When You Think

Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subsides inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and secreted confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y. If you want a book that tells all about women's diseases and how to cure them at home, send 31 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, and he will send you a free copy of his Great Discovery. Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, 640 pages, in handsome cloth-binding, 25 stamps.

FARM TOPICS The Utility of the Silo.

One of the unmistakable signs of progressive agriculture in live stock communities is the presence of the silo. As a factor in reducing the cost of production upon dairy farms nothing has approached. From whatever point of view it may be considered its advantages are overwhelming. There is no comparison between the silo and the old system of dry-curing and storing feed for winter and summer use. It costs less to put the corn crop, for example, into the silo than into the crib and mow; and, further it is common knowledge that the silo preserves the food elements in digestible form far better than dry-curing. No other building can be erected for the same cost to store the same number of tons of feed. No other method of handling the corn crop is more economical, and, it may be added, no other feed will bring the farmer greater proportionate returns than ensilage.

In ninety-nine cases probably out of a hundred where cows in a herd are not producing satisfactory profits the results are due to a lack of system in the management. In the first place the breeding of the herd may be fault, but this is not always a criterion, and the farmer is not justified in jumping to hasty conclusions. The cow is really a machine for the purpose of turning roughage, meal, grass, roots, etc., into milk. One does not know whether or not a machine has a profitable capacity until it is put to the test. If a farmer weighed the milk of his herd of say, ten cows and fed the cows alike he might come to the conclusion that all the cows were doing well, or he might come to the very opposite conclusion, that they were all unprofitable. In both cases he might be wrong. The only correct basis on which to estimate the yield of a herd of cows is individual performance. Then he knows that certain cows are making good use of the food they consume; others are making poorer use, and perhaps

Feeding Cows for Milk.

A crib and the stocks placed in a mow, it would cost at least $50 to harvest the crop. It is worth while to work out these calculations from time to time and ascertain accurately the exact differences in the cost of harvesting a corn crop according to the methods in use. The results are certain to prove illuminating, and if carefully computed will show beyond question the economy of making ensilage. The advantages of feeding ensilage over that of feeding dry fodder are so great that few farmers are willing, after a trial, to discard the ensilage for old time methods.—Tor. Globe.

still others better use. As soon as the question of individual production is solved he is at once in possession of the data necessary to determine whether or not he is feeding the cows, so they will have a chance to show what they can do. Many farmers feed cornstuffs, hay and some roots, and expect their cows to yield large quantities of milk. Often the quantity of hay is limited, some times it is only timothy, and the whole ration is lacking in protein, which is essential to milk production. When cows are milking they need meal. A very good meal ration is wheat bran, corn meal and oilmeal mixed equal parts by weight. This should be fed twice daily. Each cow should receive as many pounds of this grain ration a day as she produces pounds of butter fat in a week. For example, if a cow produces nine pounds of butter fat in seven days she should be fed nine pounds of grain a day, or four and a half pounds night and morning. If one does not know how much butter fat his cows are producing or how much milk each individual yields he is in the dark as to how each should be fed. When the meal ration is settled, then the roughage, whatever form it takes, may be fed with a liberal hand. If the ration he well balanced good cows will do justice to themselves, and yield a profit to their owner, even on dry feed.—Tor. Globe.

For World Peace.

The barbaric arbitrament of war always looms in its hideousness as the court of last resort in the issues between nations. The force that must stand behind all the law has seemed lacking in schemes for international arbitration. The man who loses before a civil tribunal does not yield because he regards the decision just. He probably regarded it as unjust. But he knows that the whole force of the nations stands behind the decision and can be employed if necessary to carry it out. This force has seemed lacking when contemplating the possibility of a powerful nation refusing to submit an issue to an arbitration tribunal or to accept a decision rendered. The hope of peace lies in the growth of higher sentiments that will crystallize in an international opinion. This may lead to an organization that will enforce decrees among nations as effectively as the single nation now enforces decrees among its individual members. Even more important than any such practical work of organization is the growth of a spirit of peace and good-will, a mutual understanding and appreciation through which the barbaries of older and lower ideals will be seen in all their repulsiveness. The nations are growing to recognize each other as friends and the pride of strength and armament is giving place to pride in leadership toward conditions in which war will be impossible.—Tor. Globe.

