WOOL BLANKETS

We hav given special care to the selection of our stock of Wool Blankets for this season. We anticipated our wants so that our orders were all placed before the advance in price. Consequently we are able to offer you values that are based on last year's wool prices.

That Means Money Saved by Making Your Purchases Here

OUR EXTRA BEST QUALITY BLANK-2 3002 ETS are made from the very best quality of Australian wool, and are made on patented machines. the only ones of their kind in Canada. They are equal to the highest grade imported blankets, and are the very best made in Canada.

OUR UNION BLANKETS are made from superior quality Canadian Wool with a small percentage of cotton corded in. In the estimation of good judges, a little cotton does not detract from the value of a blanket, and it tends to lower the price. We also show a full range of Cotton Blankets in grey, and white, for single, double, and extra large beds.

THE DEATH OF ED. SANDYS

Passes Away in New York

Word was received in this city, late this aftermoon, of the death in New York, of Ed. Sandys, a popular magazine writer, and a well-known Chatham old boy. Mr. Sandys passed away yesterday, but the particulars have not been received in full.

Edwin William Sandys was born in this city, the son of the late Ven. Archideacon Sandys. He commenced a literary career early in life, and was counted one of the cleverest writers on the continent. He has for some time been one of the editors of Outing, a popular periodical, and apart from this he has written several books. Readers of The Planet read with great interest an article specially written by him for the Old Boys' Reunion souvenir number. He has many friends in this city, who will be surprised and grieved to learn

The news of the tad circumstance has come as a blow to the family, and much sympathy is expressed for Technical Evidence.

Toronto, Oct. 25.—Questions of copyright of portions of the contents, and the comparative value of the Ontario school reading books with those of the United States, and unauthorized Canadian readers occupied the session of the Ontario School Book Commission yesterday at the Normal School. T. W. Crothers presided, and G. Lynch-Sfaunton examined the witnesses, who were all from the Morang Publishing Co., Limited.

were all from the Morang rubination (Co., Limited.

Harry L. Grantham gave evidence of the cost of the Ontario reading books. Part I., First Reader, cost 3 9-10 cents, and sold for 16 cents, Part II. cost 5 1-10 cents, and sold for 15 the books were poorly made. II. cost 5 1-10 cents, and sold for 15 cents. The books were poorly made. The Second Reader, selling at 20 cents, cost about 8 cents. The Third Reader cost 10 1-8 cents, and sold for 30 cents. The Fourth Reader cost 12 1-8 cents, and sold for 40 cents. It was very inferior. He contrasted the superior quality and higher cost of the Morang series, which were sold at the same prices as the others, and which were entirely produced in Canada.

A good deal of technical evidence as to the weight and quality of paper used, the style of binding, type, illustrations, and cost of electro-plates, was given, all reflecting disparagingly on the Ontario series.

George N. Morang told how he tried to get a contract with the Government for the publication of the Ontario readers, he had been refused. No satisfactory explanation had been given him by the Government of his non-success in breaking into what was several times during his evidence referred to as "the ring," which consisted of the Gage Co., the Canada Publishing Co. The agreement between these companies and the Government, he understood, allowed the latter to have the books published. ment between these companies and the Government, he understood, allowed the latter to have the books published elsewhere than with the firms in the agreement. Notwithstanding this, he failed to get any guarantee that if he printed the readers he would not be molested by people who had copyrights on various matter in the book, nor could he get a list of those holding the copyrights, so as to negotiate with them. Mr. Ross had agreed, however, to authorize the use of primers issued by the Morang Co.

Hon. J. P. Whitney Speaks Against it At Cornwall High School Centenary. Cornwall, Oct. 25.—There was a large gathering of prominent bitizens in Cornwall yesterday to celebrate the centenary of the Cornwall High contenary of the Cornwall High School, and among those who took part in the celebration were Hon. J. P. Whitney, a graduate of the school; Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education, and A. H. U. Colquboun, Deputy-Minister, a former resident.

The celebration opened with a reception, at the school, which has recently been greatly enlarged.

Dr. Pyne spoke for about half an hour, dealing with the educational policy of the Ontario Government.

Mr. Whitney's address lasted about 40 minutes, and included a brief sketch of the school from the days of its founder, Bishop Strachan, till the present day. He condemned the system of educating children by a machine system, with the object of turning out as many graduates as possible.

