CHRISTMAS and NEW YEAR MAILS!

The early mailing of Christmas and New Year parcels for Naval Reservists and members of the Newfoundland Regiment at the front is urged by the Post Office department. The mailing of such parcels should take place before the middle of the present month. It is possible that letters mailed up to within the last week of November will be delivered to Overseas Troops before Christmas, but irregularities and uncertainties in the Field Mail service cannot be avoided. The rates for parcels post are:

TO BRITAIN.
Up to 3 lbs. . . . .24 cents
Over 3 lbs. to 7 lbs. . . .48 cents
Over 7 lbs. to 11 lbs. . . .72 cents
TO FRANCE.
Up to 3 lbs. . . . .62 cents
Over 3 lbs. to 7 lbs. . . . $1.00
Over 7 lbs. to 11 lbs. . . $1.28
Parcels should be securely packed, and bear, in addition to the name and address of the sender, the value and description of the contents. Parcels sent to any members of the Regiment, whether in France, Belgium or England, if directed to c/o Pay and Record Office, 58 Victoria Street, London, S.W. will be transmitted at the rates for Britain, as above quoted.

J. AL. ROBINSON, Postmaster General.

The Web;

OR,
TRUE LOVE'S PASSION.

CHAPTER XII
The First Kiss of Love.

"It is a poor guerdon," she said, with a flickering smile that seemed to make her face more serious. "It is all dusty and faded."

"I would rather have it than the freshest and finest!" he said, fervently and his eyes wandered wistfully from the rose to her face.

Slowly she took the flower—it was dusty and faded—from her belt and held it out to him, standing with downcast face.

He took the rose and pressed it to his lips; then, carried away by the thought that she had worn it, feeling that it was, so to speak, part and parcel of herself that she had given him, he took her hand, and pending over it, kissed it passionately.

Norah went white to the lips. It was her hand only he had kissed, but it was the first kiss of love, and it stirred her maiden heart to its depths.

With a long breath she thrilled throughout her whole being, and stood looking at him, half fearfully, wholly entranced.

He looked up at her, his face almost as white as hers.

"Ah, forgive me!" he murmured, remorsefully. "Forgive me! I—I did not think! I—ah, you would not be angry, you would forgive me if you understood, if you knew how I love you!"

She shrank back slightly, and drawing her hand away, pressed it unconsciously against her heart.

"Ah, I've said it!" he murmured desperately, as if he saw that he had lost her forever, but that it was useless to try and recall his words. "I love you, Lady Norah, I love you! Don't speak to me yet! You are angry, offended! I have behaved badly! I ought not to have said it! But—"

A sound broke the silence of the night. It was the opening of the great door. He stopped, and Norah, with a start, looked toward the house. Two figures stood plainly revealed against the light in the hall.

Cyril raised his head and passed his hand over his forehead.

"Lady Norah," he said, in a voice that was scarcely audible, "don't cast me off until you have seen me, heard me—"

He could say no more.

They had gone up the steps, and stood before the earl and Guildford Berton.

Guildford Berton darted a dark look from under his brows at each of them in turn, then dropped his eyes and stood with tightly-drawn lips in sinister silence. The earl regarded them with haughty surprise on his cold face, and in a tone of ice, regarding his daughter's presence, said:

"Mr. Burne! To what do I owe the pleasure of this visit?"

Norah put her hand on his arm to stop him.

"Papa!" she said, hurriedly, "there has been an accident! Lady Fernale's horses ran away, and the carriage was upset, and Mr. Burne—" she stopped a moment for breath.

"Mr. Burne stopped the horses at great peril."

The earl calmly took her hand and removed it from his arm.

"Excuse me," he said, coldly. "Do I understand that Mr. Burn has rendered you a service?"

Norah's face went crimson, and she stole a pleading glance to where Cyril stood perfectly calm and at his ease.

"Yes, yes," she said, "Mr. Burne stopped the horses—the two great horses—think, papa!—and, her voice grew lower, and was meant for his ear alone, "and he is hurt!"

The earl's face did not soften in the slightest.

"That Mr. Burne is hurt I very much regret," he said, stiffly, "and I trust that the injury is not a serious one. Where did you—leave the carriage; I do not see it?"

"The carriage is a wreck, papa," said Norah, almost distracted at his coldness and ingratitude. "We left it in the lane!"

"And you have taxed Mr. Burne's kindness to the extent of accompanying you home!" said the earl, in a tone of rebuke, intended as much for Cyril as for herself. "Why did you not send one of the servants here for a carriage?"

"I did not think—there was no time! Oh, papa," she broke off under her breath, "are you not going to thank him for all he has done?"

The earl shot a glance at her of suppressed anger.

"I trust Mr. Burne will do me the justice to acknowledge that I have attempted to thank him in my poor way."

"No thanks are needed, my lord," said Cyril, quietly. "I am afraid Lady Norah puts far too high value on the poor service I was fortunate to render her. I was lucky enough to be passing at the moment of the accident, that is all. I trust Lady Norah is not hurt. It was I who should have thought of sending for a carriage, but there were difficulties in the way. I sent one man with the horses, and the other was left with the carriage. I wish you good-night, my lord. Good-night, Lady Norah," and he raised his hat.

Norah stood, her face white and red by turns; her father's coldness and hauteur filled her with shame; she was tingling from head to foot.

"Papa, papa!" she murmured, almost piteously.

"Will you not step in, Mr. Burne?" said the earl, completely disregarding her.

But Cyril declined to "step in."

"No, thank you, my lord," he said, with well-bred ease, and was turning to go, when Norah held out her hand suddenly.

"Thank you, thank you, thank you!" she said, slowly, her large eyes full of emotion, as if she meant to make up for her father's shortcomings.

Cyril took her hand and pressed it, and with a bow that included the earl and Guildford Berton, turned and went down the steps. The great door closed behind him. He walked down the drive nearly to the lodge, then stopped suddenly and sat down.

He had ignored and made light of his hurts while Norah had been with him, but now the pain in his arm was so acute that he felt giddy and sick from it.

He leaned against the smooth-shaven bank of turf, and tried to feel the injured limb, but he could scarcely bear the touch of his own fingers. Was he going to be idiot enough to faint, he thought. Angry at the idea, he struggled to his feet, thinking he would reach the lodge and ask for a glass of water; but the lodge and the trees and the sky executed a peculiar kind of dance before his eyes, and he fell back on the bank.

He had lain there in delicious unconsciousness for a couple of minutes, when Becca South came through the gate. She was walking with a light, careful step, as if she wished to avoid attracting the attention of the people at the lodge, and her pink dress fitted like an overgrown moth against the dark trees.

She saw Cyril, and stopped with a little cry of alarm, then cautiously and fearfully approached him.

"Why, it's the painter gentleman!" she exclaimed, with a surprise which intensified as she saw how motionless Cyril lay. At first she thought—well, Becca thought that he was intoxicated, and she grew alarmed when, bending over him, she saw that he had fainted.

Her first idea was to run to the lodge and call the keeper, Jobson, to her aid; but she did not do so.

Eve, the mother of us all, was not more curious than her daughter Becca, and Becca's little mind was all agog to discover the reason why the strange gentleman should have fallen down in a fainting fit in the Court avenue.

So she knelt down beside the still form, and with hands that trembled

Why do you feel so Miserable

WHEN ABBEY'S EFFERVESCENT SALT WILL MAKE YOU SO WELL!

Those old bilious attacks—those sick headaches—those spells of indigestion and constipation—won't bother you at all when once you start on a morning glass of Abbey's Effervescent Salt.

For over a quarter of a century Abbey's Effervescent Salt has been a household remedy throughout Canada and is daily used by thousands of men and women who keep themselves in vigorous health. Take it in a tumbler of warm water immediately on arising and you will enjoy perfect health.

a little, unfastened his collar, and held her hand, cold and wet with dew from the long grass, upon his forehead.