Turkey
The Turkish Government has organized into companies, and each of these companies carries some striking emblem as a kind of rally banner. Glorified drum majorettes, gigantic clubs, spears, hearts, diamonds, signs—these are borne proudly aloft by the standard-bearer of the detachment. It is the duty of the detachment to stand in the thickest of the fire, amid smoke, spears and hissing water set to show where his company is at work. Thrilling tales are told of modern Casabiancas among these men who have remained too long at the front duty and have been engulfed in a fiery furnace upon the collapse of a roof.—Wide World Magazine.

How Timber Is Selected.
Timber is formerly selected according to its external appearance. The diameter and length of the piece, the straightness of grain, sometimes the weight, sufficed to determine both its commercial value and its destination. The diversified industries of the present day require a corresponding diversity in the wood employed. For one purpose the important quality is hardness; for another, elasticity; for a third, ease of working or resistance to attack by external agencies. The compound microscope is now used for the minutest and careful examination of longitudinal and transverse sections of specimens of timber.—London Telegraph.

An Artist's Criticism.
Probably no two artists ever criticized each other more severely than did Fuseli and Northcote, yet they remained fast friends. At one time Fuseli was looking at Northcote's painting of the angel meeting Balaban and his ass. "How do you like it?" Northcote replied Fuseli promptly. "You're an angel at an ass, but an ass at an angel."

Nipped.
"Dat," asked the defaulter, who was arranging for transportation to Mexico, "when you something special for tourists?"
"No," replied the ticket agent.
"Pardon me, but I have," chimed in the detective, appearing at that moment with a pair of steel bracelets. "There's something special for two artists. Suppose you try 'em."—Catholics Standard and Times.

Turkish Navy To Be Built In Britain

Constantinople, April 9.—The Chamber adopted a motion to-day, by a vote of 115 to 40, confirming the Government's action in awarding the contract for the construction of the new Turkish navy, consisting of three battleships of 16,500 tons each and serving smaller craft, to Armstrong, Whitworth & Company, Limited of London. The Commission which was appointed to investigate the compliance of the Palmer Shipbuilding & Iron Company, of London, and the Bethlehem Steel Company that their tender, although the lowest, was not considered, reported that it was unable to reach a decision, as the Minister of Marine declined to supply the Commission with the papers connected with the case.

The Government of New Zealand has decided to expropriate and hold for the public all water powers in the Dominion. The idea behind the public ownership of water powers is the equalizing of natural opportunity so that small consumers of power in manufacturing enterprises shall not be handicapped by the charging of higher rates than large consumers.

New York is finally awakening to the necessity of grappling with the billboard nuisance. There are few cities in America where these unsightly things are so numerous and offensive. Now that fourteen organizations for civic improvement have united to organize a campaign to at least reduce the extent of the evil some action is likely to follow.

Very Plausible.

To Mrs. Emma Barker,

Dear Sister:—We the officers and members of Golden Rod Lodge No. 212 desire to express to you our warmest sympathy in your hour of sorrow in the death of your father. We realize the fact that when we are called upon to part with those we love, it is hard to say "Thy will be done." While we grieve for our losses we must try to realize that our grief and parting are unknown while we know that death is the lot of all. It is now the less heavy when it comes. We hope they who are sorrowing under this dispensation of Providence may meet the departed in the Grand Lodge above where parting is a matter known and we may be able to draw our thoughts to a peaceful abode where everwith our souls shall be clear, and sorrow will partake of no more.

Investigate Before You Buy In these days of sharp competition, it is well to know that you get what you pay for. There are so many brands of house paints on the market, now-a-days, advertised as "pure" (but little better than "dope"), that a man ought to investigate what he intends to buy.

We suggest to those about to paint to make a practical test and convince themselves. Buy a small can of the Martin-Senour 100 per cent. Pure Paint and one of any other brand with which you may have been favorably impressed, selecting about the same colors, and paint a few feet. Carefully measure the paint, so that you use no more of one than the other. Thus with the conditions the same, you can determine for yourself which paint has the better body or covering capacity; which is the easier brushing out and has the better finish. If you do not decide in favor of the Martin-Senour 100 per cent. Pure Paint, our agent will return the money you paid for the can of Martin-Senour 100 per cent. Pure Paint used in the experiment, and we will credit the same to him.

