Only a Beggar; —BUT— A Queen Among Women

CHAPTER XVI.

Vane, in his kilt, with the eagle's feather in his bonnet, moved among his guests. Diana found herself plunged into an atmosphere of sport, with a capital S. No one talked of anything but grouse and salmon. The men went out soon after breakfast with gun or rod, and the women joined them at luncheon-time, and ate the meal on hillside or in valley; and the talk was of nothing but the bag or the reel. Mabel and Bertie were the most enthusiastic of the enthusiasts; and Mabel was carried beyond herself with delight when she succeeded in landing, with Bertie's aid, a twenty-pound salmon.

Diana neither fished nor shot; but she bore her part in administering to the needs of the sportsmen, and won not only Vane's, but the earl's approval.

"There is no need for you to shoot or fish, my child," said the old man, with fond pride; "that you are here is quite sufficient. It's all very well for that tomboy, Mabel, to go with the men and land her salmon or fill her bag; but it is quite enough for you to appear at lunch and too give them their tea when they come in. And you do it beautifully, my dear. No one could do it better."

Isolated as the castle of Glenskel seemed, there were several other residences, mostly those of noblemen, within a reasonable distance; and the earl decided that a formal dinner-party should be given.

Invitations were issued which embraced all the families of the neighborhood. It was, as Vane laughingly declared, a gathering of the clans.

"You ought to know all the people, my dear," said the earl to Diana. "Vane is very fond of this place; and I think you also are?"

"Yes; yes, indeed," assented Diana. "I have never seen any place so beautiful; have never known, imagined, people so nice, so lovable as the people here. If I go down to the village they treat me as if they had known me all their lives, as if I belonged to them and were one of them."

The old man nodded. "So you will be, my dear," he said. "In fact, they regard you as if you already belonged to them. This feeling of clanishness seems strange to you, no doubt. I don't know that I myself fully realize it. There isn't a man, woman or child who wouldn't lay down his or her life for any one of the family; and, of course, they already regard you as one of the clan. But, touching this dinner—now, my dear child, you will not think me intrusive or presumptuous if I venture to make you a little present for the occasion."

Diana looked at him and shook her head apprehensively. "You are surely not going to make me another present!" she said. "Scarcely a week, a day, has passed but you have given me something. Seriously, Lord Wrayborough, there must be a limit to your generosity and my gratitude."

He laughed, and drew her arm within his. "My dear, I have only given you a few trifles not worth mentioning; and you must not refuse to accept my gift, this thing that I want you to take and wear on this occasion. Come with me and you shall see what it is."

He offered her his arm in his courtly fashion and led her across the hall and into the room which he called his own. It was one of the smallest rooms in the castle, lined with books and furnished in a solid and simple way. Diana had never been in it before, and she looked round her with interest; an interest which increased as the earl, taking a bunch of keys from his pocket, unlocked a door by

Had Stomach Rumbings Distress Before Meals

Was Seldom Free From That Weak, Droopy, Half-Dead Feeling.

Now Cured, and Gives Good Advice to Others With Dyspeptic Tendencies.

If you have any stomach distress at all you will certainly be interested in the following experience which is told by Mr. Edward Dawkins:

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

Refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butter-nut. 25c. per box or five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or post paid from the Catarhoxone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

the fireplace, and, signing to her to follow, entered a still smaller room, in which there was very little but a large safe. Selecting a key from the bunch, he opened this, and, taking out a casket, carried it to the adjoining room, and, unlocking it, threw back the lid, and, with a nod and a smile, invited her to look at the contents.

With her hand on his shoulder, Diana bent over the box, and was startled and surprised to see that it contained a quantity of diamond ornaments. She had no idea of their value; indeed, no one but a connoisseur could have estimated their worth; but she knew, at a glance, that they were very splendid; and, with an exclamation, she looked from them to him questioningly. The earl smiled and nodded.

"These are not the family diamonds, my dear," he said. "I suppose that you ought not to wear those until you are married."

"Oh, no, no!" said Diana earnestly. But Lord Wrayborough laughed. "I don't know that I care very much about strict etiquette," he said; "but I do know that I do want you to wear these, at any rate, at this dinner party. As a matter of fact, I don't think the family diamonds—they are at the bank in London—are as fine as these. Take them out, my child."

Diana lifted the gems reverentially. She looked at them with girlish delight and admiration. There was a tiara of splendid proportions, a necklace and pendant, bracelets and old-fashioned earrings, several rings, and a spray, which could be used as a brooch or an ornament for the hair. She took them up one by one and held them to the light, exclaiming, in a subdued voice, at their magnificence. While she was doing so they heard Vane's voice in the hall. Diana ran to the door.

"I am here, Vane. Oh, come and see!"

He came into the room and put his arm round her and looked smilingly at the priceless gems.

"I thought that was what it would be," he said. "If the whole world belonged to my father, he'd melt it down for you. I suppose you are going to give them to her now, sir?"

"Yes, I am," said the earl. "She shall wear them at this dinner-party."

Dalesford took up the tiara and placed it on Diana's head, and drew back and gazed at her with worshipping eyes.

"You look like a queen, an empress; doesn't she, sir?"

The earl looked from one to the other with delighted satisfaction.

