MUCH ANXIETY OVER DEPARTURE OF AMBASSADOR

Mexican Representative Hurrying Home to Explain Present Critical Situation.

Sharp Developments in the Near Future Would Cause No Surprise.

[Canadian Press.]

Mexico City, July 17 .- The United States ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, left Mexico City last night over the Mexican Railway to Vera Cruz, from which port he expects to sail today. He will lay before the Administration at Washington the exact situation in Mexico, but not before July 27, the earliest time at which he can reach the United States capital, unless quarantine is waived, which would permit him to proceed from Havana by way of Key West.

Fear Trouble.

Sharp developments in Mexico during the ambassador's absence would cause no great surprise, although at present there is no good reason to believe that the situation will alter ma-

Rendered anxious by the long warfare and by the conjectures regarding intervention, the American resident here were somewhat alarmed at the ambassador's summons to Washington, but this alarm was allayed to some extent by the knowledge that the secretary of the embassy, Nelson O'Shaughnessy, will remain

Many Mexicans appear to regard in tervention almost as a certainty. Some of the Mexican newspapers this week have devoted considerable space editorially to such a possibility, and have urged Mexicans to forget their differences and unite for the defence of the fatherland. Impassioned letters in the same vein have also been published, and in the cafes and clubs conversations drift to the subject of an international war.

May Not Return. The ambassador has announced that ne will be back in the Mexican capital in three weeks, but his friends consider it quite possible that he may return. Of late the ambassador been unable to exact from the Mexican Government the protection for Ameri eans which he sought, but this was argely due to the fact that the Government was unable to give this pro

Squeezed Between Auto Truck EASTERN LINES and Ladder Wagon Last Night.

AT ASYLUM PIGGERY FIRE

While working at the fire which par tially destroyed one of the piggeries at the Hospital for the Insane on Wednesday night, Fireman A. J. Webber, 245 Horton street, attached to No. 1 hall, and Fireman John Happer, 264 Dundas street, of No. 2 hall, were injured by being squeezed between the adder truck and the automobile combination wagon.

Both were loading hose on to the auto truck and were standing between it and the heavy ladder wagon. A stream of water was being played on the fire from one of the asylum mains, and the hose carrying it was lying on the ground directly under the heads of the horses attached to the ladder truck. Suddenly the hose burst, and the water, flying up into the faces of the horses, caused them to turn suddenly, dragging the heavy wagon with them. Before Webber or Happer could get out of the way they were pinned up against the hood of the motor truck.

Both men were bruised considerably about the hips, and after going back to their respective stations were sent to their homes. Webber is under the care of Dr. Bateson. Both men are off work today, but are expected back to-

PARLIAMENT TO BE CALLED TO MEET EARLY IN NOV.

Financial Situation Was Cause of Minister White's Recent Trip.

British Bond Holders Are Showing Much Interest in Railway Securities.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, July 17. — Unless there is a radical change in the general financial situation Parliament will be called to meet early in November. British bondholders are showing considerable interest just now in Canadian railway securities. It has developed that the trip of Finance Minister White was not so much of a holiday jaunt as announced when he left, but that he cancelled his trip to Western Canada and hurried to England because of the financial situation.

Sir Byron Walker, head of the Bank of Commerce, is now in England, and Sir William Mackenzie is sailing, though he only returned from there a few months ago.

The conference between Premier Borden and Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, n St. Andrew's, last week, concerned the financial situation, though the Canadian Pacific is in splendid financial shape, and is not concerned on its own account. It is interested in maintaining the financial integrity of Canada and Canadian securities generally.

LONDON, THURSDAY, JULY 17.

ANGLO-AMERICAN AMENITIES. The London Times objects very Strongly to Englishmen joining with The people of the United States in celebrating the Fourth of July, as is the custom in England. In the opinion of the Times, Independence Day is the Anniversary of "the most humiliating disaster in British history." And the inference would be that it should be observed as a day of fasting and prayer, though the great London journal does not go quite that far.

On the face of it, there may seem some inconsistency in two parties uniting to celebrate the defeat of one of them and the victory of the other. Wet such things have been done, and nobody the worse for it. Fifty years ago, the United States were divided by civil war. A large section of the nation was in rebellion against the Government. It was a far greater and more bitter contest than that between The thirteen colonies and the British Covernment. The rebels were defeated, and very sore at heart they were over the result-far more so than were the defeated Englishmen when the old colonies secured their independence. Net a few days ago, on the field of Gettysburg, North and South joined in celebrating the victory of the Government: the few survivors of that battle, both the blue and the gray, clasped hands in amity, and the old Mag of the Confederacy floated in peace by the side of the Stars and Stripes. Each party gave the other credit for bravery that was shown fifty wears ago in fighting for what they thought to be the cause of right and fustice, and both parties were agreed that the result of the contest, grievous as it was for one of them, was the best thing for both.

