither, as they faw our people bufy a wafhing linnen, they came fome fifty. one following another, with bows, arrows and quivers, intending to play fome bad part, as it was conjectured upon their manner of proceeding; but they were prevented, fome of our men going to meet them, with their murkets and matches at the cock, which made fome of them run away, and the others being compaffed, in having put down their weapons, came to a Peninfule, or fraill head of an ifland, where our men were; 10 C and and making a friendly fhew, demanded to truck the tobacco they had for our merchandizes.

The next day the captain of the faid place and port, came into Monf. de Poutrincourt's bark to fee him ; we did marvel to fee him accompanied with Olmecbin, feeing the way wasmarvellous long to come thither by land, and much forter by fea. That gave caufe of bad fufpicion, albeit he had promifed his love to the Frenchmen. Notwithttanding they were gently received: and Monl. de Pontrincourt gave to the faid Olmectin a compleat garment, wherewith being cloathed, he viewed himfelf in a glafs, and did laugh to fee himfelf in that order. But a little while after, feeling that the fame hindred him, although it was in OEtober, when he was returned unto his cabin, he diftributed it to fundry of his men, to the end that one alone fhould not be over-peftered with it. This ought to be a fufficient leffon to fo many finical, both men and women, of thefe parts, who caufe their garments and breaftplates to be made as hard and f̣iff as wood, wherein their bodies are fo miferably tormented, that they are in their clothes unable to all good actions. And if the weather be too hot they fuffer in their great bums with a thoufand folds, unfupportable heats, that are more untolerable, than the torments which felons and ctiminal men are fometimes made to feel.

Now during the time that the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt was there, being in doubt whether Monf. de Monts would come to make an habitation on that coaft, as he wifhed it, he made there a piece of ground Corn fow- to be tilled, for to fow corn and to plant ed, and vines, which they did, with the help of vincsplant- our apothecary mafter Lewes Hebert, a ed.
tillage moft neceflary for the fowing of corr, he beginn to plant the vine, whofe effects he felt afterwards.

As they were a deliberating to pafs farther, Olinecbin came to the bark to fee Monf. de Poutrincourt, where having tarried certain hours, either in talking or eating, he faid that the next day one hundred boits fhould come, containing cvery one fix men; but the coming of fuch a number of men, being but troublefome, Monf. de Poutrincourt would not tarry for them: but went away the fame day to Mallebarre, not without much difficulty, by reafon of the great ftreams and fhoals that are there. So that the bark having touched at three foot of water only, we thought to be calt away, and we began to unload her, and put the victuals into the fhallop, which was behind, for to fave us on land ; but being no full fea, the bark came afloat within an hour. All this fea is a land overflowed, as that of Mount St. Micbael's, a fandy ground, in which, all that refteth is a plain flat country as far as the mountains, which are feen fifteen leagues off from that place ; and I am of opinion. that as far as Virginia, it is all alike. Morcover, there is here great quantity of grapes, as before, and a country very full of people. Monf. de Monts being come to Mallebarre in another feafon of the year, gathered only green grapes ; which he made to be preferved, and brought fome to the king. 'But it was our good hap to come thither in Ottober, for to fee the maturity thereof. I have here before fhewed the difficulty that is found in entering into Mallebarre. This is the caufe why Monf. de Poutrincourt came not in with his bark, but went thither with a fhallop only, which thirty or forty favages did help to draw in ; and when it was full tide (but the tide doth not mount here but two fathom high, which is feldom feen) he went out, and retired himfelf into his faid bark, to pafs further in the morning, as foon as he fhould ordain it.

C H A P. XV.

Dangers: unknown languages: the making of a forge and of an oven: croffes jet up: pienty : a confpiracy: difobedience: murther: the flight of tbree bundred againft ten : the agility of the Armouchiquois: bad company dangerous : the accident of a muket that did burft: the infolency of the favages; their timerofity, impiety, and fight: the fortunate port: a bad fea: revenge: the counfel and refolution for the return: new perils: God's favours: the arrival of Monf. de Poutrincourt at Port-Royal; and bow be was received. the dawning of the day, the fails are hoifted up, but it was but a very perilous navigation. For with this fmall veffel they Danger.

A Defcription of New France.

were forced to coalt the land, where they found no depth: going back to fea it was yet worfe, in fuch wife that they did ftrike twice or thrice, being raifed up again only by the waves, and the rudder was broken, which was a dreadful thing. In this extremity they were conftrained to caft anchor in the fea, at two fathoms deep, and three leagues off from the land; which being done, Daniel Hay, a man which taketh pleafure in thewing forth his virtue in the perils of the fea, was fent towards the coaft to view it, and fee if there were any port. And as he was near land he faw $a$ favage, which cid dance, finging yo, yo, yo. He called him to come nearer, and by figns afked him, if there were any place to retire thips in, and where any frefh water was ; the favage having made fign there - was, he took him into his Shallop, and brought him to the bark, wherein was Cbkoudun, captain of the river of Oigoudi, otherwife St. Fobn's river'; who being brought before this favage, he underftood him no more than did our own people; true it is, that by figns he comprehended better than they what he would lay. This favage thewed the places, were no depth was, and where was any, and did fo well indenting and winding here and there, alway the lead in hand, that in the end they came to the port fhewed by him, where fimall depth is; wherein the bark being arrived, diligence was ufed to make a forge for to mend her with her rudder, and an oven to bake bread, becaufe there was no more bifket left.
Fifteen days were employed in this work, du, ing the which Monf. de Poutrincourt, according to the laudable cuftom of Chriftians, made a crofs to be framed and fet up, upon a green bank, as Monf. de Monis had done two years before at Kinibe$k i$, and Mallebarre. Now among thefe painful exercifes they gave not over making good chear, with that which both the fea and the land might furnifh in that part ; for in this port is plenty of fowl, in taking of which many of our men applied them-

Alum
dance of fifh. felves; efpecially the fea larks are there in fo great flights, that Monf. de Poutrincourt killed twenty-eight of them with one culiver fhot; as for fifh, there be fuch abundance of porpoiffes, and another kind of lifh, called by firenchmen Soufleurs, that is to liy Blowers, that the fea feems to be all covered over with them : but they had not the things neceffary for this kind of finhing; they gont-nted themfelves then Shell-fith. with fhell-fifh, as of oyfters, fcollops, periwincles, whereot there was enough to be fatisfied. The favages of the other Grapes. Rumlaf fide did bring fifh, and grapes within bafkets made of ruthes, for to exchange with fonce of our wares. The faid Monf. de Pousincourt feeing the grapes there marvellouny fair, commanded him that waited on his chamber, to lay up in the bark a burden of the vines from whence the laid grapes were taken. Our aporhecary M. Lespis Hebert, defirous to inhabit in thofe countries, had pulled out a good quantity of them, to the end to phant them in Port Royal, where none of them are, although the foil be there very fit for vines; which neverthelefs, by a dull forgctfulnefs, was not done, to the great difcontent of the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt and of us all.

After certain days, the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt, feeing there great affemblies of favages, came afhore, and to give them fome terror, made to march before him orie of his men, flourifhing with two naked fwords; whereat they much wondered, but yet much more when they faw that our mufkets did pierce thick pieces of wood, where their arrows could not fo much as feratch; and therefore they never affailed our men, as long as they kept watch; and it had been good to found the trumpet at every hours end, as captain Fames 2uartier did: for, as Monf. de Poutrincourt doth often fay, one mu/t never lay bait for thieves; meaning that one muft never give caufe to an enemy to think that he may furprize you; but one muft always fhew that he is miftrufted, and that you are not afleep, chiefly when onc hath to do with favages, which will never fet upon him that refolutely expects them; which was not performed in this place by them that bouglat the bargain of their negligence very dear, as we will now tell you.

Fifteen days being expired, the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt feeing his bark mended, and nothing remainingto be done but a batch of bread, he went fome three: leagues diftant within the land, to fee if he might difcover any fingularity ; but in Signs of a his return, he and his men perceived the confpiracy favages running away thorough the wood in divers troops of twenty, thirty, and more, fome bowing themfelves as men that would not be feen, others hiding themfeives in the grafs not to be perceived; others carrying away their ftuff, and canoes full of corn, for to betake them to their heels, befides the women tranfporting their cliildren, and fuch ftuff as they could with them. Thofe actions give caufe to Monf. de Poutrincour: to think that this people did plot fome bad enterprize; therefore being arrived, he commanded his people which were a making of bread to retire themfelves into their bark. But as young people do often forget their duty, thefe having fome cake, or fuch like thing to make, had rather follow their liquorifh appetites, than to do that which was commanded them, tarricd 'till night without retiring themfelves.

Difobedi.

 ence. About midnight Monf. de Poutrincourt, thinking upon that which had paffed the day betore, did afk whether they were in the bark, and hearing they were not, he fent the fhallop unto them, to command and bring them aboard, whereto they difobey'd, except his chamberlain, whe feared his mafter. They were five, armed with mukkets and fwords, which were warned to ftand ftill upon their guard, and yet, being negligent, inade not any watch, fo much were they addieted to their own wills. The report was, that they had before fhot off two mufkets upon the favages, becaufe that fome one of them had ftolen a hatchet; finally, thofe favages, either provoked by that, or by their bad nature, came at the break of day without any noife, which was very eafy to them, having neither horfes, waggons, nor wooden hoes, even to the place where they were anleep, and feeing a fit opportunity to play a bad part, they fet upon them with fhots of arrows and clubs, and killed two of them; the reft being hurt began to cry out, running towards the fea fhore; then he which kept watch within the bark, cried out all affrighted, O Lord!Murther done by favages.

Royal, and their woods are not fo thick, and have befides ftore of open land.

Whilf that Monf. de Poutrincourt was coming a-fhore, there was fhot from the bark fome fmall caft pieces upon fome favages, that were upon a little hill, and fome of them were feen fall down, but they be fo nimble in faving their dead men, that one knew not what judgment to make of it. The faid Monf. de Poutrin- Theburycourt, feeing he could get nothing by pur- ing of the fuing of them, caufed pits to be made to dead. bury them that were dead, which I have faid to be two, but there was one that died at the waters fide, thinking to fave himfelf, and a fourth man, which was fo forely wounded with arrow-fhots, that he died being brought to Port Royal; the fifth man had an arrow fticking in his brealt, yet did fcape death for that time; but it had been better he had died there, for one hath lately told us that he was hanged in the habitation that Monf. de Monts maintaineth at Kebeck in the great river of Canada, having been the author of a confpiracy made againft his captain Monf. Cbamplein, who is now there. And as for this mifchief it hath been procurcd by the folly and difobedience of one whom I will not name, becaufe he died there, who played the cock and ring-leader among the young men that did too lightly believe him, which otherwife were of a reafonable good nature; and becaufe one would not make him drunk, he fwore, according to his cuftom, that he woid not return into the bark, which alfo came to pafs; for the felf-fame was found dead, his face on the ground, haveing a little dog upon his back, both of them hot together, and pierced thorough with one and the felf-fame arrow.

In this bad occurrence, Monf. du Pont's fon, above-named, had three of his fingers cut off with a . fplint of a mufket, which being overcharged did burf, which troubled the company very much, that was afflicted enough by other occafions: neverthelefs, the lait duty towards the dead was not neglected, which were buried at the foot of the crofs that had been there planted, as is before faid. But the infolency of this The infobarbarous people was great, after the mur- lencyofthe thers by them committed; for that as our favages. men did fing over our dead men, the funeral fervice and prayers accultomed in the church, thefe rafcals, I fay, did dance and howled a-far off, rejoicing for their traitorous treachery ; and therefore, though they The Iiwere a great number, they adventured not morourthemfelves to come and affail our people, favages. who, having at their leifure, done what we have faid before, becaufe the fea waxed very low, retired themfelves unto the bark, wher-in remained Monf, Cbampdore for the guard

The im piety of the fi . vages.

The ia-lag s Hight.

Port Fortuni.
guard thereof. But being low water, and having no means to come a-land, this wickel gencration came again to the place where they had committed the murther, pulled up the crofs, digged out and unburied one of the dead corps, took away his fhirt, and put it on them, fhewing their fpoils that they had carried away: and befides all this, turning their backs towards the bark, did calt fand with their two hands betwixt their buttocks in derifion, howling Jike wolves; which did marvellounly vex our people, which fpared no caft pieces fhots at them; but the diftance wats very grat, and they had already that fubtility as to caft themfelves on the ground when they faw the fire put at it, in fuch fort that one knew not whether they had been hare or no, fo that our men were forced, will or will, to drink that bitter potion, attending for the tide, which being come and fufficient to carry them a-land, as foon as they faw our men enter into the frallop, they ran away as fivift as greyhounds, trefting themfelves on their agility. There was with our men a Sagamos, named $S c b k o u d$ an, fpoken of before, who much dinkiked their pranks, and would alone go and fight againft all this multitude, but they would not permit him, fo they fet up the crofs again with reverence, and the body which they had digged up was buried again, and they named this port, Port Fortuné.

The next day they hoifted up fails to pafs further and difcover new lands, but the contrary wind conftrained them to put back, and to come again into the faid port. The other next day after, they attempted again to go farther, but in vain, and they were yet forced to put back until the wind fhould be fit. During thefe attempts, the favages, thinking, I believe, that that which had paffed between us was but a jeft and a play, would needs come again familiarly unto us, and offered to truck, diffembling that they were not them that had done thofe villanies, but others, which they faid were gone away. But they were not aware of the fable, how the fork being taken among the cranes, which were found doing fome damage, was punifhed as the others, notwithitanding the pleaded that the was fo far from doing any harm, that contrariwife fhe did purge the ground from ferpents, which the did eat. Monf. de Poutrincourt then fuffered them to approach, and made as though he would accept of their wares, which were tobacco, carknets, and bracelets made with the fhells of a finh called vignaux, and efurgni, by Fames Quartier in the difcovery of his fecond voyage, of great efteem among them: Ilem, of their corn, beans, bows, arrows, quivers, and other fmall tranh. And as the fociety was renewed the faid Poutrincourl commanded to nine or ten that were with him, to make the matches of their mulkets round, like to a round fnare, and that ${ }^{\text {c }}$ when he fhould give a fign, every one fhould caft his Itring upon the favage's head that fhould be near him, and fhould catch him, even as the hangman doth with him that he hath in hand; and for the effecting of this, that half of his people fhould go a-land, whilft the favages were bufy a trucking in the flallop; which was done, but the execution was not altogether according to his defire; for he intended to ferve himfelf with them that Mould be taken, as of Claves to grind at the hand-mill and to cut wood; wherein they failed by over-much hafte: neverthelefs, fix or feven of them were cut in pieces, which could not fo well run in the water as on the land, and were watched at the paffage, by thofe of our men that were a-land.

Vo ... II.

That cone, the next day they endeavoured to go farther, although the wind was not grod, but they went but a little forward, and fiaw only an ifland fix or feven leagues off, to which there was no means to come, and it was called l'lle douteufe, the doubtful ife, which being confiderecl, and that of one fide the want of victuals was to be feared, and of the other that the winter might hinder their courfe, and befides they had two fick men, of whom there was no hope of recovery; counfel being taken it was refolved to return into Port Royal; Monf. de Poutrincourt befides all this, being yet in care for them whom he had left there, fo they came again for the third time into port Fortune, where no favage was feen.

Upon the firt wind, the faid Monf. $d e$ Their rePoutrincourt weighed anchor for the return, ${ }^{\text {turn. }}$ and being mindful of the dangers paffed, he fuiled in open fea; which fhottened his courfe, but not without a great milchief of the ruddcr, which was again broken; in fuch fort, that being at the mercy of the waves, they arrived in the end as well as they could among the iflands of Norombega, where they mended it. And after their departure from the faid iflands they came to Menane, an ifland about fix leagues in length, between St. Croix and Port Royal, where they tarried for the wind, which being come fomewhat favourable, parting from thence new mifchances happened ; for the fhallop being tied at the bark, was ftricken with a fea fo roughly, that with her nofe fhe trake all the hinder part of the faid bark, wherein Monf. de Poutrincourt, and others, were. And, moreover, not being able to get to the paffage of the fuid Port Royal, the tide (which runneth ${ }_{10} \mathrm{D}$ fwiftly in that place) carried them towards the bottom of bay Francoife, from whence they came not forth eafily, and they werc in as great danger as ever they were before, for as much as feeking to return from whence they came, they faw thenfelves carried with the wind and tide towards the coaft, which is high rocks and downfalls, where, unlefs they had doubled a certain point that threatened them of wreck, they had been caft away. But God will, in high enterprizes, try the conftancy of them that fight for his name, and fee if they will waver: he bringeth them to the door of death, and yet holdeth them by the hand, to the end they fall not into the pit, as it is written, It is $I$, it is $I$, and there is none otber God wiitb me; I kill, and make alive; I wound and Ibeal; and there is no body that may deliver any out of my band. So we have faid heretofore, and feen by effect, that although in thofe navigations a thoufand dangers have prefented themfelves, notwithftanding not one man hath been lolt by the fea, alchough that of them, which do only go for fifhing, and to trade for ikins, many there be that perifh there ; witnels, four fifhermen of St. Malo that were fwallowed up in the waters, being gone a fifhing, when as we were upon our return into France: God being willing that we fhould acknowledge to hold this benefit of him, and to manifeft by that means his glory, to the end that fenfibly men may fee that it is he, which is the author of thefe holy enterprifes, which are not made of covetoufnefs, nor by unjuft effulion of blood, but of a zeal to eftablifh his name and his greatnefs among nations that have no knowledge of him. Now after fo many heavenly favours, it is the part of them that have received them, to fay as the kingly pfalmift, well-beloved of God:
fwiftly

Tet, nevertbelefs, by thy rigbt band tbow bold $!$ t me ever faft, Aud witb thy counfel dofs me guide to glory at the laft.
What thing is tbere that I can wifb but tbece in beaven above?
And in the earth there is notbing like thee that I can love. P Pal. lxxiii. 23, 24.

After many perils (which I will not com- Thearrivpare to them of Ulyfes nor AEneas, fearing al of to defile our holy voyage with prophane Monf de impurity) Monf. de Pout rincourt arrived in ${ }^{P}$ arrint Port Roval the 14th day of November, where we received him joyfully, and with a folemnity altogether new in that part. For about the time that we cxpected his return, with great delire, and that fo muck the more, that if any harm had lappened to him, we had been indanger to have confufion among ourfelves, I advifed my felf to fhew fome jollity going to neet him, as we did. And for as much as it, was in Firencb verfes made in hafte, I have placed them with the mufes of Nova Francia, by the title of Neptune's Tbeatre, whereunto I refer the reader. Moreover, to give greater honour to the return, and to our action, we did place over the gate of our fort, the irms of France, environed with haurel crowns, whereof there is great fore along the woods fides, with the king's pory, Duo protegit unus; and under, the arins of Monf. de Monts, with this infcription, Dabit Deus bis quoque finern; and thofe of Monf. Poutrincourt, with this other inferip. tion, Invia virtuti nulla eff via; both of them alfo invironed with garlands of bays.

C H A P. XVI.

The condition of the corn which they fowed; the inflitution of the order of Bon temps; the behaviour of the favages among the Frenchinen; the jlate of winter; why rains and fogs be rare in this feafon; achy rain is frequent between the Tropics; finow proftable to the ground ; tbe flate of January; conformity of weatber in the ancient and New France; aeby the jpring is acw, &c.

The fate -HE public rejoicing being finifhed, The ftate of corn. Monf, de Poulrincourt had a care to fee his corn, the greateft part whereof he had fowed two leagues off from our fort, up the river l'Equille: and the other part about our faid fort : and found that which was firft fown very forward, but not the laft, that had been fown the 6th and 1oth days of November, which notwithftanding did grow under the fnow, during winter, as I have noted it in my fowings. It would be a tedious thing to particularize all that was done amonglt us during winter; as to tell how the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt caufed many times coals to be made, the forge-coal being fpent ; that he caufed ways

A Defcription of New France.

The ufe of to be made thorough the woods; that we the com- went thorough the forefts by the guide of paind in soy- the compans; and other things of fuch naluind soy- ture. But I will relate that, for to keep The inkt-us merry and cleanly, concerning victuals, tuion of there was an order eftablifhed at the table the niter of the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt, which of $B n$ $1 \mathrm{~cm} / \mathrm{s}$.
publickly, and to truck for bread, whereof our people had abundantly. And as for the ordinary meat bronght out of fowace, that was diftributed equally, as much to the leaft as to the biggelt. And the like with wine, as we have fiud. In fuch actions we had always twenty or thirty fivages, non, women, girls, and loys, who behell 1 us doing our offices. Brewl was given them gratis, as we do here to the poor. Bat as for the Sagamos Membertou, and other Sagamos, when any came to us, hay fat at table eating and drinking as we did; and we took pleafure in feeing them, as contrariwife their abfence was irkfome unto us; as it came to pafs threc of four times that all went away to the places where they knew that game and venifon was, and brought one of our men with them, who lived fix weeks as they did withour falt, without braad, :nd without wine, lying on the ground upon fkiis, and that in fnowy weather. Moreover, they had greater care of him, as allo of others that have often gone with them, than of themfelves, faying, that if they hould chance to die it would be laid to their charges to have killed them: and hereby it may be known, that we were not, as it were, pent up in an illand as Monf. de Villegagnon was in Brafil: for this people love Frenchmen, and would all, at a need, arm themfelves for to maintain them.

But to ufe no digreffion, fuch government as we have fpoken of did ferve us for prefervatives againft the country difeafe. And yet four of ours died in Fibrucryand Acmaliy. March, of them who were of a fretiul condition, or fluggifh : and I remember I obferved that all had their lodgings on the weft-fide, and looking towards the wide open port, which is almoft four leagues long, haped oval-wife ; beffices, they lad, all of them, ill bedding. For the former fickneffes, and the going away of Moni. du Pont, in that manner as we have faid, caufed the quilt-beds to be caft away, for they were rotten. And they that went with the faid Monf. du Pont carried away the fheets and blankets, challenging them as theirs. So that fome of our people had fore mouths, and fwollen legs, like to the phthificks; which is the ficknefs !hat God fent to his people in the defart, in punithment for that they would fill themelves with flefh, not contenting themfelves with that whereof the defart furnifhed them by the divine providence.

We had fair weather almoft during all The fate the winter. For neither rains nor fogs are of winter fo weather.
fo frequent there as here, whither it be at fea or on the land : the reafon is, becaufe the fun-beams, by the long diftance, have not the force to raife up vapours from the ground here, chicfly in a country all woody. But in fummer is dorh, both from the fea aud land, when as their force is augmented, and thofe vapours are diffolved fuddenly or flowly, according as one approacheth Why it to the equinoctial line. For we fee that rainethle- between the two Tropics it raineth in more tween the abundance both at feat and on the land, efTropics. pecially in Peru and Mexico, than in Africa, becaufe the fun by fo long fpice of fea, having drawn up nuch moitnefs from the main ocean, he diffolveth them in a moment by the grear force of his heat; where contrariwife, towards the Newfoundlands they maintain themfelves a long time in the air, tefore they be turned into rain or be difperfed: which is done in fummer, as we have faid, and not in winter ; and at fea more than on the land. For on the land the morning mitts ferve for a dew, and fall about eight o'clock; and at fea they dure two, three, and eight days, as oftentimes we have tried.
Seeing then we are fpeaking of winter, we fay that rains being in thofe parts rare, in that feafon, the fun likewife Shineth there very fair after the fall of fnows, which we have had feven or eight times, bue it is eafily melted in open places, and the longett abiding have been in February. Howfoe-
Snow is ver it be, the fnow is very profitable for profitable, the fruits of the earth, to preferve them againft the froft, and to ferve them as a furr-gown: which is done by the admirable providence of God for the prefervation of men, and as the pfalm faith,

He giveth finow like wool, boar-froft Like albes be doth fpread,  Like morfels cafts bisice.

Pfal, cxlvii. 16.
frolts,
And as the fky is feldom covered with when they clouds towards Newfoundland in winterare. time, fo are there morning frofts, which do encreafe in the end of Fanuary, Febru$a r y$, and in the beginning of March, for until the very time of fanuary we kept us ftill in our doublers - and I remember that on a Sunday, the 1 tith day of that month, in the afternoon, we fported ourfelves linging in mufic upon the river l'Equille, and in the fame month we went to fee the corn two leagues off from our fort, and did dine merrily in the fun-fline: I would not, for all that, fay, that all other years were like Conform- unto this; for as that winter was as mild ity of wea- in thefe parts, thefe laft winters of the years therin $E$ af 1607,1608 , have been the hardeft that thofe countrics, in fuch fort that many favages died through the rigour of the we:tther, as in thefe our parts many poor people and! travellers have been killed through the fame hardnefs of winter weather. But I will faly, that the year before we were in Now France, the winter had not been fo hard, as they which dwelt there before us thave teftified unto me.

Let this fuffice for that which concerneth the winter feafon. But I am not yet fully fatisfied in fearching the caufe, why in one and the felf-fime parallel the featon is in thofe parts of New France more flow by a month than in thefe parts, and the leaves appear not upon the trees but towards the end of the month of May; unlefs we fay that the thicknefs of the woods, and greatnefs of forefts, do hinder the fun from warming of the ground; Item, that the country where we were is joining to the fea, and thereby more fubject to cold, as participuting of Pcru, a country likewife cold in regard of Africa; and, befides that, this land having never been tilled is the more ilampifh, the trees and plants not being able eafily to draw fap from their mother the earth. In recompence whereof, the winter there is alfo more flow, as we have heretolc.e fpoken.
The cold being paffed, about the end Drefing of Marcb the beft difpos'd among usitrived of garwho fhould beft till the ground and make ${ }^{\text {dens. }}$ gardens, to fow in them, and gather fruits thereof; which was to very good purpofe, for we found great difcommodity in the winter for want of garden herbs. When every one had done his fowing, it was a marvellous pleafure in feeing them daily grow and fpring up, and yet greater contentment to ufe thercof fo abundantly as we did : fo that this beginning of good hope made us almoft to forget our native country, and efpecially when the fifh began to haunt freh water, and came abundantly into our brooks, in fuch innumerable quantity that we knew not what to do with it. Which thing when I confider, I cannot wonder enough how It is poffible, that they which have been in Florida have fuffered fo great famines, confidering the temperature of the air which is there almoft without winter, and that their famine began in the months of April, May, and 7 fune, whercin they could want for no fifl.
Whilft fome laboured on the ground, Monf. de Poutrincourt made fome buildings to be prepared for to lodge them which he hoped hould fucceed us; and, confidering how troublefome the hand-mill was, he caufed a water-mill to be made, which Thebuild caufed the favages to admire much at it: for, ing of a indeed, it is an invention which came not water mill. into the fpirit of men from the firf ages. ${ }^{\text {mill. }}$

Alter

A Defcrittion of New France.

After that, our worknen had much reft, for the moft part of them did almoft nothing. But I may fay, that this mill, by the diligence of our millers, did furnifh dance ofherrings. us with three times more herrings than was needful unto us for our fuftenance. Monf. de Poutrincourt made two hogheads full of them to be filtecd, and one hogthead of fardines, or pilchards, to bring into France for a hew, which were left in our return at St. Malo, to fome merchants.

Abun.

Among all thefe things the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt did not neglect to think on his return: which was the part of a wife man, for one muft never put fo much truft in men's promifes, but one mult confider that very often many difalters do happen to them in a finall moment of time. And therefore, even in the month of April, he made two barks to be prepared, a grent one and a finall one, to come to feek out Frencb Thips towards Campfenu, or Newfoundland, if it fhould happen that no fupply fhould come unto us. But the carpentry work being finificd, one only inconvenience might hinder us, that is, we had no pitch to calk our veffels. This, which was the chiefeft thing, was forgotten at our departure from Rocbel. In this important neceffity, the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt advifed himfelf to gather in the woods quantity of the gum iffuing from firr-trees: which he did with much labour, going thither himfelf, moft often with a boy or two ; fo that in the end he got fomehundred pounds weight of it. Now after thefe labours, it was not yet all, for it was needful to melt and puri"y the fame, which was a neceffary point and unknown to our fhip-mafter Monf. de Cbampdore, and to his mariners, for as much as that the pitch we have cometh from Norway, Swedeland, and Dantzick. Neverthelefs, the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt found the means to draw out the quinteffence of thefe gums and firr. tree barks; and caufed quantity of bricks to be made, with the which he made an open furnace, wherein he put a limbeck made with many kettes, joined one in the other, which he tilled with thofe gums and barks: then being well covered, fire was put round about it, by whofe violence the gum inclofed within the faid limbeck melted and dropped down into a bafon; but it was needful to be very watchful at it, by reafon that if the fire had taken hold of the gum, all had been loft. That was admirable, efpecially in a man that never faw any made. Whereof the favages being aftenifhed, did fay, in words borrowed from the Bafques, Endia chaue Normandia, that is to fay, that the Normans know man; things.' Now they call all French. Why the men Normans, except the Bafques, becaufe favages the moft part of fifhermen that go a fifhing call all there, be of that nation. This remedy Frenelmery came very fitly unto us, for thofe which came to feek us were fallen into the fame want that we were.

Now, as he which is in expectation hath neither contentment nor reft, until he hath that which he defircth; likewife our men, in this feafon had often their eyes upon the great compals of Port Royal, to fee if they might difcover any fhip a coming ; wherein they were oftentimes deceived, imagining fometimes they had heard a cannon-fhot, other while to perceive a fail ; and very often taking the favages boats, that came to fee us, for French fhallops. For at that time, great number of favages affembled themfelves at the paffage of the faid port to go the wars againft the Armoucbiquois, as we will declare in the book following. Finally, that which was fo much expected and wifhed for, came at length, and we had news out of France, on the Afcenfion-day in the forenoon.

C H A P. XVII.

The arrival of the French; Monf. de Monts's focioty is broken, and why; the covectouficis of them that do rob the dead; bonfires for the nativity of the duke of Orleans; the departing of the Javages to go to aars; Sagamos Membertou; voyages upon the coaft; bay Françoife; bafe traffic; the torvn of Ouigoudi; bow the favages do make great voyages; their bud intention; a jteel mine; the voices of fia-wolves, or jeals; the flate of the ille St. Croix ; the love of the favages towards their children; the return into Port Royal.

THE fun did but begin to cheer the earth, and to behold his miftrefs with an amorous a fpect, when the Sagamos Membertou, after our prayers folemnly made to God, and the breakfaft diftributed to the peoVol. II.
ple according to the cuftom, came to give us advertifement that he had feen a fail upon the lake, which came towards our fort. At this The old joyful news every one went out to fee, but favages yet none was found that had fo good a fight have good to E as he, thougla he be above 100 yeurs old; neverthelefs, we fpied very foon what it was. Monf, de poutrincourt cuufed in all diligence the fimall bark to be made ready for to go to view further. Monlide do Chmpdore and Danial Hay went in her, and by the fign that bad been told them, being cernin that they were friends, they made prefently to be charged four camnons and twelve fanconets, to falute them that came fo far to fee us. They, on their part, dis not hail in begiming the joy, and to difcharge their pieces, to whom they renderd the like with ufury. It was only a finall bark, under the charge of a young man of St. Ma.lo, maned Cbevalier, who being arrive! at the fort, delivered his letters to Monf. de Poutrincourt, which were read publickly: they did write unto him, "th.1t, " for to help to fave the charges of the "'voyage, the fluip, being yet the fonas, " hould ftay at Campfean pors, there to "fifh for cods, by reation that the meer" chants affociate with Monf. de Monts,
" knew not that there was any fifhing far" ther than that place : nowithftanding,
" if it were neceffiry, le fhould caufe the " Ship to come to Port Royal. More" over, that the fociecy was broken, be-
" caufe that, contrary to the king's ediat,
" the Hollanders, conduted by a traiter" ous Frencloman cailed lia Yeunc/fe, had " the year before taken up the beavers, " and other furs, of the great river of " Canada; a thing which did turn to the " grear damage of the fociety, which, for " that caufe, could no longer furnifh the " charges of the inhabiting in thefe parts, " as it had done in times part; and there" fore did fend no body for to remain there " alter us." As we received joy to fee our affured fuccour, we felt alfo great grief to fee fo fair and fo holy an enterprize broken ; that fo many labuars and perils palt thould ferve to no effect, and that the hope of planting the name of God and the catholic faith fhould vanifh away; notwithtanding, afer that Monf. de Pottrincourt, had a long white mufed hereupon, he faid, that although he fhould have no body to come with him, but only his family, he would not forlake the enterprife.

It was great grief unto us to abiudon (without hope of return) a land that had produced unto us fo fair corn, and fo mainy fair adorned gardens. All that could be done until that time, was to find out a phace, fit to make a fettled dwelling, and a land of good fertillity. And that being done, it was great want of courage to give over the enterprize, for another year being palfed, the necerity of mainraining an habitation there, fhould be taken away, for the land was fufficient to yied things neceflary for life. This was the caufe of that grief which piercel the hearts of them which were defirous to fee the Chriftian Religion eftablifhed in that country. But on the contrary, Monf. de Mouls, and his affociates, reaping no benefit, but lofs; and having no help from the king, it was a thing which they could not do, but wilh much difficulty to maintain an laabitation in thofe parts.

Now this envy for the trade of beavers with the lavares, found not only place in the Hollandirs hearts, but alfo in French merchants, in fuch fort that the privilege which bad been given to the firid Monf. de Monts for ten years, was revoked. The unfatiable avarice of men is a ftrange thing, which have no regard to that which is honeft, fo that they may sifle and catch by what means foever. And thereupon 1 Robbing will fay moteover, that there have been from the fome of them that came to that country dead. to fetch us home, that wickedly have preliumed fo much as to Arip the dead, and Itcal away the beavers, which thofe poor people do put, for their laft benefit, upon them whom they bury, as we will declare more at large in the book following. $\Lambda$ thing that maketh the French name to be odious, and worthy difdain among them, which have no fuch fordid quality at all, but rather having a heart truly noble and generous, having nothing in private to themfelves, but rather all things common, and which ordinarily do prefene gifts (and that very liberally, according to their ability) to them whom they love and honour. And befides this mifchief, it came to pafs that the favages, when that we were at Canpletu, killed him that had fhewed them the fepulchres of cheir dead. I need not to alledge here what Herodole reciteth of the vile bafenefs of king Darius, who, thinking to have caught the old one in the neft (as faith the proverb) that is to fiy, great treafures, in the tomb of Semiramis, queen of the Babylonians, went away alcogether confounded, as wife as he came thither, having found in it a writing, altogether contrary to the firt he had read, which rebuked him very fharply for his avarice and wickednefs.

Let us return to our forrowful news, and to the grief thereof. Monf. de Poutrincourt having propounded to fome of our company, whether they would tarry there for a year, eight good fellows offered themfelves, who were promifed that every one of them mould have a hogfhead of wine, and corn fufficiently for one year, but they demanded fo great wages that they could not agree; fo refolution was taken for the return. Towards the cvening we made bonfires for the nati-

A Defcription of New France.

Vity of my lord the duke of Orleans, and began afrefh to make our cannons and fauconets to thunder out, accompanied with ftore of mufket fhots, having before fung For that purpofe, Te Deum latulamus.
The faid Cbevalier, bringer of the news, had borne the office of captain in the thip that remained at Compfeall, and in this condition there was given to him, for to bring unto us fix weathers, twenty-four hens, a pound of pepper, twenty pounds of rice, as many of railins, and of prunes, a thoufand of almonds, a pound of nutmegs, a quarter of cinmamon, two pounds of maces, half a pound of cloves, two pounds of citron-riuds, two dozen of citrons, as many oranges; a Wefpballia gamon of bacon, and lix other gamons; a hoghead of Gafoin winc, and as much of fack, a hoghead of powder'd beef, four pottles and a half of oyl of olives, a jar of olives, a barrel of vinegar, and two fugarloaves ; but all that was loft through gutter-lane, and we faw none of all there things to make account of: neverthelefs I have thought good to name here thefe wares, to the end that they which will travel on the feas may provicie themelves therewith. As for the hens and weathers it was told us that they died in the voyage, which we eafily believed, but we defired, nt leaft, to have had the bones of them ; they told us yet, for a fuller anfwer, that they thought we had been all dead; fee upon what ground the confuming of our provifion was tounded. For all that, we gave good entertainment to the faid Cbevalier and his company, which were no fimall number, nor drinkers like to the late deceafed Monf. Le Marquis de Pifani, which made them like very well of our company; for there was but ryder well watered, in the fhip wherein they came, for their ordinary portion. But as for the Chevalier, even the very firt day he fake of a return, Monf. de Poutrincourt kept him fome eight days in delays; at the end whercof, this man willing to go away, the faid Moni. de Poutrincourt put men in his bark, and detained him, for fome report, that he had faid, that being come to Compfeat, he would hoift up fails and leave us there.

Fifteen days after, the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt fent a bark toCampfent, with part of our workmen, for to begin to pull The fava- down the houfe. In the beginning of ges go to fune, the favages, abour four hundred in the wars. number, went away from the ciwelling that the Sagamos Menbertou had newly made, in form of a town, compaffed about with high pales, for to go to wars againft the Armoucbiquois, which was at Cboiiakoet fome eight le:gucs diftant from

Port Royal; from whenee they returned vithorious, by the fratagems which I will declare in the defeription that Ihave made of this war in Frencb verfes. The favages were near two months in the affembling themfelves thither. The grate Sagamos Membertou had made them to be warned during, and before, the winter, having fent unto them men of purpote, namely his two fons AEFaudin and Aclaudinech, to appoint them there the rendezvous, or place of meeting. This Sagamos is a man already very old, and hath feen Capt. James .anartier in that country, at which time lie was already married and had children; and notwithftanding did not feem to be above fifty years old. He hath been a very grear warrior in his young age, and bloody during his life; which is the caufe why lie is faid to have many enemies, and he is very glad to keep himfelf near the Frenclunen, to live in fecurity. During this gathering of people, it behoved to make prefents unto him, and gifts of corn and beans, yea of fome barrels of wine, to featt his friends; for he declared to Monf. de Poutrincourt in thefe words: I am the Sagamos of this country, and am efteemed to be thy friend, and of all the Normans (for fo call they the Frencburen, as I have faid) and that you make good reckoning of me: it would be a reproach unto me if I did not fhew the effects of this love. And notwithftanding, whether it be through envy, or otherwife, another Saganos, named Sbkoudun, who was a good friend to the French, and unfcigned, reported unto us, that Membertou did plot fomething againft us, and had made an oration to that purpofe ; which being underftood by Monf. de Poutrincourt, he fent fuddenly for him, to aftonifh him, and to fue it he would obey. Upon the firtt fending he came alone with our men, not making any refufal ; which was the caufe that he was permitted to return back in peace, having firit been kindly ufed, and had fome bottles of wine, which he loveth; becaufe (faith he) that when he hath drunk of it, he flecperh well, and hath no more fear nor care. This Membertou told us, at our firft coming thither, that he would make the king a prefent of his copper mine, becaule he faw we make account of of mines, and that it is meet that the $S_{a}$ gamos be courteous and liberalone towards the other. For he, being Sagamos, eftemmeth himfelf equal to the king, and to all his lieutenants ; and did fay often to Monf. de Poutrincourt, that he was his great friend, brother, companion and equal ; hewing his equality by joyning the two fingers of the hand, that be call ed indices, or demonitrative fingers. Now although nlthough this prefent which he would give to his majefty, was a thing that he cared not for, notwithftanding that proceedeth from a generous and good mind of his, which deferveth as great praifes as it the thing had been of greater value. As did the Perfinn king, who received with as good a will a handful of water from a poor countryman, as the greateft prefints that had been made unto him. For if Membertou had had more, he would have offered it liberally.

Mont. di Pcurrincourt being not willing to clepart thence, until he had feen the itfue of his expectation, that is to fay, the ripencis of has corn, he deliberated, after that the favages were gone to the wars, to make voyages along the coatt. And ujon the coait of the Front bay. becaude Cberalier was defirous to git ther tome beavers, he fere him in a fimall burk to the river of $5 \ell$. Jobn, called by the favages, Origoudi, and to the ille of St. Croix: and be, the faid Monf. de Poutrincont, went in a fhallop to the faid copper mine. I was of the biad Chevalier's voyage ; we croffed the French bay to go to the taid river, where as toon as Salmons. we arrived, half a dozen falmons uewly taken, were brought to us; we fojourned there four days; during which, we went into che cabins of Saganos Cbkoudur, whare we faw fome eighty or a hundred favages, all naked, except their privy members, which were a making Tabagy (that is to fay, a banquetting) with the meal that the laid Cberalier had truckedFild ding. with them for their old fkins full of lice (for they gave him nothing but that which they would caltaway;) to made he there a traffick which I little praife. But it may be that the odour of hucre is favory and fweet, of what thing foever it be, and the emperor Vefpafian did not difitain to seccive in his own hands, the tribute which came unto him from the piffing velfels of Rome.

Voyages

Affembly

Being among thofe favages, the Sagamos Cbkeudun would nceds give us the pleafure, in feeing the order and getture that they hold going to the wars, and made them all to palls before us, which I referve to fpeak of in the book following. their dwelling thither in fix clays, which. made me much to marvel, fecing the dithance that there is by fea, but they fhortcll very much their wiys, and make great voyages by the means of lakes and rivers, at the end of which being come, in carrying their canoes three or four leagues, they get to other rivers that, have a contrary courfc. All thefe favages were come thither to go to the wars with Membertou againft the strmouchiquois.