"She shall wear them, Vane. There is no woman in the world who could wear them better than Diana. Put on the bracelets, my dear; and the necklace. I suppose you can't put on the earrings, because your ears are not pierced? Quite right—a barbaric fashion. I'll have them made up into something else, eh, Vane?"

Gradually they got the whole of the suit on her, and, drawing back, looked at her with smiling wonderment and admiration; for, though blushing and with her eyes modestly downcast under their gaze, she "carried" them well, as the earl had said she would.

"My dear Diana," said Vane, "you will create a sensation. I don't think," to the earl, "that there are any finer diamonds than these, are there, sir?"

The earl shook his head as he commenced to collect the various pieces of the magnificent suit. "As a matter of fact, I don't think there are," he assented. "One of the English ducal families possessed a finer suit; but it was broken up. We have kept ours intact. They were your mother's," he added, in a low voice. "and Diana shall wear them on the twenty-second."

He gathered them together, replaced them in the box and locked it, and took it to the safe. Vane looked round the small room absentely.

"I suppose they're all right here, sir?" he said. "I'd no idea they were here. I thought they were at the bank."

"No," responded the earl, carelessly. "They have always been here. I had quite forgotten them until our dear girl came upon the scene."

"They are quite safe, I suppose?" said Dalesford.

The earl shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, quite. Why shouldn't they be? It's a very good safe; they've always been here. What should happen to them? I don't think any one but ourselves know where they are. The windows are heavily barred; and there has never been a burglary at Glenskel."

CHAPTER XVII.

Desmond March first saw the announcement of his cousin Dalesford's engagement as he was returning from a race-meeting at Hurst Park.

He had had an extremely bad day; had not only failed to spot a single winner, but, as if often the case with men of his temperament when luck seems dead against them, he had heavily backed each succeeding loser.

He had had a run of bad luck lately at cards as well as at racing; and as he crowded into the railway-carriage with half-a-dozen similar men, he was filled with the rage and despondency which, like vultures, tear at the vitals of the unsuccessful gambler; but his face was little paler than usual and he carried his head erect and smiled with his usual nonchalance.

One of the men produced the inevitable pack of cards, and it was while Desmond March was spreading a sporting paper over his and his companion's knee to serve as a table that he read the short paragraph which contained such significant and lamentable news for him.

For a moment or two he stared at it, holding his breath, his long hands closing over the cards spasmodically. The shock was a sudden and severe one, though he ought to have been prepared for it; for it was almost certain that Dalesford, the heir, would marry. Of course there was always the chance that Dalesford might break his neck out hunting, be drowned in his yacht, have a fit, or meet with some fatal accident; and remote as the chance might have been considered by a disinterested person, Desmond March had cherished the hope of it.

The marriage of Dalesford, the advent of a son and heir, would not only ruin Desmond March's future prospects, but would work him present ruin. He was always in debt, always living from hand to mouth, on his winnings at cards or at races, on loans from the Jews raised at exorbitant interest; and his ill luck of the last few weeks had plunged him deeper into the mire; so that, as he talked and laughed with his companions.

There was no woman—

He had only recently wrung from Mr. Starkey five hundred pounds, his allowance from the earl was not due until the end of the quarter; and even if he could succeed in extorting another hundred or two from the same source it would be as a drop in the ocean of his liabilities.

He arose presently and began to pace up and down, stopping now and again to help himself from the decanter of brandy which stood on the sideboard. He was desperate and quite ready to do any desperate deed. In the drawer of the sideboard was a loaded revolver, and once or twice he glanced toward it; but as he turned in his pacing he caught sight of his pallid face in the mirror on the wall. He was too young to die; there must be something he could do, some loophole of escape from the meshes which surrounded him.

Of course there was flight; but Desmond March, during his pleasant runs on the Continent, had met men who had sought that refuge from their trouble; he had seen them wandering about the streets of some foreign, fifth-rate watering place, had come across them in a "silver-bell," or caught sight of them, seedy, unshaven, out-at-elbows wretches, sinking furtively among the crowd at a respectable race-meeting. Could it be possible that he, Desmond March, the nephew of the Earl of Wrayborough, the man who was not far removed from the earldom itself, should sink to such depths of degradation?

And yet what hope was there of anything better for him? He could not dig, and, though he was not ashamed to beg, there was no one from whom he could beg, no one to help him. Not a single one of the so-called friends, the men who had drunk and gambled with him, who had shared in his plunder of some innocent lad or moneyed fool, proud of the distinction of playing with Mr. Desmond March, would stretch out a hand to save him from perdition itself.

Five Attractive Films.

To-day the Crescent is showing five all feature pictures produced by the best film makers and featuring the stars of the movie world. Edwin August is in the powerful mystery drama "The Reincarnation of a Soul." This great work is produced by the Powers Company and is classed as one of their finest films. "Comrades" is a war drama with a unique plot, a production of the Nestor Company. "The Girl Reporter" and "Muchly Engaged" are two Crystal comedies in which Pearl White and Chester Barnett star, while the "Universal Animated Weekly" the most famous in the world, is a full reel of all the interesting topics and happenings all over the world, and is itself worth the price of admission. Added to the above Jack McDonald sings "Last Night was the End of the World," a charming ballad. This is a big show even for the Crescent, and should be well patronized.

RUSSIAN VICTORIES.

LONDON, Nov. 21.