THEY LIKE OUR MARKET

Robt. McCoon, a Chicago Popular Magazine Writer Collins had Feeling Over Stratford Deputation Say We are to the Front as a Market City

INCIDENT A FEW IMPRESSIONS

A few days ago Alds. Dingman and Gordon, of Stratford, paid a visit to Chatham to inspect the market build-ing. The following isea section from their report as published in the Strat-ford Herald:

ford Herald:

"In the first place let me tell you that Chatham as a market town is certainly in the fore front of inland cities. Every production known to our Canadian climate is brought cities. Every production known to our Canadian climate is brought iong distances from the surrounding country in immense quantities and bartered there and finds quick and ready sale at bucyant prices. No market in the country shows such a variety of the earth's production as is shown on Chatham's market. Everything is home grown from bananas to tobacco. Saturday, the day we were there, we were told, although a large market, it was by no means up to the standard. Owing to Thursday being Thanksgiving, they had a tremendous market on the Wednesday previous which they said somewhat lessened the Saturday's market. Notwithstanding the crowd was large both from the country and the city and the business of the week conducted with a freddom that betokened an entire absence of the desire to exact the last cent both on the part of the buyer and seller. The utmost good humor and feeling prevailed throughout. Every purchaser seemed to be dismissed with a bumper measure running over. In case where it was even pounds or count such as butter, eggs, poultry, etc., a few large apples, a few bunshes of grapes or a quart of mushrooms were constantly being seen pushed into the baskets of the purchasers for some member of the family who was not sible to get to market or for the wee ones at home."

CAUSE OF SUICIDES.

Every reader of the newspapers must have noticed the increase of suicide. Some of the cases, no doubt, are not so much cases of suicide proper as of euthanasia, that is, cutting the proper court, and have it thorshort the pains of death. It cannot be thought that anyone whose case has been pronounced desperate, and who has made his will, is bound to be kept on the rack for a death of ling-ering torture. If Providence has sent the suffering, it has sent also the means of escape. But apparently there is an increase of suicide proper arising from intensified sensitiveness and a craving for happiness unfulfilled. There are many persons, it is to be feared, for whom life may seem not worth living, if this life is erwise all that can be said apparently is that the blark mood may pass away, that the future may have better things in store, that at all events life is short, and it is better to leave it without scandul. But commonplaces of prudence such as these will not always prevail over the agony of cespair.

The last case of suicide is that of a school girl of twelve, whose suicidal propensity is ascribed to the reading of demoralizing novels. This seems hardly possible in a child. That, novels, however, are becoming demoralizing is unhappily the experience of public librarians, and it is a case with which they have serious difficulty in dealing. Novel writing has of 1.t3 been a lucrative, in some cases an immensely lucrative, trade. Novels and text-books, in fact, are said by publishers to be about the only things to which they can confidently look for profit. But creative genius is not common; and in order to manufacture a taking article recourse to other allurements is being had. Our great novelists, Scott, Miss Austen, Thackeray, Dickens, George Eliot, are pure, and for their purity we have much reason to be thankful. The great novelists of former days, such as Fielding and Smollett, now seldom read, are rather coarse than lascivious. The poison of these recent productions is more subtle France is their mother country, and we owe her little thanks for her offspring.-Bystander in Toronto San.

Querie from London-"Who was the Banker, Mr. Globe ?"

Thrills-not chills-is the proper word to use now, in describing the sensations experienced at the mention of the word, Quebec.

For some time there has been considerable complaint about the scarcity of fish. There will be still more cause for alarm after the aldermen's faunt to the lighthpuse.

Banwell, the bank clerk who stole $40,000, and was sentenced to four years in prison, wants to get out on the ground that he has repented. Jails and churches are, seemingly, very closely related in some respects.

If every dishonest voter were disfranchised for a number of years, there would be less corruption in Canadian politics, but then, of course, the people might have to get along without the Laurier administration during those years.

The Conservative press has suddenly discovered that Mr. Bourassa is a great and good man.—London Advertiser.

Come to think of it, Bouragea ha shown up in rather a favorable light labely.

Dr. Rutherford, chief veterinary of the Dominion Government, in an interview, said that the department had no intention of placing this district under hog quarantine unless the outbrenk becomes more general. This is a sad blow to McCoig and the Banner. Their frantic clamorings for a renewal of the unpopular and harmful quarantine are evidently being laughed at by the members of their own party.

Rev. Mr. Ketchen, of Hamilton, while in this city, expressed opinion that the newspapers of Can-ada were like unto vultures, because they give publicity to the sins of public officials. He thought they did not have enough sympathy for fallen men. The press has more sympathy for the people who are being continually soaked by these fallen men.