Hut becaufe I have foleken of this river of Origondi, in Monf. de Monis's voyage, I will not at this time fecak more of it. When we returned to our bark, which was at the coming in of the port, half a league off from thence, theltered by a cautey that the fea hath made there; our men, and jpecially Capt. Champdore, that conducted us, were in doubt, Ieft fome mifchance fhould happen unto us, and having feen the favages in arms, thoughe it had been to do us fome mifchief, which hidd been very cafy, for we were but two, and thercfore they were very glad of our return. After which, the next day came The fubthe wizard or foothfayer of that quarter, the fily of an crying as a mad-man towards our bark; Aatmoin not knowing what he meant, he was fent or lavage for in a cock-boat, and came to parly fooditiay. with us, telling us that the Armoucbiquois were within the woods, which came to affial them, and that they had killed fome of their tolks that were a hunting; And therefore that we fhould come a-land to affilt them. Having heard this difcourfe, which according to our judgment, tended to no good, we told him that our journeys were limited, and our victuals alfo, and that it wasbehoveful for us to begonet Seeing himfelf denied, he fuid that before two years were come about, they would either kill all the Normans, or that the Normans thould kill them. We mocked him and told him, that we would bring our bark before their fort to ranfack them all; but we did not, for we went away that day : and having the wind contrary, we fheltered ourfetves under a limall illand, where we were two days; during which, foine went a fhooting at mallards for provifion; others attended on the cookery. And Capt. Cbampdore and my felf, went along the rocks with hammers and chifels, feeking if there were any mincs. In doing whereof we found quan- A mine of tity of fteel among the rocks, which was ftecl. fince molten by Monf. de Poutrincourt, who made wedges of it, and it was found very fine fteel, whercof he caufed a knife to be made, that did cut as a razor, which at our return he fhewed to the king.

From thence we went in three days to the ille of St. Croix, being often contraried with the winds ; and becaule we had a bad conjecture conjecture of the favages, which we did fee in great numbers, at the river of $S t$. Fobn, and that the troop that was departed from Port Royal was yet at Menane (an ifle between the faid Port Royal and So. Croix) which we would not truit, we kept

A Defcription of New France.

Sents yoi-

 ses. good watch in the night-time; at. which tume we did often hear feals voices, which were very like to the voice of owls, a thing contrary to the opinion of them that have fiad and written that fimes have no voice.Bring arrived at the ifle of St. Croix, we found there the buildings, Ifft there all whole, fiving that the flore-houfe was uncovered of one fide. We found there yet fack in the bottom of a pipe, whereot we drank, and it was not much the worfe. As for gardens, we found there coleworts, forrel, lettuces, which we ufed for the kitching. We made there alfo good paftics of turtle-doves, which are very plentiful in the woods ; but the grafs is there fo high, that one could not find them when they were killed and fallen in the ground. The court was there full of whole cafks, which fome ill difpored mariners did burn for their pleafurcs, which thing when I faw, I did abhor, and I did judge, letter than before, that the favages werc (being lefs civilized) more hu-
The fava ges of bes ter nature shan ma. ny Chri fians. mane and honeiter men, than many that bearthename of Chriftians, having, during, three years, fpared that place, wherein they had not taken fo much as a piece of wood, nor falt, which was there in great quantity, as hard as a rock.
A number of illes.

Going from thence, we caft anchor among a great number of confufed illes, where we heard fome favages, and we did call to them to come to us: They anfwered us with the like call. Whercunto one of ours replied, Oïcn Kiran? that is to fay, wbat are ye? they would not difcover thenufelves: but the next day Oagi-mont, the Sugamos of this river, came to us, and we knew it was he whom wo heard. He did prepare to follow Membertose and his troop to the wirs, where he was grievoully wounded, as I have fuid in my verfes upon this matter. This Ongimont hath a daughter about eleven years old, who is very comely, which Monf. de Poutrincourt defired to have, The love and hath ofentimes demanded her of hinh of the isto give her to the Qucen, promifing him vages 19. that he fhould never want corn, nor any ward witheir thing elfe; but he would never condefeend thereto.
Being entred into our bark he accom panied us, until we came to the broal lea, where he put himfelf in his Mallop to return back: and for us we bent our courle for Port Royal, where we arrived before day, but we were before our fort, jut at the very point that fair Aurora be- Arrival in gan to thew her ruddy cheeks upon the $\begin{gathered}\text { to loon } \\ \text { Ron }\end{gathered}$ top of our woody hills; every body was yet alcep, and there was out one that rofe up, by the continual barking of dogs; but we made the reft foon to awake, by peals of musket thots and trumpets-found. Monf. de Poktrincourt was but the day before arrived from his voyage to the mines, whither we have faid that he was to go ; and the day before that, was the bark arrived that had carried part of our workınen to Campfeall. So that all being affembled, there refted nothing more than to prepare things neceflary for our thipping. And in this bufinefs our water-mill did us very good fervice, for otherwife there had been no means to prepare meal enough for the voyage, but in the end we had more than we had need of, which was given to the favages, to the end to have us in remembrance.

C H A P. XVIII.

The Port de Cumpeau; our depariure from Port Royal; fog of cigbt days continuance; a rain-bow appearing in the water; the port de Savalet; tillage an bonourable cxarcifi; the faroges grief al Monf: de Poutrincourt's going away ; return into France; sogage to mount St. Michael; firuits of New France prefented to the king ; a voyage into New France aftir the faid Monj: de Poutrincourt's return.

The de. TPON the point that we fhould take cription the port de Poutrincourt fent his men, one after ano-Campfeau. ther, to find out the fhip at Campfeas, Vol. II.
which is a port, being between feven or eight inlands, where fhips may be fheltered from winds; and there is a bay of above fifteen leagues depth, and fix or feven 10 F leagues leagues broad; the faid place being diftant from Port Royal above one hundred and filty leagues: We had a great bark, two finall ones and a challop; in one of the fimall barks fome men were fhipped that were fent before, and the thirtieth of $7 u l y$ the other two went away. I was in the great one, conducted by Monf. de CbampClore ; but Monf. de Poutrincourt defirous to fee an end of our fowed corn, tarried till $: t$ was ripe, and remained there eleven days yet after us. In the mean time, our firt journey having been the parfage of Port Royal, the next day mifts came and fpread themfelves upon the fea, which continued with us eight whole days; during which, all we could do was to get to Cafe de Sable, which we faw not.

In thete Cimmerian darknefles, having one day caft anchor in the fea, by reafon of the nighr, our anchor drived in fuch fort, that in the morning, the tide had carried us anoong iflands, and I marvel fome rocks. But for victuals we wanted for no fifh, for in half an hour's fifhing we might take cod enough for to feed us a formight, and of the faireft and fatteft that ever I faw, being of the colour of carps, which 1 have never known nor noted but in this part of the faid Cape de Sable; which after we had paffed, the tide (which is fwift in this place) brought us in a fhort Port $d_{i}$ la time as far as to the prode la Heue, thinkHicas.
hath no name, I have qu lified it in my geographical map with the name of Savaiet. This good honeft man told us, that the fame voyage was the forty-fecond voyage that he had made into thofe parts, and neverthelefs the Newfoundlandmen do make but one in a year. He was marvellounly pleafed with his firhing, and told us moreover, that he rook every day fifty crowns worth of fifh, and that his voyage Good fifh. would be worth one thoufand pouncls. ing. He paid wages to fixteen mien, and his velfel was of eighty tuns, which could carry one hundred thoufand dry fifhes: he was fometimes vext with the favages that did cabin there, who too boldly and impudently went into his thip and carried away from him what they litted: and for to avoid their troublefome behaviour, he threatened them that we would come thither, and that we would put them all to the edge of the fword if they did him wrong: this did fear them, and chey did him nor fo mpech harm as otherwife they would have done: notwithtanding, whenfoever the fifhermen came with their fhallops full of tifh, they did chufe what feemed good unto them, and they did not care for cod, but rather took merlus or whitings, barles or fletans, a kind of very great turbut, which might be worth here in Paris above four crowns a-picce, and peradventure fix or more, for it is a marvellous good mear, efpecially when they be grear, and of the thicknefs of fix lingers, as are thofe that be taken there: and it would have been very hard to bridle their infolency, becaute that for to do it one fhould be forced to have always weapons in hand, and fo the work thould be left undone. The good sur its nature and honefty of this man was extended ninuaris. not only to us, but alfo to all our people that paffed by his port, for it was the paffage to go and come from Poxt Royal: but there were fome of them that came to fetch us home who did worfe than the filvages, ufing him as the foldier does the poor peafant or country farmer bere; a thing which was very grievous for me to hear.

We were four days there by reafon of the contrary wind; then came we to Campfeau, where we tarried for the other bark, which came two days after us; and as tor Monf. de Poutrincourt, as foon as he faw that the corn might be reaped, he pulled up fome rye, root and all; for to fhew here the beauty, goodncfs and unmeafurable height of the fame: he alfo made Exceeding gleans of the other forts of feeds, as wheat, fair corn. barley, oats, hemp and others, for the fame purpofe; whichwas not done by them that

A Defcription of New France.

that have heretofore been in Brafil and in Florida: wherein I have caufe to rejoice, becaure I was of the company and of the firlt tillers of that land: and herein I pleared my felf the more, when 1 did fet $b$. fore mine eyes our ancient father Nuais, a great king, great prieft, and great prophet, whofe occupation was to hurband the grotad, both in fowing of corn and planting the vine: and the ancient Roman captain, Seranu:, who was found fowing of his field, when tra: he was fent for to conduct the Roman arm, and $\mathscr{Q}_{\text {rintus }}$ Cincinnatus, who all dufty did plough four acres of lands, bare-headed and open ftomach'd, when the fenate's herald brought letters of the dictatorflip unto him; in fort, that this meffenger was forced to pray him to cover himfelf, before he declared his embalfage unto him. Delighting myfelf in this exercife, God hath bleffed my poor labour, and I have had in my garden as fair wheat as any can be in France, whereof the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt gave unto me a glean, when he came to the faid port de Camplecu.

He was ready todepart from Port Royal, when Membertou and his company arrived victorious over the Armuchiquois: and becaufe I have made a defcription of this war in French verfes, I will not here trouble my - paper with it, being defirous rather to be brief than to feek out new matter. At the inftant requelt of the faid Membertou he tarried yet one day; but it was piteous to fee at his departing thole poor people weep, who had been always kept in hope that fome of ours fhould always tarry with them. In the end, promife was made unto them, that the year following houfholds and families thould oe fent thither wholly to inhabit their land, and teach them trades for to make them live as we do, which promife did fomewhat comfort them. There was left remaining ten hogheads of meal which ware given to them, with the corn that we had fown and the poffef. fion of the manor, if they would ufe it, which they have not done; for they cannot be conftant in one place and live as they do.

The eleventh of Auguf, the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt departed, with eight in his company from the faid Port Royal in a fhallop, to come to Campfenu; a thing marvelloully dangerous to crofs fo many bays and feas in fo finall a veffel, laden with nine perfons, with victuals neceffary for the voyage, and reafonable great quantity of other ftuff. Being arrived at the port of Capt. Savalet, he received them all as kindly as it was poffible for him; and from thence they came to us to the faid port of Campfeau, where we tarried yet eight days.

The third day of September we weighed The deanchors, and with much ado came we parting from among the rocks that be about the ing from faid Canpfeau; which our mariners did Franct. with two fhallops, that did carry their anchors very far into the fea for to uphold our fhip, to the end the fhould not Atrike againft the rocks. Finally, being at fea, one of the faid thallops was let go, and the other was taken into the Fonas, which befides our lading, did carry one hundred thoufand of fifh, as well dry as green. We had reafonable good wind until we came near to the lands of Europe; but we were not over-cloyed with good chear, becaufe that (as I have faid) they who came to fetch us, prefuming we were dead, did cram themfelves with our refrefhing commoditics. Oür workmen drank no more wine after we had left Port Royal; and we had but fmall portion thercof, becaufe that which did over abound with us was drank merrily, in the con-pany of them that brought us news fron France.

The twenty-fixth of Setcember we had The fight fight of the Sorlingues, which be at the of the Sorlands end of Cornsoall in England, and the lingus. twenty-eighth thinking to come to St. Mullo, we were forced (for want of good wind) to fall into Rofcoff in Bafe Bretague, where we remained two days and a half refrefhing ourfelves. We had a favage who wondered very much feeing the buildings, fteeples, and wind-mills in France; yea alfo of the women, whom he had never feen cloathed after our manner. From Rofcoff (giving thanks to God) we came with a good wind unto St. Malo; wherein I cannot but praife the watchful forefight of our mafter Nicbolas Martin, in having fo Ikilfully conducted us in fuch a navigation, und among fo many banks and dangerous rocks, wherewith the coaft, from the cape of Ufbant to St. Malo is full. If this man be praife-worthy in this his action, Capt. Foulques deferveth no lefs praifes, having brought us through fo many contrary winds into unknown linds, where the firt foundations of New France have been laid.
Having tarried three or four days at $S t$. The voy. Malo, Monf. de Poutrincourt's fon and age unto myfelf went to mount St. Micbael, where St. Miwe faw the relicks, all faving the buckler ${ }^{\text {cbacel. }}$ of this holy archangel. It was told us that the lord bilhop of Aurancbes, had four or five years ago forbidden to fhew it any more. As for the building, it meriteth

8.4

The to be called the eighth wonder of the world, eighth fo fair and great is it upon the point of wonder of one only rock, in the midft of the waves the worla. at full fea. True it is, that one may fay that the fea came not thither when the fail building was made; but I will reply, that howfoever it be it is admirable: the complaint that may be made in this refpect is, that fo many fuir buildings are unprofirabie in thefe our days, as in the mott part of the abbies of France. And would to God that by fome Arcbimedes means, they might be tranfported into New France, there to be better employed to God's fervice and the king's.: 'At the return we came to fee the finhing of oyters at Cancalc.

After we had fojourn'd eight days at $S t$. Malo, we came in a bark to Honfleur, where Monf. de Poutrincourt's experience ftood us in good ftead, who feeing our pilors at their wits end when they faw themfelves between the ifles of ferfey and Sark (not being accuftomed to take that courfe, where we were driven by a great wind, eaft fouth-eaft, accompanied with fogs and rain) he took his fea-chart in hand and play'd the part of a pilot in fuch fort, that we paffed the Raz Blanchart (a dangerous paffage for frmall barks) and we came eafily, following the coaft of Normandy, to Honfeur; for which, eternal praifes be given io God. Anen.

Being at Paris, the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt prefented the king with the fruits of the land from whence he came, and efpecially the corn, wheat, rye, barley and oats, as being the moft precious thing that may be brought from what country foever. It had been very fit to vow thefe firft fruits to God, and to place them in fome church among the monuments of triuruph, with more juft caufe than the aricient Romans, who prefented to their country gods and goddeffes, Terminus, Seia, and Segeffa, the firft fruits of their tillage, by the thands of the priefts of the fields instituted by Romulus, which was the firft order in New Rome, who had for a blazon, a hat of the ears of corn.

The faid Monf. de Poutrincourt had bred ten outards taken from the fhell, which he thought to bring all into France, but five of them were loft, and the other five be gave to the king who delighted much in them, and they are at lontainbleau.
Upon the fair thew of the fruits of the faid country, the king did confirm to Monf. de Monts, the privilege for the trade of beavers with the favages, to the end to give him means to eftablifh his colonies in New 'France; and by this occafion, he fent thither in Marcb laft families, there to begin Chriftian and Frencb commonwealchs, which God vouchfafe to blefs and increafe.

The faid fhips being returned; we have had report by Monf. de Cbampdore and others, of the ftate of the country which we had left, and of the wonderful beauty of the corn that the faid Monf. de Poutrincourt had fowed before his departure, together of the grains that be fallen in the gardens, which have fo increafed, that it is an incredible thing. Membertou did gather fix or feven barrels of the corn that we had fowed and had yet one left, which he referved for the Frencbmen whom he looked for, who arriving, he faluted with three mufket thot and bonfires. When it was laid to his charge that he had eaten our pigeons which we left there, he fell a weeping, and embracing him that told it him, faid, that it was the Macbaroa, that is to fay, the great birds, which are eagles, Eagles. which did eat many of them while we were there. Moreover, all, great and fmall, did enquire how we did, naming every one by his own name, which is a witnel's of great love.
From Port Royal, the faid Cbampdore went as far as Cboiiakouet, the beginning of the Armoucbiquois land, where he pacified that nation with the Etecbemins, which was not done without folemnity. For as he had begun to fpeak of it, the captain, who is now inftead of Olmecbin, named Afikou, a grave man and of a goodly prefence, how favage foever he be, demanded that fome one of the faid Etecbemins fhould be fent to him, and that he would treat with him. Oagimont, Sagamos The favar: of rb: river of St. Croix, was appointed for ges wifthat purpofe, and he would not trutt them, dom. but under the affurance of the Frencbmen. he went thither. Some prefents were made to Afikou, who, upon the fpeech of peace began to exhort his people, and to fhew them the caufes that ought to induce them to hearken unto it; whereunto they condefcended, making an exclamation at every article that he propounded to them. Some five years ago, Monf. de Monts had likewife pacified thofe nations, and had declared unto them, that he would be enemy to the firft of them that fhould begin the war and would purfue him. But after his return into France, they could not contain themfelves in peace. And the Armoucbiquois did kill a Souriquois favage, called Panoniac, who went to them for to truck merchandize, which he took at the ftorehoufe of the faid Monf. de Monts. The war above-mentioned happened by reafon of this faid murder, under the conduct of Sagamos Membertou:

$A$ Defcription of New France.

the faid war was made in the very fame place where I now make mention, that Monf. de Cbampdore did treat the peace this year. Monf. Cbamplein is in another place, to wit, in the great river of Ca nada, near the place where Capt. Fames Quartier did winter, where he hath fortified himfelf, having brought thither houfholds, with cattle and divers forts of Cattle, fruit-tree

vines, bemp. fruit-trees: there is fore of vines and excellent hemp in the fame place where he is, which the earth bringeth forth of itfelf: he is not a man to be idle, and we expect fhortly news of the whole difcovery of this great and incomparir river, and of the countries which it watheth on both fides, by the diligence of the faid Cbamplein.

As for Monf. de Poutrincourt, his defire is immutable in this refolution to inhabit and adorn his province, to bring thither his family, and all forts of trades neceffary for the life of man. Which, with God's help, he will continue to effect all this prefent year 1609 ; and as long as he hath vigour and ftrength will profecute the fame, to live there under the king's obeyfance.

ORA
DESCRIPTION

OF
N E W F R A $\mathbf{N} \mathbf{C}$ E.

B O O K II.

Containing the Fafluions and Manner of Life of the People there; and the Fertility of the Lands and Seas mentioned in the former Book.

The PREFACE.

$A^{2}$LMIG HT $\gamma$ Cod, in the creation of tbis world, bath fo much delighted binnfelf in diverfity, that zwhether it be in beaven, or in the enrtb, eitber under the fame, or in the profous:d dipth of waters, the effects of bis might and glory do fhine in every place. But the wonder that far cxceedetb all otbers, is, that in one and the felf-fame kind of creature, I mean in man, are found more variety than in otber things created. For if one enters into the confideration of bis face, two foall not be found who in every refpect do refemble one another; if be be confidered in the voice, the Jame variety fall be found; if in the Specth, all nations bave their proper and peculiar language woberely one is diftiguifsed from the otbcr: but in manners and falbion of life, there is a marvellous difference, which, without troubling ourfelves in rroffing the feas to bave the experience tbereof, we fee vifibly in our very neigbbourbood. Now forafinuch as it is a fnall matter to know, that people differ from us in cuffoms and manners, unlefs we know the particularities thereof; af mall thing is it likewife to know but that wobich is near to us; but the fair ficince is, to know the manner of life of all nations of the avcrld, for webich rafon Ulylics bath been offecmed, becaufc be bad feen much and known much. It bath, fecmel ncidficry wh-upon this fubject, in that which toucketh the nations fpoken of by us, feimg thal 1 bave tied myjelf unto it, and that it is one of the beft parts of an biflary, which weithout it would be defeefive, baving but fightly and cafually bandled bereabove thofe tbings that Ibave reforved to fpeak of bere. Whicb alfo I do, to the cond, if it pleafe God to take pity of thofe pocr people, and to work by bis boly Spirit, that they be brought into bis fold, their cbilltren may knowe bereafter what their fatbers were, and blefs thens that bave employed thenfelves in their converfon, and reformation of their uncivility. Let us therefore begin cuith man from bis birtb, and baving in grof smarked out what the courfe of bis life is, we coill condutit bint to the grave, there to leave binstoref. and alfo to repofe ourfelves.
$C \| A P$.

A Defcription of New France.

C H A P. I.

Of the mativity of man.

THE author of the book of Wifdom, called Solonon's, witneffeth unto us a molt true thing, that, All men bave a like entrance into the world, and the like going out ; but each feveral people hath brought fome ceremonies, atter thete were accomplifhed: for fome have wept, feeing the birth of man upon this wordly theatre; others have rejoiced at it, as well becaufe nature hath given to every creature a defire to preferve his own kind, as for that, man having been made mortal by fin, he defireth to be in fome fort reftored again to that loft right of immortality, and to leave fome vifible image iffued from him, by the generation of children. I will not here difcourfe upon every nation, for it would be an infinite thing, but I will fay that the Hebreces, at the nativity of theis children, did make fome particular ceremonies unto them, fpoken of by the prophet Ezekiel, who having in charge to make a demonftration to the city of 7erufalem, of her own abomination, doth reproach unto her, faying, that fhe is iffued and born out of the Canamens country, that her father was an Almorite, and her mother an Hittite; and, as for thy birth, fays he, in the day that thou waft born thy navel was not cut, neitber was thou walbed in water to foften thee, nor falted with falt, nor, any wife, fwaddled in clouts. The Cimbri did put their new born children into the fnow to harden them ; and the Frencbmen did plunge theirs into the river Rbine, to know if they were legitimate; for if they did fink unto the bottom, they were efteemed baftards, and if they did fwim on the watter they were legitimate; meaning as it were that Frenchmen ought naturally to fwim upon the waters. As for our lavages of New France, when that I was there, thinking nothing lefs than on this hiftory, I took not heed of many things, which I might have obferved; but yct I remember, that as a woman was delivered of her child, they came into our fort, to demand very inftantly for fome greate or oil, to make the child to fwallow it down before they give him the dug or any food. They can render no reafon for this, but that it is a cuftom of long continuance : whereupon I conjecture that the devil, who hath always borrowed ccremonies from the church, as well in the ancient as in the new law, would, that his people, fo do I call them that believe not in God, and are out of the communion of faints, fhould be anointed like to God's people, which unction he hath made to be inward, becaufe the fipitual unction of the Chriftiansis fo.

C H A P. II.

Of the impofition oj names.

A$S$ for impofition of names, they give them by tradition, that is to day, they have great quantity of names, which they chufe and impofe on their children; Thedioni- but the eldeft fon commonly beareth his tyooftuer father's name, adding at the end fome sivip of fint diminutive; as the cldeft of Membertou, Lom. fhall be called Membertouchis, as it were the leffer or the younger Menbertou; as for the younger fon, he beareth not the father's name, but they give him fuch name as they lift; and he that is born after him fhall bear his name, adding a fyllable to it; as the younger of Membertor is called AEtaudin, he that cometh after is called Actaudinech. So Memembourre had a fon nanced Semcoud, and his younger was called Scncoudcch. It is not tor all that a general rule to add this termination ecb. For Panoniac's younger fon, of whom mention is made in Membertou's war againft the Arnoucbiquois, which I have deferibed in the muies of New France, was called Panoniagues; fo that this termination is done according as the former name requireth it. But they have a cuftom that when this elder brother, or father is dead, they change names, for to avoid the forrow that The the remembrance of the deceafed might changing bring unto them. This is the caufe, why of name: after the deceafe of Memembourre and Semcoud, that died this lant winter, Semcoudech hath left his brother's name, and hath not taken that of his father, but rather Inath made himfelf to be called Paris, becaufe he dwelt in Paris. And after Pa .
noniacs's death, Panoniagues forfook his mame, and was, by onc of our men called Roland, which I find evil and indifcreetly done, fo to prophane Chriftians names, and to impofe them upon infidels; as I remember of another that was called Martin. Alexiander the great, though he was an heathen, would not that any fhould bear his name, unlefs he fhould render himfelf worthy thereof by virtuc. And, as one day a foldier, bearing the name of $A$ lexander, was accufed before him to be voluptuous and lecherous, he commanded him, cither to forfake that name, or to change his life.

The Brafileans, as Fobn de Leri faith, whom I had rather follow in that which he hath feen, than a Spaniard, impofe names to their children of the firft thing that cometh before them, as if a bow and ftring come to their imagination, they will call their child Ourapacen, which fignifieth a bow and ftring, and fo confequently, In regard of our favages, they have at this day names without fignification, which peradventure in the firft impoling of them, didfignify fomething, but as the tongues do change, the knowledge thereof is loit. Ofall the names of them, that I have known, I have learned none, faving that Cbkoudun, fignifyeth a trout; and Oigoudi, the name of the river of tite find Cbkoudun, which fignifieth to fee. It is very certain, that names have not been impofed, to what thing foever, without reafon; for Adan gave the name to every living creature, according to the property and nature thercof; and confequently namcs have bcen given to men fignifying fomething ; as Adam fignifyech man, or, that which is made of earth; Eve, fignityeth, the motber of all living; Abel, wreping; Cain, poffefion; Jefus, a faviour; Devil, a Slanderer; Satan, an adzerfary, &xc. Among the Romans fome ware called Lacius, becaufe they were born at the break of day; others Cafar, tor that the mothers belly was cut at the birth of him that firtt did bear this name; In like manner Lentulus, Pifo, Fabius, Cicero, &cc. all nick names, given by reafon of fome accident, like our favages mames, but with fome more judgment.

C H A P. III.

Of the fieding of their cbildren.

AAMIGHTY God, fhewing a true mother's duty, faith by the prophet ISaiab, Can a woman forget ber child, and not bace compafion on the fon of her zuomb? This pity which God requireth in mothers, is to give the breaft to their children, and not to change the food which they have given unto them before their birth. But at this day, the moft part make their breats to ferve for allurements to whoredom; and being willing to fet themelves at cale, free from the children's noif, do fend them into the country, where peradventure they be changed, or given to bad nurfes, whofe corruption and bad nature they fuck with their milk; and from thence come the changelings, weak and degenerate from the right fock, whofe names they bear. The favage women bear a greater love than that towards their young ones; for none but themfelves do nourifh them ; and that is general throughout all the Weft Indies; likewife their breafts are no baits of love, as in thefe our parts, but rather, love in thote lands is made by the flame that nature kindleth in every one, without annexing any arts to it, cithor by painting, amorous poitons, or otherwife. And for this manner of nurfing their children, are the ancient Germant women praifed by Tacitus, becaufe that every one did nurfe their children with her own breafts, and would not have fuffered that another befides themfelves fhould give fuck to cheir children. Now our favage women do give unto them, with the dug, meats which they ufe, having firft well chewed them; and fo by little and little bring them up. As for the fwaddling of them, they that dwell in hot comntries, and near the Tropicks, have no care of it, but leave them free, unbound. But drawing towards the north, the mothers have an even fmooth board, like the covering of a drawer or cupboard, upon which they lay the child wrapped in a beaver furr; unlefs it be too hot, and tied thereupon with fome fwaddling band, whom they carry on their backs, their legs hanging down; then being returned into their cabins they fet them, in this manner up ftraight againft a ftone or fomething el fe. And as in thefe our parts, one gives fmall feathers and gilt things to little children, fo they hang a quantity of beads and fmall fquare toys, diverly coloured, in the upper part of the faid board or plank, for the decking of theirs.

C H A P. IV.

Of their beve torards their chilltren.

'HH A T' which we have faid even now is a part of true love, which doth flame the Clariftian wometr. But after the children te weaned, and at all times, they love them all, obferving this law, that nature hath grafted in the hearts of all creaturcs, except in lewd flippery women, to have care of them. And when it is queftion to demand of them fome of their children, I fpeak of the Souriquois, in whofe land we dwelt, for to bring them into France, they will not give them; but if any one of them loth yield unto it, prefents mult be given unto him, befides large promifes. We have already fpoken of this at the end of the 1 th chapter. So then I find that they have wrong to be called barbarous, fecing that the ancient Romans were far more barbarous than they who oftentimes fold their children for to

The caufe why the fivages love their children more than we do in thefe parls have means to live. Now that which caureth them to love their children more than we do in thefe parts, is, thar they are the maintenance of their fathers in their old age ; whether it be to help them to live, or to defend them from their enemies: and nature conferveth wholly in them her right in this refyect ; by reafon whereof, that which they wifh moft is to have number of children, to be thercby fo much the mightier, as in the firft age of the world, when virginity, was a thing reprovable, becaufe of God's commandiment to men and women to increafe, multiply and replenifh the earth; but after it was filled, this love waxed marvellous cold, and children began to be a burthen to fathers and mothers, whom many have had in difdain, and have very often procured their death. Now is the way open for Frame to have a remedy for the fame; fior if it pleafe God to guide and proiper the voyages of Nero France, whotocver in theds parts thall find himfelf oppreficicd, may pars stither, and there end his days in reft, and that without feeling any poverry. Or if any one findeth himielf over-burthened with cliildren, he may fend half of them thither, and with a fmall portion they fhall be rich, and poffefs the land, which is the moft affured condition of this life. For we feeat this day, labour and pain in all vocations, yea, in them of the beft fort, which are often croffed through envy and wants; others will make a hundred cappings and crouchings for to live, and yet they do but pine away. But the ground never deccivecth us, if we earnc:lly cheriih her; witnefs the fable of him, who by his lart will and teftament, did declire to his children that he had hidden a treafure in his vineyard, and as they had well and deeply ligged and turned it they found nothing, but the year being come about, they gathered fo great a quantity of grapes, that they knew not where to betow them. So through all the holy frripture, the promifes that God makech to the patriarchs $A b r a b a n \prime$, IJaac, and facob, and afterwards to the people of $I J \mathrm{frael}$, by the mouth of Mofes, are, That they flaall poffefs the land, as a certain heritage that cannot perifh, and where a man hath wherewith to fuftain his family, to make himfelf itrong and to live in innocency; according to the fpeeches of the ancient Cato, who did fay, that commonly hufbandmen, or farmers fons be valiant and ftrong and do think on no harm.

$$
\text { С } \mathrm{H} \text { А P. V. }
$$

Of thie religion:

MAN being created after the image of God, it is good reafon that he acknowledge, ferve, worfhip, praife and blefs his creator; and that therein he imI loy his whole defire, his mind, his Vot. II.
ftrength and his courage. But the nature of man having been corrupted by fin, this fair light that God had firft given unto him, hath been fo darkned, rhat he is bccome thereby to lofe the knowledge of lis beginning. And for as much as God fheweth not himfelf unto us by a certain vifible form, as a father or a king might do, man finding himfelf overcome with poverty and infirnity, not fettling himielf to the contemplation of the wonders of this Almighty workman, and to feek him as he ought to be fought for; with a bafe and brutifh fpirit miticrably hath he forged to himfelf gods, according to his own fancy; and there is nothing vifible in the world, but hath been deify'd in fome place or other ; yea even in that rank and degree, imaginary things have alfo been put, as virtue, hope, honour, fortune, and a thoufand fuch like things. Itcm infernal gods, and fickneffes, and all forts of plagues, every one worhipping the things that he flood in fear of. But notwithitanding, though Tully hath faid, fpeaking of the nature of the gods, that that there is no nation fo favage, or brutihh, nor fo barbarous, but is feafoned with fome opinion of them ; yet there have been found, in thefe later ages, nations that have no feeling thereot at all; which is fo much the ftranger; that among them, there were, and yet are, idolators, Idolators as in Mexico and Virginia. If we will, we in $V_{i} i_{z i}$ - may add hereunto Ficrida; and notwithnia.

10 H

A Defcription of New France.

France will be found more eafy to receive The favathe Chriftian doctrine, if once the pro- ges ealy to vince be thoroughly inhabited. For (that be conwe may begin with them of Canada) the ChriFames Quartier, in his fecond relation, fian rolireciteth that which I have faid a little be- gion. fore, in thefe words, which are not here laid down in the former book.
"This faid people (faith he) hath not any The fava" belief of God (that may be efteemed) for ges religi" they believe in one, whom they call Cu - on in Ci "doüngni, and fay, that he often fpeaketh "udu.
" to them, and telleth them what weather " Thall fall out. They fay that when he is "angry with them lee calteth duft in their " eyes. They believe alfo, that when they "die they go up into the ftars ; and after"wards they go into fair green fields, full " of fair trees, Howers and rare fruits. Af" ter they had made us to underftand thefe " things, we fhewed them their error ; and " that their Cudoiiagni is an evil firit that " deceiveth them, and that there is but one " God, which is in heaven, who doth give " unto us all, and is creator of all things, " and that in him we mult only believe, " and that they muft be baptized, or go " into hell. And many ocher things of our People ea" faith were fhewed them; which they eafi- fy to be " ly believed, and called their Cudoiiagui, convated. "Agoiuda". So that many times they re" quefted our captain to caule thern to be " baptized, and the laid lord (that is to " fay, Donnacona) Taiguragni, Domagaia, " with all the people of their town came " thither for that purpofe; but becaute we " knew not their intent and defire, and that " there was no body toinftruct them in the " faith; we excufed ourfelves to them for " that time, and bad Taiguragni and Do" magaia to make them underitand that we " would return another voyage, and would " bring priefts witis us and Cbrime, telling " them, for an excufe, that one cannot be " baptized without the faid Cbrime, which " they did believe. And they were very " glad of the promife which the captain " made them to return, and thanked them " for it.

Monf. Cbamplein, having of late made the fame voyage which the Capt. Fames Quartier had made, did difcourfe with favages, that be yet living, and reporteth the fpeeches that were between him and certain of their Sagamos, concerning their belief infpiritual and heavenly things, which I have thought good (being incident to this matter) to inferc here. His words are thefe. "The moft part of " them be people without law, according " as I could fee and inform my felf, by

A Defcription of New France.

The fava. "the faid great Sagamos, who told me ges belief "c that they verily believe there is one and faich. "God, who hath created all things. And " then I afked him, feeing that they be-

* lieve in one only God; by what means
" did he place them in this world, and
"f from whence they were come? He " anfwered me, that after God had made
"6 all things, he took a number of arrows,
" and did ftick them into the ground,
" from whence men and women fprung
"s up, which have muitiplied in the world
" until now, and that mankind grew $b_{;}$
"t that means. I anfwered him, thit
" what he faid was falle; but that ind $:=\mathrm{d}$
"s there was one only God, who had " created all things both in heaven and " earth. Seeing all thefe things fo perfect, " and being no body that did govern in ${ }^{66}$ this world, he took lime out of the " earth, and created thereof our firft fa" ther Adam: and while he did neep,
"God took one of his ribs, and formed
"Eve thereof, whom he gave to him for " company, and that this was the truth "that both they and we were made by " this means, and not of arrows, as they " did believe. He faid nothing more to " me, but that he allowed beteer of my " fpeech than of his own. I afked him
" alfo if he believed not that there were " any other but one only God? He faid " unto me that their belief was; there "was one only God, one fon, one mo" ther, and the fun, which were four.
"Notwithftanding, that God was over " and above all; but that the fon was " good, and the fun, by reafon of the "good which they received of them:
" as for the mother, fhe was naught and
" did eat them, and that the father was "" not very good. I hewed him his er" ror according to our aith, whereunto
" he gave fome credit. I demanded of " him if they never faw nor heard their " anceftors fay that God was come into " the world; he told me he had not " feen him, but that anciently there were " five men, who travelling towards the " fetting of the fun, met with God,
" who demanded of them, whither go
"" ye: they anfwered, we go to feek for " our living: God anfwered them, you
" Mall find it here. Bur they paffed
" turther, not making any account of "6 that which God had faid unto them;
"6 who took a fone and therewith touched
"two of them, who were turned into " Itones; and he faid again to the three * others, whither go ye; and they an-sc fwered as at the firt time; and God sc faid unto them again, pals no further,
"6 you hall find it here; and feeing that *6 they found no food they paffed further :
" and God took two ftaves, and touch" ed therewith the two foremoft, who "Were transformed into Itaves. But the " fifth man ftayed and would pafs no "s furcher; and God anked him again, "s whither goeft thou; who made anfwer, I "go to feek for my living; and God "told him, tarry and thou thalt find it ;
" and he ftayed without paffing any fur"ther. And God gave him mear, and " he did eat of it; and after he had made "good chear he returned among the " other tavages, and told them all that "you have heard. He alfo told me, " that at another time there was a man " who had ftore of tobacco (which is an " herb the fmoke whereof they take) and " that Gud came to this man and afked
" him where his pipe was; the man took " his tobacco-pipe and gave it to God, " who drank very much tobacco. After " he had taken well of it, God brake the " faid tobacco-pipe into many pieces,
" and the man anked him, why haft thou
" broken my tobacco-pipe, and thou " feeft well that I have none other. And "Godt took one which he had, and gave " it him, faying unto him ; lo, here is one " which I give to thee; carry it to thy " great Sagamos, let him kecp it; and if he
" keep it well, he fhall not w.unt any "thing, nor any of his companio:s :
" the faid man took the cobacco-pipes
" which he gave to his great Saza:mes,
" who (whillit he had it) the favares
" wanted for nothing in the world ; but " that fince the faid Sagamos had loft this " tobacco-pipe, which is the caufe of the " great famine which fometimes they " have among them. I demanded of " him, whether he did believe all that;
" he told me yes, and that it was true.
" Now I believe that that is the caufe why
" they fay that God is not very good.
"But I replied and faid unto him, that "God was all good, and that without " doubt it was the devil that had fhewed
" himfelf to thofe men, and that if they "did believe in God as we do, they hould " want nothing that fhould be needful for " them. That the fun which they faw,
" the moon and the ftars, were created " by the fame great God, who hath " made both heaven and earth, and " that they have no power, but that " which God hath given them ; that we " believe in that great God, who by his
"goodṇefs did fend unto us his dearly
" beloved fon, who being conceived by " the Holy Ghoft, took human flefh with" in the virgin womb of the Virgin
" Mary, having been thirty-three years
" on earth working infinite miracles, raif-
" ing up the dead, healing the fick, dri" ving out devils, giving fight to the " blind, fhewing unto men the will of "God his father, for to ferve, honour 6" and
"، and worfliphim, hath fuilled his blood, " ind fufferced cleath and pafion for us, " ind for our fins, and redeemed man" kind, being buricel and rilen again, " went down mito hell, and afeended up " into heaven, where he fittech at the "right hand of God his Father. That "this was the belief of all Chriftians " which do believe i: the Father, in the "Son, and in the Holy Ghoft ; which be " not for all that three Gods, but are one
" felf fameand one only God, and one "Trinity, wherein there is nothing be-os fore nor after, nothing greater nor lets.
"That the Virgin Mary, mother to "s the Son of Gool, and all men and " women that have lived in this world,
" doing God's commandments, and fuf-
"t tered martyrdom for his name, and " who, by the permifion of God, have " wrought miracks, and are Saints in " heaven in his paradife, pray all for us
"، unto this great divine majcity, to par" don us our faults and fins, which we "doagainft his law and commandments :
" and fo by the faints prayers in heaven,
"c and by our own that we make to his " divine majefty, he giveth us what we " have need of, and the devil hath no
" power over us; and can do us no
" hurt. That if they had this belief " they flould be even as we are. That "the devil /hould not be able to do " them any more harm, and they fhould " not want what thould be ncedful for " them. Then the faid Sagamos faid unto " me, that he granted ali that I faid: I "demanded of him what ceremony they " ufed in praying to their God; he told " me that they ufed no other ceremony,
" but that every one did pray in his " heart as he would. This is the caufe
" why, I believe there is no law among " them, neither do they know what it is "to worfhip or pray to God, and live
" the moft part as brute beafts ; and I " believe that in fhort time they might be " brought to be good Chriftians, it onc " would inhabit their land, which moft of " themdo defire. They have among them
" fome favages whom they call Pilotoua,
" who fpeak vifibly to the devil; and he
" telleth them what they muft do, as well
" for wars as for other things; and if he " fhould command them to go and put "، any enterprize in execution, or to kill a "Freuchman or any other of their na" tion, they will immediately obey to his "command. They believe alfo that ail
" their dreams are true; and indeed,
" there be many of them which do fay
" that they have feen and drcamed things
" that do happen, or fhall come to pafs.
"But to fpeak thereof in truth they be " vifions of the devil, who doth deceive
"" and feluce them." So far Monf. Cbam-leins's report. As for our Souriquais. and other their neighbours, I can bay mothing elfe, but that they are dellitute of all knowledge of God, have no akoration, neither do they make any divine fervice, living in a pitiful ignorance; which ought to touch the hearts both of Chritli- A arion an princes, and prelates, who very often for chiodo employ upon frivolous things that itian poist. which would be more than filficient to presender. eftablifh there many colonies, winich woukd bear their names, about whom the fi poor people would flork and allemble themfelves. I do not fay they hotild go thither in perfon, for their prefes ce is here more neceliary, and befides cvery one is not fit for the fea; but there are fo many perfons well difpofed that would employ themfelves on that, if they had the means; they then that may do it are altogether unexcufable. Our prefent age is lallen, Toallorts as one might fay, into an aftorgie, want- ind deing both love and Chriftian charity, and grees retain almoft nothing of that fire which of poeple. kindled our fathers either in the time of our firft kings, or in the time of the croiSades for the. IJoly Land; yea contrariwife if any venture his life, and that little means he hath, upon this generous Chrittian work, the moft part do mock him for it; like to the falamandir, which doth not live in the midft of flames, as fome do imagine, but is of fo cold a nature that fhe killeth them by her coldnefs. Every one would run after treafures, and would carry them away without pains-taking, and afterward to live frolick; but they come too late for it ; and they thould have enough if they did believe, as is mect to do, in him that hath faid; Seck firft the kingiom of God, and all thefe things fball be given unto you over and aboie.

