Food Exports and Prices

The country is said to be stripped bare of all surplus food, and high prices prevail, even in foodstuffs that are not exported. But it is a curious thing that in the Dominion fiscal year ending on March 31 last, the value of our export of foodstuffs was less than half what it was in the year previous. In the fiscal year 1918-1919, Canada exported $269,000,000 worth of agricultural products, and in the preceding year $567,000,000 worth. Since in April and May of this year exports have not been abnormal, the conclusion forced by these figures is that it is not so much the export demand which is causing the high prices as lack of sufficient home production. The value of the agricultural production last season was about $1,250,000,000, and for the year previous $1,144,000,000, the higher values for last year offsetting the decrease in quantity. In 1917-18 Canada exported about 50 per cent. of her foodstuffs, and in 1918-19 only about 21 per cent. Surely this means that the relation of our exports to home prices needs attention.

What is the explanation of the remarkable disproportion in food exports? For one thing, we have still in Canada an immense quantity of wheat, nearly 100,000,000 bushels, awaiting export. A year ago wheat was taken eagerly, and included in the trade statistics of 1917-18 is nearly the whole of the export surplus of the 1917 crop. This year the hold-over, from a comparatively small crop, is very large, amounting perhaps to 65 per cent. Being regulated in price by official action, the wheat held over had no effect on market values. In truth, it seems as if the exhaustion of food stocks in this country, during the period of submarine warfare—when Canada furnished a very large proportion of the food that enabled Britain to keep on with the fight—set new price levels which have been made higher since by a comparative shortage in production. Even the retention of the 21 per cent. exported in the last year would not have been sufficient to check the rising prices of commodities under the stimulus of inflation. Before the war Canada had begun to import large quantities of butter, eggs, meat and other foodstuffs. In 1914 our imports of eggs were 11,274,000 dozen, of butter 7,317,000 pounds, of bacon and hams 7,113,000 pounds, of pork 12,102,000 pounds. In 1917-18 our imports of eggs were 3,038,000 dozen, of butter only 997,000 pounds, of bacon and hams 13,803,000 pounds, and of pork $0,370,000 pounds. Considering our enormous exports of these foods, importations probably were either to fill orders, or the vacuum left by filling them. Canadians must have been consuming less, on account of the higher prices, and most of our exports have not been from surplus, except in wheat and a few other commodities, but from the economies in consumption in general.

The chief remedy for the present conditions of the foodstuffs market is greater production. When food prices begin to come down, other commodities follow, and there is easement in the cost of living. Even if this year's crop is not much larger, or the proportion of our food exported is not larger, world conditions should tend to make things easier internationally. If governments of exporting countries have reasonable regard for the welfare of their own consumers. It is not an encouraging sign, however, to see Canadian cities thronged with men out of work, who have had farming experience, but who absolutely refuse to go farming. If we wish to maintain our food exports, and to have enough for our own population, our farm output in everything except wheat needs to be half as large again.

The outside world has been getting most of its Winnipeg news by way of Thief River Falls, Minn., and a spread of labor troubles in Toronto might have the unexpected result of calling attention to the existence of Buffalo, N.Y.

To-Day

(Douglas Malloch.)

Sure, this world is full of trouble—
I ain't said it ain't.
Lord! I've had enough an' double
Reason for complaint.
Rain an' storm have come to fret me,
Skies were often gray;
Thorns and brambles have beset me
On the road—but say—
Ain't it fine to-day?

What's the use of always weepin',
Makin' trouble last?
What's the use of always keepin'
Thinkin' of the past?
Each must have his tribulation,
Water with his wine;
Life I tain't no celebration.
Trouble? I've had mine—
But to-day is fine.

It's to-day that I am livin',
Not a month ago;
Havin', losin', takin', givin',
As time wills it so.
Yesterday a cloud of sorrow
Fell across the way;
It may rain again to-morrow,
It may rain—but say—
Ain't it fine to-day!

A BIT O' HEATHER

A bit o' heather cam' to me
Frae aff a dainty Highland lea;
An' as I viewed the bonnie gem,
Mair fair to me than diadem,
A dream o' ither days cam' back
To cast a sunbeam in my track,
An' made me feel the holy flame
That used to lowe aroun' my hame.

A wee bit heather frae the glen
Made me a king 'mong hunners ten;
Again I heard the lav rock's sang,
As up it soared the cluds amang;
Again I list the shepherd's lay,
An' see the daisy-sprinkled brae,
An' oh! what signifies much fame
Compared wi' a' the sweets o' hame?

A dainty sprig o' heather braw
Cast ilka cloud of care awa'—
Brocht recollections back again,
Transplanted me to Highland glen,
Whilk made my blood pulse like a rill
That daily glances doon the bill,
Till a' my heart was in a flame
As I rec'd my Highland hame.

A bit o' heather cam' to me,
An' dowered my heart wi' mirth an'
glee;
An' tho' my pow is turnin' white,
The love o' love burns clear and bright;
An' cros the misty path o' years,
An' thro' the surgin' storm o' tears,
I ha'e a joy I daurna name
In dreaming fondly o' my name.