could thus units in harmony, surely the descendants of these who fought nearly one hundred and fifty years ago, can forget the old animosities, and join hands today. The Southerner, as he recalls the days of no pleasant position for an American the civil war, and the Englishman, as President. the recalls the unpleasantness of 1776, are both agreed that the result in each case was the best for all parties concerned, and the best for civilization and humanity. The rebellion of the thirteen colonies was in reality a civil war. There were mistakes and blunders on both sides. The seceding colonists were not all the pure patriots that they are sometimes pictured. The statesmen of England were not all odious tyrants, nor were the British soldiers inhuman murderers. From a British point of view, and with the ideas of colonial relationship then prevalent, the course follewed by the Imperial Government was not altogether unjustifiable. An impartial historian will only conclude that there was much to be said for either

If after only fifty years, victor and

It should not be forgotten that many of the highest rank among England's statesmen, as well as many of the common people, were favorable to the demands of the colonists. This was one reason, doubtless, why the feeling of humiliation over defeat soon began to die, and has long since disappeared. The bitter aftermath of war lingered far longer among the victors than among the vanquished. It is only of late that the prejudices engendered by the revolutionary war have begun to fade in the United States, but they disappeared in England generations ago, among the masses of the people, though the aristocratic and official classes of the old land gave the Northern States just cause for resentment ·loy their avowed sympathy with the South during the civil war.

There are very few people, we should think, now living in the British Empire who feel any sense of humiliation on account of the defeat of the British arms in 1776. It was a defeat brought about by the blunders of British statesmen and British generals, for which we of today are in no wise responsible. It was a defeat, moreover, which wrought no harm to England, but which, by establishing sounder principles of colonial government paved the way for a Greater Britain, and a more united Empire. Humanity has been the better for it. A new field was opened up for the operation of that spirit of civil and religious liberty which was developing rapidly among the Anglo-Saxon race nations of Europe, and especially in England itself, the mother of freedom and self-government. Whether the experiment has worked as well in the new republic as in the mother land and her overseas dominions may be a question, but the York play the game on the old Roman world benefits by the experience of the rule of panem et circenses.

old land and the new. The great British Empire, with its Your hundred millions of people, with its flag floating in every sea, and its morning drum beat circling the perous first-born. It can well afford to orget the unpleasantness that marked the day of its separation from the parent whose fostering care gave it lunguage and law, race and religion. In thinking of the present, and hoping for the future, it can surely forget the past, and join hands in celebrating, not the defeat of British arms, but the birthday of a new nation among selfgoverning people.

THE RISE IN RENTS.

A writer in the Ottawa Free Presa

"The old rule of household economics was that a man could not afford to pay more for rent each month than one-eighth the amount of his monthly earnings. There are few men in Ottawa today drawing salary or wages who are not far outside the confines of that rule. In fact, many have long since revised it to read that they should not pay out in rent more than a quarter of their monthly earnings, and even then they have had to break it.

The man who is making a hundred dollars a month in this city today is mighty fortunate if he is not paying more than $25 a month rent and getting a comfortable home to live in. A couple of years ago it was not an altogether uncommon thing to rent a good house for $25, but it is within the last two or three years that the biggest boosts in rent have been made. Now the $25 house does not greatly resemble a palace. One is more likely to find it among largely in keeping with the structure

What is true of Ottawa is true of other growing Canadian cities. A porsponds with the increase of the cost of building, but this applies only to new houses. Rents have been raised. larger return which capital can command in every field of investment, and the higher assessments on property, are also factors. But the chief cause is the increasing value of land-the unearned increment. This "found penny fare. money" for the landlords is made not by himself but by the growth of the community-by the tenants themselves. dinner instead of carrying the lunch And the tenants are taxed in in- basket, creased rentals as a result of the increment of value which they help to

Of course, the owners of property are only following the ordinary rule of business by charging as much as they can get, and the average tenant is in receipt of a higher income than some years ago. The fault is in the system which turns the whole of the unearned increment into private pockets. Some day statesmen will be compelled by public opinion to apply remedy. In the meantime it is a fact that a growing proportion of the income of a tenant is claimed by rent. What does the tenant get out of it?

Shall the Huerta Government be recognized by the United States? Is it a government? If it is, does it deserve official recognition?

The New York Sun seems to suggest that recognition ought not to be withheld. It quotes approvingly the message to Congress of a Democratic president in 1856:

"It is the established policy of the United States to recognize all governments without question of their source of organization or of the means by which the governing persons attain their power, provided there be a government de facto accepted by the people of the country. It is the more imperatively necessary to apply this rule to the Spanish-American peoples in consideration of the frequent and not seldom anomalous changes of organization or administration which they undergo and the revolutionary character of most of the changes."