Let us return to our favages, for whofe converfion it refteth unto us to pray to God, that it will pleafe him to epen the means to make a plentiful harveft, to the further manifeftation of the gofpel; for ours, and generally all thofe people, even as far as Florida inclufively, are very cafy to be brought to the Chriftian religion, according as I may conjecture of them which I have not feen, by the difcourfe of hiftories. But I find that there fhall be more facility in them of the nearer lands, as from cape Bretonto Mallebarre, becaufe they have not any thew of religion (for I call not religion unlefs there be fome latria and divine fervice) nor tillage of ground, at leaft as far as Cboüakoet, which is the chiefeft thing that may draw men to believe as one would, by reafon that out from the earth cometh all that which is neceffary for the life, after the general ufe we have of the other elements. Our life hath chicfly need of meat, drink and clothing. Thefe peo-pie, as oric maly lay, have nothing of all that, lor it is not to be called covered, to be always wandering and lodged under four flakes, and to have a fkin upon their back : neither do I call eating and living, to eat all at once and farve the next diay, not prosone's de- ple, the lame flall be, as is were, their ones de- God, they will believe all that he fhall fay volion.

. Defcreption of New France.

of their multitule, and becaufe they live more at sale than the others, reaping the lruits of the earth. Their country is not yct well known, but in that fmall part that we have difeovered, I find they have conformity with them of Virginia, except in the fipperllition anderror in that which concernecth our fubject, for as much as the lirginians do begin to have fome opinion of a fuperior thing in marure which governeth here this world. They believe in The reli. nany gods, as an Englifs hiltorian that ginnefthe dwelt there reporteth, which they call Mion- i"rgininn" toac, but of fundry forts and degrees. One alone is chief and greas, who hath ever been, who purpofing to make the world, made firlt other gods, for to be means and inftruments wherewith he might ferve himfelf in the creation and in the governments then alterwards the fun, the moon, and the ftars, as demy-gods, and inftruments of the other principal order. They hold that the woman was firt made, which by conjunction with one of the gods had children. All thefe people do generally believe the immortality of the loul, and that after death good men are in reft, and the wicked in pain: now them that they efteem to be the wicked are their enemies, and they the good men ; in fuch fort, that, in their opinion, they fhall all after death be well at eafe, and efpecially when they have well defended their country, and kill'd many of their enemies. And as touching the refurrection Fabulous of the bodies, there are yet fome nations in tales of thofe parts that have fome glimple of it : the refurfor the Virginians do tell tales of certain men rifen again, which fay ftrange things: as of one wicked man, who after his death had been near to the mouth of Popoguffo, which is their hell, but a god faved him, and gave him leave to come again into the world, for to tell his friends what they ought to do for to avoid the coming into this miferable torment. Item, that year that the Englifbmen were there, it came to pafs within fixty leagues off from them, as faid the Virginians, that a body was unburied, like to the firt, and did fhew, that being dead in the pit, his foul was alive, and had travelled very far, thorough a long and large way, on both fides of which did grow very fair and pleafant trees bearing the rareft fruits that can be feen ; and that, in the end, he came to very fair houfes, near to the which he found his father, which was dead, who exprelly commanded him to return back, and to declare unto his friends the good which it behoveth them to do for to enjoy the pleafures of this place ; and that after he had done his meflage he flould come thither again. The general hiftory of the Weff-Indies reporteth, that before the coming of the Sfaniards into 10 I

A Defiription of New France.

Perre, they of Cufio and thereabour, did likewife believe the refurrection of the bodies. For feeing that the Spaniards, with a curfed avarice opening the fepulchres for to have the gold and the riches that were in them, didcait andifcatter the bones of the dead here and there, they prayed them not to fcatter them fo, to the end that the fame fhould not hinder thens from rifing again: which is a more perfect belief than that of the Sadducees, and of the Greeks, which the gofpel and the acts of the apoitles witnefs unto us that they fooffed at the refurrestion, as alfo, almoft all the heathen antiquity hath done.

Some of our weftern Indians, expecting this refurrection, have efteenmed that the fouls of the good did go into heaven, and them of the wicked into a great pit or hole, which they think to be far off towards the fun fetting, which they call popogufo, there to burn for ever: and fuch is the belief of the Virginians: The others, as the Brafilians, that the wicked go with Aignan, which is the evil fpirit (bat tormenteth then); bue as for the good, that they went behind the mountains to dance and make good chcar with their fathers. Many of the ancient Chriftians, grounded upon certain places of Esdras, of St. Paul, and others, bave thought that after death our fouls were fequeftered into places under the earth, as in Abrabam's boiom, attending the judg. ment of God: and there Origen hath thought that they are as in a fchool of fouls, and place of inftruction, where they learn the caufes and reafons of the things they have fcen on the earth, and by realoning make judgments of confequences of things paft, and of things to come. But fuch opinions have been rejected by the refolution of the doctors of the Sorbonne in the time of king Pbilip the fair, and lince by the council of Florence. Now if the Chriftians bave held that opinion, is it much to thefe poor $\mathfrak{f a}$ vages to be entred in thofe opinions that we have recited of them?
As concerning the wormipping of their gods, of all them that be out of the Spanijb dominion, I find none but the Virginians that ufe any divine fervice, unlefs we will alfo comprebend therein, that which the Floridians do, which we will recite hereafter. They then reprefent their gods in the fhipe of a man, which they call Kevuafovwock. One only is named Kevuas. They place them in houfes and temples, made after their farhion, which they call Macbicomuck, wherein they make their prayers, fing. ing and offering to thofe gods. And feeing we are fallen to fpeak of infidels, I praife rather the ancient Romans who were above 173 years without any images of gods, as St. Augufin faith. Numa Pompilius laving wifely forbidden to make any, becautie that fuch a foolifh and fenfetets thing made them to be defipifed, and from this contenpt came, that the people did calt out all lear, nothing being better than to worthip them in fpirit feeing they are fpirits. And indeed Pliny faith, shat there is notbing which Rezeetb more tbe weakne/s of math's wit, than to feek to alligh fome image or fisure 10 God i for in what part foever that Goil Beewetb bimflf be is all Senfe, all jight, all bearing, all joul, all ilnderfanding; and, fivally, be is all of himfelf withous ufing any organ. The ancient Germans inttructed in this doctrine, not only did admit no images of their gods, as faith Tacitus, but alfo would not that they Should be drawn or painted againtt the walls, nor fet in any bunain form, efleeming that to derogate too much from the greatnefs of the heavenly power. It may be laidamong us, that figures and reprefentations are the books of chice unlearned; but leaving dif. putations alide, it were fitting that every one fhould be wife and wellinftructed, and that no body fhould be ignorant.

Our Souriquois and $A$ r-mouchiqwois favages The $f$. have the induitry both of painting and carv- vageshave ing, and do make pictures of beafts, birds, the indufand men, as well in ftone as in wood, as painting prettily as good workmen in thele parts ; and carvand notwithttanding they ferve not them-ing. felves with them in adoration, but only to pleafe the fight, and the we of fome private tools, as in tobacco-pipes. And in that, as I have faid at the firft, though they be without divine worfhip, 1 praife them more than the Virginians, and all other forts of people, which, more beafts than the very bealts, worfhip and revcrence fenfelefs things.

Capt. Laudonniere in his hittory of Flo- The Fio. rida, faith, that they of that country have pidians. no knowledge of God, nor of any religion, but of that which appearcth unto them, as the fun and moon; to whom, neverthelefs, I find not in all the faid biltory that they make any adoration, faving that when they go to war, the Paracoufi maketh fome prayer to the fun for to obtain victory, and which being obtained he yieldeth him praifes for it, with fongs to the honour of liin, as I have more particularly fpoken in the soth chapter of my firt book. And, notwithftanding, Monf, de Belleforeft writeth to have taken from the faid hiftory that which he mentioneth of their bloody facrifices, like to them of the Mexicans, affembling themfelves in one field, and fecting up their lodges, where after many dances and ceremonies, they lift up in the air and offer to the funhim upon whom the lot is fallen to be facrificed. If he be bold in this thing, he prefumeth no lefs where he writeth the like of the people of Camadis, whom he maketh facrificers of human (x)dies, alchough they never thought on it. For if Capt. 7ames , Quartier hath iten fome of their enenies licads, dreffed like leather, fet upon pieces of wool, it doth not follow that they have been facrificed, but it is their cultom to do fo, like to the antient Gaulois, that is to fay, to take off the heads of their enenies whom they have killed, sund to let thens up in, or without their cabins as a trophy; which is ufual thorough all the $W_{c}$ efl. Indies.

A Defcription of New France.

'ro return to our Floridians. If nay one will call the honour they do to the fun, to be an act of religion, I will not comerary him. For in the old time of the golden age, when that ignorance found place amongft men, many (confideriny the admirable effects of the fun and of the noon, wherewith God ufeth to govern things in this low world) attributed unto them the reverence due to the cteator : and this manner of reverence is expounded unto us by Job, when he fuith: If I bave bebolden ibe fitn in bis brigbtmess, and tbe moon runuing claur: "und if my beart batb been feduced in fecret, and my moutb batb kifed my band; this alfo bad been an iniquily to be condemned, for I bad donied the greal God above. As for the hand kiffing it is a kind of reverence which is yet obferved in doing homages. Not being able to touch the fun, they fretched forth their hauds towards it, then kiffed it: or they touched his idol, and afterwards did kifs the hand that had touched it. And into this idolatry did the feople of Ifrael fometimes fall, as we fee in Ezekicl.
Brafilians. In regard of the Brafilians, I find by the difcourfe of Yobn de Leri, whom I had rather follow than a Spanifs author, in that which he hath feen, that not only they are like unto ours, wirhout any form of religion or knowledge of God, but that they are fo blind and hardened in their anthis opophagy, that they feem to be in no wife capable of the Claritian doctrine. Alfo they are vifibly tormented and beaten by the devil, which they call Aiguan, and with fuch rigour, that when they fee him come, fometimes in the fhape of a beaft, fometimes of a bird, or in fome frange form, they are, as it were, in defpair : which is not with the other favages, more hitherward, towards Newfoundland, at leaft, with fuch rigour. For Fames $\Omega_{\text {uartier reporteth, }}$ that he cafteth earth in their eyes, and they call him Cudouggni; and there where we werc, where they call him Aoutem, I have fometimes heard that he had feratched Membertou, being then, as it were, a kind of foothfiyer of the country. When one tells the Brafillams that one munt believe in Goll, they like that advice well enough, buc by and by they forget their Icffon and return again to their own vonsit, which is a ftrange brutifhnefs, not to be willing at the lealt to redeem themfelves from the devil's vexation, by religion; which maketh them inexcufable, feeing alfo they have fome memory remaining in them of the seneral flood, and of the gofpel, if it be fo that their report be true, for they make montion in their fongs that the witers being once overflown, did cover all the earth, and all nen were drowned, except their grandfathers, who faved themfelves upons the higheft trees of their country: and of this flood other favaiges, mentioned by one elfewhere, have alfo fome tradition. As concerning the gofpel, the faid de Leri faith, thit haviug once found occafion to nlew unto them the beginning of the world, and how 'tis meet to believe in God, and their mifcrable condition, they gave ear unto him with great attention, being all amazed for that which they had heard; and that, thereupon, an ancient man, taking upon him to fpeak, faid, that in truth lie had recited wonderful things unto them, which made him to call to mind that which many times they had heard of their grandfuthers, that of a long time fithence a mair, that is to fay, a ftranger, cloathed and bearded like to the Frencbmen, had been there, thinking to bring thems to the obedience of the God which he declared unto them, and had ufed the like exhortation unto them ; but that they would not believe him: and, therefore, there came another thither, who, in fign of a curfe, gave them their armours, wherewith fince they have killed onc another: and that there was no likelihood they fhould forfake that manner of life, becaufe that all their neighbour mations would mock them for it.

But our Souriquois, Canadinns, and their neighbours, are not fo hardened in their wicked life; no, neither the Virginians nor Foridians, but will receive the Chriftian doctrine very eafily, when it Mhall pleafe God to ftir up them that be able to fuccour them, neither are they vifibly tormented, beaten, and tom by the devil, as this barbarous people of Brafil, which is a ftrange malediction, more particular unto them than to other nations of thofe parts: which maketh me believe that the voice of the apoftles may have reached fo far, according to the faying of the faid old ancient man, to which having ftopped their ears, they bear a particular punifhment for it, not common to others, which peradventure have never heard the word of God, fince the univerfal flood, whereof all thofe nations, in more than three thoufand leagues of hath been given them by tradition from ground have an obfcure knowledge, which father to fon.

CHAP. VI.

Of the footbfoyers and maffers of the ceremonies among the Indians.

IWill not call, as fome have done, by the name of priefts, them that make the ceremonies and invocations of devils among the Weft-Indians, but in as much as they have the ufe of facrifices and gifts that they offer to their Gods, for as much as the apoftle faith, every prieft or bifhop is ordained to offer gifts and facrifices ; fuch as were them of Mexico, the greateft whereof was called Papas, who offered incenfe to their idols, the chief of them was that of the god whom they did name Vitzilipuztli, although neverthelefs, the general name of him whom they held for fupreme lord and aurhor of all things, was Viracocba, to whom they attribured excellent qualities, calling him Pacbacamac, which is creator of heaven and earth; and UJapu, which is admirable, and other fuch like names. They had alfo facrifices of men, as them of Pcru have yet, which they facrificed in great number, as fofeph Acofta difcourfeth thereof at large. Thofe may be called priefts or facrificers; but in regard of them of Virginia and Florida, I do not fee any facrifices they make, and therefore, I will qualify them with the name of wizards, or matters of the ceremonies of their religion, which in Florida I find to be called Iarvas, and Ionas ; in Virginia, Vuiroances; in Brafil, Caribes; and among ours, I mean the Souriquois, Acutmoins. Laudonnierr, fpeaking of Florida, "They have, " faich he, their priefts, unto whom they "" give great credit, becaufe they be great " magicians, great foothfayers and callers "c on devils. Thefe priefts do ferve them " for phyficians and chirurgeons, and "c carry always with them a bag full of " herbs and drugs to phyfick them that be " fick, which be the molt partof the great "c pox; for they love women and maidens " very much, whom they call the daugh"t ters of the fun: if there be any thing " to be treated, the king calleth the Iar-
" wars, and the ancienteft men, and de" mandeth their advice." See, morcover, what I have written heretofore in the 6th chapter of the firft book. As for them of Virginia, they are no lefs fubrle than them of Florida, and do procure credit to themfelves, making them to be refpected by tricks or fhew of religion, like to them that we have fpoken of in the latt chapter, fpeaking of fome dead men rifen up again. It is by fuch means, and under pretext of religion that the Inguas made themfelves heretofore the greateft princes of America. And them of thefe parts that would deceive and blind the people have likewife ufed of that fubtilty, as Numa Pompilius, LyJander, Sertorius, and other more recent, doing, as faith Plutarch, as the players of tragedies, who defirous to fhew forth things, over-reaching the human ftrength, have refuge to the fuperior power of the gods.

The Aoutmoins of the laft land of the Indies, which is the neareft unto us, are not fo blockifh but that they can make the common people to attribute fome credit unto them; for by their impoftures they live and make themfelves efteemed to be neceffary, playing the part of phyficians The phy: and chirurgeons as well as the Floridians: flicians and let the great Sagamos Membertou be an ex- chirurample thereof; if any body be fick, he is the fafent for, he maketh invocations on his de- vages. vil, he bloweth upon the part grieved, he maketh incifions, fucketh the bad blood from it ; if it be a wound he healeth it by the fame means, applying a round flice of the beavers ftories. Finally, fome prefent is made unto him, either of venifon or fkins. If it be queftion to have news of things abfent, having firft queftioned with his Spirit, he rendereth his oracles commonly doubtful, very often falle, but fometimes true ; as when he was afked whether Panoniac were dead, he faid, that unlefs he did return within fifteen days, they fhould not expect him any more, and that he was killed by the Armoucbiquois ; and for to have this anfwer, he mult be prefented with fome gift; for there is a trivial proverb among the Greeks, which bcareth, That without money Phobbus' oracles are dumb. The fame Membertou rendered a true oracle of our coming to Monf. du Pont; when that he parted from Port Royal for to return into France, feeing the 15 th day of fuly paffed without having any news. For he did mainrain ftill, and did affirm thar there hould come a Chip, and that his devil had told it him; item, when the the favages be a hungred, they confult with Membertou's oracle, and he faith unto them, Go ye to fuch a place and you fhall find game. It happeneth fometimes that they find fome, and fometimes none: if it chance that none be found, the excule is, that the beaft is wandering and hath changed place; but fo it comes to pafs, that very often they find fome: and this is it which makes thens believe that this devil is a god, and they know none other, to whom notwithftanding, they yield not any fervice nor adoration in any form of religion.

A Defcription of New France.

How the
Aontmoins. invocate the devil.

When that theft Aoutmoins make their mows and mops, they fix a flaff it a pit, to which they tie a cord, and putting their head into this pit, they make invocations or conjurations, in a language unknown to the others that are about, and this with beatings and howlings, until they fweat widh very pain: yec I have not heard that they foam at the mouth as the Turks do. When this devil is come, this matter Aoutmoin makes them believe that he holderh him tied by his cord, and holdeth fant againlt him, forcing him to give him an anfiwer before he let him go. By this is known the fubtily of this enemy of nature, who beguileth thus thefe miferable creatures, and his pride withal, in willing that they which do call upon him, yield unto him more fubmifion than ever the holy patriarchs and prophets have done to God, who have only prayed with their faces towards the ground.
That done, he beginneth to fing fome-$A$ fong to the praife of the devit.
fol fa fa re re. I attentively hearkened upon this word allelujab repeated fundry times, and could never hear any other thing; which maketh me think, that thefe fongs are to the praifes of the clevil, if notwithftanding this word fignify with them that which it fignifieth in Hebrew, which is, praife ye the Lord. All the ther nations of thofe countries do the like; but no body hath particularly defcribed their fongs, faving Fobn de Leri, who faith that the Brafilians do make as good agreements in their fabbaths, And being one day at *heir folemnity, he doth report that they faide be bè bè bè bè bè bè bè bè bè, with this note, fa fa fol fa fa fol fol fol fol fol. And that done, they cryed out and howled after a fearful mannet the fpace of a quarter of an hour, and the women did kkip violently in the air until they foamed at the mouth: then began again their mufick, faying, beu bear aure beur a bear aure beura beura ouech; the note is, fa mi re fol fol fol fa mi re mi re miut re. This author faich, that in this fong, they bewailed their deceafed fathers which were fo valiant; and neverthelefs they comforted themfelves, for that after their death, they were affured to go to them behind the high mountains, where they fhould dance and be merry with them. Likewife that they had, with all vehcmency, threatened the Oeutacas their enemies, to be in very fhort time taken and eaten by them, according as the Caraibes had promifed them; and that they had alfo made mention of the flood fpoken of in the former chapter. I leave unto them that do write of Demonomanie, to philolophize upon that matter. But moreover, I muft fay that whilft our favages do fing in that manner beforefaid, there be fome others which do nothing elfe but liy bè or bet (like to a man that cleaveth wood) with a certain motion of the arms; and dance in round, not holding one another, The dan nor moving out of one place, Atriking with ces of the their feet againtt the ground, which is the favages. form of their dances, like unto thofe which the faid de Leri reporteth of them of Brafil, which are about fifteen hundred leagues from that place. After which things, our favages make a fire and leap over it, as the ancient Canaanites, Ammonites, and fometimes the Ifraelites did; but they are not fo deteftable, tor they do not facrifice their children to the devil through the fire. Befides all this, they put half a pole out of the top of the cabin where they are, at the end whereof there is fome matacbias, or fomething elfe tied, which the devil carrieth away. Thus have 1 heard the difcourfe of their manner of doing in this matter.

There may be here confidered a bad ufe to leap over the fire, and to make the children to pafs through the flame, in the bone-fire made upon St. Folwn Baptifl's day; which cuftom endureth yet to this day among us, and ought to be reformed: for the fame cometh from the ancient abominations that God hath fo much hated, whereof Tbeodoret fpeaketh in this wife: I bave feen (faith he) in fome towns piles of wood kindled once a year, and not only children to leap over them, but aljo men, and the motbers bearing their cbildren over the flame, tobich did feem unto them to be as an expiition and purifications; and this in my gudgnent was the fin of Achaz.

10 K children

Thefe falhions have been forbidden by an ancient council holden at Conftantinople: whereupon Balfanon doth note, that the twenty-third day of fune (which is St. Fobn Baptife's eve) men and women did affemble themfelves at the fea fhore and in houfes, and the eldeft daughter was dieffed like a bride, and after they had made good chear and well drunk, dances were made, with exclamations and fires all the night, prognofticating of good and bad luck. Thefe fires have been continued among us, upon a better fubject; but the abufe mult be taken away.
The devil Now as the devil hath always been wilwill be ling to play the ape, and to have a fervice ferved as like to that which is given to God, fo God. would he that his officers fhould have the mark of their trade, to the end to deceive the fimple people the better. And indeed Membertou, of whom we have fpoken, as a learned Aoutmoin, carrieth hanged at his neck the mark of his profeffion, which is a purfe trianglewife, covered with their embroidery work, that is to fay with matacbias; within which there is I know not what, as big as a fmall nut, which he faith to be his devil, called Aoutem, which they of Canada do name Cudouagni, as faith Fames Quartier. I will not mingle facred things with prophane, but according as 1 have faid, that the devil playeth the ape, this maketh me to remember of the rational or peiloral of judgment, which the high prieft did carry before him in the ancient law, on the which, Mofes had put Urim and Thummim. Now Rabbi David faith, thas it is not known what thefe Urim and Thunsmim were, and it feemeth that they were ftones. Rabb; Selomob faith, that it was the name of God Yebovab, an ineffable name, which he did put within the folds of the pelloral, whereby he made his word to thine. Fofepbus doth think that they were twelve precious ftones. St. Hierom doth interpret theic two words to fignify doCrine and trutio.

And as the prieftly office was fucceflive, not only in the houfe of Aaron, but alfo in the family of the great prieft of Mempbis, whofe office was affigned to his eldeft fon after him, as Thyamis faith, in the Stbiopian hiftory of Heliodorus: even fo among thefe people this office is fucceffive, and by tradition they do teach the fecret thereof to their eldeft fons. For Membertou's cldeft fon (who was named 7udas, in jeft, for which he was angry, underitanding it was a bad name) told us, that after his father, he fhould be Aoutmoin in that precinct, which is a fmall matter: for every Sagamos hath his Aoutmoin, if himfelf be not fo, but yet they covet the fame, for the profit that cometh thereof.

The Braflians lave their Caraibes, who travel through the villages, making the people believe that they have communication with fpirits, through whofe means they can, not only give them victory againft their enemies, but alfo, that of them depends the fertility or fterility of the ground. They bave commonly a certain kind of bells or rattles in their hands, which they call maraca, made with the fruit of a tree, as big as an Ottrici's egg, which they make hollow, as they do liere the bottles of the pilgrims that go to St . fancs. And having filled them wath fmall fones, they make a noife with them in their folemnitits, like the bladders of hogs: and going from town to town they beguile the world, telling the people that their devil is within the fame. Thefe maraca or rattles, well decked with fair feathers, they ftick in the ground the ftaff that is through it, and do place them all along and in the midtt of the houres, commanding that meat and drink be given to them. In fuch wife that thefe cogging mates, mak- The im. ing the other poor idiots to believe (as the polture of facrificers of the idol Bel did hcretofore, the Ca of whom mention is made in the hiftory of raiber. Daniel) that thofe fruits do eat and drink in the night; every houfholder giving credit thereto, doth not fail to fet near thefe maraca, meal, fiefh, fifh and drink, which fervice they contirue by the fpace of fifteen days or three weeks; and during that time, they are fo foolith as to perfwade themfelves, that in founding with thefe maraca, fome fpirit fpeaketh unto them, and attribute divinity unto them in fuch fort, that they would efteem it a great mifdeed to take away the meat that is prefented before thofe fair Bels; with which meats, thofe reverend Caraibes do merely fatten themfelves. And fo under falfe pretexts, is the world deceived.

C H A P. VII.

Of their language.

Sundry languages

THE effects of the confufion of Babel, are come in as far as to thofe people whereof we fpeak, as well as in the hither world. For I fee that the Patagons do fpeak another language than them of Brafl, and they otherwife than the Perruvians, and the Peruvians are diftinct from the Mexicans: the illes like wife have their peculiar fpeech; they fpeak not in Florida as they do in Virgimia: our Souriquois and Etecbenins underftand not the Armouchiquois, nor thefe the Iroquois; briefly, every nation is divided by the language; yea in one and the felf fame province there is difference in language, even as in Gallia, the Fleming, they of Bafe Bretagne, the Gafon and the Bafaue do not agree. For the Author of the hittory of Virginia faith, that there every wirroans or lord, hath his peculiar fpeech. Let this be for example, that the chief man or captain of fome precinct (whom our hiftorians Fames 2uartier and Laudonnicre, do call by the name of king) is called in Canada, Agobanna; among the Souriquois, Suracmos; in Virginia, Viroans; in Florida, Paracuffi; in the ines of Cuba, Cacique; the kings of Perru, Inguas, and fo forth: 1 have left the Armoucbiquois and others, which I know not. As for the Braffilians they have no kings, but the old ancient men, whom they call Peoreroupic $b e c h$, becaufe of the experience they have of things paift, are they which do govern, exhort and difpofe of all things. The very tongues are changed, as we fee, that with us we have not the language of the ancient Gayllois, nor that which was in Cirrolus Magnu's time, (at leaft it is th diliter very much). The Italians do fpeak no more Latin, nor the Grecians the ancient Greek, cfpecially in the fea coafts, nor the feres the ancient Hebrew. In like mamucr, Fumes $\mathcal{Q}$ yarticr hath left unto us a kind of dictionary of the language of Cänada, wherein our Frencbmen that haunt there, in thefe days, undertand nothing, and therefore I would not infert it here: only I have there found Caraconi which fignifieth bread, and row they fiy Caracona, which I efteem to be a word of Bafyue. For the fatisfaction of fome, I will fet here fome numbers of the ancient and new language of Canada.

|  | The old. | The new. |
| :--- | :--- | :--- |
| 1 | Segada. | I Begou. |
| 2 | Tigeni. | 2 |

The old. Segada. Tigeni.

The new.
1
2

| 3 | A/be. | 3 | Nichtoa. |
| :---: | :---: | :---: | :---: |
| 4 | Homacon. | 4 | Rau. |
| 5 | Oniscon. | 5 | Apateta. |
|  | Indaic. | 6 | Coutouachin. |
| 7 | Ayaga. | 7 | Neouactin. |
|  | Aadegue. |  | Neffouacbin. |
|  | Mfem. |  | Peforiàa Metren. |
|  | he Souriquois do fay |  | The Etechenins: |
| 1 | Negout. |  | Bechkon. |
| 2 | Tabo. | 2 | Nicb. |
| 3 | Cbicht. | 3 | Nach. |
| 4 | Neou. | 4 | Jau. |
| 5 | Nan. | 5 | Prenchk. |
| 6 | Kamachin. | 6 | Cbacbit. |
| 7 | Eroeguenik | 7 | Coutachit. |
| 8 | Meguemorchin. | 8 | Erouiguen. |
| $9$ | Echbonadek. | 9 | Pecbscoquem. |
|  | Metren. |  | Peiock. |

For the conformity of languages, there Conformiare fometimes found words in thefe parts, ty of lanwhich do fignify fomething there, as Yobn guages. de Leri faich, that leri fignifieth an ojfer in Brafil; but very few words are found which come in one and the felf fame fignification. In Maffeu's oriental hiftory, I have read fagamos in the fame fignification as our Souriquois do take it, to wit, a king, a duke, a captain: and they that have been in Guiney fay, that this word babougic, fignifieth there a little child, or a fawn of a beaft, in that fenfe as the faid Souriquois take that word; as this French word mouffache, which comech of mifax, and that which we fay in French, boire a tire-larigot, which I conftrue in Englifh, to drink till one's eyes be out, cometh of larygx, lariggos, छic. and the Greek words paradeifos, boophoros, come from the Hebrew -
But concerning the caufe of the change The caufe of the language in Canada, whereof we of the lave fyoken, I think that it hath happen- change of ed by a deftruction of people: for it is languages. fome eight years, fince the Iroqucis did affemble themfelves to the number of eight thoufand men, and difcomfited all their enemies, whom they furprized in their inclofires. To this I add, the traffic which they make from time to time for their Rkins, fince the Frenibmen came to ferch them; for in the time of fames 2 martier, beivers were not cared for; the hats that be made of it are in ufe but fince chat time; not that the invention thereof is new ; for in the ancient orders of the hat-makers of Paris, it is faid, that they fhall make hats of tine beavers (which is the caftor)but whether it be for the dearnets or otherwife, the ufe theroof hath been long fince left off.

A Defcription of New France.

As for the pronunciation, our Souriquois

()f the pronuntheir wordse do commonly end in $a$ as fouriguois, fouripuoa; cattain, capitania; normand, normandia; bafque, bufquoa; une martre (a marten) marira; a banquet, tabagmia, Esc. But there are certain letters which they caunot well pronounce, that is to fay, an $v$ confonant, and $f$ inftead wher of they put $b$ and $p$, as for fevre (which is a fmith) they will fay pebre; and for fauvago, (which fignifieth favage) they fay cbabaia, and fo call they themfelves, not knowing in what fenfe we take that word: and yet they pronounce the reft of the French tongue better than our Gafo cons, who, befides the turning of $v$ into $b$ and of the $b$ into $v$, were yet difcerned in the lait troubles, and badly handled in Provence, by the pronouncing of the word cabre, inftead whereof they did fay crabe as aforetime the Epbraimitcs having loft the battle againft the Gileadites, thinking to fape away, were well known in parffing the river fordan, in pronouncing the word fibboletb, which fignifieth an ear of corn, inftead whereof they dill fay fibboleth, which fignifieth the ford of a river, alking if they might well pals: the Greeks had alfo a fundry pronunciation of the felffame word, becaute they had four diftinct tongues, varying from the common fpeech: and in Plautus we read that the Peaneftins, nor far diftant from Rome, did pronounce konia inftend of ciconia. Yea even at this day, the good wives of Paris do yet fay, mon courin for mon coufin, which is my coulin ; and mon mazi for mon nari, which fignifierth hufband.ine nava . Now to return to our favages: although :2. have a that by reafon of traffic many of our Firencb. tongular men do underftand them, notwithftanding tongue. men do undertand them, notwithtanding they have a particular tonguc, which is only known to them; which maketh me to doubt of that which I have faid, that the language which was in Canada in the time of Cames 乌uartier is no more in ufe: for to accommodate themfelves with us, they fipeak unto us in the language which is to us more familiar, wherein is much bafque mingled with it; not that they care greatly to fipeak our langunges; for there be fome of them which do tometimes fay, that they come not to feek after us; but by long frequentation, they cannot but retain fome word or other.

I will farcher fay, that concerning the Their numbers (feeing we have fpoken of it) they manner of do not reckon diftingtly as we do, the numberdlays, the weeks, the months, the years, ${ }^{\text {ing }}$ but do declare the years by number of funs; as for one hundred years, they will fay cacbmetren acbek, that is to fay one hundred funs; bitumetrenaguì acbiek one thoufand funs, that is to fay one thoufand years; metren knicbkaminau, ten months, tabo metren guenak twenty days: and for to thew an innumerable thing, as the people of Paris, they will take their hairs or hands full of fand: and after that manner doth the holy feripture likewife ule fometimes to number, comparing (Hiperbolicalie) armies to the fand that is on the fea chore. They alfo fignify the feafons by their effects, as for to make a man to underftand that the Sagamos Poutrincourt will come at the fpring time, they will fay, nibir betour, (Sagmo for Sagamos, a word Mortened) Pou!rincourt bctour kedretch; that is to fay, the leaf being come, then will the Sagamos Poutrincourt come certainly. Therefore as they have no diftinction neither of days nor of years, fo be not they perfecuted by the ungodilinefs of their creditors, as in thefe parts; neither do their Aoutmoins fhorten, nor lengthen the years, for to gratify the brokers and bankers, as did in antient time the idolatrous priefts of Rome, to whom was attributed the government and difpofing of times, of feafons and of years, as Solon writeth.

C H A P. VIII.

Of the ufe of letters.

 T is well known, that thefe weftern nations have no ufe of letters, and it is that, which all them that have written of them do fay they have moft admired, to fee that by a piece of paper I give knowledge of my will, from one end ofthe world to the other; and they thought that there fhould be enchantment in this paper. But that is not fo much to be wondered at, if we confidcr, that in the time of the Roman emperors, many nations of thefe parts knew not the fecrets of letters; amongt amongt whom, Tacitus putteth the Germans, (who at this day do fwarm with men of learning) and he adds a notable fentence, that good manners are in more credit there, than good laws elfewhere.

As for our Gaullois, it was not fo wihh them. For even from the old time of the golden age, they had the ufe of letters, yea (by the leave of thofe godly doctors who do call them barbarous) before the Greeks and Latins: for Xenopbon (who fpeaketh largely of them, and of their beginning, in his Equivoques) doth witnefs unto us, that the letters which Cadmus brought to the Grecks, were not fo much like to the Pbanician letters, as the Galatees were, that is the Gaullois. Wherein Cafar did equivocate in faying that the Druids did ufe of Greek letters in private matters; for contrarivife, the Greeks have ufed of the Gaullois letters. And Berofe faith, that the third king of the Gaullois after the flood, named Sorron, did inftitute univerfities in thefe parts: and Diodorus doth add, that there were among the Gaullois, philofophers and divines, called Sorronides, (much more ancient than the Druids) which were greatly reverenced, and unto whom all the people did obey. The fame authors do fay, that Bardus, firt king of the Gaullois, did invent both rhymes and mufick, brought in poets and rhetoricians, who were called Bards, whereof Cafar and Strabo make mention. But the fame Diodorus writeth, that poets were among them in fuch reverence, that when two armies were ready ro ftrike, having their fwords drawn, and the javelins in hand to give the onfet, thole poets coning, every one did furceate and put up their weapons; to much doth wrath give place to wifdom, yea among the wildett barbacians, and fo much doth Mars reverence the mufes, faith the author. So I hope that our moft Chriftian, moft anguft, and moft victorious king Henry the fourth, after the thundering of befieging of towns and battles is ceafed, reverencing the mufes and honouring them, as he hath already done; not only he will reduce his eldeft daughter to her ancient glory, and give unto her, being a royal daughter, the propriety of that Baflic, faftened to the temple of Apollo, who, by an hidden virtue, did hinder that the fpiders fhould weave their web along his walls; but will alfo eftablifh his New France, and bring to the befom of the church, fo many poor fouls which that country beareth, all ftarved for the want of the word of God, who are as a prey unto hell: and that for todo this, he will give means to conduct thither, Chriftian Sorronides and Bards, bearing the flower-de-luce in their hearts, who will inItruct and bring to civility thofe barbarous people, and will bring them to his obedience.

C H A P. IX.

Of their cloatbing and wearing of their bairs.

GYOD in the beginning, did create 3 man naked and innocent, made all the parts of his body to be of honeft fight: but fin hath made the members of generation to become hameful unto us, and not unto bealts which have no fin. It is the caufe why our firt parents having known their nakednefs, deftitute of cloaths did fow fig leives together for to hide their flame therewith: butGod made unto them coats of ikins and cloathed them with it, and this before they went out of the garden of Eden. Cloathing then is not only to defend us from cold, but alfo for decency, and to cover our thame: and neverthelefs many nations have anciently lived, and at this day do live naked, without apprehenfron of this thame, decency and honefty. And I marvel not of the Braflian favages that are fuch, as well men as women, nor of the ancient Pirts (a nation of Great Britain) who (Herodian faith) had not any ufe of cloaths, in the time of Severus the emperor; nor of a great number of other nations, shat have been and yet are naked: for one may lay of them, that they be people fallen into a reprobate fenfe, and forfaken of God: but of Chriftians which are in Atbiopia, under the great Negus, whom we call Prefier-fobn; which, by Naked.' the report of the Portugueze that have writ- nefs of the ten liftories of them, have not their parts, Etbio: which we call privy-members, any ways ${ }^{\text {tians. }}$ covered. But the favages of New France and of Florida, have better learned and kept in mind the leffon of honefty, than thofe of Etbiopia. For they cover them with a fkin tied to a latch or girdle of leather, which palfing between their buttocks joineth the other end of the faid latch behind ; and for the reft of their garments, they have a cloak on their backs made with many fkins, whether they be of otters or of beavers, and one only fkin, whether 10 L it be of ellan, or ftag's kin, bear, or luferne, which cloak is tied upward with a leather ribband, and they thruit consmonly one arm out; but being in their cabins they put it off, unlefs it be cold: and I cannot better compare it, than to pictures that are made of Hercules, who killed a lion and put the flin thereof on his back; notwithltanding they have more civility, in that they cover their privy-members. As for the women, they differ only in one thing, that is, they have a girdle over the fkin they have on ; and do refemble (without comparifon) the pictures that be made of St. Jobu Baptiff. But in winter, they make good bcaver fleeves, tied behind, which keep them very warm. And after this manner were the ancient Germans cloathed, by the report of Coffar and Tacilus, having the moit part of the body naked.

Vol. II.

As for the Armoucbiquois and Floridians, they have no furrs, but only hamois: yea - the faid Armoucbiquois have very often but a piece of mat upon their back for fallion fake, having neverthelefs their privy members covered. God having fo wifely proviled for man's infirmity, that in cold countries he hath given furrs, and not in the hot, becaufe that otherwife men would make no efteem of them; and fo for that which concerneth the body. Let us come to the legs and feet, then we will end with the head.

Our favages in the winter, going to fea, or a hunting, do ufe great and high ftockings, like to our boot-hofen; which they tie to their girdles, and at the fides out. ward, there is a great number of points without taggs. I do not fee that they of Brafll or Florida do ufe them, but feeing they have leather, they may as well make of them if they have need as the others. Befides thefe long ftockings, our favages do ufe Mhoes, which they call mekezin, which they fafhion very properly, but they cannot dure long, efpecially when they go into watry places, becaufe they be not curried nor hardened, but only made after the manner of buff, which is the hide of an ellan. Howfoever it be, yet are they in better order than were the ancient Gottes, which were not thoroughly hofed, but with burkins or half boots, which came fomewhat higher than the ancle of the foot, where they made a knot, which they bound with horfe hairs, having the calf of the leg, the knees and thighs naked: and for the reft of their garments, they had leather coats plated, as grealy as lard, and the fleeves down to the beginning of the arm; and on thofe jerkins, inftead of gold lace, they made red borders, as our favages do. Behold the ftate of thofe that ranlacked the Roman empire, whom Sidonius Apollinuris, bifhop of Auvergne, doth deferibe after this manner, going to the council of Avilus the emperor, for to trent of peace:

> -Squalent wefers, ai fordida mairo
> Lintea pinguef cunt hrgo, nea tangere poffins Aluata furam pelles; ar poplite nuido

As for the head attire, none oi the fiva-The fava. ges have any, unlefs it be that fome of the ges head hither lands truck their fkins with 1 rendmenattire. for hats and caps; but rather both men and women wear their hairs hittering over their thoulders, neither bound nor ticd, except that the men do trufs them upon the crown of the head, fome four tingers length, with a leather lace, which they let hang down behind. But for the Armouchiquois and Fioridians, as well men as women, they have their hairs much longer, and they hang them down lower than the girdle when they are untruffed; for to :void then the hindrance that they might bring to them, they trufs them up as our hotfe-keepers do a horfe's tail, and the men do ftick in them fome fenther that like them, and the women a needle or bodkin with three points, after the fathion of the French ladies; who alfo wear their needles or bod- The fakins, that ferve them partly for an orna- vage wo. ment of the head. All the ancients had men wear this cuftom to go bare-headed, and the ${ }^{\text {bodkins. }}$ ufe of hats is but lately come in. The fair Abfalom was hanged by his hairs at an oak, atter he had loft the battle againft his father's army; and they didnever cover their heads in thoie days, but when they did mourn for fome misfortune, as may be noted by the example of David, who having underftood his fon's confpiracy, fled from 7 crufalem, and went up the mountain of Olives weeping and having his head covered, and all the people that was with him. The Perfians did the like, as may be gathered by the hiltory of Haman, who being commanded to honour him whon he would have to be hanged, to wit, 'Mordecai, went home to his houfe weeping, and his head covered, which was a thing extraordinary. The Romans at their beginning did the like, as I gather by the words which did command the hangman to do his office, recited by Cicero and Titus Livius, in thefe terms; vade lifor. colligz manus, caput obiubito, arbori infelici fufpendito. And if we will come to our wefterly and northerly people, we thall find that the moft part did wear long hairs, like unto them that we call favages. That cannot be denied of the Trans-Alifin Gaullois, who for that occafion, gave the name to Gallia Comata; whereof Martial fpeaking faith;

Mol-

A Defcription of New France.

- Mollejgite flagellan: colla coma.

Our Frenis kings have been fiatamed unaivy, becaufe they did wear their hairs fo long that they did beat down to the back and the floulders; fo thit Grezory of Tours, fpeaking of king Clowis's hairs, he calleth them Capillorum Flasellu. The Gotbs did the like, and lefe to hing over their fhoulders great flocks of hairs curled, which the authors of that time do ca!! granos, which filhion of hairs was forbilden to priefts, alfo the fecular apparel, in a council of the Goibs: and fornandes in the hiftory of the Goths reciteth, that king Atalaric would that the pricfts fhould were the thiare, or hat, making two forts of people, fome whom he called Pileatos, the others Capillatos, which thefe took for fo great a favour to be called hairy, that they made inention of this benefit in their fongs; and notwiththanding they braided not their hairs. But

I find by the teftimony of Tacitus, that the Suevians, a nation of Germany, did wreath, knit, and tie their hairs on the crown of their heads, even as we have faid of the Souriquois and Arnouchiquois. In one thing the Armoncbiguois do differ from the Souriquois and other favages of Newfoundland, which is, that they pull out their bairs before, which the others do not. Contrary to whom, Pliny reciterh, that at the defcent of the Ripbeen Mountains, anciently was the region of the Arimpbeens, whom we now call Mufcorites, who dwels in forefts; but they were all fhaven, as well men as women, and took it for a Phameful thing to wear any hairs. So we fee that one felf-fame fafhion of living is received in one place and rejected in another: which is familiarly evident unto us in many other things in our regions of thefe parts, where we fee manners and fafhions of living, all contrary, yea fometimes under one and the fame prince.