In comparison with modern methods of warfare the following account of a V.C. winner in the Crimea offers some striking contrasts:

"The night which we were describing came under the denomination of a 'quiet night.' Taking advantage of the unusual slackness of the enemy's fire, a fresh supply of ammunition had been sent down to the front. The expense-magazine in the fifth trench was opened and the barrels were in the act of being stowed away, when a chance shell from the Redan dropped right into the middle of them with its fuse still burning. Had it exploded it must infallibly have fired the magazine, and it is fearful to think what would have been the consequences. Within a few yards a soldier named Highron was standing. 'Down with you, boys!' he shouted and then, rushing forward, he seized the shell in both hands and threw it over the parapet. He was not a moment too soon, for even before it reached the ground it burst and the splinters flew whistling over our heads."

Think of this! It was considered a "tremendous reduction in letter postage" in 1845, when congress reduced the postage on letters to 5 cents within 300 miles and 10 cents for greater distances!

Letter from

D. E. McMonies

Huron, So. Dak., June 9, 1919.

My Dear Editor:—

The Review arrived this morning and in perusing its columns I am reminded that it is a year since my daughter and I visited Lake Medad, and also that you had gotten out your first issue.

Kindly accept my congratulations upon having obtained your first anniversary.

I assure you the Review has been a most welcome visitor in our home. I have noted with interest your progress in Waterdown, along manufacturing lines.

I read with interest Mr. McNeill's letter a short time ago. Waterdown has wonderful possibilities if your people will only capitalize your assets, and work along the lines of least resistance.

Waterdown can be made an ideal residence place, you have the drainage, the water, the power; you are surrounded with one of the most fertile countries upon God's green earth.

You have good roads, good sidewalks, beautiful homes, some yards which are veritable Edens, with their abundance of flowers. Let every one make it a point to have their home and yard as neat and beautiful as possible, it can be done with very little extra work, and don't forget to keep the grass and weeds down along the road in front of your property.

At one time Waterdown High School had a wide reputation; why not regain that asset, you can do it. Erect one of the best schools in the country, you have already got beautiful grounds. Pay the salary and secure the most capable teachers obtainable. It will require a large investment, but what successful business does not. I am sure the returns will be sufficient to justify the cost.

I consider the high school education that it was my privilege to obtain in Waterdown, the greatest good fortune that my father and mother could possibly bequeath me.

One thing I sadly missed as I rode along past your farms, was the big, broad-backed, dual purpose Shorthorn cows. In their place I saw only a mixed conglomeration of all breeds. Why not select the breed best fitted to suit your conditions and demands, and keep them registered, and then capitalize your great asset. You would have buyers from all parts of the country visiting your community.

Another impression that raised the word 'Why?' in my mind was: Why does, seemingly, every farmer dabble just a little in market gardening and neglect more golden opportunities?

I saw fields of alfalfa growing on your clay hills. Why not fence off a few acres with hog fence and get a registered sow or two, of your most popular breed, and turn in; you can raise barley and field peas equal to the best in quality and quantity, with the resultant pig equal to the best, and the stopping of the pig would not be the back breaking job hoeing and picking is. Capitalize this great asset you are neglecting to a considerable extent.

You have splendid train service, capitalize it.

If you have an asset that is the equal or a little better than your neighbor has, advertise it; put that ad where the people whom you wish to interest will be likely to read it, and put it in such form that they cannot help but see it, and best of all, remember it.

Your Council could make no better investment than to set aside a certain amount for advertising Waterdown's wonderful assets.

I trust that you will pardon me if I may seem critical, I do not mean it in that way.

With best wishes for the Review's future success, and Waterdown's conspicuous place on the map, I remain,
Yours vitally interested,
DAVE McMONIES

which transmission we speak of as a current of electricity, comparing it to a current of water. As it requires pressure or head to make water flow, so it requires electric pressure to make electricity flow. The pressure of the simple cell described above is called a volt, in honor of its discoverer.

quired is very small. The outlay for wiring the buildings varies a great deal with circumstances, but probably $100 would be a fair average. Where one is too far from the distribution lines of any existing power plant he may install a small plant of his own. The original cost of these will run from $300 to $500, depending on size and type, and the interest on this amount would be the largest part of the cost of light for the farm, the cost of running the plant being only a few cents per day.

TIMELY RECIPES.
ONION SAUCE.
Boil two onions until tender, press through a sieve, and one-half teaspoonful each of sugar and salt, and a dash of pepper; melt one tablespoonful of butter, add one tablespoonful of flour, stir smooth, add one-half cupful each of milk and cream, and stir constantly until it boils smooth; add the prepared onion pulp, stir thoroughly and heat, but do not boil; remove from stove, stir in two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice and serve. Especially toothsome with broiled chops, steak or chicken.
FRUNE ROLY-POLY.
After soaking the prunes, stew them in as little water as possible; mash them and take out the stones; half a pound will make an ordinary-sized roll. Add sugar to taste, and when the fruit is sweetened make a nice suet crust; spread on it the fruit mixture, wet the edges, roll up quickly, press

Wood's Eschopholine.