GUARANTEE

We Guarantee the MARTIN-SENOUR 100 per cent. PURE PAINT (except a few dark shades that cannot be prepared from lead and zinc), to be made from pure carbonate of lead, pure oxide of zinc, with coloring matter in proportionate quantities necessary to make their respective shades and tints, with pure linseed oil and turpentine dryer, and to be entirely free from water, benzine, whitening and adulterations, and sold subject to chemical analysis.

large apple, sprinkling over it one small cup powdered sugar as you grate it, to keep it from turning dark. Break into this the whites of two eggs and beat constantly until very light. Heap this in a glass dish and pour a fine smooth custard around it and serve.

Apple Charlotte. - Soak 1-3 box gelatine in 1-3 cup cold water for five minutes, pour over it 1-3 cup boiling water. Add one cup sugar, juice of one lemon, one cup cooked apples. Strain, and stir in a pan of ice water till stiff, then add the well-beaten whites of three eggs. Line a dish with lady fingers, or sponge cake, pour in the mixture, and serve either with whipped cream, or with a boiled custard made from the yolks of three eggs.

A simple but appetizing way of serving trout for an Easter dinner is as follows: Clean the fish and fry in salt water for half an hour; take out and boil in clear water in a cloth for one hour, then turn out on platter. Make a sauce as follows: Fry one small onion in butter until a light brown; strain one can tomatoes and put in a stew pan; add the onion and pepper and salt and a little chopped parsley; let it boil and thicken, then pour over fish and serve.

Potato doughnuts are made from three large potatoes, boiled and mashed with a lump of butter, size of an egg; Beat thoroughly three eggs, one and a half cups sugar, pinch of salt, nutmeg to taste two teaspoons baking powder, three cups flour. Stir in some of the potatoes, adding enough to roll out. Fry in deep lard, drain on paper, then roll in sugar. These are very light, do not absorb the grease and are easily digested.

Creamed fish, an appetizing dish for a Lenten dinner, is made by cutting in pieces 2-3 lbs. fresh fish and four medium sized onions. Add large handful salt, cover with boiling water, and boil for five or ten minutes. When fish is done, drain off water and lift fish out with a fork. Make the following sauce: Two and a half cups milk, one heaping tablespoon flour, one heaping teaspoon sugar, one teaspoon salt, half teaspoon pepper, one-quarter teaspoon allspice a pinch of cloves, but size of an egg two tablespoons vinegar. Let this boil, then put fish in and let boil a few minutes longer.

THE MAN THE MOON.

Every Country Has Some Legend About the Old Dick's Inhabitation.

You young fellows of fair mind who know how it is to moon on moonlight evenings ought to be interested in those tales about the old moon. In every country in the world people have some story or other to tell about the mysterious spots on the face of the moon. The Indians of America tell two legends concerning these spots. One declares that the man in the moon was a hunter with his dog, banished to the sky for some offence. The other story is that long ago a group of Indian boys met every evening to dance to the music of one of their number who was a sweet singer. One night, however, when their parents had refused their request for dainties to make a great feast, although they danced as usual the singer sang more sweetly than ever before and as he sang they danced ever faster, till they finally rose into the air, still whirling around their leader. Though their parents called them, they rose higher and higher. One boy, looking back, fell to the earth and changed into a pine tree. The others rose toward the sky till they stepped into the moon, where they can be seen on any moonlight night. On certain nights of the year Indians still climb as high as possible into pine trees and, stretching their arms toward the heavens, chant prayers to the boys to bring blessings from the moon to the earth.

In New Zealand the Maoris say that a man went out one night and stumbling, strained his ankle. He cried so loudly that at last the moon came down and took hold of him. In his fright the man seized a bush but the moon pulled that up by the roots and sailed back into the sky with both man and bush.

In China moon worship still exists. There they say that the man in the moon arranges marriages and ties together with a silken cord the youths and maidens whom he intends to unite. In all probability the man in the moon is the creator of the honey-moon. Samoan islanders believe that the moon came down one night and stole the woman Sina, working in the twilight. Never able to return to earth, you can see her now in the moon, with her mallet and the board on which she was beating out bark to make cloth. It is true that about nine days after the new moon a pretty, unmistakably feminine face appears on the western half of the disk.