He looked very handsome, Becca thought, as he lay there, and her black, glittering eyes scanned his face and clothes minutely.

"Has he been fighting?" she asked herself, as she noticed the dust and the rent in his coat.

But there were no marks on the clean-cut, sunburned face, and, still puzzled, Becca thought that perhaps he had been knocked down and robbed.

Burglars and footpads were not of common occurrence in Santeigh, but occasionally tramps passed through, and petty larcenies followed in their trail.

But if he had been knocked down and left for dead, his assailants had left him his watch, for the chain was glittering in the moonlight.

CHAPTER XIII. The Amateur Physician.

Becca, looking round swiftly, took the watch from his pocket and looked at it. It was a handsome one, with a monogram which puzzled her, and which few persons could have disengaged. She put the watch to her ear, turned the key—Cyril wondered the next day what on earth had come to his first-class lever!—and then put it back in its place. As she did so, she caught sight of an envelope in the breast pocket of his coat. She put her hand in and took it out, and, looking round again warily, read it by the light of the moon. There was not much in it to satisfy her burning curiosity.

"Dear Cyril," it ran, "I found on getting to town that your picture, 'The Reapers,' was making a stir. I always told you that it was just bad and tricky enough to catch the public taste. Moses, the picture dealer, has offered you £80 for it, and I've made bold to ask £100, and will take that sum if I can screw him up to it. Have you recovered from your madness, or is the dogstar still burning. I don't ask you what you are doing, for I know. You are just loafing about, smoking, dreaming, mooning, anything but working. Oh, the brief madness which men call love! Adieu, insane youth. JACK."

Of course Becca could not understand the latter part of the note, but the earlier made her prick up her ears. The handsome gentleman was not only amusing himself by painting pictures, but getting a hundred pounds for one!

She looked at this with a puzzled could not find any; in fact, there was nothing else to reward her search, but a faded and dusty rose which she found between his waistcoat and his shirt, lying upon his heart, indeed.

She looked at this with a puzzled frown on her warm, classical brow, then with a little smile put it back.

In doing so, she touched his arm, and the pain caused him to come to.

His eyes opened, and his lips moved, and Becca, bending down her head, heard him murmur a name:

"Norah!"

Her eyes lighted and her face flushed. She had discovered something, at any rate. This handsome young stranger was in love with her beautiful mistress.

Statesmen's Soldier Sons.

All "Doing Their Bit" at the Front.

Everyone read with regret of the death in action of Lieutenant Raymond Asquith, of the Grenadier Guards. Being appointed to a commission in the Queen's Westminster Rifles a few months after the outbreak, he soon made himself one of the most popular officers in the regiment, and when he transferred his affection to the Grenadier Guards there was not a member of the "Westminsters" who was not sorry to see him go. He entered into the training with the zest and enthusiasm of a schoolboy, and the writer had on many occasions enjoyed the privilege of leaping over the back of the Prime Minister's son during physical "jerks." Captain Cyril Asquith, a younger brother of the dead officer, is still serving with the "Westminsters," a battalion which on many occasions distinguished itself in France.

Mr. Asquith is not the only member of the Cabinet who has had the misfortune to lose a son in the war. In the early days of the war, Lord Lansdowne was thrown into mourning by the death of his son, Lord Charles Mercer Nairne. At the time of his bereavement, however, his lordship was not a member of the Coalition Ministry.

It was only a few days after the death of Lieutenant Raymond Asquith that it was announced that one of Mr. Arthur Henderson's sons had been killed in action.

Amongst other Cabinet Ministers whose sons are on active service are Mr. Lloyd George, whose two sons are serving in Welsh units; Mr. Bonar Law, whose son, an officer in the Royal Flying Corps, was wounded some time ago; and Mr. H. J. Tennant, whose son recently sustained a serious accident while flying.

SEA SUBSIDIES.—The heavy sea which practically blockaded this port for several days, subsided this morning. A number of schooners from various outports with cargoes of dry codfish were able to enter.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

WHAT THE KIDNEYS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR

The function of the kidneys is to purify the blood. Every three minutes, the entire blood stream passes through the kidneys and is relieved of its impurities by these busy organs. When the kidneys fail in their work, poison accumulates in the blood—pains are felt in the back, the head aches, the urinary system is deranged, the joints and ankles are apt to swell and there is grave danger of rheumatism, scidosis, and embago.

Gin Pills restore the kidneys to their normal activity, and should be taken as soon as any of the symptoms indicated above are felt. Gin Pills soothe and heal the kidneys. Don't neglect kidney trouble—you will only suffer needless pain.

All druggists sell Gin Pills—50c a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50. A sample will be sent free upon request to

More Recruits
and Navy.

About 7.30 o'clock last night the Naval Reservists and volunteers headed by the C. C. C. Band marched from the Court House to the Seamen's Institute. Returning, they proceeded west to Steer's Cove and thence back to the Court House where the thousands of people who blocked the square were addressed by Lieut. Stan Lumden, a former member of the Princess Patricia's Regiment, who was severely wounded in the early days of the war at Ypres, and after recovering from his wounds was transferred to the First Newfoundland Regiment. In words that hit straight from the shoulder he reviewed the work of the Newfoundlanders on the battlefield. Graphically he told of the immortal charge of July 1st, and the last big drive on October 12th. He urged every man of military age and fitness to come forward and help out the men who are doing their "bit."

Mr. L. E. Emerson, P.L., who is numbered with the men that wear the rejected badge, pointed out why the German War Lords wanted this war, their violation of treaties and barbarous practices which the perpetrators to all appearance seemed to take a great delight in. How England though far from being prepared went forward to the aid of stricken Belgium. The Royal Navy was in need of men as well as the Army, and as a country of seamen we should double our efforts to place men on board Britain's ships. While we may be some extent lacking in volunteers for the army, there is no excuse for our not building up the Navy. The greater number of our male population are experienced sailors and there is no reason why we should not toe the line.

The following young men walked to the recruiting camp and enlisted:

FOR THE ARMY.

W. McInn, F. Byrne, J. Morrissey, Ed. Morrissey, H. Haulon, J. Kearney, P. J. Tobin, W. Ashman, A. N. Burgess, H. Gardner, Geo. Lush, J. Keough, T. Dooley, J. Croke, J. Ryan, H. Kearsey, A. Bulley, H. Molloy, F. English, E. Fleming, R. King, R. Rochford, J. Keane, S. Taylor, M. Power, W. Dowden, J. Connell, J. Walsh, P. Dunphy, all from St. John's, and H. Scott, Manuels.
Two men also offered for the Navy.

Here and There.

MOTOR LAUNCHES.—About five o'clock yesterday afternoon a small motor launch while proceeding from the south side, having in tow a skiff in which were thirty shipwrights and labourers, collided with another launch that had put out from the wharf a short distance away. Fortunately the approaching power boat did not strike the skiff in which were the 30 men.

QUICK AND EASY.—The Giant Junior Safety Razor, 225,000 sold to the soldiers on the Western front; 50c. with 7 blades; extra blades, 40 cents per dozen, or 3 for 10 cents. CHESELEY WOODS, 283 Duckworth St., head McBride's Hill, Sole Distributor. Wholesale only. For sale at advertised stores.—Oct. 11

RALLY DAY AT GEORGE ST.—George Street Sunday School holds its Rally Day Service in the Church at a quarter to three to-morrow afternoon. The speakers will be Mrs. Kenneth Barnes, Hon. J. A. Robinson and Albert Soper, Esq. The parents and friends are earnestly requested to be present.

AT THE CRESCENT.

