

TRACK ELEVATION SHELVED RAILWAY COMMISSION WON'T INTERFERE FOR SOME YEARS

Gentleman in Close Touch With the Commission Says That What Manager Hays Told the Board of Trade Was Right, Namely That London Will Come After Montreal and Toronto—Railway Must Be Given a Chance to Complete the Work Now in Hand

The question of track elevation is shelved for some years at least, and from information received it will be of no avail for the city of London at this time to make an appeal to the Dominion railway commission to settle the dispute.

It is now coming to be recognized that Mr. Hays knew whereof he spoke when he said that London would come after Toronto and Montreal, conveying the impression that the city would have to wait some years.

A few of his hearers at the board of trade banquet thought that the railway commission might over-ride the company's ideas and settle the question at once. However, it was learned by The Advertiser from a gentleman in close touch with the commission that they would not interfere in the matter for some time at least.

MUCH WORK FOR THE COMPANY.

"The commission have been dealing with the company for some time," he explained. "In Toronto they ordered the company to expend some millions of money in grade separation. That work must be gone ahead with. In Montreal, there is further work to be done, involving some millions of dollars. The commission will sit in that city during the next week, and some arrangements will be made for finally settling up the whole difficulty."

EXPENDITURE OF MILLIONS.

"As mentioned before, improvements will necessitate the expenditure of some millions of money. It would be unfair to the company, the commissioners think, to immediately saddle the company with another large expenditure, especially in view of the fact that London lost her opportunity some time ago."

"Believe me, there will be no session of the commission in London to deal with that question for a long, long time."

GEO. MOORE DIED IN THE HOSPITAL

Sarnia Man Confessed That He and Another Man Were Stealing a Ride On Train.

"PAL" TELLS THE STORY

Both Were Under the Influence of Liquor When the Accident Occurred—Remains Sent to Sarnia For Burial—No Inquest.

George Moore, of Sarnia, who, as was reported in last evening's Advertiser, was brought to Victoria Hospital yesterday afternoon, after being found on the Grand Trunk tracks four miles west of Glencoe with his leg cut off, died there about half-past five.

He stated to Coroner Ferguson that he and a man named Norman McPhail, a sailor, of Goderich, who is now in jail on a charge of being drunk, were stealing a ride together, and that he missed his footing and fell out from between the tender and the first car. The left leg was severed below the knee, and it is thought that Moore lay on the tracks for about two hours before he was found by the crew of an incoming W. & N. express. He was at once taken to Glencoe, where he was attended by Dr. Stanbury Walker, and then hurried to Victoria Hospital, where he died shortly after arriving.

McPhail, who was with Moore, states that the men spent Sunday in Chatham, and early yesterday morning boarded what they thought was a freight going to Windsor.

McPhail says that both were considerably under the influence of liquor, and that he fell asleep, and did not know when Moore fell off.

Instead of boarding a westbound freight, however, the men had taken an eastbound train.

McPhail, on arriving at Glencoe, was placed under arrest for drunkenness, and later was brought in and incarcerated in the jail here.

It was he who first identified the injured man. He was brought in by Constable D. M. Stewart, of Glencoe, a Sarnia man.

Moore was 30 years old, and a son of Mr. Moore, the foreman of the Grand Trunk Elevator Company at Sarnia.

The remains were taken to Logan & Hall's undertaking parlors, and were forwarded to Sarnia on the early morning train.

Coroner Ferguson stated to The Advertiser today that after investigating all the circumstances thoroughly, he had decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

BUILDING PERMITS ARE FALLING OFF

Total for April Will Not Reach Figures of Same Month of Last Year.

There is a fairly reasonable demand for building permits during the month of April, but the total will not come anywhere near that of last year. In April, 1909, the permits totalled $177,000, while this month it is expected that the total will not reach much more than $100,000.

Among the permits issued yesterday were: Mrs. C. W. Andrus, for rebuilding the warehouse on York street destroyed by fire some time ago, at a cost of $7,000; A. Males, frame building on Forward avenue, to cost $1,100; W. J. McCordie, 1½-story brick veneer on Piccadilly street, to cost $1,000; R. R. Talbot, 2-story brick veneer on Tecumseh avenue, to cost $2,000, and W. Sillery, 2-story veneer on Grosvenor street, to cost $1,800.