The Sun goes on to recall that the United States was slower than most powers to recognize the Diaz Government in its beginnings. A rebuke seems to be implied to President Wilson's hesitation. But is not the delay of Girls. 1876-78 itself a precedent as much as

Are there not also some very peculiar circumstances about the inauguration him that he could remember only one of the Huerta ascendancy which would make it an exception from the operation of the rule of 1856? Even the Servian horror of a few years ago is that fourteen years ago I told the story less repulsive than the way in which of an old woman who fell from a third Huerta waded through slaughter to his chair, European powers have been added that I had said I went to her slower to recognize the new Servian Government, perhaps because over there monarchs are more sacred persons that citizen Maderos, But in the United States the Maderos are respected and their political principles hold sway. Huerta is viewed as a bloodstained and treacherous assassin. A certain vein of Puritanism in President Wilson and in the American nation may particularly shrink from recognition of such a regime as Huerta's. If murderers are to enter the family circle of governments, they might feel encouraged. It is to the credit of the Inited States to hesitate, even were the Huerta Government clearly de facto competent. But is it? Mexico seethes with revolt, especially in the north. Huerta can't get money. The only reason why decent Mexicans would accept his authority is that the country yearns for peace at almost any price. Is American intervention to be the only solution of hastening ills?

The Seven Ages of Woman in Love: Chapter Four-When Twenty-Seven Is Afflicted With Doubt!

y Amnie Lee

Just as I started to write about the FOURTH of the SEVEN-AGES-OF-WOMAN-IN-LOVE there came to me the letter which follows. Could there be a better illustration of the SKEP-TICISM which afflicts TWENTY-SEVEN-when she loves a man?

"Am 27 and am engaged to be married next fall. My fiance is now ordered to another city with his firm, but I am backward about letting him go, fearing that he will forget me. So to prove his sincere intention to marry me and no other, he has given me a written agreement to marry me when he comes back at the date fixed. He has signed his full name. Is this paper any good to me in case he should not keep his promise, and should marry some other girl? He is a very nice man, but do you think he loves me? How much we hear of how easily a man is lured away! Even married men by single women!-An Anxious Girl."

Other letters to me prove that Twenty-seven has returned diamonds of several sizes, and a gallery of handsome photographs, and some tons of carefully selected stationery covered with the vocabulary invented by Cupid; when she has wept nights in fear that she may not get ALL of her own scented epistles back again; when she has seen her first love engaged to a string of girls; and has gone to the wedding of her second love and her best girl friend-well, of course, she knows with just what fervor, with what tender intonation each man can say, "I love you! DARLING!"

So she does get a bit scornful of man's emotions. She just naturally doubts his constancy; and she craves some more binding guarantee of his wish to settle down than the everchanging, fickle-hearted diamond.

But the letter quoted is the first case I have discovered where the man had been obliged to put his name to paper to satisfy a maiden's doubt.

Unhappily, Love is the one condition which does not bring wisdom with experience. The more times one loves, the less one knows of love. So how can Twenty-seven be expected to distinguish the truest love ever offered woman from the common affinity

All men know that when once a woman starts to doubting, there is nothing in the wide kingdom of love which will not end in doubting. Thus "explaining himself" gets to be a habit of mind with some men. They acquire marvellous facility at it, even if they do not acquire felicity by it.

By nature woman trusts her lover. By nature, it is said, man betrays that must. Therefore woman endures two kinds of doubt first the doubt of ignorance, then the doubt of knowledge. The former may be cured, but just see the fight which Englishmen are compelled to put up against the latter! The moral seems plain. It is a moral

Stem the red cherries and pit them, being careful not to waste the juice. Measure into the preserving kettle and add half the quantity of sugar, with an extra half-pound or bowlful for the "kettle." Place over the fire with onehalf cupful of cold water to prevent. Have your jars sterilizing in a separate dish. To do this properly, put them into cold water and place over the fire until it boils. Boil the cherries gently until the juice begins to thickenusually about ten to fifteen minutes after the fruit commences to boil. Stir as little as possible to prevent breaking up the fruit. Dip out the sterilized jars one at a time; fill each with the boiling fruit and seal up tight at once, and set in a cool place. This is an old-fashioned method, but by it I have known canned fruit to mer gently for 20 minutes. Pour this keep perfectly for at least two years. In doing black or white cheries it is

For plums, much the same method as the cherries call for may be followed, only do not attempt to stone the plums, but skin out as many pits as possible, while they are boiling. If the plum is of a very sour variety it may be best to use three-quarters of a pound of sugar to one of fruit to in-

Even in outspoken America, witnesses do not retail their evidence to all and sundry when men's lives are at stake, and it was quickly determined to charge all five prisoners under one and the same indictment.