Many an otherwise good husband is spoiled by having a good natured wife.

Solid Petrol, a New

Safety Product

(The Daily Telegraph London.)
Petrol, petroleum, chloroform, and other volatile liquids are ranked amongst the danger fluids of the world's produce so a German chemist Dr. V. Roscalet, has produced a method of converting all highly evaporative liquids into a solid form. This is of itself interesting because this solidifying has been performed as a mechanical rather than a chemical change. The spirits so converted do not alter their constitution, but are held in suspension, as it were, in a jelly.

The process of conversion is by means of stearic acid or similar fatty acids after undergoing prolonged treatment with a mineral acid, which is dissolved at a high temperature in the hydro-carbons, such as petroleum, etc., to be solidified, and the solution mixed with an alcoholic solution of caustic soda. After cooling, the hydro-carbon (petrol) is no longer a liquid, but forms a solid mass. In appearance this solid is like boiled starch, which seems to hold the petrol in its minute cells as honey is held in the honey comb, for by squeezing a portion of the jelly one could, so to speak, wring petrol from it as water from a sponge. At the same time the evaporation is as rapid as in the liquid; yet it is free from the spreading danger if lighted, so easily can it be blown out or the flame smothered. The reason of this is that it does not melt, but burns as a candle, and can be extinguished as easily.

It is possible that in time motorists may adopt solid petrol in place of liquid fuel, as the change would reduce the bulk by 20 per cent., and no carburettor would be needed, since solid petrol vaporizes immediately on being subjected to currents of air. But in the field of gas-lighting solid petrol appears to have its greatest future.

Take the ordinary petrol-burning table lamp. In this ordinary container is filled with lumps of solid petrol in its jelly form, and the incandescent burner of the ordinary coal-gas type, using the petrol gas which dissolves straightway from this solid petrol, gives a most brilliant illuminant. There can be no danger with this form of lighting, as if the lamp overturns there is no liquid to be spilt, and the light simply goes out. The system can be applied for general house-lighting by pipes. For motors a small tube filled with solid petrol costing half a crown gave sufficient gas and lighting capacity to all five lamps—to last five hours a day for a fortnight—a much cheaper and yet more brilliant form of lighting than the ordinary method, as the biggest lead light only consumes one-sixteenth of a cubic foot of gas per hour using a double burner.

When the solid petrol evaporates there appears to be left only a residue of about 1 1/2 per cent. of foreign matter in the form of a white dust, which is easily disposed of, while a user of this fuel on his motor car stated that he found an increase of 20 per cent. in the efficiency of his engine, which consumed this amount less solid than liquid petrol. From the distributor's outlook solid petrol can be more easily handled than the liquid form, and by the method of its solidification a saving is effected in the refining process, while a much heavier spirit can be used.

In this direction a solid mixture of 40 per cent. of petroleum and 60 per cent. of petrol is said to give as good results for motor cars, without any of the smoke or pungent fumes which have formerly discouraged this mixture's adoption.

In all directions where gas is used for power, light or heat, the new substance solid petrol is applicable. Who knows but in this form of fuel the aviator may have found the substance that will enable him to run his engine for long-distance journeys? In any case, the system is interesting from the scientific point of view, irrespective of its commercial possibilities.

FRIDAY, APRIL 21, 1911

Ottawa, April 13. The Census and Statistics Office issues today a bulletin on crops and live stock.

The reports of correspondents show that out of a yield of 149,989,600 bushels of wheat harvested last year 141,096,000 bushels or 94 per cent were merchantable and that at the end of March 33,042,000 bushels or 22 per cent of whole were in farmers' hands. The quantity held by farmers in the Maritime Provinces at that date was 468,000 bushels, in Quebec 7,000 bushels, in Ontario 5,002,000 bushels, and in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta 27,995,000 bushels. At the same date last year the quantity in hand in all Canada was 30,484,000 bushels or 1.28 per cent of the total crop of 166,744,000 bushels, of which 159,968,000 bushels or 95.87 per cent was of merchantable quality.