Galt proposes to have a steam heating company. The Stratford aldermen had to come to Chatham before they could decide on what kind of a market building they wanted, and we may now expect a deputation of Galt people here to inspect our excellent steam heating system. If they do come, they may be asof a hearty welcome, and sured plenty of good valuable pointers.

WHO WILL THROW THE STONE?

Hamilton Spectator. If there is any truth whatever in the hints and charges of the Liberal press, why not put the matter it oughly investigated, and the corrup Conservatives punished? That is the proper course for anybody and everybody who knows of a single crooked transaction on the part of the Conservatives of London. Come on with your legal proceedings.

ENFORCING THE LAW.

Hamilton Spectator. Much is being said and written, these days, about political corruption and its cure, and many ingenious theories are set forth for the cure. all. If the present life is not all, The cure for political corruption, like the cure for any other thing which interferes with the rights and privileges of the people, is the law. The law can be enforced. Moreover it is being enforced. Former attorneysgeneral refused to be "policemen"-Mr. Whitney's attorney-general is policeman.

A CHURCH INVESTIGATION.

Mail and Empire. What of the duty of the ministers whose especial work it is to guard the morals of the people? In a material sense the churches are growing in power and wealth, but are they growing as a moral force in the community? It is to the church that the people will look in their hour of doubt and despair, and unless they can look with hope and confidence, the time has come for a new investigation in which also many honored reputations will be miserably exposed.

THINGS TO DO NOW.

Now is a good time to look to the windows. If they rattle on windy nights, make them tight.

Keep the shades up in the south rooms these bright cold days. Sunshine is worth more money than carpets.

If a room has west windows and north windows, fasten up the north windows tight. Ventilate the room with the west windows till spring. If the attic is unceiled or not plastered, look for cracks in the shingles. A pound of putty and an old caseknife will do wonders in keeping out drifting snow and icy rain.

half a ton of coal costing $3.75.

If in the morning the living-room is coid, and the air is close, open the windows for three minutes. The fresh air will chill the room at first, yet, it will be found that it takes less fire and time to warm a large room full of pure, cold air than to warm a small room full of stale air.

Make a tube of creton or canton flannel two and a half inches in flameter and thirty-two inches long. Sew up one end, and fill the tube with sand and sew up the other end. Keep it in the coat closet. On cold nights lay R snug against the bottom of the front door till morning. It helps.

WOMEN ARE UP IN ARMS

Try to Break in at the Re-Opening of Britsh House of Commons

'WE WILL HAVE VOTES"

London, Oct. 24.—The reassembling of Parilament yesterday drew large crowds to Westminster, despite the fact that the opening of the sessions was devoid of sumptuous ceremony or the appearance of royalty.

The formal opening of the House of Commons occurred during the afternoon, and before the House of Lords, thus giving the throngs of spectators an opportunity to witness the assembl-an opportunity to witness the assembling of both bodies. The public galleries were overflowing with visitors. Mr. Balfeur, the ex-Premier, unexpectedly appeared, and received a hearty greeting from the Opposition ranks.

Women Cause Scene.
Unusual excitement was caused by the presence of about 100 women suffragists, many of whom, despite the protests of the police, managed to find their way into the outer lobby of the House of Commons, with the intention of buttonloiling the members in sup-port of their movement.

A number of the suffragettes, as they are termed here mounted vacent

The police, after being reinforced, made a strategic advance against the hypotens taking the women doely and invaders, taking the women singly, and gradually ejected them one by one, from the house.

Attempt to Break Into House.

During the height of the tunult a small band of the staunchest suffragists determined to attempt to break into the House itself, and charged towards the entrance of the inner lobby. For several minutes, the utmost disorder, almost a riot, prevailed, and the police had all they could do to eject the women, who resolutely refuse to leave without these of the contractions. without the sue of force.

They clung tenaciously to the stalwart policemen, the railings or other means of support, and offered strenuous resistance to expulsion, while shouts of "We will have votes!" and "You cowardly men dare not give us justice!" resounded through the halls. Finally, the police were forced to carry out several of the women bodlly. So noisily demonstrative were they that the police arrested several of them and marched them off to the nearest police

Pritchett, instructor in the gentle act of switch-ing ballots, failed to yield the posi-tive results which the Crown sought at the continuation of the London bribery investigation yesterday. Pritchett, in his sensational story, referred to a school teacher as having delivered into his hand a number of deputy-returning officers to receive a course of "training" at the time of an election

"training" at the time of an election some years ago in West Huron.