The Great English Remedy. Tonic and invigorates the whole nervous system. Cures Neuritis, Nervousness, Loss of Energy, Fatigue, Headache, Stomach Troubles, Catarrh, Indigestion, Depression and all forms of Biliary, Gall and Intestinal ailments. Write for details. Price 25c per box. Sold by all druggists.

LIVER LOAF.

Cut a calf's liver in thin slices, cover with boiling salted water, cook for five minutes, then drain and put through the chopper. Soak one-half of a cupful of fine dry crumbs in cold water for a moment, then squeeze dry. Add them to the liver with one teaspoonful of onion juice, one scant teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, one teaspoonful of mixed herbs and two well-beaten eggs. Turn into a loaf pan lined with thin slices of fat salt pork and steam for two hours. Serve with tomato sauce.

ORANGE BISCUIT.

Beat six eggs and twelve ounces of powdered sugar to a cream and then gradually add four ounces of pearled flour, sifted, and the juice and zest of one orange. Beat thoroughly and then wafers spread very thin on buttered sheets. Bake in a moderate oven until browned. These are especially good for the sick and convalescent.

GIBLET CANAPIS.

Use giblets from a chicken intended for dinner. Boil until tender with three slices from an ordinary-sized onion, and salt for a season. When cold, mash to pulp or run through a nut-grinder. Mash or grind one dozen English walnuts or one-half cup of shelled peanuts. Mix thoroughly with ground giblets, adding lemon juice to taste. Spread on toasted bread. These make delicate sandwiches for company, or amusing but absorbing occupations, as coloring pictures, sewing for dolly or absorbing handicraft work.

CHILD ENERGY

And the Way to Direct It in Right Channels.

The healthy normal child is full of vital energy—indeed, it is more than full, it is pressed down and running over! There is just a certain amount of steam that must be let off, somehow, and if it is not let off in the right way it is sure to be let off in the wrong way.

KITCHEN LOGIC.

She Was a Poor Picker.
"Shame has driven many a man into the ranks," declared Lord Northcliffe, "and in this regard we have to thank the women of the nation for turning many a would-be slacker into an excellent soldier. Sometimes, however, they are overzealous or make mistakes. A case of this sort happened recently on a London bus.

A young man offered a lady his seat. Imagine his surprise when she drew herself up haughtily and exclaimed: "I don't accept favors from slackers."
But he was not taken aback. Instead he regarded the lady critically, and then replied:

ALL TIRED OUT.
"Money is circulating very fast," remarked the economist.
"Yes," replied the ordinary person, "by the time a dollar bill gets around to me it is so tired it can do anything like the work it used to."—Washington Star.

THANKFUL MOTHERS

Thousands of mothers throughout Canada—many of them your neighbors—speak with thankfulness concerning the use of Baby's Own Tablets. Once they have used the Tablets for their little ones, they would use nothing else. The Tablets are an absolutely safe medicine for even the youngest baby, being guaranteed by a government analyst to contain neither opiates nor narcotics or other harmful drugs. Concerning them, Mrs. David McRobb, Divide, Sask., says:—

"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and have found them so satisfactory I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CHILD ENERGY

The healthy normal child is full of vital energy—indeed, it is more than full, it is pressed down and running over! There is just a certain amount of steam that must be let off, somehow, and if it is not let off in the right way it is sure to be let off in the wrong way.

The point is, of course, to find the right channel and direct the energy there before the wrong channel is discovered or thought of.
All forms of mischief, not to mention contrariness and violence, are really the result of this misguided energy.
The affect is often noticeable when holidays from school have become long and draws-out and so lost their novelty. A child's mentality used to exercise becomes restless. In this case, playing school at home is a good plan; or taking up other definite other little Eliminate Old Lentia.

Among the historical monuments in old Lentia, which is an ancient name of the western part of Hispania, stands the Esca de Can Roques. It is an ancient church ruin which is the former Carmo Cathedral, a conspicuous object high above the Baixo. The other walls and pier and arches of the tower still stand. The church had been retained their roots, and in the present an archaeological museum has been established. Here many relics from ruined ecclesiastical buildings have found a refuge, among others two stone fountains in the Arabic style; one from the extinct monastery of Penha Longa, on the serra of Cindra. The other was brought from Barbary after the conquest, in 1462, and given to Prince Henry the Navigator, who presented it to the Faro church as a holy water receptacle. There it had been lying neglected for years in the cemetery.—Exchange.

An Expert.

The minister in a small country town was noted for his begging propensities and for his ability to extract generous offerings from the closest-fisted congregation, which was unique among farmers. One day the young son of one of the members accidentally swallowed a ten-cent piece, much to the excitement of the rest of the family. Every means of dislodging the coin had failed and the frightened parents were about to give up in despair when a bright thought struck the little daughter, who exclaimed:

"Oh, mamma, I know how you can get it. Send for the minister; he'll get it out of him!"—Exchange.

SEPARATION PAINFUL.