MARINE DISASTER IN GULF SEALER AND 187 MEN LOST

The British Ship Aurora Supposed to Have Collided With a Berg in Fog and Gone to Bottom, Carrying With Her Many Newfoundlanders and a Rich Catch of Seals.

St. John's, Nfld., April 26.—The probable loss of the British sealing steamer Aurora with her crew of 187 men was reported here today by the sealing steamer Beothic. The Aurora has been missing since April 1.

Those on board the Beothic and the sealer Erick reported that numbers of seal killed by the Aurora's crew and "pinned" upon the ice had drifted ashore. Other seals killed by men from the Aurora have been picked up at various places by steamers of the sealing fleet.

The Aurora is said here to be owned by C. T. Bowring & Co., Limited, of Liverpool. No further news will be the result of the loss of the steamer's return from the sealing grounds.

Comes From Grimsby.

Boston, April 24.—From the meagre details received in this city early today regarding the loss of the Aurora, it was impossible to identify the boat positively. The marine register contains several vessels named Aurora, but the missing ship is believed to be the property of the Consolidated Steam Fishing and Ice Company, of Grimsby, England, originally built for a trawler, but now engaged in the sealing industry. The vessel was built at Selby in 1906. She has a gross tonnage of 225 tons, and a net of 106. She was 165.2 feet long, with a beam of 20.6, and a depth of 13.9.

It is feared that the Aurora must have gone down in collision with an iceberg in the fog. The several vessels comprising the fleet cruised over the waters of the North Atlantic in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and along the Labrador coast, but no trace of the missing ship could be seen and no natives could be found who had heard of any shipwreck along the coast.

Nearly all of the vessels of the fleet have reported unusually large catches of seals this season and it is believed that the Aurora carried down with her a valuable cargo.

Relatives of the crew in St. John's still hope that the strange absence of the staunch craft is due to some damage to the engines.

LORD'S DAY ALLIANCE HAVE NOT APPEALED TO OTTAWA

Mr. Darcy Scott Says No Word Has Been Received by the Railway Commission Regarding the Charter of the London and Lake Erie Railway and Sunday Cars to Port.

The Dominion railway commission have received no word as yet from the Lord's Day Alliance, asking them to interpret the charter of the London and Lake Erie Company.

Mr. Darcy Scott, vice-chairman of the commission, was in the city yesterday, and when interviewed by The Advertiser declared that no request had been received by them from the alliance.

"I suppose the railway does not come under our jurisdiction," said Mr. Scott. "No request has come to us as yet, however, regarding the charter, nor have we received any intimation that any would be coming."

An effort was made to draw Mr. Scott out as to the rights of railway companies under such a charter as the

CHECK FOR BIG SUM FOUND BY HARRY WALSH

One for $1,469.12 Now in Possession of Mr. J. J. Cox of the Dominion House.

While going through the barroom of the Dominion House yesterday afternoon, Wine Clerk Harry Walsh picked up a check for $1,469.12, drawn on Gunn & Stevens, commission merchants, of Buffalo, and payable to B. J. Jackson, of Avoca, Mich.

Mr. Jackson was in the bar for a short time yesterday afternoon, and it is supposed that he pulled the check out while taking some other papers from his pocket, and that it fell to the floor unnoticed by him. He did not discover his loss until a short time before he was leaving on one of the evening trains, and then reported it to Grand Trunk Station Master Thomas Shortt.

Inquiry by Mr. Shortt this morning revealed that the check is in the possession of Mr. J. J. Cox, proprietor of the Dominion House, who is holding it, pending its being claimed by Mr. Jackson.

"I don't know the man," said Mr. Cox this afternoon, to The Advertiser.

CAMP WILL LAST BUT TWO WEEKS

Some of Troops to Have Come Here Will Go to Niagara to Meet Gen. French.

MAY 24TH CELEBRATION

Col. Hodgins Is Still Working on a Scheme To Have a Military Demonstration Here on Empire Day.

The militia camp in June will not be so large as expected. Word has been received from Ottawa that the camp will be of but two-weeks' duration instead of the month, as first promised.

The change is due to the fact that General French is coming to Canada this summer, and will visit the camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

In order to make an imposing demonstration in force at Niagara, several of the extra regiments which were to be sent to London will be sent to Niagara. This will shorten the time of the camp here by about two weeks.

