THIS WOMAN SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, One of Thousands of Such Cases.

Black River Falls, Wis.—"As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation, I cannot say enough in praise of it. I suffered from organic troubles and my side hurt me so I could hardly be up from my bed, and I was unable to do my housework. I had the best doctors in Eau Claire and they wanted me to have an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me so I did not need the operation, and I am telling all my friends about it."—Mrs. A. W. Benzer, Black River Falls, Wis.

It is just such experiences as that of Mrs. Benzer that has made this famous root and herb remedy a household word from ocean to ocean. Any woman who suffers from inflammation, ulceration, displacements, backache, nervousness, irregularities or "the blues" should not rest until she has given it a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

The Old Marquis

The Girl of the Cloisters

CHAPTER XXXI.
IN SWEET CONTENT.

"Well, it was, I am sure"—laughing again—"that there was nothing in his eyes."

"There was a picture of a remarkably pretty young miss, if he saw you."

"Now, Edgar, don't be foolish!"—kissing him. "I wonder who he is."

"Oh, the parson's church-warden, or—anybody; what does it matter? The question is what are you going to do? Will you go for a drive?"

She was silent for a moment, then, as if her thoughts had strayed, she said:

"Edgar, does Edith Drayton know we are in London?"

"Yes, I suppose so," he replied. "I suppose Clifford told her."

"Why does she not call?" she asked.

He had asked himself the same question, and shook his head.

"I don't know. I'll ask Clifford. Perhaps she is out of town; everybody, excepting our benighted selves, are out of town."

As he spoke, Lovel knocked and entered, first giving Lela time to glide from Lord Edgar's side and assume an absorbed interest in the flowers on the table.

"Mr. Revel, my lady."

"Speak of an angel and you hear the rustle of its wings!" exclaimed Lord Edgar, cheerily. "How are you, Cliff?"

Carefully dressed as usual, with an orchid in his button-hole, and his pleasant smile on his face, Clifford Revel approached Lela with extended hand.

"The tiptop of the morning to you, Lady Fane! Excuse the form of greeting, but it is such a lovely morning, and you look so bright and fresh, that one is tempted to be rustic!" and he bent over her hand impressively.

Lela had confessed her distrust of him, but Lord Edgar and she had agreed that the subject should not be mentioned between them, and though the same cold chill that had struck her when she first saw him revisited her now, she smiled and bid him welcome.

"On my way to the office, to the slavery of the mill, my dear Lady Fane, I've just dropped in to say 'good-morning,' and have a few minutes' chat; this pretty room, and your happiness—the sight of it—gives a flavor and a pleasant aroma to my daily toil. How are you, Edgar, luckiest and happiest of mortals?"

"All right!" exclaimed Lord Edgar, wringing his hand and gazing up into his false face with a genial smile.

"We were just talking of you!"

"Unworthy subject for your thoughts or tongues!"

"What a fellow you are! Never want a word! Lela was just saying that she had met Mr. Browne."

"Mr. Browne?" repeated Clifford Revel, and it struck Lela as a strange coincidence that he, like Lord Edgar, had forgotten the name. "Oh, the clergyman? Ah, yes!" and he smiled that convenient smile which served his face as a mask.

"Yes, Lela saw him yesterday in Pall Mall. Rum sort of fellow! She called to him, but he hurried on, and wouldn't stop to speak."

Clifford Revel drew the faintest breath of relief.

"Ah! Yes, he is eccentric. Very clever man, and all that, but shy; I dare say Lady Fane's notice quite upset him."

"That he hanged!" laughed Lord Edgar. "He'll have to get over that, for I mean to know him."

"Know—him?" quietly.

"Yes, give me his address, will you? I'll ask him to dinner, and you shall come and meet him."

Clifford Revel looked down at the carpet, and the impassive, impenetrable expression came into his face.

"His address! 'Pon my word, I don't quite know what it is! I only met him two days before—before your marriage, my dear Lady Fane!" with a bow to Lela. "I don't know what it is."

"Nuisance!" exclaimed Lord Edgar. "Yes; but I am surprised you saw him," continued Clifford Revel, "for he told me that he was going out to the Fiji Islands as a missionary. You remember that song, Lady Fane:

"Oh, send us missionaries,
And send them fat and young."
Lela shook her head with a smile.

"No? Well, he was going. I thought he had gone; but if he has not, I'll hunt him up."

"Do," said Lord Edgar. "I took a fancy to him, and should like to know him. Have a cigar?"

"Will not two be one too many for Lady Fane?"

"I am going," said Lela, and she left the room. Clifford Revel hastened to open the door for her, then he shut it carefully and came back to Lord Edgar's side.

"Yes, I'll have a cigar. I'm glad Lady Fane has gone; I wanted to speak to you. About the race, you know. You have not told her?"

"No," said Lord Edgar, shortly. The subject was distasteful to him. He had been persuaded by Clifford Revel to ride the race, and could not now in honor back out of it; but he had regretted his promise directly it had been made, and regretted it still more deeply now that it had entailed a secret between Lela and him.

"Quite right," said Clifford Revel, in a low voice, and impressively. "It would make her unhappy and fearful. She'd want to know all about it, and some fool would tell her about the horse and give her the idea that you were going to meet your death," and he laughed; his keen eyes fixed on Edgar's thoughtful ones. "Much better to keep it from her. After all, it is for her good! She'll know nothing about it until you come home with the race in your pocket, and no end of money likewise. By the way, you have seen the papers? It is lucky you backed it when you did; it has become the favorite now. How much do you stand to win if you bring it in first?"

"Almost fourteen thousand pounds," said Lord Edgar, moodily.

"Ah!" said Clifford Revel. "Well, you may look upon that as already at your banker's, my dear Edgar, if the horse gets a good start."

"If! Yes, I hope so! I want that money badly. Once I have that money, I mean to tell the marguis that I am married, and that he can carry out his threat."

A curious smile passed over Clifford Revel's face.

"Yes! Quite right. I quite understand your feelings in the matter. Yes, tell him, by all means—after the race! Well, I must go now."

"Oh, by the way," said Lord Edgar, "we were speaking about Miss Drayton."

"What about her?" demanded Clifford Revel, with a momentary sharpness. The mere mention of her name smote upon his nerves.

New Relief For Constipation, "LES FRUITS"

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us. They also agree that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise—unwise for two reasons. First, a drug constantly used loses its effect and requires a constantly increased dose. Second, because the constant use of any drug is bad anyway.

So the cry is constantly going up from the constipated, "What can we do?" It will be interesting to a great many to know that an answer has been found in the re-discovery of a method which was used with great success by our Forefathers, and in Arabia far back in the twelfth century. The food is called "Les Fruits" because it is composed entirely of figs, dates, prunes, raisins and the leaves of each with the substitution of the Alexandra leaf for the raisin leaf. The taste is pleasant, if not to say delicious, and the effect is exceedingly satisfactory. Try it and be convinced.