Oats, last year gave a yield of 323,490,000 bushels, was merchantable to the extent of 301,773,000 bushels, or 93.29 per cent, and the quantity in hand at the end of March was 127,587,000 bushels or 39.44 per cent. In the Maritime Provinces there was in hand at that date 6,945,000 bushels, in Quebec 17,447,000, in Ontario 50,742,000 bushels, and in the Northwest Provinces exclusive of British Columbia 52,413,000 bushels. In the preceding year the quantity in hand out of a harvest of 352,465,000 bushels was 141,490,000 bushels or 40.03 per cent; and there was a total of 521,190,000 bushels or 50.86 per cent of merchantable oats. The barley yield of 1910 was 45,147,000 bushels, and of this quantity there was in hand at the end of March 13,155,000 bushels or 29 per cent. The merchantable yield was 41,595,000 bushels or 92.13 per cent. The barley crop of 1909 was 55,398,000 bushels and the quantity in hand at the end of March last year was 16,517,000 bushels, 29.81 per cent. The merchantable quantity of that crop was 51,499,000 bushels or 92.87 per cent. Oat straw crop last year was 20,727,900 bushels, and that of the three Northwest provinces 21,377,000 bushels.

The merchantable yield of corn last year was 83.63 per cent of the whole crop, of buckwheat 88.65 per cent of the potatoes 77.31, of turnips and other roots 7.81 per cent and of hay and clover 85.72 per cent, which are nearly the same as the percentages of the same crops in the previous year. The quantities of these crops on hand at the end of March were nearly the same in both years except that the supply of potatoes this year is 79,009,000 bushels less and the supply of hay and clover 2,494,000 tons more. The per cent condition of live stock on the farms ranges close to the same figures for both years but is a little higher for all classes this year. For the respective years 1911 and 1910 horses are 95.37 to 93.95, milk cows 95.19 to 91.42, other cattle 90.87 to 89.30, sheep 93.77 to 92.43 and swine 94.36 to 92.77. These proportions are closely maintained throughout all the provinces; they denote the condition of live stock as regards a healthy and thrifty state.

JAPANESE
Perfection of One of Her Modes
The women of Japan have been for some time past perfecting one of their modes of dress. They do not wear the kimono, but a long, flowing, and a handkerchief, but what she wears is a change from the kimono. The Japanese women are further advanced than they were before the new code of 10 years ago, a condition which has been brought about largely through the influence of the Japanese women. New divorce laws have been passed, and a woman can only be divorced through mutual consent. Formerly a woman could divorce her husband without any cause whatsoever. According to the present laws there are just two reasons for divorcing a woman—one is unfaithfulness and the other is if she has served a prison sentence of over a year's time.

The girls of Japan are brought up with different ideas of life from those held by girls in America. They are taught that their lives are to be held suffering and care that wherever there is of happiness is an incident. Marriage is looked forward to as one of woman's duties and as a high privilege. Therefore she generally accepts her mother's choice of a husband without dissent, for she is brought up to believe that her parents' judgment is best until she is married. This explains why in this country marriages, for the most part, are satisfactory, while divorces are much less frequent than in America. Japanese women concern themselves not at all about politics, for it is not customary for women to attend the domestic duties is concentrated on philanthropic and educational questions. Domestic duties come first of all, however, for these women have the keenest interest in their home lives, the highest ambition of a wife being to perfect her own in this regard so far as she may be able.

The Medieval Kitchen.
It was the middle ages before the kitchen had been raised to the dignity of an established apartment. Strangers went on in those medieval kitchens. Butchers slaughtered animals there, which were skinned and dressed as well as cooked in the kitchen. The family blacksmith kept his fire there and repaired the plow and wheels of the estate. Coal began to be used as a kitchen fuel in 1548, though not generally for 200 years after. The oven did not come into use until the year 1400, and then it was the old-fashioned brick oven, which persisted for hundreds of years. The stove when invented took the place of the separate oven and the fire place, with its hanging pots.