C H A P. X.

Of the form, colour, fature, and activity of the favares; and incidently of the flies in thofe wifturn parts; and weby the Americans be not black, Eec.

AMongtt all the forms of living and bodily creatures, that of man is the faireft and the moft perfect: which was very decent, both to the creature and to the creator, feeing that man is placed in this world, to command all that is here beneath. But although that nature endeavoureth herfelf always to do good, not. withitanding the is fometimes fhort and forced in her actions, and thereof it cometh that we have monfters and ugly things, contrary to the ordinary rule of others. Yea even fometimes after that nature hath done her office, we help by our arts, to render that which fhe hath made ridiculous and mihhapen; as for example, the Brafilians are born as fair as the common fort of men, but coming out of the womb they are made delormed in fqueezing of their nofte, which is the chiefeft part wherein confitterth the beauty of man. True it is that as in certain countries they praife the long noles, in others the kawk nofes, fo among the Brafilians it is a fair thing to be flat nofed, as alfo among the Moors of Africa, which we fee to be all of the fame fort. And with thefe large noftrils, the Brafilians are accuftomed to make themfelves yet more deformed by art, bignefs of a tefter ; fo that thofe ftones being taken away, it is a hideous thing to fee thofe people. But in Florida, and every where, on this fide the Tropick of Cancer, our favages be generally goodly men, as they be in Europe; if there be any fhort-nofed one it is a rare thing. They be of a good ftature, and I have feen no dwarfs there, nor any that drew near to it. Notwithftanding (as I have faid elfewhere) in the Mountains of the Iroquois, which are beyond the great fall of the great river of Camada, there is a certain nation of favages, little men, valiant and feared every where, which are more often affailers than defenders. Bur although that where we dwelt the men be of a good height, neverthelefs I have feen none fo tall as Monf. de Poutrincourt, whofe tallnefs becometh him very well. I will not (peak here of the Patarons, a people which is beyond the river of Plate, whom Pighafelta, in his voyage about the world, faith to be of fuch an height that the talleftamong us could fearce reach to their girdle. The fame is ont of the limits of our New France. But I will willingly come to the other circumftances of body of our fivages, fecing the fubject calleth us thereunto.
They are all of an olive colour, or $52-$ The co. ther tawny colour, like to the Spaniards, not lour of the that they be fo born, but being the moft favages. part of the time naked, they greafe their bodies bodies, and do anoint them fomctimes with oil, for to defend them from the flies, which are very troublefome; not only, where we were, but alfo thorough all that new world, and even in Brafil; fo that it is no wonder if Becleebub prince The do. of flics hath there a great empire. Thefe fripion Hies are of a colour drawing towards red, of the fies as of corrupted blood, which maketh me of $\sin w$ o bex. to believe that their generation cometh $\mathcal{F}_{\text {rawes. }}$ but from the rottennels of woods. And indeed we have tried that the fecond year, being in a place fomewhat more open, we have had tewer of them than at the firts. They cannot endure great heat, nor wind; but otherwife (as in clofe dark weather) they are very noifome, by reafon of their Itings which they have, long for fo fmall a body; and they be fotender that if one touch them never fo little they are fqueezed. They begin to come about the fifteenth of "Yune, and do retire themfelves in the beginning of September. Being in the Port de Camp Jean in the month of Auguf, I have not feen or felt any one; whereof I did wonder, feeing that the nature of the foil and of the woods is all one. In September, after that this vermine is gone away, there grow other flies like unto ours, but they are not troublefome, The fava. and become very big. Now our favages ge: reme- to five themfelves from the ftinging of dies a-

gaint the tilics. thede creatures, rub themelves with certain greafes and oils, as I have faid, which makes them foul and of a tawnifh colour: befides, that always they lie on the ground, or be expofed to the heat and the wind.But there is caule of wondring, wherefore the Brafilians, and other inhabitants of America between the two Tropicks, are not born black as they of Africa, feeing that it feemeth it is the felf-fame cafe, being under one and the felf-fame parallel, and like elevation of the fun. If the poets fables were fufficient reafons for to take away this fcruple, one might fay that Pbaeton having done the foolifh deed in conducting the chariot of the fun, only Africa was burned, and the horfes fet again in their right courfe, before they came to the new world. But I had m-From whence cometh

the burn-

$$
\text { ing of } A
$$

jrica. ther fay, that the heat of Lybia, being the caufe of this blacknefs of men, is ingendred from the great lands over which the fun paffeth before it come thither, from whence the heat is fill carried more abundantly by the fwift motion of this great heavenly torch. Whereunto the great fands of that province do alfo help, which are very capable of thofe heats, fpecially not being watered with ftore of rivers as America is, which aboundeth in

> From
whence
procecd.
petwal refrefling unto it, and makes the eht the r'gion much more temperate; the ground rooling of being allo there more tat, and reraining Amorisa. better the dews of heaven, which are there abundantly, and rains alfo, for the reafons abovefaid. For the fun finding in the meeting of thefe lands thofe great moillneffes, he doth not fail to draw agood quantity of them ; and that fo much the more plentifully, that his force is there great and marvellous ; which makes there continual rains, efpecially to them that have him for their zenith, I add one great reafon, that the fun leaving the lands of Africa, giveth his beams upon a moilt element by fo long a courfe, that he hath good means to fuck up vapours, and to draw together with him great quantity thereof into thore parts; which maketh that the caufe is much differing of the colour of thofe two people, and of the temperature of their lands.
Let us come to other circumftances, Black: and fecing that we are about colours, I hairs. will fay, that all they which I have feen have black hairs, fome excepted which have Abrabam colour hairs ; but of flaxen colour I have feen none, and lefs of red; and one muft not think that they which are more foutherly be otherwife ; for the Floridians and Brafilians are yet blacker than the favages of Ncwfoundland. The beard of the chin (which our favages call migidoni) is withthem as black as their hairs. They all take away the producing caufe thereof, except the Sagamos, who for the moft part have but a little. Membertou hath more than all the others, and notwithftanding it is not thick, as it is commonly with Frenchmen: if thefe people wear no beards on their chin (at the leaft the moft part) there is no caufe of marvelling. For the ancient Romans themfelves, efteeming that that was a hinderance unto them, did wear none, until the time of Adrian the emperor, who firt began to wear a beard; which they took for fuch an honour, that a man accufed of any crime, had not that privilege to fhave his hairs, as may be gathered by the teftimony of Aulus Gellius, fpeaking of Seipio, the fon of Paul. As for the inferior parts, our favages do not hinder the growing or increafing of hairs there; it is faid that the women have fome there alfo. And according as they be curious, fome of our men have made them believe, that the French women have beards on their chins, and have left them in that good opinion, fo that they were very defirous to fee fome of them, and their manner of cloathing. By thefe particularitics one may underftand, that all thefe people have generally leffer hairs than we ; for along the body they have none

A Defcription of New France.

none at all; fo far is it then that they be hairy as fome think. This belongeth to the inhabitants of the ines Gorgades, from whence Hanno the Cartbaginian captain brought two womens k ins, which he did fet up in the temple of ${ }^{\prime}$ uno for great fingularity; but here is to be noted what we have faid, that our favage people have almoft all their hairs black; for the Frencbmen in one and the felf-flame degree are not commonly fo. The ancient authors Polybius, Cafar, Strabo, Diodore the Cicilian, and particularly Anmian Marcellin, do fay, that the ancient Gaullois had almolt all their hairs as yellow as gold, were of high ftature, and fearful for their ghaftly looks; befides quarrelfome and ready to ftrike; a fearful voice, never fpeaking but in threatning. At this time thofe qualities are well changed ; for there are not now fo many yellow hairs; nor fo many men of high ftature, but that other nations have as tall; as for the fearful looks, the delicacics of this time have moderated that; and as for the threatning voice, I have fcarce feen in all the Gauls, but the Gafcons, and them of Languedoc, which have their manner of fpeech fomewhat rude, which they retain of the Gotifh and of the Spaniard, by their neighbourhood; but as for the hair it is very far from being fo commonly black. The fame author Ammian faith alfo, that the women of the Gouls (whom he noted to be good fhrews, and to be too hard for their hufbands, when they are in choler) have blue eyes, and confequently the men; and notwithitanding in that refpect we are much mingled; which maketh that one knoweth not what rarenefs to chufe for the beauty of eyes. For many do love the blue eyes; and others love them green; which were alfo in ancient time moft praifed. For among the Sonnets of Monf. de Coutci, (who was in old time fo great a clerk in love matters, that fongs were made of it) green eyes are praifed.

The Gerinans have kept better than we the qualities which Tacitus giveth them; likewife that which Ammian reciteth of the Gaullois: In fo great a number of men (faith Tacitus) there is but one fafhion of garments; they have blue eyes and fearful, their hairs fhining as gold, and are very corpulent. Pliny giveth the fame bodily qualities to the people of the Taprobane, faying that they have red hairs, their eyes blue, ard the voice horrible and fearful. Whercin I know not if I ought to beliwe him, confidering the climate, which is in the 8 th, gth, and roth, degrees only, and that in the kingdom of Calecute, farther off than the Eqquinostial line, the men are black. But as

Vol. II.
for our favages, concerning their eyes, thry have them neither blue nor green, but black for the moft part, like to their hairs ; and neverthelefs their cyes are not fniall, as they of the ancient Scytbians, but of a decent greatnefs. And I may fay affuredly and truly, that I have feen there as fair boys and girls, as any can be in France. For as for the mouth, they have no big moorifh lips, as in Africa, and alfo in Spain; they are well limbed, well boned, and well bodied, competently ftrong; and neverthelefs we had many in our company who might have wreftled well enough with the ftrongett of them ; but being hardned, there would be made of them very good mens for the war, which is that wherein they moft delight. Moreover, among them there are none of thofe prodigious men whereof Pliny maketh mention; which have no nofes on their faces, or no lips, or no tongue ; item, whieh are without mouth, and without nofe ; having but two fmall holes, whereof one of them ferveth for to breathe, the other ferveth inftead of a mouth; item, which have dogs heads, and a dog for a king; itcm, which have their heads on the breaft, or one only eye in the midft of the forehcad, or a flat broad foot to cover their heals when it raineth, and fuch like monfters. There is none alfo of them which our favage Agobanna told Capt. Fames Quartier, that he had feen in Saguenay, whereof we have fpoken heretofore. If there be any blind withone eye, or lame (as it happeneth fometimes) it is a cafual thing, and cometh of hunting.

Being well compofed, they cannot chufe but be nimble and fivift in running; we have fuoken heretofore of the nimble. nefs of the Brafilians, Margaias and Ouetacas ; but all nations have not thofe bodily difpofitions. They which live in mountains have more dexterity than they of the vallies, becaufe they breathe a purer and clearer air, and that their food is better. In the vallics the air is grofer, and the lands fatter, and confequently unwholefomer. The nations that be between the Tropicks, have alfo more agility than the others, participating more with the fiery nature than they that are farther off: This is the caufe why Pliny fpeaking of the Gorgones and ifles Gorgonides (which Gorgones. are thofe of Cape $V$ erd faith, that the men are there fo light of foot, that fcarce one may follow them by the eye-fight, in fuch manner, that Hanno the Cartbaginian could not cateh any one of them. He maketh the like relation of the Troglodytes, a nation of Guiney, whom he faith are called Therotboens, becaufe they are as fwift in hunting upon the land, as the 10 M Iibthy-

A Defcrittion of New France.

hobouaphazes are prompt in fwimming in the fib, who almoft are as feldom weary therein is a fifh. And Moficts in his hillories of the Indies reportoth, that the Naires (io the molles and warriors are called) of the kingdom of Milluharis, are fo bimble and to tivitt, as it is almoft inceredible, and do handle fo well their bodiks at will, that they feem to have no bones, in fuch fort, that it 2.5 hard to come to fkirmifh aranit fuch men, forafmuch as with this agility, they advance and recoil as they lift. But for to make themlelves fiech, they help nature, and their finews are ftretched out even from feven years of age, which afterward are anointcel and rubbed with oy! of Sefamum*. That which I fay, is known even in beats ; for a Spanifi jemat or a barbe is more lively and light in rumning, than a roolin or Govan curtall; an Itahan horfe more than a Frond horfe. Now although that which 1 have faid be true, yet for all that there be nations out of the Tropicks, who by esacife and art come to fuch agility. Fior the holy fripture maketh mention of one Hazal an Ifraelite, of whom it witneffith, that he was as light of foot is a roc-buck of the fields; and for to come to the people of the north, the IIeruli are renowned for being fwift in running, by this verfe of Sidonius.

Curfin Ilervhus, jaculis Ihunnus, Francufque natatu.

And by this fwiftnefs the Germans fometimes troubled very much Gulius Cafar. So our Armouchiquois are as liwift as greyhounds, as we have faid heretofore, and the other favages are little inferior unto them, and yet they do not force nature, neither do they ufe any art to run well. But as the ancient Gaullois, being addieted to hunting (for it is their life) and to war, their bodies are nimble, and fo little chargcd with fat; that it doth not hinder them from running at their will.

Now the favages dexterity is not Their
it feems, that fome more than others. As for the Brofilians they are to natural i.l that trade, that they would fiwim cight. days in the feal, if hunger did not pretis them, and they fear more that fome lifh fhould devour them, than to perifh through wearinefs. The like is in $7 \%$. rida, where the men will follow alin in the fea, and will take it unleis it be tou big. 'Yofeph Acofta faith fo much of them of lieru; and as for that which concorneth breathing, they have a certain art to fup up the water, and to caft it out again, by which means they will reman ealily in it a long time. The women likewife have a marvellous difpofition to that exercife; for the hiftory of tiorida, maketh mention that they can pafs great rivers in fwinming, holding their chideren with one arm; and they clmb very nimbly up the highent trees of the country. I will alfirm nothing of the Armoucbiqueis, nor of our favages, becaute I took no heed to it; but it is very certain that all can fwim very cunningly. For the other parts of their bodies they have them very perfect, as likewile the natural fenfes. For Membertou (who is above a hundred years old) did fie fooner a flallop or a canoe of the favages, to come a-far off unto Port Royat, than any of us; and it is faid of the Braflians and other favages of Peru hidden in the mountains, that they have the finclling fo good, that in finclling of the hand, they know if a man be a spaniard or a Frenchnann; and if he be a spauiard, they kill him without remiffion, fo much do they hate him for the harms that they have received of them; which the abovefaid Acofa doth confefs when he fpeaketh of leaving the Indians to live according to their ancient policy, reproving the spaniards in that. And therefore (faith he) this is a thing prejudicial unto us, becaule that they take occafion to abhor us (note that he jpeaketh of them who do obey them) as men who in all things, whether it be in good whether it be in cvil, have always been, and fill are, contrary unto them.

C II A P.

C H A P. XI.Of the paintings, marks, incilions, and ormaments of their beliss.

IT is no marvel if the laties of our time do paint thenifdres ; for of a long time, and in mamy places that trade hath had beginning. But it is reproved in the holy books, and nade a reproach by the voics of the prophets, as when Yeremiak thratancth the city of Yerndalem; When thow Ha, he he delfreyed, faith he, welat suit thoun do? though thou cloatheef therfe'f swith firrlct; though thou deckeft thyjelf with ornaments of sold; thourg thou painteft thy fuece seith colours, yet Dualt then trim theydf in eain: for thy lovers woill abler thec, ould feed thy lifi. The proplet Eize. kict makecth the like reproach to the citics of Yereffelent ind Samaria, which he comparcth to two lewd harlots, who having lent to feek out men coming from fir, and being come, they lave wathed themfelves, and painted their faces, and have put on their fair ornaments. The queen Fezebe! doing the fame, was for all that calt down out of a window, and bore the puniflument of her wicked life. The Romanss did anciently paint their bodies with vcruillion, as Pliny faith, when they cutered in triumph into Rome, and he addeth, that the princes and great lords of Etbiopia made great accouut of that colour, wherewith they wholly painted themfelves red; alfo both the one and the other did ferve themfilves therewith, to make their god fairer. And that the firtt expence which was allowed of by the cenfors and matters of accounts in Rome, was of the monies beftowed for to colour with vermilion the face of ' 'Jupiter. 'The fame author reciteth, in anotlier place, that the Avderes, Mathitts, Mofageles, and Hipporcens, people of Libja, did phaifter all their boclies over wish red chalk. Briefly, this fafhion did paifs as far as to the north; and thereof is come the name that was given to the Pitts, an aucient people of Scytbia, neighbours to the Goths, who in the ycar 87 , after tiac nativity of our 1 ord Yefius Cbriff, unler the enipire of Donnitian, made conrfes and fyoils through the itles which lie rorthward, wherehaving found men who made thenn refittance, they returnad back without doing any thing, and lived yet luak ed in thicir cold country, until the y car of our lord 370. At which time under the empire of F̛Talentinian, bring joined with the Scus ms ant Sces, they tornucnted very nuch them of Great Britain, as Aimaina $\therefore$ Wurcellin reciteth; and being refolval to "min there, as they did, they demmudel (4) the Britus, which now are Engllomen, wives in marraze ; whereupon bedug de nied, they rettired themfilves to the dio: of whom they weed furnifled, upon condition that the malculine race of the king's coming to fail among them, that then the women flould liuceced in the realm ; now these people were called Piw, becautie of the paintings which they ufed upon their maked loolics, which, linth Hercti: an, they would not covct with any cloathing for far to hide and darken the lair painting they had fet upon it, where were fer out trailts of all forte, and printed with iron inftruments, inl fuch fort that it was unponible to t.lese them off: which they did as Sclon faith, even from their inflancy, in manner, that as the clath dad grow, to did grow thofe fixed figures, even as the marks that are graved upon the young pompions. The poet Clandian doth alio give us many witheffes of this in his $P_{\text {ane- }}$ gyricks, as when he fyeaketh of the emperor Ilonorius's grand-father.

Ille leves mauros, nec falfo nominc pisios  Edomuit-..-

And in the Gotbic war,

------'crroque notatas,
Perlegit exanimes Pitco mioricute figyres.
This hath been noted by Monf. de Belleforeft, and afterward by the learned Suraroon upon the obfervation that Sidoinc de Polignac maketh thereof. And albeit that ourCettitic Poitecens, called by the Latins Ilizonses, he not defended from the race of thofe, for they were ancient Gaullcis cven in $7 u$, lius Cefar's time, neverthelefs 1 may well believe that this name lath been given them for the fame ocsifion as that of the Picts. And as cuftoms once brought in among a people, are not lof but by the length of many ages, as we fec yet the follies of Sbrove Tueflay to continue, fo the ufes of painting, whereof we have fpokeı remaincth in fome northerly nations. For I have heard fometimes Monf. Le Comte d' Egmond tell, that he hath feen in lis young ycars, them of Brunguic come into his linther's houfe with thecir faces greafel with painting, and thcir vifige all blackell, from whence peradventure this word of Bronzer may be derival, which fignifieth in Picardy to bhack. And gencrally I belicw: that all thofe northerly people didel we painting, when they would make themlives brave; for the Gelons and A/gathyyres, tations of Sivthia, like the Piefs, were of this fraternity, and with iron inftrumants did colour hair bodiss; the Esgli/h-men likewile, then called Rrifons, by the faying of rertullian; the Gooks, befides the iron intrumente, did uie vermitlion to mahe the fr fices and bodies red. Briefly, it wass a fiport in the old times to fee to many anticks, men and women, for the ee are found yet ohe pictures, which he that hath made the hitlory of the Englifhmen's voyage into lirginia, hath cat in brats, where the lizits of both fex are painted ont, with their tair incifions, and iwords h.uging upon the naked fefh, as Meradian de icribeth them.
'thas humour of pasnting having been fogeneral in thefe parts, thacre is no caufe of mocking, it the prople of the $W_{e f t}$ Imities have done, and yet do the like, which is miverfal and without exception among thole nations. For if any one of them maketh love, he fhatl be painted with blue or red colour, and his miftrefs allo ; if they have venifon in abundance, or be glad for any thing, they will to the like gencrally. But when that they are fat, or plot fome treafon, then they overcalt all their face with black, and are hideouly deformed. Touching the body, our fivages apply no painting to it, which the Brafilesns and Floridians do, the mott part whereof are painted over the body, the arms and thighs with fair branches, hofe painting can never be taken away, becaute they are pricked within the flefh. Notwithiftanding many Brafileans do paint only their bodies, without incifion, when they lift; and this with the juice of a cer$\operatorname{tain}$ fruit, which they call Genipat, which doth black fo much, that though they wafh themfelves, they cannot be clan in ten or twelve days after. They of Virginia, which are more of this lide, have marks upon their backs, like to thofe that our merchamts do put upon their packs, by the which, even ds the flaves, one may know under what lord they live, which is a thir forn of government for this people; freing that the anctent Roman emperors have ufed the like towards their foldiers, which were marked with the imperial mark, as St. Alugufine, St. Ambrofe, and others do witnels unto us. Which thing Conflamine the great did likewife, but his mark was the lign of the crofs, which he made to be printed upon the floulders of his foltiers, as himbitf faith in an cpiftle which be wrote to the king of Perfia, reported by Tbeodores in the ceclefialtical liftory : and the firit Chiltians, as marching under the banner of 'ycfus Cbriff, did take the fame mark, which they printed in their hand, or on the arm, to the end to know one another, elpecially in time of perfecution; as Procopius laith, ex. pounding this plare of Ifaiab: One will jay, I am ibe Lord's, and sbe orber will call bimfilf with sbe name of Jacob, and another suill wurite quith his band, I am the Lord's, and will firname bimfelf with the name of IJrael. The great apootle St. Paul, did bear the marks of the L.ord'Ye fus Cbrift in his flefh, but it was yet after another manner, that is to fay, by the bruifes, which he had on his body, of the Itripes that he lind reccived for his name. And the Hebrews had for matk the circumcifion of the fore-fkin, by the which they are foqueftrel from other nations, and known for God's people. But as for other bodily incifions, fuch as anciently the Pigis did make, and the favages do yet make at this day, they have been anciently very exprefsly forbidden in the law of God given to Mofes. For it is not lawful for us to disfigure the image and the form that God hath given untous; yea the pictures and paintings have been blamed aud reproved by the prophets, as we have noted elfewhere. And Tertullian faith, that the angels which have difcovered and taught unto men their paintings and counterfeited things, have been condemned of God; alledging for proof of his faying, the book of Enoch's prophefy. By thefe things above recited, we know that this hither world hath anciently been as much deformed and favage as they of the $W e \int f-I n$ dies, but that which feemeth unto me, moft worthy of wondering, is the nakednefs of thofe people in a cold country, wherein they delight; even to harden their children in the fnow, in the river, and among the ice, as we touched heretofore in another chapter, fpeaking of the Cimbri and Frencbmen, which hath alfo been their chiefeft ftrength in the conqueft that they have made.

C H A P. XII.

(1) Wcir udtaucici ormanents of the body, bracelets, carkenets, ear-rings, &c.

WE that do live in thefe parts, under the aithority of our princes, and civilized commonwealths, have two great tyrants of our life, to whom the people of the new world have not been yet fubjected, the exceffes of the belly, and the ornament of body, and briefly all that which belongeth to bravery, which if we mould caft off, it would be ameans to recall the golden uge, and to tike away the calamities which we fee in mott fort of men. For he whiels poffefieth much, making fimall expence, would be liberal, and would fuccour the necely, whereunto he is hindred, willing not only to maintain but alfo to augmont his train, and to make thew of himfelf, very often at the cofts of the poor people whofe blood be fucketh. . Sui devorant plebem, meam ficut efiam panis, faith the pfalmift. I leave that which belongeth to lood, not being my purpofe to lpeak of it in this clapter; I leave alfo the excefles which confift in houthold implements, fending the realer back to Pluy, who hath fpoken ample of the Roman pomps and fuperfluitics, as of vellels atier the Purvienne and Clodienne fahion, of bed-fteads after the Deliaque futhion, and of tables all wrought with gold and filver imbofect ; where alfo he fetteth out a llave, Drufillanus Rotundus, who being treafurer of the higher spain, caufed a forge to be made for to work a piece of filver plate of five quintals weight, accompanied with eight others, all weighing half a quintal. I will only feak of the matacbias of our fivinges, and fay, that if we did content ourfelves with their fimplicity, we fhould, avoid many troubles that we put ourfelves unto, to have fuperfluities, without which we might live contentedly, beciufe nature is latisfied with little, and the coveting whercof makes us very often to decline from the right way, and to ftray from the path of juftice. The exceffes of men do confift the moft part in things which I have faid I will omit, which notwithftanding I will not leave untouched if it come to purpofe. But ladies have always had this reputation, to love exceffes in that which concerneth the decking of their bodies; and all the moralifts who have made profeflion to reprefs vices have mentioned them, where they have found a large fubject to fprak of. Clement Alexandrine making a long numeration of women's trinkets, which he hath the moft part taken out of the prophet Ifaiab, fairh in the end, that he is weary to fpeak fo much of it, and that he marvelleth that they are not killed with fo great a weighr.

A Defcretion of New France.

Let us take them then by thofe parts wherein they be complainel of. Tertullian marvelleth of the audacioufnefs of man, which fetteth himfelf againft the word of our Saviour, which faid, Tbat it is not in us to add any thing to the meafure or beight that God batb givell untous; and notwithftanding ladies chlewiour themfelees to do the contrary, alding upon their kcads cages made of bairs, faffioned like to loazes of bread, to bats, to pantiers, or to the bollowerefs of fcutcheons. If they be not afiamed whib this fuperfluous enormily, at leaft, fuith lie, let them be aflomed of the filth which they bear: and not to cover a boly and a Cbrittian bead with the learings. of anotber bodd, peradventure unclean, or, guilty of fome crime, and ordainad to a Shameful deatb. And in the fame place, fpeaking of them which do colour their hairs; I fie jome, faith he, who do change the colour of their Wairs with faffioll. They are afbamed of their country, and would be Gaullois women, or German woo men, fo muck do they difguife themfelecs. Wherely is known how much red hairs were efteemed in the old time. And indeed the holy feripture praifeth that of David which was fuch. But to feek it out by art, St. Cyprian, and St. Hierome, with our Tertullian do fay, that the fame doth prefage the fire of hell. Now our favages, in that which conlifterh in the borrowing of hairs, are not reprovible; for their vanity ftretcheth not fo far; but for the colouring of them, for as much as when they are merry, and paint their filces, be it with blue or with red, they piant alfo their hairs with the fame colour.

Voı. 11.

Now let us come to the cars, to the neck, to the arms and to the hands, and there we fhall find wherewith to bufy our felves; thefe are parts where jewels are eafily feen, which ladies have learned very well to obferve. The firf men which have had piety in them have made confcience to offer any violence to mature, and to pierce the ears for to hang any precoous thing at it ; for none is lord of his own members to abufe them, lo faith the civilian Ulpian. And therefore when the fervant of Abrabam went into Mifopota$m$ ma for to find out a wife for 1 fanc, and had met with Rebecca, le put upon her forehead a jewel of gold hanging down between her cyes, and alfo bracelcts of gold upon her hands ; for which reafon it is faid in the Proverbs, that a fair woman wbich lacketb difaretion is like a golden ring in a frine's fnout. But men have taken more licence than they ought, and have defaced the workmanfhip of God in them, to pleafe their own fancics. Wharein I do not wonder at the Brafilians (of whom we will hereafter fpeak) but of civilized people, which have cilled orher narions barbarous, but much more of the Chrifi. ans of this age. When Seneca did complain of that which was in lis time; The folly of women, faith he, had not made men fulject enougb, but it brib been yet beboveful to bang two or tbree patrimonics at tbeir cars. But what parrimonies? They carry (faith Tertullian) ifands and farmboufes upon their necks, and great regifers in their ears containing the revenues of a great rich man, and every finger of the left! 10 N band.

874 A Difcription of New France.

kind bath a patrimony to play zeithal. Finally, he camot compare them better than to condemned men that are in the caves of Etbiopia, which the more they are culpable, fo much the richer are they, becaufe that the fetters and bols, wherewith they are tied, are of gold. But le exhorteth the Chriftim wemen not to be fiach, "for as much as thofe things are " certain marls of lafcivioutinets, which " do belong to thofe mifchicvous oblati" ons of publickunchatity." Pliny, albeit he was an heatlen, doth no tefs :bhor thofe exceffes. "For our hadies " faith be, for to be brave do bear laing" ing at their fingers thofe great pearls ". which are called elenchus, in fafhion of " pearls, and have two of them, yea " three at their ears. Yea they have in" vented names to ferve themfelves there" with in their curfed and troublefome " fuperfluities. For they call bells " them which they carry in number at ". their cars, as if they did take pleafure " to hear pearls gingling at their ears. " And that which is more, the houfwifely
"womea, yea the poor women alfo,
" deck themfelves therewith ; faying,
" that a woman ought to go as feldom
" without pearls, as a conful withour
" his ufhers. Finally, they are come fo
" far as to adorn their fhoes with them,
" and garters, yca their bufkins are yet
" full and garnifhed therewith. In fuch " fort that it is not now any more que-
" Ation to wear pearls, but they muft be " made to ferve for pavement, to the " end to tread but upon pearls." The fame author doth recite that Lollia Fentlina, foriaken by Caliguk, in the common feafts of mean men was fo overladen with eneralds and with pearls, on her head, her hair, her ears, her neck, her fingers and her arms, as well in collars, necklaces, as bracelets, that all did hine at it, and that fhe had of them to the worth of a million of gold. The fane was exceffive, but the was the greateft princefs of the world, and yet he doth not fay that fhe did wear any on her thoes; as he doth yet complain in fome other wher that the danes of Rome did wear gold on their feet. What diffrder! (faith he) Let us permit the cuor:on to wear as much gold as they will in Jracelets, at their fingers, at their necks, at tbeirears, and in carkenets aud lridles, \&ic. muft they for all that deck their $\int$ est witb it? \& . I hould never make an end, if I hould continue this fpeech.

The $S_{f}$ anif women in Peru do go beyoud that, fo: their floges are fet over with nothing bui plates of gold and filver, and garnilhed with pearls. True it is that they are in a country which God hath blefied :bundantiy with all thefe riches.

But if thou hat not fo much of thent, do not vex thy filf at it, and be no tempted through envy ; fuch things :are but earth, digged and purified with a thoufind rroubles, in the bot tom of heil, by the incredible labour, and with the lifi of men like unto thec ; pearls are but Peart devr, received within the thell of a fifh, what they which are filleed by men that be forced to bebecone tithes, that is to fay, to be always diving in the depth of the fea. And for to have thefe thinge, and to be cloathed in lilk, and for to have robes with infinite foldis, we turmoil our felves, we take cares which do fhorten our days gnaw our bones, fuck out our marrow, weaken our bodies, and confume onr fipirit. He that hath meat and drink is as rich as all thefe, if he could confider it. And where thofe things do abound, there delights do abound, and confequently vices; and to conclude, behold whar God faith by his prophet : T'bey fball caft their filver out into the fircets, and that gold jhall be but dung, and Joall not deliser them in the day of my great werath. He that will have further knowledge of the chatifements wherewith God doth threaten the woman that abufe carkenets and jewels, which have no other care but to attire and deck themfelves, go with their brealts open, their eyes wandring, and with a proud gate, let him read the third chapter of the prophet Ifaiah. I will not for all that blame the virgins which have fome golden things, or chains of pearls, or other jewels, alfo fome modeft velture; for that is comelinets, and all things are made for the ufe of man ; but excefs is that which is to be blamed, becaufe that under that, very often is lafcivioufnefs hidden. Happy are the people which not having the occafions to fin, do purcly ferve God, and poffers a land which furnifheth them of that which is neceffary for lite. Happy are our favage people if they had the full knowledge of God; for in that cafe they be without ambition, vain-glory, envy, avarice, and have no care of thefe braveries, which we have now defrribed ; but rather do content themfelves to have matachias, hanging at their ears, and about their necks, bodies, arms, and legs. The Braflians, Floridimn, and Ar mouchiquois, do make carkenets and brace lets (called bou-re in Brafil, and by ours matacbias) of the fhells of thofe great fea cockles, which be called rignols, like unto fnails, which they break and gather up in a thoutand picees, then do finooth them upon a hot flone, until they do make them very fmall, and having pierced them, they trake them ' 'is with them, like unto thar which we call porcelain. Among thofe beads they intermight

$\therefore$ Defcription of New France.

mingle between fpaces other beads, as the little childrens hairs. The men do not bhack as thote which I have fioken of to much care for then, except that the Brabe white, made with jet, or certain hard and black wood which is like unto it, which they finooth and make finall as they lift, and this hath a vary good grace. And if things are to beefteemed for their falhion, as we fee it pratifed in our merchandizes; thefe collars, farts, and bracelets made of great periwincles or porcelain, are richer then pearls (notwithftanding none will believe me herein) fo do they efteem them more than pearls, gold or filver; and this is that which they of the great river of Canada in the time of Fomes ${ }^{\text {Qumartior }}$ did call efurgin (whereof we have made mention licretofore) a word which 1 have had moch ado to know, and which Belleforeft the cotinographer underttood not, when he would tyeak of it. At this day they have not any more of them, or elfe they have lott the knowledge to make them; for they uke mataibias very much, that are brought unto them out of France, Now as with us, fo in that country women do deck themfelves with fuch things, and will have chains that will go twelve times about their necks, hanging down upon their breafts, and about theirhand-wrifts, andabove the cibow. They atfo hang long frings of them at their ears, which come down as low as their houlders. If the men wear any, it will be only fome young man that is in Pearls in burgina. love. In the country of Virginia where

Copper.

 ome pearls be found, the women do war carkenets, collars and bracelets of them, or elfe of pieces of copper (made round like finall bullets) which are found in their mountians, where fome mines of it are. But in Port Royal, and in the confines thereot, and towards Newfoundlond, and at $T^{\prime}$ adouffac, where they lave neither pearls nor vignols, the maids and women do make mataikias, with the quills or brifles of the poicupine, which they dye withblack, white, and red colours, as lively
Frrinen:

?ule: is poltibly may be, for our fcarlets have no better luitre than their red dye; but they more eflecm the matacbias which come unto them from the Armoucbiquois country, and they buy them very dear ; .nd that becoufe they can get no great quantity of chem, by rcafon of the wars that thofe nations have continually one agunft ancther. There are brought unto them trom Prance inatacbias made with finall qualls of crlafs mingled with tin or lewh. whuh ars: trucked with them, and mealused by lac lithom, for want of an $t$; and chas lemd of merchandize is in Ehat country, that which the Lations do call Manlus' me'icbris. They alfo maks: of the:n finall fquares of fundry colours puned tugther, whel they tye behind, on filicus do wear about their necks halt meons of buncs very white, which they call y-aci of the moon's mame: and our Souriquous do likevite wear fome jollitics of like ltufi:, without excels. Anel they which have none of that, do commonly carty a knife before there breaths, which they do not for ormament, but for want of pocket, and becaule it is an implement which at all tinas is necalhary tanto them. Some have girdles mate of matacbias, wherewith they firve themfelves, only when they will lit out thembere and make them brave. The soutmotus or Soobr-fayers do carry bedore their breats; fome lign of their vocation, is we will leveafter lay. But as for the men of the Armouchigucis they have a fathion to wear at their hand-writs, and above the anchebone of the foor, about thar legs, plates of copper, tetter-wile, and about their waits girdles fafhioned with copper quilis as long as the middle-linger filed together the length of a girdle, even juft of that falhion which Herodian reciteth to have been in ufe among the Piczs, whereof we have fpoken, when he faith, that they girded their bodies and their necks with iron, cfteeming that to be a great ormament unto them, and a teftimony of their great riches, even as other Barbarians do to have gold about them. And there are yet in Scolland favage men, which ncither savage ages, nor years, nor the abundance of Scots. men could yet reduce unto civility. And although that (as we have fail) the men be not fo defirous of matachias as the women, notwithittanding the men of Brafil, not caring for clothing, take great pleafure to deck and garnilh themfelves with the feathers of birds, and do ufe thofe wherewith we ufe to fill our beds whercon we lye, and chop them as fimall as pye-ment, which they dye in red, with their Brafll wood, then having anointed their bodies with certain gunms, which ferve them inftead of paite or glue, they cover themfelves with thofe feathers, and make a garment at one clap, after the antick falhion; which hath made (faith Fohn de Lcri in his Hiftory of America) the firft of our men that went thither to belicve that the men which be called fivages were hairy over all their bodies, which is nothing to. For (as we have already fiid) the favages in what part foever, have leffer hairs than we. They of Florida do alfo ale this Eind of down, but it is only about their heads, to make themfelves more ugly. Beficies this that we have faid, the Braflians do mak: frontlets of feathers, which they tye and fit in order of all colours; thole frontets being

A Defcription of New France.

being like in fafhion to thofe rackets or periwigs, which ladies ufe in thefe parts, the invention whereof they feem to have learned of thofe favages. As for them of our Neev France, in the days that be of folemnity and rejoicing among them, and when they go to the wars, they have about their heads as it were a crown made with long hairs of an cllan or flag, painted in red, paltce, or otherwife fattbed to a fillet of leather of three lingers had feen with the ling (fo doth he call him) and lord of the favages, which he found in the town of Mocbelaga. But they do not ufe fo many ornaments of feathers as the Brafilians, which make gowns of them, caps, bracelets, girdles, and ornaments for their cheeks, and targets upon their loins of all colours; which would be more tedious than delightful to fpecify, fince it is an eafy matter for cvery one to fupply the fame, and to imagine what it is.

C H A P. XIII.

> Of marriage

HAVING proken of the favages garments, deckings, ornaments and paintings, it hath feemed good unto me to marry them, to the end the generation of them be not loft, and that the country remain not defert. For the firft ordinance that ever God made, was to increafe and multiply, and every creature capable of generation to bring forth fruit according to his kind. And to the end to enconrage young folks that do marry, the fewis had a cuitom anciently to fill a trough with earth, in the which, a little before the wedding, they did fow barley, and the fame being fiprung, they brought it to the bridegroom and the bride, laying, Bring fortb fruit and multiply as this barley, which brings forth fooner then all other feeds.

Now to return to our favages, many thinking (as I believe) that they be fome loggs of wood, or imagining a commonwealth of Plato, do demand if they have any marriage, and if there be any pricts in Canada to marry them. Whercin they feem to be very raw and ignorant. Capt. Fomes Quartier fpeaking of the marriage $^{2}$ of the Canadians, in his fecond relation faith thus: " They obferve the order of " marriage, laving that the men take "two or three wives. And the hufband
" being dead the women do never mar" ry agdin, but do mourn for his deathall
" their lite long, and do daab their tace

- with coal beaten to powder and with " greafe, the thicknets of a knife, and " thereby are known to be widows.
$\because$ Then hegocth furcher ; they have ano" ther bad culton with their danghters;
"s lor being come to be marriageable, Heturing of "t they are put all in a tew-houle, aban-maidens. " eloned to all comers, until they have "found out a match; and all this have "we feen by experience; for we have
" feen the houfes as full of thefe maidens, " as is a fchool of boys in France." I would have thought that the faid fomes Quartier had (touching this proftituting of maids) added fomewhat of his own, but the difcourfe of Monf. Cbamplein, which is but fix years fince, doth contirm the fame thing unto me, faving that he fpeaketh not of aftemblies, which kecpeth me me from contrarying it. But imong our Souriquois there is no fuch thing ; not that thefe favages have any great care of continency and virginity, for they do not think to do evil in corrupting it: but whether it be by the frequentation of Frenchmen or otherwile, the maids are athamed to do any unchatte thing publickly ; and if it happen that they abandon themetves to any one, it is in fecret. Morcover, he that will marry at maid it behoveth him to demand hot of her father, without whole confent the fhall be none of his, as we have already faid herctofore, and brought forth the example of one that had done otherwife. And if he will marry, he thall fomctimes make love, not atter the manner of the Effecns, who (as Jofepbus faith) did try the maidcons by the fpace of three years, before they married them, but by the fipace of fix months or a year, without abufing of them; will paint his fice that he may feem the fairer, and will have a new gown of beavers or otters, or of fomething clfe well garnifhed with matachias garded and laid over in form of parchment lace of gold and filver, as the Gotbs did ufe heretoforc. It is meet moreover that he fhew himfelf valiant in hunting, and that they know him able to do fomethng, for they do not truft in a man's means, which are none other than that which he getteth by his days labour, not caring anywife for other riches than hunting, winlefs our manners make them to have a defire of it.
The pro- The maidens of Brafll have liberty to ditiuting of proftitute themfelves as foon as they are the matdine mat chin in $3 i, u j i l$. able tor the fane, even as them of Canada. Yea the fathers do ferve for panders to their daughters, and they repute for an honour to communicate them to the men of thefe parts that go thither, to the end to have of their race. But to confent untto it, would be too damnable an abomination, and that would deferve rigorous punifhment, as indeed for the flacknefs of men God hath punifhed this vice in fuch wife, that the fore hath been communicated in thefe parts, even to them that have been too much addicted after Chriftian wenches and women, by the ficknefs which is called the pox, which before the difcovery of thofe lands was unknown in Europe; for thefe people are very much fubject to it, and even they of Florida; but they have the guayar, the efquin, and the faffafras trees very fovereign for the cure of that leprofy, and I believe that the tree annedda, whofe wonders we have recited, is one of thefe kinds.