Denied Any Wrongdoing.
On the information supplied by Pritchett, Grant appeared as a witness yesterday, and, though subjected to a searching examination, he denied from beginning to end having had any associations whatever with the wizard of West Elgin. He did not refute having been in West Huron at the time of the election, and having rendered party service, and it was also elicited that he was in London for three weeks party service, and it was also elicited that he was in London for three weeks prior to the bye-election, doing clerical work. He also admitted an acquaintance with O'Gorman, Reid and Lewis, extending back a number of years, but gave comprehensive disclaimers of any knowledge whatever of wrongdoing in election work.

"The London police claim that he is the right man, and that there is no question about it. They say that he never even protested that he was the wrong man, and they are highly incensed at the charge that they made a mistake. They are positive that he is the right man."

Magistrate Denison gave the opinion that, in this case, O'Meara had "committed deliberate perjury." Mr. DuVernet agreed, and pointed out that, O'Meara having sworn that he left London ten years ago, had later made remarks, from which the inference was to be drawn that he was there seven years ago. The court said this matter should be followed up, and Mr. DuVernet intimated that it would be. Toronto, Oct. 24.—The Divisional Court has quashed the local option by-law passed in Elms Township, Perth County, by a majority of 291 in a vote of $11. The court found that the by-law on the desired clause provided for in such cases by the Municipal Act, for the summing up of the votes, and also that there were numerous irregularities in the closing of the poll hooks. It is said that in only one polling place was this done properly. The township, therefore, loses and pays the costa in both courts. Judge Anglia had ruled that on account of the majority, the technical objections were not sufficient weight.

Found Money in His Pocket.
Andrew Robson, a worker for Mr.
Hyman, having been assured of the protection of the Crown, testified to having bribed several voters in the bye-election and in the bye-election with $35 which some mysterious and unknown individual surreptitiously in-troduced into his pocket. He had paid money "directly" to men named Mc-Laren and Ackerman, and "indirectly" to a man named Williams. It transpir to a man named williams. It chaspined that this trio had been likewise been bonused in the Beck election, and that Robson had also held out cash alterments to one Genis. He had offered $15 to him, as Genis claimed the Conservatives had bid as high as $10. and retired in good health. Sounds from his room aroused the family, and a doctor was summoned. It would be harsh, unsympathetic, cruel, yes criminal, to condemn the poor, weak, over-worked housewife who sinks under the beavy load of household cares and burdens, and suffers from weak-nesses, various displacements of pelvic argans and other derangements peculiar to her sex.

Frequent bearing of children, with its execting domands upon the grystem, coupled with the care, worry as ab bor of rearing large family, meants and dollify which are agravated by the many household cares, and the hard, and never-ending work which the mother is called upon to perform. Dr. Plerce, the maker of that world-famed remedy for woman's poculiar weaknesses and ills—Dr. Plerce's Favorite Prescription—says that one of the greatest chisacles to the curs of this class of maladies is the fact that the poor, over-worked housewise can not get the needed rest from her many household cares and labor. Prescription *its full benefits. It is a matter of frequent experience, he says in his extensive practice in these cases, to meet with those in which his treatment falls by reason of the patient's insbillity to abstain from hard worls long amough to be curea. With those suffering from prolapus, anteversion and retrovarsion of the variants of any kind should also be avoided. As much out-door air as possible, with moderate, light exercise is also very important. Let the patient observe these rules and the 'Favorite Prescription' will do the rest.

ELLIOTT-DEMARS

A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized by the Rev. Mr. McQuillan, a tthe English Church on Tuesday, Oct. 16th, the contracting parties being Edward Ernest Elliott, son of Mrs. Elliott, Hall St., Blenheim, and Miss Sophia Demars, of Chatham. Mr. Mills, of St. Thomas, supported the groom, while Miss Edith Elliett acted as bridesmaid.

The bride was handsomely gowned in crean silk and wore a picture hat. After the ceremony the party proceeded to the residence of the groom's mother, where the wedding supper was served, after which the happy couple left amid showers of rice and the good wishes of their many friends on the 7.10 p. m. train for London, Toronto, Niagara Falls and other eastern points.

TURN TO THE RIGHT!

A short time ago this journal called the attention of the public to the fact that the placing of double doors at the King street entrance to the Post Office was not a matter of chance or accident. It was done with a purpose. There are two entrances facing on King St., and there are double doors at each entrance. The intention of the architect who designed the building was that half of the entrance should be used as an emirance and the other thalf as an exit.

when the principle of turning to the right is put into general use, it does not require more than the ordinary amount of intelligence for people to understand that the half of the entrance nearest the Rankin House should be used as an exit, and the other half as he entrance.

the other half as an entrance. For a time the people did turn to the right, but now it is reported that they are getting careless. A word of warning might not be amiss. It might help matters considerably if the post office authorities would get the words, "in" and "out" placed on the proper doors.