Railway Car Wheels.
Everybody knows how the wheels of a railroad car are fastened to the axle. They are secured on a nut put on hot and allowed to shrink in cooling so that they are practically a solid piece with the axle. These cars go around curves, and it will be observed that the outer rail covers a great deal more ground than the inner one, so that to turn the curves and finish even the outside wheel must necessarily travel considerably faster than the inner one. Yet it is fixed solidly to the axle and cannot make a fraction of a revolution more than the other one, yet the axle remains intact, and the curves are passed with undisturbed regularity.

An Ungallant Parliament.
All women of whatever age, rank, profession or degree, whether virgins, maids or widows, that shall from after the passing of this act impose upon and betray into matrimony any of his majesty's male subjects by scents, paints, cosmetics, washes, artificial teeth, false hair, Spanish wool, iron stays, hoops, high heeled shoes or bolstered hips shall incur the penalty of the law now in force against witchcraft, sorcery and such like misdemeanors and that the marriage, upon conviction, shall stand null and void.—An Act of Parliament in Reign of Charles II.

Vocation and Avocation.
"Avocation" is one of those unfortunate words that are constantly being used in a wrong sense. Strictly speaking, it refers to something that calls a man away from the ordinary occupation of his daily life. If you earn your living by drafting conveyances and interpreting legal subtleties and also are often seen in leisure hours with a camera in your hand and have a dark room at home, then the law is your vocation and photography your avocation.—London Telegraph.

Beauties of Long Island.
A teacher tells me that at a Brooklyn school not long since the class in geography was asked, "What are some of the natural peculiarities of Long Island?" The pupils tried to think, and after awhile a boy raised his hand. "I know," said he. "Well, what are they?" asked the teacher. "Why," said the boy, with a triumphant look, "on the south side you can see the sea, and on the north side you can hear the sound."

Controlling the Elements.

According to the Peking (China) Times, the viceroy of Kwangtung province "has taken in hand the control of the elements." There having been a long spell of cloudy weather, the viceroys started in to get the weather right. "For several days by his order the various forts have been firing salutes in order to break up the darkness of the heavens and cause the sun to shine. Day and night there has been a long cannonading. This morning (March 25) when the clouds grew thin and the sun almost shone the Chinese began to say that the viceroys' attempts were accomplishing something."

Dry in Switzerland.
The past summer was exceptionally dry and warm in Switzerland, so that the hotels in the highest locations were overcrowded. In the Tyrol in same conditions prevailed. For the first time in many years some mountain sides were made available to climbers because of the melting of their ice coverings.

Tax on Land

To the Editor of the Globe:
Sir—Mrs. Phillips' statement quoted in your issue of April 6, regarding the scarcity of work in St. John should cause every citizen of your beautifully situated city to make an effort at least to think. What first impressed me when I visited St. John a few days ago was the apparent ambition of every citizen to appear as poverty stricken as possible. The residences especially were plain, cheap and unpainted.

When I find a city with a splendid location for commerce and industry looking so unattractive and unprosperous, I usually look into the systems of taxation and administration for a reason, so I visited your mayor and assessor, and I found the reason all right.

I found that a large part of the site of St. John is owned by the descendants of a few early settlers, who will not sell on any terms. Much of the land is held on lease, and the tenants will not improve the buildings for that reason, and the landlords refuse to improve.

About four-fifths of our municipal revenue is raised by taxes on buildings and personal property, leaving the tax on the land—which is greatly under assessed—so light that it is easy for holders to let it idle, while the person who improves is at once penalized by increased taxation.

In Toronto we have what is called the "Local Improvement System," by which property owners on any street are assessed for one-half the cost of local improvements, (roads, sidewalks, etc.) on a frontage basis. This makes it unprofitable for a man to hold a lot vacant long after streets and sidewalks have been laid. As a result whole sections have been built up with beautiful houses in a few years, leaving hardly a vacant lot.

Ald. Potts has figured out that a $2.00 a foot frontage tax would provide all the revenue St. John needs. Some such plan, by which a man would not be penalized for improving, but would be taxed for maintaining vacant lots or obsolete buildings, would soon change the whole appearance of your city.

At the beginning of the present year, Victoria, B. C., abolished all building taxes, placing all taxes on the value of the land apart from improvements, and already, it is reported, that building permits have been taken out for this year amounting to $11,000,000, an increase of $8,000,000 over last year.