"I see a sterling old baseball player is going to part from the diamond for ever. It must be painful."
"Yes," said the girl. "Parting from the diamond is painful. I had to give back an engagement ring once!"—Exchange.

Revolution of 1848.

The French Revolution of 1848 is sometimes called the second revolution, the first having been that of 1789, resulting in the establishment of a republic, which was followed by the empire under Napoleon I. and this in turn by the restoration of the Bourbon dynasty. The revolution of 1848 resulted in the abdication and banishment of King Louis Philippe, the proclamation of a Republic, the election of Louis Napoleon as President, and later the establishment of the empire, with him as emperor under the title of Napoleon III. This revolution was not accompanied by extensive military operations, but there was heavy fighting in Paris, in which several thousand persons were killed.

How to Purify the Blood

"Fifteen to thirty drops of Extract of Roots, commonly called Mother's Scurvy Cure Syrup, may be taken in water with meals and at bedtime, for the cure of indigestion, constipation and bad blood. Persistence in this treatment will effect a cure in nearly every case." Get the genuine at druggists.

Worth Remembering.

When making an omelet, allow a tablespoonful of hot milk to each egg and eggs will go farther.
When wiping the face, never rub the eyes. Just pat them gently with the hands or a soft towel. Avoid anything that will bring the blood to the surface and do everything that will encourage the lids to become more beautiful and the brilliancy of the eyes will be much increased.

FIGHT WHENEVER PEACE IN DANGER

Proposal Put Up in United States Senate.

In Difference Over League of Nations.

Washington report: The Senate fight over the League of Nations was brought to a more direct issue today with the introduction of a resolution by Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, proposing that the Senate give formal notice to the Peace Conference of opposition to be enacted should the peace treaty be submitted for ratification in its present form.

Senator Knox, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee and former Secretary of State drafted the resolution after conferences with other League opponents, and presented it with the apparent support of those who have led in criticism of the League covenant. He expected to crystallize opposition sentiment as did Senator Lodge, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, with the circulation of the round robin in the closing hours of the last Senate.

While declaring for immediate conclusion of a treaty dealing with direct issues of the war only, the resolution contains a far-reaching proposal which would lay it down as a policy of the American Government that whenever the freedom and peace of Europe is threatened, the United States will consider it obligatory to again co-operate in the removal of that menace.

Decision as to the acceptance of membership in the League of Nations should be left without prejudice to each nation, the resolution declares, for future separate consideration. It also asserts the lack of authority by the treaty-making power of the Government to make a treaty which in effect amends the American constitution.

An Oil of Merit—Dr. Thomas' Eclectic Oil is not a jumble of medicinal substances thrown together and pushed by advertising, but the result of the careful investigation of the curative qualities of certain oils as applied to the human body. It is a rare combination and it won and kept public favor from the first. A trial of it will carry conviction to any who doubt its power to repair and heal.

In these ailments Parke's Vegetable Pills have been found most effective, abating the fever and subduing the ague in a few days. There are many who are subject to these distressing disturbances and to these there is no better preparation procurable as a means of relief.

HUNGARY OBEYS ALLY WARNINGS

Will Stop the Fighting With the Czechs.

Bela Kun May Come to Paris Himself.

London cable says: Bela Kun, the Hungarian Communist Foreign Minister, in reply to a message from Premier Clemenceau, according to a wireless despatch from Budapest, agrees to stop hostilities with the Czech-Slovaks, although he claims the Czechs are to blame for the fighting, because they disregarded the frontier fixed by the allies.

The Hungarian leader suggests that a commission be appointed to settle the differences between the Czechs and the Hungarians.

Bela Kun also expressed satisfaction that the allies have invited Hungary to the Peace Conference.

The Soviet Foreign Minister declares the Hungarian Soviet Government desires to live at peace and in friendship with the whole world; that it has always respected the demarcation lines fixed by the allies and only restored to arms when the Czech-Slovaks, violating the military convention of November 13, invaded Hungarian territory.

"We note with satisfaction," says Bela Kun, "that the allies instructed Czech-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia and Roumania to cease their attacks against us, but we must record that the above-mentioned states disobeyed the allies' orders, and that their offensive has only been stopped by our counter-offensive, and that their troops are still beyond the demarcation line 12." The reply of Bela Kun concludes by agreeing to cease hostilities. It suggests that all the States mentioned should send delegates to Vienna, and that a commission should be appointed to bring about a just and equitable understanding between them.

Bela Kun, according to an Innsbruck despatch, in reply to M. Clemenceau's note, "accepts the Allied invitation to visit Paris, in order to explain conditions in Hungary."

Bela Kun, it is added, will shortly appoint a delegation which probably will be headed by himself. Violent fighting, it is declared, continues between the Hungarians and Czech-Slovaks, on the Save River and elsewhere.

GRAIN GROWERS ARE PREPARING

Call Conventions for Their Federal Ridings

To Carry On Fight Against the Tariff.