One might think that the nakednefs of this people would make them more leacherous, but it is not fo. For as Cefar The cha- giveth the Germans this commendation, ftity of the that they had in their ancient favages life ancient Gomant fuch a continency, as they reputed it a and of the thing moft vile for a young man to have favages of the company of a woman before he came $N_{i z w}{ }^{2}$ to the age of twenty years; and in their Frunce.
indeed I have heard, that for to pleafe the women the more they bufy themfelves very much about that which is the primary fign of unclean defires, whereof we fpake even now ; and that they may the better do it, they furnifh themelelves with Greatitore ambergreafe, whereof they have great fore, of umber which firt they melt at the fire, then in- greas. ject it (with fuch pain, that it maketh them to gnath their teeth) even fo far as to the bone Sacrum, and with a whip of nettles, or fuch like thing, make that idol of Maacba to fivell, which king Afa made to be confumed into athes, and caft it into the brook Cedron. On the other fide the women ufe certain herbs, and enendeavour themfelves as much as they can to make reftrictions for the ufe of the faid Itypballes, and to give either party their due.

Let us return to our marriages, which Contract are better than all thefe rogueries. The of mar: contracters do not give their faith between riage. the hands of notaries, nor of their foothfayers, but fimply do demand the confent of the parents; and fo they cio every where. But here is to be noted, that they keep, and in Brafil alfo, three degrees of confangui- Degrees nity, in the which they are not ufed to con- of contintract marriage, that is to wit, of the fonguinity. with the mother, of the father with his daughter, and of the brother with the fifter. Thefe excepted, all things are permitted. As for dowry, there is no mention of it. Alfo when any divorce happeneth the hufband is bound to nothing : and although that, as it hath been faid, there is no promife of loyalty given before any fuperior power, neverthelefs, in what part foever the wives keep chaltity, and feldom is any found that breaketh it: yea, I have heard oftentimes fay, that in yielding the duty to the hufband, they make themfelves oftentines to be conftrained; which is rare in thefe parts. For the Gaullois women are renowned by Strabo to be good porters, I mean fruiful, and breeders; and contrariwife I do not fee that the peop!e do abound in thefe parts, although that they all dabour for generation, and that polygamy is ordinary with them, which was not among the ancient Gaullois, nor among the Germans, though they be a more ruftick people. True it is that our favages do kill one another daily, and are always in fear of their enemies, keeping watches upon their frontiers.

This frigidity of Venus bringeth an admirable and incredible thing among there women, and which was not to be found, even among the wives of the holy patriarch $7_{6 c o b}$, which is, that, although there be many wives to one huband, for polygamy is received through all that new workt, Pongang.

10 O notwith-
notwidhatanding there is no jealoufy among them, which is in Brafil, a hot country as well as Canada: but as for the men, they are in many places very je:lous; and if the wife be found faulty fhe thall be put away, or in danger to be killed by her hufbund; and in that (as for the firit of jealoufy) there needs not fo many ceremonies as thofe that were done anoongtt the Yews, recited in the book of Numbers. And as for divorcement, not having the ule of letters, they do it not in writing, in giving to the wife a bill figned by a publick notary, as St. Auguffin doth note, fpeaking of the faid Feses; but are contented to tell to the parents, and unto her, that fhe provide for herfelf, and then fhe liveth in common with the others until that fome body do feek after her. This law of putting away hath been receivedalmoft among all nations, except among the Chriftians, which havekept this precept of the gofpel, That wbieb God bath joined logether, let no man put afunder: which is molt expedient and lefs fcandalous ; and very wifely did Ben-Sira anfwer (who is faid to have been nephew to the prophet feremy) being anked of one who had a lewd wifc, how he fhould do by her, Gnaw, faith he, that bone whicb is fallen to thee.

As for the widows, I will not affirm that which fames 2 tartier lath faid of them in general, but I will fay, that where we have been, they fain their fices with black, when they pleaie, and not aivays: if their humband laath been killed, they will not marry again, nor eat fleth, until they have feen the revenge of his death. And to we have feen the daughter of Mcmbertou to practife it, who after the war made to the Armouclizuois, hereafter defcribed, did marry again: except in that cafe, they make no other difficulty to marry again when they find a fit match.

Sometimes our favages having many wives will give one of them to thcir frierd, if he hath a defire to take her in marriage, and hall be thcreby fo much difburdened. Touching maidens that be loofe, if any Abominaman hath abufed them, they will tell it at dewhorethe firlt occafion, and therefore it is bad mong th jefting with them; for the chaftifement infidels. ought to be very rigorous againft them that ningle the Chriftian blood with the infidels, and for the keeping of this juftice Monf. de Villcgagnon is praifed, even by his enemies: and Pbinebas, the fon of Eleazar, the fon of Aaron, becaufe he was zealous of the law of God, and appeafed his wrath, which was about to exterminate the pcople, for fuch a lin, had the covenant of perpetuad priefthood, promifed to him and to his pof: terity.

C H A P. XIV.

The tabagie.

THE ancients have faid, Sine Cerere $\mathcal{E}^{2}$ Bacebo friget Venus, that is, without Ceres and Baccbus, Venus is cold: having then married our favages, it is meet to make dinner ready, and to ufe them after their own manner: and for to do it, one muft confider the times of the marriage ; for if it be in winter they will have venifon from the woods, if it be in the fpring-time or in fummer, they will make provifion of What fa- fifh; as for bread, there is no talk of it from the north of Newfoundland until one countries come to th: country of the Armoutchiquois, come to the country of the Armotrchiquois, unlefs it be in trucking with Frencbmen, for whom they tarry upon the fea-fhores, fitting on their tails like apes, as foon as the foring-time is come, and receive in exchange for their fkins, for they have no other merchandize, bifket, beans, peafe, and meal. The Armoucliquois, and other nations more remote, befides lunting and filhing, have wheat called mais, and beans, which is a great comfort unto them in time of necef. lity; they make no bread widh it, for they have neither mill nor oven, and they can:not knead it otherwife than in ftamping it in a mortar, and in gathering thofe preces the beft they can, they make fmall cakes with it, which they bake between two hot fones ; moft often they dry this corn at the fire, and parch it upon the coals. And after that manner did the ancient Italicus live, as Pliny faith : and, therefore, one mult not fo much wond:: at thefe people, fee. ing that they which have called others barbarous, lave been as barbarous as they.
If I had not recited heretofore the manner of the favages tabagie, or banquet, I would make here a larger defcription : but I will only fay that when we went to the river St. Fobn, beirg in the town of Ouigoudi, fo may 1 usil call a place enctofed replenifhed with people, we faw in a great thicket eighiy favages all naked, except the middle parts, making tab.gzia with neal they had of ws, whereof they had kettles full. Every one had a dilh made with the burk of a uce, und in froon as decp decp as the palm of one's hand, or noore; and with this they had venifon befides. And here it is to be noted, that he which entertaineth the others doth not dine, but ferveth the company, as very often the briclegrooms do here in France.
The women were in another place apart, and did not eat with the men; wherein may be noted a bad ufe among thofe people, which have never been ufed among the nations of thefe parts, fpecially the Giaullois and Germans, which have admitted the women, not only in their banquets, but alfo in their publick counfels, efpecially with the Gaullois, after they had pacified a great war which arofe between then, and did decide the controverfy with fuch equity, as Flutarch faith, that thereby enfued a greater love than ever before : and in the reaty that was made with Hamnibal, being entered into Gallia, to go againt the Romans, it was faid, that if the Cartbaginians had any difference againft the Gaullois, it fhould be decided by the advice of the Gaullois women. It was not fo in Rome, where their condition was fo bafe, that by the haw Voconia, the very father could not make them to inherit more than of the one third part of his goods : and the emperor Iuffinian forbiddeth them in i:is decrces to accept the awardhip which had been defired unto them, which fhewed either a great feverity againft them, or an argument that in that country they have a very weak fpirit. And after this fort, be the wives of our favages, yea, in worfe condition, in not eating with the men in their tabagies; and, notwithrtanding it feemeth unto me that their fare is not in their featts fo delicate, which ought not to confift only in cating and drinking, but in their fociety of that fex which God hath ordained unto man for to help him and to keep him company.

It will feem to many that our favages do live very poorly, in not having any feafoning in thofe few meffes that I have maned: but I will reply that it was not Caligula nor Heliogabulus, nor fuch like, that lave taifed the Roman empire to its greatnefs; neither was it that cook who made made an imperial featt all with hogs-flefh, difguifed in a thoufand forts; nor thofe liquorih companions, who after they hive deflroyed the air, the fea, and the land, not knowing what to find more to affwage their gluttony, go a fecking worms from the trees, yea do keep them in mew, and do fatten them, for to make thereof whemena delicate mefs: but rather it was one Jurraisid Curius Dentatus who did eat in wooden An to difhes, and did ferape raddifhes by the hiriss. whom the fenate did fend for trom the plough for to conduct the Roman arny ; and in one word, thofe Romans which did live with forden food after the manner of our fivages; for they had not the ufe of bread but about 600 years alter the foundhtion of the city, having learned in trate of time to make fome cakes grofly dreffed and baked under the embers; or in the oven : Pl:ny, .uthor of this report, fiuth morcover, that the Scythians, now Tarurs, do alfo live with fodden food and raw meal as the Brafilians. And, neverthelefs, they have always been a warlike and mighty mation. The fame faith, that the Arymtheen, which be the Mufcovites, do live in forefts, as our favages do, with grains and fruits which they gather from the trees, without mention either of flefh or of filh. And, indeed, the prophane authorscloagrce, that the firt men did live after that manner, to wit, of corn, grains, pulfe, acorns, and maftes, from whence cometh the Greek word phagein, to wit, to eat ; fome particular nations, and not all, had fruits, as pears were in ufe among the Argives, figs with the Atbenians, almonds with the Medes, the fruit of cannes with the 庆tbiopians, the cardamuin with the Perfians, the dates with the Babylonians, the trefoil, or three-leaved grafs, with the Egyptians. They which have had none of thole fruits have made war againt the beafts of the woods and forefts, as the Getulians and all the northern men, ye: alfo the ancient Germans, notwithft:anding they had alfo meats made of milk; others dwelling upon the fhores of labtbly? the fea, or lakes and rivers, lived on fifhes, $t^{\text {bagiss. }}$ and were called Icitbyopbages ; others living of tortoifes, were called Cbelonophages. part of the Ethiopians do live of graf- Athio hoppers, which they falt and harden in the tians do fmoak in great quantity for all fe:tons, and live of thercin do the ciiftorians of this day agree pers. with Pliny; for there are fometimes clouds of them, that is to fay, fuch infinite numbers, that they hide the clouds; and in the caft likewife, which deftroy all the ficlds, fo that nothing remaineth unto them to eat but thofe grafhoppers, which was the food of Sc. Jobn Baptif, in the defart, according to the opinion of Sc. Hicrome and Auguffine: although Nicepborus thinketh that they were the tender leaves of the tops of trees, becaufe that the Greck word acbrides fignifieth both the one and the other. But les us come to the Roman emperor, beft qualified: Ammian Marcellin, Ipeiking of their m:nner of life, f.iith, that Scipio, AEmiLian, Metellus, Trajan, and Alrian, did content themfelves ordinarily with the meas of the camp, that is to fiy, with bacon, cheefe, and bruvare. If then our favages have venifon and lim abudandy, I to unt think them ill lurnifhed; for nady t:mes

Sturgeous, we have received of them quansity of furGalmon:, and other fill. geons, of falmons, and other fing; befides their venifon, and beavers which live in ponds, and live partly on the land, partly in the water: at leaft, one laudable thing is known in them, that they are not meneaters, as the Scstbians have been aforetime, and many other nations of thele parts of the world; and as yet are at this day the Brafilians, Cannibals, and others of the new world.

The inconvenience which is found in their manner of life is, that they have no bread. Indeed bread is a food very naturil for man, but it is eafier to live with theh, or with fifh, than with bread only. If they have not the ufe of falt, the mont part of the world do ufe none; it is not altogether neceffary, and the principal profit thereof confifteth in preferving, whereunto it is altogether proper ; notwithftanding, if they had any to make fome provifions they would be more happy than us; but for want of that they lometimes fuffer fome need, which happeneth when the winter is too mild, or the Jatter end of the fame, for then they have neither venifon nor fifh, as we will declare in the chapter of hunting ; and are then conitrained to feed upon the barks of trees, and on the parings of fkins, and on their dogs, which, upon thisextremity, they do eat ; and the hiftory of the Floridians faith, that in extremity they eat a thoufand filths, even to the fwallowing down of coals, and to put earth in their fpoon-meat. True it is, that in Port Royal there is always fhell-fifh, fo that in all cales one cannot die there for hunger. But yet have they one fuperftition that they will not feed on muffels, and they can ailedge no reafon for it, no more than our fuperfitious Chriltians which will not be thirteen at a table, or which fear to pair their nails on the Friday, or which have other fcrupulofities, true apih toys, fuch as Pliny recitech a good number of them in his natural hiftory: notwithftanding, in our company feeing us to eat of them they did the like; for we muft fay here by the way, that they will eat no unknown meat, but firf they mult fee the trial of it by The faothers. As for beafts of the woods they eat of all them, the wolf excepted. They alfo eat eggs, which they go gathering along the fhores of waters, and they do lade their canoes with them, when the geefe and outards have done laying in the fpring-time, and they ufe all, as well them that be old as new. As for modefty they ufe it being at table with us, and eat very foberly; but at home in their own houfes, as the Brafilians, they ftretch out their bel- lies as much as they can, and do not leave tating as long as there is any meat: and if any of ours be at their tabagic, they will bid him do as they do. Notwithftanding I fee no glutiony like to that of Hercules, who alone did eat whole oxen, and did devour one from a Paifan called Dia. damas, by reafon whereof le was called Butbeus, or Buphagos, ox-eater. And without going fo far, we fee in the countries of thefe parts, greater gluttonies than that which one would impute to the favages ; for in the diet of Aug/bourg was brought to the emperor Cbarles the fifth, a great whorefon which had eaten a calf and a fheep, and yet was not full: and I do not know that our favages do wax fat, or that they have great bellies, but that they are nimble and fwilt, like to our ancient Gaullois and high Allemans or Germans, who by their agility, did trouble very much the Roman armies.

The food of the Brafilians are ferpents, The mex crocodiles, toads, and great lizards, which of the they efteem as mach as we do capons, le- Brafizanu. verets and conies. They, alfo, make meal of white roots, which they call maniel, having the leaves of paoniamas, and the tree of the height of the elder tree ; thofe roots are as big as the thigh of a man, which the women do crumble very finall, and eat themraw, or elfe they make them to feeth well in a great earthen v ©ffl, ftirring it always, as the comfit-makers do make fugar-plumbs. They are of a very good tafte, and of eafy digeftion, but they be not fit to make bread, becaufe they dry and burn themfelves, and always return into meal. They have alfo with this mabis, or mais, which groweth in two or three months after it is fowed, and that is a great fuccour unto them. But they have a curfed and an inhuman cuftom to eat their prifoners, alter they have well fatted them; yea, a molt horrible thing, they give them in marriage the faireft maidens they have, putting about their necks as many halters as they will keep him moons; and when the time is expired, they make wine of the faid mais, and roots, wherewith they make themfelves drunk, calling all theirfriends; then he that hath taken him knocketh him on the had with a club, and divideth him into pieces, and makes carbonnadoes of him, which they eat with a fingular pleafure above all meats in the world.
Furthermore, all favages generally do commolive every where in common; the moft nalty of perfect and moft worthy life of man, fee- life. ing that he is a fociable creature; the life of the ancient golden age, which the holy apoitles would have reftored again; but being to eftablifh the fpisitual lif:, they could not execute that good defire. If it Hofpitali happens then that our davages have veni- ty. fon, or other food, all the company have part of it. They have this mutual charity which hath been taken away from 'us, fince that mine and thine have come into the world. They have, alfo, hof pitality, a virtue peculiar to the ancient Gaullois, according to the witnefs of Partbenius, in his Erotegues, of Cafar, Saleian and others, who did conftrain travellers and Atrangers to come into their houfes, and there to take a refrefhing; a virtue which feemeth to haveconferved herfelfonly with the nobility and gentry; for among the other fort we fee her very wak and at the point of death. Tacitus giveth the fame praife to the Germans, laying that with them all heufes are opened to ftrangers, and there they are in fuch affarance, that, as if they were ficred, none dare do them an injury; cbarity and bofpitality, which are mentioned in the law of God, who faid to his people, The firanger whbich fojomrnetl, among you, falll be kinto you as be echich is born ameng you, and youl fall low him ar your felves; for you bave been flrangers in the land of E'gypt; fo do our favigges, who, ftirred up with an humane nature, resive all itrangers, except their enemics, whom they accept in their commonalty of life.

$A$ Defcription of New France.

tif drink

 let us now fyeak of cirinking. I know not whe ther I ought to place:among the greatc.ft bliudnecfes of the Weft-Indians, to have abundantly the moft excellent fruit that (iod hath given unto us, and they know not the ufe thereof. For I fee that the ancient Romans were a long time, as Pli$n y$ faith, without cither vines or vineyards; and our Gaullois did make beer, the ufe whersof is yet lirequent in all Gallia Belgica; and this kind of drink did the Egypt ians, alfo, ufe in former times, as faith Diodoras, who attributcth the invention thereof to O/ivis. Notwithiftancling after that the ufe of wine was come among the Romans, the Gealluis took fo good a taifte in it, in the voyages that they made there with their armies, that they continued afterwards the fiune way; and afterwards the It clian me rehants did doaw much money from the Gaullois, with their wine that they brought thither. But the Germans, knowing their own nature fubject to drink nore than is necedful, would have none brought to them, for fear that being drunk, they might be a prey to their enemies; and contented themfelves with beer. And notwithitanding, becaufe the continual drinking of water engendreth crudities in the itomach, and thereby great indifpofitions, the nations have commonly found better the molcrate wfe of wine, which hath been given of God to rejoice Yol. II.the heart, as bread for to ftrengthen him, as the Pfalmiff faith; and the apoftle St. Paul himfelf doth counfel his dificiple $T i$ mothy to ufe it by reaton of his infirmity. For wine, laith Oribafiss, recreateth and quickeneth our beat; whereby, by confequence, the digeftures are made better, and good blood is engendred, and good nourifbment thorougb all the parts of the body where the wine batb force to pierce; and therefore they which be weakened by fickne/s do recover by it a ftronger being, and do likevife renew by it an appetite to their meat. It breaketh the phlegm, it purgeth cholerick bumours, by the urine, and with) its pleafant odour and lively fubftance gladdetb the beart of man, and giveth ftringtb to the body. Wine taken moderately is the procurer of all tbofe good effects, but if it be drank unneafurably, it produceld effects quite contrary. And Plato willing to dhew forth in one word, the nature and property of wine ; tbat cobich warmeth, faith he, botb body and foul, is that wbich is called wine. The favages, which have no ufe of wine, nor of tpices, have found out another means to warm the fame fomach, and in fome fort to break to many crudities proceeding from the fifh that they eat, which otherwife would extinguifh their natural heat; it is the herb which the Brafilenns do call petun, that is to fay tobacco, the fmoak whereof they take almoft every hour, as we will declare more at large, when we come hereafter to fpeak of thit herb. Then as in thefe parts one drinketh to another, in prefenting the glats to him to whom one hath drunk, which is done in many places ; fo the favages willing to fealt fomebody, and to fhew him fign of amity, after they have well taken of that finoak, they prefent the tobacco pipe to him that they like beft : which cuftom to drink one to another is not new, nor particular to the H'lensings and Germans; for Heliodorus in the Ettbiopicinhiftory of Cbariclea, witneffeth that the fame was a cuftom altogether ufed in the countries, whereof he fipeaketh, to drink one to the other in token of friendfhlp. And becrute it was abufed, and men were appointed to contrain them that would not pledge, Abafuerus, king of the Perfans, at a banquet that he made to all the principal lords and governors of his countrics, did forbid by an exprefs law to force any, and did command that every one flould be ferved after his own will. The Egyptians did ufe no forcing, but notwithitanding they drank up all, and that with great devotion; for after they had found out the invention to apply painting and matacbias upon filver, they 10 P took took great delight to fee their God Anulis panated in the bottom of their cups, as Pliny fuith.

Cur fivages, Canadians, Souriquois, and others, are far from thefe delights; and having nothing but the tobacco, fpoken of by us, to warm their tomachs after the cruditics of waters, and to give fome finatch to the month, hiving that in common with many other nations, that they love that which is biting, fich as the faid tobacon is, which, even as wine or Mromg beer, takin, as it is faid, in fmozk, madketh giddy the fenfes, and, in fome firt, procureth flece; fo that this word drualsand is anong them, by this word eforeFin, as wedl as anongtt us. The Floridiaas have a certain fort of drink called cofine, which they drink all hot, which they make of certain lenves of trees; but it is not lawful for every one to drink of it, but only to the l'araonfit, and to them that have made proof of their valour in the wars. And this dejnk hath fuch virtuc, that asforn ats they have drmaken it, they becone all in a fweat, which being palt, they be fed for twenty four hours, by the nourithing force of the fame. As for them of Biaflit they make a cortan kind of drink which they call couain, with routs and a grain callcal mill, which they put to fecth and folten in great carthen veffels, made in the manner of a tub, over the fire, and being foltence, it is the office of the women to chew it all, and to fet them again to feeth in other veffis, then having left all to be fettled and thimmed, they cover the velfel until that it mult be drunken; and this drink is as thick as lecs, after the manner of the defrutum of the $L_{a t}$ * tins, and of the tafte of four milk, white and red as our wine is, and they make it in crery feafon, becaufe that the faid roots dogrow these at all times. Finthermore they drink this crovin fomewhat warm, but with fiechexeefs, that they never depart from the place where they make their fants, until that they have drunk all out, though there were of the lame a tun for every one. So that the flomings, Higb Dutibuch, and $S_{\text {witacers, are but young }}$ novices in that trade in regard of them. I will not fpeak here of the cyders and perrics of Normandy, nor of the Ifidromels, the ufe whercof, by the report of Platarch, was long betore the invention of winc, fecing our favages ute none of it. But I have thonght grod to mention the Iruit of the vine, by reafon that Neas Froatce is plentilully furnithed therewith.

C H A P. XV.

Of their duncis and jangs.

WHEN the belly is full then comes mirth, faith the proverb; it will not be then unfit to fyeak of dancing after featting: for it is alfo faicl of the people of Ifrael, that ater they had well filled their bellies they arofe for to play and dance abinces in bout their gotelen calf. Daucing is a thing Aruied in draine things.
nour of Apollo; and in the life of $I y$ curgus, the orator, faith, that he did ordain it very folemn dance in the Pyree, unto the honour of Nepthne, with a wager of a hundred crowns price to the belt dancer, and to the fecond of eighty crowns, and to the third of fixty. The mufes, daughters of "fupiter, do love dancing, and all they that have fioken of them make us to go feek for them upon the mountain Parmalles, where, lay they, they dance at the found of . Ap cllo's harp.

As for the Iatins, the fame Plutardo faith in the life of Numa Pompilius, that he did inftitute the college of the Salians, which were priefts dancing and ganboling and finging fongs in the honour of God Wirs, when that a buckler of brals foll maraculouny from heaven, which was a gige from that God for the confervation of the empire; and that buckler was called ancile, but for fear that it fhould be ftolen away, he caufedtwelve others to be made ahk named 'ancilia, which were carried in the ware, as we did heretofore our orifiname, wd as the emperor Confantine did the libarum. Now the foremott of thofe salinns

A Defcription of New France.

Salians that didlead the others in the dance was called $P$ rafful, thate is to fay, lirtt dancer, pre aliis Salians, faith foftus, who taketh from that the name of the lirench people, which were called Salians hecaule they did love to dance, to fkip and to gambol; and of thefe odians are come the laws, which we cill Salique, that is to fay laws of dances.

So then to cone again to our purpofe, the dances have been firt inflituted for holy things. Whereto I will add, the teftimony of Arrian, who faith, that the Indians which did worfhip the fun rifing, did not think to have duly faluted him, unlefs their fongs and prayers were accompanicd with dances.

This kind of exereife was fince applied to another ufe, that is to fiy, for the government of health, as Piularch fuich, in the treaty for the fame. So that Socrates himfelf (howfoever precife and reformed) took pleafure therein, for which caufe he defired to have a houfe large and facious, as Xemplon writeth in his banquet, and the Perfians did exprefly ufe the fame, as Duris writeth in the feventh of his hiftories.

But the delights, lafcivioufinets, and diforders, did convert them fince totheir own ufe, and the dances have ferved for proxenetes and brokers of unchaftity, as we find it but too much, whercof we have teftimonies in the gofpel; where we find that it coft the life of the greatelt that cver arofe amongh men, which is St. Jobn Baptif. And Arceflaus faid very well, that dances are vinoms, fharper thin all the poifons that the earth bringeth forth, forafmuch as by certain incitement they infinuate into the foul, whercin they communicate and imprint voluptuoufnefs and delectation, which the bodies properly do affect.
to the honour of Mars; likewife the Floridians do fing to the honour of the fin, to whom they attribute all tiveir victories: not for all that fo filthily as Orpbers, inventor of the heathenifh devilifhneffes, of whom S:. Gregory Nazianzin mocketh himfelf in an oration, becaufe that among other follics, in an hymn he fpenketh of 'ywiter in this wife: O glorious 'fupiter! tbe grentef? A fonlia of all the gods, "whicb art refident in all forts fillyy fong of dung, as well of Bxicp as of borfes and to Fupiter. mules, &cc. And in another hymn that he maketh to Ceres, he faith, that fhe difcovereth luer thighs for to fubmit her body to her paramours, and to make herfelf to be tilled.

Our Souriqueis do make alfo dances and fongs to the honour of the devil which fheweth them their game, and that they think to gratify him; whereof one needeth not to marvel, becaufe that we ourfelves, that be beter initructed, do fing phalms and fongs of praife to our God, for that he givath us our daily food: and I do not fee that a man who is a hungred, have any great luft cither in finging or dancing: nomo cuim faltal fere fobrius, Caith Ciccro.

Alio when they will teaft any body, The dan they have no fairer gefture, in many pla- ces and ces than dancing; as in like manner, if fongs of any one maketh them a feaft, for all thankf- the $\mathcal{S}$,urigiving, they betake themfelves to dancing, guais as it hath been feen fometimes, when Monf. de Poutrincourt did give them their dinuer, they did fing fongs of prates unto him, faying, that he was a brave Sagamos, who had made them good chear, and which was their grood friend; which they did comprehend very myftically under thefe three words, epigico iatonicdico: I fay myltically, for I could never know the proper fignification of every one of thefe words. I believe that it is of the ancient langunge of their lorefathers which is out of ule, like as the old Hobrew is noc the Jews language at this day, and was already changed in the time of the apoitles.

They fing alto in their common tabaries, the prailes of their brave captains and $S_{a} a-$ gamos that have killed many of their enemies: which was pratifed anciently in many nations, and is pratised yet amongt us at this day; and is found to be approved and of decency in the boly feripture, in the canticle of Debarab, after the overthrow of king Sifora. And when young David had killed the great Goliab, as the king did return victorious into ferafalcm, the women came out of all the towns, and met him wich tabrets, rebecks and timbrels, dancing and finging merrily, faying by courfe and anfivering one another; Sauld batb fatin bis tboufold, and David his tell tboufurd. Abbencus faith, that the Gaullois had had poets named Baris, whom they reverenced very much; and thofe poets did fing viva vocc, the deeds of virtuous and famous men ; but they did write nothing in publick, becaufe that writing maketh men flotsiul and negligent in learning. Notwidhtanding Carolus Margus was of another opinion; for he cilufed longs to be made in the vulgar tongue, containing the decds and acts of the ancients, and commanded that the children fhould be made to learn them by heart, and that they floould ling them, to the end that their memory thould remain from father to fon, and from race to race, and by this means others fhould be ftirred up to do good, and to write the actions and deeds of valiant men. 1 will further fay here by the way, that the Lacedemonians hadacertain manner of clancing, which they ufed in all their feafts and folemnities, which did reprefent the three ages; to wit, the time paft, by the old men, which did fay in finging this burthen, we were beretofore valorous; the prefent, by the young men in the flower of their youth, faying, we be fo now at this time; the future, by the children, who did fiy, see foall be fo too, woben our turn comes.

I will not bufy myfelf in defcribing all
What are the fava. the fafhions of the gainbols of their ancient predeceffors, but it fufficeth me to fay, that the dances of our favages are made without removing from one place, and notwithitanding they are all in a round (or very near) and do dance with vehemency, flriking with their feet upon the ground, and lifting themfelves up as in hadf a leap: and as for their hands they hold them clote, and their arms in the air, in form of a man that threateneth with a motion of then. As for the voice, there is but one that fing. eth, be it man or woman ; all the reft do and fay, bet, bet, as fome that breatheth out with vehemency: and at the end ol every fong, they all make a loug and loud exclamation, faying, biece. For to be more nimble, they commonly put themfelves itark naked, becaufe thas their gowns made of fkins do hinder them; and if they have any of their enemies heads or arms, they will carty them about their necks, lancing with this fair jewel, which they will fometimes bite, fo great is their hatred even againft the dead. And for to end this chapter as we began it, they never make any tubagic or tcatt, but that there is a dance afte: it; and afterward, if the Sagamos be difpofed, according to the thate of their affairs, he will make an oration of one, two, or three hours contimuance, and at cvery demonitration afking the advice of the company: if they approve his propofition, every one will cry out aloud, bécee, in fign of allowing and ratifying of the fame; whercin they give him very attentive audience, as we have feen many times. And alfo when that Monf. de Poutrincourt did faft our favages, Membertou, after dancing, made an oration with fuch vehemency, that he made the world to wonder, " fhewing the courtefies and witnefes of " friendfhip that they received of the " Frenclamen, what they might hope of " them hereafter; and how much their "s prefence was profitable, yea neceffary " unto them, becaufe that they did fleep " in fecurity, and had no fear of their " enemies, E'c."

C H A P. XVI.

Of the diffolition of their bodies, and of their pbyjick and chirurgery.

WE have faid in the laft chapter, that dancing is profitable for the prefervation of health : alfo it is one of the caufes why our favages do delight fo much in it. Bat they have yet fome other prefervaxives which they ufe very often, that is to fay, fweats, whereby they prevent fickneffes: for they be fornetimes touched with this fibthefick, wherewith the men of Capt. "fames (9) warticr and Monf. de Monts were annoyed, which notwithftanding is but feldon; but when it happeneth, they Fnodur, have in Camada the tree callod annedda, which I term the tree of life for the excellency thereof, whereswid they heal themfelves; and in the country of the Armou-cbiquois, they have faflafras, and in Flo-safafrias. rida, efquin. The Souriquois which have E/fuin. none of thefe kinds of woods, do ufe liweats, as we have faid, and they have their Aoutzuoins for phyficians, who for that purpofe do dig in the ground and make a pit, Stows or which they cover with wood and big flat hot houftones over it; then they put fire to it by a fes. hole, and the wood being burned, they make a raft with poles, which they cover with all the fkins and other coverings which they have, fo as no air entereth therein; they caft water upon the faid fones, which are fallen in the pit, and do cover them: then they put themfelves under the fame raft, and with motions, the Aoutmoin fingling, and the others frying (as in their dances) bet, bet, bet, they put thenifelves into a iweat. If they happen to fall into ficknefs, (for one muit die in the end) the Aoutmoin doti blow, with exercifings, upon the member grieved, doch lick it and fuck it; and if that be not fufficient, he letteth the patient blood, fcotching his flefh with the point of a knife or fomething elfe. If they do not heal them always, one mult confider that our phyficians do not always cure their particnts neither.

A Defcription of New France.

The phy.
fcriats in kivi.i.t.

In Worid. they have their farvars, who continually carry a bug full of hetbs and drags hanging about their necks to cure the fick, which are for the molt part fick of the pox; and they blow nuon the parts affected, until they draw the very blood from it.
The b, a The Brafiliun phyficians are named fiutinn phy anong them Pagcis, (they be not their Caraibes or foothlayers) who in fucking as aforefaid, they endeavour themfelves to heal difeafes; but they have one fieknefs which is incurable, which they call pians, proceeding of leachery, which notwithtanding little children fometimes have, even as them in thefe our parts that be full of pock-holes, which cometh unto them (as I think) from the corruption of their parents. This contagion doth convert itfelf into boils broader than the thumb, which difperfe themfelves throughout all the body, and even as far as the face, and being touched therewith, they bear the marks thereof all their life-time, fouler than lepers, as well Brafiliams as other nations. As for the fick body's diet, they give him not any thing, unlefs he afketh for it; and without taking any other care of them, they ceafe not to make their noife and hurly-burlies before them, drinking, fkipping and finging, according to their cuftom.
The Solt-

As for the wounds, the Aoutmoins of our Souriquis and their neighbours do lick and fuck them, ufing the beavers kidney, whereof they put a flice upon the wound, and fo it doth heal iffelf with that. The ancient Germans (fairh Tacilus) not having yet the are of chirurgery did the like: Tbey li,ing (firth he) their wounds to their mothers and to their wives, who are not afraid either to number them, or to fick them; yea they bring them cicluals to the cantp, and exhort them to fight vaiuantly: fo that fometimes armies ready to ran nwoy, bave been reftored by the prayers of the women, opening their breafls to their bufbands. And afterwards they willingly ufed the womens advices and courfich, whicrcin they cfleem fome boly thing to be.
And among the Chriftians, many (not caring for God no longer than they receive Vul. Il. good gifis of him) do leek for the healing of thair difeates, by charms and help of witches. So among outr fivages, the dontmoin taving fome fore in curre, encquireth often of his devil to know whether he hall leal or no; and hath never no anfwer bue doubtiully, by if or aud. There be fome of them which fometimes to make incredible cures, as to heal one that hath his arms cut oft'. Which notwidstanding, I know not why 1 thould tind it ftrange, when I confider what Monf. de Bifleques writeth in lis difcourfe of his embanly into Tirrky, the fourth epistle.
"Conning near unro Budd, the bafha
" fent fome of his houhold fervants to " meet us, with many heralds and officers:
" but aunong the relt, a fair tronpof young " men on horfeback, remarkable tor the " novelty of their order. They had their " heads bare and haiven, upon the which " they had made a long bloody nam, and " thruft divers feathers of birds within the " wound, from whence the very pure
" bloor! did trickle down; but inftead of " Mrinking at it, they went lifting up " their heads with a laughing countenance.
" Before me marched fome foot men, one " of them had his arms naked and hang" ing down on his fides; both which arins
" above the elbow, were thruft quite thro"
" with a knife that fluck fatt in them.
" Another was naked from his head to the " navel, havirg the fkin of his back fo
" jagged up and down in two places,
" athwart which he had made to pafs an " hatchet of arms, which he did carry in
" fcarf-wile as we would do a cutlafs.
"I faw another of them, who had fixed "" upon the crown of his head a horfhoe
" with many nails, and of fo long conti" nuance, that the nails were fo fixed and " falt in the flefh that they flirred not.
"We entred into Buda in this pomp, " and were brought into the bafha's houlfe, " with whom I treated of my affairs. All " this youthful company little caring for " their wounds, were in the lower court " of the houfe: and as I was a looking on " them, the bafha afked of me what I " thought of it? All well faid I, except " that thefe men do with the fkin of their " bodics, that which I would not do with "، my coat; for I would feek to keep is " whole. The bafha laughed, and we " took our Jcave."

Our favages do very well fometimes The trat make tryal of their conflancy, but we muft of the th confefs that it is nothing in regard of the vages conthings above rehearfed: for sll that they do is to put burning coals upon their arms, and to fuffer their fkins to burn, fo that the marks thereof do remain there for ever; which thing they do alfo on other parts of 10 (
the

$$
\longrightarrow
$$

IMAGE EVALUATION TEST TARGET (MT-3)

Photographic
Sciences
23 WEST MAIN STREET WEBSTER, N.Y. 14580 (716) 872-4503

Corporation
the body, and fhew thefe marks, to fay that they have a great couragre. But the ancient Mutius Sceriola, did much more than that, burning couragiounly his arm in the fire, after he had mifled the killing of king Porfenna. If this were of my purpole, I would declare the cuftoms of the Latedamonians, who did make every year a feaft to the honour of Diana, where the young boys did new their tryal by whipping of themfelves. Item the cuttom of the ancient rerfans, who worfhipping the fun, which they called Mitbra, none could be received to that fraternity until he had given his conftancy to be known, by fouricore kinds of torments, of fire, of water, of fafting, of folitarinefs, and other things.
But let us return to our favages phyf:cians and chirurgeons. Although the number of them be but fmall, yet to it is, that the hope of their living doth not confift Healthful wholly in that trade; for as concerning the country. ordinary fickneffes, they are fo rare in thofe parte, that the verfe of Ovid may be very well applied unto them:

Si valeant bomines ars tua Pbabe jacet:

In faying $f$, pro quia. For thefe do alfo live a great age, which is commonly feven foore or eight foore years. And if they had our commodities, to live by forecaft and induftry to gather up in fummer for the winter, I believe they would live above three hundred years: which may be conjecured, by the report that we have made heretofore of an old man in Florida, who had lived that great age. In fuch fort, that it is no particular miracle of that which Pliny faith, that the Pandorians do live 200 years, or that they of Taprobane, are lively and nimble at a hundred years old. For Membertou is above a hundred years old, and yet hath not one white hair on lis head, and fo ordinarily be the others: and that which is more in every age, they have all their teeth, and go bare-headed, not caring at leaft to make any hats of their Rins, as the firlt did that ufed them in thefe parts of the world. For they of Peloponnefus, the Lacedamonians did call a The firf hat cynen, which fulius Pollux faith, to original of fignify a dog's Rkin. And of thefe hats hats. do yet the northerly people ufe at this day, but they are well furred.

That which alfo procureth the health of Concort oar favages, is the concord which they is a cauls have among them, and the fmall care they of lize. take for the commodities of this life, for the which we torment and vex ourlelves. They lave not that ambition, which in thete parts gnaweth and fretteds the ninds and fpirits, and filleth them with cares, making blinded men to go to the grave in the very flower of theirage, and fometimes to ferve for a fhameful fpectacle to a publick death.

I dare alfo, and that very well, attribute the caute of this difipofition and long health of our favages to their manner of life, which is after the ancient fathion, without curiofity; for every one doth grant that fobriety is the mother of bealth : and Sobricty. although they fometimes exceed in their tabagies, or feafts, they diet themfelves afterwards well enough, living very often eight days more or lefs with the finoke of tobacco, not returning to hunting until they be hungry; and that befides being nimble they want no excercife, fome way or other. Bricfly, there is no mention amongt them of thofe fhort ages which do not out-pafs forty years, which is the life of certain people of Ethiopia, as Pliny faith, which do live of locurts, or grafhoppers, falted in the fmoke. Alfo corruption is not among them, which is the foftering mother of phyficians and of magiftrates, and of the multiplicity of officers, and of publick extortioners, which are created and inftituted for to give order unto it, and to cut off the abufes. They have no fuits in law, the plague of our lives, to the profecuting whereof we muft confume both our ycars and our means, and very often one cannot obtain juftice, be it either by the ignorance of the julge, to whom the cafe is difguifed, or by his own malice, or by the wickednefs of an attorncy that will fell his client: and from fuch affictions do proceed the tears, fretfulnets, and defolations, which bring us to the grave before our time: For Sorrow, faith the wife man, batb killed many, and there is no profit in it. Envy and weratb Borten the life, and care bringetb old age before the time; but the joy of the beart is the life of man, and a man's gladness prolongetb bis days.

A Defcription of New France.

C H A P. XVII.

The exercifes of the men.

AFTER healch, let us rpcak of exercifes which be the maintainers and protectors thereof. Our havages have no bafe exercife, all their fport being either the wars or hunting, whereof we will fpeak feverally, or in making implements fit for the fame, as Crefar witneffeth of the ancient Germans, or a dancing, and of that we have already fpoken, or in paffing the time Bows an! arcus. oowy: hey make then bows and arows, bows which be itrong and without finenefs; as for the arrows, it is an admirable thing, how they can make them fo long and fo ftrait with a knife, yea with a ftone only, where they have no knives. They feather them with the feathers of an eagle's tail, becaufe they are firm and carry themfelves well in the air: and when they want them they will give a beaver's ikin, yea, twain for one of thofe tails. For the head, the Gavages that have traffick with Frencbmen do head them with iron heads which are brought to them ; bus the Armoucbiquois, and others more remote, have nothing but bones made like ferpents tongues, or with the tails of a certain fifh called ficnau, the which finh is alfo found in Virginia by the fame name, at leaft the Englijß hiftorian doth write in feckenauk. This firh is like to a crauife lodged within a very hard fhell, which fhell is of the greatnefs of a difh, a long tail, likewife hard, for it is fhell and Sharp. His eyes are upon his back, and is very grod meat.

They aifo make wooden mafes, or clubs, in the fathion of an abiot's ftaff, for the war, and fhields which cover all their bodies, as did our ancient Gaullois. As for the quivers that is the womens trade.

For filhing: the Armoncbiquois which have hemp do make tifhing lines with it, but ours that have not any manuring of the ground, do truck for them with Frencbmen, as alfo for filhing hooks to bait for fifh; only they make with guts bow-ftrings, and rackets, which they tie at their feet to go upon the finow a hunting.