For May 24.

Col. Hodgins is still working on a plan to bring three regiments here on May 24.

Mayor Beattie and Ald. Richter, after a conference, decided to grant $200 to the demonstration on May 24. This money was granted for the longer camp, but they thought that it could be used for this purpose. Col. Hodgins wanted $300, but the committee could not see their way clear to give that sum of money.

DEPUTATION WILL SEE PREMIER ON FRIDAY

Board of Governors' Delegation From Western University Will Again Beard Sir James.

The deputation from the board of governors of the Western University will meet Sir James Whitney on Friday in Toronto.

Those who will attend the conference are Mr. Justice R. M. Meredith, George C. Gibbons, K. C., T. H. Smallman, Mayor Beattie, City Solicitor Doherty, St. Thomas, E. R. Fleming, Windsor, Bishop Williams, and probably one or two others.

A great deal of information has been received by the committee dealing with the expenditure for education by the Province, and it will be presented to the Premier.

A Long Session.

It is expected that the meeting will be quite a long one, as the committee are determined if possible to convince Sir James of the error of his position.

The matter of the withdrawal of the Government representatives from the board of governors will also be considered, and a lively debate is promised on this score.

"We are still hopeful that the Government will do something for us," said Capt. Murphy. "We feel we are in the right, and are confident of convincing Sir James of the justice of our request."

"THIS WORLD WILL BE MENDED BEFORE IT'S ENDED," SAYS BOOTH

Son of Famous General Booth Says He Likes the Audacity of Little London Naming Her Streets After the World's Metropolis—Old London Is Going Back in Religion, He Says.

Mr. Herbert Booth, who is conducting evangelistic services in the First Methodist Church this week, gave an Advertiser reporter an interesting interview this morning.

Mr. Booth has a very wide grasp of affairs and is able to speak entertainingly on any subject presented him. He looks forward to large results from his week's mission in London.

"How are you impressed with the city, Mr. Booth?" he was asked.

"Well, I have, of course, been here many times before. I always liked the Forest City. Next to Toronto, it is, I think, the best laid out city in Canada, and the citizens have always treated me most kindly. You seem to have gone ahead. Like myself, you are laboring under the difficulty of having to live up to the reputation of a great name, but for your age you have done quite as well as your great mother city. I admire the splendid audacity displayed in the naming of your streets. It seems quite homelike for an old country Londoner to wander about Pall Mall and Cheapside, and Oxford street, and over Blackfriars and Westminster bridges, and along the side of another Father Thames. There is nothing like aiming high, and who knows if your new London may not come along to add lustre to the name when the old city has spent her force and lost her grip."

Old London.

"But old London is still growing." "I should say so. Nothing has astonished me more when returning after my world trips to the old country to see the surprising growth of London. But the advance of the great metropolis on the other side depends upon exactly the same conditions as the growth of this young city of yours."

"And what is that?" asked the reporter.

"On the moral and spiritual side of her inhabitants. The city will always be as the citizen. Splendor and architecture and wealth don't make cities. Men and women make cities. Old London was built up on the character of the good old Londoners who feared God and fought for the right. There were terrible exceptions, and fearful lapses I know, but on the whole London has been the evident and material response to the fear of God and the love of righteousness so manifold in the past history of England. As that has decreased, both Britain and London have gone back—not in size, but in the force that tells in the battle with competing notions."

Going Backward.

"Do you think old London is getting less religious?" "I am sure she is. Ninety per cent of her people never cross the threshold of a church. Mark, London is immensely improved socially. There are better streets and better physical conditions, better education, better attention to the needs of the poor and starving, but if cities exist by the goodwill and pleasure of God, then London is in a bad way, for God was never so much forgotten in London as he is today. I would say then to your young city. Keep your eye on the old one! Be on the alert concerning the things that have become the even shame of the capital of England."

Work in Canada.

"What were you doing in Canada before?" "It was fourteen years ago when I was associated with my honored father in the Salvation Army. I left its third most important command in the world, and volunteered to assume the direction of affairs in Canada at a time when the movement was in great difficulties, both on account of disaffection and debt. I put in the hardest four years of my life in straightening things out, and by God's help left it united and prosperous. I have kind feelings for my associates and have already greeted many of them in my meetings."