Regina despatch: Grain Growers' conventions have been called as follows by the Executive of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association:

Qu'Appelle, on June 10, at Wolseley; Assiniboia, on June 10, at Estevan; Weyburn, on June 11, at Weyburn; Moose Jaw, June 12, at Assiniboia; Maple Creek, on June 13, at Shaunavon; Swift Current, on June 14, at Swift Current; Saltcoats, on June 17, at Melville; Mackenzie, on June 18, at Canora; Last Mountain, on June 20, at Nokomis; Battleford, on June 23, at Wilkie; North Battleford, on June 24, at North Battleford; Saskatoon, on June 25, at Saskatoon; Prince Albert, on June 26, at Prince Albert; Kindersley, on June 28, at Rosetown; Regina, on June 29, at Regina.

Another chapter in the history of the Grain Growers' movement in their fight against the tariff and for better economic conditions is commenced by the announcement from the central office of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' convention in every Federal constituency in the Province has been completed. The whole of the conventions will be held during this month, commencing at Wolseley for the Qu'Appelle constituency, and terminating with a double convention on Saturday, June 28, at Rosetown and Regina.

In view of the existing dissatisfaction with the Budget proposals of Sir Thomas White, and the declared views of Mr. D. D. McKenzie, the Opposition Leader at Ottawa, the Grain Growers are talking seriously of separate political organization.

CAN'T DISRUPT SOUTH AFRICA

Lloyd George's Answer to the Nationalists.

Has Great Future in the League.

London cable says: Great Britain cannot take any action which would mean the disruption of the Union of South Africa. This, in effect, was the answer given to the deputation of the Nationalist party of South Africa by Premier Lloyd George in Paris on June 5.

The Premier received the deputation, which included General J. B. M. Hertzog and Judge F. W. Reitz, the former President of the Orange Free State. It was explained that the chief object of the Nationalist party was to obtain restitution of the national status of the South African republics existing before the Boer war.

Mr. Lloyd George, in his reply, said that the South African Union was based on a fundamental agreement between the British and Dutch elements, and could not be dissolved by one element without the consent of the other. Great Britain therefore was unable to take any action which meant the disruption of the union.

In his statement of the case Gen. Hertzog said that the deputation represented the old populations of the Transvaal and Orange Free State. They were actuated by no race antagonism, but were determined by constitutional means to press their claims for independence.

The Premier made the point that the deputation did not claim to speak for the whole people of the Union, nor even for the whole populations of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State. He was unable to see how the British Government or the Imperial Parliament could reopen the great settlement forged out in the heat and trials of the last 20 years merely on account of differences between various sections of the South African people themselves.

The principle of self-determination, added the Premier, had been given effect by the people of South Africa in the fullest, freest and most solemn manner, and to consent to any disruption of the Union would ruin South Africa. He pointed out how dangerous and, in fact, impossible it was to recognize mere sectional choice, whether of Dutchmen, natives or the English-speaking peoples without reference to the will of the whole.

Referring to the great place the South African Union occupied in the world, Mr. Lloyd George said that in the League of Nations it would have the same membership and status as, and far more influence than, any of the other states outside the few great powers, and he advised the South Africans as a friend not to endeavor to undo the past, but look forward confidently to the great future.

When the South African delegation was in London and sent a request to Premier Lloyd George for a hearing on the subject of the independence of the union, it was understood the British Government would be guided in dealing with this question by the advice of Gen. Louis Botha, the South African Premier, and his colleagues.

NO MARTYR ROLE FOR EX-EMPEROR

Wilhelm Will Not Volunteer to Surrender.

Rejects Scheme of His Followers.

Berlin cable: Former Emperor William declines voluntarily to offer himself as a sacrifice for the sins of Germany. The ex-Kaiser did not encourage the plan conceived in a circle of his personal friends here to relieve Holland of the question of his delivery and at the same time do something for his own reputation by boldly offering to stand trial before a neutral high court.

The person who went to Amerongen on that alleged mission and whose identity cannot be disclosed has returned with a report that his mission was unsuccessful. He is said to have found the ex-Kaiser so optimistic that nothing could happen to him, and aside from that in such a nervous condition, that he was unable to put the idea over.

The idea has not been abandoned entirely, but it is said the originators of the scheme are very sceptical.

The plan was for the ex-Kaiser to call upon the heads of two neutral Governments to create a high court made up of European neutrals, before which he was voluntarily to place himself on trial to answer the charges made against him by the allies.

It was believed this plan would be welcomed by the allies as a way out of a difficult problem not only for them but for Holland as well. It was further believed that the idea would appeal to Wilhelm's sense of the dramatic to offer himself as a sacrifice for which is being visited upon his people. The small monarchial circle that initiated the plan is keenly disappointed, as it had hoped it would revive the monarchial spirit in Germany, which admittedly is all but killed out by the manner in which the ex-Kaiser left.

GEN. MORRISON NOW A KNIGHT

Former Hamilton Press Man is Honored

With Two Other Canadian Officers.

London cable says: The following generals have been knighted:

Knight Commander of the Bath—Major-Gen. Loomis.
Knight Commanders of St. Michael and St. George—Major-Gen. Morrison and Major-Gen. Burstall.