The Governor, Newfoundland:

Following from Press Bureau:—In Belgium and France the German attacks are less violent. Snow is falling in the north.

Fighting is in progress on the Vistula and Wartha front, on the front between Czeszochowa and Cracow. Russians have captured a German heavy battery of 10 machine guns and prisoners, northwest of Lodz.

Three thousand Austrians were taken prisoners on the 17th and 18th.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—(Official.)

In general, yesterday was similar to the last two days in Belgium. At Neuport our artillery secured advantage over the enemy's artillery. From Diamond to the south of Ypres, intermittent cannonading is reported. At Hollebecque two German infantry attacks were repulsed. From the Belgian frontier to the Oise nothing occurred. In the Aisne region and in Champagne advantage gained by our batteries over the adversary's was increased, compelling the Germans to abandon building of trenches already started. In the Argonne we have blown up several German trenches. On the Vosges we have progressed to the extent of establishing on certain points our trenches only thirty metres distant from German positions.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 22.—(Official.) Fighting between the Vistula and Wartha has continued with great persistence. We have obtained some partial successes. Fighting on the front from Czeszochowa to Cracow has resumed with no essential changes. We have taken 2,000 prisoners and some machine guns. In Galicia the Austrians have evacuated Novy Sandez under pressure by our troops. On Nov. 20th the Turkish cruiser Hamidiah, followed by a flotilla of torpedo boats, appeared off Taupse, and opened fire, hurling 125 projectiles into the neighborhood. Russian artillery immediately replied with very effective fire. Our loss consisted of three soldiers and a Sister of Charity wounded, one civilian killed and ten other civilians injured. Material damage was insignificant. In the direction of Erzurum one of our columns made important progress above Juzveran. Our advance posts continued to tread on the heels of the Turks. Other detachments were inactive.

GERMAN OFFICIAL.

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 22. The following official communication was given out by the German General Army Headquarters to-day: On the whole there is no change in the Western theatre, the enemy showing great activity with artillery along practically the whole front.

In the Eastern war theatre operations are still further developing. Nothing can yet be reported regarding the situation in East Prussia. Pursuit of the defeated enemy, who was driven back through Miawa and Plock, continues. Our offensive at Lodz has made progress. In the region east of Czeszochowa our troops are fighting by the side of our Allies and have gained ground. In the eastern theatre the situation remains unchanged. In Poland we are still fighting for victory. Fighting south of Plock and at Czeszochowa continues.

SUNDAY AT THE FRONT.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—(Official.) Yesterday was calm upon the whole front. In Belgium, as in the region from Arras to the Oise, there was only intermittent cannonading. Our artillery evidenced in general more activity than that of the enemy. Our batteries succeeded in demolishing many lines of the German trenches. The enemy worked elsewhere to reconstruct new ones in the rear. The day was equally calm upon the Aisne, in the Champagne district, as well as Argonne, and upon the heights of the Meuse and in the Vosges.

BATTERIES SILENCED.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.

French forces have captured the heights of Ornes near Verdun, and silenced two German batteries, according to official despatches to the French Embassy.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—(Official.)

To-day there was a violent bombardment of Ypres, during which the market place and town hall were destroyed. In the region of Soissons and Vally there is rather strong cannonading. There is nothing to report from other parts of the front.

AUSTRIAN OFFICIAL.

VIENNA, Nov. 22.—(Official.)

Powerful Austrian forces have crossed Kolubara River, but the Serbians are resisting in several well chosen fortified positions. In the last two days we captured 2,440 prisoners.

A WORD FROM SERBIA.

NISH, Serbia, Nov. 21.

The Serbian War Office to-day issued an official statement claiming victories over the Austrians, through artillery attacks, and stating that the enemy had been forced to retire.

INTENDED AS A WARNING.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.

Turkey has voluntarily explained to the States Government through Ambassador Morgenthau, that the shots fired towards the launch of the American cruiser Tennessee last Monday, were intended merely as the customary warning that the port of Smyrna was mined and closed to navigation.

CHILE BECOMES ACTIVE.

VALPARAISO, Nov. 22.

The Chilean authorities announced to-day that no vessel of the Kosmos line will be permitted to take on provisions or coal in Chilean waters, pending investigation of the departure without clearance papers, yesterday, from Chilean ports, of the German steamers Luxon and Memphis. Both belong to this line, and neither vessel had permission to leave port. The Chilean authorities have ordered their capture.

PREPARING FOR DECISIVE ACTION.

LONDON, Nov. 22.

Messages from North Holland state that unusual activity prevails at Emden, says a despatch from The Hague. Fishermen, who daily cruise near German waters, say the German fleet is preparing for decisive action in the North Sea. Prince Henry of Prussia, was at Emden yesterday for inspection of torpedo and submarine craft.

SPIES CAUGHT.

LONDON, Nov. 22.

Gratifying Reports.