Ald. Potts' suggestion, or any other suggestion that will encourage building and discourage holding land idle, is worthy of thought in St. John. You can, if you will learn from the cities of Western Canada, solve the problem of unemployment in St. John and with it a large part of the problem of charity

Yours very truly,
A. B. FARMER,
Secretary of the Tax Reform League of Ontario.

Mr. John Lord who has been holding meetings at Back Bay will start his services here Sunday April 23.

The C. P. R. are giving an example of mismanagement on this branch of their system which would be a disgrace to a poor and hard up Co. but in the case of a Co. with their facilities and business reputation is simply scandalous and should be looked after by the government who are paying them large sums of the people's money to deliver and handle the mails in some decent time.

Mostly every day the train arrives and departs at nearly any old time at all, several times arriving here from 6 to 8 p.m. on her return trip to St. John and usually about dinner time or after arriving here from St. John. Of course the delays caused by bad track during this time of year are to be excused, but very few of such a nature to occur and most of the delays are apparently caused by the breaking down of the old traps called engines that they furnish for this branch, and which so medicine will be the cause of serious danger, and when such comes the cause will not be hard to place.

A number of the merchants are having their scores painted and cleaned. Messrs. Easley Bros have just completed the painting of theirs and the Messrs. O'Brien and Gillmor are having a new steel ceiling put in their place of business. James O'Neill has fitted up a room for their clothing on the upper floor.

The Bean Supper and dance on Easter Monday at Conits Hall was not as well attended as the managers would have liked, and the sum toward the hall team will be small, but those who attended had a very pleasant evening. The hurried manner in which it was gotten up likely explains the small attendance.

W. W. Wait and Seymour Edridge of Pennfield have purchased a 6 H.P. Olds Engine from the Massey Harris Co. through E. C. Justason and are putting up a portable mill to saw small and long lumber, the mill which is situated about 2 1/2 miles from E.C. Justason is expected to be ready to start very shortly and no doubt will prove quite a convenience for the people of Pennfield.

The town elections passed off quietly on Tuesday their being opposition in the wards 1 and 4 only which resulted in the election of the following vote No 1.—H. McKenzie 87 George Craig 62, J. B. Spear 57 No 4.—N. Meating 74 E. M. Cawley 60, J. A. Crickard 44. In ward 2 James Dugue and Wm. Boyd were elected by acclamation. The Mayor Huzen McGee also being given another turn without opposition, this leaving the personal of the new council the same as last year with one new member E. A. Greason.

L. C. Gaptill of Grand Menan who brought over the Rev. Mr. Spencer's furniture, etc. in his fine auxiliary motor boat "Alpha" last week, went from here to Blacks Harbor where he sold the boat to Messrs. Connors Bros., taking in exchange as part payment a small motor boat of the Messrs. Connors, this boat will be a fine addition to the Messrs. Connors Bros. as she is an exceptionally fine boat with a 24 H. P. engine and capable of making 8 knots under power alone and has a very large stowing capacity for freight.

Herring were taken in great quantities during the first of the week in almost all the weirs 12 to 1500 Hogsheads being got on Frye's Island alone, which at 210 to 12 per hogshead means some money, during the last day or two however the run was somewhat tinned off.

A number of the merchants are having their scores painted and cleaned. Messrs. Easley Bros have just completed the painting of theirs and the Messrs. THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

The warmest friends of Red Rose Tea are those who have tried some other brand and found it "as good as Red Rose" and for which they paid the same price. Very easy to say a thing is "as good" but not so easy to "make good."

Prices: 30c., 35c., 40c., 50c. and 60c.

Portion of the Retail Merchant in the Small Town

"Yes," remarked a country merchant, "I was in an exchange of letters with a shop, Wholesale houses, send this every month and draw on it a bill, but if I send a bill to the shop, it becomes sweating me and, and I have to get at my store. While I am here, I have to send money in advance to the shop, and if I contribute money to any cause people say I am helping for nothing. If I don't they say I am a big boy, by I am expected to dig up for everything that comes along from a raffish crowd to a church fund by people who don't ought to do this because they do not get their trading here, but our friends, Robert Simpson and T. Eaton, neither buy tickets nor help the church fund, and yet they get the cash in advance business. If I sell a pair of pants to a man, I must trade the family to candy or cigars, if I sell a loaf of potatoes I must do the same. Customers who are able to pay for me on their money, while I pay ten per cent at the bank to get ready cash. I have big business during hard times and poor crops, from people who are willing to trade with me provided I can duplicate catalogue house prices and wait until harvest for money. My scales weigh too much when I sell sugar, and too little when I buy butter. I am a thief, a bar, and a grafter. If I smile I am a proffer, and if I don't I am a grump. Yes, certainly this is a snarl." And he looked over $10,000 worth of accounts, all good.