Go to the Crescent Picture Palace to-day and hear Douglas J. Stewart sing "In These Hard Times," the latest London music hall comedy success. The picture programme is great, Mary Maurice and John T. Kelly in "On With the Dance," a Vitagraph Comedy Drama. Tom Mix, the celebrated Sells cowboy actor, in a strong western drama, "The Race for a Gold Mine." Arthur Schuman in "The Candidate," a Lubin mystery drama in two reels, and Pump and Runt in a very funny Vim Comedy, "The Brave Ones." Professor McCarthy has arranged a programme of the newest and best music for this great show; don't miss seeing it.

Xmas Parcels For War Prisoners.

Parcels for Christmas delivery to prisoners of war in Germany must reach England not later than December 4th, official notification to that effect having just been received by the Post Office Department here from London. Those sending Christmas mail to Germany should endeavour to catch the Graciana's mail on Monday or Tuesday next.

Comforts for Our Men.

Statement by Mr. Henry Reeve, The Nfld. War Contingent Association, 58, Victoria Street, Westminster, 27th October, 1916.

Dear Lady Davidson,
I am informed that there is an impression abroad in Newfoundland that the Comforts made there are not reaching our men better. How this idea gained credence I do not know but I have looked back upon the files and cannot find one article issued to any but our own men. During the summer there were only two issues but that was due to the fact that the O.C. wrote that the Army Supply was more than ample and that any further consignments during the summer would be waste. As we were then expecting a 2nd Battalion it was thought better to increase our stock than to waste their goods. Later the O.C. wrote in answer to our inquiry that a consignment would be welcomed and these were despatched in September. A further issue of socks, mittens, and mufflers, with chocolate, stationery, chewing gum, cigarettes and playing cards is now being packed and will leave before the 31st.

The schedule attached to my letter of the 12th October to the Women's Patriotic Association will show that the War Office issues includes all sorts of warm garments but as one cannot be too warm, the issue of our own goods will be kept up during the winter, even if the men have enough to throw away.

It has been stated that our men are envied by the whole Division in that they are so lavishly supplied with comforts and that they are able to give away some of the gifts we send them.

I therefore trust that these facts will remove any doubt as to our men receiving the comforts sent to us by the Women's Patriotic Association and being thoroughly well looked after at the front, in hospital, or as prisoners of war.

Yours sincerely,
(Sgd.) HENRY REEVE,
Hon. Secretary.

The Nfld. War Contingent Association, 58, Victoria Street, Westminster, 12th October, 1916.

Dear Madam,
In reply to a cablegram from His Excellency the Governor through the Pay & Record Office, requesting this Association to send monthly returns of comforts in the form of warm garments received from and issued on behalf of the Women's Patriotic Association.

There has been very little demand for these items during the summer months, as the War Office supply is now thoroughly organized in France, but during the winter we propose to issue shirts and socks periodically.

A consignment of mufflers and mittens will be sent over this month when the Battalion, which is now on the move, reaches its winter quarters. A return is attached showing stock in hand, with receipts and issues during September.

I am, dear Madam,
Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) HENRY REEVE,
Hon. Secretary.

The Secretary,
Women's Patriotic Association,
St. John's, Newfoundland.
P.S.—With reference to paragraph 2 of our letter, we send you a copy of a list that Mr. Hugh Anderson has just brought over from France showing the issue to every man of the Regiment, that is taking place on the 15th of this month.

WAR SUMMARY.

LONDON, To-day. Driving against the centre of the Russian line on the east front German troops gained possession of the Russian position on a front of about 2 and a half miles, in an attack which resulted also in the capture of more than 3,000 prisoners. It took place in the district of Skrobova, twelve miles north-east of Baranovich north of the Pinsk marshes, where only isolated fighting has occurred lately.

THE THOUGHT

I am glad the Editor has a word about Profits and Freights though it seems to provide any way out.

Profits. The Editor has a word about Profits and Freights though it seems to provide any way out.

It is a situation that should have been avoided in the bud, for the longer it is allowed to continue, the more injury will be caused by high prices, and more difficult it will be to bring about any satisfactory settlement.

The Cross Line freights show another enormous jump on goods by the Postal this week.

The excuse that the ship can be chartered elsewhere more advantageously is hardly fair, when it is considered that now she has made a trip of two days from port to port, whereas another charter would expect her probably in more dangerous waters.

When the war risk is down to 1/4 of 1 per cent from New York here, there cannot be much to discuss on her present route.

It all goes to show how miserably private enterprise has failed the Empire in this time of stress.

While England and Government actuated over the world, and which will continue after the war as well as that the resources of the Empire be at her service, instead of aiding the enrichment of a few individuals.

The Fabian Society has many supporters in this war, and an educational and quiet campaign of years has not been without effect.

ENLIST NOW. Last week I made an appeal to merchants to help recruiting by making it easier for our people to live.

Not to exert profits but to live up to the first principles of their profession which are to provide for the consumer and not to make big profits.

The Citizens' Committee decided that it might that H. M. Ships of War should get water free from the City.

I wonder if these merchants who are supplying of our regiment of men at reserve with food and clothing at the same idea in view when they priced the goods. Do the war get coal at cost price here? Has been patriotic enough to price

THE THOUGHTS OF THEOBALD.

PROFITS.

I am glad the Editor has a word on Food Prices and Freight though he doubts the energy of the Government to provide any way out. It is a situation that should have been nip-ped in the bud, for the longer it is allowed to continue, the more injury will be caused by high prices, and the more difficult it will be to bring to any satisfactory settlement. The Red Cross Line freights show another enormous jump on goods by the Floris-ol this week. The excuse that the ship can be chartered elsewhere more advantageously is hardly fair, when it is considered that now she has only a trip of two days from port to port, whereas another charter would expose her probably in more dangerous waters. When the war risk is down to 1/4 of 1 per cent from New York here, there cannot be much to dread on her present route.

It all goes to show how miserably private enterprise has failed the Empire in this time of stress. Witness the many controlled industries in England and Government action all over the world, and which will have to continue after the war as well, so that the resources of the Empire shall be at her service instead of aiding the enrichment of a few individuals.

The Fabian Society has gained many supporters in this war, and their educative, and quiet campaign of the years has not been without effect.

Last week I made an appeal to the merchants to help recruiting by making it easier for our people to live. We do not extort profits but to live up to the first principles of their profession, which are to provide for the country, and not to make big profits. The Citizens' Committee decided the other night that H. M. Ships of War ought to get water free from the City. I wonder if these merchants who had the supplying of our regiment or naval reserve with food and clothing had the same idea in view when they priced the goods. Do the warships get coal at cost price here? Have we been patriotic enough to price our can the place of the industrial and land worker. A scheme of registration would show us where we stand in this matter. Our population is not a floating one, we have no settlers coming in, as most of the large countries have. This scheme of registration should also embrace a registration of wealth, which can be of such service to the Empire. The so-called sacred rights of property have to give way to the truly sacred rights of Humanity, and in a very special sense the wealth of a country, though in the hands of various individuals, really belongs to the country. What if able-bodied men lose all the wealth they possess, have they not hands and health to work and is there not land enough to grow and produce food?

WHAT THEN?

The people look to the Government to be their defence. If the Government believe that it is not unpatriotic for a man or a Company to charge enormous profits on goods supplied to our people, then are we leaning on broken reed indeed. The actions or rather inactions of our Government to my mind do not offer the slightest justification for the postponement of an election next year. Never have we been in such need of democratic government.

Our Wonderful Medical Army.

London Times.—Who says the British cannot organize? We are told that the position of each unit in the chain of medical service—the aid posts, dressing stations, collecting stations, clearing stations—is arranged as systematically as those of the military service. And the staffs, transport, and supplies must be organized with equal precision, or the whole machine would break down by its own weight. For it is on a prodigious scale. What Lord Northcliffe happily calls the medical army exceeds the whole British military forces overseas before the outbreak of war. One wonders where they all come from. Like the other army, they come from all parts of the Empire and from all walks of civil life. The greatest call has been on the medical profession, because doctors cannot be improvised or trained in a short time. Lord Northcliffe awards them the palm of chivalry over all others for having left their lucrative home practices in a great rally of self-sacrifice.