DEATH BY A BOMB.

Imaginary Incident of the Crimean

The following imaginary incident of the Crimean war is found in Count Tolstoi's "Sevastopol:" "The bomb, com-ing faster and faster and nearer and nearer, so that the sparks of its fuse were already visible, descended. 'Lie down!" some one shouted. They lay flat on the ground. Praskouhin, closing his eyes, heard only the bomb crashing down on the hard earth close by. A second passed, which seemed an hour. The bomb had not exploded. He opened his eyes and at that moment caught a sight of the glowing fuse of the bomb not a yard off. Terror, cold terror, exa terrible crash, something struck him in the middle of the chest. "He jumped up and began to run, but, stumbling over the saber that got between his legs, fell on his side. 'Thank God, I'm only bruised,' was his first thought, and he wished to touch his chest with his hand, but his arms seemed tied to his sides, and it felt as if a vise were squeezing his head. Soldiers flitted past him, and he counted them ciously. Then lightning flashed before his eyes, and he wondered whether the shot were fired from a mortar or cannon. 'Cannon, probably, and here are more soldiers-five six, seven soldiers. They all pass by. He was suddenly filled with fear that they would crush him. He wished to shout that he was hurt, but his mouth was so dry that his tongue clove to the roof of his mouth. "He felt it wet about his chest, and this sensation of being wet made him think of water. Fearing lest the sol-diers might trample on him, he tried to shout 'Take care with you.' but instead of that he uttered such a terrible groan that he was frightened to hear it. Then other red fires began dancing before his eyes, and it seemed to him that the soldiers put stones on him. He made an effort to push off the stones, stretched himself, and saw and heard and felt nothing more. He had been killed on the spot by a bomb splinter in the middle of his chest."

Tells Royal Insurance Commission It Prefers Traction Bonds to Municipal Debenturos For Investment.

Montreal, Oct. 24.-The Insurance Commission resumed here yesterday afternoon, the Sun Life being agains the object of investigation, with Secretary and Actuary T. B. Macaulay still on the stand.

The proceedings dealt almost entirely with purchases by the Sun Life of Illinois Traction securities, so-called. In 1902 and 1903 the Sun Life decided to go into the underwriting and purchase of bonds at first hand from companies issuing them.

Traction companies were preferred. Circulars were sent out to many traction companies in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan, and the Sun Life got into communication with Hon. W.
B. McKinley of Champagne, Illinois, who was deeply interested in several companies of the find in Illinois.
A scheme was proposed by the latter to amalgamate many utilities companies in the neighborhood of Urbana, Champagne and Danville, under the of the Illinois Railways and Light Co.

Half the Stock as Bonus.

The Sun Life was to buy two-thirds of the bonds issued and to get one-haif the stock as a bonus. T. A. Macaulay went down to inspect the plants, etc., in Illinois. In 1903, the scheme was changed. It was decided to have the Dayton and Urbana Railway buy other lines and issue bonds to be taken up by a holding company, the Illinois Traction Co., which issued no bonds. In this the Sun Life had one-half the stock as a bonus.

The question will be further discussions of the device of th

Fly as Disease Carrier. "The house-fly is largely respon for the high death rate from diarrh for the high death rate from diarrhoes," remarked Dr. Sephton at the Lancashire County Council meeting. If mothers would only keep milk for the children in clean and covered vessels to prevent the house-fly getting at it the infantile mortality would be speedily reduced.

Her Dream Fulfilled. The Indiady of a widow named Saunders, living in Mile-end, dreamed that her lodger was drowned in the Regent's Canal, London. She went to Mrs. Saunders' room, and, finding that she was not there, gave information to the police. The missing woman's body was found in the canal.

VALUE OF A STATE OF

of Marriage Are Made. There is an old custom prevailing among the Tyrolese regarding proposals of marriage. The first time a young man pays a visit as avowed lover he brings with him a bottle of wine, of which he pours out a glass and presents it to the object of his desires.

If she accepts it the whole affair is settled. Very often the girl has not yet made up her mind, and then she will dake refuge in excuses so as not to drink the wine and yet not refuse it point blank, for that is considered a gross insult, proving that she has been merely trifling with the affections of her lover.