It is most gratifying to learn of the good opinions which our Newfoundland contingent is winning in England. Dr. Paterson says the Newfoundland Regiment "has the reputation of being the best on Salisbury Plains, where some 65,000 men are now in training. The Strathcona Horse and all the regiments about give them the highest praise and all look up to them for discipline. The esprit de corps among our officers and privates is really splendid and a tribute to their worth is the fact that they are chosen for special and picket duty." In addition to this we have the testimony of their commanding officer Lieut.-Col. Clegg, who expresses in his letter to the Governor his opinion "that they are not surpassed by any unit in the camp for all round smartness in parade, steadiness in the ranks and general intelligence, while their physical fitness appears to be excellent." Well may Newfoundland be proud of them, and well may she believe that if they have to meet the stress of the field they will prove themselves worthy brothers in arms to those against whom the proud Prussian Guards, the boasted Bavarian infantry, the Death Head Hussars, and the swash-buckling Uhlans have hurled themselves in vain. But before they take their places at the front they will have to complete a thirteen weeks training to fit them for the work they have to do, and moreover they are at present without reserves. These reserves are not even enlisted yet, not to speak of training them. It is not usual to send any battalion to the front, until there are reserves of trained men to keep up the strength. These reserves at the commencement are expected to be fifty per cent of the original strength and to be constantly added to from month to month. There is therefore much yet to be done to enable the Newfoundland Contingent, which has begun so well, to follow that success up by success in the field of action.

Allotment Papers Here

STORM BOUND.—A fierce storm raged at Channel on Friday and Saturday last with the result that the coastal steamers Portia and Glencoe were hung up there for over fifty hours. Both ships left Channel at 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

Unauthorized Collectors.

Yesterday at all masses in the R. C. Cathedral, the attention of the congregation was called to the fact that unauthorized persons were from time to time coming to the city soliciting money for foreign charities, and that they should be warned against giving any assistance to these collectors. In the majority of cases these persons are impostors who solicit money under the guise of religion, and who are unable to furnish the necessary credentials, except in unintelligible languages, which fact alone should naturally arouse suspicion. A decree from the congregation of the Propaganda dealing with this matter was read. This decree forbids the Bishops of western sees from giving permission to the priests of the Oriental Church to collect in their dioceses without authority from the congregation. At present a collection of this sort was being made throughout the city, and the congregation was warned against contributing. In view of the many calls on the Roman Catholic people from time to time, they could ill afford to contribute to foreign churches even if such collections were authorized.

Cossacks Dismount, Crawl Up Hill to Carry it by Storm

How Cossacks crawled on their hands and knees up a steep hill, protected by wire entanglements and steel stakes embedded in the ground, and then carried the position by storm, is told in details of the fighting about Goldap received here to-day.

All despatches from East Prussia clearly indicate the determination and bravery with which the new Russian advance is being made into East Prussia. The main defence of Goldap was taken by direct assault.

The Russians took the Germans completely by surprise by their rapid advance. After eight days of fighting about Bacalarzewo they arrived within two miles of Goldap before a German aeroplane scout discovered them. Russian dragoons and artillery were then ordered to make a flank attack. This was carried out with the greatest dash and bravery. A hill regarded theoretically as impregnable was carried by storm.

The Germans were entrenched on three sides of this hill. It was also protected by ingenious entanglements. Several of the Cossacks mounts fell on concealed spikes embedded in the holes before they were discovered. Then all dismounted. Cossacks fighting on all four sides they cut the barbed wire entanglements and pressed on, leading their horses.

The advance was made in this way and the Russians reached a position within 300 yards of the German trenches. Then they mounted, reformed, charged the trenches and drove the Germans before them.

An official report from the Russian General Staff announces the occupation of Possessern, a town on the Margrabow-Angenburg railroad, only nine miles northeast of the East Prussian fortress of Loetzen.

GERMAN SPIES ARRESTED.

Special to Evening Telegram. PARIS, To-day. Half a dozen German spies, who hid in a mad house in Lorraine, have just been arrested. They gained admittance to the asylum while the mobilized medical staff was transferring its authority to civil administration. They obtained valuable information about the movements of troops by eavesdropping.

COMMANDO SURRENDERS.

JAPAN READY TO SEND TROOPS TO EUROPE.

LONDON, To-day. Arthur Dloessy, an authority on Anglo-Japanese affairs, says in a statement that Japan will be ready to furnish a large army, if it is found necessary, to increase the allied force in Europe. The Japanese army is in a complete state of readiness, says Mr. Dloessy, and if it is necessary to increase the force in East Europe, the Japanese are willing and ready to supply a large and admirably equipped and highly trained army by the Trans-Siberian Railway, and an ample supply of Japanese steamships to make the transportation of half a million men in two months easy.

St. Pierre Bulletin

22nd, MIDNIGHT REPORT

On the 22nd a heavy bombardment of Ypres destroyed the markets and Town Hall. There was also heavy cannonading in Soissons and the Vailly regions. The remainder of the night there is nothing to report.

Petrograd communicates the following: The Germans are making efforts anew to pierce the Russian front in lower East Prussia. Strong German forces are concentrated at these points. The enemy's forces from Craocow have completely failed in the attempt to cross at Klesien. At Badow they were compelled to retreat, abandoning a large number of killed and wounded, prisoners, also loads of provisions, ammunitions and artillery. Strong Austro-German forces from fortified front region between Czenstochow and Craocow, having assumed a vigorous offensive, were thrown back on the entire front with heavy losses.

British Sent Guards Flying.

Northern France, Nov. 18.—It was only when the wounded prisoners of the Pussian guard arrived at that the British soldiers realized the kind of men they had been fighting for the last few days. Huge fellows they were, all over six feet in height, and one of them bearing seven. When one realizes that this magnificent regiment has now been severely handled by the British troops, for the third time, and that they are looked upon as the dower of the German army, then one realizes just what a fight the British put up.