Britain Independent of Foreign Steel.

This Condition Likely to be Attained Next March, Says Dr. Addison.

London, Nov. 3.—Dr. Addison, one of the chief officials of the Ministry of Munitions, told a party of journalists visiting Woolwich Arsenal yesterday that he calculated Great Britain would be entirely independent of foreign steel supplies by next March. During the Somme offensive the expenditure on armaments was about ten times the weekly rate on what was in the month of January, but there are more filled shells in France to-day than there were at the beginning of the war. With special reference to the steel supply Dr. Addison said the more Britain was dependent upon neutral countries the more she was waging war at a disadvantage. One of the advantages of making things at home was to save vast sums of money apart altogether from what was lost on exchange. He gave an interesting forecast, which was that as Britain was providing an extension of steel works at a probable saving of something like six millions a year, Britain would have developed to be entirely independent of foreign steel supplies by March next.

How to Save Romania

Strike Hard At The Germans. (By Lovat Fraser)

The Allies have had an anxious fortnight about Roumania, but there is reason to believe that as a result of measures now being taken the danger is diminishing.

Direct measures apart, the best way to help Roumania is to prevent the flow of reinforcements to Transylvania by striking hard at the enemy upon all fronts. The Germans are being hit hardest on the Somme. Every fresh blow struck by Sir Douglas Haig on the Somme tends to relieve Roumania from peril.

Our people are a little puzzled about the Roumanian campaign, partly because trustworthy information on the subject is very scanty. They ask how it has come to pass that Roumania, whose entry into the war was expected to strengthen the cause of the Allies, should almost instantly need succour instead.

This is not the right way to look at Roumanian intervention, the benefits of which will be very clearly apparent as time passes. Much the same thing was said about Italy, when her early unexpected checks showed her urgent need of war material. The whole world sees to-day the immense advantage derived by the rest of the Allies when Italy entered the war. It should be the same in the case of Roumania.

The appearance of Roumania on the battlefield meant that fresh and valiant armies which will eventually number well over six hundred thousand men were ranged on the side of the Allies. What would not the Austro-Germans give to-day for over six hundred thousand trained recruits? It meant that the enemy had a new and vulnerable front to defend. It meant that a way was opened for an attack from the north upon their spinal cord, the route from Berlin to Constantinople. It meant that a source from which they have been drawing large supplies of wheat and oil was instantly closed to them. In a few months the benefits of Roumanian intervention ought to prove immeasurable if the present menace can be overcome.

The root cause of Roumanian early difficulties was that most of her mobilisation had to be undertaken after declaring war, and the process was slow. It has been said that Roumanian strategy has been misdirected in pursuance of political aspirations. The contention is that she should have re-she left the Dobruja scantily defended in the belief that she would avoid hostilities with Bulgaria remains a mystery, but in any case she has, with Russian aid, checked the menace in the Dobruja. Her chief business just now is the Transylvanian Alps, and the broad principles underlying Roumanian strategy are probably shrewder than has been supposed.

We must take careful note of the fact that the best-known men on the enemy's side are all believed to be on the western front. The Kaiser is there (or was there the other day), and Hindenburg, and Ludendorff, and Falkenhahn, and Mackensen. They are not there for nothing.

We must also note the probable effect upon the Allied cause of a successful invasion of Roumania upon a great scale. The foremost result would be that it would tend to some extent to neutralize the consequences of our still imperfect blockade. Roumania is the most fertile land in Europe and is crammed to-day with the food for which Germany hungers. No other European country yields such magnificent wheat crops. Roumania has as many pigs as Serbia and a great oil industry. The over-running of Roumania would mean that while our Fleet had closed the front door in the North Sea Germany would procure immense stores of food by the back door.

The next result of an invasion of Roumania would be that it would turn the Russian left flank, and would shorten the enemy to prolong the war, it must be remembered that owing to lying bulletins and the deft manipulation of a servile Press, the German people do not even now know the whole truth about the Somme. The third and perhaps most lasting result would be that the cause of the Allies would suffer in the eyes of neutrals, because our honour is deeply involved in the case of Roumania.

I have written hopefully of the Roumanian campaign because I have reason to believe that the position is by no means so dangerous as it recently seemed. Possibly this estimate may be falsified in the event. King Constantine of Greece is credited with the prophetic declaration that in "fifteen days Roumania will exist no more." We shall see. What is far more probable is that within fifteen days the prophet may be a king without a kingdom.

It is important that these grave issues should be clearly understood in this country; but a careful survey of the military situation, largely based upon facts which cannot be publicly discussed, leads to the very strong hope that the position on the northern frontier of Roumania will quickly recover equilibrium, as it has already done in the Dobruja. The horizon in the east is brightening, and if bad mistakes are avoided all should soon be well. There is no true parallel between Roumania's position to-day and that of Serbia a year ago. The Serbian Army had been reduced by war and had no effective support. The Roumanian Army is intact, and has Russia's Army at its back. It appears to have withdrawn from Transylvania in good order, and it has an almost ideal frontier to defend. Unless overwhelming forces are placed at Falkenhahn's disposal, which seems impossible, the peril should be overcome. The one plain duty of the Allies is to strike hard on every front while the good weather lasts. There can be no more certain way of saving Roumania from the threat devised by the Austro-Germans. The operations in Macedonia against Monastir and Seres are invested with a new and vital importance. The British on the Strama and the Serbians, French, and Russians beyond the Vardar are detaining the greater part of the Bulgarian Army. The Italians are again gaining momentum on the Carso, are capturing thousands of Austrian prisoners, and are steadily moving along the road to Trieste. The Russians in Galicia are fighting great battles the very magnitude make them difficult to grasp.

The Matter of a Correspondent.

SUGGEST FATHER NANGLE.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Your very excellent editorial in last evening's issue headed "Wanted—a Correspondent" following your many other able writings, and followed by a very graphic letter from Fr. Nangle, C.F., published in this morning's "News," suggests to me the answer, and it is this:

Anyone who has read the little items that have come in from the Rev. Fr. Nangle must have been impressed with his strong desire to be with "Ours" and to minister to them, both spiritually and physically. Here is the very man we might appoint as correspondent—one who would be particular to give to "Ours" all the credit that is, and has been, due, of which unfortunately, we have not as yet received, though merited, much. Here would be a thoroughly capable, sincere, unprejudiced writer, who would see to it, that the doings of our brave lads would live in imperishable memory. As the "Daily News" very forcibly put it this morning, are we to lose sight of Caribou Hill? In fact, might we not add—have we not lost sight of it? Who is there to write of it? Those who participated in it and won undying fame for this much abused land, cannot tell, and to their great modesty be it credited, will not dilate on their own great achievements, and here is exemplified the need of one who would be sure to see that naught was forgotten.

True, Fr. Nangle is not with our boys, although those who know him best, know that his heart and spirit is with them, and it is and has been his chief ambition to be with them. This is evidenced by the fact that, busy and all as he must be with the regiment to which he is attached, he finds time to come to visit our lads, to console their friends, to do all that his sincere heart is capable of. Why not give him his supreme ambition?

While I don't profess to know about military matters, still I assume, that a stroke of the pen from the local authorities would commission him to the 8th Regiment, and then would be given full scope the talents, the desire and the love that would see to it that our Regiment's doings would not be forgotten.

I humbly submit there is much food for reflection in this suggestion. I do not claim originality. It was suggested to me by another, but I think it a happy one, and I would thank you to give my opinion expression in your valuable columns; Mr. Editor, and trust I am not trespassing.

Very truly yours,
J. J. LACEY.

Incandescent Gas Lighting.