She will, for instance, maintain that the wine "looks sour" or that wine disagrees with her or that she is afraid of getting tipsy or that the priest has for-bidden her to take any-in fact, she makes use of any subterfuge that presents itself at that moment.

The purport of these excuses is that she has not come to a decision and that the wine offering is premature.

This strange custom, dating very far back—according to one account, it was known as early as the ninth century— is called "bringing the wine" and is synonymous with the act of proposing. Shy lovers, loath to make sure of their case beforehand, find it a very happy institution. Not a word need b spoken, and the girl is spared the painful "No" of civilization.

If any of the wine is spilled or the bottle broken it is considered a most unhappy omen-in fact, there is a peasant's saying for an unhappy narriage, "They have spilled the wine

SACRED CROCODILES.

The Famous Shrine and the "Laby-crocodile, one of the most sacred animals of the east, has given its name to several ancient sites. Of the various cities of crocodiles the names of which have been handed down to us by Herodotus, Pliny and Strabo, perhaps the most striking was the "Crocodilopolis" of the ancient Egyptian province of Fayum, which, according to tradition, was built by that pharaoh who "made the lives of the children of Israel bitter with hard service." This province lies within an almost complete circle of hills-a little oasis in the midst of the desert, where roses and grapes mingle with figs and olives and luxuriant palm trees grow almost into forests. Its capital is Medinet, and a little to the north of the city are a number of irregularly shaped mounds. Beneath these are the ruins of the pharaoh built "Crocodilopolis," the "City of Crocodiles," later called Arsinoe and the shrine of the sacred crocodile of the neighboring Lake Moeris, which was then 450 miles in circumference. This lake held the sacred crocodiles, and as each died in turn it was buried in one of the 1,500 naiderground sepulchers of the world famed "labyrinth" at hand, side by side with the embalmed bodies of success sive pharaohs.

Holy Saturday In Naples.

Naples celebrates in a curious man-ner Lent and the end of Passion week. Ropes are stretched from house to house across the streets in the ancient districts on the day of the carnival, and dolls made of rags, wearing the traditional Neapolitan costume and carrying a distaff and bobbin, are sus-pended from these ropes. At the feet of the spinner is attached an orange containing seven feathers, corresponding to the seven weeks of Lent. Each week one feather is plucked, so that only one remains at Holy Saturday. Then, as soon as the cannon of Fort St. Elmo and the church bells announce noon hour and the resurrection of Christ, firecrackers, which have been tied in long strings to the orange at the dolls' feet are lighted, and the explodes amid the cries of the crowd, wherein pious formulas and profane phrases alternate.

London's Most Ancient Court. Saxon origin, and the name is derived from hus, a house, and thing, a matter from hus, a house, and thing, a matter of cause—that is, a house or hall of causes. Courts of the kind were established in all the great cities, and, as regards London, it is the supreme as well as the most ancient court and is the court of appeal from the sheriffs' court. In the earliest times it was held weekly, but it is now summoned only as occasion requires. only as occasion requires.

A writer in an English paper has this to say regarding the game of golf: "Golf is a great game, but shiver me nibileks if I think it comes up to tiddledywinks. It is played with a couple of farms, a river or so, two or three sand hills, a number of implements resembling dentist's tools, a strange language much like Hindoostanee, any old clothes and a large assortment of oaths."

For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. The self-made man has a pro-found contempt for pedigrees. NINETY-EIGHT PER CENT.

There is a fascination about big profits to a business man. But the conservative and cautious trader prefers to have the lesser per cent. of safety in his investments. There is no business man who would not consider it a sound proposition to invest in an enterprise in which absolute loss was impossible and which offered aniety-eight chances in a hundred of a rich profit. The statistics off curres effected by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery show that ninety-eight per cent. of cases of "weak lungs" can be absolutely cured. Almost, if not all, forms of physical weakness may be traced to starvation. Starvation saps the strength. The body is just as much starved when the stomach cannot extract nutrition from the food it receives as when there is no food. "Weak lungs," bronchial affections, obstinate coughs, call for neurishment. "Golden Medical Discovery" supplies that nourishment in its most condensed and assimilable form. It makes "weak lungs" strong, by strengthening stomach and organs of digestion which digest and distribute the food, and by Increasing the supply of pure blood.

The clam's eggs are carried by the mother on her gills. When there are fish in the water with them the mother clams discharge the eggs which soon hatch, but if there are no fish they carry the eggs until they decay. The reason of this strange behavior is this: When the eggs are set free in the water they soon hatch and the little ones swim about until they find some fish to which to attach themselves. They live for a time on the mucus of the fight and them drop off sink to the fish and then drop off, sink to the bottom and form burrows for themselves. This curious semiparasitic life is no doubt a reversion to the habit of some ancient ancestor.