Major-Gen. Loomis is a native of Montreal. He entered the Canadian Expeditionary Force at the commencement of the war, and as he had considerable militia experience, was given charge of the Second Brigade, which he commanded in France for a time. He was later promoted commander of the Third Division.

Prior to the war Major-Gen. Burstall was in the Militia Department. He is an artilleryman by training, but upon going overseas was made commander of the Second Division.

Major-Gen. Morrison, the present chief of the Canadian Artillery, went overseas as a brigadier of artillery and was promoted to be chief of this arm of the service. He is a citizen of Ottawa, a former Hamilton newspaper man, and prior to going overseas was editor of the Ottawa Citizen.

DEATHS

TASSIE—At Kellwood, Manitoba, on May the 28th, Mary Wilhelmina, daughter of the late James Tassie of Nelson Township, Ontario. Funeral at Bothwell, Ont. on Monday, June 2nd.

One of the beauty spots in the village at the present time is the Waterdown Cemetery. It's well kept lawn and mass of blooming foliage is due to the untiring efforts of the present management who are to be congratulated upon its splendid appearance. A visit to this "God's green acre" will repay all lovers of beauty.

On Monday evening last a large number relatives and friends of Mrs. J. O. McGregor gathered at "Clunes" in honor of her birthday anniversary.

One of the attractions was the bag-pipes played by Piper Featherstone of Hamilton. Mrs. McGregor has been a most faithful and active worker in all objects for the welfare of the community and a patriotic war worker for the past four and a half years. Her host of friends sincerely wish her many more happy anniversaries.

ADVERTISED FOR MINISTER.

Vacant Pulpit Filled by Modern Business Methods.

C. F. Rannard, of Winnipeg, is one of the leading shoe merchants in Western Canada, conducting three progressive shops in the prairie capital. One of his establishments, which is at the corner of Portage avenue and Hargrave street, and recently reopened after a fire, is declared to be the finest footwear parlor in the Dominion. "Charlie" Rannard has had a rather interesting career, starting life as a newsboy and bootblack. Later he was a newspaper reporter, and a telegraph operator; then he learned the shoe game in which he has scored a signal success by his aggressiveness and enterprise. He has always taken a prominent part in the work of the Retail Merchants' Association and is a past Provincial President of Manitoba, and at present a member of the Dominion Board which held its annual meeting lately in Ottawa. He believes in attractive and well planned advertising, and in this direction has gone farther perhaps than any other business man in Canada.

Recently he carried out his publicity ideas in the matter of securing a pastor of the Crescent Congregational Church, Winnipeg, of which he is chairman of the Pulpit Committee. The Crescent Church is an offshoot of the Central Congregational Church, Winnipeg, of which Rev. Dr. Byron Stauffer, is now the minister. It was this pulpit that Rev. Dr. J. L. Gordon, now of Washington, filled so long and acceptably. Then came Rev. W. J. Hindley, former Mayor of Spokane, Wash., who was followed at the beginning of the present year by Rev. Dr. Stauffer, for several months in charge of the Central Congregational Church, San Francisco.

Crescent Church, which grew from the Central Congregational body in Winnipeg, the latter possessing the largest auditorium of any Protestant edifice in the Dominion, was without a pastor for nine months. Several candidates appeared but the people did not think any of them would just fit, and Mr. Rannard conceived the idea of expediting matters, by proposing one night, at a meeting of the committee, that they should advertise for applicants. The move was regarded as a bold one, a step rather too radical for any religious denomination to undertake. Mr. Rannard, however, fully outlined his plan and announced that he personally would pay for the insertion of the announcements in the daily press if the other members of the committee coincided with his suggestion. Reluctantly they fell in with the proposal.

The advertisement was drafted and placed in a Winnipeg paper, a Toronto paper, and one in Chicago. It appeared on two consecutive Saturdays next to the regular church cards and occupied about four inches, single column, being set in black type. It read something like this: "Crescent Congregational Church, Winnipeg, pulpit vacant. Applications and recommendations invited. This is a rare opportunity for a devoted and energetic minister who would like to locate in Winnipeg. The congregation is a growing and prosperous one, in a good residential section, and the work is important and far reaching. Please communicate with C. F. Rannard, chairman of the Pulpit Committee, Winnipeg, Man."

Mr. Rannard afterwards stated that he believed the Crescent Congregational Church was the first body of its kind in Canada to use printer's ink in securing an efficient and suitable pastor. No mention was made of salary in the announcement, yet the results were highly satisfactory, over one hundred applications being received from all parts of Canada and the United States. Many of those who wrote commented favorably upon such a procedure to make known the vacancy and thought the idea a good one, as the advertisement was dignified and somewhat different from the ordinary "Want Column" wording.

Out of the large amount of available material three or four men were invited to come to Winnipeg and preach. The outcome was that within one month after the insertion of the advertisement, a capable and talented minister was selected from a Western Ontario town, although previously by the "still hunt" method nearly a year had elapsed and the right man could not be found for the spiritual leadership of the flock.