The remarkable economy of the incandescent gas lamp is by no means either its chief—or even an important—claim for popularity. It meets better than any other source of artificial light the requirements of ideal light.

In the color of the light produced it is far superior to any other illuminant in general and universal use. The investigations of acknowledged authorities indicate that for the approximation of artificial daylight the gas mantle has at least one and one-half times the value of the carbon-filament electric lamp.

This quality is highly desirable, indeed absolutely essential where the approximation of daylight color values is important. For lighting shops, displaying haberdashery, suitings, gowns, millinery, etc., the incandescent gas lamp is not even remotely approached by any other incandescent lamp.

Of all the manifold advantages of gas light, perhaps the most important is its favourable effect upon the eyes. The development of the incandescent electric lamp with its intense brilliant and glaring filament has been accompanied by hitherto unheard of prevalence of eye troubles and diseases which are forcing themselves upon the attention of the medical fraternity. This is resulting in a greater appreciation of the soft, mellow quality of gas light and is rapidly enlarging its field of use.—July 3, 1904

Sleeplessness, irritability, nervous headache, indigestion, and all the warning symptoms of nervous collapse disappear when this great food cure is used to nourish the nerve cells back to health.

Nervous Collapse

Mr. Victor Higgs, Windham Hill, Cumberland Co., N.S., writes:

"My case was a peculiar one. It was one of those strange nervous diseases which are so difficult to describe. The doctor said that my nervous system was all run down. I experienced that uncertainty in walking which indicates the approach of paralysis and locomotor ataxia, and I now realize that I am greatly indebted to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for the good it has done me.

"I could not work, read or write, or do anything requiring energy or the concentration of mind. Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I could not get an hour's sleep all night. My brain and nerves seemed to be all unsettled. I sleep well now, and believe that my nervous system has been fully built up by this splendid medicine."

It rests entirely with you as to whether you benefit by these experiences of other men. If you could talk with persons who have used this treatment and note their enthusiasm you would not be long in putting it to the test in your own case.

Sciatic Rheumatism

Mr. W. J. Talbot, Edenwold, Sask., writes: "It is a great pleasure for me to recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a cure for sciatic rheumatism. The pain I have suffered from sciatica has been well nigh unbearable. It would start in the hips and run down the legs to the toes, gradually getting worse. The nerves contract until one is practically useless. My doctor tried many different treatments, but could only afford relief for a time.

"For about five years I was subject to this trouble, with severe attacks which would last about two months. The last attack I had was shortened to two weeks by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills used in conjunction with it. This treatment was continued until I was satisfied that the cure was lasting."

This statement is endorsed by Mr. H. E. Woolley, J.P.

Those Housemates of Ours.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A friend of mine was very much upset the other day, because her sister had happened to read a typewritten letter which she had carelessly left on her desk.
"Was it so very private?" I asked.
"It was all about that man I met at the theater," she answered, mentioning a subject on which she had already opened her heart to me.
"But you've told me all about him," I said, "and apparently you were writing about him to someone else. Surely you must have told your sister before now!"
"But I haven't," she said.
"Any particular reason?"
"They Don't Confide In Each Other"
"No, only somehow Sister and I don't tell each other things like that."
Now you might gather from this that the two sisters are not on good terms, but they are. Moreover they are very loyal. Each always speaks enthusiastically of the other's peculiar talents and ability. And yet they don't tell each other "things like that."
Well, when you stop to think of it, do we often open the secret places of our hearts to our housemates?

ship between housemates founded on choice rather than on consanguinity. If it is the right kind of a marriage, it represents a sort of glorified friendship and hence should follow the laws of friendship rather than those of relationship.
We Do Not Love The Friend So Much.
I am thinking rather of such relationships as those between brother and sister, sister and sister, father and son, mother and daughter. How often do these confide in each other as easily as they do in some friend whom they love not half as much?
Sometimes we lay the blame on the mother or father who has failed to gain the child's waywardness. And that is just where the blame sometimes belongs. But again it belongs not to any one person, but just to this strange constraint that close relationship seems to breed.

Gallant Deeds By Youthful Heroes Recalled by "Jacky" Cornwall's Victoria Cross.

The recent conferring of the coveted Victoria Cross on young Jacky Cornwall, for his splendid gallantry and example whilst mortally wounded during the Battle of Jutland, is specially notable because the gallant hero was but sixteen years old. Yet this is not the only time that the most famous reward for signal bravery and self-sacrifice has been awarded to quite a young lad.
The first recipient of the celebrated distinction was a boy, Midshipman C. D. Lucas, who not only lived to become Admiral Lucas, but died within the last few months at an honourable old age! Lucas was on board the H. M. S. Hecla when she went into action at Bomarsund on June 21st, 1854, and a few shells soon dropped upon the deck of the vessel, threatening death to many men and destruction to the ship when its burst occurred. Whilst others regarded it with a species of fascinated horror, the young midshipman rushed forward at the risk of his own life, picked up the shell, and hurled it overboard.
Both Arms Broken.
Boyes, a little midshipman who had joined the Fleet a few months before, went with his ship to Japan, and was part of the force landed there in September, 1864. His colour-sergeants were both wounded and fell, but D. C. Boyes seized the flag from the dying grasp of the fallen bearer and carried it forward with a cheer. "The man who went through the terrific fire at Simeone Seki that day all said afterwards that they would never forget the sight of the brave midshipman as he dashed on into the thick of the battle."
In the first Boer War, Joseph Farmer, another youthful V. C., was eight years when he stood by the side of the surgeon at Mahjuba Hill after General Colley was shot. Farmer, by order, held up his white bandage and waved it as a flag of truce, but his enemies shot and broke his arm.

"That's done you, Farmer!" said the surgeon.
"Not at all, sir!" replied the plucky lad. "I've another arm!"
On which he just took the bandage from that arm hanging idly by his side, and, despite the great pain he suffered, waved the white flag anew, only to have that arm also broken by another shot!

The Two Drummer-Boys.
Magnor and Bergin, the two drummer-boys of the Yorkshire Regiment, each got the V. C. for their magnificent gallantry at the taking of Magdala under Napier. It was Magnor who was the very first man—or, rather, boy—to get into the city, for he scaled the wall, stood on it beating his drum and shouted encouragingly, "Come on the 'Thirty-third!"
In a trice his comrade, Bergin, was beside him, also gaily playing his drum and yelling, "Nah, them, lads, Yorkshire in first!"
The brave Yorkshires dashed forward and drove the enemy before them. Both the drummers were, on Napier's recommendation, although but boys of eighteen, awarded the V. C.

Last, but not least, the name of the youngest of all boys—he who, the Guards still tell you, won the Cross a dozen times over, but never got it! There were stern and tried soldiers who wept bitter tears of anger and disappointment when, for some inscrutable reason, it was decided that little Tom Keep was not to be given the V. C.
Little Tom Keep was but ten years old when he made himself such a name for courage, self-devotion, and coolness as can never fade. He belonged to the regiment, and was near the troops in the fight at Inkerman.

Youngest of All.
As Tom stood watching the battle raging near him, this mere child heard a wounded soldier lying on the ground say he "would like a cup of tea." So the wondrous little lad at once set off to seek some tea and the utensils for making it. He found them all, too, somehow, and made some excellent hot tea, which he carried to the wounded soldier. He drank it eagerly and blessed him ere he died.
Other wounded men saw it, and they asked Keep if he'd bring them some, too. He did; and all that night he tended the wounded.
Until well towards the closing years of last century you might have seen Thomas Keep, a man of over fifty, doing duty at the "Army and Navy Stores in Victoria Street"—Answers.

USELESS REGRETS.