And for as much as the neceffity of life doth conftruin them to change place often, whether it be for fifhing (lor every place hath its particular fifh, which come thither in certain feafon) they have need of horfes in their remove for to carry their Canoes, or ftuff. Thofe horfes be canoes and fmall boats.
they remove they put all that they have into them, wives, children, dogs, kettles, hatches, matacbias, bows, arrows, quivers, fkins, and the coverings of their houfes. They are made in fuch fort, that one muft not fir nor fand up when he is in them, but crouching or fitting in the bottom, otherwife the merchandize wouldoverturn: they are four foot broad, or thereabouts, in the midft, and are fharp towards the ends, and the nofe is made rifing, for to pals commodioully upon the waves. I have faid that they make them of the barks of trees, for the keeping whereof in meafure, they garnifl them within with half circles of cedar wood, : wood very fupple and pliable, whereof Noab's ark was made: and to the end they leak not, they cover the feams, which join the faid barks together, which they make of roots, with the gum of firrtrees. They alfo make fome of willows very properly, which they cover with the faid gum of firr-trees; a thing which witneffeth that they lack no wit, where neceffity preffeth them.
Many nations of thefe parts have had the like in times part. If we feek in the holy fcripture, we fhall find that Mofes's mother, feeing the could hide her child no longer, fhe did put him in a little cheft, that is to fay, in a little canoe: for Noab's ark, and this fame finall cheft is one fame word in $^{\text {in }}$ Hebrew, made of reed, and daubed it ruith flime and pitch; tben put tbe cbild in it, and laid it among tbe butl-rufles by the Joore of the river. And the prophet Jfaiab threatning the Atbiopians and Aljyriums, Woe, faith he, unto tbe conntry wibich fendetb by Sea ambafladors in pafer veffels (or rufhes) upon tbe waters, faying, mefengers go ye quickly, \&rc. The Agyptians, neighbours to the Etbiopians had in the time of 7 fulius Cafar, the fame veffels, that is to fay, of paper, which is a rind of a bark of a tree, witnefs Lucan in thefe verfes:

Conferitur bibula Memplitis cymba papyro.

But let us come from the eaft and fouth to the north: Pliny faith, that anciently the Englifmen and Scotcbmen fetched tin in the land of Mifis, with canoes of willows fewed in leather. Solin faith as much, and Ifidore, which calleth this fafhion of canoes, carabus, made of willows, and environed with ox-hides all raw, Which, faith he, the

Saxon

A Defcription of New France.

Suxon pirates do ufe, who with tbofe inflruments are fiwift in fight. Silonetrs de Polignac, fpeaking of the fame Suxons faith, CTri pelle falams fillare Britanum Ludus, ह大 afluto glaucun mare findere lembo.

The favages of the north, towards I.abrador, lave certain fmall canoes of thirteen or fourteen foor long, and two foot broad, male of this fufhion, all covered with leather, yea, over-hend, and there is but one hole in the midft, where the man putteth himfelf on his krees, having half his body out, fo that he cannot perifh, furrifhing his veffels with vietuals before he bles of the fyrens, or mermaidens, come from that, the dunces efteeming that they were fifh, half men or women, as they have feigned centaurs by feeing men on horleb.ack.
Cames of The Armoucbiquois, Virginians, Floridians, canoes, forhaving neither hatchets norknives, except fome copper ones, they burn a great tree very ftrait at the foot, and fell it down; then they take fuch length as they will, and ufe to burn it inftead of fawing it, fcraping the burnt part of the tree with ftones: and for the hollowing of the veffel, they do continue the fance. In one of thofe boats fix men will fail with fome fuff, and will make long voyages: but thefe kind of canoes are heavier than the others.

They alfo make long voyages by land as well as by fea, and they will undertake (a thing incredible) to go 20 or 30 , yea, 40 leagues through the woods, without meeting with any path or inn, and without carrying any victuals but tobacco, and a tinder box, with their bow in hand, and their quiver at their backs; and we in France are much troubled when we have never folittle

They are гоminonty hirchtrees. lott our way in forme great foreft. If they be preffed with thirft, they have the fkill to fuck the trees, from whence do trickle down a fweet and very pleafant liquor, as myfelf have tried it fometimes.
Pottery of cath.

In the countries where they ufe tillage, as in that of the Armoucbiquois, and farther off, the men do make an infinite number of carthen-pots, like in fafhion to night-caps, in which they feeth their meats, Herh, fifh, beans, corn, pompions, Esc. Our Souriquois did fo anciently, and did till the ground; but fince that Frencbmen do bring unto them kettles, beans, peafe, bilket and other food, they are become flothful, and make no more accuunt of thofe exercifes. But as for the Armorthiquois which have yet no commerce with us, and them that are further off, they till the ground, do fatten it with Thells of filh, they have their families diftinet, and their plots of ground about them; contrary to the ancient Germans which (as Cafar faith) had not any field proper, neither did they dwell above a year in one place, having almont no other living than milk, flefh, and cheefe, thinking it too tedious a thing for them to tarry a whole year of purpofe for to reap. a harveft. Which is alfo the humour of our Souriquois and Canadians, who, and all others (as we mult needs confefs) are nothing laborious but in hunting. For, the manuring of the ground, the women do take the greatelt pains in it, who amonglt them do not command at home, and do not make their hufbands to go to the market, as they do in many provinces in thefe our parts, and efpecially in the country of Jealoufy.

As for the tillage of the Floridians, The Ebo hear what Laudonniere faith of it ; they ridians fow their corn twice a year, that is to fay, tillage. in Marcb and in fune, and all in one and the felf-fame land. The faid mill from the time that it is fowed until it be ready to be reaped, is not above three months in the ground: The fix other months they fufter the ground to reft. They alfo gather fair pompions and very good beans, they do not dung their land; only when they will fow, they fet the weeds on fire which are grown during the fix months, and burn them all. They till their land with an inftrument of wood, which is made like to a broad pickax, wherewith they dig their vines in France; they put two grains of mill together. When the lands are to be fowed, the king commandeth one of his men to call his fubjects together every day to come to labour, during the which, the king caufeth great ftore of that drink whereot we have fpoken to be made. In the feafon that the corn is gathered, it is all carricd into the common ftore-houfe, where it is diftributed to every one according to his quality. They fow but fo Their livmuch as they think will ferve them for fix ing during months, and that very hardly ; for during the winthe winter they retire themfelves three or four months of the year into the woods; where they make little houfes of palin leaves, to lodge themfulves in, and there do live of acorns, of fin which they take, of oyfters, or ftags, turkey-hens and other beafts that they take.

And feeing they have towns and houfes, Thetowns or cabins, I may yet well put this among of the fatheir exercifes. As for the towns, they vages. be multitudes of cabins, made fomewhat piramid wife ; others in form of a cottage, others like garden bowers, compaffed as it were with high pales of trees joined one near the cther, even as I have

A Defcription of New France.

Fot out the town of Ilocbelaga, in my map of the great river of Canada. Furthermore, one mult not marvel of this thape of a town, which might feem fimple; lieing that the fairett towns of Mufovey have no better inclofure. The ancient Laredicmonians would have no other walls than the ir courage and valour: Before the general flood Cain did build a town, which he named Enocb (I believe it was no otherwife made than thofe of our fivages) but he did feel the wrath of God which purfued him, and had lott all affurance. Men had but cabins and pavillions, and as it is written of Tabal the fon of Ala; tbat be was the fulber of the devellers in Taberna. cles and of Shepberds. Alier the flood they buile the tower of Bubel, but this was folly. Tacitus writing of the manners of the Germans, faith that in his time they had not any ufe neither of lime nor ftones, the Einglijp Britons much lefs. Our Gaullis were then, from many ages before, come to civility; but yet were they a long time in the beginning without any other habitations than cabins; and the firt Gaulhis king that built towns and houfes, was Mugus, who fucceeded his father the wife Samolbes, three hundred years after the food, eight ye:urs after the nativity of Abrabam, and the one and fiftieth year of the reign of Ninus, as Berofius the Cbaldean doth fay. And although they had buildings, they lay notwithttanding on the ground upon ikins, like to our favages. And as in the ancient times the names were given which contained the qualities and acts of perfons, Alugus was fo called, becaule he was the firlt builder. For in the Scylbian and Armenian language (from whence our Gaullois came fhortly after the flood) and in the ancient Gautlois tongue, Magus fignifieth a builder, faith the fame author ; and fo hath foln Anvius of Viterbo very well.marked; from whence came our names of the towns of Rotbomagus, Neomagus, Noviomagus. So likewife Samothes fignifieth wife, and the old Gaullois philofophers were (before the Druids) called Samotbeans, as Diogenes Laertius reporteth, who confeffeth that philofophy did begin from them whom the Greek vanity did call Barbarous.

I will add here for an exercife of our fava- Game of ges their play at hazard, whereunto they are the favaic addicted that fometimes they play out all ${ }^{\mathrm{geb}}$ thar they have ; and 7ames Quartier writeth the fame of them of Canads, in the time that he was there. I have feen a kind of game that they have, but not thinking then to write this treaty, I took no heed to it. They pur fome number of beans coloured and painted of the one fide in a platter ; and having ftrctched out a Kin on the ground, they play thereupon, ftriking with the difh upon this fkin, and by that means the beans do okip in the nir, and do not all fall on that part that they be coloured; and in that confifteth the chance and harard; and according to their chance they have a certain number of quills made of rufhes, which they diftribute to him that winneth for to keep the reckoning.

C H A P. XVIII.

Of the womens exercifest

the wo masm is called Pieved.

THE woman was given in the beginning unto man, not only for to aid and affitt him, but alfo to be the forehoufe of generation. Their firft exercife then that I will attribute unto her, after that the is married is to bring forth goodly children, and to affitt her hufband in this work; for this is the end of marriage. And therefore is she very well and fitly called in Hebrews Saps that is to lay Pierced, becaufe it is meet that fhe be pierc. ed, if the will imitate our common mother the earth, which in the fpring time, defirous to bring forth, openerh her bofom for to receive the rain and dews which the heaven poureth upon her. Now I find that this exercife fhall be requifite for them that will inhabit New France to bring Vol. II.
forth there ftore of creatures, which thall fing the prailes of God. There is land enough to nourifh them, fo that they be willing to work; and their condition fhall not be fo miferable as it is with many in thefe parts, which do feek to employ themfelves and to not find wherein; and albeit they find it, yet very offen is their labour unrewarded and unfruitiul. But in that country he that will take pleafure, and as it were fport himfelf with fweet labour, he fhall be affured to live out of bondage, and that his children mall yet be in better ftate than himfelf was. The firt exercife then of the woman is to work in generation, which is a labour fo fair and fo meritorious, that the great apottle $S t$. Paul, to confolate them in the pains they 10 R take

A Defription of New France.

take in that habour hath faid ; that the wooman foll be faved tbrough bearing of children, if they remain in faitb, culd love, and bolinefs weith modefly. That is to fay, if hee inftruct them in fuch fort that the godlinefs of the mother may be known by the good inftitution of the clildren.
This firtt and chieffet article being mentioned, let us come to the others. Our favage women after they have brought forth the fruit of this exercife, by I know not what practice, do oblerve without law that which was commanded in the law of Mofes touching puriication. For they thut themfelves up a-part, and know not their hulbands for thirty yea forty days; during which time they do not leave for all that from going here and there, where they have bufinefs, carrying their children with them, and taking care for them.
I have faid in the chapter of the tabagie that among the favages, the women are not in as good a condition as they were anciently among the Gaullois and Germans. For (by the report of James Quartier himfelf) they labour more than the men, faith he, whether it be in fifhing, be it in tilling or in any thing elfe. And notwithftanding they are neither forced, nor tormented; but they are neither in their tabagies nor in their councils, and do the fervile bufinefs, for want of fervants. If there be any venifon killed, they go to flay it and to fetch it, yea were it three leagues off; and they mult find it our by the only circumftance that fhall be defribed to them by words. They that have prifoners do alfo employ them to that, and to other labours, as to go fetch wood with their wives ; which is folly in them to go fetch dry and rotten wood very far off for to warm them, although they be in the midnt of a foreft. True it is that the fmoke is very irkfome to them, which it may be is the caufe thereof.
Touching their fimaller exercifes; when the winter doth approach, they prepare that which is neceffary to oppofe themfelves againt this rigorous adverfary, and make matts of rufhes, wherewith they garnifh their cabins, and others to fit upon, and all very artificially; yea alfo colouring their rufhes, they make partitions in their works, like to them that our gardeners do make in their garden knots, with fuch meafure and proportion as nothing is found amifs therein. And becaufe that the body muft alfo be cloathed, they curry and fupple the fikins of beavers, flags and others, as well as can be done here. If they be little they few many together, and make cloaks, neeves, ftockings, and floes, upon all which things they make works which have a very groad grace: Item, they make panicers of ranes and Pawes. roots, for to put their necculities in, is corn, beans, peite, Heilh, tilla and other things. They make allio puries of lea- pafes. ther, upon which they make works worthy of admiration, with the hairs of porcupines, coloured with rad, black, Dies. white and blue, which be the colours that they make, fo lively that ours feem in nothing to be comparable to them. They Dines. alfo exercife themfelves in making dihies of bark to drink, and put their meats in, which are very fair according to the fturf. Item, fcarts, necklaces and bracelets which they and the men do wear, which they Muc, . call matachias, are of thcir making, citut. When the barks of trees mutt be taken off in the fyring-time, or in furmmer, therewith to cover thcir houfes, it is they which do that work; as likewife they labour in the malking of canoes and fimall canoes; boats, when they are to be made; and as for the elling of the ground (in the countries where they ufe it) they take thercin more pains than the men, who do play the gentlemen, and have no care but in huntung, or of wars. And nctwithftanding all their labours, yet comunonly they love their hufbandis inore than the woinen $T_{h}$ : wn: of thefe our paits. For none of them are nesis lovo feen to 1 am ary again upon their graves, to their that is to fiy prefiently after their deceafe, hubbunds. but rather do tarry a long time. And if he hath been killed, they will eat no fleh nor will condeficend to fecond marriage until they have feen the revenge thereot made; a teftimony both of true love (which is farce found among us) and alfo of chaftity. Alfo it happeneth very feldom that they have any divorcemcuts, but fuch as are voluntary; and if they were Chriftians they would be familics with whom God would dwell and be well pleafed, as it is meet it flould be fo, for to have perfect contentment ; for otherwife marriage is but torment and tribulation; which the Hebrews, great fpeculators and fearchers into holy things, by a fubtle animadverfion, have very well noted, for Aben Hezra frith, that in the name of the man $\mathscr{E N}$ and of the woman | the |

| :---: | name of God, $\mathcal{Y} a b$, is contained ; and if the two letters which do make this name of God be taken away, there fhall remain

 nify fire and fire ; that is to fay, that God being taken away it is but anguilh, tribulation, bitternefs and grief.

$A D e f c r i p t i o n ~ o f ~ N e w ~ F r a n c e . ~$

C H A P. XIX.

Of their civility.

ON E muft not hope to find in our favages that civility which the Scribes and Pbarifees did require in the difciples of our Lord. For which their over great curiofity he made them fuch anfwer as they deferved; for they had brought in ceremonies and cuftoms which were repugnant to God's commandment, which they would have ftreightly to be oblerved, teaching ungodlinefs under the name of piety. For if a wicked child did give and put into the common box of the temple that which appertained to his father, or to his mother, they (for to draw this profit) did juftify this wicked fon, againtt the commandment of God, who hath above all things commended and commanded the childrens obedience and reverence towards them that have brought them into the world, which are the image of God, who hath no need of our goods, and doth not accept the oblation that is made unto him of the goods of another. The fame Scribes and Pbarifees did alfo bring in a civility to wath hands, which our Lord doth not blame but in as much as they made the not obferving of it to be a great fin.

I have no caufe to praife our favages in thofe kind of civilities, for they wafh not themfelves at ineals; unlefs they be monftroufly foul; and not having any ufe of linnen, when their hands be greafy they are conftrained to wipe them on hairs, or upon their dogs hairs. They make no curiofity of belching, being at meals; which the Germans and others in thefe parts do as weli as they. Not having the art of joyners work they dine upon the broad table of the world, fpreading a fkin where they eat their meat, and fit on the ground. The Turks alfo do the fame. Our ancient Gatllois were no better than they, who (Diodorus faith) did the fame, fpreading on the ground dogs fkins, or wolves fkins, upon which they did dine and fup, making themfelves to be ferved by young boys. The Germans were more rude ; for they had not learning, philofophy, nor fo much delicatenefs as our nation, which Cefar faith to have had the ufe of a thoufand things by the means of their navigations on the feas, whereby they helped the bordering people of Gcrmany, who ufed fome fmall civility, and more humanity than the others of their nation, by reafon of the communication they had with our people.

As for the compliments that they ufe one towards another coming from far, they may very briefly be recited; for we have many times feen favage ftrangers to The fava: arrive in Port Royal, who being landed, ges faluta. without any difcourfe, went ftrait to tiuns. Membertou's cabin, where they fat down, taking tobacco, and having wel! drunken of it, did give the tobacco-pipe to him that feemed to be the worthieft perfon, and after confequently to the others; then fome half an hour after they did begin to fpeak. When they arrived at our lodgings, their falutation was, $H o, b o$, $b o$, and fo they do ordinarily ; but for making of curtefies and kiffing of hands they have no fkill ; except fome particulars which endeavoured themfelves to be conformable unto us, and feldom came they to fee us without a hat, to the end they might falute us with a more folemn action.
The Floridians do make no enterprife, The Flori: before they affemble their counfel divers dians falu: times; and in thefe affemblies when they tations. arrive they falute one another. The Paraoufti (whom Laudonniere calleth king) placeth himfelf alone upon a feat which is higher than the others ; where, one after another, they come to falute him, and the eldeft begin their falutation, lifting up twice both their hands as high as their faces, faying $\mathrm{Ha}, \mathrm{be}, \mathrm{ya}, b a, b a$, and the others do anfwer, Ha, ba. And they fit every one upon feats which are about the council-chamber.

Now whether the falutation $\mathrm{Ho}, \mathrm{bo}$, doth fignify any thing or no (for I know no particular fignification in it) yet notwithftanding it is a falutation of joy, and the only voice $H o$, bo, cannot be made but almoft in laughing, teftifying thereby that they are glad to fee their friends. The Greeks have never had any thing elfe in their falutations; but a witneffing of joy by their word cbaire, which fignifieth, be ye merry ; which Plato dinliking was of advice that it were better to fay fopbroney, be ye wife. The Latins have had their ave, which is a wifh of happinefs ; fometimes alfo falve, which is a wifhing of health to whom one faluteth. The Hebreevs had the verb Balum which is a word of peace and of health. Acr cording unto which our Saviour did command
mand his apoftles to falute the houfes where they thould enter in, that is to fay, according to the interpertation of the common tramation, tu pronounce peace mito thens; which falutation of peace was from the firlt ages anongtt the people of God. For it is written that 76 thro, Mofis's father in law, coming to rejoice with him for the graces that God had done unto him and unto his people, by the delivering of them from the land of Egpt, Mofes suent ont 10 meet bis fa. ther-in-liww, and baving bowed bimfelf kiffoll bim; and tbey faluted one anotber wish zoords of peace. We Freachmen do fay, Dicu rous gard, that is, God keep you, Diew rous doint le bon jour, God give you good morrow; Item, Le bon foir, good evening. Notwithit anding there be many, who ignorantly do fay, Je vous donne, Le bon jour, Le bon foir, that is to fay, I give (or bid) you good morrow, good evening; a manner of fipeerh which would be more decent, by defiring and praying to God that it be fo. Angels have fometimes faluted men, as he who did fay to Gideon: Moft frong and valiant inan, the Lord is with tbee. But God faluteth no body; for it belongeth to him to give falvation, and not to wifh it by prayer.
salutation. The heathen had yet a civility in falutin frees. ing them which did finecze, which cultom ing. we have kept of them. "And the empe" ror Tilerius, the faddelt man in the world " (faith Pliny) would be faluted in fneezos ing, although he were in his coach, "E'c. All thofe ceremonies and inftitu" tions (fuith the fame author) are come "from the opinion of them which think "that the gods will aflift our affairs." Out of thefe words may be eafily conjectured that the falutations of the heathen were prayers and vows for healch, or other felicity, that they made to the gods.

And as they did fuch things in meetings, fo did they ufe the word vale (be ye well, The amis. be ye in health, as we ufe to fay in Euglifh in the befare you well) at the departure; yea in let- giming of ters and epittles, which alfo they begon al- leters. ways with thefe words: If you ive in bealli, it is well; I am in bea!ib. But seneca faith that this good cuftom was broken in his time; as at this day among us it is to write clownifh like to pat int the beginning of a letter, God keep you in bealth; which was in times palt a holy and Chriftian manner of writing. Inftead of this vale, which is often found in the holy feriptures, we fay in our language $A$ Dieu of $A$ Dis God be with you, withing not only health God be to our friend, but alfo that God do keep with you. him.

But our favages have not any falutation at the deputure, but only the $A$ Dien which they have learned of us. And to finith this difiourfe where we began, they are to be combunded for their obedience The fayathat th:y yick to their fathers and mothers, ges obectito whote commandenents they obey, do entotheir nourifh them in their old age, and defend parents. them againft their enemies. And here withus (Oh miferable thing!) there is often feen the childrens fuits in law againtt their parents; books of the fatherly power are feen publifhed, concerning the childrens withdrawing from their obedience. An unworthy att for children that be Chriltians, to whom may be applied the fpeeches of Tiarnus Hernowius, recited in Titus Livius, faying, tbat there is no speedier deciding and taking up of any matter, than between the falber and tbe jon; a tbing tbat might be dijpatibed in few acords; for if be would not obey and give place to bis falber, undoubtedly evil fiould come to bim. And the word of God which is a thunder-bolt faith: Curfed be be wbo bonoureth not bis fatber and bis motber, and all tbe people 乃ball fay Amen.

C H A P. XX.  Of the virtues and vices of the favages.

VIRTUE like unto wifdom, difdaineth not to be lodged under a mean roof. The northerly nations are the laft that have been brought to civility ; and notwithftanding, before that civility, they have done great actions. Our favages, although they be naked, are not void of thofe virtues, that are found in men of civility; for every one (faith Ariftotle) batb in bim, cven from bis birtb, the principles and feeds of virtue. Taking then the four virtues by their fprings, we fhall find that they participate much of them. For firlt concerning fortitude and courage, they have thereof as much as any nation of the favages (I fpeak of our Souriquois and of their allied) in fuch fort, that ten of them will always adventure themfelves againft twenty Armoucbiquois; not that they be altogether without fear (a thing which the

A Defcription of New France.

Fore-alleged Arifotle doth reproach to the ancient Celtien-Gaullois, who feared nothing, neither the motions of the earch, nor the tempefts of the fea, faying, that this was the property of an harebrain lellow) but with that courage they lave, they efteem that wifdomgiveth unto them much advantage. They fear then, but it is that which all wife men do fear, and that is death, which is terrible and dreadful, as fhe that rifleth all, through which the paffech. They fear Chame and reproach, butthis fearis coufin-german to virtuc. They areftirred to do good by honour, for as much as he, amongtt them, is always honoured, and getteth renown to himfelf that hath done fome fair exploit. Having thefe things proper unto them, they are in a mediocrity, which is the very feat of virtue. One point maketh this virtue of force and courage imperfect in them, that is, they are too revengeful ; and in that they put their fovercign contentment, which inclineth to brutifhnefs. But they are not alone, for all thofe nations how far foever they may ftretch themfelves from one pole to the other, are infected with this vice. The Chriftian religion only may bring them to reafon, as in fome fort fhe doth with us (I fay in fome fort) becaufe that we have men very imperfect, as well as the favages.
reproved in them than in us ; yea I will fay lefs, in that which concerneth the venerial action, whereto they are little addieted; not compreherding here, lor all that, them of $M$ crida, and in hotter countries, of whom we have fpoken heretofore.

Liberality is a virtue as worthy praife, Liberal. as avarice and prodigality, her oppofites, ity. are blame-worthy. It confifteth in giving and rectiving, but rather in giving in time and place, and according to occalion, without excefs. This virtue is proper and befitting great perfonages, which be as it were itewards of the goods of the earth, which God hath put into their hands, for to ufe them liberally, that is to fay to diftribute them to him that hath none, not being exceffive in needlefs expences, nor too fparing where magnificence is to be fhewn.

Our favages are praife-worthy in the exercife of this virtue, according to their poverty ; for as we have faid before, when they vifit one another, they give mutual prefents one to the other. And when forne Fronch Sag amos cometh to them, they do the like with him, cafting at his feet fone bundle of beavers, or other furrs, which be all their riches; and fo did they to Monf. de Poutrincourt, but he took them not to his own proper ufe, but rather put them into Monf. de Monts's fore-houfe, becaufe he would not go againft the privilege given unto him. This cuftom of the faid favages proceedeth but from a liberal mind, and which hath fome generofity. And although they be very glad when the like is done unto them, yet fo it falleth out, that they begin the venture, and put themfelves in hazard to lofe their merchandife. And who is he amongft us that doth more than they, that is to fay, which giveth but with intention to recf. : the poet faith,

Nemo fuas gt.e:s perdere vellet opes.

"There is no body that giveth, intend" ing to lofe."

If a great perfonage giveth to a mean man, that is for to draw fome fervice from him. Even that which is given to the poor, is to receive the hun-dred-fold, according to the promife of the gofpel; and for to fhew the gallantnefs of our faid favages; they do not willingly cheapen, and do content thenfelves with that which is given them honeftly with a willing mind, diflaining and blaming the fafhions of our petty merchants, which be an hour a cheapning for to buy a beaver-fkin; as I faw bcing at the river $S t$. 70 obn, whereof I have fpoken heretofore, that they called a young merchant of St. Malo, Merceio10 S rit, which is a word of reproach among them, borrowed of the Bafques, fignifying as it were, a haggling tellow. Finally, they have nothing in them but framknefs und liberality in their exchanging. And feeing the bafe manners of fome of our men, they demanded fometimes, what they came to feek for in their country, fiying, that they came not into ours; and fecing that we are richer than they, we fhould give them liberally that which we have.

Out of this virtue, there groweth in them a magnificence which cannot appear, and remaineth hidden, but for all that they are provoked by it, doing all they can for to welcome their friends. And Membertou was very defirous that fo much honour fhould be done unto him as to fhoot off our cannons when he did arrive, becaufe he faw that the fame was done to the Frencl captains in fuch a cafe, faying that it was due unto him, feeing that he was a Sagamos.

Here hofpitality may be mentioned; but having fpoken thereof herctofore, I will retir the reader to the chapter of the tabagie, where I give them the praife attributed to the Gaullois and ancient Frenchmen for this refpect. True it is that in fome places there be fome which be friends for the rime, and take their advantage in neceffity, as hath been noted in Laxdonn:icre's voyage. But we cannot accufe them in that, lelt we alfo accufe ourfelves, The feety which do the like. One thing I will fay of the fio that belongeth to fatherly piery, that the vore to- children are not fo curfed as to defpife warlis their phrents. their parents in old age, but do provide for them with venifon, as the fiorks do towards them that have ingendred them. A thing which is the Game of many Chrittians, who being weary of their parents long life, do oftentimes ftrip them before they go to bed, and fo do leave them naked.

They ufe alfo humanity and mercy towards their enemies wives and little children, whofe lives they fpare, but they remain their prifoners for to ferve them, according to the ancient right of fervitude, brought in amongft all the nations of the other world, againft the natural liberty. But as for the men of defence they fpare none, but kill as many of them as they can catch.

As for juftice, they have not any law cither divine or human, but that which nature teacheth them, that one muft not offend another. So have they quarrels very feldom; and if any fuch thing do chance to happen, the Sagamos quieteth all, and doth juftice to him that is offended, giving fome baftinadoes to the wrong doer, or condemning him to make fome prefents to the other, for to pacify hlm, which is fome form of dommion. If it be one of their priboners, that hath offended, he is in danger to go to jot. For after he is killed no body will reverige his death: the fame conlideration is in thefe parts of the world; there is no account made of a man's life that hath no fupport.
One day there was an Armoncbiquois wo- Execution man, prifoner, who ladi caufed a country- of jullice. man of hers, prifoner, to efcape away; and to the end to travel and pafs on the way, the had ftolen from Membertou's cabin a tinder-box (for without that they can do nothing) and a hatchet ; which being come to the knowledge of the favages, they would not proceed on the execution thereof near unto us, but they went to cabin themfelves four or five leagues from Port Royal, where the was killed: and becaufe the was a woman, our favages wives and daughters did execute her. Kinibecl.-coech, a young maid of eighteen years of age, fair and well fpotted with colours, gave her the Girf froke in the throat, which was with a knife; another maid of the fame age, handfome enough, called Metembroech, followed on, and the daughter of Memberton, which we called Membertou-ecb-coech, made an end. We reproved them Marply for this cruelty. whereof they were all afhamed, and durft not thew themfelves any more. This is their form of juftice.

Another time a man and a woman, prifoners, went clean away, without tinderbox or any provifion of meat; which was hard to be performed, as well for the great diftance of way, which was above three hundred leagues by land, becaufe it behoved them to go fecretly, and to take heed from meeting with any favages. Neverthelefs thofe poor fouls pulled off the bark of certain trees, and made a little boat with the bark of them, wherein they croffed the bay Francoife, and got to the other Shore, over-againt Port Royal, fhortning their way above one hundred and fifty leagues; and got home into their country of the Armoucbiquois.

I have faid in fome place that they are Wherein not laborious, but in hunting and fifhing, the fava. loving alfo the labour taken by fea; noth- ges are diful at all other painful exercife, as in the ligental. manuring of the ground, and in our mechanical trades; alfo to grind corn for their own ufe. For fometimes they will rather feeth it in grains, than to grind it by handy ftrength. Yet notwithtanding they will not be unprofitable; for there will be fome means to employ them, to that whercunto they be inclined by nature, without forcing it; as heretofore did the Lacedemonian to the young mien of their commonwealth. As lor the children having yet taken no bias, it will be eafier to keep them at home and to employ them i.. thofe things that

Shall be thought fit: howfoever it be, hunting is no bad thing, nor fißhing neither. Let us fee then how they behave themfelves therein.

CHAP. XXI.

Of tbeir lunting.

GOD, before fin, gave for food unto man, every herb bearing feed upon all the earth, and every tree wherein is the fruit of a tree bearing feed; without making mention of the filling of the blood of beafts: and notwithftanding after the banifhment from the garden of pleafure, the labour ordained for the punifiment of the faid fin, required a ftronger and more fubftantial food than the former; fo man full of carnality, accuftomed himfelf to feed upon flefh, and did tame certain number of beafts for to ferve him to that effect ; though fome would fay, that before the flood no flefh was eaten: for in vain had Abel been a fhepherd, and fabel father of thepherds. But after the flood, God renewing his covenant with man; tbe fear and dread of you, fauth the Lord, Ball be upon every beaft of tbe eartb, and upon every fowl of the beaven, wilb all tbat movetb on tbe earth, and upon all tbe fifbes of the faa; they are given into your bands 3 all tbat moveth, bueving life, Ball be unto you for meat.

The beglaning of of hunting. Upon this privilege is formed the right of be in the ufe of man, feeing that God is the author of it. And therefore no marvel if kings and their nobility have referved it unto them, by a well concluding reafon, that if they command unto men, with far better reaion may they command unto beafts. And if they have the adminiftration of justice to judge malefactors, to overcome rebels, and to bring to human fociety wild and favage men; with far better reafon fhall they have it for to do the flume towards the creatures of the air, of the forefts and of the fields. As for them of the fea, we will fpeak of them in another place. And feeing that kings have have been for in the beginning cholen by the people, choien. encancs, whillt that they are at their neceffary works; and to make war as much as need is for the reparation of injury, and recovery of that which hath been wrongfully ufurped, or taken away; it is very realomable and decent, that as well them as the nobility that do aftift and ferve them in thofe things, have the excrcife of hunting, which is an image of waf, to the end to roufe up the mind and to be always nimble, ready to take horfe, for to go to encounter with the enemy, to lie in ambufh, to affail him, to chace him, to trample him under foot. There is another and The firt frift aim in hunting, it is the food of man, end of whereunto it is deltinated, as is known by hunti,i, i the place of fcripture afore alleged: yea, I fay fo deftinated, that in the holy language, it is but one and the felf-fame word 7 's for to fignify hunting (or venifon) and meat: as among a hundred places this of the 132d pfalm. Where our God having chofen Sion for his habitation and perpecual reft, promifeth unto her, that he will abundantly blefs her victuals, and will fatisfy her poor with bread. Upon which place, St. Hierome termeth venijon, that which the other trandators do call virfuals, better to the purpofe than widow in the common tranfation.

Hunting then having been granted unto man by a heavenly privilege, the favages throughout all the Wefl-Indies, do exercife themfelves therein without diftinction of perfons, not having that fair order eftablifhed in thefe parts, whereby fome are born for the government of the people and the defence of the country, others for the exercifing of arts and the tillage of the ground, in fuch fort, that by this fair œeionomy every one liveth in fafety.
This hunting is made amongit them chiefly in the winter. For all the fpring and fummer time, and part of autumn, having fifh abundantly for them and their friends, without taking any pains, they do not much feek for other food. But in winter when that fifh goeth away, feeling the cold, they forfake the fea flores and cabin themfelves within the woods, where they know to have any prey; which is done as far as the countries that approach near to the Tropic of Cancer. In the countrics where beavers are, as throughout all the great river of Canada, and upon the coalts of the ocean, as far as the country of the Armouchiquois, they do winter upon the thores of lakes, for the fifhing of the faid beavers, whereof we will speak in due p'ace: bus firt let us fpeak of the ellan, which they call aptapton, and our Bafques orignac.
The de. It is the talleft creature that is, next unforption to the dromedary and camel, for it is higher orithe ellan thon the horfe. His hairs le commonly or fag. of grey colour, and fometimes of dun or f.llow, almoit as long as the tingers of one's hand: his head is very long, and hath almoft in infinite order of teeth: he leareth his horns double like the Itag, but as broad as a plank, and three foot long, garnifhed with forigs growing upward all along upon one lide: his fiet be lorked as the ftags, but much more that: his theth is Thort and vary delicate: he feedeth in the meadows, and liveth alfo of the tender crops of trecs. It is the plentifulleft thing that the favages have, next to fifh.
Pit rimn to We may fay then, that the beft and fithud ${ }^{\text {g }}$ teft time for the faid favages to all hunting by land is the winter feafon, when that the forelts be hoary, and the fnow deep, andefpecially if upon the fnow, there comes a hard frot which doth harden it. Then being well cloathed with a cloak furred with beavers, and flecves on the arms tied together with a latch; item flockings made with the leather of ellans, like to buff, (which they tie at their girdles) and thoes on their feet of the fame leather, very finely made; they go with their bow in hand, and the quiver on their backs, that way that their Aoutmoin hath fhewn them (for we have faid heretofore that they conlult with the oracle when they are hungry) or fomewhere elfe, where they think they fhall not lofe their time and labour. They have dogs or hounds almoft like to foxes in form and bignefs, and of hairs of all colours, which follow rhem; and although they do not fpend nor call, neverthelets they can very vell find the haunt of the bealt which they feek for, which being found, they purfiue her courageounly, and they never give her over until they have Kust:ers at her down: and for to follow the game more eafily, they tie rackets (thrice as great as ours) under their feet, with the which they run iwiftly upon that hard fnow without finking: if it be not hard enough, yet they give not over hunting, but will follow the chace three days together, if need be. Finally, having wounded her to death, they fo tire her with their hounds, that the is forced to fall down; then they cut and rip up her belly, give relief to the hunters, and take their fhare of it. One muft not thinl: that they eat the flefh raw, as tome do imagine, and as Fames Quartier himfelf doh write, for they carry always, going through the woods, a tinder-box before their breafts for to make fire when hunting is done, where the night doth force them to tarry.

We went once to the fpoil of an ellan, left dead upon the brink of a great brook, about two leaguss and an half within the lands; where we paffed the nighe, having taken the fnows for to lodge us. We made there a very dainty feaft with this venifon, more tender than any other kind of Heth; and after the roaft we had fodden meat, and broth abundantly, made ready at an intlant by a favage, who did frame with his hatchet, a tubb or trough of the body of a tree, in which he boiled his flefh. A thing which I have admired, and hav- Fars in. ing propounded it to many, who thought vantion of themielves to have good wits, could not a lavage find out the invention of it , which not. firishen. withltanding is but brief, which is, to put fones made red hot in the fire in the faid trough, and to renew them until the meat be fod. Fofeph Acofia recitech, that the favages of Peru do the fame.

The chiet hunter being returned to the cabins telleth the women what he hath done, and that in fuch a place, which he nameeh to them, they fhall find the venifon. It is the faid womens cluty to go and The woflay the ellan, the dear, ftag, bear, or other mens dugame, and to bring it home. Then they ty. make good chear as long as there is any provifion ; and he that hath hunted, is he that hath the leffer fhare; for their cultom is, that he muft ferve the others, and raveth none of his oun purchafe. As long as the winter continueth, thry lack none of it; and there hath been fome one favage, that in a hard feafon harh killed fifty of them for his part, as I have fomerimes heard.
As for the hunting of the beaver, it is why the alfo in winter that cliiefly they ufe ir, for beaser is two reafons ; one of them we have alleged not cakea heretofore, the other becaufe that alter in fumwinter this beaft heddeth her hairs, and mer. hath no furr in fummer. Befides, that when in fuch a feafon they would feek our for beavers, hardly fhould they meet with any, becaufe this creature is amphibious, that is to fay, earthy and waterifh, and more waterifh than otherwife; and having no invention to take her in the water, they might be in danger to lofe their pains. Notwithttanding if by chance they meet any in fummer-time, fpring-time, or autumn, they fail not to eat it.

Behold then how they eatch them in win- The de. ter time, and with moft profir. The bea-feription ver is a beaft very near as big as a fhorn and fifting theep, the young ones be lefs, the co- of thebealour of his hair is of a chefnut colour: ver his feet be fhort, the fore-feet have claws, and the hinder feet with fins, like geefe: the tail is as it were fcaled, almoft of the form of a foal-fif, notwithtanding the fcale goech not off: it is the beft and delicatelt part of the bealt. As for the head, it

A Defcription of New France.

The heavers cabin or den.

How the besver is enken.

It is mort and almoft round, having two ranks of jaws at the fides, and before four great tharp teeth one by another, two above and two beneath: with thefe teeth he cuttech fmall trees and poles in fundry pieces, wherewith he buildeth his houre. That which I fay is an admirable and incredible thing. This creature lodgeth himfelf upon the brinks of lakes, and there he firt maketh his couch with Araw or other things fit to lic upon, as well for him as for his female: raifeth a vault with his wood, cut and prepared, which he covereth with turf, in fuch fort that no wind enters therein, forafmuch as all is covered and thut up, except one hole which leadeth under the water, and by that way he goeth forth to walk where he lifteth. And becaufe the waters of the lakes do fometimes rife, he maketh a chamber above the lower dwelling, for to retire himfelf in, if in cafe any inundation fhould happen: in fuch fort, that fome beavers cabin is above eight foot high, all made with wood; piramidwife, and daub'd with mud. Moreover It is held that being amphibious, as we have faid, he muft always participate with water, and that his tail be dipped in It; which is the caufe why he lolgeth himeelf fo near a lake. But being fubtle he contenteth not himfelf with that which we have faid; but hath moreover an Iffue into another place out of the lake, without any cabln, by which way lie goeth on the land and beguileth the hunter. But our favages being aware of it, take order for the fame and ftopt his paffage.
When they will then take the beaver, they pierce through the ice of the frozen lake, about his cabin, then one of the favages thrufteth his arm into the hole, tarrying the coming of the faid beaver, whilft that another goeth upon this ice, ftriking with a ftaff upon it for to aftonifh him, and make him to return into his lodging. Then one mult be mimble for to feize on his neck, for if one catch him by any part where he may bite, he will bite very fore. The flefh thereot is very good; almoft as if it were mutton.

And as every nation hath commonly fomething peculiar that it bringeth forth, which is not fo common with others; fo anciently the realm of Pontus had the fame for the producing of beavers, as I learn it but of Virgil, where he faith;

> - Virofaque Pontus cafored,

And after him, of Sidonie de Polignac bihhop of Auvergne; in thefe verfes;

[^3]Aitis mel, Pbenix palinas, Lacedamenolivuim, Argos equos, Epirus equas, pecwaria Gallus, Arma Calybs, frumenta Libes, Caimpanus jacchum, Aurum L.ydus, Arabs guttam, Pancbaia myrrbam, Pontus eaforea, blattam Tyrus, ara Corin: bus, ETc.

Sidon. Apol. in Carm. 5.
But at this day, the land of Camada beareth the bell away for that refpect, although that fome of them are brought out of $M u f$ coog, but they are not fo good as ours.
Our favages have alfo made us to eat of beavers flefh, which was very good and tender, and like to beef: item, of leopards, refembling much the wild cat, and of 3 beaft whict they call nibatbes, which hath Nibathrs. his paws almont like to the ape's paws, by means whereof he climbeth eafliy upon the trees, yea he layeth his young ones there. He is of greyim hairs, and his head like to a fox; but he is fo fat that it is almoft incredible. Having defcribed the principal game, I will not itand to fpeak of wolves (for they have fome, and yet eat none of them) nor of lucerns, otters, concys, and others which I have mentioned in'my Farewell to New Franci, whereto I refer the reader, and to the recital of Capt. James Quartier.

Neverthelefs it is good to thew here; that bur French catcle profitech very well in thofe parts. We had hogs which have Hogi: multiplied very much; and although they had a ftye, they did lie abroad, even in the fnow and during the froot. We had but one a wewether, which proved very well, although ther: he was not taken in by night; but was in the midit of our yard in winter time. Monf. de Poutrincourt made him twice to be fhorn, and the wool of the fecond year, hath been efteemed in Frante better by two fous; or feven farthings Engli/h, in the pound than that of the firt. We had no other houfhold cattle, but heris and pigeons, which failed not to yield the accuftomed tribute, and to multiply abundantly. The faid Monf. de Poutrincourt took, coming out of the fhell, fmall outards, which he did very well breed; and gave them to the king at his return: When the country is once ftored with thofe creatutes and others; they will encreafe fo much, that one fhall not know what to do with them; like as in Peru, where are at this day, and long fince, fuch quantity of oxen, kine; fwine; horfes and dogs, that they have no more owners, but do appertain to the firft that do kill them: Being killed, they carry away the hides to traffic withal, and the carcaffes are left there; which I have many 10 T times
times heard of them that have been there, befides the witnefling of fofetb siofita.
I'he heafts of Fioridia and 'rirsi nia. Coming into the country of the Armoucbiquois, and going farther towards Virginia and Florida, they have no more ellans nor beavers, but only ftags, hinds, rocbucks, deers, bears, leopirds, lucerns, ounces, wolves, wild-dogs, hares and coney6, with whofe kins they cover their bodies, making chamois of them of the biggeft bealts. But as the heat is there greater than in the countries more northerJy, fo they do not ufe furrs, but pluck out the hairs from their ikins , and very often for all garment they have but half breeches, or a fmall cufhion made with their matts, which they wear on that fide that the wind doth blow.
But they have in Florida crocodiles alfo, which do affail them ofrentimes in fwimming. They kill fome of them fometimes, and eat them: the flefh whereof is very fair and white, but it fmelleth of mufk. they have alfo a certain kind of lions, which iittle differ from them of Africa.
Brafiians. As for the Brafilians, they are fo far from New France, that being as it were, in another world, their bealts are quite different from thofe that we have named, Tupirrouf. as the tapirroufou, which if one defireth to
fou. fec, he muft imagine a beaft half an afs and half a cow, faving that her tail is very mort: his hairs draw towards red, no horns, ears hanging, and an afs's foot: the flefh thereof is like to beef.
They have a certain kind of fmall ftags and hinds, which they call feou-aflous, whofe hairs be as long as goat's hairs.