After submitting for over eight hours to a terrible shell fire of both lyddite and shrapnel, the British troops were getting very tired, and it was next to impossible to send relief to the trenches until late in the evening. The Germans, anticipating this condition of things, and realizing that it was now or never, massed in force their Prussian Guard and some other forces and drove the British back, through sheer weight of numbers. Back they went contesting each trench, stubbornly, as they evacuated it.

When within about sixty yards of where the artillery was hidden, the troops, acting under orders, suddenly split their line and dispersed on either side, leaving a huge gap—the break in the British line, which the enemy had been trying to make for weeks. Into this break came the Prussian Guard, wildly shouting and cheering. They had advanced within fifty yards of the muzzles of the field guns when these belched forth, at point blank range, while the Maxims fired into them from either side.

Not even the Prussian Guard could stand this. They broke, wavered and fled. Their flight was aided by a savage attack made by the Black Watch, which regiment, in company with another, was up at them, at the moment the first signs of wavering were seen. The whole thing was beautiful.

fully timed by the infantry and artillery.
Not only were the Germans back over the trenches, which but a short time ago they had taken from the British, but they were pursued by the Highlanders, for over a mile beyond.
The net result was that the Germans lost over a thousand men killed and some three thousand wounded, as well as their own advanced trenches from which their final attack had originated, and the British artillery is now sending shells a mile further into their ranks.
ENGLAND'S WAR LOAN A BIG SUCCESS.
London, Nov. 19.—England's new war loan, the largest in her history, already has been covered, according to reports which were current to-day in banking circles. The Bank of England, however, reports that applications have not yet been actually computed, so that their total is not officially known. It is not intended to close the subscription lists before Tuesday, unless there should be an enormous over-subscription.

PRIVATE R. PENNY.

Pond Farm Camp,
Salisbury Plains,
England,
Nov. 3rd, 1914.

My dear Mother—
Just a few lines hoping you are in the best of health, as I am thankful to say that I am; so you will see by the above address where we are posted for awhile.

We arrived at Plymouth after 12 days from St. John's, and we were on board the Florizel for 5 days before we could disembark as there were so many troops to land ahead of us.

We were on shore in Devonport, on Sunday, for parade in the afternoon, we landed in the ship's boats. The following Tuesday we took train from Plymouth for here about 7.15 p.m. and arrived at the station about 7 miles from here, at 11 p.m., and walked on to here that same night, arriving here about 2 a.m. The next day we began our regular routine, drill, etc. Everything was in readiness when we came here. This is quite a large camping ground, about 40 miles square. You can imagine there's quite a number of soldiers here, I should say 150,000 or so. We have had lots of rain since we came here, as this is the rainy season in England.

I expect we'll be here for the winter as far as I know yet. This is a holiday as to-morrow H. M. the King and H. M. Queen Mary are to review the troops, so you see it has given me a chance to write you to-day.

I am feeling just about the same as of old; we are getting used to our surroundings by this time. The nearest town to here is about 3 miles away—Market Lavington. The only change we have when we get leave is to visit there in the evenings.

We are each getting 3 days leave in turn; most of the boys go to London to see the sights; I have not had time yet.

I don't know of any particular news to write about; I'll have a chance to write again soon, I guess. I was sorry, mother, I could not get a chance to see you before I left; however, I trust I shall have the pleasure of seeing you all again when the struggle is over. Till then we shall have to be contented as it is I suppose. Is father well, and is Harry gone away yet? I must now close with fond love to all.

I remain, yours affectionately,
BOB.

Doctors and Gas Fires

In an article which recently appeared in the London "Evening News," Mr. W. G. Faulkner stated: "In making my inquiries I discovered one significant fact. This was that one company—the Gas Light and Coke Company—had among their consumers 2,500 doctors who had gas fires installed in their houses, some as many as ten or a dozen; that 1,500 of these doctors had become users of gas during the past three years; and that not one had ever given them up."

Professor C. V. Boys, F.R.S., says, in the "Standard": "Sentiment and inertia are the only obstacles against the general adoption of gas fires and cooking appliances. Wonderful strides have been made, in spite of deep-rooted prejudices. A gas fire, burning with a due, is an admirable agent for heating a room; and, as a scientist, I fail to understand how such a gas fire dries the air in a room more than any other fire."—Nov 17, 14

Jerseymen in Newfoundland.

By H. F. SHORTIS.

There are three places in this Island, where fishermen in summer time find it possible to land when the sea is not too rough.

Londa is the name of the place where the lighthouse supplies are landed with a derrick.

Famit at the east end has two or three fishing stages near shelving rocks.

Bristow is on the other side facing the Atlantic sheltered by a reef of rocks near by called Wales.

Here we have undoubted pure English names with the very pronunciation from the time of Queen Elizabeth.

Londa is London.
Famit is Falmouth.
Bristow is Bristol.

If I had time and space I could tell more about this interesting spot, but this is a little digression on my part that I believe cannot help but prove that the Basques, Jerseymen and English followed each other at a very early date in our history or rather pre-historic times.

I have already mentioned that I intended to give some English names that are derived from the Channel Island.