We all regret our past mistakes, view the same with wailing; but when we've made our dizzy breaks, our tears are unavailing. You run your car at crazy speed through city streets and alleys; for safety rules you have no heed, on rural hills and valleys. Some day when you swing round a curve they'll sweep into your vision another car—you'll lose your nerve, and there'll be a collision. When from the tangled wreck you crawl with slats and wishbone broken, the warning words you will recall that I've so often spoken. And when you lie upon a cot, with plaster casts around you, a string of dark, remorseful thought will torture and confound you. You'll weep for former folly then, your soul will be disgusted, but tears won't make you sound again, or heal the leg that's busted. And so with with every foolish trick that you and I are springing; the penalty will make us sick, remorse and sorrow bringing.

Don't Neglect Your Cough.

A little cold may not seem a dangerous thing—you may feel inclined to let it go on hoping that to-morrow it will be better—but can you afford to take chances? Just as the little insignificant acorn grows if let alone, so the mighty giant oak, that cough if not stopped may grow to a very serious illness. When a Cough starts there's no telling where it will end. You know no doubt, of cases right among people you have known, where serious complications and fatal illness have had their start from a neglected cough or cold. "Don't neglect your cough," Stafford's Phorotone Cough and Cold Cure is what you should take. For sale at Stafford's Drug Store, Theatre Hill, and Stafford's Pharmacy, Duckworth Street. ### Shakespeare and Life Insurance

GREAT poets are not practical men as a general rule. Shakespeare was an exception. He was the most gifted poet of all the ages, yet there never was a more astute man of business.

That he appreciated the need for life insurance is clearly shown in the following lines from "The Merchant of Venice":

"You take my house when you do take the prop that doth sustain my house; you take my life when you do take the means whereby I live."

The husband is the prop that sustains the household—the means whereby the inmates live—but life insurance makes possible the maintenance of the home, even though the husband or father be taken.

Under Mutual Life insurance policies a fixed income for life can be bequeathed to the widow or other beneficiary, payable in monthly instalments if desired.

This obviates the necessity of studying the intricate problem of investments. If you furnish your age and that of the beneficiary, we will be glad to quote rates and give particulars.

BATTLE IN THE AIR.

LONDON, Nov. 10. The British official this p.m. says there was no change on the battle front. As a result of improvement in the weather there was great aerial activity yesterday and much useful work done. Many bombing raids were carried out on enemy communication billets and stores. Air fighting was almost continuous. One of our squadrons of thirty machines encountered a squadron from thirty to forty enemy machines. Aerial battles took place and the enemy squadrons were broken up and dispersed. Six machines were seen to fall but owing to the severity of the fighting it was not possible to watch them fall to the ground. As a result of other fighting nine more hostile machines were driven down in a damaged condition three of which are known to have been destroyed. A hostile balloon was also attacked and sent down in flames. Seven of ours is missing.

BELGIANS BEING DEPORTED.

LONDON, Nov. 10. The Echo Belge, as quoted by Reuters' Amsterdam correspondent, says: According to latest news the Germans have transported 21,000 citizens from Antwerp to Germany. Great panic prevails at Antwerp and in the surrounding country, adds the newspaper, which reports that three men who tried to cross the Dutch frontier were killed by shock from the electric wire barrier on the border.

A despatch to Reuters' Telegram Co. from Amsterdam, says: The Telegram's frontier correspondent reports that placards were posted in Antwerp last Saturday summoning the citizens from seventeen to thirty years to hold themselves in readiness to depart. He added that 30,000 Belgians have been removed from Antwerp already to Germany. They receive thirteen marks weekly, with military rations. Several riots have occurred. The Leuvenilles prints a despatch saying there are persistent rumors that the deportations provoked revolts, in the course of which thirty Germans were killed or seriously wounded, and that there were numerous Belgian casualties. The city of Brussels is closed, nobody is permitted to enter or leave.

OSTEND AND ZEEBRUGGE BOMBED.

LONDON, Nov. 10. The British Admiralty this evening made public the following communication: Early this morning a squadron of naval aeroplanes attacked the harbor and submarine shelters at Ostend and Zeebrugge. A great weight of bombs was dropped, with satisfactory results.

GROUND GAINED BY ITALIANS.

ROME, Nov. 10. Some new ground was gained by the Italians on the Carso Plateau against the Austrian lines defending the region north of Trieste, the war office announced to-day. The advances by the Italians were made in the northern sector where the line has been straightened out in several places. Thirty prisoners were captured.

MORE STEAMERS SUNK.

LONDON, Nov. 10. The British steamer Bogota is believed to have been sunk, according to an announcement made by Lloyd's. The Bogota was 4,603 tons. Boston, Nov. 10.—The British freight steamer Gulf of Suez, bound from Alexandria, Egypt, for Liverpool with a cargo of cotton has been sunk in the Mediterranean by a German submarine, according to private advices received here to-day. She carried no passengers. The fate of the crew is not stated. A large portion of the cargo was consigned to Boston.

A cablegram received to-day by the Marine Insurance Co., stated the Harrison Line freight steamer Engineer, bound from Calcutta for New Orleans, is reported sunk. A later message threw doubts on the accuracy of the first, but said reports of the loss of the ship were current in Liverpool. Nothing more definite was learned here.

MAIL STEAMER CAPTURED.

LONDON, Nov. 10. Reuters' Flushing correspondent says the Dutch cross-Channel mail steamer Konigin Regentis which left Flushing this morning, is now taken into Zeebrugge the German naval base on the North Sea in Belgium.

GREEK SHIP FLIES FRENCH FLAG.

LONDON, Nov. 10. The transport Caryleinos, the first ship of the Greek Navy to hoist the French flag, has entered Piraeus, says a Hivas despatch from Athens. Available naval records do not mention the Greek transport Caryleinos, but the vessel is probably a converted merchantman.

OPTIMISTIC VIEWS.

LONDON, Nov. 10. Two optimistic views of the war from points of view of the Allies were given a prominent place in the morning papers. The first is a quotation from a speech made at the Lord Mayor's banquet by Field Marshal Viscount French. The Field Marshal said it seemed that the contest is approaching a climax, to come either now or in the spring. We must remember that a climax and an end are not necessarily the same thing. The second opinion was expressed by General Alexis Brusiloff. Speaking to a British correspondent at the Russian headquarters, General Brusiloff said, the war is won. "To us it is merely a question of speculation as to how much longer it will be before the enemy is convinced that their cause is irretrievably lost. The General added that he spoke with authority in declaring that the whole of Russia from the Emperor to the humblest soldier was determined to protect, help and support Roumania in every possible way. Russia will see, said he, that our brave little ally will not suffer for cousing the cause of the Allies.

HUN AEROPLANES DESTROYED.

PARIS, Nov. 10. Seventy-seven Hun aeroplanes were fought on the French front yesterday. The war office reports that in these encounters a Fokker and nine other German aeroplanes were shot down. There was intermittent artillery fighting on various sections of the front, and also infantry skirmishing.

THE U. S. ELECTION.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10. Late reports to-day from the Congressional elections indicated that both Democrats and Republicans thus far had each chosen 214 representatives in the House. Three Congressional districts, the 5th of West Virginia, and Congressman-at-large in New Mexico, remain in doubt, because of insufficient returns. The reversal in lower ranks was complete. Returns showed the election of Geo. S. Scott, Republican, over Congressman Tom Steele, in the eleventh district, and the election in the twelfth of second and third West Virginia districts, brought about the present tie. Four members of other parties have been elected. The Senate remains unchanged, with 54 Democrats and 42 Republicans, leaving a Democratic majority of 12.

DEMONSTRATION FOR WILSON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. Democratic leaders and officials of the American Federation of Labor, made plans to-day for a big demonstration when President Wilson gets back to Washington on Sunday. They estimated that 20,000 persons will be in line to greet the President and march behind him to the White House.

RE-ELECTION WELCOMED.

LONDON, Nov. 10. The re-election of President Wilson is welcomed by the Weekly Nation as an event favorable both to peace and to the cause of State liberty, and the paper thinks that his election offers hopes of an earlier end to the war.