In view of the success which has attended the initiative taken by the Crescent Congregational Church, Winnipeg, it may be that, in the near future, other religious societies without pastors will follow the example that has been set in the west. Even the members of the committee who were at first horrified at the so-called "unprofessional" character of the proposition, have admitted that the plan worked out promptly and satisfactorily and are according the prime mover of the proposal much praise for being the pioneer in this line of publicity. They now consider that advertising can be applied in Christian work quite as effectively and advantageously as in any commercial or industrial endeavor.

Vernacular.

"Why did you discharge your cook?"
"She said she wouldn't be reprimanded."

"Did she express herself to that effect?"

"Yes, but what she really said was, 'I won't take no sass offen nobody.'"

Jack was some time before he could get his voice, but at last it came. "Heaven help me, Pattie, I do!" She laughed a thin, little laugh. "I'm so glad, so glad!" she said. "Mary loves you. Oh, so much! She speaks your name at night! And she cries when she thinks no one sees her; but I see her, and I hear her, and I know she loves you, Jack. How hot you have got! I can feel your face burning! There is something else I want to say. Lay me down, Jack, dear—what was it? What was it? Oh, I remember; that bad, wicked Anderson came and told me a story of a bad thing he had done about Mary and a rich lady. He put a baby in Mary's arms, and let the rich lady think it was hers. And there was a gentleman with her, and—oh, how you started! And, Jack, I'm so tired, so tired. And I can't go to sleep, and that's why I'm dying. If I could go to sleep, if I could go to sleep!" She was moaning here, and Jack raised her head upon his breast. "Give me some wine," he said, brokenly.

A nurse placed a glass in his hand, and he poured some wine through the thin lips. The patient's eyes opened again. "Where's Mary and my dear?" she asked. Mary and her father came forward and Jack stepped back. But the tiny hand stretched out after him. "Don't go, Jack. Put your hand in mine." He put his hand in hers, and she held out the other to Mary. "Mary, give me yours." Mary hesitated for only a moment, but Jack's eyes met hers eloquently, and she put hers also into the little hand. Then Pattie placed the hands in each other, with an eager smile, and turned her eyes upon her father. "They love each other, dear, poor Mary and Jack, and I can't go to sleep until I know that they will be happy." The old man cried aloud. "Don't cry, dear," she said, softly. "You won't worry any more, now he's forgiven you and they are happy? He gave you all his money, and now you

Woman's Use

A visit to the laboratory where this successful remedy is made impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attend the making of this great medicine for woman's use. Over 550,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best. The most successful solvents are used to extract the medicinal properties from these herbs. Every utensil and tank that comes in contact with the medicine is sterilized, and as a final precaution in cleanliness the medicine is pasteurized and sealed in sterile bottles. It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ailments. The letters from women who have been restored to health by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which we are constantly publishing attest to its value.

have two Christmas days that year—this one a quiet but happy one, with Jack and Mary by his side, and another a jovial, merrymaking one, in which the grand house should have a fair chance of displaying its beauties, and an opportunity of proving that its walls were laughter-proof. So, on this Christmas Day Jack and Mary dined with the pirate, exchanging loving glances as they drank to each other or spoke, which they did continually, of little Pattie upstairs. With tears in his eyes, Mr. Montague commenced his confession, but Jack would only let him speak of his own sufferings and trials; and the moment he ventured to touch upon his error in treating Jack so distrustfully and haughtily, Jack stopped him with an earnest assurance that it was all right, that he should have done the same himself, and the by-gones were to be by-gones.

"Well, well," said Mr. Montague. "You are a generous-hearted fellow and a true facewell. When I look at you, my dear Jack, I seem to see myself at your age, light-hearted, trustful of the good and incredulous of the bad. But you have got with these qualities what I never had, firmness, and that firmness has kept you from falling into the snare which caught me. I drank, Jack, because the other young spirits of my clique did, I gamed for a similar reason; from the first irresolute, reluctant step on the downward path, I soon reached that breakneck pace which landed me in the abyss of ruin. Ashamed of myself, and heartbroken at the ruin and disgrace surrounding me, I determined though lost myself, to save the family name and dropped it. I went to Australia, married a settler's daughter, Mary's image, prospered, came over to England and went on again—ah, Jack, the weakness of that nature which can never say 'No!' Took the stage, and then—well, you know the rest. And now, about yourself. You are a Pacewell, and proud, and though I would willingly give you back all you held and used better than I have or can do, I know you would not accept it."

"Not I," said Jack, laughing. "I am doing very well." "Very badly," said Mr. Montague, laying his hand upon his arm. "I know how Tubbs found you—good, faithful Tubbs. I know all, Jack, and I throw myself upon your goodness of heart. You will be Mary's son-in-law, ah, that makes you a suitable income, and you must have a suitable income. Leave it all to me, leave it all to me!" And he rubbed his hands with gleeful anticipation of the happiness he should procure in making this noble-hearted fellow and his own daughter happy. But Jack stopped him with gravity. "That can't be, sir," he said. "I should get a good income and lose my self-respect. No, sir, settle something on Mary to secure her, but I must work for the rest. To tell you the truth, now that I have gone back to the old ways of working for my bread and cheese, I like it. Give me six months, and I will promise to do something that shall entitle me to come and say that I am at least not quite so unworthy in the world's eyes as the rich Miss Pacewell, as I am now."