And the Worst is Yet to Come—

Lord Edgar smiled at his curt response.

"Nothing very dreadful; only that she has not called upon Lela yet. She knows she is in town, I suppose?"

"Yes, I told her; but she has been very unwell," said Clifford Revel. "She will call, directly she is able. Not that I can answer for her," he added, hastily.

"Just so. We shall be glad to see her. Sure you can't stay? A glass of Maraschino? No? Well, goodbye, old fellow!"

"Good-bye," said Clifford Revel, holding the firm, strong hand that would have seized him by the throat if its owner had known what a traitor's hand he grasped. "Still quite and too utterly happy, eh?"

"Still quite and too utterly happy," laughed Lord Edgar.

Ladies Dressed in Tin.

Many of our lady readers may not be aware that when they are arrayed in their silk robes they are to a considerable extent dressed in tin. Much of the silk used in America is manufactured in Pennsylvania where great coal fields insure cheap power and where so many women workers can be readily obtained from the multitude of families whose male members are employed in the coal and iron works.

The raw silk, as it comes from Japan, China, or Italy, is first steamed and degummed. This gum takes away about one-fifth of its weight. After this comes the dyeing and spinning and usually the weighting. Here is where the tin comes in.

As a magazine says: "The weighting process is very interesting, both from the standpoint of manufacture and wearing. In silk that may have cost eight or ten dollars a pound, the extraction of the gum represents a serious shrinkage. It happens that silk has a particular affinity for tin dissolved in hydrochloric acid. So the silk manufacturer proceeds to treat his degummed silk to a bath of liquid tin. It absorbs several ounces to the pound of silk. Then he washes it in a phosphate-of-soda preparation which increases its power of absorbing tin, and gives it another bath. He may repeat the process until the pound of raw silk, which had shrunk to thirteen ounces by the degumming operation, takes on enough tin to make it weigh at least twenty and perhaps forty or even sixty ounces.

This weighting is of advantage to the wearers. An ordinary 19-inch taffeta, that retails at, say $1.50 a yard, is composed, probably, of five-eighths silk and three-eighths tin. Yet it is satisfactory in its lustre and will ordinarily wear for two seasons which is alleged to be the longest any woman would want a silk dress or waist to last. If the taffeta were made from untinted silk it would cost $2.20 a yard and serve midway no better.

During the last year or two, under the stress of raw silk prices of unprecedented heights, weighting came to be done in the woven goods as well as in the tram and organdine, so that the women of the country often wear as much tin as silk and frequently more."-Ex.

BASEBALL MEETING.

A meeting of the League will be held this week to make arrangements for the opening game set down for next Wednesday.

ADMISSION FEE.

In conjunction with the Football League, the admission this year, as last, will be 10 cents, with ladies free.

THE CONTESTANTS.

A double-header will be played on opening day—the first clash between the B.I.S. and Wanderers, and the second between the Cubs and Red Lions.

SCORES.

We understand that the League is importing a number of pocket scores with the schedule printed on the back which will be sold at a nominal figure. We think this is a good idea and will tend to make the games more interesting to the fans.

YOU SAID IT.

Old King Cole was a merry old soul, A merry old bird I'm afraid, But at that, I must say The old gink was a jay. For he never saw Baseball played.

He never saw Hartnett, He never saw Hall, He never saw an ump. And gosh, that's not all; He never saw McGrath (Dick not Jawn) And he never saw a baseball race Rowed on the Pon' He never saw Cooney wave his old bat. Never saw "Hooks" do the Hundred in ten flat; He never saw the Cubs When they were feeling blue, Never saw Ches. umpire right And neither have you.

He never saw the Red Lions Give the town a thrill, By grabbing off a pennant race, And it looks he never will.

Wedding Bells.

LONG-WILLS. At the Anglican Cathedral on Monday evening, June 9th, Mr. Albert John Wills, ex-Private Royal Ndd. Regiment, led to the altar Miss Ethel May Long, daughter of Sergeant William Long, Terra Nova Constabulary. The bride who was handsomely gowned in a blue costume, was given away by her father, and was attended by Miss Jessie Long. The groom was supported by Mr. Alexander Long, brother of the bridesmaid. After the ceremony the newly wedded couple drove to the residence of the bride's father, where supper was served, only the immediate friends of the couple being present. A very enjoyable evening was spent by the guests and the health of the bride and groom enthusiastically toasted. Mr. and Mrs. Wills left by yesterday's express for their future home in Alexander Bay, Bonarville Bay, taking with them the best wishes of their many friends, for their future, in which the Telegram joins.

NOW IF THEY HAD ONLY ASKED FOR FISH.

Two Tommies went into a restaurant over on the eastern front and said to the waiter: "We want Turkey with Greece." The waiter replied: "Sorry, sirs, but we can't Servia." "Well, then, get the Bosphorus." The boss came in and heard their order and then said: "I don't want to Russia, but you can't Rumania." So the two Tommies went away Hungary.

THE TWIRLERS.

Hall is the mainstay of the Cubs, though the champs hope to have Billy Orr rendering him assistance this season. Carew, of the B.I.S., who was suffering from strained back muscles last year, has now recovered, and will likely be in as good form as he was when he twirled the Irishmen to victory in '17. With him will be Stan O'Leary—the youngster who did such good work for the Lions last year.

The Wanderers have two or three aspirants to slab artistry, but Manager Hartnett has not yet decided who is to be number one. Dark-Eyed Dobbin will likely open the series for them next Wednesday, and is reputed to have acquired a nice assortment of curves.

The Lions are pinning all their hopes in Ellis. Nuts, it will be remembered, is a southpaw, and was doing famous work in 1919 when the draft caught him just as he was hanging various scalps to his belt. He has developed wonderful speed—so much so that Hiltz will have to go as his battery mate as no one else can find nerve enough to hold him.

BEST WISHES.

Undeterred by the non success of Hawker and Grieve in their tiny Sopwith machine, and undismayed by the disaster which befel the Martinsyde "Raymor," the Handley-Page and Vickers-Vimy fliers are now in almost complete readiness for their attempt to conquer the air and make the non-stop flight over the Atlantic Ocean an accomplished fact. One advantage the present fliers have over the earlier competitors is that both their machines are much larger than either Hawker's or Raynham's, and being more powerfully engined have a greater capacity for fuel and oil supplies, absolute essentials for the complete success of the journey through space.