Yet, for reasons never understood by the public, Balusky and Viviadi were discharged, and Jean de Courtois was deported. Martiny was sentenced to capital punishment, and Lamotte received a long term of imprisonment. But these eventualities came long after Curtis and Hermione had been remarried in strict privacy, and in the presence of a small but select circle of friends, an occasion but select circle of friends, an occasion but select circle of friends, an occasion which supplied Aunt Louisa with fresh occans of talk for the delectation of society in Bloomington, Indiana.

About 50 London young men formed a parade and marched up Talbot street in St. Thomas, yelling for London, and promising all sorts of beatings for the Saints in the series which opens in this city today. LONDON FANS AND PLAYERS JUBILANT OVER BIG VICTORY

Good Pitching and Timely Hitting Responsible for Winning Wheat Area Is Nearly 60,000 Last Eight Games-Every Man on Team Is Playing a Great Game.

[BY JINX.] There was gloom in St. Thomas last evening, while this city seemed to e in the throes of intense delight, or something to that effect. Yesterday afternoon the large crowd in front of The Advertiser watching the results of the Canadian Leagues games nearly blocked traffic on Dundas street, and when the final innings came in, and it was seen that London had jumped to the top of the league the crowd cheered enthusiastically. PLAYERS JUBILANT.

The London team arrived back home early last evening, and every one of the players was jubilant over the fact that the club had arrived on top of the heap at last. The series with St. Thomas, which opens today, is being eagerly sus and statistics office to issue finally awaited by the players, and an attempt will be made to make it three straight from the Saints. Bobby Heck will likely work in the first game, while Clements will, in all probability, oppose him.

BROKE WINNING RECORD.

The London team has won eight games in a row, and the record set by Hamilton earlier in the season of seven games in a row has been broken. The time, and has a right to be in first place. With a fourteen-point lead over the St. Thomas, the London team goes to Berlin for three games, and then jumps to Ottawa for the latter part of next week. The club returns here for a threegame series with Peterbero the following week, and then leaves for three more days. Out of the next sixteen games played by the London team, only six of these will be staged at Tecumseh Park. The London team will have a hard row to hoe during that time, and if it can remain on top of the league during that series there is little doubt that the team will cop the pennant. GOOD PITCHING AND HITTING DID IT.

Good pitching and aggressive base running, combined with timely hitting, as been responsible for the eight straight wins in a row. The London pitching epartment is, at the present writing, the best in the league, but it is likely that it will be cut down to four twirlers before the week is out. While it was good pitching that had much to do with beating Ottawa and Brantford, the work of Eddie Linneborn, Oskee Neale, and George Dunlop in the field and at bat and on the bases was particularly noticeable. Linneborn was the star of the series if any one man can be picked out as a star, and there is little doubt that he is the most valuable man in the league as a run-getter, a hitter, and prominently in the series. Myers and "Dad" Stewart have recovered from their temporary batting slumps, and they are clouting the ball at a merry clip at present, while the rest of the team is also hitting. CHAPUT RECOVERS OLDTIME FORM.

In the pitching end of it, the work of Del. Chaput yesterday must stand of 52,000 acres for wheat, 391,900 acres out prominently as a factor in putting London in first place. Chaput pitched for oats, and 47,800 acres for barley, or ten innings in great style yesterday, and only allowed five runs. He is credited with both wins, although Beebe finished the second game after the third ining. Chaput has apparently recovered his 1911 form, and he is shaping into one of the best pitchers in the league. Just how good the London pitching staff at present can be understood better when it is realized that London has on eight games in a row, and Bobby Heck only worked in one of them. At 100, taken as representing the promise that he only worked six innings, relieving Steiger in the third inning Saturday

[Canadian Press.] Saskatoon, July 17.—The Canadian nunicipalities' convention will be held in Sherbrooke, Que., in 1914. Officers for the year elected are: President, F. P. Bligh, mayor of Halifax; first vicepresident, C. M. R. Graham, mayor of London, Ont.; second vice-president, F. H. Herbert, Sherbrooke; third vicepresident, F. E. Harrison, mayor, Saskatoon, honorary secretary-treasurer, W. D. Lighthall, K.C., ex-mayor of Westmount, Que. (re-elected).

The greater part of the evening session was taken up with discussion on minor subjects, such as sewerage and pavements. Many delegates complained that important subjects on the program were not dealt with. They held that they were sent here by their city councils to ecure information regarding civic imrovements, and that very little of any alue had been forthcoming. Secretary Lighthall declared this had not been because the executive had een negligent. Every effort had been nade to secure leaders in civic matters ut without avail. The convention is practically closed, the only remaining art of the program being a drive about the city today as guests of the corpor-