"Why did you leave the army?" "Suffice it to say that it was the result of conviction that God called me, at great personal sacrifice, to take the step. He has wonderfully continued on Page Nine."

that of a United States supreme court feels that in accepting this life appoint-leged by Postoffice Inspector Stuart, telyou, of Philadelphia, to be the dean of American swindlers, is under arrest awaiting removal to Philadelphia. The arrest was made Saturday, but was kept secret until the arrival of Cortelyou.In the last 20 years, Moran's alleged illegal gains are said to aggregate close to a million dollars. He never operated on a small scale. When arrested, he was occupying an extensive suite of three rooms in an aristocratic hotel. A valet attended him and had plenty to do caring for his master's extensive wardrobe.Moran is said to be known on both sides of the Atlantic, having in his earlier days piled the profession of gaming on the big liners. Later he became known as a daring and successful wire-tapper. He is said to have originated the "Risk Engineer" mining swindle, his first trial of this scheme having netted him $18,000. His picture is said to be in every regular gallery in this country and Europe.

There has been a standing order in New York for years to arrest him on sight. It is said.According to Mr. Cortelyou, Moran made a large sum of money in Philadelphia, New York and Chicago. His method was simple. The Philadelphia case, to which he owes his present arrest, being a fair sample.Moran, working with William Clark, now a fugitive from justice, operated the Eastern Grain Company, explained Cortelyou. "They collected $50,000 or more as margins from investors, and then suddenly shut up shop. This was six years ago. Last month I arrested him in Philadelphia, but he gave $1,500 cash bail and went to Chicago. He was running a handbook on the races when arrested. He

WHILE CREW FOUGHTAnd as a Consequence a Hamilton Boat Was Beached in the St. Clair.[G. N. W. Dispatch.]
Detroit, Mich., April 25.—Compeling an 18-year-old girl, cook on the schooner Azov, to take the wheel, it is alleged, while three other members of the crew engaged in a fight on the deck, resulted in the beaching of the boat at the Maybury Cut, near Algonac, St. Clair River, Sunday afternoon.
The tug Westcott pulled the boat off.
The Azov was not damaged. She is owned in Hamilton, Ont., and was bound for Georgian Bay for a cargo of timber. The crew admitted there had been a fight, but refused to give their names.FINE BODY OF MEN

RICH MAN SUICIDES

New York Capitalist Ends Life From
No Apparent Reason.New York, April 25.—James A. Stevenson, head of the Stevenson Construction Company, a director in the Corn Exchange Bank, and member of several clubs and fraternal societies, ended his life today by shooting himself behind the right ear with a revolver. He was in bed when he fired the shot. Stevenson lived in Long Island City, and was reported to be worth half a million dollars. His wife says he had been unusually jovial during the past few days, and she cannot imagine what caused him to end his life.

THE OTISSE APPEAL.

Toronto, April 25.—In divisional court today the case of Stow vs. Curry was heard. It was an appeal by plaintiff from the judgment of Judge Litchford, of Nov. 24, 1909. The action was to set aside a transfer of certain lands from W. F. Curry to Warren, and a transfer from Warren to the Grissie Mining Company, as being made in fraud of the plaintiff, to LONDON, TUESDAY, APRIL 26.

THE BRITISH SITUATION.

The finance bill, which is virtually the budget, passed its second reading last night in the House of Commons. It is in the committee stage today, and its third reading will conclude tomorrow at 8 p.m., when the closure will be moved. It will be brought before the House probably this week, and be accepted in obedience to antielection pledges. The collection of taxes in arrears has already begun on the strength of this assurance. The budget has done all that has been claimed for it as a revenue-producer, and the chancellor would have had a surplus of $20,000,000 but for the interference of the upper chamber. As it is, nearly the whole of this amount may be lost through inability to reach defaulting taxpayers.

The docks are now cleared for the constitutional battle. The anti-Lords resolutions have gone to the upper chamber, but may be suspended there until the end of June. That month is the London "season," in which the King and Queen and the aristocracy arrange and attend all sorts of functions in the metropolis. These activities are almost indispensable to a large section of the retail trade. An election campaign in June would bring a wall from commercial London, and would seriously interfere with the routine of the court and of "society." The height of the crisis will therefore, probably not be reached until July or August.