Tragedy, in the case of the Sopwith and Martinsyde planes, was happily averted, for though the one made the greater half of the flight ere disaster overtook it and the other came to grief on making the start, there were no fatalities. Yet the danger is ever existent. The hazard of chance takes a prominent place in all such adventures, but it is that hazard which attracts red blooded men, and the possibilities of death are ever an incitement to human nature to throw dice with them for a win. There is furthermore the pride of race, which inclines men to take part in dangerous enterprises, and to hold life in light regard if they can but do something lasting, something immortal for the sake of country, with the eyes of a watching world full upon them. Of such is the physical and mental calibre of the men who are now about to venture forth into the uncharted, mysterious regions of the air. For them the voyage has no terrors, their one thought being a victory over the silent spaces, and a demonstration that the long flight can be made without a stop. They place the utmost dependence in their machines, which have been built as perfectly and strongly, but withal as lightly, as human skill can fashion and construct. Every strut and stay, every wire and bolt and nut has been tested and retested: operating levers have been adjusted to the finest fraction, engines have been tuned up, planes, tail and rudders have received the closest attention, compasses and air instruments have been corrected and every minor detail carefully considered and inspected. When the planes fly all that could possibly be done, has been, but once in the air the aviators are up against the chances of accident from some unforeseen cause. Nothing daunted by such prospects, however, the charm of danger being always attractive to men engaging in new adventures, the conquerors of the air fly out on the way toward the great achievement, with hearts beating exultingly and hopes of the brightest that they will be the first to reach the farther shore and send the intelligence of success flashing over cables and wires to a waiting and admiring and congratulatory world. And as they go let us all give them our benediction, and pray that the crowning glory of their high hopes may be won, and their niche in the temple of fame assured. Newfoundlanders hold such men as have essayed and are essaying the long flight in the highest admiration, and will accord to the loser no less than the winner the meed of praise that springs spontaneous on witnessing a deed well done or well tried. May the gods of the air smile kindly upon the intrepid adventurers and gentle winds bear them along until the goal of their desires is reached.

Government Commandeers

Steamships Fortia and Prospero. At 3 p.m. yesterday Mr. T. A. Hall, Secretary to the Department of Shipping, acting for the Government, commandeered the steamships Fortia and Prospero under the War Measures Act for use in the coastal service. This action was made necessary by the urgent demand for steamers to ply west and north and by the apparent unwillingness of the Bowring Coastal Company to take up the contract even on the basis of their original tender. On Monday of last week the Government intimated to the company that they would accept their tender, but in the meanwhile the company withdrew the offer, and it is reported, increased their demands. The Government saw that if negotiations are to continue for any length of time it would create a hardship on the trade and the people west and north, and took the only possible course of meeting the situation. The Coastal Co. have agreed to work the ships for the Government, and they will immediately take up their regular schedules. In the meantime the Government will be able to continue negotiations with the Bowrings, and if it is found impossible to come to a satisfactory arrangement with them, there will be ample time to seek elsewhere for ships.

Aerial.

HANDLEY-PAGE TRIAL FLIGHT. A late wire was received from Hr. Grace yesterday advising that the Handley-Page aeroplane made a successful take-off for a trial flight at 4.30 o'clock. At about 4.50 or perhaps a few minutes later the big machine was observed over the city, the first intimation people had of its presence being the roar of the exhaust. The distance in a straight line from Hr. Grace is some 23 miles, so that the machine had done the trip at a speed of something more than a mile a minute, easy flying. After circling the city the plane turned about and flew back over Conception Bay, passing over Bell Island and going inland for some distance on the other side of the Bay before returning to Harbor Grace where landing was made at 5.40.

VICKERS-VIMY.

Yesterday the pilot and navigator of the Vickers-Vimy plane were busily engaged in swinging their compasses and making other necessary adjustments and inspections, preparatory to their get-away. Many hundreds of people trekked to Lester's Field last evening in the hope of seeing a start made. No definite information has been given out by either Capt. Alcock or Lieut. Brown, and it is exceedingly likely that they will make the hop-off quietly and without any previous announcement. Arrangements have been made for notifying Atlantic steamships to keep a keen look out for the machine and also to promptly answer any wireless calls made. With both planes completely ready it will be a toss up for getting away honors, but in all probability the Vickers machine will be the first.

Mount Cashel Extension Fund.

A largely attended meeting of the Mount Cashel Extension Fund Committee was held last night in the B. I. S. music room, J. L. Slatery, Esq., presiding, in the unavoidable absence of the vice-chairman, Hon. W. J. Ellis. The collectors reported meeting with a favourable response and handed in $3,000.00, which will be acknowledged in due course. The total of contributions to date is $15,871. The final meeting of the committee will be held to-morrow night week, by which time it is hoped over $20,000 will have been received.

C. C. C. Parade.

Last night at the C. C. C. Armoury there was a large parade under the direction of Captain J. J. O'Grady, Adjutant, when the preliminary arrangements in connection with the Senior Company—the Expeditionary Force Cadets—was finalized. The Cadets have entered a strong team for the football league this season, and there will be a meeting of their Association on Thursday night, to make final arrangements as to uniform etc., and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

Fire at Glenwood.

Word was received in town yesterday afternoon that a destructive fire swept Glenwood during the early morning which destroyed seventeen houses, and rendered a number of people homeless. The only particulars received are that the fire originated through sparks from a chimney catching a neighbouring house, and with a strong westerly wind blowing all the adjoining houses were quickly on fire and destroyed, several of them with all their contents. Owing to the telegraph poles and wires being burnt and down it was impossible up to last night to get the names of those who had lost property, or the number of people rendered homeless.

The Majestic.

The "Secret of the Stormy Country," the new select production in which Miss Norma Talmadge is being presented by Joseph M. Schenck, has been proclaimed as one of the big hits of the season. In it Miss Talmadge combines pathos and humor, deep emotions and the joy of living, and her interpretation of the little squatter girl is one of the finest things she has ever done. This powerful six-act drama will be screened at the Majestic to-day and to-morrow. Mr. John O'Reilly will be heard in a new song to-night, as well as the usual musical treat by Prof. F. J. King and Messrs. Swedlin and Ross.

New Steamer Due.