But they are perfecuted with an evil beaft which they call janou-are, almoft as tall and fwift as a grey-hound, much like to the ounce; fhe is cruel, and doth not fpare thein if he can catch them. They take fometimes fome of them in frares, and do kill them with long torments. As for their crocodiles they be not dangerous.

Their wild-boars are very lean and un- Wild flehy, and they have a fearful grunting joars. and cry. But there is in them a ftrange deformity, which is, that they have a hole upon the back, through which they blow and breathe. Thofe three be the biggeft beafts of Brafil. As for fmall ones they have feven or eight forts of them, by the taking whereof they live, and alfo of man's fleh; and are better and more provident hufbands than ours. For one cannot find them unprovided, but rather having always upon the boucan, (that is to fay a wooden grate fomewhat high built upon four forks) fome venifon or fihh, or man's flefh ; and with that they live merrily and without care.

Now leaving there thofe Antbropopbages Brafilians, let us return to our New France, where the Men there are more humane, and live but with that which God hath given to man, not devouring their like. Alfo we muft fay of them that they are truly noble, not having any action but is generous, whether we confider their hunting, or their employment in the wars, or that one fearch out their domeftical aetions, wherein the women do exercife themfelves, in that which is proper unto them, and the men in that which belongeth to arms, and other things befitting them, fuch as we have faid, or will fpeak of in due place. But here one mult confider, that the moft part of the world have lived fo from the beginning, and by degrees men have been civilized, when that they have affembled themelves, and have formed commonwealths for to live under certain laws, rule and policy.

C H A P. XXII.

Of kawking:

SEEIN G that we hunt on the land, let us not overftray ourfelves, left if we take the fea we lofe our fowls; for the wife man faith, that in vain the net is spread before the eyes of all tbat bave wings. It hunting then be a noble exercife, wherein the very mufes themfelves take delight, by reafon of filence and folitarinefs, which brings forth fair conceits in the mind; in fuch fort, that Diana (faich Pliny) dotb not more frequent the mountains than Minerva. If, I fay, hunting be a noble exercife, hawking is far more noble, becaufe it aimeth at an higher fubject, which doth participate of heaven, feeing that the inhabitants of the air, are called in the facred fcripture, volucres call, the fowls of the air. Moreover, the exercife thereof doth belong but to kings and to the nobles, above which their brightnefs mineth, as the fun's brightefs doth above the ftars. And our favages being of a noble heart, which maketh no account but of hunting and martial affairs, may very certainly have right right of ufage over the birds that their land doth afford them; which they do likewile, but with much difficulty, beciaufe they have not (as we have) the ufe of guns. They have enough, and too many birds of prey, as eagles, laynards, faulcons, tiercelcts, fparrow-hawks, and others, which I have fpecified in iny Farezvel to $N_{c} w$ Firance; but they have neither the ufe nor induftry to bring them to fervice, as the French gentlemen; and therefcre they lofe much good fowl, having no other means to feek after them, or to take them, but only with the bow and arrows, with which inftruments they do, like unto them who in France fhoot at the jay in time of middle-lent, or creep along the grafs, and go to affail the outards, or wild gecfe, which do graze in the fpring time, and in fummer along the meadows: fometimes alfo they carry themfelves foftly , and without making any noife, in their canoes and light veffels made with bark of trees, even to the fhores where the mallards and other water-fowl are, and there ftrike them down. But the greateft abundance they have, come from certain inards, where fuch quantity of them are, Greas abundance outir of water fowl. rants and others, that it is a wonderful thing, yea that which Capt. Fames 2uartier reciteth, will feem to fome altogether incredible. When we were upon our return into France, being yet beyond Campfeau, we paffed by fome of thofe inlands, where in the fpace of a quarter of an hour, we laded our bark wiuli them, we had no need but to Itrike down with ftaves, and not to go about to gather until one were weary of ftriking. If any man doth ask why they fly not away, one muft confider that they be birds only of two, three, or four months old, which havè been there hatched in the fpring-time, and have not yet wings great enough to take flight, though they be well flefhy and in good flocks upon the fhores of the waters; which allo very often were paid home.

A Defcription of New France.

Touching the birds of prey, fome of our men took from the neft an eagle, from the top of a pine-apple tree, of the moft monflrous height that ever I faw any tree, which eagle, Monf. de Poutrincourt did breed for to prefent her to the king, but fhe brake her ties, feeking to take her flight, and loft herfelf in the fea coming home. The favages of Campfenu had fix of them perched near to their cabins, at our coming thither, which we would not truck for, becaufe they had pulled off their tails to feather their arrows. There be fuch a quantity of them in thofe parts, that often they did eat our pigeons, and it did behove us to look narrowly to them.

The birds that were known unto us, I have enrolled them (as I have faid) in my Farewel to New France, but I have omitted many of them, becaufe I knew not their names. There alfo may be feen the defcription of a little finall bird, which the favages do call niridau, which liveth Niridand but with flowers, and fhe did come noif- Fliss: ing in my ears, paffing invifibly (fo finall is (he) when in the morning I went to take a walk in my garden. There will be feen alfo the defcription of certain flies, fhining in the evening, in the fpring time, which do fly up and down the woods in fuch a multitude that it is a wonder. For the birds of Canada, I allo refer the reader to the report of Capt. Fames Quartier.

The Armouchiquois have the fame birds, A wonder: whereof there are many which are not ful fowl. known unto us in thefe parts. And particularly there is one kind of water-fowl, which have their bills made like two knives, having the two edges one upon another; and that which is worth the wondering ats the uppermoft part of the faid bill is fhorter by the one half than the lowermoft; in fuch wife that it is hard to think how this bird taketh her food. But in the Spring time, the cocks and hens, which we call Indian or Turky cocks, do Hy thi- Turky: ther as wandring birds, and fojourn there cocks: without paffing further hitherward. They come from the parts of Virginia and Florida. There be yet befides thefe, partriges, parrots, pigeons, ftock-doves, turtle-doves, black-birds, crows, tiercelets, faulcons, laynards, herns, cranes, ftorks, wild-geefe, mallards, cormorants, white aigrets, red, black, and grey ones, and infinite forts of fowl.

As for the Brafilians, they alfo have fore of turky-cocks and hens, which they name arignan-ouffou, of whom they make no account, nor of their eggs: in fuch manner, that the faid turky-hens brced their young ones as they can, without fo much a-do as in thefe parts. They have alfo ducks, but becaufe they go heavily they eat none of them, faying that they would hinder them from running fwiftly. Item, a kind of pheafants which they call jacous ; other fowls which they name moxton, as big as peacocks; fome kinds of partriges as big as geefe, called mocacoüa; parrots of fundry forts, and many other kinds altogether unlike unto ours.

A Defcription of New France.

C H A P. XXIII.

Of their fifling.

Comparifon between hunting, hawking, and fifhing.

OPPIAN in the book that he hath made upon this fubject, faith, that in the hunting of beafts and of birds, befides the facility, there is more contentment and delight than in fifhing, becaufe that a man hath many retreats: one may get himfelf into the fhadow, one may meet with brooks to quench his thirft, one may lie down on the grafs, one may take his repaft under fome fhelter. As for birds one may take them in the neft and with bird-lime, yea of themfelves very often they fall into the nets. But poor fifher-men caft their bait upon an uncertainty ; yea, double uncertainty, as well becaufe they know not what adventure fhall happen unto them, as becaufe they are upon an unconitant and untameable element, whofe yery fight only is fearful. They are always wandering from place to place, fubject to tempents, and beaten with ftorms and winds. But yet in the end he concludeth that they are not deftitute of all pleafure, but rather that they have enough, when they are in a hhip well built, well tight, well clored, and fwift in failing. Then cutting the waves they go to fea, where the great fkulls of devouring fifhes are, and cafting into the fea a line well twifted, the weight of it is no fooner in the bottom, but that as foon the bait is fnatched up, and fuddenly the fifh is drawn up with great pleafure. And in this exercife did Mark Antbony, the fon of the emperor Severus delight himfelf very much ; notwithitanding Plato's reafon, who forming his common-wealth hath forbidden his citizens the exercife of fifhing, as ignoble, andilliberal, and fofterer ofidlenefs, wherein he did grofsly equivocate, fpecially when he chargeth fifhermen with idlenefs, which is fo evident that I will not vouchfafe to refute him. But I marvel not of that which he faith of fifhing, feeing that with the fame he alfo rejecteth hawking, upon the fame reafons. Plutarch fairh that it is more laudable to take either a hart, a roebuck, or a hare, than to buy them; but he wadeth not fo far as the other. Howfoever it be, the church, which is the firft order in human fociety, whofe priefthood is called royal by the great apoftle St. Peter, hath permitted fifhing to church-men, and forbidden hunting and hawking. And indeed, to fay that which is moft probable, the food of finh is the beft and foundeft of all, for as much (as Arifotle faith) that it is not fubject to any ficknefs; from whence cometh the common proverb, Sounder tban a fibs. So that in the ancient hieroglyphics a fifh is the fymbol of health. Which notwithftanding I would means eaten whilft it is new ; for otherwife (as Plautus faith) Pifcis nif recens nequam eft, it is nothing worth.
Now our favages do eat it new enough ${ }_{3}$ as long as it lafteth; which I believe to be one of the beft inftruments of their health and long life. When winter cometh; all fifh are aftonifhed, and Shun the ftorms and tempefts, every one where he may : fome do hide themfelves in the fand of the fea, others under the rocks; others do feek a milder country where they may be better at reft. But as foon as the mildnefs of the fpring-time doth return, and the fea doth calm it felf, as after a long fiege of a town, truce being made, the people being before a prifoner, iffueth forth by troops to go and take the air of the fields and to rejoice themfelves; fo thofe citizens of the fea, after the guifts and furious ftorms be paft, they come to enlarge themfelves through the falted fields; they fkip, they trample, they make love, they approach to the fhore and come to feek the refrefhing of frefh water. And then our faid favegres that know the ren- The fim dezvous of every onc, and the time of rendez. their return, go to wait for them in good vous. devotion to bid them welcome. The fmelt is the firft fifh of all that prefenteth himfelf in the fpring; and to the end we go no further to feek out examples than at our Port Royal, there be certain brooks where fuch fkulls of thefe fmelts do come, Smelts in that for the fpace of five or fix weeks one great might take of them fufficient to feed a quantity. whole whole city. There be other brooks, Herrings.: where after the finelt cometh the herring, with like multitude, as we have alrcady Pilchers. marked elfewhere. Item, the pilchers do come in their feafon, in fuch abundance, that fometimes, willing to have fomething more for our fupper than ordinary, inlets than the fpace of an hour, we had taken enough of them to ferve us for three Dolphins, days. The doiphins, tturgeons and falSthe cons, mons do get to the head of the river in Salmons. the faid Port Royal, where fuch quantity of them are, that they carricd away the nets which we had laid for them, by reafon of the multitude of them that we faw Fifhing of there. In all places fifh abound there the fava- in like manner, as we our felves have feen. ere. The favages do make a hurdle, or wear, that crofleth the brook, which they hold almoft up ftrait, proped againft wooden bars, archwife, and leave there a fpace for the fifh to pafs, which fpace they fop when the tide doth retire, and all the filh are found ftayed in fuch a multitude that they liffer them to be loft. And as for the colphins, fturgeons and falmons, they take them after that manner or do ftrike them with harping irons, fo that thefe people are happy; for there is nothing in the world to good as thefe frefh meats. And I find by my reckoning that Pytbasoras was very ignorant, forbidding in his tair golden fentences the ufe of finh without diftinction. One may excufe him, in that fifh being dumb hath fome conformty with his fect, wherein dumbnets (or filence) was much commended. It is alfo faid that he did it becaufe that fifh is nourifhed in an element enemy to mankind. Item, that it is a great fin to kill and to eat a creature that doth not hurt us. Item, that it is a delicious and luxurious meat, not of neceffity (as indeed in the bieroglypbics of Orus Apollo, filh is put for a mark of delicacy and voluptuoufnefs). Item that he (the faid Pytbagoras) did eat but meats that mighe be offered to the grods ; which is not done with fifh, and other fuch toys recited by Plutarch in his Concicial : Inefions. But all thote fuperflitions be toolifh ; and I would fain demand oi fuch a man, if being in Canada he had rather die for hunger than to eat filh. So many anciently to follow their own fancies, and to lay thefe be we, have forbiden their followers the ufe of meats that God hath given to man, and fometimes ha'd yoaks upon men that they themfelves would not bear. Now whatloever the plilofophy of Pytbagoras is, I am none of his. I find better the rule of our good religious men, which pleale themfelves in eathag of theth, which lliked well in Now France, neither an I yet difpleated when 1 meet with fueh farc. If this philofopher did live with Ambrofia and o, the tood of the gods, and not of fifh, of which none are facrificed unto thens; our faid good religious, as the Cordeliers, or Francifcans of St. Malo, and others of the maritime towns, together with the pricfts, may fay that in eating fometimes finh, they eat of the meat confecrated to God. For when the Neevfoundlandmen do meet with fome wonderful fair cod, they make of it a Santlornm, fo do they call it, and do vow and confecrate it to St. Francis, St. Nicbolas, St. Lecnard and others, head and all, whereas in their fifhing they calt the heads into the fea.

A Defcription of New France.

Vol. 11.

I fhould be forced to make a whole book if I would diftourfe of all the fifh that are common to the Brafilians, Floridians, Armonchiquois, Canadians, and Souriqucis. But I will reftrain myfelf to two or three, having firlt told that in Port Royal there are great bets of mufles, Mufie: wherewith we did fill our fhallops, when that fometimes we went into thofe parts. There be alfo fcallops twice as big as oy- Scallops. fters inquantity. Item, cockles, which have Cockles. never failed us; As alfo there are chatag- Seachasnes de mer, fea chefnuts, the moit delici- nats. ous filh that is poffible to be. Itesm, crabs Critb. and lobfters, thofe be the thell-ilh; but A port of one muft take the pleafure to fetch them, cisht and are not all in one place. Now the lea jues faid port being cight leagues compafs, compais. there is (by the abovefaid philofophers leave) good fyort to row in it for fo pleafant a hifhing.

And leeing we are in the country whete The finh the cods are taken, I will not yet leave uff iagolicod. work, unti! I have fpoken fom thing thercof. For fo many people and in to great number go to fetch them out of all the paits of Eitrope every year, that I know not from whence fuch a fwarm may come. The cods that be brought into thefe parts are either dry or wet. The filhing of the wet fifh is on the bank in the open fea, on this fide Nerefourdland. lifteen or twenty (more or lefs) marincers have (very one a line (it is a cord) of forty or fifty fathoms long, at the end whereof is a hook baited, and a lead of threc pounds weight to bring it to the bottom; with this implement they filh their cods, which are to greedy, that no fooner let down, but as foon caught, where grood fifhing is. The fifh being drawn a fhip-board, there are boards in form of narrow tables along the flip where the fifh are drefied. There is one that cutteth off their heads and calteth them commonly in the fea; another cutteth their bellies and garbedleth thens, and fendeth back to his fellow the biggedt part of the hack-bone which he cutteth away.

$$
10 \mathrm{U}
$$

That

That done, they are put into the faltingtublior four and twenty hours, then they are haid up. And in this fort do they work continually (without refpecting the Sunday, which is the Lord's day) for the, race of almoot three months, their fails down, until the lading be fully made. And becaufe the poor mariners do endure there fome cold among the forss, fpecially them that be mott hatty, which begin their voyage in Fibruary, from thance cometh the fiying, that it is cold in Canada.
Drying of is for the dry cod, one muft go a-land. the cod. There is in Nowifo:snlland and in Bacaillos, great number of ports where hips lie ar anchor for three months. At the very break of day the mariners do go two or three leagues off in the fea to take their lading. They have every one filled their fhallop by one or two a-clock in the atteroon, and do return into the port, where being, there is a great fcaffold built on the fea-fhore, whereon the fifh are calt, as one cait fheaves of corn through a barn window. There is a great table whereon the fifh caft, are dreffed as above faid; after fix hours they are turned, and fo fundry times. Then all are gathered, and piled together; and again at the end of eight days put to the air. In the end being dried they are laid up. But there mult be no fogs when they are a drying, for then they will rot ; nor too much heat, for they would become red, but a temperate and windy weather.
They do not fifh by night, becaufe then the cod will not bite; I durit believe that they be of the fifh which fuffer themfelves to be taken neeping, although fleep nor. ring and devouring one another, as do the Brafilians and Canibals, are always watchful and neep not; excepting neverthelefs the fargot only, which he faith putteth himiclt in certain caves to take his ileep. Which I might well believe, and this fifh deferveth not to be warred upon, feeing he maketh wars upon none others, and liveth of weeds; by reaion whereof all the authors do fay that he cheweth his cud like the fheep. But as the lame Oppian faith that this filh only in chewing his cud doth render a moilt voice, and in that he is deceived, becaufe that myfelf have heard many times the feals, or fea wolves, in open fea, as I have faid elfewhere ; he might affo have equivocated in this.
Whyfin

The fame cod leaveth biting after the month of September is paffed, bur retireth himfelf to the bottom of the broad fea, or elfe goeth to a hotter country until the fpring time. Whereupon I will here allege what Pliny noteth; that fifh which have ftones in their heads do fear winter, and retire themfelves betimes, of whole number is the cod, which hath within her brains two white ftones made gundole Stores in wife and jagged about; which have not heead. thofe that be taken towards Scotland, as fome learned and curious man hath told me. -This fifh is wonderfully greedy, and devoureth others, almoft as big as himfelf, yea even lobiters, which are like big Langoultes, and I marvel now he may digeft thote big and hard fhells. Of the livers of cods our Nezefoundlandmen do make oils, cafting thofe livers into barrels fet in the fun, where they melt of themtelves.

There is great traffick made in Europe Finhoyl or of the oyl of the fifh of Newfoundland. tram. And tor this only caufe many go to the fifhing of the whale, and of the bippopotames, which they call the bealt with the grat tooth or the morfes; of whom fomething we mult fay.

The Almighty, willing to fhew unto Finhing of 7ob how wondertul are his works; wilt the whatic. thou draw (faith he) Leviathan with a bock, and bis tongue with a fring wobich thou buft caft in the water?' By this Leviatban is the whale meant, and all fifh, of that reach, whofe hugenefs (and chiefly of the whale) is fo great, that it is a dreadful thing, as we have fhewed elfewhere, Ipeaking of one that was caft on the coaft of Brafil by the tide; and Pliny faith that there be fome found in the Indies which have four acres of ground in lengrh. This is the caufe why man is to be admired (yea rather God, who hath given him the courage to affail to fearful a montter, which hath not his equal on the land.) I leave the manner of taking of her, defcribed by Oppian and St. Bafil, for to come to our Frencbmen, and chiefly the Bafques, who do go every year to the great river of Canada for the whale. Com- The river monly the fifhing thereof is made in the where the river called Lefguemin towards Tadoulfac. whale is And for to do it they go by fcouts to filhed. make watch upon the tops of rocks, to fee if they may have the fight of fome one; and when they !ave difcovered any, forthwith they go with four fhallops atter it, and having cumningly boarded her, they ftrike her with a harping iron to the depth of her lard, and to the quick of the fleth. Then this creature feeling herfelf rudely pricked, with a dreadtul boifteroufnefs cafteth herfelf into the depth of the fea. The men in the mean while are ill their fhirts, which vere our the cord whereunto the harping iron is tied, which the while carrieth away. But at the fhallop fide that hath given the blow there is a man ready with a hatchet in hand to cut the faid cord, left per chance fome accident fhould happen that it were mingled, or that the whate's force fhould be too violent; which notwithftanding having found the bottom, and being able to go no further, the mounteth up again leifurely above the water; and then again the is fit upon with glave-ftaves, or pertuifans, very fharp, to hotly that the faltwater piercing within her flefh fhe lofeth her forec, and remaineth there. Then one tieth her to a cable at whofe end is an anchor wheh is calt into the fea, then at the end of lix or eight days they go to fetch her, when time and opportunity permits it they cut her in pieces, and in great kettles do leeth the fat which melt eth itfelf into oyl, wherewith they may fill four hundred hogtheads, fometimes more, and fometimes lefs, according to the greatnets of the bealt, and of the tongue commonly they draw five, yea fix hogtheads full of train.

A Defcription of New France.

How the
If this be admirable in us, that have indotakethe dilry, it is more almirable in the In thale.
for to reap the fruit of his conqueft, and for that purpofe they make an end of killing of her, cutting her and making morfels of her flefh (which is bad enough) which they dry and ftamp to make powder of it, which they ufe for meat, that ferveth them a long time.

As for the bippopotames; or morfes, Morfos. we have faid in the voyages of fames 2 uartier that there be great number of them in the gulf of Canada, and efpecially in the ifle of Brion, and in the feven Ine de illes, which is the river of Cbijcbedec. It Brian. is a creature which is more like to a cow than to a horfe; but we have named it Hippopotame, that is to fay, the horfe of Hippothe river, becaufe Pliny doth fo call them tame. that be in the river Nile, which notwith- or river. ftanding do not altogether refemble the Horfe. horfe, but doth participate alfo of an ox a cow. He is of hair, like to the feal, that is to fay, dapple gray, and fomewhat towards the red; the fkin very hard, a fmall head like to a Barbary cow, having two ranks of teeth on each fide between which there are two of them of each part hanging from the upper jaw downward, of the form of a young elephant's tooth, wherewith this creature helpeth herfelf to climb on the rocks. Bccaufe of thofe teeth, our mariners do call it la befte a la grand' dent, the beaft with the great teeth: His ears be fhort and his tail alfo, he loweth as an ox, and hath wings or or fins at his feet, and the female calleth her young ones on the land. And becaufe that he is a fifh of the whale-kind and very fat, our Bafques and other mariners do make oyl thereof, as they do with the whale, and they do furprife him on the land.

Thofe of Nile (fiith Pliny) are cloven footed, the main, the back, and the neighing of a horfe, the tecth iffuing forth as to a wild boar. And he addeth, that when this creature hath been in the corn for to fced, he goeth away backwards upon his return, for fear he fhould be followed by his traces.

I do not purpofe to difcourfe here of all the forts of fifh that are in thofe parts, the fame being too fyacious a fubject for my hiitory, becaufe alfo that I have fpecified a good number of them in my Farewoel to Neev France. I will fay only that by manner of partime on the coalts of New France, I will take in one day fifh enough for to ferve as food for a longer tirue than fix wceks, in the places where the abundance of cod is, for that kind of fifh is there moft frequent. And he that hath the induftry to take mackarels at fea, Infinite may there take fo many that he fhall not multitude know what to do with them, for in many of Maiplaces I have feen infinite numbers of them karel.
clofe together, which did occupy more fpace there three times than the market halls of Paris do contain. And notwithfranding I fee a number of people in our country of France, fo wretchacd, and fo idle in thefe days, that they had rather die for hunger, or live in lavery, at the leaft to languifh upon thicir miferable dunghill, than to endeavour to get out of the mire, and to change their fortune by fome generous action, or to dic in it.

C H A P. XXIV.

Of the quality of the fail.

WE. have made provifion in the three laft chapters of venifon, of fowl, and of fifh, which is much. But in our old ancient France, bread and wine being our ufual fuftenance, it would be hard unto us to make hare our abode, unlefs the land were fit for the fame. Let us then enter into confideration of it, and lct us put our hands into our bofom, to fee if the dugs of this mother will yield any mills to nourifh her children; and as for the reft, we will take what may be hoped tor of her. Altilius Regulus, twicc confill in Rome, did commonly lay, that one muft not choofe phaces over rank, bccaufe they are unhealthfu!; neither places over barren, although one may live healthily in them; and with fuch a moderate foil did Cato content himfelf. The ground of Now Frouce is fuch, for the mott part of fat hand, under which we have often found chiy ground ; and of that carth did Monf. de Poutrincourt cade a quantity of bricks to be made, wherewith he built a furmace to melt the gum of the firr-tree, and chimners. I wh fay futher, that one The ramin may wake with this earth fuch operatiof $t \in:=$ ons, as with the earth which we call terra Frechic having tic lime of fecta as intar figillata, or lolus armonicus, as in many occaions our apothecary, mafter Lewis Hebert, molt fufficient in his art, hath made trial of it; by the advice of Monf. $d$, Pouttrincutit; yea even when that Monf. du P'ont's son had three fingers cut off with a muaket-fhot, which dhd burit being over-charged, in the country of the Armoubiqucis.

This province having the two natures of earth that God hath given unto man for to pofiefs, who may doubt but that it is a land of promife, when it fhall be manured: We have made trial of it, and have taken pleafure therein, which never did all them that have gone before us, whether it be in Erafle, whether it be in florida, or in Canada. God hath bleffed our labours and hath given unto us fair wheat, rye, bacrly, oats, peafe, beane, hemp, turuips, and garden herbs; and this fo plentilully, that the rye was as high as the talleft man that may be feen, and we did fear that this heighth thould hinder it from bringing forth feed; But it hath fo One hunwell fructified, that one l'rench grain fowed dred and there, hath yielded one luundred and fifty iffy ears ears of corn, fuch as by the teltimony of from one my lord chancellor, the ifland of Cicilia grain. nor the country of Bearifc do yield none fairer. I did fow wheat, without fuffering my land to reft, and without dunging it at all; and neverthelefs it grew up in as fair perfection as the faircft wheat in France, although the corn and all that we did fow was too long kept. But the new corn which the laid Monf. de Pouttrincourt did fow before his departure from thence grew up fo beautiful that it was wondertul, according to the report of them that have been there, a year after our departure. Whercupon I will fay that which was of mine own doing, that in the month of April in the year 1607, having fowed too thick and too near one to the other, fome few grains of the rye that was gathered at St. Croix (the firt dwclling of Monf. de Monts, forne twenty five leagues from Port Royal) thete grians did multiply fo abundantly that thacy choaked one another, and came to no good perfection.

But as for the ground mended, dunged with our hogs dung, ef with the fiwecpings of the kitchen, fhells of fifh, or fuch like things; I would not believe unlefs I had feen it, the exceffive loftincfs of the plants that it hath produced every one in his kind. Yea the fon of Monf. de Poustrincourt, a young gentleman of great forwardnefs, having fowed grains of o- Oranges: ranges and of citrons in his garden, they Citrons. fprung plants of a foot high at three months end. We did not expect fo much, and notwithftanding we took pleafure therein, emulating one anothcr. I refor to any man's judgment if the fecond trial will be done with a good courage. And here I mult fay by the way that the fecretary of the faid Monf. de Monts, being come into thofe parts before our departurc, did fay that he would not for any thing

A Defcription of New liance.

limeg in the world, hut to have made tha voysye, and that unlefs he had fien our corn, he would mot have bebeved it. Behold how contimally the sonntry of Canada hath been diferetited, mader whofe name all that hand is comriced, not knowing what it is, upon the efp oft of fome manmers, who coly do go to tifh for coll; and upon the runour of fome lickneflis, which may be avoided in mananining of mirth; to that men be well furnithed of necedfaries.

But to continue our purpofe of the meading of the ground, whereot we pate even mow. One certan ancient author liith, that the cenfors of Rome did let to 'tarm the dunghils and other uncleannefs, which were drawn out of finks, for a thouland talents a year, which are worth fix hundred thoufand French crowns, to the gardeners of Rome, becaule that it was the excellenteft dung of all; and there was to that end commitfioners ordained for to cleanfe them; likewife the bottom and chamel of the river Tiber, as certain ancient inferiptions, which lhave fometimes read, do record.

The hand of the Armbucliq:oois, doth bear yearly fuch corn, as that which we call Suracen wheat, Trrky wheat, and Indian wheat, which is the Irio or Eryfimon frages, of Pliny and Columella; but the Virginians, lioridians, and Braflians, more foutherly, make two harvefts a year. The man. All thele people do till their land with a ner of int- vooden pick-ax, weed out the weeds and tus, iiding burn them, fitten their fields with fhell-androwgrownd. filh, having neither tame cattle nor dung, then they heap their ground in fmall heaps, two foot diftant one from one another ; and the month of May being come, they fet their corn in thofe heaps of earth, as we do plant beans, fixing a ftick, and putting four grains of corn feverally one after another, by certain fuperftition, in the hole, and between the plants of the faid corn, which groweth like a fmall tree, and is ripe at three months end, they alfo ict beans fpotted with all colours, which ate very delicate, which by reaton they be not fo high, do grow very well among thele plants of corn. We have fowed of the fuid corn, this laft year in Paris, in growd ground, but with fatall profit, having yadided, evory plant, but one ear or two, and yat very thin; whereas in that comatry one grain will yiedd four, tive and fix ears, and cevery ycur, one with another abuve two hundteed grains, which is a marvellous increate; which thewech the proverb reported by Theophrafius to be very true, that it is the year that produceth the fruit, and not the field; that is to fiy, that the temperature of the air, and condition of the weather, is that whici

Vol. II.
maketh t'e plants to bud and fructify, more thin the nature of the earth; wherein is to ie woralered that our corngtoweth better there, than their corn here; a certain teflimony that Go.l hatin bleffed that country, fince that his name hath been called 11 pon there; affo, that in thete parte, fince fome ycars, God beateth us, as I have faid clfewhere, with rods of iron, and in that country he hath furcad his, bleffing abundantly upon our latour, and that inone parallel and elevation of the fun.

This corn growing high, as we have faid, the flalk of it is as big as canes. ye:a bigger. The ftalk and corn taken grech, have a fugar tarte, which is the caule why the moles and field rats do fo covet it, for they fpoiled me a plot of it in New France. The great bealls, as ftags and other beafts, as-alfo birds, do fpoil it; and the Indicus are conitraincd to keep them, as we do the vines here.
The harvelt being done, this peopte lay- baris win. eth up their corn in the ground, in pits, derground which they make in fome defcent of a hill, for the running down of waters, furnifhing thofe pits with matts; and this they do becaufe they have no houfes with lofts, nor chefts to lay it up otherwife; than the corn conferved after this manner, is out of the way of rats and mice.
Sundry nations of thofe parts have had the lame invention to keep corn in pits. For Suidas maketh mention of it upon the word Seiroi; and Procopius, in the fecond book of the Gotbic war, faith that the Gotbs befieging Rome, fell within the pits where the inhabitants were wont to lay their corn. Tacitus reporteth, alfo, that the Germans had fuch pits. And without particularifing any farther, in many places of France they keep at this day their corn after that manner. We have declared heretofore in what fafhion they ftamp their corn, and make bread with it, and how by the teftimony of Pliny, the ancient Italians had no better induftry than they.

They of Canada and Hocbelaga, in the time of 7 ames 2 uartier, did alfo till after the fame manner, and the land did afford them corn, beans, peafe, melons, pompions, and cucumbers, but fince that their furrs have been in requeft, and that for the fame they havehad bread and other victuals, without any other pains, they are become nuggifh, as the Souriquois alfo, who did addict themfelves to tillage at the liarac time.

But both the one and the other nation have yet at this time excellenthemp, which fiemp. the ground produceth of itfelf; it is ligher , liner, whiter, and ftronger than ours, in thele our parts. But that of the Armouchianois beareth at the top of the ftalk thercot a col, filled with a kind of cotton cution. $10 \%$ like like unto filk, in which lieth the feed; of this cotton, or whatoever it be. good beds may be made, more excellent a thoufand times than of feathers, and fofterthan common cotton. We have fowed of the faid feed, or grain, in diverfe places of Paris, but it did not prove.
Vines and
We have feen by our hiftory, how along the great river, beyond Tadoulfac, vines are found innumerable, and grapes at the feafon. I have feen none in Port Royal, but the land and the hills are very proWhen the per for it. France had none in ancient Wine was time, unlefs peradventure along the coatt firt piant- of the Mediterranean fea ; and the Gaullois ed in having done fome notable fervice to the emperor Probus, they demanded of him for recompence, permifion to plant vines, which he granted unto them; but they were firtt denied by the emperor Nero. But why do I allege the Gaullois, feeing that in Brafll, being a hot country, there were none, until that the Frencbmen and Portugucfe had planted fome there; fo there is no doubt but that the vine will grow plentifully in the faid Port Royal, feeing, likewife that at the river 5 t. Jobn which is twenty leagues more northward than the faid port, there be many of them, yet for all that not lo fair as in the country of the Armouchiquois, where it feemeth that nature did delight herfelf in planting of them there.
And for as much as we have handled this fubject, fpeaking of the voyage that Monf. de Poutrincourt made thither, we will pafs further, to declare unto you that the moft part of the woods of this land, be Oaks.
Nut-trees oaks and walnut-trees; bearing finall nuts, Plamb. with four or five fides, fo fwect and deli-Plamb- cate as any thing may be; and likewife tres.
trees. plumb-trees, which bring forth very good soffafras. plumbs; as, alfo, faffafras, a tree having leaves like to oak leaves, but lefs jagged, whofe wood is of very good fcent, and moft excellent for the curing of many difeates, as the pox, and the ficknels of Ca nada, which I call pbtbific, whereof we have difcourfed at large heretofore.
robacio They alfo plant great ftore of tobacco, ard the we a thing moft precious with them, and unicit. verfally amongtt all thofe nations. It is a plant of the bignefs of confolida major, the finoak whereof they fuck up with a pipe in that manoer that I will declare unto you, for the contentment of them that know not the ufe of it. After that they have gathered this herb, they lay it to dry in the fhade, and have certain fmall bags of leather, hanging about their necks, or at their girdles, wherein they have always fome, and a tobacco-pipe withal, which is a little pan hollowed at the one fide, and within whofe hole there is a long quill or pipe, out of which they fuck up the fmoak, whach is within the faid pan, aftir thev put fire to it, with a coad that they lay upon it. They will fometimes fuffer hunger eight days, having no other fuftenance than that fmoak; and our Frenchmen, who have frequented them, are fo bewitched with this drunkennels of tobacco, that they can no more be without it, than without meat or drink, and upon that do they fpend.good fore of money; for roolifh the good tobacco which cometh out of Bra- gredinefs fll doth fometimes coft a French crown a of fome pound. Which I deem foolifhnefs in them, men after becaufe that notwithftanding they do not tobacco fpare more in their eating and drinking than other men, neither do they take a bit of meat, nor a cup of drink the lefs by it. But it is the more excufable in the favagrs, by reafon they have no great delicioufnefs in their tabagies, or banquets, and can make cheer to them chat come to vifit them with no greater thing, as in thefe our parts one prefents his friend with fome excellent wine; in fuch fort, that if one refufeth to take the tobacco pipe, it is a fign that he is not a friend. And they, which among them have fome obfcure knowledge of God, do tiy that he taketh tobaccoas well as they, and that it is the true nectar detcribed by the poets.

The fiva-

This taken tomourh ink of tobacco taken by the bacco. mouth, in fucking, as a child thar fucketh his dug, they make it to iffue thro' the note and pafing through the con properties the nore, and palfing through the con- oftobacco. duits of breathing, the brains are warmed by it, and the humidity of the famedried up. It doth, alfo, in fome fort make one giddy, and as it were drunk, it maketh the belly foluble, mitigateth the paffions of Venus, bringeth to fleep, and the leaf of tobacco, or the afhes that remain in the pan healeth wounds. Yea, I will fay more, that this nectar is unto them to fweet, that the clildren do fomecimes fup up the fmoak that their fathers caft out of their noftrils, to the end that nothing be loft. And becaufe that the fame hath a tart biting tafte, Monf. de Belleforeft, reciting that which fames Wartier, who knew not what it was, laith of it, will make the people believe that it is fome kind of pepper. But whatfoever fweetnefs is found therein, I could never ufe myfelf to ir, neither do I care for the ufe and cuftom to take it in fmoke.
There is yet in the land of the Armour- Roots A/. cbiquois, certain kind of roots, as big as froililes. a loaf of bread, moft excellent for to be eaten, having a tafte like the ftalks of artichokes, but much more pleafint, which being planred, do multiply in fuch fort that it is wonderful; I believe that they be thofe which be called afrodilles, according to the defcription that Pliny maketh of them. "Thefe roots, faith he, are made after

A Defcription of New France.

" the fathion of fmall turnips, and there " 6 is no plant that hach fo many roots as " this hath, for fometimes one Mall find " fourfcore afrodilles tied together. They "" are good roafted under the embers, or " eaten raw with pepper, or oil and falt. Confidering all this, it feemeth unto me that thefe are men very miferable, who being able to live a country life, in quiet and rett, and take the benefit of the ground, which dorh pay her creditor with foprofitable an ufiry, do pals cheir age in towns, in following of fuits in law, in toiling here and there, to feek out the means how to beguile and deceive fome one or other, taking fuch pains as do even bring them to their grave, for to pay their houle-rent, for to be clothed in filk, for to have fome precious moveables, briefly, for to fet out and feed themielves with all vanity, wherein contentment is never to be found. "Poor " fools, faith Hefiod, which know not how " one halt of thefe things, with quiet, is " more worth than all heaped together " with fretfulnefs, nor how great benefit " is in the Malous, and the Daffadilles.
" The gods certainly have hidden from " ${ }^{6}$ men the manner of living happily. For " otherwife one day's labour would be " fufficient for to nourifh a man a whole " year, and the day following he would " fet his plough upon his dunghill, and " would relt his oxen, his mules, and " himfelf.

This is the contentment which is prepared for them that fhall inhabit New-France; though fools do defpife this kind of life, and the cilling of the ground, the moft harmlefs of all bodily exercifes, and which $\ddagger$ will term the molt noble, as that which fultainech the life of all men. They difdain, I fay, the tillage of the ground, and notwithiftanding all the vexations wherewith one cormenteth himfelf, the fuits in law thit one follows, the wars that are made, are but for to have lands. Poor mother! what hatt thou done that thou are fo defpiled? the other elements are very often contrary unto us, the fire confumeth us, the air doth infect us with plague, the water fwalloweth us up, only the earth is that which coming into the world, and dying; receivech us kindly, it is the alone that nourifheth us, which warmeth us, which lodges us, which cloatheth us, which contraryeth us in nothing, and the is fet at naught, and them that do manure her are laughed at, they are placed next to the idle and bloodfuckers of the people. All this is done here among us; but in New France, the golden age mult be brought in again, the ancient crowns of ears of corn mult be renewed, and to make that to be the firt glory, which the ancient Romans did call gloria adorea, a glory of wbeat, to the end to invite every one to till well his field, fee ing that the land prefenteth itfelf liberally to them that have none.

Being affured to have corn and wine, there refteth but to furnif the country with tame cattle, for they will breed there very well, as we have faid in the chapter of hunting.

Of fruit trees, there be but few, befides Orange nut-trees, plumb-trees, and fmall cherry- trees. trees, and fome hazle-nut trees. True it Fruis tree is, that all that which is within the land is not yet difcovered, for in the country of the Iroquois there are orange-trees, and they make oils with the fruit of trees. But no Frenchmen nor other Chriftians have been there yet. That want of fruit-trees is not to be found very Atrange; for the molt part of our fruits are come out of other places, and very often the fruits bear the name of the country from whence they have been brought. The land of Germany is good, and Iruitful : but Tacitus faith, that in his time there were no fruit-trees.

As for the trees of the forefts, the moft The trees common in Port-Koyal be oaks, elms, afh, and fruits birch, very good for joiners work, maples, of the land fycamores, pine-trees, firr-trees, white- in Part thorns, hazle-trees, willows, bay trees, Rogat. and fome others befides which I have not yet marked. There is in certain places ftore of ftrawberries, and rafpberries, item; in the woods fmall fruit, blue and red. I have feen there fmall pears very delicate, and in the meadows, all the winter long, there be certain fmall fruits like to fmall apples coloured with red, whereof we made marmalade for to eat after meat. There be ftor: of goofe-berries like unto ours; but they grow red ; item, thofe other fmall round goofe-berries, which we do call geuedres, and peafe in great quantities along the fea fhores; the leaves whereof, wetook in fpring time, and put among our sid peafe, and fo it did feem unto us that we did eat green peafe. Beyond the faid bay Francoife, that is to fay, in the river St. Fobn and St. Croix, there is fore of cedar rrees, befides thofe trees that I have named; As for them of the great river Canada, they have been fpecified in the fecond book, in the relation of the voyages of captain fames Quartier and of Monf. Cbamplein.