The anti-Lords resolutions are to be embodied in a Government bill which will be introduced after the budget is out of the way. It is possible, the resolutions may be held up in the House of Lords until the bill, which covers the same ground, passes the House of Commons. Upon the rejection of either the resolutions or the bill, the Government will be at once obliged to tender advice to the sovereign, with the object of giving statutory effect to the will of the House of Commons. Presumably the prime minister will ask the King to create a sufficient number of Liberal peers to override the obstruction of the Unionist peers. An alternative would be a referendum, but Mr. Asquith and Mr. Redmond do not appear to favor it. It is perhaps hoped that the decision of the Government to take heroic measures will induce the peers to pass the anti-Lords resolutions and so spare the King an unpleasant dilemma. If the Lords are recalcitrant will the King act on his ministers' advice? This element of conjecture, involving the crown, deepens the interest and gravity of the situation. The refusal of the sovereign to create new peers would, of course, be used as party capital. The loyalty cry would be worked by the Unionists for all it was worth—and it would be worth a great deal, in view of the King's unique popularity. It might be that the King would compromise by agreeing to give effect to the Government's policy if it were submitted to the people by means of a referendum or a general election. In that event the crown would be able to maintain its traditional attitude of impartiality, which is the condition of its authority and even of its safety.

The Unionists contend that the Government's resolutions aim at reducing the House of Lords to the simulacrum of a second chamber, in which no so-called men of eminence would care to serve. The House would continue to exercise all the functions that can properly be entrusted to a second chamber under democratic institutions, and consistent with the supremacy of the House of Commons. The power of the House of Lords to suspend any measure for two years will serve all the purposes of a revising but subordinate chamber. Mr. Churchill said in a recent debate:

"The House of Lords will have immense power, not to arrest legislation, but to modify legislation if they use their power wisely. They will have immense power during two years to modify legislation, because it will be the desire of every Government to get their bills through and allay the opposition which all great measures excite and keep alive in the country while they are under discussion. Time is a tremendous lever and a tremendous weapon either in peace or war. We are providing the House of Lords with the means of delaying measures they do not like for two whole years and three successive sessions. That is giving to the House of Lords enormous power, and all this nonsense talk so loudly put forward by so many who agree with the right hon. gentlemen opposite that we are going to set up a single chamber system may now be relegated to the limbo of worthless and exploded political arguments."

The House of Lords should derive an authority, independent of its veto power, from its personnel. While it contains great men, unfortunately for its reputation and influence the majority have no talent for public service, being selected only by the accident of birth. They represent mainly one interest—the land—and they have only one political idea—the preservation of their privileges. The abolition of the hereditary principle is essential to the reputation of the House of Lords as a legislative body, and this is the reform which ought logically to follow the limitation of its veto. Anything it will lose as a result of the restriction of its legislative powers will be more than compensated by its gain in personal prestige through the disappearance of the "backwoodsmen" who bring it into disrepute.

VOLUNTEERS' BOUNTIES.

The action of the Dominion Government in securing the extension of one year for the location of bounty warrants, the issue of which was authorized under the volunteer bounty act of 1905, will be generally commended. Under that act the location of bounty warrants was authorized up to the end of the present year; but as the men entitled to the bounty are scattered all over the world, it was a considerable time before they all heard of the rights that had been accorded them under the act. In some cases much time was consumed in establishing rights, and it is therefore felt that the time allowed for the exercise of those rights is hardly sufficient to do justice to the case.

In addition there is the precedent that in no previous case has the right to bounties granted by Parliament been terminated at the end of the first term of the grant. In the case of the volunteers of the three Red River expeditions the rights which were terminable on a certain date were extended from year to year by further acts of Parliament, and in every case there was a number of extensions. The object on the present as on former occasions is to remove any claim of hardship that might possibly exist and yet give no longer time than is absolutely necessary to enable grantees to get the full benefits of their grants.

The only other amendment of importance provided for in the bill, as explained by Hon. Mr. Oliver, is that in specific cases in which scrip has been lost and a guarantee bond has been put up with the department of the Interior, the particular scrip shall not be valid after the end of the present year, thus shortening the period during which the grantees are required to bear the expense of carrying a bond.