Hr. Grace Notes. A thousand or more people visited this town from St. John's and other places, being induced to come by the newspaper reports that the big Handley-Page machine "Atlantic" would start on her trial trip. Some hard things were said about the reporters who caused the sensation, while they at the same time knew the airship was not ready for trial. Only a couple of Labrador schooners have yet left for the coast, others are waiting for the ice to move off. A fairly good sign of codfish and salmon was in the market on Saturday, but there was not much to-day. The motor boat E. L. Stewart arrived from Bell Island with an excursion party on Saturday, and returned again yesterday evening. The Methodist Ladies' Aid of Bell Island intend coming to Harbor Grace on Wednesday first by S. S. Othar on excursion. It is said that the excursion party will consist of over 125 persons. All the hotels and every available lodging house here is just now full of boarders, and still many are unable to get accommodation. It will soon be in order for some company to build a big up-to-date hotel here, thus helping to build up the town. The weather to-day is all that can be desired, and every person is busy either preparing the land for the crops or the fishing boat for its work. Mr. E. S. Spencer, of Bell Island, was in town yesterday and was very much interested in all he saw about the airdrome. CORRESPONDENT. Hr. Grace, June 9, 1919. Carpenters' Meeting. The annual meeting of the Carpenters and Joiners was held last night in the L. S. P. U. Hall when the reports of the secretary and treasurer were presented and adopted both being highly satisfactory. Five applicants were proposed for membership and one enrolled. The election of officers for the ensuing term resulted as follows: President—T. R. Goff. Vice-President—Jos. Jacobs. Fin. Secretary—A. Johnson. Rec. Secretary—E. Day. Treasurer—H. Taylor. Conductor—J. Bonnell. Warden—A. Bradley. Trustees—J. Clarke, J. Myler, and J. Jacobs. Considerable discussion took place as to the increase of pay notices of which was given the contractors a fortnight ago and which is still under negotiation. The present rate of pay is 40 cents per hour for a 10 hour day and the increase asked for is 60 cents an hour and an 8 hour day. An answer is shortly expected from the contractors and on this will depend what further action will be advised by the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America of which the local union is a branch. School Children 85 665 The Campaign to raise a minimum amount of $150,000 in St. John's, to further Methodist educational institutions, is meeting with phenomenal success. The report, including Tuesday, showed that a total of $133,398.00 has been subscribed. When it is considered that the workers in the Campaign Organization have really only collected one day, this splendid total is quite remarkable. Notwithstanding the fact that the amount raised is near the minimum quota, there is no sign of abatement in the order of the team workers, rather there is a determination to reach the maximum amount, to give every Methodist and every friend of Methodism an opportunity to have a part in this worthy and noble enterprise. Many very liberal contributions have been received, and it is the consensus of opinion that it would be a calamity to allow a small proportion of St. John's Methodists to carry the load of all Methodism in this community, therefore the workers are determined that every person having a right to be interested in this cause be given an opportunity to do their duty. The meeting Tuesday evening was most enthusiastic, the work was near 100% of workers in attendance and the friendly rivalry between the teams seemed to endow our outside worker in his zeal, and every team worker was loyal behind his captain. Collegians Organize.

Personal Mention.

The Collegian Football team elected the following officers last evening for the ensuing season, viz:—
Capt.—Chas. Quick.
Vice-Capt.—F. J. Wornell.
Sec.—Treas.—Leslie R. Curtis.
Delegate—Thos. Sparkes.
The Club has decided to enter a team in the season's series. The Club is in a good condition financially, and the Collegians backers are enthusiastic regarding the prowess of their favorites.

Major and Mrs. Montgomerie, who had been visiting Canada and the United States, returned here yesterday. Hon. R. Watson, who had been attending the annual meeting of the International Grenfell Association at New York, returned by the Sackem yesterday.

Major Cluny Macpherson, Director of Medical Service of the Nid. Regiment, returned from a visit to Canada and the States yesterday. He was accompanied by Mrs. Macpherson and daughter. While abroad he visited hospitals in Montreal, Kingston, Philadelphia, New York and Boston, at which special attention is paid to the restoration of health of disabled soldiers. The doctor was greatly interested in the work performed in the several institutions visited.

W. J. Walsh, Esq., M. H. A., for Placentia and head of the Department of Agriculture and Mines paid a visit to Bell Island yesterday. He was accompanied by Mr. T. Thorburn of the same department. Messrs Walsh and Thorburn were shown over the Company's Works on the Iron Island and made an inspection of the underground system employed there.

WEDNESDAY, June 11, 1919. Do you like an antiseptic lozenge rather more strongly medicated than ordinary? If you have a severe cold or hoarseness you doubtless will. If that be the case then, get a box of Preston's Antiseptic Throat Lozenges. These are, as we have said, quite strongly medicated, and they will give quick and efficient relief in throat and bronchial troubles. And they are skilfully prepared, and not at all unpleasant to use; they may also be used as freely as necessary. Price 25c. a box.

Seabury's Hydronaphthol Soap has somewhat gone out of sight in recent years, but there is no reason why it should not again become popular. For this Soap is a really good medicinal soap, of great value in hot weather, good as a disinfectant, and skin soap, and a good cleanser. Why not get a cake and see how it will help you to get through the summer with less discomfort than usual?

"Barrowed."
New Police Conveyance.
At 1:30 this morning Constables Dempsey and Day, doing duty on Water Street, discovered an inebriated heavy man slumbering soundly and peacefully on the hard stones paving Baird's Cove, and as much concerned as if he were resting on his own particular "donkey's breakfast" at home. Being unable to awaken or arouse the sleeper, it became necessary to remove him from his cobblestone couch bodily and get him to the police station. This was successfully accomplished with the assistance of a fish barrow which the ingenious officers commandeered, and the "draft" of humanity was carried to more comfortable quarters and shipped over to guard Courtney. When it comes to getting conveyances, our constables are hard to beat.

Reids' Boats.
The Argyle arrived at Placentia at 8.40 p.m. yesterday. The Clyde is at Herring Neck. The Dundee left Princeton at 8.40 p.m. yesterday going to Lewisport. Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

A TASTE FOR READING.

RUTH CAMERON

"If I were to pray for a taste which should stand me under every variety of circumstances and be a source of happiness and cheerfulness to me through life and shield against its ills however things might go amiss, and the world frown upon me, it would be a taste for reading. Give a man that taste and the means of gratifying it and you can hardly fail to make him happy. You make him a denizen of all nations, a contemporary of all ages."—Herschel.

A college education is a splendid thing to have. Whether it helps fit one for any definite profession or not, it does give a background which enriches all the rest of one's life. And yet, if I had to choose for a child of mine whether he were to have a college education or the habit of reading, I think I should choose the latter. Of course, I would want him to have both, but if it had to be one without the other it would be the latter.

Better Than A College Education.

One of the best educated men I know never went to college or even finished high school, and yet because he reads intelligently, broadly and incessantly, he is better educated than three-quarters of the college men I know.

In a recent magazine article on Napoleon a fact not generally played up about that great man is brought out. He was from his earliest youth a tremendous reader. In his youth he deprived himself of proper clothes and sufficient food to get the money to buy books, and having bought them lugged them in triumph to his rooms and spent his happiest hours with them. "Such," he writes, "were the joys and dissipations of my youth."

Not Only How Much But What.

Of course what one reads is a factor in the result as well as how much. Even if one reads nothing but mediocre novels one can not help getting something out of them but how much less than if one read intelligently and broadly. Nor do I mean by that that one should read only serious things. Fiction has its place just as sweets have in the diet. But when our magazines and newspapers are so crammed with interesting and helpful articles how anyone can (as so many people think do) stick wholly to stories, I cannot understand.