RUSSIAN POSITIONS STORMED.

BERLIN, Nov. 10. Austro-German troops yesterday stormed the Russian positions over a front of two and a half miles, the war office announced to-day. They took more than 300 prisoners as well as 27 machine guns, and inflicted heavy casualties on the Russians.

COMMENT ON HOLLWEG'S SPEECH.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 10. Several German newspapers commenting on Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg's speech, express the opinion that it opens the way for peace. The Tageblatt says the ideas for the future which the Chancellor discussed were more important than the question of who is guilty of having caused the war, and refers to the Chancellor's remark that after the war Germany will demand measures to prevent a recurrence of such conflicts.

MARQUIS DE VOGUE DEAD.

PARIS, Nov. 10. The Marquis de Vogue, a member of the Academy and President of the Central Committee of the French Red Cross, is dead.

NO PEACE PRIZE THIS YEAR.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 10. A Christiania despatch to the National Tidende says the Nobel Prize will not be awarded this year but will be added to next year's prize.

NEW AMBASSADOR.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. Secretary of State Lansing announced to-day that the Austrian Government had named Count De Tarnow Tarnowski as Ambassador to the States, and that he had been accepted by this government.

KNOWLEDGE OF LANGUAGE.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10. Interviewed in London, Lord Shaughnessy stated his conviction that it was essential to the development of Canadian Trade that both French and English should be compulsory subjects in Canadian schools, though other languages might be optional. The more languages learned he believed the better.

NEW CARDINALS.

ROME, Nov. 10. It is officially announced that the Pope will hold a consistory on Dec. 4th, when he will create ten new Cardinals. These will include Monsignor S. Barrett, formerly Apostolic Delegate to Canada.

WILSON'S VOTE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 10. The total popular vote received by President Wilson and Hughes, based on incomplete reports and estimated, indicated the President received 403,312 more votes than Hughes.

The "American Tea."

The "American Tea," which takes place this afternoon in the Presbyterian Hall in aid of a fund for our invalided soldiers promises to be a great success. Those attending will be admitted on presenting their twenty cent parcels at the door. The promoters of the affair are doing everything for the comfort of their guests, and an enjoyable evening is assured. The excellence of the music programme should also assure a full attendance.

Made from Cream of Tartar Derived from Grapes

The quality of cake, biscuits and other flour foods is very largely determined by the ingredients of the baking powder with which they are made.

The most eminent scientists and food authorities are on record to the effect that a cream of tartar baking powder is the most satisfactory because of its healthful properties. It adds none but wholesome qualities to the food and renders biscuits, cake, muffins, etc., light, appetizing and digestible.

Modern Giants.

A Recruit Who Is 8 Feet 2 1/2 Inches.

An unusual problem has to be faced by the military authorities in Wiltshire in the shape of a young man named Mr. Frederick Hempster, who is said to be 8 ft. 2 1/2 in. in height and still growing.

Mr. Hempster, who not long ago passed his majority, turns the scale at 27st. His boots are marked "size 22 1/2," and a penny can be dropped through his ring. When he travels he goes in the guard's van, the available space in an ordinary coach being too restricted for comfort. Three ordinary beds have to be placed side by side for him to sleep in; he can span two octaves on a piano and light a cigarette comfortably at a street lamp. As the military authorities do not know what they could possibly do with him if they had him in the Army, he remains for the time being peacefully at home.

At the same time the distinction of being the tallest man in the British Army belonged to Pte. H. Barter, who joined the Grenadier Guards five years ago. Eighteen years of age at that time, he stood 6ft. 8 1/2 in. in his stockings, and was still growing rapidly.

On Pte Barter joining the Army the record of Major Oswald Ames, of the 2nd Life Guards, who reached the height of 6ft. 7 1/2 in. was beaten. Maior Ames had previously held the record for the British Army by 3/4 in.

These records, however, are easily surpassed by that of Machnow, who created a sensation at the London Hippodrome some years ago, and who weighed 32st., and was 9ft. 3 in. in height. The cloth used for one suit of clothes for him was sufficient to have made suits for six ordinary individuals.

Mention of Machnow recalls Miss Mariedel, the Tyrolese giantess, who stood 8ft. 3 in. high. Twenty-three years of age, her physical attractions were such that while appearing at the London Hippodrome she received a proposal of marriage from a Mr. Darrel, the son of a wealthy Australian farmer, who stood no less than 8ft. 8 in. high in his boots. Mr. Darrel was reported to have two sisters in Australia, each of whom was 7ft. 6 in. in height, while his father stood 8ft. 3 in. in his socks.

Another giant whom Londoners had an opportunity of seeing a few years ago was Constantine the Great, a giant standing 8ft. 1 in. in his stockings, with chest girth of 63 in. To satisfy the needs of the inner man he partook of five or six meals a day.

Chang, the Chinese giant, who ended his days at Bournemouth some years ago, was a man of enormous size, standing over 8ft. in his socks and turning the scale at 26st. He used to declare, however, that he had a sister in China who could easily look over his head. This remarkable lady was 5ft. 4 in. in height, weighed 23st., and had a hand with a span of 2ft. 1 1/2 in.

Believes She Was Saved From Stroke of Paralysis

All One Side Was Cold and Powerless When She Began Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

A dead nerve cell can never be replaced. In this way it is different to cells of the human body. But dead, wasted nerve cells can be restored, and herein lies hope. In this fact is also a warning to take note of such symptoms as sleeplessness and loss of energy and ambition, and restore the vitality to the nervous system before some form of helplessness results. Nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis are the natural results of neglecting to keep the nerves in healthful condition. The use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when you suspect there is something wrong will soon restore vitality to the nervous system, and thereby prevent serious developments. Mrs. Merritt Nichols, R. R. No. 3, Dundalk, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in writing to tell you the great benefit I have derived from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was so nervous I could not sleep, and found it hard to get my work done at all, but, having no help at the time, had to do the best I could. Finally my left arm became powerless and cold, and this continued to get worse until my whole side was affected, head and all. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the first box helped me so much that I used several, and believe that this treatment saved me from having a paralytic stroke. It has built me up wonderfully, and I can recommend it most heartily, believing that if more Nerve Food were used there would be much less sickness." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures in nature's way by nourishing the feeble, wasted nerves back to health and vigor. Fifty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, Oct. 16th, 1916.
NEW DUTIES FOR DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.

The return in the near future of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia is keenly expected at Court. Rumor is lavishly bestowing all sorts of new offices upon the Duke, and much as he deserves a quiet rest at Bagshot he will doubtless be able, as no one else quite could, to relieve the King of many duties which press heavily on him, and of which, since his accident, he has felt the burden. On the purely personal side one may recall that Princess Mary greatly delights in the friendship of Princess "Pat," and it will be interesting to see the two in public together, in vivacious charm Princess Patricia has lost nothing during her sojourn in Canada.

THE GREEK NAVY.

The Greek Fleet, which Admiral Du Fournet appears now to have put out of harm's way, is a curiously mixed collection of fighting ships. In 1914 the Germans were building a fast battleship for it, but when the hostilities began they decided to keep the vessel for themselves. If the contract had been carried out the ship would, however, have been only partially a Teutonic product, for the armour plates, the guns, and the gun mountings were being made in the United States. The two largest armoured vessels in the fleet are completely American. One was originally, in fact, the United States battleship Idaho, and the other the sister ship Mississippi. Four of the more modern destroyers have American armaments. They were built at Birkenhead a year or two ago for the Argentine Government, and subsequently sold to Greece. The biggest armoured cruiser—the Georgia Averoff—was constructed in Italy, and the most modern of the protected cruisers—the Hellis in the United States. The Hellis was, however, originally intended to be a unit of the Chinese Navy. British, German, and Italian firms have between them contributed the surface vessels in the flotilla, and a French concern the submarines.