Our local contemporary favors legalized gambling on race-tracks, and denounces the Minister of Justice as "a friend of gambling," because he opposes the same view. Ergo, our local contemporary is also a friend of gambling.

The new Bishop of London asserts that all men who love God should work together in the things on which they agree; and not look for occasions of discord. This is a good working creed. Let us all home it will become a more popular one.

Mrs. McCully, of this city, who died yesterday, saw the Chesapeake towed to the Halifax harbor after her battle with the Shannon in 1812. A lifetime is a moment measured by eternity, but that of a centenarian seems an eternity measured by the progress of events in this rapidly-moving age.

Major Currie, M. P., argues that, in virtue of a statute of 1861, the supreme command and disposition of all the land and sea forces of the Empire is the right of the King, and the Canadian Parliament has therefore nothing to say about the Canadian forces. Major Currie's political ideas belong to about 1861. He would have qualified for a sinecure under the Merry Monarch, who made a mess of the naval business.

Sir William Van Horne has resigned the chairmanship of the C. P. R. board of directors on the plea of advancing age, and the desire to shake off business cares that encroach on his time and freedom. Sir William is one of the happily constituted men of affairs who have cultivated interests which render leisure a delight and not a bore. It is pretty well known that he is one of the greatest art connoisseurs in the country. Perhaps Sir William will now enjoy life as never before.

The Brantford license commissioners have renewed the licenses of two men whose hotels are so inadequate that they have been ordered to secure new premises. The commissioners have refused licenses to three men who have large and well-appointed hotels, upon which they have spent considerable money. The two lucky men can have a strong party full, of course. Evidently it is not necessary to "keep hotel" in order to keep a license, in spite of the Provincial Secretary's professions to the contrary.

GOOD ADVICE.

If the (Conservative) party would listen to good advice from a reliable source, it might be informed that its weakness is not so much in its leaders or its lieutenants as in its inordinate desire for office and the perquisites of office. It has been out of office for thirteen years, and it has become absolutely ravenous. In its savagery, being helpless to tear the Grits, it turns upon and rends itself. It is looking wildly for someone to hold responsible

QUEER PHILANTHROPY.

(Ottawa Journal.)
 Whether or not there is anything inherently immoral in a stock exchange "corner" of wheat, of necessity, each man must decide for himself. But when a man like Patten, the Chicago operator of the most recent corner, intimates in a magazine article that his action was the result of a philanthropic desire for the welfare of humanity, one feels a keen desire to beat him with the flat side of a cricket bat till he howls for mercy.

GRAINER GROUNDED

Mishap to the Steamer Turret-Chief in Godrich Harbor.
 [Special to The Advertiser.]
 Godrich, April 25.—As the steamer Turret Chief was entering the harbor today she grounded about 100 yards from the end of the pier. The tug Horton of the Godrich Docking Company went to her assistance, but was unable to release her. The wrecking tug Winslow of Sarnia arrived Sunday morning and succeeded in releasing her after about an hour's work. A lighted buoy was placed at the point where the Turret Chief grounded, and the cause of the accident was the low water on account of the easterly wind, and the course not being clearly buoyed.

Last week was one of the busiest at the harbor for years. The Beaver broke the record for early arrivals. The other grainers which arrived and unloaded during the week were: The Mount Stephen, Empress of Midland, Winona, Turret Cape, Turret Chief, Dundee and Doric.

QUEBEC LIBERALS AND EMPIRE.

(Canadian Correspondence London Times.)
 Nothing is more striking than the spectacle of the Quebec Liberal members who have taken part in the debate. While they have expressed loyalty to Great Britain and concern for the empire in language as clear and as unequivocal as any uttered by English-speaking representatives. In this city they are supported by the French Liberal members with discreet, moderate, straightforward acceptance of the obligation of Canada to protect her own ports, and contribute something towards the defence of the empire.

Cook in Comfort
 You no longer need wear yourself out with the weakening heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort.

Here is a stove that gives no outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking—none in outside heating.

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is no surrounding heat—no smell—no smoke.

Why? Because The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is a scientifically and practically perfect. You cannot use too much wick—it is automatically controlled. You get the maximum heat—no smoke. The burner is simple. One wipe with a cloth cleans it—consequently there is no smell.

The New Perfection Oil Cook Stove is wonderful for year-round use, but especially in summer. Its heat operates upward to pan, pot, or kettle, but not beyond or around. It is useless for heating a room.