Take up a map of Jersey and you see at once Trinity and St. Catherine's. There is no doubt in my mind that the splendid harbor of Trinity got its name from the well known parish in Jersey.

In Jacques Cartiers voyage, 1535 on his way to the St. Lawrence via the Straits of Belle Isle he found an ice blockade at Cape Bonavista, and he put into the Haven of St. Catherine's for a few days. This Haven is often frequented for shelter from ice or storms in the same way to-day, but it now goes by the name of Catalina.

St. Catherine's Bay is a well known spot in Jersey, and I have no hesitation in suggesting that the Jerseymen were its earliest settlers, but in this case the name has been corrupted from the Jersey St. Catherine's (Kate for short) to the Spanish or Basque Catalina, and here we see what competition and controversy there must have been at the dawn of our history.

I know very well that I am heading for trouble, and I fully expect to be disowned by many friends when I say that our City of St. John's was christened by the Jerseymen, but I am very confident, if our historians will view this matter from an unprejudiced point of view, they will admit that I have very good reasons for my statements. Take up the map of Jersey again, and on the north side you will find three harbors in close vicinity in the order as follows:

St. John's Bay, Petit Port and Bay Bouley.

I am ready to risk my reputation that it was the Jerseymen who named our harbors of St. John's, Petty Harbor and Bay Bulls, but the French names given at first have been corrupted by the long English occupation of these places. Now here are a few facts that will bear out my contentions.

The first authentic information we have of the Jerseymen in Newfoundland comes from John Rut, who was captain of one of Henry VIII men-of-war on a voyage to Newfoundland in 1527.

He states, "We entered the Haven of St. John's August 3rd, 1527, and there we found eleven sail of Normans and one Briton, and two Portuguese barques all a-fishing."

The Normans are the Jerseymen from the Norman or Channel Isles. One ship from Brittany and two Portuguese. It shows at once that the Harbor of St. John's must have been a prominent centre for the Jerseymen at that time. Now here is another fact that will clinch my argument on this subject.

There is only one important river flowing into the Harbor of St. John's, and I would ask my readers to verify the following name of that river on the old maps or survey sheets. We are so used to calling this stream the Waterford Bridge River that we rarely think of the absurdity of that name. The river must have been called something before the bridge was built, and in old documents the name is given as the Castor River. Now Castor is the French word for Beaver and Jerseymen when they settled here first, must have found the Beavers on this river, and hence the name. I put these facts down as convincing proofs of my statements.

I can give many similar proofs in different parts of our country, but it would take too long to enumerate the half. In closing this subject of nomenclature let me mention Bay Roberts. The most commanding view in that town is Piraux's Hill, where the telegraph station is now built. We have undoubted traditions that this locality was called after a Jerseyman. The best waterside property there owned by C. & A. Dawe can show its title deeds back to the Perchard family, well known Jersey people.

There is another place in Trinity Bay to which I wish to ask special notice. In the census of 1675 I find that several vessels were loaded between Trinity and Bonaventure by the prominent Jersey firms of Henry LeCras, John LeCras and Nicholas Billhast, who exported their own fish. There are not many French names in Trinity Bay, but Bonaventure is one of them, and this old record mentions these firms particularly as Jerseymen, and proves that it was the Jersey people who carried on the principal business in that locality over two hundred and fifty years ago.

The same record gives the name of Thomas Bandnell of Jersey, as one of the principal exporters at Harbor Grace. Abram Fillett of Jersey, exporter at Bonaventure.

Now let us take up some of the Jersey names that have become so corrupted owing to lack of education in Newfoundland that the proper derivations are almost quite lost in many cases.

Here are a few of the names of Jersey families, who have descendants in Newfoundland:
Mourant, now known as Murray.
Brideau, now known as Bridle.
Lerrier, now known as Lear.

Quenall, now known as Curnew.
Fillaire, now known as Fillar's.
Le Gresley, now known as Greely.

Dead Days.

The world went well when I was young; no gossip had an evil tongue, but people went from shack to shack, to praise a man behind his back. We had the reign unbroken, then, of peace on earth, good will to men.

The world grows better, I am told; it may be so—I'm growing old, and everything that's dead looks fine; I want no modern things in mine. What tales were told, what songs were sung, in those brave days when I was young! Then giants plied the pen inspired, and noble bards sat up and lyred; but note the books they're printing now, adapted to the lowest brow. What sort of music do we know? A rag-time strain by Jungle Joe. To dig up music that will last you have to rake around the past; to find a book that isn't rot, you look to Thackeray and Scott. There's nothing now of lasting worth, that I can see, in all the earth. Perhaps the old world's not to blame; perhaps I'm weary of the game, as people tire when they grow old, and hands and hearts and feet are cold. And so we'll let it go at that; ambitious youth is at the bat.

Capt. Paterson Home Again.

TALKS WELL OF OUR REGIMENT.

Dr. L. Paterson, who left here with the First Newfoundland Regiment, in the capacity of Chief Medical Officer, arrived back by the Allan Line Monday afternoon yesterday. Telling of his experiences in the Old Country, Dr. Paterson speaks in commendable terms of our boys.