ONCE-NOTORIOUS NAME.

The name Lambros—that of the Greek professor who has been dumped into the Premiership at Athens—has not the best of records in this country, for a member of that clan took office under the Sultan forty years ago or so, translated his name into "Lambri Pasha," and came to the Court of St. James's as Secretary to Midhat Pasha, the Turkish Ambassador. Introducing the game of bacarat to this country, and cheating—or, to use his own expression, "playing with the advantages"—Mr. Labouchere gave him a rare showing up. Can we hope for better things from this M. Lambros?

SOLDIERS AND GRAMOPHONE RECORDS.

Hearing the other day of a parent who, having lost a vocalist son in the war, was partly consoled by the possession of a series of gramophone records—taken just before the regiment left for France—preserving the lad's voice in his favourite songs, I have made some inquiries on this interesting subject. Little business of the kind, it seems, has been done by the gramophone companies, and so far as can be gathered there is no disposition to seek it, especially at a time when skilled labour cannot be spared from national work. Though the parents of whom I speak may cherish the records of his boy's voice, other bereaved people could not trust themselves with the possession of what would probably in the majority of cases prove a rather poignant memento calculated to keep the wound open and prevent forgetfulness. Apart from temperamental consideration, however, there are difficulties which must tend to limit the demand for this kind of record—it is by no means easy to secure a perfect gramophone record. Caruso and Tetrassini lose little in the rendering on the best instruments, but these results have only been achieved after many painstaking experiments. Amateur vocalists and speakers find their natural defects exaggerated. Only after drill are satisfactory results obtained. Considerations like these necessarily mean dear records and restricted popularity.

WOMEN, WORK AND THE WAR.

The substitution of women in industry for men called to the colors is proceeding with growing rapidity. During the second quarter of this year the number of women enrolled was more than doubling that it was in the preceding three months, the figures being 87,000, as compared with 40,000, and of these the women directly replacing men were put at 50,000. Among particular trades the cotton industry has played a notable part in this substitution scheme of the Board of Trade Employment Department and has been the most enterprising in employing women during the past eighteen months. In the woollen and worsted industry, while substitution has made, and is making, good progress, the main difficulty is to increase, and in some cases even to maintain, the supply of women for what has always been regarded as women's work. One contributing factor to this state of affairs has been the diversion of women to munition and tramway work. Another, and perhaps the most serious, cause has been insufficient lodging accommodation. This has handicapped the department in the policy of transferring female labor from places where there were more workers than work to centres where hands were urgently required, and constitutes the great problem of the hour. It is understood that, according to the latest statistics, about 868,000 additional women have been drawn into various occupations since the outbreak of war.

AVIATION AND THE WRIGHT PATENTS.

The decision of the British Wright Company, with the concurrence of Orville Wright, brother of the late Wilbur Wright, not to apply for a renewal of the British Wright patent on the expiry of the ordinary 14 years' monopoly, which terminates on March 23, 1917, is received with gratitude by the whole British aviation industry. The validity of the patent is assumed not only because of the Government recognition of its existence by the payment of the £15,000 for postponement and future use of the patents, but because the American rights were upheld in court after court. The Wright patent covers practically any system of control that is conceivably possible on an aeroplane, and it is doubtful whether more than three or four pure experiments with aeroplanes, none of which ever reached maturity, have been made without infringing the patent in some way or other, because the use of a rudder on an aeroplane in conjunction with ailerons or balancing flaps, or with mechanism for warping or bending the wings for steering or balancing, is the essence of the patent. The patent is therefore, used on every aeroplane and seaplane in the possession of the British, French and German flying services. As regards British aeroplanes, of course the sum accepted by the British Wright Company from the War Office freed all service machines from any claim to royalty. Nevertheless, but for the present decision, considerable anxiety would have been created in the aeroplane industry for the future. After the war aeroplanes will be used to an enormous extent for sport, and undoubtedly also for commercial purposes, and the surrendering of the patent will do much to assist the British nation to secure supremacy in the construction of aeroplanes for private use in this country and for export abroad.

MANNEQUIN PARADES.

The fashion parade season is in full swing. On miniature stages, with footlights, and before a carefully-selected audience, such queens of languid beauty as the revues have not snapped up parade daily in the big ateliers in the newest frocks, furs, and headgear. In some cases an admission fee for the benefit of the Red Cross or other charity is readily paid by the women whose patriotism is not sufficient to keep them away from such shows at the present time. Most of the spectators who sit through these parades and murmur admiring approval of the creations are of the "Nouveaux riches" order. Dwellers in Mayfair are mostly too busy with war work, and too heavily hit by the losses in the war to trouble about fashions, and simple coat frocks or coat and skirt dresses are still the only wear for Princesses and Duchesses.

Girls! Draw A Moist Cloth Through Hair Double Its Beauty

Try this! Hair gets thick, glossy, wavy and beautiful at once.

Immediate!—Yes! Certain!—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few week's use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at the roots—growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

In Milady's Boudoir.

SLEEP FOR BEAUTY.

Night is the psychological time for beauty culture. It is the time for erasing the care-lines of the day, and making ready for rebuilding. It is a time of recuperation, of gaining strength, of repairing nerves. If you want to rise with a sunshiny face, go to sleep with a mind freed from inharmony. Put away all "envy, hatred and malice," set yourself at peace with the world, yourself and your fellow men.

Take simple exercises for the relaxation of tense muscles. Don't say you are too tired, and tumble into bed with the "tired" thought. You have to breathe, whether you are tired or not. Twenty-five deep breaths will quiet nerves, start the circulation, loosen the tension of body and mind. A warm bath will do as much good as an hour's sleep. Brush your hair with long even strokes, breathing rhythmically meanwhile, massage the scalp. It will clear your head, and take away the feeling of being "bound with bands" which is the sign of a tired brain.

Sit before your mirror in a strong light and very carefully smooth out all lines of worry or petulance, of unhappiness. Work over the lines about eyes and across the brow with some simple emollient. I have given dozens of recipes, if however, you want a specific for wrinkles, try this: Half an ounce of lanolin and coconut oil, a quarter ounce each of white wax and spermaceti, one ounce of oil of sweet almonds. Melt together and while stirring add half an ounce of orange flower water and a few drops of benzoin.

Wonderful Bilious Remedy Actually Prevents Attacks

There are two great causes of biliousness—they are constipation and defective liver action. When Dr. Hamilton's Pills are taken, they not only correct constipated bowels, but act upon the liver as well. Quite unlike ordinary medicines which purge and give temporary relief, Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the conditions which cause biliousness, and thus permanent cures are effected. No person who occasionally uses Dr. Hamilton's Pills will ever suffer from the headache, bad stomach or bilious complaint. Get a 25c. box today.

Your Boys and Girls.

About the beginning of the third year mothers should commence feeding baby a little meat. It is usually added to the midday meal with advantage. It should be given first in moderate amount and in the most digestible form. Scraped beef from the inner portion of a rare broiled steak which is free from fat is the best form, and a heaping tablespoonful may be given at first and the amount soon be doubled. When this is given with bread, the child should be instructed systematically to chew. At this time soup may be increased to six ounces and milk dropped, as milk and meat are not to be used together at one meal.

TIRING DAYS OXO—Ready in a moment

The fatiguing duties which ladies in every class of society are performing now-a-days have emphasised in a wonderful degree the recuperative power of Oxo Cubes.

It is remarkable how quickly a cup of Oxo will revive and strengthen you after the fatigue of a long day. Hardly less remarkable is its convenience in the form of Oxo Cubes. A touch of the bell, and in almost less time than it takes to remove your gloves, a cup of Oxo is ready.

Many ladies make a point of having a cup of Oxo before they leave home. It fortifies them against the cold and is wonderfully sustaining.