Henry Ward Beecher has an interesting passage on how to read. "First to know what the world has done during the last twenty-four hours and is about to do to-day; second, for the knowledge that I specially want in my work; and third, for what will bring my mind into a proper mood."

How Reading Lessens One's Chances Of Being Unhappy.

I think one ought to add a fourth to that; general information that is both interesting and occasionally valuable to have. Since Beecher's work was humanity, its scope humanity wide, I suppose he did not realize that his second purpose would embrace much more with him than with most men.

When a man is bored he is unhappy; when he is interested he is, if not happy, at least not unhappy. And the more one knows of every sort, the more interesting a place the world becomes and hence the less chance one has of being unhappy.

Salt & Pickled Herring.

Since it is possible to buy new spring split herring in Newfoundland at $7 per barrel, f.o.b. St. John's, the market here has taken another view of the situation, and whereas there was every indication of an advance in prices, it now appears that the average market for splits is $8.50@9.50, with few able to sell at the higher figure. There have been some small receipts of splits during the past few weeks, but sales of these are not reported. It is understood that one or two small lots were disposed of at $8.50 during the week. In view of the depressed condition of the herring market generally, it could not be expected that split or round herring would have any special demand at this time. The export feature of the market has not developed as might have been expected, and this, too, has limited the movement of splits. Round herring continues to be quoted on the basis of $8.50, and is practically out of demand. Other grades of salt and pickled herring are out of demand, belly cuts being practically cleaned up.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette.

HOME TO RADIANT FUTURE.

Back to laughter and to love,
Back to peace and gentle ways;
Back to skies that bend above
With the charms of happy days.
Homeward now our heroes come
From the awful fields of strife,
Now the cannon's voice is dumb,
Death has given way to life.

Men go forth no more to die,
Youth may cling unto its dream;
Mothers now may cease to sigh,
Shells no longer madly scream
O'er their loved ones as they toll;
Danger does not hedge them round;
Night shall hide no blood-stained soil,
Night shall bring no "new-made" mound.

Now to sweeter conquests we Turn our thoughts and build once more

For the joys we hope to see
As we did in days of yore.
Safely we may toil and plan,
Bravely we may do and dare;
Now the future holds for man
Glorious things which he may share.

Homeward now our heroes come Back to hope and mornings glad,
Never more need muffled drum
Tell the passing of a lid.
Ended is the bitter strife,
Done the heartaches and the fears;
Death has given way to life,
Youth now claims its happy years.

Youth may woo a maiden fair,
Youth may dream and hope and plan,
May with courage venture where Glory waits to crown a man.

From to-morrow, black with doubt,
From the hopeless land of night
Youth to-day is marching out
Into years with promise bright.

Nfld. Scotch Cured Herring.

The failure of the spring fishery in Alaska places this grade of Scotch style herring in a more advantageous position in the New York market, and there are other circumstances which are very likely to contribute to the success of Newfoundland herring here during the remainder of the season. These developments come at a time when the market is laboring under unfavorable conditions. It is reported from Norway that over a million barrels of herring of the old pack, and perhaps as much of the new pack are about to be sold to Germany and other nations of Central Europe. From other sources comes the advice that the European demand is assuming unheard-of proportions. This would indicate that if the Peace Treaty is signed within the next few weeks that a great movement of herring from Scotland and Holland will be undertaken. These outside conditions have a direct bearing on the herring market in New York, and factors in the trade doubtless will recognize their importance. It is estimated that there are about 25,000 barrels of Newfoundland Scotch cured herring available for distribution in the American market, the bulk of it in first or second hands in Newfoundland or Canada. The stock in New York is not as heavy as many have estimated, and since this grade is the only satisfactory Scotch style herring on the spot, it may be expected that the demand will improve rather than grow worse as the summer season passes and the fall demand begins. Holders have been selling stocks of ordinary quality Newfoundland Scotch style herring here at a range between $18@20 per barrel. In isolated cases sales of fancy quality have been made at $24 and even $26 for small lots. Those who have taken an optimistic view of conditions and have not urged the sale of their stocks when the market was not prepared to absorb it will probably fare better from now on. It is not likely that there will be heavy stocks of Scotch herring this summer, according to reliable advices, and it is no trick for the New York market to distribute 25,000 barrels of Newfoundland herring when conditions are favorable. It would appear from the present state of the herring industry, both at home and abroad, that there would be a much firmer market during the summer months than now, and that the early fall will see a return of the strong demand.—N. Y. Fishing Gazette, May 31.

'Phoning From' Planes.

How This Wireless Wonder Works.

A lot has been said about the remarkable new invention which enables pilots to telephone from their machine to earth and to receive telephone messages from the ground, but very little about how the telephone works.

The telephone is, of course, a wireless one, and the electricity required to enable the pilot to talk is supplied by means of a little propeller, which is driven round by the air as the aeroplane is flying.

From the aeroplane hangs a long copper wire, about two hundred feet in length, and it is from this wire that the messages are sent out or received when the pilot is telephoning.

The pilot has to wear a special helmet, which is muffled and padded as to be practically soundproof; otherwise the roar of the engine is so terrific that it would be quite impossible for him to hear anything else. The telephone itself is so made that it takes no notice of any sounds but the human voice, and this is one of the most remarkable things about the invention.

His Lost Dinner.

An amusing story was told recently by Mr. Lincoln Eyre, chief of the corps of American Journalists attending the Paris Conference.

It concerned a negro soldier serving in an American labour battalion, who had been left behind with his unit when the Armistice was concluded in order to help "clear up the mess."

As is well known, there are many "dud" German shells, still unexploded, lying in the old Somme battlefields, and the other day (said Mr. Eyre) this particular negro had the misfortune to light a fire directly over one in order to cook his dinner.

Presently the "dud" exploded, blowing fire and cooking-pot to the four winds of heaven. By a miracle the darky escaped, though he was bowled over by the concussion and scared nearly to death.

Picking himself up, he exclaimed in disgusted accents:

"For de Lawd, I thought the war was done—ended long 'fo! Jes wait till I meet de liar what tol' me 'bout dat Armistice bein' con-clu-ded."

Big Mustard Crop.

Growing It For Belgium.

Only two things have completely disappeared in Belgium during the war. These are pepper and mustard. As a matter of fact, there is hardly any mustard anywhere, and east county farmers are preparing to grow a very large crop this year.

There are three kinds of mustard grown in England, and all three contribute their seeds to the mustard pot. But, as a rule, mustard is made of the seeds of the brown and white mustard mixed together in a certain proportion.