When the volunteers disembarked at Plymouth, after a most enjoyable run across, they were given a royal and most enthusiastic welcome. They proceeded to the barracks of the Ninth Devonshire Regiment at Mill Bay and after a short stay entrusted for Patney. The entraining officer congratulated Commanding Officer Alexander and the Newfoundland Regiment on their appearance and was delighted to see them. From Patney a start was made for Pond Farm Camp, Salisbury Plain. They were accompanied enroute by two cyclists as guides. On reaching their destination they were given a warm reception by a guard of New Zealanders. Shortly after our boys went into camp. Continuing, Dr. Paterson said that under canvas as well as every other way our boys are behaving splendidly. Their discipline, training and conduct generally is the best on the Plains out of 65,000. As an evidence of the reputation our boys are establishing, the Strathcona Horse which is the regiment looked up to for discipline, speaks highly of our regiment. For special and picket duty our officers and privates are selected and this is a tribute of their worth. Our boys have had the honour of being inspected by His Majesty King George, the late Earl Roberts and Lord Kitchener. General Alderson, who is in charge of the Canadians, visited our regiment and did much for the comfort of all. Lt.-Col. Clegg is delighted with the appearance and training of our boys. Capt. Franklin is second in command. Since leaving here there has been an entire absence of accident or illness among our boys. The food is good and there is plenty of it. There is also a good deal of drill. The weather has been very backward lately. Our boys go for a march every afternoon and their marching, bearing and formation are all excellent. The conduct of our boys, said Dr. Paterson, is a credit to themselves and to the Colony and not a single offence of a serious character has been lodged against any one of them. It is not known yet when they will leave for the front. Dr. Paterson left the boys last Tuesday week. They were then in the best of spirits, looking forward for the time to come to go to the front.

There is a great call for volunteers and recruits in the Old Country and the vehicles bear signs such as "Come for a Year," "Your Country Needs You," "Come to the Piping Line," and "Stand by Britain" and many others. While on the way to Patney, Sergeant McConnell fell off the train through the sudden opening of a door against which he leaned. He was quickly located by Dr. Paterson and the ambulance crew and was found to be only slightly injured, and as well as ever. This was the only accident that occurred, and all the boys were in the best of health and spirits when the doctor left.

Colonel Clegg Writes on Our Boys.

Pond Farm Camp, Salisbury Plain, Nov. 1914. Col. Sir Walter E. Davidson, K.C.M.G., St. John's, Newfoundland: Dear Sir,—For the past two weeks, since the arrival in this camp of the First Newfoundland Regiment, I have had the honor of being their Lieut.-Colonel in Command, and I wish to take this opportunity on the departure for home of their senior Medical Officer, Captain Paterson, to have conveyed to you and the people of Newfoundland sincere congratulations on the splendid contingents you have sent to assist the Mother Country and the Empire in the present great war.

I do not mean so much in point of numbers, although this is very creditable considering your population, as in the calibre of the officers and men. While I have no wish to give comparisons, I believe that they are not surpassed by any unit in the camp for all round smartness on parade, steadiness in the ranks and good intelligence, while their physical fitness appears to be excellent. Newfoundland may be proud of her sons; they will no doubt give a good account of themselves, should they get into the stress of war. My command is only temporary, but I feel that it has been a privilege to have been associated even for a short time with your contingent.

Believe me, Sincerely yours, E. B. CLEGG, Lieut.-Col. Canadian Regiment.

B. I. S. Meeting

The quarterly meeting of the B. I. S. Society was held after last Mass yesterday, Hon. J. D. Ryan presiding. Several applicants were admitted to membership. The reports from the various branches of the Society were very favourable and showed the organization to be in a flourishing condition.

A notice of motion dealing with an adjustment of the Constitution was tabled by Mr. J. S. Keating and will be open for discussion at the annual meeting in February next.

The following resolution of sympathy was adopted by the Society as a mark of respect to the memory of the Society's Patron, the late Archbishop Howley:—

WHEREAS—There has lately happened in our midst a great calamity, both to the Catholic community in general and to our venerable society in particular through the calling to the Great Beyond of the Most Rev. M. F. Howley, Archbishop of St. John's. The late Prelate had endeavored himself to our hearts in a thousand ways. To our Society he was a patron and a friend. Not more than forty years ago he was a moving spirit in the erection of St. Patrick's Hall and later he lent his powerful assistance and advice towards the completion of the O'Donnell Hall—a memorial of the Centenary of the Society. He was always willing and eager to help on the great cause of education by his scholarly wisdom and erudite advice, his main desire being to see the schools usher into the world boys of upright character and sturdy faith, his one aim to conserve and foster in our midst that pure and noble spirit of love of Mother Erin to which it is our proud privilege to dedicate our Society. His death severs one of the last links that bind us to the past.

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED—That in common with the condolences of the Catholic community we extend to the Administrator of the Diocese, the Clergy, and the laity, the deep and sincere regrets of the Benevolent Irish Society at the passing of a great man, a pure friend.

Love and War at the Nickel.