"No, no," implored Mr. Montague; "don't be obstinate; don't be obstinate. What do I want with all this money if you will not share it? It lies like a load upon me already, it will grow heavier with time, until I find it insupportable. You and Mary must share it, or I shall be miserable." Jack laughed, but he was resolute. "No," he said, "I will work and win her. I'll be Queen's Counsel some day, perhaps—who knows? there are some glorious things in the law's lucky bag."

"The law! Confound it!" said Mr. Montague, disappointedly. "Well, if you will stick to it, I tell you what I will do: I'll quarrel with some one every day, get entangled in legal difficulties, and so keep you in constant briefs."

Jack laughed. "All right," he said, "but don't quarrel with yourself. And now I must go. There are the bells again! How different they sound to what they did last night. Ah, sir, depend upon it, unless the music is in your own hearts, all the world's at discord!" So, after little Pattie was each day growing stronger Jack was working harder. Starting afresh, with his old motto, reborn, that "Honor comes first though money come after," he found the confidence of the attorneys and soon covered his table with briefs. If a case is good, then take it to Mr. Hamilton, said the solicitors, and if he believes in it he is as certain as such things can be to pull it through.

Even Mr. Beaumont, who was called a clever lawyer and a promising man, was left behind in the race, and had to own that honesty, which he had always considered as a dreadful drag on the pace, was a wonderful stimulant, and, with that and perseverance in his heart, a man, even a lawyer, was sure to have many golden guineas in his pockets. Thus it came to pass that as the next Christmas time, Jack Hamilton, now G. C., came to claim his bride. And oh, how that grand house came out! Never did glass shine with such effect; never did upholstery glow and olding daisies and Venetian mirrors bewilder as the great drawing-room and its contents did on that eventful eve when it was crowded with distinguished guests met to honor in the only way which Englishmen delight in, to a dinner and a ball to the happy bride and bridegroom-elect. What a dinner it was. What plates, all stamped, carved and engraved with the Pacewell crest. What dishes, plain and made all fresh from the hands of the great French cook, who ruled and reigned over the kitchen below like a mighty king of an infernal region; what armies of gorgeous flunkies, in claret plush and golden lace; and what a majestic, dignified piece of pomposity, was the grand butler; why, Lady Pacewell's domestic tyrant dwindled in consequence and dignity in comparison with this despot's magnificent urbanity. And the guests! Little Pattie, who was seated in a little satin chair, and was surrounded by an admiring group, had never dreamed of such people, even in her wildest fancies. Why, here, talking to her dear, were two lords, a marquis and a duke; the latter actually laughing like a common mortal. And then, most marked of all there, was Lady Maud.

"Good will and peace," said Mr. Montague, "to all," and he had invited Lady Pacewell and Queenly Maud. Every more, he had sent a card to Mr. Beaumont, and when the ball commenced, Lady Maud called like a regal swan to little Pattie, and kissed her, whispering: "Forgive me, for I love you, Pattie. We are cousins, little fairy." And how could Pattie, much less gentle-hearted Mary, do less? Lady Maud was forgiven and left to whatever punishment she should devise for herself. And she quickly devised it, for when Mr. Beaumont entered, she shot a glance and a smile that soon brought him to her feet. And there he remained until they were married, when, we think, they changed places, and the worldly husband taught the worldly wife that there is a necessary ingredient in the composition of happy matrimony which they had omitted, and that is, disinterested love.

But Lady Maud and her affairs must not be allowed to cloud our account of the grand ball, as they assuredly did not throw a shadow over the ball itself. All were happy, and when the grand band clashed out its last gallop, Pattie thought the acme of human enjoyment had been reached. "Oh," said Mr. Montague, beaming with smiles of pure felicity, "we have not done yet. There's another party to come yet. Old friends must not be forgotten, Jack, eh?" And so it came to pass, that the grand house was lit up a second time, the grand band clashed and trumpeted, the army of footmen with the magnificent butler at their head went through their evolutions once more. And the guests—who should they be but the company of the Royal Signet! The manager, the actors, the flunks, the imps, the bandits and the tiny little creature who came out of the large cockleshell and sang her tiny song every evening in place of the Fairy Queen who had left the Signet forever. All were there!

Mr. Shallop was there, and Mr. Tubbs was there, and Lady Pacewell was there, and Lady Maud was there, with Mr. Beaumont, forgiven and accepted on her right hand, for they had begged to be allowed to join the party, in token of regret for the past and greater faith and trust in the happy future.

And Mr. Montague, with a voice that would have done credit to the pirate of old, told the story of his life, bade them drink his nephew's, poor old Jack's, health, and with a kiss to his daughters, Pattie and Mary, who sat beautiful and blushing beside him, drank a happy Christmas and a glad New Year to all the world, both before and behind the curtain.

SAFE.

"Ma, when you were married, did you promise to obey Pa?" "Yes, my dear. But I knew your Pa would never give me enough to crowd me to the limit on that promise."