IN THE LAST WALTZ

By BEATRICE STURGES Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Dougles

Even a careless glance around the room showed that it was the last. The throng of dancers was thinning out, flowers were drooping, scraps of confetti strewed the floor, frills and flounces were looking a bit bedraggled, and a subtle somnolence marked the languid movements of the dancers, who were now circling the floor to the throbbing strains of the old but ever loved

In one corner of the room stood a girl with plnk cheeks and hazel eyes.

Fround her were four young men all claiming the same dance. Laughingly she held up her card, which showed a blank line opposite that number.

"Yes, I know," said one in reply to tals, "you wouldn't let me write my name, but you promised just the same." "Exactly," said snother.
"Same here," ejaculated the fourth.

Well, Fil tell you," said the girl in a nfidential manner that made each man think she meant him especially. "Yes?" they asked in concert. "Let's all sit it out together."

"No," argued the man who thought he had the inside track; "let's take turns. I'll begin." And he started to suit the action to his word.

"No, you don't," objected the others, holding him forcibly. "We'd never see her again."
"My private opinion is that she gave it to somebody who hasn't shown up and she's really waiting for him," laughed one.

Could they have guessed how near the truth his jesting remark came? Why SELECT YOUR MEDICINE WITH

In debility and weakness medicine should be mild and far reaching. As a matter of fact, she had promised it two weeks ago, but much had happened in those In debility and weakness medicine should be mild and far reaching. Many pills and purgatives are too harsh, are drastic instead of curative. Excessive action is always followed by depression, and knowing this, Dr. Hamilton devised his pills of Mandrake & Butternut so as to didn't care for her. If she only could get through this waltz safely she thought she would have courage enough for anything else.
"The idea!" she exclaimed with a lit-didn't want to dance."

"You looked ready to start," he retorted. "Besides, didn't you promise me two weeks ago?"

"Yes, but"—

"Then don't spoil it now. It's the same old tune, Marian, that we've danced to so often. The same old threb and the same old trill, and I suppose it will always bring the same old ache. It will always bring the same old ache. It will always make me think of you." He held her hand closer.

She flushed painfully. "Please don't," she whispered. "It isn't fair, Fred, and you know you don't mean it."

"Don't mean it? You ought to know that I have meant every word I have ever said to you."

She gaye a bliter little laugh and looked over his shoulder with unseeing eyes. "I wonder then if you could explain to me just what you meant that night, two weeks ago, when you too made a promise, a promise that seemed to me a little more important than a waltz. Not only a promise, but an offer that seemed to me then very sincere and beautiful, and which I accepted, but I haven't seen you since and I heard yesterday that you were going away. Why did you come for this dance in this way tonight? Did you want to make a spectacle of me before them all?"

He looked at her in amazement and almost ran into another couple. "But I went to see you the next day and you were not at home, nor the next, nor the next, and you did not answer my note. What was I to think? Only that it was pleasant evening's flirtation for you Then unexpectedly I had this opportunity to go west to work with my uncle and it was too good to refuse, especially when there was nothing to keep me here. So I have bought my ticket and am going tomorrow. I did not mean to come to this affair tonight, but when I thought of this waltz I was determined to have it, so I came to say determined to have it, so I came to say

'Oh, it is cruel to tell me this now." she exclaimed. "I saw you go driving past our house with some girl I didn't know, so naturally I went out myself for the afternoon."

"It was a friend of Sister Clara's I was taking to the station," he inter-

"Then the next two days I had to go see Aunt Julia, who was ill. Nobody told me that you came; I wasn't going to ask, and I never got any note."

"I put it in the box on the big elm in your front yard myself."

"We haven't used that box in years," she answered. "You couldn't very well expect me to write and ask you if you had written to me, could you?"

Well, could you expect me to write again to you and ask you if you were going to write to me?" he retorted.
"What was in the note?" she asked, by way of reply. He looked down on the wavy brown hair, caught a glimpse of the pink cheeks and the white neck rising from a soft pink gown.

"The same thing I told you before, Marian, the same thing this music tells you, the same thing your own heart tel's you-I love you.'

The whole room seemed to sway with the rhythm of the music then, the odor of her crushed roses filled the air, the painful tension of the past two weeks was gone, a delicious sweetness seemed to settle on her heart. She felt his eyes upon her, though she had not raised hers.

"Look up, dear," he said; "look up if you love me."