Thofe of Florida be pine trees, which Trees of bear no kernels in the fruits that they pro- Florida. duce, oaks, wailnue trees, black cherrytrees, lentifks, chefnut trees, which be not natural as in France, cedar trees, cyprefs trees, palm trees, holly trees, and wild vines, which clamb up the trees, and bring forth good grapes ; there is a kind of medlars, the fruit wherenf is better and bigger thisn that of Frame, there are, nilo, plamb trees which bear a very fair fruit, but not very gond ratpberries; a fmall grain which we call with us blenes, blues, which are very good to be eaten; item, roots, which they call baffiz, whereot, in their need, they make bread.
The province of Brafil hath taken her nume, as we think, of a certain tree which we e.ll brefil, and the favages of the country arabouton, it is high, and as big as our oaks, and hath the leat like to the box le.s!. Our Frencbmen and others do go inon that country for to lade their thips with it; the fire of it is almoft without imoke, but he that would think to whiten his linnen with the afhes of that wood, would far deceive himfelf, for he fhould find it dyed in red. They have, alfo, palm trees of fundry forts' : and trees the wood whereof of tome, is yellow, and of others violet; they have alfo fome that have the feent of rofes, and others ftinking, whofe fruits are dangerous to be eaten; ilem, a kind of guayac, which they name binourae, which they ule for to cure a difeafe called among them pians, as dangerous is the pox. The tree' which beareth the fruit, that we call the Indian nut, is called among then fabuucbie: they have alfo cotton trees, of the fruit of whercof they make beds, which they hang between two forks or potts. This country is happy in many other forts of fruit trees, as orange trees, citron trees, lemon trees, and others always green, whereby the lofs of thit country, where the Frencbmen had begun to inhabit, is fo much the more grevious unto them that love the welfare of France, for it is more than evident, that the dwelling is there more plenfant and delightful than the land of Canada for the temperature of the air. Truc it is that the voyages thither are long, as of four and five months, and that in performing of them fometimes wants muft be endured. as may be feen by the voyages made thither in the time of Ville-gagnon; but to NewFrance, where we were, when one beginneth his voyarge in due feafon, the voyages are but of three weeks, or a month, which is but a mall time.

If the fweetnefs and delicacies be not there, fuch as they are in Peru, one mult not liay therefore that the country is nothing worth. It is much that one may live there in reft, and joyfully, without taking care for fuperfluous things. The covetoufnels of men hath caufed that no country is thought good, unlet's there be mines of gold Thedeípi: fingof gold in it; and fots as they be, they do not confind of fijuer fider that the country of France is now mines.
io, whereof Tiaciths finid, that lie knew nor whether the gods in their anger, or theil fivour, had denied gold and filver to that province. They do not fee that all the Indiais have not any ufe of filver, and live more contentedly thall we; if we call them fools, they may lay as much of us, and peradventure with better renfun. They know not that God promifing to his people a happy land, he faith that it thall be a land of corn, of barley, of vines, of figtrees, of olive trees, and ol honey, where they fhall eat their bread without fcarcity, Ecc. And for all metals he giveth then but iron and copper, left that gold and filver make them to lift up their heart and forget their God; and he will not that when they fhall have kings they fhould looard up much gold or filver.' They do not confider that mines be the church-yards of men; that the Spaniard hath confumed therein above ten millions of poor Indiunfiavages, inftead of inftructing them in the Chriftian faith; that there be mines inIIaly, but that the ancients would not give leave to work in them forthe prefervation of the people; that in the mines is a thick air, grois and infernal, where one never knoweth when it is day nor night; that to do fuch things is to feek to difpoffers the devil of his kingdom. That it is a thing unworthy to a man to bury himfelf in the entrails of the earth, to feek out for hell, and miferably to abafe himfelf under all unclean creatures; he to whom God hath given an upright form, and his face looking upward, for to behold the heavens, and to fing praifes unto him ; that in countries where mines be the land is barren; that we do eat neither gold nor filver, and that the fame of itfelf doth not keep us warm in winter ; that he which hath corn in his barn, wine in his cellar, cattle in his meadows, and afterward cod-fifh and beavers, is more affured to have gold and filver, than he which hath mines to find victuals; and neverthelefs there be mines in New France, as we Nines in have mentioned elfewhere: but that is not Nizv the firtt thing one muft feek for, men do France. not live with opinion only; and this confifteth but in opinion, nor the precious ftones neither, which are fools baubles, wherein one is moft often deceived, fo well art can counterfeit nature ; witnefs him that did fell, fome five or fix years fince, veffels for fine emerald, and had made himfelf rich by the folly of others, if he could have played his part a-right.
Now withour making fhew of any mincs, Fruits to profit may be made in New France, of di- be hoped vers firrs that be there, which I find are for in $\mathrm{N}_{\mathrm{i}}$ t not to be defpiled, feeing that we fee fo France. much enry againft a privilege, that the king

A Defcription of New France.

king did grant to Monf. de Monts, for to help to eftablifh and fette there fome Firencb colony. But there may be drawn a general comınodity to France, that in the fcarcity of victuals, one province may fuccour the other: which might be done now, if the country were well inhabited s feeing that fince we have been there, the feafons have always been good in it, and in thefe our parts rough to the poor, which do dic for hunger, and live but in want and penury; inftead of that, there many might live at their eafe, who it were better to preferve than fuffer to perifh. Befides fifhing being made in New France, the Nerfoundland fhips Thall have nothing to do but to lade, arriving thither, inftead that they are forced to tarry three months there, and fhall be able to make three voyages for one.

Of exquifite woods I know none there, but the cedar and the faffafras; but good profit may be drawn from the firrand prufe trecs, becaufe they will yield abundance of gum, and they die very often through over much liquor. This gum is very fair like the turpentine of Venice, and very Iovercign for medicines; I have given fome to fome churches of Paris, for frankincenfe, which hath been found very good. Soap-afhes One may moreover furnifh the city of Paris and other places of France with foapathes, which at this prefent be all bare and without woods. They who findthem. felves afflicted may have there a pleafant place to retire themfelves into, rather than to yield themfelves fubject to the Spamiard as many do. So many families as be in France, overcharged with children, may divide themfelves, and take there their portion with thofe fmall goods and moveables as they have. Then time will dif. cover fomething anew, and one muft help all the world if it be poffible. But the chiefert good one muft aim at, is the eftablihment of the Chrittian religion, in a country where God is not known, and the converfion of thefe poor people, whofe damnation crieth vengeance againft them that may, and ought to employ themfelves thereto, and to contribute, at leaft with their names, to that effect, feeing that they gather up the fat of the earth, and are conftituted ftewards of the things of this world.

C H A P. XXV.  Of their war.

OF poffefling of land cometh war ; and when one hath eftablifhed himEelf in New Frante, fome greedy fellow peradventure will come to take away the labour of honeft painful men ; this is that which many do fay, but the ftate of France is, God be praifed, too well fettled, for to be atraid of fuch tricks, we are not now in the time of leagues and partialities; there is none that will begin with our king, nor make adventurous enterprizes for a fmall purchafe. And though any one would do it, I believe that the remedies have been thought upon already; and moreover this action is for religion, and not to take away : mother's goods. This being fo, faith inaketh one to march boldly with affurance, and topafs throughall difficulties For behold what the almighty faith by his prophet Ifaiah, to them whom he taketh in his tuition, and to the Frencbmen of New France, Hearken unto me you that follow juftice, and that feek after the Lord, bebold the rock out of which you were cut, to the deep of the ciftern from wbence ye bave been drazen; that is to fay, confider that ye are Frencbmen; Look to Abraham

Vol. II.
your father, and to Sarah who batb brougbl you forth, bow I bave called bin, be being all alone, and bave bleffed and multiplied bim; therefore alluredly the Lord will com:fort Sion, छsc.

Our favages do not ground their wars To what upon the poffeflion of the land. We do end the fanot fee that they encroach one upon ano- vages do ther for that refpect. They have land e- make war. nough for to live and for to walk, their ambition is limited within their bounds, they make war as Alexander the great did make it, that they may fay I have beaten you; or elfe for revenge in remembrance of fome injury received, which is the greateft vice that I find in them becaufe they never forget injuries; wherein they are fo much the more excufable, becaufe they do nothing but that, which ourfelves do alfo; they follow nature; and if we refrain any thing of that inftinet, it is the commandment of God which maketh us to do ir , whereunto many do ftop their eyes.
Therefore when they will make wars' the Sagamos, who hath moft credit among them, maketh them to know the caufe ${ }_{10} Y$
why
why, the rendezvous, and time of the afficmbly. Being arrived he maketh long orations unto them upon the occalion which is offered, and for to encourage them. At every propolition he demandeth their ad. vice, and if they give confent they all make an exclunation, faying Hau, if not, fone Sagamos, will begin to fpeak, and fay what he thinketh good of it, being both the one and the other well heard. Their wars are made but by furprizes, in the dark bufhments, or fubtilty; which is general throughout all thote Indies. For we have feen, in the firt book in what falhion the Horidians do make war, and the Brafilians do no otherwife. And the furprizes being done, they come to handy blows, and do fight very often by day.
The man- But before they go from home, ours, I ner to for. mean the Souriquois, have this cuftom to enl or re. tel or rre- make a fort, within which all the young fage the cient of men of the army do put themfelves, where the war. being, the women come to compafs them about, and to keep them as befieged. Seeing themfelves fo environed they make fallies, for to thun and deliver themfelves out of prifon. The women that keep watch do repulfe them, do arreft them, do their beft endeavour to take them; and if they be taken they lay loads on them, do beat them, frip them, and by fuch a fuccefs they take a good prefage of the war they go to make ; if they efcape it is an evil fign.

They have alfo another cuftom concerning fome one particular man, who bringing an enemies head, they make great fealts, dances and fongs for many days; and whilft thefe things be doing, they ftrip the conqueror, and give him but fome bad rag to cover himfelf withal; but at the end of eight days or thereabout, after the fcalt, every one doth prefent him with fomeching to honour him for his valour.
succefion The captains amongt them take their of captains degree by fucceffion, as the regality in thele our parts, which is to be underftood if the fon of Sagamos imitateth the virtues of his father, for otherwife they do as in the old time, when that firft the people did clufe kings; whereof 7obn de Meung author of the Roman de la Kofe, fpeaking, he faich, that, They cbofe tbe talleft, that bad the biggeft body, and biggeft bones amongt tbem, and made bin tbeir prince and lord. But this Sagamos hath not an abfolute authority among them, but fuch as Tacitus reportethof the ancient German kings; "The " power of their kings, faich he, is not " free, nor infinite, but they conduct "the people rather by example, than by " commandment." In Virginia and in Florida they are more honoured than among the Souriquois: but In Brafil he that hath taken and killed molt pritoners, they will take ham for captain, and yet his children may not inherit that dignity.

Their arms, are the firtt which were in The fava: ufe after the creation of the world, clubs, get amm. bows, and arrows; for as for fings and crotsbows they have nove, nor any weapuns of iron or fteel, much lefs thofe that human wit hath iuvented fince two hundred years, to counterfeit the thunder; nor ranss, or other ancient engines of battery.
They are very fkilful in fhooting an ar. Fisellens row, and let that be for an example, arthers. which is recited lieretofore of one that was killed by the Armourbiquois, having a little dog pierced, together wilh him, with an arrow fhot afar off. Yet I would not give them the proifes due to many nations of this hither world, which have been famous for that exercife, as the Scytbians, Getes, Sarmates, Coths, Scots, Partbians, and all the people of the Easf, of whom a great number were fo tkilful, that they had hit a hair; which the holy fcripture witneffeth of many of God's people, namely of the Benjamites, who going to war againt Ifrael: Of all this people, faith the feripture, there were feven bundred cbofen men, being left banded; all tbefe could fing a fone at an bair's breadtb, and not fail. In Crete, there was an Alcon, fo fkilfull an archer, that a dragon carrying away his fon, he purfued after him, and killed him without hurting his child. One may rend of the emperor Domitian, that he could direft his arrow far off, between his two fingers, being fpread abroad. The writings of the ancients make mention of many who hot birds through, flying in the air, and of other wonders which our f.1vages would admire at. Bue notwithitand. ing they are gallant men and good warriors, who will go through every place, being backed by fome number of Frencb. men; and which is the fecond thing next unto courage, they can endure hardnefs in the war, lye in the fnow, and on the ice fuffer hunger, and by intermifion feed themfelves with fmoke, as we have faid in the former chapter. For war is called mi- From litia, not out of the word mollitia, as $U l$ - whence pian the lawyer and others would have it, the word by an antipbrafical manner of fpenking; malice or but of militia, which is as much as to tay militia. duritia, kakia, or of affistio, which the Greeks do call kakofis. And fo it is taken in St. Mattbew, where it is faid, that the day bath enough of bis own grief, kakia, that is to fay, bis affiction, bis pain, bis labour, bis bardnefs, as St. Hiercme doth expound it very well. And the word in St. Paul,

1 Defription of New France.

Rategathe on bos kaios fratiotis Lefon Cbrifon, howd not txen ill eranflated dura, that is, Suffer affistion as a good foldier of Tefus Clorif, initcad of laborn, barden sbyjll witb patience, as it is in Virgil,

Durate, $\mathcal{G}$ rebus vofmel firvale fecundis.

And in another place he ealleth the $S$ d pios duros belli, to lignify brave and excelent captains: which hardnefs and malice of war, Terfullian doth expound imbonitas in the book that he hath writen te the martyrs, for to exhort them to fuffer affie ions manfully for the name of Yefus Cbrif. A Jildier, liith he, cannot come to the wars with pleafures, and be goetb not to the figbs coming fortb from bis chamber, but cut of tents and pavillions Aretcbed out, and fied so falks and forks, Ubi omnis dr. ritia $\mathcal{E}^{\circ}$ imbonitas $\mathcal{E}^{\circ}$ infuavitas, wherc no pleafure is.
Now although the war which is made coming forth out of tents and pavillions is hard, yet notwithtanding the life of our favages is yet harder, and may be called a true militia, that is to fay, malice, which I take for hardnefs. And after this manner do they travel over great countries through the woods for to furprife their enemy, and to affail him on subjer of the fudden. This is that which keepeth the fana. them in perpetual fear; for at the leaft ges fear. noife in the world, as of an ellan which paffecth among branches and leaves, they take an alarm. They that have towns, after the manner that I have defcribed herctofore, are fomewhat more allured. For having well barred the coming in, they may aik quiva li, who goeth there? and prepare themfelves to the combat. By luch furprifes the Iroquois being in number cight thoufand inen, have heretofore exterminated the Algumequins, them of Hocbelaga, and others bordering upon the great river. Neverthelefs, when our favages under the conduct of Memberton went to the war againft the Armouchiquois, they imbarked themfelves in fhallops and canoes ; but indeed they did not enter within the country, but killed them on their frontiers in the port of Cboiiakoes. And for as much as this war, the caufe thereof, the counfel, the execution, and the end of it hath been defcribed by me in French verfes, which I have annexed unto my poem intitled the Mufes of Neco Irance, I refer the reader to have recourfe to it, becaufe I will not write one thing twice. I will only fay, that being at the river St. Fobn, the Sagamos Cbkoudun, a Chriftian and Frenchman in will and courage, made a young man of Retel, called Lefeire, and myfelf, to fee how they go to the wars; and alter their fealt they came forth fome fourficore ente of his town, having laid lown their mantles of fiur, that is to fay ftark naked, bearingevery one a micd which covered all their body over, after the tafthion of the ancient Caullois, who paffed into Grcece under the Capt. Brennus, of whom they that could not wade the rivers, did lay themfelves on their bucklers, which fervad them for boats, as Paufanius faith. Be- Their fides thefe fhiclds, they had every one his manner of wooden mace, their quivers on their backs, marching and their bow in hand; marching as it wars. were in dancing, wife. I do not think for a matisl. all that, that when they come near to the dates. enemy for to fight, that they be fo orderly as the ancient Lacedemonians, who from the age of five years were accuftomed to a certain manner of dancing, which they ufed going to fight, that is to fay with a mild and grave meafure, to the lound of flutes, to the end to come to blows with' a cool and lettled fenie, and not to trouble their minds; to be able alfo to dificern them that were couragious from them that were fearful, as Plutarch faith. But rather they go furioufly, with great clamours and tearful howlings, to the end to altonifh the enemy, and to give to themfelves mutual affurance; which is done amongit all the wefterly Indians.

In this muftering, our favages went to make a turn about a hill, and as their return was fomewhat how, we took our way towards our bark, where our men were in fcar, left fome wrong had been done unto us.
In the victory they kill all that make How the reffitance, but they pardon the women favages and children. The Brafilians contrari-behave wife do take prifoners as many as they with the can, and referve them for to be fatned, to kill and to eat them in the firf affembly they thall make. Which is a kind of facrifice annong thofe people that have fome form of religion, from whom thofe men have taken this inhuman cuftom. For anciently they that were overcome, were facrificed to the gods who were thought to be authors of the victory, whereof it came that they were called Vifimes, becaufe that they were overcome; Villima i) Vilfis: They were alfo called Hoftcs, ab Hofte, becaufe they were enemies. They that did fet forth the name of Supplice did it almoft upon the fame occafion, caufing fupplications to be made to the gods of the goods of them whom they condemned to death. Such hath been the cuftom among many nations to facrifice the enemies to the falfe gods, and it was alfo practifed in Peru in the time that the Spaniards came thither firt.
We read inthe holy icripture, that the prophet Samuel cut in pieces $A g a g$ king of the Amalekiles, before the Lordin Gilgal. Which might be found ftrange, feeing that there was nothing fo mild as this holy propher was. But one mult confider here that it was by a feecial motion of the fpirit of God which ftirred Samuel to nake himfelf executioner of the divine juftice againft an enemy of the people of I/rael, initead of Saul, who had neglected the commandment of God, which was enjoyned to fmite shalek and tc put all to the edge of the fiword, without faaring any living foul; which he did not; and therefore was he forfaken of God. Sambel then did that which Saul mould have done, he cut in pieces a man who was condemned of God, who had made many widows in I/rael, and juftly did receive the like payment ; to the end alfo to fulfil the prophecy of Balaam, who had foretold long before that the king of the Ifraelites Should be raifed up above Agag, and his kingdom fhould be exalted, Now this action of Samuel is not without example. For when they were to appeafe the wrath of God, Mofes faid : Put every man bis fword by bis fide, and lay every man bis brotber, and every man bis corapanion, and cuery man bis neigbbour. So Elijab made the prophets of Baal to be killed. So at St. Peter's words Ananias and Saphira fell down dead at his feet.

Now to return to our purpofe, our favages as they have no religion, fo make they no facrifices ; and befides, are more humane than the $B r$ afilians for as much as they eat no man's fle.h, conrenting themfelves to deftroy them hat do annoy thein. But they have fuch a generofity in them, that they had :ather die than to fall into the hands of their enemies. And when Monf. de Poutrincourt took revenge of the Armoucbiquois, which murdered fome of our men, there were fome who fuffered themielves rather to be hewed in pieces, than that they would be carried away prifoners; or if by main force they be carried away, they will ftarve or kill themfelves; yea alfo they will not fuffer the dead bodies of their people to remain in the poffeflion of their enemies, and in the peril of their own lives, they take them and carry them away; which Tacitus doth alfo teftify of the ancient Germans, and it hath been an ufual thing with all generous nations.

The victory being gotten of one fide or other, the victorious cutteth off the heads of the enemies nain, how great focver the number of them is, which are divided among the captains, but they leave there the carcals, contenting themfelves with the fkin, which they caufe to be dried, or do $\tan$ it, and do make trophies with it in their cabins, taking thercin all their contentinent. And fome folemn fealt hapening among them (I call feaft whenfoever they inake tibugie) they take them, and dance with them, having them hanging about their necks at their arms, or at their girdles, and with very rage they fometimes bite at them ; which is a great proof of this difordinate appetite of revenge, whercof we have fometimes fpoken.

Our ancient Gaullois did make no lefs trophies with the heads of their enemies than our fivages. For (if Diodorus and Titus Livius may be believed) having cut them, they bring them back from the field hanging at the petral of their horfes, and did tie or nail them folemnly, with fongs and praifes of the vanquifhers (according to their cuftoms) at their gates, as one would do wild boars. As for the heads of the nobles they did embalm them and kept them carefully within cafes, for to make fhew of them to thofe that come to fee them, and for nothing in the world they would reftore them, neither to kinfmen nor any other. The Boians (which be the Bourbonnois) did more; for after they had taken out the brains, they did give the fkulls to goldfmiths for to garnifh them with gold, and to make veffels of them to drink in, which they ufed in facred things and holy folemnities. If any man thinketh this flrange, he mult yet find more ftrange that which is reported of the Hungarians by Viginere upon Titus Livius, of whom he faith, that in the year 1566 , being near favarin, they did lick the blood of the Turks heads which they brought to the emperor Maximilian ; which goeth beyond the barbaroufnefs that might be objected to our favages.

Yea I muft tell you that they have more humanity than many Chriftians, who within thefe hundred years have committed in divers occurrences, upon women and children cruelties more than brutifh, whereof the hiftories be full; and our favages do extend their mercy to thefe two forts of creatures.

C HAP.

$A$ Defcription of New France.

C H A P. XXVI.  Of their funtrals.

TIIE war being ended, humanity duth invite us to bewail for the dead, and to bury them. It is a work wholly of piety, and more meritorious than any other. For he that giveth fuccour to a man whillt he is alive, may hope for tome fervice of him, or a reciprocal kindenefs; but from a dead creature, we c.m expect nothing more. This is that which made that holy man Toby to be acceptable to God ; and for that good office, they that employed themfelves in the burying of our Saviour are praifed in the golpel. As for tears and nournings behold what faith the wife fon of Siruth: My fon pour forth tears over the daad, and begin to mourn as if thou bailf fufficed great barm thy felf; and then cover his body according to his appointment, and neglesi not his burial. Make a grievcus lamentation, and be carnoft in mouning, and ufi lamentation as be is worthy, and that a day or two, left thoul be evil jpoken of.

This leffon being come, whether it be by fome tradition, or by the inftinct of nature, as far as to our favages they have yet at this diay that common with the nations of thefe parts to weep for the dead, and to keep the bodies of them after their deceafe, as it was done in the time of the holy patriarchs Abrabam, Ifaac, and 'facob, and fince. But they make ftrange clamours many days together, as we haw in Port Roval, fome months after our artival into that country (to wit in Noenencer) where they made the funcral cercmonics for one of theirs, namad $P_{a}$ mula who had taken fome merchandizes out of Monid. de Monts's fore-houfe, and went to truck with the Armouchiquis. This Panoniai was killect, and the body brought back into the cabins of the river of $S t$. Goor, where our favages did both weep for him and embalmed him. Of what! Gind this balm is I could not know, not bing able to enquire of it upon the phaces; I believe they jug the deal corps and make them to dry. Certain it is, that tiney prederve them from rottennefs; which thinte they do almoll throughout all thele halios. 1 le that hath wristen the boriniar. liftory of 'inginit, futh that they draw out their entrails from the body, thay the dead, take away the flin, cut all the fech off from the bons, dry it at the fun, then lay it (enclofed in mats) at the feet of the whed. That done, they give him his own Shin again, and cover therewith the bones tied together with leather, fafhioning it even fo as if the flefh had remained at it.

Vo:. 11.

It is a thing well known that the ancient FEgyptians did embalm the dcad bodies, and kept them carefully. Which (befides the prophane authors) is feen in the holy fcripture, where it is faid that $\mathcal{F} \circ$ feph did command his fervants and phyficians to embalm the body of facob his father ; which he did according to the cultom of the country. But the Ifraelites did the like, as it is fcen in the holy chronicles, where it is fpoken of the death of the kings $A f a$ and foram.
From the river of St. Croix, the faid deceafed Panoniac was brought into Port Royal, where again he was wept for. But becaufe they are accuftomed to make their lamentations for a long continuance of days, as during a month, fearing to offend us by their cries (for as much as their cabins were but fome five hundred paffes off from our fort) Membertou came to intreat Monf. de Poutrincourt not to dillike that they fhould mourn after their wonted manner, and that they would be but eight days in performing of it, which he cafily granted them; and then afterwards they began the next day following, at the break of day, their weepings and cryings, which we did hear from our faid fort, taking fome intermiffion on the midft of the day; and they mourn by intermiffion every cabin his day, and every perfon his turn.
It is a thing worthy marvelling, that nations fo far diftant do agree in thofe ceremonies with many of the hither world. For in ancient times the Perfians (as we read in many places of Herodotus, and ©. Curtius) did make fuch lamentation, did rent their garments, did cover their heads, did cloath themfelves with a mourning garment, which the holy fcripture doth call fackeloth, and Fofephus fchema tapeinon. Alfo they haved themfelves, and their horles and mules, as the learned Drufus bath noted in his obfervations, alleging for this purpofe both Herodotus and Plutarch.

The Egyptians did as much, and peradventure more, in that which concerneth lamentations. For atter the death of the holy partiarch facob, all the ancients, men of calling, and the counfellors of the houle of Phatraoh, and ot the country of Egypt, went up in great multitude even as far as to the com floor of Alad in Canaan,心 $Z$
and

A Defcription of New France.

and did weep for him with great and grievous complaints; in fuch fort that the Canaanites freing it did fay; this mourning is grievous to the Agy:tians; and for the greatnefs and novelty of the lame mourning they called the faid floor Abel Mifraim, that is to fay the mourning of the Agyptians,
The Romans had hired women to weep for the dead, and to relate their praifies by long mournful complaints; and thofe women were called Piafica, as it were Prafecte, becaufe that they did begin the motion when it was needful to lament, and to relate the praifes of the dead.

Mercede que conducte fient alieno in funere preficie multo $\mathcal{O}$ capillos fcindunt, O clamant magis, faith Lucilius by the report of Nonius; fonctimes the very trumpets were not neglected at it, as Virgil teftifieth in thefe words:

It cailo clamor, clangorque tubarum.

I will not here make a collection of all the cuftoms of other nations; for it would never be at an end; but in France every one knoweth that the women of Picardy do lament their dead with great clamours. Monf. des Accords anoongit other things by him collected, recitcth of one, who making her funcral complaints, that fhe faid to her deceas'd hurband; good God! My poor hufband, thou haft given us a pitiful farewel! O what farewel! It is for ever. O what long congie. The women of Bearn are yet more pleafant; for they recount during the time of a whole day the whole life of their hufbands. La mi amou, la mi amou; Yara rident, ail de fplendou: cama leugé bet danfadou: lo mé balen balem, lo m'efburbat: mati de pes: fort tard cougat $\therefore$ and fuch like things : that is to fay; My love, my love : finiling countenance; bright eye; nimble leg; and good dancer ; mine own valiant, mine own valiant; early up, and late abed, \&c. Fobn de Leri reciteth, that which followeth of the Gafcoign women; yere, yere, ô le bet renegadou, ôle bet jougadou qu'bere, that is to fay; ob the brave fwaggerer, ob what a fair player be was? And thereupon he reporteth that the women of Brafil do howl and bawl with fuch clamours, that it feemeth that it be fome affembly of dogs and wolves. He is dead (will fome women fay drawing their voices) he was fo valiant, and who hath made us to eat of fo many prifoners; others making a quire apart will fay; Oh what a good hunter and what an excellent fifher he was!
paufe of every complaint they will fay ; the $P_{c r}$. he is dead, he is dead for whom we do tug\%. now mourn! Whereunto the men do anfwer, faying ; alas it is true! we fhall The Brafee him no more until we fee him behind filan bethe mountains, where we fhall dance with lieve the him, and other fuch things; but the moft refurrectipart of thefe pcople do end their mourn- on. ing in one day, or fomewhat more.
As for the Indians of Florida, when any of their Paraonftis die, they weep three days and three nights continually and without cating ; and all the Paraoufits that be his alnes and frionds do the like mourning, cutting half their hairs, as well men as women, in token of love. And that done, there be fonte women ordained, who during the time of lix moons do lament the death of their Paraoufi three times a day, crying with a loud voice, in the morning, at noon, and at night ; which is the fantion of the Roman Prafices, of whom we have not long fince fpoken.

For that which is of the mourning apparel, our Souriqucis do paint their faces all with black; which naketh them to feem very hideous; but the Hebreces were more reprovable, who did fotch their faces in the time of mourning, and did Shave their hairs, as faith the prophet 70 remiah; which was ufual among them of. great antiquity ; by reafon whereof, the fame was forbidden them by the law of God in Leviticus : You fall not cut round the corners of your bairs, neitber mar the tufts of your beards, and you fsall not cut your flefl, for the dead, nor make any print of a mark upon you. I am the Lord; and in Deuteronomy, Tou are the children of the Lord your God, you fball not cut your fetves, nor make any baldness between your eyes for the dead.

Which was alfo forbidden by the Romans in the laws of the twelve tables.
Herodotus and Diodorus do fay, that the Agyptians (chiefly in their kings funerals) did rent their garments, and befmeared their faces, yciall their heads; and affembling themfelves twice a day, did march in round, finging the virtues of their king; did abttain from fodden meats, from living creatures, from winc, and from all dainty fare during the fpace of feventy days, without any wafhing, or lying on any bed, much lefs to have the company of their wives, always lamenting.
The ancient mourning of our queens of France (for as for our kings they wear no mourning apparel) was in white colour, and therefore after the death of their hufbands they kept the names of roines blanches (white queens.) But the common mourning of others is at this day in black, qui jui perfona rifus eft. For all thefe mournings are but deceits, and of a hundred there is not one but is glad of - fuch a weed. This is the caufe that the ancient Tbracians were more wife, who did celebrate the birth of man with tears, and their funerals with joy, fhewing that by death we are delivered from all calamities wherewith we are born, and are in reft. Heraclides fpeaking of the Locrois faith, that they make not any mourning for the dead, but rather banquets and great rejoicing. And the wife Solon, knowing the forefaid abufes, doth abolifh all thofe renting of cloaths of thofe weeping fellows, and would not that fo many clamours fhould be made over the dead, as Plutarch faith in his life. The Chriftians, yet more wife, did in ancient time fing allelujab at their burials, and this verfe of the pfalm, Revertere anima mea in requiem tuam, quia dominius benefecit tibi,

$A$ Defcription of New France.

> And now my foul fitb tbou art fafe, Return unto tby reft;
> For largely to the Lord to thee, His bounty bath exprefl.

Notwithftanding becaufe that we are men, fubject to joy, to grief, and to other motions and perturbations of mind, which at the firft motion are not in our power, as faith the philofopher, weeping is not a thing to be blamed, whether it be in confidering our frail condition, and fubject to fo many harms, be it for the lofs of that which we did love and held dearly. Holy perfonages have been touched with thole palfions, and our Saviour himfelf wept over the fepuichre of Lazarus brother to the holy Magdalen. But one muft not fuffer himfelf to be carried away with forrow, nor make oftentations of clamours, wherewith very often the heart is never a whit touched. Whereupon the wife fon of Sirach, doth give us an advertifement, faying, Weep for the dead, for be bath loft the light [of this life] but make finall weeping, becaufi be is in reft.
The fiva- After that our favages had wept for ges do Pazoniac, they went to the place where burn the his cabin was whilft he did live, and there moveable moveable they did burn all that he had left, his goonds of bows, arrows, quivers, his beavers fkins, ceafed. his tobicco (without which they cannot live) his dogs, and other his fmall moveables, to the end that no body fhould quarrel for his fucceffion. The fame fheweth how little they care for the goods of this world, giving thereby a goodly leffon to them, who by right or wrong do run after this filver devil, 'and very often do break their necks, or if they catch what they defire, it is in making bankrupt with God, and fpoiling the poor, whether it be with open war, or under colour of juftice. A fair leffon, I fay, to thofe covetous unfatiable Tantalufes, who take fo much pains, and murder fo many creatures to feek out hell in the depth of the earth, that is to fay, the treafures which our Saviour doth call the ricbes of iniquity. $\mathbf{A}$ tair leffon alfo for them of whom St. Hierome fpenketh, treating of the life of clerks: There be fome, faich he, who do give a little thing for an alms, to the end to bave it again with great ufury; and under colour of giving fometbing, they feek after ricbes, wibich is rather a bunting tban an alms: fo are beafts, birds, and fifbes taken. A fmall bait is put to a book, to the end to catch at it filly womens purfes. And in the epitaph of Nepotian to Heliodore: Some, faith he, do beap money upon money, and making tbeir purfes to burft out by certain kind of fervices, they catch at a fnare the ricbes of good matrons, and become ricber being monks, than they were being fecular. And for this covetoufnefs, the regular and fecular have been by imperial edicts excluded from legacies, whereof the fame doth complain, not for the thing, but for that the caufe thereof hath been given.

Let us conve again to our burning of goods. The firt people that had not yet covetoufnefs rooted in their hearts did the fame as our favages do. For the Pbrygians (or Trojans) did bring to the Latins the ufe of burning, not only of moveables, but alfo of the dead bodies, making high piles of wood for that effect, as Eneas did in the funerals of Mifenus:
> ——E robore fecto
> Ingenten fruxere pyram.

Virgil, Æneid 6.
Then the body being wathed and anointed, they did caft all his garments upon the pile of wood, frankincenfe, meats, and they poured on it oil, wine, honey, leaves, flowers, violets, rofes, ointments of good fnell, aud other things, as may be feen by ancient hiftories and infcriptions. And for to continue that which I have faid of Mifenus, Virgil doth add;
Purpureafque fuper veftes, velamina nota Conjiciunt: pars ingenti fubiere feretro, $\mathcal{E}^{\circ} c$. -congefa cremantur
Tbura, dona, dapes, fufo crateres olivo.
Æneid 2.
And fpeaking of the funerals of Pallas, a young lord, friend to 压neas:
T'umgeminasveftes, offroque, auroquerigentes, Extulit AEneas-Multaque praterea laurentis pramia pugne Aggerat, Eo longo predam jubet ordine duci : Aiddit equos Es tela, quibus jpoliaverat boftem.

In the holy fcripture I find but the bodies of Sanl and of his fons to have been burnt after their overthrow, but it is not faid that any of their moveables were caft into the fire.

The old Gaullois and Germans did burn with the dead body all that which he had loved, even to the very bearts, papers of accounts and obligations, as if by that means they would either have paid, or demanded their debts. In fuch fort, that a little before that Cofar came thither, there were fome that did caft themfelves upon the pile where the body was burned, in hope to live elfewhere with their kindred, lords and friends. Concerning the Germans, Tacitus faith the fame of them in thefe terms, - )uc vivis cordi fuife aritrantur in ignem inferunt ctiam animalia, fervos $\mathcal{E}^{2}$ clientes.

Thele fafhions have been common anciently to many nations, but our favages are not fo foolifh as that ; for they take good heed from putcing themfelves into the fire, knowing that it is too hot. They content themfelves then in burning the - dead man's goods; and as for the body, they put him honourably in the grave. This Panoniac, of whom we have fpoken, was kept in the cabin of Niguiroet his father, and of Neguioadetch his mother, until the fpring time, when that the affembly of the favages was made for to go to revenge his death: in which affembly he was yet wept for, and before they went to the wars they made an end of his funeral, and carried him (according to their cuftom) in a defolate inand, towards C.ipe de Sable, fome five and twenty or thirty leagucs diftant from Port Royal. Thofe inles which do ferve them for church-yards are fecret amonglt them, for fear fome enemy fhould feek to torment the bones of their dead.

Pliny, and many ochers, have efteemed that it was foolifhnefs to keep dead bodics, under a vain opinion that atter this life one is fomething. But one may apply unto him, that which Portius Fefus, Governor of Cafarca, did foolifhly fay to the apoftle St. Paul: Thou art befide tby felf; mucb learning batb made tbee mad. Our favages are efteemed very brutifh, (which they are not) but yet they have more wifdom in that refpect than fuch philofophers.

We Chrittians do commonly bury the dead bodies, that is to lay, we yield them to the earth (called bumus, from whence cometh the word bomo a man) from which they were taken, and fo did the ancient Romans before the culfom of burning them; which anongft the $W_{c f f} f$-Indians the Brafilians do, who put their dead into pits digged after the form of a tun, alinoft upright, fometimes in their own houfes, like to the firlt Romans, according as Scrvius the conmentator of Virgil doth fay. But our favages as far as Pertl do noc fo, but rather do keep them whole in fepulchres, which be in manyl places as fcaffolds of nine and ten foot high, the roof whereof is all covered with mats, whereupo:a they ftrecth out their dead, ranked according to the order of their deceafe. So almoft our favages do, faving that their fepulchrcs are lef's and lower, made after the form of cages, which they cover very properly, and there they lay their dead: which we call to bury, and not to inter, feeing they are not within the earth.

Now although that many mations have thought grood to keep the dead bodies; yet it is better to follow that which nature requireth, which is, to render to the earth that which belongeth unto her, which (as Lucretius faith)
Omniparens eaden rcrum eft commune Sepulchrum.
Alfo this is the ancienteft fafhion of burying, faith Cicero. And that great Cyrus, king of the Perfians, would not be otherwife ferved after his death, than to be reftored to the earth: O my dear cbilidren! (Faid he before he died) woben I bave ended my life, do not put my body eitber in gold or inf filver, or in any otber fepulcbre, but render it fortbwitb to the earth: fur wobat may be more bappy and more to be defired, than to join bimfelf with ber that producetb and nouribsetb all good and fair tbings? So did he efteem for vanity all the pomps and exceffive expences of the pyramids of Eigypt, of the maufoleuns and other monnments made after that imitation; as the fame of Augufius the great, and magnitical mafs of Adrian, the feptizone of Severus, and other yet lefs; not efteeming himfelf after death more than the meanelt of his fubjects.
The Romans did lave the entombing of the bodies, having perccived that the long watrs did bring diforder unto it, and that the dead corps were unburied, which by the laws of the twelve tables, it was behoveful to bury out of the town, like as they did in Atbens. Whereupon Arnobius, ipeaking fpeaking againft the Gentiles: We do not fear (Giith he) as you tbink, tbe ranfacking of our graves, but we kept the moft ancient and beff cuflom of burying.

$A$ Defcription of New France.

Paufanias (who blameth the Gaullois as much as he can) faith in his Pbocioues, that they had no care to bury their dead; but we have fhewn the contrary heretofore: and though it were fo, he fpeaketh of the overthrow of the arnyy of Brennus. The fame inight have been faid of the Nabateens, who (according to Strabo) did that which Paufanias doth object to the Gaullois, and buried the bodies of their kings in dunghils.

Our favages are more kind than fo, and have all that which the office of humanity may defire, yea cven more. For after they have brought the dead to his reft, every one maketh him a prefent of the beft thing he hath: fome do cover him with many fkins of beavers, of otters, and other bealts: others prefent him with bows, arrows, quivers, knives, matacbias, and other things, which they have in common, not only with thens of Florida, who, for want of furrs, do, fet upon the fepulchres the cup wherein the deceafed was accuf. tomed to drink, and all about them they plant great numbers of arrows: item they of Brafil, who do bury with their dead things made of feathers and carkenets; and they of Pcru, who (before the coming of the Spaniards) did fill their tombs with treafures: but alfo with many nations of thefe our parts, which did the fame even from the firtt time after the flood, as may be conjectured by the writing (though deceitful) of the fepulchre of Semiramis, queen of Babylon; containing, that he of her fucceffors that had need of money thould make it to be opened, and that he fhould find there even as much as he would have. Whereof Darius, willing to make trial, found in it nothing elfe but other letters fpeaking in this fort; unlefs thou wert a wicked man and unfatiable, tbou wouldf not bave, tbrough covetorfiefs, fo troubliad the quiet of tbe dead and broken do:en their repulchres. I would think this cuftom to have been only among the heathens, were it not that I find in Fofepbus's hittory, that Solomon did put in the fepulchre of David his father above three millions of gold, which was rifled thirteen hundred years after.

This cuftom to put gold into the fepulclares being come even to the Romans, was forbidden by the twelve tables, alfo the exceffive expences that many did make in watering the bodies with precious liquors, and other mylteries that we have recited heretofore. And notwithftanding many fimple and foolifh men and women did ordain by will and teftament, that one fhould bury with their bodies their ornaments, rings, and jewels (which the Greeks did call chiaphia) as there is a form feen of it, reported by the lawyer Scavola in the books of the Digefles; which was reproved by $P$ apinian andUlpian, likewife civil lawyers; in fuch fort, that for the abufe thereof, the Romans were conftrained to caufe that the cenfors of the womens ornaments did con. demn, as fimple and effeminated, them that did fuch things, as Plutarch faith, in the lives of Solon and Sylla. Therefore the beft courfe is to keep the modefty of the ancient patriarclis, and even of king Cyrus, whom we have mentioned before, on whofe tomb was this infcription, re* ported by Arrian.

Thou that paffeft by, whomfoever thou beeft, and from watat part foever thou comefs, for I an fiure that thou will come: I am tbat Cyrus who got the dominion to the Perfians: I pray thee envy not tbis little parcel of ground which covereth my poor body.

So then our favages are not excufable in putting all the beft ornamer's they have into the fepulchres of the dead, feeing they might reap commodity by them. But one may anfwer for them, that they have this cuttom even from their fathers beginning (for we fee that almoft from the very time of the flood the like hath beets done, in this hither world) and giving to their dead their furrs, matacbias, bows, arrows and quivers; they were things that they had no need of.
And notwithftanding this doth not clear the Spaniards from blame, who have robbed the fepulchres of the Indians of Peru, and caft the bones on the dunghil; nor our own men that have done the like, in taking away the beavers fkin in our NewFrance, as I have fa' I heretofore.
For as Ifidorus faith of Damiette, in an Epittle: It is the part of enemies, void of all bumanity, to rob the bodies of the dead, wobich cannot defend themfelves; nature itclf batb given tbis to many, tbat batred dotb ceafe after death, and do reconcile tbemfelves with the deceajed: but ricbes make tbe covetous to become enemies to tbe dead, againft wbom tbey bave notbing to fay, wbo torment tbeir bones with reproacb and injury. And therefore not without caufe have the ancient emperors made laws, and ordained rigorous pains againt the fpoilers and deftroy. ers of fepulchres.

> All praifes be given to God.

[^0]:    * Evagrius, lib. i. chap. j. of the ecclefialtical hiftory. Baronius upon the Martyral. Rom. ix. Janu.

[^1]:    be-

[^2]:    * A place fo called near Rochch.

[^3]:    -Fert Indus ebur, Ćbaldaus amomum, Afyrius gemmas, Ser vellera, tbura Sabeus, Vol. II.

