Christmas Poems.

BY JAMES WHITCOMB KILEY. A world of goodness and good cheer To all on earth, or far or near, Or friend or foe, or thine or mine. In echo of the voice divine. Hear! when the stars' hushed forth and still The world's face with God's smile on it.

BY BEN JOHNSON. Using the birth was been taught. The author both of life and light. The Angel so did send it. And like the revisited shepherds said. Who saw the light and were afraid. Yet searched and true they found it.

BY SID WALTER BOOTE. (Metreless.) England was merry England when Christmas came, and the night before 'Twas Christmas told the merriest tale. A Christmas greeting of good cheer A poor man's heart through half the year.

The Holly-Covered Mound.

HOLLY is suggestive from its very name, but all may not know why the glossy green is in general use to-day, as a symbol of 'Peace on earth, good will toward men.' It was in olden times called Holly-tree, because the early English Christians used it on the celebration of Christ's birthday. And so it has come to pass that no Christmas is complete without the holly.

A simple wreath of holly, or a few sprays, had not sufficed heretofore in one home we have in mind. 'Holly-day' was the way its inmates oftentimes spoke of Christmas, so much a part of the occasion is, the living grief, and in such abundance was seen this Christmas symbol. But one summer day, the pet of the household, the youngest and fairest, slipped from the mother's arms leaving her desolate of heart. This mother, however, was not selfish in her grief, and so, when the long, long days had stretched into weeks and months, and the two remaining children began, as if unmindful of the shadow of death resting on the home, to fall and play happily for Christmas, the mother bravely resolved to conquer self and give no hint of how it opened the wound afresh.

'It was a sore trial to me,' she said, 'when my heart cried out, "No Christmas for me!" I even listened to the gleeful plans of Mary and Ralph. But I shed my tears in secret, resolving not to remind them of the little sister lying on the hillside, and thus mar their joy. So the children talked of the day which to me was one of dread as joyously as if our pet was with us, and I gave smile for smile without once letting slip a hint of the sadness connected with the once glad day, as it loomed up before me.

'The children never seemed more joyous than that Christmas morning, but even while my heart cried out as never before for the sound of the voice that was still, I responded to the 'Merry Christmas,' and made an effort to seem pleased and happy over their little gifts. But after dinner some playmates of the children came and bringing their little gifts, and, as had been previously arranged, to remain with the children, while I carried out my plan to visit the last resting place of our darling.

'Husband and I bade the children good-bye cheerily, when the sleigh appeared, never thinking that it would occur to them: where their parents were going. As we rode to the white city I said sadly, "How alone we are in our sorrow! If Ralph and Mary shared it just a little, it would not be so hard; but they have, to all appearances, quite forgotten the sweet sister who one year ago was with them.'

'A heavy snow had fallen the night previous, drifting here and there, and before we reached the cemetery my good husband said, "I have my doubts as to this visit proving a comfort to you. The little mound will be so snow-covered that you cannot see it. Had we not better turn back?" But I only shook my head.

'As we drew near the sacred spot, what was our surprise to find a path made from the muck, and to see the mound entirely covered with holly. It was such a glad surprise, that I smiled through my tears. Quickly my heart lost its stony grief and love welled up within me. I seemed suddenly to see only Bethlehem's manger, and smilingly I turned away with a strange gladness at my heart.

'On our way home we called at my mother's, as I felt sure I was indebted to her for that holly wreath which I knew nothing of it. But his little son spoke up hesitatingly, "I saw cousin Ralph go by this morning, toward the cemetery, and he was dragging a snow-shovel and had a big bundle under his arm. I rapped for him to stop, but he shook his head and seemed in an awful hurry."

'Ralph! it cannot be possible exclaimed I. "He would have spoken of it."

'The children were having a great romp, when we returned, and greeted us gleefully. "No," I mused, "little are they thinking of the grief my heart holds."

'But later on, when we were left alone, longing to know if really the little ones were in sympathy with me, I said, "Mary, dear, did you see, and Ralph go anywhere this morning besides to visit grandma and grandpa in 'Merry Christmas'?"

'The ever truthful child hesitated, and then, as if forced to tell what she would have gladly concealed, said, "I didn't, but—but—Ralph did."

'Where, darling? I asked.

'I'd rather not tell," she replied, half-pleadingly. "Cause, mamma, its a secret we've had, just to our selves for ever and ever so long!"