The third variety, which is the wild mustard commonly known as charlock, and is most pestilential weed, does not count for much with the manufacturer.

A mustard field is a pretty sight when in flower, the whole surface being a brilliant yellow. The seeds, when ripe, are harvested, taken to the factory and ground.

The husk is separated after the first crushing, and is squeezed in hydraulic presses. A quantity of oil is produced which is invaluable for different purposes, while the cakes that remain over is either given to cattle as a condiment or used for fertilising purposes.

The mustard you find in your mustard pot is not made of pure mustard, but is usually a mixture of mustard flour with wheat or corn flour. In its pure state mustard flour is too sharp for most palates.

Germany Must be Guarded.

(From the Syracuse Post-Standard.)

With all the changes that have come over Germany since its surrender, there has been no admission that its war was not justified, that its ways of making war were not righteous, that the duplicity of its diplomacy calls for confession. Now Germany declares that it will not go to war again for a long time, because it won't have the power, but it does not assert that it has adopted a new method with respect to treaties and other international engagements. Imperial Germany when it fell to pieces was bankrupt in honor, but the German republic so-called does not find fault with the departed Hohenzollern crowd on that score. The nations now in alliance cannot accept Germany into their company as a partner in the maintenance of the peace of the world until it proves itself trustworthy, and it shows no disposition whatever to prove its trustworthiness. The nations in alliance, whether Germany signs the treaty or not, must maintain a vigilant guard over Germany to guarantee the fulfilment of its peace terms. The signing of the treaty is not the end, for Germany herself has taught us that her signature to a treaty is not first-class collateral.

CONVALESCENCE!

Its high food value, ease of assimilation and attractive flavour make "Ovaltine" invaluable during convalescence. It is largely used in hospitals for that condition, and in cases of Sleeplessness, Nervous Breakdown and Shell-shock, throughout the war "Ovaltine" has been included in the official standard parcel sent to invalid prisoners.

"Ovaltine" is a highly concentrated extract of the vitalizing and building up properties of Malt, Milk and Eggs, flavoured with Cocoa, and provides the most nourishing and sustaining food-drink possible.

During the whole process of manufacture "Ovaltine" is untouched by hand.

The unused doorway makes an effective bookcase. The door should be locked and treated as the back of the case. Shelves can be set in the entire door space of the lower half.

Ink stains on mahogany can be removed by painting them with a solution of six drops of niter mixed with a teaspoonful of water. Then rub well with a damp cloth and polish with a dry one.

Frying pans should be wiped with clean tissue paper before they are washed. In this way there is not so much grease poured down the drain. We all know that enough grease will stop up a drain.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, May 17, 1919.
A NEW FIELD-MARSHAL.

It is understood that the King proposes to return to the former practice of creating one new Field-Marshal upon the occasion of the Royal Birthday (June 3rd) each year. This year it is anticipated that the choice of the King will rest between Sir Ian Hamilton and Sir Herbert Plumer. The former is much the senior officer, and had it not been for the war it is certain that he would have received the baton of a Field-Marshal two or three years ago. General Plumer, however, rendered such distinguished service during the war on both the Western front and in Italy that his claims to promotion to the highest rank in the Army are very strong. In face of this fact, it is possible that His Majesty may ultimately decide that both these Generals shall become Field-Marschals in June. There is a precedent for this, as Sir Evelyn Wood and the late Sir George White were promoted Field-Marschals on the same day by the late King Edward. Sir Douglas Haig is the only Field-Marshal created during the war, while, three have died since 1914—Earl Roberts, Lord Kitchener and Lord Nicholson. The present list of Field-Marschals is thus smaller than has been the case for many years past.

DOING OUT THE MEDALS.

The 1914 Star is being issued by the War Office in instalments, and another batch of half a dozen regiments have been informed that their supply is now ready. It is to be hoped that by the time the peace celebrations take place every officer and man who has earned the coveted distinction will have received it. The public is singularly unfamiliar with the shape and design of the medal, although the red, white, and blue ribbon is well known. Londoners have for many months had an opportunity of seeing the Star if they knew where to look for it. The gorgeous Guardsmen in Whitehall were said to be the only soldiers in the country at one time to whom it had been issued, and for a long period prior to the Armistice the "Mons" Medal, as it is often erroneously called, tinkled against the steel breast plates.

BRITISH EIGHT FOR KING'S CUP.

Great Britain will be represented after all in the race for the King's Cup, the new Henley event, which is open to eights of amateurs who have served in any of the forces of the Allies. For the past few evenings an eight composed of Leander Club men and captained by A. F. R. Wiggins, the Oxford president, who rowed for his university against Cambridge in the last three contests before the war, has been afloat, and is to practice regularly for the Services event at the Henley Royal Regatta. Wiggins went to France with the Grenadiers, and his crew have all fought in the war. There is a possibility of the Royal Air Force entering, but up to the present they have not put in an appearance at Putney (the portion of the Thames near London which is usually favored by training crews), where the Australians, New Zealanders, and Canadians are now training for the King's Cup.

NO FRATERNISATION.

I have been told that the American troops on the Rhine are the most correct of all in their relations with the Germans. They have been told not to fraternise or converse with the inhabitants, and they seldom disobey. The British soldier cannot help being naturally good-natured, and shows more friendliness to villagers, especially to children. But among our men also there is little conversation with the English-speaking German, and the small kindnesses which soldiers may do to simple folk do not lead to much exchange of phrases. One young British officer writes: "We don't get much chance of learning Boche, as the authorities are very strict against fraternisation, and rightly so. German phrases are not being formed into slang words by our men as French words were. 'Kaput' meaning 'burst'—I am told, is about the only imported word from the Hun language, and takes the place of 'napoo' in some cases." He adds whimsically, "We have a Brigadier as commanding officer in this battalion, and another as second in command. I don't think I shall stay in the Army."

AEROPLANE VERSUS TRAIN.

Fleet Street is watching with great interest experiments that are being made by one evening newspaper here in delivering its papers by air. Of course things may be speeded up as time goes on, but I gather that at present this paper's rivals are fairly cheerful about the new competition. The comparison of the time taken shows that the train can beat the aeroplane by a considerable margin. Afternoon editions sent from London by train can still be out in the streets of a south coast town before the papers despatched from the office at the same hour by aeroplane service. The reason is not that the actual aeroplane journey is not much quicker than the train, but the loss of time at both ends. Papers going by aeroplane have to be taken in motors to the aerodrome on the outskirts of London, where there is naturally some delay before the bundles are stowed and the aeroplane starts. Then at the other end more time is lost in picking up the papers out of the sea, where they are dropped by parachute, and getting them ashore.

THE TROOPS FOR RUSSIA.