The hazel eyes were raised to his. "Sweetheart," she whispered through her quivering lips. And the waltz was over.

They walked home slowly under a full moon. One of her pink roses had found its way to his coat and her hand was clasped in his. Under the shadow of the big trees of her yard she paused.

"About going west"— she began tentatively. "I niust, right away," he answered, "but I'm coming to see you first. Mind you're at home tomorrow." "But your ticket?" "I'll change it for next week if you'll go with me."

She hesitated. "Make it two weeks and I will," she replied.
"Done!" And he kissed her to seal the promise. "Dear," she whispered, "wasn't it a

Why He Did Not Resign.

Sir William Wightman held office in the old Court of Queen's bench far beyond the prescribed time, and at last, on the eve of the "long vacation" he took a sort of farewell of his brother judges. However, when "the morrow of All Souls'" came around he turned up smiling at Westminster hall. "Why, Brother Wightman," said Sir Alexander Cockburn, "you told us that you intended to send in your resignation to the lord chancellor before the end of August." "So I did," said Sir William, "but when I went home and told my wife she said, "Why, William, what on earth do you think that we can do with you more like the said. on earth do you think that we can do with you messing about the house all day? Vernet retorted that this had been done in a number of cases.

A Brantford Episode.

At the resumption of the enquiry in the afternoon, Mervis Westbrook of Brantford told of having been in a committee room in Brantford during the Heyd-Henry election, and seeing O'Gorman there. The witness was in a polling booth there when a man about 51-2 feet high, with greyish moustache and hair, came in and voted in the name of Cephas Brown, a man with whom Westbrook was acquainted. Witness followed the man to another polling booth, and asked if he intended to vote again. The man replied in the affirmative.

"Was that the man who afterwards turned out to be John O'Meare?"

"I can't say."

Westbrook said that he had the man arrested. The latter was freed on his personal bail of 3206, and cleared out. He Piloted Sifton.

Oscar Wootten told of having piloted Sifton up against several electors, but as he remained some distance away when the parties conversed he did not know the exact nature of the transactions. One Dewar had asked him what there was "in it," which he had taken as a tip. Witness also intimated to several voters that a visit to Lewis' hotel might prove profitable.

A Young "Lib." President.

Henry Ranahan, president of the Young Liberal Club, said the only money he had handled in the election was the payment of small sums to outside scrutineers out of his own pocket.

"I am instructed that you handled a very large sum of money. Do you swear that you didn't?"

The witness replied in a haiting fashion that he "didn't remember," and was

Mr. Cooper's Adventure.

Most important evidence was supplied by George B. Cooper, from whom, after a good deal of prodding by the crown, it was drawn forth that he had received the sum of $15 as salve to his sore feelings over being displaced in also position of deputy-returning officer. He thought it was Sifton who had spoken to him about compensation, but was unsettled as to whether the latter had paid him the money.

Didn't Print the Ballota Albert Talbot, publisher of The Eche, endon, stated that his firm had not inted the ballots used in the bye-ection, nor in the general election election, nor in the general election preceding.

"I am instructed that you held some envelopes in the election?"

"No, I did not.

He had made a subscription of $39 or $40 to the campaign fund, giving it to Mr. Reid. He had peld William Grant ten dollars and Morris another ten for work done in former elections. He had also paid $5 to a scruineer, but beyond this hadn't debbled financially in the election. Mr. Talbot was allowed to go, on the understanding that entries in his books relating to ballots furnished for Dominion and provincial elections for the past five years would be examined by an expert.

The ceremony was performed by the Rav. J. C. Langford, under an arch of green and white erected in the bay window, which was banked with palms and ferns. At the close of the ceremony a huge bell at the top opened and a shower of rose leaves fell on the bridal couple.

The bride looked very beautiful in a gown of Russian net trimmed with Valenciennes lace, over white silk. She wore a tulle veil, fastened with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white roses.

Little Grace Carscallen wore a dainty gown of white roses.

After the ceremony the guests sat down to a charming wedding supper. The bride's table was in green and white. From a hoop of smilex hung above the table, long strands of the green entwined with white chrysanthemums, were fastened to the four and of the table. The color scheme for the other tables was yellow and green.

The bridal party drove to Thames.

Robert P. Lacey, polling clerk, denied having tried to induce Axtell, a Tory voter, to go to the Liberal committee rooms.

William Jeffrey was unaware at the time of the election that corruption was afoot. He had done some canvassing along approved lines, and that was all.

The name of William Serviss having been thrice called, without response, and there being no further witnesses avallable, court adjourned.