'Dear, whispered I, when I proceeded in to those of New York, Boston, and those of Chicago, Toronto and Montreal without leaving their comfortable office chairs.

The Progress of 1904.

The slow and steady tumble of time still sounds in our ears and warns us that the days of 1904 are drawing to a close. Soon, too soon, the tale will be told. The peoples of the world must answer in eternity for another year of opportunity.

There has been much sunshine this year. Glancing round the broad surface of the earth, and considering the happenings, one must confess to a feeling of optimism. True the Russians and the Japanese have been creating numberless widows and orphans, and carrying on as bloody and as infamous a contest as has been since the world began, but such things must be for yet a little while. Down in central Africa the King of the Belgians still tortures and enslaves the black races of the Congo Free State—and no nation dares to say him nay. There are small wars here and there where the audacious white races slowly force their way through robbery to possession. Yet compared with other years, the world has behaved itself fairly well.

The continent of North America continues to make progress—greater progress, indeed, than any other part of the world in industry, in invention, in commerce, in education, in knowledge and in (perhaps) morality. The ships from North American ports are steadily increasing in number; and whereas they once went only West, they now go West and East. The currents of trade from Europe to Asia once set overland via the valley of the Volga, still travel via the Mediterranean and the Red Sea; to-day some of those currents flow across the Atlantic, the North American continent and the Pacific. Europe joins hands with Asia by means of the North American railways.

We know that historical events of all sorts—battles, sieges, and so forth—have occurred on Christmas, for articles almost without end dealing with this interesting side of the history of the day have been written, but of its biographical side little has been said. Pointers on Tailoring

We make the best clothes in Kings county because we employ only the best workmen and use only the highest grade of goods. Accordingly we have a combination that can't be beaten anywhere. And that is the reason why we are doing more work every day and daily making new converts to our tailoring methods.

Have we taken your measure yet for a suit or overcoat? Come in, look at the goods, ask about the prices and terms, you'll never regret it. Our store has not reached its first birthday, and yet we are doing by far the largest business of any tailoring establishment in town.

SOME FAMOUS MEN WHO WERE BORN ON CHRIST'S BIRTHDAY.

Even were it not for its celebration as the birthday of the Saviour, Dec. 25 would rank as quite a notable date in the year for the number of eminent persons whose natal day it is. Curiously enough, however, we seldom think of the day as the beginning of the career of any one on earth other than He to whom the custom has assigned it.

We know that historical events of all sorts—battles, sieges, and so forth—have occurred on Christmas, for articles almost without end dealing with this interesting side of the history of the day have been written, but of its biographical side little has been said. WOLFVILLE, N. S., DEC 23, 1904.

CHRISTMAS IN WOLFVILLE.

The Christmas tide of anticipation and preparation is now at its full. The merry festival is close upon us and from end to end of the country old and young are happy in their plans for bringing happiness to others.

Christmas is essentially the season of gift-giving and the one that sometimes mars this pleasure is that experienced in the selection of suitable tokens of affection, good-will or esteem. As it is impossible for many to provide gifts of their own handwork the dealer and the merchant naturally play an important part in this Christmas custom. The taste and judgment exercised by them in selecting the stock for the season's trade is a considerable factor in the pleasure and satisfaction of those in search of suitable Christmas offerings for their dear ones.

During the next two days a large amount of the Christmas shopping will be done. Wolfville merchants are well prepared to meet every demand upon them. A brief review of some of the Wolfville stores may not be out of place at this time. Beginning at the west end of the town our first place of visit is at the store of

Factor Bros.
These young men although they have been identified with the business life of the town for a number of years are the latest candidates for public favor, on their own account. They have a well equipped store filled with a fine assortment of staple and fancy groceries, crockery, &c., and deserve the patronage of Christmas buyers.

R. H. Tweedell's
Establishment is naturally a popular resort for holiday buyers. His splendid stock of jewelry, silverware, cut glass, &c., furnishes an abundance of handsome gifts to select from. Mr. Tweedell has had a large experience as a manufacturing jeweler in London and elsewhere. At extensive preparations have been made for the festive season, and visitors should have no difficulty in supplying their needs among the good things there provided.

Rand's Drug Store,
as the oldest business institution of the town naturally deserves more than passing notice. For fifty years it has been a centre of activity at Xmas time, and it was never better prepared to supply the wants of customers than now. Persons looking for handsome and useful holiday gifts will make no mistake in calling here.