An Interesting Calculation

HERE is an interesting calculation for young housewives or old ones for that matter. A pound of the best bread in the world made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR costs less than four cents. A pound of the best beefsteak costs 25 to 30 cents. Yet a pound of bread made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR contains more working energy than a pound and a half of beefsteak. Or three pounds of pork, or two pounds of veal.

Whether figured by the pound or by actual units of health and strength, bread made from

Royal Household Flour is the most economical food in the world. Especially is bread made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR good for growing children. They can't eat too much of it. For their general healthy growth and development it furnishes an almost complete food. As a matter of household economy children ought to be given all the bread they can eat at all times.

Statistics also prove that ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR will sustain life longer than animal food. It is extremely rich in high quality gluten which comes from the best Red Fyfe Wheat—the finest in the world. This large percentage of high quality gluten is what makes ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR so much better than ordinary flour. Red Fyfe Wheat is known the

A Suit in Chancery

A suit which was begun in 1848, and was interrupted because Richard de Manville had to leave for the war in France, has just been resumed in the Chancery court.

The point at issue is the right to hold a market at Stowmarket, Suffolk, and the suit was originally brought by the Count of St. Omer, Essex, in the twenty second year of Edward III., against Richard de Manville. According to the abbots, who claimed to be lord of the manor, Richard had wrongfully obtained the grant of the right to hold a market at Stowmarket, and his claim was "to the grave damage of the said abbots."

Richard claimed the King's protection and eventually the case was adjourned sine die because of his departure abroad.

At the resumed hearing the modern representatives of Richard asserted that the modern representative of the abbots had no right to set up a rival market. This assertion was supported by Mr. Ogden, a famous London lawyer, who cited the Domesday Book and other authorities to prove his case.

"When Richard de Manville went abroad," remarked the judge, "he left the forest that we would be fighting the same question 660 years afterwards."

The hearing was adjourned for the second time after extracts from the abbots' pleadings had been read.

LACE-BARK TREES ARE FEW

But Half a Dozen of This Species Now Exist—Reason for So Scarcity

There are in all about half a dozen lace-bark trees in the world, so called because the inner bark yields a natural lace in a ready-made sheet form, which can be made up in serviceable articles of apparel. Only four of these curious species of trees are of much practical value. Tourists who have stopped at Hawaii or Samoa may recall the lace-bark clothing of the natives—clothing of a neat brown color when new, of remarkable strength and of a fragrant odor, like freshly cured tobacco leaf. The native tapa cloth, as it is called, is made from the bark of the bruseonera papuifera, but it is not usually included among the real lace-bark trees.

In its natural state the real lace-bark is of a delicate cream-white tint. It is probably a kind of fibrous pith. When the outer bark is removed it can be unfolded and unwound in one seamless piece, having a surface of a little more than a square yard. Washing and sun bleaching give it a dazzling white appearance. The fabric is airy light. It is used in the West Indies for mantles, cravats, collars, cuffs, window curtains—in a word, for every purpose that ordinary lace is used. In making up shawls, veils and the like it is customary to piece two sheets of lace-bark together. Delicate and apparently weak as it is in single mesh, a bit of lace-bark, if rolled into a thin string, will all but resist human strength to break it.

Despite its practical use there is no essential demand for lace-bark. It has been used by the natives for hundreds of years and yet is comparatively little known to this day. A few specimens of lace-bark articles exist in different countries of Europe. These were made hundreds of years ago, yet, although their age is considerable, they are said to be in a good state of preservation.

Synopsis of Canadian North-West Land Regulations.

Any person who is the sole head of a family or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

Duties—Six months residence and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section along side his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may enter a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres, erect a house worth $300.00.

W. W. CORY, Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.