It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot. It has long, narrow, enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

QUIET AT CHANGSHA

New Governor Has Arrived and Foreigners Will Be Well Protected.
 Changsha, China, April 25.—The city is quiet today and the rioting at the inland towns throughout the province of Hunan appears to be subsiding. Nevertheless, as a measure of precaution practically all of the foreigners have left the capital and gone to Hankow.

The new governor, Yang Wen Ting, has arrived and taken charge of affairs. He was appointed to succeed Tse, Tuhing Ming, whom it had been said was murdered by the native rioters, but who as a matter of fact was dismissed because he had failed to prevent the outbreak.

The governor was accompanied here by four gunboats. The foreigners, representing missionary societies, the Standard Oil Company and the Anglo-American Tobacco Company, are quartered on houseboats anchored in the river, and will so remain until the governor gives them absolute assurance of protection.

A LIFE'S DEVOTION

BY FRANK H. SHAW.

Author of "A Daughter of the Storm," "First at the Pole," etc. (Copyright in U. S. America. All Rights Reserved.)

"Three years and more, and still no solution," went on Marion, her eyes never leaving his face. "Oh, I pray to God that some day the truth may be known. Ehenzer, there are moments when the cloud about that night presses so heavily that I can hardly bear it. Poor papa! To think that he came to his end so terribly, so swiftly, not knowing who his assailant was, perhaps, Ehenzer, I'm tired and heart-sick tonight. I don't know why, but I feel as if something terrible were dogging our every footstep—so if this happiness we have built up about our lives were destined to be dashed away violently, leaving us face to face with untold pain."

"You're not well, sweetheart," he said tenderly. "Look here, let's cut this thing out completely. Let's make our apologies to the duchess and get back home. It isn't midnight yet, and we could have an hour before our own fire still."

She tried to smile away her own restlessness. "No," she said, "I am silly tonight, but that's no reason why I should give way to it. Besides, I've got to think of you. Do you think I'm not proud of my husband, seeing how he's conquered all opposition? Ehenzer, there isn't a man in the house to-night fit to blacken your shoes. She knew there was one fit to blacken his character, and thinking of that man she determined that she would show to all the world how much she trusted the man whose name she bore."

"Let us go," she said presently.

"I want you, dear."

Marvelling at her inconsistency, and yet overjoyed at her change of front, he took her back to the crowded room. He did not notice that as they passed Fortescue and Plecton Marion's head went up ever so slightly into the air; did not know that her lips curled into a somewhat triumphant smile; did not know that she had cast down an invisible gauntlet before his unsuspecting traducers. But Marion was saying hotly to herself: "I'll show you that I trust him, whatever their own evil hearts may say. And for the rest of the evening she clung to him almost noticeably; so that the eyes of the old duchess grew very soft and tender as she watched them there."

"Upon my soul, I think I'm feeling young again to see them," she said to the duke. "Those two are more ridiculously in love than ever they were, and it makes ordinary lovers seem absolutely callous."

than most here tonight. I think it must be something inside that makes him—different."

"You're getting beastly abstract, my dear," said the duke, genially. "Scroggs is a good fellow, rides straight, doesn't cripple his birds, gives freely to deserving objects, won't have anything to do with underserving. I know. He's! And so far as I'm concerned, that's enough for me."

"But there's one man in this room who hates him worse than poison," said the duchess. "Unless I'm a fool, and I don't think I'm that yet."

"No one who knows you as I do would venture to think that for a moment," said her spouse. "Who's the silly ass who hates Scroggs?"

"Harold Fortescue, unless I'm not the physiognomist I pretend to be. He looked after Scroggs and Marion just now as if he'd like nothing better than to cut his throat."

"Don't like Fortescue—never did—like him less now than ever," said the duke jerkily. "Going to Canada hasn't done him any good. He used to be passable before, now he's unbearable. Didn't Scroggs do him a good turn once? Ah! that accounts for it. And wasn't there some sort of a boy and girl affair between him and Marion?"

Yes, that accounts for still more. Expect he's had time to think about what he's missed. Hello, Partridge, you seeking Scroggs? He's vanished!" The prime minister turned away, plainly disappointed, and the duke chuckled. "Didn't want to interfere between husband and wife, my dear," he said.