Geo. A. Crozier
Has been nearly ten years in the merchant tailoring business. His establishment has built up a good value in fit, stylish clothing.

The Hair Dressing Shop.
It does a large business and deserves to.

J. S. Heales'
Establishment is seeing its first Christmas, and is a strong competitor for the holiday trade in dry goods and furnishings. This store is one of the handsomest in town, and shows an excellent stock of handsome goods. Visitors to town are attracted by the handsome show windows and on entering find every promise verified. This store will be thronged with gift buyers during the next two days.

Parker's Pharmacy
has just concluded its second year of successful business in Wolfville. Mr. Parker is making special inducements to customers by offering a splendid line of goods suitable for gifts. He is a firm believer in the efficacy of printers' ink when backed up by the goods. He has been telling the public through THE ACADIAN for several weeks back about the beauty and quality of his stock, and we don't think he has exaggerated a bit.

H. M. Sinclair,
devotes his business energies wholly to the sale of boots and shoes. He has a neat store well stocked with best varieties of footwear for every class of customer. Among his stock may be found many things that will make useful and acceptable gifts. No person should miss this store in making their Christmas purchases.

E. J. Delaney, has a well conducted establishment in connection with his plumbing business, and sells tinware and other goods needed around every home.

Miss Westons'
fancy goods and toy store is one of the attractive places for the young people these days.

W. T. Stephens'
grocery is thoroughly well prepared for holiday business. This store is one of the most attractive in town. This year Mr. Stephens is making a specialty of fine fruit and confectionery of which he has a large stock. His beautiful fancy boxes of chocolates make splendid presents, nothing better. Mr. Stephens aims to keep a fresh and up-to-date stock always.

J. F. Herbin's could not be passed by in the search for holiday gifts. Why, here is just where you are likely to find what you want. He has a fine stock of jewelry, watches, &c., and an endless variety of other articles all of which would make acceptable gifts. Mr. Herbin is a qualified optician and always keeps in stock a full line of goods in this department.

L. S. Bostes and Co.
began business in Wolfville last summer, and have already made a reputation and are doing a good trade. Mr. Bostes has had large experience in this country and the U.S. and is giving excellent satisfaction in all his work.

Miss E. Harris.
Her store is always a favorite resort of Christmas shoppers, because Miss Harris has a fine stock of gift books, and in fact books of all kinds. She has also a large variety of fancy articles, toys, &c. Her windows attract the youngsters, and inside the parents find what they want to make the children happy.

Rookwell and Co.
next door, also have a good display, and as usual, are doing a good business in Christmas goods.

G. H. Borden's is one of the oldest established business houses in town and does one of the best trades. His store is filled with everything in the line of clothing, gents' furnishings, boots and shoes, hats and caps, &c. Mr. Borden's aim is to have his store fully up to the times in every particular. He is apparently doing a rushing trade as his store is thronged with customers these days. Mr. Borden expects to enlarge his premises in the near future in order to accommodate his growing business.

H. M. Watson's
confectionery store and restaurant naturally comes in for a good deal of attention at Christmas time. Mr. Watson is one of Wolfville's young merchants who is meeting with excellent success. His business methods are thoroughly reliable and he deserves all the prosperity he is meeting with.

J. D. Chambers'
is a hive of industry these days. The proprietor has been connected with the business life of the town for a good number of years, having begun his career here with the firm of Caldwell and Murray. After spending some years in Yarmouth where he was in business, he returned to Wolfville and opened at the stand he now occupies. The store has been improved from time to time and is now a credit to the town. Stocked with reliable and reasonable goods it is an attractive center for holiday buyers. Mr. Chambers is one of our most progressive merchants.

J. E. Heales and Co.
also do a good business. This firm's establishment is one of the very best in the valley. During the past summer the building which they occupy their stores were equipped with the overhead cash system and other up to date appliances, and their place of business is now a credit not only to the proprietors but to the town. ### The Teachers' Recital.

A large and appreciative audience assembled in College Hall last Friday evening in anticipation of enjoying a rich treat, and it is needless to say that no one was disappointed. The performance was thoroughly artistic in every particular, indicating much skill in the execution as well as in the selection and arrangement of the program. Numerous enclosures attested to the popularity of the performers as well as to the thorough enjoyment of the audience. Some of those taking part in the program were:

The D. A. R. Buys the Midland.
(Truro News.)
The sale of the Midland Railway, which has been on the tapis for some time, is an accomplished fact, and the Dominion Atlantic Railway Company are the fortunate purchasers.