Parties of soldiers belonging to the North Russian Relief Force have been leaving London. It was strange that, at a time when khaki is fast disappearing from the streets, and everyone is trying to forget the terrible five years, another little army should be setting out for a cold and distant adventure. They set out, it is true, in the highest spirits, and this is because they do not know what battles are, for they were all old service men, and Mons Medal ribbons were worn by a great number of them. Each of the men wears the Polar Star—a white star on a blue ground—as the flash. Their views about the Bolshevik army were expressed in the inscription scrawled in chalk on the doors of the railway carriages. "Who wants a Bolshevik?" and "We are the Moscow trippers." Every soldier at the beginning of every campaign has written cheerful remarks like these on the railway trains. At Tilbury Station things were very gay, and one boy had wrapped the big Union Jack round several of his fellows and danced gleefully round them. The advanced party came first and with them came their wives and children, who camped among the piles of luggage on the wharves and made a picnic of it in the bright sunshine.

AUTHORS IN COUNCIL.

The authors, playwrights, and composers, who held the annual meeting of their combined society on May 13th, have not come to the end of their war-time troubles. The authors are naturally worried by the uncertainty of the prices of novels to-day. The chairman said that morning he had received for review seven novels of equal length, by novelists of equal popularity, which were priced variously at six, seven, eight, and nine shillings. Royalties, it seems, do not always increase with the price. Indeed, when prices began to go up certain publishers informed their novelists that unless they consented to take the old royalty without increase the books would be withdrawn from sale. The society wants Parliament to recognize the existence of authors, and the chairman pointed out that in matters specifically affecting them they were ignored. Bernard Shaw wanted a Ministry of Fine Arts, not because a Fine Arts Minister was likely to be appointed, but because there was no one in Parliament at whom the dissatisfied authors could shy sticks, and a Minister of Fine Arts, the sillier the better, would make a fine Aunt Sally. Sir Rider Haggard vehemently dissented from this view. He said that if once literature got into the hands of a Minister, anything might happen. The authors would certainly be rationed, and on the slightest pretext they might be suppressed.

DREADNOUGHTS ONLY.
Among the two hundred men-of-war which are to be withdrawn from the Navy, mostly for sale, as soon as they have been dismantled, are battleships of the King Edward type, which were completed twelve to fourteen years ago at a cost of £1,500,000 each. These are useless for modern warfare, and even with nucleus crews cost about £50,000 per annum. With them are to go about a dozen older battleships, many obsolete cruisers, and over a hundred destroyers. The Navy will therefore be composed entirely of Dreadnoughts, fast light cruisers, destroyers capable of steaming at 45 miles an hour, and ocean-going submarines. It will actually be stronger, since there will be more men to man the effective ships and more money and labor available to keep them in first-class condition.

Danish Mary.

'Twas Danish Mary picked them up
Out of the air and sea;
A shoddy, trudging lollypop
A-trapping slatternly.
The cry rang north, the cry rang south;
"The vanished—where are they?"
But Danish Mary shut her mouth
And shuffled on her way.
"Ho, Hawker!"—"Grieve!" on flying scud
Called kingdoms and called kings;
But Danish Mary chewed her cud
In drowsy maunderings.
Now "Lost!" cried West, and "Lost!"
cried East.
Till "Perished!" like a pall,
Turned bonfire light and homing east.
More dark than funeral.

And toward the hollow sky rose prayer
And dirge of stepple-chime;
But what should Danish Mary care?
She takes her own sweet time.
And hawls to Lewis Butt: "It's me!
I've picked 'em up—your men."
"What Grieve and Hawker?" Sure!
And she Goes shambling on again.
But lightning engines flash and light
For news that reaps renown,
The jacksies swarm from bay and light
And race to run her down.
And win, and bear her prize away—
While Mary turns to prowl
Once more where slips the dummy,
salt spray
And slaps her on the jawl.
—Percy Mackaye, in the New York Times.

ALMOST IMMORAL IN INADEQUACY.

"The nude in sculpture suffices" is the comment of the Duchess of Somerset in the Weekly Despatch on what is called the "Outrageous dresses now being worn in the British metropolises." Agitation against these extreme styles is growing stronger as some of the newest creations appear. The Marchioness of Townshend describes the prevailing fashion as "almost immoral in its inadequacy," while Paris reports skirts split to the hips. London can retaliate with $125 silk hose to be worn only with clothing that show them. Lady Hastings criticizes the new styles as "Day undress and evening no dress." Camouflage stockings are now appearing with zigzag and sunburst design to be worn principally with ultra short skirts.

Press Briefs.

Billy Goat.—The ex-kaiser had other ambitions, but it seems likely that he will go down in history known as William the Goat.—Toronto Star.

Economy.—Silk stockings cost $10 a pair in Paris, and the ladies are wearing their legs bare in consequence. If the style reaches U.S.—good-bye to the hosiery industry.—Rochester Herald.

A Builder.—Doubtless a goodly share of the punishment of the ex-kaiser is the bitterness of the reflection that he has vastly increased England's colonial empire by forcing war upon her.—Baltimore American.

In the Same Manner.—"A man may be down, but he is never out." But the best thing about the Salvation Army is that it regards women in the same way.—Columbia (S.C.) Record.

An Eye For an Eye.—The Germans declare that no territory should be severed from their country. Do they wish to have a precedent established? The carving knife is almost invariably applied to the carcass of a rathless belligerent. France was rather cut up in 1870.—Montreal Gazette.

Kaizer Takes the Count.—Germany is being shocked and staggered by the unaccustomed truth. For the first time since the war began, and even since the armistice, the people are face to face with facts instead of official outgivings. This is what is making the German people's awakening to actualities so overwhelming and so desperately hard. Ever since November they have been fed on soothing syrup. Now they are being obliged to swallow hard realities.—Buffalo Courier.

WEATHER.

If I could run the weather for seasons two or three, a medal made of leather you'd doubtless hand to me. The climate now presented strikes us as being bad; most men are discontented, and some of us are mad. When sunshine's a bad day, the rain falls every day; the field, by hard work seeded, are drowned and washed away. And when we need some water to save our oats and rye, the sun gets hot and hotter, and crops begin to fry. I'd get my friends together and ask for their advice, if I could run the weather just once, or maybe twice. I'd ask the honest voter, the farmers blue and tired, the weary burden toilers, to toll what they desired. I'd give them what they wanted, a cyclone or some sleet; by precedent undaunted, I'd give it and repeat. The man who runs the weather sits in a tower alone, and cares no fig or feather how weary mortals moan. He has no helpful system, no useful plan in force; though we have often hissed him, he goes his burghouse course; he keeps the punk sun sizzling when we are needing rain, and sends the water drizzling when floods are on the plain. He combes his hand down heather, and runs things hit or miss; if I could run the weather I'd fill your livs with bliss.

Dropping a Hint.