A PICTURE FOR THE TIMES. The beautiful pictures at the Nickel Theatre last week will be followed by others equally as good this week. A glance at the programme published elsewhere in this issue will prove that an attractive and well-prepared. The two reel feature film for this evening is "Fitzhugh's Ride" and is suitable to the times, for it is a war drama. It contains a sweet love story which is beautifully interwoven with the scenes of battle. The acting is all that can be desired and citizens are sure to be pleased with it. "Children of Destiny" is a great melo-drama by the Biograph artists. Such pictures as this do more to elevate humanity and make us realize how much we are dependent one on another, than anything else. Be sure and see it and you will be convinced. "Mabel's Story" (Love Affair) is a Keystone comedy which is an assurance that it will be a lively one. "Red Head" introduces herself! is also a bright comic. There will also be a full reel of Hearst-Selig News Pictorial, giving the latest events in the history of the world. Arthur C. Huskins will be heard in a new song, and Prof. McCarthy and Ross will give new music and effects. Make time and see this show at the Nickel, if not, you will be sorry.

Ordination at R. C. Cathedral.

On Wednesday next at 8.30 a.m. the ceremony of Ordination will take place at the R. C. Cathedral, His Lordship Rt. Rev. Bishop March officiating. The candidate to be raised to the sacred office of the Priesthood is a Mr. Enright, a native of Killenny, who has been in the city for some time past.

S. S. GLENCOE.—The S. S. Glencoe which was delayed at Port aux Basques during the storm of Friday and Saturday last, got away from there early yesterday morning, she is due at Placentia to-morrow afternoon.

The writer's tastes turned to geography, in which subject he became so expert that he was appointed lecturer in geography at Oxford. He is said to have introduced the use of globes in schools. Helped by Sir Walter Raleigh, Hakluyt compiled a record of travels and geographical discoveries. He was buried in Westminster Abbey.

BEFORE THE BATTLE. Holspur: O Gentlemen, the time of life is short! To spend that shortness basely, were too long. If life did ride upon a dial's point, Still coming at the arrival of an hour, An' still we live, we live to tread on kings; If die, brave death, when princes ride With us, our consciences, the arms are fair. When the intent of bearing them is I think him that he cuts me from my tale. Tribute to Our Boys.

FROM CHAPLAIN. The following letter received by Rt. Rev. Mons. Roche, V.G., Administrator of the Archdiocese from Rev. Fr. Doe, the Chaplain in charge of the R. C. boys of the First Newfoundland Regiment, was read from the pulpit at the R. C. Cathedral last evening:— Rt. Rev. Mgr. Roche, Adm., St. John's. Rev. and Dear Sir,—As Chaplain at Headquarters of the Fourth Infantry Brigade, to which brigade the First Newfoundland Regiment is attached, I am taking advantage of the departure of one of our Officers for home to write you a word or two concerning those members of the Contingent from your city and its environs who are under my spiritual charge.

I have no doubt but words of commendation for our brave boys; they are most attentive to all their Church duties and obligations and obedient to the authorities that have been placed over them. All officers and men are a credit to the Church and the priests, their homes and their parents and consequently to the Canadian Overseas Expeditionary Force. I am within a hundred yards of these boys and Mass is celebrated every day at a convenient hour. All are in good health and spirits, not one being in the field hospital. I hope to be in close touch with the boys I am so proud of until such time as Divine Providence shall see us safely home. In the meantime I beg your prayers for the boys of the First Newfoundland Regiment and for all our Canadian troops. I remain, Sincerely yours, (Capt.) EDWARD GORDON DOE, Chaplain Fourth Infantry Brigade.

The above letter will, we feel sure, awaken a sense of pride in the hearts of the relatives and friends of the boys in the church. We can imagine the pride with which the late Archbishop Howley would receive such a message, were he alive to-day. It will be remembered that before the lads went to the front His Grace addressed them from the pulpit of the Cathedral in a wholesome manner, exhorting them to be true to their God, their King and their Country. This discourse given on the Sunday preceding the departure of the Regiment was the last public utterance of the late lamented Prelate, whose memory will always be green in the hearts of his people. Truly, the Church may be said to be reaping the fruit of the seeds sown by this illustrious Prelate, by his stirring and simple words to the Volunteers.

Vaudeville's Best.

KELLY and MACK. To-night the two Irish comedians Kelly and Mack, will open their engagement at Rossley's. They are singers, dancers, musical comedy, real old time performers; no Johnny new comedy or adventures. For many years fond of good dancing, they will certainly have a treat. No Turkey trot about those dancers, but the Irish dances that are fast, fading away, in fact there are very few in the business to-day who can accomplish those old jigs and reels. Mr. Kelly will show many different styles and Mr. Mack will render beautiful selections on both cornet and violin. They have several good Irish sketches which will make patrons laugh and forget their troubles, and don't forget that Rossley's pictures can't be beat.

NOTE OF THANKS.—A vote of thanks to the Anglo-American Telegraph Co. was passed at the B. I. S. Club Rooms at a recent meeting for their courtesy in sending the war news to the rooms so regularly.

Lord Kitchener.

Day by day a crowd gathers outside the War Office, in London, in the hope of seeing Lord Kitchener, and those that wait long enough are now fairly disappointed, for the Field Marshal makes a conspicuous figure in his uniform, which he wears in accordance with the wish expressed by His Majesty, that all officers should now appear in uniform. Lord Kitchener, whether he pays a visit to Downing Street, or Buckingham Palace, always wears the Field Marshal's uniform, which becomes him so well.
In Halifax, doubtless you have noticed how particularly striking our civilians, who are now serving in the Militia, appear in uniforms. A well-tailored uniform is becoming, and a thousand times so if it has been Dry Cleaned by