The Midland Railway Directors have had two or three good offers for their little jewel of a line, 58 miles in length, between Truro and Windsor, from corporations and parties of undoubted ability to buy, but the offer and the claims of the D. A. R. are the ones that the Midland people have most seriously considered, and with whom they have closed.

The consideration is, we believe, in the neighborhood of one million, in the shape of dollars, and it is universally conceded that, while the Midland directors have made a good sale, the D. A. R. have not only secured a property of great value, but have also secured an inestimable value to their

General Manager Gilkins has been in Truro and has made a general inspection of the line, and on behalf of his company will take the whole property over, and from Jan. 1st, 1905, the Midland will be operated from the D. A. R. headquarters at Kentville.

The following resolution was recently passed by Cornwallis Division, Sons of Temperance, Lower Canard. To the Warden and Councilors of the Municipality of Kings.

GENTLEMEN:—We respectfully call to your attention a matter which we feel to be of the utmost importance. As you doubtless know, persistent rumors are abroad of shockingly improper conduct in and around the public building in Kentville known as the County Jail, in connection with the recent execution. We feel called upon to urge you, as the people's representatives, to exercise to the full whatever rights are yours looking toward a thorough investigation of 'his matter, to the end that, if these rumors are false, they may be officially denied, and if they are true, the guilty parties may be exposed and adequately punished, that so, in either case, the present stigma may be removed from the name of our county.

Mr. Clifford Jones, formerly of Wolfville, is now successfully practicing his profession as barrister, &c., at Calgary, N. W. T. His many friends here will be glad to learn of his success in his western home.

Mr. W. H. A. Moore, formerly director in piano at Acadia Seminary, has been appointed to a position in the University at Syracuse, N. Y., and begins his duties there at the first of the year. Since leaving Wolfville Mr Moore has been pursuing additional studies in music in Germany.

The following resolution was moved by Coun. Black at the last meeting of the Town Council, but failed to secure a second. Evidently the members of the Council have little faith in the ability of the citizens to properly understand what is for their welfare, and so think it unsafe to allow them the privilege of voting on the question of good streets:

Resolved,—That a Public meeting of the ratepayers of the Town be called at an early date to see if they will consent to the borrowing of the sum of $10,000.00 or more for the purpose of expending the said sum or as much of it as may be necessary to make a permanent roadway on that portion of Main St. from Mud Bridge to the Campus.

Should any surplus remain after aforesaid section of Main St. is completed the balance shall be expended only on other portions of Main St.

The purchase of the necessary machinery, or the hiring of same and the payment of salary to an expert road building engineer shall be paid out of the sum voted.

No portion of any money voted for above purpose shall be expended on any other of the Streets of the Town.

In a former issue THE ACADIAN mentioned that a protest had been made to the commission in charge of the Provincial Exhibition against certain irregularities concerning the exhibit of certain articles in the Horticultural department at the last exhibition. Mr. Andrew H. Johnson, of this town, protested, and a committee was appointed to investigate the charges. This committee met last week, and after going into the matter fully made the following report to the commission at its last meeting on Saturday last:

To the Exhibition Commission: GENTLEMEN,—Your committee appointed to investigate the charges of irregularities in the entering of goods for competition and drawing of prizes at the exhibition beg to report that they have thoroughly investigated the matter referred to, and find that practically the charges as made are sustained. While this is so, we also find there is among the public generally a certain laxity of principle as to how far it is permissible to take every advantage to obtain prizes from the showing of goods, some of which may have been obtained in a more or less questionable manner. Your committee holds that this commission should do all in its power to eliminate to the utmost all such irregularities in order that the public may have the fullest confidence in the management of the exhibition, as without such confidence the exhibition must decline in interest and value. Therefore your committee would recommend that all entries, upon being made, shall be exceedingly closely scrutinized, and further, that the following, or some such similar bye-law, be passed by this commission, namely:

No clerk of the Judges in any department of the exhibition shall be an exhibitor, or otherwise engaged in the department, but must be a disinterested party, and without any personal interest in the financial results of such judging.

This or some other bye law along these lines will guard to a much greater extent than at present is possible; in the interests of all worthy exhibitors.

Respectfully submitted,
JOSEPH R. SYMAN,
J. W. BIGLOW,
J. R. WOOD.
