In the case of Mr. T. this " passing from death into life was the chief feature of his religious experience: conversing with the writer of this notice, he declared that the change spoken of in Scripture, as the "new creation," was in him instantaneous. He had never found peace of mind by the law-but in one moment felt unutterable peace and joy, by trusting in the Saviour; a great portion of Scripture, he said, arose vividly to his memory, and passage after passage was applied to his soul, like balm to his alarmed conscience. He began to praise the Lord-and from this to the time of his death-a period of three years, he ceased not day or nightexcept when prevented by exhaustion or the paroxysms of pain-to glorify the God of his salvation who had done so great things for him. Throughout his affliction his faith continned very strong. In conversation with the writer he more than once commented on the faith of Abraham-who "believed God," and staggered not at the promise through unbelief-but was strong in faith, giving glory of the spiritual seed of Abraham, being that if intelligence of Sir John Franklin, "heir of the righteousness which is by faith." or his ships, the Erebus and Terror, and of and prayer. An annual Report naturally induces us to look back upon the events of the year gone by: but I feel it difficult to limit my retrospective glance to that period. My thoughts fly back to the year 1811, the year that I had first the honour of having my name enrolled with this noble hand of Christian labourers. I took up to-day the Maga zine for that year, and what was my surprise to find that the entire number of Wesleyan Mispernumeraries, of which the venerable William Black, whose mortal remains repose in the rear of this sanctuary was one Now this admirable Report informs us that there are upwards of 480 Missionaries acting under direction of this section of the Church of Christ! The unprecedented progress of the age among the " Signs of the times;" and a very important feature, is the increase of rapid communication over the whole world, rendered the more striking because it is the literal fulfilment of prophecy—" The voice of him that crieth in the o any one, but she had an intention as fixed wilderness, prepare ye the way of the Lord, God. Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low; and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain: and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together"-Isaiah xl. 3. Thus Isaiah not only tells us how these high ways shall be made, but the purposes dear little child of four years old, was anxious to for which they are destined-"for our God, to do something towards sending the knowledge of reveal, or spread, His glory and that all flesh Christ to the poor heathen. The beautiful-the beautiful-In childhood's thoughtless days, I almost envied them the bliss. Of basking in the rays-The mellow rays of love's own light That round them brightly shone;-

Why should the beautiful be sad, Or desolate, or lone, Who are ever greeted by love's voice. In dulcet, witching tone?

The beautiful-Oh must they feel Time's fading, paling blight, Dimping the lustre of those eyes That match the star's deep light? Will chilling frosts their dark rich locks Bedeck with silvery grey? And will the "pearly sea shell pink" From fair cheeks fade away; Leaving no trace on Autumn's brow Of Summer's golden day?

Being a native of Noodford Co., Ky., she had requested, before her death, to be buried beside her kindred, and in the home of her childhood. -From accident or delay, her request was not complied with until quite recently when, upon disinterring her remains, they were found to be of the extraordinary weight of 550 pounds. Only the foot of the ceffin, which was still in a good state of preservation, was broken open, when her feet was found to be in a perfect state of petrifaction, the stone partaking of the character of the bardest limestone formations in the locality of the grave. There is no doubt that the whole body is thus completely petrified.