(From Tit-Bits.)
A temperance orator was in the habit of holding forth in a workman's hall and was constantly being interrupted.
The next time he lectured in that hall he engaged a prize-fighter to sit in the gallery and keep order. He was contrasting the clean content of home life with the squalor of drunkenness.
"What do we want when we return home from our daily toil?" he asked. "What do we desire to ease our burdens, to gladden our hearts, to bring smiles to our lips, and joy to our eyes?"
As the orator paused for breath the prize-fighter shook his fist at the unruly members of the gallery and whispered in a loud undertone: "Mind, the first bloke what says 'beer' I'll throw outside."

"See What I Brought You This Time, Mary"

"WHAT is it?"
"Something to make you well."

"I only hope that it will for I have had a miserable week of it."

"In what way?"

"Oh, the same old headaches and sleeplessness. I do not think I ever suffered so much, for, besides the headaches, I had sciatica pains in the limbs."

"Well, I got talking to a man on the train. We noticed a sign on a billboard about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and he began to tell me his experience with this medicine."

"His wife was just like you have been and suffered terribly from nervous headaches. She had tried so many treatments that she had become very much discouraged."

"How long had she been that way?"

"Oh, for some years, but she was completely restored after using the Nerve Food for about two months."

"That seems quite a while."

"Yes, but you must remember how long she had been run down and that it takes time to restore worn-out nerve cells. He said they bought half a dozen boxes at first and before they were all used she had so improved that they felt sure they were on the right track."

"He told me about other similar cases and said that he used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food himself after he had had the 'flu' and it soon put him on his feet."

"Well, Jim, if this only cures me it will be the best present you ever brought me."

"It seems to me that it is worth trying, so I called at a drug store and bought half a dozen boxes."

"I am glad you did and I shall certainly give it a chance to help me."

Flying Death Mystery.

How New Zealand's Sheep Farms Are Being Ruined.
The New Zealand authorities are fighting one of the most remarkable birds in existence, the Kea, for unless they do so the bird threatens to kill off thousands of sheep and ruin
the New Zealand sheep farmer.
The Kea is a kind of parrot, a little smaller than a rook, with an extremely long beak and claws, for its size. Between thirty and forty years ago there were very few of these birds in New Zealand, but since then it has spread until it is one of the commonest birds in the island, especially where there are sheep.
It attacks sheep day and night, and at one farm alone, these birds killed no fewer than seventy sheep in one single night. Hundreds have been shot and many of the big farmers offer rewards varying from five shillings to ten shillings for every one killed, but the more they are killed

the more the birds seem to thrive.
The extraordinary thing about the bird is that the male bird cannot be distinguished from the hen, and no nest has ever been found. No one is able to say where the bird breeds or when, nor has anyone seen any young birds. The organized attack, now being made on the sheep-killing parrot will probably bring to light one of the most remarkable bird mysteries in the world.

and caught the thief out in the coun-plane patrols will be absolutely es-

And waited it serenely proud!
Remember well whose order, "KILL!"
Gave him the awful brand of Cain;
Then think of her, the noblest slain,
Brutes! They are unrepentant still!

Remember, always, can we give More to a name that never grows old—
Her Cross of Red a Cross of Gold
When old wars die and young men live!

The MARTIN-SENOUR Co.
LIMITED.
GREENSHIELDS AVENUE, - - MONTREAL.

A Precocious Youngster. Fish is Better Than Meat Kindly Forethought.

Baked Salmon Without Dressing.
Three pounds of salmon; rub well
inside and out with salt and pepper;
cover with flour and add enough hot water to bake. Baste when necessary.
Serve with sauce.

BROILED HALIBUT.
Tie the fish up in a cloth and plunge into salted boiling water; boil very slowly, allowing eight minutes to the pound. When about half done, add a little lemon juice or vinegar.
When done, drain, dish carefully and pour drawn butter over it.

Salmon Stuffed Hot Rolls.
Bake ordinary full crust rolls. Use one roll for each person; cut off the tops of the rolls, scoop out the crumbs, brush inside and outside with melted butter and put in a hot oven until they are a delicate brown. Make a creamed salmon with chopped parsley and the whites of hard boiled eggs in it. Heat the cases, fill with the creamed salmon, cover and serve.

Scalloped Lobster.
Butter a deep baking dish and cover
the bottom with fine bread crumbs;
put on this a layer of minced lobster with pepper and salt, continue with a layer of crumbs on top. Put on bits of butter and moisten with hot milk; bake about twenty minutes. For a family of six would be required: One quart lobster meat, one pint bread crumbs, one pint hot milk, salt and pepper.

Fish Timbales With Normandy Sauce.
Remove the skin and bones from a thick piece of halibut, chop fine and force through a sieve; there should be one and a third cups pounded in a mortar, adding gradually the white of two eggs, then add one and a fourth cups of heavy cream. Season with salt, pepper and cayenne.
Turn into buttered timbal molds, set them in a pan of hot water, covered with buttered paper and bake until fish is firm. Turn on a sizzling dish and pour the Normandy sauce around them.

LET US EAT MORE.
As illustrating the knowingsness of some of the children attending our elementary schools nowadays, Sir James Yoxall, M.P., Secretary of the National Union of Teachers, tells the story of a little girl, who, on being asked by the examiner, "Who was Moses?" confidently answered, "The son of Pharaoh's daughter."
"Oh, no," corrected the teacher,
"Pharaoh's daughter it was who discovered Moses in the bulrushes."
"Yes, mum," answered the child,
with a significant smile, "so she said."

All the way from Archangel comes a pretty little story illustrative of the kindly forethought of General Ironsides commanding the troops there.
It appears that one one occasion recently he was inspecting the quarters of an Allied detachment, when the colonel in command picked up a collapsible tent-pole from one of the bunks and demonstrated its operation to Ironsides. When he had finished he tossed it back on the bunk.
"Perhaps this soldier's kit will be inspected later by his company officer," said Ironsides, as they started to leave, "and the man will naturally expect to find it as he left it."
Then, halting and facing the colonel, he said, with assumed sternness:
"As your commanding-officer, colonel, I order you to replace that tent-pole as you found it."
The colonel saluted, did as he was bid faced about, saluted once more,
and reported the order obeyed.
Then his features relaxed, and holding out his hand, which Ironsides took and shook heartily, he said simply:
"Thank you, General, for the lesson."

The President's Attitude.

President Wilson has asked Congress to repeal the war-time prohibition law so far as it relates to the manufacture and sale of beer and wine. If Congress acts upon this recommendation the United States will not go dry on July 1st, but will remain wet until the prohibition amendment to the constitution comes into effect in January, 1920. The chances are that the representations of Mr. Samuel Gompers and other labor leaders have had something to do with the president's change of attitude. He has, moreover, been living in Paris for some time—