That night Marion tossed restlessly on her bed, at the resolution she had arrived at, to allow no single whisper of that hideous suspicion to enter her thoughts. Try as she would she could not get the demon of suspicion at bay—it took her unawares. At moments when she felt herself overwhelmed by a wave of tumultuous love for the man in the same room, that insidious worm of doubt would grow remorselessly into her brain. ing. Marion, leaning on his strength, drew a deep sigh of relief. "No, he couldn't have done that awful thing," she assured herself. Scroggs left the house after breakfast, reluctantly, perhaps, but he had made up his mind to a certain thing, and as was his wont he commenced to carry it out forthwith. His car leaped along the high road until it came to the town when Mr. Munster had his being. A quaint old house, fronting on the road, half office, half dwelling, that was Munster's abode. A youthful clerk, big of forehead and alert of manner, jumped from his stool. (To be continued.)

MAD DOG SCARE NEAR WOODSTOCK

Braemar People Stirred Up—Supposed Rabid Beast Bit Dogs and Pigs.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Woodstock, April 25.—Braemar, a small village a few miles from here, had a mad dog scare on Sunday. A dog appeared in the village showing symptoms of madness about 11 o'clock, and ran into the premises of Mr. Sutherland and bit three dogs and two pigs in the village. Mr. Miller chased the dog to J. Gorman's, where he shot it.

On examination the dog was found to have on two collars, one inscribed "Mac, 36 King Street East, Toronto." Attached to the collars were four tags, two bearing dates 1909 and 1910, and another bearing 10 years back. It is supposed the dog came by road from Toronto. The head has been sent for examination.

The board of license commissioners on Saturday reduced the number of licenses here by two. The decision was made known this morning that the G. T. and International Hotels will not be granted licenses this year, and are allowed one month to sell their stock.

The other three will be granted if certain conditions are agreed to by the proprietors.

AIRSHIP WRECKED

Berlin, April 25.—The big airship Zeppelin II, while at anchor on the return voyage from Hamburg to Cologne, yesterday, was partly wrecked at Wülzburg. The only occupant of the airship was terribly injured.

The Zeppelin II, was lying at anchor at Wülzburg, while on the way back to Cologne from the review by the Kaiser at Hamburg, when it broke loose during a heavy gale. The wind tore it from the moorings, and it descended at Wülzburg, where it struck a high tree. There was only one occupant of the big dirigible when it soared aloft, and he was terribly injured when the airship fell, striking with great violence, and completely wrecking the after-part of the craft. It was not about fifteen minutes from the time the airship broke free to the time it struck in Wülzburg.

The Zeppelin II is a sister ship to the dirigible destroyed by lightning at Friedrichshagen, August, 1908.

It was mistakenly reported that the three dirigible balloons, Zeppelin II, Gross I, and Parseval II, which sailed in company from Cologne to Hamburg, had started on their return voyage on Friday night.

It was decided, in consequence of a storm, to spend the night at Hamburg.

BANKER HAY DEAD.

Ottawa, April 25.—George Hay, former president of the Bank of Ottawa, died early this morning in his 83rd year. He was one of the founders of the bank and retired from the presidency two years ago. The late Mr. Hay was a native of Scotland, but came to Canada in early life, and was successful in his commercial enterprises. He was actively identified with religious and charitable work, and one of the moving spirits in the Bible Society. Some years ago he came to Ottawa as an equal rights candidate for the Commons, but was unsuccessful.

Sore Throat Catarrh

With the many remedies you have tried you surely know that no liquid medicine can cure your throat or nose. Even a gargle only bathes the entrance of the throat—it can't really get inside, nor can it reach the inflamed bronchial tubes.

With Catarrhazone, it's so different from medicine-taking—you simply breathe its healing vapor, inhale its balsamic fumes, which carry cure and relief to the minutest air cells in the lungs, nose, throat and bronchial tubes.

In this scientific way the soreness and inflammation is rapidly allayed, relaxed cords are toned up, the entire mucous membrane invigorated. Every trace of Catarrhazone disappears, the disagreeable dropping of mucus in the throat, hawking, spitting and stopped-up nostrils—all these sure signs of Catarrh and bronchitis are permanently cured by Catarrhazone.

Catarrhazone

Is Guaranteed to Cure
